Spotted Fever at Alba.

Seven Dead of Meningitis in Antrim County.

Secretary Shumway of the state board of health, of Lansing, has received a report of the outbreak of cerebrospinal meningitis in Star township, Antrim county, where there were eight cases with seven deaths. The disease there has been termed spotted fever, such as has been spreading death in New York city. Dr. Shumway will urge restrictive measures on the part of health officers.

The dead are:

Bertha McGarey, aged 26 years—married.
Nellie McGarey, aged 4 years.
Ed. McGarey, aged 2 years.
Thomas Stewart, aged 44 years—married.
Clarence Stewart, aged 12 years.
Emma Stewart, aged 4 years.
Viola Bock, aged 10 years.

The sole survivor of those seized by the disease is Ollie Bock, aged 4.

The outbreak occurred in the Clymor camp of the Antrim Lumber Co. of Marcellona, located at Alba on the G. R. & I. railroad. The first case was that of Nellie McGarey, who was first taken down about the first of February, and was diagnosed as congestion of the brain. The disease gradually spread in the McGarey family and from this to others.

Health Officer John H. Zeigler of Alba, in reporting the deaths says that these people live in poorly constructed houses and have suffered from the severe weather of the winter.

Secretary Shumway will insist that all cases in the future be isolated and quarantined, and it is possible that the health board will send a special investigator to Antrim county to look into this outbreak.

Homesteads At Stake.

The homesteads of scores of farmers in Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix counties are at stake in the suit in which U. S. District Attorney Covell of Grand Rapids is preparing evidence to compel the G. R. & I. railroad to relinquish title on certain lands deeded by the government as a grant for the construction of the road.

It is claimed by the government that an error was made in granting the patent to the vast property, and the government desires to reclaim the land. The company disposed of the land to settlers, who are now in danger of losing all they have.

The railway objected to the suit on the grounds that the case was outlawed. The objection was overruled by the United States court.

Pointed Paragraphs.

Isn't it rather nervy of winter to be playing a return engagement when there was no encore.

The State Legislature.

Lansing, April 10, 1905.

Primary election bills are accumulating upon the files of the two houses and of their elections committees, and are fast assuming first place in the attention of the members and of outsiders as well. Some of the bills differ so little from others that they do not seem to have been greatly needed, and some have so little relationship to the primary method of nominations that they seem to have small claim to that classification. But among them all not less than ten general bills now in both houses, besides as many local bills they cover about every feature of the subject that has been discussed or proposed in this state, and out of them all will undoubtedly come an act that shall satisfy all views as well as it is possible for any act to do, and which we may reasonably hope will approve itself upon trial.

The Double Ivory bill, which most closely conforms to the platform propositions and is satisfactory to the administration, is now before the house and has been made a special order for Wednesday afternoon of this week. It provides for a party enrollment to be made at the April election. Upon that enrollment a general primary election for delegates to the county conventions is directed to be held on the second Tuesday of June, each party voting its own tickets on distinctively colored ballots in its own box. At the same election any party may, upon petition previously filed of twenty percent of its voters in any county or political district, vote upon the adoption of the primary method of nominations for its candidates in such county or district. If adopted, such primary for direct nominations is to be held on the first Tuesday in September, names to go on the primary ballot upon petition of two percent of the voters of the party in the county or district. County conventions follow the primaries within one week and state conventions one week later, the county conventions choosing state delegates, and nominating county candidates and choosing delegates to nominate district candidates where such county or district candidates are not named by the primaries.

Senator Baird's bill was introduced in the senate Wednesday, and is substantially the same as the Double Ivory bill. Senator Glasgow's bill has been also introduced, by Senator Cropp in the absence of its author who was detained by illness, but has since returned to his duties. This bill does not contemplate the nomination of any candidates by primary vote. Party caucuses would nominate town and ward officers, and appoint city and county delegates for spring elections, and suggest names for county delegates for fall elections, delegates so suggested to be voted for at a primary election in May. County district and state conventions would perform the same functions as at present, but voting in conventions would be by Australian ballot with booths and gates, and printed ballots for the preparation of which the conventions must take recess, as only names may be put upon the ballot that have been proposed in the open convention.

Another bill, now before the house elections committee is Dickinson bill No. 2, distinct from Mr. Dickinson's earlier bill, which was the first one offered in this legislature. This one applies to the nomination of governor and lieutenant governor and members of the legislature, and provides party primaries at party option. After all these and others heretofore noticed, a brand new feature made its appearance last Thursday, fathered by Representative Thomas T. Higgins, of Cassopolis. It is really an extension and practical application to nominations, of a suggestion in the Glasgow bill, though that was probably not the source of the Higgins idea. The Glasgow bill proposes the suggestion by party caucuses of names of county delegates to be voted upon at a primary election. The Higgins idea is the same thing applied to state nominations, and perhaps also to county and district nominations. It proposes that the state convention shall name candidates to be placed upon the primary ballot and so submitted to direct vote of the party electors. It is proposed to be first applied experimentally to governor and lieutenant governor, the state convention nominating the balance of the ticket outright. A vote of not less than twenty-five percent of the convention is proposed to entitle a name to go upon the primary ballot. This scheme is offered as a compromise, and is acceptable as such to some prominent advocates of widely opposing views.

At the public hearing upon the Hudson local option bill by the liquor traffic committees of the two houses, Wednesday night, the opposition was strongly represented by Detroit and Grand Rapids speakers, arguing mainly in the interest of the hotel business. When their case had been presented, Representative Holmes of the house committee expressed a desire to hear the argument from the standpoint of the saloon keeper who is not a hotel keeper, but that interest was kept in the background, and there was no response, and some time was occupied by friends of the bill.

The house passed Mr. Ming's anti-cigarette bill with substantial unanimity, and also passed the Ming anti-bazing bill, which provides a fine of twenty-five dollars, or a possible five hundred dollars where the bazing results in disfigurement of the victim. These and the Holmes automobile bill have all reached the senate. Mr. Ming was permitted to see his anti-bazing stamp bill safely through the committee of the whole, and to pass his fishing bill through the house of Thursday by a vote of fifty seven to twenty, repealing the act of the last legislature which prohibited submarine nets. The repeal was argued in the interest of the small fisherman as antagonized by the big fish trust.

Senator Baird's Sunday closing bill for mercantile businesses, which was specially urged by the butchers, passed the senate after rejection of amendment to include cigar stores, pool rooms, ball grounds and theaters, and the bill is now sent to the house. The joint resolution for amendment to the constitution allowing an annual legislative salary of six hundred dollars, failed of the necessary two-thirds in the house; but was the following day amended to make the salary five hundred dollars, and passed with but one dissent, Mr. Canfield of Alpena, who thought it useless to propose amendments that the people would not ratify. But it is believed the people will ratify this, if it is fairly presented to them.

A bill of Representative Whelan, of Orara, appropriating fifty thousand dollars for a state hospital for consumptives, and fifteen thousand dollars a year for maintenance, has been agreed to by the house committee on public health, the institution to be restricted to citizens of Michigan, and it is now submitted to the ways and means committee. Senator Fyfe's bill for investigation of the subject of old age pensions has been reported with amendment to cut the six thousand dollars appropriation in half, and has been submitted to the committee on finance and appropriations.

The bill changing the date of the annual school meetings from September to the second Monday in July, and the school census from August to May, has become a law. This will have some effect upon the distribution of the primary school moneys, as children are then mainly at their homes, and cannot be enumerated at summer resorts, to the diversion of moneys from their proper channels as sometimes happens.

Governor Warner took no action upon the case of Supervisor Kimmeler of Cassopolis, which was argued before the governor by the tax commission with demand for Kimmeler's removal on a charge of unfair assessments and resistance to the commission's supervision. Kimmeler's term expired, and he entered upon a new term by virtue of his twentieth election last Monday without opposition. He had been exonerated by the circuit court commissioner before whom the charges had been tried, and he had been endorsed by election to the presidency of the state association of supervisors, and yet it is likely if the governor had felt it necessary to take any action he would have approved the finding of the commission.

The fact that no more silly or foolish fads can be found anywhere on earth than at a big place of learning is again being exemplified at Ann Arbor by stopping students of the university where top spinning is the spring outbreak. All over the campus, just before classes, bearded fellows with long strings and the same kind of tops that in ordinary 5-year-old spins, give exhibitions of their skill, and those who have forgotten the knack are learning over again. The fad was started by the athletes. The funniest top spinning incident occurred after one of the recent meets. Harry Coe, the distance runner, won his mile in about 4:33, a swift clip that even most trained athletes do not recover from for two to three hours. At the finish Coe never stopped running, but waving aside the men who wanted to catch him in their arms leaped into the rubbing room, and there began spinning his top. Michigan coeds have a spring fad which sets at naught all traditions about feminine taste in dresses. Everywhere the sorority girls, models of fashion, are wearing blue sailor suits, trimmed with white, and bearing red army insignia. All these costumes are exactly alike, so that Michigan girls are becoming a uniformed body, the same as girls in convents. Usually the stylish sorority girls vie with each other in selecting original costumes.

LITTLE EXPLOSIONS

Sure to Be a Popular Fad.

Mrs. De Style—Have you tried smoking tea cigarettes?
Mrs. Van Nobb—Why, not as yet. Are they so pleasant?
Mrs. De Style—Oh, dear, no! But they are very, very injurious.
Mrs. Van Nobb—Dear me, I must order some sent up at once.

Poetic Justice.

Too Comfortable.

The new cook had been at a dance the night before and at 8 o'clock in the morning her mistress called her. "Mary Ann!" she cried up the back stairs; "aren't you going to get up and get breakfast?"

To Make Repairs.

Morgan Robertson, author of "Sinful Peck," says that he was in a drug store recently when a small boy entered in a hurry and tried to talk, but was out of breath.
"I want—want—want some," he stammered, "some cement—some cement an' a lot—a lot of courtplaster. Quick!"
"Cement and courtplaster?" asked the druggist. "What's the matter?"
"Ma hit pa with a pitcher."

