Food Scandal in England.

Stirred to activity by the packers' scandal in this country, England has been investigating her victualing department, with results quite as startling. This may not give us any great degree of comfort, but there will be a grim sort of satisfaction in knowing that there are others. A London sanitary inspector says that some of the "tinned" meat products are unspeakably unfit for consumption. "One firm, he charges, put out as potted chicken and tongue a melange composed of ancient tinned meats of various kinds in all kinds of decomposition, which had been worked over with other materials in circumstances 'too loathsome to detail.' Enormous quantities of deceased meat are brought into London, it is charged, and sold to the poor. Scraps of the vilest character are made up into sausages.

The horror, however, is not confined to the meat industry. Jam, which every loyal Britisher dotes on, is said to be a vile concoction, and long past due eggs are habitually used in the manufacture of confections. The colonies, too, send their contributions of things not fit to eat. Canned fruits and vegetables are doctored to make them keep better and the meats are often spoiled.

With a scandal at home, England is not apt to regard quite so critically the stories that come from this side of the water. But it may be said to England's credit that she is not accepting her scandal as a matter of course. Health officers and inspectors are being given more authority to enforce the laws and new laws where needed will be enacted.

Beans and Dollar Bills

Half a dozen schoolboys were passing a grocery store, one day, when their attention was attracted by a barrel of beans standing near the door. One of them asked the others if they could guess how many beans of that kind they would take to make a bushel.

Various estimates were made, all the way from 5,000 to 50,000, the boy who guessed 50,000 being laughed at by his companions. To decide the matter they agreed to ask the grocer.

"Well, boys," he said, "you are all away off. Let me show you."

And he went out and brought in a lot of the beans and began laying them, two or three at a time, in the pan of the scales. It was found that it took sixty beans, taken at random, to weigh an ounce, and the boys then penciled out a calculation showing that it required, approximately, 119,000 to make a bushel.

"Now, then," said the grocer, "I'll ask you boys one: How many dollar bills will it take to weigh as much as a silver dollar?"

None of the boys guessed less than seventy five at which the grocer smiled, and then, putting down a silver dollar in one pan of his scales, he began laying dollar bills in the other. When he had laid down twenty-two the scales balanced.

The Worst Yet.

"Is this the best worst you can send me?" asked the lady who walked into the meat store with a package of that edible in her hand.

"Madam," answered the meat man, "it is the best worst we have."

"Well, it is the worst worst I ever saw."

"I am sorry to hear that. The best I can do is to send you some better worst from today's lot, but, as I have said, that is the best worst we have at present. I am sure, however, that the worst we are now making will not be any worse than this, and it ought to be better. I assure you that as soon as I get the worst you shall have the best of it. We never gave anyone the worst of it so long as we have been in the worst business, and you may be sure that when we give you your worst it will be the best. For our worst worst is better worst than the best worst of our competitors."

But the lady whose eyes had taken on a stare of glassiness was seen to throw up her hands and flee from the place for she was afraid the worst was yet to come.

Notice to Water Takers.

The hours for Sprinkling are from 8:00 o'clock p. m. until 8:00 p. m. Parties found using water out of these hours, will be fined according to Village Ordinance.

By Order of Common Council,
C. A. HUDSON, CLERK.

Shot at Random.

There are two ways of getting into a newspaper—"purchasing an interest and purchasing an interview." There is still another way—pulling the wool over the editor's eyes and getting in for nothing. This is a very popular form of entry.

A lady of our city has found a sure cure for broken dishes. If the dish to be mended can be tied together with a stout string, then placed in boiling milk and left one hour, you can never tell the dish has been broken and it can afterwards be put in boiling water without the pieces coming apart. This experience has been tried and proven and many are the broken dishes which were thought to be useless which are now as good as new.

We have residing in the western suburbs of our town a young man, who, if reports are true, is wonderfully and fearfully made. His doctor said he had an iron constitution; his friends said he had nerves of steel; his uncle said he had a wooden head; the girls said he had a heart of stone; his enemies declared that there was more brass to him than anything else; others declared he had lots of sand, while his admirers declared he was all wool and a yard wide.

One distillery company in Kentucky turns out every seven days 1,208 barrels of sweet mash whiskey. The output for a year would be 63,400 barrels. The cost of all this to the manufacturer may be fairly estimated at $374,000 and they receive from the wholesalers a profit of from $1 to $2 per barrel. The government comes in for a nice little rake off, but the fellow who has to pay it all, including transportation charges, government and local license fees, salary of barkeeper, and rent of building is the man before the bar, and for 62,400 barrels of booze he lets go of $24,761,678 and then goes home and beats his wife because supper isn't ready.

A young man went to a preacher to get married, and the preacher asked "How old are you, John?" He replied, "I am half as old as my father. He is two years older than my mother. My eldest sister is two years older than my youngest sister. My youngest sister is four years older than my youngest brother." "How old are they altogether?" asked the preacher. The young man replied that the five children are seventeen years older than his father and mother. How old is John and each of the children and his father and mother?—Exchange. Well, if the young man isn't married until the preacher gets his age figured out, Methuselah would be a kid compared to him.

The best man we have in our town for the general good of the town is the one you will always see on the front seat in the progressive "band wagon." He is the first one to extend an open and warm hand to greet the stranger and welcome him to the best town in the state. He will resent an insult to our town as quickly as he would a slur at a member of his family. He very politely invites the chronic croaker to "move on." He is ever ready to give his just proportion to every public enterprise. He talks up our town at home and abroad and believes it the best place upon God's green earth in which to live and desires to be buried here when he dies. Let us all try and be like this man for one year and our little city will take on new life and improve as never before in its history.

We often wonder why it is so many young men can be seen loafing upon our streets until a late hour of night. Many of them are from our best homes. The fathers of these young men, many of them at least, are numbered among our best citizens. If their cow or their horse or even their favorite dog was away from home after dark they would be out on a search; but their own children can roam the town all night with apparent no effort being made to find them. The boy seems to be turned loose at a tender age to wander at will into the paths of sin and vice and then we wonder where all our tramps, and worthless specimens of humanity come from. It is a regrettable fact that too many of them come from seed germinated in good homes and then sown in a careless manner upon our streets and back alleys. Reader, is your boy wasting his time upon our streets? If so had you not, at least, look after him as carefully at nightfall as you would your horse and cow. We do not intimate that this evil exists to a greater extent in this community than in our sister towns, but the evil seems universal and increases in magnitude as the years roll by.

