East Jordan's Summer Resort.

Work to Begin on Same This Coming Month

East Jordan has never, in past history, made any attempt to be known among Northern Resort towns as a Resort Town and has been known to summer tourists only as a busy little industrial town at the head of South Arm—affording a pleasant place to spend a few hours until the return trip of the boat down the waters of South Arm of Pine Lake, from which the scenery is most picturesque. The hundreds of summer resorters who make this delightful side trip always appear to be enchanted with the beauties of the shore of this body of water and often express their wonder at there not being more summer cottages along the route. East Jordan people have been too busy with "all the year around" business to get interested in the possibilities in the Summer Resort subject but this summer promises to mark a start in this direction as "Terrace Beach" is opened up and cottage building started in that beautiful spot near the mouth of Monroe Creek, and as the enterprise progresses it is bound to be felt as an important adjunct to the business of the town and the surrounding community, as well as to advertise this locality. The surveyors have this week been surveying and staking out the plat between the highway and the beach. This will be immediately followed by opening up and grading the streets, and Mr. Monroe who recently visited East Jordan in the interests of Mr. Bushman the present owner of the resort site, has since his return to Detroit, stated definitely in a letter that they will begin this season to erect cottages. An opportunity is now open for local people to join in starting this enterprise by the purchase of a few lots at a low price, though there is nothing obligatory about it. Several have already agreed to purchase, and will probably build this season or next, and about six or eight more can join in selection of lots on this same basis, by applying soon. The agreement is at W. A. Lovelady's office where full particulars may be obtained.

The gentlemen who have started this enterprise are Detroit people who have the reputation of pushing things.

They have already prepared neatly printed abstracts to furnish one with the sale of each lot, so that if a purchaser only buys one lot he will get a complete history of the transfers of the entire property from the time the Government owned it, down to the present time. The Summer Hotel question is one which will naturally follow the cottage building though that feature may not develop before another year.

This plat of ground which covers some 13 acres is only a small portion of the property and presents a gradual rise from the shore, back to its Western boundary—the highway—a portion of which is nicely wooded and the balance has occasionally a fine tree for shade. The beach which in a general way is terraced, as the name "Terrace Beach" would imply, really has more good sandy bathing beach than any 80 rods along this lake, which will add greatly to its attractions. On the West side of the Highway, Monroe Creek winds around through the property yet unplatted and offers a delightful place for picnicking, fishing and otherwise communing with nature—a portion of that may eventually be platted, but much of it will probably be left as a natural park to be enjoyed by those whose summer home is located nearer the lake.

Supervisors Meet June 25.

The board of Supervisors will meet in regular session on Monday, June 25. This meeting is for the purpose of equalizing the assessment and is held every five years, and from this equalization the state fixes the valuation of the different counties. Usually some member of the board is appointed to go before the state board in behalf of the county to see that a "square deal" is given.

Notice to Water Takers.

The hours for sprinkling are from 5:00 o'clock p. m. until 8:00 p. m. Parties found using water out of these hours, will be fined according to Village Ordinance.

By Order of Common Council,

Teacher's Examination.

The regular Teacher's Examination for June will be held in the High School building in Charlevoix on Thursday and Friday, June 21-22, 1906, beginning at 8:30 a. m.

The examination in reading will be based on "Hamlet, Act III." Certificates of all grades will be issued from this examination.

J. H. MILFORD, Com'r.

There are just a few who have permitted their subscriptions to lag behind. Don't do it. You will die one of these fine days and your family will want a common obituary published free, and then your daughter is soon to be married and you will expect your home paper to give her an Alice Roosevelt write-up, and all free. It always pays to be prompt in paying your subscription to the local paper.

An exchange tells of a newspaper reporter who interviewed thirty successful business men and found that all of them when boys had been governed strictly and frequently thrashed. He also interviewed thirty loafers and learned that twenty-seven of them had been "mamma's darling," and the other three had been reared by their grandmothers.

You can see the poison—Pine-ules clears out of the kidneys and bladder. A single dose at bedtime will show you more poison upon rising next morning than can be expelled from the system in any other way. Pine-ules dissolves the impurities, lubricate the kidneys, cleanse the bladder, relieve pain and do away with backache speedily, pleasantly, permanently. Sold by Warner's Pharmacy.

Camp Cookery.

Mrs. Alice Chittenden gives in the New Idea Woman's Magazine for July, a number of suggestions for solving the problem of serving sufficient meals in camp, without breaking too much into the housekeeper's holiday. "For you must not," she says, "start with the delusion that there is no work to be done." She advises a vegetarian diet, to avoid flies and unpleasant odors, with the exception of a few ragouts and the morning bacon; and gives a number of "modified Spanish dishes," which she says she has found take the place of meat. Some of these are Vegetables with Peppers, Vegetables with Cheese, Vegetable Soup and Black Bean Soup. Although avoiding canned goods as much as possible, the writer would make use of "certain brands of canned clams and others of salmon which are excellent when one wants to prepare a hasty dish with little trouble." In regard to breads, she recommends making it in camp, unless it can be bought from some farmer's wife, though she would limit it to such kinds as require no kneading, such as graham bread and corn bread. "Space fails me," she says in closing, "to tell of the variety which you can have if you will be content with one dish at a meal. If vegetables are fresh and plentiful, a huge dish of new potatoes and peas boiled together and seasoned with butter, cream, salt and pepper, is always acceptable. Do not try to make fancy salads or to concoct 'muds dishes.' Let all cooking ware be of granite, which is easily kept clean, and be resigned to let the outside of of all vessels used on top of the stove get blackened with wood smoke. When you are ready to break up camp, soak them over night in a large boiler filled with a strong solution of washing soda; bring to a boil in the morning and ten minutes' work will give you bright ware again."

CAUGHT MONSTER FISH.

LADY ANGLER LANDED BIG JEW-FISH OFF SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, CALIFORNIA.

Finny Monsters of Three Hundred Pounds and Upwards are Now Caught With Rod and Reel—Jew-fish a Gamey Fellow.

Women who enjoy angling, and, in fact, everybody who likes to hunt and fish, will be interested in the exploit with rod and reel of Mrs. A. W. Barrett of Los Angeles, Cal. The fish in the case was a black sea bass, or Jew-fish, of the Pacific Ocean, weight 368 pounds, caught off Santa Catalina Island, Cal., last month by Mrs. Barrett after 53 minutes of strenuous battle.

The black sea bass of the Pacific—one of the gamiest of its kind—is in season on the Southern California coast from about April to November, and affords favorite sport to anglers of both sexes. Owing to its great size, it cannot, of course, be pulled with rod and line into the boat, so, after one is hooked, the plan is to play it and tire it out and then, as it comes exhausted to the surface of the water alongside the boat, the boatman thrusts his gaff into it and tows the conquered leviathan ashore.

Up to twelve years ago no one dreamed of landing these monsters of the deep, except with heavy hand lines; but since General C. D. Viele, U. S. A., one summer day in 1894 managed to secure one with rod and reel, no true angler thinks of fishing for them in any other way than with a rod.

A well-known fisherman, in describing his experience with this fish in the Nature Library states that he has seen a 200 pound black sea bass or Jewfish snap the largest shark line like a thread, and large specimens straighten out an iron-shank-hook, while at the same time skilled wielders of the rod catch these giants of the tribe with a line no larger than an eye-glass cord.

His first experience with the California Jewfish was a most remarkable one.

