A Royal Slave.

Is the greatest and best high class sensational play that has been seen in this country in the last three decades. It is the most original play on the boards today, original in location, in plot and story, in character, in costumes, in scenic effects, in mechanical surprises, in dramatic situations, in pictures and climaxes. It is the only strongly sensational play that does not descend to "blood and thunder" methods, but has all the literary merit and charm of the best romantic plays, coupled with the thrilling dramatic power of a great melodrama, and the brilliancy and sparkle of the brightest comedies; therefore it pleases the most critical and intelligent at the same time that it thrills a gallery to the highest point of enthusiasm. It is never tiresome and never allows the interest to once flag, but holds an audience entranced to the last. It touches always the chords of human sympathy and human justice. It has nothing old or hackneyed about it and nothing that enables an auditor to anticipate what is coming next. At Loveday Opera House on Thursday night, Aug. 24th.

Alden Picnic Aug. 30.

Ira D. Bartlett, secretary of the Northern Michigan Beekeeper's Ass'n has this week sent out notices of the Annual Picnic of beekeepers to take place at Alden on Aug. 30th. All beekeepers and families are invited to attend.

The Prison Scandal.

There will perhaps be differences of opinion as to whether or not the determination of the Jackson prison trouble arrived at by the board of control of that institution was its best possible solution, but there will probably be no denial of the fact that only the interests of the state and the institution were sought in the adjustment made. The Grand Rapids Post, one of the leading democratic papers of the state, thus refers to the matter: "Advocates of prison reform have reason to be glad that Warden Vincent is to retain his place in the Jackson prison. Vincent may have been unwise in some of his actions, but he has done more for real prison reform than any other man in the world, and it is a credit to Gov. Warner and the state that the clique whose opposition the warden had encountered were not allowed to bounce him."

September Delineator.

The earliest creations of Autumn are attractively set forth in the September Delineator, along with the fashion comment and prophecies of Helen Berkeley-Loyd, Edouard La Fontaine and other authorities in the world of styles, and there is much in the number of interest from other than the standpoint of fashion. Mrs. Mary Hinman Abel contributes an article on the pure food question. It is the first of a series and opens the discussion by outlining the part of the consumer, the housewife, in procuring safe foods. N. Hudson Moore writes interestingly on English pottery and porcelain in "The Collector's Manual," and Dr. Grace P. Murray has a paper on the child in the nursery which will be read profitably by mothers. The hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee" is the subject of a paper by Allan Sutherland; Weymer Jay Mills concludes his "Romances of Summer Resorts," and there is an enjoyable travel sketch, describing and picturing the beautiful Lake District in England. In the way of fiction, the number contains the continuation of Albert Bigelow Paine's serial "The Lucky Piece," and of Helen M. Winslow's New England Story, "At Spinsters Farm," and two short stories by Cornelia Atwood Pratt, Elizabeth McCracken. There are also entertaining pastimes for children, including an animal fairy tale by L. Frank Baum. As usual, many pages are devoted to domestic interests and the particular needs of woman within and without the home.

WAS ASHAMED TO BE SEEN.

Mr. Edward Smith, of Wabash, Ind., writes: "A skin disease broke out on my face some time ago, and kept growing worse until I kept out of sight. I tried many preparations which seemed to aggravate the trouble. Two physicians failed to help me. Banner Salve cured me completely." Sold by WARNE'S PHARMACY.

Ray Benson and family called on their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mede Benson recently, and Harry Bryan and Miss Edna Benson are visiting Ray Benson and wife at Hitchcock the past week.

The tax records in the county treasurer's office were in such shape that it was necessary to have them rebound, and they were accordingly expressed to Hing Bros. & Everhard at Kalamazoo, with a hurry-up order to re-bind and return at once. They were finished promptly, and shipped a week ago Saturday, by freight. And there is a warm atmosphere around the county building now-a-days. Aside from the danger of losing the valuable records, the delay caused by the blunder in shipping by freight is aggravating, as no tax history can be made out, until the books are returned.—Charlevoix Courier.

The meeting to be held at Grand Rapids, Tuesday and Wednesday of week after next, August 29 and 30, for the purpose of organizing a state forestry association, is an effort which if successful in the practical purposes it has in mind will be of far-reaching value in Michigan. There are some problems directly confronting the larger and better work which the projectors of this association have in mind that can only be solved through state-wide co-operation and assistance. Michigan's forests have been sources of enormous wealth to our state and some of this great value can be renewed and retained through the timely and well directed work of such an organization as may be formed at Grand Rapids week after next.

Your Life Current.

The power that gives you life and motion is the nerve force, or nerve fluid, located in the nerve cells of the brain, and sent out through the nerves to the various organs.

If you are tired, nervous, irritable, cannot sleep; have headache, feel stuffy, dull and melancholy, or have neuralgia, rheumatism, backache, periodical pains, indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, or the kidneys and liver are inactive, your life-current is weak.

Power-producing fuel is needed; something to increase nerve energy—strengthen the nerves. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve is the fuel you need. It feeds the nerves, produces nerve force, and restores vitality.

"When I began taking Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and Anti-Pain Pills I was confined to my bed—I had severe nervous spells, the result of two years illness with malaria. I gradually grew weaker until I was unable to sit up. The spells would commence with cold chills, and I would become weak and almost helpless. My circulation was poor—I had doctored right along but grew weaker and weaker. The Nerve Pills seemed to strengthen me right away and my circulation was better. I have taken in all seven bottles of the Nerve and I am entirely well." ROSA E. WEAVER, Stuart, Ia.

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Exposed.

"And you told me, Reginald," whispered the bride through her tears as the carriage whirled them away to the railway station, "that you had never before been married."

"Why, my angel, I never have," he asserted, albeit a guilty flush swept to his forehead.

"And," she continued, her sobs becoming more evident, "I trusted you, although you were a stranger when I met you, but now your peridy is unmasked. Oh, why should things be so?"

"What in the world makes you think such a thing?"

"If you never had been married, how could you keep step so perfectly with the wedding march? No man who hasn't had lots of practice can walk down the aisle and be self-possessed while it is being played."—Chicago Tribune.

Even Then.

Just then the ark came very near turning turtle.

"What on earth caused the commotion?" gasped Mr. Noah. "Earthquake under the water?"

"No," replied Noah. "One of the elephants just sighted a peanut floating by and made a lunge for it."

Trying to Keep Up.

"Do you think there will be any serious trouble between Norway and Sweden?"

"I hope not," answered the pallid man with blue glasses. "I've just got through struggling with Spanish, Russian and Japanese. I don't feel strong enough to tackle Scandinavian yet."—Washington Star.

Of No Consequence.

After the silence had begun to be awkward he cleared his throat and said:

"I don't think, Miss Dimpleton—" "Oh, I know you don't," she hastily replied, "but it doesn't really matter. Isn't the moon just lovely tonight?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN

CONDUCTED BY M. J. WRAGG

[Mr. Wragg invites contributions of any new ideas that readers of this department may wish to present, and would be pleased to answer correspondents desiring information on subjects discussed. Address M. J. Wragg, 300 Good Block, Des Moines, Iowa.]

INOCULATING THE SOIL.

