Fair Next Week.

Charlevoix County Fair is to be a Winner.

The coming week will without doubt witness the most successful County Fair that Charlevoix has ever enjoyed. Everything is in readiness, horses are being tried out on the race track and the list of exhibit entries are growing each day. President Jacob Graff and Secretary LeRoy Sherman have been steadily at work all the week on the numerous details and when the gates open Tuesday for the Twenty-first Annual Exhibit everything will be in readiness to entertain the thousands who will be here.

Among the excellent attractions will be the band music, furnished by the best band in Northern Michigan, viz: East Jordan Military Band. One of the evenings (probably Wednesday) the Band will give their torch-light drill, which is receiving such high praise wherever they go.

To those who like a good show, Loveday Opera House will open the three evenings with excellent attractions.

The track events will be the best given for some time as a number of excellent horses are entered. Below is program of races:

Tuesday, Sept. 26th:—Pony Race, all horses under 800 lbs., Purse, $15.00; Horse driving nearest to three minutes, Purse $15.00.

Wednesday, Sept. 27th:—2:45 Class. Trot or pace, purse $100.00; 2:15 Class. Trot or pace, purse $150.00; Farmers' Race, purse $25.00; Three-mile Automobile Race, purse $100.00.

Thursday, Sept. 28th:—2:30 Class. Trot or pace, purse $100.00; Free-for-all, purse $ 50.00; Novelty Race: 1/2 mile walk; 1/2 mile trot; 1/2 mile go-as-you-please, purse $15.00.

The Premium Lists, published by The Herald, are now pretty thoroughly distributed. Those who have not received one can obtain same either of Secretary LeRoy Sherman or by applying at this office. Through an error, part of Division J was omitted from part of the books. Those who have books not containing an errata slip can obtain same of above parties.

Among the new laws of Michigan which went into effect Saturday are the negotiable act abolishing the days of grace and providing for uniform procedure in Michigan in giving and collecting negotiable paper; according to the laws of several adjoining states; the new truancy law providing that deputy sheriffs shall exercise the powers of truant officers and that the school age shall be 16 to 17 years; the new law providing for juvenile courts; and the law providing for the examining and licensing of accountants.

Mary had a little lamb; that time has passed away. No lamb could follow up the gate that Mary goes today. For now she rides on astrad wheels in skirts too short by half; no lambkin shares her airy flight, but you can see her calf. But is there one who can complain or cry in woe, "Alas!" so long as Mary's calf's all right the lamb can go to grass. So all the men delight to gaze, their joy is not a sham, for while the other critter's out they have no use for lamb.

The lady who brings the best loaf of bread made from Cream of Wheat Flour to the East Jordan Fair will receive 100 pounds of the flour free. See page 33 of Premium List. Cream of Wheat Flour is sold by all dealers in East Jordan.

Croup is quickly relieved, and Whooping Cough will not run its course, if you use the original Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar. This Cough Syrup is different from all others because it acts on the bowels. You can not cure Croup and Whooping Cough until you rid the system of all congestion, by working off the cold through a copious action of the bowels. Bee's Laxative Honey and Tar does this, and cures all Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, etc. No opiates. Sold by Warner's Pharmacy

Bride of Death.

Awaited Ed. Miles early Monday morning

Ed. Miles was instantly killed by taking hold of the circuit breakers of the switch board at East Jordan Electric Power House No. 1, Monday morning. He came into the plant about 1:00 o'clock in company with Louis Hammond and after assisting the electrician in charge—Victor LeCroix—in hauling in several wheelbarrow loads of wood, began to look over the plant and inquired "Where he could get a jolt." LeCroix responded by saying that he could get one most anywhere, and warned him several times to leave things alone. Hammond also cautioned him to keep away from the machinery. They were in the engine room. LeCroix turned to attend to his work and Hammond's attention was elsewhere. There was a flash and the engineer turning saw that Miles had deliberately walked inside of the railing guarding the switch board, raised his hands above his head and, with both hands, firmly grasped the circuit breakers. Death was instantaneous. His hands were froze to the breakers and fire was streaming from both thumbs. Le Croix ran up to him and with gloved hands pulled him from the board. His body was limp and there was not a sign of agony on his face. In pulling the body away some of the flesh of the thumbs remained on the circuit-breakers. He had received an alternating current of 2000 volts for the better part of a minute. LeCroix carried the body to open air and Hammond summoned Dr. Foster. Supt. Plank was also telephoned for and upon his arrival Coroner Dr. Sweet was called. The body was then removed to Whittington's Undertaking establishment.

The unfortunate man was aged about 34 years and leaves a wife and child with whom he had not been living for some time. He resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Miles. Funeral services took place Wednesday morning from the house Rev. C. T. Stout officiating. Burial was made in East Jordan Cemetery.

Deceased carried an insurance policy in the Workingmen's Benevolent Society of Benton Harbor for the sum of $300.

Supt. Plank and assistants have used utmost care at all times to prevent accident of such a nature. Both plants are placarded, and all employees are constantly warning visitors of the extreme risk in getting anywhere near the machinery. In addition to this, the particularly dangerous parts are protected by railings.

The shirt-waist man and net-waist girl go hand in hand today, and the people year after year go on throwing their clothes away. The coat and the vest are laid to rest and where is the fleecy shawl? And the clothes get fewer and thinner—what will be the end of it all? Oh, what will the shirt-waist man take next from the things he has to wear? And what will the net-waist girl throw off of her shoulders now half bare? The shirt-waist man and the net-waist girl go rolling down the way. Have we started a trend that's going to end in the old fig leaf some day?

CHAPTER XIX.

First Night in the Haunted House.

The interior of the "Haunted House," with the exception of the front room, was in fair order. There were six rooms in all, quite comfortably furnished; and the kitchen was well stocked with utensils and provisions. Upon entering the place the first thing to do was to light the lamps in every room; then to open up the prison door and allow Dr. Huntington and his daughter to remain a while in conversation. While these two were consoling, Lang and Wilson explored the house.

"Wilson," said Lang, after satisfying himself that there was no one within hearing. "You understand why I married Pearl Huntington. I married her because I wished to keep her from the hands of Schiller, and to protect her from insult. Have I acted the man?"

"You certainly have, Lang," said Wilson.

"If I have done right, I want your help to continue to do so. In order to enlist your sympathies with me I am going to make a confidant of you. I am going to place my life in your keeping."

"You can trust me," simply replied Wilson, and he meant it.

In a few words as possible Lang enlightened Wilson on the fact that there was a tunnel under the house, besides telling him, by way of settling any fears he might have on the subject, that the house was not haunted, but that its reputation had been given it by Golden as a means of hiding the entrance.

"What," cried Wilson, "a tunnel? I have been here for years, and have sounded every part of the ground, and have never discovered it!"

"Such is the truth, however. I by heavy rings of black. The strong man was trembling as if in the throes of ague. He was sitting by the window, and Pearl was kneeling at his feet. The doctor rose to his feet when Louis entered the room.

"You are the husband of my daughter?" the doctor asked in an agitated voice.

"I am that man," said Louis, respectfully. He was struck by the sight of so much misery, and pity lent tenderness to his tone. "But do not misunderstand my motive," he added, to reassure the hapless prisoner. "I did not marry your daughter to take advantage of her weakness nor of yours! I married her, not because I loved her, but because her case appealed to my sense of honor, and because I wished to protect her from the violence of an unscrupulous scoundrel!"

"What are your intentions concerning my daughter?" the doctor asked.

"My intentions are honorable ones. She can bear my name—it is not an honorable one in the sight of such as you—but in this case, it is a protection against insult; and while I live you can rest content that I will avenge her honor."

"You speak manly enough," replied the doctor, "but I cannot quite understand why you do this. If you were actuated by emotions akin to love or revenge, for instance, I could see through it."

"You forget, 'pity,' Dr. Huntington. I feel for you and your daughter. You do not know me, but I heard of your case before I saw you. I have been a hard man—I have done many things to be ashamed of in my time; but I have resolved to atone for my sins, and I do not mean to see you and yours creatures in the hands of such a man as Schiller. I could explain my motive satisfactorily to you, if I

"Good night, and pleasant dreams!" said Pearl.

Dr. Schiller, though appearing to submit gracefully to the will of the people, was far from intending to let the matter drop and foregoing his revenge. Dr. Huntington, in the opinion of Schiller, had inflicted a wrong upon him that could not be wiped out in an easy manner. Now that Schiller had Huntington in his power, it is reasonable to suppose that he would not be content with simply inflicting bodily harm upon his victim. Huntington must pay the penalty in the same manner that he himself had paid it—the brain must suffer as well as the body.

Lang had made many friends through Golden's recital of his history. Louis had roused admiration for himself by defending Wilson, who was a general favorite, and in marrying Pearl in the face of the king's threat, he had shown himself almost devoid of fear. Schiller could not understand Lang—a conundrum—and the king meant to bring some charge against him, in which, in inflicting extreme punishment upon him, he would seem justified.

Before retiring for the night, while the stigma of disgrace and sting of defeat was strong upon him, Schiller set his wits to work to concoct some scheme by which his purpose could be carried out. The most plausible plan that presented itself was to accuse our hero of being a spy. To have done so right at this moment would have been to bring ridicule upon himself. Apparently that would be too much like petty revenge, and whether true or not, it would not be believed. As a means of accomplishing his designs, however, and give a semblance of truth to the rumor, he detailed an aide to spy upon the group.

This spy, who had earned the sobriquet of "Satan," by being employed in just such cases as this before, had no trouble in getting within earshot of Pearl and her father; but Wilson and Lang, being guarded in their conversation, he was unable to overhear. If he had heard them planning the destruction of Paradise, nothing could have saved them from being strung up immediately.

Satan, of course, overheard the conversation between Lang and Dr. Huntington. This conversation was reported verbatim to Schiller, which encouraged him greatly. At this stage of the game he would have been satisfied to marry Pearl—truly, honorably one week's sojourn in her company had shown him that he loved, or thought he did, this innocent girl. Besides revenge, there were other things that actuated Schiller. He had learned that Dr. Huntington, by a strange course of circumstances, was now the eldest son, and consequently the heir to the English estates of his father. If Schiller could have compromised with Huntington, and had been allowed to marry Pearl—he would have done so, accepting the father's fortune for his bond. But this last was impossible, and he knew it.

The thing possible, then, was to dispose of Lang, now the husband; marry Pearl, and if necessary, dispose of the doctor, and inherit the property through the girl, who was, as far as he knew, the only living descendant.