Whisky Fumes.

"It beats me," asserted the temperance agitator, "how a man can get so much satisfaction out of a glass of whisky."

Winning Without Trouble.

"No, I can't marry you," decided Miss Fleyne. "You appear to have no object, aim, or ambition in life."
"How can you say that," expostulated Mr. Woodby Tooke, "when my sole aim, object and ambition at present is to make you my wife? Surely you can't expect me to have another until this one is accomplished?"
It didn't take much of that kind of talk to do the business.

His Ready Answer.

An Unbreakable Habit.

Mrs. Newed—"I don't know where we are to put Aunt Jane during her visit. She positively refuses to sleep in a folding bed."
Newed—"Afraid it will close up, eh?"
Mrs. Newed—"No, but she can't look for the proverbial man under it."

Wary.

"Don't you want to do something to which you can point with pride when you get out of congress?"
"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "This ambition to point with pride has been the means of getting too many people out of congress."—Washington Star.

The Washington Stamp.

"Everybody is saying complimentary things about me," remarked the first President of the United States as he was being inducted into office; "but when I get my picture on the two-cent stamps I suppose everybody will be sticking their tongues out at me."

EFFECTS OF THE TYPEWRITER

its Use Has Given Impetus to the Dictating Habit.

The invention of the typewriter has given a tremendous impetus to the dictating habit, especially among business men, says the Atlantic Monthly. The more ephemeral literary productions of the day are dictated, sometimes to a stenographer for transcription, and often directly to the machine. In either case the literary effects of the dictation habit are too manifest to need elaboration. The standards of spoken language, which in the days of the past stood out in marked contrast with the terseness and precision of written composition, giving rise to the saying that no good speech ever read well, have crossed over to the printed page.
This means not only greater diffuseness, inevitable with any lessening of the tax on words which the labor of the writing imposes, but it also brings forward the point of view of one who speaks. There is the disposition on the part of the talker to explain as if watching the facial expression of his hearers to see how far they were following.
This attitude is not lost when his audience becomes merely a clicking typewriter. It is no uncommon thing in the typewriting booths at the capitol in Washington to see congressmen, in dictating letters, use the most vigorous gestures, as if the oratorical methods of persuasion could be transmitted to the printed page.

Burglar Neatly Trapped.

When the assistants at a Bristol (Eng) pawnbroker's entered the premises the other morning they saw a man crouching in a corner behind a box. He tried to rush past a file of customers waiting to be served, but was secured. He proved to be Richard Halstead, a mason, and in his possession was jewelry worth over $100. Investigation showed that he had been curiously trapped. He had evidently gained access to the premises by cutting a hole in the roof. He was, however, unable to get to the shop below on account of an iron door on the staircase. As a last resort, and being a small man, he got into the shop by sliding down a rope in a small wooden lift. The rope, however, broke, and he came down with a run. His position was not fully realized till, having secured the jewelry, he was about to take his departure. Then he found all the doors safely locked and the rope in the lift broken. With no possible means of egress he had to wait till the shop was opened.

DANGER IN GLASS ETCHING.

Deadly Liquid Used by Workers in This Form of Art.

A solid gold bottle stood on the chemist's table.
"In that bottle," he said, "my hydrofluoric acid is kept. Hydrofluoric acid is used in glass etching. The etching on glass thermometers is all done with it. It is colorless. It looks like water.
"But a drop of it on your hand would bore clean through to the other side like a bullet. Its inhalation is sure death.
"Hydrofluoric acid can be kept safely in gold bottles alone. Sometimes bottles of india rubber, of lead, or of platinum are used. None of these, though, is as safe as gold.
"Even when this acid is in a gold bottle, precautions must be taken with it. It is volatile, and hence a paraffine covered plate must be clamped tight over the bottle's mouth. Also, the temperature of the room must not rise over 60 degrees, or the gold bottle will burst.
"This acid, whose sole use is in glass etching, is probably the most dangerous thing in the world to work with. The steeple-jack, the lion tamer, the diver, even the Japanese and Russian soldier, do not take their lives in their hands to half the extent the glass etcher does when, with his gold vial of hydrofluoric acid he etches the scales on our thermometers."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Dog Lives After Being Buried.

After being buried under the ruins of a seven-story building twenty-one days, in which time she was almost starved to death, Chief, a beautiful water spaniel, has been rescued and is well on the road to recovery. She came out of her prison resembling a mad animal, but careful nursing has brought her back to her former gentle ways.
Chief was in the basement of a cottage in West Van Buren street at the time of the fire in the home of the Cash Buyers' Union, and when the walls of the building fell they crushed the frail structure and made the dog a prisoner. She had lain there many days when the wreckers found her. They fed her through a small opening some time before they were able to release her.
Medical men say a man could not live longer than six days under like circumstances.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Met Death in Strange Way.

Charles Palmer, an employee of the Jamp Glass company in Smithport, Pa., was roasted to death the other morning when engaged in making repairs to a gas supply pipe. Palmer's duties were to maintain the heat of the furnaces at the required temperature. The melting tanks are so arranged that the supply of gas flame is turned on alternately from one side to another. Each of the two supply pipes is large enough to admit the body of a man. Palmer, when the flame was passing through the adjoining pipe, crawled into the unused one, and his assistant changed the supply, sending the burning gas through the pipe in which Palmer was at work. Before the mistake was known Palmer's body was burned to a crisp.

Deepest Mine in the World.

Imagine if you can a gigantic honey-comb forty miles long by fifteen miles broad, surrounded by water and penetrated by hundreds of miles of tunnels arranged in tiers one below another to the depth of a mile, and you will have some idea, writes Mr. Theodore Waters, in Everybody's Magazine, of the country in which the deepest mine in the world, the Calumet and Hecla, is located. This copper mine extends down four thousand feet below the bottom of Lake Superior, which itself is one thousand feet deep.

Footed Thousands of Miles.

It is astonishing what distances can be covered by men who are by no means pedestrians in the ordinary exercise of their callings. The organizer of a church in rural England who died a few years ago had walked twenty miles to play his organ every Sunday. For fifty-one years he had done his Sabbath tramp, falling only once (5) put in an appearance, and never once being late.

Giants in Greenland.

Christian Jensen, who has just returned from a year's voyage in the Arctic seas, reports that while his vessel was trading on the southwest coast of Greenland there arrived from the interior a party of giants, the shortest of whom was seven feet in height and the tallest nine feet. They had the copper-colored complexions and the features of North American Indians.—London Tit-Bits.

Hard-Task to Find Water.

The work of driving a well for a brewery at South Manchester, N. H., still goes on. The well after two months of labor shows a depth of 760 feet, almost the entire distance being through solid granite ledge. No satisfactory supply of water has yet been obtained, the dust now being brought to the surface being as dry as powder.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

An Old Game.
We sat and watched the shooting stars. Across the azure skies; (You got to kiss the girl, you know... Before the quick flash dies.) But meteors were few, or else 'Tud slow our mortal eyes; And so we cheated, she and I—'We counted fireflies!
That was in summertime—but now, We cannot sit outside; The stars are there, but lightning-bugs This cold cannot abide. But when we longed for spring to come Her blue eyes opened wide; "My goodness! do we really need Excuses now?" she cried.—Cleveland Leader.

Burglar Neatly Trapped.

When the assistants at a Bristol (Eng) pawnbroker's entered the premises the other morning they saw a man crouching in a corner behind a box. He tried to rush past a file of customers waiting to be served, but was secured. He proved to be Richard Halstead, a mason, and in his possession was jewelry worth over $100. Investigation showed that he had been curiously trapped. He had evidently gained access to the premises by cutting a hole in the roof. He was, however, unable to get to the shop below on account of an iron door on the staircase. As a last resort, and being a small man, he got into the shop by sliding down a rope in a small wooden lift. The rope, however, broke, and he came down with a run. His position was not fully realized till, having secured the jewelry, he was about to take his departure. Then he found all the doors safely locked and the rope in the lift broken. With no possible means of egress he had to wait till the shop was opened.

Dog Lives After Being Buried.

After being buried under the ruins of a seven-story building twenty-one days, in which time she was almost starved to death, Chief, a beautiful water spaniel, has been rescued and is well on the road to recovery. She came out of her prison resembling a mad animal, but careful nursing has brought her back to her former gentle ways.
Chief was in the basement of a cottage in West Van Buren street at the time of the fire in the home of the Cash Buyers' Union, and when the walls of the building fell they crushed the frail structure and made the dog a prisoner. She had lain there many days when the wreckers found her. They fed her through a small opening some time before they were able to release her.
Medical men say a man could not live longer than six days under like circumstances.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Met Death in Strange Way.

Charles Palmer, an employee of the Jamp Glass company in Smithport, Pa., was roasted to death the other morning when engaged in making repairs to a gas supply pipe. Palmer's duties were to maintain the heat of the furnaces at the required temperature. The melting tanks are so arranged that the supply of gas flame is turned on alternately from one side to another. Each of the two supply pipes is large enough to admit the body of a man. Palmer, when the flame was passing through the adjoining pipe, crawled into the unused one, and his assistant changed the supply, sending the burning gas through the pipe in which Palmer was at work. Before the mistake was known Palmer's body was burned to a crisp.

Deepest Mine in the World.

Imagine if you can a gigantic honey-comb forty miles long by fifteen miles broad, surrounded by water and penetrated by hundreds of miles of tunnels arranged in tiers one below another to the depth of a mile, and you will have some idea, writes Mr. Theodore Waters, in Everybody's Magazine, of the country in which the deepest mine in the world, the Calumet and Hecla, is located. This copper mine extends down four thousand feet below the bottom of Lake Superior, which itself is one thousand feet deep.

Footed Thousands of Miles.

