Thanksgiving Proclamation

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF MICHIGAN, GREETING:

The year now drawing to a close has marked an advancement in the material progress and prosperity of our people. No calamity has befallen us as a State nor has the hand of affliction been laid upon any community. Thanksgiving Day was established and observed by people who had far less to be thankful for than the poorest of us have today.

The debt we owe the New England pioneer should not be forgotten and the observance of this day will be a blessing if it serves no other purpose than to recall to those now living the sturdy virtues of those who laid broad and deep the foundation for the Government we shall believe to be the best on earth.

Civilization in such a country carries with it increasing responsibilities. Problems growing out of the enormous increase of wealth confronts us as a nation, and that we have a fearless, honest President is not the least of the reasons why we should be thankful.

Now therefore by virtue of authority in me vested, I do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, November 29, 1906, as a day upon which the people of Michigan, laying aside their usual avocations, should assemble in their places of worship and reverently thank God for His manifold blessings.

After that has been done, let our homes be made places of good cheer and recreation for every member of the family. Forgetting the cares and duties of business life for that day will make us better fitted on the morrow for our allotted tasks.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State of Michigan, at Lansing this ninth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and six, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty first.

FRED M. WARNER, Governor.
 GEORGE A. PRESCOTT, Secretary of State.

The December Delineator.

The December Delineator is a typical Christmas number. It is sufficiently premature to assist Christmas makers with its hints for Christmas gifts and holiday entertainments, besides containing an abundance of seasonable literature calculated to fit in from now until New Year's Day. Maud Ballington Booth contributes a most touching description of the work of the Volunteers, "Christmas Sunshine in the shadows." Christmas stories for adults are "The Evergreen Tree," by Marion Ames Taggart and "The Shoghlifter at Satterthwaite's," by William Hamilton Osborne and those for children "The Blue Kimono" by Virginia Woodward Cloud, and "Betty Evolves an Idea," by Elizabeth Preston Badger. Agnes and Egerton Castle's Romance, "A young conspiracy," and Anthony Hope's short story "The Duke's Allotment" seem especially suitable for reading on winter evenings. But the crown of the Christmas literature is Edwin Markham's splendid poem, entitled "The Great Guest Comes." It is illustrated in colors by J. C. Leyendecker. The serial stories, "Franklin Schmidt and Mr. Anstruther" by the Countess von Arnheim, and "The Chauffeur and the Chaperon" by the Williamsons, are continued, while Barry Pain's "The Diary of a Baby" is concluded. Essays for every day are, "The Slavery of Superstition" by Lillian Bell, "Eliminating Non-essentials" by Lida Churchill, and "Pulling Together Through a Crisis" by William George Jordan. David Belasco contributes a most interesting description of "Making the Play Seem Real."

The usual amount of space is devoted to up-to-date fashions in garments and millinery, and practical papers and departments for housekeepers.

A Tried Success— "The Honeymoon"

(Coming early in December)
 Miss Charlotte Burnett reaped such rewards both for herself and her managers last year in "The Honeymoon" that it was decided to send it out on a second triumphal tour, prior to her appearance in New York, in a new play next season. She is again winning admirers and fame for herself and swelling fat pocket books of managers by the emphatic hit she is making everywhere. She is a most attractive little woman with great dark eyes dark clustering curls, a dainty form that is quick and graceful as a bird, a lovely soft mellow voice and a thousand expressions of face that are most fascinating.

The play, "The Honeymoon" is a splendid vehicle to show off her charms and ability. It is in fact a very clever play full of original comedy situations, irresistibly funny mistakes, droll, quaint characters and a love story that holds the interest spell-bound to the end. The cast is a small one, calling for but ten people but they must be of the cleverest as each part is strong and full of spirit and comedy. The actors supporting Miss Burnett are young, handsome and the best artists that New York affords, and fill each part in a thoroughly competent manner. The costumes are new and especially magnificent. They certainly delight the eye with their elegant materials beautiful colors and picturesque outlines. It is in every way a high class, beautifully staged production, and Manager Loveday feels much elated that he has been able to secure the attraction for his patrons, and is confident that they will show their appreciation by greeting Miss Burnett with a large representative audience of East Jordan and vicinity.

The Best Christmas Present for a Little Money.

When your Christmas present is a year's subscription to The Youth's Companion you give as much in good reading as would fill twenty 400-page novels or books of history or travel or biography ordinarily costing $1.50 a volume. Nor do you give quantity at the cost of quality. For more than half a century the wisest, most renowned, most entertaining of writers have been contributors to The Companion. You need never fear that The Companion will be inappropriate or unwelcome. The boy, the girl, every other member of the family, will insist on a share in it. There is no other present costing so little that goes so far.

On receipt of $1.75, the yearly subscription price, the publishers send to the new subscriber The Companion's Four Leaf Hanging Calendar for 1907, lithographed in twelve colors and gold and subscription certificate for fifty-two issues of the year's volume.

Full illustrated Announcement of The Companion for 1907 will be sent with sample copies of the paper to any address free.

Subscribers who get new subscriptions will receive $16,290.00 in cash and many other special awards. Send for information.

LONG SERMONS, AND LONG FACES

Early Thanksgivings Were Not Festive, But Solemn, Occasions—Modernized by Circumstances.

TEMPT ME NOT O LORD

PROCLAMATION BY GOV. ANDROS WHEREAS, This...

... So strong was the spirit of our ancestors that when the detested Gov. Andros issued his Thanksgiving proclamation they refused to eat turkey, just to spit him."

