Successful Carnival.

The Carnival given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church at Loveday Opera House last Monday and Tuesday evenings, was quite a successful affair. The Society made a nice little sum out of the deal and the efforts of those who took part to please was thoroughly appreciated by the audiences. Several specialties were introduced which provoked much merriment. Miss Lorraine, as master of dentistry, succeeded in landing a good-sized molar with a pair of blacksmith tongs; and Miss Nell S. Maddaugh can show our tonsorial artists "how it's done" when it comes to a scientific shave. Miss Malpass was quite successful in a hunting scene. The hoop drill given by thirty-odd little misses was well executed. Mrs. Worth favored with a selection, "Idaho." Below were the firms introduced and the ladies representing same:

A Shocking Confession.

Benedict is a New Haven man who has been eight times the father of a bouncing bouncer. In the outskirts of the university city is a little town among the hills named Prospect, and last year four of the children were sent there for the summer. One day Benedict and his wife entertained at dinner a new acquaintance, Professor B. The Professor is a bachelor, and, like many scholarly men, rather ill at ease in society. "What a fine little family of children you have," he began with an admiring glance at the four stay-at-homes. "Yes, indeed," replied Benedict proudly, "and we have four more in Prospect." The Professor blushed his astonishment.—August Lippincott's.

EVELINE.

Cool weather at present. Walter Sardel of Eveline and Miss Paraby of East Jordan were in Afton Saturday night to a dance at Mr. Allen's. Miss Cella Healy called on Miss Esli Crites Sunday last. Fred Crowell and Miss Frances Staley called on Miss Nettie Chamberlain of East Jordan Sunday last. Otto Hott and John Hudkins went to Intermediate fishing the other day. Miss Clio McKee is working at the poor farm at present. A party of six young people of Eveline went over to Holy Island last Sunday, where they spent a very enjoyable time. Miss Leola Denton has been visiting friends in Eveline, returning to her home last Saturday.

Petoskey vs. East Jordan.

Arrangements have been made for two games with the Petoskey Base Ball team on our home grounds this week, Friday and Saturday. The Petoskey team is equally as good as it was last year and those who saw the East Jordan team play last week feel confident that they can give the Petoskey boys a hard game. Games called at 3:00 o'clock, standard, each afternoon. Admission 25 cents, grand stand 10 cents. Don't miss it.

All Feature Circus.

Many Novelties are with the Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' Circus.

When it comes to a family vote, the circus leads every other kind of entertainment, and how it has grown in the last few years. This applies not only to the size of the tents, but to the general tone and excellence of the things it offers. The Great Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Enormous Shows United are a vivid example of this truth. It has grown so big that four special trains are required to haul it from place to place. The big circus tent is provided with seating accommodations for twelve thousand people. Three rings, two enormous stages and a hippodrome track one-quarter of a mile long, with a forest of overhead riggings are used for the circus features. Most of the acts are new, strange as this may sound, and have created sensational interest in European countries. There are more than two hundred performers in the revolving bill, as many as ten acts going on at one time. Every second of time counts in the two hours of the ring acts. In fact, the frictionless movements of a tremendous circus program like that offered by Forepaugh and Sells Brothers, is one of the very remarkable things about the big shows, and is calculated to take some of the conceit out of the average, puffed-up theatre spectacle stage manager. The three herds of performing elephants with these superior shows are worth going miles to see. They do the most unnatural things with the grace and precision of a trained acrobat. To see the bulky fellows poise themselves on their heads, evolve dancing figures with regard to tune and changing style, and pantomimically enact the broad-humor of a farcical skit, is a spectacle no soon forgotten and is wholly unlike and other exhibition of the kind before the public. Captain Webb's educated seals bring home the fact that these small-headed beasts are the most intelligent in all wild animal nature. They occupy the two great stages and take a cue with the sympathetic quickness of the most fervent and cultivated artist. They play musical instruments, balance and toss balls to each other, and juggle different objects with the most expert human dexterity. It is the most marvellous exhibition of animal training in the whole world. Circus day will begin with a street pageant, starting from the show grounds at ten o'clock in the morning. This street display is the most magnificent and munificent ever organized. It will be in many sections, each division separate in feature and splendor, and will be fully three miles long. The open animal cages, great herds of elephants and camels, hundreds of high-stepping horses, gaily gowned equestrians, expert horsemen, tableau floats, musical vehicles, soldier types, juvenile heroes, fun-making clowns, and so on and so on, combine to make this the most extravagant, extensive and entirely enjoyable pageant ever organized. At Petoskey, July 31st.

Celebration at Soo.

Next week, during the first three days of August, occur at Sault Ste. Marie the observance in which the national government and this and neighboring states will unite in commemoration of the semi centennial of that important event, the construction of the Soo Canal, an artificial water way which accommodates now a greater commerce than even the famous Suez Canal. When the subject was before the legislature last spring, and that body appropriated fifteen thousand dollars for the expenses of the celebration on the part of the state, Mr. Charles T. Harvey, now of Toronto, who was the engineer in charge of the construction, read before the legislature a historical letter which was well entitled to more notice from the press than it then received. It accompanied the presentation to the state through the governor, of a map, and recited the circumstances that had given the map existence. The letter describes his removal after the completion of the canal, from the Soo to Ontonagon on land business, and how he was left at that place by the unperceived departure of the last boat before the close of navigation for the winter. It was while waiting there to perfect means for the perilous overland journey now necessary for his escape, that he conceived the project of a railroad from that then wild region to civilization in the south. Calling a meeting of the half dozen residents who could be assembled, he had himself delegated as a representative to Washington, to urge upon Congress the land grants necessary to such an enterprise.

After seventeen days he completed the journey from Ontonagon to Chicago, and proceeded to Washington, where he laid his credentials and his scheme before the Michigan delegation, which included Cass in the senate, and Howard and Wadron in the house. He found them unwilling to bestow any effort upon it, because the hostile attitude of southern members, then in complete control of both houses, made it seem hopeless. The strained relations between the South and the North, which four or five years later brought on the rebellion had then almost reached the breaking point. Learning that the most influential southern leader was Clement L. Clay, of Mobile, Mr. Harvey formed his plans, went to New York, and procured the engraving and printing of the map, of which a surviving copy is now presented to our state, and returned with it to the capital, and sought an interview with the puissant Clay.

The map shows a great trunk line road from Lake Superior to the Gulf of Mexico, branching at Jackson, Miss., with a terminus at New Orleans, and another at Mobile for Mr. Clay's benefit. That statesman was ungracious at first, but when the scheme was unfolded and the map displayed it caught him. He said it was the first that proposed equal benefit to the South, and he would rally his section to its support if Mr. Harvey would bring in his forces. It worked, and the grants were passed, conveying to the various states large tracts to be devoted to that purpose, and under it the state of Michigan came into possession of two or three million acres. That road was never built, but its route is closely covered today by the tracks of various lines over which Pullman cars may travel from Marquette and Ontonagon to Mobile and New Orleans. It is worthy of note, as showing how little present conditions were foreseen, that that trunk line projected from Green Bay to Cairo left Chicago to one side and made Dixon a point instead, a little city of eight thousand people a hundred miles west of Chicago, Mr. Harvey's map is well worthy of its place in the historical collection of the state.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power. The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery. Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever, she was much worse, and could hardly control herself, being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headache. Dr. Miles' Nerve was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nerve has completed her entire cure."

1021 Cherry St., Evansville, Ind.
Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

CONDUCTED BY M. J. WRAGG

Mr. Wragg invites contributions of any new ideas that readers of this department may wish to present...