It is astonishing what distances can be covered by men who are by no means pedestrians in the ordinary exercise of their callings. The organizer of a church in rural England who died a few years ago had walked twenty miles to play his organ every Sunday. For fifty-one years he had done his Sabbath tramp, falling only once (5) put in an appearance, and never once being late.

Giants in Greenland.

Christian Jensen, who has just returned from a year's voyage in the Arctic seas, reports that while his vessel was trading on the southwest coast of Greenland there arrived from the interior a party of giants, the shortest of whom was seven feet in height and the tallest nine feet. They had the copper-colored complexions and the features of North American Indians.—London Tit-Bits.

Hard-Task to Find Water.

The work of driving a well for a brewery at South Manchester, N. H., still goes on. The well after two months of labor shows a depth of 760 feet, almost the entire distance being through solid granite ledge. No satisfactory supply of water has yet been obtained, the dust now being brought to the surface being as dry as powder.

The Watchword of the Stars

Night—and the cool soft air
And of the murmurous sleep of the sea;
And moving up the purple east
Orion's splendid three.

Night—and the silence,
And the shadow-brooding sea;
And moving through the mellow south
Orion's constant three.

Night—and the loneliness,
And the eyes that wake and weep;
But calm and patient in the west
The stars that never sleep.

What is your watchword, stars?
Tell me, Orion's three?
What is your message? Love,
Patience and Constancy?

FOR LAW AND ORDER

BY J. C. PLUMMER

(Copyright, 1935, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Mr. Bowly walked up the main street of Hemley. If ever a good man walked up that street he was doing it then. Goodness lay in every fold of the fat smooth shaven face, immovable virtue was expressed by the tightly tied white cravat under the double chin. Mr. Bowly was prominent in the board of the Wesleyan chapel of Hemley and when he was not doing his best to improve this sinful world he was selling ropes and groceries in his ship chandery on the wharf.

When he came to Captain Crabbe's house, in the Square, he knocked at the door and was admitted. Captain Crabbe was also a good man and he was also prominent in the chapel. The captain was a Londoner and had retired from the sea and settled in Hemley. In the old days he had been a sinful man, he said so himself in the experience meetings, and at times in a social chat he would recount the deeds of his unregenerate days with a grin about his lips and a light in his eyes as if the cakes and ale still had a savor on his palate. But those days had passed, no man could outdo the captain in righteous language and conduct since his joining the church.

"Brother Crabbe," said Mr. Bowly, coating himself with a grunt, for he was fat, "I have heard a rumor, a bad, a shocking rumor." He watched Captain Crabbe's face closely as he said this.

"What 'ave you 'eard, Brother Bowly?" asked the captain. He also regarded Brother Bowly's countenance with interest.

"There is a rumor," replied Mr. Bowly, "that a prize fight is to come off near Hemley. That the peace and order of this quiet town is to be profaned by such a rowdy gathering is horrible."

"Hi 'eard the rumor too," remarked the captain, looking out of the window, "and I was just coming to see you about it."

"I am president of the Law and Order Society and you are the vice president. It is incumbent on us to stop this disgraceful affair," said Mr. Bowly.

"We must surely stop it," agreed the captain. "Ave you 'eard where hit's to come off?"

"At Oldham's Woods," replied Mr. Bowly; "at least, that's my information."

"That's where Hi 'eard it 'd be," said the captain. "Hi'll see Mr. Grubb, the magistrate, and you'd better see Mr. Hunch, the constable."

"I'll do it," assented Mr. Bowly.

"Oh, that such a beautiful spot as Oldham's Woods should be defiled by such an illicit assemblage of sinful men."

The guardians of the peace and order of Hemley shook hands and parted. When Mr. Bowly had gone the captain took from his pocket an illy written note:

"Cap Crabbe—The Southwark Kid and the Sheffield Gamecock are going to have a little fist shuffle near your town Wednesday. You used to like this sport once and if you want to see this fight you can get the ticket, spot and time from Ben Hughes, at the Bugle and Sword, in High street, Southwark. Yours truly,

"Sam."

This note had been received by the captain the Saturday previous and on Monday business had taken him to London.

As became a vigilant member of the Law and Order Society Captain Crabbe had not failed to discover by diplomatic inquiry the time and place where this most ungodly infraction of the peace, quietude and honor of Hemley was threatened.

This was Tuesday and the fight was appointed for the next day. Prompt action was necessary.

"You were right," said he to Mr. Bowly that evening. "Holdham's Woods is the place and daybreak is the time."

Mr. Bowly eyed the captain closely while he spoke.

"I have already ascertained as becomes a vigilant officer of the Law and Order Society both time and place. Oldham's Woods at daybreak."

Had been a sinful man.

You are right, captain, and I compliment you on your co-operation. The officers are notified and the fight will be prevented."

The sun had not thought about shining upon Merrie England when the captain left his couch on Tuesday morning. Like a thoughtful husband he put on his clothes quietly so as not to disturb Mrs. Crabbe's matutinal slumbers and putting an odd looking package in his pocket sallied out. It was the captain's purpose to aid in the prevention of the fight he went about it in an odd fashion. Everybody in Hemley knows that the shortest way to Oldham's Woods is past the mill and over the footbridge going due south. The captain bent his way due north. He crossed the Spring Farm, toiled through the bracken, becoming dew sodden, and then veered into a sequestered vale surrounded by woodland.

He was not the only one in the vale. Some hundreds rough looking men were there and there was a ring being roped off.

"Hi guess Bowly's tramping towards Holdham's Woods by now," muttered the captain, taking deep interest in the proceedings.

When the brawny champions entered the ring the captain had no difficulty in getting an excellent position to view the fight. In fact, he seemed marvelously familiar with the whole proceedings and spoke to one or two sportive looking men by their first names, being familiarly addressed by them as "Cap."

Greatly relieved to see that none of Hemley's citizens were present, the captain gave himself up heart and soul to the fight. The Sheffield Gamecock had much the best of it at the start and handled the Kid as he pleased.

"Five pun' to four on the Gamecock," called a spectator, hoarsely.

"Hon," yelled the captain, "hand doubled if you've the grit."

"Doubled it is," replied the man.

The Kid then dealt the Gamecock a blow perilously near that point of a man's physique beneath which a blow is barred by the rules of manly sport.

"Foul, foul," shrieked a voice wondrously familiar to the captain.

He peered past a bulky gentleman by his side and there stood Mr. Bowly, red faced and angry, shaking his fist under the nose of a man who was in a deep voice denouncing him as a liar.

The captain shrunk back behind his bulky companion and remained hidden until the Kid with a fierce rally had transformed the Gamecock's face into a mass of bruised and bloody flesh and was hailed victor.

Collecting his bet the captain slunk away with the certainty that he had not been seen by Mr. Bowly and entering the woods drew out the package from his pocket and took a long dram of spirits. Then he hastened home and informed his spouse that he had taken a walk for indignation.

That afternoon the captain walked down the street with that pleasant feeling that is the concomitant of a bet of ten pounds won by keen knowledge of "form" when he met Mr. Bowly.

That gentleman's usually benign countenance was ruffled as if some unpleasant circumstance had happened to him during the morning.

"I regret, captain," he said, "that we were misinformed as to the place where the fight was to be held. It occurred, I am told, somewhere to the north."

"Hit was a great pity," remarked the captain. "Hi' couldn't go with the constable this morning. Hi't a great pity."

"I couldn't go, either," said Mr. Bowly, "and I regret greatly this miscarriage of justice."

And the captain continued his walk slowly shaking his head.

GERMANY TO BUILD CANALS.

Waterways Costing an Enormous Sum Planned by the Government.

According to United States Consul General Guenther, Frankfurt, Germany, the committee on canals of the Prussian diet has reported with a favorable recommendation a bill providing for the following construction:

1. A navigable canal between the Rhine and Weser, with a connection to Hanover, and the canalization of the Lippe:

(a) A canal from the Rhine, Ruhrort, to the Dortmund-Ems canal or the vicinity of Herne (Rhine-Herne canal), inclusive of a branch canal from Datteln to Hamm; estimated cost, $17,731,000.

(b) Additional works on the Dortmund-Ems canal between Dortmund and Bevergern; estimated cost, $1,483,700.

(c) A canal from the Dortmund-Ems canal, Bevergern, to the river Weser, connecting with Hanover; branch canals to Osnabruck, Minden and Linden, construction of reservoirs in the upper parts of the river Weser and some regulation works of the Weser below Hameln; estimated cost, $28,679,000.

(d) Canalization of the Lippe or construction of branch canals from Weser to the Dortmund-Ems canal, near Datteln, and from Hamm to Lippstadt; estimated cost, $10,614,800.

(e) Improvement of the cultivation of the soil in connection with the works under items a to d, and the completed Dortmund-Ems canal; estimated cost, $1,190,000.

2. A deep waterway between Berlin and Stettin; estimated cost, $10,234,000.

3. Improvement of the waterway between the rivers Oder and Weichsel, also of the river Wartha from the river Netze to the city of Posen; estimated cost, $5,039,650.

4. The canalization of the Oder from the Glatzer Neisse to Breslau, experimental works between Breslau and Furstenberg on the Oder, construction of reservoirs; estimated cost, $4,676,700.

The entire cost of the projects included is placed at 334,575,000 marks ($79,628,300).

Beginning of "Lloyds."

Two centuries ago a man who had a cargo to send to the Mediterranean contrived to get rid of some of the risk by inducing a friend to take an interest with him. It was necessary to write out a statement of contract to which the guarantors subscribed; this was the first underwriting. These two men happened to be frequenters of Lloyd's coffee house in London, which was a favorite place for the merchants of the town to gather to discuss business or to gossip. Others immediately saw the advantage of the scheme which their colleagues had devised, and on the next voyage the risk was parceled out among a larger number of the patrons of the coffee house. Out of this small beginning has grown the great European maritime agency, still bearing the name of the humble coffee house.

Statesmen Born in 1818.