Notwithstanding a quite prevalent opinion to the contrary, for which certain historical writers are largely responsible, Thanksgiving is a day for family reunions, feasting and social enjoyment, is practically a modern institution, owing to its present importance in the main to the conveniences of travel that came

Massachusetts, for generations, were solely religious observances, while that famous Plymouth celebration of 1621 was a harvest festival, never designated as Thanksgiving by its promoters and having no religious significance whatever, so far as known. Moreover, it comprised not merely a single day of feasting and merrymaking, but a whole week of it, and was designed solely for relaxation after many months of privation and arduous toil.

There is no record of a similar joyous celebration in our annals for generations afterward, the Thanksgivings referred to in subsequent years until after the revolution having been nearly as strictly religious affairs as Sunday itself, and so far as we have any existing evidence not greatly given to gastronomy. No mention of Thanksgiving is found in a contemporary list of holidays for merrymaking as late as 1700.

Until as late as the war of 1812, or later, Thanksgiving was not a regular annual affair, either, its appointment being in recognition of special blessings, either spiritual or material, and usually deferred until such an excuse for its appointment offered, even though it might be for two or three years, as was frequently the case. It usually came in the autumn, however, and generally a bountiful harvest was mentioned as an incidental cause.

For more than 60 years after the arrival of the Pilgrims Thanksgiving was appointed by the legislature, and its respectful, religious observance was quite as obligatory as was obedience to any law of the Commonwealth that carries with it a legal penalty.

with the introduction of the steam railway.

The holiday observance in the autumn of 1621 by the people of Plymouth, so often referred to as our earliest New England Thanksgiving, cannot be justly so characterized, because our early Thanksgiving in

FISH BY THE MILLION.

Enormous Proportions of This Industry in the East.

The results of the New England fisheries in 1905 broke all records. Maine contributed to the food supply of the world 1,000,000,000 packed sardines, valued at $5,000,000, and in fresh fish alone Boston sold $4,000,000 worth.

The great "wear" in Boston handled 100,000,000 pounds of fresh fish, valued at $2,500,000. At this wharf as many as 50 fishing vessels have been moored at one time. Gloucester, the home of the Grand Banks fishing fleet, provided for the world's consumption 125,000,000 pounds of salt fish, valued at $3,750,000, and handled fresh fish to the value of $2,000,000.

In the latter part of 1905 a revolution was promised in fishing methods by the addition of a new steam trawler to the fleet. Since fishing began on the Banks the work has been done by sailing vessels, which send out dories on the fishing grounds and which in their voyages back and forth between Boston and the Banks, are at the mercy of storms.

There are now more than 500 vessels of all sizes in the fishing fleet, ranging in value from $1,000 to $15,000, the entire fleet being valued at about $3,000,000. If the Spray, the new steel trawler, does the work expected of her it may mean the passing of the old-time sailing fleet.

The new steamer cost her owners $60,000. She is equipped to permit of all fishing operations being carried on from her deck without the use of dories and the consequent loss of life attendant upon the old methods of fishing when boats were frequently lost in the fog or run down by Atlantic steamers. The Spray drags her own trawl nets and is expected to make huge hauls and fast time between the fishing grounds and the home port.—Scrap Book.

Refined Cruelty of a Boy.

"For genuine cruelty the average five-year-old boy has got a Hottentot cannibal licked to a frazzle," said the proud father of a young hopeful the other day. "The latest trick of my kid is a winner, but was sort of rough on the victim, which was our pet cat. About three weeks ago we noticed that puss suddenly stopped eating and drinking. All the choice bits of meats and dishes of milk were left untouched.

"For several days we explained it by supposing that the cat was getting more than the ordinary number of mice and eating them to the exclusion of our offerings, but we soon noticed that she was becoming thin and gaunt and did not seem inclined to move about and purr as she used to. One day, after two weeks of this, I picked up the now skeleton cat and began to stroke its neck.

"What do you think I found? A thick-rubber band stretched tightly around the throat, concealed by the long fur. It just permitted the cat to breathe, but she could not eat. I moved it and now she is getting along all right. When I asked the boy about it he said he just wanted to see if kitty would strangle. If it had been anything else but a cat it would have been dead in no time."

Great Heat in Deep Mines.

The latest determination of rise in temperature in descending underground gives 243 feet for every degree centigrade or 135 feet for a rise of one degree Fahrenheit. The difference in temperature of different rock substances is almost inappreciable.

Experiments made in deep mines to prove that the heat of the rocks does not preclude mining operations at even 4,000 feet, because if the recognized formula of 125 degrees Fahrenheit at 3,500 feet, demonstrated that such a temperature is not reached.

The assertion sometimes made that mining might extend to as great a depth as 10,000 feet if haulage could be accomplished is untenable. The difficulties would not be in haulage, but, first, that of breathing under the enormous atmospheric pressure, and, secondly, increase of temperature. A mass of air in a down-cast shaft of 60 degrees Fahrenheit at the surface at a depth of 10,000 feet would attain a temperature of 90 degrees by its own weight. Healthful mining would be impossible.

Since His Mother Died.

A smart lawyer had been bullying the witness in a laundry case. Finally he asked: "How long have you been getting your washing done at this place?"

"Ever since your mother died," answered the witness.

"What do you mean, sir?" asked the lawyer, firing up.

"Just what I say, sir," calmly replied the witness.

"Do you mean to insinuate that my mother ever did your washing? You—"

"No; I mean just what I say. Your mother died six years ago. Since then I have had my washing done at this laundry."

Then the witness was allowed to step down amid the giggles of the multitude.

FADS AND HOBBIES OF ACTORS.

How Stage Folk Spend Their Spare Time.