FRUITS FOR FALL USE.

Be sure to know what you ought to plant before the time comes to order from the nurseries.

Pears are not like most other fruits in regard to their stage of maturity at gathering time. They should not be allowed to ripen on the tree, but be gathered when the stems part easily from the wood.

Do not forget that good quality is the point above all others to be considered in selecting fruits for planting for home use.

There are some varieties that are both handsome and delicious. Beauty in fruits or people is not always only skin deep.

The once despised basswood tree is becoming valuable for its timber. The wood is now much sought for by manufacturers of certain articles.

I note with pleasure the growing custom of giving to the farm an appellation by which to designate it.

Bestowing upon the farm a name is indicative of pride taken in it as a home, and if the owner has pride of this sort he will try to make all he can of it as a home.

There are few, if any, really good peaches ripening before Champion, Bokara and Crosby may be exceptions.

Liquid air has lately been given a test as to its value as a refrigerator for the overland fruit car lines.

I operate a farm dairy, make butter a specialty, and I wish to say that in my opinion, you cannot too strongly urge the farmers who keep cows to keep a daily record of what they are doing.

Let no man think that there is as much profit to a community in supplying a small quantity of products at a high price as in supplying a large quantity of products at a comparatively low price.

Give the growing stock plenty of room, as crowded quarters retard the growth and injure the health of the chicks.

GAS ENGINES ON THE FARM.

A writer in Orange Judd Farmer says: I have used a gasoline engine since March, 1901. The company from which I bought the engine having no agent here, I depended on myself and son to get it up.

BUYING NURSERY STOCK.

The season is again at hand when opportunities to give orders for nursery stock to strangers will be numerous.

It is sometimes advocated that sod land which is intended for a crop of corn shall be plowed in the fall.

SERVED SENTENCE AT NIGHT.

How Justice Was Satisfied in Early Days in Arkansas.

A representative in congress who was formerly a judge on circuit—including the state of Arkansas—relates an amusing instance of the free-and-easy administration of justice in that section in the old days.

"On a certain occasion," says the former judge, "I had sentenced a man in one of the smaller towns of Arkansas to three months in jail for larceny. A few days after the trial I was on my way to the station in the company, so it chanced, with the sheriff of the county, when I passed a man busily engaged in sawing wood.

"I returned the man's salutation and continued on my way. There had seemed something in his face that was familiar, so I asked the sheriff who he was. That official hesitated a moment before replying. Then he said: 'That's the fellow you sentenced to three months for larceny the other day.'

"Seeing how astonished I was that a man sentenced to three months' imprisonment should in three or four days still be at liberty, the sheriff hastened to explain.

"Yes, Judge, that's the same man. The fact is, Judge, that we don't happen to have anybody else in jail just now; so we thought it would kinder be a useless expense to hire somebody to look after just this one prisoner. Consequently, Judge, I gave the fellow the jail key and told him that if he'd sleep there nights, I reckoned it would be all right."

Knew Nothing of Bolivia. Col. Suarez, Bolivian charge d'affaires in London, tells this story: "It is not very long ago that I was invited to a country house in England, and when I arrived there I found only the ladies of the house party. They were all staring at me, and I could not make out what was the reason.

Preparing his pen with the greatest of care. While others were snatching a wink, a poet sat down in the gray of the dawn, to fish in a bottle of ink.

He thought of the sportsmen who fished there before. Immortal forever to be; He knew of the beauties which swam in its murk, and rigged up his tackle with glee.

A silvery sonnet flashed up from the pen, and vanished away from his sight. A ballad and rondeau each nibbled and went. But still he had never a bite.

His rod nearly broke with a heavy blank verse. But failure again was his fate. The size of the fellows who all got away I hesitate here to relate.

The sun, marching up from the east to the west. Looked down on the angler distraught. Then sank to its rest while the poet quit work.

And this is the minnow he caught. McLandburgh H. Wilson, in New York Sun.

Odd Meanings of "Invention." The festival of the invention of the cross, which commemorates the discovery of the true cross at Jerusalem by St. Helena, celebrated on May 3, keeps alive the old, general meaning of "invention" that seems strange to modern eyes and ears.

Necessary Use of Consonants. In a recent book on his adventures in Tibet, Col. L. A. Waddell writes: "One curious result of the cold should be mentioned here—namely, its effect upon the speech of the people. A peculiarity of the language of the Tibetans, in common with the Russians and most arctic nations, is the remarkably few vowels in their words and the extraordinarily large number of consonants.

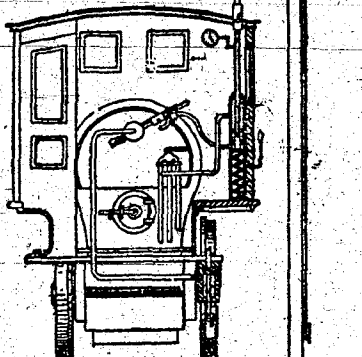

By Leased Cable. The anarchist had just hurled the bomb. Simultaneously the democratic head of President Loubet and the royal pate of Alfonso XIII. ducked to avoid the flying fragments.

With true Gallic politeness, Loubet disclaimed the honor. "After you, my dear Alfonso," he murmured, bowing deeply.

INVENTION AND IMPROVEMENTS

Appliance for Locomotives.

Recently compiled statistics show that the loss of life and also the number of persons injured through collisions on railroads is greater in comparison than from any other cause. The desire of the officials of the larger railroad lines to establish records for high speed, whether for long or short distances, is primarily the cause of these accidents and the consequent loss of life.

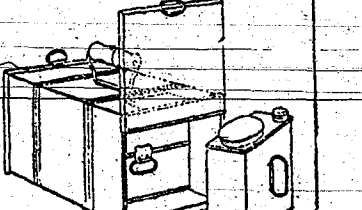

Automatically Applies Air Brake. The lever is set as in the usual manner the lever comes in contact and operates an extension on the top of the cab of the locomotive, this extension when so released throwing on the air brakes and stopping the train automatically.

Dinner Can Improve. Even the dinner pail offers the student an opportunity to comment upon the evolution that is inevitable in man's handwork of the present day and generation.

Electric Traction Wins. Since the world's fair test in Chicago, when a steam engine in a tug of war contest succeeded in dragging an electric locomotive back, the development of the latter has steadily progressed until it has reached a stage where the electric locomotive assumes superiority.

Gas the Cheapest Illuminant. Since the introduction of the incandescent gas burner a new lease of life has been given to gas undertakings, according to the chief engineer of the Manchester (England), gas works.

Only $7.50 to Niagara Falls over the D. & C. and M. C. Ry's on Aug. 3rd; return 14th. To Alexander Bay $14.50.

A matter which will sooner or later be brought to the attention of the taxpayers of South Arm Township is the condition of the Dufore bridge, just west of this city and over the Intermediate river. The bridge is worn out and signs are up warning passersby of danger in crossing same. A new bridge will cost approximately $1000; only few teams pass over the structure each day and to add this amount to the tax roll would certainly be a burden. An effort is being made by our highway officials to see if the matter cannot be disposed of economically.

A strange accident is reported to have occurred near Boyne Falls last week in which an unknown man lost his life: The man purchased hay and feed for his horses and food for himself. He then drove to the edge of the village, put his team out intending to camp out for the night. After building a fire the man laid down to sleep. The fire ran to a tall pine tree while the man slept. The fire burned the tree off near the ground, and it fell across the body of the sleeping man, pinning him securely to the ground. When the body was found the clothing was burned entirely off, one leg burned off to the knee and a deep hole in the sod, showed where he had pounded his head in the ground in his frantic efforts to free his body, or possibly in an effort to put an end to his terrible suffering by self destruction. The man was a total stranger at Boyne Falls. No one knew where he came from nor his name.—Charlevoix Courier.