One way to trap Lang would be to catch him sending a letter to Mrs. Huntington, notifying her of the safety of her husband. As Satan had notified Schiller of the intention of Lang to do so, this seemed an easy matter to accomplish. If Lang could be caught in the act, his doom would be certain.

(To be continued.)

THE LETTER OF THE BOND.

Not Horse Trader's Fault if Other Misunderstood Him.

In the ordinary way bluff old John Hopkins is as honest as the sunlight, but it is difficult for a man to rigidly adhere to a righteous upbringing and deal in horses at one and the same time.

At a horse fair recently a fine old crusted farmer approached him.

"Will that owd nag pull, sir?" he queried.

"My friend," said John quietly and sincerely, "I assure you that it would do you good to see that horse pull."

John was as well trusted as known, and the horse changed hands at his price.

As ill-luck would have it, he met the purchaser a week later, and the latter pounced upon him.

"What d'ye mean," he roared, in a voice of thunder—"what d'ye mean by telling me that horse would pull? Why, that spavined brute won't pull an empty dray!"

"My friend," said old John, "if you will reflect a moment you will remember that I said it would do you good to see that horse draw. And so it will, my friend—so it will."

If Not There, Where?

The publisher had reached his office late, and there were signs upon his face that he had just passed through a strenuous experience.

"The trouble is," he said peevishly to the waiting author, "that you don't make the marriages in your novels happy ones."

He sighed.

"And the Lord knows," he continued, "that we've got to have happy marriages somewhere!"—Smart Set.

Not Knocking.

Miss Hygee—I saw you at the concert last night. Did you notice how my voice completely filled the hall?

Miss Jellers—Yes, dear, it undoubtedly had much to do with drawing the crowd, though there was a good deal of public curiosity to hear the new orchestra and Miss Dearly, the wonderful harpist, you know.

HUMORS of the Long Wait for Gladys.

Just before Methusalem died, he broke into laughter.

"What is it?" they asked.

"I was just thinking," he explained, "of my dear departed Gladys. She married me when I was 98, thinking that I couldn't possibly live only a few years more and she would get my property."

Bidding them make the funeral notice read, "No flowers," he turned over and passed away.—Detroit Tribune.

Revenge.

"Ed James, dear boy! you must have been wild when you found the other Johnny cuddling your missis."

"Mal dear chap, I was furious! I took his umbrella and I smashed it in two, and said, 'Theah, I hope it rains.'—Judy.

No hope for him.

"There's joy enough to keep the whole world dancing."

"Yes, but they'll turn you out the church for it."

"Well, you kin holier hallelujah on the highway."

"Yes, but they'll arrest you for disturbing the peace!"

"Don't seem to be any hope for you."

"Oh, yes. You kin be just as miserable as you please!"

Simply Good-Natured.

"Why is the audience cheering?"

"The manager has just announced that owing to the fact that she missed the train Miss Shreek, the new soprano, will not appear."

"But why should they cheer?"

"The manager uses such a delightfully indistinct foreign accent that nobody understood what he was saying."

Possible Explanation.

"Why, John," exclaimed Mrs. Newkid as she came into the room, "what in the world makes the baby cry?"

"I don't know, my dear," answered Newkid as he handed the infant over to its mother, "but I imagine he is thinking of what the governor of North Carolina once said to the governor of South Carolina."

Free Advice.

"Doctor, I want a little advice," said the notorious dead beat.

"What's the matter with you?"

asked the physician, curtly, for he scented no fee.

"I have insomnia dreadfully. What shall I do?"

"Sleep it off."

Had Changed His Mind.

Mrs. Benham—You used to say that you would give your life for me.

Benham—That was when I was sick and expected to die, anyway.

Thirsts.

"Shure, ivery Irishman is born wid a thirst."

"Ye're wrong there. Faith, there's lots of us that has no thirst for the liquor at all."

"Thru for ye; but they hov a thirst for foightin' or fur glory or somethin' or other."

His Liberal Way.

"He is very genial, isn't he?"

"Oh, yes! He colonels everybody."—Puck.

ODD WAGER IS EASILY WON.

Flash and Blood Leg No Match in Endurance With Cork One.

It was in the commercial room and the conversation had turned on the topic of the powers of endurance shown by men of the past and present. During a lull in the conversation a young commercial man said:

"Any man, if he has the will power, can endure pain or fatigue; I know I can." Silence for a moment, and an "old man-of-the-road" replied: "I'll bet you a dinner you can't hold your foot—boots on—in a bucket of hot water as long as I can."

The bet was taken and two buckets of hot water were brought in and a kettle of boiling water to raise the temperature to the point of endurance. In went a foot of each bettor. The young man's face began to pale, but the other called for more boiling water. "What the deuce is your leg made of, sir?" yelled the former, suddenly taking his foot from the bucket.

"Cork, sir—cork," was the cool answer, and the other gentleman felt that he had, indeed, lost.—Chicago Chronicle.

Want to Help in the Making.

"I guess," explained the young girl, when expostulated with on her choosing a struggling suitor, "that marrying a man who has got everything already is something like buying a ready made dress. One loses all the fun of the making."

Sure Cure at Last.

Monticello, Miss., Sept. 4 (Special)—Lawrence County is almost daily in receipt of fresh evidence that a sure cure for all Kidney Troubles has at last been found, and that cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Among those who have reason to bless the Great American Kidney Remedy is Mrs. L. E. Baggett of this place. Mrs. Baggett had dropsy. Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her.

"I was troubled with my kidneys," Mrs. Baggett says in recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to her friends, "my urine would hardly pass. The Doctors said I had Dropsy. I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills as directed and am now a well woman."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. Cured Kidneys strain all the impurities out of the blood. That means pure blood and a sound, energetic body. Dodd's Kidney pills are the greatest tonic the world has ever known.

Use for an Old Piano.

A woman whose desire for beautiful things quite outstrips her pocket book created from an old square piano case a magnificent library table. The works of the instrument had become absolutely worthless, so they were taken out. When the piano was closed it was a tight box of rosewood. The front piece was taken off, and a pine drawer was fitted in with the front piece for the front of the drawer. Two old-fashioned glass knobs were screwed into the drawer for handles. The legs were beautifully carved, but were, of course, too long, so they were sawed off to make the top come to a convenient height for a table. The whole thing was polished highly, and the result was a table that would not be bought for $100.—Brown Book.

Took No Chances.

"I can't stop ter talk now," said Brother Williams. "I done digged a storm pit ter hide me fum de harricane, an I gwine ter see 'bout takin' out insurance on it. Kaze you know, an earthquake might happen ter come long en swaller it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

First Straw Hats.

Straw hats were first heard of in England in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. In the reign of James I, we learn of Lord William Howard paying the then large sum of £3 6s for two straw hats.

OUST THE DEMON.

A Tussle with Coffee. There is something fairly demoniac in the way coffee sometimes wrecks its fiendish malice on those who use it.

A lady writing from Calif. says:—"My husband and I, both lovers of coffee, suffered for some time from a very annoying form of nervousness, accompanied by most frightful headaches. In my own case, there was eventually developed some sort of affection of the nerves leading from the spine to the head.

"I was unable to hold my head up straight, the tension of the nerves drew it to one side, causing me the most intense pain. We got no relief from medicine, and were puzzled as to what caused the trouble, until a friend suggested that possibly the coffee we drank had something to do with it, and advised that we quit it and try Postum Coffee.

"We followed his advice, and from the day that we began to use Postum we both began to improve, and in a very short time both of us were entirely relieved. The nerves became steady once more, the headaches ceased, the muscles in the back of my neck relaxed, my head straightened up and the dreadful pain that had so punished me while I used the old kind of coffee vanished.

"We have never resumed the use of the old coffee, but relish our Postum every day as well as we did the former beverage. And we are delighted to find that we can give it freely to our children also, something we never dared to do with the old kind of coffee." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum Coffee contains absolutely no drugs of any kind, but relieves the coffee drinker from the old drug poison. There's a reason.

SENATOR SULLIVAN

Says He Has Found Doan's Kidney Pills Invaluable in Treating Sick Kidneys.

Hon. Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, Member of Congress from the Eighth New York District, and one of the Democratic leaders of New York State, strongly recommends Doan's Kidney Pills.

Senator Sullivan writes:

"It is a pleasure to endorse a remedy like Doan's Kidney Pills, having found them of greatest value in eliminating the distress caused by sick kidneys, and in restoring those organs to a condition of health. My experience with your valuable remedy was equally as gratifying as that of several of my friends.

Yours truly,

It Wasn't Catching.
In a village where several cases of scarlet fever had occurred and where an epidemic was feared, a little girl came late to school one morning and when asked by the teacher the cause said her mother was sick. The teacher decided it would be safest to send the child home again until the nature of the sickness should be ascertained. Very soon after the little one returned to school, and going straight to the teacher said:

"Please ma'am, papa says it's not catching; it's a little boy."

Lineman Shows Nerve.

A Hencman at Reno, Nev., came in contact with a heavily charged wire at the top of a sixty-foot electric light pole and fell to the ground. When he recovered consciousness he wished to return to work at once, but was persuaded to call it a day.

FEVER'S AFTER EFFECTS

Did Not Disappear Until the Blood Was Renewed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Typhoid fever is sometimes called nervous fever. During the course of the fever the nerves are always profoundly disturbed, and when it is over they are left so sensitive that the patient has to be guarded against all excitement. In the tonic treatment then demanded, regard must be paid not only to building up flesh but also to strengthening the nerves. A remedy that will do both, make sound flesh to repair waste and give new vigor to feeble nerves, is the most convenient and economical. Such a remedy is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

One proof of this is the experience of Mr. Charles Worth, of East Vassalboro, Maine. He says: "I had a severe attack of typhoid fever late in the fall, which left me very weak and debilitated. My heart palpitated, my breathing became difficult after the least exertion and there was numbness in both hands. I suffered in that way for fully six months. As I did not grow out of it, did not in fact see the slightest improvement as time passed, I decided to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as I knew of some cures they had effected in cases like mine.

"Almost as soon as I began taking them I could see decided improvement and after keeping on with them for several weeks I was completely well. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a most valuable remedy, and I am in the habit of recommending them to others afflicted as I was."

"When the nerves ache and tremble it means that they are starving. The only way to feed them is through the blood, and the best food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They are absolutely guaranteed to be free from opiates or other harmful drugs. They are sold by all druggists, or may be obtained directly from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

DAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC

FOR WOMEN
troubled with illis peculiar to their sex, used as a douche is marvellously successful. Thoroughly cleanses, kills disease germs, stops discharges, heals inflammation and local sores.