The majority of actors have some fad or hobby, and in no way is this shown more than in their favorite amusement. Julia Marlowe is a great reader and has a hobby for collecting books. This love of books led her to take lessons one summer in bookbinding. Ethel Barrymore has a passion for old lace and beautiful furs. She is fond of all kinds of outdoor sports and prefers tennis. The book Maude Adams prizes most is "Vecllo on Costume," which was published in 1598.

Francis Wilson is an inveterate reader and has over 12,000 books. He is an enthusiast over pictures, because, as he says, "of the story they tell." He has a collection of autographs of nearly all the celebrities in art, history and literature. When George Cohan is not acting, writing a play, composing a new song, or staging a piece he is talking baseball.

There are not two people that are more suited to each other than Mary Manning and her husband, James K. Hackett. They both love to travel abroad, and when they are at

FATHER DIDN'T KNOW.

Story of a Parent's Sad Mistake Told by Camille Clifford.

"Camille Clifford, who is going to marry Hon. Henry Bruce, is a German town girl," said a New York manager. "In Philadelphia, though she used to be much admired there, no one ever thought that in London she would achieve fame.

"Yet in London Camille Clifford, with her gowns all made in one piece—her gowns that fit like a silk stocking—has been famous for some years, and there are many Englishmen who will envy Lord Aberdare's son his bride.

"Miss Clifford, when I last saw her, talked of Lord Aberdare's opposition to the match. She did not think this opposition would last long. Apropos of it, she told me a little story—a story that she is going to work up into a play, for she has literary aspirations.

"She said there was a certain girl whose parents objected strongly to her sweetheart. The parents found in this girl's pocketbook one night a love letter, and wild with rage, they summoned her before them.

"What kind of a letter do you call this?" the old father demanded, glarhome there is nothing they like better than "roughing it" in the woods, fishing and hunting. Mrs. Fiske is fond of trees and old-fashioned flowers. Blanche Walsh has a fad for collecting Indian curios.

John Drew is devoted to his horses. His greatest pleasure is riding with his daughter. His deep regard for both is shown in the fact that he always has with him a picture of her that is framed in a steel racing plate which a favorite mare of Mr. Drew's wore when she won a race. Blanche Bates spends most of her salary on horses and dogs. She has nine horses, and 14 dogs. Marie Bates has a handsome aviary in which are many ring-necked and canaries. Henry Dixey's pet hobby is his farm. Much of the leisure time of Robert Edson is spent in painting.

When free from her stage work Virginia Harned likes nothing better than to go to Stratford-on-Avon, and, as she says, "bask and vegetate." Viola Allen reads all the good fiction of the day.

Hackett Sees a Joke.

James K. Hackett, who is at present in London, says he found one funny story in a recent number of Punch. Here it is:

"An old boy, who had just recovered from a hard spree, met a pal and was telling him about it.

"It was awful," he said. "I'm all right now, but for more'n a week there were big green beetles with canary bird heads crawling all over me."

"Hold on," yelled the other old soak, brushing at his shoulder, "you ain't got over it yet. There's one of the blamed things now!"

Phonograph Aids Actress.

Julia Marlowe is taking dancing lessons with the aid of a phonograph. In the production of "Johannes," she has the role of Salome, which calls for a dance. In order to get the music she desires and not to have a pianist with her for all the time the actress had the music for the Salome dance put on her phonograph.

ing at his daughter over his spectacles. "Listen to it. 'Light of my life'—'Light of his life!' 'Faugh!'"

"But, papa—"

"Not a word!" the old man interrupted. "And he goes on: 'I could not sleep all night long, love, for thinking of you.'"

"Liar," said the mother. "Fool and liar," to write so."

"Then the lunatic says, 'contingent the father—he says, 'How happy we would be if only that pig-headed, narrow-minded old fool of a dad of yours would give his consent.'"

"The villain!" said the mother.

"Would I trust my daughter's future," said the father, "to any man who was base enough to speak like that?"

"But, papa, if you'll look—"

"Not a word!"

"If you'll only look, papa, at the date."

"Oct. 2, 1872." Then a light dawned on him, and he gasped:

"Why, mother, bless my heart, it's one of my own letters to you."

"Yes, said the young girl; 'I found it in the cedar chest yesterday. I'd have told you long ago, but you wouldn't let me speak.'"

ABOUT STAGE FOLK.

A new musical farce, by Glen McDonough, bearing the title, "Too Near Home," shortly will be produced by the Will J. Block company, with Emma Carus as the featured member of the cast.

Browning's "Pippa Passes," with Mrs. Sarah Cowell Le Moyné as Ottilia and Monsigneur, had its first performance at the Lyric theater, New York, on the afternoon of November 9. Mabel Talianferro was cast as Pippa and the support included William Beach.

Robert Edson will shortly make his debut as an essayist. He has already displayed literary aptitude in several one-act plays and now has accepted the offer of a well-known magazine for a series of articles contrasting the commercial and artistic aspects of the theater.

WHEN THEY MET

They were to have lunch together down town and they met by appointment at the milliner's on the corner. They did not intend to buy hats, but chose the place because of its convenience. However, when the girl in gray found that she had arrived first, she thought she would just "poke around" a little until her friend arrived.

"Where shall we go for lunch?" asked the girl in gray when they reached the street.

"Oh, I don't care. Anywhere you say."

"I don't care, either."

"Well, do you like Blakey's?"

"Yes."

"The waiters there are awfully inattentive, come to think of it. I like Carter's better."

"Oh, they have the horriest butter at Carter's," objected the girl in gray.

"Do they? I never noticed it, and I'm fussy about butter, too."