Having proved the remarkable efficacy of soil inoculation in his laboratory and greenhouses, Professor Nobbe set himself to make his discoveries of practical value. He gave to his bacteria cultures the names 'Nitragen'—spelled with an n—and he produced separate culture for each of the important crops—peas, beans, vetch, lupin, and clover. In 1894, the first of these were placed on the market, and they had considerable sale, although such a radical innovation as this, so far out of the ordinary run of agricultural operation, and so almost unbelievably wonderful, can not be expected to spread very rapidly. The cultures are now manufactured at one of the great commercial laboratories on the river Main. They were put in small glass bottles, each marked with the crop for which it is especially adapted. The bottle was partly filled with the yellow gelatinous substance in which the bacteria grow. On the surface of this there was a mossy-like gray growth resembling mould. This consisted of innumerable millions of the little oblong bacteria. A bottle cost about fifty cents, and contained enough bacteria for inoculating half an acre of land. It must be used within a certain number of weeks after it is obtained, while it is still fresh. The method of application is very simple. The contents of the bottle are diluted with warm water. Then the seeds of the beans, clover, or peas, which have previously been mixed with a little soil, are treated with this solution and thoroughly mixed with the soil. After that the mass is partially dried so that the seeds may be readily sown. The bacteria at once begin to propagate in the soil, which is their natural home, and by the time the beans or peas begin to put out roots they are present in vast numbers and are ready to begin the active work of forming nodules. It is not known exactly how the bacteria absorb the free nitrogen from the air, but they do it successfully, and that is the main thing. Many German agriculturists have tried Nitragen. One, who was skeptical of its virtues wrote to Professor Nobbe that he sowed the bacteria inoculated seeds in the form of a huge letter N in the midst of his field, planting the rest in the ordinary way. Before a month had passed that N showed up green and big over all the field, the plants, composing it thriving so much better than those around it!

Economy is always in order but the farmer who economizes by failing to renew his subscription to the farm paper that publishes information applying to his specific conditions is economizing at the wrong end. The wick will not burn long without oil in the lantern.

BURYING MANURE.

Does manure stay where you put it, or does its beneficial effects rise and fall in the soil? That is a question that seems to call for a division of opinion. There are men who assert that manure sinks in the soil. That is, the leading rains wash it downward, and for this reason they claim it should be applied at or near the surface.

On the other hand it is asserted that its volatile and most valuable parts rise by means of fermentation, and that it is a good reason for burying deep.

As a rule manure stays about where you put it. If plowed under in lumps, it has not the power to sink nor rise, nor can it in any way intermix itself. Through harrowing before turning the manure under, rewards in large crops.

Clay has great power to absorb the fertilizing portions of manure, consequently such soils as have a medium amount of clay or loam, generally absorb all the valuable parts of barnyard manure.

A writer of considerable note, about forty years ago, computed that forty tons of manure spread on an acre, while making a heavy coating, was only one load to four square rods, constituting a depth after being spread of about one-third of an inch. In a case like this, when plowed under the volatile parts have but one-third of an inch to pass before all are absorbed by the soil. This shows the great importance of thoroughly mixing the manure through all parts of the soil in order to obtain the full benefit.

Farmers in the west were unable to obtain enough help last season. As a result thousands of acres of grain were lost in the wheat belt. To protect the farmers against another such sacrifice, an organization of the labor commissioners of several states has been effected. The end desired is to furnish the needed help to the farmers of the different sections as required.

SAVING SEED CROP OF CLOVER.

If a seed crop is to be saved from clover, the first crop must be clipped or pastured off. When the field is pastured, clipping is still necessary so as to insure an even start of clover. When the heads have all turned brown and black, the cutting may begin. It is very necessary to attach some sort of a buncher to your machine, as the raking up of the clover is sure to thresh out more or less seed.

Let it remain in bunches until sufficiently rotted to thresh easily, then haul direct to the machine. Do not begin threshing until the dew is entirely dried up. In the morning, or you will lose a very large per cent of your seed. Nor is it advisable, unless it is a very dry time, to load up wagons and allow them to stand over night before threshing. The straw becomes damp and tough, and the seed does not leave the chaff readily. If it is rainy weather, call the threshing off until it is dry again. Some farmers advise the stacking of clover that is to be threshed for seed, but in such case let it stand until the stack has gone through the sweat and is perfectly dry. This will require about four weeks. Stacks should be topped with straw or covered with a large duck cap, as much rain will penetrate a clover stack through and through, and it will not dry out, but will rot down. Anything like a good stand of clover will give a yield of from two to four bushels per acre, making this a very profitable money crop for the farmer.

A buttermaker must needs be a magician to make a fine grade of butter out of some of the cream and milk furnished him by some pretty respectable patrons. It is a terrible thing to charge a nice people with being dirty, and if the buttermaker has any regard for his reputation he must do it not infrequently.

A JOBLIKE GARDENER.

There is no joy which fitsly can compare With delving in the bosom of the earth, Constructing Fanny beds and trenches for the radiantly blossoming Sweet Pea, Besmearing tracts of ground with unslaked lime. That eats insidiously at your shoes, And is in turn devoured greedily By that sly, slimy insect called the slug. To poison which you spread it on your beds.

I've planted Popples, Peonies and Pease, Nasturtiums and Verbenas in my time, And compassed them about with lime and sand, Besprinkled them with soot and other things, Inevitably fatal to the slug. And seen the slugs grow sleek as aldermen. Establish homes adjacent to the lime: And having what the Scripture strict enjoins. Rear families of most colossal size; And when the lime and flowers both were gone, Sit hungrily upon their nether limbs And clamor that I furnish them with more.

I've watched with eager eyes the tender shoots Put forth above the surface of the ground, Rejoicing in their rapid, healthy growth, And picturing ecstatically the time When all my yard should blossom as the rose. With flowers like my mother used to give me, And gloried in the promise that they gave, And when the sun illumed the eastern skies.

I've seen the guilty cutworms' little men Distended far beyond their normal size, With all the goodly increase of my plants. There are, I know, upon this smiling earth Verbenas, Popples, Peonies and Pease, And fat Nasturtiums, too, that sprout and grow, And blossom in their due, appointed time. Molested not by slugs and cutworm shunned. But I suspect, as sea-squid's come around, And never blade of green of mine appears Above the earth that is not seized upon, And borne away to feed some slug's foul brood.

That those who have such gardens must employ Policemen to patrol their beds all night, Equipped with Mauser rifles, who will shoot about The first base slug who dares to show his head, As such force to guard one's plants comes high, I still continue, as the springtime comes, To plant the seeds, contented if they reach.

In sprouting to the surface of the ground, And making garden simply for the joy One finds in delving in the fragrant earth.

HONEY AND HONEY-DEW.

A writer on honey says: Nothing else has injured the honey business so much as the marketing of "honey-dew" honey, under the name of "buckwheat," by ignorant or unscrupulous parties. We have seen it by the carload in the Eastern markets, and told the merchants to whom it was consigned that we would be willing to wager there was not an ounce of "buckwheat" about it, and before we finished our demonstration, they learned a few new points about honey.

This "honey-dew" is a sweetness exuded by tiny insects on the leaves of trees in our locality, principally elms and the bees work on it mornings until the sun dries off the leaves. Some years there is none, and some years it has seemed as if there was not much else.

It is a particularly aggravating case when the bees will gather just enough of the wretched stuff to put in a few cells in each section of nice white honey.

THE IDEAL EAR OF CORN.

For the last two or three years farmers in the middle corn belt have expressed their conviction that the size of the ear of corn as prescribed by the score card is too small. They claim that the object of growing corn is to get the greatest number of pounds of the biggest feeding value, and, therefore, that the length of the ear should not be limited to ten inches; that it is quite possible to get an ear eleven or twelve inches long quite as perfect in other respects as the shorter ear; therefore, why not in the central, and especially in the southern districts, encourage the growth of the larger ear.

The whole question, of course, turns on whether the larger ear will grow more corn than the smaller. Long ears usually have shallower grains, and, therefore, a smaller proportion of corn to the cob, and as a rule have less corn than shorter ears. We have, however, in some of the corn exhibits, seen ears above the standard length that were quite as deep in the grain and as small in the cob as the ears of standard length, and the question therefore resolved itself into this: Is it possible to lengthen the ear of corn and still maintain the large per cent of corn to cob?

We can readily see why corn experts have adopted the present standard. When men really began to study corn they soon discovered that the ideal of many farmers of the very long ear is altogether wrong; that farmers who are growing these long ears and selecting for length are really growing cobs and not corn. It was very easy to demonstrate to them by simply shelling and weighing that they were really growing less corn on a cob twelve or fourteen inches long than they were on one of ten inches.