With the death of Mr. Boutwell passes the last of the seven governors of Massachusetts who were born in 1818. The others were: William Claflin, born at Milford March 6; John Arbibon Andrew, born at Windham, Me., May 31; Henry Joseph Gardner, born at Dorchester June 14; Alexander Hamilton Rice, born at Newton Aug. 30; Thomas Talbot, born at Cambridge, N. Y., Sept. 7, and Benjamin Franklin Butler, born at Deerfield, N. H., Nov. 5. As Mr. Boutwell was born in January, it will be seen that only February, April, July, October and December of 1818 failed to give birth to a Massachusetts governor.

Roger's Song.

Who loves the rose without a thorn? Not I.
No guardian darts around her close,
For every passing hand she blows,
With every touch her bloom is straw—
I love no rose without a thorn. Not I.

Who loves the bee without a sting? Not I.
'Tis but a stinging, idle drone
May live for food alone,
And so go gull and poor a thing—
I love no bee without a sting. Not I.

Who loves a maid without a will? Not I.
A thornless rose, a stinging bee,
A will-less maid, are not for me.
Give me the sweet wild briar; still
I love no maid without a will. Not I.

"Sweetbriar," by Dorothea G. Browne.

Astonishing Claim of Mixed Blood.
Daniel Murray, long an assistant in the library of congress, is preparing a historical review of the exploits of negroes and persons of mixed blood in literature and other fields. Mr. Murray said in a recent interview: "To the great mass of readers it will be news that Robert Browning was an octroon. The same may be said of Alexander Hamilton, Alexander Pushkin, Russia's greatest poet, was a quadroon."

TUBERCULOSIS IN CHILDREN

Appalling Mortality Among the Little Ones Due to This Cause—Proper Attention to Health of Mothers Would Save Many Lives

The number of deaths due to tuberculosis is tremendous. When the word is spoken one instinctively thinks of pulmonary consumption. This is the form which attacks adults and which we see daily gathering in its victims. There are other forms, however, more common in children, that levy tribute upon them without calling attention to the relationship between these diseases and consumption of the lungs.

Dr. Jacobi is authority for the statement that "Tuberculosis kills as many people, old and young, as diphtheria, croup, whooping cough, scarlatina, measles and typhoid fever taken together." In all of our cities active steps have been taken to protect the people from the above named diseases. Until quite recently, however, a few years at most, nothing was done to reduce the mortality from tuberculosis.

Now, however, the attention of the world, the common people and the health authorities, has been called to its curability and preventability.

The causes, the modes of scattering, and the prevention are all being studied, and an educational campaign is on to wipe out this "white terror."

The children suffer from tuberculosis of the bones, the bowels and lymph glands. Tubercular meningitis is frequently found in early life and is uniformly fatal. Only by careful attention to the food and daily habits can the rising generation be made immune from these varied forms of tuberculosis.

The fact that over one-half of all babies born die before they reach the age of five years, proves that the "constitutional capital" bequeathed them is small. Is the proper attention paid to the diet, exercise and out-of-door life of the mother? If this were done, the child would undoubtedly have greater vitality and could by proper care and education live above the tuberculosis of childhood and of adult life.

Cause and Cure of Gastric Catarrh.

Chronic congestion of the stomach, known as gastric catarrh, is usually caused by one of the following errors, or by all of them put together: Eating too much or too fast; swallowing food insufficiently masticated; the use of such coarse foods as cabbage, greens, etc.; mustard, peppercorns, and other condiments and spices; pastry containing animal fats; free fats, which lodge in the stomach and remain there a long time; pork, griddle cakes and burned fats—these are the things that produce gastric catarrh.

The first and most necessary step in the treatment of this disease is to remove the cause of the trouble. We may induce activity of the skin by hot applications followed by cold or hot bath followed by a short application of cold; fomentations followed by a short cold application to the stomach. These treatments are useful, but the most important factor is the regulation of the diet. A fruit diet is best, for the reason that in gastric catarrh there is a great accumulation of germs, which are destroyed by fruit juice. A well-prepared diet of toasted bread, zwieback, granose biscuit, etc., is also useful in these cases.

Bedroom Climate.

A person at the age of sixty years has spent about twenty years of his life in his bedroom. Have you investigated the average sleeping room climate? If you were sent as a missionary to some distant pestiferous spot the climate of which was as unhealthy as that of the average bedroom, would you not feel that you were risking a great deal for the sake of the heaven?

On the tombstone of tens of thousands of those who have died from tuberculosis might appropriately be inscribed: "Disease and death were invited and encouraged by a death-dealing bedroom climate."

To show that this is no exaggeration it is only necessary to call attention to the fact that fully half of the tubercular patients placed in outdoor consumptive hospitals make a satisfactory recovery. If fresh air will cure the disease, it is certainly a wonderful preventive of it. It is not more reasonable to deliberately breathe impure air than it is to drink impure water or to eat unhealthful food or wear infected clothing.

Tender-Hearted Savages.

One of the most anomalous features of our Christian civilization is the slaughter house, especially the abattoirs of our great cities, where veritable torrents of blood perpetually flow, the ebbling life of millions of innocents which die that man may feast.

Indians are not noted for being over-sensitive; and particularly despite any exhibition of weakness. The interior of a slaughter-house, however, is said to have proved too much for their powers of self-control. The Chicago Record states that "a party of fifteen Blackfoot Indians recently visited the killing room of Armour's plant. One fainted, three more were ill, the rest covered up their eyes. They were hurried out of the place into the fresh air."

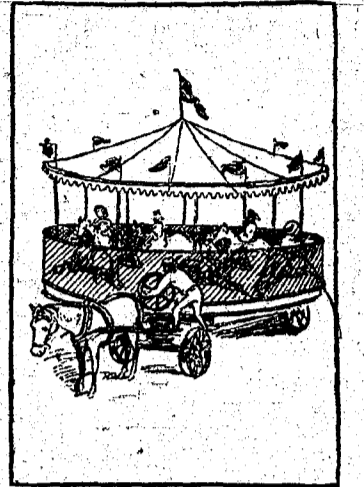

A Good Reform.

The abominable practice of wearing long skirts for the street is dying out. Pretty as it is to see a summer

PORTABLE MERRY-GO-ROUND.

Device of Eastern Inventor That Delights the Children.

One of the curious things which has been seen recently moving around the streets of the poorer quarters of Philadelphia is a perambulating merry-go-round, which makes an instant hit. The apparatus is much the same as the larger ones, and is mounted on a low and substantial truck, with a step in the rear to permit the exit and entrance of the delighted youngsters. Where a stop is made on sloping ground it is necessary to level the apparatus, which is accomplished by means of a telescoping rod fixed in the front. Likewise in the front there is a crank handle, by which the thing is revolved manually, and sometimes it will be connected with a hand organ and the usual amount of music turned out for the delectation of the tots who are fortunate enough to be possessed of the necessary penny which admits them to the interior.

The first one of these appeared on the streets some time ago, and was of somewhat crude construction, being largely the handiwork of the inventor and associates. The novelty proved such an attractive one that it has been decided to make them on a more elaborate scale, and, as stated, they will be leased on a royalty in much the same way as the hand organ business is done at the present time. For this purpose a stile has been added to the machine which is arranged to register the number of children riding, so that a proper division of the profits may be arrived at.

Trousers and Jacket in Wood.

The president of a large wholesale company in Van Buren street has recently received from a customer, who lives in Akron, Ohio, a curio consisting of a natural growth of maples so fashioned as to resemble a pair of Mexican trousers and part of a close fitting jacket. The "trousers" are about long enough for a man six feet tall.

The Ohio customer has a farm near his home city. "While exploring the woods a few weeks ago he discovered a tree whose peculiarity startled him. Soon afterward he had the tree felled and, cutting out the unique section, sent it by freight to the Chicago firm.

been the subject of wonder, alternating in admiration and denunciation, for the last 250 years. There have been epidemics of interest in the dowsing and his strange operations many times, and, in between, periods of years when nothing has been heard about the subject. But the finding of wells of sweet water by the aid of forked sticks has been going on all this time without interruption.

It is no exaggeration to say that the agricultural population of the world, particularly in Great Britain, Europe and in parts of western America, has been saved millions of dollars of needless expense by the advice of the humble dowsing rod.

Correspondence from Lansing as to the progress of legislative affairs suggest the probability of adjournment the first or second week in May, by which time it is thought all legislation of general importance will have been disposed of. It is of course kept well in mind by the lawmakers that their work will not end until a primary reform bill applicable in some important respects to all sections of the state has been enacted.

The usual struggle to meet the demands of state institutions and the increasing requirements of a rapidly developing commonwealth in other directions, and at the same time to hold the total of state appropriations to figure not greater than previously granted, is now filling the days and nights of the legislative finance committees at Lansing with perplexing efforts. It is not to be desired that any state institution shall be crippled or any legitimate state need denied, but there is a desire for economy in state expenditures which has not heretofore been given the consideration it deserves and which it may not be well to continually forget.

It is reported that the Chicago & Alton railroad has recently issued rules through which its employees are forbidden to visit race tracks, dance halls, or any resorts where liquors are used or gambling permitted. Good service, the railroad holds, depends upon steady habits, and both help insure public safety. On the same day the railroad announcement was made comes a declaration from Governor Hanley of Indiana, that he would not knowingly appoint to office any man who drinks or who possessed other habits which would lessen his value and standing as a public officer. Evidently the practical requirements of life have reached a point where the possession of high grade qualities to men who would do something and be something are absolute essentials. There is food here in abundance for the moralist and thoughtful observer of passing events.

Michigan Crop Report.

Lansing, April 10, 1905.
The weather during March was warm and pleasant. The ground was practically bare of snow during the latter half of the month yet no damage was done by freezing and thawing. These conditions were very favorable for wheat, rye and meadows, yet not particularly favorable for fruit since it gave the buds an early start.

