EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, SATURDAY, APRIL 1, 1905.

No 13

Repub. Twp. Nominees.

Considerable interest was shown in the South Arm Township Republican Caucus of last Saturday. About 400 votes being cast. A friendly contest was held for the offices of Treasurer and Highway Commissioner. Below are the names of those who were nominated:

For Supervisor—Jacob H. Craft.
Clerk—William A. Pickard.
Treasurer—Richard F. Steffen.
Highway Commissioner—Josiah St. John.
Member Board of Review—M. M. Burnham.
School Inspector—William F. Bashaw.
Justice of the Peace, full term—Jacob E. Chew.
Justice of the Peace, to fill vacancy—Douglas C. Loveday.
Poundmaster—William Tate.
Constable—William Johnson.
J. H. Milford was elected chairman of Republican Township Committee. John Boosinger and G. A. Lisk are the other two members.

Chronic Kickers.

This is a world of kickers. A man cannot stand on the four corners of East Jordan fifteen minutes any day without finding an active bunch of kickers, telling how this and that ought to be done. From President Roosevelt down to the man who is cleaning the ditch, and minding his own business, all come in for kicks or criticism. It is so easy to kick. Almost anybody can kick and find fault on any and all subjects. Kicking requires neither effort, brains nor ability. About the first thing a baby does in life is to learn to kick. Some people never do anything else. Hear the kick-kick on the corner. Follow him to his work. You will find a constantly complaining and disgruntled workman. Here so busy kicking at his employer's method of running the business that he only about half does the work for which he is paid. Follow the chronic kicker all along the path of life, and you will discover that he has never done anything of moment in any line of endeavor. He never does things himself. He is not a constructor—he is an obstructor. Instead of doing things himself, he busies himself placing obstacles in the way of those who do. No good thing done will likely ever be written down to his credit—but scores of good things started by others are given up because of the blocks—the constant kicks—he and his ilk throw in the path of progress. There are times when the best of men become severe critics. And they are justified in so doing. But the chronic kicker is blight on civilization, a cumber of the earth—a do-nothing, who never goes forward himself nor allows anyone else to do so if he can prevent it. Kick the kicker. Knock the kicker. Cuss the cuss-

Pointed Paragraphs.

The latest pictures of Oyama show that he is never too busy to keep his morning engagement with his barber.
St. Petersburg does not know where fier Manchurian army is, but the changes are that Oyama does. Ask him.
Mrs. Chadwick denies that she ever called Mr. Carnegie her father. If she did he didn't answer; so what's the odds?
"When did the waste-basket originate?" asks the N. Y. Press. At the same time the spring poets began their output.
The Czar is looking for new leaders for the spring war games. He would make a great hit if he could purchase Oyama's release from Japan.
Mr. Rockefeller ordered repairs to a Lakewood church because water leaked in freely. He might order repairs to Wall Street for the same reason.
It might help to suspend the Monroe doctrine long enough to allow France to prevent Venezuela from sending an army to invade this country.
In about a million years according to a Chicago Professor, men will be transformed into birds. Many of the "ladies" already come under that classification.
It is now proposed to nominate Alton B. Parker for appellate judge in New York. If he loses that, there will be nothing left for him except to start a magazine.
Commissioner Garfield found that the Beef trust makes only 99 cents on a steer. Has it occurred to anyone that the Beef trust may have given him the wrong steer?

The State Legislature.

Lansing, March 27, 1905.
When these notes shall reach their readers, less than a week will remain before the spring election, when the voters will be confronted with three amendments to the constitution upon which they will be asked to vote yes, or no. The bill of Senator Lifley, heretofore referred to, to give to such propositions more adequate publicity than has been had heretofore, became a law on the 22nd, too late for carrying out its provisions this spring. It requires the secretary of state to prepare statements of the purport, nature and effect of such amendments or other question to be submitted to popular vote, and three times to send copies to every newspaper in the state, not less than sixty, thirty and fifteen days before each election, with request for publication without expense to the state and also to supply at least ten copies to each voting precinct to be posted at the polling place, four copies in English, and two each in the German, Holland and Polish languages.

Only one of the proposed amendments is of general application, that in the interest of road improvement, introduced in the senate by Ely of Alma. Section 9 of article 10 of the constitution prohibits the state from being a party to, or interested in, or carrying on any work or internal improvement, except in the expenditure of grants of land or other property to the state. The amendment now proposed excepts from that prohibition "The improvement of adding in the improvement of public wagon roads," making it competent for the legislature to appropriate money for such purpose, or to devise other measures for securing under state direction a better system of highways. In his inaugural message Governor Warner paid special attention to the great and growing importance of good roads, and the need of better provision for securing them and anticipated some general scheme of aid for such interests from the general government. Such aid would undoubtedly be conditioned upon state participation in the work, and for that purpose an amendment to our constitution such as is now proposed would be necessary. The commercial value that should result to the people of the state from such a combination of national, state and local effort, is beyond any that can be expected from any other form of community effort.

Both of the other amendments relate to the county of Genesee alone. One authorizes the board of supervisors to provide such additional salary for the circuit judge, above the present constitutional limit of $2500, as they shall from time to time determine—as was done two years ago for Bay and Washtenaw. The other provides for a board of county auditors, which requires modification of the constitutional deposit of exclusive auditing powers in the board of supervisors—as was also done two years ago for Kent, Saginaw, Washtenaw and Jackson counties. These two are in the line of special and local laws which are becoming such a clog upon legislation, and more so upon administration. It is generally felt among the legislators with reference to a local bill, and similarly among the voters with reference to these special amendments, that if it is what is wanted by the people affected, let 'em have it; it little concerns us. But the correction of that sort of lawmaking is fast becoming imperative, and can only be corrected by a constitutional convention and a new instrument.

The two houses convened at nine o'clock last Monday evening, as usual, but on account of the death of Governor Luce they adopted resolutions in recognition of that event, appointed committees to represent them at the funeral on Tuesday, and adjourned until Wednesday without the transaction of any other business. The presiding officers of the two houses headed their respective committees. All of the state departments were closed during Tuesday, by order of the governor, who attended the funeral as the chief executive officer of the state.

The house session of Wednesday was awaited with much expectancy, because of the special order for consideration of the Stone primary reform bill, which had been reported out by the elections committee, somewhat precipitately as it seemed at the time, other general bills on the same subject having been only briefly before them and, one of them, that of Mr. VanKeuren, had been referred without printing, only the evening before. When the bill came up for consideration in committee of the whole, last Wednesday, it was met with a motion to recommit for further consideration, and the warmest struggle of the session was precipitated, in which each side engaged with equal spirit and apparently even balance. It was maintained in support of the motion to recommit, that no member had any expectation that this bill could become a law, and that to spend time upon it, and to pass it in the house if that would be possible, would be a fruitless waste, and would be directly detrimental to the purpose to which every one of them is pledged and to which no one is opposed—the enactment of a primary voting law by this legislature.

When the vote was reached, fifty-one members voted for the resolution to recommit; and the committee then rose and reported its conclusion to the house, where the motion to concur in the finding of the committee carried by fifty-two yeas to forty nays, and the bill was accordingly re-committed to the committee on elections, of which Mr. Stone is chairman. The other members are Gresel of Wayne-Dickinson of Eaton, Stockdale of Allegan, Kelley of Berrien, Ellis of Kent, Hanlon of Ingham, Ivory of Lapeer, Speer of Saginaw, Turner of Muskegon, Double of Montmorency, Oviatt of Antrim, and Daustan of Houghton. They have before them, besides the re-committed Stone bill, the bills of Messrs. Dickinson, Waters and VanKeuren.

The senate has one primary election bill now before it, that of Senator Brown, of Lapeer. It provides for party registration preliminary to the primary, and for a primary at which the voters of each party may vote for delegates to the county convention and for the committeemen, on party ballots with colored paper and black ink. The bill contains fifty two pages, and seems a ponderous piece of machinery for a small job of work. The bill of Senator Glasgow was understood to be ready for submission to the senate early last week, when that gentleman was taken with a threatening illness and went home on indefinite leave of absence. It is earnestly hoped that he may recover and be able early to return to his duties, which as president pro tem of the senate are more than ordinarily important.

This action clears the atmosphere and makes it appear that there is not to be now, as there was two years ago, a barren conflict, ending in an obstinate deadlock between the two houses, and no accomplishment. It gives assurance to the enactment of a law which shall be a complete fulfillment of the party's promises, as has been confidently anticipated in this correspondence would be done, and the dis-appointment of the cynical and hostile critics who have as constantly proclaimed a republican purpose to prevent the enactment of any such law.

The Holmes automobile bill was favorably reported to the house from the committee on state affairs, Thursday, and takes its place upon the calendar. It required registration of machines and owners and chauffeurs, and limits speed to twenty miles an hour on country roads, twelve miles in residence districts of villages and cities, and eight miles in business districts. Penalties of $50, $100, and $200, for first, second and third offenses, are provided, with imprisonment in discretion of the court. One of the Lansing automobile manufacturers improved some good hay making weather recently by bringing up a few machines and treating members to rides, intended to impress them with the harmless and benevolent character of the Revilwagon, the benzine buggy, and the socrat.

Partnership Dissolved.

Notice is hereby given that the partnership between Charles A. Hudson and David F. Clement was dissolved, by mutual consent, on the 20th day of March, 1905, so far as relates to the said David F. Clement. All debts due the said partnership, and all debts due by them, will be settled by the remaining partner, Charles A. Hudson, who will continue the business under the firm name of has. A. Hudson.

When the shoe manufacturers, in convention in New York, announce that the women of the future will have bigger feet, they mean, of course, only that they will wear bigger shoes.

LITTLE VOICES EXPLOSIONS

Had a "Tobacco Heart."
Church—I see a man in a Connecticut town has been sued for breach of promise by two women, one living in Havana, Cuba, and the other in his own state.
Gotham—That fellow must have a tobacco heart, with a Havana filler and a Connecticut wrapper.