We have gone far enough now, however, to ask the question whether the ear might not be lengthened one inch, or even two, in the sections capable of producing the largest crops without diminishing, but on the other hand, actually increasing the yield per acre.

Try using cured, shredded corn fodder for the farm horses in place of timothy hay. It can be run through a silage cutter, or be shredded; I prefer the latter. Farm horses can be wintered in this way at about half the cost as when using timothy hay.

LET THE FORETOP ALONE.

How often one sees the foretop of horses clipped off. Did the one who clipped this appendage ever stop to think of the cruelty he was inflicting on his horse, or how it will injure the sale of the horse when he is put upon the market? When at the international show a horse dealer remarked as a clipped horse was led into the ring; "Horses are offered in the wholesale market with foretops trimmed short, clipped and otherwise disfigured, are looked upon by buyers with disfavour, and usually sell at low prices. Foreign buyers will not purchase a horse with its foretop cut off, as they cannot handle such animals to advantage and home dealers always discriminate against such offerings."

When asked the reason for this he said: "In summer time when flies are numerous, horses whose foretops have been clipped often get sore eyes because they cannot keep the flies away from their heads and out of their eyes. If the foretop is permitted to grow, the hair will chase away the flies every time the horse shakes his head and you often see teamsters whose horses have been clipped, tie rags to top of their bridle to take the place of the foretop." Thoughtless people often clip their horses' foretop not realizing the cruelty they are inflicting upon their faithful friends. The check rein and the clipped foretop should never be seen on a horse and the time will soon come when they will not.

The impetus given agricultural development south of the Ohio river was not confined to the last decade. The expression "the new south" may still be properly used in considering the development of the natural resources from the Virginias to Texas. The phenomenal advance in cotton prices the past year, meaning millions of added wealth to the south, brings prominently to the front this great staple. Other field crops and the products of orchards and truck farms are also given more intelligent attention than ever before. In progress of this character, due credit must be given the various state agricultural colleges and experiment stations. As a single example North Carolina shows notable progress in agricultural education the past twelve months. In a recent letter to the American Agriculturist, Prof. Burkett writes: "We have gotten agriculture started in all of our public schools; we have increased the number of agricultural students in our colleges from 11 to 144 in two years, and the state has made an appropriation of $50,000 for an agricultural building." All of this and similar work requires careful planning and organization; but that is the trend in the best thought of agricultural exploitation of

DISCOUNT FOR MUCH CUSTOM.

Minister's Good Reason for Reducing His Fee.

A few months since a Boston minister was called upon to unite a jolly old couple in the holy bonds of matrimony and just as they were pronounced man and wife another couple entered the room to be joined likewise.

The moment the young couple entered they were somewhat surprised to see the clergyman receive the splendid ransom of a new and bright half dollar from the hands of the newly wedded bridegroom. The minister immediately thrust the money into his pocket, and then, congratulating the happy pair, bade them adieu, and—once commenced upon his duties in performing the marriage rite for the second couple.

Being pronounced man and wife, the gentleman pulled out the same amount, an equally new half dollar, and handed it to the minister, whereupon the good man looked with profound astonishment and said:

"My customary fee on such occasions is $5."

"You married the last old ugly couple," said the indignant bridegroom, "for 50 cents, and now you tax me ten times that amount merely because we are young."

The good clergyman, placing his glasses several inches above his nose, looked the young man full in the face, and then said:

"I have never married you but once, while I have married the former man five times, and such occasions duty demands a liberal discount."

The remaining $4.50 was immediately produced.

INVENTOR COULD NOT WAIT.

Gen. Miles' Simple Order That Got Rid of Crank.

"Gen. Nelson A. Miles," said an inventor, "used to be continually besieged by cranks with pneumatic rapid-fire guns, subterranean rifles, dirigible war balloons and such like martial inventions. The general would weed these cranks out with admirable speed."

"I sat in his office with him one day when a servant brought in a card."

"Oh, send him in," said Gen. Miles. "His business won't take more than a minute or two."

"So in came a wild-eyed, long-haired man, twisting his soft hat nervously in both hands."

"General," he said, "I have here—and he took out a small parcel—a bullet proof army coat."

"Put it on," said Gen. Miles, as he rang the bell. The servant appeared as the inventor was getting in to coat.

"Jones," said the general, "tell the captain of the guard to order one of his men to load his rifle with ball cartridge and—"

"Excuse me, general, I forgot something," interrupted the inventor, and with a hunted look he disappeared.

Shooting a Tiger Wolf.

A gentleman residing at Glencon nor took up a position in the bush in the hope of potting a "buck," and hid himself near a bush path on a hillside.

Suddenly he heard a rustling noise in the bush, and raising his head a few inches from the ground he perceived a dark object stealthily approaching him from the direction of the hill. In order to be ready for all possible contingencies he drew and cocked his weapon. The dark object crept nearer and nearer, and as its shape grew more distinct the waiting sportsman saw that it was not that of a man, but of a wild beast.

When within half a dozen yards it sprang straight at him. The rifle flashed, and while the brute was yet in the air the bullet found its mark. The marauder proved to be a splendid specimen of the "tiger wolf," or spotted hyena, and measured three feet six inches without the tail.—Alice Times.

DAIRY NOTES

The Dairyman Not a Beefmaker.

It is not the business of the dairyman to make beef, though some of them seem to think that beef is a by-product of the dairy. It has been shown by figures again and again that the man that tries to produce cows that will be good dairy cows and at the same time furnish a good carcass of beef is sure to make less out of his dairy operations than he would if the opposite course were followed. The men that talk about having a good carcass to the cow, so that it can be sold for beef, must remember that the cow is not likely to be sold for beef till she has finished her career as a dairy cow, and perhaps at the end of ten or fifteen years, and then her flesh would be too tough for good beef no matter what kind of a frame she might have.

Is it to be supposed that any buyer of beef cattle would pay very much for an old tough cow? Would he pay much for a steer that was ten years or more old? The tender beef is what brings a good price, and the tender beef is made on a young carcass. The time element is an important consideration in the making of beef, and the constant practice of beef-makers is to reduce it, putting the beef animal on the market as young an age as possible. The high price of corn makes the fattening of the old cow too expensive to be much of an inducement. Corn now can hardly be bought at any time of year for less than 50 cents per bushel, and that will only make five pounds of beef gain on a steer that is bred from a long line of meat-making ancestors. He will make far more gain than will the old cow. Yet with him every pound of gain made on corn costs ten cents and will have to be sold for half of that. The average old cow would probably make not more than four pounds of gain on a bushel of corn, which would mean a cost of twelve cents per pound, and she would not bring more than four cents per pound in the market, and often not over three.

The disadvantage of trying to make beef from a dairy cow is apparent, and when we consider that a man has paid a good sum every year to carry along the extra weight of carcass, we see that he is sure to lose money in the attempt.

Steam to Put Out Creamery Fires.

W. S. Furnas, secretary of the Dairyman's Mutual Insurance company, sends out a circular of advice to creamery operators in which he says: Arrange your factory so that you can turn steam into all the rooms, and if your factory has an attic be sure and run one pipe up through the ceiling, so you can turn live steam in that part in case the roof catches fire. Fix it so you can turn it on with a valve from below. In case the factory is discovered on fire, keep all the doors and windows closed and do not try to get anything out. It cannot burn, for the steam will keep out all the oxygen and the fire will go out. If the fire is on the roof, fill the rooms just the same and turn the valve so as to let the live steam into the upper part. You should have a ladder so that you can get upon the roof after turning on the steam and closing up all the doors and windows. Arrange so all of the windows can be closed from the outside if necessary.

Of course the fire on the roof needs attention and a few buckets of water handled carefully will soon get the fire under control if used in time. The best way is to have one or two steam pipes on the outside of the building so that you can at any time attach a steam hose long enough to reach any room on the creamery. The end of the hose needs a nozzle on it so you can turn the steam on as needed. Take the end of the hose, get upon the roof and use the steam the same as a stream of water. The small expense this involves will be worth many times its cost on account of the great protection it will throw around your factory.

