A COMPARISON

Of the Candidates for Representative and the Manner In Which They Are Placed Before the People.

A regular called Republican County Convention was announced in every newspaper in the County and the Townships of the County were represented according to their population as follows: Bay 2 delegates, Boyne Valley 5, Chandler 2, Charlevoix 11, Oshtemo 4, Evangelists 9, Hayes 3, Hudson 3, Marjon 3, Melrose 3, Northwood 3, Peatie 1, St. James 2, South Arm 12, Wilson 4, and in each of these townships a notice was posted according to law announcing a caucus to be held for the purpose of electing the delegates above mentioned and attended in the aggregate by 1500 voters of the county at least.

The convention met pursuant to that call and every delegate elected was present at this Convention. Mr. Paddock and Mr. Stroud were both candidates for the office of Representative and Mr. Stroud was placed in nomination by a large majority, and it is not strange to those who have lived in Charlevoix County for the past twenty-years or upwards, that such was the result. Mr. Stroud being a man well and favorably known, having served the people in different capacities, and he identified with the progress of our County from its infancy, never being questioned as to his integrity or honesty of purpose, at any time.

The State Convention had met some weeks before this and at such meeting adopted a platform which each of the aspiring candidates were well informed upon and which platform Mr. Paddock never questioned in the least until after the Republican Convention had resulted unsatisfactory to him. Mr. Paddock certainly would not deny the fact that he would have been pleased to accept the nomination at this Convention upon the platform adopted.

Next we learn of Mr. Paddock's action in secret meetings with Dr. Crouter and Wm. J. Lewis at the leading Democrats of the County. A drive from Charlevoix to Boyne City with Dr. Crouter to see Wm. J. Lewis, H. A. Jersey and other democrats, and a scheme is hatched by which Mr. Paddock is assured of their support.

A call for a "Democratic County Convention" signed by Wm. J. Lewis, Chairman, and H. A. Jersey Sec'y, of the Democratic County Committee is called to meet at Boyne City the same day the Grangers have their Convention at that place with the understanding that Mr. Paddock's "Pull" with the Grange he could get them to unite with him in the Convention called by Mr. Lewis and Jersey, but there was a "Hitch" so an adjournment was taken and a "Mass" Convention called to order without any notice and a ticket nominated "Fixed" by the triumvirate "Bill" Lewis, Henry Jersey and "Bob" Paddock, arranged as they thought would serve their own personal interests best.

After this Convention adjourned the triumvirate deemed it best to insure a place on the official ballot tearing the action of the "Mass" Convention was illegal, so they re-convened the Democratic County Convention and proceeded to renominate the same ticket, (without any opposition) for every man present received a satisfactory place upon this ticket and Mr. Paddock is working his "Gum Shoe" campaign as the result, asking honest conscientious Republicans for their support. Can he get them?

"Bill" Lewis and Henry Jersey have been residents of Charlevoix County (off and on) for twenty years.

Have you ever before heard of their advocating any kind of a reform?

We ask you to turn your mind back to the times when Mr. Lewis was very active in county seat politics—Was Mr. Lewis advocating a reform at that time?

Mr. Paddock is no novice in politics, in fact has made that his profession, and he often boasts of his prowess and political sagacity, and how as a result he was favored by a political job for a period of ten years in the state of Ohio up to the time he came to Charlevoix losing his position at that time.

Is there any synonym of reform about this Boyne City Convention? Can a party conceived in this manner, and a ticket placed upon the ballot under such irregular circumstances the nominations dictated in such a manner receive a shadow of an endorsement by the great Republican party of Charlevoix County?

To use the words of an honest farmer who attended this mass convention at Boyne and who was tendered two places on the ticketsaid "I'm too old" and then added it was the "D—est rottenest convention I've ever witnessed, and I've seen a lot of 'em."

In conclusion we say Republicans give this matter serious thought, and "Primary Reformers" can you even endorse such action and be consistent with the views you advocate.

Honestly do you believe a man should be elected to this office who is willing to sacrifice all party principles, take part in three conventions within a space of three months as Mr. Paddock has, all in the vain hope of being elected? If you are not in sympathy with such actions be sure to cast your ballot for Hon. A. J. Stroud—who is the regular Republican nominee.

Editor Lorraine Beginning to Read the Handwriting on the Wall.

Editor Lorraine of the East Jordan Enterprise, in good faith when he in the last two issues of his paper charged the County Officers and the Board of Supervisors with wasting the public money and with corrupt official conduct. On Saturday last he was formally asked to publish a retraction by Messrs. A. B. Nicholas and D. S. Payton. On the Thursday following he and his wife recorded a deed conveying his house and lot, printing office and other pieces of real estate to his daughter, Cora, for one dollar and other valuable considerations.

Does this act not indicate his fear of being held liable in damages for his misstatements and malicious attacks?

WM. J. PIERSON, CHAIRMAN OF REPUBLICAN CO. COMMITTEE.

Consider This Carefully.

A few words to Ferris men who desire Republican principles to prevail. Did you ever know of Mr. Ferris advocating any principle in accord with the Republican party or its interests?

Twelve years ago Mr. Ferris was a free trader, a Cleveland Democrat, eight years ago a Bryan supporter as was also the case four years ago, and who do you suppose he will vote for this year?

We are safe in saying Parker and the Wall street manipulators.

If Mr. Ferris were elected Governor he has the appointing of several important officers and in turn they appoint sub officers, and do you think he would consider the appointment of any Republican who might have assisted him in his election?

No, certainly not. Every one would be a Democrat and by so doing build up the Democratic Machine in the state as they have it in Detroit, and Grand Rapids.

Do you want to be a party to such a move?

A vote for Ferris is in that direction. Then too what would be the result if a vacancy should occur in the office of either U. S. Senator, and Mr. Ferris were Governor, — a Democrat like Daniel J. Campau, or some one his equal would be appointed to such high honor and Michigan would throw one-half of its support to the Roosevelt administration into the hands of the Democratic party entirely killing Michigan's support to the National Administration.

Can the Republican party of the state of Michigan afford to take this chance?

We believe upon careful consideration you will say emphatically, NO.

Let us ask you did you ever hear of the Democratic party advocating "Primary Election" before the Republican party discharged themselves last May in their platform upon this issue?

Daniel J. Campau the head of the Democratic machine in Michigan won the fight for the Michigan delegation to the National Convention, and delivered it to the Belmont, Parker, Wall Street combine on the first ballot.

Daniel J. Campau also controlled the Grand Rapids Convention that nominated Mr. Ferris.

Political Slander.

(See Judge Mayne's Letter Below.)

MR. EDITOR:

In an article appearing in The East Jordan Enterprise, under date of October 27th, 1904, under the caption of "Just a Reminder" there was a most vicious attack made by the editor of said paper upon my character and official conduct as Prosecuting Attorney of Charlevoix County, concerning my course of action in the case of The People vs. Muirhead and Chandler, wherein Mr. Lorraine complained that two innocent men were brought from the southern part of the state to Charlevoix County charged with burning of what was known as Bush & Company's sawmill in the village of South Arm, and that after an examination before Justice Clement they were, upon motion of the prosecutor, discharged from custody—there being no evidence connecting them with the crime.

In the article referred to the editor says "The possible cause for action may be found in the statement given at the time by Peter Muirhead, brother of the accused, and owner of the burned mill; that he had received word as coming from the prosecutor that if he would pay over $2500, prosecution would be dropped." The editor then proceeds with the statement "For this discom the tax payers of the County had to dig down for the costs of the suit that are estimated at $1000.00." Mr. Lorraine then waxes warm because the officer of the law did not prosecute the witnesses who had on their examination testified differently than from that contained in their affidavits upon which the suit was founded.

That the people may thoroughly understand the case and at the same time note how contemptible has been the action of the editor of the Enterprise in his efforts to misrepresent the truth of the facts—in the case and to slander a public officer of the County, while engaged in the discharge of the duties of his office, a brief history of the case is hereby given:

Some months prior to the arrest of Muirhead and Chandler what was known as Bush & Company's sawmill was destroyed by fire, there being strong evidence that it was the work of an incendiary. This property cost something over $20,000. Mr. Peter Muirhead, had a lien upon the property to secure his endorsements of certain notes made by Alexander Bush, one of the owners of the property.

After the destruction of the property the Bushes, being largely interested in the same, procured at their own expense the services of an able detective and after months of time devoted to the investigation of the circumstances of the fire presented to me the affidavits of numerous witnesses and requested that Robert Muirhead and Phillip Chandler be apprehended for the burning of the mill. After most carefully considering the affidavits, in company with Sheriff Pearson I called upon Judge Mayne at his office at Charlevoix where the affidavits in question were produced, and submitted them to him for his opinion. I was then and there informed by the Judge that unless I was in possession of some fact which discredited the witnesses it was my duty to proceed and cause warrant to issue and that an examination be had. Mr. Pearson and myself again interviewed personally many of the witnesses whose affidavits had been submitted to Judge Mayne, for his opinion, and finding nothing inconsistent with the statement made by the witnesses under oath, the warrant for the arrest of the defendants was issued. Upon examination had in the case the testimony of two of the witnesses whose testimony was vital to the case gave evidence radically different from that contained in their affidavits. The effect of this change in their testimony destroyed a link in the chain of circumstances which would be necessary to hold the respondents for trial. Whereupon I asked the Court that defendants be discharged.

In the next issue of the Enterprise, Mr. Lorraine without first having interviewed any of the officers of the law and without knowing anything of the theory of the prosecution scurrilously attacked me for prosecuting the defendants Muirhead and Chandler and sought by the article to bring the officers into ignominy and disgrace in the eyes of the public.

I immediately wrote Judge Mayne calling his attention to the unjust attack upon myself and officers as published in the Enterprise and received the following letter from him:—

Charlevoix, Mich., April 14, 1903. Mr. A. B. Nicholas, East Jordan, Mich.

Dear Sir: In reply to your favor would state that I have just returned home after an absence of two weeks. I have read one article in the Enterprise relative to the examination in the Muirhead arson case. Inasmuch as this article states that the prosecutor and justice were acting upon an order made by the Circuit Judge, I fail to see how the prosecuting attorney or justice can be considered as criticised or why an explanation is necessary. As prosecuting attorney you submitted to me the affidavits of several witnesses and I carefully examined the same and after mature deliberation I stated to you and the sheriff that unless you were in possession of some facts which discredited the witnesses it was your duty to proceed and cause warrant to issue and an examination to be had.

The composer, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, was born in Salzburg, Jan. 27, 1756. His father, Leopold Mozart, was capellmeister in the service of one of the archbishops. Leopold Mozart and his wife were spoken of as the handsomest couple in Salzburg. And we know from the portraits the strange and fascinating beauty in the face of Wolfgang Mozart. Therefore his memory revered to-day for his sweetness and love of humanity; his testimony of vast genius.

Birthplace of Mozart.

From his earliest childhood Mozart loved music passionately. As a child at play he was fond of musical games, and always happy if some one would play for the children in all their games. His sense of hearing was extraordinary. He was able to detect the difference of an eighth note in the tuning of a violin; and small sounds were to him annoying although many times these same noises were unnoticed by other people. Loud noises were a source of absolute torture to him.

At the age of 5 years, Mozart's skill upon the harpsichord was very unusual. But the little lad's shyness of playing before musicians was strong.