Wrong Side of the Door.

At the commencement exercises of one of our large colleges a prominent lawyer had been asked to address the graduates. Being very busy about that time, he neglected to give any thought to the subject of his discourse. On arriving at the hall where the exercises were held he was still at a loss for a topic. In passing through a large swing door which led into the hall itself the word "Push" painted on the door happened to catch his eye. Like a flash it occurred to him that here was a text that he could use very appropriately. When his turn came to speak he arose and addressed the audience in somewhat the following manner:

"Young gentlemen the subject of my little talk with you this morning can be expressed in one short word; it is a thing that is especially applicable to you young men, who, in one line or another, are going out into life to make your way. It is a thing without which no man is sure of attaining success. Gentlemen, on yonder door is the word I refer to.

Every eye in the room immediately glanced toward the door indicated, but on the inside the word "Pull" was plainly painted. The laughter and applause which followed were nearly deafening, and it was some time before he could explain his statement. Michigan Tradesman.

Traverse City people got an awful scare the other night through the custom of northern Michigan towns to adopt cast-off sirens as fire whistles. The tug Martin came into port just as the shades of night were falling and blew a terrible blast on its demonaical whistle. The sound of the siren roused the entire city. Clerks left their counters, butchers their blocks and the city policeman rushed madly toward the engine house to stem the panic. They all thought it sure must be a great fire that would call forth such an alarm, but it was only the Martin with a million feet of logs in tow.

We like to work and we like to see others work, but we just arise to remark that when we get to be worth as much money as some we know, work with us will cease. We could never discover why men sixty and seventy years of age and worth from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars should continue to toil from early until late and in all kinds of weather. We like to see a man provide something for their family after they are gone, but the average boy is better off if not left too much property. You who have labored your three score years should stop work and enjoy life the few short years you have left to remain with us.

If you know of an item or a piece of news, tell us about it. That's what we want. But a newspaper man sometimes experiences more difficulty in gathering news than one would imagine. This was the case when a reporter in a neighboring town, who, a few days ago was sent to write up a fire in a residence. Going to the door he inquired for the lady of the house. The maid said she was out. "Are any of the family at home?" inquired the scribe. "No, they are all out," was the reply. "Well, wasn't there a fire here last evening?" "Yes," said the hired girl, "but that's out too."

The four hundred delegates to the convention of the Michigan United Commercial Travelers, recently held at Petoskey, unanimously adopted a resolution extending the thanks of the commercial travelers of Michigan to Governor Warner for his energetic assistance in the matter of having the railroads of Michigan restore the interchangeable mileage books. Two years ago many of the commercial traveling men of Michigan were opposed to Governor Warner because of their fear, through declarations made by his opponent, that he would favor the railroads rather than their interests if an opportunity should present itself. They know for themselves now, as to Governor Warner's position on such matters, and he will have no better or more effective support this year than will come to him from the Michigan traveling men.

Disease Laid to the House-Fly.

The musca domestica or common house-fly, says Mary Homan Abel in her paper on "Flies and Food," in The Delineator for July, is known to convey cholera in the East, and is under suspicion as to other diseases. Its origin and habits are such as to put us on our guard. It lays its eggs in excrement, preferring horse manure, but if that does not offer, readily using any other. It feeds on the same and on the sputum of diseased throats and lungs, on refuse of all kinds, and it bears on its hairy feet and legs particles of these substances. Unlike the mosquito, the house-fly is not a biter—but it has its own way of carrying contagion. It deposits, wherever it goes, disease germs in its breeding and feeding places. On the joint of meat exposed for sale by the butcher, on the bread and sweetmeats of the confectioner's counter, on the edge of the milk pail, on the kitchen and dining-room tables, they have been found. The epidemic of typhoid fever in Chicago in 1902 fixed guilt on the fly. It was especially severe in the nineteen-h ward, which furnished one-seventh of the deaths, while containing but one-thirtieth of the city's population. This locality did not differ from the rest of the city in its water or food supply, but it did differ in having more than fifty per cent. of its houses without sanitary plumbing, the water being insufficient. Flies caught in undrained closets, on the fences, and in the room of a patient were proved to carry the germ.

The Boyne City, Gaylord & Alpena R. R. was inaugurated Monday, the first train taking a large number of Boyne City people to Gaylord where they were dining. Speeches were made and the party driven about town. Train service will follow. Charlevoix Sentinel—A way back in 1869 Thos. Clark was a "homesteader" in South Arm township, and the little settlement of "Pine River" was his post-office town. Twenty two years ago he moved to Kansas, where he has lived ever since. Last Friday Mr. Clark walked into the Sentinel office, the same Tom, but "gray as a rat." He expects to remain hereabout this summer, and may buy a farm here and grow up with the country.

The editor who can please everyone is not fitted for this earth, but is entitled to wings. Human nature is so constituted that some of our readers would like to have us feed them on scandal; some would like to have us tell the unvarnished truth about them while others would kill us if we did. It is a comforting thought to the editor to know that the Lord Himself did not please everyone while on earth. We labor hard to entertain and please our subscribers but that we should occasionally fail is to be expected, but you will always find us willing to be forgiven.

The dock recently completed on Bassett's island for the Traverse Bay Transportation company was built by John Monroe of East Jordan in four and one-half days. The dock is 300 feet long, and Mr. Monroe made one of the quickest jobs of the kind ever made on the lakes. Next week Mr. Monroe will start driving piles on the east shore of Boardman lake for the Oval Wood-Dish Company. The pile driver and machinery are already on the ground and work will be commenced about the middle of the week. As soon as this is completed, Mr. Monroe will be ready to drive piles for the passage of launches that are unable to make an entrance on account of shoal water.—Traverse City Eagle.