Daxtine is in powder form to be dissolved in pure water, and is far more cleansing, healing, germicidal and economical than liquid antiseptics for all ailments.

TOILET AND WOMEN'S SPECIAL USES
For salient druggists, 50 cents a box. Trial Box and Book of Instructions Free. THE R. PAXTON COMPANY BOSTON, MASS.

Note the Difference

This kind is applied like paint, shines itself and is the only preparation that will dry in 10 minutes. It kills rust on stove pipes. Wire Screens, Stoves, Farm Machinery, or any iron work. It will not wash off and wears months. Price, 25c.

GREAT MAN HAD VAGARIES.

Johnson's Peculiar Ideas as to Matters of Speech.

While Johnson was in France, he was generally very resolute in speaking Latin. It was a maxim with him that a man should not let himself down by speaking a language which he speaks imperfectly. Indeed, we must have often observed how inferior, how much like a child a man appears, who speaks a broken tongue. When Sir Joshua Reynolds, at one of the dinners of the Royal Academy, presented him to a Frenchman of great distinction, he would not deign to speak French, but talked Latin, though his excellency did not understand it, owing, perhaps, to Johnson's English pronunciation; yet upon another occasion he was observed to speak French to a Frenchman of high rank, who spoke English; and being asked the reason, with some expression of surprise he answered: "Because I think my French is as good as his English."—London Chronicle.

Old Fences Are Valuable.

The fate of the rail fence was declared less than twenty years ago, when the value of walnut, oak and poplar timber increased to such a figure as to make wire fences cheaper. In the worm fences still in existence there are thousands of walnut and poplar rails in an almost perfect state of preservation. The walnut ones are valuable. An enterprising Chicago concern recently made that discovery, and its representatives have purchased many carloads of the rails.

HORTICULTURE

Mixing Tree Fruits.

For a great many years I have observed among the orchards that are planted around me that the orchards that are all of one variety bear less evenly than where the fruits are mixed. I know of a great many instances where pollenization was imperfect because only one variety was grown. In discussing the matter with orchardists, I have been very much surprised to find that there are very many men that know absolutely nothing about the necessity for cross pollenization. My first observations of this kind came nearly fifteen years ago, when the matter of cross-pollenization of plums was but just receiving the attention of our scientists. After that came the cross-pollenization of pears, the Kleffer being a pear that in many situations refused to produce fruit unless the Garber or some other fruit was grown near it. I remember being in a large pear orchard that had been since developed enough to bear fruit, but yet bore no fruit. I asked the owner why he did not grow some other pear in the orchard. He replied that he had never known that it needed cross-pollenization. After that he grafted a part of the trees with the Garber, and in a few years the orchard became fruitful. A great many people do not like to plant more than one variety in an orchard, especially if it is a commercial orchard, and when they do, they plant alternate rows with different varieties. The result is a pretty good pollenization except where the ends of trees of the same variety come together. There the pollenization is imperfect, while the pollenization of the sides is perfect. The planters say that they hold to this arrangement because they want whole rows of the same variety for harvesting and packing. If they would but consider the matter they would find that the same end might be obtained by alternating the trees in the rows. If one will but draw on paper the arrangement indicated he will find that all the cross rows and longitudinal rows are mixed in variety, but he will also find that the diagonal rows are all of the same variety. The arrangement of every other tree of the same variety would give diagonal rows all of the same variety. The great advantage is that each tree is surrounded with four trees of the other variety, and cross-pollenization is then as perfect as it is possible to have it.—John Y. Smith, Alexander Co., Ill., in Farmers' Review.

Spade, Deeply for Trees.

When a new tree is to be set out the ground should be well prepared for it. When large plantations are to be put in, a plough may be used in the preparation of the ground. More often, however, the spade is used for preparing the ground in which trees are to be set. The depth of the spade is about ten inches, which is about four inches more than the depth of ordinary plowing. The depth of the spade should be the measure used in turning over the ground for trees. The space so prepared should be ten feet or more in diameter, and this prepared space should be increased as the tree grows. The object of the enlargement of the space is to prevent the forming of a natural water-tight basin in which water would accumulate to the detriment of the tree.

Water and Orchards.

For a long time it has been a mystery why certain varieties of apples would do well in New York, New England, and even colder places; and yet would freeze to death on the soil of Illinois and Iowa, where the temperature is higher during the winter than in the eastern states. Within a few years the opinion has gained ground that the water supply in the soil plays an important part in the "wintering" of the tree. When so-called tender fruits have been killed out in Illinois and neighboring states, here and there hard bodies of water the trees have safely passed the winter. The natural inference seems to be that it was cold combined with dryness that resulted in the loss of the trees.

Heading of Shade Trees.

How a shade tree should be headed will depend on its location. If it is on the edge of the lawn out of the way of passing teams and people, it may be headed low. Some of the most beautiful trees on the edges of lawns are those that have their limbs almost on the ground, but in other situations it is better to head trees high, both that they may have more beauty and that the lawn under them may be preserved. The head of the tree should in nearly all cases be kept thinned out sufficiently to permit the passage of rays of light; otherwise many of the inside limbs will die. A mistake in this matter has often resulted in trees or parts of trees being killed.

Bad Pruning of Ornamentals.

Many ornamental trees are ruined by bad pruning. Every tree has its own characteristic shape, which distinguishes it from other trees. It is desirable to retain the individual shape so that variety may be had. One of the most common mistakes in bad pruning is to attempt to make all trees assume the same shape. The natural growth of the tree should be encouraged. Dead and blighted branches should be kept trimmed off. The thinning out should not be enough to greatly change the appearance of the tree.

YELLOW CRUST ON BABY

Would Crack Open and Scab Causing Terrible Itching—Cured by Cuticura.

"Our baby had a yellow crust on his head which I could not keep away. When I thought I had succeeded in getting his head clear, it would start again by the crown of his head, crack and scale, and cause terrible itching. I then got Cuticura Soap and Ointment, washing the scalp with the soap and then applying the Ointment. A few treatments made a complete cure. I have advised a number of mothers to use Cuticura, when I have been asked about the same ailment of their babies."—Mrs. John Boyce, Pine Bush, N. Y.

Made Mosquitoes Drunk.

Dr. St. George Gray of the British West Indies says that the Culex family has a fondness for wine, like many members of other old aristocratic families. He says: "I put a few mosquitoes under a bell jar, containing a couple of drops of port wine. A few hours later I found them apparently dead, and put them into a dry bottle. Shortly afterward, they were all staggering about under the microscope in a most ridiculous manner—they were drunk."

Evidence of Guilt.

If a Chinese dies while being tried for murder the fact of his dying is taken as evidence of his guilt. He has departed, but somebody must suffer, and his eldest son, if he has one, is therefore sent to prison for a year. If he has no son then his father or brother gets a flogging. It's all in the family, and somebody has to pay for it.

I do not believe Plac's Cure for Consumption is equal for coughs and colds.—JAMES F. BOYER, Trinity Springs, Ind., Feb. 15, 1908.

Some spinsters spend a lot of time looking for husbands—and so do some married women, according to all reports.

THE IDEAL WIFE

Shapes the Destiny of Men—The Influence of a Healthy Woman Cannot Be Overestimated.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes—because she has the qualities which inspire admiration, respect and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature. The influence of women glorious in the possession of perfect physical health upon men and upon the civilization of the world could never be measured. Because of them men have attained the very heights of ambition; because of them even thrones have been established and destroyed.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley

What a disappointment, then, to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head! A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a damper to all joyousness in the home, and a drag upon her husband. The cost of a wife's constant illness is a serious drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does no good.

If a woman finds her energies flagging, and that everything tires her, dark shadows appear under her eyes, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams; if she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains; nervousness, whites, irregularities, or despondency, she should take means to build her system up at once by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This great remedy for women has done more in the way of restoring health to the women of America than all other medicines put together. It is the safeguard of woman's health.

Following we publish, by request, a letter from a young wife.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley of 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. It affected my stomach so that I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every woman who is in poor health and ailing.

Its benefits begin when its use begins. It gives strength and vigor from the start, and surely makes sick women well and robust.

Remember Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of women's ills. This fact is attested to by the thousands of letters from grateful women, which are on file in the Pinkham laboratory. Merit alone can produce such results.

Women should remember that a cure for all female diseases actually exists, and that cure is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Take no substitute.

If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

Physicians Recommend Castoria

CASTORIA has met with pronounced favor on the part of physicians, pharmaceutical societies and medical authorities. It is used by physicians with results most gratifying. The extended use of Castoria is unquestionably the result of three facts: First—The indisputable evidence that it is harmless; Second—That it not only allays stomach pains and quiets the nerves, but assimilates the food; Third—It is an agreeable and perfect substitute for Castor Oil. It is absolutely safe. It does not contain any Opium, Morphine, or other narcotic and does not stupefy. It is unlike Soothing Syrups, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, etc. This is a good deal for a Medical Journal to say. Our duty, however, is to expose danger and record the means of advancing health. The day for poisoning innocent children through greed or ignorance ought to end. To our knowledge, Castoria is a remedy which produces composure and health, by regulating the system—not by stupefying it—and our readers are entitled to the information.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Letters from Prominent Physicians Addressed to Charles H. Fletcher.

Dr. B. Halstead Scott, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria often for infants during my practice, and find it very satisfactory."

Dr. William Belmont, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "Your Castoria stands first in its class. In my thirty years of practice I can say I never have found anything that so filled the place."

Dr. J. H. Taft, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria and found it an excellent remedy in my household and private practice for many years. The formula is excellent."

Dr. Wm. L. Rosserman, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I am pleased to speak a good word for your Castoria. I have so highly of it that I not only recommend it to others, but have used it in my own family."

Dr. R. J. Hamlen, of Detroit, Mich., says: "I prescribe your Castoria extensively, as I have never found anything to equal it for children's troubles. I am aware that there are imitations in the field, but I always see that my patients get Fletcher's."

Dr. Wm. I. McCann, of Omaha, Neb., says: "As the father of thirteen children I certainly know something about your great medicine, and aside from my own family experience I have in my years of practice found Castoria a popular and efficient remedy in almost every home."

Dr. J. R. Clausen, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "The name that your Castoria has made for itself in the tens of thousands of homes blessed by the presence of children, scarcely needs to be supplemented by the endorsement of the medical profession, but I, for one, most heartily endorse it and believe it an excellent remedy."

Dr. Channing H. Cook, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have used your Castoria for several years past in my family, and have always found it thoroughly efficient and never objected to by children, which is a great consideration in view of the fact that most medicines of this character are obnoxious and therefore difficult of administration. As a laxative, I consider it the peer of anything that I ever prescribed."