When Mozart was but 6 years old his genius and skill were so great and his fame so widespread that the elder Mozart planned to take the children to Vienna to the court of the Emperor Francis and the beautiful Empress Maria Theresa, both of whom were fond of music.

It is related that even at this early age the little Mozart was of so sweet and winning a nature that he made friends with the customs officers, played a minuet upon his little violin, and presto, "Pass, free of duty," said the officer.

The imperial family were sincere lovers of music and with a court so favorably disposed it was not surprising that Leopold Mozart should receive a command shortly after his arrival to present the two wonderful children at court at Schonbrunn, an imperial palace near Vienna, and all this without the least solicitation on the part of the father.

Mozart at this time was a wonderfully handsome child, very attractive, his manners quite frank and natural and instinctively good. He was a bit shy when he was presented to the Empress. Then he looked up, and into her eyes. Her beautiful face was smiling, and in a moment the lad had kissed her, although he had been instructed to kneel to his Empress. And the Empress was much pleased.

Mozart's appearance at the court of Austria was a decided success. The Emperor ordered 100 ducats to be paid to Mozart; the Empress sent the family costly dresses. The gift to Mozart to Wolfert, as he was intimately called, was the clothing he wore in the painting which is preserved of him in Salzburg, and is of fine cloth, lilac-colored, the vest of silk of the same markable skill and genius. They were commanded to appear at the French court at Versailles. From Paris to London, through Holland and Switzerland, and, after two years, they returned home to Salzburg.

Mozart was then 8 years old. And his father, that year, published for him four sonatas for the piano and violin, thus introducing the boy as a composer at this remarkable age.

The next six years were full of study for the boy. Some few compositions were published. His father determined not to take him to Italy. Italy proved one long series of delightful experiences for the boy. Fame and glory abounded. In Milan he received an order for an opera, and accomplished his work very satisfactorily—at 15 years of age!

In Rome the Pope, Clement XIV, conferred upon him the order of the Golden Spur, a very high compliment, and thus the boy of 14 wore the title of Chevalier Mozart!

From one of his fathers' letters we learn that while in Rome Mozart heard the famous "Miserere" by Allegri sung in the Sistine chapel, and the rendering made so deep an impression upon the lad that on reaching home he wrote down from memory every bar of the music—a great work, which musicians were forbidden to copy any part of.

At 16 the city of Munich gave the young composer an order to write an opera, and the work was a great success. The archbishop of Salzburg employed him now as concert master. The salary was small and the archbishop not only exacting but jealous of the young man's success. So those years under Jerome, the archbishop, were hard ones.

When Mozart was 20 he and his mother went to Paris (he having left the service of the archbishop); where Frau Mozart was taken ill suddenly and died. Paris now seemed so horrible to the young man that he left the city and returned to Munich, where he wrote his opera "Idomeneo," which met with great success.

At 26 Mozart married Constance Weber, and, like the people in the story books, they lived happily ever after until the too soon ending of the life of this wonderful man.

The writing of the "Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni" followed his marriage, and in these operas we find the strongest music Mozart had written up to this time. The operas at once made a marvelous success, and gained at a jump a place in the world that they have always kept. The Emperor at this time appointed Mozart court composer. Then came the "Magic Flute," wherein Mozart is, at his best.

His wife, joining him in Vienna, was much shocked at Mozart's weakness. He was working hard upon his "Requiem"; he had withdrawn from all pleasures and wrote, wrote until it seemed his young life was being woven into the music. He grew steadily weaker, and on the 5th of December, 1791, the young man of but 35 laid down his pen, giving careful directions for the finishing of his masterly work, the "Requiem."

Mozart left over 600 compositions, including operas, 15 masses, 49 symphonies. His symphony in G minor is one of which Schubert said: "You can hear the angels singing in it." He wrote many quartets, and they are among his greatest works, songs, sonatas and chamber music; and finally the "Requiem," the greatest in the world's history of music.

Artichokes for Swine

In answer to a reader who desires some information relative to the value of artichokes for swine we have to say that there is not apparently a great abundance of literature upon the subject. Our own observation is, however, that much less is said now in favor of artichoke growing for swine than we used to hear fifteen years ago.

Many gave this succulent food a trial in the feeding of swine and were led to do so by glowing advertisements and articles emanating from men who had tubers to sell. The tubers grew all right and the hogs loved to root them out and eat them, but the trouble was that when the farmer wanted to root them out permanently he could not do so. The Jerusalem artichoke refused to be choked off just as other importations from the land of the Holy City tend to become fixtures where they take root.

It became a weed, for so is a rose of the greatest beauty if it grows where it is not wanted—in a corn field for instance. It sprang up from several tubers and in short was very difficult to get rid of when once introduced. Prof. Henry rates the artichoke at the same value as potatoes for swine feeding. It is not stated, however, whether the comparison is between the cooked or raw tubers. If we remember aright the same authority has shown that four pounds of boiled potatoes fed against one pound of grain, both in conjunction with skimmed milk, gave practically the same gain in live weight.

From this we take it that raw artichokes are supposed to be equal in feeding value to cooked potatoes for swine in which case four pounds of raw artichokes would be equal to one pound of grain if fed in conjunction with skimmed milk or whey. This may be so but it has been shown that artichokes do not produce much, if any gain when fed alone and the same thing is true of rape. Prof. Plumb of Indiana reports that four sows placed in a small field of artichokes that had not been disturbed made a total gain in weight of twenty-seven pounds between October 25 and November 8. They rooted out the artichokes and were fed in addition, fifty-seven and one-half pounds each of corn meal and shorts. This is not a very good showing but some very flattering claims have been made by others. Coburn quotes A. C. Williams, a prominent and successful Poland China breeder in Iowa many years ago, as writing: "The keep of my hogs in warm weather is blue grass, clover and Brazilian artichokes. Forty head of hogs and their pigs may be kept without other feed on an acre of artichokes, from the time frost is out of the ground until the first of June, and from September or October until the ground is again frozen." At the Oregon Experiment station six Berkshire pigs weighing from 113 to 215 pounds each were fed artichokes and grain from October 22 to December 11. They gained 244 pounds in weight, or an average gain of 6.91 pounds per day. The pigs ate 756 pounds of grain during this period, which is 3.1 pounds of grain for each pound of gain in live weight. In other experiments it was found that it required five pounds of mixed grain to produce a pound of gain, hence on this basis the artichokes consumed would represent two pounds of grain in producing each pound of gain in live weight. The pigs consumed the artichokes on one-eighth of an acre. Sweitzer, of the Missouri station, reports a trial by Porter in which artichokes and wheat meal were fed pigs. It required 325 pounds of wheat meal and 820 pounds of artichokes to produce 100 pounds of increase. In none of the reports on feeding artichokes were results secured in gain of live weight that have not repeatedly been attained by feeding no larger amount of grain than is identified in these trials but without artichokes. As artichokes are apt to prove a nuisance when given a place on the farm and as they do not apparently give any great returns in feeding we see no reason why farmers should not prefer rape, clover and green rye, each of which is a good forage crop and never a trouble to eradicate. If any reader of the paper can from his personal experience show evidence to the contrary of the latter conclusion he is "in order" and "has the floor."—A. S. Alexander in Farmers' Review.

great corn producing areas it is questionable whether the farmer should attempt to raise draft horses to the age at which the finishing process commences. Corn land is not ideal for frame and muscle building. It is rich in those ingredients which cause corn and other crops to luxuriate, but it does not give a complete supply of protein or earthy salts. In the more northern districts grains grow heavier to the bushel, are richer in protein and mineral matters and are, therefore, better fitted for frame building. The typical corn land is flat, black, rich in humus, poor in mineral matter. Here horses tend to grow large in size but sluggish, fat, weak in bone, light in muscle and deficient in lung power and vigor. The horses raised in districts favorable to the perfect development of those things not fully developed or wrongly developed in the corn belt may best be finished where corn is plentiful and where the climate is less rigorous. For this reason it becomes evident that states like Wisconsin, Minnesota, Colorado perhaps, and certainly the Canadian areas of the great northwest, where irrigation is unnecessary, should rightly be regarded as the proper breeding place of young stock to be finished further south. These states grow everything necessary for the production of healthy young animals possessed of strong bony frames, robust constitutions and ideal vigor. The land is largely rolling, sharp in character, full of lime and other mineral matters, productive of fine crops of oats, barley, rye, peas, roots, grass, clover, alfalfa (in some instances) and with pure, cool water and fresh, invigorating atmosphere, forms an ideal nursery for growing colts and calves. In these states and districts, both cattle and horses can of course be fully finished if the farmer so desires, but the raising of young stock, feeders in cattle and finishing stock in horses, will doubtless prove a more remunerative business. Colorado is to attempt the dubious and difficult problem of establishing a breed of standard coach horses within the confines of the American trotting horse breed. It is expected that soil, climate, water and feed in that semi-arid country will develop ideal carriage horses under expert supervision and selection of breeding material. The young stock so produced should later prove useful for finishing in more genial districts. Wisconsin meanwhile is giving attention generally to uniform production of high class draft horses and can do so as well or better than any other district in the country. But she will scarcely hope to fully finish the vast number of young drafters being produced in her counties. These will be looked for by feeders and finishers from other states. Ohio is making this business a specialty in some districts and already recognizes the high quality of Wisconsin horse stock. So it will be seen that certain districts can do certain things well and should make the things possible a specialty. Specialization gives promise of higher quality in every branch of business. It is as likely to prove beneficial in stock-breeding so that every district should decide what it can best produce and then unite for the best production of the article chosen, the advertising of the article and the creating of a discriminating market and appreciative price.—A. S. Alexander in Farmers' Review.

Practical Advice on Draining

Touching on this subject, Irving C. Smith recently read a paper before the Wisconsin State Horticultural Society in which he said: "Having decided to drain, how shall we go about it?"

"First, to do first-class work, it is necessary to have a drainer's level mounted on a tripod, an extension rod, and a common surveyor's chain. A tape line would answer, but the chain is much more convenient, as it is not injured by being dragged around in the wet. Do not attempt to do any draining without an instrument or engaging a surveyor; as it is impossible to do a first-class job by guess work, unless you have a fall of several inches to the hundred feet, or continuous running water. Even then it is much easier and quicker to have a ditch laid out. Set instrument perfectly level and where you can see over the entire tract to be drained, if that is practical; if not, see where the lower end can be seen and ascertain the comparative elevation of the outlet and the tract to be drained as far as can be seen. Then move instrument to some other point from which the balance of the tract can be seen. To get at the difference in elevation of your instrument in the two sittings, set the rod at the last point sighted from the first stand and the difference in the indicated elevation is the difference in elevation sought for; then, if the elevation indicated from the first stand be 5.4 feet and from the second stand the same point shows 7.9 feet, the difference, 2.5 feet is the height of the second stand above the first.

After going over the ground in a rough way once or twice, one can readily ascertain where the lowest points are, and the amount of fall you have between the lowest points of the upper section and the outlet. Now measure with the chain and get the distance from the outlet to the farthest point, by the line of the proposed ditch. Suppose the distance is 30 chains or 120 rods. You want a depth of three feet at the upper end, add to this a fall of one-tenth of a foot to each chain, 30 tenths, which makes in all six feet. If, on comparing this with the difference in elevation, you find this will bring you below where the outlet must come, cut off one-half of the laterals a little if necessary. It will not let you out, reduce the grade one-half on the laterals, as good work can be done with one-twentieth of a foot to the chain (4 rods). If there is a greater fall than six feet, simply keep the required depth and give a little more fall where land is sloping.