It wasn't a Missouri editor but a printer's devil who was going through his first experience on "hacking up" forms. The paper was late and the boy got the galleys mixed. The first part of the obituary notice of a peculiar citizen had been dumped in the forms, and the next handful of type came off a galley describing a recent fire: It read like this: "The pall bearers lowered the body to the grave and as it was consigned to the flames there were few if any regrets, for the old wreck had been an eyesore to the town for years. Of course there was individual loss, but that was fully covered by insurance." The widow thinks the editor wrote the obituary that way because the lamented partner of her joys and sorrows owed him five years' subscription.

If every business man in our town could do business on a strictly cash system it would be a blessing to us all. If we all had to pay cash we would learn to live within our means. It would save business men the expense of bookkeepers and the loss of bad debts, all of which some one has to pay for. If our town could gradually work into a strictly cash system it would be better for us all. One of our citizens who occasionally wipes the dishes for his wife, became tired of the job and, refusing, saying that "it is not a man's work." Not feeling disposed to lose his help she brought the Bible out to convince him of his error and read as follows from I Kings 21:13: "And will wipe Jerusalem a man wipeth a dish, wiping it, and turning it upside down." It is needless to say that he is still doing his occasional stunt. Once upon a time a man started to save money for a rainy day. Soon he had accumulated $7.55, with which he bought a beautiful umbrella. Then the rainy day came. But the man's best friend had borrowed the umbrella the night before—Smart Set. ## NELLIE GRANT SARTORIS.

SKETCH OF THE LOVELY WHITE HOUSE BRIDE OF THE DAYS OF GENERAL GRANT.

She Met Algernon Sartoris, Her Future Husband, on Shipboard on Return European Trip—is Mother of Three Children.

No American girl, not even President Roosevelt's daughter, ever had a more brilliant wedding than Nellie Grant, the beloved child of the great Civil War hero; yet of late years the public, which has always taken a kindly interest in Gen. Grant's family, has heard comparatively little of his only daughter.

When Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, widow of the President, was living, her daughter spent much time with her mother at the latter's home in the city of Washington, but since the death of her mother Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris can scarcely be said to have had a fixed residence in any American city. However, she has always been very fond of St. Louis, and she made her home in the Missouri metropolis during most of the time the recent World's Fair was in progress there.

Possibly the liking of Mrs. Sartoris for St. Louis is to be attributed to the fact that her birth, in August, 1855, occurred at her Grandfather Dent's country home near St. Louis, the birthplace of her mother. When General Grant was elected President, and he died during the first three years that he and his wife lived at the White House, the daughter was at school. Toward the close of President Grant's first term, however, Miss Nellie made her social debut at the Presidential mansion, and her cadet brother, home from West Point, was her escort and companion.

MET PRINCE CHARMING.

General Grant's daughter made a tour of Europe soon after she formally entered society, and everywhere received the most distinguished attentions from the royal families of Great Britain and the Continent. On the way home on the steamer Russia she met Mr. Sartoris, the Prince Charming who was later to win her heart and hand. From the moment that the engagement of Miss Grant was announced the whole American people manifested an interest in the bride-to-be which never found a parallel save in the enthusiasm for Alice Roosevelt.

The fact that the lucky man was an Englishman and not a citizen of the republic, while it was a matter of deep regret to many persons, including President Grant himself, was not allowed to cast a damper upon the joyous occasion. Mr. Algernon Sartoris was but twenty-three years of age and Miss Grant was only nineteen when, on Thursday, May 21, 1874, they were

Mrs. Grant accompanied the young couple to New York, whence they sailed for England.

BLESSED WITH CHILDREN.

Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris had three children, two daughters and a son. The son, who bears his father's name, Algernon, was for a time an officer in the United States army and saw some service in the Philippines, but his health compelled the abandonment of a military career. During the past few years he has traveled extensively, and some months ago was married to a very beautiful young woman in Paris. The eldest daughter, Vivian, was married a year or two since, but the younger daughter, Rosemary, the beauty of the family, is still unmarried. Some months since much discussion was precipitated when it was rumored that she was engaged to the son of one of the Confederate generals who fought against General Grant in the campaigns of the Civil War.

Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris is a woman who has always been held in high esteem by a large circle of feminine friends. From her school days she has seemed to inspire the regard of members of her own sex, and some idea of her popularity may be formed from the fact that on the occasion of her wedding she was attended by eighteen bridesmaids, all gowned alike. Mrs. Sartoris is several years younger than her famous brother, Gen. Fred D. Grant, of the United States Army, but her birthday was three years earlier than that of Jesse Grant, the youngest member of this famous family.

A LUXURIOUS AUTO.

Capt. Lars Anderson's Wonderful Machine of French Manufacture.

Of all the automobiles ever turned out by French or other manufacturers, the one lately made for Capt. Lars Anderson of Boston, seems to be entitled to the prize for originality. It is a huge machine fitted up for long journeys and in point of speed equals any of the present-day touring cars.

The Anderson car is fitted out with reversible furniture. There is a combination bed and bureau that is certainly a work of art, and then there is a cook stove and dining table arrangement that can be hauled out at a moment's notice. The whole machine, in fact, is a kind of miniature hotel on wheels with accommodations for eating, sleeping, working or idling, according to the fancy of the owner or his guests.

A Family Affair.

"Once upon a time there lived a good man of New York, who was soliciting contributions for the erection of an orphan asylum," said the story teller. "He had been to many rich people and received liberal contribu-

BET-SUGAR GROWING.

GOVERNMENT REPORT SHOWS HEALTHY GROWTH IN NEW AMERICAN INDUSTRY.

Colorado Leads—Industry Everywhere Proving a Powerful Aid to Agricultural, Industrial and Social Development.

In spite of apparent efforts to cripple or kill it off, the beet-sugar industry of the United States is making steady progress.

Congress has just received the annual report of Special Agent Charles F. Saylor of the Department of Agriculture on the status of the beet-sugar industry for last year. Fifty-two beet-sugar factories were in operation, 5 were standing idle, and 12 were being constructed for operation this year. The factories last year had a total capacity for slicing 40,000 tons of beets daily.