Build an Icehouse.

Summer is the time to get ready for winter, and now is when the icehouse should be constructed. There are a few things that must be carefully looked after in the construction of this house. One of these is drainage. Good drainage is necessary for if the water rises with the melting of the ice the loss to the ice supply will be very great. Ice melts many times faster in water than in air, and faster in moving air than in air that is held in place by the sawdust or other insulating material.

The walls of the icehouse should be firmly built, as there is danger that they will bulge out if they are not strong. The lateral pressure is not as great as with sludge, but is considerable if the ice is not carefully packed. Sometimes the ice falls apart and lurches to the side of the house, and then the strain is very great. We have seen small ice houses on farms that were only two-thirds filled with ice, because the sides of the house had bulged so the owners were afraid to put in a full supply. Sometimes permanent props may be made, as with the large commercial icehouses. A double air space will help to keep the temperature low and prevent wasting the ice. The house should be as near the cube as possible, as this will give the largest possible space for the least possible material.

Love and Lightning

Lova built a cottage of delight
Where summer blooms were brightening,
But, flash on flash, came lightning bright
And so love fled the lightning!

(Well! Well!
How sad to tell!
But love will not with lightning dwell.)

He passed from all the singing hills
To misty heights—'I wonder!
But—earthquake thunder shook the hills,
And so love fled the thunder!

(Well! Well!
How sad to tell!
But love will not with thunder dwell.)

Then love in deserts made his home
Where not a voice reproved him;
Birds fed him fruits and honeycomb,
And even the lions loved him!

(Well! Well!
How strange to tell!
That love should with the lions dwell.)

THE BELLRINGER'S BY W. D. HOWARD HEROISM

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Jose stood at the window of the bell-ringer's loft of the great cathedral and looked down into the city to the adobe building that marked the spot where lived the one he loved. His thoughts were not altogether pleasant as he viewed the magnificent panorama that was spread out before him. He remembered the incidents of the previous night at his meeting with Anita on the Alameda. How vividly he recalled the conversation that set his brain afire with the possibility of losing her. Could she have meant it when she told him that he was not brave? Did she love Enrique, the commandant of the Rurales? If not, why had she taunted him last night when he urged her to marry him? Had she not told him that it is only the brave who are deserving of the fair, and when he had charged her with being in love with a soldier, had she not confessed that Captain Enrique Bosalez had played bear under her window for many nights?

"Do you love him?" Jose had asked. The only answer was a shrug of the pretty shoulders of his adored one. The hot Latin blood surged through the veins of Jose. Dark thoughts filled his mind. Then came a calmness. He remembered that he was connected with the clergy. To be sure he did not wear the vestments and say the prayers of the good padre whom he served, but he regarded himself as belonging to their class. Was not he the bell-ringer in the great cathedral? Had not his father and his father's father been bell-ringers before him? He would not bring disgrace upon his sacred calling by committing a rash deed. He would give up Anita to the brave commandant. Did she love the captain? That was the question that Jose wished he could answer to his own satisfaction. He could hardly believe that Anita would trifle with any one's affections. She was doubtless honest in her belief that her love was for Captain Enrique and not for poor Jose, the bell-ringer.

Jose had left her the night previous with doubt in his mind as to her love for him. It was now early morning and the chimes of the bells were still echoing in the distance when Jose leaned out of the window of the bell-ringer's loft and breathed deep draughts of the fresh morning air that blew in from the mountains. Did he long to be brave that he might come up to the standard of Anita's thoughts of Captain Enrique? No such thought was in Jose's mind. He did not belong to the recognized class of the brave. That was left to the soldiers. He looked down into the street below and watched the women as they left their homes and hurried silently along and entered the worship room of the great edifice to attend early mass. He knew that Anita would be among them. Many, many mornings had he stood at this same window and watched his loved one as she left her home and wended her way to the cathedral to offer up her daily prayer. Perhaps it was not altogether right and proper, but many love signs had passed between them as she passed along the street below. On this morning there was such a soreness in his

Looked down into the city. heart that he thought only to get a glimpse of her and then he would go back to his task of sounding the chimes over the city. The first rays of the rising sun were just beginning to glint over the mountains and reflect themselves upon the scattered clouds that hung above their tops when Jose saw Anita leave her home and walk towards the place of worship. He welcomed the smiling nod of recognition that she gave to him, her upturned face being to Jose the very light of his existence. Could he give her up? She passed into the portals of the cathedral. Over at the military barracks the reveille was being sounded. Perhaps Captain Enrique would be waiting to receive from Anita a word of love as she entered her home upon her return from her devotions. Dressed in his bright-colored uniform, was it any wonder that Anita lost her heart to the brave commandant, mused Jose.

Suddenly, there was a creaking and crackling sound overhead. The sight that met Jose's eyes when he looked up chilled his heart. The heavy cross piece which had held upright the great bell for these many long years had given way to the ravages of time and wood worms and had broken square in its center. The bell, with its enormous weight, was sagged and swaying and threatening to drop at any moment. In its downward plunge it would land in the very front of the chancel. Its fall would mean the death of probably several worshippers, particularly at that hour. Jose's first thought was to give the alarm. To do

"You are my brave Jose," this he must reach the ground before the bell could fall. There was but one way down, and that was by the ladder that followed the narrow opening directly underneath the great bell. Without a moment's hesitation Jose sprang for the ladder and went down it with the agility of one long experienced in such descents. The safety of the worshippers depended upon his quickness. He had no thought of the danger that threatened his own life. He reached the stairway that led into the large worshiping room when there was a terrific crash above him.

"The great bell has fallen," he cried, "Fly for your lives."
His words of warning caused the worshippers to rush pell-mell from the place, and a moment later, with a crash that shook the old structure, the bell with its enormous weight tore through the narrow opening, bringing down stone and timbers with it and filling the room with dust.

Friendly hands removed the debris from the stunned and torn body of Jose. Anita, dry-eyed and perfectly composed, was at his side giving directions for his care. Taps were being sounded at the military barracks hours later when Jose recovered consciousness. He looked about him in a dazed way. A soft hand stole into his and a voice spoke in accents low and sweet:

"You are my brave Jose."

Perpetrated by Lawson.
Thomas W. Lawson was once visited in his Boston office by a young woman who came laden with all sorts of college diplomas and gilt edge references. It so happened that Mr. Lawson needed a temporary secretary, and engaged her on the spot. When, later in the day, the young lady handed Mr. Lawson a number of letters that he had dictated, they were chiefly remarkable for their hideous orthography. He called the girl's attention to her blunders, whereupon she replied with a giggle:

"Really, now, I think I must have been bewitched."
"Quite so," said Mr. Lawson; "some fairy must have cast a bad spell over you."—Success.

PALACES OF THE SULTAN.

They Bring to Stranger's Mind a Vision of Arabian Nights.

In spite of the extreme lack of architectural beauty, there is a certain picturesqueness and softness in the Constantinople street scene which forms a pleasing background to the stately palaces of the sultan, says A. Maundeville in the Era Magazine. Perhaps it is merely the contrast between the dingy wood-colored houses of the people and the pure white marble or gilded stucco of the royal buildings which bring to the stranger's mind a vision of enchanted palaces of the "Arabian Nights." The soft tints of shade, the wavering reflections in the Bosphorus, the fancy that a pair of black, dreamy eyes may be looking out through the lattice windows, the charm of the mysterious, the horror of the tragedies which rumor says have been enacted within the palace walls, the curiosity to know if there is really a trap-door and just how beautiful was the Circassian slave girl who lost the favor of her imperial master and suddenly disappeared in the dark subterranean stream connecting with the Bosphorus, and a thousand other fancies tend to enhance the vision. And the architect may tell you that the palaces have not the proper proportions, that the details do not harmonize with the size or form, that there are hundreds of private houses in America more magnificent, more durable, of better architectural design and with finer surroundings; but in spite of it all the palaces of the sultan have an irresistible charm which wraps the stranger in intense admiration and always remains with the old resident at the Turkish capital.