Double Quick Then.
Mrs. Knox—Young Batchelor has gone through all that fortune in one year, I hear.
Mr. Knox—I believe so.
Mrs. Knox—Ah! if he had only married there would be a different story—
Mr. Knox—Yes. It would only have lasted six months then.

Doubtful Compliment.
"Darling," cried the imaginative avain, "your eyes remind me of billiard balls."
"Sir!" exclaimed the haughty maiden. "Why do my eyes remind you of billiard balls?"
"Because you can roll them so easily and win with them."

Not Assumed Importance.
"Don't you think that wealth is assuming too much importance?"
"My dear sir," answered Dustin Stax, "wealth does not assume importance. It's importance is almost entirely due to the vast respect in which it is held by the people who haven't it."

In the Hammock.
"Ah, dearest, alone at last! No one can see us save the eyes of the night."
"And they are astigmatized," replied the young oculist.
"Tell me, dear, what are those two starry orbs yonder?" she asked again.
"Those," said the eye-mender, "belong to your father's bulldog. Good night."

Willing to Earn His Dinner.
Weary Wraggles—Laddy, I'll saw some wood for youse if youse'll gimme some hot grub.
Mrs. Firstford—But, my good man, can't you see this is a flat? We burn only gas.
Weary Wraggles—Den, laddy, I'll turn on de gas fer youse.

We Never Thought of This.
"How," asked the Sunday school teacher, "was a small man like David able to overcome a giant like Goliath?"
"Cause David understood Jiu-Jitsu," promptly vociferated up-to-date little Jimmie Jones.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Pay for Hot Air in Advance.
"What is a retainer, pop?"
"A retainer, my son, is the money people pay us lawyers before we do any work."
"Oh, I see. It's like those pay gas meters. The people have to pay before they get any gas."

The Man Who Hung on After Forty.
Methusalem chuckled.
"A man past his usefulness at forty," he snickered. "What sort of a figure would I have cut in history if I had quit at that age?"
Hereupon he sent out cards for his 90th birthday party.

Wins in a Walkaway.
"I'll bet I know more women than you do!"
"I'll take the bet. I am acquainted with all the members of the original Fiorodora sextet."
"I win. I'm acquainted with Mrs. Hoch."

Had His Own Troubles.
"Are you an advocate of woman's rights?" asked the woman with the square chin.
"Not me," answered the meek and lowly representative of the other sex. "Man's wrongs take up all my spare time."

Lazy.
"Don't be so lazy. There's plenty of room at the top and you're clever enough to get there."
"But," replied the lazy genius, "think how clever it is of me to find a place at the bottom where there isn't so much room."

Must Have His Smoke.
Little Margie—Mamma, do you think grandpa has really gone to heaven?
Mamma—Certainly, my dear.
Little Margie—Well, I guess he sneaks out once in a while to smoke his pipe.

Forgot How It Looked.
"Say, old man," began Bracer, preparing for a touch—"you know that fiver I borrowed of you last summer?"
"I'm afraid not," interrupted Weiser, "suppose you introduce me to it again."

Wife—The Chinese begin the New Year by paying all their bills. Husband—But, my dear, the Chinese are heathen.

Discouraged Youth.
"Mother, I can never win the medal for good behavior," exclaimed a boy just in from school. "I've tried and tried, but some other pupil always gets it."
"But you must keep on trying," said his mother, encouragingly.
"It's no use," replied the boy; "I sha'n't try any more. It's a clean waste of goodness."

Grand Collection.
Sharpe—Come out to our china closet. I want to show you a collection of souvenirs.
Wheaton—Why, every piece of china is broken and numbered!
Sharpe—Yes, they are souvenirs of our different cooks.

Great Advantage.
"My husband has a great advantage over most men."
"Indeed."
"Yes. He walks in his sleep."
"I don't see what advantage that can be to a person."
"Why, he can carry the baby all night long and still get his natural rest."—Stray Stories.

Hard Work.
Stinjay—See here, when are you going to pay me back that dollar you borrowed?
Boroughs—Why, man alive, I earned that dollar. I had to work with you for a couple of hours before I got it out of you.

Opportunities Overlooked.
"I wonder," said the chimpanzee, "why some human beings are ashamed to recognize monkeys as our common ancestors."
"It's our ancestors' fault," answered the orang-outang. "Our ancestors didn't have the foresight to pillage cities or acquire real estate when it was cheap."

His Bitter Experience.
"Can't you swallow even a sugar-coated pill?"
"No. You see, the blamed thing seems to take its coat off before starting on its trip."

Took Exception.
"Why are you so irritated, old chap?"
"Can't help it. My wife just brought some friends in to see the 'cozy corner.' Said it was a great place for mere trifles."
"What of that?"
"Well, I was sitting in it."

Even the Worm Will Turn.
Mrs. Peck—I wonder if all men are such perfect fools as you are.
Henry Peck—I guess not. I'm the only one that married you.

From a Woman's Viewpoint.
Mr. Crimsonbeak—I like to see a man act natural.
Mrs. Crimsonbeak—Well, I don't. I hate to see a man make a fool of himself.

Even the Worm Will Turn.
Mrs. Peck—I wonder if all men are such perfect fools as you are.
Henry Peck—I guess not. I'm the only one that married you.

Commercially Speaking.
Blunderalong—Why, Miss Antike, this is a pleasure! I haven't seen you for a long time. You must pardon me, but you look 50—
Miss Antike—Mr. Blunderalong!
Mr. Blunderalong—Per cent better than you did the last time I met you.—Judge.

Changed Conditions.
Harry—It was only last week you were telling what beautiful hair Bertha had; now you say that most of it is false and all of it is bleached.
Harriet—I know; but I hadn't got mad with Bertha last week.

Wanted Particulars.
"So you want to marry my daughter, do you, young man?" asked the gouty father.
"Y-es, s-i-r," stammered the young man.
"Well, can you support a family?"
"How many are there of you, sir?"

Limit.
He—Don't you think Miss Upperton is rather selfish?
She—That's what. Why, they say she actually wears spikes in her shoes when she attends a bargain sale.

Chivalry at a Discount.
He—There was a run on the bank, was there? You were fortunate to get your money out.
She—Yes; but I never saw such discourtesy. There wasn't a man offered me his place on the line.

Search for a Soul.
Freddy—Papa, has everybody got a soul?
Papa—I suppose so, Freddy.
Freddy—Well, I'm going to open my mouth real wide, papa, and I want you to look in and see if I've got one.

How to Tell a Fisherman.
Expert Declares Genuine One Always Drops His "G."
According to L. M. Miller, president of the Commercial club, says a Kansas City special to the Philadelphia Record—the true fisherman always drops his final "g" in talking. That is an infallible test, in his mind, and he says he has never known it to fail. He was discoursing in the Commercial club rooms recently with Secretary Glendenning, another ardent devotee of the rod.

Photography in Colors.
Direct photography in colors on paper has been perfected in Germany. Writing paper free from wood is used and is made sensitive to the different colors by being soaked in a bath consisting of a mixture of alcoholic solutions of primrose, Victoria blue, cyanin, curcumin, auramin, and an addition of anethol. The bath is tested by exposing a sensitized strip of paper under a test negative composed of red, yellow, green and blue strips of glass. Since the light sensitiveness diminishes rapidly, exposure is made at once, and under favorable conditions good results are obtained in five minutes' exposure. The exposure is made under a colored glass transparency or lantern slide. By modifying the bath a picture of flowers may be obtained directly in the camera. In another modification of the process an ordinary platinum print is made, which is then sensitized and exposed under a colored negative. The light sensitiveness of the paper depends essentially, however, on the nature of the fibers of which the paper is made.

Toothbrush Substitute.
A substitute for the conventional toothbrush consists of a wedge-shaped device, preferably made of rubber, of equivalent pliable material, with faces modeled to effectively reach those parts of the teeth that are inaccessible to the regulation toothbrush as ordinarily welded. The inventor of this device, a Chicago man, declares that his toothbrush will find effective entry between the teeth at the front and rear, and at the same

Adventure With an Overcoat.
A young man of the name of Peter Akers Cöbridge, employed in a West Side real estate office, entered a restaurant in a Madison street basement last Friday evening, hung his overcoat on a hook, fastened to the wall, sat down at a table, and ate a hearty meal.
When he rose from the table he went to get his coat.
On the hook where he had hung it he found a disreputable old garment with a greasy collar, a hole in one elbow, a torn place in the back and half the buttons missing.
Thrusting his hand into an outside pocket he found a couple of folded papers. He took them out and opened them.
One was a notification that the owner had been drawn on a jury, and the other was a dun for $3.50 from a shoe merchant.
It was his overcoat, all right.—Chicago Tribune.

Peruaded.
I am peruaded from mine unbelief, And to the keeping of my faith am won. Because a little shining of God's sun Clears me a pathway through a world of grief; I could not but accept the sweet relief. Since I had learned how hard it was to run Where sin's wild tangle, in the shadow's spurn. Denied my soul, her rest, however brief. Where, in the crowd, hope cheers a drooping mate. Where kindness, in the sunning and rain, Gives to the casement of the common pain. And points one past the gates of fear and fate— Where prays a penitent his inmost prayer. I am peruaded that the light is there— Frank Walcott Hutt, in New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Make No Mistake.
"My dear sir," said the man who sat for fifteen minutes, listening to a story by the other man, "my candid opinion is that you are a liar and yet I am not sure. Let me ask you a question."
"Fire away."
"If you have been lying and I call you a liar would you be indignant?"
"Certainly, sir."
"And if you have been telling the truth, and I call you a liar, what then?"
"Exactly the same, sir. The only thing for you to do is to sit tight and make no comment. That's where a story-teller always has the best of it."