President Roosevelt was right in denouncing certain quitters from the Panama canal who come back and tell false stories about failure, and yell fever, and all sorts of misfortune and mismanagement on the canal job. These prophets of evil are, no doubt, very like scared soldiers who carry to the rear terrible tales of disaster at the front. It may be that things are not going just right as yet on the canal—in fact they are not—but the new chief engineer, Stevens, will arrive at the isthmus in a few days, and will soon start things doing in better shape. It takes time to get such an immense undertaking organized to work effectively. Moreover no government work in any country ever proceeds quite as rapidly and smoothly as the great enterprises of corporations. The American people know this, and will not expect too much at first, if there appears fair promise that the vast work will be pushed with vigor, economy, and rapidity after matters become fully organized.

1-2-3-6-7-8 Campers.

Visitors to Camp Acahze for week ending Wednesday, 7-26:

18th—Dr. F. C. Warne, who is a great fisherman. He received numerous bites, a few from the fish.

E. N. Clink, who acted as oarsman for the Doctor and is considered a hoodo by the latter. They very kindly left us the fruit of their labors, consisting of a fine pike, which we baked for dinner next day.

19th—Wm. Supernaw and Miss Bessie Greenwood. Wm. is a good judge of bananas and we can recommend Miss G. as a fine cake maker.

20th—Dr. Warne paid us a second visit at 5:15 a. m. We were glad to see him as he brought [a pie], but we were sorry to learn his business which was to take No. 4 back to town. She was needed at the Hello shop.

At noon Mr. Spencer and friend from La., accompanied by a guide from Ellsworth, came to camp for a drink. We permitted them to use our table for luncheon.

About 5 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Zoulek and Miss Blanche arrived. Miss Blanche is a good fisherman so they carried home a fine string of bass. Mrs. Z. makes extra nice biscuit and salads. This was the second visit.

21st—Mr. and Mrs. Haight came in time for dinner. Mr. H. was very successful in fishing? Mrs. H. knows what is good in the way of cakes and jellies if we may be allowed to judge by the samples.

In the evening Wm. Supernaw again came out but unfortunately for us could not stay. He acted as coachman for No. 5, who was very welcome.

Still later Carl Stroebel and E. N. Clink brought us a new stove for which we traded one we had in camp. The new one is especially good for making coffee. Mr. S. is not a heavy-weight, but as he promised us new ropes for our hammock we will say no more about his visit. Mr. C. showed his capacity for pies on this his 3rd visit.

22nd—Harry McHale came into camp late in the evening accompanied by No. 4 who only came for a little quiet rest on the Sabbath. Shortly after their arrival Wm. Kenny came up for a second visit and brought No. 6 to camp. The hour being late and the boys tired we gave them blankets and pillows and they soon retired to rest on the new mown hay in Mr. Walker's barn. The boys promised us a mess of fish for breakfast but luckily we had bacon and eggs in camp so did not have to go hungry. Harry is a good forager and has a true artist's taste in the arrangement of flowers. Will would rather devote his time to the entertainment of camp members, and with a little assistance from Harry succeeded admirably.

23rd—Soon after breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Zoulek and Miss Blanche arrived for their second visit. If there is anything better than Mrs. Z.'s salads it is the ones she bakes.

Miss Blanche again carried off the honors in the shape of eleven nice bass. But Mr. Z. knows how to fix a crane over the fire and can prepare back logs that are a wonder.

Later in the day Messrs Carl Stroebel Clyde Hipp, Blaine Harrington and Charcoal Boosinger made a short call. All but the last named declined our invitation to luncheon.

Toward evening Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kenny and Miss Leamore, George Otis and Miss Maggie Kenny visited us. Mr. Otis is an expert with the dish towel and also knows how to mend harness. Miss K. is an accomplished equestrian. Mrs. K. is another who knows what is which in the way of salads. We will also recommend Mr. K. if you want some one to build a roaring camp fire.

A PROMINENT TRAINMAN.

The many friends of G. H. Hausan, Engineer L. E. & W. R. R., at present living in Lima, O., will be pleased to know of his recovery from threatened kidney disease. He says: "I was cured by using Foley's Kidney Cure, which I recommend to all, especially to trainmen, who are usually similarly afflicted." Sold by L. C. Madison.

WAS ASHAMED TO BE SEEN.

Mr. Edward Smith, of Wabash, Ind., writes: "A skin disease broke out on my face some time ago, and kept growing worse until I kept out of sight. I tried many preparations which seemed to aggravate the trouble. Two physicians failed to help me. Banner Salve cured me completely." Sold by L. C. Madison.

Some Points About A Grocery Stock.

Many people think that "groceries are groceries," and that it makes no difference where they buy. It's not so. The man who keeps his grocery stock neat and fresh is the man who deserves your patronage. Such are the kind of Groceries we aim to keep at this store including STAPLES, CANNED GOODS, PROVISIONS, FRUITS and VEGETABLES in season. We buy in small quantities and thus keep everything fresh. Prompt delivery and satisfaction guaranteed.

Our MEATS are Always Fresh.

Pingree made Shoes

Good Shoes cost no more than the low grades at our store.

We do not mean to say that we sell all the good shapes, but we do sell many of them—and they are made of such good materials that your chances of a poor purchase are slim.

When you once get the habit—and by-the-way its a good one—of buying the Pingree and the Rindge Shoes, then your Shoe problem is solved.

These kinds are the most durable, comfortable, economical Shoes made; made on honor and sold the same way. We have for the July season inaugurated a Special Reduced Price Sale on all Walking (low) and Slipper Shoes, of from 25c to 75c on each pair. You can now get a good, substantial Walking Shoe for $1.25 to $2.00, fine, stylish and lasting.

Ass'n takes place at Kalkaska Aug.
15-16-17.

Every week now brings advices to the effect that "The Chicago Strike" has ended. We cannot help wondering how many ends it has.

Harrison Stewart, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Stewart is reported missing since Sunday last. He went up the Jordan fishing and it is feared that he has drowned.

Probably the worst blaze our firemen ever had to contend with was that of Friday morning which burned in every room of Charles Hipp's store building, went under the floor of Mad-daugh's tailor shop and up into the rooms occupied by Mrs. Eugene Burdick. The fire evidently started from a pile of boards, etc. in the northeast corner of the lower floor of the Hipp building which was unoccupied.
When discovered the entire rear portion of the building was a furnace and into this the firemen promptly threw a stream. The whole building was honey-combed with fire, the outside was sheet iron, and the only way to squench the blaze was from the inside.
It took about four hours to completely kill the fire. The firemen, under Chief Otto, did good service and through their well-directed work, saved the frame-work of the Hipp building and adjoining property. Mr.
Hipp and family were not at home being in Charlevoix. The building and household goods are practically ruined. They are both fully covered by insurance. Mr. Maddaugh lost quite a little from water, and Mrs. Burdick was likewise a sufferer.
Her loss is considerable with no insurance. The buildings occupied by Mr.
Maddaugh and Mrs. Byrdick are owned by Mrs. M. E. Heston who carries insurance. Cummings' Bowley Alley was thoroughly drenched.