Now as to staking out the ditch. If ground is nearly level, pegs about 1 1/2 feet long are most convenient. If there is considerable unevenness have assorted lengths. Pegs should be smooth on one side at tops so pencil marks can be made on them. Start at the outlet and measure with the chain, putting a peg at each length, then drive them, the man at the instrument directing the driver by motions of his hand. When the first one is driven set the rod on it and adjust the target in line with the instrument, then follow up the ditch and drive as many as possible to the same level. When it is necessary to make a new elevation, drive an extra one near the last one, leaving it one foot higher, re-adjust target and go on as before.

Next comes the markings. Suppose the peg at the outlet is 3.75 feet above where the bottom of the ditch is to be. Subtract this from 6.50 feet and you have 2.75 feet. Then write with a heavy pencil 2.75 above the 3.75 below on the peg. The lower figures indicate the depth from top of peg to bottom of ditch, and the upper figures the distance from peg to grading line, the sum of the two, 6.50 feet, indicates the distance from bottom of ditch to grading line, also giving you a check on the correctness of your work. As you go up the ditch subtract from the lower figures the amount of the grade and add same to the upper set. The sum of both must always be the same. If your ditch be very deep, it would be necessary to set the line more than 6.50 feet from bottom, but this is a very convenient height for ordinary work. To set line, drive a post near the first grade peg and another on opposite side of ditch or eight feet apart, and with a common spirit level set straight edge board at the height indicated above the peg, and nail.

Set another similarly at second peg and then draw a common carpenter's line very tight from one to the other and then put two supporting boards across under the line to take up the sag of the line. These may be sighted over the tops of the first two to get the level. In digging it is desirable to straighten up the surface, if uneven, the first time over, so one may dig a full or partial length of spade each successive time and still maintain the same grade. To make the final finishing grade, use a common tile scoop of proper size and a light pole about seven feet long with 6.50 feet mark on it, to enable one to get the ditch just the right depth. Be very careful here as there is not much room for variation in a grade of one to two inches to the hundred feet. Go over all the work twice with the instrument to make sure it is correct. Make out grade peg figures on paper before putting them on pegs. Do not disturb any grade pegs until the ditch is complete. Make a light pole with proper marking on it to use instead of the extension rod in setting boards. Lastly, be careful, it pays."

Advantages in Farm Separators

L. P. Martiny, in an address to Wisconsin farmers, said:

Users of the farm separator and one of their greatest advantages in having the warm, sweet skim milk fresh from the cow for calves, pigs and other feeding purposes. With separator skim milk there is no scouring nor other digestive trouble with calves, and this one point is not fully appreciated, for this trouble impairs the future usefulness of our cattle more than we think. Where patrons deliver whole milk to the creamery it will cost them on the average about 8 cents per hundred weight for hauling, and with a herd of twenty cows giving 100,000 pounds of milk annually this means a cost of $80 to get it delivered to the creamery. In delivering cream it usually costs about 1/2 cent per pound of butter fat, which means, with 100,000 pounds of milk testing 4 per cent, or 4,000 pounds of butter fat, that the cost will be $20. A saving of $60, and very often the creameryman hauls the cream himself free of charge, because he can reach out farther from his factory and haul a large quantity of butter fat to his factory in the form of cream compared with what he could haul in the form of milk, and thereby increase the business of his factory.

The man that delivers cream to the creamery should receive more per pound for butter fat than the man that delivers whole milk, because he has saved the creameryman the expense of separating the milk, which means that he does not need as large and expensive creamery, less help and less expense in running the factory. As a rule the man that delivers cream should receive about 1 cent a pound more for his butter fat than the man that delivers the whole milk, because in connection with the less expense of making up the butter, the creameryman suffers none of the loss of fat in his skim milk, while there is always a small loss of fat in the skim milk of the man that delivers whole milk.

Time hath often cured the wound which reason failed to heal.—Seneca.

Developing Young Stock

As more sensible and practical ideas regarding stock-breeding are disseminated throughout the country, people commence to understand that not every state, not every district, can equally well "finish" cattle and horses. By the term "finish" we mean bring an animal up to its perfect development when mature. With cattle this means putting on the fat and polish, the quality and firmness of mellowness of completed feeding. With horses it means full development of the heavy draft animal by means of favorable environment and rich food, after the frame, capable of finishing properly, has been acquired elsewhere. Throughout the corn belt, cattle, hogs and horses may be more easily fed fat, or fully finished for market, than in more northern districts, where corn either fails to mature or forms but a small proportion of the feeding grains grown. ## CHAPTER II.

Through the weeks of the late summer, old Tatro, the butler, had been attending the meetings held by the peasants. But, being a firm believer in the old regime, he had reported faithfully to Monsieur le Baron all that had transpired at these gatherings, telling him of the vicious speeches made by Fauchel, and of the latter's evident determination to influence the peasants against the people of the chateau.

On a certain September morning, after one of these reports from Tatro, the baron said, "Find Margot, and send her to me."

When the faithful old servant had left the room his master looked out of the window toward the park; but his darkly circled eyes saw something quite different from the trees silhouetted against the cloudless blue of the sky.

They saw the pale, angry face of Tomas Fauchel, the young schoolmaster, who, meeting the baron as he came from the magistrate's door with the pretty, sixteen-year-old daughter of the Huguenot minister clinging to his arm, had said, as he barred their way, "To-day, Monsieur le Baron, you have won, and have taken for wife her whom her dead father gave to me when he refused you, a Papist. But I warn you to beware of the day when I shall seek my revenge!"

The baron, in the strength of his vigorous manhood, and in the happy dreams of his passionate love, had laughed at the melodramatic threat of his humble rival. And to-day, white-haired and lonely, he smiled disdainfully as he recalled it.

But the smile died softly in a sigh that was almost a moan, as thought of the narrow mound he had looked upon the spring before, banked with violets and snowdrops, in the old churchyard by the Loire, near the cottage where he had known a brief year's dream of happiness.

all others, to protect my boy's future, and provide for his welfare."

"That will I do with my life!" Margot declared fervently.

It was toward sunset that same day when Jean came running in to announce that he had seen soldiers riding up the winding roadway that led through the park.

Bidding the boy keep out of sight until the cause of such a visit could be ascertained, Monsieur le Baron descended to the reception-room, where the officer in command of the soldiers soon presented himself, and delivered a letter from Cousin, in which the baron's hospitality was requested for the bearer and his escort.

The fact was that Etienne, recently angered by his father's refusal to increase his already liberal allowance, had, with characteristic villany, let fall some insinuations impeaching the latter's loyalty to the Revolutionary cause; and the officer, who had been ordered upon a mission which would take him several leagues beyond the chateau, was instructed to stop there upon his return, the object being that the Committee might, from the manner in which the baron received his uninvited guests, form a better idea as to his true sentiments.

Jean did not deem it wise to present himself until the dinner hour should arrive, but had passed the time in questioning Margot and Tatro as to the probable meaning of this strange invasion of the chateau's privacy. Then, going in to the dining-room with an unusually subdued air, although his heart was fluttering with excitement, the lad's shyness evaporated in a glad shout at sight of the officer standing before the fireplace, where burning logs made cheerful the apartment and warmed the chill evening air.

"Aha!" he cried, precipitating himself upon his father's guest, whose arms went quickly around the boy.

There was silence, as if those outside were surprised at signs of an unexpected resistance.

There were more than fifty men outside; with them were some women; and Tomas Fauchel was their leader.

"Monsieur le Baron, will you permit me to arrange the defence as I see fit?" inquired the young officer, turning to his host.

"Most assuredly, sir; for I have full confidence in your ability," was the reply.

"Then extinguish every light in this hall, and close all the doors leading from it, so that all here will be in darkness," said the lieutenant, now speaking authoritatively. "And do you, Greloire,"—looking toward his soldiers—"with Muriel and Leboeuf, stand here beside Monsieur le Baron. Watch that broken window, and put a ball into every head that appears there."

Greloire saluted silently, and the officer continued: "If Tatro will act as guide, to pilot myself and the others, we will make a detour, and treat our friends to an attack in the flank."

Some of the hurled torches had lit the hall for a moment; but they were quickly extinguished by the baron.

A moment later the discharge of musketry outside told the lieutenant and his men had come upon the scene. Then the air was rent by more yells and imprecations, but with a sound in them bespeaking dismay on the part of the surprised marauders.

A second volley rang out, and the officer's voice was heard. "Steady, my men. Load and fire at will, or club your muskets. Teach these people a lesson—one in the name of the Assembly."

Those in the hall now saw a flaming torch thrust through the window. It was held by Tomas Fauchel, who waved it wildly as he shouted, "Show thyself, thou craven baron, for neither man nor devil shall force me from this place until I have kept my oath, and killed thee!"

The light of his torch fell upon the uplifted face—white and stern—of the baron, who said, laying his hand upon the musket with which Leboeuf was taking aim at the half-crazed fanatic, "Do him no harm, let him live."

Fauchel, who had heard the words, answered them with a mocking laugh, and quickly extending his other hand, pulled the trigger of a pistol, as he tossed his torch into the hall and yelled, "Die, thou damnable Papist, and take to hell with thee no thanks of mine for sparing my life."

The baron reeled, for he was struck fairly in the forehead. But he was caught by Leboeuf, and his dead form was not laid upon the floor before Greloire had planted a musket-ball in Fauchel's head, and tumbled him from the ladder—dead as the man he had assassinated.

His followers, terrified by the lieutenant's unexpected attack, were now flying like scared sheep; and the fight was ended.

An hour later the silence that wrapped the chateau would have repelled the thought of such an uproar having raged within it so recently. The dead had been laid in upper rooms, and Margot had gone to her own part of the house, leaving Jean in the drawing-room with the lieutenant, who was now walking up and down, and now sitting on the divan, beside the passionately grieving boy, to whom he spoke words of tenderest sympathy, stroking the dark hair, or holding the burning hands in a cool clasp that was infinitely soothing.

Some of the soldiers took turns at mounting guard in the lower hall, for fear of a possible renewal of the attack. But the peasants' outburst was evidently spent for the present, at least, as nothing happened to disturb the silence of the succeeding hours.

Time of Penance Shortened.

Abe Hummel, whose experience with divorces is probably as large as that of any other two men in this country, tells a story of a pretty woman who had just been freed from bonds that were very galling. In her joy at her release she declared to her friends that she would not marry again for at least two years. Just a year later her engagement to another man was announced, with the information that the wedding would take place in three months.

"How's this?" asked one of her friends. "How about that two-year business?"

"Oh," she replied, "I have concluded that I'm entitled to eight months off for good behavior. Same as they get in jail, you know."—New-York Times

The First Requisite.

"Not long ago," said Nat Goodwin, "I was lurching with a friend and two grass widows, neither of whom had been divorced."

"One of the widows held up the wishbone of the chicken."

"Let's see which will be married first," she said to the other grass widow.

"It seems to me," remarked my friend grimly, "that you'd better see which will be unmarried first."—New-York Times.

Wasted Time.

District Attorney Jerome, however reformed he may be now, was a great card player in his early days, so much so that his mother, who was a pious woman, said to him one day by way of remonstrance:

"A great deal of time is wasted, dear, is there not, in playing cards?"

