The County Fair

To Be Held at East Jordan
Sept. 27-28-29.

The Twentieth Annual Exhibition of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society is four weeks away yet, but already preparations are being put under way to make this the best exhibition ever given here. President D. S. Payton recently canvassed the business places of our city for subscription to partially defray expenses and met with excellent success. The Secretary LeRoy Sherman is bustling every thing that pertains to his office. This week the grounds are being put in condition and the buildings overhauled, the track being one of the principal things taken care of. We are assured of some excellent races this year and a good track is essential.

The races, while subject to change by the Committee, will be practically as follows: Wednesday, Sept. 28; 3:00 Class, County horses, trot or pace, purse $100.00; 2:18 Class, trot or pace, purse $150.00; Name Race, Sir Henry, Tornado, Dick Jerome, Bell Boy, John B., owners to drive their own horses, purse $100.00. Thursday, Sept. 29; Free for all, trot or pace, purse $150.00; 2:35 Class, trot or pace, purse $100.00; Farmer's Race, trot or pace, purse $25.00. The Committee in charge of the races is composed of Charles Hudson, chairman; John Fitzgibbons, W. L. French, B. W. Miller and W. J. Pierson.

Exhibits in various departments promise to exceed those of previous years, outside attractions are being engaged, and in fact everything points to the best exhibit ever given.

Pointed Paragraphs.

The echo always has the last word. Some men's morals descend as their fortune ascends.

Every true lover recognizes the power of the press.

To be agreeable, talk about the man you are talking to.

If a minister votes as he prays, he gets paid for his vote.

When the "ghost" walks, the printer and his best girl ride.

Agree with your wife and you can always have your own way.

Many a man has set up the drinks to be set up, in turn, by the drinks.

Going through the tunnel it is a wise woman that knows who kisses her.

The train caller, although not usually quarrelsome, is always calling names!

Ministers save many young men, but somehow they don't seem to save enough for the old maids.

A man may put all his property in his wife's name, but he must take care of his reputation himself.

A father who is an undertaker is always in luck to give his daughter in marriage to a young physician.

You do not judge a horse by his blanket. Why then make a mental estimate of a woman from her costume.

A man seldom puzzles himself long over the problem of whether he should stay at home and mow the lawn or go to the suburbs and play golf.

A boy in Pennsylvania tried to plug a rat hole with a stick of dynamite and a hammer. "United in Heaven" is the inscription on his tombstone.

Many a lover catches his sweetheart napping and steals a kiss, but this is not a circumstance to what she steals while he is napping in after years.

Save your cigar ashes! A statistician says the ashes are worth one-fifth of the price of the cigar as fertilizer. If this be true the average smoker could raise watermelons on his vest front!

A Chicago man asks a divorce because his wife has a habit of kissing other men by telephone. Osculation over a party line may be entertaining to some, but most people prefer their kisses on a short circuit.

This conversation took place over the telephone line at Richmond, according to the Missourian: "Hello!" "Hello!" "Are you 81?" "No, I'm not 60 yet." "She hung up the receiver like hitting the box with a rock," the Missourian adds.

When a Japanese lady does not desire to receive her lover she sends down word by the maid that she is taking a bath. Being a gentleman, he never advises her to "slip on something and come down!" Remember the fate of the American woman that slipped on the top step!

Ball Game Today.

For the purpose of defraying the expenses already incurred by the fast East Jordan Base Ball Team the East Jordan Locals will play against the Bennett Team on the grounds here this Saturday afternoon, Sept. 3. Game called at 2:00 p. m. The admission will be ten cents to everyone (more if you want to give it) and the receipts will go to liquidate the indebtedness of the East Jordan Base Ball Association. Let everyone turn out and help. Remember we had the fastest team in the League.

Political Pointers.

It is all right for Judge Parker to explain where he stands on the money question, but there is nothing in the convention record to show that his party stands with him.

American voters will hardly forget their experience when they applied the Democratic back-pedal on an upgrade.

Col. Bryan says that Hamlet is his favorite play. Judge Parker probably fears that the grave digger is the Colonel's favorite character in the play.

Silver Democrats must agree with Kuyoparkin in his fear of the final triumph of the yellow peril.

The Democratic solid South will be off-set this year by a Republican solid West.

Even a casual reading of the figures of America's growing export trade will cure any pessimism on the part of those who question the permanency of prosperity under Republican policies.

The Republican party stands pledged to the policy of protecting American industries. The Democratic party opposes this policy without offering anything in place of it.

There is a general suspicion in Democratic circles that Judge Parker would run better if Cleveland and Hill were not so conspicuous on the coaching lines.

Judge Parker's conversion to the gold standard bears a later date, evidently than when he voted for Bryan in 1900. He allowed the New York Democratic convention, as late as last April, to dodge the issue.

The trouble with the Democratic candidate for the Presidency seems to be that he is too radical for the conservative for the radicals, and between them there is still a breach which divides them irreconcilably.

LOOKS DUBIOUS FOR CZAR

HOROSCOPE OF THE CZAR.

At this time when the eyes and attention of the entire civilized world are focused on Russia, the czar and his great army in the far east, the horoscope of Nicholas II. should prove of interest, even to those who do not believe that the position of certain planets about the time of a person's birth has anything whatever to do with the ups and downs of life.

"I was a marine on the Vanderbilt during her 25,000-mile chase after the confederate cruiser Alabama. We left the port of New York in 1862. We took Capt. John A. Winslow to Fayal, in the West Indies, where he took command of the Kebsarge, the vessel that eventually rounded up the prey.

Now he wonders why he has never looked into the thing before. Well, he will go, that much is certain. And so the days from the time that his decision is made are full of the activities of preparation and the nights are sleepless, with feverish anticipation.

A Slip of the Tongue.

The narrator was growing excited as he entered upon the description of the shipwreck.

"It was a fearful moment, gentlemen. We saw that we were lost. The life-boats had been staved in, and there was no way to escape from the doomed vessel. Forward upon the bridge stood our noble Captain, true to his trust to the last, while aft were crowded those of us who still remained alive after that fearful sight.

All things come to an end at last, however, and eventually the ropes are removed and the crowd goes over the gangway with a rush—"single women and families aft, single men forward."

Presently the steamer begins to lurch hoarsely and the crowd on the deck begins to wave hats and handkerchiefs and shout farewells, which demonstrations are returned from the decks of the steamer.

The third-class gang plank is hauled away and after a pause the first-class gang plank goes also.

PASSING FANCIES IN THE WORLD OF WOMEN

To Utilize Spare Corners.
The woman whose family has a penchant for mushrooms will find that it is an easy matter to raise them herself and that for a very little money outlay, if she has a spare corner in a healthful cellar or shed, let her place there some pails containing a mixture mixed with a sprinkling of cooking salt and a little loam. She should procure from a reliable source some bricks of spawn, and after breaking these into cubic inches press the pieces well into the mold, being careful to water them every day or two. The result will be that, in less than two months, she will have a fair growth of mushrooms for an original cost of perhaps ten cents.

Girl's Yoke Collars.
No one of the many accessories of the season is more attractive or more useful than the yoke collar. It makes the plain frock a dressy one. It brings the dress of last year up to date and it is altogether charming in itself. These very pretty models are designed for young girls and afford a generous variety both of shape and material. As illustrated Number

One is made of inserted tucking with a bertha of plain material lace trimmed; Number Two of lace with plain banding; Number Three of batiste with lace insertion and frill; Number Four of inserted tucking with lace frill and insertion; Number Five of plain tucking with bands of beading and frill of embroidery. Each one, however, can be varied again and again and be made to take many forms.