"When we got out to the fishing ground," he stated, "the anchor was tossed over the side, the fish hurriedly out, and the hook baited with a 6-pound whitefish, went hissing down to the big submerged rock.

"Sometimes he bite, sometimes he don't," remarked Joe; "but whether he do or not, we have the fishin' all the same." And he looked at me inquiringly, to see if I was of that variety

"I was an old shark fisherman, having caught many of these monsters in the Mexican Gulf, and having taken a Florida Jewfish and a tarpon, and I saw that work of a similar kind was before me now. The line jerked heavily in my hand, then began to run steadily. When about 6 feet had gone over the gunwale I stopped, gave a glance at the coil to see that all was clear, and when the line came taut jerked the hook into my first Jewfish.

"I have every reason to believe that the latter was astonished, as for a single second there was no response; then came a jerk that almost lifted me from the boat, and the line went blissing over the rail like a living thing, playing a merry hornpipe of its own composition. Nothing could stop such a fish; and I simply waited, while Joe pulled up the anchor. When the latter was in, I grasped the line and braced back for the light. The light boat whirled around like a top, and away we went, like a tug surging through the water, an ominous wave of foam rising high around the bow.

"A 10-foot shark never pulled harder than this gamey fish, and for 5 minutes it was a question who was master. I took it in with the greatest difficulty, gaining 10 feet, only to have the fish rush toward me and then dash away with an impetus that was more than irresistible. Then I would stop him again, slowly making foot by foot, hand over hand, taking a turn on the cleat, slacking and pulling, in attempts to tire the monster—tactics that for a while were of no avail.

"One of the tricks of this fish was to stop and jerk his head from side to side violently, a proceeding that produced an effect equivalent to striking blows at the holder of the line—tremendous jerks that came, one, two, three! then one, two, three!—then the line would slacken as the fish rushed up. And if I took the line in quickly enough to prevent a turn, well and good; if I did not, the fish would turn and dash at the bottom, making everything hum and sing.

"Giving and taking, hauling and easing off, for 20 minutes, I was almost satisfied that I had done my whole duty in the premises, when suddenly the fish rushed up, and recover ring, I took in slack, and with a final effort brought the black giant to the surface. For a moment I saw a pair of eyes as large as those of an ox, a rich chestnut black, and then, with a tremendous heave, the fish threw itself over deluging me with water and half capsizing the boat. It was the last struggle, I kept my hold, and with another haul had the king of Pacific coast at hand's length, where it rolled of fishermen who are never satisfied unless the fish are always on the line. It so happened that I found pleasure in the mere anticipation; and we sat silent for half an hour, I holding the throbbing line that the ebbing tide played upon as the string of a musical instrument. I glanced at my companion, and was wondering if in his veins ran the blood of the Aztecs or of the Indians whom Cabrillo and others found here centuries ago when Santa Catalina was an empire in itself and owned by them, when suddenly I became aware that the tension of the line I held had increased to a steady pull; then came a jerk that carried my hand into the water.

"Jewfish, sure!" whispered Joe, awakened from his reverie by my exclamation, "Slack!"

"I pulled out the line, while he seized the anchor-line and made ready to haul up.

"Give him 10 feet, and then hook!" were my orders.

and tossed, its huge tail bathing us with spray, protesting against its capture.

"What a wonderful creature it was! The experience of the moment, the sensations, could not have been purchased. It was worth going a long way to accomplish. Imagine, you casters of the black-bass fly, a small-mouthed black-bass lengthened out to six feet, bulky in proportion, a giant black-bass—increased to a size that tips the scales at 367 pounds! Imagine this, and you have the Jewfish, black sea-bass, of the Pacific coast—a noble fish, a gamey fellow.

CANNON AT SEVENTY.

A GREAT ADD MADE OVER THE ANNIVERSARY OF "UNCLE JOE'S" BIRTHDAY.

Greeted With Hearty Applause on the Floor of the House and Honored With Reception Which all Official Washington Society Attended.

There were great doings in Washington town last month when "Uncle Joe" Cannon, the "Czar" of the House of Representatives reached his seventieth year.

In the first place a great storm of cheers greeted the Speaker when he appeared on the floor of the House. Both Republican and Democratic members applauded the Illinois statesman long and loud; Mr. Cannon acknowledging the salutation with a homely bow.

In the evening, official Washington honored the Speaker at a reception tendered him by the House of Representatives, where some 1500 guests were invited. That the passage of time was not worrying Uncle Joe was manifested by the hearty hand-claps with which he greeted his friends, as well as the salutations extended to those who congratulated him.

President Roosevelt joined in the ovation, offering the Speaker his hearty congratulations, not because he was getting old, but because he was doing it gracefully. Mr. Cannon did two things which might worry many a younger man. First he had to sign something over a thousand photographs of himself, which were given to the guests as souvenirs, and again he shook hands with the guests upon receiving an equal number of personal congratulations.

There were many sly digs and remarks regarding the buzzing of the presidential bee around Mr. Cannon's head, and one of the throng remarked at the close of the reception, "Any man who can stand and shake hands with twelve hundred or more persons between nine and twelve o'clock, and not show signs of fatigue, is well fit to enter the presidential race, and ought to enjoy the prize if he wins it."

There were many friends present from Danville, Ill., who had sent a number of handsome wreaths and floral decorations. Mr. Cannon, however, is a native of Guilford, N. C., and if his friends have their way the Speaker will be the first Southern man since the war to become a White House occupant.

Speaking seriously of the presidency, Mr. Cannon said, "No man would decline to become President of the United States, but not all men can afford to be a candidate for the place. The bee is not bothering me. I want to do my work as Speaker; that will be glory enough for me, and if I were a candidate I'd have to lie about my age, and I'd have to live constantly in fear and trembling, not as to whether I'm doing my duty, but as to whether, by doing my duty, I wouldn't give offense to somebody."

"I guess I'll just go along and tend my own business."

BASEBALL AT WASHINGTON.

Games Played Before Cabinet Officers, Diplomats, and Congressmen.

At the base ball games in Washington, the learned justices of the United States Supreme Court, law makers of both Houses of Congress, members of the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps, sit side by side with the merchant, artisan and government clerk, all keenly enjoying the national pastime. The big men of this and other nations in the capital are base ball fans of the highest degree, and are glad to eschew court decisions, railroad and other legislation, national and international topics for the less weighty decisions of the diamond. As soon as business can be transacted at the Capitol and in the departments it is customary for these distinguished base ball enthusiasts to betake themselves to National Park for an afternoon of enjoyment, rooting for their favorite teams and resting from affairs of State.

The different teams throughout the country like to visit Washington for the privilege of playing before the most distinguished spectators to be found in any country on the globe.

Members of the local teams very quickly recognize the faces of the on-lookers and take pardonable pride in pointing out to the visitors the big guns of the nation. It is an impartial crowd too, lights in judgment on the work of the athletes on the diamond and good play is appreciated and applauded no matter which side makes the exhibition. There are nine judges on the Supreme Court bench and a majority at the ball park is not an unusual spectacle. A quartet is a certainty, comprising Associate Justices Harlan, Day, McKenna and White, who can often be seen engaged in discussing a knotty point regarding a foul or strike, or close base play, showing as much seriousness as though some intricate problem regarding the tariff was under question. Justice Day is probably the best posted on the national game of any of his associates on the Supreme bench, for he has played it, and never misses an exhibition when he is in the city, and a ball game is advertised.

ARDENT CONGRESSIONAL FANS.