"Yes, mother," he smiled in reply, "there is. In shuffling and dealing."—New-York Times.

Why the Hump is There.

"Can you tell me," said the seeker after knowledge to the showman, "what the hump on that camel's back is for?"

"What's it for?"

"Yes; of what value is it?"

"Well, it's lots of value. The camel would be no good without it."

"Why not?"

"Why not? Yer don't suppose people 'ud pay sixpence to see a camel without a hump, do yer?"

Satisfied.

"I'm satisfied that you never intend to pay me that five you borrowed."

"Well, if you're satisfied, I am."

Quicker Way.

"Who owns these acres?" asked the stranger, as they stopped to look at a low, marshy tract of land by the roadside.

"It's in dispute," said the real estate agent. "I believe there's a suit of some kind on hand now to quiet the title."

"If they want to do that," queried the other, "why don't they turn a lot of boys loose on those frogs?"

A Time Limit.

"I'm afraid you smoke too much for your own good," said the physician.

"Well," admitted the patient, "I do smoke almost continuously from morning till night."

"Why do you do that?" asked the M. D.

"Because it's the only time I have to smoke," replied the victim. "I have to sleep at night."

Modern Reces.

"Have you practiced on the piano?"

"Yes, mother."

"And read Prof. Simson's lecture on Greek art?"

"Yes, mother."

"And studied your calculus?"

"Yes, mother."

"Then you may go out and play for ten minutes."—Life.

Just a Mere Incident.

Manager—Well, I've engaged all the specialties for our new musical comedy. The scenery is done and the music is about finished.

Author—All right. I'll drop you a postal with the libretto on it to-morrow.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

What Did She Mean?

Plodder—My wife told me to-day she wished I took after my brother.

Newitt—Oh, yes; your brother became rich. That's what she meant, isn't it?

Plodder—Well, she's got me guessing. He died rich, you know.—Philadelphia Press.

Chance for a Bargain.

The specie-room on the steamship is a very important institution. It is located in an out-of-the-way place amidships, under the saloon. Few of the passengers know of its existence, or of the valuable treasure that is carried across the ocean with them. The room varies slightly on different ships, but is usually about 16 feet long by 10 feet wide and 8 feet high. It is constructed of steel plates one-quarter inch thick, and strongly riveted together. The floor, the ceiling and the walls are also made of steel plates. There is a heavy door, also made of steel. It is provided with a variety of combination lock that is said to be burglar-proof.

Little Flossie—Oh, mamma! here's your chance to get me a little brother real cheap. It doesn't matter if he is soiled. I can wash him.

More Haste.

Briggs—I see that while young Fiddleback was eloping with Miss Redbud her father overtook them.

Griggs—Didn't he use the automobile?

Briggs—Oh, yes; but the old man could walk faster.—Collier's.

CHILDISH ABUSE OF PETS.

Good Reason for Teaching the Precepts of Kindness.

All kinds of pets love children to such an extent that even cruel torture may be inflicted by those children and the animal still refuse to use its natural means of defense, or do more than strive to run away to escape the torment. Many children, in spite of the Bands of Mercy and Humane Societies, are thoughtless, if not cruel; many are easily led, and join in the fun (?) of tying tin cans to the tails of animals, when they see the other children engaged in this cruel sport. Therefore, parents should see that the precepts of kindness to animals, taught universally in school and church, should be carried out in daily life.

Children should thoroughly understand from the first that pets placed in their care must receive food and drink at certain hours each day; that the food must be properly prepared, and that the water for drinking of the right temperature.—Woman's Home Companion.

SOULS OUT OF HARMONY.

Parting of the Ways for the Practical and the Occult.

Myra Kelly, who has won an enviable reputation as a clever portrayeur of child-life in New York's East Side public schools, is practical. Literary fame and public attention have not diverted her from the paths of sanity into the "higher walks" of occultism, whither so many literary women have wandered. A disciple of "Oriental mysticism" met Miss Kelly recently, and, after considerable cross-questioning concerning literary motifs and the purposes of her soul, inquired anxiously:

"My child, what is the color of your soul?"

"I am sure I don't know," promptly replied Miss Kelly, "unless, being Irish, it is green."

"Green! Green!" exclaimed her questioner. "Mine is royal purple. We can never harmonize. Farewell!" and she floated away into the purple shadows of a darkened room beyond.

Popping the Question.

One of the millionaire cotton merchants of the United States was exceedingly timid in the presence of his adored one. Everybody knew he was desperately in love, but he had not the courage to pop the question. The parents of the girl invited him to spend the week's end at their country place, with a view to help matters along. Instead of a blessing or grace at the table it was the family's habit to recite a verse from the Bible, and all guests were invited to join in this diversion. With matrimony on the brain, our young expert on the staple quoted, when called on at breakfast Sunday morning—"He that getteth a wife getteth a good thing from the Lord." After that everything was easy. He married the girl.

Measuring Time in India.

In parts of southern India to measure time there was used a thin copper bowl about five inches in diameter and rather deeper than half a sphere, having a very small hole at the bottom. The bowl, placed in a vessel containing water and floating thereon, gradually filled. At the expiration of an arranged interval it sunk, and a boy or another watcher then struck a gong and thus announced the time. It showed the lapse of periods of forty-five minutes with tolerable accuracy, but the time varied with the temperature of the water. It was possible by the introduction of a cylinder containing a floating piston which worked on a cog wheel to indicate the hours.

Ships' Treasure-Chambers.

The specie-room on the steamship is a very important institution. It is located in an out-of-the-way place amidships, under the saloon. Few of the passengers know of its existence, or of the valuable treasure that is carried across the ocean with them. The room varies slightly on different ships, but is usually about 16 feet long by 10 feet wide and 8 feet high. It is constructed of steel plates one-quarter inch thick, and strongly riveted together. The floor, the ceiling and the walls are also made of steel plates. There is a heavy door, also made of steel. It is provided with a variety of combination lock that is said to be burglar-proof.

Liberty.

This "Land of quick success" Gave me no happiness. Nor fame, nor friends, nor gold. But precious pearls untold—The pearls of all the tears. I've wept in ten sad years. But I do not complain. O! lofty land of the free! I have thy greatest gain: Sweet Freedom I have from thee!

This "Land of quick success" Gave me no stars to bless. All I have been acquired In ten years' struggle fired, Is my rich silver share—The silver in my hair. But I do not complain. O! lofty land of the free! Thy grandest good is mine: Sweet Freedom I have from thee.—Marcus Rein.

Southern Moss Utilized.

The sweeping gray moss of the southern forests is linked with commerce. It fills mattresses for beds and cushions for buggies. It is useful for packing and it is gathered as any other crop is gathered by people who are paid by the day. Moss is gained as cotton is ginned; the outer cuticle of the fiber is removed and leaves it much like horse hair. It is then good for anything that needs stuffing. In Louisiana, instead of merely a detail of swamp scenery, it is the basis of an industry.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

When the Back Aches and Bladder Troubles Set In; Get at the Cause.

Don't make the mistake of believing backache and bladder ills to be local ailments. Get at the cause and cure the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, which have cured thousands.

Capt. S. D. Hunter, of Engine No. 14, Pittsburg, Pa., Fire Department, and residing at 2729 Wylie Ave., says:

"It was three years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that was mostly backache, and they fixed me up fine. There is no mistake about that, and if I should ever be troubled again, I would get them first thing, as I know what they are."

Ancient Water Clocks.

Plato introduced the clepsydra into Greece. It was used by the Romans also. The king of Persia is said to have presented Charlemagne with a water clock of bronze, inlaid with gold. Water clocks were used up to the seventeenth century. Even with the introduction of the pendulum, water served "as the motor and the pendulum as a regulator."

I will recommend ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE to my friends, as it is certainly a wonderful remedy."—Mrs. N. H. Guilford, New Orleans, La.

So-Called Prophecies.

Any man of a lively fancy, who knows enough of human nature to realize its abiding needs, can enumerate future discoveries by the dozen with a fair chance that perhaps one in a thousand may be realized within a century, says the London Spectator. To the same class belong the curious anticipations by native tribes, which generally take the form of news known, when by no conceivable means could information have reached them by ordinary channels. The present writer believes that this phenomenon, which some have explained by telegraphy, is simply a form of anticipation. The native is an inveterate guesser and since his tongue never ceases and his invention is active, he makes enough attempts to be fairly certain of stumbling now and then on the truth.

Childish Ideas of Life.

A curious and amusing mixture of early piety and worldliness came to light in a city schoolroom one day when the teacher had asked the children to write on their pads of paper something about the profession or occupation in which they would like to engage when they became men and women. One little girl wrote briefly but effectively: "I would desire to be a lady rider at a circus if it was the Lord's will." Another little girl with equally mixed ideas wrote: "Missionary, but if not that, millinery or clerk in candy store."—Lippincott's.

SAFEST FOOD

In Any Time of Trouble Is Grape-Nuts. Food to rebuild the strength and that is pre-digested must be selected when one is convalescent. At this time there is nothing so valuable as Grape-Nuts, for the reason that this food is all nourishment and is also all digestible nourishment. A woman who used it says:

"Some time ago I was very ill with typhoid fever, so ill everyone thought I would die, even myself. It left me so weak I could not properly digest food of any kind and I also had much bowel trouble which left me a weak, helpless wreck."

"I needed nourishment as badly as anyone could, but none of the tonics helped me until I finally tried Grape-Nuts food morning and evening. This not only supplied food that I thought delicious as could be, but it also made me perfectly well and strong again so I can do all my housework, sleep well, can eat anything without any trace of bowel trouble and for that reason alone Grape-Nuts food is worth its weight in gold." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Typhoid fever, like some other diseases, attacks the bowels and frequently sets up bleeding and makes them for months incapable of digesting the starches and therefore pre-digested Grape-Nuts is invaluable for the well-known reason that in Grape-Nuts all the starches have been transformed into grape sugar. This means that the first stage of digestion has been mechanically accomplished in Grape-Nuts food at the factories and therefore anyone, no matter how weak the stomach, can handle it and grow strong for all the nourishment it still there.

There's a sound reason and 10 days' trial proves.

"Is it thou, my beloved Pizarro?"

But he now roused himself as Margot entered, and bade her to be seated.

"Margot, I have sent for thee that I may unburden my mind somewhat as to matters which have been weighing heavily upon me for many months past," he began.

Margot looked at him in silent wonder mingled with some alarm, as she could see no reason for his words, nor for the mood which seemed to inspire them.

"These are troublous times," he resumed more calmly, and dropping the far more manner of speech he had previously used; "times when but a few hours suffice to turn affairs from apparent security into confusion and danger. I wish, therefore, to place a considerable sum of money in your care, for I feel that perhaps it may be safer with you than with me. It is all I have of my own to give Jean; and it will relieve me to know that, no matter what may come to me, or however Etienne may seek to rob the boy, my Jean will never know actual want."

The baron was now standing by the side of his desk; and pressing the edge of a panel in the oaken wainscoting, it flew open, disclosing a small recess, wherein were a small metal box and a number of little canvas bags.

"Come here," he said; turning to look at Margot over his shoulder.

She came to his side.

"See," he explained; "you do so, and so," showing her how to manipulate the secret spring. Then, after closing the panel, he added, "See now if you can open it."

