Big Blaze at Torch Lake

Cameron Lumber Co.'s
Plant Destroyed.

Shingle Mill, Saw Mill, Residence and Barn. Loss $20,000.

The village of Torch Lake was practically wiped out Wednesday night, the big saw mill and the shingle mill of the Cameron Lumber Co. burning to the ground. As it is not expected the mills will be rebuilt and Torch Lake has no other industries of the kind, the loss of the mills is very nearly the death knell of the town.

The shingle mill caught fire about 10 o'clock, and quick as a flash the entire mill was in flames. The fire spread to a large barn belonging to the same company and then to the large sawmill which was also lost. Both mills were closed down for the season, and no watchmen were kept.

The barn contained about 17 horses, a quantity of hay, and buggies, wagons, etc. Fifteen work horses were gotten out, but two drivers and the other content of the barn were lost. The two horses lost were in another part of the barn from the draft horses and it is thought they were forgotten in the excitement and might have been saved.

The loss on the shingle mill is set at about $10,000, with insurance of $4,000 the sawmill and barn were worth about $10,000 more, with insurance of $3,000 on the mill and $2,000 on the barn—a total of about $20,000 with insurance of but $9,000. As stated, there is no probability that the mills will be rebuilt.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The high wind made it an impossibility to try to save either the sawmill or barn, though they were some distance from where the fire caught first. The fire was plainly seen by a number of people at that place.

Mount Morris (Ill.) Index: Polo boasts of a man, who, though married fifteen years, kisses his wife every time he leaves home. Oregon has a man who can beat that—all hollow. Though married twenty years, he kisses his wife every time he leaves home, besides kissing the hired girl every time his wife leaves home.

COUNTY NORMAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

On Monday of this week the Secretary of Education received from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction a formal notice to establish the Charlevoix Training School. Acting under a previous understanding the Board have designed Monday Monday Nov. 2, as the opening day for the new school. On that day the County Board, consisting of State Superintendent Fall, Commissioner Chew and local Superintendent Howe, will assume supervision of the school and the organization of the courses of instruction to be followed for the first semester. The school will probably be in almost continuous session from that time with a week vacation at the holidays, in order to close the Normal year within two weeks from the close of the public schools. The law requires all candidates to enter before the second Tuesday of the Normal term. Interested persons who know themselves to be legally qualified need not wait for correspondence, but should plan to be present on the first day at the Charlevoix High School building. The new Normal room is on the first floor.—Charlevoix Courier.

William W. Wallace, a farmer living near Bay Shore, Emmet county, was found dead Monday in the woods half a mile from his house, the entire charge of his shot gun having been received in his chest. He left home about 11 o'clock in the morning to go hunting, and in climbing over a wire fence had accidentally discharged his gun with fatal result. Decedent was a prosperous farmer, 50 years of age and owner of a 300-acre farm at Bay Shore.

IT WILL WEAR AWAY.

So many people delude themselves with these words when they notice signs of kidney trouble. Instead, the kidneys become more and more affected until some fatal malady such as diabetes or bright's disease develops. If you notice any signs of kidney or bladder disease take Foley's Kidney Cure as it will cure any case of kidney or bladder disease that is not beyond the reach of medicine. "I was troubled with kidney complaint for two years," writes A. H. Davis, of Mt. Sterling, Ia. "but two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure effected a permanent cure." Sold by L. C. Madison & Co.

Are you going away for Thanksgiving? The E. J. & S. R. R. will make a one and one-third fare round trip rate for the occasion.

Fourth Annual Hunt is A Success.

Bountiful Game Supper at the Lakeview Hotel.

The Fourth Annual Hunt of the Fish, Game and Dog Protective Association occurred Tuesday and up to Wednesday noon of this week. The weather conditions were perfect and if the game was not so plentiful as in former years it was because of the fact that many were too busy to join in the hunt. There was game in plenty for the supper, however, partridge, quail, ducks, rabbits and squirrels and the hungry hunters thoroughly enjoyed this repast which was prepared by Mrs. Cunningham at the Lakeview hotel.

The HERALD scribe was captain of the winningside and we must say that we enjoyed very much the day spent in the woods. A five mile drive in the bracing morning air, followed by a three hour tramp through the woods sharpened our appetite to a keen edge and we thoroughly appreciated the fine dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Cash. This enjoyment was not in the least bit lessened as we sat after dinner and over a mug of sparkling cider, listened to our host and hostess as they told us many interesting reminiscences of their life as early settlers here twenty years ago. Time slipped by almost unawares and it was with genuine regret that we bade farewell to our host and hostess and started on our return to town.

Others who participated in the hunt also report a very enjoyable day's sport.

A live, energetic, up-to-date merchant, who was sleeping during the Sunday morning service, was startled by the following words in a loud voice, "Brethren, why stand ye here all the day idle?" and unconsciously answered, "because they don't advertise."

A horse tells how to treat a man in the following language: "When a man drops from sheer exhaustion or illness promptly seize an end board or cart and pound him on the head and on the ribs. If this does not recuperate him kick him violently in the body. This treatment will restore him if persistently administered. If a man finds a load too heavy and feels that it will strain him, kick off a fence board and knock him down and hammer him thoroughly with the board, this will give renewed energy and he will make no more fuss. But do not on any account reduce the load, that would look too much like common sense. If a man refuses to drink when you offer him water, don't give him any for two days. That will 'teach him' to be thirsty any time you find it convenient to lead him. It is a good plan to apply the whip frequently on a man who is at work. No matter if he is doing his level best, hit him now and then on general principles. If no whip is handy use a club.—Ex.

Don't be afraid of a little fun at home, good people. Don't shut up your houses lest the sun fade your carpets, and your hearth lest a lamb should shake down some of the dusty cobwebs there. If you want to ruin your sons, let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left on the threshold when they come home at night. When once home is regarded as only a place to eat, to drink and to sleep, the work is begun that ends in gambling houses and degradation. Young people must have fun and relaxation somewhere. If they do not find it by their own hearthstones it will be sought in others, perhaps less profitable places. Therefore let the fire burn brightly at home, ever delightful with all those little arts that parents so artfully understand. Don't repress the buoyant spirit of merriment around the lamp and firelight of home that blot out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day; and the best safeguard they can take with them into the world is the unseen influence of a bright and domestic sanctum.

A good layer of newspapers underneath a carpet will prevent all danger from moths, which have a strong objection to printers' ink and will not come near it to lay their eggs.

GOES TO CHARLEVOIX.

Andrew J. Sufferin, for several years editor of THE HERALD and more recently employed in the office of the East Jordan Lumber Co. as assistant book keeper has been offered and has accepted a position as book keeper for the Charlevoix Lumber Co., and will go to that place to assume his new duties next week. We are sorry to see Mr. Sufferin leave us but wish him all manner of success in our sister town. The vacancy in the Lumber Co.'s office caused by his removal has not been filled as yet.

WILL ERRECT NEW BRICK BLOCK.

Richard F. Steffes, the popular cigar maker, has this week purchased the Josefek lot on Main St. which has remained vacant since the big fire three years ago, and will at once commence the erection of a solid brick building thereon. The structure will be two stories in height, the first floor being devoted to his news stand and tobacco store with the cigar factory in the rear. The second floor will be fitted up for living rooms.

NEW TELEPHONES.

The following new phones have been added to the telephone exchange this week:

Wm. Maus, residence, 22, [3r]
East Jordan Cooperage Co. office, 123.