The collars consist of a yoke for each one and a standing collar, which is the same for all, with the circular bertha for Number One. All are finished with hems and under-laps at the back, where the closing is made, and Numbers Two, Three and Five are divided into sections on indicated lines.

Attractive Linen Costume.
A pretty white linen walking suit is made with an open coat. The vest is of button trimming, under which is green linen. The tops of the sleeves are also trimmed with the same material. The skirt is perfectly plain. With it is worn a green linen waist the same shade as the green in the trimming.

Boudoir Confidencées

Bodices are more bloused than ever. Girdles are wide and some of them are high. Hips are tucked, shirred, plaited and much trimmed. Eagle and owl heads top some of the new hat pins in silver or gilt. Rouleaux of satin form one of the fashionable methods of trimming. Taffeta gowns are to reign supreme this summer both plain and checked. Tan-colored linen, with a touch of sky blue, will be much worn this season. Skirts are very round and very full and the majority of them clear the street. With canvas and lawn frocks will be worn double, large spotted canvas and lawn ribbons.

Blouse or Shirt Waist.

Simple waists made full and soft are eminently fashionable and are peculiarly well adapted to the favorite soft and thin materials which allow of much fullness yet make little bulk. The very attractive model illustrated is made of pongee in the natural shade with bandings of Persian embroidery, the color effect being a most satisfactory one, but can be reproduced in net, soft silks and wools and in the many washable fabrics with trimming of either lace or embroidery. The waist consists of the lining which is optional, fronts and back, and is closed invisibly beneath the box plait at the center front. The back is plain, drawn down in gathers at the waist line, but the fronts are gathered at shoulder and neck edges as well as at the waist line. The sleeves are made in one piece each, gathered into straight cuffs, and the trimming straps are extended over them to give the fashionable drooping line. The quantity of material required for the medium size is 4 1/2 yards 21 inches wide, 3 3/4 yards 27 inches wide or 2 1/2 yards 44 inches wide, with 2 1/2 yards of banding.

Mrs. Clarence Mackay's Suit.
They are getting up cloth suits in a very picturesque way. One lovely suit worn by Mrs. Clarence Mackay is a three piece suit in lustrous black cloth. The skirt is a round length with ruffles of taffeta slightly graduated toward the back. The waist consists of an Eton cut very low in the neck, and finished with a deal of nice hand embroidery. The sleeves are half length. And they are cut pointed and finished with embroidery. Underneath this is worn a shirt waist of gray crepe de chine, trimmed with pipings of gray chiffon and pipings of black and white. This gown is pretty as it can be and by no means either difficult or extravagant.

Lace Blouse in Favor.
The lace blouse is becoming more and more a la mode. The daintiest examples are to be had in tanzour and Alencon lace, trimmed with elaborate inlet medallions of cluny lace, fine guipure and embroidered lawn. Blouses in pale shades of buff and cream are likewise to be seen, having wide, deep yokes, cuffs and collars of broderie Anglaise. The colors which are most in evidence are pistache green, pale ochre, orchid mauve and some charming shades of China and wedgwood blue.

Puffs Are the Prevailing Fancy.
One might reasonably have foreseen that the shirtings which have been used so lavishly upon all the frocks this summer would inevitably run into puffs as the season advanced. In Paris the fancy for puffs in everything is running riot; and it must be confessed that while it takes a master hand to manage them the effect is rarely becoming except to very slender figures and then only when the wearer is of gracious height.

With the Housewife

Plush goods, if sponged with little chloroform, will look as clean and bright as when new.

Ammonia is an excellent remedy for the bites and stings of insects. It should be applied immediately, if possible.

To clean nickel, scour with pulverized borax, use hot water and very little soap; rinse hot water, and rub dry with clean cloth.

Have all plumbing painted well with white enamel, not only for sanitary reasons, but to lighten the work of the housekeeper.

When it is necessary to pour boiling water into a tumbler or glass cup, put in a teaspoon first and there will be no danger of cracking.

If a lamp gets overturned water will be of no use in extinguishing the flames. Earth, sand or flour thrown on it will have the desired effect.

With Lace and Chiffon.
Upon a fitted lining alternate rows of cluny lace lined with chiffon and shirred batiste are laid to form a yoke both back and front for a blouse. Little Van Dyke points of batiste embroidery are posed at intervals on the shirring with very good effect. The shoulder line is long and the upper

A SMART LITTLE COAT.

Etons in box style make favorite coats for young girls and are eminently smart as well as attractive. This one is made of old blue velveting trimmed with Persian banding and matches the skirt, but the model is admirable for all suitings and for the separate jacket of silk, pongee and part of the sleeve repeats the design of the yoke. The shirring is released and forms a full puff over the elbow which drops into a cuff finished with a lingerie ruffle. The fullness of the blouse is gathered into a girde of dull black satin, which shows the quaint 1830 point in front.

Fillets of Chicken Breast.
Chop the white meat of a cold roast chicken fine. Season to taste with salt, pepper, a dash of onion juice and a little minced parsley. To a cup of the minced chicken allow a cup of cream, into which a pinch of baking soda is stirred. Rub together a tablespoonful of butter and one of corn starch, and stir them into the heated cream. Cook for a minute, add the minced chicken and cook until very hot. Take the mixture from the fire and beat in, gradually, two well beaten eggs. Pour into a bowl and set aside until cool and stiff. Shape into cutlets, dip each cutlet first into cracker dust, then in beaten egg, then in more cracker dust. Set in the ice for two hours, then fry in deep, boiling fat. Serve with a white sauce.

Box Plaited Walking Skirt.
Skirts made to clear the ground increase in favor week by week and are shown in almost endless variety. This one is exceptionally graceful and combines becoming long lines with abundant flare; the box plaits being allowed to fall in soft folds below the stitchings, which in ure smooth it over the hips. As illustrated it is made of taffeta stitched with corticelli silk, but all skirting, and suitings, materials are equally appropriate, the design being adapted to both the costume and the odd skirt. The skirt is cut in nine gores which are laid in box plaits and conceal all seams. When plaited, bulk over the hips can be lessened by cutting the material beneath the plaits away above the stitchings. The closing is made invisibly at the back, a placket being finished at the center seam. The quantity of material required for the medium size is 12 1/2 yards 21 inches wide, 11 1/2 yards 27 inches wide, or 9 1/2 yards 44 inches wide.

Oven Should Be Scrubbed.
Very few of the tidest housekeepers recognize the necessity of having the oven washed out. Especially after lamb, poultry or fish has been baked, the walls and floor of the oven should be scrubbed carefully with a stiff brush and strong soapsuds, to which a small quantity of washing soda has been added. Pies, cakes and biscuits sometimes have an unaccountable greasy odor due to a lack of this precaution.

Raisin Bread.
To make raisin or currant bread scald a pint of milk and beat into it a teaspoonful of melted butter and one of salt. When the mixture is lukewarm add half a yeast cake dissolved in half a cup of warm water and beat in enough flour to make a good batter. Set in a warm room to rise for eight hours. Beat hard, add a cupful of flour, and work in a cupful of halved and seeded raisins or currants, plentifully dredged with flour. Set to rise until light, then bake.

Most Popular Colors.
For ceremonious gowns the most popular colors are white, wine, mastic, putty and chalk; and all of the new silks and veilings may be found in these shades.