WHEAT.

The condition of wheat on April first was exceptionally fine in all parts of the State. The growth is not large but it is healthy and promises to get an early start owing to the favorable weather which prevailed during March. There has been very little wheat winter killed and altogether the prospect is seldom more favorable than at the present time.

RYE.

Rye, like wheat, promises exceedingly well at the present time. Conditions have not been quite so favorable since the crop has, in many cases, been pastured. Whether sown for this purpose or for the grain alone the outlook is very promising. The average condition of rye is 95 in the State and in each of the sections.

MEADOWS.

The average condition of meadows is, in the southern counties 92; in the central counties 94; in the northern counties 96 and in the State 93.

LIVE STOCK.

The average condition of horses in the State is 95, cattle 93, sheep 96 and swine 94.

FRUIT.

Reports concerning fruit are favorable although it is too early to tell definitely what the outcome will be. The weather was warm during March which advanced the buds considerably, yet no damage has resulted from it. Should favorable weather continue all conditions would indicate that we were to have a full crop of fruit. The following shows the prospect for an average crop of the various kinds of fruit in the State: Apples '81, Pears '79, Peaches '75, Plums '77, Cherries '87, Small fruit '89.

The boys are enthusiastic in the matter and it's a safe guess will give a good account of themselves at the contest.

Bellaire Independent.—At the request of the officers we refrained from printing anything regarding a little excitement that took place over in Echo the fore part of last week. This time it is a robbery, and a fur coat and $40 in money are missing. The suspect, a young man by the name of Ernest Root, came to this region from Indiana several years ago and for some time has made his home at Edmund Wilson's. Monday morning, Root was missing as also were the overcoat and money. A warrant for larceny was sworn out before Justice Slockies and officers went after the man. Deputy Sheriff Shepherd followed him into the Upper Peninsula where all trace was lost. It is probable that Root found his way into Canada, and it is doubtful whether the crime will be considered of sufficient importance to warrant going to the trouble to get him from there.

Mrs. E. J. Crossman and W. L. French entertained informally Monday afternoon, at the former's home, in honor of Mrs. G. G. Brown; twenty-six ladies were present. The two parties were pretty decorated in red and white, and also had a touch of the woods,—branches of the evergreen, pines and pretty ferns, which the snow had covered and kept from freezing, made it look spring like. The dining room in which a very nice luncheon was served, the color hue was pink. Mrs. Brown was the happy recipient of a lovely cut glass vase from her friends. On Wednesday evening these same ladies with their husbands gave a Military Euchre party at E. J. Crossman's, twenty couple enjoyed the game. The table cards were dainty and unique. The rooms were tastefully decorated with our national colors, ferns and carnations. Dainty refreshments were served. United States was the winning table the prize was awarded to Dr. W. W. Dicken. C. L. Soper, Mrs. E. A. Stanley and Mrs. E. C. Plank.

Cooperage Under Way.

The East Jordan Cooperage began operations again Thursday with a full force of men at work. On Sunday, Feb'y 12th the main building of the plant was burned, destroying all the machinery, valued at about $10,000. To re-build, purchase new machinery, get same here and in position, has been no small task and considerable credit is due Manager A. M. Haight for his go-ahead-iveness. In the matter Grief Bros. made no mistake when they assigned Mr. Haight to this place. Some eighty men have been put to work and the Company distributes among these each week wages which aggregate about $1000.

E. J. Literary Club

A very interesting paper on "Grayling" illustrated by chart, was given by Miss Estle Matthews before the East Jordan Literary Club at the home of Mrs. F. A. Roster, Thursday. Mrs. Frank Greenwood gave the "Life of John Everett Millais." Instrumental duets by Mesdames Brotherton and S. A. Bush, a vocal selection by Miss J. Sossinger and a piano solo by Mrs. C. G. Bush were the musical numbers.

Each member gave a "Current Event." Mrs. Crossman will entertain the Club April 20th. All members are requested to be present as officers are to be elected for the ensuing year.

CHAPTER XXV.

Laffitte, after the departure of Gen. La Roche, permitted himself the solace of tarrying an hour or so longer, although he exchanged scarcely half a dozen words with Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve, as they, with Lazalle and Harold Stewart, sat on the broad veranda.

He was unaccountably anxious and depressed; there seemed to be something in the air about him that set his nerves a quiver, and filled him with strange feelings.

It was after three o'clock when, with a reluctance of which his manner gave no hint, Laffitte rose and signified that he must be going.

"Will you not come again soon?" asked Lazalle, a new wistfulness showing in her face and voice, as he extended his hand to her.

Laffitte's only reply was a smile; and turning to say adieu to Mademoiselle de Cazeneuve, he saw that she had left the veranda, and was standing on the lawn, some little distance from the house.

She was looking off toward the woods, and said, as Laffitte paused beside her, "There is the man from whom grandpere rented Kanahana, sitting under a tree with his gun."

"He expects to see me before I go, and is waiting for the opportunity," Laffitte explained, his voice softening as it always did when addressing her.

The violet eyes and the dark ones looked into each other; then a shapeless brown hand possessed itself gently of a small white one.

"Oh, Captain Jean, I am so sorry—so very sorry! Will you not say that you forgive me?"

She spoke impulsively, in a half-whisper, and the other small hand was now laid over the back of the brown one.

Her look and words, the faint pressure of her fingers, sent a wild joy through his veins.

"God in heaven bless you for those fleet of vessels apparently going down the gulf. While the boat sailed down the island's shore the smoke against the southwest sky showed more dense, and Baptistine, pointing to it, said, "That smoke looks to be not innocent camp-fire nor chimney smoke, my captain."

Laffitte was about to reply, when the boat came abreast of an opening in the trees, through which some of the buildings were seen to be on fire.

A chorus of exclamations and execrations broke from Baptistine and the crew, and one of the latter cried out, "This is the work of those cursed English!"

Laffitte raised his hand to command silence.

"Yonder vessels did it, rather than the English," he said, in a voice husky with rage, as he pointed to the disappearing fleet.

"And they are flying the United States flag!" shouted another of the crew, who had taken the spyglass lying near him and was looking through it.

"Shall we venture to land, my captain?" ventured Baptistine.

"Draw closer," said Laffitte, turning to the crew, who were starting with fury-filled eyes at the seemingly deserted island. "Draw closer, and I will signal. But be in readiness to turn about, in case I wish to head for Shell Island."

He waited until the boat was near the shore, and then, arching a hand over his lips, sent a water-bird's shrill call, ringing out twice over the water.

Not ten seconds passed when a similar call came from the island, followed by the appearance of a figure upon the edge of the timber.

It was Nato, who waved his arms wildly and came scrambling down to the beach.

In a most disjointed fashion and accompanied by hysterical sobbing, Nato told all that he knew of a story which, for bad faith and harsh pro-had escaped; but the former had seen Pierre, who appeared to be wounded, carried to a boat, and taken out to the ships.

It was not until some time after this that Laffitte gathered a reliable account of the affair, and knew the reason for this murderous descent upon Barataria. The facts were these:

Beluche had been received amiably by Governor Claiborne, who, after reading Laffitte's letter, setting forth in detail the recent offer from the English, listened to all the Baratarian messenger had to say, and informed him that he must, before deciding upon a reply, consult with certain other officials. He then, however, while treating Beluche and Lopez with perfect courtesy, held them as prisoners.

The conference, in pursuance of invitations similar to that received by Gen. La Roche, was held promptly; and a large majority of its members having refused to believe the truth of Laffitte's statements, Governor Claiborne, although himself in favor of accepting the Baratarian proposition, allowed the others to over-rule him.

The decision was, however, kept from the knowledge of Laffitte's messengers, as was also the fact that a large armed force was quickly organized to descend upon Grande Terre.

More bitter than ever before were Laffitte's thoughts that night and the following day. All seemed hopeless—so hopeless that, as he reviewed the situation, he became stunned beyond all ability to feel the rage which at another time would have been likely to control him.

But, true to his nature, he did not permit himself to be overwhelmed by the great disaster and sorrow that had come upon him. A trusty messenger had been dispatched at once to a point not far from New Orleans, where were those to be relied upon for the latest news from the city; and, upon the third day after the attack upon Grande Terre, the messenger returned with information that determined Laffitte to proceed there at once.

Pierre was at New Orleans, in gaol, wounded; some said mortally, others declared he was dying.

Wrapped in a long, dark cloak, with the broad brim of his hat making a deeper shadow over his face, Laffitte, as he stepped aboard the craft that was to convey him from Shell Island, looked a commanding figure of stern sorrow.

The men were reluctant to see their leader going into New Orleans, but none of them dared express this feeling in words, except as they talked among themselves.

"If any harm comes to him we'd better join the English, and help burn New Orleans," said one, as they watched Laffitte's boat pulled up the stream.

"Caramba!" growled a Spaniard. "It is to the cutting of the illustrious Senor Governor's throat I would prefer to give my attention."

"So would I," declared a Yankee, lounging next to the last speaker. "It is the governor's fault that Grande Terre was attacked. Captain Laffitte said so."

"Aye, we all know that," affirmed several voices, and Nato, unable to endure the hint of harm coming to his master, rose from his place on the edge of the group and stole away to join Scipio and Juniper, who were sitting by themselves before the door of Laffitte's cabin.

But here he found the same topic under discussion, for Scipio was saying to the younger negro, as if in reply to an assertion the latter had made, "Zey all so—dam! Zey Anglois an zey Mexican, hose so—dam! Yo Juniper, ef zat La capitaine he come back nevair, den yo betair run—ramose avay, lek de diable. Zey git yo to choke wize rope 'roun' yo neck, ef zat yo lose zey protection of La capitaine."

Considerate.—Representative Kehoe of Kentucky tells of a considerate judge in his state who passed a sentence on a man convicted of murder. The judge said: "Mr. Dodson, the jury says you are guilty of murder, and the law says you are to be hanged. It is my wish that you and all your friends on the river to know that it is not I who condemn you; it is the jury and the law, Mr. Dodson. At what time, sir, would you like to be hanged?"