W. A. Loveday and family departed this morning for Lansing, where Mrs. L. and the children will remain for a few weeks visit. W. A. goes to Chicago for a short business trip.

Ninety-one of the persons who took the examination for embalmers at Lansing recently, passed and 18 were rejected. The latter may take the next examination before the state board of health January 6.

An exchange gets off the following "If men are the salt of the earth, women are undoubtedly the sugar. Salt is a necessity, sugar a luxury. Vicious men are salt peter; stern men are rock salt; nice men are table salt. Old maids are brown sugar, good natured matrons are loaf sugar and pretty girls are the fine pulverized sugar. Pass the pulverized sugar, please."

Sam Tooley, a farmer living north of town, was the victim of a peculiar accident on Saturday last. He was carrying a fork full of hay and stepped through a hole in the banking of the floor. In endeavoring to release his foot he lost his balance and fell, tearing the ligaments of his ankle fearfully. He was brought to town and is now stopping at Wm. Johnson's receiving medical attendance. Considering the serious nature of his injuries he seems to be doing finely.

An exchange of recent date tells of a boy entering a car and leavng the door open behind him when an old man thundered "were you brought up in a barn? Shut the door." The boy did as he was bid, but the tears were seen to trickle down his cheeks. "There, there never mind lad, of course you wasn't brought up in a barn." "That's just it, slubbered the lad, "I was and every time I see a jackass it brings it all back to me."

ONE MAN THAT SHOULD KNOW DENIES LOVE IS A DISEASE

Lorin Farr, head of the largest family in the world, bitterly opposes the theories advanced by Dr. A. C. Cotton, dean of Rush Medical College, Chicago, that love is a disease due to a microbe.

Mr. Farr has had six wives, 39 children, 211 grandchildren and 56 great-grandchildren. He has seen his 250 or more descendants married and bearing children, and then, too, his experience as the husband of six wives, and living with all at the same time, makes him an authority on the question of love.

There is no fine spina mysticism or sentimental poetry in the mind of this father of thirty-five children. His definition of love was unmistakably plain.

"Love," he said, without hesitation,

"love is the natural affection between man and woman that has its foundation in the desire to perpetuate the race. That's love, but oh, how many there are to-day who marry with different thoughts in their minds."

For a few minutes the old man seemed lost in reveries of years long gone.

"Did I tell you that I agree with Roosevelt's views on the marriage question?" he asked. "His thoughts meet mine exactly."

"Love often comes at first sight," he continued. "With my first wife it did. It is not always. Though, that this feeling comes at first sight. But love comes as soon as the man and woman are well acquainted. If they love each other they do not have to keep company for years to find it out."

MONTE CARLO HAS BLACKLIST.

Many People Barred From Palatial Gaming Establishment.

It is usually imagined that anyone may enter the gambling saloons at Monte Carlo and try his or her luck at the tables where roulette, trente-et-quarante and baccarat are played. But the prince of Monaco has made a rule that no resident in his "dominion" is to be allowed admission, and the privilege is consequently denied his "people."

The casino authorities decline admission on their own account to any person who on a previous occasion may have lost all his money at the tables and may have had to ask for financial assistance from them to procure a railway ticket for home.

To secure this money one goes to the office of the administration—which is at the top of a steep staircase—and after signing sundry documents the victim has to sit to a photographer. This photograph is preserved for future reference, and the man who is on this "blacklist" has very little chance of renewing acquaintance with the gilded saloons until he has repaid the debt.

MANY CIGAR BOXES USED.

They Are Made in Millions in City of New York.

"There are something like 15,000,000 cigar boxes used in the United States annually, and about nine-tenths of that number are made in this city, where the trade rivals the clothing industry in point of capital invested and number of people employed," said a leading New York cigar-box manufacturer recently. "The material out of which the best quality of cigar boxes are made comes principally from Cuba, and is known as Spanish cedar. A peculiarity about this wood is that it always retains the flavor of a good cigar. Indeed, some people claim that it improves the flavor, and the reason given for this contention is that it grows in the same localities as the finest Havana tobacco."

He Ate His Own Words.

Not long ago the punishment for libel in Russia was the requirement that the libeler literally eat his own words. A man who published a small volume reflecting on the unlimited power of the sovereign was seized, tried in a summary way and condemned to consume the objectionable words. In one of the public streets the book was severed from its binding, the margins cut off, the leaves rolled up, one by one and fed to the unfortunate author. A surgeon was in attendance to pronounce upon the number possible to give without endangering his life, but he is reported to have set the limit at something like two hundred.

Had the Real Thing.

Among the many fakirs at the Allentown fair last week was one who offered for sale a unique toy in the shape of an automatic rat. A realistic demonstration was the means of attracting many buyers, among whom was a certain Reading man, who thought to amuse his little daughter. That evening to the great delight of the latter, he started the rodent on its peregrinations, when a neighbor's child, who happened to be present, observed enviously, after looking on for a while in silence: "Oh, that's not much. We have lots of 'em at our house, and you don't have to wind 'em up, either."—Philadelphia Record.

Pain's Spectacles.

Pain, the fireworks man, has a gorgeous letter head for his business correspondence, and one of the more prominent legends is "Pain's Famous Spectacles." Yesterday a stranger in town called at the Pain establishment and said to a salesman: "Mister, my sight's been gone back on me powerfully late; I jest thought as how a pair of your famous spectacles might help me a bit. What air they worth?" The salesman, quick as a flash, replied: "Oh, anywhere from $100 to $50,000. Our displays are—" But the old fellow was going out of the door on a trot.

When the Ship Comes In.

Sailing into cupid's land, to come to collect. At the dock he takes his stand, baggage he inspects. Some one tries to hide his heart, keeps it in his boots; Others still would dodge with art heavy tax on suits.

Travelers exhibit fear, smugglers lag behind, till at last they gather cheer. For they had him—blind!—McLauding Wilson in New York Herald.

Human Sheep.

The sheep spirit is phenomenally strong in this country. We all think, act and dress more or less alike, and most of those who think, act or dress differently from their neighbors are considered to be eccentric or wicked. Most of us have to adopt the ideas and customs of the times for our own convenience. That is why "Fashion" is so great a power in our midst.—London Truth.

Sandglass Again In Vogue.

The sandglass is again to be found as a picturesque dinner-table equipment, and the old world timekeepers look quite at home with the antique furnishings now in vogue. Three-minute sandglasses accompany the bronze tea bellows now so popular for breakfast table use. These glasses are employed by many housewives at table to keep the viands from the risk of being spoiled by a fraction of a second over "boiling." They are also liberally mounted and adorn desks and parlor cabinets.

A HUNDRED-DOLLAR DINNER.

A couple of years ago there came to me a beautifully printed invitation reading as follows: "The committee of management requests the pleasure of your company at dinner on Thursday evening. Important plans will be presented relating to the approaching celebration." I went, I saw and was conquered. The banquet was in the interest of an old debt. During the dramatic appeals and after the many courses of gastric endangerers, I remarked that I thought the friends of my department would give them a hundred dollars. The two secretaries in charge of the subject replied that they would help me if necessary get that amount.

Failure. By experience I found my plan for getting the money did not work. One young man told me that I would be in better business if I were collecting money for the debt on his new house. Nearly every one seemed to think I was holding him up.