Dr. R. M. Ward, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Physicians generally do not prescribe proprietary preparations, but in the case of Castoria my experience, like that of many other physicians, has taught me to make an exception. I prescribe your Castoria in my practice because I have found it to be a thoroughly reliable remedy for children's complaints. Any physician who has raised a family, as I have, will join me in heartiest recommendation of Castoria."

High School Notes

The first meeting of the Extentoponeous Chusa was held Tuesday evening, with fourteen present. The officers elected were: H. H. Fuller, President and Conductor; Bert Sheldon, Vice President; Grace Barrett, Secretary; Howard Porter, Treasurer; Dan Seymour, Sergeant at Arms; Wilbur Matthews, Chorister.

PROGRAM.

The Causes of the Russo-Japanese War, Clio McKee; The Results of the Russo-Japanese War, Harold Turner. The outlook for this year's work is certainly pleasing and the chances are that the class will be highly successful.

Debate "Resolved that Money has more Influence upon Man's Mind than Education."

Two new students entered school this week, making a total enrollment of 95.

The East Jordan High School Football Team played the Charlevoix Team at Central Lake. In the afternoon the news reached the High School that "Charlevoix had taken their scalps to the tune of 37 to 0, and that nothing was left but Maddock's football." Those who should know, however, say that if that is the case, we will have to buy some new suits, and that Charlevoix will be shown before the end of the season, that there was something left of our team.

Bay Clark spent a short time in the High School room Tuesday afternoon.

The High School pupils are much interested in Jack London's Call of the Wild, which Mr. Fuller is reading from in the mornings.

The first meeting of the Lyceum is scheduled for Friday evening.

EVELINE.

Mrs. Minnie Tuttle and daughter have returned to their home at Grand Rapids and Mrs. Tuttle went with them for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Healey called on her sister, Mrs. Edward Gould Tuesday last.

Miss Lottie Goslow and sister went to Charlevoix Monday where they work in the seed factory.

LaVerne Tillison called on Benj. Healey's, Sunday last.

Miss Ada Crowell called on Miss Nina Healey, Sunday evening.

A load of people and one of the preachers of Eveline went to Bay Springs Sunday to meeting.

The meetings have closed at the Three Bells School House.

Ira Lee and Miss L. Denton were united in marriage last Tuesday evening. He is a well known resident of this locality. They will make their home with Mrs. Lee's father. They have the well-wishes of their many friends through their new life.

A party of young people met at the home of Bert Inman last Friday night, having a very enjoyable time.

Leonard Shoefelt, from the south, called on his aunt and uncle and family Sunday last at Henry Crowell's.

A Merry Wedding.

One of the pleasant events of the season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stone, Tuesday, Sept. 19th, at 6 p. m. when their daughter, Addie Emaline, was united in marriage to Carl Andrews; the ring service being used. While the wedding march was being played Miss Helen, a sister of the bride, the father gave his daughter to the care and keeping of the groom. Rev. J. A. McKee officiating. The bride looked very pretty in her white graduating dress and wore the class colors, purple and white. She carried the handkerchief that her mother hid at her marriage. The parlor was effectively decorated in purple and white asters. Only the immediate relatives were present. Those from out of town were Mrs. J. H. Stone of Bay Shore and Miss Helen Stone of Boyne City. After the ceremony the company partook of a bountiful supper, it being served by the Misses Bessie Greenwood and Helen Stone; the table decorations were scarlet geraniums. The bride received many beautiful presents of cut glass, china, silverware, and a very handsome chair.

The delighted couple were transported to Ellsworth in a carriage thus eluding their many friends here, and escaping the usual shower of rice, white ribbon, etc. They arejourning in Chicago for a time, and will be at home to their friends in East Jordan after October first. The young couple are very popular here, the bride is a music teacher, the groom has a good position as saw-filer in one of our mills. Their many friends wish them a long life of happiness and prosperity, and may the autumn of their future be as bright as their beginning.

On Tuesday, Sept. 26th, The Detroit Journal will begin the publication of a serial entitled "Chloris of the Island," which is said to be one of the best stories ever printed.

If you want a good evening's entertainment, be sure and attend these plays.

A number of our business men met at the Village Hall Monday evening and decided to present petition to the Council asking that body to make an appropriation each month to pay the expense of instructor of the East Jordan Military Band. Of late, the Band Boys themselves have been making up the indebtedness, each month out of their own pockets.

In Louisiana which appears at the Loveday Opera House next Wednesday evening is a beautiful southern melodrama—a story of thrilling interest and is told in a way that will be sure to please. The company played at several of the better towns in Missouri last week and the reports from such as Moberly, Mexico City, and Creston, Iowa, are quite flattering. The specialties given by the company are making a hit as well as the play itself and the scenery is what may be expected with any company playing a play whose scene is in the sunny south.

Come to the Fair.

Sometimes "bad" boys turn out better than their accusers. About thirty years ago a Charlevoix boy was picking blackberries on the outside of a fence. The woman of the house took after him and called him a thief. She would not listen to him when he tried to explain that he thought it was all right to take the ones outside of the fence. The boy turned out to be a nice man, but the fact that a woman living in the same town with him regarded him as a thief has always rankled, but he is feeling much better about it since last week. He went out to his pasture to drive his cow home, and saw an old woman milking the cow. He quickly slipped up behind her and when she turned around, with her bucket nearly full, he met the eyes of his old accuser. He did not say a word but quickly drove his cow home.

A new law relative to tax sales went into effect 16th of this month. Under the provisions, the county treasurer is required to send a notice to the owners of all property slated to be sold for taxes at least thirty days before the sale is held. County Treasurer Payton says it will mean a lot of work, as the addresses of many of the owners are unknown, but it is a wise provision, he thinks. Another new provision relates to taxes returned by error as unpaid. Hitherto, the man holding a receipt for taxes paid, but by error returned unpaid, had to send his receipt to the auditor general, and there was danger of its being lost. Now, the county treasurer preserves the receipt, giving the property owner a certified copy, and thus a record is kept of the transaction. The law also took effect the 16th. Charlevoix Courier.

A small blaze in the residence of Frank Phillips called out the fire department, Wednesday morning. The fire was in the partition between the attic and a bedroom and just how it originated is a mystery. Loss about $50.00 covered by insurance.

The lady who brings the best loaf of bread made from Cream of Wheat Flour to the East Jordan Fair will receive 100 pounds of the flour free. See page 33 of Premium List. Cream of Wheat Flour is sold by all dealers in East Jordan.

You may laugh at this but a farmer told it, and says it is true. He has a cream separator, and after running it at a high speed, he pours hard water into the machine as he would pour in milk. The water that comes out of the milk spout is soft water, and the hard water that is left comes out of the cream spout.

Backache is never known to those persons who take an occasional dose of Pineules. The value of the resin obtained from the Pine tree has long been recognized in the treatment of diseases of the bladder and kidneys. One dose of Pineules will give relief, and one bottle will cure. There is Money in Growing Ginseng!

Prof. W. L. Howard of the Missouri State Agricultural College says: "I advise American farmers to cultivate Ginseng. Big profits may be realized. It is a hardy plant and is easily grown." A recent bulletin issued by the Pennsylvania State Agricultural College in part says: "The supply of native Ginseng root is continually diminishing and the price per pound is correspondingly increasing, while the constant demand for the drug in China stands as a guarantee of a steady market for Ginseng in the future. The market for our cultivated root will exist as long as the Chinamen exist." Counsel General W. A. Rubies of Hong Kong says in the U. S. Consular reports: "The sale of Ginseng root grown in America is very large here and the demand is so great that much more could be disposed of advantageously. The root is as indispensable to the 400,000,000 Chinese as is their rice."

Ginseng is a staple on the market the same as corn, wheat and cotton. The present market price varies from $5.00 to $8.00 per pound according to quality, while the cost of production does not exceed $1.50. There is room in an ordinary garden to grow several hundred dollars' worth each year. The plant is hardy and thrives in all parts of the United States and Canada, except in the arid regions. We are successful growers and can show you how to make money growing Ginseng. You can get a good start in the business for a small outlay, and soon have a comfortable income. We have several thousand choice roots for sale for fall delivery. The planting season begins in August and continues till the ground is frozen. Write us today for further particulars.

Advice to those about to butt in:
Don't.

The Japs took one look at Secretary Tatt's physical propertias and ordered whale for dinner.

Possibly the man who sent mobs to the New York capitalists is merely another kind of reformer.

"Treat children like plants," says the Washington Post. That's right—straighten 'em with a stick.

Russia's new legislative body is referred to by the czar as a gosudarstvennaya douma. Oh, but he must be mad!

It is significant that no person has succeeded in stealing John D. Rockefeller's socks while he is bathing in the morning dew.

Roy Knäbenschue, the airship man, is described by a New York paper as "a married man with a family of little ones." Little airships?

Another aeronaut has succeeded in giving an entirely superfluous demonstration of the truth that the law of gravity is still working.

A Chicagoan who claims that he is "a perfect gentleman" has been fined $50 for flirting. Evidently the judge mistook him for a "gent."

Ethel Barrymore is to be married to a poet, but not solely, we are given to understand, because she desires to have a genius in the family.

Well, Jupiter has got another moon. This makes the seventh. There is a race between him and Saturn now. One more and they will be even.

King Alfonso was mixed up in another automobile accident a day or two ago. He seems to have quit getting engaged to be married, though.

King Leopold and Capt. Putnam Bradlee Streng are both keeping out of print, so we must admit that things might be much worse than they are.

"Woe unto them," exclaimed Isaiah, "that trust in chariots, because they are many!" Even in Isaiah's time perhaps, the people had to dodge them.

Lord Curzon's resignation is reported to have increased Kitchener's prestige in India. Sir Redvers Buller is worrying along these days without any prestige.

"Can doctors know too much?" asks the New York Times. Perhaps they can, but most of them will be able without much trouble to establish their innocence.

The New York Tombs caterer is suing Nan Patterson for the return of a rabbit's foot. He will attempt to prove its value by showing that Nan escaped conviction by a hare.

It might be said of the Pegasus which Alfred Austin rides that it "also ran."—Charleston News and Courier.

Statistics show that 400,000,000 "Havana" cigars were manufactured in the United States last year. Something good—and cheap—must be provided for campaign smoking and election bets.

Railway companies are beginning to abolish the age limit in hiring men to work for them. They have found, oddly enough, that some of their employes become more valuable as they grow older.

While sympathizing with Mark Twain in his sufferings from the gout, it mitigates one's distress of mind to some extent to remember that Mark must have had a good time while he was getting it.