The prisoner made answer that it was a matter of indifference to him, and that he was prepared to be swung off at any time. The judge continued: "Mr. Dodson, it is a serious matter to be hanged. It can't happen to a man but once in life, unless the rope should break before the neck is broke, and you had better take all the time you can. But since it makes no difference to you, you may hang four weeks from to-day at 12 noon; but you may have a good dinner first."

Engineers Find Bearings in Fog.—"When I was a guard," said Mr. Richard Bell, M. P., yesterday, "I could sit in my van with my eyes shut and tell where the train was at any moment. Working one section continuously one gets to learn the rhythmic sound of the road and how it varies at each signal box, station, curve, gradient, tunnel and bridge."

"The sixth sense, which is more than mere hearing, is of the utmost value to a driver during fog. Denied the use of his eyes, he still does not 'lose his way' when he is on a familiar road."

"A driver cannot learn a new road when he is stoking, which should occupy all his time. He should always be allowed to travel as third man on the footplate, unfettered by work and in two or three days, by keeping his eyes and ears open, he would learn the road."—London Daily Mail.

LIVE STOCK

Buying a Stallion.

It has been mentioned in this and every other farm and live stock journal in the country that our horse-breeding operations have led to the mixing of many kinds of blood rather than the straight breeding of any particular kind until practically pure blood could be obtained. This has not been wholly the farmer's fault. He has made one or two top crosses of the same blood and has later found it impossible to find a stallion of that blood to go on with. This being the case he has perforce used the stallion nearest to him and that one has often been widely different in blood and type from the one first used. Mongrels have resulted from this method of breeding, and we have made little real advance in the production of pure-bred horses of any one breed of the many imported into this country for breeding purposes.

This spring men are again trying to find the kind of stallions they most require and approve of, and if they cannot be found, they will have as heretofore to breed to any horse that can be most readily used. Meanwhile the stallion peddler is busy throughout the land. He is taking into the country districts imported stallions and forming companies to purchase them. The company consists of prominent farmers in each community, who buy shares in the horse until his price amounts to several thousand dollars. Were the horse always a good individual, always sound, always pure-bred and always deep enough bred to prove potent, the price would not count so much as it does at present; for a really prepotent stallion is worth the money now asked for company horses. The trouble is, however, that very many of the stallions imposed upon farm companies are cheap, poor, shallow-bred and often unsound animals. They have come here largely owing to the fact that they could be bought cheaply abroad—from three to five hundred dollars a head—and men are paying a big premium when they combine and invest thousands of dollars in such horses.

But the worst feature of the peddler stallion business is perhaps that the horse bought by the company is often not the one that is most required in a given district. The horse to buy everywhere is the one that is in blood as like as possible to the blood predominating in the veins of the mare stock of the district in which he is to serve. If, for example, Percheron horses have been most used in a district, the advent of a German coach horse, or coach horse of other breed, or even a draft stallion of breed other than the Percheron, does harm, in that he stops progress towards the production of practically pure-bred Percheron horses. It might require but a few additional top crosses of Percheron blood to arrive at pure-bred horses, but the use of the coacher commences a new effort and incidentally destroys the good effect of previous crosses of Percheron blood.

So with all other breeds. In some districts Clydesdales or Shires have long been used and into them the peddler finds his way with Belgian or Percheron stallion, often with a French horse that is not a Percheron, and the company is formed by subtle and hidden methods of persuasion. In his proper sphere each pure-bred stallion is capable of doing grand work in the grading-up of our stock, but out of his sphere of usefulness, introduced where there is no blood of his sort, he is often an actual detriment to our horses. We shall say nothing here of the unsound and impotent horses that are sold to companies, of the shady methods of some of the company formers, of the exorbitant prices paid for inferior animals. The chief point we wish to make in this article is that it is high time to wake up to the fact that company horses are not only too dear, but likely to be other than the horses most required in district. The way out of the trouble is for breeders in a district to get together, decide what they want, the breed most likely to give good results, and then go and buy a suitable horse at the headquarters of a reputable breeder or importer. In this way the horse will be bought at a great saving, there will be a number seen to pick from and the right breed at least will be procured. Reputable importers, and there are many of such firms in the country, would be glad to stop peddling horses. They would like to sell at their home stables, and such business would be best for all concerned.—A. S. Alexander in Farmers' Review.

Beef Cow and Calf.—Does it pay in Illinois and neighboring states to keep a cow a year for the sole purpose of rearing a beef calf for the general market? No. This has been proved so often that it seems unnecessary to go into the matter deeply. On land worth $100 per acre and under general methods of agriculture as followed in this country, the man that does this loses money every year. Yet there are a good many farmers scattered through the middle west who make the mistake of trying to do this. Some of them are old fellows that make a money with the beef cow and her calf half a century ago when land was worth about nothing. The feed of the animals cost almost nothing and the chief investment was not in the land and the equipment but in the cow herself. Now all conditions have changed.

VICTIM OF MANY DEATHS.

Verdict of Coroner's Jury on Body of Wrecked Sailor.

Records of the ancient city, Georgetown, founded in 1640, better known at the present time as York Harbor, Me., contain many quaint and unusual stories of the early life of the town.

At the entrance to York Harbor a bold promontory known as Stage Neck extends some distance into the sea, from which formerly in stormy weather a temporary light in the form of a lantern hoisted upon an upright pole was displayed as a warning to mariners.

One dark winter night a sloop was wrecked on these rocks. A survivor, on being questioned about the catastrophe, said:

"The vessel struck, turned over on her side, and the skipper and another barrel of whiskey rolled overboard."

The local coroner was summoned, and this somewhat startling verdict was returned:

"We find that the deceased fell from the masthead and was killed; he rolled overboard and was drowned; he floated ashore and froze to death and the rats eat him up alive!"—Harper's Weekly.

What the Dentist Says.

Toledo, Ohio, March 27th.—(Special.)—Harry T. Lewis, the well known dentist of 607 Summit street, this city, is telling of his remarkable cure of Kidney Disease by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was flat on my back and must say I had almost given up all hope of ever getting any help," says Dr. Lewis.

"My kidneys had troubled me for years. The pains in my back were severe and I had to get up several times at night. I tried different medicines but kept on getting worse till I was laid up."

"Then a friend advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and in about two weeks I started to improve. Now I am glad to admit I am cured and I cannot praise Dodd's Kidney Pills too highly."

If you take Dodd's Kidney Pills when your kidneys first show signs of being out of order, you will never have Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Dropsy, Gravel or Rheumatism.

Salzer's Home Builder Corn.

So named because 50 acres produced so heavily, that its proceeds built a lovely home. See Salzer's catalog. Yielded in Ind. 157 bu., Ohio 100 bu., Tenn. 193 bu., and in Mich. 220 bu. per acre. You can beat this record in 1905.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THESE YIELDS?

120 bu. Beardless Barley per acre.
310 bu. Salzer's New National Oats per A.
80 bu. Salzer's Speltz and Macaroni Wheat.
1,000 bu. Pedigree Potatoes per acre.

14 tons of rich Billion Dollar Grass. Hay.
60,000 lbs. Victoria Rape for sheep—per A.
160,000 lbs. Testure, the fodder wonder.
44,000 lbs. Salzer's Superior Fodder Corn.
—rich, juicy fodder, per A.

Now such yields you can have in 1905, if you will plant my seeds.

"Dog Trot" a Misnomer.

"Dogs have a variety of gaits," said the boss of the kennels, "therefore I can't understand why it is that people who describe a certain style of locomotion always call it a dog trot. Judging by the universality of that expression, a body would think that a dog never moves any other way than on a trot. But he does. All the gaits belonging to other four-footed animals are also his. He runs, he totes, he even recks and paces, so when a person in a hurry falls into a peculiar kind of canter, there would be just as much sense in speaking of his gait as a dog run or a dog gallop, once in a while, as always to call it a dog trot."

Forest of Dwarf Trees.

The most extraordinary forest in the world is one discovered by Dr. Leitwitsch, which occupies a tableland some six miles broad, at a height of 300 feet or 400 feet above the sea, near the West Coast of Africa. The trunks of the trees of this peculiar forest are 4 feet in diameter, and yet they only attain a height of 1 foot, giving the tree the appearance of a round table. There are never more than two leaves, which attain a length of 6 feet and a breadth of 2 feet, the flowers forming crimson clusters.

RESTORED HIS HAIR

Scalp Humor Cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment—After All Else Had Failed.

"I was troubled with a severe scalp humor and loss of hair that gave me a great deal of annoyance and inconvenience. After unsuccessful efforts with many remedies and so-called hair tonics, a friend induced me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The humor was cured in a short time, my hair was restored as healthy as ever, and I can gladly say I have since been entirely free from any further annoyance. I shall always use Cuticura Soap, and I keep the Ointment on hand to use as a dressing for the hair and scalp." (Signed) Fred K. Busche, 213 East 57th St., New York City.

A 480-ACRE FARM YIELDS 25 PER CENT PROFIT IN A YEAR.

What a Mercer County (Ohio) Farmer Received from One Year's Crop.

Extracts from an interesting letter from P. H. Rynhard, of Starbuck, Manitoba, Canada, gives an excellent idea of the prosperity of those who have gone from the United States to Canada. He says:

"I bought, August, 1903, 480 acres of land, paying $12,000 for it. We threshed 2,973 bushels of wheat and between 1,200 and 1,300 bushels of oats and barley from 200 acres. But part of the wheat went down before filling and was not harvested except for hay. The crop was worth at threshing time, $3,000. Besides 120 acres laying idle except a timothy meadow, which is not included in this estimate. Counting the value of the product and the increase of value of land will pay me more than 25 per cent on the investment. Two brothers in the same neighborhood bought 160 acres each six years ago. They have not done a single thing to this land except to fence it and break and cultivate about one-half of it. Harvested last year 28 bushels wheat per acre. This year 27 bushels per acre. They can get any day $25 per acre. These are only a few of many hundreds of such chances. It looks like boasting, but truth is justifiable and the world ought to know it, especially the home-seeker. I know of quite a few farmers that have made fortunes in from 10 to 20 years, retired with from $20,000 to $100,000."

