EAST JORDAN, MICHIGN, SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1906.

No 34

The City of White.

Is Once More With Us On The West Side.

The Annual Seventh Day Adventist Camp Meeting of the Northern Michigan Conference, which is to be held beginning next week Thursday, Aug. 30th, and lasting to Sept. 10th, in East Jordan on the same grounds where it was last year, is already in evidence. A strong force of workers have arrived and began the work of pitching the tents and preparing the Camp. Much care is being exercised in laying out the grounds and arranging the tents with a view to good order and convenience of campers. A much larger attendance is expected this year than last, the delegates coming from all parts of Michigan north of Bay City. There will be four tents located in different parts of the grounds in which meetings will be held in the morning, forenoon, afternoon and evening. The Conference which will be held in connection with the Camp Meeting will hold a session each morning at 9:00 o'clock.

The following ministers from abroad are expected to be in attendance, as well as the ministers of the North Michigan Conference: Elders Allan Moon and D. W. Curtis from Indianapolis; Elder Luther Warren of Chicago; Prof. Kauble of the Berrien Springs College; and Profs. Lamsen and Butler of the Holly and Cedar Lake academies. Elder Curtis it will be remembered, was here last year and gave some excellent lectures.

The headquarters of the Conference are at Petoskey and the officers are as follows: S. E. Wright, President; Edith McClellan, Secretary; N. M. Trust Society, Treasurer.

The public are invited to all their services, beginning next Thursday evening.

Brandon Their Headquarters.

WINNEPEG, MAN., AUG. 16, 1906. FRIEND LISK:

Just to let you know we are all alive thought I would write a line or so. We arrived in the golden West in good condition (physically) and so far ahead of our expectations. We had a very pleasant trip, the portion from the Soo to Pt. Arthur being across Lake Superior in steamer Monarch was by far the best. People generally have the idea that this largest body of fresh water in the world is always rough but during our 26 hours on it there was not at any time enough swells to rock a canoe.

Harvest is only commencing here and it promises to be a profitable one for the farmers. The general estimate is 25 bushel of wheat to the acre. It is a common thing to see a farm house worth from 4 to 6 thousand dollars and land worth from 30 to 40 dollars an acre. This is something worth mention when we know that 25 years ago it was a wilderness and the best of it was only worth two or three dollars an acre.

The city of Winnipeg has over 100,000 population and is increasing very fast. Real estate is very high and no wonder with over 600 real estate offices in a city of this size. A flat that would rent in Chicago for $30 a month would rent for $60 or $70 here. Of course everything is accordingly high the common laborer on the streets gets 25c an hour.

The C. P. R. depot is a place of attraction these days where 5000 farm laborers a day are coming in from the east and the farmer who can't offer $2.50 a day and board will have to do his own work.

In conclusion will say we are going to locate permanently at Brandon a lively town of 12000 just 135 miles west of Winnipeg on the main C. P. R. line and only time will tell what our success will be. It is pleasant to think that should we fail in one undertaking the government waits ready to give us each 160 acres of the best land in the world free of charge. We occasionally see the old emblem, Stars and Stripes and it looks pretty much home like yet. The only mean trick we have had played on us yet was by a customs officer who made us pay $18.20 on our typewriter.

Hoping everyone in East Jordan is enjoying good health we are as ever Respectfully yours, CRESCENT ART CO. Brandon, Manitoba.

P. S.—Just another very important item. Enclosed find $1.00 for one years subscription to the Charlevoix County Herald.—J. A. Cuyler.

"The Clay Baker"

Above play which appears at Love-day Opera House next Friday evening is a powerful Character Drama. Its scenes are laid in Chambersburg and Mont Alto—the famous Pottery or Clay Baking fields of Southern Pennsylvania. The play deals with the experiments of Peter Denig, an old inventor who has striven to reproduce unbreakable pottery and who in his moment of despair, when his enemies have apparently triumphed over him—after they seek to steal his invention and he has starved himself and family—takes his old Army Musket and is about to commit suicide, when by accident, he discovers the Secret of Unbreakable China. There is a love story or two; the machinations of designing men; some clean, clever Comedy furnished by excellent types of the quaint country folks and mountaineers of Southern Pennsylvania. There are delights and shadows which make the Clay Baker one of the greatest of American plays. There is about it the atmosphere of Romance—the natural and the beautiful. The sweet simplicity, the rugged honesty, the quaint comedy, the peaceful quietude with the two old folks at home, place The Clay Baker first in the rank of Plays depicting the lives of quaint and honest rustic folk.

Just Between Us Fellers—
Just between us fellers—
Hang it all, talk fair—
Hain't yew tarnation thankful things air as they air—
That we got this here sunshine An' birds an' flowers about? Ding my hide, I'm satisfied I cud git right up an' shout!

Ever git real peevish an' See yer sky git black,
Then, sudden-like, the clouds break away Like a friend hed pushed 'em back,
An' th' flakes o' gold a-filterin' down Like comin' through a sieve?
Them times I feel the cheap, by jocks, Jest don't feel fit to live!

When yew find a feller thet's 'Lowin' if he'd got Th' job o' buidlin' this here world He'd fixed it up a lot,
Yew take him out an' show him how Much he's Nature's debtor,
Th' birds an' flowers—durn his hide— He couldn't done no better.

THE CHUTES.

Chicago's Famous Water Park Furnishes New Sensations.

No more wonderful pleasure resort exists than Chicago's famous water park, "The Chutes."

Its fame is international. This season it offers two sensations which have set the big city agog. One is "Elter," the Beautiful Mystery of the Lake, and the other King Humboldt's Royal Italian Band, led by Maestro Francesco Pozzi. The "Banda Italiana Abruzzi" is an organization of forty skilled musicians, which created a furor in Europe. It is touring the world and will delight the Chutes' patrons this summer.

"Elter," who is a beautiful young woman, emerges from the depths of the lake and disappears beneath its waves like a fabled nymph. Her marvelous feat amazes and mystifies.

"Shooting the Chutes" over the biggest artificial cascades in the world is the favorite pastime of Chicago. Shouting and laughing throngs descend the glistening cascades with the speed of the wind until their gay gondolas splash in the lake and glide swiftly forward on foam-crested waves to a placid harbor.

While Pozzi's big band fills the park with majestic strains, delighted spectators are whirled through mid-air at marvelous speed; phantom ears flash across the horizon laden with gaily attired children and young women; mists of opalescent spray cool the beautiful park; its blue lake glistens and scintillates under the glorious sun and against the blue sky flutter and gleam countless flags and vari-colored lights.

A more entrancing spectacle cannot be imagined than The Chutes, a citadel of beautiful pavilions, thronged with happy people, animated by a thousand gay activities, illuminated like a fairyland and ringing with the melodies of its world-famed band.

Among its unique devices are the Velvet Coaster, Acrostat Flying Machines, Radium Zoo, moving pictures of the San Francisco Fire, Electric Theatre, troupe of entertainers, Figure 8, Toboggan, Giant Automaton, Katzenjammer Castle, free Children's Playground, Thousand Anamorphoses, Laughing Gallery, Helter Skelter, Mammoth Carousel, Mystic Bill, a Subterranean River, Haunted House, Pendant Swings, and a thousand others.

This matchless resort is Chicago's favorite playground, a Coney Island, circus and world's fair, all in one. No visit to the big city is complete without "seeing the Chutes." Access to all of its bewildering activities may be had for ten cents. Street cars transfer passengers to The Chutes from all parts of Chicago for five cents.

Lame Horses Are Poor Travellers.

Did you ever try to drive a horse that went lame easily? Or one always afraid he wouldn't hear you say, whoa? Some horses can't travel because they are lame and others won't travel without a lot of urging. They are not the horses to buy. It's just the same with cream separators. Some are always out of fix, and some turn like corn shellers. Such separators don't have the up-to-date features found only in THE SHARPLES TUBULAR.

SOUTH AMERICAN QUAKE.

One of the worst earthquake disasters in the history of South America has occurred in Chili, with the city of Valparaiso as the focus-point of the calamity...

The captain of a steamship which arrived from San Francisco says the situation is worse than that following the disaster at San Francisco.

The funds collected in Chili for festivities in connection with the inauguration of President-elect Montt will be distributed among the sufferers from the earthquake.

Dispatches from Valparaiso state that a moderate estimate of the fatalities is 2,000 and that the property loss may be as high as $250,000,000.

At Santiago many of the best public and private buildings were wrecked. The loss of life there was augmented by the panic which seized the people...

Provisions and thousands of tons of flour, wheat and rice are held in store at Valparaiso and about it is not believed a food famine will occur.

The water pipes of Valparaiso were broken and the water poured through the streets. There is even lack of water for drinking purposes.

The hills surrounding Valparaiso suffered but slightly. More than 60,000 persons have taken refuge there.

Advices have been received that the towns of Viñage and Casablanca were entirely destroyed, and that San Felipe, Rancagua, Melipilla and Llaillai were severely damaged.

At Concepcion the shock was severe and a number of persons were killed or injured. The towns of Rengo, San Fernando, Quillota and San Antonio and many villages are in ruins.

Milk costs two Chilean dollars a liter, and it is almost impossible to obtain meat, even at high prices.

The railroads are all destroyed. It is feared the town of Los Andes, in the province of Aconcagua, has been destroyed.

In addition to the fear of earthquakes the Valparaiso people are in constant dread of storms, which sweep in suddenly and frequently from the sea.

Following the first shock fire started in Valparaiso and hundreds of the inhabitants perished in the flames.

Prior to the spreading of the flames many persons lost their lives under the falling ruins of buildings shaken from their foundations by the first shock of earthquake.

The earthquake interrupted cable facilities to lower South American points.

Armstrong, Indianapolis; junior vice commander, E. B. Fenton, Detroit; chaplain-in-chief, Archbishop John Ireland, St. Paul; surgeon general, W. H. Johnson, Lincoln, Neb.

One death and many prostrations are reported as the result of the intense heat in Des Moines, Ia. The whole state is suffering from the heat.

The visit of members of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, who went to Germany after the close of their joint convention with the Iron and Steel Institute of London, ended with a trip on the Rhine to Duesseldorf and Coblenz.

"Cannon Ball" train No. 6 of the Dallas-Texas & Pacific railroad was derailed five miles east of Mesquite. The trucks of the tender left the tracks, causing the baggage car, mail car, dining car and a chair car to leave the tracks.

It is practically agreed by the French press that the publication of the pope's encyclical to the archbishops and bishops of France prescribing their attitude with regard to the church and state separation law means a religious war. Although one or two papers treat the situation as but little changed, others perceive severe trials for the church and possibly even civil war.

Several large forest fires are burning fiercely west-south of Biwabik, Minn. Hundreds of acres of second growth and thicket have been burned over and still the flames sweep on unabated.

B. A. Lamason, a wealthy banker, cashier of the Bank of Ankeney, Ia., was struck by lightning and instantly killed.

Fred O. Murray, collector of customs, and formerly deputy county treasurer, was acquitted at Buffalo, N. Y., of the charge of grand larceny in connection with the "graveyard" scandal.

The Physicians Defense company, of Fort Wayne, Ind., has been barred from Kansas.

The Montana board of equalization assessed W. A. Clark $1,000,000 on his San Pedro railroad stock, $2,440,000 on his United Verde mine, and raised his bank assessment $649,000, an increase of nearly $4,000,000.

The Superior mills of the Ypsilanti Paper company, located a short distance outside of Ypsilanti, Mich., were practically destroyed by fire. The loss is about $100,000.

Representative Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati, was elected secretary of the International Policyholders' committee of the New York and the Mutual Life Insurance companies.

A Warsaw telegram to the London Jewish Chronicle says: "After the disturbances, which the police quelled; 250 Jews were killed or wounded by the soldiers."