"Well, let's go there, then. I don't care."

"Oh, no; I'd imagine it was bad now."

They stopped on a corner.

"I've got to meet mother at two o'clock, so let's decide," said the girl in gray.

"I don't care a bit where we go," said the girl in brown.

"Neither do I."

"I like one place about as well as another."

"So do I."

"It's too windy standing here, and I've got an awful cold. Do decide on something."

"All right, you decide."

"Well, we might as well go to Blakey's."

They did.

As they entered the head waiter hurried forward to meet them and showed them ceremoniously to a small table. Another waiter rushed forward, and each attendant held a chair for the new arrivals.

"I don't call the waiters here inattentive," said the girl in gray, pulling off her gloves.

"Perhaps I was thinking of some other place," answered the girl in brown.

The waiter placed a menu before each girl, and then stood respectfully waiting, pad and pencil in hand.

"What shall we have?" said the girl in gray.

"Whatever you like. I want you to say, because this is my treat."

"Indeed, it isn't," objected the girl in gray. "I suggested our lunching together in town."

"But, my dear, don't you remember I said: 'Can you come Wednesday?' and that made my invitation."

"Not at all," replied the girl in gray, "and I insist upon paying the bill."

"Well—then next time it shall be mine."

The waiter, after shifting his position from one foot to the other several times, retired to the next table and took an order for two men who had just come in. He now returned and stood inquiringly beside the girl in brown.

"Well, what shall we have?" said the girl in brown. Thereupon the waiter realized that no progress had been made and hurried away to fill the order for the two men.

"Whatever you like."

"What about filet a grain?"

"I don't care for things cooked in cheese."

"Well, you pick out the potatoes," said the girl in gray. "Where on earth has that waiter gone?"

"This was the place I meant, after all, where the waiters are inattentive," said the girl in brown at length.

They waited in some annoyance until the waiter appeared with the order for the next table. He hurried through his duty there, and presently stood once more, pad in hand, expectant beside the girl in gray.

"Bring us flat mignon," she began. "Have you decided on the potatoes yet?"

They discussed it.

"Let's have tomato salad, instead," said the girl in brown.

"All right. Now that waiter has gone again! How annoying!"

The waiter had, in fact, just withdrawn, as the men at the next table had finished and were ready to pay their check.

"I shall never come here again. The waiter has not taken our order yet."

"I told you how they were here," said the girl in brown, complacently.

Both girls bent frowning looks on the waiter until he approached their table again.

"Please take our order at once," said the girl in gray, severely. "Filet mignon, tomato salad and coffee. Would you rather have coffee with your lunch or after, with some crackers and cheese?"

"I don't care. Which would you?"

"As I have to meet mother at two o'clock, I'm afraid I'd better have it with my lunch. Can you tell me the time, waiter?"

"Yes, miss; it is 20 minutes of two."

"Oh, dear me! Hurry the order as fast as you can."

As the waiter departed, the girl in gray said: "It is shameful the way we have had to wait. I shall be awfully late. The inattention of the waiters here is disgraceful."

And the girl in brown agreed with her.—Chicago Daily News.

SLIPS OF THE TONGUE.

Some of the Querer Bulls That Have Been Recorded.

That man made a remark that had better have been left unsaid who, when the king found some fault with the earl marshal for some details of the coronation ceremony, replied, "Please, your majesty, I hope it will be better next time." Lord Orford tells the following, which he characterizes as the best "bull" he ever heard: "I hate that woman," said a gentleman, looking at one who had been his nurse. "I hate that woman, for she changed me at nurse." A gentleman was once complimenting Mrs. Denis on the manner in which she had just enacted the part of Zara. "To act that part," said she, "a person should be young and handsome." "Ah, madam," replied the would be complimenter, "you are a complete proof to the contrary," which was a faux pas with a vengeance. It was at an execution in Ireland that the rope broke and the half hanged victim fell to the ground, when the person who was superintending the execution said, "You rascal, if you do that again I'll kill you as sure as you breathe."

It was an Irish mayor who issued a proclamation stating that certain business would be transacted in that city "except Monday" (Easter Sunday only excepted), which is capped by the preamble of an English bill which ordained that certain regulations should take place "on every Monday" (Tuesday excepted), while an English mayor ran this close in a proclamation and an advertisement relating to some forthcoming races, wherein it was stated that "no gentleman will be allowed to ride on the course but the horses that are to run."

Another "bull" of the legislature which actually found its way on to the statute book was that in which in amending an old act it was ordained in the event of conviction that of the fine of 10 shillings, half was to go to the king and half to the informer. In the amending act this was altered to "40 strokes with the birch, half to go to the king and half to the informer," which only tends to show that the draftsmen of the laws of the nation are not always as careful as they might or should be. Of course, perhaps, the poor things are overworked or tired.

Shakespeare has been guilty of more than one literary "bull," one of his best being in the first portion of "Henry IV," wherein the carrier complains that "the turkeys in his panniers are quite starved," the phrase occurring in the fifth scene of the second act, whereas turkeys came from America, and the new world was not even discovered for a century later. Again, in the first scene of the fifth act of "Henry V," wherein Gower is made to say to Fluellen, "Here comes Pistol, smiling like a turkeycock," all of which proves the appositeness of the remark that even Homer sometimes nods, as Shakespeare did in these and other instances. Many others could be deduced, but the above examples will suffice.

Going a step higher, we find the lord lieutenant of Ireland of a former day equally at fault in his language, for in a proclamation issued from the council chamber of Dublin we find it set forth that "whereas, the greatest economy is necessary in the consumption of all species of grain and especially in the consumption of potatoes," etc. Mr. Grey tells of a lawyer who in an action for assault and battery informed the judge that "the defendant beat his client with a certain wooden instrument called an iron pestle."—London Standard.