Injunctions have been secured to restrain roosters from crowing, dogs from barking and the tolling of bells and the tooting of locomotive whistles at night in Mount Vernon, N. Y. Why are the Mount Vernon cats thus favored?

A Chicago man and his wife have found their way into the divorce court because both wanted to occupy one chair. Before they were married one chair would have been—but isn't it strange that a few words by a preacher should make such a difference.

A Latrobe, Pa., church has been disrupted because the pastor kissed a pretty girl. The dispatches say the pretty girls of the congregation are standing by the preacher. Guess where the homely spinsters and the long-whiskered old elders are.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Arizona thinks it is too bad that its destiny should be locked up with that of the Greaser state of New Mexico. It is aggravating, but then Arizona wants to get in so bad that she can endure being put out.

LITTLE EXPLOSIONS

Savors of the Truth.
"Some of the patients here earn as much as $100 a week," said the superintendent of the asylum for the hopelessly insane.
"You don't say!" exclaimed the astonished visitor. "How do they do it?"
"By writing comic opera librettos," explained the superintendent.

Poor Thing.
Nell—I wonder what Miss Passay is doing with that translation of Virgil's Æneid. Trying to appear learned, eh?
Belle—Oh, no! She picked it up in a book store to-day and the opening line about "arms and the man" attracted her.

A Mean Advantage.
"He's about the meanest white man I ever met."
"At any rate, he's successful. He has taken advantage of his opportunities."
"Ah! His opportunities were small, no doubt; another proof of his meanness."

Quite Apparent.
She—You know, Judge, our characters are different, and I don't want to be in his way.
He—Yes, your honor, she is peculiar, and I don't want to interfere.
Judge—I understand. You ask for a divorce out of pure love!

No Place for Ladies.
"In Brussels," said Mr. Gazzington, "it is necessary for travelers by rail to pay regular rates on every piece of baggage they carry."
"Dear me," replied his wife, who was getting ready to start away with seven trunks for a three weeks' stay on the coast of Maine, "what a bore it must be to have to live in that horrible country!"

They Were Pleasant, Too.
"What did that gentleman mean when he asked if your environment was pleasant?" asked the younger sister.
"Oh, he meant the things which were around me while I was in the country," replied the older one.
"Well, Julia, I never heard men's arms called by that name before."—Tit-Bits.

An Excuse.
"See here!" exclaimed the employer. "You're entirely too slow when you're out on an errand. Why don't you move faster?"
"Well, I'll tell you," replied the bright office boy. "Once when our school gave a play I took the part of an old man, and, do you know, I don't believe I ever got over it."

Shifting His Prayer Burden.
A boy of 4 years was saying his evening prayers. He was very sleepy, but he started in on his customary orison of considerable length.
"God bless me an' little sister," he said. Then he yawned drowsily and broke off abruptly with: "The rest of them are big enough to pray for themselves."

Gallant Mr. Braix.
Miss Elderleigh—Just think, Mr. Braix, I am within ten years of 35!
Mr. Braix—I can't believe it.
Miss Elderleigh—That's sweet of you—but it's true.
Mr. Braix—Well, if anybody else had told me you were 45 I'd have said they were five years off anyhow.

Freakish.
"I saw a troupe of educated seals last night. Wonderful creatures, aren't they?"
"Yes; but what would you think of a black bass that can sing?"
"Get out!"
"It's a fact. I've seen dozens of 'em in negro minstrel shows."—Detroit Tribune.

Cause and Effect.
Hix—De Short has been drinking a good deal lately, I understand.
Dix—Yes; he's trying to drown his grief.
Hix—Disappointed in love, eh?
Dix—No. His tailor refused to trust him any longer.

Suspicious.
Friend—Don't you want your name on History's page?
Millionaire—What will it cost and what will she print about me if I don't?

An Accommodating Friend.
"Are you fond of music, doctor?"
"Yes, but don't let that interfere with your singing."

AN APPEAL

Young Lawyer—So you won't let me marry your daughter, sir?
Father—No!
Young Lawyer—Then I'm going to take my case to a higher court.
Father—What do you mean?
Young Lawyer—I'm going to ask your wife.

Thought It Blackmail.

The bibliomaniac (showing his treasures)—Here is a book that cost me $15,000.
The society man—You're an easy mark, I must say.
The bibliomaniac (warmly)—Easy? Why, I was ready to pay twice that sum for it!
The society man—Great cats! What sort of a past have you, anyway?—Puck.

The Homeless Mut.
Kind Lady—Is that your dog?
Homeless Holmes—Yes, mum; he's my only friend.
Kind Lady—Well, why don't you treat him better? He looks half-starved.
Homeless Holmes—Ye see, mum, ee poor mut has ter eat de kind of grub folks gives me er go hungry? So he don't eat often.

At the Boarding House.
The Intelligent Boarder—Yes, we have reached the time of year when mind and body crave lighter sustenance. Let us then avoid all thoughts of things that are heavy—heavy clothing, heavy reading, heavy food.
The Landlady—Sponge cake, Mr. Emerson?
The Intelligent Boarder—Certainly not.

Barred.
"Do you think a rich man can enter the gates of heaven?" asked the intimate friend.
"No," answered Mr. Packer. "I don't."
"And why not?"
"Well, I'll tell you. A rich man, as a general rule, owns an automobile, and there's no hope for a murderer."

Taken at Her Word.
"Put down that glass!" commanded Mrs. Shrus, catching her husband in the act of taking a drink of whisky.
"If you drink that I'll never speak to you again as long as I live."
"My dear," said he, gulping it down, "here's long life to you!"

His Usefulness at an End.
Messenger—Mr. Spotcash, there has been a street car accident, and Mr. Nextle has had his leg cut off just below the knee.

Great Merchant (with emotion)—I am truly sorry to hear it! He was our best floorwalker.
A Criticism.
Mrs. Phamley—I suppose you've seen that new book on "What To Do Until the Doctor Comes?"
Dr. Gruff—Yes, and I'd like to write a companion book to that.
Mrs. Phamley—What would it be?
Dr. Gruff—Don't.

All Crazy.
Citizen—What possible excuse did you fellows have for acquitting that murderer?
Jurymen—Insanity.
Citizen—Gee! The whole twelve of you.—Cleveland Leader.

A Sad Case.
Blanche—I think it is a mistake to propose by letter.
Clara—Sometimes. I know a man who did it and the girl said yes, and I'm sure he's been sorry for it since.

How It Impressed Him.
Mrs. Whittier Lowell—In disobeying me, Emerson, you were doing wrong, and I am punishing you to impress it upon your mind!
Emerson—Aren't you mistaken, mamma, in regard to the location of my mind?—Life.

Paste.
"I see that the women who claim to possess valuable jewels are having them insured against theft."
"Camilla La Fleur wouldn't care for that."
"Because she's an actress?"
"No."
"Why, then?"
"Because nobody would steal them."

No Cause for Worry.
"I have a horror of being buried alive."
"Who is your physician?"
"Dr. Dopeum."
"Then you needn't worry. His prescriptions are always fatal."—Chicago News.

A Blessing in Disguise.
"Say, old man, I have a terrible thirst."
"Pardon me, my boy, a thirst is never terrible."

LIKE A POKER GAME.

She—Maisie is a queen. It to marry a king, and just think how near she came to marrying that old Jack!
He—Is that straight?
She—Yes, she thought he was flush.

Let It Go at That.
The heavy villain of the barn storming aggregation stalked into the workshop of the village editor.
"What did you mean by referring to me as a 'misfit' in your write-up of the performance last night?" he roared.
"I meant," answered the local molder of opinion, "that you were entirely too great for the company you were with."
And the heavy villain, being a stranger to the ways of the village editors, believed him.

A Gilded Pill.
Sultor—Fifteen thousand dollars! A splendid dowry, Mr. Isaacstein! But you know your daughter is decidedly plain.
Isaacstein—Vell, den, I make it twenty thousand.
"By Jove! Twenty thousand! She's not so bad looking, after all—but still she's hardly beautiful!"
"Vat? Den I make it twenty-five thousand dollars!"
"My dear Mr. Isaacstein, what a wonderful beauty doctor you are!"

AS YOU GO ALONG.

Good Things to Remember. If You Would Be Popular:
Be helpful, be sociable, be unselfish, be generous, be a good listener, never worry or whine, study the art of pleasing, be frank, open and truthful, always be ready to lend a hand, be kind and polite to everybody, be self-confident, but not conceited, never monopolize the conversation, take a genuine interest in other people, always look on the bright side of things, take pains to remember names and faces, never criticize or say unkind things of others, look for the good in others, not for their faults, cultivate health and thus radiate strength and courage, forgive and forget injuries, but never forget benefits, rejoice as genuinely in another's success, as in your own, always be considerate of the rights and feelings of others, have a good time, but never let fun degenerate into license, learn to control yourself under the most trying circumstances, have a kind word and a cheery, encouraging smile for everyone, be respectful to women and chivalrous in your attitude toward them, meet trouble like a man and cheerfully endure what you can't cure, believe in the brotherhood of man, and recognize no class distinctions.—Success.

SPENCER AS MUSICAL CRITIC.

Philosopher Unable to See Harmony in Tones of Violin.
Herbert Spencer's opinions were most decided on topics which he was not by nature intended to understand quite so well as those of orthodox philosophy. His musical heresies are among the most startling. The violin is to him "the voice of a shrew in a good temper." He finds this practically perfect instrument "has at least two chronic defects, the hiss of the bow and the production of high overtones as it is drawn over the string." This view leads him to criticize our orchestras for "hissing," for in them "the tones of stringed instruments so greatly predominate." Spencer, who never attended a Wagner opera, summed up his views of modern orchestras, saying: "Beauty they can render, grace they can render, delicacy they can render, but where is the dignity, where is the grandeur?"

Letter by Thomas Hood.
A letter written by the poet Thomas Hood to "My very dear Marianne" changed hands at a public sale in London the other day for the consideration of $9.50. The letter has the following quaint conclusion: "There is a tale of a little prince who had a ruby heart, and whatever he wished on it was instantly granted, but it is not so with mine. Neither have I Aladdin's lamp, or it should have been scrubbed bright ere the Chelmsford hall, but now it is a dark lantern and the glory of Fairyland is bedimmed forever. Only the fiery dragons remain, which are many and fearful, and the black cats and the demons and imps and the ogres, who are the booksellers, except that they have no eyes in their foreheads."