The fishery of Labrador is, the worst this season in 20 years. American halibut fishing vessels have fared badly.

As an echo of the crash of the Milwaukee Avenue State bank at Chicago, the Garfield Park bank closed its doors. Deposits approximating $100,000 indicate the extent of the failure to the community.

The boiler of a mint distillery on the farm of William Mohney, three miles from Three Rivers, Mich., exploded, killing Mr. Mohney and his son Roy, and seriously wounding two of Roy's children.

Rimons are rife in Zion City. It is hinted on all sides that a visit made by Voliva to Dr. Dowie may have as its object the compromise of the warring interests in the city and their union for the benefit of the city's interests.

The navy department has been informed that the estimate of the damage done to the battleship Illinois in a recent collision with the Alabama amounts to $10,000.

Following a series of whippings which has precipitated a race war, the negroes of Silex, Mo., are selling their property and fleeing.

The Philippine war veterans were entertained at Fort Des Moines with a review of the Eleventh cavalry, the regiment which was kept from the Fort Riley maneuvers in order to attend the encampment.

Plans are being perfected to have all colored troops in the United States army stationed at one post because of race feeling that exists at many points where both white and colored soldiers are stationed.

A new morning newspaper, to be known as the Washington Herald, will be published at Washington, beginning about October 1. Scott C. Bone will be at the head of the enterprise.

The killing of Dr. Graham, of Holder, I. T., who was shot dead about a month ago by Ben Steward, was avenged when unknown persons shot Steward from ambush, killing him instantly.

Secretary of War Taft has declined to grant the application for clemency made by Sidney S. Burbank, late first lieutenant of the United States army.

R. H. Cadawalder, for 21 years editor of the Louisville, Kan., Herald, committed suicide by shooting. He had suffered financial losses.

One woman perhaps fatally injured, many others more or less seriously hurt, is the result of a bargain day rush at W. F. Woolworth & Co.'s store at St. Joseph, Mo.

Two men lost their lives in a fierce fire which broke out in the sail loft of a ship chandler's establishment at Buffalo, N. Y. The dead are Capt. James Robertson, a veteran lake captain, and Charles Johnson, a sailmaker.

PENINSULAR HAPPENINGS

QUARREL OF YOUTHFUL LOVERS CAUSES SUICIDE OF YOUNG MAN.

Notes Gathered Here and There About the State Concerning Men and Things in General.

AN ODD LOT OF SUSPECTS

Morphined Himself. Despondent over a quarrel with his sweetheart, John Ripley, of Olivet, purchased a bottle of morphine and, driving away from the annual farmers' picnic, went to the town pump and consumed the entire contents. In spite of the crowd that witnessed the act, he started to drive away in his buggy, but was stopped and medical aid summoned. Physicians made every effort to save his life, but he died about two hours later.

Ripley, who was about 18 years old, and who worked for Lewis Day, several miles west of town, came to the picnic at Pine Lake in company with Laura Hinkley. The couple became involved in some altercation and the young lady started to walk home, about seven miles distant. Stung by remorse, the young man swallowed the poison and ended his life.

Caught the Three.

Armed to the teeth with shotguns, pitchforks and fishpoles, 200 citizens of Bellaire surrounded three suspicious characters, thinking they were the Alba postoffice robbers.

When the suspects could recover enough to speak, it was learned that one was an umbrella mender, one an escaped lunatic from the Traverse City asylum and the last Clarence Hollenah, of Mayfield, wanted by local officers on a disorderly charge.

The umbrella doctor was released, the crazy man taken in charge by an attendant and Hollenah brought to the jail at Bellaire. He has not yet recovered from the scare of having shotguns almost poked down his throat.

Planned Murder.

Later developments indicate that Thomas Roach, who suicided in Jackson, deliberately planned to kill his wife and himself, and that the act was not one of hidden passion.

He was so illiterate he could scarcely write his name, and he got the services of a friend to make a will a few days ago, bequeathing his personal property to various friends, and making the writer the beneficiary of a life insurance policy for $500, depositing his wife.

Mrs. Roach, who seems to be recovering, although the bullet in her head may yet cause trouble, has forgiven her husband.

Heavy Losses.

The storm knocked thousands of bushels of peaches and other fruit from heavily laden trees in Oceana county.

At Shelby seven houses were struck by lightning. The barn, contents and two horses of H. Sauters were burned. The congregational church steeple was struck and wrecked and every independent telephone in the village was burned out.

The loss in Shelby is $5,000. Rothbury, Mears, Pentwater and other towns suffered.

Vicious Colts.

Benjamin Lacey, aged 12 years, living just outside of Kawkawlin, was attacked by two vicious white-feeding colts. They kicked him badly, fracturing two ribs and breaking an arm. His mother went to help him and they both attacked her, jumping upon her and seriously injuring her internally. Mother and son may both die.

At Husband's Bier.

Mrs. Thomas Roach, of Jackson, whose husband attempted to murder her and then committed suicide, grieves deeply over him, and had her father consented would have had his funeral at her home. Although suffering from a bullet in her head, she came down town to see her husband's remains at the undertaker's. Later developments show that Roach had planned the crime for many weeks.

Killed by a Hunter.

Near Lathrop, Sunday, Guy Harlow, of that town, was shot and killed by Joseph Sheedo, a homesteader, in mistake for a deer. Sheedo confessed to the killing, which was purely accidental and will be arrested as soon as the sheriff arrives on the scene.

The maximum penalty on conviction, under a special statute covering these cases, is 10 years.

Ovid School House Burned.

The Ovid public school building was destroyed by fire of mysterious origin last night. The loss is $25,000, with $11,000 insurance. School is not in session and the building was deserted, as far as is known. No other cause is advanced than incendiarism. It is not known in what part of the building the fire started, as when it was discovered the whole interior was ablaze.

Quincy mine workers resume work, after being on strike for three weeks, at wages offered by the company.

Coming home week will be celebrated August 27 to September 1, in Eaton Rapids. Gov. Warner and Gov. Cummins, of Iowa, will attend.

Niles is threatened with an ice famine. Wurz Bros., the only dealers, say their supply is nearly exhausted, and that they are unable to buy a pound elsewhere.

No trace of the bodies of Guy Warner and Ella Squires, who were supposed to have been drowned at Reid's lake Thursday night, has yet been found. The belief that perhaps they have eloped is gaining ground. The lake was dragged all day, but without result.

BOILER LET GO.

Father and Son Killed, Grandchildren Injured.

Father and son were killed outright and two children were seriously hurt in a boiler explosion at a mill still on the farm of William Mohney, three miles east of Three Rivers at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

All were employes at the mill. Mr. Mohney and his son were working with the engine, the boiler falling to operate properly. Without warning it let go with a terrible report. Other members of the family rushed from the house and found the mangled remains of the two men lying on the ground nearly 30 feet from the wrecked engine. The two children were unconscious from their injuries and Dr. Knowles was summoned from Three Rivers. They will probably recover.

William Mohney had lived in Three Rivers all his life and leaves a widow and several children. Roy Mohney, 12, leaves a widow and five children, the two oldest of whom were hurt.

Oliver Weakley, of Lansing, is under arrest charged with assaulting his wife because she extracted a collar from his trousers while he was sleeping.

Wm. Brower, aged 17, of Holland, was killed by lightning while working in the barn on his father's farm. His mother, seeing the barn in flames, rescued the body.

THE MARKETS.

Detroit.—The live stock market was especially noteworthy for a heavy run of sheep and lambs and a moderate run in other departments. In the cattle market the trade was active and choice handy butchers grades were a trifle higher. Shipping cattle and bulls brought steady prices. There was an active demand for stockers and feeders and they brought full steady prices with a slight advance. Common cow stuff continued dull and heavy to sell. Good grades of milk cows sold strong to $3 per head higher, $55 being paid for good ones. Common grades are dull and lower.

Sheep.—The sheep and lamb trade opened with last week's prices being paid, but when it became apparent that the run would be large a price advance slumped and early in the day were from 50c to 75c lower than at the opening. The close to be hard to say for the very best. Buck lambs are selling low.

Hogs.—The hog trade was very unsatisfactory to the shipper. Packers were very bearish and would not pay over $6.15 for anything. One dealer bought a few at $6.20, and another paid $6.25 for what he could use. The general market was from 25c to 30c lower than last week and very dull.

Chicago.—Common to prime steers, $3.75@4.75; cows, $2.50@4.40; heifers, $2.60@3.35; bulls, $2.45@3.50; calves, $3.75; stockers and feeders, $2.60@4.25. Market 10c higher. Choice to good prime heavy, $6.10@6.20; medium to good heavy, $5.75@5.85; butcher weights, $4.10@6.65; good to choice mixed, $5.80@6.05; packing, $5.50@5.95; pigs, $5.60@6.25.

Sheep.—Market for sheep steady; heavy to 15c higher; sheep, $4.25@5.75; yearlings, $5.25@5.35; lambs, $6@7.90.

East Buffalo.—Cattle market active and 10c to 15c higher for all desirable kinds, both heavy and light; best export steers, $6.50@6.75; two loads of fat sold at $6.75; 2,000 lb. top 41 shipping steers, $4.90@5.35; best 1,000 to 1,100 lb. do, $4.35@5; best fat cows, $3.75@4.25; fair to good, $3@3.25; trimmers, $1.50; best fat heifers, $4.25@4.50; few choice, $5; medium heifers, $3.25@3.50; best feeding steers, $3.50@3.75; best yearlings, $3.25@3.50; common stock steers, $2.75@3; export bulls, $3.75@4;ologna bulls, $2.50@3; light stock bulls, $2.50@3.

Hogs.—Medium and heavy, $6.40@6.45; mixed and yorkers, $6.10@6.20; pigs, $6.50@6.55; roughs, $5.20@5.25; extra, $4.25@4.50.

Sheep.—Lambs, $8@8.25; cull lambs, $6.25@6.75; best sheep, $5.75@6; culls, $3.75@4.50; yearlings, $4@6.25; ewes, $3.75@4.50.

Calves.—Market strong; best, $7.75@8; medium to good, $6@7.50; heavy, $3.50@4.50.

Slayers Raced to Their Death—Notes and Incidents Gathered From Various Points in the State.

Killed With Babe in Her Arms. Sitting with her babe in her arms, Mrs. Charles Krantz was instantly killed Saturday afternoon by a freak lightning bolt which shot down the lightning rod at her residence in Ada township, about 12 miles east of Grand Rapids. The babe was slightly injured, but will recover, while the mother was fatally burned. Her skirt, shoes and hose were torn from her body, her lower limbs buried to a crisp.

The weather had been intensely hot and late in the afternoon clouds appeared. Charles Krantz was working in the field while his wife and nine small children were in the house, the mother attending to her household duties. When the rain began, he went to his home for shelter. He and the eight children were in the kitchen, while the mother was holding the little one on her lap in the sitting room.

SERIAL STORY

A FOOL FOR LOVE

By FRANCIS LYNDY
Author of "The Graters," etc.

(Copyright, 1924, by J. P. Lippincott Co.)

CHAPTER I.

It was a December morning—the Missouri December of mild temperatures and saturated skies—and the Chicago & Alton's fast train, dripping from the rush through the wet night, had steamed briskly to its terminal in the Union station at Kansas City.

Two men, one smoking a short pipe and the other snapping the ash from a scented cigarette, stood aloof from the hurrying throngs on the platform looking on with the measured interest of those who are in a melee but not of it.

"More delay," said the cigarette, glancing at his watch. "We are over an hour late now. Do we get any of it back on the run to Denver?"