What Would You Do

If three good physicians should pronounce your case hopeless. If they should decide that you could not live longer than six weeks. And if you should get well, after using only $12.00 worth of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine, what would you advise a friend in like condition to do?

"I have to thank you for saving my wife's life two years ago. We had continued with the doctor until the third doctor, like the two previous ones, said that nothing could be done for her, that she had better be taken home from the hospital to quietly wait her time, which would not be over six weeks at the most. I brought her home, and then I thought probably Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine might help her, so I got a bottle of each and some Nerve and Liver Pills and commenced to give them to her. We soon seen an improvement and encouraged by this we continued giving the medicine. We gave her eleven bottles in all of the medicine. She takes it occasionally now if she feels the need. I am in the ministry, and have been for 44 years."

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve, the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have the same controlling-nervous. This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with—

A Poem for Today

SEVEN TIMES ONE

By Jean Ingelow

JEAN INGELOW, poet and novelist, was born at Boston, Lincolnshire, England, in 1820 and died in London in 1897. Her quiet, uneventful life was passed among peaceful surroundings and was devoted to literature, her father's wealth lifting Miss Ingelow above care. Among the best known and loved of her poems are the "Songs of Seven," which portray a woman's life from seven to seventy-seven. Besides her poems Miss Ingelow wrote novels and children's books.

THERE'S no dew left on the daisies and clover, There's no rain left in heaven. I've said my "seven times" over and over— Seven times one are seven.

I am old—so old I can write a letter— My birthday lessons are done. The lambs play always; they know no better; They are only one times one.

O moon, in the night I have seen you sailing And shining so round and low! You were bright—ah, bright!—but your light is falling; You are nothing now but a bow.

You moon, have you done something wrong in heaven That God has hidden your face? I hope, if you have, you will soon be forgiven And shine again in your place.

O velvet-bee, you're a dusty fellow; You've powdered your legs with gold! O brave marsh Mary buds, rich and yellow, Give me your money to hold!

O columbine, open your folded wrapper, Where two twin turtle doves dwell! O cuckoo pint, toll me the purple clapper That hangs in your clear green bell!

And show me your nest with the young ones in it; I will not steal them away; I am old; you may trust me, linnet, linnet! I am seven times one today.

ALDEN WAVE:—We have received a twenty-page booklet from the East Jordan Charlevoix County Herald, called the industrial edition which is as good a piece of work as we have seen in this territory. It is well-filled with half-tones and is splendidly gotten up.

According to a western editor a certain church wanted some wine for communion purposes, but could get nothing but persimmon wine. After partaking of this the congregation attempted to sing the Doxology, but their lips were so puckered the best they could do was to whistle it.

LAPEER CLARION:—We are in receipt of a copy of the industrial edition of the Charlevoix County Herald, published at East Jordan by G. Arthur Lisk, a graduate of the Clarion office. It is a notably fine production, a credit to the town and the newspaper and should do them both good.

He didn't have a dollar; he didn't have a dime. His clothes and shoes were looking just as though they'd served their time. He didn't try to kill himself to dodge misfortune's whacks. Instead, he got some ashes and he filled five dozen sacks. Then next he begged a dollar. In the paper in the world he advertised in polish that would put the sun to scorn. He kept on advertising, and, just now, suffice to say, he out in California at his cottage on the bay.

The home-talent play of "The Crisis" given by the H. S. A. A. at Love-day Opera House was not as well patronized as should have been and those who did not attend missed something good. Miss Louise Loveday as "Virginia Carvel"—the heroine of the story—played her part thoroughly all the time as an archer said to the writer—"twas just as good as those shows that come here." Mr. Griffin, the manager, who is a professional actor took the part of "Judge Whipple" and did it excellently. While the play was an amateur performance it was certainly far superior to the average. Below was the full cast of characters:—Judge Whipple, Mr. Griffin; Stephen Brice, Supt. H. H. Fuller; Clarence Colfax; Tom Lalonde; Eliphalef Hopper, Dr. H. W. Dicken; Colonel Carver, F. A. Kenyon; Maurice Renault and Carter, Verne Payton; Jack Bromsnade; Dr. H. B. Lehner; Carl Richter, Harry S. Heron; Eugene Renault, Miss Madge Nicholas; Mrs. Colfax, Margaret Brady; Ann Brismade, Miss Mary Porter; Mrs. Russell, Miss Bessie Callahan; Mrs. Brice, Miss Jennie McFarlane; Virginia Carvel, Miss Louise Loveday.

There is an aesthetic side to the good roads movement that is of little importance. What is dearer, what more depressing than to drive along a country road deep with mud and furrowed by ruts the water standing in pools in the road and where ditches ought to be.

Houses are scarce in our city and hardly a week passes but what there are applicants for a number of tenant houses. The town loses a number of good families each year who would like to locate here if they could find the houses. Those who have the means to do so would find the erection of a number of tenant houses a good-paying investment.

Where is the man so happy as the one who applies himself to manual labor? Where is the home so happy as the one where each member of the household feels, at the close of the day that they have performed some at least of the many duties devolving upon them? There may be a clash some day between capital and labor. Should this period ever come, the hope is that labor, with the conquering tread of a hero, will trample beneath its heel the power that has, to a considerable extent made labor laborious. We are all laborers in our little city.