Then came the following: "I am instructed to write you with reference to your pledge of one hundred dollars. I shall be glad to have an expression from you within a few days so that I may report to the committee. We are in special need of funds at present, and of course nothing would be more acceptable than the money. Very truly yours, Secretary." To which I replied: "The plan I had for getting that hundred dollars has been rattled and it is not wise for me to promise when I can pay it, though I have not abandoned it."

Trouble. When the secretary saw me he looked me of repudiating my signature. At another time I hinted that he was using the lowest form of commercial promotion, jollying, in securing signatures. We had plenty of arguments pro and con. Finally we decided that he should write me a letter such as he thought that I should have written him, and then I should reply to it as I thought he should have written me. This is what he sent me: "Mr. Secretary: Dear Sir—I write you concerning the pledge I made to give or raise one hundred dollars toward removing the floating debt. When I made this pledge, about a year ago, I thought I had a plan whereby the amount could be easily secured. The plan has fallen through, however, and I only succeeded in getting three dollars. I regret very much that I am unable to comply with the conditions of my pledge and must confess somewhat to a feeling of chagrin that I have fallen so far short of meeting my obligations. I still consider myself bound to keep the agreement, however, although I am obliged to ask you to grant me an extension of time. It is impossible for me to say just when I will secure the money but as I am troubled very much about the matter you may be sure that it is my purpose to do this work at the earliest possible moment. Please tell me what you think of this, and I should also be grateful for any suggestions you may make as to how I could go about raising such a sum of money. I have not had much experience soliciting money and not being very well acquainted with your work and the reasons why business men should contribute to it, I found myself handicapped to a considerable extent. Trusting you will appreciate the spirit in which I write this letter, I remain, very truly yours."

The Other Letter. In the sample letter I sent him there were blank spaces left for special information for me from him. The following is the complete letter: "Dear Sir—Your favor of the 6th inst. concerning your pledge of one hundred dollars to the debt fund is received. We are simply experiencing what many others have been through, and I am as anxious to assist you in making your plan to secure one hundred dollars succeed as I am to get the one hundred dollars. In reply to your question concerning the indebtedness which now rests upon us the most of which is funded, would say this was created as follows: The present building was erected on the site of the old building. During its erection our work was interrupted and the membership greatly reduced as there were few privileges to offer. We entered the new building with floating bills amounting to $5,000 and an additional indebtedness of $5,000 was at once incurred in the purchase of equipment. During the next two years the work was conducted on a scale commensurate with the plant. Owing to the hard times the membership was not as large as expected and there was a deficit in two years of an additional $7,500. Every year since then we have paid all bills, including the interest on this indebtedness, which we are now undertaking to remove. Your understanding that the payments were due when all had been secured must have resulted from a lack of sufficient explanation, which I very much regret. The agreement in the subscription book which you signed is certainly very clear on this point. The wording of this agreement is as follows: 'We, the undersigned, hereby agree to give or raise the sums set opposite our respective names toward a fund of $17,500 for liquidating the entire floating indebtedness of — and we guarantee the payment of the sums in equal installments on the following dates: While this is practically the same as a non-interest bearing note very few regard it in the same way and as a matter of fact we would not undertake to collect by legal means in a case like this. But we need not talk about the negative side of this question; you are going to get that money and if we can help you as well as we would like to you are going to make your original plans work successfully. It is easier to get money for some things than for an old debt, which is like burying an old horse. Nevertheless it is something which ought to be done and we can never be truly successful as long as this indebtedness hangs as a millstone around our neck. There are men who like tackling difficult jobs and conquering them. Regarding the reasons why business men should subscribe to our work the following seem to me among the best: First, next to the church and the home it is a great moral force in the community, the value of whose restraining and upbuilding it is impossible to overestimate.

Commercial Value. Every business man should have a part in maintaining such a work. Second it is a work of prevention, an ounce of which we are told is worth a pound of cure. Most business men prefer to give ten dollars to keep a young man from going wrong than to be taxed a hundred dollars for taking care of him after he has gone wrong. That kind of a proposition appeals to a business man. Third, it provides a suitable place for young men to spend their leisure hours. An employer of young men is not worried about the honesty, sobriety and faithfulness of those employees who he knows are members of our work, and spend their leisure time at our building. They are anxious about the young men who patronize questionable resorts and lead a life where the temptation to live beyond one's means is often responsible for loss by theft and defalcation. These men know this and spend much money for private detectives to study the habits of their trusted employees to find out just how they spend their time and money. Finally, as to the methods of soliciting, I would say it is best to ask for what you would like and take what you can get. Most solicitors make a mistake by not asking for a large enough sum and in a way that suggests that they are extending a privilege rather than asking a favor, or perpetrating a hold-up. Try to find men who have money and who are not common marks for every one with a subscription paper. It is better and more economical to cultivate a few intelligent givers for large amounts than a great number of givers for smaller sums. The whole question of getting a mail to give money is an extremely difficult one. Some men seem to be naturally endowed for this work, but it is also clear that others can acquire it. I am confident that if you do not consider yourself in the first class you will soon be numbered among the second. Very truly yours, Secretary."

Correcting Errors. "Not mud dry before brushing it off from your clothing." This sentence is from Spurgeon, I believe, and as near as I can give it. My friend the desk editor of a trade magazine and the bookkeeper were just discussing correcting errors. The bookkeeper thinks you are likely to make things worse by paying attention to errors. There is certainly a right time to do it if it is to be done. The editor recently got a sarcastic letter from a man to whom he had written a polite inquiry regarding an office error. The bookkeeper thinks it is best to ignore errors all you can. If they are likely to cause trouble if not corrected it seems to me the right time and method should be found for correction. The bookkeeper says that calling attention to errors is likely to cause coolness which would not otherwise occur.

But by not correcting some errors you are likely to cause something worse than coolness. That is what I think—what is your opinion?

REVIVAL OF OLD CEREMONY.

Ancient Custom of "Beating the Bounds" Lately Practiced.

This ancient ceremony is supposed to have originated with the Romans, and is a survival of the time when such things as maps and charts were unknown and the landmarks were trees, rocks and posts. "Beating the bounds" has recently been revived at Great Berkhamstead, after being in abeyance for over fifty years.

The parish officers and rural district councilors, accompanied by a number of townsmen and twenty of the Bourne school boys, all armed with willow wands, perambulated the boundaries, touching each hedge, stone, post or building, with the wands; and on arriving at any open space where the boundary was undefined the processionists formed two lines, and, if any stranger was viewed, he or she was promptly brought up and compelled to run the line, being tapped smartly with the wands as they passed.

This was one of the sporting events of the day, for, on seeing the preparations for their "entertainment," many of the victims bolted and were promptly chased over hedge and ditch. At other points individuals were "bumped," either on a tree-stump or on the ground; walls were scaled, water forced, hedges forced, and, in some cases, houses passed through, notably at Ashridge, where the line cut through the mansion of Lord Brownlow. At Harefoot park, the home of Mrs. Smith-Dorrien (mother of the famous general), the pleasure grounds were thus divided, and the venerable chateau obligingly came out and walked the line. The parish clerk was also compelled to run the gantlet, also the parson and the squire, who were bumped six times each, to the great delight of the onlookers. The distance covered was about twenty-two miles.—Sketch.

Pope's Odd Timepiece.

An ancient clock in the form of a planisphere, dating from 1725, is one of the most interesting gifts of the late pope's vast collection.