ATHLETIC SPORTS IN INDIA.

Men Are Adept in Whatever Requires Suppleness and Balancing.
As is only to be expected, considering their national diet, the physique of the natives of India will not compare with an Englishman's, though they possess a litheness of form and quickness of eye that we lack, and which makes them among the finest gymnasts and jugglers in the world. Such perfect balancing powers have they, that, even supposing them bereft of the tenacious grasp of foot possessed by all barefooted races, there would be still left much to admire in their skill. Even a slip is of little consequence to such clever tumblers; they seem to have all the climbing powers of a cat. As runners, their staying power is most remarkable; a dak-wallah deems the task of running twenty miles a mere trifle.

It is strange that in games pure and simple they do not display the same excellence, though the cricket of the Parsees is meritorious. Of other native pastimes the one which may cause the most surprise is football, as it seems essentially a game fitted for northern climates only. Yet it is not merely played, but played rather extensively, considering its somewhat recent introduction into the country.

Its growing popularity is still more surprising on account of the hard nature of the ground and the heat of the atmosphere, conditions which scarcely favor either the playing or players. The usual rules and regulations are in force, but the natives play barefooted. —C. B. Fry's Magazine.

No Place for a Dragon Fly.
A big brown dragon fly, floated leisurely into a Sixth avenue department store the other day and zig-zagged its way to the lace counter, where it made one of the myriad pauses so common to the insect and so startling to the spectator unacquainted with its ways.

The pause was made, directly in front of a blue-eyed young woman with auburn hair, rampant, a la pompadour, who stood behind the counter. The blue-eyed young woman was so amazed at the fierce-eyed, quivering apparition that she was speechless; but when the dragon fly, satisfied with its inspection, made a wild dash toward that rampant head, the owner sent up a shriek which at once communicated itself to the other young woman behind that and adjacent counters, until it would have been thought that wholesale murder was being done there.

"Sh!" said some one at last who seemed to know something. "It's only a harmless dragon-fly looking for flies!"

"The blue-eyed young woman with the ambitious pompadour rose to the occasion promptly. With unmasked indignation she tossed her flamboyant head and said:

"The very idea! There ain't no flies on me!" —New York Sun.

Smoked Glasses For Hay Fever.
In Worcester, Mass., there is a doctor by the name of Stowell. This doctor has long been subject to hay fever. In studying his own case he noticed that hay fever came and went in a very capricious manner, and he reached the conclusion that it was mostly a nervous disease. Somehow or other he reasoned himself into the belief that the sun's rays produced hay fever by acting in some way upon the eyes. So he thought to try smoked glasses for the eyes, to see if that would not prevent his hay fever. He reports that the smoked glasses gave instant relief. But if he went out in the sun without the glasses he was sure to have hay fever again. So now he wears smoked glasses and is happy. He has no more hay fever. He says he has tried the glasses on two or three other patients, and claims that the same relief is obtained.

We like to report such cases, because it is seldom that doctors ever admit that any one is cured by anything except the action of drugs. So harmless a remedy as smoked glasses should be welcome, if it be found to contain any virtue. —Medical Talks.

The Lift of the Heart.
When we stand with the woods around us
And the great bounds overhead,
When the wind blows cold on our foreheads
And the breath of the pines is shed;
When the song of the thrush is ringing
Between the trees apart,
Between the sound and the silence
Comes a sudden lift of the heart.

When we seek with the clearer vision
That grief the revealer brings
For the threads that are shot together
In the close-wrought web of things,
And find that pain is woven
Into love and joy and art—
Between the search and the solace
Comes a sudden lift of the heart.

And when life's farthing candle
Gutters and flares and sinks;
When the eye no longer wanders
And the heart no longer thinks,
When only the hand plucks idly
At the sheet till the spirit part—
Does there come between living and dying
A sudden lift of the heart? —Atlantic.

Yet it Often Is.
Old furniture should not be simply "old" and valued as such, but should be an example of the highest art of its period, and the result of application of the mind and time of trained artists in its construction. Its presence in the modern home, or as an inspiration to the collector, is the appeal of the past—that past which reaches out ever to the present and sends its impulse on to the future in art, architecture, literature or history. It is the unconscious bequest of those who have lived, and loved, and planned, and dying left to posterity something for the good of humanity or the beautifying of surroundings. —Harper's Bazar.

CATHEDRAL OF CANTERBURY

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

Americans who are coming to England this year and intend visiting Canterbury will be disappointed to hear that builders have just begun to surround the central tower of the famous cathedral with a huge scaffolding by which its beauties will be completely hidden for probably many months to come. The temporary disfigurement is necessitated by the unsound condition of this portion of the structure, which has made its restoration imperative lest the tower should share the fate of Venice's Campanile. Historically known as the "Bell Harry" tower, this crowning achievement of Canterbury's architect is commonly regarded as the finest example of the perpendicular style of church architecture in England, although the name of its designer has not been handed down to posterity. Its construction was begun in 1472, and it replaced a former tower called the "Angel Steeple," a name bestowed on it because of the gilded cherubim who was perched on the pinnacle. It is 235 feet high and 35 feet in diameter, but such is the dignity and stateliness of the design that it conveys the impression of much larger dimensions.

After Westminster abbey and St. Paul's, Canterbury cathedral is the most highly prized of England's churches, both for its architectural beauty and its historic associations. It originated, it is said, in a church formerly used by the Roman Christians, and which St. Augustine consecrated under the name of Christ's Church when he became archbishop of Canterbury in 597. Enlarged some 350 years later by Archbishop Odo, it was totally destroyed by fire in 1067. Archbishop Lanfranc rebuilt it, but the choir was again wholly burned down in 1174, and to rebuild it a number of French and English artificers were summoned. Among the former was one William of Sens, who turned out to be a man of real genius, and to him the work was intrusted. He died, however, in 1178, before the work was finished, but a worthy successor was found in another William, this time an Englishman, and to him is due the completion of the existing unique and beautiful choir, the choir monial rights and privileges, and determined to set up as head of the English church himself. He despoiled Becket's shrine, getting over a score cartloads of treasure therefrom, erased his name from the calendar of the saints and ordered his bones to be burnt and the ashes to be scattered to the four winds. Whether this was really done, no one can tell at this day. In 1883 a stone coffin, with the remains of a skeleton which some declared to be that of the martyred archbishop, was discovered in the crypt and re-buried after careful examination. A curious mosaic pavement still remains in front of the place where the shrine stood, and in the stone steps which lead up to it are deep hollows worn by the knees of countless pilgrims who there resorted in the old days to plead for the intercession and favor of the saint.

transept and the corona or circular apex, which, under the name of "Becket's Crown," perpetuates the memory of the famous archbishop who was murdered in the cathedral. "Of the cowards that eat my bread is there none will rid me of this turbulent priest!" hastily exclaimed King Henry II, wearing of his long quarrels with the soldier prelate and champion of church supremacy. How four knights overheard these hasty words and interpreting them as a royal mandate, stole into the cathedral one evening and slew the archbishop before the altar of St. Benedict, every schoolboy knows. Under threat of excommunicating him, the church made King Henry pay a heavy bill of ber. The archbishop of Canterbury, at the time of the founding of Kings college, in 1754, was the first trustee of what is now Columbia university, New York. Dr. Davidson will attend the sesquicentennial jubilee exercises, to be held on Morningside Heights next October, and in all likelihood the primate will deliver an address.