Steam Automobiles on Rails.
The Hanover railway company is making trial trips from Hanover to Soltau with steam automobiles. The third class carriage can take thirty-three passengers; the second class have seven seats, and there are also seven standing places. There is no locomotive for driving these cars, but machinery in the carriage, which can be driven by one man. If these trial trips should prove satisfactory the scheme will be tried on a larger scale.

Life-Saving Raft.
An unsinkable life-saving raft for passenger steamships has been invented by Robert Chambers of Scotland. It is made of wood and consists of three longitudinal bulkheads, dividing the raft into four longitudinal compartments. The bulkheads are also divided into thirty-two air-tight compartments. Sea anchor and hawser prevent the raft from drifting leeward in a heavy sea. The raft occupies small space and several can be safely stowed on top of each other on deck, and all can be cut adrift at a moment's notice. Each raft will carry forty or fifty people, while life lines will support as many as can hang on. The raft is self-adjusting and is provided with sockets to hold rowlocks and oars.

BAR MONOPOLY OF SKY.
Nations Confer to Prevent Any One of Them from Controlling.
Law already controls not only the surface of the earth, but its depths, says a writer in the World's Work. And now civilization requires that law shall control the atmosphere. The ownership of the sky calls for regulating. So eight nations have been conferring and drawing up protocols to prevent the monopoly of the heavens. In the preliminary congress at Berlin the delegates from America, Germany, Austria, Spain, Italy, France, Hungary and Russia drew up a plan for an international convention, as follows: The service of operating wireless stations is to be organized so as not to interfere with the service of other nations. Coastwise stations are to receive and transmit telegrams from ships without distinction as to systems employed by the ships. The tolls for such international communication are to be fixed. Stations, where possible, must give priority to calls for help from ships at sea. Furthermore, there must be a universal code and universal tuning (except in special and secret cases), and the bickerings of rivals must be silenced for the common good. The world considers wireless its property.

Photography in Colors.
Direct photography in colors on paper has been perfected in Germany. Writing paper free from wood is used and is made sensitive to the different colors by being soaked in a bath consisting of a mixture of alcoholic solutions of primrose, Victoria blue, cyanin, curcumin, auramin, and an addition of anethol. The bath is tested by exposing a sensitized strip of paper under a test negative composed of red, yellow, green and blue strips of glass. Since the light sensitiveness diminishes rapidly, exposure is made at once, and under favorable conditions good results are obtained in five minutes' exposure. The exposure is made under a colored glass transparency or lantern slide. By modifying the bath a picture of flowers may be obtained directly in the camera. In another modification of the process an ordinary platinum print is made, which is then sensitized and exposed under a colored negative. The light sensitiveness of the paper depends essentially, however, on the nature of the fibers of which the paper is made.

Toothbrush Substitute.
A substitute for the conventional toothbrush consists of a wedge-shaped device, preferably made of rubber, of equivalent pliable material, with faces modeled to effectively reach those parts of the teeth that are inaccessible to the regulation toothbrush as ordinarily welded. The inventor of this device, a Chicago man, declares that his toothbrush will find effective entry between the teeth at the front and rear, and at the same

Adventure With an Overcoat.
A young man of the name of Peter Akers Cöbridge, employed in a West Side real estate office, entered a restaurant in a Madison street basement last Friday evening, hung his overcoat on a hook, fastened to the wall, sat down at a table, and ate a hearty meal.
When he rose from the table he went to get his coat.
On the hook where he had hung it he found a disreputable old garment with a greasy collar, a hole in one elbow, a torn place in the back and half the buttons missing.
Thrusting his hand into an outside pocket he found a couple of folded papers. He took them out and opened them.
One was a notification that the owner had been drawn on a jury, and the other was a dun for $3.50 from a shoe merchant.
It was his overcoat, all right.—Chicago Tribune.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

Useful Cutting Device.
A hand punch for cutting holes through leather, cardboard and other similar purposes is almost as much of a household implement as the hammer, but heretofore the application of this tool has been limited to a very great degree by the fact that, until comparatively recently, each punch was fitted for the purpose of making a hole of one size, so that where holes of many sizes were likely to be called for it was necessary to have on hand a number of punches. This was remedied by making a magazine attachment by which any one of six different sizes could be obtained.

"My dear sir," said the man who sat for fifteen minutes, listening to a story by the other man, "my candid opinion is that you are a liar and yet I am not sure. Let me ask you a question."
"Fire away."
"If you have been lying and I call you a liar would you be indignant?"
"Certainly, sir."
"And if you have been telling the truth, and I call you a liar, what then?"
"Exactly the same, sir. The only thing for you to do is to sit tight and make no comment. That's where a story-teller always has the best of it."

Steam Automobiles on Rails.
The Hanover railway company is making trial trips from Hanover to Soltau with steam automobiles. The third class carriage can take thirty-three passengers; the second class have seven seats, and there are also seven standing places. There is no locomotive for driving these cars, but machinery in the carriage, which can be driven by one man. If these trial trips should prove satisfactory the scheme will be tried on a larger scale.

Life-Saving Raft.
An unsinkable life-saving raft for passenger steamships has been invented by Robert Chambers of Scotland. It is made of wood and consists of three longitudinal bulkheads, dividing the raft into four longitudinal compartments. The bulkheads are also divided into thirty-two air-tight compartments. Sea anchor and hawser prevent the raft from drifting leeward in a heavy sea. The raft occupies small space and several can be safely stowed on top of each other on deck, and all can be cut adrift at a moment's notice. Each raft will carry forty or fifty people, while life lines will support as many as can hang on. The raft is self-adjusting and is provided with sockets to hold rowlocks and oars.

Nations Confer to Prevent Any One of Them from Controlling.
Law already controls not only the surface of the earth, but its depths, says a writer in the World's Work. And now civilization requires that law shall control the atmosphere. The ownership of the sky calls for regulating. So eight nations have been conferring and drawing up protocols to prevent the monopoly of the heavens. In the preliminary congress at Berlin the delegates from America, Germany, Austria, Spain, Italy, France, Hungary and Russia drew up a plan for an international convention, as follows: The service of operating wireless stations is to be organized so as not to interfere with the service of other nations. Coastwise stations are to receive and transmit telegrams from ships without distinction as to systems employed by the ships. The tolls for such international communication are to be fixed. Stations, where possible, must give priority to calls for help from ships at sea. Furthermore, there must be a universal code and universal tuning (except in special and secret cases), and the bickerings of rivals must be silenced for the common good. The world considers wireless its property.

Never Without Help and Hope

I never had a rock so bare,
Unblest by verdure-brightened soil,
But some small flower hid hidden there,
Exhaled the fragrant breath of God.

I never knew a day so drear,
But on its leader sky was hung
Some shadow of a rainbow clear,
From vanished joy in farewell hung.

I never sat where silence kept
From loving friends afar,
But angel wings the ether swept
Between me and the evening star.

And never, in the keenest pain,
When night looks down on anguish
Can "O my Father," rise in vain
From the lone spirit of his child.

BY FRANK H. SWEET

(Copyright, 1905, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

"I do hope the cars won't run off the track," said Betty Sylvester, as she put the finishing touches to her sister's costume, and then stood back and studied the effect critically. "It's an audacious flying in the face of Providence, to go switching off behind one of them engines that ain't like nothing human nor divine. But here's your Aunt Beulah, down sick in bed and writing to us, and the land knows I can't go with all the farm and cows and cooking, and three hired men here, and they do say she's got a splendid house with carpets and bath rooms and all, and we're the only tin. There, I think that will do. Yes, it's a shame we've never been to see her, and she being there twenty years, and the last five all by herself. But it's a hundred miles, and it stands so reason we couldn't go in a wagon, and I won't be switched across the land by one of them snorting railroad things that hasn't been in the neighborhood scarcely a year, and folks still jumping just to hear them. Yes, that will do," and stepping forward quickly she dabbed a little kiss upon her sister's ear. "Now good-bye. Be sure and write soon you get there, and don't be set up with the fine things in Aunt Beulah's house. I do hope nothing will happen. But young folks like to travel round and see things. You'll likely have a real good time, and it's a shame Aunt Beulah's at death's door and I never been to see her. But there; I must run back or the sweet pickle will plumb spoil on the stove. You look real pretty, Dorcas." And with this involuntary compliment, Betty Sylvester hurried toward the kitchen, leaving Dorcas blushing and frightened at the prospect of her first journey on the cars.

For a number of years Dorcas had had a suitor. At first he had confined his attention to stolen glances across the fields and across the church, and on rare occasions when his manhood had asserted itself, to elaborate toilet and a half hour's leaning against the Sylvester front fence, admiring Dorcas' noses and talking crops. Later he had braved the front gate, generally with a straw in his mouth, and sat on the steps for an hour in the gloaming, talking with Betty, but looking at Dorcas. In cold evenings and during the winter the hour had been passed in the cosy sitting room, playing checkers and popping corn. Not a word of love had been spoken, but it was understood in the house and in the whole neighborhood, that John Baldwin was waiting on Dorcas Sylvester and that some time in the future, as they should determine, the two good old country families and the two well-tilled farms would be united—provided of course, John Baldwin's diffidence ever allowed him to get that far.