This showing of the Department of Agriculture, while it makes a comparatively small inroad upon the vast consumption of sugar in the more densely populated region east of the Mississippi, yet indicates that the young beet-sugar industry is making substantial progress, and that considering the uncertainty of legislation and the great cost of beet-sugar factory investments, very satisfactory advances are being made in this new American enterprise.

In the acreage planted and the sugar manufactured from beets Colorado leads, having invested 25,000 acres and manufactured 91,000 tons of sugar. Michigan came second in acreage with 77,000 acres, but third in sugar with 66,000 tons. California grew 51,000 acres and produced 73,000 tons of sugar. The next states in order were respectively Utah, Idaho, Nebraska and Wisconsin with a total of 71,000 acres and 64,000 tons of sugar. Other states grew 17,000 acres of sugar, or a total for the United States of 307,364 acres with a production of 312,920 tons of sugar.

RAPID GROWTH LOOKED FOR.

Indications are favorable, the report states, to the further growth of this pursuit both in irrigation and rainfall districts. "The industry is proving to be a powerful aid to commercial, agricultural and industrial development. It promotes irrigation, immigration, land settlement, the building of railroads and trolley lines, the making of other improvements, and the upbuilding of various industrial enterprises. Such results can only be appreciated by those who have visited the factory districts in Colorado, Utah and Idaho, or in other newly settled and improved areas throughout the West. The beneficial effect of the industry is also shown in the better settled more highly developed agricultural districts of the East, where, after beets have been given a proper trial in competition with established crops, they are demonstrating their staying qualities and potency in industrial development."

GROWS MORE THAN IT EATS.

One feature of this report is a series of tables accompanied with outline maps designed to show graphically the magnitude of sugar production in that part of the country lying west of the Mississippi River. These indicate that the estimated production of sugar west of the Mississippi in 1906 will exceed by 24,000 tons the amount of sugar consumed in the same area in 1906 (the latest year for which we have reliable census figures). The estimate of production for 1906 is made by assuming that all the beet-sugar factories, including 10 new ones, will run at their full capacity for campaigns of 100 days, and that the cane sugar product for 1906 will be the same as that of last year.

to produce the maximum yield of which the land is capable. A few years ago the man who would have said that 10 acres of farm land was a sufficient area for a man to make a good living from would have been looked upon as a crank. Now there are thousands of little 10 acre and even 5 acre farms from which men are making more money than many others are from attempting to till 20 times that amount. That 10 acres, under favorable conditions, will produce a living is recognized in a bill which has just been passed by the House of Representatives and which will likely be passed by the Senate at this session. It is an amendment to the National Irrigation Law. Under that law the homestead entry upon public land irrigated by the government ranges from 40 to 160 acres, to be determined by the Secretary of the Interior, according to the conditions of the reclamation. It was recognized, at the time of the passage of the law in '02, that in some sections of the country 40 acres was an ample area for a farm. It is now seen, and admitted in the bill above mentioned, that 10 acres is not too small a subdivision under favorable conditions. Another amendment was recently made to the irrigation law allowing the government to establish town-sites and divide the land thereunder up into various sized tracts ranging from town-lots to 10 acre allotments. When this bill which is now before the Senate becomes a law it will therefore be possible for the government, in any of its irrigation projects to divide and sub-divide its land into town and farm units ranging all the way from lots up to 100 acre farms.

MODEL RURAL SETTLEMENTS.

This plan will doubtless develop some of the finest examples of prosperous rural communities to be found anywhere in the world. Many of the best developed sections of some of the western states include great numbers of little farms and fruit ranches of 5, 10 and 20 acres each, where the appearance is almost like the outskirts of a village. With such a dense rural population there is an ideal combination of practically all the advantages to be found in city life and the splendid results of country work and living. Houses, in such a community, are almost within a stone-throw of each other, the population is sufficiently large to support splendid roads, good school and churches, water and lighting improvements, good sewerage, etc. Thus the loneliness, the isolation and the many unattractive features of the big farm disappear while yet the joys and the wholesomeness of country life are all present.

The report accompanying this bill states that since the passage of the irrigation act, it has developed that on some of the lands to be irrigated, particularly those in fruit and truck farming districts, less than 40 acres is needed for the support of the family, and in fact experience has demonstrated that the average farmer is more prosperous on a small than on a large irrigated farm. In view of this condition of affairs it has been deemed wise to reduce to 10 acres the minimum entry which may be allowed.

CHAPTER I. The great bell of Beaulieu was ringing. Far away through the forest might be heard its musical clangor and swell. Pent cutters on Blackdown and fishers upon the Exe heard the distant throbbing and falling upon the sultry summer air. It was a common sound in those parts—as common as the chatter of the jays and the booming of the bittern. Yet the fishers and the peasants raised their heads and looked questions at each other, for the Angelus had already gone and Vespers were still far off. Why should the great bell of Beaulieu toll when the shadows were neither sort nor long?

All round the Abbey the monks were trooping in. Under the long, green-paved avenues of gnarled oaks and of lichened beeches the white-robed brothers gathered to the sound. It had been no sudden call. A swift messenger had the night before sped round to the outlying dependencies of the Abbey, and had left the summons for every monk to be back in the cloisters by the third hour after noon. So urgent a message had not been issued within the memory of old Lay-Brother Athanasius, who had cleaned the knocker since the year after the Battle of Bannockburn.

Meanwhile, in the broad airy lofty chamber set apart for occasions of import, the Abbot himself was pacing impatiently backward and forward, with his long, white, nerveless hands clasped in front of him. His thin, thoughtful features and sunken, haggard cheeks bespoke one who had indeed beaten down that inner foe whom every man must face, but had none the less suffered sorely in the contest. In crushing his passions he had well-nigh crushed himself. Yet, frail as was his person, there gleamed out ever and anon from under his drooping brows a flash of fierce energy which recalled to men's minds that he came of a fighting stock, and that even now his twin brother, Sir Bartholomew Berghers, was one of the most famous of those stern warriors who had planted the Cross of St. George before the gates of Paris. With lips compressed and clouded brow, he strode up and down the oaken floor, the very impersonation of asceticism, while the great bell still thundered and changed above his head. At last the uproar died away in three last measured throbs, and ere their echo had ceased the Abbot struck a small gong which summoned a lay-brother to his presence.