The pipe smoker shook his head. "Hardly, I should say. The 'Limited' is a pretty heavy train to pick up lost time. But it won't make any particular difference. The western connections all wait for the 'Limited,' and we shall reach the seat of war tomorrow night, according to the Boston itinerary."

Mr. Morton P. Adams flung away the unburned half of his cigarette and masked a yawn behind his hand. "It's no end of a bore, Winton, and that is the plain, unadorned fact," he protested. "I think the governor owes me something. I worried through the Tech because he insisted that I should have a profession; and now I am going in for field work with you in a howling winter wilderness because he insists on a practical demonstration."

"Humph! It's top bad about you," said the other, ironically. He was a fit figure of a man, clean-cut and vigorous, from the steadfast outlook of the gray eyes and the close-clip of the Van Dyck beard to the square fingertips of the strong hands, and his smile was of good-natured contempt. "As you say, it is an outrage on filial complaisance. All the same, with the right-of-way fight in prospect, Quartz Creek canyon may not prove to be such a valley of dry bones as— Look out, there!"

The shifting engine had cut a car from the rear of the lately arrived Alton, and was sending it down the outbound track to a coupling with the Transcontinental "Limited." Adams stepped back and let it miss him by a hand's-breadth, and as the car was passing Winton read the name on the paneling.

"The Rosemary, somebody's 20-ton private outfit. That cooks our last chance of making up any lost time between this and to-morrow."

He broke off abruptly. On the square rear observation platform of the private car were three ladies. One of them was small and blue-eyed, with wavy little puffs of snowy hair peeping out under her dainty widow's cap. Another was small and blue-eyed, with wavy masses of flaxen hair caught up from a face which might have served as a model for the most exquisite bisque figure that ever came out of France. But Winton saw only the third.

She was taller than either of her companions—tall and straight and lithe; a charming embodiment of health and strength and beauty; clear-skinned, brown-eyed—a very goddess fresh from the bath, in Winton's instant summing-up of her, and her crown of red-gold hair helped out the simile.

Now thus far in his thirty-year pilgrimage John Winton, man and boy, had lived the intense life of a working hermit so far as the social gods and goddesses were concerned. Yet he had a pang of disappointment or pointed jealousy, or something akin to both—when Adams lifted his hat to this particular goddess, and was rewarded by a little cry of recognition.

"She is a friend of yours, then?" he said, when Adams had taken the baited hook open-eyed.

"The technologist modified the assumption."

"Not quite in your sense of the word, I fancy. I met her a number of times at the houses of mutual friends in Boston. She was studying at the conservatory."

"But she isn't a Bostonian," said Winton, confidently.

"Miss Virginia?—hardly. She is a Carteret of the Carterets; Virginiana-born, bred, and named. Stunning girl, isn't she?"

"No," said Winton, shortly, resenting the slang for no reason that he could have set forth in words.

Adams lighted another of the scented villanias, and his clean-shaven face wrinkled itself into a slow smile.

"Which means that she has winged you at sight, I suppose, as she does most men." Then he added, calmly: "It's no go."

"What's no go?"

Adams laughed unfeelingly. "You remind me of the fable about the head-hiding ostrich. Didn't I see you staring at her as if you were about to have a fit? But it is just as I tell you; it's no go. She isn't the marrying kind. If you knew her, she'd be nice to you till she got a good chance to flay you alive."

"Break it off!" growled Winton.

"Presently. As I was saying, she would miss the chance of marrying the best man in the world for the sake of taking a rise out of him. Moreover, she comes of old cavalier stock with an English carillon at the back of it, and she is inordinately proud of the fact; while you—er—you've given me to understand that you are a man of the people, haven't you?"

Winton nodded absently. "Well, that settles it definitely," was the Bostonian's comment. "Miss Carteret is of the sang azure. The man who marries her will have to know his grandfather's middle name—and a good bit more besides."

Winton's laugh was mockingly good-natured.

"You have missed your calling by something more than a hand's-breadth, Morry. You should have been a novelist. Give you a spike and a cross-tie and you'd infer a whole railroad. But you pluck my curiosity. Where are these American royalties of yours going in the Rosemary?"

"To California. The car belongs to Mr. Somerville-Darrah, who is vice president and manager in fact of the Colorado & Grand River road; the 'Rajah,' they call him. He is a relative of the Carterets, and the party is on its way to spend the winter on the Pacific coast."

"And the little lady in the widow's cap; is she Miss Carteret's mother?"

"Miss Bessie Carteret's mother and Miss Virginia's aunt. She is the chaperon."

Winton was silent while the "Limited" was roaring through a village on the Kansas side of the river.

"I have heard somewhat of the Rajah," he said, half musingly. "In fact, I know him, by sight. He is what the magazine is fond of calling an 'industry colonel,' a born leader who has fought his way to the front. If the Quartz Creek row is anything more than a stiff bluff on the part of the C. & G. R. it will be quite as well for us if Mr. Somerville-Darrah is safely at the other side of the continent—and well out of reach of the wires."

Adams came to attention with a half-hearted attempt to galvanize an interest in the business affair.

ready occupied by a branch of the Colorado & Grand River."

"Still, I don't see why there should be any scrap."

"Don't you? If the Rajah's road can keep the new line out of Carbonate till the six months have expired, it will have a monopoly of all the carrying trade of the camp. By consequence it can force every shipper in the district to make iron-clad contracts, so that when the Utah line is finally completed it won't be able to secure any freight for a year at least."

"Oh, that's the game, is it? I begin to savvy the burro; that's the proper phrase, isn't it? And what are our chances?"

"We have about one in a hundred, as near as I could make out from Mr. Callowell's statement of the case. The C. & G. R. people are moving heaven and earth to obstruct us in the canyon. If they can delay the work a little longer, the weather will do the rest. With the first heavy snow in the mountains, which usually comes long before this, the Utah will have to put up its tools and wait till next summer."

Adams lighted another cigarette. "Pardon me if I am inquisitive," he said, "but for the life of me I can't understand what these obstructionists can do. Of course, they can't use force."

Winton's smile was grim. "Can't they? Wait till you get on the ground. But the first move was peaceable enough. They got an injunction from the courts restraining the new line from encroaching on their right of way."

"Which was a thing that nobody wanted to do," said Adams, between inhalations.

"Which was a thing the Utah had to do," corrected Winton. "The canyon is a narrow gorge—a mere slit in parts of it. This is where they have us."

"Oh, well; I suppose we took an appeal and asked to have the injunction set aside?"

"We did, promptly; and that is the present status of the fight. The appeal decision has not yet been handed down; and in the meantime we go on building railroad, incurring all the penalties for contempt of court with every shovelful of earth moved. Do

WINTON TURNED AND WALKED AWAY.

"Tell me more about this mysterious jangle we are heading for," he rejoined. "Have I enlisted for a soldier when I thought I was only going into peaceful exile as an assistant engineer of construction on the Utah Short Line?"

"That remains to be seen," Winton took a leaf from his pocket memorandum and drew a rough outline map. "Here is Denver, and here is Carbonate," he explained. "At present the Utah is running into Carbonate this way over the rails of the C. & G. R. on a joint track agreement which either line may terminate by giving six months' notice of its intention to the other. Got that?"

"To have and to hold," said Adams. "Go on."

"Well, on the first day of September the C. & G. R. people gave the Utah management notice to quit."

"They are bloated monopolists," said Adams, sententiously. "Still, I don't see why there should be any scrapping over the line in Quartz Creek canyon."

"No? You are not up in monopolistic methods. In six months from September 1st the Utah people will be shut out of Carbonate business, which is all that keeps that part of their line alive. If they want a share of that traffic after March 1st, they will have to have a road of their own to carry it over."

"Precisely," said Adams, stifling a yawn. "They are building one, aren't they?"

"Trying to," Winton amended. "But, unfortunately, the only practical route through the mountains is up Quartz Creek canyon, and the canyon is already occupied by a branch of the Colorado & Grand River."

you still think you will be in danger of ossifying?"

Adams let the question rest while he asked one of his own.

"How do you come to be mixed up in it, Jack? A week ago some one told me you were going to South America to build a railroad in the Andes. What switched you?"

Winton shook his head. "Fate, I guess; that and a wire from President Callowell, of the Utah, offering me this. Chief of Construction Everts, in charge of the work in Quartz Creek canyon, said what you said a few minutes ago—that he had not hired out for a soldier. He resigned, and I'm taking his berth."

Adams rose and buttoned his coat. "By all of which it seems that we two are in for a good bit more than the ossifying exile," he remarked. And then: "I am going back into the Rosemary to pay my respects to Miss Virginia Carteret. Won't you come along?"

"No," said Winton, more shortly than the invitation warranted; and the technologist went his way alone.

CHAPTER II.

"Scuse me, sah; private cab, sah. It was the porter's challenge in the vestibule of the Rosemary. Adams found a card."

"Take that to Miss Carteret—Miss Virginia Carteret," he directed, and waited till the man came back with his welcome.

The extension table in the open rear third of the private car was closed to its smallest dimensions, and the movable furnishings were disposed about the compartment to make it a comfortable lounging room.

W. A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 124 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Where ground space is no object cottage houses are often preferred. It is easier to do the work when the rooms are all on one floor and these other advantages that housekeepers readily recognize. The habit of living in flats in large cities has created a demand for house plans which offer every possible advantage for convenience and comfort all on one level.

This plan calls for a width of 31 feet and a length of 60 feet exclusive of porches. Sixty feet sounds like a good long house, but distance on the level is a much easier proposition than up and down stairs with the necessary climbing. The question of expense is one of the first and most important considerations in building. The strongest argument for a two-story house is that the same foundation and the same roof will provide for two stories as well as one, but on the other hand much lighter construction is admissible in building a one-story house, which works a saving in bill stuff.

There is something about the appearance of a well-planned cottage that strikes most people favorably. It is easier to make a cottage look cozy and picturesque. A cottage set amongst trees and shrubbery and partially hidden by climbing vines is a picture to be remembered. Cottages in the country and in villages have many advantages, but cottages in the large cities are out of place. The crowded surroundings make it impossible to dress them up in a becoming manner. Cottages in cities usually are just so many rows of one-story houses placed close together, with one gable end to the street, and they are occupied for most part by foreigners, mostly of the poorer class. A house of this kind if built in a village should have a lot at least 100 feet wide and it should be set back about 50 feet from the street line, and it should front a wide expanse of green lawn in front and trees on the sunny side. Shade trees, however, should not be permitted to interfere with the garden, which may be on the back of the lot, or it may be mostly at one side.

A great many villages are provided with sewers, but a great many are not. It is impossible to have the necessary bathroom and hot and cold water comforts unless provision is made to take care of the waste water. Modern antiseptic tanks are just as good as sewers when properly constructed and scientifically connected with the house drains. Objection to private sewerage disposal are all based on former experiences with the old-fashioned cess-pools, but an up-to-date modern system of drainage may be constructed as cheaply as the old time cess-pool; and when once installed is good for a lifetime. A good village system of sewerage, of course, is the proper thing, but it is expensive and it sometimes requires a great many years to bring it about.

The question of water supply is another very important consideration. Surface wells are an abomination where houses are close together. Whether private sewerage plants are established or not, if the stop water is thrown on the ground, as it is on too many occasions, the waste water finds its way into the wells and a siege of epidemics is likely to visit the community at any time.

A great many farmers are moving to town. It is a good plan to consider these two questions very carefully before selecting a site to build. There are a great many objections to living in a village that present themselves as time moves along. The worst home-sick man I ever knew were farmers who had enjoyed the freedom of country life until their habits were fixed and who afterwards, through a mistaken idea of comfort in their old age, have abandoned the farm and moved to town. It is different with men who have established a business in early life and grown accustomed to more or less cramped surroundings.