There are nearly five hundred congressmen in the two branches of the national legislature and it is pretty safe to predict that fully one-half of this number are interested attendants during the championship season. They are not at all dismayed at the prospect of a long season of Congress when sure of an afternoon's recreation following a long-drawn war of words at the Capitol earlier in the day.

President Roosevelt a few weeks ago, was presented with a golden pass, entitling him to free admission to all ball games in the National and American Leagues and circuits. He promised the presentation committee to endeavor to occasionally visit the ball park in Washington and witness the ball games played there. Frequently his son-in-law, Nick Longworth and his wife occupy seats in the grand stand, preferring to be among the enthusiastic gathering than to avail themselves of the President's pass and a seat in the private box.

When there is a call of the House or Senate and the sergeant-at-arms is charged with the duty of bringing in absentees the first place to which the deputies are sent, if the base ball season is on, is out to the ball park.

One of the most picturesque spectators at National Park is the Chinese minister in flowing oriental robes, usually accompanied by his little son. When he was a student at Amherst the Chinese minister played on his fiddle team, and he is initiating his heir into the mysteries of the American game.

MIGHTY ONES OF THE LAND.

Three of the President's official family, Attorney General Moody, Postmaster General Cortelyou and Secretary Metcalf of Commerce and Labor, dispel the irksome routine of department life by going out to the ball game whenever they can steal away from their desks. They generally sit together and, being pastmasters of the art, keep score and compare notes as to base hits and errors. Attorney General Moody has a warm spot in his heart for the catcher, having played that position when he was a collegian.

Vice-President Fairbanks wants a front seat when he goes out to witness the national game, his favorite place being just back of first base, where he can command an uninterrupted view of the entire field.

Surgeon General Wyman was a pitcher in his early days, and when not busy with quarantine matters or other details relating to the public health he finds his greatest enjoyment in witnessing a championship contest between two evenly matched teams.

One of the first things Prof. Willis Moore of the Weather Bureau looks for in his morning newspaper is the base ball record. This is contingent upon the fact, however, that he has not been a spectator, for the professor never fails to answer present when he can get away from the study or prognostications. Moreover, he is frequently in demand, earlier in the day, to predict if the weather can be depended upon for a game.

A Kindly Smile.

Mrs. Cox has the same kindly greeting for every one, whether he be the miner, blackened with the grime and dust of the mine, or in a higher station of life. She suggests to the parent that in the home there should be important training of the children, but the idea is never advanced excepting in a spirit of kindness and of the broadest kind of sympathy. Her love for the masses is not simulated; it is the joy of her heart. She has paid the rent for many a widow and orphan; has helped out so that the little ones may attend school, and has provided the mother with employment so that the home may be kept together.

Mrs. Cox's home, like her life, is the paragon of modesty; she leads the "simple life." An all its real simplicity. Her chief aim seems to be to assist the poor and needy. She has no pet philanthropies; there are no endless calls upon her time from society folk; there are no wonderful gowns, no costly millinery, no splendor of jewels, laces or sables adorn her person. It is not, after all, the charity which she dispenses that has won for her the love and admiration of the toilers of the mines, and that of their wives and little ones, but it is the purity of her character that constantly teaches a beautiful lesson, not only to the mining town, but to the world at large which may study to its own improvement the generous, unselfish, sacrificing life of this noble woman.

A folding baby carriage is on the market. This will be a great boon to worried fathers, as you can shut the baby up at any time.

A SURE SAFEGUARD.

CO-OPERATION AMONG PRODUCERS A FOUNDATION FOR AN ENDURING SOCIAL STRUCTURE.

An Address by George H. Maxwell at Bloomington, Ill., Showing How This Principle Will Overcome Oppression by Combination of Capital.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention:

I am a profound believer in the capacity of the human race to work out the high destiny of which it is capable if its genius is rightly directed. I am a most extreme optimist in my expectations of what the people of this nation will eventually accomplish in securing in fact as well as in theory not only equal rights, but equal opportunity for all men and the achievement by all our people of the highest average standard of life of which all are capable and which can be brought within the reach of all.

Unless this is accomplished our boasted civilization will be but a wave on the great ocean of time, rising into a brief existence, only to be submerged, as all the civilizations that have gone before us have been submerged, beneath the rottenness and corruption which has followed inevitably in the wake of vast accumulation of wealth, and the gradual absorption of the land into great estates.

HANDWRITING ON THE WALL.

Already in this country the handwriting is on the wall, and he who runs may read the warning which Byron painted in words when he wrote: "There is a moral of all human tales, 'Tis but the same rehearsal of the past. First freedom, and then glory—when that falls, Wealth, vice, corruption—barbarism at last. And history, with all her volumes vast, Hath but one page."

Our history will not be written on that page, and I am here to tell you why, and to tell you that your movement in the line of co-operation is one of the reasons why we will escape the fate that has at last destroyed all the great nations of the past.

But we have already reached the stage of "wealth—vice—corruption." No one who knows what goes on in this country doubts that for a moment. If any one questions it he should read the recently published book entitled "The Shame of the Cities" by Lincoln Steffens.

How are these dangers to be safeguarded against?

THE CAR OF JUGGERNAUT.

It cannot be done by purifying the cities, because they cannot be purified. Man will not rise above his environment or the dominating influence of that environment, and the influence which controls all things in our modern city is the mad race for wealth. It is a car of juggernaut which crushes public and private integrity and morality and every just conception of patriotism under its wheels as it rolls ruthlessly onward, driven by the multitude who are ready to sacrifice not only themselves, but their country in the great gamble for quickly gained wealth.

We closed up the Louisiana lottery in a burst of righteous public indignation, because it was encouraging the gambling mania and corrupting the people.

The district attorney of New York has recently set the machinery of the law in motion to stop the operations of a gambler named Canfield.

In St. Louis and Grand Rapids the foul brood of bribe-givers and bribe-takers has been held up to derision and disgrace, and a few of them may be punished.

COOPERATIVE COMMONWEALTH.

But we have gone so far that corruption has become a business system and conditions in our cities will breed two corruptionists where one is punished. Those conditions get worse and worse as the profits of preying upon the people become greater with the increase of the population of our cities; and our political and social institutions are rotting at their very source.

The corruption of our cities will inevitably taint and in the end control our national politics and the administration of our national government. Unless—

And here is the only safeguard—Unless we plant the great majority of our people on the soil and maintain it there, and the people themselves learn to do for themselves by co-operation, so that in the end we shall eventually become a great co-operative commonwealth.

I am not proposing socialism, as its devotees understand it, or as it is usually defined and understood, as a remedy.

I am proposing the exact opposite of it.

I am proposing the very highest form of individual rights, opportunity, activity and development.

Socialism is to dream about doing things, and to begin at the wrong end and fail.

Co-operation is to do things, and to begin at the right end and succeed. Co-operation is evolution—not revolution.

tractive theory, and then urge its adoption all at once as a substitute for social conditions which have been a slow growth through the centuries. GROWTH MUST BE GRADUAL.

They would create a tree instantly and have it all complete and perfect at its creation, doing it while you watch them, like a Hindoo juggler. They are not content to plant the acorn and let the sturdy oak of social strength grow gradually in accordance with the law of nature and as was intended by the all-wise Creator.

But we cannot change Nature's laws. They are as unchangeable as the stars.

Whatever men may do they must first learn to do. Every oppression from which the producers of this country or any other sufferer to-day is because they have not learned or been trained to do for themselves the things which they leave it to others to do for them.

And those to whom they leave such things to be done, plan to make the greatest possible profit to themselves for doing them.