Shun the "Blues."
"Blues" are unnecessary. They mean one of two things—an unhealthy body or a diseased mind. In either case distraction is the best remedy. One must strive to forget self in work, in reading, or in pleasure. A busy life, judiciously arranged, will crowd vapors to the wall. There are women who never seem to have any resources. Let them cultivate a good-sized feminine acquaintance, with varied types to suit one's moods, to sew with this one, shop with that one, entertain and be entertained. There is always charity work to fill up one's time, even when the social amenities are not pleasing.—London Answers.

Nat Kimball Was Not Afraid.
Among the well known characters in Biddeford twenty years ago was a brick manufacturer named Nat Kimball, who was noted for his witty retorts. One day the old man was taken very ill, and seemed very near his end when the minister called. The conversation drifted around to the matter of future existence.
"Mr. Kimball," said the preacher, solemnly, "don't you have any areas of meeting the King of Terrors?"
"Huh!" grunted the old man. "I don't know why I should. I've lived with the queen more'n forty year."—Boston Herald.

Superstition About Pigs.
The pig plays a part in many beliefs. Mr. Hickson, who traveled much in the Celebes and adjacent islands, found a tribe who believed that the whole earth is borne by a pig belonging to the god Mak-a-wa-lang, who dwells in the under world, and that the frequent earthquakes in that region are caused by the pig rubbing itself against the trees. Some of the inhabitants, however, assert that the world does not stand on the pig itself, but on a number of piles, and with such terrible results, says the London Globe.

A Child's Wisdom.
Down at the Sea Breeze the other day was small Miss Margery, aged 4, walking along the bluff with a friend of her mother's who had accompanied the family on a day's outing. "Don't go so near the edge," cautioned the child's companion, as the venturesome little one frolicked in the dangerous place, and as the advice was unheeded, added: "It won't be my fault if you fall over." "No," said Margery, "but you'll be the one blamed for it."—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

INVENTIONS AND IMPROVEMENTS

Skating Boat a New Invention.
After submarines, supermarines. The French, and one of the French, a M. de Lambert, invented the innovation and call it a skating boat, because of its gliding along the surface of the water by means of five inclined planes fixed on its bottom at certain distances. When the boat is not moving these inclined planes are several centimeters below water, but as soon as the twelve horse power motor engine starts the inclined planes are raised and the boat soon glides on a mixture of air and water until, as the resistance is diminished, it is reported to attain rapidly a speed of from twenty-six to twenty-eight knots. A velocity which motor boats of fifty horse power cannot always compass. The new boat is said to be handled with much ease and pauses as soon as the engines pause, for the planes being immersed suddenly form a most powerful brake with almost instantaneous action. The largest boat in the world for times past or present is to come from England, an Atlantic liner measuring 780 feet in length, with four propellers and 60,000 horse power, developed by turbine machinery and requiring about thirty months to build.

Swinging Cradle.
Nobody receives more care and attention than the baby, everybody seeming to vie with one another in doing everything possible to make life for it comfortable. Still, at times the mother has other duties that need immediate attention, and unless she has somebody to help her to take care of the baby these duties are left undone. An Iowa man has devised a swinging cradle, which, he claims, will be a help to all mothers. The cradle is suspended by means of rods on a spiral spring, the latter being attached to a beam and brace fastened at any convenient place. A slight push of the cradle sets it in motion, the spring keeping it moving up and down for quite a long time. Oftentimes all the baby needs to keep him quiet is a slight rocking movement of this kind.

and, no doubt, this device would fully serve the purpose intended. This device can also be detached and removed from one room to another, separate permanent fastenings only being necessary.

Cold Storage Sunlight.
Cold storage sunlight in the form of coal versus the fresh article as sources of energy interest a man of Bombay, who says that "the various sources of energy in the earth may be divided into two kinds—viz.: income as arising from the daily receipt of thermal energy from the sun, which consists in the growth of vegetables of all kinds, of stored energy in elevated water, etc.; and of 'saving,' which consists of stores of vegetable products, such as coal and petroleum, etc. At present we are making a most inordinate use of the latter, while in the main ignoring the lavish annual donations from Helios. After many years' study it has been found cheaper to plow and sow eucalyptus than to import coal, the dry timber being asserted to be far more efficient than imported coal and greater in thermal value, bulk for bulk. This is a speculation over which we have been exercising our minds for over twenty years and for which we believe there is still a solution to be found of value inestimable to humanity."

Odd Form of Coal Discovered.
One of Colorado's greatest discoveries in the form of innovation in coal is interesting experts and scientists in that state, where a deposit four and a half feet in thickness has been prospected for two miles in extent and has yielded coal in the strikingly peculiar form of little cubes and hexagonal-shaped columns. It separates easily, the seams give off little dirt or dust. It burns with a blue flame, retains heat a long time, and makes little ash. It breaks to a small nut size and is considered suitable for hard coal burners and grates. Many regard the new coal as one of the most valuable finds in this almost unknown empire of riches.

Tunnel Badly Needed.
London's latest transportation idea is a footway tunnel under the River Thames at Woolwich, where the council's free ferry is now the sole dependence of vehicles and pedestrians, and which suspends its operations entirely during fog and bad weather, being incapacitated for a part of each twenty-six days during last year.

Little Things

Only a little shriveled seed—
It might be a flower or grass or weed;
Only a box of earth on the edge
Of a narrow, dusty window ledge;
Only a few scant summer showers;
Only a few clear, shining hours;
That was all. Yet God could make
Out of these, for a sick child's sake,
A blossom-wonder as fair and sweet
As ever broke at an angel's feet.

Only a life of barren pain,
Wet with sorrowful tears for rain;
Warmed sometimes by a wandering gleam.
Of joy that seemed but a happy dream.
A life as common and brown and bare
As the box of earth in the window there;
Of a perfect soul in a narrow room—
Pure as the snowy leaves that fold
Over the flower's heart of gold.

MISS PETERS' POPULARITY

(Copyright, 1905, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Little Miss Peters toiled up the three flights of steps to her tiny hall bedroom. She threw her bag on the bed and walked deliberately to the mirror, only stopping to throw open the blind for more light. She sat down deliberately before the hideous little glass and began to take another inventory of her good looks.

Not even one who loved her—she smiled bitterly at that thought—could call her pretty. She was homely. Not with that piquant sort of plainness that is almost as attractive as beauty, but with a sort of ugliness. The forehead bulged, the eyes were dull and sunken, the cheeks presented no contours to speak of, and the whole expression was wishfully pathetic. She examined each feature as callously as if it were a statue she were appraising. The face was the same. As hateful to her as ever. She closed her eyes wearily. She was plain, unattractive—ugly. And if one ever wants good looks it is when she is twenty. Miss Peters was barely that, but she looked almost any age, up to forty.

She slipped the pins out of the tight little knot at the back of her neck and shook her hair down over her shoulders. It was not pretty hair, it was thin and scraggly and mouse-colored. In the hand mirror she raised to get a glimpse of her profile she could see her bent little shoulders reflected. A bookkeeper who bends over her work from eight in the morning until six at night rarely has pretty shoulders.

And seventy-five dollars is not much to pay a girl who does the work of two men. Miss Peters sent fifty dollars of this amount home every month. After her board was paid, little was left to waste on feminine finery.

"I wouldn't care," (she had fallen into the habit of talking to herself), "I wouldn't care if I were ugly and poor if any of them liked me." She buried her face in the pillows and began to cry. "I never have any fun." She lay staring at the ceiling, thinking hard. And her thoughts were even more pathetic than her face. One by one she took the girls in the boarding house, and studied their faces from memory—and their friends. There was only one of them who had ever manifested the slightest friendliness for her and that was Miss Mathis. She did not wonder that people loved Miss Mathis and thought her beautiful—she was. She reminded Miss Peters always of a queen who had strayed somehow into a cheap boarding-house incognito, that she might learn to know and love the least of her subjects. Miss Mathis, with her gorgeous hair and eyes was so beautiful and magnetic no one could keep from loving her. But it was the others she wondered about—the dozens of stenographers, book keepers and school teachers. Very few of them were really pretty, yet they had friends. The landlady's daughter was no beauty, but all the men liked her.

"I know," exclaimed Miss Peters, with sudden energy, "it's only the gay girls that are popular. I will make

Not even one who loved her could call her pretty.

"em like me, too!" Her face had emerged from the pillow. A new light was in her eyes, the light of one who determined to conquer. "A girl who goes along, tending to her own business and living up to her ideas of what a lady should be. What's coming to her?" Unconsciously she fell into the slang of the other girls.

She rose with fresh determination and began to dress for dinner. She pulled out her best frock, the one kept religiously for Sundays, and her good slippers. She would dress up like the other girls. She would even "make up" like Daisy, the landlady's daughter. To do this she had to improvise cosmetics. A rose petal from her best hat put color into her cheeks and lips. She darkened her brows and lashes. She almost fancied that she saw in the face reflected a likeness to Mrs. Lively, the wife of a drummer further down the hall. Then she began to comb her hair. Not in the usual knot, but in an elaborate and much tangled pompadour.

By the time she had her dress buttoned, the dinner bell rang and, without taking time to consider her daring, she ran lightly down to the dining room. She did not see, fortunately, the elevated brows behind her back, or hear any of the whispered comments on her appearance. It was a pity she did not know that one man, Mr. Hughes, the kindly-faced new boarder, was disappointed in her. Before this he had felt a certain shy friendliness for the modest little bookkeeper, who reminded him somehow of a fragrant clover blossom in a bunch of artificial flowers. And so, he was thinking, as he watched her flippant and painted, that she felt like the others, after all. He felt a mild sort of pity that he could not have explained to himself, but all the time he knew that the others were making fun of Miss Peters behind her back.

"It is," she admitted.

But the little bookkeeper, with an almost fierce gaiety, was chattering away to a commercial student who sat next to her. After dinner she followed the others in the parlor, still determined to be one of them. Her companion at dinner was at her heels, encouraging her. Later she went to sit on the steps to the site gallery with him while he smoked a cigarette.

"Have one?" he invited, companionably. "Daisy smoked one with me last night." For an instant Miss Peters' face went white under the paint with anger. Then she remembered she must be like the others if she wanted to be popular. No one could be popular and be a prig.

She reached out for the cigarette, and the young man offered her a light from the one he was smoking—and moved up nearer. Two whiffs of the cigarette turned her deathly faint.

"I think I'll go up to my room," she faltered, throwing it aside with a little forced laugh.

"Don't go," he begged. "Ain't you game enough to finish it? Must be your first one."

"It is," she admitted, fighting back her disgust for her companion. "Good night."