Winfield, Kansas, Courier, March 31st, 1905, says: The concert by the Polmatier Sisters at the Grand last night was well attended and gave splendid satisfaction. The Elks under whose patronage they played ever, merit the thanks of all music lovers for having brought this superb attraction. The company is composed of finished musicians, both with voice and instruments. Every number was enthusiastically encored, and the players were liberal in response. The sisters were assisted by Mr. Harry Woods, who demonstrated himself the phenomenal player on the mandolin and xylophone. Each of the sisters deserve individual mention. They are blessed with great personal charm as well as with musical talent and were beautifully costumed. To be given at Loveday Opera House under the auspices of the East Jordan Military Band in the near future.

Win. Supernaw was over to Central Lake, Sunday.

James Gidley left Thursday for Denver, Colorado, where he expects to regain his health. He was accompanied by his son Charles of Empire.
Mr. Gidley will be gone probably until spring.

Mrs. Wm. Moore and child were guests of Mrs. F. A. Foster over Sunday returning to her home at Muir, on Monday. The lady was formerly a resident of this city, and, at one time, one of our school ma'ams.

Archie Misenar and Miss Grace
Allen of Ironton were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening, Rev. R. E. Yost performing the ceremony. Both young people are well-known and liked by a host of friends who wish them the
"Much Joy."

Eliza Fay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Henry D. Carr, died Saturday morning, aged six years, seven months and twenty-two days. Brief funeral services were held at the home Sunday evening, Rev. Yost conducting same.
The remains were shipped to Cass City Monday morning where funeral services were held and interment made.

Archie Bashaw and Miss Mae Hag-gett were united in marriage Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haggett, Rev. R. E. Yost performing the ceremony. The contracting parties are popular young people of our city and have the well-wishes of a host of friends. As a mark of esteem, the East Jordan Military Band "did the honors" in the evening.

A bunch of East Jordan Maccabees went over to Boyne City Saturday evening to help the Tent there initiate some candidates into the mysteries of the order and incidentally sample the dinner which the Tent there put up as a result of the membership contest between the two tents. The Boyne Cityites did the thing up proper and 'twas a jolly crowd of the disciples of Maccabee who wended their way home to East Jordan at the dawning.

A business change of more than passing importance was effected in our city, Wednesday, when R. F. Steffes sold to Ernest Coyle of Aiden his entire stock of Cigars, News-stand, etc., outside of the cigar manufacturing part, with the new brick building. Mr. Coyle recently sold his interest in a mercantile establishment at above place. He takes possession Monday and, with his wife, will move their household goods here and occupy the rooms now used by Mr. and Mrs. Steffes. He intends to put in a line of Bazaar goods consisting in part of a 5 and 10 cent counter and a full line of books. Mr.
Steffes will remove his factory to the new Madison building where he will continue in the wholesale cigar manufacture. He has option on a lot and next week will begin the erection of a residence.

Mrs. D. F. Clement shipped her household goods recently, and daughter, Miss Ethel, (Miss Vesta preceded them) left Saturday last for a few week's visit with relatives in Holland, California, to join Mr. Clement who is in the shoe business there. We wish them success and much happiness in their new home, which lies in the Sanbernardino Valley, in the midst of one of the great citrus fruit belts of Southern California. The city is noted for its beautiful streets and avenues where palms accacias and pepper trees line the way for miles.
While about the comfortable homes of the inhabitants, and on the rolling hills, are groves of orange trees loaded with their golden fruit.

Love Is All

When the prize has been won at last
And the laurel is on the brow,
When the struggle and strife are past
It will not matter, I vow,
What honor we're called to share
If love be not there, not there.

When we touch the goal at the end
And the race has at last been run,
When the plaudits through the air ascend,
Proclaiming the victory won,
It shall not matter what crown we wear
If love be not there, not there.

For the wreath is naught without love,
And fame is a paitry thing,
And the prize is but blessed from above
When love is the hope and spring,
For all triumph is only despair
If love be not there, not there.

Chicago Chronicle.

THEODORE DODD— BACHELOR.

BY JOE PINCHAY

(Copyright, 1905, by Dally Story Pub. Co.)

Theodore Dodden was traveling salesman for the firm of S— Brothers, wholesale dealers in dry goods. Theodore Dodden, bachelor, that was the cognomen he always gave to himself when he thought of himself. He would have had it engraved upon his cards had not the Mr. Theodore Dodden consumed the available space.

Bachelorhood was Dodden's real profession. He gloried in it. He lived for it—made a fine art of it. If any new acquaintance chanced to remark, "Never been married, sir?" the reply was given as though the question had been, "Ever been in the penitentiary, sir?" You could never offer a more irremediable insult to Dodden than to intimate the possibility of his having ever dreamed of that step of consummate idiosyncrasy.

Whether he ever formulated a philosophy of the universe under a regime of bachelorhood, I cannot say. I have suspected at times that he was at work on something of the sort. At any rate, it was his firm conviction that every wise man kept his bark of life clear of the rocks and shoals of matrimony. Dodden had a good many friends and acquaintances among the foots of earth, that is, the married men, but in his presence they were all made to feel the infinite superiority of his wisdom. Dodden knew every skeleton in the closets of these various fools of his acquaintance. The hollow rattling of their spectral members and their ghostly grinnings were a pleasant part of his after-dinner pipe dreams. And every divorce case—Dodden kept a complete record of them—was a public triumph of the principles of Theodore Dodden, bachelor.

But there came at last to him a certain fiery ordeal, that changed the course of his life, and—presumably—altered some vital opinions of his.

Dodden had been to the town of M— spending one of his rare vacations with his married brother. It might be mentioned that the parent stock of the Doddens had only produced one Theodore, bachelor. All his brothers and sisters had gone the way of all the earth, that is, got married. Dodden had spent a fairly enjoyable week and was sitting in the depot waiting for the train that was to carry him back to his jolly bachelor quarters. His visit had furnished him some matter for thought. And he was a little surprised at the persistency with which the piquant face of his brother's wife's sister came up before his sedate bachelor mind's eye.

He decided to take a turn on the platform. Before he could carry out his purpose, however, he found himself, for the moment, otherwise diverted. The quiet waiting room had been invaded by a gay party of young people. They were in high spirits, indeed, were even boisterous. Dodden thought, and he soon observed that been sent up early in the afternoon as directed—it having come in by an earlier train—he made his way toward his bachelor rooms. He was surprised to find them brilliantly lighted, but supposing his man wanted to give him a cheerful reception, he thought little of it. His astonishment grew when he mounted the stairs and the door of his sitting room was thrown open, showing a brilliant scene within. In the room were groups of men and women, who turned with eager and joyous faces toward the open door. Dodden, nonplussed as he was, recognized them

"Where is she—your wife?" as his most intimate friends with their wives and sweethearts. He saw that his den beyond had been turned into a dining room, and a table was spread there, sparkling as for a feast. Dodden could scarcely believe his eyes, when he saw his modest apartments turned into this place of gaiety.

Peterson rushed out to meet him. But something at sight of Dodden's face made him stop short, perplexity and surprise changing on his face. "Why, old boy," he cried, "where's the—the lady?"

"The lady!" gasped Dodden. "Yes, the lady," repeated Peterson. By this time a number of the others had come forward, and Dodden found himself the center of a questioning circle.

"Where is she—your wife?" Dodden had a queer sensation in his throat. Then it seemed to go to his knees. He thought he must be the victim of some sort of a conspiracy. He could not decide upon the stand he ought to take. A cold sweat started out on his forehead. He staggered and made a clutch at the banisters.

"My wife! Why, Peterson—Longworth—ladies—you know I have no wife."