It was presented to the wife of Philip II of Spain by the mathematician Barde do Facini, who constructed it. The planisphere gives the hours and the minutes according to the Spanish and Italian style, the length of days and nights according to the seasons, the daily position of the sun according to the signs of the Zodiac, the solar and lunar eclipses, the real seasons and the seasons according to astronomy.

Notwithstanding the enormous advance in mechanics since its construction, the movement of the wheels is entirely unknown. When once it broke down no one was found able to repair it.—New York Herald.

Chamois.

American women are much misled when they think this is the animal which furnishes the chamois skin with which they wipe the shine off their faces. They are using sheepskin and paying for it, too, which after all is some little satisfaction.

The Spread of a Fad.

Last week one of Mr. Frohman's stage managers came to him and said: "Mr. X, in our 'Three Little Maids' company, has left his wife and gone off with a girl who does a song and dance turn in a variety show." "Another case of abandoning legitimate for vaudeville," wearily said Mr. Frohman.—New York Times.

Sardine Catch Fails.

Lovers of the sardine will regret to learn that the harvest of the sea has failed entirely of late so far as that fish is concerned. One firm in London is accustomed to receive consignments of the value of several thousand pounds, week by week, from one house alone, but lately not a single tin has arrived, for the simple reason that the catches have been nil.

Swiss Chocolate.

Swiss chocolate is exported to almost every country in the world, in spite of the fact that all the raw materials, including sugar, are being imported.

MISER'S CHART IS MISSING.

Paper Showing Location of Buried Wealth Suddenly Disappears.

The recent settlement and distribution of the estate of Joseph Conatser a miser, has again set the people of Whitman (Wash.) county guessing as to what became of a chart showing the location of various pieces where Conatser had buried his money. Just before death Conatser gave Thos. Keyes, his closest friend, a plat which contained a number of marks, dots and figures, and pointing from the window of his cabin, showed the spot where much money was buried. In an old tin can the latter found $200 in gold coin. Conatser gave Keyes to understand that each spot on the chart marked a place where the coin was concealed.

When it was found necessary to move the old man to a hospital this chart and his other papers were sewed inside of Conatser's vest. After his death all the papers were turned over to the chart, with the exception of the chart.

The mystery which surrounds the lost chart may never be explained, and the accumulations of Joseph Conatser, the Sunset miser, may remain buried forever.

Victory Due to Lost Key.

An amusing incident occurred at Cuxhaven during some landing maneuvers which were being carried out by the German fleet.

An adversary's fleet was supposed to be attempting to force the entrance to the Elbe, which was defended by troops on shore. The first attack of the "enemy" had been repulsed during a severe storm. The troops on shore retired to their bivouac, and to protect the rifles from the rain, which was coming down in torrents, they locked them up in a small wooden house.

Suddenly the alarm sounded, but on rushing to get their weapons the key of the house was not to be found. When after considerable delay, the rifles were distributed, it was found that the "enemy" had forced the entrance and thus gained the victory.—London Mail.

Why He Was Not Surprised.

Glen MacDonough, who wrote the libretto for the comic opera "Babes in Toyland," was sitting in a New York cafe recently with Victor Herbert, the composer, when a waiter approached to take his order. The waiter smiled at Mr. MacDonough and said: "You don't remember me, do you? I used to sing in one of your companies." "I remember you very well," said Mr. MacDonough. "Are you surprised to see me here as a waiter?" asked the other. "Not a bit," replied the librettist cheerfully; "you know, I have heard you sing."

PREACHER TELLS FUNNY STORY.

Dr. Parkhurst Narrates Anecdote of a Converted Savage.

Dr. Parkhurst delivered himself of a story in the course of his sermon in the Madison Square Presbyterian church at New York on a recent Sunday. This is the story:

"An African chief became converted and moved to London, where he wore fashionable clothes and behaved in every way as an irreproachable man. One day he was giving a lecture in a church on the advantages of a peaceful, civilized life. His collar did not fit well, and in attempting to adjust it he tore open the buttonhole.

"The ripping shirt band brought back all his old savagery, and he shouted out that civilization was all a sham, and he wished he was back in his old life. Whereupon he pulled off his collar, his coat and trousers and finally stood in the garb of the unadorned savage. Then he set fire to the church and took to the woods.

"If his buttonhole had been a little stronger," added Dr. Parkhurst, "he would probably have remained an irreproachable man the rest of his life. That's the way with much of our civilization and virtue. A very small thing will reveal the real conditions."

Denounced by Dying Woman.

A dramatic scene was enacted in a dingy room of a New York East Side tenement, where an aged woman in her dying moments identified Patrick Shea as the murderer of William McMahon. The crime was committed last May, and was a typical Cherry Hill murder. Shea ceased and after a long chase was run down in Philadelphia. Mrs. Catherine Brown, who had known Shea from childhood, was the only witness, and she could not go to court, so the court went to her. Propped up by pillows, she told the magistrate that she saw Shea, who stood manacled beside the bed, walk up behind McMahon and deliberately shoot him down. Cross-examination failed to change her statements, and she finished by roundly denouncing Shea.

"Your mother," she exclaimed, shaking her head at him, "was a decent woman. Be off; I never want to see you again."

Wealthy Residents Displeased.

Wealthy persons who own estates in and about the fashionable Tuxedo Park colony, near New York, are not at all pleased at the announcement that a convent of Sisters of the Good Shepherd is likely to be established near the park. Negotiations are practically closed for the sale of a large piece of property adjoining that of E. H. Harriman to a syndicate, which for the present will hold it in trust for the Catholic order named. An old mansion is to be remodeled and turned into a school for girls whom the sisters are trying to reform.

THE PRESIDENT'S THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

On Saturday last President Roosevelt issued his annual Thanksgiving proclamation in the following terms:

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

—A PROCLAMATION.—
The season is at hand when, according to the custom of our people it falls upon the president to appoint a day of praise and thanksgiving to God.

During the last year the Lord has dealt bountifully with us, giving us peace at home and abroad, a chance for our citizens to work for their welfare unhindered by war, famine or plague. It behooves us not only to rejoice greatly because of what has been given us, but to accept it with a solemn sense of responsibility, realizing that under Heaven it rests with us ourselves, to show that we are worthy to use aright what has thus been entrusted to our care.

In no other place, and at no other time, has the experiment of government of the people, by the people, for the people, been tried on so vast a scale as here in our own country in the opening years of the twentieth century. Failure would be not merely a dreadful thing for us, but a dreadful thing for all mankind, for it would mean loss of hope for all who believe in the power and the righteousness of liberty. Therefore, in thanking God for the mercies extended to us in the past, we beseech Him that He may not withhold them in the future and that our hearts may be roused to hold steadfastly for good and against all the forces of evil, public and private. We pray for strength, and light, so that in the coming years we may with cleanliness, fearlessness and wisdom, do our allotted work on this earth in such a manner to show that we are not altogether unworthy of the blessings we have received.

Now, therefore, I, Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving Thursday, the twenty-sixth day of the coming November, and do recommend that throughout the land people cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks unto Almighty God for His manifold mercies.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT
By the President.

JOHN HAY,
Secretary of State.

School Notes.

Visitors are always welcome.

Glenn and Clarence Orser have entered the High School.

Miss Madge Nicholas has returned to school after a brief illness.

Roy Baylis has returned to school after an absence of several weeks.

For science work Miss Campbell's pupils are studying the pumpkin.