She did so, and the panel opened again.

"Ah, that is well. Now you know where the boy's fortune is hidden, and I trust you to guard it for him. The bags contain gold coin, and the box holds a few jewels, that are his, as they were his mother's; also some papers, for which the future may show need, should any one seek to deprive him of his rights as my son. I shall leave it to your discretion as to when and where you will take them from their present hiding-place. Remember, Margot, I charge you solemnly, that when I am not here, if I am taken away, I trust you, above

"Truly it is, little Monsieur de So-to," answered Lieutenant Bonaparte, laughing as he kissed Jean's flushed cheeks, while the baron looked on with amazement, and old Tatro paused in the report he was making as to the soldier's dinner in the outer hall, to start with equal surprise at these demonstrations of affection between the stranger and his master's son.

When they were seated the officer explained to Monsieur le Baron—although in a way not to bring in the name of Etienne—how he had come to know the boy; and Jean, now quite in his element, and entirely at ease, rattled on after a fashion that relieved his father from any extra effort in entertaining his guest.

It was nearing ten o'clock. The officer and his host were seated in the drawing-room, having a game of chess, with Jean, very proud and correspondingly sleepy, because of sitting up so long beyond his usual bedtime, watching them from a near-by divan, when Tatro, his face and voice, showing the greatest alarm, rushed into the room and exclaimed, "Mon Dieu, Monsieur le Baron! The peasants! A great crowd of them are coming up the avenue. Hark—you can hear their shouts!"

The chessmen and board fell to the floor as both players sprang from their chairs; and Jean, all sleepiness banished from his eyes, stood beside them.

"Call my soldiers at once," ordered Bonaparte, speaking to Tatro. "Monsieur le Baron," he added, turning to him, "we will do all in our power for your protection."

The dozen soldiers appeared, and were ordered to post themselves in the hall, where they stood, with ready arms, behind their commander and the baron, who were nearer the stoutly barred door, listening to the wild hubbub of voices now close to the chateau.

The lieutenant waited until there was a lull in the noise; then, raising his voice, he called out, "Have a care what you do, for the baron is not without protectors. I am an officer of the Assembly; and in its name I bid you disperse."

This, I understand you have done, and after a thorough examination the cause was dismissed by you for the reason that there was not sufficient evidence upon which to hold respondents for trial. As far as I am concerned I am willing to stand upon my opinion formed from an examination of the affidavits. I never have written an article in defense of my own official action and do not care to do so now. If you are unduly criticised for your action, I am willing to state the facts either for publication or otherwise. You are at liberty to show this letter to Mr. Lorraine or any other person. If Mr. Lorraine cares to have a statement from me and it is one which I could make without prejudice to my official position, I am willing to make such statement. I remain, Yours truly, Fred W. Mayne.

Upon receipt of the above letter from Judge Mayne, I at once called upon Mr. Lorraine, showing him the letter and requested that he publish it, or extracts of it, and thereby correct the erroneous impression as far as possible which he had created in public's mind concerning the action of the justice, sheriff and prosecutor. This, he refused to do.

Knowing the contents of Judge Mayne's letter to me and the arrest of Chandler and Muirhead was made in the best of good faith and in the hope that the guilty perpetrators of this heinous crime might be apprehended, Mr. Lorraine has again attacked me through the columns of his paper and once more accused me with corrupt motives in the case and with being willing to accept a bribe and then closing his libelous article with the statement that "the costs of the suit are estimated at $1000.00."

Mr. Lorraine asks why the witnesses were not punished when they did not swear to the same things on the stand as in giving their information upon which the warrants were issued. Had he consulted with any lawyer in the County he would immediately have been advised that to hold these witnesses on a charge of perjury, that false swearing must occur in a judicial proceeding and that inasmuch as the false swearing was in the affidavits the parties could not be held on a charge of perjury.

The next vicious act of the editor of the Enterprise is to distribute his falsehood and misrepresentations to the voting population of the County, believing that by deceit and calumny he would defeat my re-election to the office of prosecuting attorney.

I brand the accusations made against me by Mr. Lorraine relative to the Muirhead arson case as wilful, false and malicious, and charge him with publishing the article at a time when he believed the venom of his pen dipped into the ink of deception and bad faith would prove most fatal to my re-election.

I also brand as a falsehood the statement of Mr. Lorraine that the expenses of this Muirhead case were nearly $1000.00 as they were actually less than $200.00.

I also brand as wilfully false and malicious the statement of Mr. Lorraine that the prosecution if paid $2500, would dismiss the case against the defendant, as at no time was any such proposition made, directly or indirectly, nor was there any intimation of the kind.

Yours respectfully,
A. B. NICHOLAS.

Who They Are.

The Primary Reform Ticket is composed of the following:

Mr. Mears, candidate for Judge of Probate, a disappointed Republican who feels that being defeated in his own party he possesses the capacity to defeat that party at the polls.

Richard Beach, candidate for sheriff, a consistent democrat who has always supported the democratic nominee be he Cleveland, Bryan or Parker and always ready to do anything within his power to defeat any republican be he friend or foe.

John Bugbee, candidate for county clerk, another disappointed republican who was a candidate in the last Republican convention, and because being defeated is willing to lend his aid to the democrats in an attempt to defeat the republicans.

William J. Lewis, candidate for county treasurer, another democrat who is the only one we have seen wearing a "Parker" button, and who says he would vote the democratic ticket if he knew it meant instant death, and by the way "Bill" knows something about politics also. To the older residents we but simply refer to his work in days gone by. Anyhow he is willing to work night and day any time to defeat the republican party.

Louis J. Isaman, candidate for register of deeds, is an honest, conscientious boy and we believe means no harm to anyone, but is a victim of the conspiracy and only the bitter teacher, experience, will enlighten him.

Henry Jersey, candidate for prosecuting attorney, claims to be a democrat and signed the call for the Boyne City convention as such. Mr. Jersey's legal experience is very limited and ability unknown.

Fred E. Boosinger, candidate for circuit court commissioner, says he is not in sympathy with the ticket and would rather he had not been selected for the place, and asked that his name be kept off the ticket.

How do you like it?

Fruit at the Breakfast Table!

Nature Provides Its Own Remedies Which, If Used Judiciously, Insure Perfect Health at All Times.

Aside from the pleasure of eating seasonal fruits, beginning the first meal of the day, this custom has undoubtedly arisen from the well known fact that nearly all fruit, and more particularly plums and PRUNES contain natural laxative principles which act directly on the stomach and bowels.

Constipation that dread and troublesome complaint which is undoubtedly the basic cause of nine-tenths of the dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, etc., so prevalent among our people today, and which if neglected, surely leads to more complicated and serious organic diseases, can surely be prevented, and when not too far advanced, can be absolutely cured by the judicious use of the modern laxative and cathartic California Prune Wafers.

They are not a patent medicine in the ordinary sense of the word, being compounded from fresh California Prunes, which every intelligent person knows is truly nature's laxative.

A dainty little wafer, always the same, compounded in a highly concentrated form from fresh California Prunes.

They are a natural dissolvent acting on the contents of the stomach and bowels and not on the organs themselves.

They regulate the Liver and Stomach, Cleanse the System and Purify the Blood, Cure all Bowel Troubles, Biliousness, Bad Breath, Bad Blood, Wind on the Stomach, Bloating Bowels, Foul Mouth, Headache, Indigestion, Pimples and Dizziness.

Every household should have its family package of California Prune Wafers, and at the first signs of approaching illness or when under the weather, take a couple of wafers, and the doctor's bills will soon be much smaller than they are now.

You can eat what you please if you follow each meal with a California Prune Wafer, which quickly dissolves the most indigestible food, and helps to carry it through and out of the system in a gentle and healthful manner, without the slightest pain, griping or nausea. 100 Wafers for 25c. E. J. High School Lecture Course.

We are pleased to announce to the citizens of East Jordan that arrangements have been made for a first-class lecture course for the coming winter season. The course consists of five numbers of as high a degree of excellence as any course ever given in Northern Michigan. The price is very cheap, $1.00 for the entire course. Seats can be reserved at the regular place at the low price of 10c for each entertainment. Those not purchasing season tickets will be required to pay regular house rates. The course will open Dec. 16th, with the Slayton Jubilee Singers, generally conceded to be the best company of the class on the American platform, as many press notices plainly show. The Grand Rapids Herald has the following to say:—The Slayton Jubilee Singers entertained a big audience in the Auditorium last night. The first half of the program was composed of plantation and jubilee songs, which were sung to the gratification of all. The second part consisted of solos and specialties. The ensemble work was all interesting, and the company sang the plantation jubilees and modern 'coon' songs in a very pleasing manner and only as 'darkies' can sing them. The company made an excellent impression and the audience was highly entertained. The next number of the course is Wallace Bruce Amsbury Jan. 19th. Mr. Amsbury is an impersonator of much more than average ability. His character portrayals are magnificent. His testimonials are from committees of the very largest lecture courses in the land. The Chicago Inter Ocean says:—Mr. Amsbury interpreted the writings of Rudyard Kipling, James Whitcomb Riley, Eugene Field, Frank Stanton, Peter Dunne, Charles Eugene Banks, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Henry Drummond, and some original poem, with rare feeling and delicacy. Every number was followed by enthusiastic applause. John R. Clarke well known for his famous lecture "To and Fro in London" will appear on Feb. 18th. Mr. Clarke needs no introduction to the lecture-going public. Following this is the Dunbar Male Quartette on March 6th and Dr. A. A. Willis "the Apostle of Sunshine" on March 23rd. The above course will be conducted wholly for the benefit of the High School and we sincerely trust that it will be well patronized by the friends of the school. Each number will be given at the Loveday Opera House.

Sherman and Son announce that the market price of live stock has declined and also that their retail prices have been lowered in the same proportion. The Quarterly Meeting of the Free Methodist Church will be held at Walker School House Nov. 11th, till 13th. All are cordially invited.—S. A. Whitmore, pastor. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas C. Loveday returned from their wedding tour last week, and are now occupying their home, The Elms. Miss Louise is in Chicago taking a course in one of the Colleges there. An entertainment will be given at the Town Hall, Friday evening, Nov. 11th, under the auspices of the Lady Maccabees. Satisfaction or your money back. Admission 10 and 20 cents. Don't forget the date. A hunting party consisting of John Boosinger, Dr. H. W. Dicken, Dr. C. A. Sweet, Charles Gotham, and Horace Hipp left Thursday for a trip up north of Seney. They will probably be gone several weeks and when they return venison will be cheap. The Republican Rally of last Tuesday evening at the East Jordan Opera House was well attended—especially by the ladies—and the speeches of both Colon C. Lillis and Judge Harris were well received. Next Monday evening another meeting will be held at which the Hon. George G. Covell, U. S. Attorney and a brilliant orator, will deliver the principal address. Action was begun in Circuit Court, Thursday, against C. L. Lorraine, publisher of the East Jordan Enterprise, charging him with criminal libel. A. B. Nicholas is the complaining witness. The affair has grown out of several items appearing in Mr. Lorraine's paper and which are probably well known to a majority of our readers. Ed. Russell of Boyne City was in East Jordan Saturday, and gave The Herald a call. Mr. Russell and others in that city find that they can purchase their lumber here, at from 10 to 20 per cent less than in their home town which means quite a bit on a load. He took back with him a load of siding for a new residence which he is building.