"Now, Mr. Dodden, you are playing a joke on us," said a reproachful feminine voice. "Where have you left her? You may as well confess. We know all about it."

Theodore Dodden, bachelor, stood in their midst, quite white, and collapsed.

"My friends," he said, in a weak, trembling voice "I swear to you, I do not know what you mean. I—there has evidently been a mistake. I have, with an attempt at dignity, 'I have always been a bachelor.'"

Dodden's honesty and his wretchedness were not to be doubted. Astonishment swept over the party. There was a dead silence, then Peterson said: "But your trunk, Dodden, how do you account for your trunk?"

"I am not aware that there is anything the matter with it," said Dodden.

"Heavens, man!" cried Peterson, seizing his arm, "come and see it."

Dodden, still in a maze, allowed himself to be led to where his trunk had been deposited in the afternoon. He gazed at it mutely. Fastened to its sides were two large placards on which, in glaring letters that could be read a block off, were the words, "Make way for Hyman," and "Behold, the Bridegroom Cometh." It was further adorned by a motley array of old shreds of all sizes and descriptions. "You see old fellow, we thought there really does seem to be a mistake—"

"We thought you were married," interrupted a merry voice, "and we planned a little surprise for you and your bride—and you aren't—Oh! It's so funny!"

There was a peal of laughter, but it was smothered at sight of Dodden's miserable face. He sank into a chair. Then a great light burst upon him. There flashed before him the incident in the waiting room at M— the prospective bridegroom and the gay party that had come to wish him god-speed. His trunk must have gone earlier on the same train as his, Dodden's. The friends of the bridegroom, instead of the bridegroom's trunk, had by mistake decorated his—the trunk of Theodore Dodden, bachelor. He saw it now. But it was too much, too much. His friends quietly slipped away. They expressed many regrets for their error, but in the midst of the profuse apologies could be heard stifled feminine laughter.

Left to himself, Dodden sat and thought it all over. He probably arrived at the conclusion that he had reached the limit of a bachelor's humiliations, and that there could be no worst now.

Before he slept that night he wrote a letter to his brother's wife's sister, very humbly asking her to become—Mrs. Theodore Dodden.

HE BOUGHT THE NECKLACE.

But Not for the Adornment of His Loving Wife.

Henry Clews, the banker, talked at a banquet about the danger of deceit. "A New York woman," he said, "saw in a shop window on Fifth Avenue a collar of pearls that she liked. She stopped her carriage and sought out the shopkeeper.

"What is the price," she said, "of that pearl collar in your window?" "Six thousand dollars, ma'am," said the shopkeeper, as he drew forth the collar, and displayed its beauties to the dazzled woman.

"She took out her checkbook. 'I'll tell you what I'll do,' she said, 'I'll give you my check for three thousand dollars, and I'll send my husband to see the collar this afternoon. Don't tell him it is six thousand; tell him it is three thousand. Then may be he will buy it for me.'"

"The jeweler bowed and smiled. He had seen this sort of game played many a time before.

"I wish you luck, madam," he said, and the lady departed.

"Her husband she found in his office in a mood unusually tractable. He had sold certain stocks at a great profit that morning. He consented readily, therefore, to go and look at the necklace.

"That evening his wife dressed for dinner with unusual care. She wore her most beautiful gown. She dreamed, as she dressed, of an affectionate husband, clasping about her white throat, a collar of pearls.

"And 'I bought that pearl collar,' were the man's first words when he got home.

"You dear!" she exclaimed. "Let me see it." "Can't," he said. "I had it sent to my mother. You know it is her birthday to-morrow."—San Antonio Express.

To a Star.
Beauteous star in the depths of night,
Say whence cometh thy wondrous light
Is it a spark from the great unknown,
Does thy radiance come from the great white throne?

I have gazed on thee oft from this world below
As in the blue depths you sparkle and glow,
And thought, could the fancy of childhood be true,
Stars were small holes where heaven's glory shone through.

Sometimes as I've gazed on the gem-studded sky
My thoughts like a meteor swiftly would fly
And a species of awe o'er me suddenly
As I think of the eye that ne'er slumbers nor sleeps.

And again as in childhood there cometh to me
A hope or a phantom, whatever it may be,
That the friends who have left us and gone on before
Are waiting for us on the opposite shore.

And myth though it may be 'twill at last
To think of the radiance more our kind friends may meet.
That each star is a soul with a bright taper flame
To lighten our pathway and guide us to heaven.

The Tie Magnetic.

"And now, darling," said the newly accepted lover, "tell me how you ever came to be attracted to such a plain, everyday man as myself? What could you see in me to love?"

The beautiful girl blushed and looked down at the diamond sparkling on her finger. "Well," she said at last, hesitating.

"Yes, yes—what was it?" exclaimed the impatient lover.

"Because you tie your Ascots so beautifully. I never could make mine look right. Will you show me how, dear?"

Good Thing to Know.

A writer, discussing the lost art of early rising, says: "The proper time to rise is when sleep ends. That's a good thing to learn. Do you know, if we hadn't seen that in a paper, we should have gone on believing that the proper time to rise was when you were right in the midst of your soundest sleep. What a blessed thing it is for this blind old world that there are some men in it who know nearly everything!"

Limit to Their Credulity.

Kansas editors are skeptical. An exchange asked: "What do you think of an artist who painted cobwebs on a ceiling so naturally that the hired girl wore herself into an attack of nervous prostration trying to sweep them down?" Most of the editors say that there may have been such an artist, but there was never such a hired girl.—Kansas City Journal.

Ancient Water Pipes.

Very primitive water pipes of an ancient date have been discovered in the streets of Manchester, England. They were hollowed out tree trunks fitted together so as to make a wooden conduit. The joints were somewhat in the style of those of a fishing rod, the thin end of one trunk being made to fit into the thick end of the other. It is supposed that this means of supplying Manchester with water was in use about 200 years ago, and discoveries of the same kind made in other towns go to confirm that view. The boring through the wood was about four inches in diameter. The supply of water in those days was not only much less in absolute quantity than now, but very much less in proportion to the population.

Vienna is angry because Count Schoenbrun has sold Rembrandt's "Samson and Delilah" to the city of Frankfurt. Frankfurt paid $82,500 for it. The picture was bought for $30 by one of the count's predecessors, who saw it being used in the marketplace as the canvas awning for a petty stallholder's wares.

Arriving at a Verdict.

Kushequa, Pa., July 10.—(Special)—In this section of Pennsylvania there is a growing belief that for such Kidney Diseases as Rheumatism and Lame Back there is only one sure cure and that is Dodd's Kidney Pills. This belief grows from such cases as that of Mrs. M. L. Davison, of this place. She tells the story herself as follows:

"I have suffered from Rheumatism for thirty years and find that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I was also bothered with Lame Back and I can only say that my back hasn't bothered me since I took Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Considering that Mrs. Davison only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the result would be considered wonderful if it were not that others are reporting similar results daily. Kushequa is fast arriving at a verdict that "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for Rheumatism."

HIS IDEA OF BANKRUPTCY.

Indian Native Evidently Had Had Painful Experience.

A native of India, who had lost a large amount of money through the insolvency of an English merchant, explained the English insolvency laws as follows: "In Burma the white man who wants to become insolvent goes into business, and gets lots of goods, and does not pay for them. He then gets all the money he can together, say 30,000 rupees (a rupee is 33 cents), and puts all of it except 100 rupees away where no one can find it. With the 100 rupees he goes to a judge of the court and tells him he wants to become bankrupt. The judge then calls all the lawyers together, likewise all the men to whom the white man owes money, and he says: 'This man is insolvent, but he wishes to give you all that he has got, so he has asked me to divide this 100 rupees among you all.' The judge thereupon gives the lawyers 90 rupees, and the remaining 10 rupees to the other men. Then the insolvent goes home to England."