A new dynamo and other apparatus have been added to the laboratory equipment.

A new flag has been purchased by the fourth grade, and will decorate their room in the near future.

Mr. Catton was a welcome visitor in the High School of last week. He gave a brief but interesting talk to the students.

Owing to the fact that our football team is so much heavier than the Mancelona team, the latter would not play us here last Saturday as was expected.

Mr. Tice has arranged a new method for drawing library books which is much better than the old plan. It consists of a card indicating the name of the student, grade, and number of book drawn.

The following pupils have not been absent or tardy during the month ending Oct. 30th.

SCIENCE OF BUILDING.

Exactitude Which Characterizes the Construction of Skyscrapers.

Many of the great steel structures that are being built in every city are planned and molded in some distant city—like the material for Solomon's temple of old—hundreds of miles away. It is in some rolling mill town of Pennsylvania that most of the gigantic frameworks for the modern skyscraper are built. All that remains to be done is to put them together, and the building rises up like a house of blocks.

Every piece is fitted together and numbered before it is taken away from the steel mill. So exact are the measurements that not even the drilling of a hole is necessary for fitting the rivets which fasten the plates and girders together. The watchlike precision with which these parts are made was shown in the construction of one of these buildings which is now being erected in Chicago.

One of the large cross girders was missing in the framework of the second floor, and, though it did not interfere with the placing of the framework on all sides and above it, the contractor was worried to know what had become of it. When the framework had grown as high as the sixth or seventh story and the missing piece had not yet been found around the railroad yards or heard of from any other source he wrote to the steel mill, describing it as closely as possible, ordering that it be duplicated.

By the return mail he received the following reply:

As ground space is more valuable in Chicago than here in the country, we are storing missing girder for you. We knew that you would need a steel derrick on that floor and kept the girder out so you would have room. Will ship it after the remaining stories have been completed.

The mill men had figured correctly on the building hundreds of miles away, and the girder could not have been placed in position even if it had been on the grounds on account of the derrick.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Ice.

The words of the friendly counselor to the ambitious youth, "Beware the awful avalanche," might have been amplified to include a warning against the snow and ice through which he bore his excelsior banner. If he was a typical American youth he would be quite sure to use it to cool his drinking water and any articles of food which are more palatable cold than hot. This is the national habit, and it is said to be spreading over Europe as well. Probably no bacteriological fact is better established than that much of the ice of commerce is dangerously impure. The assumption that water purifies itself in freezing was long ago shown to have but a limited basis in truth. The individual crystals are likely to be purer than the mother liquid from which they are formed, but ice is a mass of crystals in which may be entangled all kinds of impurities.—New York Times.

Pepys on Copyright.

Samuel Pepys in his famous diary takes occasion in one entry to unbuckle himself thus:
"Moreover, I am overborne with grief, seeing that I, who must fain withstand bickerings at home and banter abroad in my walks from Seething Lane to the Navy Office, receive no gain from the publication of this my Diary. My pouch is in no wise enriched thereby; yet many, methinks, do ride in fine coaches and keep open house by reason of my unconsidered Book, all so simple and innocent. It galls me to be told by my attorney (a shrewd knave and fairly honest as attorneys go) how this law of Copyright holds me powerless to gain a ducent for mine own enrichment, which makes me mad. The parliament men might well consider to amend so harsh a law of Copyright."

In fact he and Heston, also of Michigan, are reported to have played the best football ever seen in the West. Minnesota fully lived up to her reputation for dirty playing, her fiercest attacks being directed against Maddock and Heston with the evident intention of putting them out of the game. They did not succeed in this however, though several of the Minnesota players were unable to be in the game at the finish. The final score was a tie 6 to 6, Heston with "Big Joe" ahead for interference making the final touch-down for Michigan. Maddock also showed up well at punting, which he has been practicing of late.

DOING WITHOUT.

There's beautiful art that is sadly neglected. And daily I wonder to see it rejected. By some who'd be healthy and wealthy and wise. By just condescending to open their eyes. And look at things fairly with never a point. I refer to the fine art of doing without.

Can't do as you like? Then do as you can. I'm sure you will find it the very best plan. Can't have what you want? Take what you can get. No better device has been patented yet. 'Tis the bravest and blithest and best way by far. Not to let little losses your happiness mar. 'Tis an art that needs practice, of that there's no doubt. But 'tis worth it—this fine art of doing without.

LITTLE HALLELUJAH'S CONVERT

PART 3 By ALVAH MILTON KERR Copyrighted by S. S. McClure Co. In Three Parts PART 3

(Continued.) That evening he passed along Main street on the less frequented side. A larger crowd than ever was at the old point of meeting. In their midst he saw Hallelujah on the speaker's box, a white bandage across her forehead, preaching with a glow of light on her face. The town marshal stood, not far from her, a cordon of big-shouldered men from the railroad shops stood about her, men who had sworn that Round Hill should not be again humiliated by having a woman stoned in its streets. Shandon tried to listen, but could not for the tender, aching, strangling thing at his heart. "God bless her; she is greater than any man," he faltered, and went onward, out through the town into the still valley, under the big white stars. At seven in the morning he mounted the 99, and took the express east, and the drama of Muley Fork was played under that span of the sun.

Shandon went carefully. "His train should have been at Midgley at 11:30; it was 2 in the afternoon when they made the Grand. A chaos of ice lay piled against the center pier of the bridge. Shandon got down and walked across. Momentarily tremors, rain through the iron structure, but it seemed firm. Above the bridge the river had a heaped, swollen look, and was filled with grinding masses of ice. Shandon mounted the engine, and pulled slowly across. The last coach had hardly left the eastern span when, with a tearing crash, the span broke from the crumbling center pier and plunged into the flood.

At Midgley they found a red signal out and a freight train on the siding. Looking eastward they saw the cause: Muley Fork, mad with its burden, was pushing a moving, grinding ridge of ice clear across the track into the northern canyon wall. Looking up the mountainside, they saw the whole front of the reservoir streaming a long veil of glittering glass. Would the dam hold? What if the snow on the steep, open slope to the left of it should break and sweep into it, irresistible in force, incalculable in weight? The Grand, freed in a measure at the bridge, was climbing its banks, momentarily backing up from the ice gorge at the mouth of Muley Fork. Midgley and the express and the freight lay in a frightful trap.

Shandon got down and looked about him. The conductor came running forward. There were crying and hysteria along the track. A hundred people or more, the populace of Little Midgley, were waiting for the train. Six or seven sick persons, on improvised stretchers, lay on the platform. There were three sick people on the train. What was to do? The bale and strong might possibly escape up the mountains; but the reservoir

"I seem to see—somehow—a little," he said desolately. "I want only you." and the snow, the women and the children, and—the sick.

"We must clear the gorge and take 'em over Angel Pass into Peaceful Valley," said Shandon, half to himself. "Lots of folks goin' to lose their lives here. To think of the sick and helpless and any sort of people in trouble. Say, Phil," he shouted to the engineer of the freight, "run down ahead and let me kick my train in on the siding; then you hook on to the coaches and stand ready to follow me through. I'm going to cut the ice-pack in two."

The conductors of the freight and passenger both protested. Nothing but destruction for the engine and death for the man who drove her could result, they declared. But Phil Lyon, chewing hard on a piece of tobacco, said coolly: "All right, Nat—only you'd better let me buck the ice first."