So long as a man remains on the farm he is an influential citizen; he is a man of importance and is so recognized by the community; but as soon as he retires and moves to town his prestige vanishes and he is of no further use to himself or anyone else, and he is so treated by the town people. Few men have the faculty of asserting themselves in their new surroundings. It is almost impossible for a retired farmer to live as comfortably as he did on the farm unless he has been unusually successful as a financier. Living in town costs a great deal more than living in the country. The difference is made up by the thousand little things that no one can foresee or properly estimate until they have the experience. Just such moves have resulted in the untimely death of a great many farmers. We cannot blame a man for making a change if he thinks he can improve his circumstances and place his family in a better position, but 99 times out of 100 it would be better to improve the farm than to undertake a radical change.

A house like this, however, is just as suitable for the farm as it is for the village. There are three bedrooms and a good bathroom. The dining room is large enough for most farm tables and there is a neat little parlor with a fireplace in it that is quite separate from the rest of the house. The younger members of the family would soon find out what this room is good for. There would be an open fire chilly evenings and there would be room for other young folks from the immediate neighborhood. The girls would find how to make this room attractive. The large front window would require some of their attention and they would get it dressed up to their liking. Girls like to do such work, and it is a good plan to leave it almost entirely to their ambition and good taste.

The architect estimates that this cottage may be built under ordinary circumstances for about $1,800, but this estimate does not include a mantle, gas fixture or plumbing, but it does provide for a fireplace with a proper hearth over a turned arch, and it includes a No. 14 w. g. planished copper bathtub.

TWO QUEER BELIEFS

FAITH OF THE HOLY ROLLERS AND KNEE-BENDERS.

Sects Have Their Headquarters in Western New York, and Each Year Succeed in Adding New Converts.

The latest curious sects to take root in western New York are the holy rollers and the knee benders. The holy rollers were organized about six years ago on the shores of Canandaigua lake, and the story of the rise of this strange religious sect is absurdly out of place in the twentieth century. Hell is the chief tenet of the holy rollers' belief—a hell of sputtering brimstone and flames that eternally torture but never consume. To this hell is destined every one who does not accept the faith. The creed embodies doctrines which were regarded as essential to happiness 100 years ago. It is a creed that converts by fear, and the writer has seen a number of young women in various stages of hysteria at the conclusion of a holy roller revival meeting.

The leaders of the faith are Mrs. Mary McIntyre, Miss Emma Chase, Prof. N. L. Eastman and Elder James Woodsworth, of Syracuse, N. Y. Regeneration is effected in several ways, the course of treatment including prayer, bathing, robing and baptism by immersion. When these remedies prove futile in cleansing the soul of the sinner the penitent is obliged to perform what the believers call the "holy roll." The unregenerate lies on the floor at the end of the building and rolls over and over, like a log until everyone present is satisfied that the devil has been rolled out. Sometimes the ceremony lasts a quarter of an hour, but if the convert has been an unusually tough customer he may be compelled to roll for an hour or five hours—a most heroic method of securing salvation.

As the subject rolls by the kneeling audience every person has the privilege to ask such questions as each sees fit, and the convert must make satisfactory answers before he is allowed to rise. The sins of a lifetime must be confessed in detail and the innermost secrets of the soul made public.

Perhaps the strongest feature of this frenzy is the establishment of the strangest of all sects—the adherents of which call themselves knee benders. The knee benders are a small community and live along the eastern shore of Seneca lake. This sect originated about five years ago. At that time a Swedish farmer named Burson, a man of some education, began to act in a strange manner. He claimed that he had visions, and refused to assist in work on the farm, and passed most of his time on a knoll near the lake. He remained on his knees and in answer to all inquiries said that the great Jehovah had commanded him to remain the rest of his life in that uncomfortable position. Shortly after receiving this interesting but inconvenient revelation, he began to preach, his theme being on socialistic lines. Gradually his relatives became imbued with the sincerity of his preachings and espoused the strange religion. The entire family soon began to live on their knees.

The enthusiasts now number about 200. The knee benders deny the existence of punishment in the next world, declaring that hell will come on earth in the shape of some sorrow to the wrongdoer. Prayers are not made to the Supreme Being, but to nature, which is held accountable for all changes in the elements and accidents caused by fire, wind and water. Communism is the primary principle of this queer religion; the farms of the enthusiasts are worked in common. They hold knee-bending services five times a day on the knoll where Burson was "inspired," and in the worship their faces are turned always toward the sun. Each week a revival meeting is held, and ridiculous as the thing is, the knee benders keep adding converts. Such a story as this belongs to 100 years ago, but, as an illustration of religious frenzy dominating the human mind, it is an interesting psychological study of the present day.

Bird in the Hand.

On a cabbage patch owned by a negro in a southern community oil was found. Speculators offered the negro $20,000, which was accepted without waiting to consider another proposition, said to be worth $40,000.

"What is this about your cabbage patch?" inquired a neighbor of the negro. "I understand you have sold it for $20,000."

"Yes, that's true, boss," replied the negro. "You see, men come picking round my place, an' dey say dar's oil heah. Dey say: 'We git yo' $20,000.' I say: 'All right.'"

"I am told if you had waited a day or two you might have sold it for $40,000."

"Yes, dat mebbe so; but a bird in the han's th' nobles' wok of God!"

TEAPOT TEMPEST

Covell Boomers are Making One About Roscommon.

"Gigantic Conspiracy" Creature of Diseased Imagination of Disgraced Ruffian.

The Covell boomers have unearthed a "gigantic conspiracy" to "disfranchise voters." This is nothing less, so these frenzied politicians assert, than a "scheme" to secure the support of every Republican voter in Roscommon county for Mr. Darragh. The "scheme" consisted, according to Covell's hired attorneys, in getting the name of every enrolled voter in Roscommon on Darragh's petition. This is indeed a startling instance of "political chicanery." We had supposed that every candidate was perfectly free to get every person to support him that he could. It all the enrolled voters of Roscommon, under Mr. Darragh, it is indeed shocking, but if it is true that all the voters up there, in a corner, at the north end of the district right under Covell's nose, favor Mr. Darragh, what earthly good would it do Covell to get on the ticket in that county anyway? There would not be anybody to vote for him, if all went Darragh.

If, as the Covell organs claim, his hired attorneys have succeeded, after raking the county over with a fine toothed comb, in finding seven men who favor Covell, they will doubtless have the privilege of voting for him. This whole "infamous scheme" is too laughable to be taken seriously. There does not appear to have ever been a fault of Covell getting on the Roscommon ticket if any body up there was his, but with every Republican in Roscommon endorsing Darragh and five out of six papers and nearly every leading citizen in Charlevoix supporting him, and many of the best men in his own county of Grand Traverse openly for Darragh, it looks as if the north end of the district was pretty well satisfied now. This ghost story about Roscommon, originated in the diseased imagination of the "Greenback Independent" which booted the Republican ticket in 1904 and is not recognized as a Republican paper in its own county.

A WOOD SAWING FLY.

The Tool With Which It Makes a Charlevoix Pest-Young. It is marvelous how many of the tiny creatures in the insect world conceal and preserve their eggs. Some will deposit them in extraordinary places; others will insert them in the skins of living animals; others, again, deposit their eggs where the young grub, after coming from the egg, finds food close at hand. Among these last mentioned are insects who bestow great labor in the cradle of their young. The place they select is a hard part of a leaf or the woody branch of a tree. In this they saw out a hole large enough to contain their eggs, whence their mean, saw flies. For this purpose they are provided with an expander of peculiar construction. It consists of two long pieces closing like a sheath over a third. In the center of this third piece contains two little saws, each of which has been compared to the tenon saw used by the cabinetmakers. The tenon saw is single, but that of the toothed insect consists of two distinct saws. The insect in using them throws out one saw and while it is returning pushes out the other. This alternate motion is continued until the cut is made; when the two saws, proceeding from each other, conduct the egg between them into its place. Not only is the edge of the saw notched into teeth, but on every tooth a number of small points appear.

Death's Harvest

Removes One of East Jordan's Prominent Business Men.

Joseph G. Glenn died Tuesday morning at his home in this city, aged 73 years. He had been quite ill for a number of months past and gradually failed. Funeral services were held from the house Thursday morning, attended by a large circle of friends and relatives. As a mark of esteem all the principal business places were closed during the services.

Deceased has been identified with East Jordan's business interests for a quarter of a century. He was born in Butler County, Pa., and came to Michigan in 1856, locating in Leelanau County. In 1861 he was united in marriage to Miss Jennie McIlvane. Six children were born of the union. The wife, son George G., and three daughters survive.

Mr. Glenn came to East Jordan in 1879 and began a lumbering enterprise. In 1888 he sold out to the present gentlemen comprising the East Jordan Lumber Company and went to Fredonia, Kansas. He returned to East Jordan in 1895, built the bank block and his residence and resided here since then.

Deceased was President of the State Bank of East Jordan, an active member of the Presbyterian church, and beloved by a host of friends.

THE BEST SLEEP.

It is That Which One Cannot Avoid Without a Struggle.

When debating the question, How much sleep is needed? one must keep in mind that the best sleep, indeed, the only healthy kind, is that which one cannot avoid without a struggle. It is the sleep that always follows on weariness; it is not that which is obtained by difficulty. If a person slept for three hours right away and then awoke refreshed—that is, with no further inclination to sleep—he would not then be in need of it. His proper course would be to arise and engage in work. But he must be prepared to sleep at any time in the day when the longing occurs. To the latter rule there is one exception. Let us suppose that one has acquired the habit of sleeping half the night and lying half awake during the remaining half. Such a habit can be best broken by rising after the first sleep and refraining from a nap in the day. When the bed hour arrives the chances are that the victim of insomnia will be so sleep-hungry that he will not wake until the proper hour for rising.

In any case it is a great mistake to turn over on the other side and remain in a half-conscious state. Indeed, it is a more serious mistake than many would believe, says Home Notes. The brain is now in a peculiar state, more closely resembling the hypnotic than would be possible under any other normal conditions. Quite a lot might be written about the peculiar dangers and powers of this half-waking state.

Not to Be Found in the Reports. A prominent Philadelphia lawyer was applying to a younger advocate some of the delays and complications of a chancery suit in which he was engaged. "I never heard of anything parallel to that except Jarndyce versus Jarndyce." The other at once looked thoughtful and pretty soon, pleading an engagement, went off. The next morning he went into the younger man's office with an air of great vexation. "Look here!" he said. "Why can't you remember names accurately? Here I've spent the whole night trying to find that case of Jarndyce versus Jarndyce that you mentioned, and there isn't any such case in the Pennsylvania law reports at all!"

The Word "Papa."

For some time after the word "papa" was taken into the English language in the sixteenth century it was restricted to courtly and polite speech and was common even among adults. Long after it had become childish it was still accounted genteel. Hood wrote of one who was "genuinely taught to say, not father, but papa." "Papa" may be comparatively a newcomer into the English language, but it is as old as Homer. Nausicaa in the "Odyssey" calls her father "pappa pille"—dear papa.

For Tat. He rejoiced in the not very humorous name of Wood, and he prided himself on his jokes and smart repartee. Few of his friends had escaped the lash of his tongue, and he had victimized many by his practical jokes—in fact, he never lost an opportunity of being funny. One day he met a friend whose name was Stone, and naturally a name like that was too good a chance to miss. "Good morning, Mr. Stone," he said gayly; "and how is Mrs. Stone and all the little pebbles?" "Oh, quite well, Mr. Wood," was the withering reply. "How's Mrs. Wood and all the little splinters?"—Stray Stories.