WANTED TO SLEEP

Curious That a Tired Preacher Should Have Such Desire.

A minister speaks of the curious effect of Grape-Nuts food on him and how it has relieved him.

"You will doubtless understand how the suffering with indigestion with which I used to be troubled made my work an almost unendurable burden, and why it was that after my Sabbath duties had been performed, sleep was a stranger to my pillow till nearly daylight.

"I had to be very careful as to what I ate, and even with all my care I experienced poignant physical distress after meals, and my food never satisfied me.

"Six months have elapsed since I began to use Grape-Nuts food, and the benefits I have derived from it are very definite. I no longer suffer from indigestion, and I began to improve from the time Grape-Nuts appeared on our table. I find that by eating a dish of it after my Sabbath work is done (and I always do so now) my nerves are quieted and rest and refreshing sleep are ensured me. I feel that I could not possibly do without Grape-Nuts food, now that I know its value. It is invariably on our table—we feel that we need it to complete the meal—and our children will eat Grape-Nuts when they cannot be persuaded to touch anything else." MARKETING POTATO CROPS.

In line with the classic case of the oyster shippers, cited by President Hadley of Yale University in his book on Railroad Transportation, is the case of the Aroostook potato growers brought by President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine Railroad before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. Nothing could better show how a railroad works for the interest of the localities which it serves.

A main dependence of the farmers of the Aroostook region is the potato crop, aggregating annually eight to ten million bushels, which find a market largely in Boston and the adjacent thickly settled regions of New England. The competition of cheap water transportation from Maine to all points along the New England coast keeps railroad freight rates on these potatoes always at a very low level.

Potatoes are also a considerable output of the truck farms of Michigan, their normal market being obtained in and through Detroit and Chicago and other communities of that region.

Not many years ago favoring sun and rains brought a tremendous yield of potatoes from the Michigan fields. At normal rates and prices there would have been a glut of the customary markets and the potatoes would have rotted on the farms. To help the potato growers the railroads from Michigan made unprecedentedly low rates on potatoes to every reachable market, even carrying them in large quantities to a place so remote as Boston. The Aroostook growers had to reduce the price on their potatoes and even then could not dispose of them unless the Boston and Maine Railroad reduced its already low rate, which it did. By means of these low rates, making possible low prices, the potato crops of both Michigan and Maine were finally marketed. Everybody eat potatoes, and that year everybody had all the potatoes he wanted.

While the Michigan railroads made rates that would have been ruinous to the railroads, had they been applied to the movement of all potatoes at all times, to all places, they helped their patrons to find markets then. The Boston and Maine Railroad suffered a decrease in its revenue from potatoes, but it enabled the Aroostook farmers to market their crop and thereby to obtain money which they spent for the varied supplies which the railroads brought to them. If the making of rates were subject to governmental adjustment such radical and prompt action could never have been taken, because it is well established that if a rate be once reduced by a railroad company it cannot be restored through the red tape of governmental procedure. If the Michigan railroads and the Boston and Maine Railroad had been subjected to governmental limitation they would have felt obliged to keep up their rates as do the railroads of France and England and Germany under governmental limitation and let the potatoes rot. E. Harris.

No Whistling on Board Ship.

A civilian on the quarter deck of a battleship was waiting to see an officer, and to beguile the tedium of waiting began to whistle a popular air softly. He had not gone far when he was requested to desist. Seeking a reason for this rule, he was told that whistling would interfere with boatswain's calls. "It isn't your single whistle that would cause the trouble," he was told, "but if whistling were allowed, there would be a chorus of it going on most of the time, and then the boatswain's whistle would stand a poor chance of being heard."

Washington's Outlook

Governor Mead of Washington says, in the Sunset Magazine for July, that Washington has nearly doubled in population in five years; that the people of his state have an abiding faith in its resources and believe when they are exploited and the charms of climate and location become known, that the Pacific northwest will assume a commanding and perhaps a foremost position among the favored regions of the world. The most advantageous shipping point from the northwest shore of the Pacific is Puget sound. Add to this the fact that within the borders of the state of Washington are the timber, fishing, mineral, coal, pastoral, agricultural and horticultural resources of an empire and a population drawn from the sturdiest and most progressive stock of this and other nations.

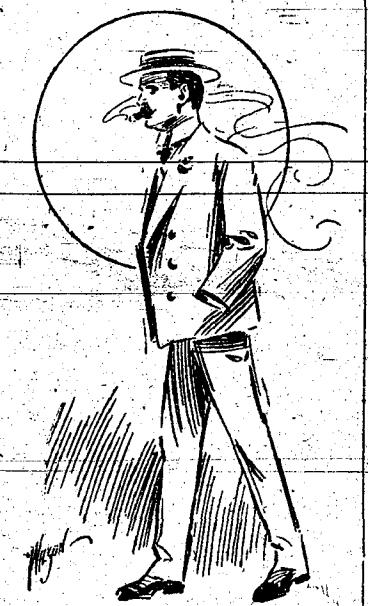

Ill-Gotten Wealth.

Some times, indeed, looking back historically over the plough foundations of impious men, and observing also how ill-gotten wealth in our own day is spent in the building up of admirable institutions—one sometimes asks one's self: Is this the order of nature? Is the tendency irresistible? Are the contributions of evil men to be the means of bringing about the cessation of evil?—Century.

The Union Pacific Railroad Passenger Department has put before the public a folder of the Lewis & Clark Exposition at Portland. Chinese Bride Seekers Flourish.

The Chinese, along with the Turks, believe that unmarried folks lead a most selfish existence. Anxious as they are to see their sons and daughters well settled they never negotiate a marriage, they leave this to the bride seekers, who carry on a flourishing business.

Dodden had seen enough of bridal parties and prospective bridegrooms in his time, so he left the waiting room and took his projected stroll outside. In a moment the scene was forgotten. He boarded his train when it came, and arrived in town in the early dusk.

Four Facts For Sick Women To Consider

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has an Unequaled Record of Cures—Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Is Confidential, Free, and Always Helpful

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhoea, displacements of the uterus, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens, and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, all uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness and displacements, regulating menstruation perfectly and overcoming its pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

FOURTH.—Every ailing woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs. Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

ATAXIA FOUR YEARS FOLLOWS MALARIA CONTRACTED IN SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.

Victim Had Become Helpless When He Tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but Was Cured in Four Months.

Because he did not know that there is a remedy for ataxia, Mr. Ariel endured four years of weakness, pain and the misery of thinking his case incurable.

"At the outbreak of the Spanish-American war," he says, "I went with Company B, Eighth Regiment, M. V. M., into camp at Chickamanga, and while there my system became thoroughly poisoned with malaria. When I was mustered out, I carried that disease home with me. After a while locomotor ataxia appeared."

"How did the ataxia begin?" "I first noticed a pain in my ankles and knee joints. This was followed by a numb feeling in my legs. At times I had to drag myself around; my legs would shake or become perfectly dead. I had constant trouble in getting about in the dark. I kept a light burning in my room at night as I could not balance myself in the darkness. Even with the aid of a light I wobbled, and would reach out and catch hold of chairs to prevent myself from falling."

"How long were you a sufferer?" "Four years in all. During the last three years I was confined to bed, sometimes for a week, again for three or four weeks at a time. When I was lying down the pain in my back was frequently so severe that I had to be helped up and put in a chair to get a little relief. I had considerable pain in my bowels and no control over my kidneys. The worst of all was that the doctor could give me no hope of recovery."