As she ran lightly down the steps to the farm wagon, Dorcas gave one quick, shy glance up the slope to where the big Baldwin horse stood, half hidden by its towering eaves. Yes, there was John's buggy standing in the road before the house, and his fast horse could reach the station in one-half the time they could with the farm wagon and old Charlie. Besides Betty had thought the hired man might as well kill two birds with one stone; so he was taking a load of produce along, which he would peddle after leaving Dorcas at the station. As she climbed up beside Jethro, who did not offer or dream of offering assistance, Dorcas thought how much easier it would be in John's spring buggy than in this heavy wagon which jolted and rumbled over the rough country roads. But still she felt happy, with a sudden loss of whatever misgiving she may have felt. Although neither she nor John had thought of such an audacious thing as him offering to act as escort, yet the presence of the buggy meant that he intended to keep somewhere in her vicinity, to have an oversight of her safety—perhaps he would even go on the train, riding in one of the adjoining cars. As the load of produce included eggs and milk, progress would be slow, and they had arranged for an early start, but before half the distance had been traversed, they heard the sharp whirr of John's approaching buggy wheels. As he flashed by, he was bending over in ostentatious search of something under the seat, but he gave her a bashful side glance which plainly said, "Don't be uneasy, Dorcas, I'll see things go right." By the time he straightened up he was disappearing round a bend in the road. But the glance had sent a soft color to her face, which lingered there through the long, rough ride, until finally she was aroused by a gruff:

"Jerusalem! whoa there, Charlie!" They were at the junction of two roads; one led up to the station a quarter of a mile away; the other went on to the village two or three times that distance. Jethro was looking at her with dismay on his face.

"What is it?" she asked. "Why—why—do you reckon you could walk to the depot?" persuasively. "Tain't but a step. You see, apologetically, as he noted the surprise on her face, "Ben-Pokey's wagon's just turning the corner down yonder, and if he gets in town ahead of me, he sells his stuff, and if I get in ahead of him, I sell my stuff; and if I sell my stuff, like Miss Betty counts on, why, she ain't going to fuss at me much, see? Of course, I'm here to take you to the depot, and will now if you say the word; but it's bound to put me in behind Ben. And it ain't but a step."

"Oh, I will walk, Jethro," laughed Dorcas; and placing a hand upon the end of the seat she sprang lightly to the ground, "And you needn't tell Betty, either."

It was a very dainty figure that went up the road to the station; and though she did not know it, the rich, soft goods taken from the old chest in the garret had again come round into fashion. A whistle sounded in the distance, and Dorcas uttered a low cry of dismay. The train was approaching, and she had thought there was plenty of time. Could she make it by running, she wondered? But a swift glance toward the station checked the impulse even as she sprang forward. The station was still an eighth of a mile away, and she could see several carriages driving up to it, and people standing on the platform. What a spectacle it would be for them to see a woman racing with the train; besides, she could not hope to reach it in time. "Jethro—"

There was the swift approach of carriage wheels; a pair of splendid bays stopped beside her, and she looked up into the reassuring face of a young drummer, who was selling mowing-machines in the neighborhood. Before she was aware of his intention, he had sprung to the ground and lifted her into the carriage and they were whirling away with a long, circling cloud of dust trailing behind. "Don't you worry, young lady," the drummer said cheerily, "I'll get you there all right."

What John Baldwin's feelings were as he stood on the platform watching, none but himself ever knew. He saw Jethro stop and Dorcas get out; then heard the train whistle and saw her start to run, and realized that his place was down there on the dusty road by her side instead of with the curious people at the station. When the drummer stopped and took her in, the young farmer's face grew hard and set, with a firmness his life had never known before.

He was beside the carriage when it stopped, and helped her out, and quietly and authoritatively, with all the spectators looking on, he drew her arm within his own.

"Come, Dorcas," he said, "we must hurry to catch the train. I'll get the tickets. Yes," in answer to her wondering expression, "I'm going right on with you to where your Aunt lives—sit in the same seat, too, to keep off drummers and things. And I shall stay around to come back with you when the visit is over. Come."

SCARES AWAY THE RATS.

How Ingenious Woman Insures Safety in the Morning.

An Augusta hotel is more or less infested with rats, and naturally the rats have a love for the department where the food is prepared. The help is largely feminine, and while none of them has any fellow feeling for the rodents, there is one who stands in mortal fear of them.

She, with the others, occupies rooms on the floor above, and one of the hardest hours of the day is when she gets up in the morning and makes her way to the kitchen. She had rather meet old Nick himself than a rat, and she also feels that she is liable, on going downstairs, to meet one on every step. Therefore, in order to prevent anything of the kind, she has provided a means of averting it that is simple, yet effective.

On her trunk, within reach of the bed, she keeps ten or twelve tin lard pail covers and when in the morning she has donned her raiment she carefully opens the door of her room and, taking a cover, lets it go down the stairs. The rattle of the tin on the stairs gives her courage, and with the other covers in her hand she starts down the stairs. When she has descended two or three stairs she lets go another cover and makes another advance. This goes on until she has reached the foot of the stairs, when, after opening the kitchen door very carefully, she throws the remaining covers across the floor or up against the range.

By this time she has convinced herself that not a rat is left in the kitchen, and with a sigh of relief she begins her day's work.—Kennebec Journal.

A Slight Misunderstanding.

To the hosiery department of an uptown store went a woman leading by the hand a dark-skinned, black-haired little boy. To the salesgirl she said: "I want a pair of stockings for my little boy. Six is the size, I think. At any rate it is the number that goes with a number ten shoe."

"Five and one-half is the size," said the girl. "What color?" "Black, I think. Lisle thread."

"Feet white or black?" asked the salesgirl. The woman looked dazed, then angry. "You impertinent hussy!" she gasped. "Of course my boy's feet are white. I'll report you to the management and withdraw my custom from the store."

The girl cried, the floor-walker bustled up and it took half an hour to make satisfactory explanations.—New York Press.

Had Sold Both Ends of the Bolt.

A Columbus shopkeeper tells this somewhat amusing story, giving the incident as an actual happening. "I was making some purchases," she said, "in a downtown store, and was directed by the floor walker to the mangle counter. A young man was in charge, and I noticed at first that he was slightly affected by liquor. After sorting over a number of bolts on the shelf, he finally threw down what I wanted. He looked at the cloth for a minute, meanwhile fumbling for the end. Finally, he said, disgustedly, 'Dick must have sold both ends of this; yes, I'm sure he did,' and with that he pushed his shears across the piece, and from the end thus made he sold me the quantity I wished."—Columbus Dispatch.

Gorman Hard to Caricature.

Everybody who is familiar with the features of Senator Gorman is aware that cartoonists invariably fail to get any characteristic phase in the Maryland statesman's face which they can exaggerate successfully. A cartoonist of some note tried for an hour one evening when sitting opposite Senator Gorman at dinner to "catch" him, but was unsuccessful, although he thought that one drawing was fairly good. He called Senator Gorman's attention to the trouble he was having. "Well," said the senator, "every one of the prominent cartoonists has said the same thing. Nast and Gilham have told me I ought to do something to change my appearance so that I could be successfully cartooned."

Strength in Storm.

I follow the path of the lightning, and I say that hope is vain, but the birds are blown from their storm-struck nests and the birds—they build again.

I follow the path of the waters, the ravage of bill and glen, but the floods subside, and the flowers abide, and bloom for the homes of men.

And the world is never hopeless on storm-swept sea, and sod—its faith in a force—its beautiful dream of God! —Frank L. Stanton, in Atlanta Constitution.

Crusade on Tuberculosis

The Henry Phipps Institute of Philadelphia, which has been established by the generous gift of a wealthy resident of that city, is doing a great work on behalf of persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis or consumption. The physicians employed by this institution have compiled some excellent rules to be observed by persons suffering from this disease, the careful following of which will prevent the extension of the disease to others, and will greatly aid the sufferers to recover.

Don't spit on the sidewalk, on the street, nor into any place where you cannot destroy the germs which you spit up.

Do not swallow any spit which comes out from your lungs or which comes out of the back part of your throat.

Spit into a spit cup when it is possible to do so. Always use a spit cup with a handle to it so that you can hold it close to your mouth.

When you use a china or earthenware spit cup always keep lye and water in it and scald out the spit cup once or twice a day with boiling water.

When you use a tin spit cup with a paper spit cup inside burn the paper cup at least once a day and scald the tin cup with boiling water.

Never use a handkerchief or a rag or any material other than paper to spit in or to wipe your mouth with.

When you cannot spit into a spit cup, spit into a paper napkin. Always use a paper napkin to wipe your mouth with, after spitting, and be careful not to soil your hands.

Always carry a cheap paper bag in your pocket or sash to put paper napkins in which you have used.

When you have used a paper napkin, either to spit in or to wipe your mouth with, fold it up carefully and put it away in the paper bag.

Every evening, before going to bed, burn your paper bag together with the napkins which you have deposited in it.

If you have a mustache or beard shave it off or crop it close.

Always wash your lips and hands before eating or drinking, and rinse out your mouth.

If you have a running sore take up the matter which is given off with absorbent cotton and burn it.

Avoid handshaking and kissing. These customs are dangerous to you as well as to others. They may give others consumption; they may bring you colds and influenzas which will greatly aggravate your disease and may prevent your recovery.

Do not cough if you can help it. You can control your cough to a great extent by will power. When you cough severely hold a paper napkin to your mouth so as not to throw out spit while coughing.

Sit out of doors all you can. If you have no other place to sit than the pavement sit on the pavement in front of your house.

Don't take any exercise when you have a high fever.

Always sleep with your windows open, no difference what the weather may be.

Avoid fatigue. One single exhaustion may change the course of your disease from a favorable one to an unfavorable one.

Go to bed early. If you are working, lie down when you have a few moments to spare.

Don't take any medicine unless it has been prescribed by your physician. Medicine may do you harm as well as good.

Don't use alcoholic stimulants of any kind. Don't eat pastry or dainties. They do not nourish you and they may upset your stomach.

Take your milk and raw eggs whether you feel like it or not.

Keep up your courage. Make a brave fight for your life. Do what you are told to do as though your recovery depended upon the carrying out of every little detail.

Always keep in mind that consumption can be cured in many cases and that it can be prevented in all cases. If your own disease is too far advanced for you to recover, console yourself with the idea that you can keep those who are near and dear to you from getting it.

Nerve Poisoning Through Indigestion.