"Where is the master of the novices?" "He is without, most holy father." "Send him hither." The sandalled feet clattered over the wooden floor, and the iron-bound door creaked upon its hinges. In a few moments it opened again to admit a short, square monk with a heavy, composed face and authoritative manner.

"You have sent for me, holy father?" "Yes, Brother Jerome, I wish that this matter be disposed of with as little scandal as may be; and yet it is needful that the example should be a public one."

"It would perchance be best that the novices be not admitted," suggested the master. "This mention of a woman may turn their minds from their pious meditations to worldly and evil thoughts."

"Woman! woman!" groaned the Abbot. "Well has the holy Chry-which told of their easy, unchanging existence. Then he turned his eager gaze upon the pale-faced monk who faced him.

"This plaint is false, as I learn, Brother Ambrose," said he. "Bring in Brother John, and let him hear the plaints urged against him."

At this order a lay-brother swung open the door, and two other lay-brothers entered, leading between them a young man of huge stature, dark-eyed and red-headed, with a peculiar half-humorous, half-defiant expression upon his bold, well-marked features.

His cowl was thrown back upon his shoulders, and his gown, unfastened

NELLIE GRANT SARTORIS.

SKETCH OF THE LOVELY WHITE HOUSE BRIDE OF THE DAYS OF GENERAL GRANT.

She Met Algernon Sartoris, Her Future Husband, on Shipboard on Return European Trip—Is Mother of Three Children.

No American girl, not even President Roosevelt's daughter, ever had a more brilliant wedding than Nellie Grant, the beloved child of the great Civil War hero, yet of late years the public, which has always taken a kindly interest in Gen. Grant's family, has heard comparatively little of his only daughter.

When Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, widow of the President, was living, her daughter spent much time with her mother at the latter's home in the city of Washington, but since the death of her mother Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris can scarcely be said to have had a fixed residence in any American city. However, she has always been very fond of St. Louis, and she made her home in the Missouri metropolis during most of the time the recent World's Fair was in progress there.

Possibly the liking of Mrs. Sartoris for St. Louis is to be attributed to the fact that her birth, in August, 1855, occurred at her grandfather's plantation country home near St. Louis, the birthplace of her mother. When General Grant was elected President, and indeed during the first three years that he and his wife lived at the White House, the daughter was at school. Toward the close of President Grant's first term, however, Miss Nellie made her social debut at the Presidential mansion, and her cadet brother, home from West Point, was her escort and companion.

MEET PRINCE CHARMING.

General Grant's daughter made a tour of Europe soon after she formally entered society, and everywhere received the most distinguished attentions from the royal families of Great Britain and the Continent. On the way home on the steamer Russia she met Mr. Sartoris, the Prince Charming who was later to win her heart and hand. From the moment that the engagement of Miss Grant was announced the whole American people manifested an interest in the bride-to-be which never found a parallel save in the enthusiasm for Alice Roosevelt.

The fact that the lucky man was an Englishman and not a citizen of the republic, while it was a matter of deep regret to many persons, including President Grant himself, was not allowed to cast a damper upon the joyous occasion. Mr. Algernon Sartoris was but twenty-three years of age and Miss Grant was only nineteen when, on Thursday, May 21, 1874, they were

Mrs. Grant accompanied the young couple to New York, whence they sailed for England.

BLESSED WITH CHILDREN.

Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris had three children, two daughters and a son. The son, who bears his father's name, Algernon, was for a time an officer in the United States army and saw some service in the Philippines, but his health compelled the abandonment of a military career. During the past few years he has traveled extensively, and some months ago was married to a very beautiful young woman, in Paris. The eldest daughter, Vivian, was married a year or two since, but the younger daughter, Rosemary, the beauty of the family, is still unmarried. Some months since much discussion was precipitated when it was rumored that she was engaged to the son of one of the Confederate generals who fought against General Grant in the campaigns of the Civil War.

Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris is a woman who has always been held in high esteem by a large circle of feminine friends. From her school days she has seemed to inspire the regard of members of her own sex, and some idea of her popularity may be formed from the fact that on the occasion of her wedding she was attended by eighteen bridesmaids, all gowned alike. Mrs. Sartoris is several years younger than her famous brother, Gen. Fred D. Grant, of the United States Army, but her birthday was three years earlier than that of Jesse Grant, the youngest member of this famous family.

Capt. Lars Anderson's Wonderful Machine of French Manufacture.

Of all the automobiles ever turned out by French or other manufacturers, the one lately made for Capt. Lars Anderson, of Boston, seems to be entitled to the prize for originality. It is a huge machine fitted up for long journeys and in point of speed equals any of the present-day touring cars. The Anderson gets fitted out with reversible furniture. There is a combination bed and bureau that is certainly a work of art, and then there is a cook stove and dining table arrangement that can be hauled out at a moment's notice. The whole machine, in fact, is a kind of miniature hotel on wheels with accommodations for eating, sleeping, working or idling, according to the fancy of the owner or his guests.

So he remained while the senior monks filed slowly and sedately into the chamber, seating themselves upon the long oaken benches which lined the wall on either side. At the further end, in two high chairs as large as that of the Abbot, though hardly so elaborately carved, sat the master of the novices and the chancellor, the latter a broad and portly priest, with dark, mirthful eyes and a thick outgrowth of crisp black hair all round his tonsured head. Between them stood a lean, white-faced brother who appeared to be ill at ease, shifting his feet from side to side and tapping his cuf with the long parchment roll which he held in his hand. ### TO DOUBLE AMERICA'S COTTON CROP.

Startling Results of Patient Experiments by Government Agriculturists.

GUY ELLIOTT MITCHELL
Cotton Illustrations by Courtesy Department of Agriculture.