It is human nature that they should and always has been and always will be so.

THE DELUSIONS OF POLITICS.

The delusion that you can protect producers from such oppressions by making laws or by electing this man or that man to office or putting this political party or that political party in power, is a delusion which has long been maintained by a multitude of people.

But it is only a question of time when those who are misguided by this delusion will awaken from their dream, and learn that there is no help for them, but to help themselves and do things for themselves.

This great movement in the direction of doing things for themselves by co-operative methods among producers from the land is something more than a mere question of profit and loss.

It is the slow awakening of a slumbering giant, who is just beginning to feel his strength, and when he has finally raised himself up to his full height, and trained his mind so that it can direct for his own protection all the faculties which God has given him, he will look back with surprise and astonishment at the days when he imagined he was bound hand and foot by the Lilliputians by whom he was surrounded.

AWAKENING OF THE GIANT.

And it is in the awakening and training of this giant—a symbolical embodiment of the abilities and energies of the people themselves, which is the hope of this nation for the future.

You cannot oppress a man who draws the rewards of his toil straight from nature's treasure vaults—gets it from the land itself—land which he owns—land on which no money lender holds a mortgage—provided, always, that that man has learned to co-operate with his fellow men of the same class, to do for themselves the things which it is beyond the power of the individual man to do for himself—the things which require the combined and co-operative effort of many men to accomplish.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF RUSKIN.

The broad solution of our social problems which I am presenting to you contemplates the creation of conditions in this country under which we will carry into practical effect the sound philosophy of Ruskin when he said:

"But since we live in an epoch of change and too, probably, of revolution, and thoughts which are not to be put aside are in the minds of all men capable of thought, I am obliged to affirm the one principle which can and in the end will close all epochs of revolution—that each man shall possess the ground he can use, and no more."

It contemplates as a part of our public school system that every boy should be trained so that he will know how to till the land for a livelihood. It contemplates that the rush to the cities shall be stopped by the betterment of all the conditions of rural life—good roads, near-by neighbors, rural telephones, net works of electric railways, rural free delivery, thickly settled communities and towns and villages in close proximity to every farm home, so that every farmer may enjoy as well as the city dweller the advantages of schools and churches and libraries and gymnasiums, and where art and music may be studied for enjoyment in the home as well as in the cities.

It contemplates that wherever the thing to be done for the benefit of such a community requires the effort of more than one man, that those who require to have the thing done for them, whatever it may be, shall combine together and do it for themselves, provided it is within reach of the united and co-operative energy and capital of the aggregated number of individuals who require to have the thing done for them.

In this category are creameries, laundries, rural telephones, associations for the co-operative purchase of supplies, associations for the sale or disposition of the products of the soil, and many other associations which I might mention for mutual economy, mutual benefit or mutual protection.

In sections where irrigation is necessary, co-operative canal systems and irrigation works come within this category; and in many parts of the country where irrigation is not now generally supposed to be necessary, co-operative pumping plants might be established among farmers for the irrigation of lands which they could

The Professor and the Lion

By J. Sackville-Martin

Bravery, Doctor, said my friend the third officer, isn't such a simple thing as you think it. One man is brave in one way, and another in a different one. Often enough, that which is called bravery is nothing more than custom. You wouldn't go up to the fore-royal yard in half a gale on reef sail, would you? Not you! You'd be afraid. Well, you might think me a brave man because I would. But then I'd be afraid to cut a chap's leg off, and you wouldn't.

That was what old Captain Hoskins, whom I used to sail with, could never understand. If a man was a bit nervous about the sea, he used to look down on him as all sorts of a coward. But there came a day when he learned better.

It happened when I was with him in a three-masted sailing-ship, the Arrow. We lay at Singapore, alongside Tanjong Pagar wharf, loading with a general cargo for Liverpool. The principal object in that cargo was a lion that we were shipping for London. It lay in a strong cage of wood and iron, with a door in the front through which it could be fed. It was a fine big brute, and every time it stretched itself you could see the muscles slipping over its sides and the big, wicked-looking claws peeping out of the pads of its feet in a way that made you very thankful for the bars.

We had a passenger or two, one of whom was a young girl who went by the name of Hilda Sandford. Directly the old man set eyes on her trim figure and her wealth of golden hair, he was struck all of a heap, so to speak, and I could see that he was promising himself a mighty pleasant voyage.

The other passenger was a strange, lean, wiry man, who wore gold-rimmed glasses, and kept peering about the ship in a most uncomfortable way. He gave his name as Professor Hay, though we didn't find out what he professed until later.

An hour or two before we started this Mr. Hay came up to the old man and began asking him a lot of questions.

"Captain," he said nervously, "I hope we shall have a quiet passage."

"I don't see why we shouldn't," said Hoskins genially.

Mr. Hay looked up at the sky.

"There seems to be a good deal of wind about," he said.

"Pretty fair," said Hoskins. "That's what's going to take us home. Not being a steamer, we can't do without it."

"You're sure it's quite safe?" asked Hay.

"Safe!" says the old man, getting on his high horse, "safe! I'm sailing this ship."

The Professor smiled apologetically.

"You will excuse me, Captain," he said, "I did not mean any offence. The fact is I am constitutionally nervous."

"I'm not one of my crew," said Hoskins. "I have enough to do to look after them. If any of them get drunk, they'll hear of it. But this chap is a passenger, even if he is only a steamer one. He can do as he likes with his spare time. If you're so darned frightened about the beast, you'd better look to the fastenings yourself."

"Excuse me," said the Professor stiffly, "that is not my business. The animal does not belong to me. I have done what I believe to be my duty and can say no more."

He turned away without even a glance at the girl.

"That man," said Hoskins, looking after him, "is frightened of his own shadow. Let me give you a bit of fatherly advice, Miss Sandford. When you are looking for a man to marry, never select a coward. A girl like you wants someone who will protect her in times of danger; someone she can rely on and look up to."

"I'm not thinking of getting married," she said shyly. "But when I do, I'll hear your advice in mind, Captain."

"That's it," said Hoskins. "Think over it carefully. And as for getting married, I'd be glad if you'd think over that too."

She started, with a frightened look.

weather, I'll show you the sort of man I am. I should love a bit of danger for your sake."

About a week later, the girl was sitting on the poop-deck, reading a book. The "old man" was marching up and down with a quarter-deck trot, casting glances at her and thinking how pretty she was, when suddenly he uttered a howl that would have frightened an elephant and sprang into the port mizzen rigging. I was near at the time, and I looked at him, wondering whether he had gone mad. Then I saw what he had seen, and I went up to the starboard mizzen shrouws as quickly as he had gone up the port ones. The girl raised her head and looked up at the Captain and he gaped down at her and tried to shout. But for some time he could only make faces.

"Look! look!" he yelled at last, "come up the rigging!" The lion is loose!

She sprang to her feet and looked about her. Not four yards away from her the lion was playing with a coil of rope, the terrible claws alternately exposing and sheathing themselves. The creature was paying no sort of attention to the girl at the moment, but of course it might take it into its head to spring on her at any instant. As she stood, she was corried between the stern of the ship and the cabin door. There was nothing to be done but to climb up the rigging.

She tried, but the first step was too high, and she could not manage it; when she realized that, I thought she was going to faint.

Hoskins was just going down to give her a hand, but at that moment the lion looked up and saw him, and lashing its tail gave a muffled roar. The "old man" stuck where he was then, and sort of shivered all over like a jelly. As for the girl, she moaned despairingly, and gave herself up for lost. Just then—out of the cabin came Professor Hay.