Prof. Bouchard, the eminent French scientist, has shown that the decomposition of food which often takes place in the stomach and intestines in indigestion gives rise to powerful poisons. When absorbed into the body, these produce effects entirely similar to those produced by strychnia, opium, alcohol, and other poisonous drugs. If food is retained in the stomach beyond the normal time, either because of its indigestibility, the taking of too large a quantity of it, or a crippled state of the stomach, these changes are certain to take place.

This fact explains a very large share of the distressing symptoms which afflict the chronic dyspeptic. The giddiness, the tingling sensations, the confusion of thought, and even partial insensibility, which are not infrequently observed a few hours after meals in chronic dyspeptics, are due to this cause. Here is the explanation of the irresponsibility, the despondency, the pessimism, the indecision, and various other forms of mental perversity and even moral depravity, which are not infrequently associated with certain forms of indigestion. The total depravity which we often hear talked about, is, half the time, nothing more nor less than total indigestion.

A Convincing Test.

In the Far East the Japanese have won victories which have astonished the world. They show themselves to be more enduring, more resistant to the effects of wounds, keener witted, sharper in tactics, and quicker in execution than their Russian antagonists. The Jap is content with a simple diet of rice, peas, or beans, which is quickly digested and converted into brawn and brains, while the Russian must have his meat and his vodka.

The same dietary, the same simplicity and naturalness in habits of life, which give toughness of fiber and endurance and immunity against infection, afford equal advantages in fighting the battle of life in any direction. The brain worker who wants to keep his mental vision clear and desires power to pursue his subject with unceasing energy, must keep his blood clean by a pure, simple, natural diet. The lawyer, the clergyman, the business man, the teacher, the investigator, the inventor, will find the same advantages in living in harmony with natural principles as does the plucky Japanese soldier, who is, for the first time, testing his metal by a great contest with an army of civilized men.

Alcohol vs. Long Life.

It is very easy to prove that the influence of alcohol, as of every other poison, is to shorten life. Dr. Willard Parker of New York, shows from statistics that for every ten temperate persons who die between the ages of twenty-one and thirty, fifty-one intemperate persons die. Thus it appears that the mortality of liquor users is five hundred per cent greater than that of temperate persons. These figures are based on the tables used by life insurance companies.

Notwithstanding the constant protest of both moderate and immoderate drinkers, that alcohol does not harm them, that it is a necessary stimulant, a preventive of fevers, colds, consumption, etc., and the assertion of certain chemists that it is a conservative agent, preventing waste, and so prolonging life, the distinguished English actuary, Mr. Nelson, has shown from statistical data which cannot be gainsaid, that while the temperate man has at twenty years of age an average chance of living forty-four and one-fifth years, the drinking man has a prospect of only fifteen and one-half years of life. At thirty years of age the temperate man may expect thirty-six and one-half years more of life, while the dram-drinker will be pretty certain to die in less than fourteen years.

On the other hand, the Rechabite societies in England show statistics clearly indicating that total abstinence is in the highest degree conducive to longevity.

Effects of Alcohol Upon Digestion.

Prof. Kochlakoff of St. Petersburg, has experimented upon five healthy persons, aged from twenty-one to twenty-four years, with reference to the effects of alcohol upon digestion. Ten minutes before each meal, each person was given about three ounces of alcoholic liquor, containing from five to fifty per cent of alcohol, which is about the proportion found in ordinary liquors. The following results were obtained:

"Under the influence of alcohol the quantity of hydrochloric acid, as well as the digestive power of the gastric juice, is diminished. This enfeebling of the digestion is especially marked in persons unaccustomed to the use of alcohol."

Dr. Figg of Edinburgh made the following experiments to test the influence of alcohol upon digestion: He fed two dogs equal quantities of roast mutton. He then administered to one dog, by passing a tube into the stomach, one and one-fourth ounces of alcohol. After five hours both dogs were killed and examined. The one which had taken no alcohol was found to have digested the meat entirely, whereas digestion had scarcely begun in the animal to which alcohol had been administered.

RECIPES.

Savory Soup—Cook half a pint of small navy or soup beans in three pints of water for two hours, adding boiling water as needed. In a separate kettle place two small parsnips, scraped and sliced, one good sized onion cut fine, two stalks of celery and half a can of tomatoes. Cover well with boiling water and cook until the vegetables are very tender; then add the beans and press all through a fine colander or soup-strainer. Return to the stove, simmer a moment, and just before serving, stir in, slowly, a cupful of hot cream or rich milk. A can of sweet corn may be substituted for the beans. As it takes less time, and may be put in with the other vegetables, it is sometimes preferred by the housewife who is her own cook.

Nut Cheese—Take one cup of raw peanut butter, one-half cup of cornstarch, one cup of tomato juice, and one teaspoonful of salt. Dissolve the butter and cornstarch in the tomato juice; add salt, and beat five minutes. Pour into a granite bowl and cover and steam for four or five hours. Dry on in the oven, and when cool, slip from the bowl

BUNNY GAVE HER A SURPRISE.

Mrs. Edgell Found Cottontail Rabbit—Sitting Up Behind Stove.

When Mrs. Nellie Edgell stepped into the sitting room of her home, in Thoroughfare Neck, she was astonished to see a cottontail rabbit sitting up behind the stove, says a Lelpsic, Del., dispatch.

She held out her hand and called persuasively to Bunny, but he dashed around the room in a panic. She opened the door and the rabbit hid under the farmhouse.

How bunny got into the sitting room was a mystery until Mr. Edgell picked up a log to put in the big stove. The log was hollow. Bunny had crept into the log and had been carried into the house.

The winter here has been so severe that hundreds of rabbits and squirrels and partridges have been found dead from exposure.

Kept His Father in Spirits.

There is a man in Auvergne, France, who has preserved the dead body of his father in spirits for the past fifty years. This person, according to a leading newspaper of Paris, is M. Hector Granet, a former notary, and an archaeologist, who lives at Viverols, in Puy-de-Dome. M. Granet placed the corpse of his father in a sort of bath-shaped zinc coffin. Into this the alcohol was poured, and the whole receptacle was coated with cement and carefully closed, a small aperture being made in the lid. This hole was covered with thick glass, through which the body of the mummy can be seen. The hair and beard of the deceased are said to have sprouted to a marvelous extent, and the skin of the face is described as having the "cooked" tint peculiar to persons who absorb large quantities of ardent spirits.

Said to Be Tallest Woman.

Miss Ro. a Websted, now on exhibition in Cologne, Germany, claims the distinction of being the tallest woman in the world. She is over 7 feet in height. She is 24 years of age and well educated.

Ungrammatical, but Urgent.

There is trouble in the sandhills of the Sunset District. A cow with a bell sleeps during the day and takes a nightly promenade, to the great discomfort of the people and of the neighborhood. One disturbed resident who has heard of the public pound has written the following appeal for aid to Secretary Hotbrook of the Humane Society:

"Dear Sir—Beg to excuse us for to notify you, because it is a Cow in our neighborhood, 21 ave. & L str. south of Golden Gate Park, which runs around all night, from about 6 in the evening, to 2-3 o'clock in the night, whiff a bell and makes noise, that no one has rest at night, after we come home from work. We have complaint to the police but did not, do any good, so we wish that, you would come and catch it. That might help. Yours respectfully —F. N. A. F." —Los Angeles Times.

Peanut Automobile.

The accompanying illustration represents a street selling booth that may be considered either as a miniature lunch wagon design or a very much glorified push cart. Its convenience and utility are evident. The vendor has protection for himself and his wares in all sorts of weather and yet he is free from the expense of a permanent booth or of transportation for his wagon. The peanut and combination wagon consists of a wagon having a drop floor to afford sufficient height for the vendor to stand comfortably within, yet without raising him too far above the pedestrians, among whom he finds his customers; and without making the booth or wagon too heavy and unwieldy. The forward wheel is provided with a guiding attachment, which extends to the rear, where it can readily be reached by the person pushing the cart.

Whale Broke Cable.

It has been ascertained that the break in the cable between Seattle and Alaska was caused by a huge whale, whose jaws, when the cable was raised, were still entangled in the wires and rubber insulation.

Vote it Right.

To the Voters of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit:
Next Monday, April 3rd., there is to be a State election of Supreme Court and Circuit Judge. The republicans have placed in nomination for the former position the Honorable Joseph B. Moore to succeed himself and for the office of Circuit Judge the Honorable Frederick W. Mayne of Charlevoix, Mich., to succeed himself. The record of both of these candidates is such that there is no reason why they should not receive the vote of every member of their party and in addition the votes of such of the electors as desire to reward ability and fair dealings in office. The record of Judge Mayne in the Supreme Court compares favorably with that of the leading Circuit Judges of the State, and decisions have been marked by judicial fairness. The opposition to his re-election neither questions his ability nor his integrity—his judicial acts are not influenced by political prejudice or party affiliation. We urge upon the voters of this vicinity to attend the polls and to cast their ballots in behalf of the republican nominees for the office of the Supreme Court and Circuit Judge.

Endorsed by the Bar.

To the voters of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, Mich.:
At the coming election, Honorable Frederick W. Mayne of Charlevoix, Michigan, is a candidate for re-election to the office of Circuit Judge to this Circuit. The Charlevoix County Bar, of which Judge Mayne has been a member for the past twenty-four years, unanimously endorses his candidacy. During the past six years of his incumbency, Judge Mayne has demonstrated his eminent fitness for the high position which he now holds, as an able jurist and impartial judge whose opinion is not politically do not question his ability or integrity. We ask of the voters of this Circuit that they recognize merit by casting their ballot at the coming election for the Honorable Frederick W. Mayne to succeed himself as Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit.
Dated Charlevoix, Michigan, this 25th day of March A. D. 1905.
Charlevoix Bar Association.
By E. H. Green, President,
Dwight H. French, Secretary.

The refusal of Judge Shepard of Bay county to accept an independent and democratic nomination, after his defeat for renomination in the republican judicial convention, is greatly to his credit as a man and as a republican. In response to an authorized offer of such a nomination Judge Shepard replied that he had been a consistent republican all his life and that he intended to remain so.