Writing concerning another district in the Canadian West, S. L. Short says:

"Dear Sir—I have to inform you that I have just returned from the Carrot-River Country in Saskatchewan, where I located land of the very finest black vegetable loam, which I am proud of, and will move in the spring. Farmers are still plowing there. A mild climate and beautiful country to behold. Cattle are fat and running outside. Wood and water good. Saw oats weighing 42 pounds to bushel. Potatoes large and well ripened; also wheat that brought there 82 cents. The country exceeded my expectations. Saw oats in stock, thicker on the ground than appears in many of the illustrations sent out in descriptive pamphlets. I have been in many western states, but the soil excels any I ever saw."

The Canadian Government Agents at different points report that the enquiries for literature and railroad rates, &c., to Western Canada are the greatest in the history of their work.

Happiness a Great Force.

A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a $5 note, writes Stevenson. He or she is a radiating force of good will, and their entrance into a room as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they could prove the forty-seventh proposition. They do a better thing than that. They practically demonstrate the great theorem of the liveableness of life.

Too Many "Burns Relics."

Scotland is becoming alarmed at the increase in the number of "Burns relics." Chairs enough are now known to have furnished a dozen Burns cottages. Even the well known habits of the poet will not account for the array of Burns cups and mugs that are scattered around the world.

MISS BULL RECOVERS

FEARFUL DECLINE OF STRENGTH COMPLETELY ARRESTED.

Medical Skill Had Almost Exhausted Itself in Vain Attempts to Relieve Her—A Remarkable Result.

The recovery of Miss Gertrude L. Bull is of great interest to the medical world.

A very bad cough followed a severe attack of pneumonia. It seemed impossible to break it up or to restore her strength, which had been sadly undermined. In spite of the best efforts of the doctors and the use of several advertised modes of treatment her condition daily grew more serious. She finally discontinued all medicine and gave herself up to despair.

"What was your condition at this time?" she was asked.

"My stomach was so weak I could not keep food down. I suffered from constant nausea. My kidneys were in terrible condition. My feet and ankles were swollen so badly that it pained me even to stand on them. I was very bilious. My heart was in bad shape so I could not go up and down stairs or stand any exertion or sleep in a natural position."

"It seems a wonder that you should ever have recovered. How did it happen?"

"You may well call it a marvel, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills wrought it. None of my friends thought I could live many months longer. My parents had no hope. Just then a pamphlet advertising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People was thrown in our door. It was a great event for me. These pills saved me from the grave. Within a week from the time I began to take them I felt better, and in three months I was entirely well. I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly and I dearly hope that my experience may bring good to some other sufferers."

Miss Bull, who was so remarkably cured, resides at Union Grove, Illinois. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act immediately on the blood, purifying and enriching it. In all debilitating diseases, such as lung troubles, grip, fevers, and in all cases in which the system is thoroughly run down, these pills perform wonders. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world. A valuable booklet on diseases of the blood, will be sent free to any one who applies for it to Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

"Adieu, and God's angels keep you."

words. Only there can never be any forgiveness between us, save as you may give me Heaven, by forgiving me. Try and trust me, child. Try and believe that I am not the monster you have thought me. Do this, and you can save me from what has been an earthly hell."

She looked startled, but the glad light showing in her eyes was assurance that she was not offended by his passionate pleading.

"Adieu, now," he whispered, bending so close that his breath stirred the bright hair rippling over her forehead.

"Adieu, and God's angels keep you. I hope to see you soon again."

He was gone, but her hands still tingled from his close touch and his low, tense voice still thrilled her ears.

With a joyously beating heart that made her inclined to weep as well as sing, the girl ascended with fleet steps to the veranda and fled to her room, locked the door and threw herself upon the bed.

She was laughing, but with tears crowding to her throat, and trying to get into her eyes, where, for appearance's sake, she did not care to have them show.

She did not ask herself why it was, what it meant, or what it might mean, to her life. She knew only a half-delirious joy, such as never before had come to her.

Ah, how (as she now admitted to herself) she had missed him out of her life—her brave, handsome Captain Jean! How she had missed his chivalrous, protecting friendship—the latent strength and decision showing in all he did and said! How she had missed the gentleness and reverence with which he always addressed her—the kindly deeds he was always striving to do for her.

The sun was nearly two hours high on the following day when the boat bearing Laffitte back to Grande Terre stole out from the wooded mouth of the Bayou.

Looking toward the island, Laffitte noticed an unusual volume of smoke lingering above the tree tops, and wondered why the men had so much fire at this hour of the day. Then, turning his eyes to the east, he saw a cedure, has few equals in history. Early that morning soldiers from several vessels had descended upon Grande Terre. There had been desperate fighting, and all the Baratarians who were not now lying dead on the bluff above had been carried off as prisoners.

Nato, Juniper and Scipio had fled from the stockade to the thicker woods and more impenetrable part of the island; but they became separated and the boy had seen nothing more of his companions.

"Dey was dose Britishers, Marse Cap'n," he declared between his sobs, and digging his fists into his eyes.

"What was the color of their coats?" Laffitte asked of the boy.

"Dey wore blue coats, Marse Cap'n."

"As I thought," said Laffitte calmly, turning to his men. "No British enemy has dealt us this blow; it was the governor of Louisiana."

He then started up the bluff, the others following, with Nato bringing up the rear.

Inside the stockade were many signs of a fearful hand-to-hand fight. The house of the Laffittes was unharmed, although there were indications of its having been set on fire; but the flames appeared to have died out of themselves.

There was nothing more to be done at Barataria. All the men, save Baptistine and his crew, appeared to have been killed or captured; the buildings were burned or despoiled; the vessels taken. Laffitte, therefore, putting aside as best he could all emotion and anxiety, gathered what was left of his portable property, and, with Baptistine and his crew, together with Nato, Juniper, Scipio (the latter two having, late in the day, come from their hiding place in the woods), took his way to Shell Island.

The older negroes could tell him little more than Nato had already related. Neither could they give him any information bearing upon Pierre's fate. There was left only the hope that he had escaped to Shell Island, where he might be found, alive at least, if not unhurt.

But in this Laffitte was disappointed. Dominique-You and some of his men

ITS MERIT IS PROVED

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

A Prominent Cincinnati Woman Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Completely Cured Her.

The great good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing among the women of America is attracting the attention of many of our leading scientists, and thinking people generally.

Mrs. Sara Wilson

The following letter is only one of many thousands which are on file in the Pinkham office, and go to prove beyond question that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound must be a remedy of great merit, otherwise it could not produce such marvelous results among sick and ailing women.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— About nine months ago I was a great sufferer with womb trouble, which caused me severe pain, extreme nervousness and frequent headaches, from which the doctor failed to relieve me. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and within a short time felt better, and after taking five bottles of it I was entirely cured. I therefore heartily recommend your Compound as a splendid uterine tonic. It makes the monthly periods regular and without pain; and what a blessing it is to find such a remedy after so many doctors fail to help you. I am pleased to recommend it to all suffering women.

Mrs. Sara Wilson, 31 East 84 Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

If you have suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, leucorrhoea, flooding, nervous prostration, dizziness, faintness, "don't-care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, backache or the blues, these are sure indications of female weakness, some derangement of the uterus, or ovarian trouble. In such cases there is one tried and true remedy—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Correspondent Tells of Most Terrible Scenes of the War

"What is the most terrible scene you have witnessed on the battlefields of the Far East?" is a question I am often asked, writes Mr. F. A. McKenzie, war correspondent of the London Daily Mail.

The question is not easily answered, for war is a thing of accumulating horrors. The most tragic detail in modern fighting is the injury inflicted on women and children. Few of us were present at the battle of Liaoyang will ever forget the sight of the wounded babies in arms, the mothers shot accidentally while nursing their children and the boys, scarce able to toddle, cut down by shrapnel fire.

No scene stands out more vividly than the horrors of Rice Cake Hill, the Splon-Kop of Manchuria. A battle raged around this for nearly a week, and the hill was taken and retaken by either side. At the end it was a horrible shambles, gorged with blood.

I was with Gen. Kurpki's army when it made its quick move around Liaoyang and sought to cut off Kouropatkin's retreat. We found ourselves held up by the Russians on three fortified hills, and our troops at once set out to attack the central defence.

Six batteries of Japanese artillery, standing out boldly on a ridge of the valley, engaged the Russians on the hills. The heavens seemed covered with bursting shells as with a curtain. The Russians fired thousands of rounds in reply.

When the full chorus of artillery began, and each second had its racking explosion, we held our breath. Taut nerves and electrified brains pictured the scene in front.

"My God—my God!" burst from the lips of a hardened fighter at my side. "Can a man be left alive?"

Yet when the Russians made momentary pause, quick reply came. First one gun spoke, then came a succession of flashes, and our gunners, jumping out of the narrow pits they had dug for shelter places, poured out round upon round.

The sun sank behind the heavens. Suddenly a tremendous crackle, caused by thousands of infantry volley firing, struck our ears, and the lines of spitting brightness showed that our infantry attack on the central hill had begun. Our soldiers, who had been creeping closer through the millet, rushed the village at the foot of the hill, and prepared to ascend.

There were gullies on one side of the hill, through which they could creep, but they were greeted with so heavy a fire that even the fearless Japanese soldiers paused.

Then their officers sprang up. One, with drawn sword, rushed where the firing was thickest, shouting before he fell: "Now is the time to die for the Emperor!" Others took up the cry, and the whole body of men moved forward.