"Aren't you going to kiss me good night?" he whispered, rising. "Daisy always—"

"How dare—" But Miss Peters did not finish. She stumbled blindly through the dining room and on up the three flights of stairs to her own room. She slammed the door and dropped on her knees beside the tiny white bed.

"O God," she sobbed, "what have I done? Why did you let me do it? What did it matter if I were ugly? That I had no friends. Nothing matters any more! I have lost everything now. My self-respect is gone—forever—"

And she was on her knees, still sobbing and praying in the dark when the last boarder came in for the night and passed whistling to his room at 1 o'clock.

Some men's idea of the pursuit of happiness is to sprinkle salt on its tail.

AMBITION AS A TONIC.

It is Well, Occasionally, to Depart from the Beaten Track.

The world is full of "beaten-track" people who exist exactly after the fashion of millions of men and women who have preceded them. New ideas, new methods, new undertakings are alien to them, and to move them out of the beaten track would require little less than a moral or material cyclone. Their gait is plodding, and their motto, "Let well enough alone." These people have their uses, no doubt in the general scheme of things mundane. They are important factors in making life a severe discipline. They hold in check the enthusiastic, progressive and original people who would otherwise run this poor old world too swiftly.

Granted their usefulness, it might be possible, and would surely be advantageous, for a smaller number of beaten-track people to serve the purposes for which they exist; and some power evoked to transform the majority of them into progressive and enthusiastic citizens of the world. Their numbers have far outgrown the needs, while the ranks of the advance guard of humanity have grown thin.

Our attitude toward the sluggish and satisfied people ought to be one of pity rather than scorn, perhaps, for they are generally the product of untoward circumstances. Physical or mental or moral incapacity is responsible for their apathy, and has left them only energy or will sufficient for the beaten track. They at least are far above the degenerate and criminal classes in humanity's scale, for these are too feeble in intellect and will to keep even in the beaten track, not to mention the power to blaze a higher and finer way through the world.

Johnny's Welcome.

"My boy! my boy! Oh, has anybody seen my little Johnny!" cried a poor mother, distractedly looking in every direction and inquiring of every person whom she met if anything had been seen of her eight-year old boy on the long strip of sand which lies between Seaside Park and the ocean at Coney Island, where at a very modest estimate fully 15,000 persons had congregated.

Just at this moment a kindly-looking man in a bathing suit hove into view, leading by the hand a small boy, convulsively sobbing, but tightly clutching a half-eaten frankfurter with a small, grimy hand, liberally sprinkled with sand.

"Oh, there you are, you little villain, you!" the woman shrieked, as she caught sight of the weeping little chap, Eph Eiseeman that he was so bad that to death?" and she grabbed her long lost son and gave him an unmerciful belaboring.

"How glad she is to get him again!" sarcastically remarked the "finder" of the boy to a bystander.—New York World.

She Knew His Temper.

At the close of the late Spanish-American war, and when the troops were returning home, a member of the Seventy-first Regiment, New York, was stricken with fever and sent to St. Catherine's hospital, in Brooklyn, and upon his wife calling at the hospital to inquire after her husband's condition she was informed by Mr. Joseph Eiseeman that he was so bad that she would not be allowed to see him. She was rather insistent, when Mr. Eiseeman said: "Madam, I am very sorry—I cannot grant your request, his temperature is very high this morning and an interview might endanger his life."

Pausing a moment, Mrs. Gorman, the wife, said: "Indeed, Mr. Eiseeman, you cannot tell me anything about his temper. I am not married to him these twelve years without knowing full well of his high temper." And with that she departed.

In the Catechism.

The late Rev. Walpole Warren was hearing the Sunday school repeat the catechism one Sunday preceding confirmation, when a boy from the class of small children ventured to ask a question of the minister.

"Mr. Warren," he inquired in an anxious tone. "Why does the multiplication table make people wicked?"

"Why do you ask that question, oh? I never knew it to do so," he said.

John turned to his catechism and read from it the question:

"Did man grow worse as he began to multiply?" And the accompanying answer, "He did."—New York World.

Not Wholly Crazy.

A supervisor of an insane asylum directed one of the half-witted inmates to whitewash the walls. The inmate did as directed and really performed a very creditable job, but for some unforeseen reason he had neglected to whitewash a space over the clock.

"That is very well done," said the supervisor as he returned to inspect, but catching himself up short he demanded:

"But why did you leave that space over the clock?"

"Oh, I don't believe in working overtime," was the response.

Johnny Knew.

A class of boys were given a lesson in geography, each having a book containing a description of the earth before him.

Suddenly the teacher called on one of the youngsters (who, evidently, had been paying little attention to what was being said) to answer the following question:

"Johnny, where is Europe?" "Page 38," was the boy's reply.

Glimpses of Norway

(Special Correspondence.)

The map of Norway and Sweden has often been compared to a rabbit jumping downward. Corresponding to the rabbit's eye is a group of mountains known by the name of Jotunheim, containing the highest mountains in Europe north of the Alps—Galhoppig, Glittatind and Skagastolind; like the Mont Blanc, Monte Rosa and Matterhorn of Switzerland. The Norwegian names are very picturesque and descriptive of the places themselves. Thus Jotunheim means "The Home of Giants," Glitterind "The Shining Peak," and Skagastolind "The Shaggy-topped Mountain."

Jotunheim is infinitely wilder and more rugged than Switzerland, though without the majesty of the High Alps. One can see glaciers coming down to the water's edge, mountains sending precipitous cliffs into lakes that are as deep as the mountains are high, and narrow arms of the sea, the fjords, running hundreds of miles inland. The only Swiss lake which anywhere resembles the combination of mountain and water of the Norwegian fjords is Lucerne; and the celebrated Axenstrasse and Via Mole have their counterparts in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

From October to April the land is fast bound by snow and ice, storms howl through the swaying pines and whirl eddies of snow down the mountain sides, and perchance the cry of the wolf mingles with the voice of the storm. Then, by the ruddy glow of the pine wood fire, the mother rocks the cradle of her youngest as she tells her first-born stories of the giants of to the passing stranger as they themselves would hope to have a kindness done to them.

Some of my most pleasing reminiscences are of hours spent at "Saeter," far from town or hamlet, where a strange face was a guest to be welcomed. The word "saeter" is very nearly the equivalent of our word farm, or ranch; for though sometimes applied merely to a meadow, it generally means ground which produces crops and has a dwelling upon it.

It was an unusually enjoyable day on which I had lost myself and wandered many miles from my intended route, along the banks of rippling streams and placid lakes, through tangles of willow and beech and stretches of pine, over high and barren fields and rocky gorges. In the early afternoon I found a saeter, a solitary house in the midst of a clearing. Here I was told of another saeter I might hope to reach by nightfall. The sun was already painting the sky and woodland crimson and gold when a turf-grown lane was reached, and the soft soil showed tracks of a cow and a pair of bare feet. Night was gathering overhead when a wreath of smoke curling skyward betokened a possible resting place. The saeter was reached, and a night's shelter requested. The woman said she would gladly provide it, but that other "fremmede" (strangers), a woman and a little boy, had arrived some time previous and would occupy the only spare bed. The woman had come leading a cow, and the little boy had ridden on its back. However, permission was obtained to old who lived in the heart of the mountains, and of the sprites and goblins who dwelt beneath the ice of the brooks and in the dim recesses of the forest.

One frequently puts up at the "skystations." The people of Norway pay very few taxes, but each man along a road will have so many yards of the road assigned to his care; owners of land and stock must, within the district allotted to them, provide shelter and conveyance within a fixed time, at a low rate of pay fixed by the government. A "skystation" is therefore a kind of relay station or hostelry, where fresh horses will be supplied and refreshment provided for man and beast.

Roads Hewn Through Rock.

Some of the roads over the mountains are amongst the finest in the world, hewn out and in some places tunneled through solid rock; through precipitous gorges where pent-up cataraacts form in ceaseless fury, or along cliffs that descend abruptly into the calm waters of a lake or fjord. At other times they glide, snake-like, down some broad-breasted slope, or climb from the narrowing valley up to the tableland that spreads itself above.

But leaving the highways and the beaten tracks, one can taste the joys of roaming with map and compass for sole guides; straying far from hotel and skystation, and leaving the mountain cabins in their fastnesses,

Kiln Hut and Peasant.

one lodges wherever shelter may be found. Then one sees the people as they are, finds out their primitive simplicity and hospitality; and the town-bred American discovers that miracle of miracles—a people uninfluenced by greed of gain. They are frugal, because nature compels them to be so, but they are willing to do a kindness sleep in the barn near by, full of dry hay.

In the Family Room.

The house contained one big room, to which everything else was merely accessory. Large bedsteads occupied two corners of the room, a huge fireplace with a brightly-burning log fire occupied the third, and a fourth contained a cuckoo clock, a table, and some broad wooden benches. The household consisted of a little weazened man, his stalwart wife, and a fair-haired daughter of 15 or 16. His wife was about six feet high and broad in proportion, and looked as if she could put her husband in her pocket on occasion; her bare arms showed goodly muscles, and petticoats reaching only to the knees made her appear even taller than she was, a peaceful feminine Goliath. The old man smoked his pipe by the light of the blazing fire, while the daughter combed out her long golden hair; the little boy was already slumbering in one of the big beds, and his mother was attending to the cow, while the hostess bustled about her household duties.

Presently the latest comer asked permission to retire, but he was bidden to wait a moment and he would be given something better than the barn. That was a house where woman's word was law, so he sat meekly between the fire and the golden-haired girl and watched his buxom hostess. Quickly she placed two benches side by side beneath the cuckoo clock, fetched two huge armfuls of hay from the barn and spread them thereon, went out again and brought some more with which to stuff a pillow case, and finally covered all with homespun sheets and blankets. Then, by the fitful dancing of the dying flames proceeded a general but necessarily incomplete disrobing; host and hostess in one of the beds, the hostess' daughter and the woman and little boy in the other, while the sixth occupant of the room lay beneath the cuckoo clock. Could hospitality go further?

Next morning the hostess was up before dawn; the crackling of dry wood in the flames of the open hearth and the grinding of coffee in a small wooden trough roused the slumberers, and the rich fragrance of the crushed berries roused their appetites. Flax-bread and coffee, potatoes and butter, porridge and sugar and cream made a meal for a prince, but such as princes rarely taste. Was not this better than a room in a hotel, provided in exchange for a Cook's tourist ticket coupon?

Germany's Population.

The Imperial Bureau of Statistics estimates the population of the German empire for 1905 at 60,164,000 compared with 59,364,000 in 1904.

ADDED TO TOWN'S BEAUTY.

One Man Supplied Trees to All of Tonawanda.