SAGINAW EVENING NEWS:—A neat little booklet has just been published by the Charlevoix County Herald, G. A. Lisk, publisher, which is issued at East Jordan. The many industrial and social advantages of this pretty lake port are entertainingly depicted. Book paper is used in the edition which gives an especially clean effect to the many pictures employed, those of "The River Jordan" and the Ward pineries being unusually artistic. Kalkaska, Mich., Nov. 19—The old landmark, known as the tannery, was destroyed by fire Monday morning. The Pere Marquette had about eleven tons of hard coal stored there but that was saved. Charles Sessions had several thousand feet of lumber and some household goods stored there and these were entirely destroyed, causing a loss of about $300 with no insurance. The building was of no particular value and was uninsured. The structure was built about thirty years ago for a tannery.

Yesterday we were asked if we ever saw a baldheaded woman. No, we never did, nor did we ever see a woman waltzing around town in her shirt sleeves with a cigar in her teeth, and running into every saloon she saw. We have never seen a woman go fishing with a bottle in her pocket, sit on the damp ground all day and come home drunk at night. Nor have we seen a woman yank off her coat and say she could lick any man in town, God bless her she's not built that way.

After a continuous run of more than four months and a half, the canning factory closes down for the season. The company has a few hundred bushels of red kidney beans which may be canned if a profitable market opens for them, but the present outlook is that they will be sold dry. The canning factory has furnished employment for a large number of people who otherwise would have had little to do, and has also consumed large quantities of farm produce, the like of which never was grown here before the establishment of this industry. Gill, the bustling manager, has been too busy of late to stop to eat, but after this week he ought to take time to get outside a square meal or two and try to regain his old weight.—Central Lake Torch.

There is perhaps nothing that interferes more with effective school work than parties given during the school week. If the time actually spent at the party alone be considered, the ill-effects on school work would possibly not be so marked. THE DELUGE

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS, Author of "THE COST OF" (Copyright 1905 by the BOSTON HERALD COMPANY)

DANGER SIGNALS.

At that time I did not myself go over the bills before the legislatures of those states in which I had interests. I trusted that work to my lawyers—and, like every man who ever absolutely trusted an important division of his affairs to another, I was severely punished. One morning my eye happened to light upon a minor paragraph in a newspaper—a list of the "small bills yesterday approved by the governor." In the list was one "defining the power of sundry commissions." Those words seemed to me somehow to spell "joker." But why did I call up my lawyers to ask them about it? It's a mystery to me. All I know is that, busy as I was, something inside me compelled me to drop everything else and hunt that "joker" down.

I got Saxe—then senior partner in Brown, Saxe & Einstein—on the phone, and said: "Just see and tell me, will you, what is the bill defining the power of sundry commissions—the bill the governor signed yesterday?"

"Certainly, Mr. Blacklock," came the answer. My nerves are, and always have been, on the watch for the looks and the tones and the gestures that are just a shade off the natural; and I feel that I do Saxe no injustice when I say his tone was, not a shade, but a full color, off the natural: So I was prepared for what he said when he returned to the telephone. "I'm sorry, Mr. Blacklock, but we seem unable to lay our hands on that bill at this moment."

"Why not?" said I, in the tone that makes an employe jump as if a whip-lash had cut him on the calves.

He had jumped all right, as his voice showed. "It's not in our file," said he. "It's house bill No. 427, and it's apparently not here."

"The hell you say!" I exclaimed. "Why?"

"I really can't explain," he pleaded, and the frightened whine confirmed my suspicion.

"I guess not," said I, making the words significant and suggestive. "And you're in my pay to look after such matters! But you'll have to explain, if this turns out to be serious."

"Apparently our file of bills is complete except that one," he went on. "I suppose it was lost in the mail, and I very stupidly didn't notice the gap in the numbers."

"Stupid isn't the word I'd use," said I, with a laugh that wasn't of the kind that cheers. And I rang off and asked for the state capitol on the "long distance."

Before I got my connection Saxe, whose office was only two blocks away, came bustling in. "The boy has been discharged, Mr. Blacklock," he began.

"What boy?" said I.

"The boy in charge of the bill file—the boy whose business it was to keep the file complete."

"Send him to me, you damned scoundrel," said I. "I'll give him a job. What do you take me for anyway? And what kind of a cowardly braggart are you to disgrace an innocent boy as a cover for your own crooked work?"

"Really, Mr. Blacklock, this is most extraordinary," he expostulated.

"Extraordinary? I call it criminal," I retorted. "Listen to me. You look after the legislation calendars for me, and for Langdon, and for Roebuck, and for Melville, and for half a dozen others of the biggest financiers in the country. It's the most important work you do for us. Yet you, as shrewd and careful a lawyer as there is at the bar, want me to believe you trusted that work to a boy? If you did, you're a damn fool. If you didn't, you're a damn scoundrel. There's no more doubt in my mind than in yours which of those horns has you sticking on it."

"You are letting your quick temper get away with you, Mr. Blacklock," he deprecated.

"Stop lying!" I shouted. "I know you had been doing some skulduggery when I first heard your voice on the telephone. And if I needed any proof, the meek way you've taken my abuse would furnish it, and to spare."

Just then the telephone bell rang and I got the right department and asked the clerk to read house bill 427. It contained five short paragraphs. The "joker" was in the third, which gave the state canal commission the right "to institute condemnation proceedings, and to condemn, and to abolish, any canal not exceeding 30 miles in length and not a part of the connected canal system of the state."

When I hung up the receiver I was so absorbed that I had forgotten Saxe was waiting. He made some slight sound. I wheeled on him. I needed a vent. If he hadn't been there I should have smashed a chair. But there was he—and I kicked him out of my private office and would have kicked him out through the anteroom into the outer hall, had he not gathered himself together and run like a sack-rabbit.