Milk in the Sickroom. Milk is the chief article of food and nourishment in every sickroom and hospital, and every physician and nurse should know the source of supply, its purity, before ordering it in any form for invalids and convalescents. It is not enough that it comes as "country milk." There must be integrity and experience back of it. It has been scientifically demonstrated and proved that pure milk products are the most nutritious, economical and easily digested foods when the milk is obtained in all its purity and kept so from pasture to consumer.—Charles Elley Hall in Leslie's Weekly.

Briefs of the Week

Fair Sept. 25-26-27.
"Russell House," East Jordan.
"The Clay Baker" next Friday.
Some talk of observing Labor Day in this city.

Grand Traverse Soldiers and Sailors Ass'n at Boyne City Sept. 17, 18, 19.
A substantial launch dock has been built by the Village at the foot of Williams St.

M. E. Quarterly Conference next Saturday evening. Presiding Elder Ferguson will be here.

The Northern Concert Company will give an entertainment in East Jordan the first week in September.

Mrs. M. A. McHale leaves East Jordan in about a fortnight for Mangum Oklahoma, where she intends to embark in the hotel business.

The Northern Michigan Beekeeper's Ass'n will hold their annual picnic at Petoskey fore part of September. Ira D. Bartlett of this city is secretary of the organization.

Lee and Wm. Lanway have started a new line under the firm name of Lanway & Lanway and bid for a share of your patronage. Their headquarters will be at Mackey's Livery Barn, and any wishing to telephone their orders can do so on No. 89.

The Herald's item relative to the hotel change last week was right as far as it went but it was not known at the time that R. F. Steffas was a joint purchaser with Mrs. E. Newson. The hotel will do longer be known as the "Lakeside" but as the "Russell House." Mrs. Newson is an experienced hotel keeper and we predict for the new firm unbounded success.

Not a little talk has been created about the country by the acting of William V. Mong in the play, "The Clay Baker," and the talk is found to be not without ample reason. Mr. Mong plays the part of the old clay baker in search of a secret composition. He has etched out a distinct character which has strong features and a consistent trend and is marked by uniform goodness that reminds one of no less a personage than the late Joseph Jefferson. "The Clay Baker," with Mr. Mong and a good supporting company, will be here at Loveday Opera House on Friday night Aug. 31st.

The general cussedness of inanimate things sometimes make us want to swear. On July 1st the Herald installed a new power job press. Basing our calculation on this machine we agreed to have the Annual Fair Books ready by Aug. 1st. An electric motor was promised us within a week but although our Electric Co. have done everything in their power to furnish us one, failed to get a shipment before Aug. 1st. Now it seems that it is somewhere in the upper peninsula looking for East Jordan. As a result we have been unable to get the books ready until now. They will be delivered to Sec'y Sherman Monday morning and any wishing a copy can procure one either of that gentleman or by calling at this office. The Premium List this year contains 48 pages and the most important change is in Divisions "J" (Fancy Work, etc) and "N" (speed).

Two excellent plays were afforded Theatre-goers at Loveday Opera House the past week. Saturday night "A Millionaire Tramp" appeared before a crowded house despite the hot night, and was well put on. The comedian was excellent in negro character and his aprobatie dancing good. Thursday night "The Holy City" appeared in a return engagement. This play is something decidedly different from anything ever staged. The cast was excellent throughout. Every play has a hero and heroine, but in this play there is a diversity of opinion of just who the heroine is.

A convention of the heads of departments, and some of their assistants, of the Michigan State Telephone Co. was held here, Tuesday, at the office of the local manager, J. M. Clifford, to discuss telephone matters pertaining to district No. 44, which comprises territory from Mancelona to Mackinaw, and contiguous country. The development of telephone business has been very great in the last few years, and in the 18 months, approximately just past, 1000 phones have been gained in this and the tributary territory. Those present at the convention were Supt. Berry, Detroit; Dr. Crouter, Charlevoix; Manager Wakeman, Harbor Springs; Manager Walker, Levering; Manager Harris, Ellsworth; Manager Snyder, Horton's Bay; Dr. F. C. A new East Jordan Exchange Directory was issued this week by the State Telephone Company and printed by The Herald. A new feature of the Directory is the Farm Lines, which, through the efforts of the local manager, F. C. Gu-Muma received badly burned hands and Dr. Warne lost his gasoline launch through the oil taking fire, Wednesday evening. Mr. Muma and a party of friends were preparing to take a launch ride; he had just filled the tank and was about to light a signal lamp when the gasoline caught fire. The backs of Mr. Muma's forearms were badly burned. The launch was pushed out of the boat house and burned nearly to the waters edge. Insurance was carried on both launch and building.

A Parson's Sweating. "Parson" Blodgett, a former local preacher residing in Linden, had in front of his house a watering trough freely patronized by people riding by. One evening a man hurriedly drove up to water his horse, and the wheel of his wagon struck the trough violently. The "parson" came out hurriedly and cried: "Hog rabbit to hemp seed tobacco! Can't you drive straight?" "Go in and shut the door," replied the driver, "and next time you want to swear, parson, do it like other men." —Boston Herald.

A Funny Siamese Custom. They have a very funny fashion in Siam. When an inferior comes into the presence of a superior he throws himself upon the ground. Then the superior sends one of his attendants forward to see whether the prostrate man has been eating anything or has any offensive odor about him. If he be blameless in this respect the attendant raises him from the ground, but if he be guilty the attendant straightway kicks him out.

MAKING A CHEF.

It Takes Many Years of Hard Work and Training.

"When you reflect upon what a chef goes through to complete his education it is no wonder that his services command high prices," said the culinary king of a restaurant.

"The chef," he continued, "begins as a boy, as apprentice to a master. For several years he works under the vegetable cook. He learns how to make mashed potatoes that look like white roses, how to cook and to arrange all the vegetables, from the truffles down, in a hundred fine and beautiful ways. He gets no salary. He gets only his board."

"Then for a year he studies raw meats. He learns how to select them and how to cut them up. He can tell at a glance, for instance, the genuine salt meadow mutton from the false. Along with this raw meat course goes also a study of fish and of game and of poultry—how to stuff, dress, lard, truss, and so on.

"Next, for a year, at a small salary, he stands before the range, learning how to broil, fry, roast and bake.

"He now knows the foundation of his art and is admitted into the presence of the chef himself—only assistants have taught him so far. The chef teaches him to make soups, pastries, loaves and the more complicated puddings and souffles. Three or four years is none too long a time to study here."

"Ten years of hard work should turn a quick apprentice into a good chef. Such a chef without difficulty earns from $25 a week up to $150. If he gave half as much time to the bar, the church or medicine he would earn thrice as much."—New York Press.

MISS RICKA LEOPOLD, 137 Main street, Menasha, Wis. Sec'y Liederkranz.

Three years ago my system was in a terrible run-down condition and I was broken out all over my body. I began to be worried about my condition and I was glad to try anything which would relieve me.

Per-ru-na was recommended to me as a fine blood purifier and tonic, and I soon found that it was worthy of praise. A few bottles changed my condition materially and in a short time I was all over my trouble.

I owe to Per-ru-na my restoration to health and strength. I am glad to endorse it.

Per-ru-na Restores Strength.

Mrs. Hettie Green, R. R. 6, Juka, Ill., writes: "I had catarrh and felt miserable. I began the use of Per-ru-na and began to improve in every way. My head does not hurt me so much, my appetite is good and I am gaining in flesh and strength."

Pushing Cape to Cairo Line.

In a report in the London Times it is stated that the Cape to Cairo railway in South Africa has been opened so as to run over the Kafue river on a bridge which stands on 13 spans, each 100 feet, with pillars resting on a bed 16 feet under the water. Kafue river is 266 miles north of Victoria falls, and the distance from Cape Town is 1,908 miles. The railroad, however, is now at Broken Hill, 347 miles beyond the falls, the line having been pushed over while the bridge was building over the Kafue river.

PUTTING IT RATHER ROUGHLY.

Leading Question Asked of Methodical Writer.

There is a certain writer in Boston—a man of remarkable versatility—who once gave a friend in the publishing business in New York a resume of the details of his average day's work.

"I am as methodical in my work," said the Boston writer, "as any business man. My daily tasks are so diversified and so arranged that I am able to afford myself considerable variety during the 12 hours per diem that I employ in authorship. For instance, from eight in the morning to ten I do my verse; from ten to 12 my criticisms; from three to five I am engaged upon a history of the world intended for perusal by children." And so he continued to give his visitor the whole scheme. When he had concluded, the New Yorker, an exceedingly blunt individual, rather unkindly inquired:

"And when, sir, do you think?"

MORE THAN MONEY.

A Minister Talks About Grape-Nuts.

"My first stomach trouble began back in 1895," writes a minister in Nebr., "resulting from hasty eating and eating too much. I found no relief from medicine and grew so bad that all food gave me great distress. It was that sore, gnawing, hungry feeling in my stomach that was so distressing and I became a sick man. Grape-Nuts was recommended as a food that could be easily digested.

"Leaving the old diet that had given me so much trouble, I began to eat Grape-Nuts with a little cream and sugar. The change effected in 24 hours was truly remarkable, and in a few weeks I was back to health again.

"My work as a minister calls me away from home a great deal, and recently I drifted back to fat meat and indigestible foods, which put me again on the sick list.

"So I went back to Grape-Nuts and cream and in four days I was put right again. The old dull headaches are gone, stomach comfortable, head clear, and it is a delight to pursue my studies and work.

"Grape-Nuts food is worth more than money to me, and I hope this may induce some sufferer to follow the same course I have."

SERIAL STORY

A FOOL FOR LOVE

By FRANCIS LYNDE
Author of "The Crafters," Etc.

(Copyright, 1926, by J. P. Lippincott Co.)

CHAPTER II.—Continued.

Mrs. Carteret was propped among the cushions of a divan with a book. Her daughter occupied the undivided half of a tete-a-tete chair with a blonde athlete in a clerical coat and a reversed collar. Miss Virginia was sitting alone at a window, but she rose and came to greet the visitor.

"How good of you to take pity on us," she said, giving him her hand. Then she put him at one with the others: "Aunt Martha you have met; also Cousin Bessie. Let me present you to Mr. Calvert, Cousin Billy, this is Mr. Adams, who is responsible in a way for many of my Boston-learned gaucheries."

Aunt Martha closed the book on her finger. "My dear Virginia!" she protested in mild deprecation; and Adams laughed and shook hands with Rev. William Calvert and made Virginia's peace all in the same breath.

"Don't apologize for Miss Virginia, Mrs. Carteret. We were very good friends in Boston, chiefly, I think, because I never objected when she wanted to—er—to take a rise out of me." Then to Virginia: "I hope I don't intrude?"

"Not in the least. Didn't I just say you were good to come? Uncle Somerville tells us we are passing through the famous Golden Belt, whatever that may be—and recommends an easy chair and a window. But I haven't seen anything but stubble-fields—disimally wet stubble-fields at that. Won't you sit down and help me watch them go by?"

Adams placed a chair for her, and found one for himself. "Uncle Somerville—am I to have the pleasure of meeting Mr. Somerville Darrah?"

Miss Virginia's look was non-committal.

"Quite safe?" she queried, airing her one westernism before she was fairly in the longitude of it. "Uncle Somerville is a law unto himself. He had a lot of telegrams and things at Kansas City, and he is locked in his den with Mr. Jastrow, dictating answers by the dozen, I suppose."

"Oh, these industry colonels!" said Adams. "Don't their writings make you ache in sheer sympathy sometimes?"

"No, indeed," was the prompt rejoinder; "I envy them. It must be fine to have large things to do, and to be able to do them."

"Degenerate scion of a noble race!" jested Adams. "What ancient Carteret of them all would have compromised with the necessities by becoming a captain of industry?"