Dr. Davidson was the bishop of Winchester when appointed by King Edward in 1903 to succeed Dr. Temple, as primate of all England. At that time he had been a bishop for 11 years, first occupying the see of Rochester from which he was transferred to Winchester in 1895. For many years he has been a prominent figure in ecclesiastical life in England, partly through the personal appreciation of his capacity shown by Queen Victoria, who had him appointed dean of Windsor in 1883. Dr. Davidson's views on the chief matters of controversy in the English church are well known. In the house of lords he has gained a high place among the Episcopal statesmen, especially in regard to social movements, and his zeal in educational matters has often been proved.

Bourke Cockran Gives Illustration as to Success in Public Speaking.

Bourke Cockran was asked by a St. Louis reporter to give the public some advice on the art of public speaking. "A youth," Mr. Cockran answered smiling, "once went with your question to an old Englishman who had made a good success as a lecturer. "How may I become, sir," said the youth, "a successful public speaker like yourself?" "The old lecturer laughed. "Tha wants to be a public speaker do tha, lad?" he said. "An' tha think Av'm the chap to put tha up to wrinkle about it? Tha's right, lad. Ah am. "Now, hark tha. When tha rises to mak tha speech, hit taable an' open thy mouth. damages for instigating that sacrilegious crime. Becket was canonized and his bones were deposited in a splendid shrine in the cathedral, which for three centuries continued to be the object of one of the great pilgrimages of Christendom. Then came along another King Henry, eighth of the name, the much married monarch, who, caring not a button for excommunication, quarreled with the pope on the question of royal matri-

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

It is safe to say that "A Country Kid," H. B. Whittaker's production, gave the best satisfaction of any rural comedy ever playing here. There is not an unclean line in the play, neither is there an ineptable actor. Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette, Jan. 9, 1904. At Loveday Opera House Sept 14th.
A large addition is being added to the store occupied by J. L. Wiesman and owned by D. C. Loveday. When it is completed Mr. Wiesman will have all his large stock on the ground floor and will have far better opportunity to display same. The up-stairs is to be remodelled and fixed up in first-class shape and will be used as a lodge room for the Knights of Pythias.
The Michigan Telephone Company F. C. Warne local manager is putting in some $10,000 worth of improvements in the telephone system in and around East Jordan. A number of cables have been put up, new poles have taken the place of the old ones, and over 100 new subscribers will be added. A force of about twenty men have been at work on same for a fortnight and it will take as long again to finish the work. When the offices are transferred to the new block being put up by Dr. Warne, it will probably be necessary to install two switchboards. This will give our city one of the best telephone systems of any town of its size in the state.

"A Country Kid" is a lesson without being a dogmatic sermon. Its teachings are forced on none who witness it. The play is typically of the West, and is full of merriment. It is rural in theme, full of county folk, homely clothes and provincial conversation, but it has the scent of flowers, the atmosphere of the fields, and the charm of a western village. Although pastoral in theme, it is not without sensational features, including the thrilling leap for life on a bicycle, being the first time this feat was ever attempted in a theatrical production. East Jordan Public Schools begin their first semester next Monday when organization will take place. The corps of instructors is as follows: Superintendent, J. M. Tice, science and mathematics; Preceptress, Miss Isabelle F. McLeese, English and History; Miss Alberta Metzger, Latin and German; Miss Edna Patterson, sixth and seventh grades; Miss Minnie Weipert, fifth grade; Miss Stella Matthews, third grade; Miss Ella Barnett, second grade; Miss Emma Severance, first grade. Oral Misener has charge of the school buildings and grounds this season.

A very pretty little home wedding took place the afternoon of Wednesday Aug. 31st at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Gould of Mt. Pleasant when their daughter Flora was given in marriage to Mr. Allison B. Pinney of East Jordan, the latter's pastor, Rev. E. E. Yost officiating. The groom wore the regulation black suit. The bride was attired in a daintily made dress of silk-almatross. Miss Mae Garberson acted as bridesmaid and Hubert Pinney, brother of the groom as best man. The guests numbered forty-four all of whom, with one or two exceptions, were relatives. After the ceremony a very sumptuous dinner was served. Many useful and beautiful presents were in evidence including silver-ware, a beautiful Morris chair and many other articles. The young couple were not present when the customary musical entertainment prepared in their honor was given somewhat late in the evening. Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Pinney left East Jordan for Cheboygan which, for a while, will be their home. Mr. Pinney having been engaged to teach the school he so successfully taught last year. Our young friends are well known and quite popular. They carry with them the best wishes of their many friends for a long, useful and happy life.

Central Lake is manifesting her usual enterprise and hustle in the arrangements being made for this year's free street fair. This fair has for several years drawn large crowds of people and all who have attended have been more than pleased with the treatment given them by the people of this bustling little berg. No expense is spared to make the three days of the fair enjoyable for those in attendance and it is a wonder to all how such an expense can be met, but met it seems to be for the premiums are always paid on the afternoon of the last day before the exhibitors leave, and we are informed that each year a surplus has been left over in the treasury. This year more money has been raised than in any previous year and it is proposed to furnish more and better attractions than ever before. A program is being arranged that will keep all busy and entertained from the beginning of each day until its close. Among the sports and attractions will be foot ball games, base ball games, balloon ascensions, free shows and other shows besides horse races and other sports and races. It will be well for all who can to make arrangements to be with them on September 20-21 and 22. The East Jordan Military Band has been engaged for the event.

WORLD'S FAIR FAR BEYOND EXPECTATIONS

Verdict of a New York Writer Who Spent a Week at the Exposition at St. Louis in July.

The World's Fair at St. Louis is now in the midst of its splendid season. Colossal, complete, cosmopolitan, it commands the attention of the world as no other enterprise of the present year. From all nations there are pilgrims coming to this shrine, and from all our states and territories there is a constantly growing throng of visitors. United States Senators, Governors of States, men eminent in science, art and letters—all express unqualified admiration for the Exposition and free acquiescence in the oft-repeated statement that this is by far the greatest and best universal exposition ever held.

During July a well-known magazine and newspaper writer from New York, Mr. Addison Steele, spent a week at the World's Fair, inspecting the grounds, buildings and various attractions as thoroughly as was possible in that limited period. Returning home, Mr. Steele, published in Brooklyn Life the following appreciative comments on the Exposition:

In the expressive language of the day, St. Louis "has the goods." I had expected much of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, for I had kept in touch with the making of it from its very inception, five years ago; but after nearly a week of journeying through this new wonderland I must confess that in every essential particular it is far beyond my expectations. The biggest and best it was meant to be and the biggest and best ent parts do justice to their nobility of architecture and general grandeur. Then again in the ground plans and bird's-eye sketches—the only possible manner of showing it—the fan-shaped arrangement of this group looked stiff and unsatisfying. Far from that, it is quite as remarkable in its way as the famous Court of Honor of the Columbian Exposition. In one respect it is even more notable, for instead of two grand vistas it offers a dozen. The main vista is, of course, the one looking up the Plaza of St. Louis—whose crowning feature is the great Louisiana Purchase Monument—and across the Grand Basin to the Cascade Gardens. On the right are the Varied Industries and Electricity buildings and on the left Manufacturers and Education, these—with Transportation and Machinery still further to the right and Liberal Arts and Mines beyond at the left—making up the body of the fan. For its handle the fan has the Cascade Gardens—rising in a grand terrace to a height of sixty-five feet above the floor level of the buildings mentioned and crowned by the great Festival Hall, the Terrace of States and the East and West Pavilions—and the Fine Arts building directly behind.