With the cotton crop of the United States reaching an annual value of nearly $600,000,000 it is easy to see that the man who can make it worth four or five cents a pound more to the grower will put a few dollars of spending money into the pockets of the southern planters.

This improvement of the crop has been realized, and there is no reason why in ten years from now the whole of the cotton belt should not be growing a longer staple cotton worth on the average of 4 1/2 cents a pound more than the present crop. Of course this millennial condition of things will not be altogether realized. That there will be a decided and general advance in the value of the crop as the result of work already done by the Agricultural Department is certain. But there are always the factors of ignorance, indifference and prejudice to be reckoned with, and that will hold down the grand total of the advance.

ORDINARY COTTON STAPLE. SELECTED AND IMPROVED COTTON.

There are always the factors of ignorance, indifference and prejudice to be reckoned with, and that will hold down the grand total of the advance.

This is human nature. Otherwise every one would be raising thoroughbred stock, cats and chickens, which cost no more to feed and rear than scrubs, but everyone does not breed thoroughbreds, whether they be dogs or cows, and so it is a certainty that when the average of the cotton crop is vastly improved by the use of better seed there will be a large number of planters who are sticking to the old methods and complaining because they find it hard to make a living.

SEVERAL NEW STRAINS.

It is a fact, however, that the Department of Agriculture has, by several years of persistent work, bred from the old varieties of cotton raised in the south several new strains of cotton that, while having all the desirable qualities of the old types, produce a staple that is almost a half longer. It is just one branch of the general industry of plant breeding, and the result, as shown by the cotton itself combed out in fleecy whiteness on a black card, is a striking object lesson in the possibilities of plant breeding.

The Department has been at the work for some years, and in the course of its experiments has handled thousands of samples and hundreds of thousands of individual plants in making the selections that are now considered good enough to be sent out as new fixed types. The story of this improvement is a long one, interspersed with many disappointments. But the result now is success beyond contradiction. Northerners, people who live outside the cotton belt, do not realize just what a long staple cotton grown on the uplands means. Cotton is our principal export crop. It is the second most valuable crop grown in the United States, corn coming first. It is the principal crop of ten states, and in large areas of these states it is almost the only crop grown. The United States furnishes five-sixths of the cotton crop of the whole world, and while there are great areas, especially in Africa, that are adaptable to cotton, there is no prospect that the United States will be overtaken as a producer for many years to come.

The world's consumption of cotton and the consequent demand are increasing steadily, so that there is little prospect of over-production. All these things are in our favor. Then comes the question of improving this great crop. Outsiders do not realize that an eighth of an inch on the length of the fiber in a cotton boll means a cent a pound additional on the value of the crop. Now by careful breeding and selection the Department of Agriculture has produced cotton that runs from three-quarters of an inch to an inch and a quarter longer than the parent plants from which it was produced. This is not a freak growth, either. It is an improvement that has been developed into a fixed type, and is no more like the old upland cotton than it is like Egyptian or Sea Island.

SEEDS OF NEW TYPES.

The parent types from which it has been evolved are listed and carded in the department's collection, and each year as the fresh crops come in from the improved fields their output is carded for comparison. These new types have now reached a point where the department feels justified in sending out the new seed to the farmers. And if the farmers will take a little trouble and spend practically no money at all, they will be able to keep up the improved strains so that in a few years the American cotton crop will have been doubled in value without necessarily expanding by a single acre.

SEEDS OF NEW TYPES.

The parent types from which it has been evolved are listed and carded in the department's collection, and each year as the fresh crops come in from the improved fields their output is carded for comparison. These new types have now reached a point where the department feels justified in sending out the new seed to the farmers. And if the farmers will take a little trouble and spend practically no money at all, they will be able to keep up the improved strains so that in a few years the American cotton crop will have been doubled in value without necessarily expanding by a single acre.

It has been tedious work, and has been carried on systematically. "Score cards" such as are used in judging at stock shows are kept. The records of the individual plants are known, the shape and ongoing qualities of the boll, the date of maturity, the length and firmness of the cotton fiber, and the degree to which the parent plant may be depended upon to transmit its desirable qualities to its progeny. The work has been done in the open field and not in the carefully tended plots of the experiment stations. Thousands of plants have been destroyed each year, and only the best types kept. These have again been weeded out the following year, and only the best of the breed have been kept. The farmers who have been co-operating with the department in the work have been a rule careful, enthusiastic and painstaking under the direction of the experts sent into the field by the department, and slowly but surely the length of the staple and other desirable qualities in the new cotton have increased, till the department now feels it has a new and fixed type that can be depended on to perpetuate its desirable qualities.

One thing that has been carefully observed is to keep growing the new types on the ground where they will be cultivated commercially. There are several new strains adapted to slightly different conditions of soil and climate. It has been found in the case of wheat, for example, that a strain may be improved in one locality, and that by moving it to new surroundings it shows little, if any, improvement over the local type. This error has been avoided with the new modeling because of these handy little machines. It is hard to find a place to begin to enumerate their advantages. In the case of traveling to the creamery there is a great saving. Where the dairy owner has one of these machines, he need not go to the creamery more than three times a week in the warm weather and twice in a week during the colder months.

When cream only instead of the whole milk is delivered to the creamery, the item of hauling is reduced to its lowest limits. Say ten cans of milk a day is the product of a given dairy. Where a hand separator is used, hauling is reduced from taking the ten cans to the creamery every day to taking two cans of cream every other day, or three cans twice a week.

The hand separator allows the dairyman to feed the skim milk to calves or pigs within a few minutes of the time it is drawn from the udder and before the natural animal heat leaves it. This saves warming the milk and allows its use when it is perfectly sweet and fresh.

The hand separator saves hauling skim milk from the creamery to the farm, and it also saves the dairyman from the risk of getting milk from diseased cows to feed to his young stock. This is not a great risk to be sure, but it is worth considering. Tuberculous cows are frequently found in this country, and probably there is hardly a creamery among the patrons of which no cows suffering from this disease could be found. If the dairyman is sure of his own cows, the hand separator saves him from the risk of getting tuberculous milk from the mixture in the milk vat at the creamery, from which he gets his skim milk when he delivers the whole milk.