"SAVED MY LIFE"

—That's what a prominent druggist said of Scott's Emulsion a short time ago. As a rule we don't use or refer to testimonials in addressing the public, but the above remark and similar expressions are made so often in connection with Scott's Emulsion that they are worthy of occasional note. From infancy to old age Scott's Emulsion offers a reliable means of remedying improper and weak development, restoring lost flesh and vitality, and repairing waste. The action of Scott's Emulsion is no more of a secret than the composition of the Emulsion itself. What it does it does through nourishment—the kind of nourishment that cannot be obtained in ordinary food. No system is too weak or delicate to retain Scott's Emulsion and gather good from it.

If your stock is not doing just as well as you would like, there is undoubtedly a cause which can be easily remedied by RANCH FOOD. There is no season of the year when the condition of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs can not be improved by a tonic like RANCH FOOD, which tones up the animal system throughout, cleanses the blood and prevents disease. RANCH FOOD is almost infallible for the cure of the general diseases of domestic animals, including Distemper and Pinkeye in horses, Indigestion in cattle, Catarrhal Troubles in sheep and Hog Cholera. RANCH FOOD is not like the common stock foods on the market; it is made from roots, barks, herbs and seeds and is nature's own product scientifically compounded.

East Jordan is Now Incorporated as it Should Be.

The bill providing for the incorporation of South Arm, Bowen's Addition (including the Fair Grounds) and the Cooperage Plant and dwellings, into the Village of East Jordan became a law Wednesday last. This will give our Village a population of over 2000 and will in many ways be a benefit to our citizens in general. The Bill, as passed, is herewith given in full:

House Enrolled Act No. 117. (Bill No. 231)

An Act To Attach Certain Territory To the Village of East Jordan in the County of Charlevoix.

The People of the State of Michigan enact:

Section 1. All that portion of sections twenty-two, twenty-three, twenty-four, twenty-five and twenty-six in the township of South Arm in Charlevoix county, State of Michigan, and described as follows, to-wit: Commencing at a point where the east-and-west quarter line, in section twenty-four, township thirty-two north, range seven west, intersects the west north-and-south one-eighth line of said section twenty-four; thence south to the east-and-west quarter line of section twenty-five, township thirty-two north, range seven west; thence west along said quarter line of section twenty-five and continuing west to the west line of section twenty-six, township thirty-two north, range seven west; thence north along the west line of section twenty-six and continuing north along the west line of section twenty-three, township thirty-two north, range seven west, to the center quarter post of said section twenty-two; thence north along the north-and-south quarter line of said section twenty-two, to the westerly shore of the south arm of Pine lake; thence in a southeasterly direction, following the shore of the south arm of Pine lake, to a point where the east shore of said lake intersects the south east-and-west one-eighth line of section twenty-three; thence east to the east line of section twenty-three; thence north to the east-and-west quarter line of said section twenty-three; thence east, along quarter line of section twenty-four, to place of beginning, is hereby attached to the village of East Jordan, in the county of Charlevoix and becomes a part thereof.

CHAPTER XXIII.

The twelve months elapsing since the September afternoon that witnessed Rose de Cazeneuve's disillusion in regard to her trusted "Captain Jean" had been uneventful ones for her, until very recently, when she had met Lazalle under Gen. La Roche's hospitable roof, and, for the first time in her life, found a girl friend.

The dark beauty and indifferent manner of the Spanish girl possessed a strange and powerful attraction for the gentle-natured Rose; and Lazalle, feeling the other's admiration and liking, had reciprocated in a way that brought to the surface her better and more womanly self.

The general had for a guest at this time the son of an old friend, Col. Thomas Stewart of Kentucky, who, sending young Harold to New Orleans upon a matter of business, had asked for him La Roche's hospitality. La Roche and the two girls were breakfasting when Laffitte arrived. Brigida, who was superintending certain domestic matters in a front room of the house, was the first to see his approach.

Gen. La Roche, with the impetuosity of a much younger man, sprang from his chair and crossed the room to grasp Laffitte's hand, welcoming him in words which were but carelessly heard; for the newcomer glanced from Lazalle, who had followed her host's movements, to the childish figure still seated at the table—to the lovely face, flushing and paling by turns, while the violet eyes, with a startled and yet not altogether displeased light showing in them, were raised to meet his own.

Not offering to touch her hand, he said, with a bow, "I hope, mademoiselle, that I find you quite well."

She answered in a low voice, her manner, with the color still going and coming in her cheeks, suggesting nothing more than usual shyness.

wish to present you to my friend, Captain Jean, who has come to see me upon a matter of business. Mr. Stewart—now speaking to Laffitte, as the young man rose and took the former's extended hand—"is the son of an old friend, whom I think you have met in past years. He was then Ensign Tommy Stewart, but now he is, if you please, Col. Thomas Stewart of Kentucky, a member of General Jackson's staff."

"I remember having met him in New Orleans, some years ago; and I am pleased to make the acquaintance of his son."

As the breakfast proceeded, accompanied by a general and inconsequent chatter, Laffitte's keen eyes took note of the way in which the young man looked at Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve; and it seemed to him that not only was she conscious of Stewart's attention, but that it embarrassed her.

A furtive and sudden look, however, came into the thought of this handsome young stranger daring to covet what was to him, who had known her so long, the most precious thing in all his world.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Harold Stewart. "By Jove, Senorita Lazalle, what a fascinating fellow this Captain Jean is!"

The two were sitting in a shaded summer house, Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve having disappeared immediately after breakfast, making—as Brigida told Lazalle—the excuse of wishing to see her grandfather at Kanauhana.

"Have you known him long?" he inquired.

"Yes, for several years," she answered carelessly, adding, as though feeling little interest in Capt. Jean, "I wonder why Rose slipped away alone. She always likes to have me go with her."

If Lazalle could have seen her little friend her wonder would have been increased.

"And why should you, and every one, like him so much—such a wicked, dreadful man?"

Turning from her, and while Albert, the butler, showing as much pleasure as he thought it dignified to manifest, was, by his master's order, preparing another place at the table, Laffitte told Gen. La Roche of the sailors who were waiting outside with their burdens; and the general, preceded by Laffitte, started to leave the room as a cheery whistling, accompanied by the sound of footsteps upon the oaken stairs, announced that Harold Stewart was coming down to breakfast.

Laffitte was already in the hall, and La Roche, pausing a moment, turned back to say, in a carefully lowered tone, "Senorita Lazalle—Mademoiselle Rose, I must warn both of you to have a care how you mention the name of Laffitte in the hearing of young Stewart. Remember," he added, with unmistakable emphasis, "he must be 'Captain Jean,' and no one else, so long as he is here with us."

Lazalle nodded, with a smile of appreciation, but Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve looked with troubled eyes at the general as he hurried out.

She was greatly puzzled, as indeed she had been more than once during the past year, to understand how it was that people for whom she could have nothing but respect should seem to find "no objection" to fraternizing with the dreadful Laffitte, and she was beginning to wonder how much of untruth there might be in the terrible stories she had heard concerning him.

It was all a perplexing puzzle, and the girl sighed, as she stirred her chocolate.

Lazalle, hearing the sigh, laughed as her white teeth bit into her toast. "Why do you sigh so woefully, my little Rose, and look so tragic? These gentlemen have their secrets to preserve, especially just now, when one cannot be sure that his neighbor will not betray him for a chance to curry favor with the governor, or he is not scheming for opening the way to the English."

Rose's reply, whatever it might have been, was checked by the entrance of Gen. La Roche and Laffitte, and young Stewart stared surprisedly at the hall, straight form following his host.

Up in the room assigned to her at Kanauhana, and made invitingly cozy for their beloved young mistress by Barbe and Zeney—the latter, by the way, never failing to show her jealousy of the French woman's close relations with Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve, was that young lady lying, a tumbled mass of pale blue draperies, upon a large, old-fashioned divan. Her head and face were buried in the pillows, and she was sobbing convulsively.

It was thus that Zeney found her, and the old negress pausing on the door sill, exclaimed shrilly, "La-la-la! What is this? Precious bird, tell Zeney who it is that has brought tears to the light of her eyes."

She spoke in the French patois of her fellows, but with a better accent and choice of words.

The sobs ceased, but the face buried itself still deeper in the pillows, and a little hand waved her off impatiently.

"It is that proud Spanish missy!" exclaimed Zeney, with sudden anger. "I don't like her. She has made you cry. Come home, my honey; don't you stay where she is."

"Lazalle has nothing to do with it," was the reply, uttered with a spirit and emphasis that appeared to restore the speaker's composure. "She knows nothing of it, I tell you, it is, with manifest indecision—only that I felt unhappy and I cannot tell myself why. But—as if determined to find a reason—"I wish that Capt. La Roche had not come to see Gen. La Roche this morning."

"La-la," said Zeney, a new light creeping into her shriveled face, while she nodded her turbaned head until her long earrings clicked against the string of gold beads tightly encircling her skinny neck. "Then good Capt. Jean is still alive and well! I am glad—so glad."

"Why should you be glad? What makes every one love him so?" demanded her mistress petulantly, as she wiped her face and eyes with the morsel of cambric and lace serving her as a handkerchief.

"Why should I not be glad, my pretty one? Aye, so long as Zeney lives, she has reason to be glad when all is well with Capt. Jean."

"But why should you be?" repeated

Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve, her manner softening somewhat at Zeney's evident sincerity. "And why should you, and every one, like him so much—such a wicked, dreadful man?"

The adjectives were indisputably harsh—more so than the manner in which they were uttered, and the violet eyes held a suggestion that the speaker would not object to knowing that her application of them was misplaced.

"Wicked—dreadful!" echoed Zeney, shaking her head violently. "No, no, never is Captain Jean either of these."