The Pike has in the Tyrolean Alps the finest concession that I have ever seen. There is a great square with many quaint buildings, a little village street, and above the snow-clad mountains—which look very real as the infinite variety, and as a rule the full money's worth is given. The enormous Jerusalem and Boer War concessions are not on the Pike.

It is a case of dine at the German Pavilion and die at the exposition. In a beautiful Moderne Kunst building adjoining Das Deutsche Haus the best food and the highest prices on the grounds are to be found, the table d'hôte lunch and dinner costing two and three dollars, respectively. There is also a la carte service. Everything considered, the prices are not excessive, and at least one meal should be taken there for the experience. Another should be taken at the Tyrolean Alps, either outdoors or in the gorgeous dining-room in the mountain-side. The best-French restaurant is at Paris, on the Pike. Lower in prices and in every way admirable are the two restaurants conducted by Mrs. Rorer in the pavilions of Cascade Gardens. The east one has waitresses and no beer and the west one waiters and beer. For a bit of lunch Germany, France and England all offer delicious pastry in the Agricultural building. These are not free ads, but time-saving tips for the traveler. There are no end of restaurants to fit all purses on the grounds. I tried nine of them and nowhere found the prices more than they ought to be. As a matter of fact, for neither food nor lodging no one need pay any more at St. Louis than he feels that he can

New Story of Forrest

Edwin Forrest, the tragedian, was well acquainted with a German lion-tamer, Herr Driesbach, and one evening the two were sitting together in a restaurant, conversing upon the subject of fear. Of course any one would be willing to admit that a man who could go alone into a cage of wild beasts was not a person who would be likely to be frightened by anything, but the tragedian insisted that there were people in the more peaceful walks of life who had as little fear in their composition as any lion-tamer.

As a proof of this, Mr. Forrest asserted that never in his life had he known what it was to be afraid of anything.

No doubt of the truth of this statement was expressed by Herr Driesbach, and after some further conversation he proposed that the tragedian should accompany him to his home. When they entered the house a gas-jet was burning low in the hall, and having closed the front door, Herr Driesbach put up his hand to turn on more light; but, apparently by accident, he put it out, so that the two men were "left standing" in absolute darkness.

Exclaiming at his stupidity, the master of the house declared that he had no matches about him, and asked Mr. Forrest if he could give him one. But the tragedian never carried matches, as his companion probably knew, and Driesbach asked him to wait where he was for a few moments while he made his way to the back of the house to procure some.

Left to himself, Forrest stood perfectly still, for if he attempted to move he might stumble over something; and while thus quietly waiting for his host to appear with a match, he heard a curious snuffing at different points around him, and then something cold, like the nose of a dog, touched him on one hand, after which he was brushed by what seemed to be a long and heavy mass of hair. On the bare floor he heard the muffled taps of heavy paws.

He perceived the odor of the breath of beasts. He knew that he was standing there in the dark surrounded by lions, moving freely about him, and sniffing and smelling at him to find out whether they knew him or not.

The blood ran cold in the veins of the tragedian, but he did not move, he did not call out. As if he had been a statue of a man he remained motionless, feeling that if he showed the slightest sign of fear the beasts would be upon him.

Presently it seemed many minutes to Forrest—Driesbach appeared with a match. The gas was lighted, and the pale tragedian saw near him three or four large performing lions who had been quietly liberated from an adjoining room.

"You are a brave man!" exclaimed the lion-tamer. "You have proved you have no fear."

The reply of Forrest cannot be set down here, but he speedily left that house and never entered it again. The friendship between the two men was at an end. Such an unwarrantable test of courage could not be forgotten.—Montreal Herald.

BOOKS NOT IN DEMAND.

English University Students Evidently Are Not Literary.

At the English universities the libraries are so little used that they have become famous as places of unbroken solitude. One year told to illustrate this is to the effect that an elderly fellow of Caius college, Cambridge, got tired of life and determined to put himself quietly and unostentatiously out of the way, so that the world in general and Caius college in particular should know him no more. Being a man with a great love-still for his college, he made up his mind that no scandal should be caused by his sudden departure. So he debated in his mind on the ways and means. His decision was an inspiration. He bought a decent length of rope and hanged himself in the college library. But his hopes were doomed to disappointment. He was discovered a year and a half later.

American Snakes.

There are only few varieties of venomous snakes in this country. The chief of them are the rattlesnake and the copperhead. In the South is to be found a variety of rattlesnake, the diamond-back, and a variety of copperhead that lives around ponds and rivers, called the water moccasin. Farther west, on the other side of the Mississippi river, there are several other varieties of rattlesnake.

JUST ONE DAY

Free From the Sluggish Brought Out a Fact.

"During the time I was a coffee drinker," says an Iowa woman, "I was nervous, had spells with my heart, smothering spells, headache, stomach trouble, liver and kidney trouble. I did not know for years what made me have those spells. I would frequently sink away as though my last hour had come."

"For 27 years I suffered thus and used bottles of medicine enough to set up a drug store—capsules and pills and everything—I heard of. Spent lots of money but I was sick nearly all the time. Sometimes I was so nervous I could not hold a plate in my hands! and other times I thought I would surely die sitting at the table."

"This went on until about two years ago when one day I did not use any coffee and I noticed I was not so nervous and told my husband about it. He had been telling me that it might be the coffee but I said 'No, I have been drinking coffee all my life and it cannot be.' But after this I thought I would try and do without and drink hot water. I did this for several days, but got tired of the hot water and went to drinking coffee and as soon as I began coffee again I was nervous again. This proved that it was the coffee that caused my troubles."

"We had tried Postum but had not made it right and did not like it, but now I decided to give it another trial so I read the directions on the package carefully and made it after those directions and it was simply delicious, so we quit coffee for good and the results are wonderful. Before, I could not sleep but now I go to bed and sleep sound am not a bit nervous now, but work hard and can walk miles. Nervous headaches are gone, my heart does not bother me any more like it did and I don't have any of the smothering spells and would you believe it? I am getting fat. We drink Postum now and nothing else, and even my husband's headaches have disappeared; we both sleep sound and healthy now and that's a blessing." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

LOUISIANA PURCHASE MONUMENT AND PALACE OF VARIED INDUSTRIES.

it is. The exposition, rumors notwithstanding, is quite finished.

One of the greatest, and certainly one of the most agreeable, of my many surprises was the extreme beauty of the main group of buildings. For the simple reason that the camera does not exist which could take in the vast picture as the eye sees it, the early views of the group—a bit here and a bit there—gave a scant idea of the scheme as a whole. Nor did the early views of the ten individual buildings which make up its composition afford, and yet be well fed and housed, if he will use ordinary common sense in making a selection out of the abundance offered.

Hot? Yes, but on the two hottest days of the summer at St. Louis I suffered no more from the heat than in New York before leaving and after returning. Every day of the seven there was a breeze at the fair grounds and it was always possible to find a shady spot. The nights were cool and comfortable.

Thousands of Negatives Made For Millionaire August Belmont.

Among rich Americans perhaps none is so fond of being photographed as August Belmont, James R. Keene being a close second. One New York photographer, whose patrons are mostly wealthy men, has made thousands of negatives for Mr. Belmont in the last few years. One of the largest single orders for prints from old negatives ever received by this photographer came from Mr. Belmont himself soon after the death of his wife. It included a good print from every negative in which Mrs. Belmont appeared. The photographer never guessed how many photographs he had taken for Belmont till then; he found that they numbered nearly a thousand.