"How were you cured?" "I read that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had cured locomotor ataxia and one or two friends spoke to me about them. In the fall of 1903 I began to take them for myself and I had not used more than one box before I found that the pains in my knees and ankles were greatly relieved. Four months afterward I became a perfectly well man, and I am today enjoying the best of health."

Mr. Edward H. Ariel lives at No. 43 Powow street, Amesbury, Mass. Every sufferer from locomotor ataxia should try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills without delay. Any druggist can supply them.

The Miracle of Memory

One of the most remarkable of all the mental processes is memory. How are sight pictures and sound pictures and other impressions stored in the mind, and how are we able to recall them? Here, again, we are in the presence of a wonderful miracle, and at best we can only seek to make clear the fact by illustration and comparison. There are certain bodies possessed of a property known as phosphorescence. After having been exposed to daylight for a time, these bodies give off light in the dark. They store up certain portions of the sunbeam, and give them off again. This is a sort of a physical memory. These phosphorescent bodies simply continue in the dark that which they do in the sunlight.

In some way the impressions made through the eye, ear and other senses induce such actions and changes in the nerve cells which are connected with these organs that under the right sort of stimulus the same action may be reproduced, and brought within the range of consciousness. This reproduction of past impressions is secured through the connection of that portion of the brain which is the seat of consciousness with other portions in which impressions are stored by means of the delicate nerve branches previously described. The numerous connections of these nerve fibers bring them in direct or indirect association with all the different parts of the brain. In trying to remember, one often is conscious of an effort, and the brain may be very much wearied in a long-continued effort to recall impressions which have been partially effaced. The mental effort consists in energizing the fibers so as to make them project forward their delicate endings, thus making numerous contacts, perhaps millions, with different cells, until by and by the particular cell or group of cells in which the desired word or other impression was made is recognized. When one is weary, it is often difficult, sometimes impossible, to recall names or data of various sorts which may be entirely familiar. This is because of the impossibility of energizing the nerve cells sufficiently to make the desired contacts. Anything which benumbs the nerves, as alcohol, tobacco, tea, coffee, opium, may have the effect to benumb the nervous sensibility and lessen nervous energy, and thus operate deleteriously upon memory. Memory, however, is perhaps most seriously injured by loss of sleep, where by brain energy becomes exhausted. Sometimes the memory may be for the time being almost entirely effaced by long-continued loss of sleep.

Depreciation of memory in old age is one of the first indications of failing mental power. It is interesting to note, however, that the memory of events which happened in early life are often remembered, while others of recent occurrence quickly pass from the mind.

How He Became Liveryman

"How'd I come to go into the livery business? Why," said the genial and opulent livery stable proprietor, as he rolled the big black cigar to a slightly different angle between his teeth, "it was kind o' funny."

"You see, I had a large family, all girls, nice girls, all of them, and naturally they all had a good deal of company, and they used to go a good deal, and to a good many places they went to they had to have carriages; and my carriage bill was something frightful, for me."

"I was doing a fair sort of a business, very fair, in fact, but I couldn't by any means afford to keep a carriage myself, and every month that carriage bill for my daughters used to bite a frightful hole into my income. And finally that set me to thinking."

"I'm not the only man in the world, I says to myself, with a bunch of fine daughters. The world is full of fine daughters. I says to myself, belonging to fine families that want 'em to make as good a show as anybody and all hiring carriages for 'em."

"Why shouldn't I make, myself, the profit on the business that my daughters would bring to a stable, a pretty fair sort of a business in itself, or at least a sure starter, and do business for other people's daughters, too?"

"That's all there was to it. I was certain of some business and I was willing to take a chance on the rest."

"And everything went all right. My daughters gave me all their patronage, and they used more carriages now than they ever had before—they said they wanted to see their father do well; and I got my full share of the patronage of other people's daughters, and the volume of it was great."

"In the course of time my daughters all married and they all did well; very comfortably, to say the least. Every one of them now keeps a carriage of her own, and keeps it in my stable; and so the girls, nice girls, every one, that once 'cost me so much, though I never begrudged 'em a cent of it, now send me money, every one."

"Their business alone is something tidy, but they are really only a few of many profitable customers, and I have never regretted taking up the livery business."

"But it was sort of funny, now, how I came to go into it, wasn't it?"

Correspondents Got No Eggs

In Frederick Villiers' recent book telling of his experiences with the Japanese forces at Port Arthur he narrates an interesting little incident that occurred the day the correspondents first reached the front. They were quartered in rooms at Dalny which had been pillaged and desecrated by the Chinese robbers after the evacuation by the Japanese. He says: "We were soon busy trying to make the place habitable. Rations of food were sent us from headquarters and our party of ten was soon split up into messes. Barry (correspondent of the Chicago Daily News), Ricariton, the expert photographic artist, and myself, received bread, potatoes and two chickens. Ricariton took a great fancy to one of the birds, and being tender at heart, would not have it killed."

"In fact he was quite a Buddhist in many ways and would destroy only flies. These insects I have seen him send, with his unmailed fist, a dozen at a time, without warning, to the shades of the blue bottle. But he spared chickens, and this bird learned to perch on his shoulder and to peck bread from his hand. It was an awkward situation. I took no delight in the fowl's winning ways and simply wanted its flesh and Barry was of the same mind. Ricariton at last proposed a compromise.

"He said that he would take no share of the bird that he had already doomed and he would let us have the first dozen eggs that his chicken—which he had christened Kuroki, in honor of the famous Japanese general—should happen to lay. We agreed to this arrangement, but it was most unsatisfactory, for, although of course I feel certain that Ricariton was no party to the deception, the wretched bird turned out to be a rooster."

Not a Slick Compliment

While I was a pupil in the Jackson school, in Newton, some eight years ago, Capt. John W. Weeks, who afterward became mayor of the city, one day visited our class, says a writer in the Boston Herald. The future mayor had not been long in the room when one of the largest boys, who had apparently been in a whispered wrangle with a companion, exclaimed, in a voice loud enough to be overheard, "You better not be so swift about giving information."

"I heard you say something about information," said Capt. Weeks, with a smile, addressing the boy who had spoken. "Now let us see if you are well-informed enough to tell the class the meaning of the word information."

But the boy was forced to admit that he was not. Thereupon Capt. Weeks referred the question to the whole class. But, alas, not one seemed equal to the task until a bright-eyed, tow-headed little fellow jumped to his feet and threw up his hand.

"Well, my boy," said Capt. Weeks, "what do you say is the meaning of information?"

"Compliments," promptly answered the little fellow.

"Good," said Capt. Weeks, smiling down on the boy. "Now let us hear you give me a compliment."

The little fellow paused for a few moments, looking thoughtfully at his toes, but, seeming suddenly inspired, he looked up at Capt. Weeks and said, in a loud voice, "You're a slick guy, sir."

The comment of the future mayor was scarcely audible above the laughter that ensued. "That's a doubtful compliment," he said.