He took one look around and saw the lion. Then he picked up a broom that someone who had been washing decks had left leaning against the deck-house, and laid it straight between his eyes. He kept walking forward, pushing the beast gently before him right into the waist and back into its cage, in spite of several ugly snarls. He had it safely fastened in, he came astern again, looking not the least bit excited or worried, and put the broom carefully back in its place. The girl was looking hard at him, and her eyes were shining; but he didn't seem to be aware of it. Captain Hoskins had come down the rigging and was looking a trifle ashamed of himself. He hadn't known it was so easy to push lions into their cage with a broom. After a bit he spoke up.

"That was a fine bit of work, Sir," he said. "If I hadn't seen it, I couldn't have believed it."

"Oh, it's nothing," said the Professor stiffly, "it was my business. I have tam'd wild animals."

After that he seemed to dismiss the whole subject from his mind, and went down into the cabin. But I saw him, later in the evening, talking to that girl, and he must have had something important to say to her, for when the "old man" met her next morning and began making excuses for himself, she cut him short.

"Captain Hoskins, a bit puzzled. "Well," she said softly, "he asked me yesterday, and I'm going to take your advice."

All of which shows you, Doctor, that bravery is very much a matter of custom. As for poor old Hoskins, we had half-pand weather the whole way home, and he hadn't even a chance to show himself. Sketch.

"PUSHED AT THE LION, LOOKING IT STRAIGHT BETWEEN THE EYS."

ous on ship-board. It is a feeling that I have never been able to overcome. The "old man" looked at him with a sort of good-natured contempt.

LOVE AND ADVENTURE.

THE THEME OF THE STIRRING SERIAL STORY BY SIR CONAN DOYLE, CREATOR OF SHERLOCK HOLMES.

This Exceptional Story, Highly Illustrated, Will Start in the Next Issue of This Magazine Section—Be Sure of Your Subscription, so as Not to Miss the First Chapters.

We have arranged for the publication in 15 issues, of the thrilling story of love and adventure, "The White Company," by Sir A. Conan Doyle, author of Micah Clarke, The Study in Scarlet, Sign of the Four, and the shorter Sherlock Holmes Detective Stories.

"The White Company," to write which Mr. Doyle read 123 contemporary books, is a tale of the battles of England's Knight Errants, her redoubtable men-at-arms and her wondrous long-bowmen, during the period when all France was harried by the famous Black Prince. In those times, when gunpowder was just coming to be used in a crude form, the English long-bowman could send his gray goose shaft, with deadly effect, a distance of 420 yards, or practically a quarter of a mile. The boys were made of yew, tough and springy, and the arrows were of ash, long, and feathered and straight.

"So we toast all together To the gray goose feather And the land where the gray goose flew."

The White Company is the sequel to Mr. Doyle's great story, Sir Nigel, for which he received Twenty-five Thousand Dollars.

In presenting the revised "White Company" we are offering our many readers one of the most stirring and powerful stories, written by any modern author.

A Russian does not become of age until he is twenty-six.

At the recent Grecian athletic games, the Russians made a particularly poor showing in the sprinting or running contests, notwithstanding their extensive Mauthausen training.

The Washington Post says that that German stable hand who was imprisoned for three weeks for swearing at one of the Kaiser's horses "will hereafter curb and bridle his temper a bit." Should think he would.

SEASONABLE FADS.

Unique and Stunning Designs in Hair Ornaments, Hat Pins and Necklaces.

This year has its share of fads and frills quite as much as any that are past and these are used with no small degree of art and precision. One might almost think that the days of barbarism had returned so wide and fervid is the craze for beads, buckles and bracelets, were it not for the fact that each article which is donned gains that distinction by reason of its harmony or contrast. Color plays a great part in the present sartorial drama and the fashionable woman is always seeking for effect in its use. Beads in the form of necklaces are worn in all colors and they are used to further accentuate some color tone in the costume. The necklace worn with the lingerie blouse is often chosen to match the hat and gloves, or to offer a becoming note of contrast to a monotonous ensemble. A girl of to-day does not own one necklace but a dozen, some of them expensive but the majority costing from $2 to $5 each. Some very beautiful shades of green and amethyst are seen in these beads, while amber is returned to favor with a vengeance.

Among the prettiest necklaces recently seen are those of shell from Honolulu with coloring of wondrous beauty. They come in all of the pastel shades, while the blue-grays, greens, pale yellows and old rose are beautifully combined. The shells are very small and alive with color. The necklaces are often long enough to wind several times about the neck.

Hatpins, too, are causing considerable interest this year, appearing in all manner of fantastic shapes and in rare colors. The same idea of harmony is adhered to with these quite as much as in the choice of a necklace. These pins with heads of amber are considered especially smart with black hats as well as those of tan and brown, while almost every fashionable color may be matched in hatpins of crystal or other persuasion. Some very dainty heads of Dresden china are hand painted and tinted with the delicate colors for wear with the white and flower hats.

Carrying out this idea of artistic adornment are the flowers of soft satin ribbon which trim many dainty frocks and hats. The gloss of the ribbon as well as its softness and exquisite shadings give to the blossoms of ribbon a rare beauty which is seldom seen in those of silk or velvet. Rare little bunches of violets or wild roses made of satin ribbon are frequently worn as bodice decoration instead of the real flowers, and while they prove an excellent suggestion of the flowers themselves, they have the added charm of not crushing and of being always fresh. A lady of fashion recently sailing for Europe carried several beautiful little corsage bouquets of this kind.

There has been a greater demand for fancy combs and hair ornaments this year than for sometime past. Hair dressing has reached its height during the past few years and coiffures were never more exquisitely arranged. It is small wonder then that the demand for combs has been so great. Here the idea of suitability is still followed and while the comb must be that in best harmony with the costume, the little bar or other shaped pin which holds the stray locks at the neck must match the comb. These are in all prices. One very striking and attractive comb seen recently was of a composition resembling amber. A huge dragon fly spread its wings across the top in beautifully shaded metal giving the effect of iridescence in coloring. The price was $3.50. Another of tortoise shell mounted in solid gold with dainty designs of leaves and berries was five inches wide and cost $21.90.

The fruit was carried out in small Oriental pearls, the centre one being a large fresh water pearl. In spite of the good imitations which can be had, the real shell is unequalled for lightness and durability.

Margaret Anglin.

Margaret Anglin, who refused to proceed with the third act of William Vaughn Moody's play until he signed a document giving her the exclusive American, English and Australian rights to it, was born in the Canadian House of Parliament twenty-five years ago. That her birthplace was unusual resulted from the fact that her father, Timothy Anglin, was Speaker of the Canadian House, and her mother was there during a session.

Miss Anglin has been on the stage ten years, her first important engagement being with James O'Neill, with whom she played Mercedes in Monte Cristo. In Mansfield's production of the famous Cyrano de Bergerac she had the part of Roxanne, and later was star in the Empire Theatre Stock Company of New York. For two years she has been at the head of her own company, and has achieved marked success in "Zira".

The Muck Rake writers are said to be going after the fertilizer trust; probably not, however, tooth and nail.

It is announced that the Pump trust will increase its capital stock by some eight million dollars. We remark from the usual watery remarks which might be suggested in this connection.

Friends of Secretary Taft admit that a man constructed on his generous plan of architecture has a small chance of escape when an enthusiastic Presidential bee takes a notion to get after him in earnest.

TO BREED UP A DISEASE.

Efforts of the Government to Start a Plague Among Destructive Varmints.