Why Birds Live Long.

Why do birds live so much longer than mammals, which are often a hundred times their size? Possibly, among other things, because they have beaks instead of teeth. All carnivorous beasts become weak and liable to starvation, as their teeth drop out or break. Neither are the herbivorous animals in much better case. Old horses would probably die of starvation if, for their teeth would fall them; indeed, in some stony countries old horses are to be killed because their teeth are worn away by cropping grass close to the rock. Rodents constantly die from injuries to teeth. But a bird's beak neither wears out nor drops off, and as it constantly swallows fresh grit to aid in grinding food the gizzard that needs no repairing there.

How the Waiter Lost a Tip.

At one of the Kansas City hotels where the colored waiters give especially good service, but always expect adequate remuneration for the same, from the guests, a waiter was especially officious the other day in serving a man from whom he expected a liberal tip. When the meal had been served and he was standing off at one side, eagerly looking for an opportunity to be of service, he said to the guest:

"Didn't you have a brotahn heah last week, sah?"

"No," said the one addressed, "I be-tieve not."

"Well," continued the waiter, "teh yas a gem'man beah at mah table what looked vey much like you, and he was so well pleased with the service that he gave me 50 cents when he left."

The guest had by this time finished his meal, and as he arose he said to the expectant servant:

"Come to think of it, Sam, that was my brother that was here, and I guess he paid you for the whole family. He may be back again in a week or two."

Church and School for Indians.

Mother Katherine Drexel of Philadelphia, founder and head of the Order of the Blessed Sacrament, composed of nuns who devote their lives to the uplifting of the Indian and negro, has offered $500,000 of her own private fortune with which to build a church and school for the Indians of the Winnebago, Neb., reservation. The only condition is that the Indian consent, and this Father Schell of Homer, Neb., has obtained.

SET THEM ON EACH OTHER.

Belligerent Callers Fooled by Quick-Witted Newspaper Man.

Representative Brownlow of Tennessee tells that once he was running a country paper during campaign times and was printing "fighting" language every week. One day, just after the paper was out, a big man, armed with a club, walked into the sanctum and fiercely inquired if the editor was in. The frightened Brownlow had wit enough to answer that he was not, but that he would go out and hunt him up. He started for the street and at the foot of the stairs met another irate fellow, who asked: "Will I find the editor of this dirty sheet upstairs?" "Yes," said Brownlow, "he's up there at his desk just itching for a fight." The second man went up and Brownlow disappeared, which whipped the other is not related—and Brownlow didn't go back during the day to find out.

Ancient Phases Corrupted.

Ancient Phases in England were called by the Celtic word "pehta," or fighters. This was Latinized into Pict. So, too, Barbary of the Ancient maps is a monument to the miscalling of the Berber tribe by the Greek word signifying "barbarian." Even the legend of the victory of Guy of Warwick over the dun cow is assailed by ruthless etymologists, who insist upon its derivation from his conquest over the "Dena gau," or Danish settlement, at the champion's gates. The Celtic words "alt maen" are responsible for many "old man" crags upon sea coasts and among mountains. They mean, however, "high rock."

Too Hot for Tenderfoot

From time immemorial the bath tub has been an honorable institution in Japan. Instead of a cold dip in the morning, the Japs take their baths hot in the afternoon, at about 5 o'clock, and, beginning at 100 degrees, the tendency is to raise the temperature as one becomes acclimatized, so to speak. One traveler tells of the Kawayay bathers, who stay in the tub for several weeks at a time with stone in their laps to keep their bodies from floating while they are asleep.

The usual thing is to have the tub on the lawn with a charcoal fire beneath it, so that one can get into the water at 80 degrees and sit in it until it reaches 100 degrees. At this point a "griffin," which is to say a newchum, a greenhorn, or a tenderfoot, usually has to get out, for it becomes really too hot for him. But, after a year or two of practice, he can manage 115 or 120 degrees. The Japs themselves can enjoy a bath even at 128 degrees.

A traveler tells an amusing tale of how he visited a Japanese friend on a bath on the lawn. He got in when the water was tepid and enjoyed it immensely up to ninety something. Just as he was thinking of getting out his friend's wife and daughter put in an appearance and began to wash rice at a well near by. Now the regulation bathing dress of Japan is like a footless stocking without a leg, or a bunghole without a barrel around it, and our traveler hadn't it with him at the time. He endured another five degrees and then, with death by boiling staring him in the face, he was forced out with an involuntary yell that attracted much attention.

The fact is that in Japan everybody bathes in puris naturalibus. It is their way, and it is not till a European has lived among them for years that he or she realizes that, after all, there is nothing very terrible about it.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Call of the City

Why was it, When as a boy, you assailed the nest, And stole her young, You gloried in such prowess? Why was it, While yet your Day was dawning, You paused beside the brook That drove the mill? As one entranced by sound and scene, Hearing naught, seeing naught, save but a distant vision, Filled with vain spires, Jarring the clamorous noon With bells that stirred the yearning in your steps? The City called you then.

The City called, and you Desiring in one quick draught Life's measure of Joy and Pain, Turned to the City, And fired by Ambition sped Over the meadows, scorning the ravished nest. And past the ivied tower, where old owls still Wander why Youth's a Fool, And when the spires and deep-throated bells Clamored again and Life was all around you, You was Regret. The City called.

The old mill once again And you the same unseeing, unhearing thing.

Save that the rumbling wheel recalled your shame, Said that the mill brook mocked and jeered: "You failed—you failed!" And memories of the earnest, hurrying masses Were in the weakest and the faltering Sank death the Fall—stirred new Desires. And the City called again.

And yet again the mill And the brook recalls your triumph, But with a subdued tone o'er Time-worn rocks. "You tried—you failed—you won!" And now? The three-score years and ten are all but past, And brief's the span that ends by the ivied tower. Where still the wise old owls the story tell: "He tried—he failed—he won!" And now. See how he comes, dragging his three-score years, Thinking to spend the rest with us, Who long have ceased to know him. Why does he watch that grumbling, faltering mill? He hears it even by the ivied tower—The City call.—New York Times.

The Boss Was Suspicious

Tommy had just obtained his first position as office boy. His salary was not large, but his hopes were. He expected to learn the business, and lives of great men all reminded him that he might do great things. A friend of his met him about a week after he had entered upon his new duties.

"How do you like the job?" inquired his friend.

"Oh, I dunno," said Tommy, doubtfully.

"Is the work hard?"

"No, the work ain't so hard and the hours ain't so long. But—say, the measly old cuss I work for makes me tired."

"What's the matter with him?"

"He's so blamed suspicious. Why, if I git him a bill busted, he'll come to the change, just as if I'd take any of his measly old money."

"He does, eh?"

"Yes. And the other mornin' he went out and forgot to open the safe. You see, there's only me and him in the office. Well, as soon as he went out, in came a man to get some papers there were in the safe. I knew the boss wanted him to get them, but there was the safe locked, so what could I do? And the man said he couldn't come back till the next day. When the boss came in, I told him about it, and he cussed himself for bein' out; so I says to him, 'Why don't you gimme the combination of the safe, so the next time you're out I can git anything that's wanted?'"

"Say, you oughter seen him. You'd think he was goin' to jump down me throat. I thought I was goin' to lose me job, an', between you an' me, I wouldn't have cared much if I did. I'm gittin' tired of workin' for such a suspicious old cuss, anyhow."