FIRES THAT NEVER GO OUT.

Hearths in England Have Been Kept Glowing for Centuries.

There are domestic fires burning in Yorkshire, England, to-day which have never been out for hundreds of years. At the old-fashioned farm-houses in the dales of Yorkshire peat is still burned. The fuel is obtained from the moors and stacks of it are kept by the farmers in their stack garths.

The country round is noted for its "griddle-cakes," which are made from dough baked in quaint pans suspended over the peat fires. These fires are kept glowing from generation to generation and the son warms himself at the fire which warmed his sire and his grandsire and his grandsire's sires and which will warm his son and his son's son.

There is a fire at Castleton in the Whitby district which has been burning for over 200 years. The record probably is held by a farmhouse at Osmotherly, in the same district. This fire has been burning for 500 years, and there are records to show that it has not been out during the last three centuries.

Definite Directions.
Where time is not money, ideas of distance are always uncertain and frequently confusing.

"About how far is it to Gourville?" asked a stranger of a North Carolinian, who sat on the veranda, holding up the front side of the house.

"Two hoots and a look, reckon," was the laconic reply.

"Well, how far is that?" queried the stranger, impatiently.

"Twicet as far as yo' kin holler an' as far as yo' kin see beyond that." "But I'm consumptive, and can't holler at all," urged the traveler.

"How am I to tell anything from such a direction as that?" "Better look twicet an' not holler at all," was the answer. "Gourville ain't wuth hollerin' about nohow!"—Golden Days.

Jes' Lookin' On.
Seems to me, jes' lookin' on, that things is travelin' fast. 'Taint but so easy livin' as in the good old days that's past.

We used to slow up then a while, an' take a little rest, an' An' git a taste of things we folks accounted best. Mebbe I'm a bit too slow for this new century rush. But I long for flowery meadows and the woodland's gentle hush, Away off in the valleys where the flowers softly bloom, Jes' lookin' on, Where there ain't no rush an' hustle an' there's always plenty room.

Seems to me, jes' lookin' on, we are carryin' too much steam; Better hug the shores a while, than get out in the stream; It's safer in the by-ways than along the crowded street, Where you're jostled an' you're hustled by ever one you meet. Mebbe life's to hustle, jes' to always race for gold, But there's better things for nothin' that can't be bought or sold; Ain't so long to be here, if you goin' to take you better give, An' seems to me, jes' lookin' on, that's the better way to live. —Tommy Hawk, in New York Press.

Realist and Romanticist.

A recent interviewer of Dr. Henry Van Dyke discovered among his treasures a photograph of Rudyard Kipling upon which Kipling had written this odd aphorism: "As a matter of cold fact, the man who calls himself a realist is in the nature of things a libelous and unconvincing romanticist; where as the man who, admitting all, men are liars, joyously sets out to write accordingly is the only real realist."—is so because human nature is contrarious.

Her Come-Back.

"Well, madame," shouted Mr. Jawback, triumphantly, as he entered the house with an idea of vengeance in his brain, "your goose is cooked." "Good gracious, my dear," cried Mrs. Jawback, anxiously, "I know this weather is frightfully warm, but do you feel so bad as that? Cooked is a strong expression. Shall I get you a drink of lemonade, or put some crackled ice on your head?"—Cleveland Leader.

Gem of Sunny Spain

(Special Correspondence.)

Seville, one of the ancient capital cities of Spain, the seat successively of Phoenician, Roman, Gothic, Moorish and Spanish rulers, is one of the most charming of places for the idler who wishes to see Spanish life at its best.

Its climate is warm and delightful. Flowers bloom in its gardens almost the year round. The oranges of Seville are esteemed as among the finest produced in the old world.

Its people are hospitable—"sympatico," as the Spanish call any one taking a kindly interest in another—indolent and gay. They enjoy life as only a southern Spaniard can, taking profound pleasure in sociability, in singing their national songs, in playing the guitar, and in dancing. They are as care-free as any people one may meet in Spain, and though the life of their city has not the bubbling exuberance of that in southern Italy, it is bright enough to win for Seville the character of a joyous place.

The Spanish have a proverb that "He who has seen Seville has seen a marvel." They are proud of the city, of its antiquity, the character of its people, and the beauty of its daughters.

The houses of Seville are very old, some of them dating from the Moorish period. It is a place of quaint doorways, odd windows, charming patios, and other characteristic architectural features of southern Spain. It is the home of the cloaked gallant singing a serenade at his lady's balcony to the accompaniment of his guitar, or standing in the shadow, by her barred window, whispering sweet nothings in her ear. It is the custom of Seville to have courting conducted thus, and lovers are jocularly called "eaters of iron."

Home of the Bullfight.

To the casual traveler Seville presents, besides the charm of its life, some attractions of more than ordinary interest. It is the home of the bullfight, and holds the finest fights in the country, except possibly those at Madrid, which are under the patronage of royalty. It is also, to the other extreme of the list, famous as the birthplace and home of the great painter Murillo. Its public buildings are beautiful, and their traditions go back to the days of Julius Caesar's residence in the city, which he ruled for Rome.

Seville, like most Spanish cities, has one distinguishing object of more interest than all others. It is the Giralda tower, one of the finest in the world, whose beautiful proportions rise grandly above the city's roofs. The tower was erected in 1196, and was consecrated by the Moors to use as a muezzin tower, from which the faithful were called to prayer in the adjoining mosque. When driven out of Seville, in 1238 the followers of Mahomet wished to destroy this tower, rather than have it fall into the hands of Christians. Their purpose was happily thwarted, and one of the most striking architectural features of Spain preserved. It was not improved, however, by being incorporated into the cathedral, or by the belfry added to it. The original tower was 250 feet high. It is 50 feet square at the base. The material is stone for the lower 87 feet, and above that brick, relieved by tracery and arabesques. The color of the tower is pink. It contains no staircase, the ascent to the top being made up inclined planes, thirty-five in number.

Ornaments of the Tower.

In the days of the Moors there ornamented the top of the tower four brass balls, cast by a celebrated alchemist, a native of Sicily, to the order of the Moorish rulers. They were so large that the keystone of the arch in the entrance had to be removed to get them in. The iron bar which supported them weighed half a ton. This strange ornament is said to have cost $200,000. It was thrown from the tower by an earthquake in 1395, 157 years after the Moors were driven from Seville, and was never replaced.

There are now in the tower of the Giralda a chime of sweet bells, twenty-two in number, which ring every afternoon at 3 o'clock. The largest is called Santa Maria and weighs eighteen tons. The clock in the tower replaced one that was the first ever set up in Spain, installed in 1400 A. D. The figure crowning the tower is of bronze, and is known as El Giraldo. The tower takes its name from this figure, which is a weather vane revolving in the wind, the Spanish word "to turn" being "girar." The figure weighs 2,500 pounds, and is fourteen feet high. It was cast in 1568.

Superb View of the City.

A superb view may be obtained from the belfry of the Giralda tower, embracing the city with its red-tiled roofs, its white walls and its beautiful gardens; the river Guadalquivir; the rich country down the valley, and the hills rising in amethyst ranges eastward toward the heart of Andalusia. The Giralda tower has a counterpart in the tower of Madison Square garden in New York, which, while not an exact copy, is in the same style.

The cathedral of Seville, though very large, would not be notable architecturally without its famous Giralda tower. The chief objects of interest in it, for the ordinary traveler, are several superb paintings by Murillo and the tomb of Christopher Columbus' son Fernando. In a room in the ancient mosque near by, a part of which only has been preserved, is the library of Fernando, containing many of his father's books.

How Reed Helped His Friend.