She broke him with a mocking laugh. "You were born a good many centuries too late, Mr. Adams; you would have fitted so beautifully into decadent Rome."

"No—thanks. Twentieth-century America, with the commercial frenzy taken out of it, is good enough for me. I was telling Winton a little while ago—"

"Your friend of the Kansas City station platform?" she interrupted. "Mightn't you introduce us a little less informally?"

"Beg pardon, I'm sure—yours and Jack's: Mr. John Winton, of New York and the world at large, familiarly known to his intimates—and they are precious few—as 'Jack W.' As I was about to say—"

But she seemed to find a malicious satisfaction in breaking in upon him. "Mr. John Winton; it's a pretty name, as names go, but it isn't as strong as he is. He is an 'industry colonel,' isn't he? He looks it."

The Bostonian avenged himself for the interruption at Winton's expense. "So much for your woman's intuition," he laughed. "Speaking of titlers, there is your man to the dotting of the 'i'; a dilettante raised to the nth power."

Miss Carteret's short upper lip curled in undisguised scorn. "I like men who do things," she asserted, with pointed emphasis; whereupon the talk drifted eastward to Boston, and Winton was ignored until Virginia, having exhausted the reminiscence vein, said: "You are going on through to Denver?"

"To Denver and beyond," was the reply. "Winton has a notion of hibernating in the mountains—fancy it; in the dead of winter—and he has persuaded me to go along. He sketches a little, you know."

"Oh, so he is an artist?" said Virginia, with interest newly aroused.

"No," said Adams, gloomily, "he isn't an artist—isn't much of anything, I'm sorry to say. Worse than all, he doesn't know his grandfather's middle name. Told me so himself."

"That is inexcusable—in a dilettante," said Miss Virginia, mocking. "Don't you think so?"

"It is inexcusable in anyone," said the technologist, rising to take his leave. Then, as a parting word: "Does the Rosemary set its own table? or do you dine in the dining car?"

"In the dining car, if we have one. Uncle Somerville lets us dodge the Rosemary's cook whenever we can," was the answer; and with this bit of information Adams went his way to the Denver sleeper.

Finding Winton in his section, poring over a blue-print map and making notes thereon after the manner of a man hard at work, Adams turned back to the smoking compartment.

Now for Mr. Morton P. Adams the salt of life was a joke, harmless or otherwise, as the tree might fall. So, during the long afternoon which he wore out in solitude there grew up in him a keen desire to see what would befall if these two whom he had so protegesquely misrepresented each to the other should come together in the pathway of acquaintanceship.

But how to bring them together was a problem which refused to be solved until chance pointed the way. Since the "Limited" had lost another hour during the day, there was a rush for the dining car as soon as the announcement of its taking on had gone through the train. Adams and Winton were of this rush, and so were the members of Mr. Somerville Darrah's party.

In the seating the party was separated, as room at the crowded tables could be found; and Miss Virginia's fate gave her the unoccupied seat at one of the duet tables, opposite a young man with steadfast gray eyes and a Van Dyck beard.

Winton was equal to the emergency, or thought he was. Adams was still within call, and he beckoned him, meaning to propose an exchange of seats. But the Bostonian misunderstood willfully.

"Most happy, I'm sure," he said, coming instantly to the rescue. "Miss Carteret, my friend signals his dilemma. May I present him?"

Virginia smiled and gave the required permission in a word. But for Winton self-possession flew shrieking.

"Ah—er—I hope you know Mr. Adams well enough to make allowances for his—for his—" He broke down piteously and she had to come to his assistance.

"For his imagination?" she suggested. "I do, indeed; we are quite old friends."

Here was "well enough," but Winton was a man and could not let it alone. "I should be very sorry to have you

Miss Virginia was happy. Dilettante he might be, and an unhumiliated man of the world as well; but, to use Reverend Billy's phrase, she could make him "sit up."

"I beg yours, I'm sure," she said, demurely. "I didn't know it was a craft secret."

Winton looked across the aisle to the table where the technologist was sitting opposite a square-shouldered, ruddy-faced gentleman with fiery eyes and fierce white mustache, and shook a figurative fist.

"I'd like to know what Adams has been telling you," he said. "Sketching in the mountains in midwinter? that would be decidedly original, to say the least of it. And I think I have never done an original thing in all my life."

For a single instant the brown eyes looked their pity for him; generic pity it was, of the kind that mouthing souls bestow upon the stagnant. But the subconscious lover in Winton made it personal to him, and it was the lover who spoke when he went on.

"That is a damaging admission, is it not? I am sorry to have to make it—to have to confirm your poor opinion of me."

"Did I say anything like that?" she protested.

"Not in words; but your eyes said it, and I know you have been thinking it all along. Don't ask me how I know it; I couldn't explain it if I should try. But you have been pitying me, in a way—you know you have."

The brown eyes were downcast. Frank and free-hearted after her kind as she was, Virginia Carteret was finding it a new and singular experience to have a man tell her baldly at their first meeting that he had read her inmost thought of him. Yet she would not flinch or go back.

"There is so much to be done in the world, and so few to do the work," she pleaded in extenuation.

"And Adams has told you that I am not one of the few? It is true enough to hurt."

She looked him fairly in the eyes. "What is lacking, Mr. Winton—the spit?"

"Possibly," he rejoined. "There is no

FRUIT INSTEAD OF DRUGS.

Remedial Qualities May Be Preserved by Home Manufacture.

The remedial properties of berries, all of which are of great value in different diseases, may be preserved through the home manufacture of cordials, shrubs, vinegars, etc., and by drying, in which state they are to be steeped, strained, and the water used as needed. Cherries, greengage plums, peaches and apricots share in this value with the berries. Grapes are second only to figs for use in disorders which arise from a torpid or congested state of the intestines. Health depends so largely upon the regularity of the functions of the bowels that attention to them is of the utmost importance. An excellent fig preparation is an effusion by steeping one ounce of senna in a pint of boiling water; select one pound of plump, dried figs, and, having placed them in a layer in an earthen dish, pour over them the well-steeped and strained senna tea. Place this in a moderate oven and allow them to remain until the fruit has entirely absorbed the liquid. Put this in a closed jar, and for use, one fig eaten on retiring is a dose for any ordinary case of constipation. Pineapple, while of especial worth in some diseases when taken with other food, should never be eaten alone, as, falling anything else to work upon, its acid attacks the lining of the stomach.

It is claimed that it has an especial value in certain forms of dyspepsia and in diphtheria, as its juices will cut away mucus that nothing else can remove.

All fruits, however, do not affect all persons alike. One should seek to know what is suitable in his own case, and not eat fruits merely because somebody has told him it is "good for him." Owing frequently to idiosyncrasies, as well as to certain physical conditions, fruits are often the worst things one can eat. Each person must be "a law unto himself" in this matter.—The Commoner.

THE BUTTER BILLS.

Two Ways in Which They Can Be Materially Decreased.

A thrifty housewife declares that her butter bills have fallen off one-quarter since she began serving her butter in the form of butterbills. Apart from the economy of the thing, there is no question as to the comparative daintiness and attractiveness of serving butter in one wholesale lump, and in a collection of dainty, symmetrical balls. Abroad, where fresh, unsalted butter is served as a matter of course, it generally comes on the table in a sequence of little dabs or a long, shallow roll. People who have acquired the fresh butter taste find it hard to go back to the salty product of the American creamery, and there is no reason why they should provided there is some one in the family with sufficient leisure to make a little butter two or three times a week. A quart of double cream will make nearly a pound of butter, and any child with strength enough to use a rotary beater can do the rest.

Witnessed Marriage from Afar. Getting a man to witness a marriage ceremony at long distance by looking through two windows and across an area between adjacent buildings is a rather novel way of obtaining a witness, but it served the purpose at Portland, Ore., recently.

A legally and securely tying the matrimonial knot that made Manuel Pires and Grace Sophia Schuster one. The ceremony was performed in the law office of Justice Waldemar Seton, on the third floor of the Commercial building. W. W. Espey, a real estate agent, was at work at his desk across the area and Justice Seton asked him to look across while he made the couple one. The mother of the bride was the other witness. When the knot had been tied Espey noted that the bridegroom failed to kiss the bride. "If, there, young man!" he shouted across the area; "you forgot to kiss the bride." "She won't hold still long enough," shouted back the bridegroom. Then Judge Seton brought the marriage certificate around to Espey and secured his signature.

Practical Women's Club. In Watertown, Mass., the Woman's club, through its forestry committee, is paying the expenses and managing the business of a flourishing farm garden, where 40 children are cultivating plots of ground varying from 9 feet by 13 to 9 feet by 30, raising not only vegetables, which they can do anything they like with, but several of the more popular flowers. The classes meet twice a week for an hour each, and if a pupil is absent a substitute is sent. Another of these school gardens is run by the Homecrafters' Guild, in connection with the social experiment which George H. Maxwell has initiated at Watertown.

That Foolish Book. He (five years after)—All this gush about love is extremely foolish. Wherever did this stupid book come from? I must say the person who selected it showed a very insipid taste.

She (quietly)—It's the book you gave me during our honeymoon, John; we read it 11 times the first week we had it.—Tit-Bits.

COULD NOT KEEP UP.

Broken Down, Like Many Another Woman, with Exhausting Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. A. Taylor, of Wharton, N. J., says: "I had kidney trouble in its most painful and severe form, and the torture I went through now seems to have been almost unbearable. I had back-ache, pains in the side and loins, dizzy spells and hot, feverish headaches. There were bearing-down pains, and the kidney secretions passed too frequently, and with a burning sensation. They showed sediment. I became discouraged, weak, languid and depressed, so sick and weak that I could not keep up. As doctors did not cure me I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and with such success that my troubles were all gone after using eight boxes, and my strength, ambition and general health is fine."

POPE'S STRONG COMMON SENSE.

Pontiff Refused to Be Made an Invalid by a Pen Prick.

The following story is told of Pius X. by the Rome correspondent of the London Pall Mall Gazette:

The other day he was writing at his desk, when his pen began to splutter. He decided to change it, but it stuck, and it was only after a strong pull that it came out, promptly pricking him under his nail, for which probably he would have followed the natural impulse to put it in his mouth, and we would have heard nothing more of the incident had there not been an ink-stain also. His exclamation brought his secretary, who washed away the blood with disinfectants, to obviate microbes, and bound it up, at the same time suggesting a doctor's visit.

"No, no," said the pontiff laughing. "It would be known to the press, at once; I should be killed and buried by them before he could arrive." Those surrounding him would have liked to make the slight mishap an excuse for stopping the audience, but Pius X. was somewhat annoyed at the suggestion, saying, "Enough, enough! What is a pen-prick! You make me ridiculous. I have not ceased to be a man and become a baby!" So he was present at the ceremony in commemoration of his predecessor, making jokes about his bandaged finger.

Another Dig at Powers. A few days ago Gov. Cobb, of Maine, and Hon. W. R. Pattangall, prominent in politics in the same state, were together on a train. Mr. Pattangall is a lawyer and an editor, the writer of the humorous "Middy-bumps Letters" appearing in his paper, the Machias Union.

In the course of conversation, Gov. Cobb remarked to Mr. Pattangall: "I don't see why you and Llewellyn Powers should be so extremely antagonistic to each other. Neither of you ever fails to give the other a rap when there is opportunity."

At this point an interested listener in the car leaned toward their chairs and asked: "Is it really true that ex-Gov. Powers is of Indian descent?"

"Well, the Indians deny it," Mr. Pattangall answered, in his inimitable manner.

Missionary Work in Africa. All missionary societies at work in Africa have now in round numbers 1,000 principal mission stations, with about 5,000 sub-stations.