The saving in work is a large item. Instead of ten cans to care for and keep clean and free from germs, there are only two. This saves labor and the investment of money in utensils. At the low price at which hand separators are sold, one will pay for itself time and again before it wears out, on the various items of economy mentioned above.

There is another item. The hand separator is rapidly bringing about the centralization of the creamery industry. Cream gathered from hand separators is now transported as far as 200 miles to the central creamery, and here it is made into butter at much less cost than would be possible in the local creamery with a limited field in which to operate. This allows the creamery to pay a better price for butter fat and gives the dairyman more money from his cows.

The man who keeps as few as five cows will find it to his advantage to buy a hand separator, especially if he makes butter on the farm, for in such a case the saving in work is much greater than where a creamery takes the cream.

and if the planters will co-operate with the department to even a reasonable degree the value of the whole cotton crop in the United States can be vastly enhanced without planting a single additional acre, and there will still be enough land available in the cotton belt to assure the United States of its supremacy in the cotton world for many years to come.

Cream Separator on the Farm.

It has been only a few years since the manufacturers of separators brought out hand machines with the definite purposes of making them popular and selling them in large numbers, says the Farmer's Wife in a well considered editorial. From that time to this they have gained friends, and now it is rare to hear anyone say anything against them, and when this does happen one may be sure it comes from some person who has been injured by their use, and this is never the man who provides.

The hand separator has so many advantages over the creamery separator that the whole creamery business is being revolutionized and re-

Plowing by Co-Operative Traction Engines.

By C. J. Blanchard.

A million acres will be added to the cultivatable area of the country during the next three years, under the various government irrigation projects. Most of this acreage is raw land upon which the plow has never turned a furrow. Thousands of new settlers will be located there and for several years the principal work will be clearing, leveling, and plowing, to prepare the land to receive the water.

Over vast stretches the sage brush is the only vegetation. In other places the bunch grass makes a tough sod, unyielding and hard to break. The subjugation to agriculture of this new empire has attracted the attention of the manufacturers of implements and machinery. They see in this work a virgin field for the products of their factories. As most of the settlers go in upon this land are not in affluent circumstances, and as feed for stock will be scarce and costly, any proposition which will eliminate the necessity for the purchase of horses, plows and forage will naturally prove interesting.

It has occurred to the writer that in every one of these projects there is an excellent opportunity for the use of powerful traction engines, accompanied by gang plows and harrows. These engines could be purchased and managed by a number of settlers or they could be operated by one man who would contract to do the work. Up in the Northwest Territories a Michigan man is preparing to introduce this method of custom plowing and cultivating. He is building a plow which will turn nine furrows, each fourteen inches wide, and with a traction engine which he has designed will plow 33 acres per day. He has already contracted for 2,700 acres at $3 per acre for plowing, and expects to close arrangements for a much larger area.

HOW TO HOLD A POSITION.

Courtesy, Promptness, Loyalty and Hard Work Are Keys to Success in Business.

By H. J. HAPGOOD, President of Hapgoods.

How to hold a position? Do just as little work as you possibly can; take no interest in the business; curse the injustice of your employers when you see younger men advanced over your head. By following these rules you may hold a position ten years, but the salary paid you and the responsibility placed upon you will be little if any greater than when you started.

But by holding a position we mean something broader and better than this. We mean constantly increasing your employer's satisfaction, steadily developing higher ability and surely advancing to larger and greater responsibility.

My subject is then really "Success in business," and this, like success of any kind, is "untaught and unteachable." There are, however, certain valuable hints to be gained by studying the careers of men who have succeeded. Although the paths by which these men have won success are widely different, there are certain features which stand out prominently in all of them. These I believe to be the essentials for business success—promptness, courtesy, loyalty, hard work.

Promptness is the key note in this age of hustle. Opportunity waits for nobody, and the man who is always a little behind time is playing a losing game. "Always there with the goods" is one of the highest tributes that can be paid a modern business man. "Having the goods" is the first consideration, but this will avail little if you are not always there with them when wanted.

In this connection a good story is told of Philip D. Armour and a young man who had just begun work for him. When on the first morning the young man reached the office at 9 o'clock, he found his employer already there at work. The next morning at 8:30 and the following morning at 8 o'clock it was the same. At last, determined for once to be there first, the new clerk was there at 7 o'clock. When he walked into the office Mr. Armour looked up from his desk and grimly inquired: "Young man, where do you spend your forenoons?"

Business hours are not usually as long as Mr. Armour made them, but whatever they are they are rigidly observed. Five or ten minutes in the morning, trivial as it may be itself, is a pretty sure indication of the degree of promptness you will show in more important matters.

"I know of no investment more certain to pay large dividends than courtesy," said a successful business man the other day, and he spoke the truth. In the nerve-racking, endless rush of affairs, there is nothing which leaves a stronger impression than a pleasant word or a kind act, especially if it be something most men overlook. Business courtesy is largely a matter of habit and is one of the habits we can afford to cultivate.

men than he in the service, but he stuck to them through thick and thin and they appreciate it." The frequency with which men state this as a reason for success is significant. It shows that the man of the hour is the faithful man, the man who makes his employers' interests his own and whose loyalty never wavers.

Associated more or less with all these requisites and overshadowing them all is hard work. "For this," said President James J. Hill of the Great Northern Railroad Company, "there is no substitute." You may be lacking in ability, in personality or some other way and still succeed; but if you have not the capacity for hard work you are doomed to failure.

Study the lives of great men and you will see in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, their achievements are due to the possession of this capacity. William E. Corey, the president of the United States Steel Corporation, attributes his first success to "not being afraid to do $2 worth of work for $1." When a laborer he wheeled so much more iron than the other workmen that he was soon made foreman over them. The words "hard work" come nearer to holding the key to success than volumes of advice.