An important political meeting, to nominate one of the county officials, took place in a small town near Portland, Me., in the fall of 1886. "Tom" Reed came home from Washington to help his friend Mr. Carlton, one of the candidates. The nominating committee consisted of thirteen citizens, of whom six were for Mr. Carlton and seven for Mr. Grover, the other candidate. Two of the seven Grover men were named Smith. Mr. Reed heard of this when he arrived in town. The vote had to be taken that night, and Mr. Reed thought of a way to help his friend.

Just before voting time he sent a messenger in great haste to the committee rooms with orders to deliver the following message, and hurry away: "Mr. Smith is wanted at home immediately." Of course, both Smiths rushed to their homes. The vote was

ODD CUSTOM IN MOROCCO.

Estates of Fallen Favorites Invariably Confiscated.

It is a custom in Morocco that all the property of an official reverts at his death to the crown. The logic which leads to such results is simple, for the government argues that all fortunes thus accumulated consist of moneys illegally retained by the authorities. A governor when appointed is probably possessed of no considerable fortune. When he dies he may be a millionaire. Whence came this wealth? Squeezed most certainly from the tribes under his authority, and therefore amassed only by the prerogatives of the position in which the Sultan had placed him.

It has never struck the Moorish government that these great fortunes might more honorably be returned to the people from whom they were stolen. The result is entire confiscation to the crown, including often such private property as the governor may have been possessor of before his appointment.

When the mighty fall in Morocco the crash brings down with them their families, even uncles and cousins, and all connected with them, and it is not seldom that the sons of great governors, who have been brought up in the luxury of slaves and horses and retinues of mounted men, have to go begging in the streets.

LUNAR RAINBOW IN GEORGIA.

Unusual Phenomenon Reported to the Scientific American.

A curious and unusual phenomenon, in the form of a rainbow for which the moon instead of the sun furnished the light, was observed here on the night of June 19.

A heavy rainstorm, accompanied by considerable thunder, occurred just before moonrise. As the clouds retired to the west the luminary rose and the bow was first observed, only the extremities for about 25 degrees being visible, the moon at that time being concealed behind a small cloud. For about twenty minutes the bow increased in brightness, and at the end of that time could be clearly traced throughout its entire length. At each end the red and blue colors could be plainly distinguished, but the remainder of the arc showed only as a light streak across the clouds.

The conditions for the phenomenon were almost ideal, the moon being but a few days past full, the cloud screen occupying the proper position, and, as it occurred just at moonrise, the bow was seen well up in the heavens. After the clouds had almost entirely melted away, leaving only a slight haze through which the stars shone portions of the bow could still be clearly discerned.—Poulan correspondence Scientific American.

Turkish Coffee Setters.

A familiar figure in Turkish cities. He wears a yoke, one end of which supports a furnace, the other a coffee urn, cups, etc. The broken statue means that the photograph was taken in Angora, "where the cats come from," in Asia Minor. Under the name of Angora it was a flourishing city in the time of Julius Caesar. It has only recently been connected with Constantinople by a railway.

Accident Restored Speech.

A remarkable case of a bicycle accident restoring the power of speech to a man who has been dumb for five years, has occurred at Brockhurst, near Portsmouth, England. Jack Moore served with the 16th Lancers in the South African war, and was invalided home after an attack of enteric fever, which deprived him of his power of speech. When returning from work the other night, his bicycle skidded, and in the excitement of the mishap, he was astonished to find himself able to make an ejaculation. His recovery of speech is now perfect, though four operations to restore it had failed.

Ladies' Hats a la Hamburg.

An unusually brilliant bird in a young lady's hat attracted attention in a street car in Hamburg. Some spectators denounced the cruelty of killing these innocent creatures. Others criticised the pose and the arrangement of the plumage as unnatural. On reaching home the intelligent fowl (which happened to be a real one, and had settled on the hat absent-mindedly) flew off and roosted on the furniture. The girl had trained it to come in to her whistle. As it suits her complexion charmingly she intends wearing it with each of her hats in turn.—London Globe.

Made Pets of Partridges.

A partridge and her ten children are attracting many to drive along a certain road at Otis, Me., where she with her family may be found at any time. There is no shyness in the brood. One baby partridge was caught, petted and named and let go, to come again when its name is called.

taken up in tiny tucks in front and back. The addition of a snub fastening with little rosettes where the tucks end is quite a pretty idea, although a belt or a strap similar to that on the shoulder would be as effective on wash dresses.

THE CHUTES

Chicago's Most Popular Public Park
In the wonderful life of Chicago nothing is of more interest than The Chutes. This brilliantly lighted, flag-enshrouded park at Jackson Boulevard and Kedzie Avenue is an ideal resort for gay throngs. Within its enclosure the "Velvet Coaster" gives thrilling mid-air rides. High overhead a marvelous flying machine offers hazardous adventures to the multitude. "Shooting the Chutes" is a Chicago habit. Passengers go skyward on a gigantic steel structure. At a dizzy height gondolas start down a steep declivity over which rush cascades like the famous falls of Lodore.

The gay craft descend with the speed of the winds to the bosom of an artificial lake where they dash swiftly forward on foam-crested waves to a placid harbor.

While Weldon's big military band fills the park with music, rubber wheel cars laden with shouting, laughing merry-makers descend on undulating tracks like noiseless phantoms from a distant planet.

High overhead fly the machings of the Aerostat at a rate of 100 miles an hour. Were these devices not enough to delight, there are the Mystic Hill, an enchanted waterway, with boats that speed by "poppy fields" and "hanging gardens" peopled with fairies and genies; through a phantom "Zoo" that weirdly vanishes and strangely reappears; past a miniature world's fair; a haunted house that turns up-side-down; a mystifying radium cavern; "Psyche at the Well"; laughing gallery of comical anatomorphoses; electric theatre; motion pictures, Katzenjammer Castle, Figure Eight Toboggan, "Baby" railroad, double whirl, merry-go-rounds, giant carousels, Helter-Skelter, temples of palmistry, fortune-telling and clairvoyance, Japanese daylight fire-works, pyrotechnics by night and a thousand other devices. Seated in cool pavilions under a canopy of fluttering flags and myriads of vari-colored lights, patrons enjoy open air concerts and all these gay activities. For access to this world of amusement only ten-cents is charged. All street cars transfer to the Chutes for one fare.

Briefs of the Week

"A Royal Slave."
Labor Day we celebrate.
Polmatier Sisters next month.
Charlevoix Co. Fair, Sept. 25, 27, 28.
East Jordan Gun Club Tournament
Aug. 31st, Sept. 1st.

Quite a number from here took in the Bonion at Kaska this week.
Try one of our Charles-Denby Cigars, the finest smoke in town, at Coy's.
Mrs. John Boosinger is guest of her parents and friends at Mt. Pleasant.

Empy Brothers opening is near at hand. They will have some fine values.

Ira D. Bartlett was at Mackinaw, Cheboygan and other northern points the past week.

We have the finest line of Pipsas and Smokers sundries ever shown in East Jordan at prices to suit all purses. Coy's.

Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Dicken are receiving a visit from the former's father, Wm. L., and sisters, Miss Carrie L. and Mrs. J. B. Reed all of Ann Arbor.

The marriage of Joseph Anderson and Miss Campbell took place at Petoskey, Tuesday. Both are well known here, the lady being a former school teacher of our city.

Something new—between two of the acts of "A Royal Slave," the change of the stage setting will be made with drop curtain up, in full view of the audience. Very few patrons of the theatre realize the work that is done on the stage between acts, and this will prove an interesting feature.

There is a decided coolness between an East Jordan man and his wife. In discussing the Bible the other day the woman said she believed the story that the whale swallowed Jonah, and the one about Daniel in the lion's den, etc. The man is mad because she believes those big stories and will not believe the little ones he tells her.

The Michigan State Fair will be held at Detroit September 11 to 16. Besides the usual exhibits, special attractions have been secured in the shape of fireworks, an exhibition and flight of the Knabenshue air ship and others. The Fall of Port Arthur will be given for five evenings. Races will be the special feature during the afternoons, a ladies' driving on Friday and a ladies' riding on Saturday being numbered among the events. Half-fare rates, plus fifty cents for admission, will be given from all points on the lower peninsula. Tickets sold from September 11 to 16 inclusive, good for return on September 17.