"No, I have the right of way; it is my duty, not yours, Phil. (Pull down quick and let me kick in. There will be forty feet of water in this gulch in twenty minutes if that gorge ain't broken," said Shandon.

Then there was wild hurrying, the clashing of drawheads and the hissing of steam, rough shouting and crying, and moans from the sick who were being carried abroad. The Grand was tipping the rails of the main line, its waters heaped with groaning and grinding windrows of ice, as Shandon backed the great 990 for the charge. He sent her back clear to the fallen bridge before he reversed for the terrible charge. Ridley had gotten off at the station, and Shandon sat alone in the cab. There was a babble and clamor of echoes through all the canyon. He drew in his breath, and held it an instant, then threw the throttle wide. The huge engine leaped forward with a roar from stack and exhausts. Beautiful and mighty she swept down the perilous stretch, her iron skull set for the mountain ridge of ice. What the people heard as he passed was a long roar of thunder; what they saw was a glimmering monster flash by with a gray iron face at the window. Then there was a booming crash, a great gush of water and ice blocks in the air, and the monster was gone.

"No, I have the right of way; it is my duty, not yours, Phil."

Lyon opened his engine's valves and the express rushed after her, plowing onward through water and crashing ice into open ground. What Lyon did not see some one on the rear coaches saw, a sublime and terrifying spectacle on the mountain side—the smoking rush of a thousand tons of snow into Midgley reservoir. With the impact half the water of the inclosure seemed to gush outward over the dam's crest like a gigantic silver banner, bending downward as the structure burst. And tiny Midgley? Well, no human life was there.

They found Shandon's engine 300 feet beyond the ice pack, lying on her side. Stack, bell, sand tank, cab—everything was gone. Battered and stripped she lay, a hissing wreck. They pulled Shandon from some wreckage rearward from the engine. He was hurt beyond mortal help. As he hung in Lyon's arms he spoke but once. "Tell Hallelujah," he murmured, "the little captain—back in Round Hill—you know—tell her I tried to love and save 'em all—but I—loved her—the—best."

That was all. They laid him on cushions in the baggage car and pulled onward around the curve up Tudor Gulch, over Angel Pass, and down into Peace Valley.

Smart Tramp While walking up Eighth street one afternoon not long ago, says a Philadelphia real estate agent, I was stopped by a man who had the appearance of being a tramp.

"Say, mister," he said, "have you two nickels for a dime?"

I took out my pocketbook and found I had the required change.

"Yes," I replied, "now where is your dime?"

"Oh," he answered, "I don't want any dime changed; but I'd be much obliged if you would give me a nickel to buy a cup of coffee. Every other person I asked said they had no change."

MANY USES FOR COAL.

Fuel Not the Only Purpose for Which It Is Employed. The jet which jewelers use is nothing but coal of a very compact nature. In a Welsh country town there may be seen a foot-bridge made of coal, originally intended to be only a temporary structure, but found of sufficient strength and firmness to warrant its being used as a permanent footway. At Barcelona, Spain, there was constructed in 1888 a lighthouse of compressed coal blocks. A portion of the southern English coast, at a small point called Kimeridge, circular shale disks with a square hole (very much like Chinese "cash") have been turned up by the plow. Curious geologists who heard of the disks found that they were nothing but coal money, for it seems that in ancient England, in pre-Roman days, coins or tokens of coal shale were quite common and were perforated in order to be strung together (like Chinese "cash") that they might be more conveniently carried. Not the least curious of the many applications of coal is coal porcelain. Coal flower vases, milk mugs, plates and saucers, book covers, clock frames, wash basins, inkstands, spools for lace work, candlesticks and scores of other articles are made out of coal at factories in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania.

Knew His Time Had Come.

The East Side teacher was talking glowingly of her work. "Yes, they're rather tough little customers, these schoolboys of mine," she said, "but they're made of the right stuff. I had one boy who was the torment of my life. There was not any mischief under heaven that he did not think of until I told him finally he would be expelled if he misbehaved again. It was not long before he was up to more mischief, and I sternly summoned him to my desk, resolved to rid the school of him. But he pleaded so hard that I let him stay. Again and again that sort of thing happened, and I yielded to his plea for 'another chance.'

"I went to Charley's house last Thursday to remind him that school was to open soon, and I hoped to see him back. I found the little fellow dangerously ill. In fact, there was no hope for his recovery. Nevertheless his mother let me see him and she whispered to me that Charley knew he was going to die. I talked with him a little while, trying to cheer him up by saying that I expected he would be back in school in a couple of weeks. He smiled at me bravely and said: "'No, teacher, I s'pect I don't get another chance dis time.'"

"And he didn't." The little fellow died the next day.—New York Press.

The World's Way.

He wrote the book into a book. The world refused to turn. And look. He made his faith into a rhyme. And still the world could spare no time. But on the day when drums and dazed. Despairs, condemned, and blind, and crazed. By means most wondrous he took. He held the world brought out his book. —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Dust on Electric Wires.

It has been noticed that dust has a tendency to collect on electric light fittings and wires, and on walls and ceilings near them. The cause is believed to be two-fold—partly the influence of air-currents induced by local heating, and partly the electrification of the dust particles, which, when floating in a room, are attracted to the electric conductors on the non-earthed side of an earthed system.

HABITS OF JAPANESE SAILORS.

Simple Characteristics of the Mikado's Fighting Men. Japanese sailors on the mikado's warships are thus described by Archibald S. Hurd: "These sailors of the far east take things very much as they find them, with a stoical calm. They face danger with much the same spirit with which they take their pleasure; and in spite of the rapid strides which civilization has made in their country their luxuries are few and they are contented and happy. They are devoted to simple sports, to fencing and to acting; no one can ever forget the dramatic entertainments on board Japanese men-of-war who has been privileged to witness them. Nor does the memory soon become dim of one of these ships, when decked out in gala dress, with chrysanthemums, cherry blossoms and other blooms typical of Japan enlivening the grim aspect of the decks. The men are adepts in the making of imitation paper flowers, which so closely resemble the handwork of nature that at a casual glance one hardly notices the deception."

Cause and Effect.

Dr. Francis R. Lane, until lately director of the high schools of Washington, is fond of repeating the following extract from a composition submitted to him for approval during the days when he was a worker in the school-teaching ranks. The extract runs as follows: "Beings are divided into names according to that which they feed on. The lion eats flesh—the lion is carnivorous. The cow eats grass—the cow is herbarious. Man eats everything. Therefore man is omnivorous."—Saturday Evening Post.

The McBride Case Again.

St. John, Kans., Oct. 26.—Mr. and Mrs. William McBride and Jesse L. Limes, M. D., have gone before Mr. George E. Moore, Notary Public, and have sworn and subscribed to written statements confirming the story of the awful illness and subsequent cure of the little son of Mr. and Mrs. McBride.

Dr. Limes is particularly emphatic in his statement, and there does not now seem to be any room for doubt as to the fact that Dodd's Kidney Pills, and nothing else, saved the little boy. "It was so bad that he had epileptic spells which seized him with increasing frequency. He was semi-paralyzed in the right side, and his mind was badly affected.

In their sworn statement, Mr. and Mrs. McBride say: "The very day we began to use Dodd's Kidney Pills our boy had twenty-seven of these epileptic spells or fits. In less than a week he ceased having them entirely."

The case has caused a great sensation in the neighborhood. The sworn statements have confirmed the whole story.