"But, Mamman Zillah once told me," said Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve, with the air of one seeking to remove unpleasant doubts from the mind, "that years ago when she belonged to a man up at Contraband Bayou, she saw Capt. Laffitte and two other men go into the woods with a horse. They had shovels and picks, and she followed them to see what they would do. She saw them digging a hole, like a grave; but it was a big chest they dug up. And there was gold in the chest, for she saw it when the men began filling some bags. Then she was so frightened for fear they would see her that she ran home to her cabin. And—" here Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve's eyes opened wide to their full width and her voice took a minor note, while her manner became imbued with horrible suggestiveness—"a few hours later she saw the horse come out of the woods, with the bags across its back; but only Capt. Jean came out of the woods with the horse."

Zeney laughed derisively, and again shook her head.

"That story came on horseback, Missy, along with the others you have heard, and Zillah ought to be well whipped for telling such a wicked lie. If she ever saw such a thing, then the two men had gone off in some other way to look after their own business, which was what Zillah ought to have been doing."

But Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve was, although apparently against her own will, still unconvinced, for she added, impressively, "Zillah said that they afterward found the two men dead in the woods. And I have heard other stories, too—of how he has made men jump into the sea when he burned or scuttled their ships; and took all they had on board."

"Capt. Jean steal! Capt. Jean murder!" cried Zeney, her eyes flashing with indignation. "Such things he never did, and all such stories are lies—black lies. How can you believe them, or think of them, my honey, when you once thought him so good and noble?"

The question was unanswered, and Zeney, after a moment's pause, added, "If there is any truth in such talk, it was wicked Capt. Laro who did these things; but Capt. Jean—never."

"Laro—Capt. Laro!" said her young mistress, with a puzzled little frown, and raising a hand to push back the clustering hair from her now cooled cheeks. "An, yes; it comes to me. I have heard my mother speak of him; it was he who brought her from France."

"It was he, too, who brought Capt. Jean here to Louisiana."

"He did?" the girl asked in surprise. "And did you know him then—when he was a boy?"

The negress nodded. "He seemed a comrade then, young as he was, of the captain's—a comrade in business. He was a wicked—very wicked man—a scallard," this Capt. Laro; and it was surely he, and not Capt. Jean, who did the wicked deeds you have heard about, my honey."

"And where now is Capt. Laro—do you know, Zeney?"

"Dead and gone, Missy—so I've been told. And if so, then he is down with the devil, I reckon," answered the old woman grimly, rising to her feet as Lazalle's voice was heard from the hall below, calling, "Rose, my little Rose, where are you?"

SUPPLIES DURING A SIEGE.

Primitive Incubators Used When Gibraltar Was Beleaguered.

Some months after the siege of Gibraltar began Admiral Rodney reached the rock with twenty-one ships of the line and brought in vast quantities of supplies. In April, 1781, about a year after Rodney's visit, Admiral Darby, with the British grand fleet, also anchored at Gibraltar and brought in supplies. On one occasion a vessel from Naples was driven to the rock with 6,000 bushels of barley, which the garrison found of unpeakable value. Then, too, while the bombardment destroyed most of the houses, the English found it possible to raise large amounts of vegetables and garden supplies.

They even raised chickens, following out an original method of incubation, the forerunner of the process in vogue to day. Eggs were put in tin cans and kept heated by water until they hatched. In order to get the brood cared for it was necessary to take a capon, pull out the breast feathers, scratch the fowl's breast with nettles until it bled and then settle him upon the downy chicks. The relief given the starving wounds by the soft down of the brood was so great that adoption speedily followed. —Chicago Chronicle.

Wheels Used as Alarm Bells.

Locomotive drive wheels can still make a racket, even after having been worn out for traveling purposes. The railroads give them to small towns as fire alarm bells. They are framed and hung up for that purpose—being capable of alarming a wide territory when properly pounded. Most of the smaller towns in New Jersey have them.

HORTICULTURE

Fertility and Fruit Growing.

At a meeting of horticulturists, Professor John Craig, of Cornell University, said:

"Every modern system of cultivating fruits recognizes as a first principle the right of the fruit tree to be considered a specific and sufficient crop under the soil, or at least to be regarded as a crop quite as exhausting in character as any grown by the farmer. Unless the fruit grower realizes and puts into practice the essential part of this principle he will fail as a cultivator of fruits. Experiments in orcharding conducted some years ago at the Cornell Experiment Station proved conclusively that it cost the soil more to produce twenty average crops of apples than twenty average crops of wheat. In other words, more fertility was extracted from the land in growing an acre of bearing apples for twenty years than in growing twenty consecutive crops of wheat. As a rule, the farmer recognizes the food needs of the wheat plant, but too often does he look upon the apple or fruit tree as a mere tenant of the soil, and one which is not to be regarded as a specific crop. Having recognized the principle, the particular method of orcharding must be worked out by the fruit grower himself. This method will depend upon soil conditions and climate. Nevertheless, it is safe to say that in eight cases out of ten that method which employs clean tillage for at least part of the season will be most successful. It is also safe to say that all secondary crops in orchards are injurious."

Found at Last.
Alston, Mich., March 13th.—(Special.)—After suffering for twenty years from Rheumatism and Kidney Troubles, and spending a fortune in doctors and medicines that brought him no relief, Mr. James Culet of this place has found a complete cure for all his aches, pains and weakness, in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Naturally Mr. Culet feels much elated over his cure and gives great credit to the remedy that gave him health. "Yes," Mr. Culet says, "my rheumatism and Kidney Troubles are all gone and I feel like a new man. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it. Before I used them I spent a small fortune on doctors and one remedy and another. I cheerfully recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone suffering from Rheumatism or Kidney Trouble." Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure sick kidneys. Healthy kidneys take all the uric acid—the cause of Rheumatism—out of the blood. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure Rheumatism.

Shaping and Heading Trees.

Ideas and traditions with respect to methods of cultivation and management, as well as varieties, were formerly brought from the eastern states, where conditions are very different from our own. The Horticultural Society began agitating the question of adapting methods of shaping fruit trees and of pruning to our own local conditions. Members of the society began experimenting along this line and reporting their results at the meetings. Early copies of the reports of this body show that for a series of years attention was fastened largely upon the question of adopting low heads and a dense branching system for their fruit trees. As a result a new system of shaping the tree, better adapted to our conditions, has been developed. In the eastern states, with a maritime climate, trees were given high heads, so the ground under the trees would warm up and so grasses, or other crops, could be harvested under their branches; the trees were given open tops, and were freely pruned, so as to admit sunlight and air to ripen and to color up the fruit. As opposed to this we have gradually adopted in the west, where our sunlight is intense, low heads, to shade the trunk of the tree and the ground under it; we have adopted a straight, central trunk, with dense lateral limbs as a protection to the tree and its fruit. Earlier fruiting and closer planting have been adopted as better suited to our conditions.—Prof. J. C. Whittier.

Apple Score Card.

At the last meeting of the Wisconsin Horticultural Society the following score card for judging apples was adopted:

1. Uniformity ..... 25
  2. Freedom from insects and fungous injury ..... 20
  3. Condition of the fruit ..... 15
  4. Form and type ..... 10
  5. Color ..... 10
  6. Size ..... 10
  7. Freedom from blemishes ..... 10
- Exhibitor may be required to give an affidavit, if, in the judgment of the judges the fruit is not grown by him or it a protest is made.
- Inferior specimens should under no conditions be awarded a premium.
- Exhibitors should be allowed to correct the names of their specimens up to the time of judging, and, if possible the judge or judges should be present to aid the exhibitor in this work. The judges should throw out all specimens not true to name.
- Every association offering premiums should be required to furnish a competent judge or judges.
- This card was devised by a committee consisting of E. P. Sandsten, A. J. Phillips and P. J. Coe.

Strawberries on Low Land.

Some farmers find it difficult to locate a strawberry bed except on low land and therefore do not locate it at all. Such land is good, provided it is well drained, but very often it is not well drained by natural means. Strawberries like moisture, provided it is only properly proportioned with air and soil, and on a low place the supply of water in a dry time is likely to be better than on a high place.

Bilgits are caused by minute plants called fungi.

These are vegetable parasites, which sink their roots into the substance of the plants and draw nourishment therefrom. As long as the plants can supply more food than these parasites can use, the effects of the blight is not apparent. As soon as the parasites begin to use more food than their host plants supply, the die, or such parts of them as are of leaves or twigs, as the case may be, affected by the blight.

Minnesota has a little over 800 creameries.

WHY HE WAS ALARMED.

Feared Death by Lightning Stroke Might Run in Families.

Gen. James A. Wilson told the following story of Washington Irving, which he had from the latter's lips: "During a prolonged stay in England," began Mr. Irving, "I was one day walking in the country with a friend when a violent thunderstorm burst upon us. We stopped under a large tree, and while standing there I was reminded of the fact that a brother of mine who had taken shelter under an oak on the banks of the Hudson was struck by lightning. I mentioned the incident. The face of my friend took on a look of consternation. He ran out into the pouring rain, and when I shouted to him to come back he answered:

"No, sire-ee! That kind of death probably runs in your family. I'll take my chances out in the open instead of by your side!"

"And he did," added the hermit of "Sunside" with a smile that would have opened oysters.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

More Boys Than Girls.

The average birthrate for Europe shows that for every 100 girls 106 boys are born.

Question of Economy.

Elmer was the oldest child of an already somewhat numerous and interesting while rapidly increasing family, and yet Elmer was only a little boy. One pair of twins had marked an epoch in the family history between Elmer's birth and that of a little baby sister, which he was invited to go in and see before she was honored with a name, or was big enough, in Elmer's estimation, to be designated as anything more than just "it." Asked by his mother what he thought of the dear little creature, Elmer looked at the mite very attentively for a time, and then answered, like the young economist that he was: "Why, mama, it's nice, of course; it's real nice. But do you think we needed it?"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Cost of Printing Postage Stamps.