GUY ELLIOTT MITCHELL

Did you ever see a rat or mouse or wild rabbit sick from what might be termed natural causes? Any one who can contribute such an animal to the Department of Agriculture may unwittingly confer a benefit of millions of dollars annually on this country. What the Department wants is a fatal and contagious malady, which it is working hard to get now, but up to date the work is merely promising, there having been no satisfactory result to record. So if any one has a hatch of rabbits swept off by a sudden and mysterious disease, or if he notices any swift and sudden mortality among the rats and mice in his locality, that may be the very thing the Department is looking for.

be bought by the pound and spread on bread. The contagious quality has not developed yet in any of the foreign cultures tried.

THE RABBIT PEST.

The biological survey has been able to do a good deal in a practical way with the rabbit pest. Some time ago the forest service set up a bowl of indignation. It had planted some hundred thousand young trees, nursery stock, in one of the California forest reserves, and the rabbits ate them up in about a week. Then it seemed several hundred acres with white pine to restore the land after a fire, and the rabbits cheerfully set to work, dug up all the seeds and ate them. But

By T. F. McGREW.
Many years ago I assisted a friend in the loading of a car of poultry for California. This car was shipped from Central Ohio, and the fowls contained therein were very well selected from flocks of desirable varieties. The owner of this car crossed the continent in care of his birds and settled in Central California. Reports from there a few years later told a direful story of the impossibility of success in poultry-growing in California.

It is unnecessary to relate the many troubles experienced, except to say that the amateur in poultry at that time imagined that the birds would live and prosper in the California climate without proper shelter within houses during the cold, damp weather. A close study of these conditions has entirely eliminated all these mistakes, and to-day there is no place in the United States where there is an enthusiasm equal to that found throughout California with reference to this industry.

The construction of proper houses, the selecting of proper breeds and the proper caring for them has built up an enormous egg business through that section of the country.

In the neighborhood of Petaluma, more Leghorn fowls are probably kept for producing the white-shelled eggs for the California city markets than can be found within the same number of miles in any other place in the world. One enthusiastic visitor to that locality has made the statement that every acre in the fifty thousand acres visited contained a hundred Leghorns. The climate of Southern California, the beauties of the scenery, the pleasure of fruit cultivation and the profitable growing of poultry have attracted many hundreds to that section to embark in these pursuits under pleasant conditions.

A Mr. Brownlow who purchased a few acres of ground in that locality ten years ago has built up for himself, with the assistance of his wife and children, a most profitable combination of poultry, fruit, bees and squabs, all of which thrive continually under the softer climates of that locality, enabling these people to produce broilers every month with a minimum amount of care and attention, the fruit and bees being a remarkable source of profit during the greater part of the year.

PROTECTION AGAINST DAMP IMPORTANT.

The buildings used for poultry in these localities need not be so expensive in construction as is necessary in that portion of the country visited and other necessities is not so high as in the colder parts of the country, as much of it is usually produced near at hand. All of these things combine to make the regions of Southern California most attractive to poultry growers, who may be seeking a softer climate to lessen the aggravation which the rigors of winter heap upon some member of the family. Many have gone there seeking a place merely to benefit their health, and have been much improved by so doing; but they have also been able to make a living for themselves, and their families through the combination above described.

ALL CANNOT SUCCEED.

All do not succeed. This can be seen in any following life. Those who do succeed usually have more or less experience in the business before they embark upon it. The failures come to the inexperienced, and those who are unable to contend with the difficulties always confronting one in the upbuilding of a new home in any locality.

What are known in the San Francisco market as "range" eggs, the N. Y. market designates as "fresh-laid" eggs. Ranch eggs of California are the fresh-laid eggs that are brought direct to the market and sold as such. During November and December last this quality of eggs sold in the markets of San Francisco as high as fifty-one cents a dozen, and as low as thirty cents, influenced, no doubt, by the supply and demand, governing this product in every locality.

Eggs sold in Chicago during the year of 1905 as low as fifteen cents. In San Francisco the lowest price quoted for the year was fourteen cents. When the lesser expense of caring for them is considered, the advantages or profit from poultry growing should be fully equal to, if not better than would be the same pursuit in Illinois.

BUSINESS METHODS IN FARMING.

Successful Kansas Farmer Who Has Kept Trace of Receipts and Expenditures for Twenty Years.

The Kansas City Journal of the success of A. L. Hollinger, a well-to-do Kansas farmer who opened a set of books when he began farming twenty years ago and who has kept his accounts as accurately as a bank does many hundreds to that section to embark in these pursuits under pleasant conditions.

The compilation of his long record beginning with 1886 shows the total figures given as follows: He has raised 5,295 acres of wheat, a yearly average of over 263 acres, and on that area has raised 98,791 bushels, or an average per acre for twenty years of 18 1/2 bushels. During all the two decades he never had an entire failure of wheat, although an average of 1 1/2 bushels an acre in 1895 came very near to it.

His corn record is equally interesting. He has raised 2,846 acres of corn, a yearly average of 142 acres. The total number of bushels was 72,672, or an average per acre for twenty years of 25 1/2 bushels. The corn averaged for the twenty years 25 1/2 bushels per acre. In all these figures the number of acres sown is given and the number of bushels harvested.

"During the twenty years," said Mr. Hollinger, "I have aimed to carry enough cattle to use up the roughness and the corn raised on the farm, usually from 100 to 400 head. Of late years, I have paid more attention to cattle and alfalfa, and have found that it was a far more reliable combination than purely grain farming in which I was chiefly engaged in the earlier time of my experience. There is no question but that any intelligent farmer can make a competency, and support his family in abundant comfort in central Kansas. I have done no more than any of my neighbors did or might have done. Each year the same income approximately can be secured if the work is carefully planned and such crops are raised as adapt to Kansas soil and Kansas climate."

As an example of Mr. Hollinger's stock raising it may be mentioned that he came to Kansas City recently with $9,500 worth of stock which he sold off his farm. He has lived on the same place for thirty-three years and is not leaving Kansas because he is entirely satisfied with his health but because he wants to give his family a broader education and to secure recreation for himself. "I think I have enough to keep me from want," he said, "and I am entitled to get something more out of life than I have heretofore done."

GREAT BEAR COUNTRY.

Representative Bede of Minnesota Tells the President About Big Game Hunting in Duluth.

How it happened that the war correspondents at Washington found out about J. Adam Bede's conference on bears, with President Roosevelt does not appear. However, a full report of the Minnesota Congressman's tales has been made, and was made public in the New York Evening Post. It makes an alluring document. Mr. Bede, who is the acknowledged wit of the house, sought the President with the friendliest intention. "You like to shoot bears," said "Adam," diplomatically. Mr. Roosevelt admitted it. "But you don't have to go into the wild West for your sport," went on the Minnesota statesman. "Think of this fact: thirteen bears were shot in the streets of Duluth last year—in Duluth, the pride of the Northwest, that beautiful city on the great unsalted sea." The statement had a perceptible effect on the President, and Mr. Bede was encouraged to go on. "It's the only place in the whole world, Mr. President, where you can go bear hunting by trolley car, under the electric light, and on asphalt pavements. We have all the conveniences so dear to the heart of the true sportsman, and without leaving your hunting ground you can walk across the street to the mail box and drop in a postal card to your friends, telling them all about the game you have bagged."