Register. C. C. Mack, the Jeweler. Judge of Probate Harris was in our city, Tuesday. Atty Fred E. Boosinger was a Petoskey visitor first of the week. Mrs. George Lee of Charlevoix was an East Jordan visitor first of the week. Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sheldon have returned from their St. Louis World's Fair visit. Mrs. Moses Larabee spent Saturday and Sunday at Elksworth, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Davis. The Stork left a sweet little baby girl at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Harvey Milford last Saturday. Miss Wilma, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Pickard gave a party to several of her little friends, Saturday afternoon. Cut Glass and Hand Decorated China, the latest patterns and at prices that are certainly right. Mack, the Jeweler. Hon. George G. Covell will speak at the East Jordan Opera House next Monday evening on Republican issues. Come out and hear this brilliant orator. A distressing accident occurred at the Flooring Plant, Monday afternoon when Charles Bennett was struck in the eye by a flying board and that member rendered useless. He was operating an edger when in some manner a board went out of its regular channel, swung around, and struck Bennett in the eye. He is an experienced workman and had been in the employ of the Flooring plant about a week. Gardie Newton, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. George Newton of South Arm, died Sunday last from a combination of membranous croup and tonsillitis. The burial takes place today at Riverside Cemetery, Kalamazoo. Another son, aged 14 years, is badly afflicted with dropsy and Mrs. Newton accompanied him, together with the remains of the youngest child, to Kalamazoo in the hopes that their old-time doctor could alleviate his sufferings. The Holidays are yet seven weeks away but some of our Merchants are already beginning to get in their Holiday Goods and placing same on their shelves for display. At Mack's Jewelry Store, the other day, we noticed a nice line of Cut Glass and Hand Painted China which he had just put in and which is being sold at prices which are way below the usual cost. There has not been very much trade in these goods in East Jordan and it is the object of Mr. Mack to create such a trade. To do so he must naturally sell at a small margin of profit. If Holiday purchasers would drop in occasionally and look over the new lines as they arrive that perplexing question of "What shall I buy?" would be easily answered when the Holiday rush and worry is on.

Make Excellent Butter.
If anyone had any doubts that the East Jordan Creamery was not turning out a first-class product their minds can now be at rest. At the St. Louis World's Fair in competition with buttermakers from all parts of the world, our Creamery butter scored 92 1/2 points, winning a Diploma of Merit, a badge of membership in the National Creamery Buttermaker's Ass'n, and a share in a cash prize of $1,500 to be divided pro-rata among those scoring above 90 points. The score of points on the butter sent was as follows:
Flavor.....45-37 1/2
Body.....25-25
Color.....15-15
Salt.....10-10
Package.....05-05
100. 92 1/2
This shows that the making of the butter was perfect and that the defect was in the first number of points which, as the St. Louis judges say, was caused by cows eating impure foods. It also shows that dairymen cannot be too careful in caring for their cows, milk and cream. The publisher of this paper, witnessed the making of the butter and can say that it was made from the run of the cream and not assorted as was in most cases with the other contestants. Both Prop'r and Mrs. J. J. Pfender are thorough buttermakers and to each belongs a share of the honor in manufacturing the prize butter. Charlevoix County people are beginning to realize that we have an excellent Creamery, that it is a valuable addition to our industries, and that when it begins operations in the spring, deserves the support of all.

HER Husband's Advice

BY VEE LA WEE

In the beginning Sylvia had complained to her husband one evening as he slipped on his top coat: "I don't see why you won't ever wait and see Bert. Do you know, we have a great deal in common; we are very much alike."
"As a woman, Sylvia, you're a poem," replied Mr. Browne, picking up his stick. "As a man, you'd be a tame cat. For myself, I don't like cats."
Unfortunately, Mr. Browne was kept extremely busy at his office these days, and so Bertram, with his fine, distinguished airs, his poetical tastes, his immaculate grooming, was able to make his innings. From the early discovery that they were affinities, it wasn't a great step to prove to Sylvia that the laws of God and man were interfering things at times and upon proper provocation could be set aside. "Great love, like yours, and mine," he announced to her one day, "is born of the vastness and loneliness of the sea, and makes human conventions utterly pointless."
Mrs. Browne was very unhappy and miserable in spite of this uplifting announcement. One morning at breakfast, as she was darning a cherry by its stalk just above her pretty lips and making little snaps at it, her eyes somehow lingered admiringly upon her husband's chin. It was such a firm, manly chin, and, after all, she was such an undecided, dependent sort of little body, she sighed to herself. Yes, she would ask his advice about the momentous question that was knocking at her door for a decision.

"Jack," she began, gulping down her cherry, "I want your advice about something. A girl I know is in trouble, and I—I don't know exactly what to tell her to do. You don't mind my not mentioning her name, Jack?"
"Much rather you didn't," said he. He laid down the paper he was reading with the disappointed air of a man who has left the stock market unread and began sipping his coffee.
How blunt and uncouth he was! But then, for the matter of that, even in the old, dear, sweetheart days, hadn't he always been that? What could have been more blunt than the way he had told her first that she was the prettiest girl he'd ever seen? Sylvia tried to compare the remark uttering with Bert's way of telling her that "her eyes were pools of purple, her mouth a scarlet thread."
"Well, Sylvia, what about your friend?" Her husband's voice fetched her back to the matter in hand. She hesitated, pushed her muffins aside, drew a deep breath and plunged.
"Why, Jack, she's married, you see, and she's utterly miserable. Her husband and she have scarcely a taste in common. She's really going to leave him, I think; but she's asked my advice."
"He's a beast, I suppose?" commented Mr. Browne, meditatively balancing a fork on his finger. "Knocks her up against the furniture—no? He drinks, then?"

"No—on, no!" Sylvia's tone gave the impression that any of these things would have been insignificant trifles. "But they're thoroughly ungenial. He loves his business and she loves cigars and newspapers, and she loves poetry and romance and—and the finer things of life." She gave a vague, comprehensive little gesture with her left hand.
"Under such conditions, marriage is such a mockery," she went on, hurriedly. "The argument was one of Bert's, and had made an impression on her.) "Besides, you see, there's another man who loves her in the way she wishes to be loved, and so they're going to find happiness together and snap their fingers at the world's conventions."

Sylvia had risen from the table, and now flung herself with an air of dainty, defiant bravado on a couch in the corner. Mr. Browne began stroking that firm chin of his in a way that signified nothing to his wife, but even the clerks in his office knew it to be a sign of deep perplexity.
"And that's what you want my advice about?" he said, slowly, at last.

"Do you love me?"
"Well, dear, tell your friend that it is women—nice, clean women—who talk about 'snapping their fingers at the world's conventions.' Men don't take much stock in it. They know too well what it means." He paused, then went on measuredly.
"To be sure, Sylvia, if your friend's husband were a beast, or brutal to her, or didn't support her, she might get a divorce in conventional order. For myself, I'm not in for divorces; though that's a matter of taste, maybe. But if she leaves him and runs off with another man—why, do you realize what that would mean to a nice woman?"
"What would it mean?" Sylvia began nervously to punch holes in the sofa cushion with her scriabin.
"That for the future her friends must be among a set of people who really are what she is merely called; that the man for whom she sacrificed everything couldn't sacrifice enough for her to point out to her that duty was stronger than love. Love isn't everything, dear—"
There was a certain big, caressing tone in his voice which unconsciously made Sylvia hark back to the old honeymoon days, before she had discovered that marriage with him was "a mockery." She took out her handkerchief, a ridiculous bit of lawn and lace, and touched her eyes furtively.
"That's from the world's viewpoint," he continued. "Then, there's the husband. I judge from what you say he isn't wholly a rum lot. Perhaps—even if he hasn't very fine, poetic tastes—perhaps he also realizes that he bores the woman he loves. Maybe he does love her in spite of his blunt, ordinary brusqueness. Maybe he thinks all day at the office how, if this or that deal goes through, it'll mean more dainty luxuries for her. Maybe he hurries home after business hours so that he can put on his dinner clothes, knowing that pleases her fastidious tastes and makes him a bit more congenial to her. Perhaps, even if he does pick up his newspapers, and doesn't read poetry to her, it's a kind of paradise merely to have her in the room with him. Some men are made like that, you know."

There was another furtive mop with the ridiculous little handkerchief. Why did her husband's voice, when it was tender, always have that mastery over her?
"And some evening," pursued that masterful voice, "when he has hurried home, perhaps he finds pinned to one of his ties a note saying it's all been a mistake; that at last she's found a man 'congenial' to her and has run off with him. And while the cook, all unsuspecting, is about to serve the dinner for two, he stands there cold and stunned—turned out of paradise! The worst of it is," Jack added, beginning to pace slowly up and down the room, "the worst of it is, he'll never get rid of the reproach that if he hadn't married her, and led her to make this mistake, she might always have been as white and pure as a swan." Silence.

"So you advise me to—tell her that—there was a queer little catch in Sylvia's voice; she could get no further.
"Yes, dear," came her husband's voice, tenderly. "Tell her that perhaps she made a mistake in thinking it's all a mistake. A fellow's not as big as a woman's first ideals of him are; but he's usually bigger and better than she thinks when she's disillusioned."
Sylvia had buried her face in the sofa cushion and was sobbing outright now. Her husband crossed the room and, sitting beside her, began to soothe the little curls and tendrils of her hair.
"Sweetheart," he said, choking a bit, "tell her to love and be patient with her husband, as you love and are patient with me. You do love me?" wistfully.
"Don't I, though!" cried Sylvia, joyfully, throwing her arms about his neck and smothering him with neglected kisses. "And you certainly know how to give advice, Jack!"—Vee La Wee, in New York Press.

"NEW" POTATOES A FRAUD.

Westerner Said to Make Much Money by Shrewd Trick.

"The wooden nutmeg of Connecticut was the first imitation food," said a grocer, "and then came the mean Bostonian who dried snow and sold it for salt. This year we have an imitation new potato."
"A Westerner put the imitation new potato on the market, and they say he has made about 80 per cent profit out of it. I am speaking seriously now, mind. Of course it was in a joking way that I alluded to the nutmeg and the salt."
"The Westerner, to accomplish his deception, plants on toward the end of the summer a crop of late potatoes of a kind that keep well. These ripen and are dug up just before the first frost. They are sorted, and all the bad ones are thrown out. Then the rest are buried in a field.
"The crop lies buried, preserved from all harm under the soil, till early spring. About two months before the first genuine potatoes have appeared it is dug up.
"A great bath of a solution of lye is prepared and in this bath the potatoes are dipped. When they emerge from their plunge their skins are pink and curly, and their flesh is hard and firm. In a word, they are to all appearances new potatoes, and they would deceive anyone.
"There are many imitation foods," the grocer ended. "We have imitation butter, imitation syrup, imitation jellies and jams, imitation coffee, imitation honey and imitation maple sugar. Not one of these frauds, though, is so hard to detect as the imitation new potato."

Of Interest to Peach Growers.

A bulletin in course of preparation at the Department of Agriculture, it is said, describing a method of exterminating a peach tree parasite known as "little peach." The reason this pest was so named is because a tree bearing large fruit when attacked by these parasites is affected by the disease commonly known among peach growers of western Maryland as the "go-back," and thereafter produces a small and bitter peach, instead of the former large and luscious product. The Agricultural Department experts have been experimenting with this matter for ten years, it is stated. Mr. Morton B. Waite, chief of the division of orchard fruits, reports that the parasite can be exterminated by cutting out of the orchard every tree affected by the "little peach."