Man Makes Nitrogen Deadly

When left alone to its natural functions nitrogen pursues a perfectly peaceful course, but when man succeeds in capturing it and combining it with other elements it becomes a dire potentiality for evil, as is obvious in the recent events of the war in the Far East and in the crime in the streets of Moscow. The love of freedom, so to speak, characteristic of nitrogen, is terribly exemplified in the explosion of the bomb in which it is imprisoned and bound to other elements. On the slightest provocation—a spark, a shock, a fuse—the nitrogen suddenly expands from seemingly nothing, as regards the space which it occupies, into infinity. This is, in reality, what happens when dynamite, lyddite or other unstable nitro-compounds explode when hurried in shells in warfare and in bombs in desperate attacks on human life. Nitrogen, against its natural disposition, is locked up in an uncongenial space in these compounds, from which it is set free by very simple means in an enormously expanded gaseous state with deadly effect, returning, in fact, to its normal peaceful mission once more. It is the analogue of the sword and the plowshare; in the nitro-explosive nitrogen is the modern engine of warfare and crime. In the free state in the atmosphere it ministers directly to the quiet and peaceful needs of plant and human life.—The Lancet.

CONSTANT ACHING.

Back aches all the time. Spills your appetite, wears the body, worries the mind. Kidneys cause it all and Doan's Kidney Pills relieve and cure it.

H. B. McCarver, of 201 Cherry St., Portland, Ore., inspector of freight for the Trans-Continental Co., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills for back ache and other symptoms of kidney trouble which had annoyed me for months. I think a cold was responsible for the whole trouble. It seemed to settle in my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills rooted it out. It is several months since I used them, and up to date there has been no recurrence of the trouble."

BABY'S TERRIBLE SORE

Body Raw With Humor—Caused Untold Agony—Doctor Did No Good—Cuticura Cured at Once.

"My child was a very delicate baby. A terrible sore and humor broke out on his body, looking like raw flesh, and causing the child untold agony. My physician prescribed various remedies, none of which helped at all. I became discouraged and took the matter into my own hands, and tried Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment with almost immediate success. Before the second week had passed the soreness was gone, not leaving a trace of anything. Mrs. Jeannette H. Block, 281 Rosedale St., Rochester, N. Y."

Wonderful Courage. Is displayed by many a poor invalid, crushed under the weight of chronic troubles, like constipation, biliousness, neuralgia, headache, stomach trouble, etc. But such suffering, though brave, is quite unnecessary, for Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin will surely cure all these diseases, drive away all the unpleasant symptoms, and restore every invalid to health. Try it. Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Money back if it fails.

The Opportunity of Today

The opportunity for the man with little means is better today in the prairie states of the Southwest than ever before in the history of the nation. To be sure, there is not the vast open choice of land for the homesteads that existed in the '70s. The lands then taken up under Government laws are now being purchased by farmers and ranches. There is need of more hands to develop the country. In the Southwest—Indian Territory, Oklahoma and Texas—are vast areas of improved land not yet yielding the crops of which it is capable. Practically the same thing is true of the lower. Few lines of business are adequately represented. There are openings of all sorts. WIDE-AWAKE MEN, ARE YOU ONE?

If you are interested, tell us what you want, how much you have to invest, and we will gladly furnish the information. Write for a copy of our paper, "The Coming Country." It's free. Address, GEORGE MORTON, G. P. & T. A. BOX 911, ST. LOUIS, MO.

WOMAN AND FASHION

A Comfortable Garment.
A whole chapter could be written about that favorite garment, the tea gown. Essentially feminine it is, and every woman likes to have a few pretty ones in her wardrobe. No other garment, as she knows, can equal it for comfort, coolness and for emergency wear. Like all other garments, this season's tea gown has taken on a quaint old fashioned air. The full, loose fronts and tight fitting back and the picturesque sleeves to show off dimples and pretty bracelets are quite smart and becoming to all figures.

TEA GOWN OR WRAPPER.
whether they are short or tall. The tea gown is one of those garments which happily lend themselves to small purses, for it may be charmingly developed in lawn or cotton crepe as well as in the more expensive fabrics.
One can always buy daintily striped material from which the borders may be made, or very often the material itself contains the border. The model is one that may be easily followed in the home manufacture. The fronts have plaits at the shoulder which supply the fullness in front. The use of the ribbon girdle is optional, as many prefer the full flowing style for summer. Lawn, dimity, cotton crepe, silk, lightweight woolen or pongee may be used.

Bathing Suits.
The warm weather has brought out the bathing suits. One of the prettiest is a black and white shepherd's plaid, with a plaited blouse and upper part of the skirt. The square cut neck is finished with folds of pale blue silk outlined with black braid, and a black and white heavy silk cord fastens the suit at the waist.

Capes and Wraps.
There are more capes in the wrap list this year than in many a season past, a fact due possibly in part to the larger front and blouse sleeves, and some of the models are quite picturesque and attractive.

Much Color Worn.
It looks as though plenty of color would be worn this summer. Pale shades of pink, blue and violet come in batiste and handkerchief linen. But all white will lead.

White Serge Popular.
White serge is restored to the highest favor, and some of the most attractive suits are made of it. The short coat, elaborately trimmed with braid, is preferred.

The Sleeveless Bolero.
The sleeveless bolero of lace or embrodery will be worn all summer over the fancy blouse.

Handsome Frock For Girls.
What a world of beautiful fancies are to be found in frocks for the small mademoiselle. She is, indeed, beloved by Mistress Fashion, and the array of girlish models given by that fair donor will be a delight to the fond mother.

PLAITED BLOUSE FROCK. who creates her daughter's gowns. The little gown shown here is one of the most pleasing models in sailor blouse suits. It is made up of a rich brown linen with tie in crimson-silk. The blouse, unlike the usual design, is made up of plaits coming together in front and back to resemble a box plait. The skirt is also plaited and falls in abundant fullness. For a medium size this dress requires five yards of thirty-six inch material.

Croup is quickly relieved, and Whooping Cough will not "run its course" if you use the original Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. This Cough Syrup is different from all others because it acts on the bowels. You can not cure Croup and Whooping Cough until you rid the system of all congestion, by working off the cold through a copious action of the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar does this, and cures all Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. No opiates. Sold by Warne's Pharmacy.

THE ORIGINAL.
Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. Ask for Foley's Honey and Tar and refuse any substitute offered as no other preparation will give the same satisfaction. It is mildly laxative. It contains no opiates and is safest for children and delicate persons. Sold by L. C. Madis-son.

RANCH
FOOD
FOR STOCK

If your stock is not doing just as well as you would like, there is undoubtedly a cause which can be easily remedied by RANCH FOOD.
There is no season of the year when the condition of horses, cattle, sheep and hogs can not be improved by a tonic like RANCH FOOD, which tones up the animal system throughout, cleanses the blood and prevents disease. RANCH FOOD is almost infallible for the cure of the general diseases of domestic animals, including Distemper, and Pinkeye in horses, Indigestion in cattle, Catarrhal Troubles in sheep and Hog Cholera. RANCH FOOD is not like the common stock feeds on the market; it is made from roots, barks, herbs and seeds and is nature's own product scientifically compounded.
"RANCH FOOD is superior as a general conditioner and gives flavor to anything I have ever used." — Ed. McVay, Sidney, Ohio.

NERVOUS DEBILITY CURED

Excesses and indiscretions are the cause of more sorrow and suffering than all other diseases combined.
We see the victims of vicious habits on every hand;
the pallid, pinched face, dark circled eyes, stooping form, stunted development, basinal, melancholic countenance and timid bearing proclaim to all the world his folly and tend to blight his existence. Our treatment positively cures all weak men by overcoming and removing the effects of former indiscretions and excesses. It stops all losses and drains and quickly restores the patient to what nature intended—a healthy and happy man with physical, mental and nerve powers complete.
For over 25 years Drs. K. & K. have treated with the greatest success all diseases of men and women.
If you have any secret disease that is a worry and a menace to your health consult old established physi-