"With the Congressman was a Duluth constituent, a lady with first-hand knowledge of bear hunting in that city. She added her corroborative statement: "Oh, yes, Mr. President, a short time ago a friend of mine heard a noise outside his window, and on looking out saw that it was a bear trying to climb a telegraph pole. He shot that fellow without leaving his bedroom." Then, to the joy of the President, Mr. Bede took up the tale. "Why, bears are common things with us up in Minnesota, Mr. President. Last year five bears held up one of our trolley cars. They were two old ones and three cubs. This occurred right in the streets of Duluth. The big fellow got in front of the car and put his paws on the dashboard, driving the motor-man off, while mamma and the cubs went around after the conductor. After they had had enough of this sport they raised the siege and trotted off toward the outskirts of the city. Oh, no, we don't let the bears trouble us much. When they get too bothersome we turn them over to the police, who drive them out of town; but it's a great bear country up there, and I'm sure you would like to see a bit of it." Now, if it is announced that President Roosevelt means to take a vacation up in the Minnesota woods, the correspondents may go straight to Duluth, where, as Mr. Bede is a true prophet, the great bear slayer may be found sitting in the door of an up-to-date hotel, a rifle across his knees, waiting for the fittest sport.

One of the Pests of the West.

and one of the rodents should be forthwith dispatched to Secretary Wilson. He will be glad to get it.

Of course, every one knows that the gopher problem is a serious one in many parts of the West, and the rabbit pest has at times threatened to devastate Australia, and even California. Altogether the small animals do a great amount of damage, but most people do not realize what its aggregate really is. Yet in one county of the state of Washington last year field mice destroyed at least half a million dollars worth of property, while in the same time wolves in Wyoming alone muled the stockmen of $1,000,000 worth of cattle, while the damage from field mice, and similar little "varmints" throughout the United States, especially in the West and South, amounted to many millions.

TASK OF THE SCIENTISTS.

To cope with these pests is one of the most interesting tasks of the biological survey of the Department of Agriculture. It has been working in a quiet way for several years, and has about come to the conclusion that although it is possible to trap, poison and otherwise reduce the pests in many instances the thing that is really needed is a contagious disease that can be bottled up in the laboratory and distributed to do its own work on an infinitely more effective scale than can traps and poisons.

That there is some such disease, or that one can be produced, the scientists of the department do not doubt. The trouble up to date has been to find it. The biological survey is working in conjunction with the bureau of animal industry. Some promising leads have been struck, but none of them have turned out to be just what was wanted. For instance, while they are working with one disease now that is fatal to a certain breed of field mice, it will not touch others, and the rats laugh at its conscious immunity. Also there are plenty of contagious animal diseases that could be turned loose on the rats, ground-squirrels, and rabbits, but as they would kill a horse just as quickly as they would a rat, they are not wanted.

ERNEST THOMPSON SETON'S FIND.

Some years back the survey lost just the chance it has been looking for. Ernest Thompson Seton was in Canada, where there was a pest of rabbits, and noticed that they were rapidly dying out. Some mysterious disease was carrying them off, and it was not long before the country was almost cleared of them. He realized that this disease might prove valuable and managed to catch some sick rabbits which he shipped to a laboratory in New York, but the problem was not just in the biologist's line, and he did not realize the immense importance of it, so the secret was not grasped. Now the biological survey is looking out for similar occurrences, and if the opportunity offers, will make the most of them.

There is a field mouse disease that is harmless to domestic animals, and the survey is trying hard to make it virulent enough to do business with some of the larger pests. It promises well, but the scientists have had too many disappointments to be bragging in advance. They are, however, actually trying to reinforce the disease and make it worse than it has proved up to date. This is getting pretty deep into the network of germology and toxic science. It means really breeding up disease germs on somewhat the same plan that plants and animals are now bred by the department. But there is a hope that they may be able to do something with it. Anyhow they are trying.

There has been a number of reports from abroad of the wonderful things foreign bacteriologists have succeeded in doing in the line of contagious diseases for small animal pests, but though cultures have been bought abroad and tried faithfully here, no results have ever been obtained. Some of the germs have proved fatal to the animals that ate them, but the same is true of any sort of poison that can the biologists were loaded for rabbit, so to speak, and they furnished the forest people with a harmless wash to soak their pine nuts in before planting, and with a cheap dip for the nursery stock which a self-respecting rabbit will not more nibble than will an ordinary human being smell automobile odor for a perfume.

In this the biologists confessedly took a leaf out of the book of the Plute and other desert-dwelling Indians. The Plutes have been caching food supplies of pine and piñon nuts in the desert for hundreds of years and they found that the rabbits, the ground squirrels and prairie dogs would clean out their cache. But they found by experience that there was a little desert weed that the ground animals disliked excessively and that anything dipped in a tea steeped from the bark of the weed was rabbit-proof for a long time thereafter. So the rabbits were checked out on that plan and the forest officers have no more trouble from that quarter.

PLAGUE OF THE WOLVES.

But it is the very presence of the forest reserves that has bred the present plague of timber wolves in the West. No hunting is allowed in the reserves and they form nurseries for game of all sorts. But it seems that they breed wolves quite as fast as they breed anything else, of which fact the cattle raisers have been made painfully aware.

In the days of the buffalo on the plains, thousands of wolves lived on the herds. When the buffalo were killed off the wolves disappeared also, till there was not one where there used to be a thousand. Then the cattle men began to stock the ranges, and the wolves found conditions much the same as in the buffalo days. They promptly multiplied and increased till they are now doing an immense amount of damage, aided largely by their asylum in the forest reserves.

The biological survey has sent out Mr. Vernon Bailey, one of its best men, to study the wolf problem, and he has been skedging and snowshoeing through Wyoming and Montana while the snow was on the ground and the wolves were particularly easy to track and study. He has not done any shooting, but is trying the effects of poisons and traps. But the wolves are about as cunning as foxes, and after you have trapped and poisoned a few, in a given district the rest grow wary

By no less great an author than Sir A. Conan Doyle, who for the past twenty years has been one of the most widely read of modern writers. His latest efforts, "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," have been published and read throughout Europe and America. In fact, no writer of late years has received more popular attention or merited more praise than this gifted Englishman. His style is most pleasing and his imaginative power far above the usual.

We have secured from Sir Conan Doyle's American publishers the right to this novel, and it is with great pleasure that we are able to announce its early appearance in the "Magazine Section." Be sure to get the initial chapters, as it is a stirring tale that will hold your interest from first to last.

Roy Blair and Miss Edna Barrie were united in marriage Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Barrie, Rev. George Allan performing the ceremony.

The Presbyterian Missionary Society met at the church parlors Friday, June 8th, Mrs. John Jameson, President, as Hostess. The committee on program were: Mesdames W. C. Hairo and C. Cook. After the devotional opening a paper on South America was read by Mrs. Fred Boosinger. One on Alaska, Mrs. E. A. Ashley. The sermon on the Mount was subject for roll call. A vocal duet, Misses Eva Lewis, Nell Maddaigh, Lydia Malpass assisting. Daily refreshments closed the afternoon's session.

In regard to the article about the Band Room being flooded when the firemen scrubbed out last week some people seem to have a mistaken idea about the matter. The amount of water coming through the floor was small but sufficient to cause dampness which the drum heads was not slow to absorb, thus throwing them out of commission for that week for outside work. The firemen removed the instruments and covered up the music and supposed everything was all right. There was nothing intentional on their part and the Band so regards it.

A large assortment of Vegetables and Fruit just received.