The Victor.

"He that overcometh shall inherit all things."—Revelation, xxi, 7.
One time the sea was wide—so wide that men declared No one could find its further side. Yet one man dared. One man who braved of things to do. One man who fought his doubting crew. And ventured all his dreams came true. His way, till all the sea might hide Their work had bare.
One time the plains were dull and still And men gazed at each distant hill. With doubting nod. But one man braved the lonely miles. Blazed pathways through the forest aisles. Men went his way in eager files; With chain and rod. They marked the place for mart and mill Upon the sod.
The man who is content to rest Secure from harms. In fear of toll's tremendous test Or war's alarms. Who hugs, untrumped, his safe hearth. Gives little proof of strength or worth. His wife is strangled in its birth. And sugged charms Have barred the tale of noble quest From his ears.

Railroad Building in Africa.

At the half-yearly meeting of the Rhodesia railways it was stated that 321 miles of line had been opened for traffic. The trunk lines south of Zambesi were thus finished, and the Gweto, Selukwe and Matoppy branches had also been completed. The total railway system open for traffic was now 1,309 miles. The bridge over the Victoria falls was being erected, the construction of the extension north of the river had begun and the permanent way material was being carried across by a cable way concurrently with the building of the bridge.—London Engineer.

TIME TO JUDGE SCENERY.

Observant Man Advises Waiting Until After Breakfast.

"It's curious, you know, it really is," said a returned summer boarder, "what effect a good square meal will have on the imagination."
"We arrived at the end of a long railroad journey, on our way to where we were to spend the summer, at 5 o'clock in the morning. Then we took a stage and rode miles further over a hilly road, in the chilly morning air to one end of a lake, where we took a steamboat and rode some more miles to our final destination, arriving there at 7 a. m.
"Seen under such circumstances, after being routed out of bed at 4 a. m., and before breakfast, the scenery was disappointing. The lake seemed not much bigger than a good-sized mill pond, the trees were all stunted and the mountains were not much bigger than hills, and we were inclined to take a gloomy view of things, and in that frame we remained until, at 7:30, the tocsin sounded and we went in for breakfast.
"That was a good breakfast, with everything well cooked and admirably served, and with particularly excellent coffee, and we had the appetites of hungry mules and lingered long.
"When we had again come out the sun was shining and the lake had been enlarged by four acres at least; each individual tree of all the innumerable thousands that everywhere fringed the lake's shores, and rose upward on its mountainous sides had grown forty feet, and the mountains themselves now climbed to the sky.
"It was all noble and restful and beautiful; and so it remained, growing on us all the time as long as we were there.
"Hereafter I shall never pass judgment on scenery till after breakfast."
—New York Sun.

GAMBLE ON RULERS' LIVES.

English People Make Practice of This Form of Insurance.

"Policies, I'll wager, are already being taken out in London on the life of little Alexis, the heir to the Russian throne," said an insurance agent. "The English gamble horribly in life-insurance, and Alexis must appeal to them as a wonderful risk. They will pay high for him, though."
"The insurance rates on all royal lives are a tribute to the power of the nihilists and anarchists, for they are so huge as to be almost prohibitive. The rate on the King of England is enormous, and among monarchs the lowest rate of any. That on the Russian czar is the highest. The czar is a bad risk. Many companies would not insure him on any consideration.
"But Lloyds, the great London concern, would insure anything or anybody—Prof. Langley going up in one of his flying machines, a Japanese spy about to enter Port Arthur, a Russian battleship going into battle, and hence Lloyds is willing to insure the poor little Russian heir, and a certain class of men, taking advantage of this fact, are procuring policies upon the baby's life.
"Gambling on lives is a ghastly form of sport, and I believe that it is practiced nowhere but in England. It ought not to be practiced there. The law ought to prohibit it. At Lloyds, however, it is always going on. Policies at Lloyds are continually being taken out on persons of eminence all over the world."

How Nature Works.

A lonely rock arose above the sea,
The coral insects fretting at its base;
And no man came into its loneliness.
The very storm-birds shunned its evil case.
Only the ocean beat upon its breast,
Only the ocean gave it close embrace.
An island was upheaved toward the skies,
A central fire within its heart had burst;
The rock became a mountain, stern and strong.
Only the ocean showed at first;
A stray bird dropped a seed that fructified,
No longer reigned the barrenness accursed.
A little world stood out among the seas,
With singing brooks and many a fragrant wood.
Where lovers heard again their story sweet,
And truth grew fair, more fully understood.
The tender flowers o'ergrew the chasms bare;
And God looked down, and saw that it was good.
—Sarah Williams.

Canada's New Governor.

An American boy who was traveling in South Africa in 1896, toward the close of the Matabele troubles, recalls his first sight of Earl Grey, the new governor general of Canada. "His lordship," says the American referred to, "did not look a bit like a belted earl. Though administrator of Rhodesia at the time, he was in his shirt sleeves, with a pair of obviously ready-made trousers and a disreputable slouch hat. He and a couple of friends were having a drink at the bar of the Bulawayo club." Lord Grey, by the way, was born in a royal residence. His father was private secretary to Queen Victoria, and Lady Grey was stopping in St. James' palace at the time.

Oldest Naval Veteran.

William Macabee, America's oldest naval veteran and an inmate of the sailor's home near Philadelphia, has been celebrating his one hundred and first birthday. The old man who was born in Baltimore, Sept. 22, 1803, entered the navy as an apprentice boy on the frigate Constitution. His birthday anniversaries in recent years have been memorable events. Last year Attorney General Moody, then secretary of the navy, was in Philadelphia, and made it a special point to congratulate the old man. "Billy" is still nimble on his feet, and on his birthday danced a couple of steps to the sailor's hornpipe, to the unmeasured delight of his aged fellow inmates.

TALK ON ADVERTISING

By C. W. Post to Publishers at Banquet at Battle Creek.

The sunshine that makes a business plant grow is advertising.
Growing a business nowadays is something like growing an apple tree. You may select good seed, plant it in good soil, water and work with it, but the tree will not produce fruit until another and most powerful, energizing and life-giving element is brought to bear. You must have sunshine and lots of it. Can you expect to ripen apples in the dark? Can you expect to grow a profitable business plant nowadays without the sunshine of public favor produced by advertising?
This Postum plant is a good illustration of that law. It seems but a short time ago when I put a few men at work in the carriage house of the barn you have seen to-day, where we began making Postum coffee.
The seed then planted, less than 9 years ago, was a new kind of apple seed and it was not altogether certain how the people would like the apples. We did our work thoroughly and plenty of it. We knew we had a good

Some thoughtful man might say that if what you manufacture has merit, once you get a trade established people will continue to purchase, even if the advertising is stopped, but to act on that conclusion would be a fatal mistake, for there are always bright men on the lookout to steal your apples, and if you give them the chance they will come in and take the fruit, sure. Right here let us drive a nail, not a shingle nail but a forty penny spike. Your article must have merit, far and away beyond the ordinary advertised thing. It should be the very best that human intelligence and ingenuity can produce. Then you have a foundation to build upon that will not slip out from under when the building grows heavy. There are persons ignorant enough to believe that a poor article can be advertised into success. It cannot and any one who tries the experiment will pay heavily for his experience. Critically examine any well known and advertised article that has been years on the market and apple tree of fine quality but how to develop our work and turn the apple tree into a productive and profitable tree, was another question.

It needed sunshine and the kind of sunshine that is spread by the newspapers and magazines. It is an absolute certainty that without the publicity thus given—in other words, the sunshine—the business never would have developed.

You have seen to-day factory buildings—thirteen or fourteen in number—covering many acres of ground, employing hundreds of workpeople, producing food and drink in an aggregate of four million packages per month, which goes to every civilized country on the globe, and yet the entire enterprise is less than 9 years old. We have found it necessary, inasmuch as the tree has grown and the apples matured by hard work and sunshine, to continue the work and the sunshine day in and day out, month in and month out, the sunshine appropriation amounting to approximately a million dollars a year for advertising, for experience teaches that if you mature the tree under strong sunshine, and bring it up to a thrifty and healthful state where it produces profitable apples, you can not withdraw that sunshine else the tree will gradually die.

it will be found to possess exceptional merit.

In ancient days newspaper publishers considered an advertisement an evil but a necessary evil, and that it should be hidden away as carefully as possible, so that no one would discover that the paper was trying to make a little money by inserting public announcements. A paper run that way to-day would fail.

The most successful exponents of the new plan of doing business with ink and paper are using every possible means to make the announcements attractive and sought after by the readers.

It is safe to say that thousands of women read the newspaper—not the telegraphic page, but the pages containing announcements of bargains in stockings, skirts, hats, gloves, pianos, furniture, food for the table, etc.

You have been invited to visit Battle Creek for the purpose of viewing one of the most unique advertising buildings in the world, also to look over a large business built up, sustained, nourished and kept active by sunshine, and, at the same time, have an opportunity to see one of the most thrifty, active and prosperous towns of its size in the world, built up largely by the same kind of sunshine.

Mrs. De Long Finds That the Indescribable Pains of Rheumatism Can Be Cured Through the Blood.

Mrs. E. M. De Long, of No. 166 West Broadway, Council Bluffs, Iowa, found herself suddenly attacked by rheumatism in the winter of 1899. She gave the doctor a chance to help her, which he failed to improve, and then she did some thinking and experimenting of her own. She was so successful that she deems it her duty to tell the story of her escape from suffering:

"My brother-in-law," she says, "was enthusiastic on the subject of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a purifier of the blood, and when I was suffering extreme pains in the joints of my ankles, knees, hips, wrists and elbows, and the doctor was giving me no relief, I began to reflect that rheumatism is a disease of the blood, and that if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are so good for the blood they must be good for rheumatism and worth a trial.

"I was in bed half the time, suffering with pain that cannot be described to one who has never had the disease. It would concentrate sometimes in one set of joints. When it was in my feet I could not walk; when it was in my elbows and wrists I could not even draw the coverlets over my body. I had suffered in this way for weeks before I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Two weeks after I began with them I experienced relief and after I had taken six boxes I was entirely well. To make sure I continued to use them about two weeks longer and then stopped altogether. For several years I have had no reason to use them for myself, but I have recommended them to others—as an excellent remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills furnish the blood with all the elements that are needed to build up healthy tissue, strong muscles and nerves, capable of bearing the strain that nature puts upon them. They really make new blood and cure all diseases arising from disorders of the blood or nervous system, such as sciatica, neuralgia, partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, St. Vitus' dance, nervous prostration, anemia and all forms of weakness in either male or female. They are sold by all druggists.

JOKE ON THE JOKER.

Illustration of Henry Ward Beecher's Excellence at Repartee.

That Henry Ward Beecher was spared much embarrassment by his quickness at repartee is illustrated by the following story: One evening, as he was in the midst of an impassioned speech, someone attempted to interrupt him by suddenly crowing like a rooster. It was done to perfection; a number of people laughed in spite of themselves, and the speaker's friends felt that in a moment the whole effect of the meeting, and of Mr. Beecher's thrilling appeals, might be lost. The orator, however, was equal to the occasion. He stopped, listened till the crowing ceased, and then, with a look of surprise, pulled out his watch.