Since that day I have done my own calendar watching.

My lawyers had sold me out; I, fool that I was, had not guarded the only weak plate in my armor against my companions—the plate over my back, to shed assassin thrusts. Roebuck and Langdon between them owned the governor; he owned the canal commission; my canal, which gave me access to tide-water for the product of my Manasquale mines, was as good as closed. I no longer had the whip-hand in National Coal. The others could sell me out and take two-thirds of my fortune, whenever they liked—for of what use were my mines with no outlet now to any market, except the outlets the coal crowd owned?

As soon as I had thought the situation out in all its bearings, I realized that there was no escape for me now, that whatever chance to escape I might have had was closed by my uncovering to Saxe and kicking him. But I did not regret; it was worth the money it would cost me. Besides, I thought I saw how I could later on turn it to good account. A sensible man never makes fatal errors. Whatever he does is at least experience, and can also be used to advantage. If Napoleon hadn't been half dead at Waterloo, I don't doubt he would have used its disaster as a means to a great victory.

When I walked into Mowbray Langdon's office, I was like a thoroughbred exercising on a clear frosty morning, and my smile was as fresh as the flower in my buttonhole. I thrust out my hand at him. "I congratulate you," said I.

He took the proffered hand with a questioning look.

"On what?" said he. It is hard to tell from his face what is going on in his head, but I think I guessed right when I decided that Saxe hadn't yet warned him.

"I have just found out from Saxe," I pursued, "about the canal bill."

"What canal bill?" he asked.

"That puzzled look was a mistake, Langdon," said I, laughing at him. "When you don't know anything about a matter, you look merely blank. You overdid it; you've given yourself away."

He shrugged his shoulders. "As you please," said he. As you please was his favorite expression; a stereotyped irony, for in dealing with him, things were never as you pleased, but always as he pleased.

"Next time you want to dig a mine under anybody, I went on, "don't hire Saxe. Really I feel sorry for you—to have such a clever scheme messed by such an ass."

"If you don't mind, I'd like to know what you're talking about," said he, with his patient, bored look.

"As you and Roebuck own the governor, I know your little law ends my little canal."

"Still I don't know what you're talking about," drawled he. "You are always suspecting everybody of double-dealing. I gather that this is another instance of your infirmity. Really, Blacklock, the world isn't wholly made up of scoundrels."

"I know that," said I. "And I will even admit that its scoundrels are seldom made up wholly of scoundrelism. Even Roebuck would rather do the decent thing, if he can do it without endangering his personal interests. As for you—I regard you as one of the dearest men I ever knew—outside of business. And even there, I believe you'd keep your word, as long as the other fellow kept his."

"Thank you," said he, bowing ironically. "This flattery makes me suspect you've come to get something."

"On the contrary," said I. "I want to give something. I want to give you my coal mines."

"I thought you'd see that our offer was fair," said he. "And I'm glad you have changed your mind about quarreling with your best friends. We can be useful to you, you to us. A break would be silly."

"That's the way it looks to me," I assented. And I decided that my sharp talk to Roebuck had set them to estimating my value to them.

"Sam Ellersly," Langdon presently remarked, "tells me he's campaigning hard for you at the Travelers. I hope you'll make it. We're rather a slow crowd; a few men like you might stir things up."

"I am always more than willing to give others credit for good sense and good motives. It was not vanity, but this disposition to credit others with sincerity and sense, that led me to believe him, both as to the coal mat-successfully than most," said I.

"Everybody advertises, each one adapting his advertising to the needs of his enterprises, as far as he knows how."

"That's true enough," he confessed. "But there are enterprises and enterprises. You know."

"You can tell 'em, Sam," said I. "I don't believe to be true, and that when any of my followers lose on one of my tips, I've lost on it, too. For I play my own tips—and that's more than can be said of my 'financier' in this town."

After a while I dragged in the subject. "One thing I am and will do to get myself in line for that club," I said, like a seal on promenade. "I'm sick of the crowd I travel with—the men and the women: I feel it's about time I settled down. I've got a fortune and establishment that needs a woman to set it off. I can make some woman happy. You don't happen to know any nice girls—the right sort, I mean?"

"Not many," said Sam. "You'd better go back to the country where you came from, and get her there. She'd be eternally grateful, and her head wouldn't be full of mercenary nonsense."

"Excuse me!" exclaimed I. "It'd turn her head. She'd go clean crazy. She'd plunge in up to her neck—and not being used to these waters, she'd make a show of herself, and probably drown, dragging me down with her, if possible."

Sam laughed. "Keep out of marriage, Matt," he advised, "so obdurate to my real point as he wanted me to believe. 'I know the kind of girl you've got in mind. She'd marry you for your money, and she'd never appreciate you. She'd see in you only the lack of the things she's been taught to lay stress on.'"

"For instance?"

"I couldn't tell you any more than I could enable you to recognize a person you'd never seen by describing him."

"Ain't I a gentleman?" I inquired. He laughed, as if the idea tickled him. "Of course," he said. "Of course."

"Ain't I got as proper a country place as there is a-going? Ain't my apartment in the Willoughby a peach? Don't I give as elegant dinners as you ever sat down to? Don't I dress right up to the Piccadilly latest? Don't I act all right—know enough to keep my feet off the table and my knife out of my mouth? All true enough; and I so crude then that I hadn't a suspicion what a flat contradiction of my pretensions and beliefs about myself the very words and phrases were."