WINTON FOUND MISS CARTERET HOLDING HIS OVERCOAT.

think for a moment that I would—er—so far forget myself," he went on, fawningly. "What I had in mind was an exchange of seats with him. I thought it would be pleasanter for you; that is, I mean, pleasanter for—He stopped short, seeing nothing but a more hopeless involvement ahead; also because he saw signs of distress or of mirth-flying in the brown eyes.

"Oh, please!" she protested, in mock humility. "Do leave my vanity just the tiniest little cranny to creep out of, Mr. Winton. I'll promise to be good and not bore you too desperately."

"But let's ignore Mr. Adams," she went on, sweetly. "I am much more interested in this," touching the bill-of-fare. "Will you order for me, please? I like—"

When she had finished the list of her likings, Winton was able to smile at his lapse into the primitive, and gave the dinner order for two with a fair degree of coherence. After that they got on better. Winton knew Boston, and next to the weather Boston was the safest and most fruitful of the commonplaces. Nevertheless, it was not immortal; and Winton was just beginning to cast about for some other safe riding road for the shallop of small talk when Miss Carteret sent it adrift with malice aforethought.

"It was somewhere between the entries and the fruit, and the point of departure was Boston art."

"Speaking of art, Mr. Winton, will you tell me how you came to think of sketching in the mountains of Colorado at this time of year? I should think the cold would be positively prohibitive of anything like that."

Winton stared—open mouthed, it is to be feared.

"I—I beg your pardon," he stammered, with the infection which takes its pitch from blank bewilderment.

one near enough to care, or to say: "Well done!"

"How can you tell?" she questioned, musingly. "It is not always permitted to us to hear the plaudits or the hisses—happily, I think. Yet there are always those standing by who are ready to cry 'to triumph!' and mean it, when one approves himself a good soldier."

The coffee had been served, and Winton sat thoughtfully stirring the dump of sugar in his cup. Miss Carteret was not having a monopoly of the new experiences. For instance, it had never before happened to John Winton to have a woman, young, charming, and altogether lovable, read him a lesson out of the book of the overcomers.

He smiled inwardly and wondered what she would say if she could know to what battle-field the drumming wheels of the "Limited" were speeding him. Would she be loyal to her mentorship and tell him he must win, at whatever the cost to Mr. Somerville and Darrah and his business associates? Or would she, woman-like, be her uncle's partisan and write one John Winton down in her blackest book for daring to oppose the Rajah?

He assured himself it would make no jot of difference if he knew. He had a thing to do, and he was purposed to do it strenuously, inflexibly. Yet in the inmost chamber of his heart, where the barbarous ego stands unabashed and isolate and recklessly contemptuous of the moralities minor and major, he saw the birth of an influence which must henceforth be desperately reckoned with.

Given a name, this new-born factor was love; love barely awakened, and yet no more than a masterful desire to stand well in the eye of one woman.

Secret of a Low Rental

It seemed unbelievable. For a moment the two studio hunters were afraid to ask the janitor if they had heard aright. Eight dollars a month! It must have been 25 feet long and 30 wide, while the great ceiling rose 15 feet from the floor. They built in a more ample manner when this old residence was put up. The skylight, a later addition, was so large that there must always be a gale blowing through up there on the fifth story.

But $8—surely the man had meant by the week. The two homeseekers, with feminine guile exchanged glances behind his stolid back.

"You ask him again," heliographed one.

"No—you ask," was the silent message flashed back.

"Never—it must be you," insisted the first.

The second homeseeker thought quickly.

"Now, let us see," she said to the janitor, "that would bring the rent up to—how much a year?"

"By the year?" replied her unsuspecting victim. "Why, figure it up yourself.—Eight times two is 16, ain't it? Eight times one is eight, and one to carry makes nine—$96 a year. But we don't rent it by the year—you've got to take it by the month."

It was true!—true! Eight dollars a month was the price. You could not rent a hall bedroom in that part of the city for less. They took it, and held their breath while the decision was conveyed to the janitor. He seemed to have no objections to them as tenants.

"All right, will you pay a deposit?" Would they! Purses were opened and the first month's rent put into his hand in a lump. They would have tried to raise five years' rent had he demanded it.

"So," he commented, "I'll write you a receipt and take down the sign. To-morrow you move in—eh?"

They moved in next day and when the few bits of furniture, curtains and rugs that had crowded the old studio were put in place in this new one, they came nowhere near furnishing it. The big table around which one had to walk in the old place was, in this, almost lost under the skylight. Everything seemed microscopic in such an apartment. They put up curtains, but they did not divide the upper half of the studio. A screen, somehow, looked like a baby fence.

During the first month they never got rid of the notion that they were living in Buckingham palace, or Blenheim, or the blue room at the White House. It was simply impossible to get on terms of familiarity at once with such a room, and they did not really feel settled till the second month, when there was a more definite "homey" air about the place. But no question ever arose as to how they liked their eight-dollar apartment. High above a street that was deserted at night, and in daytime busy enough to have a purely impersonal roar, it was more secluded than any dwelling either of them had known in New York. There was always the cool breeze through the skylight, and the sky seemed much nearer after sunset than the affairs of New York.

It was during the second month that they began to note how few tenants the building had. People seldom went in or out. There were signs on the doors of some old-fashioned offices. Many were deserted. Once every few days somebody else moved out. But nobody moved in. By and by the doors downstairs became placarded with signs.

"Skiddoo & Quick, removed to 23 Twenty-third street." Fewer persons still were seen in the old-fashioned wide corridors. As the building had no elevator, there was no elevator man to question. The janitor kept discreetly out of the way, for some reason, though whenever he encountered his tenants his manner had nothing out of the ordinary.

But when the third month's rent was paid, the secret of these strange movings came out. The janitor felt safe in imparting it as soon as the money was in hand and the receipt given.

"This'll be about the last," he announced.

"The last?" echoed his fair tenants. "Yes—the last month you stay here," he replied. "Next month this time you'll have to move."

"But why?" they faltered.

"Cause they're goin' to tear the buildin' down. Down she comes the first of the month."

"And we've had only three months here, after moving, and now we must move again!"

"Say, do you know what this studio rented for before the building was sold? Twelve hundred dollars! Not a cent less. Blinks, the painter, had it, and was here 15 years. When the building was sold last spring he felt so bad he pulled up and went to Paris. So you got three months' rent for what he used to pay every week. My idea is that you've been living high. Now it's your move."

It was—and they did.—N. Y. Press.

Transmission of Facial Characteristics

It would appear that the transmission of facial traits subordinate to a definite law, that is to say, that ancestral facial expression and appearance are more often than not transmitted through the female members of the family, who generally do not exhibit the same characteristics to the male offspring, and that the younger generations show, as a rule, all the facial conditions and signs which were present in a remote ancestor.—North American Review.

GAS USED UNDER LIME KILNS.

Innovation by Connecticut Company Is a Success.

The New England Lime company, of Winsted, Conn., asserts that it is the first to introduce gas as fuel for lime burning. The method is pronounced an entire success. The growing scarcity of wood fuel led to the discovery of gas as a substitute for wood, and the company no longer considers the gas method an experiment. The efficacy and reliability of gas have been demonstrated beyond a doubt. Had it been impossible to find a substitute for wood, said a member of the company, it would have meant the restriction and perhaps the total abandonment of the business. Gas fires are absolutely clean at all times—no cinders and no clinders—and the lime produced is much whiter than that burned by wood. Gas also produces a more intense heat, and consequently increases the capacity of the kilns. The daily output at the company's kilns is increased from 80 barrels per kiln, to 100 barrels, or a total of 700 barrels daily.

BOYISH MIND WAS WORKING.

Youngster on His First Sail-Over the "Raging Main."

None of us ever quite forget those days—when our years were few—of dreaming about life on the raging main, when the imagination reveled in pirates and plunder from stately galleons and valorous deeds done on storm-swept decks, says a writer in the New York Times. Recollection of this period is, at any rate, sufficiently vivid, so that the remark of a small boy could contribute markedly to the "gayety of nations" among the passengers on one of the excursion steamers running from Manhattan across the harbor to Coney Island.

The steamer made her way across the bay, dodging tugs and ferryboats—fortunately meeting no pirate craft. The passengers, escaping gladly from the city's heat, nibbled their sandwiches and enjoyed the breeze. The waiters moved about the deck with their trays. The boy, just from the inland town, where his life so far had been spent, sat rapt and wide-eyed. If one could but know fully the "mental content" from which sprang his words at last!

"Ma!" he cried, hoarsely, "tell me which one of 'em is the skipper!"

SALLOW FACES

Often Caused by Coffee Drinking.

How many persons realize that coffee so disturbs digestion that it produces a muddy, yellow complexion?

A ten days' trial of Postum Food Coffee has proven a means, in thousands of cases, of clearing up bad complexions.

A Washin. young lady tells her experience:

"All of us—father, mother, sister and brother—had used tea and coffee for many years until finally we all had stomach troubles more or less."

"We were all sallow and troubled with pimples, breath bad, disagreeable taste in the mouth, and all of us simply so many bundles of nerves."

"We didn't realize that coffee was the cause of the trouble until one day we ran out of coffee and went to borrow some from a neighbor. She gave us some Postum and told us to try that."

"Although we started to make it, we all felt sure we would be sick if we missed our strong coffee, but we were forced to try Postum and were surprised to find it delicious."

"We read the statements on the pkg., got more and in a month and a half you wouldn't have known us. We were all able to digest our food without any trouble, each one's skin became clear, tongues cleaned off and nerves in fine condition. We never use anything now but Postum. There is nothing like it." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville." "There's a reason."

"PEN AND INK" BET WAS EASY.

Colonel "Ike" Hill Quite Ready to Increase the Amount.

Col. "Ike" Hill, assistant sergeant-at-arms for the Democrats in the house of representatives, has violent political prejudices and at election time is wont to back them with money.

He got into a political discussion in the lobby of the Hoffman house in New York a short time ago and made an assertion that was disputed by a man in the gathering.

Col. "Ike" reached down into his pocket, pulled out a roll of money and peeled off five $100 bills.

"I'll just bet you $500 I am right," he said.

"I'll take you," said the other.

"Wait until I get a pen and ink."

A cold look came into Col. "Ike's" eyes.

"What do you want a pen and ink for?" he asked.

"Why, I want to write a check for $500 to cover your bet."

Col. "Ike" put his money back in his pocket.

"Bring me a pen and ink, too," he said, "for if this is going to be a check bet I'll make it $5,000."—Saturday Evening Post.

DOCTOR CURED OF ECZEMA.

Maryland Physician Cures Himself—Dr. Fisher Says: "Cuticura Remedies Possess True Merit."

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies, and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician, and very often prescribe Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for sixteen years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. You are at liberty to publish this letter. G. M. Fisher, M. D., Big Pool, Md., May 24, 1905."

His Interest Was Personal.

An eccentric member of the British parliament who died recently endeavored vainly during a quarter of a century to get passed into law a bill for preventing persons from standing outside windows while leaning them. During his last session the old fellow complained to a colleague that his object in introducing the bill had been quite misunderstood by the house for these 25 years. "I introduced the bill," said he, "not for the sake of the window cleaner, but for the sake of the people below, on whom they might fall. The idea of the bill was suggested to me by the fear that a window cleaner might fall on myself."

Heavy Movement of Iron Ore.

The movement of Lake Superior iron ore during the month of June was the heaviest during the history of the trade. Nearly 5,600,000 tons were forwarded to the lower lakes—a gain almost 500,000 tons over the corresponding period last year. The movement this season up to the 1st of July aggregated 11,241,536 tons compared with 10,814,054 tons for the same period last year.

GOOD COLORS FOR HOUSES.