Postage stamps were printed and gummed by contract for fifteen cents per 1,000—the paper being supplied by the government—in 1840. They are printed much cheaper now.

DISFIGURED BY ECZEMA.

Wonderful Change in a Night—In a Month Face Was Clear as Ever—Another Cure by Cuticura.

"I had eczema on the face for five months, during which time I was in the care of physicians. My face was so disfigured I could not go out, and it was going from bad to worse. A friend recommended Cuticura. The first night after I washed my face with Cuticura Soap, and used Cuticura Ointment and Resolvent, it changed wonderfully. From that day I was able to go out, and in a month the treatment had removed all scales and scabs, and my face was as clear as ever. (Signed) T. J. Soth, 217 Stags Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

HAD TO GIVE UP.

Suffered Agonies from Kidney Disease Until Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

George W. Renoff, of 1953 North 11th St., Philadelphia, Pa., a man of good reputation and standing, writes: "Five years ago I was suffering so with my back and kidneys that I often had to lay off. The kidney secretions were unnatural, my legs and stomach were swollen, and I had no appetite. When doctors failed to help me I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and improved until my back was strong and my appetite returned. During the four years since I stopped using them I have enjoyed excellent health. The cure was permanent."

NERVOUS HEADACHE

MARRIED A YOUNG WOMAN'S HAPPINESS FOR SEVEN YEARS.

Interfered With Her Social Duties and Threatened to Cause Her Retirement—How She Was Cured.

Every sufferer from nervous headache knows how completely it nullifies one for the duties and pleasures of life. Any little excitement, or over-exertion, or irregularity brings it on. Sometimes the pain is over the whole head. Again it is like a mill driven into the brain, or a wedge splitting it open, or a band tightening about it. At one time it is all in the top of the head, at another it is all at the base of the skull.

Most headaches can be traced to some faulty state of the blood. When the blood is scanty or charged with poison, and the nerves are imperfectly nourished, and the digestion weak, one of the commonest results is frequent and severe headaches.

The important thing is to get rid of the diseased condition of the blood that causes the attack by the use of a remedy that will do the work quickly and thoroughly. What is that remedy? The experience of Miss Ellen McKeena furnishes the answer. She says:

"For more than seven years I was a great sufferer from nervous headache and dizziness. My stomach was disordered, and I became so restless that I could not sit still any length of time. Dizziness interrupted my work greatly. At first the attacks were not so severe, but they gradually grew more violent, and finally became so acute that I was on the point of relinquishing my membership in the different organizations to which I belonged."

"What saved you from that necessity?"

"A very simple thing; the call of a member of one of the clubs, who strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills before giving up. I acted on her suggestion at once, and after steadily using this great blood and nerve remedy for two months, my headaches and my dizziness entirely disappeared."

Miss McKeena is secretary of the Associated Ladies' Guild, and resides at No. 25 Waitstreet, Roxbury, Mass. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many hundreds of similar cases, and can be confidently recommended to drive all poisons from the blood and to give needed strength to the nerves. Every druggist keeps them.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nervine, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nervine was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nervine has completed her entire cure."

Croup is quickly relieved, and Whooping Cough will not "run its course" if you use the original Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. This Honey Syrup is different from all others because it acts on the bowels. You can't cure Croup and Whooping Cough until you rid the system of all congestion by working off the cold through a copious action of the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar does this, and cures all Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. No opiates. Sold by Warne's Pharmacy.

WANTED—TRUSTWORTHY MAN OR WOMAN to manage business in this county and adjoining territory for well established house of solid financial standing. $300 straight cash salary with all necessary expenses paid weekly by check from headquarters. Money advanced for expenses. Position permanent; previous experience not essential. No investment required. We furnish everything. Enclose self-addressed envelope. Address, Manager, 810 Como Block, Chicago, Ill.

It is difficult to cure a cough or free yourself from the discomforts of a cold unless you move the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar acts on the bowels and drives all old out of the system. Then comes its soothing effect and strengthening influence upon the throat and lungs. For Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds and all Lung and Bronchial affections, no remedy is equal to the original Laxative Honey and Tar. Sold by Warne's Pharmacy.

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street, ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1908.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and being my appetite I became very weak and irritable. In the middle of the winter pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard of Wine of Cardui, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within a few days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I digested my food without and the nervousness was diminished. I could do my household duties without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

NEW DEPARTURE! One Month Free!

Dr. A. B. Spinney, of Detroit, also proprietor of Reed City Sanitarium, is coming to your town, where he will remain for one day only to give the sick opportunity to consult him that cannot see him in his sanitarium. The doctor has so much faith in the experience he has had in treating chronic diseases that he will not only give you a medicine free, but also free surgical operations to all those that are too poor to pay.

He will see in return that every patient will state to their friends the results obtained by his treatment. All forms of chronic diseases and deformities successfully treated. No man in this state has had such extended experience in the treatment of CHRONIC, EXT. EAR, THROAT AND LUNG DISEASES as he. He graduated 27 years ago from Cleveland, Ohio; was 15 years in general practice; after that lectured as Professor of Anatomy and Physiology in Detroit Homeopathic Medical College for 3 years; was 3 years superintendent of Alms and Infirmary Sanitariums. His experience combined with many years' study in the best hospitals in the country, and examining and treating thousands of chronic cases, has prepared him to cure when the general practitioner fails. Have you been sick for years? Are you discouraged? Call and see us; we will tell you whether we can cure you or not. If we cannot cure you, we will tell you what relief we can give you.

Remember, one month will be absolutely free—medicine, surgical operations and the benefit of all our skill—to all who are too poor to pay. Our methods of treatment embrace all that is known by all the schools, with the aid of electricity, that most wonderful of all agencies in Paralysis, Loss of Power, Rheumatism, and all diseases of the nervous system. Go early, as my office is always crowded.

N. B.—Cancers, Tumors, Blood and Skin Diseases cured by a new system. Pills cured in from 5 to 30 days without the knife. Female and private diseases of all forms treated successfully. Many patients that cannot be treated at home can be cured at our sanitarium, which is one of the best of medical skill, under the Doctor's direction. Terms for board and treatment the lowest of any sanitarium or hospital in the United States.

Remember, we give a written guarantee to cure every case of PILES and HEMIPLEGIA. Also, we have a living-in hospital department in our building. Send for Journal.

Dr. A. B. Spinney will be at Bellaire, Bellaire House, Friday, Apr. 7th from 9:00 a. m. to 7 p. m., and at Charlevoix, Bartlett House Saturday, April 8 from 7:00 to 9:00 a. m. Consultation Free.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.

Whereas default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage given by John Anderson and Lizzie Anderson, husband and wife, joint owners, of Boynton Michigan, to Leonard F. Knowles, of the same place, bearing date the 12th day of November, 1903, and recorded on the 18th day of November, 1903, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix County, Mich., in Liber 33 of Mortgages of page 109; and whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, including principal, interest and attorney's fees—as provided for in said mortgage—is the sum of Thirty-two Dollars and Thirty-nine Cents ($32.39) for the recovery of which no proceedings or suit other at law or in equity have been commenced; therefore for the purpose of foreclosing the said mortgage, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, on the 14th day of June A. D. 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, the undersigned will sell at the east front door of the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix sits, the premises described in the said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage together with seven per cent. interest and all legal costs, to wit: Commencing at a post in line with the northeast corner of Block G, the same being the southwest boundary line of Block G of N. Morgan's Add. to South Byrne and at a stake in said line four rods northwest of the west corner of said Block G; thence running in a general direction northeast along the northwest line of High street five rods; thence running at right angle with the said line of High street northwest eight rods; thence in a general direction southwest and parallel with the said line of High street five rods; thence running at right angle with the said line of High street southeast and at right angles to said High street eight rods to the place of beginning, all in Section thirty-five, Town thirty-two North of Range six West of the Charlevoix Meridian.

Dated this 10th day of March, 1905.

SINFUL HABITS IN YOUTH

MAKE NERVOUS, WEAK, DISEASED MEN.

THE RESULT of ignorance and folly in youth, overexertion of mind and body induced by lust and excitement are constantly wrecking the lives and future happiness of thousands of promising young men. Some fade and wither at an early age, at the blossom of manhood, while others are forced to drag out a weary, fruitless and melancholy existence. Often reach matrimony but find no solace or comfort there. The victims are found in all sections of the life—the farm, the office, the workshop, the parlor, the trades and the professions. Heretofore and Seminal Weakness are guaranteed cured by our New Method Treatment or No Pay. You run no risk. 25 years in Detroit, Bank security.

CURED WHEN ALL ELSE FAILED. No cases used without written consent.

"I am 33 years of age and married. When young I led a gay life. Early indiscretions and later excesses made trouble for me. I became weak and nervous. My kidneys became affected and I feared Bright's Disease. Married life was a satisfactory and my home unhappy. I tried everything—all failed till I took treatment from Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. Their New Method built me up mentally, physically and sexually. I feel and act like a man in every respect. They cured me six years ago. They are honest, skillful and responsible. Financially, so very patriotic Quakers and patriots when you can be cured by reliable doctors."—W. A. Bilton.

SORE LUNGS

When your lungs are sore and inflamed from coughing, is the time when the germs of PNEUMONIA, PLEURISY and CONSUMPTION find lodgment and multiply.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

stops the cough, heals and strengthens the lungs. It contains no harsh expectorants that strain and irritate the lungs, or opiates that cause constipation, a condition that retards recovery from a cold. FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR is a safe and never failing remedy for all throat and lung troubles.

The Doctors Said He Had Consumption—A Marvellous Cure.

L. M. Ruggles, Reasener, Iowa, writes: "The doctors said I had consumption and I got no better until I used FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. It helped me right from the start and stopped the spitting of blood and the pain in my lungs and today I am sound and well."

Three sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50-cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.