MAY BE RACE OF GIANTS.

One of the Possibilities of Continued Use of Lecithin. The process by which a human being or other animal grows is something of a mystery, and nobody knows why development comes to an end at a certain stage of life. It is supposed that an alligator continues to grow throughout its entire life, and the same may be true of some other reptiles; but the growth period of a mammal is usually limited to about one-fifth of the term of its natural existence.

Snakes in Water.

All reptiles swim. Almost all snakes move through the water with as much ease and rapidity as on land. Rattlesnakes, for example, are much given to swimming in placid water if it is not too cold. In the Everglades lakes of Florida they may be often seen. It is well to know that to attack from a boat a poisonous snake in the water is a much more dangerous proceeding than to attack the snake on land. The reason is that the reptile will immediately make for the boat, since it must have a solid base from which to strike. It half-leaps and half climbs into the craft, and there is a fight at uncomfortably close quarters.—Success.

How Webster Got Even.

Daniel Webster wrote after continued provocation to the editor of a newspaper which had referred to his private affairs and especially to his not paying his debts. He said: "It is true that I have not always paid my debts punctually, and that I owe money. The cause of this is that I have not pressed those who owe me, for payment. As an instance of this I enclose your father's note, made to me thirty years ago, for money lent him to educate his boys."—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

THE SOUTHERN HONEY LOCUST.

Once in the city park, leaving the dust and heat and noise of the city, wandering through narrow byways, sudden my senses thrilled to an odor afar off: An odor just wafted, delicate, subtle, elusive, Breath of the Southland fanning the brow of the North. Down the narrow path, The perfume bearing, expanding, ever increasing, Engulfing me now with billow ca lillow of fragrance, Uncertain I wandered, I thought I smelled the sweet-brier, The wild honeysuckle, but no, 'twas the locust! the locust! Beautiful, shaking its millionfold sweets to the wind. Oh locust! so of the South! Your blossoms of honeyed snow full of tremulous motion! Were you gladdened to see me there in the fresh May morning, That you leaned to me so and beckoned with joyous insistence? Luminous, delicate plumes, I believe that you knew me, And were joyed to the heart to greet an old lover and friend. Down on the soft, cool earth, Down at the foot, 'neath the boughs of the white honey-locust, Pensive there in the sunlight and shade ever changing, Mused I, dreaming again the dreams of my childhood, Musing and dreaming so lay I until the white locust Hushed its low murmur and curtailed itself for the night. —Lillian C. B. McAllister, in Lippincott's.

STILL WATERS and PURLING BROOKS. BY KATHERINE G. BROWN.

HAVE you got a shivel handy?

Leslie, dropping down on the hard ground, "I'd like to brush up my spinal cord; it's been so thrilled to smithereens. I haven't any backbone left. You know, Conny, they drill on Van Ness avenue, right in front of our house. Will power can keep you from the window, but they've been giving their orders by bugle, and the very sound simply makes me want to howl!"

"I know," chimed in Constance Erico, waving a gold-headed cane, to which had been fastened a very spick and span silk flag; "there's a squad down near us, too."

"The other day," went on Margaret, "I had such an experience. As I was coming home the soldiers were lying flat in the middle of Van Ness avenue, firing at the enemy over an embankment. It was perfectly stupendous! Of course there wasn't really any firing, or embankment, or enemy, but seeing them gave me the war fever, I can tell you! Oh, if I were only a man I wouldn't be sitting here, so standing with my hands in my pockets, either" (a withering glance at their thus employed escort). "I'd—goodness, Tom Scott, look at that thing right down there in front of us. I am going to run this minute."

"What is it?" asked Constance.

"A great, big, horrid old cannon!" "Oh, hurray, Madge! Of course they'll fire a salute. Let's go home and watch the transports from our back porch." "Haven't you had an object lesson in cannon at your kindergarten yet?" asked Tom, serenely; then, turning to Margaret: "Baby's little dog o' war is muzzled; doggie can't bark at the little darls," and he reassuringly pointed out to the cap upon it.

Five Popes.

There are five Popes on the face of the globe. They are the Pope of the Latin Church, the schismatic, or orthodox, Pope; the Father of the Faithful, ruling in Constantinople; the Pope of Tibet, who has 500,000,000 subjects, and the schismatic Pope of the Mohammedan world, who reigns at Morocco. All five are threatened with hard times. 1904 has been unpropitious to them. He of Morocco takes his situation with the lightest heart, and goes on amusing himself with scientific toys. He is an amiable being, and the son of an English mother, who bargained in her marriage articles to be buried in British soil at Gibraltar or elsewhere. Since the signing of the Anglo-French accord German agents have given him no peace. He is glad of this. It opens to him a prospect of the Emperor William following toward France, civilly but firmly, a dog in the manger policy. The finest pastures in Africa are in Morocco, and the Germans hunger for them. Of the five Popes, Plus X. is the most venerable, Nicholas the most feared, the Sultan and Dalai Lama the most mysterious, and the head of the Muslim schismatics the best fellow. We may see a few of them here some day taking the places of David's "Rois en Exil."—Paris Correspondent London Herald.

Walking as a Vice Art.

There is no virtue in dawdling saunter. The slow and languid dragging of one foot after the other, which some people call walking, would tire an athlete; it utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate persons think they can not walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise, says the Family Doctor it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step, which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt, and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.

managed a private correspondence, but one sad day a telltale feather dropped from his wing, and the Spanish temper that hadn't been naturalized when papa got out his papers, flew into a rage that bade Anita choose once and forever between home ties and heart ties. It didn't take long. With only enough money to last a month, she pluckily came to San Francisco to earn her own living. As soon as her son of Mars heard it he insisted upon an immediate marriage. The wedding took place exactly a week ago, and to-day he goes to Manila.

"The poor little thing!" exclaimed Constance. "I expect she is just crying her eyes out now."

"Listen!" cried Margaret. There was a far away whistle; a bell; a spontaneous burst of many whistles; the deep tone applause of a cannon. The transports had started.

The patriotic city of San Francisco was giving its cheer to the departing vessels. They, amid the universal thrill of brave, hopeful excitement, came the intruding possibility of death and disaster, and the siren moaned its low, irrepressible sob. The crowd at Block Point eagerly pressed forward to catch the first glimpse of the fleet.

Finally, around an striding point of land, came the Peking, majestic, beautiful, awful. Hugging her side, in parting embrace, stood the Ukiah, chartered to accompany the slips to the Heads for the benefit of the Red Cross Society. At a short interval followed the large flagship, the City of Australia; then, at a greater distance, and more slowly, glided the smaller City of Sydney—and around about them all, the group of friends to see them off, all sorts and conditions of craft, from the frivolous small fry of a tug to the dignified old stern-wheeler.

Suddenly there was a lurid flash, a terrible blast, a tottering of the ground under their feet—a cannon, unseen by the girls, directly around the corner from them, had wished the Peking god-speed.

As each of the transports passed the Point, the cannon saluted, while the military island of Alcatraz bestowed her blessing in one long series of thirteen guns. Slowly, but too surely, our dear first fleet, with its priceless cargo of precious souls, passed from us out of the Golden Gate. But long after our poor earthly tatters of waving flags were lost to their view, there rested about them the radiant glory of a glowing sun, ethereal clouds of soft fog, the deep, intense azure of the sky—the heavens had unfurled their red, white and blue.

The tears fell unchecked down Constance's face. Margaret shivered with a nervous chill. "Now is your hat pin chance," whispered the sacrilegious Tom, pointing to a solitary figure right in front of them.

It was the "uninteresting mortal." She stood motionless, looking out at sea. Then, a moment later, she turned her expressionless face upon their agitated ones.

"You have friends on board?" she asked, in a sweet, sympathetic voice. "No," sniffed back Constance. "Have you?"

"One," fell the soft answer—"my husband."

"Your husband?" repeated Margaret, for, now that she saw her close, the woman was remarkably young and girlish in appearance. The weary, motionless face awoke into its natural beauty. An exquisite flush vivified the dull, olive cheeks. The heavy brown eyes flashed with pride and joy and love. "Yes, my husband," she repeated rapturously; "we have been married just a week to-day."—New York News.

Two severe cases of Ovarian Trouble and two terrible operations avoided. Mrs. Emmons and Mrs. Coleman each tell how they were saved by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so pleased with the results obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I feel it a duty and a privilege to write you about it."

"I suffered for more than five years with ovarian troubles, causing an unpleasant discharge, a great weakness, and at times a faintness would come over me which no amount of medicine, diet, or exercise seemed to correct. Your Vegetable Compound found the weak spot, however, within a few weeks—and saved me from an operation—all my troubles had disappeared, and I found myself once more healthy and well. Words fail to describe the real, true, grateful feeling that is in my heart, and I want to tell every sick and suffering sister. Don't dally with medicines you know nothing about, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and take my word for it, you will be a different woman in a short time."—Mrs. LAURA EMMONS, Walkerville, Ont.

Another Case of Ovarian Trouble Cured Without an Operation.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—For several years I was troubled with ovarian trouble and a painful and inflamed condition, which kept me in bed part of the time. I did so dread a surgical operation."

"I tried different remedies hoping to get better, but nothing seemed to bring relief until a friend who had been cured of ovarian trouble, through the use of your compound, induced me to try it. I took it faithfully for three months, and at the end of that time was glad to find that I was a well woman. Health is nature's best gift to woman, and if you lose it, can have it restored through Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that all suffering women should know of this."—Mrs. LAURA BELLE COLEMAN, Commercial Hotel, Nashville, Tenn.

It is well to remember such letters as above when some druggist tries to get you to buy something which he says is "just as good." That is impossible, as no other medicine has such a record of cures as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; accept no other and you will be glad.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will stand with absolute genuineness. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE THEY WELL?

Unless they are, good health is impossible.

Every drop of blood in the body passes through and is filtered by healthy kidneys every three minutes. Sound kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood, diseased kidneys do not, hence you are sick. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE makes the kidneys well so they will eliminate the poisons from the blood. It removes the cause of many diseases resulting from disordered kidneys which have allowed your whole system to become poisoned. Rheumatism, Bad Blood, Gout, Gravel, Dropsy, Inflammation of the Bladder, Diabetes and Bright's Disease, and many others, are all due to disordered Kidneys. A simple test for Kidney disease is to set aside your urine in a bottle or glass for twenty-four hours. If there is a sediment or a cloudy appearance, it indicates that your kidneys are diseased, and unless something is done they become more and more affected until Bright's Disease or Diabetes develops. FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is the only preparation which will positively cure all forms of Kidney and Bladder troubles, and cure you permanently. It is a safe remedy and certain in results. If you are a sufferer, take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once. It will make you well.

Some Pronounced Incurable
Mr. G. A. Stillson, a merchant of Tampico, Ill., writes: "FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE is meeting with wonderful success. It has cured some cases here that physicians pronounced incurable. I myself am able to testify to its merits. My face today is a living picture of health and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE has made it such."

Had Lumbago and Kidney Trouble
Edward Huss, a well known business man of Salisbury, Mo., writes: "I wish to say for the benefit of others, that I was a sufferer from lumbago and kidney trouble, and all the remedies I took gave me no relief. I began to take FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE, and after the use of three bottles I am cured."

Two Sizes, 50 Cents and $1.00.