The owners of the new theatre being rebuilt at Charlevoix have engaged the services of W. A. Loveday and Dr. H. B. Lehner (the former of the Loveday Opera House, and the latter former manager for several years of the Kalkaska Opera House to look after the booking and management of the house for the first month.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Wm. B. Vaughn, who located in this county last spring, coming here from Lake county, has had much experience in handling huckleberries. He informs us that he has gone pretty thoroughly over the huckleberry fields of this section, going as far as Frederick in his travels, and has satisfied himself that there will be nothing doing in that line this season, the hard frosts a few days ago having completely killed what promised to be a heavy crop prior to that time. Mr. Vaughn, who came originally from Massachusetts, is in fact a typical Yankee, says that frost didn't enter into their calculations where he was raised, but finds that they have to be liberally discounted in Michigan.—Kalkaska Leader.

A government inspector was here last Friday and struck consternation to the hearts of many of our local yacht owners. He cited them to a new law which requires every power boat, and that, of course, includes gasoline boats, to pass inspection and be licensed, and in addition to have a licensed engineer on board at all times when running. On top of all this a life preserver must be carried for every person aboard. It is not thought that the inspection of engineers will be a very rigid one, but rather that an applicant who understands the signals by lights and whistles and knows how to handle the engine will be passed. The greatest hardship will fall on the boat liveryies which have been in the habit of letting boats to anyone who could manipulate the engine. Hereafter, a licensed man must go with the boat.—Boyne City Journal.

Rev. George Allan goes to Charlevoix Tuesday where he delivers a sermon to the Salvation Army in the evening. His subject is "The Fruits of the Spirit in Dwelling."

Invitations were out for a Lawn party for last Wednesday, June 20th, given by Mrs. D. C. Loveday in honor of her guests, Mrs. D. C. Osborn of Petoskey and Miss Lamb of Chicago, but due to the gentle showers they were entertained in the parlors with cards—Five Hundred and Fling. Refreshments were served.

Mancelona is without electric lights for a few days, once more, owing to a smashup in the plant. And speaking about this, did it ever occur to you what an excellent service our local plant is giving East Jordan citizens? For several years back the longest time we have been without lights is just about five minutes. What town can boast of a better service.

The Summer Train Schedule goes into effect on the Pers Marquette tomorrow, the 24th. We have not received the new time card yet, but Gen'l M'g'r Crossman of the E. J. & S. will also change time but have not, as yet, arranged the schedule.

We heard one of our young men making sport of religion in front of our office the other day. His moustache had just begun to sprout and judging from his talk his mental faculties were not as well developed as his moustache. During our brief stay upon earth we have seen many just such young men cold in death. We have seen the atheist at rest in his casket, but before being consigned to their last resting place they have all been carried through the doors of a church and had prayers said over them. This young man could scoff at religion in his strength and beauty of health, but if the dark angel should get after him he would instinctively regret what he said and look into the future with fear and trembling. When one stands before the open door of eternity his desire to scoff at religion vanishes. We admit there are bad men in the church, but even these black sheep in the flock might be blacker if they were outside. No young man, or old one either, should condemn the noble efforts of the army of Christian men and women are making towards bettering the condition of things, and whether we attend church or not but few of us would desire to live in a community where there was no church. Young man, in the future, if you must scoff at religion, please get a little further from our office if you do not want to see your name in print.

The July Delineator.

The midsummer fashions with a wealth of illustrations in color and in black-and-white are attractively portrayed in The Delineator for July. Helen Berkeley-Loyd tells how the Summer girl will be frocked and furbered, and the Dress of Paris is discussed by M. Edouard La Fontaine, one of the best-known critics in Paris. In the literary section the most notable feature is the opening chapters of "The Chauffeur and the Chaperon," a new story by O. N. and A. M. Williamson, authors of "The Lightning Conductor." The story which deals with a group of interesting people cruising in a motor boat over the quiet waterways of Holland, promises to be the brightest and cleverest novel that these renowned writers have yet produced. Mrs. Mary Himmman Abel contributes a chapter on "Flies and Food" in The Delineator's Campaign for Safe Foods, and Clara E. Laughlin opens a series of "Stories of Painters' Lives," with "Millet—the Peasant Painter." Burton E. Stevenson has the second part of the tale "The Rose of Sharon," and there is a short story entitled "The Baby," by Zona Gale. "The President of Quex," Helen M. Winslow's entertaining club story, is concluded. For the children, there are Stories and Pastimes, among them the first of the series of "Tales of the Mountain Giants" and a clean story by Edmund Vance Cook, "Down the King's Chimney." For the housewife there are many articles of timely interest, including Novelties for Summer Feasts, Strawberry Favourites and New Vegetables Cleverly served.

A hundred years ago the best physician would give you a medicine for your heart without stopping to consider what effect it might have on the liver. Even to this good day cough and cold medicines invariably bind the bowels. This is wrong. Bee's Laxative Cough Syrup with Honey and Tar acts on the bowels—drives out the cold—clears the head, relieves all coughs, cleanses the mucous membranes of the throat, chest, lungs and bronchial tubes. Sold by Warne's Pharmacy.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup

Pleasant to take and does not gripe or nauseate

Cures Chronic Constipation, Stomach and Liver Trouble

Stimulation Without Irritation.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new laxative syrup combined with the delicious flavor of fruits, and is very pleasant to take. It will not gripe or sicken. It is much more pleasant and effective than Pills, Tablets and Saline Waters, as it does not derange the Stomach, or irritate the Kidneys, Liver or Bowels.

Constipation.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup will positively cure chronic constipation as it restores the natural action of the intestinal tract. Ordinary cathartics may give temporary relief but the stomach is upset and the bowels are irritated without any permanent benefit having been derived.

Why ORINO is different.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is the only preparation that really acts upon all of the digestive organs. Other preparations act upon the lower bowel only and do not touch the Liver. It can very readily be seen that a preparation that does not act upon all of the digestive organs can not cure Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, etc.

For Biliousness and Sick Headache.
Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup. It sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and acts as a gentle stimulant on the liver and bowels without irritating these organs.

Clears the Complexion.
ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup stimulates the liver and thoroughly cleanses the system and clears the complexion of pimples and blotches. It is the best laxative for women and children as it is mild and pleasant, and does not gripe or sicken. Refuse substitutes.

OUR GUARANTEE
Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.