Dr. Heinrich C. Leonhardt of Tonawanda recently supplied almost the whole city with young trees. At a dinner which he attended he heard the suggestion made that the city needed shade trees. Immediately he bought thousands of young elm, maple and chestnut trees, and as soon as it was possible had them shipped to Tonawanda and stored in a nursery there. Then he announced that all who would might have trees by applying at the nursery. The effect was wonderful. Streets that never would have had trees were soon filled with flourishing young saplings that in twenty years will be priceless—a magnificent monument to one man. Two thousand of the trees were distributed in an incredibly short time. There was more tree planting in Tonawanda than ever before. The only condition attached to the offer was that persons taking trees should guarantee to plant them for shade purposes and to plant them in accordance with directions given at the nursery.—Country Life in America.

CALLED THE VAINEST PEOPLE.

Distinction Accorded a Tribe Living in West Africa.

A French explorer claims to have discovered the vainest people in the world. They happen to be also the ugliest. They are the Pahouins, a savage West African tribe. As the Pahouin's clothing is of so light a character as not to incommode him, he bestows a good share of his thought upon the adornment of his body, which he tattoos in elaborate designs done in red or blue. Both men and women take immense pains in dressing their hair. Their ingenuity, which is shown in the construction of scores of different head-dresses of bone and metal for the men of the tribe, chiefly the warriors, is illustrated in a far greater degree by the coiffures of the women. The extreme of simplicity in the Pahouin women's methods of making themselves beautiful is to shave the head until it is smooth and round as a ball, and then to color it with a dye.

Inventor's Shrewdness.

A story is told of a certain famous inventor who is fortunate enough to be able to employ a large staff of engineers and mathematicians to aid him in the solution of knotty problems. Some time ago the inventor desired to find the cubic capacity of a certain vessel of unsymmetrical proportions, and asked his mathematicians to solve the problem. As the story goes, the mathematicians spent weeks of time, filled their books with their calculations and finally presented what they said was a close approximation to the true result. Thereupon the famous inventor placed the vessel on a platform scale, filled it to the brim with water, obtained its weight when full and when empty, and in a few minutes he had a result as good as the mathematicians—for that particular vessel.—Engineering News.

Holland Woman's Cap.

The caps of the women of Holland are not only beautiful, they are full of significance, and eloquent through their decoration and jewelry of the worldly estate and condition of their wearers, says the Delineator. The wealthy burgher's wife in Amsterdam, or The Hague, or in Dordrecht, who lives perhaps in one of the numerous fine old sixteenth century houses, who is of ancient and respectable lineage, who has a retinue of buxom hand-maids to do her will and to keep her home in order, tells of her good fortune when she walks abroad to take the air, for she wears beneath a modern bonnet her mits, the lace of which is old, rare and costly, and was perhaps made in Bruges or Brussels or some famous Flemish convent.

Birds That Do Not Care to Fly.

Many birds do not consciously delight in the use of their wings. In Nigeria, where the bush is continuous, pheasants do not fly at all. Partridges in England move to and from their feeding grounds; but they love to skim the earth, to whose tint they are colored, and use their higher flight only for safety. Moorhens prefer not to fly at all. The majority of our home birds and many of the smaller migrants, move very small distances of themselves, and we look in vain for any sign that they fly, as lambs skip, for the fun of the thing.

Good Find of Old Coins.

According to reports from Athens certain Frenchmen who have been making excavations in the island of Delos have come upon 400 large silver coins, stamped with the heads of magistrates, dating from the time of Alexander the Great. All are in a state of excellent preservation and all examples of Greek coinage when it was at its zenith. A considerable number of smaller coins, also well preserved, were found in a house laid open by the excavators.

Fish With Queer Name.

There is a fish in Hawaiian waters which is known by the native name of humuhumunukunuuapuaa, which means literally "sewing up the nose." The Hawaiian method of killing a pig to be roasted is to smother it, not cut its throat, and it is smothered by sewing up the pig's mouth and nose. This fish with the long name has spines which in ancient times were used as needles to sew up the pig's mouth. Hence, the name more fully means "the fish that provides the needles for sewing up the nose of the pig."

This reward is offered because certain unscrupulous persons make false statements about these remedies. It is understood that this reward applies only to goods purchased in the open market, which have not been tampered with in any way.

Dr. Miles' remedies cure by their soothing, nourishing, strengthening and invigorating effects upon the nervous system, and not by paralyzing and weakening the nerves as would be the case if these drugs were used.

For this reason Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are universally considered the best pain remedy. "I have suffered for 25 years with severe pains in my head, heart and back, and have tried everything I could get and could not find any relief until I got a box of Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. I suffered as long as 12 hours at a time with such severe pains that I feared I would lose my mind. The Anti-Pain Pills gave me relief in from 10 to 20 minutes. I do not have to use Morphine any more. I wish you would publish this so that other sufferers may find relief."

Smut in Wheat.

Treatment of Seed Wheat to Prevent Stinking Smut.

The unusual prevalence of stinking smut in the wheat crop of 1903 calls for extraordinary effort on the part of Michigan wheat growers to prevent a repetition of the loss next season. It is now well known that this smut is a disease carried from one year to another in the seed wheat. The disease converts the kernel into a ill-smelling mass of spores, which, when the smutty kernels are broken up by the threshing machine or by hand, attach themselves to the sound kernels. After affected wheat is shown, the kernels and these spores of smut germinate at the same time. The smut plant grows inside the wheat stem throughout the season, and, when the crop is ripening, it turns the kernel in the head of the wheat into the well known smut kernels. The spread of the disease may best be prevented by finding, if possible, seed wheat free from smut. If you cannot obtain clean seed of your chosen variety, try the following treatment:

The first step is to clean off a space on the barn floor some ten feet square or larger if convenient. Sweep this area very thoroughly to remove all spores of smut possible.

Next buy of your druggist a pound bottle of formalin. He may not have this agent in stock, therefore, order it at once that he may have it in time for your use in September.

Mix the formalin with water in a large barrel in the proportion of one pound of formalin to four hundred pounds of water. This means that the formalin should be mixed with fifty gallons of water, enough for thirty-five bushels of wheat. Knowing the proportions you can mix any quantity desired. Be sure to keep the bottle of formalin tightly and securely corked. It is not a dangerous poison but is unhealthy to take either by the nose or mouth. Do not mix the formalin and water until you are ready to use them.

Thoroughly wet the floor, on which you are to treat the wheat, with this formalin mixture, making it good and wet. Then spread on a layer of the seed wheat which you have previously well cleaned with a fanning mill. With a sprinkling pot go over the layer of wheat, wetting it thoroughly, shovelling it over and resprinkling until every kernel is wet on all sides. Add more wheat and sprinkle or take up the wheat already treated and put down a new lot. Before putting the treated wheat into bags to carry to the field it may lay in a pile for a day, not longer, because of the danger of heating and the farther danger that an excess of the formalin may hinder germination. Put the treated wheat into clean bags or into bags that have been wet with this formalin mixture. Be careful not to stir up a dust in the barn while the treated wheat is still exposed. The dust will be likely to be made up largely of the smut spores which we are fighting.

If you want to drill the wheat, it is well to allow it to dry either on the barn floor treated long enough beforehand with the formalin mixture to allow it to become thoroughly dry, or on canvas, free from smut spores, and spread on the ground in the sun. The drill and everything else with which the wheat comes in contact after treatment should be free from smut spores or washed with the formalin mixture.

If you cannot buy formalin at your druggist's you may try corrosive sublimate if you dare when you remember that it is deadly poison, and the greatest care must be taken to allow no animal access either to the drug itself or to the wheat that has been treated. Use a pound of corrosive sublimate to four hundred pounds of water (fifty gallons). Dissolve the drug in three or four gallons of hot water in a wooden vessel. Do not allow the mixture to come in contact with metal. Later add enough cold water to bring the amount up to the fifty gallons. Proceed as with the formalin mixture, except that great care must be exercised to prevent poisoning live stock or children.

Our experiments have shown that either treatment will reduce the amount of smut in the wheat to a very small quantity or, if the season be right, will prevent smut altogether.
C. D. SMITH,
Director.

In the event that you are not able to procure the formalin from your druggist, it can be obtained from the stock of the Michigan Experiment Station, Michigan Agricultural College. Price: one pound bottle packed and shipped, 60 cents, the receiver paying express.

VARICOCELE NERVOUS-DEBILITY CURED

If you have transgressed against the laws of nature, you must suffer. Youthful ignorance, later excesses and nervous diseases have wrecked thousands of promising lives. Treat with scientific physicians and be cured. Avoid quacks. E. A. Sidney, of Toledo, says: "At an early age I was the victim of youthful complaints. I treated with a dozen doctors, who all promised to cure me. They got my money and I still had the disease. I had given up hope when a friend advised me to consult Drs. K. & K., who had cured him. Without any confidence I called on them, and Dr. Kennedy agreed to cure me or no pay. After taking the New Method Treatment for six weeks I felt like a new man. The weakness ceased, wormy veins disappeared, nerves grew stronger, hair stopped falling out, urine became clear and my physical system vitalized. I was entirely cured by Dr. Kennedy and I recommend him from the bottom of my heart."

We Treat and Cure Blood Diseases, Varicocele, Stricture, Nervous Debility, Kidney and Bladder Diseases.

KIDNEY DISEASES CAUSE ONE-THIRD OF THE TOTAL DEATHS.

When the Kidneys fail to perform their functions properly by not straining out the poisonous waste matter from the blood as it passes through them, the poisons are carried by the circulation to every part of the body, deranging the different organs. This causes heart trouble, stomach trouble, sluggish liver and a host of other ills, all due to deranged Kidneys.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

corrects irregularities and cures Kidney and Bladder diseases in every form, tones up the whole system, and the diseases that have resulted from disordered Kidneys disappear, because the cause has been removed. Commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at the first sign of danger. Do not risk having Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

CURED OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

Mr. Robert G. Burke, Elmore, Saratoga Co., N. Y., writes: "I am glad to have an opportunity of telling what magnificent results I have had from using FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE after having tried other advertised medicines and several physicians. Before I began I had to get up from 12 to 20 times each night to urinate. I was unable to get up with any ease and my weight was so impaired that I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. In fact, I was so badly used up that I had given up hope of living when I was urged by a friend to try FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. One 5-cent bottle worked wonders, and before I had taken the third bottle the superfluous flesh had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Kidney trouble. My friends were surprised that I was cured, as they all thought I was going to die. Every few days some one comes from miles away to learn the name of the wonderful medicine that cured me of Bright's Disease, and not one that has tried it has failed to be benefited."