"A Royal Slave" is not a stranger to local patrons of the Opera House, and is one of that class of attractions which one can see several times and not tire of. This play is presented in the larger towns year after year and some times several times during a single season—it is so unlike the usual run-of-plays that it is always interesting and refreshing. The scenery, costumes, characters, and the story are all so different from the ordinary that one feels, when the final curtain falls, that they have been in another land and have formed new ideas as well as having had a beautiful lesson impressed upon them.

Arthur Warne is at Chicago.

Gasoline-Flour—In case of gasoline fire dash flour over the flames and it will extinguish it promptly. Don't use water as it makes the fire spread.

When a woman sits up for her husband, she never gets sleepy, no matter how late he stays, if she has made up her mind to give him a scolding.

Not a cent wanted, unless you are cured. If you are sick and ailing, take Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. A great blessing to the human family. Makes you well—keeps you well. 35 cents. Tea or Tablets. WARNE'S PHARMACY.

The play which deals with life in Old Mexico is out of the ordinary run of melo-dramas, and gives the scenic artist, wonderful scope for some very elaborate scenic effects. This will be one of the very best attractions that Manager Loveday will offer this season and he is looking forward to a well filled house.

Thousands of Women ARE MADE WELL AND STRONG

Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Rests Upon the Fact that It Really Does Make Sick Women Well

Thousands upon thousands of American women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Their letters are on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office, and prove this statement to be a fact and not a mere boast.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine, and compared with it all other medicines and treatments for women are experiments.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished its widespread results for good? Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of a century?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has even approached its success is plainly and positively because there is no other medicine in the world so good for women's ills.

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womanhood is not because it is a stimulant—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered. It acts directly upon the uterine system, positively curing disease and displacements and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures, and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due. If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it will effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, belching, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration, or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Anyway, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It's free and always helpful.

FOR MEN OF BRAINS

PRIZES WORTH HAVING OFFERED BY GOVERNMENTS.

Who Has a Scheme for the Eradication of the Cactus in Queensland?—Find an Alloy in Diamond Cutting That is Without Danger to Health.

Many persons, no doubt, will conclude that there is practically no chance of securing such desirable prizes as the large sums of money—five prizes each worth £2,000—offered by the Nobel bequest, where it is absolutely needful to have attainments of both a learned and brilliant nature; yet, says Tit Bits, a study of the following particulars of prizes which are being offered to-day will show that there are other splendid opportunities well within the scope of most people.

Among the many varieties of cactus there is one which is known as 'the prickly pear'; it is a rather attractive looking plant, but its leaves are covered with hair sharp enough to pierce the hands of any one who is so rash as to touch it. The plant came originally from America, but after it was introduced in some manner or other into Queensland it spread so rapidly and to such an extent that in some districts it has practically destroyed all other vegetation.—The Queensland government is still offering a reward of £5,000 to any one who can devise a method by which it can be completely eradicated.

The British consul at Palermo not long since sent a dispatch to the Foreign Office containing information regarding a premium of £2,000 that the municipality of Catania is offering. In order to encourage local industrial enterprise this sum is to be awarded to the individual who establishes some new industry in the town.—This trade is to be of such a nature that it will employ not fewer than 100 workmen. A further £1,000 will be paid for every additional fifty hands that are afterward employed. These sums would be payable at the end of the year in five equal instalments.

Five hundred pounds is to be obtained from the government of Holland. As most people are aware, the Dutch are the most expert diamond cutters in the world, but in this diamond cutting it is necessary to use an alloy which is dangerous to health. Is it possible to find a method of doing without the aid of this alloy?

Again, to turn to a very different source of money making by competition, there is £500 being offered by the well known firm of Ricordi & Co. in order to encourage English opera that firm has offered this prize to be competed for by English subjects alone, and has guaranteed to produce the successful work at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. M. Massenet has already been secured as one of the adjudicators.

Women can gain a prize of £200 which is being offered by the Women's Institute of Science at Naples; it is to be given for the best work on any subject of scientific research, but it must be based on independent laboratory experiments.

Another interesting subject is "The best, least irksome, and least costly method of securing the male abled-bodied youth of this country for service in the regular or auxiliary forces as existing, and for expanding these forces in the time of war." For the three best essays dealing with these topics the Royal United Service Institution offers prizes consisting of 100 guineas, 30 guineas and 10 guineas.

Josiah Quincy and Nathan, Jr.

When Josiah Quincy was mayor of Boston a well-known politician christened his youngest boy Josiah Quincy Rosnosky. He had named his preceding son Nathan Matthews, after another Democratic mayor, and had this child with him when he called on Mr. Quincy and told how he had honored him.

"What is your name?" asked Mayor Quincy of the boy.

"I'm named after Nathan Matthews, Jr., replied the boy. And then he added, as if he had said it often: "He was the best mayor Boston ever had."

Everybody laughed except Mr. Quincy, who never does such a thing.

"Oh, well," remarked Mr. Quincy, when the merriment subsided, "just wait until Josiah Quincy Rosnosky is old enough to talk."

We Must Have Room to Grow!

Whether in peace the country rests, Or furious tempests howl,
As sure as death and taxes
We must have room to grow!
At this and that—
Where'er we're at,
We must have room to grow!

No Rockefeller's millions,
That make the churchmen scowl,
Can tempt us to be quiet—
We must have room to grow!
Winter, or May,
It's just that way—
We must have room to grow!

When the sweet birds are singing—
Grim Trouble wears his crown;
Bells in the blossoms ringing—
We must have room to grow!
God give you grace,
O growing race!
God give you room to grow!
—Atlanta Constitution.

Veteran Statesman Dead.

Judge Amasa B. Cobb, who died a few days ago at Los Angeles at the age of 82, was speaker of the Wisconsin assembly when the civil war was declared, served in congress throughout the war, was chairman of the house committee on enrolled bills and carried every measure originating in the house, and passed to Abraham Lincoln. He organized the famous Fifth Wisconsin volunteer infantry and led it through most of its campaign. Since the war he has for twenty years served on the supreme bench of the state of Nebraska, for four years of the time as chief justice.

GRATEFUL TO CUTICURA

For Instant Relief and Speedy Cure of Raw and Scaly Humour, Itching Day and Night—Suffered Months.

"I wish you would publish this letter so that others suffering as I have may be helped. For months awful sores covered my face and neck, scabs forming, itching terribly day and night, breaking open, and running blood and matter. I had tried many remedies, but was growing worse, when I started with Cuticura. The first application gave me instant relief, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured.—(signed) Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, Lakeside, N. Y."

Celery is Cultivated Weed.

Celery is the cultivated variety of the English weed smallage. It was introduced into kitchen gardens in England about the time of the Reformation, by some Italians, who gave it the Italian name "celleri."

Stop Babies' Tears.

Ninety per cent of babies' troubles are caused by disordered stomach or bowels. They can all be quickly cured by a few doses of that great digestive medicine, Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin. It digests curdled milk, sweetens the breath, reduces fever and relieves pain. Absolutely harmless to mother or child. Sure relief in teething. Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1. Money back if it fails.

The Russian Conscience.

In Carl Joubert's "Russia as It Really Is" the author gives the following anecdote: "A Jewish peddler of Grodno dealt in pirrogs (meat pies), and two hungry muzhiks traveling in the third-class railroad car with him were so overpowered by the appetizing odor of his wares that, not having money to buy them, they slew the Jew without further ado and threw the body out of the window. They were apprehended and to the astonishment of the pristav (police sergeant), the whole supply of pies was found intact. 'Why did you not eat the pirrogs and throw the basket away?' asked the pristav. 'You forget,' said one of the muzhiks, 'that to-day is Friday and it is not allowed to eat meat.'"

German Author Fond of America.