When Poisoned by Ivy. The leaves of poison ivy often change to beautiful tones of yellow and red in the fall and are sources of great temptation to any one who is out hunting autumn decoration.

Poison ivy has three leaflets, and Virginia creeper has five. The former has white berries, the latter purple.

All the drugs in the world are of no use in preventing a bad case of poisoning, unless one begins to do something as soon as the telltale itching begins. When the pustules break open, one is almost sure to be in for three days or a week of suffering. It is well to have a little bottle of extract of grindella in the house all the time. Rub it on the affected parts every five minutes until the trouble is averted, and be sure to lose no time in beginning.—Country Life in America.

JOHN BURT

By FREDERICK UPHAM ADAMS

Author of "The Kidnapped Millionaire," "Colonel Monroe's Doctrine," Etc.

The valet opened the door and John Burt entered.

For a moment Blake did not recognize him. The moustache and beard had disappeared, and the strong regular lines of John Burt's face were in perfect harmony with the keen, calm and discerning eyes.

"Hello, Jim; what's the matter with you?"

"All right, John, ol' fellow; m'all right! Glad to see ye, dear ol' John! Have a drink, John! Glad to see ye!"

"Blake awoke and fell into John Burt's arms. His flushed face and reeking breath told their own story without the help of the emptied decanter. Blake weighed two hundred pounds, but John picked him up and laid him on the couch as if he were a child.

"You're knocked out, Jim," he said. "Tuck a nap, old man, and you'll be all right when you wake up."

With a dull smile on his lips Blake sank into a deep slumber.

The white hand of the little clock crawled half its way around the circle before John Burt left the side of his friend. His eyes were fixed on the motionless figure, but his thoughts wandered far away.

Blake groaned and muttered in his sleep. At first his words were incoherent, but as his excitement grew his voice became distinct, and in a higher key he exclaimed:

"This is awful—awful! What shall I do; what shall I do? I love her, I love her, and no one shall stand between us, no one, by God! no one, not even—"

The sentence ended in a moan and again he sank into quiet slumber.

Pacing up and down the room John stepped on a crumpled newspaper. He tion, something arose in his throat and choked him.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Hawkins Makes a Discovery.

John Hawkins strode into the office of James Blake & Company at an early hour the following Monday morning, and after greeting the nominal head of the firm was shown to John Burt's room.

"Mighty glad to see you, my boy," his deep voice rumbled as he laid a giant palm on the shoulder of the younger man.

They talked for several minutes on commonplace topics. Mr. Hawkins studied the face of the younger with a scrutiny which did not escape John Burt.

"In your new disguise—or lack of disguise—you strangely remind me of some one," said Mr. Hawkins suddenly. "You told me once, as I remember, that you were born in Massachusetts, didn't you?"

"I did," replied John, "and I also told you that Burton was not my right name. Now, I'm going to tell you who I am, though you must guard my secret for a while yet—a short while, I hope."

"John Burton is good enough for me," asserted the magnate, grimly. "I know you're all right, and I'll bet a million on it. Don't tell me, my boy; if you run any risk by doing so."

"There is no reason why I should not tell you," said John, after a moment's pause. "Here is an advertisement I recently ran across in a San Francisco newspaper. Read it."

John Hawkins adjusted his glasses and read the following:

"To John Burt of Hingham, Mass.—All rewards offered for your arrest by

"Not another word from your blasphemous-mouth, Jack Hawkins!" said Captain Burt.

"You go to hell!" I said, so mad I didn't know what I was saying.

"He gave me a cuff on the side of the head with the palm of his hand. It was not heavy, but it made me crazy."

"Go below and pray God to forgive you," he said.

"No man had ever struck me before and I swung at him with my fist. I caught him a glancing blow above the eye. He didn't even raise his hands."

"Hit me again, Jack Hawkins!" he said, calm as if asking me to pass him the salt.

"I aimed for his chin, but caught him on the neck. It was like striking a brick wall. His arm smashed through my guard, and his fist landed full on my temple. It was a frightful blow and I went sprawling to the deck. Before I could make a struggle he picked me up and hurled me over the rail. As I came up I caught one glimpse of the Segregansett through the mist, as she heeled to port in the gale."

"The water revived me, and I succeeded in kicking off my boots. I swam in the direction of the ship, and by sheer good luck bumped into a hencoop, which some one—Captain Burt most likely—had thrown overboard. I floated around on that hencoop until morning."

"Along about noon I heard a splashing, and a big canoe filled with natives came in sight. I yelled at them and after much palaver they took me in. They were friendly savages on a visit from one small island to another. I went along as a guest, and it was months before the boats of the 'Jane M.' came ashore and took me off."

"A year later I landed in Frisco, just in time to be in the gold excitement. That's all. If your grandfather hadn't thrown me overboard in the middle of the Pacific ocean, it's not likely I'd have located the Challenge mine. I forgive him years ago, and you can bet I harbor no grudge against his grandson."

"He has been the one to suffer," said John. "He imagines himself your murderer, and for years has prayed for forgiveness. I expect to go back to him in a few days, and you must go with me."

Then he told John Hawkins the story of his boyhood and of the shooting of Arthur Morris. He told of his love for Jessie Carden, and of his determination to restore to General Carden the fortune filched from him by the elder Morris.

"When last I saw Miss Carden," said John, "she was the heiress to a comfortable fortune. I had nothing but health, strength and ambition, but she believed in my future, and something has told me that she would wait for me. I shall see her in a few days, and I wish her to be as proud and independent of my wealth as on that night I left her side, five years ago. She has been robbed of her brightness, but if my judgment of the value of L. & O. is accurate, it will be restored to the keeping of her father."

"I have news for you about L. & O.," said John Hawkins, "but first tell me exactly how you stand."

"The company is organized with one hundred thousand shares, of a par value of one hundred dollars each," he said, "with bonds to the amount of five millions more. Morris holds thirty-five thousand shares, and his associates twelve thousand. That is three thousand less than control, but he imagines that General Carden cannot exercise his option on ten thousand shares. As I wrote you, I've had Blake acquire this option from General Carden, but of course, Morris knows nothing of this. By private purchase and in the open market, our agents have picked up twenty-nine thousand shares."

"Let's see," mused Hawkins. "I have 7,460, you have 29,000 and an option on Carden's 10,000. That makes a total of 46,460 shares. You yet lack 3,541 of control. Go into the market and buy 'em, my boy! You've gone a great piece of work; a bigger one than you realize."

Good Reason.

Two little boys and two little girls were playing "house," the boys being the papas, of course. All went well until the papas insisted upon coming home to luncheon, although their wives repeatedly told them that they should stay down town in their offices and kill bears until 5 o'clock. The argument finally grew so noisy that auntie came to investigate.

"Boys, why do you come home when the little girls ask you not to? Is it because you are so fond of them you cannot keep away?"

"No," said Tom disgustedly.

"Is it because you wanted another look at your beautiful children?"

"No," said Rob, with even more disgust in his tones. "It's because the girls eat chocolate for lunch and we want some."

Reason for Marrying.

They were talking about a friend of hers who had married a bishop stationed in Kamchatka, or Timbuktou, or some other heathen land.

"I never could understand why she married him," said the young woman.

"She seemed the last girl on earth to marry a bishop. She cared so much more for having a good time than she did for church work and sewing circles!"

"Girls are pretty wise nowadays," said the young man, "and they generally have a good reason for marrying the way they do. A girl friend of mine married a doctor so she could always be well for nothing; and maybe this girl married the bishop so she could be good for nothing."—New York Tribune.