MIGHT MAKE A STATESMAN

"Uncle Joe" Thought "Youngster Showed All the Symptoms."

A woman who lives at the hotel where "Uncle Joe" (Cannon) always makes his home while in Washington was recently talking to the next speaker of the growing incorrigibility of her "youngest son." "I don't know what has come over little Dick," said the worried mother. "Do you know, he is forever ineking his playmates to all manner of mischief. Then he leaves them to fight it out among themselves." "Well," remarked "Uncle Joe," with a grim smile, "I wouldn't be excessively anxious on his account. Let him alone. It looks as if he might have the making of a statesman in him some day."

In Praise of the Apple.

The apple is the most democratic of all fruits. The pomegranate is priestly; the grape is royal; the orange is luxurious; the peach and pear are plutocratic, but the apple belongs to the populace. It is symbolic of the country store and the corner grocery. It breathes the free spirit of the American township and village. It has a flavor of old New England and yet a pungency as of the South and the middle West. It is mild, palatable, nourishing and promotive of good fellowship and long life.—Atlanta Journal

BUSY DOCTOR

Sometimes Overlooks a Point. The physician is such a busy man that he sometimes overlooks a valuable point to which his attention may be called by an intelligent patient who is a thinker.

"About a year ago my attention was called to Grape-Nuts by one of my patients," says a physician of Cincinnati.

"At the time my own health was bad and I was pretty well rundown but I saw in a minute that the theories behind Grape-Nuts were perfect and if the food was all that was claimed for it it was a perfect food so I commenced to use Grape-Nuts with warm milk twice a day and in a short time began to improve in every way, and now I am much stronger, feel 50% better and weigh more than I ever did in my life."

"I know that all of this good is due to Grape-Nuts and I am firmly convinced that the claims made for the food are true. I have recommended and still recommend the food to a great many of my patients with splendid results, and in some cases the improvement of patients on this food has been wonderful."

"As a brain and nerve food, in fact as a general food, Grape Nuts stand alone." Nemo given by Postum (Battle Creek, Mich.)

IN THE AUSTRALIAN BUSH.

Patriotic Story of the Fate of a Lost Child.

Zack Bodo was one of the tender-hearted, ready-handed pioneers whom Mrs. Campbell Praed has described in her book, "My Australian Childhood." When Ryman, the fencer's boy, got lost in the bush, it was Zack Bodo who tracked him for three days and two nights, and brought the little shoe the child had worn and a lock of hair back to the mother, and cried like a child when he gave them to her.

He dug out the boy's grave with his own hands and a tomahawk, and buried him quickly, before the father could get to the place, so that the poor mother might never hear described what he, Zack Bodo, had seen. And because he could think of nothing better, and could not bear to lay what the hawk had left in the ground without a prayer, he said the only thing that came into his mind at the moment—the remembrance, perhaps, of something his own mother had taught him—"Suffer little children to come unto me, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

That was the excuse he made when chaffed at the huts one night for having a prayer-book in his possession. "It was awful awkward," he said, "not to know any words for burying." He could recollect the Lord's prayer, he added, "but that hadn't seemed quite right, somehow."

STRICTLY UP TO DATE.

Lucky Horseshoes Discarded for Pieces of Bursted Tires.

A young woman whose superstition formerly led her to make a collection of picked-up horseshoes, which she wrapped in ribbons and hung at the foot of her couch, over her cheval mirror and upon the walls of her bedroom, has discarded them all and put in their places sections of burst or worn-out tires from the automobiles of her friends.

"So far," she said, "I have not noticed any change in my luck, but I don't expect much until I get my thirteenth section of burst tire. I hope to reach that number before the beginning of next year, which is, as you know, divisible by four."

New Use for Automobiles.

At the trial in Paris recently of an automobilist for fast running it turned out that the offender desired to marry the daughter of the gentleman, his partner in business, who, along with the lady herself, was riding in the vehicle with him. At a certain point in the ride the lover started the machine at breakneck speed, and when the father entreated him to stop he steered the machine for an obstruction, and declared he would slow up only on condition of being promised the girl's hand in marriage. When stopped by the police and taken before a magistrate the lover was fined a small amount. The wedding is to be celebrated shortly.

Wild Woman in the Alps.

The discovery of a wild woman of the mountains in the Bernese Alps is reported. She was found by an English hunter in a lonely spot more than 10,000 feet above the level of the sea, starving and very scantily clad. She tried to escape, and both before and after being fed showed great terror at all persons who approached her. She talked a language which nobody could understand. Her identity is still a mystery, though she is supposed to have been deserted by some band of roving gypsies and to have been wandering in the Alps for many months.

Teach Names of Wild Flowers.

A public museum at Brighton, England, has adopted a custom which should be followed elsewhere. Persons are encouraged to bring in fresh bunches of local wild flowers culled during their walks to one of the officials, who arranges the specimens each morning in glass vases containing water and affixes both the botanical and English name. Thus visitors are made acquainted with the flowers which they have seen growing wild but regarding which they have had no information.

HARD TO BEAR.

J. W. Walls, Superintendent of Streets of Lebanon, Ky., living on East Main street, in that city, says:

"With my nightly rest broken, owing to irregularities of the kidneys, suffering intensely from severe pains in the small of my back and through the kidneys, and annoyed by painful passages of abnormal secretions, life was anything but pleasant for me. No amount of doctoring relieved this condition, and for the reason that nothing seemed to give me even temporary relief I became about discouraged. One day I noticed in the newspapers the case of a man who was afflicted as I was and was cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. His words of praise for this remedy were so sincere that on the strength of his statement, I went to the Hugh Murray Drug Co.'s store and got a box. I found that the medicine was exactly as powerful a kidney remedy as represented. I experienced quick and lasting relief. Doan's Kidney Pills will prove a blessing to all sufferers from kidney disorders who will give them a fair trial."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine, which cured Mr. Walls, will be mailed to any part of the United States on application. Address, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by all druggists, price, 60 cents per box.

Perfectly Safe.

A tourist in Ireland who stayed over night at a wayside inn not frequented by visitors informed the landlord in the morning that his boots which had been placed outside his room door for cleaning had not been touched. "Ah, sure," said the landlord, "and you might put your watch and chain outside your room door in this house and they wouldn't be touched."—Rams Horn.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and in case the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which cannot be cured by local applications, but can be cured by Hildreth's Ear Cure. Sent by circulars, free. Write to H. J. CLEGG & CO., Toledo, O. NEW SHORT STORIES

Change of Front.
An interesting story is recalled of a newspaper correspondent who came to Washington from Pittsburg a dozen or so years ago. He worked for a newspaper which was very bitter in its denunciation of special privileges to corporations, especially to transportation companies. After he had been here a short time he changed his service and was employed by a very conservative newspaper. He then began furnishing an entirely different kind of correspondence.

One of his old friends paid him a visit from Pittsburg and after warm congratulations as to the professional progress he was making offered this observation:

"Tom, I certainly am delighted to see you getting along so well. But I must say that I miss those rib roasting dispatches you used to fire in about the railroads. What is the matter? Are you losing your nerve?"

Tom chewed his cigar reflectively for a moment and then produced a fat pocketbook, from which he extracted a dozen annual passes over various railroads. After exhibiting them he drew:

"Jim, so far as I am concerned the railroads can have the rotunda of the capitol for a roundhouse."—Washington Post.