It was a peculiarity of the late Balduin Mollhausen that in nearly all his novels the scene is placed partly in Germany, partly in America. He was extremely prolific, his stories and travel sketches making up nearly two hundred volumes. He spent many years in the western prairies and the Rocky mountains before he became librarian at Potsdam. To the last he kept his enthusiasm for the west. He left to a Berlin museum four albums containing pictures of America, "as one who will ever again see it."

Turkish Mail Service.

Postal conditions in the interior of Turkey are still in a patriarchal stage of evolution. When a postman arrives in a village, on muleback, he distributes the letters in a public place, giving each his own, and then putting the undelivered ones in the hands of relatives or acquaintances of those to whom they are addressed. Yet it is said that 99 per cent reach their destination.

Nitric Acid Restores Life.

The shock of being sprinkled with a solution of nitric acid in mistake for holy water restored to normal health Mme. Valthaire of Aabe, France, who was lying, as was supposed, on her deathbed.

ME TOO

The "Tall Enders" That Follow Genuine Articles.

It is sometimes interesting to watch the curves imitators make to get the public to buy imitations of genuine goods.

Every now and then some one will think there is a splendid opening to fix up something like Postum Coffee and advertise the same way and take some of the business.

An imitator is naturally ignorant of food values and how to skillfully make a cereal coffee, on scientific lines.

Such men first think of preparing something that looks and tastes like the original, with no knowledge of how the grains should be treated to prepare them so that the starchy part is transformed properly and the valuable nourishing elements made digestible.

Such imitations may be foisted on the public for a short time, but the people are critical and soon detect the attempt, then the imitators go out of business.

Something like 400 of these little factories have been started in various parts of this country in the past 3 years, and practically all of them have gone the "long journey." Just lately a new one has come to life and evidently hopes to insert itself in public favor by copying the style of the Postum advertising in the papers.

The Secret of Good Coffee

Even the best housekeepers cannot make a good cup of coffee without good material. Dirty, adulterated and queerly blended coffee such as unscrupulous dealers shovel over their counters won't do. But take the pure, clean, natural flavored LION COFFEE, the leader of all package coffees—the coffee that for over a quarter of a century has been daily welcomed in millions of homes—and you will make a drink fit for a king in this way:

HOW TO MAKE GOOD COFFEE.

Use LION COFFEE, because to get best results you must use the best coffee. Grind your LION COFFEE rather fine. Use 1/2 tablespoonful to each cup, and one extra for the pot. First mix it with a little cold water, enough to make a thick paste, and add white of an egg (if egg is to be used as a settler), then follow one of the following rules:

1st. WITH BOILING WATER. Add boiling water, and let it boil THREE MINUTES ONLY. Add a little cold water and set aside five minutes to settle. Serve promptly.

2d. WITH COLD WATER. Add your cold water to the paste and bring it to a boil. Then set aside, add a little cold water, and in five minutes it's ready to serve.

3. Don't boil it too long. Don't let it stand more than ten minutes before serving. DON'T use water that has been boiled before.

TWO WAYS TO SETTLE COFFEE.

1st. With Eggs. Use part of the white of an egg, mixing it with the ground LION COFFEE before boiling.

2d. With Cold Water instead of eggs. After boiling add a dash of cold water, and set aside for eight or ten minutes, then serve through a strainer.

Insist on getting a package of genuine LION COFFEE, prepare it according to this recipe and you will only use LION COFFEE in future. (Sold only in 1 lb. sealed packages.) (Lion-head on every package.) (Save these Lion-heads for valuable premiums.)

WASHINGTON LETTER
 [Special Correspondence.]
 "Before the summer is over in Washington those who are acquainted with Senator Charles Dick of Ohio may expect to see him blossom forth wearing one of the finest Panama hats, with possibly few exceptions, ever brought to the United States," said Consul General Dietrich of Guayaquil, Ecuador, who is in the national capital on leave.
 "Early in the year," continued Mr. Dietrich, "I received a letter from Senator Dick requesting me to order for him the very finest Panama straw that could be made. However, the senator was not explicit in his request, falling to give the size, and I also did not care to proceed for that reason as well as because I feared he was not aware what such a hat would cost. Therefore I wrote him, stating that such a hat would cost him at least $130 and would require several months to construct it. Senator Dick replied not to worry about the cost and gave the dimensions of the desired headgear. I at once placed the order, and when I left Guayaquil the weaving of the hat was well under way and will probably be completed in season to adorn the Jovellike head of the junior senator from Ohio about the time the hottest weather is upon us."

A Rug Weaving Fad.
 The newest and most fashionable fad among the women of Washington, in which not only "society" is engaged, but "the outs" as well, is the weaving of rugs and carpets—exactly like those that our grandmothers used to make, except that they unpoetically but truly characterized theirs as "rag" carpets. Now, however, it is customary to call the fashionable product "souvenir rugs," or "handmade carpets." The pretty daughters of Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island began it early last winter, and all the belles have contracted the craze—not only the daughters of resident first families, but also those who are only temporarily in the national capital. Indeed the fad seems to rage most virulently among the aristocratic "old Washingtonians," who look down from immeasurable heights upon the giddy throng brought here by the exigencies of politics.

Duluth to Have the Fern.
 Representative Bede of Minnesota and Guy A. Eaton, commander of the naval militia at Duluth, were in Washington recently to see about the gunboat Fern. The navy department some time ago turned the Fern, which was formerly used by the naval battalion of the District, over to the Duluth naval militia, but would not make any repairs or deliver the vessel. These facts occasioned surprise, as it was thought that the navy would at least send the vessel to Duluth.
 Commander Eaton is here to arrange for the completion of the repairs, which are being made in a shipyard at Norfolk at a cost of about $4,000 and to have the vessel taken to Duluth, which will cost about $1,000. It is not expected that the navy department will ask for the return of the vessel and that it will pass permanently into the hands of the Duluth jacksies.

The Capital Invaded.
 The insect pests that annually prey upon the shade trees of the national capital are beginning to make their appearance in formidable numbers, and before long the traces of their depredations will be in evidence all over the city. There is a grain of consolation, however, in the fact that of the three kinds of insects that annually do the greatest amount of damage to the trees of Washington—which constitute one of the city's chief claims to nearness to the sea—the fall webworm appears to have made a good start. The other two, the imported leaf beetle and the white marked tussock moth, are apparently having an off year, although it is yet a trifle early to predict with any degree of certainty that they will not later join the ranks of the invaders.

Germany to Build Embassy.
 The German government has purchased a splendid site for its embassy here opposite the property of the new French embassy overlooking Sheridan circle in S street, in the northwest section of the city. The property, which is shaded by magnificent trees and rises to a great height above the street, measures about 300 by 195 feet. On this site will be erected a splendid stone structure of the style of Frederick the Great, reproducing perhaps in general outline the famous Sans Souci castle or the new castle in Potsdam.

To Spend Summer Abroad.
 The Ambassador and the Baroness Speck von Sternburg have left for Germany, to be gone for three months. The greater part of his leave the ambassador will spend on his estates in Saxony. He will return to his post in October. The German embassy will be established in Lenox for the summer, with Baron von Dem Busche Haddenhausen, first secretary and counselor, as charge d'affaires.

Squirrels at the White House.
 Squirrels are of comparatively recent date in the White House grounds. They first began making their homes there four or five years ago. Across Pennsylvania avenue—in Lafayette park the squirrels have become so tame that they will get within grasping distance. The same is true of the capitol grounds, where the little animals are often fed by visitors and where they have learned to be angry if a visitor does not present them with something that is appetizing. Only last summer a visitor was badly bitten on the neck, ears and face by an angry gray squirrel in the capitol grounds. This visitor had teased the squirrel by pretending to have some food and had then tried to capture it. When he turned around to walk away the squirrel dashed upon his back and bit him a number of times.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
 stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and the poisonous waste matter is carried by the circulation to every part of the body, causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.
 If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder Trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.
How to Find Out.
 You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased, and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.