It is not generally known—not even among painters—why certain tints and colors wear much better than others on houses, and the knowledge of just what tints are best to use is, therefore, rather hazy.

One writer on paint, in a recent book, says that experiments seem to show that those colors which resist or turn back the heat rays of the sun, will protect a house better than those which allow these rays to pass through the film.

Thus red is a good color because it turns back, or reflects, the red rays, and the red rays are the hot rays.

In general, therefore, the warm tones are good and the cold tones are poor, so far as wear is concerned. In choosing the color of paint for your house, select reds, browns, grays and olives which, considering the various tones these tints will produce, will give a wide range from which to choose.

Avoid the harsh tints, such as cold yellows (like lemon), cold greens (like grass green, etc.), and the blues.

It must be understood that no virtue is claimed for tints in themselves, irrespective of the materials used in the paint. Any color will fade, and the paint will scale off, if adulterated with lead or canned paint. Is used, but if one is careful to use the best white lead—some well-known brand of a reliable manufacturer—and genuine linseed oil, the warm tints mentioned above will outwear the same materials tinted with the cold colors.

Suffered for 'White Lie.'

Is a white lie ever justified? That at least some people believe it has no excuse is proved by the following tale: An ancient rabbi came to a city where all the people were truthful, married one of the inhabitants, had two children and prospered. One day a neighbor called when the rabbi's wife was washing her head, and the rabbi, going to the door, was seized by false modesty and said that she had gone out. Thereupon both of his children died, and, as no one died in that city before reaching old age, the neighbors made inquiries, the rabbi confessed what he had done, and was ordered to leave the city immediately.

How Emperor William is Battling Against a Dangerous Heredity.

Emperor William's father died of cancer of the throat.

Emperor William himself had infantile paralysis, and has had to struggle with many infirmities.

It has been whispered that he himself is troubled with the same malady which carried off his father. Royal blood is unfortunately more generally deteriorated blood. Emperor William knows this as well as anybody, and is doing his best to eradicate the bad blood from himself and his family by the adoption of simple life principles.

Through the visit of a countryman of his to Battle Creek, Michigan, while in this country, visiting the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893, Emperor William became acquainted with the Battle Creek idea of simple living and has to a large extent adopted the methods in his family. His wife and children live the simple life and take the Battle Creek light baths. Their uncle, King Edward, also has these baths installed in his Windsor and Buckingham Palaces for the use of himself and Queen Alexandra.

Among other things GOOD HEALTH, the oldest health journal in the world, tells about the Battle Creek idea and the simple life. Every number is brimful of up-to-date ideas. Sample copy 10 cents. One dollar a year.

If you will cut this out and send to GOOD HEALTH PUBLISHING CO., Battle Creek, Mich., with a quarter you will receive a trial three months' subscription to this handsome illustrated monthly health magazine. Write to-day.

Still LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY?

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the

ORIGIN OF NEW YORK NAMES

New Dorp Replaced a Town Thrice Destroyed by Fire.

There are some names of places in Greater New York common enough on the modern tongue, but the origin of which is not so generally known. New Dorp, on Staten Island, was so named by the Dutch to distinguish it from Oude Dorp (Old Dorp), the first Dutch settlement on the island, which was thrice destroyed by the Indians. Old Dorp stood to the northwest of Fort Wadsworth, about where Arrochar now stands. Two miles to the west of the ruins of Old Dorp the persistent Dutch built their New Dorp.

The northeast section of Staten Island, which, until the formation of Greater New York was known as Castleton, and is still generally so called, takes its name from the fact that it once formed Governor Dongan's "manor of Castleton." Dongan—the Dongan hills are named from him—was of the family of the Earl of Limerick, and the seat of the earl in Ireland was Castle-town, in the County Kildare. Many of Governor Dongan's descendants still live on Staten Island, some of them occupying and owning houses on the land of the old manor. At first Governor Dongan merely had a hunting lodge on Staten Island, and it is significant of the state of that portion of New York city at the end of the seventeenth century that at a meeting of the colonial council the governor was entered on the minutes as "absent, being engaged at his hunting lodge on Staten Island killing bears."

Bedlow's island, on which the statue of Liberty stands, was purchased in 1716 by an Englishman named Bedlow, who had amassed a large fortune in the East India trade and was an acquaintance of the then governor, the notorious Lord Cornbury. Bedlow received from Cornbury the privilege of victualing the British fleets which frequented New York. It was a most profitable monopoly, having in it great possibilities of graft. Cornbury is supposed to have "stood in" with Bedlow. When Bedlow died suddenly Cornbury seized all his papers, collected all the outstanding debts due the contractor, and kept everything of Bedlow's he could lay his hands on, leaving Bedlow's widow and children in poverty. Bedlow's island was bought and used by the contractor while he victualled the fleets as a depot for his stores.

Corlear's Hook takes its name from Jacob Corlear, the city trumpeter in the old Dutch days. Governor Beekman bought it from him. The governor also bought a country estate, the site of which is commemorated by Beekman street.

The true meaning of the word Manhattan, originally spelled variously as Manna-ha-ta, Manhattoes and Manhattan, is hid in mystery. It is not even certain whether it was the name of the place or of the tribe which inhabited it, or of both. The old idea that the word meant Place of Drunkenness has been satisfactorily confuted, but what does the word mean?—New York Press.

Spencer and Colors.

Herbert Spencer's notions of art were very crude. His favorite color was what he called "impure purple." He wore "impure purple" gloves and, finding that the furniture was a little somber, had a binding of "impure purple" pasted round it by a seamstress. He cut the first strip himself and showed her how to stick it on with paste. He filled his vases with artificial flowers. He wished to have everything bright about him and consequently enjoyed color. When it was suggested he could get that in real flowers he replied: "Booh! They would want constant replenishing!" He wanted to know why the people should object to artificial flowers in a room any more than to an artificial landscape.—"Home Life With Herbert Spencer."

Pigs in China.

A Peking correspondent says: "It is no uncommon sight to see twelve or thirteen enormous fat pigs, with their legs tied, huddled close together having a ride in a Chinese cart with some sort of light cargo on top of them and a man sitting on the cargo. The pigs are silent, and consequently one would think they should not be objects for the action of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The fact is that the animals are too fat and lazy to make any noise until disturbed at their journey's end, when bagpipes are as Italian opera to the terrific squealing heard."

The Dead Sea.

The Dead sea is 1,300 feet below sea level. There can, of course, be no outlet for the Dead sea, and the volume of from 3,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of water that the Jordan throws into it every twenty-four hours must be carried away by evaporation. Not a solitary dwelling is on its coasts, and there is no living thing in its waters. As we stand on the north shore the sea stretches out some forty-two miles toward the south and is, on an average, eight miles wide. The water is of a greenish blue and as clear as crystal.

Those Fool Questions.

"Hello," says the man, seeing his friend sailing forth with pole and net and bait basket. "Going fishing?" "No," replies the friend, turning on him solemnly. "No; I'm going to stand on my head and keep my hair from falling out. What made you think I was going fishing?"—Puck.

Does Your Stomach Bother You?

Dr. Shoop's Restorative Cures All Distressing Stomach Troubles Through the Inside Nerves.

As you value your health and happiness don't neglect to care for the ailments of your stomach. At the first sign of distress use Dr. Shoop's Restorative and cure all these troubles. These aches are signals—they are symptoms of coming disease—be it wise to ignore them? You who never saw hearty men with out a sense of fullness—followed by a period of lassitude or drowsiness—be wary. Neglect these conditions and you surely invite distressing forces—indigestion—you'll become a malnourished, miserable dyspeptic. Do you experience any of these symptoms?—If so, you must take Dr. Shoop's Restorative. It restores the digestive forces—restoring the appetite, heartburn, indigestion, flatulence, and all these ailments. It is a clear duty to clear these ailments but one course open to you—strengthen the inside nerves—these special stomach nerves—shake off forever this evidence of disease. Put the digestive nerves in condition to act as nature intended they should. Don't drug, don't force—just give the inside nerves natural force, gentle tonic, nature's help. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (Tablets or Liquid) should be taken to do this—it is the only prescription which builds up, or even attempts to restore the inside stomach nerves. Sold by WARNE'S PHARMACY.

WANTED:—Gentleman or lady with good reference, to travel by rail or with a rig, for a firm of $250,000 capital. Salary $1,072.00 per year and expenses; salary paid weekly and expenses advanced. Address, with stamp, Jos. A. Alexander, East Jordan, Mich.

When a woman suffers from depressing weakness, she then keenly realizes how worthless she is. Dr. Shoop has brought relief to thousands of such women. He reaches diseases peculiar to women in two direct, specific ways—a local treatment known by druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Night Cure and a constitutional or internal prescription called Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is applied locally, and at night. It works while you sleep. It reduces inflammation, it stops discharges, it heals, it soothes, it comforts, it cures. Dr. Shoop's Restorative (tablet or liquid form) is a constitutional, nerve tissue tonic. It brings renewed strength, lasting ambition and vigor to weak, lifeless women.

These two remedies, singly, or used together, have an irresistible, positive helpful power. Try them a month and see. Sold by Warne's Pharmacy.

CURES RHEUMATISM LUMBAGO, SCIATICA NEURALGIA and KIDNEY TROUBLE

"DROPS" taken internally, rids the blood of the poison which enters and adds which are the direct causes of these diseases. Applied externally it affords almost instant relief from pain, while a permanent cure is being effected by purifying the blood, dissolving the poisonous substance and removing it from the system.

DR. S. D. BLAND
 Of Brewton, Ga., writes: "I had been a sufferer for a number of years with Lumbago and Rheumatism in my arms and legs, and tried all the remedies that I could gather from medical works, and also consulted with a number of the best physicians, but found nothing that gave the relief obtained from 'DROPS.' I shall prescribe it in my practice for Rheumatism and kindred diseases."

FREE
 If you are suffering with Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Kidney trouble or any kindred disease, write to us for a trial bottle of "DROPS," and test it yourself. While we have endeavored to avoid undue publicity regarding our business, we at the same time deem it wise in nonsense to hide our light under a bushel, hence we would call the special attention of the public to one important branch of our establishment, viz:

Our Prescription Department.
 The highest grade and finest quality of Drugs and Chemicals obtainable are used, and absolutely no substitution practiced. Above we give you the number of prescriptions we have filled since we began doing business in East Jordan, which shows to a certain extent, at least, the confidence that has been placed in us in the past, and we shall aim to be worthy of in the future. Your patronage solicited and satisfaction guaranteed at

DRIFTING TOWARDS BRIGHT'S DISEASE
 Many people who are neglecting symptoms of kidney trouble, hoping "it will wear away," are drifting towards Bright's Disease, which is kidney trouble in one of its worst forms.
FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
 stops irregularities, strengthens the urinary organs and builds up the worn-out tissues of the kidneys so they will perform their functions properly. Healthy kidneys strain out the impurities from the blood as it passes through them. Diseased kidneys do not, and the poisonous waste matter is carried by the circulation to every part of the body, causing dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, sluggish liver, irregular heart action, etc.
 If you have any signs of Kidney or Bladder Trouble commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at once, as it will cure a slight disorder in a few days and prevent a fatal malady. It is pleasant to take and benefits the whole system.
How to Find Out.
 You can easily determine if your kidneys are out of order by setting aside for 24 hours a bottle of the urine passed upon arising. If upon examination it is cloudy or milky or has a brick-dust sediment or small particles float about in it, your kidneys are diseased and FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE should be taken at once.
G. B. Burhans Testifies After Four Years.
 G. B. Burhans of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It actually stopped the brick-dust sediment and pain and my symptoms at once disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed, and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to any one suffering from kidney or bladder trouble."
 Two Sizes, 50 Cents and $1.00.