"What could we do?" the soldiers asked me afterwards, when telling me of their rush. "What could we do but follow when our officers led the way?"

On the Russian side beating drums bade the men stand fast; on the Japanese, bugle calls encouraged advance. Shouts of exultation, of joy, of triumph, were heard on either side.

A certain man well known in the real estate circles recently became so convert of the physical culture exercises, he was made to believe in the wearing of an overcoat was merely a matter of habit and that a healthy being should be ashamed to be seen with one on. His three coats (one of them a handsome pre-arranged garment) were therefore set aside, and much to his surprise he experienced no inconvenience.

morning, as he saluted forth, he made a mental note of the fact that mercury was exceedingly low, w a light snow was falling. Noth daunted, however, he walked briskly on. As he was crossing a skinned's street a short distance from his first one of business, he was suddenly acced his one by a rather seedy-looking individual who, with a glance, eyed him from head to foot and then, with the air of a confidence man, exclaimed:

"Say, pard, do you want to buy a pawn ticket for a good overcoat?" Philadelphia Ledger.

Sense and Figures. The difference between common sense and arithmetic was illustrated in a remark which Tommy Jones—who is not exceptionally bright, but just a common, natural boy—made in his class at school the other day. It was the lesson in mental arithmetic. The teacher asked Willie Smith:

"Which would you rather have, Willie, half an apple or eight-sixteenths of an apple?"

"Wouldn't make any difference," said Willie.

"Why not?"

"Eight-sixteenths and one-half are all the same."

GOOD ADVICE FOR ALL.

Cultivate Calmness if You Wish Health and Happiness. A beautiful woman gave the following advice to a girl admirer: "Shield your nerves and don't let them become too sensitive. Make yourself take life calmly. If you lose a train—don't pace the platform wildly, but inquire when the next comes in, and sit down calmly to wait for it. That's just what most women don't do; they sit down, perhaps, but they tap the floor with their feet, clench and unclench their hands, and are apparently in a fever heat of excitement over the arrival of every train that comes in, even though they have been assured that theirs is not due for another half hour. That half hour of waiting means to them a frightful wear and tear of nerves and they are practically weeks older for it. Try to cultivate calmness, but if you cannot do that all at once, you can keep your face still."

Rest for the Bedridden. In cases where absolute rest of the body is necessary, and the patient gets very weary of lying still, a most welcome rest and change to the limbs can be managed by the nurse raising the knees of the patient well up in bed, and then putting a good, substantial pillow or bolster well packed underneath them. In time, of course, the patient wears of this position, then the support should be withdrawn, and fresh relief is afforded. This would also give great comfort to people partly paralyzed.

Spoons of Early Days. All the earliest spoons have pear-shaped bowls. It was not until the latter part of the seventeenth century that they began to elongate toward the egg-shaped spoon of the present time. Up to the seventeenth century all spoons were large and closely resembled the soup spoon which has been in use for the last five or six years, the bowl being very deep.

The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

- ### HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.
- 1. Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee. Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use 1/2 a tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot. First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follow one of the following rules:
 - 2a. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.
 - 2b. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.
 3. Don't boil it too long. Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving. Don't use water that has been boiled before.
 - 2. TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE.
 - 1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling.
 - 2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.) (Lion-head on every package.) (Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

Your Life Current.

The power that gives you life and motion is the nerve force, or nerve fluid, located in the nerve cells of the brain, and sent out through the nerves to the various organs.

If you are tired, nervous, irritable, cannot sleep; have headache, feel stuffy, dull and melancholy, or have neuralgia, rheumatism, backache, periodical pains, indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, or the kidneys and liver are inactive, your life-current is weak.

Power-producing fuel is needed; something to increase nerve energy—strengthen the nerves. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve is the fuel you need. It feeds the nerves, produces nerve force, and restores vitality.

"When I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and Joint Pills I was confined to my bed. I had severe nervous spells, the result of two years illness with malaria. I gradually grew so weak that I was unable to sit up. The spells would commence with cold chills, and I would become weak and almost helpless. My circulation was poor. I had doctored right along but grew weaker and weaker. The Nerve seemed to strengthen me right away and my circulation was better. I have taken in all seven bottles of the Nerve, and I am entirely well."

Magazine Melange.

The Christian Science Journal, published in Boston, begins its twenty-third volume with the April number, and appears in a pleasing new dress. Its first editor was Mrs. Eddy, and to this number she contributes a poem entitled, "Whither," and an article on "Prevention and Cure for Divorce." Mr. Kimball's article "Christian Science: Its Compassionate Appeal," and Professor Mosley's discussion of "The Problem of Evil" are deeply interesting. This being the official organ of the movement, readers of the magazine may expect to find in it a correct statement of the ideals of Christian Scientists. The publishers print in this issue a number of first-hand testimonies from those who have gained through Christian Science higher ideals of Christian living, as well as health.

Junior Toilettes, the mothers' and children's magazine, is rendering itself an absolute necessity in every home where the music of childish voices is heard. Each number seems to take on some added attraction. The April issue, now before us, has twenty-four of the daintiest pages of fashion illustration, most of them the work of Blanche King John, acknowledged universally to be the foremost designer of garments for juveniles. The cover is a dainty creation in colors, introducing to us a boy and girl charmingly costumed in the Empire style. The leading matter is written with the authority of evident expertise, and includes: "Fashion Hints for busy Mothers," "Spring Suits and Coats for Misses," "Easter Millinery," "How to Dress the Small Boys," "Under the Nursery Lamp," prize competitions for the children and much other valuable matter. (Toilettes Fashion Co., 173 Fifth Ave., New York.)

CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Improperly masticated food sours on the stomach, causing distressing pains, belching, and nausea. When over-eating is persisted in the stomach becomes weakened and worn out and dyspepsia claims the victim.

Thedford's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulation results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food.
You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Thedford's Black-Draught today. You can buy a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

It is difficult to cure a cough or free yourself from the discomforts of a cold unless you move the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar acts on the bowels and drives all cold out of the system. Then comes its soothing effect and strengthening influence upon the throat and lungs. For Croup, Whooping Cough, Colds, and all Lung and Bronchial affections, no remedy is equal to the original Laxative Honey and Tar. Sold by Warner's Pharmacy.

Do you need Carpets? Then call and look over the elegant line of Ingrains, Brussels, Axminsters, etc., at Whittington's. If you don't think you need one or more, call and look them over and you'll feel the need. They're the finest line ever shown in East Jordan.

Croup is quickly relieved, and Whooping Cough will not "run its course" if you use the original Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. This Cough Syrup is different from all others because it acts on the bowels. You can not cure Croup and Whooping Cough until you rid the system of all congestion, by working off the cold through a copious action of the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar does this, and cures all Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. No opiates. Sold by Warner's Pharmacy.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—The conditions of a certain mortgage given by John Anderson and Lizzie Anderson, husband and wife and joint owners, of Boyne, Michigan, to Leonard F. Knowles, of the same place, bearing date the 13th day of November, 1903, and recorded on the 18th day of November, 1903, in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for Charlevoix County, Mich., in Liber 35 of Mortgages on page 109; and whereas the amount claimed by the due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, including principal, interest and attorney's fee—as provided for in said mortgage—is the sum of thirty-one Dollars and thirty-nine Cents ($31.39) for the recovery of which no proceedings or suit either at law or in equity have been commenced. Therefore for the purpose of foreclosing the said mortgage, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, on the 14th day of June, A. D. 1905, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, the undersigned will in the Court House in the Village of Charlevoix, Charlevoix County, Michigan, that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix is held, sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, the premises described in the said mortgage or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount of the proceeds on said mortgage together with seven per cent. interest and all legal costs, to wit: Commencing at a post in line with the northeast line of Clinton street, the same being the west corner of said Block G; thence running in a general direction northeast along the northwest line of High street five rods; thence running at right angle with the said line of High street northwest eight rods; thence in a general direction southwest and parallel with the said line of High street five rods; thence in a general direction southeast and at right angles to said High street eight rods to the place of beginning, all in section thirty-five, Town thirty-three North, Range six west.

Dated this 10th day of March, 1905.

RANCH FOOD FOR STOCK

If your stock is not doing just as well as you would like, there is undoubtedly a cause which can be easily remedied by RANCH FOOD. There is no season of the year when the condition of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs can not be improved by a tonic like RANCH FOOD, which tones up the animal system throughout, cleanses the blood and prevents disease. RANCH FOOD is almost infallible for the cure of the general diseases of domestic animals, including Distemper and Pink-eye in horses, Indigestion in cattle, Catarrhal Troubles in sheep and Hog Cholera. RANCH FOOD is not like the common stock foods on the market; it is made from roots, barks, herbs and seeds and is nature's own product scientifically compounded.

"RANCH FOOD is superior as a general conditioner and grain saver to anything I have ever used."—Ed. McVay, Sidney, Ohio.

COLDS THAT HANG ON
So frequently settle on the lungs and result in Pneumonia or Consumption. Do not take chances on a cold wearing away or take something that only half cures it, leaving the seeds of serious throat and lung trouble.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Stops the Cough and heals the lungs and prevents Pneumonia and Consumption

Consumption Threatened
C. Unger, 211 Maple St., Champaign, Ill., writes: "I was troubled with a hacking cough for a year and I thought I had consumption. I tried a great many remedies and I was under the care of physicians for several months. I used one bottle of FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR. It cured me, and I have not been troubled since."

Cured Hemorrhages of the Lungs
A. M. Ake, Wood, Ind., writes: "Several years since my lungs were so badly affected that I had many hemorrhages. I took treatment with several physicians without any benefit. I then started to take FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR and my lungs are now as sound as a bell. I recommend it in advanced stages of lung trouble."

Three Sizes—25c, 50c, $1.00. The 50-cent size contains two and one-half times as much as the small size and the $1.00 bottle almost six times as much. REFUSE SUBSTITUTES.