Treatment For Too Much Talk.
The Duke of Argyll tells this story of Winston Churchill, which shows that the talent for talk developed young in the author and member of parliament:

Some years ago he visited Harrow and, noticing a boy running around the cricket field by himself, asked what he was doing it for.

"WE MAKE HIM RUN THREE TIMES AROUND THE CRICKET FIELD."

"That's Lord Randolph Churchill's son, and whenever he talks too much we make him run three times around the cricket field."—New York Tribune.

Doesn't Appreciate Art.
The sculpture representing Kansas in a group at the St. Louis exposition is a half nude woman with one arm thrown over the neck of a bull. "The woman," comments that high art critic, the Atchison Globe, "has no clothes on except a drapey across her knees and a handkerchief wound around her forehead. The former might be a bath robe, but the latter looks as though she had just finished dusting and sat down to rest. But she has a sickle in one hand, and Kansas women don't use sickles to dust with. And there is the bull. Bulls are not that tame. If it had been a cow on her feet, with a milking bucket under her, it would have been more like. The woman's feet are bare except for a pair of sandals. Our women don't hang around fierce bulls in such attire, but, on the contrary, run from them.

"If the artist insists upon a bull, then he should have a full dressed woman holding up her skirts and running for dear life for a fence.

"We don't understand art. We are glad when we see what is to represent Kansas that we don't."

A Rebel Wife.
Barnstorming Theatians who occasionally have to dodge substantial expressions of displeasure of audiences will sympathize with the claim of a veteran who recently reached the pension bureau. It is a story of domestic infelicity and opens up a field of vengeance for those who keep in touch with poultry products. The claim is made in a letter that indicates a lack of familiarity with the three R's, and it contains this brief, succinct proposition from the battle scarred servitor of his country:

"I got blood poison by being hit with a hens egg when I came back from the front. The egg was not good when you send my pension I want the Deed made so my wife can't get none of it—she throve the egg. She war a rebel."—Washington Cor. New York Tribune.

A Sweet Compliment.
On one occasion as Mme. Melba was coming out of her room in a New York hotel after some hours' practice a lady who was staying on the same floor approached her and said: "Pardon me, madam, but I think you will be touched at hearing what my little boy said just now. He is lying in bed recovering from an illness, and when you began to sing he held up his little hand and murmured, 'Hush, mummie, dear; birdie singing!'"

"An ingenious compliment the Australian nightingale fully appreciated."

Crocodiles in Water.

The crocodiles are thoroughly aquatic in their habits, and their peculiar conformation enables them to attack and seize their prey unawares. Their nostrils, which lead by a long canal to the back part of their throats, their eyes and their ears are placed on the upper part of the head, so that when in the water they can breathe, see and hear, while they are themselves practically invisible. When they dive, their nostrils and ears are closed by flaps or valves, and their eyes are covered by a transparent nictitating membrane. They are further furnished with an arrangement which prevents the water from getting down their own throats when they are holding large animals under the water to drown them.

The dentition of these reptiles is peculiar. The teeth are sharp and conical and are hollow at the base, and each tooth serves as the sheath of another, which will in time replace it. The tongue—for notwithstanding the ancient belief the crocodile does possess a tongue—is fleshy and is attached to the bottom of the mouth. And finally the lower jaw is hinged at the very back of the skull, thus giving the animal its extraordinary gape and also the peculiar appearance which caused the notion that it moved its upper jaw.

Curious Fire Alarm.

In St. Petersburg the arrangement of fire alarms is rather peculiar and decidedly unique, and the fire alarm telegraph is an unknown thing. Instead a fireman is at all times in the tower of the city hall, and he watches the surrounding city to catch the first glimpse of a fire. When a fire is discovered during the day, he runs up black balls on the top of the tower as signals; at night red lanterns are used. The number of the balls or lanterns shows the district or ward in which the fire is located, says a writer on "Foreign Fire Fighters" in Cosmopolitan. As soon as the signal is seen by the man on duty at the engine house he rings a bell outside, which calls together the members of the company, who may be scattered over a couple of blocks. This method is not conducive to quick time in reaching the scene, and from twenty minutes to half an hour is good work unless the fire happens to be near an engine house.

Changed His Mind.

Jinks, like other men, has a horror of infant prodigies as exploited by their proud papas. Recently Jinks met him with:

"Hello, Jinks! What do you think my girl said this morning? She's the brightest four-year-old in town." She said—

Jinks smiled. "Excuse me, old man!" he exclaimed. "I'm on my way to keep an engagement. Some other time."

"She said, 'Papa, that Mr. Jinks is the handsomest man I know.' 'Haw, haw, haw! How's that for precocity, eh?'"

And Jinks replied: "Binks, I'm a little early for my engagement. That youngster certainly is a bright one. Come into this toy store and help me select a few things that will please a girl of her taste, and I'll send them to her, if you don't mind."—New York Times.

Good Paste.

Not every man can make a good flour paste that can be preserved without decay or mold. When such a paste is needed, try the following: Mix good, clean flour with cold water into a thick paste and continue mixing until the flour and water are well blended. Now add boiling water and stir until it is thin enough to spread with a brush. Add to this a spoonful of two of brown sugar, a little corrosive sublimate and a few drops of oil of lavender and you will have a paste that will hold with wonderful tenacity.

In Holland.

Many of the country dames and damsels in Holland look as if they had been brought up on soap and water. Their faces glisten so preternaturally, their pots and pans, the red tiles of their floors, their tables and benches all bear witness so unmistakably to their cleansing ardor. I suppose a fly in the butter they were churning or a mired foot on the boards they have but just scrubbed would be as nearly likely to give them a fit as anything could be.—Chambers' Journal.

"Quite a hand? Why, I was the champion walker, the best runner, the head man at lifting heavy weights, and as for carrying, why, I assure you, I could shoulder with ease a barrel of—"
"Well, love, just please hold the baby for a couple of hours. The nurse has gone out, and I'm tired!"

A New Kind of Tax.

The taxing of fat is a fiscal expedient which is new. A town in Sweden, it is announced, has introduced a municipal tax on stoutness, which appears to be graduated according to the most approved modern principles of public finance. Any one weighing less than 135 pounds goes free, an exemption which would scarcely apply to any able-bodied man. The great bulk of active taxpayers would be included in the second division, which consists of persons scaling between 135 and 200 pounds; they pay $3.12 yearly. As for the 200 pounders, their bulk is rated at $6 up to 270 pounds. Above that point every additional twenty pounds costs the proprietor of flesh another $6.

Now Arsenic is Found in Eggs.

A chemist who has a theory that arsenic is one of the essential elements of every living organism and who is never happy unless he is making tests has just made a series of exhaustive experiments with hens' eggs and as a result claims he found that all parts of an egg contain arsenic in appreciable quantities. He says of the whole quantity found in any one egg two-thirds belong to the yolk and one-third to the white.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Theford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Theford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Theford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever—and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Theford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Theford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to equal it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
for children; safe, sure. No opiates

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?

Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of the many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned.

Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered kidneys. A simple test for kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results.

If You are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

Some Pronounced Incurable
Mr. G. A. Stillson, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has made it such."

Had Lumbago and Kidney Trouble
Edward Huss, a well known business man of Salisbury, Mo., writes: "I wish to say for the benefit of others, that I was a sufferer from lumbago and kidney trouble, and all the remedies I took gave me no relief. I began to take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and after the use of three bottles I am cured."