WOLF HUNTING IN LAPLAND.

Natives Run Down Animals on Skis and Dispatch Them With Spears.

The most northern point of Scandinavia or Finland is inhabited by Laps. The latter live in the valleys and are employed chiefly in agriculture; and the former keep to the mountains and they are very wealthy, owing to their immense herds of reindeer, which graze summer and winter in the open.

If the snow is very deep in winter the herds are brought down to the more sheltered valleys. In spite of constant watchfulness they are even there not safe from the invasion of wolves, whom hunger drive down to the lowland for the forests.

The mountain Laps in consequence organize wolf hunts during the winter. They pursue the animals on skis, or snowshoes, and owing to the great speed at which they can get over the frozen snow they soon overtake the flying beasts and kill them. The huntsmen carry nothing but a short heavy spear, which they drive home with a practiced hand. Only when wounded do the wolves attack their pursuers, otherwise the cowardly brutes seek safety in flight.

Voice From Arkansas.

Cleveland, Ark., August 15. (Special.)—Nearly every newspaper tells of some wonderful cure of some form of Kidney Disease by the Great American Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this part of Arkansas is not without its share of evidence that no case is too deeply rooted for Dodd's Kidney Pills to cure.

Mr. A. E. Carllie, well known and highly respected here, tells of his cure after nearly a quarter of a century's suffering. Mr. Carllie says: "I want to let the public know what I think of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I think they are the best remedy for sick kidneys ever made."

"I had Kidney Trouble for 23 years and never found anything that did me so much good as Dodd's Kidney Pills. I recommend them to all sufferers."

There is no uncertain sound about Mr. Carllie's statement. He knows that Dodd's Kidney Pills rescued him from a life of suffering and he wants the public to know it. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills from Backache to Bright's Disease.

Letter Writing a Lost Art.

To one who closely studies human nature letters constitute the best literature. They reveal the little idiosyncrasies which go to make up character. They expose the heart, especially if written without the thought of publication. Sometimes, as in the case of the correspondence between Robert Browning and Elizabeth Barrett, it seems a sacrilege to lay bare to the world so much of private confidence. In other instances, as in the letters which Liszt and Wagner wrote to each other, the world is the distinct gainer by the publication. In fact, so rich is English literature in epistolary wealth that we hate to regard letter-writing as a lost art. The truth, however, forces itself upon us and we must accept it, endeavoring to console ourselves with the thought that what we have lost in genuine correspondence we may have gained in other things.

THE VALET OPENED THE DOOR AND JOHN BURT ENTERED.

picked it up, glanced carelessly at the date and name and ran his eye over the pages.

The first words that caught his attention were "Miss Jessie Carden." John Burt stood like a statue and read the paragraph which had thrown Blake into a frenzy of fear.

Every word burned itself into his brain. Instinctively he drew back like one menaced by a blow struck in the dark. Then the enormity of the thing came to him. Crushing the paper in his hand, he strode across the room and towered over the figure of the man who had requited years of friendship with an act of treachery.

Blake's face was turned toward him—the handsome, clear-cut features of the one he had known since boyhood. For an instant the impulse to strike this man dead in his sleep came to John Burt. Then a flood of feeling checked the swelling tide of his rage.

"How could you do such a thing, Jim?" he exclaimed, unconsciously aloud.

For hours John Burt concentrated his mind on the strange problem which had so suddenly arisen. At times a wave of anger swept over him, but in the end charity won against odds which seemed overwhelming.

It was dark when Blake awoke from his stupor. He raised himself on his elbows and stared wildly about the room until his eyes rested on John Burt. John laid aside the book he had made a pretense of reading.

"Do you feel better, Jim?" he asked, as Blake struggled to his feet, and passed his hand wearily across his eyes.

"I beg pardon for this foolishness!" exclaimed Blake looking ruefully first at John and then at the decanter. "As you know, I'm not given to drinking. I felt very bad this morning and took some brandy on an empty stomach. Are you sure I said nothing to offend you, John?"

"You have said nothing to offend me since that day we had the fight near the creek in old Rocky Woods," returned John, looking Blake frankly in the face. The latter's eyes dropped in confusion.

"We'll say no more about it," added John. "Take your bath, and by the time you are ready, I will see that Roberts has dinner served."

During and after the meal John led the conversation back over the years they had spent together. Blake was strangely silent. As a rule he took the lead over his quiet companion on such occasions, but this evening when he attempted to join in the conversa-

Randolph or Arthur Morris are hereby withdrawn, and you are exempt from prosecution at our hands.

"Randolph Morris, Arthur Morris."

John Hawkins read it slowly and looked searchingly into the face of the young man.

"So your name's Burt? Ever have a relation by the name of Peter Burt?"

"My grandfather's name is Peter Burt," replied John.

"Was he a whaling captain?"

"He was captain and part owner of the whaler 'Segregansett,'" answered John.

Hawkins vented his surprise in strange exclamations, and John Burt was silent, in puzzled amazement.

"John Burt, grandson to old Captain Pete Burt! This is too rich! My boy, there's a feud between the houses of Burt and Hawkins, but it shall not extend to your generation. We'll bury it right now! Did the old man ever mention the name of Jack Hawkins to you?"

"Never."

"I suppose not. It isn't likely he would," and again Mr. Hawkins seemed vastly amused. "Well, I was his first mate on the Segregansett. Cap. Burt was nearly sixty years old then, and I was about twenty-six. There was an idea abroad that no man who trod a deck beneath an American flag could lick Jack Hawkins, and, barring one man, I guess they had the facts fixed up about right. Do you see that scar?"

He ran his fingers through the iron-gray locks and pushed them back from his forehead. There showed a livid mark with four black circles.

"Those round black marks are the prints of your dear old grandfather's knuckles," he said, letting the hair drop back into place. "They've been there thirty odd years. Hit tell you how it happened. Captain Burt was a very religious man, according to his own standards. He was particularly down on swearing. A cuss word drove him crazy and I've seen him pound a man nearly to death for a harmless 'damn.'"

"We had a sailor named Bilson," continued Mr. Hawkins. "He was one of those clumsy, aggravating fools whose very looks were an incentive to profanity. It came on to blow one night and I sent Bilson aloft. He managed to foul the fore-royal clew lines and when I yelled at him he laughed in his idiotic way, and I was boiling mad all over. While I was relieving my mind I felt a hand on my shoulder, and it wasn't a gentle one, either,

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband should be a woman's constant study. If she would be all that she may, she must guard well against the signs of ill health. Mrs. Brown tells her story for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother well, strong, healthy and happy. I dragged through nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and weariness. I then noticed a statement of a woman troubled, as I was; and the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. At the end of that time, I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, but your medicine cured that, and built up my entire system, till I was indeed like a new woman. Sincerely yours, MRS. CARL E. CONSUMPTION

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORDS BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Theford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Theford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the throats of Bright's disease, for which there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Theford's Black-Draught.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?

Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of the many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned.

Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered Kidneys. A simple test for Kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results.

If You are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

Some Pronounced Incurable Had Lumbago and Kidney Trouble

Mr. C. A. Stillson, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has made it such."

Edward Huss, a well known business man of Salisbury, Mo., writes: "I wish to say for the benefit of others, that I was a sufferer from lumbago and kidney trouble, and all the remedies I took gave me no relief. I began to take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and after the use of three bottles I am cured."