Mrs. W. J. Smith, entertained a small company of young ladies at her home Tuesday afternoon, June 12th, with a three course luncheon. The dining room was tastefully decorated with pink and green. Covers were laid for nine, on the place cards were conundrums. Todds were pledged in the sparkling water. In the center of the table was a large full blown rose of pink tissue paper in a salad bowl, green baby ribbon was tied to as many leaves as there were guests and hung over the outside of the bowl. On each leaf thus prepared was a humorous anecdote. After the menu was served the guests took hold of the ribbons and gave a quick pull and the rose leaves scattered in all directions leaving them dangling in the hands of those who held the ribbon! The stories were read aloud and afforded much merriment.

These present were the Misses Ella Barnett, Blanche Robertson, Stella Matthews, Florence Barrett and the Lewis sisters.

Hammocks, HAMMOCKS, HAMMOCKS at Whittington's.

While we are not a prophet or the son of a prophet, but it is becoming a popular fad to give weather-forecasts, so here is our prediction for this month: During the first half there will be some brisk winds from the north, but every day the sun will rise, and often there'll be gloomy skies; some days, however, may be fair, with southern winds and mellow air. Those things will happen sure we know, because they always happen so. This good month's moon will fall, and office seekers work their "pull." Some lucky ones will land the prize, while other men esteemed us'wise will fall in all they undertake and find they've made a sad mistake, for Charlatans to fortune ride while modest worth is thrust aside. These things will happen, we know, because they've always happened so.

Miss Anna Quye Killed in Runaway

While driving home with O. D. Smith, Monday evening, Miss Anna Quye was kicked in the chest by a frightened horse and died shortly afterward.

Miss Quye had been working in town during the day and was on her way to her home in Wilson township, when near E. L. Smith's residence the colt became frightened and began kicking; demolishing the front of the buggy, throwing out both occupants, and running away. Miss Quye was taken to her home and Dr. Warne summoned, but died before the physician could arrive.

The lady was daughter of John F. Quye, clerk of Wilson township, and sister of Mrs. Wm. Tate of this city. A brother, William, of Springfield, Ill., comprised the near relatives.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, Thursday and was attended by a large number of friends who held the lady in high esteem. Rev. George Allan preached an excellent sermon, taking for his text the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians. A quartet of ladies sang "Some Time Well-Known" and "How Long." Miss Blanche Robertson sang "My Home Land." The church altar was decorated with festoons of white potted plants and flowers. The beautiful white casket was covered with emblems of June. Interment was made in the East Jordan Cemetery.

L. C. Madison returned home from Lansing Tuesday, after committing Ralph Steadman to the State Industrial School at Lansing. The commitment papers were made out under the old law which made the limit 21 years, whereas the new law of 1895 makes the age 17 years. After getting the boy there, the mistake was discovered and Mr. Madison left the boy in charge of the chief of police there with an understanding with the officers that he should not be locked up, and returned home to make out new papers. Through an error of the police the boy was locked up. Mr. Madison pays out of his own pocket for the extra trip. The commitment papers were made out by Supt. Madison and the Justice of Peace who heard the case.

An important department of the Young Men's Christian Association work is that for boys. Each local Association in addition to the work for boys accomplished in its buildings, conducts a summer camp at some nearby lake or river. More than three hundred boys were in these local camps in Michigan last year. As a model for the local camps and a training school for their leaders, as well as to accommodate those from cities having no Associations, the State Executive Committee has established a State Camp for boys 12-16 years of age on the shores of Torch Lake in Antrim County. The prospectus of this camp has just been received and is an attractive booklet. Parents or boys interested can secure a copy by addressing L. E. Buell, State Secretary, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A number of our base ball enthusiasts met the other evening and organized a Base Ball Team of local talent. Frank Crowell was elected manager. The Team is at present composed of the following gentlemen: Pitcher, Sagamon; catcher, Bush; 1st base, LaValley; 2nd, Mitchell; 3rd, Kirchner; s. s., Green; i. f., Milford; r. f., Montroy; m., McIntyre. The first game was played with Boyne City here this Friday afternoon, and another game will be arranged for the local grounds this coming week.

It pays to read the advertisements of enterprising home merchants. They are the people who make it possible to have conveniences right at your door, so to speak.

For some time Wm. Germond's early morning slumbers have been disturbed by spirit rappings, as "Bill" thought, upon the doors. Several times he bravely rushed out doors armed with an Indian club, but was always forced to retire without discovering the spook. Yesterday morning, however, while he was making his usual hunt around the house, at 4 a. m., the cause of his fears was revealed to him. A large woodpecker was contentedly drilling for his breakfast into the shingles of the house, and must be getting good results, for he is a regular visitor every morning.—Pellston Journal.

For several years back the rank and file of the two big parties of Michigan have been clamoring for a law to enable them to vote for party nominees directly and not through conventions. Tuesday they had their first chance, and temper cent. would be a big estimate of the number who took advantage of the privilege. The fact that there were no contests was, of course, the principal reason for the lack of interest. In South Arm Township at the last Presidential election 574 votes were cast for the office of governor; Tuesday's nominating caucus cast 62 votes, one of these only being a democrat. On the direct nomination proposition, 38 were for and 22 against. Delegates elected to the Republican County Convention (see call elsewhere) are as follows: John Shapton, H. I. McMillan, F. Kenyon, J. H. Milford, Jacob H. Graff, A. B. Nicholas, Harry Curkendall, Dr. C. A. Sweet, Ransom Jones, Sr., A. M. Haight, W. A. Stroebel and Josiah St. John.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

"S-D DROPS" taken internally, rids the blood of the poisonous matter and acids which are the direct cause of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while a permanent cure is being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substances and removing it from the system.

DR. S. D. BLAND
of Newton, Ga., writes:
"I had been a sufferer for number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief desired from 'S-DROPS.' I shall prescribe it in my practice for rheumatism and kindred diseases."

FREE

If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney Trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "S-DROPS," and test its results.

"S-DROPS" can be used any length of time without acquiring a "druggist habit," as it is entirely free of opium, cocaine, alcohol, laudanum, and other similar ingredients.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup

Pleasant to take and does not gripe or nauseate

Cures Chronic Constipation, Stomach and Liver Trouble

Stimulation Without Irritation.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new laxative syrup combined with the delicious flavor of fruits, and is very pleasant to take. It will not gripe or sicken. It is much more pleasant and effective than Pills, Tablets and Saline Waters, as it does not derange the Stomach, or irritate the Kidneys, Liver or Bowels.

Constipation.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup will positively cure chronic constipation as it restores the natural action of the intestinal tract. Ordinary cathartics may give temporary relief but the stomach is upset and the bowels are irritated without any permanent benefit having been derived.

The condition of the patient remains unchanged. The Stomach, Liver and Bowels have not been stimulated and in a few days a stronger purgative may have to be taken. This is why Pills and Aperient Waters never give permanent relief. Their violent action results in an unnatural movement of the bowels and it is necessary to keep taking them indefinitely.

Why ORINO is different.
ORINO Laxative Fruit syrup is the only preparation that really acts upon all of the digestive organs. Other preparations act upon the lower bowel only and do not touch the Liver. It can very readily be seen that a preparation that does not act upon all of the digestive organs can not cure Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, etc.

For Biliousness and Sick Headache.
Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup. It sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and acts as a gentle stimulant on the liver and bowels without irritating these organs.

Clears the Complexion.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup stimulates the liver and thoroughly cleanses the system and clears the complexion of pimples and blotches. It is the best laxative for women and children as it is mild and pleasant, and does not gripe or sicken. Refuse substitutes.

Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Prepared only by FOLEY & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.