"You're right in it, Matt," said Sam. "But—well—you haven't traveled with our crowd, and they're shy of strangers, especially as—as energetic a sort of stranger as you are. You're too sudden, Matt—too dazzling—too—"

"Too shiny and new?" said I, beginning to catch his drift. "That'll be looked after."

VII. BLACKLOCK GOES INTO TRAINING.

This brings me to the ugliest story my enemies have concocted against me. No one appreciates more thoroughly than I that, to rise high, a man must have his own efforts seconded by the flood of vituperation that his enemies send to overwhelm him and which washes him far higher than he could hope to lift himself. So I do not here refer to any attack on me in the public prints; I think of them only with amusement and gratitude. The story that rankles is the one these foes of mine set creeping, like a snake under the fallen leaves, everywhere, anywhere, unseen, without a trail. It has been whispered into every ear—and it is, no doubt, widely believed—and I deliberately put old Bromwell Ellersly "in a hole," and there tortured him until he consented to try to compel his daughter to marry me.

It is possible that, if I had thought of such a devilish device, I might have tried it—is not all fair in love? But there was no need for my cunning my brains to carry that particular fortification on my way to what I had fixed my will upon. Bromwell Ellersly came to me of his own accord.

I suppose the Ellerslys must have talked me over in the family circle. However this may be, my acquaintance with her father began with Sam's asking me to lunch with him. "The governor has heard me talk of you so much," said he, "that he is anxious to meet you."

I offered to help him, and I did help him. Is there any one, knowing anything of the facts of life, who will ensure me when I admit that I—with deliberation—simply tided him over, did not make for him and present to him a fortune? What chance should I have had, if I had been so absurdly generous to a man who deserved nothing but punishment for his selfish and bigoted mode of life? I took away his worst burdens; but I left him more than he could carry without my help. And it was not until he had appealed in vain to all his social friends to relieve him of the necessity of my aid, not until he realized that I was his only hope of escaping a sharp comedown from luxury to very modest comfort in a flat somewhere—not until then did his wife send me an invitation to dinner. And I had not so much as hinted that I wanted it.

Couldn't Wait So Long. "Will I send the goods home?" asked the girl behind the counter in the big department store.

"No, I'll take them with me," replied the purchaser; "but as I'm in a hurry you may send the change home, if you please."—Yonkers Statesman.

AWFUL SUFFERING.

From Dreadful Pains from Wound on Foot—System All Run Down—Miraculous Cure by Cuticura.

"Words cannot speak highly enough for the Cuticura Remedies. I am now seventy-two years of age. My system had been all run down. My blood was so bad that blood poisoning had set in. I had several doctors attending me, so finally I went to the hospital where I was laid up for two months. My foot and ankle were almost beyond recognition. Dark blood flowed out of wounds in many places and I was so debilitated that I thought surely my last chance was slowly leaving me. As the foot did not improve, you can readily imagine how I felt. I was simply disgusted and tired of life. I stood this pain, which was dreadful, for six months, and during this time I was not able to wear a shoe and not able to work. Some one spoke to me about Cuticura. The consequences were I bought a set of the Cuticura Remedies of one of my friends who was a druggist, and the praise that I gave after the second application is beyond description; it seemed a miracle for the Cuticura Remedies took effect immediately. I washed the foot with the Cuticura Soap before applying the Ointment and I took the Resolvent at the same time. After two weeks' treatment my foot was healed completely. People who had seen my foot during my illness and who have seen it since the cure, can hardly believe their own eyes. Robert Schoenhauer, Newburg, N. Y., August 21, 1905."

"OLD MAN" LIBBY'S DEER. Remarkable Story of Killing Told by Blind Guide.

"Old Man" Libby is one of the best known guide camp keepers in the state of Maine, and for years has been totally blind. Four years ago he carried into Bangor the carcass of a deer, and had it taken to the office of Fish and Game Commissioner Carpenter. Libby expressed the wish that the venison be given to the Bangor hospital. Carpenter wanted to know who killed the deer, and was much surprised when Libby claimed to have been the destroyer.

"Why, Libby," he asked, "how did you, a blind man, manage to kill this deer?"

"Wal, you see," drawled Libby, "I was standing outside my tent yesterday morning, ax in hand, just going to chop a little wood, when I felt this durned critter rushing onto me. I thought 'twas a bar, so I hauled off and soaked him."

The commissioner always has a grin on tap when telling this story, for he has doubts as to who killed the deer.

KAISER'S DIGNITY WAS HURT. Offended by Shoes of One of His Consular Agents.

The enthusiasm of the good Norwegians for Queen Alexandra is the more remarkable as, in the matter of crowned heads, they have some excuse for affecting to be blasé.

The German emperor, of course, is a regular frequenter of the fjords, but he allows no liberties to be taken with his sacred person. On one occasion when the Hohenzollern anchored off a little town, the German consular agent, as in duty bound, went aboard to pay his respects; but, not being possessed of a uniform, it did not appear to him necessary to appear at midday in the comic opera kit of evening dress on board the vessel.

He therefore presented himself in an attire that compromised the official correctness of frock coat by brown boots. His majesty, however, resented the informality, called the attention of the consular general at Bergen to the solecism, and announced his intention of ceasing to honor the place with any further visit.—London P. His Monument.

There has been set in a cemetery in Orwell, Oswego county, N. Y., as the memorial of a lumberman, framed of granite and marble, the exact reproduction in miniature of a sawmill in the town of Redfield, which was owned by the deceased.

On the scale of an inch to the foot, the mill is complete in every detail, being provided with saws, carriages, rollers to carry off the sawed lumber, skids with three logs placed thereon ready to roll on the carriage car, which is loaded with lumber.

So one man has escaped from the conventional angel with outspread wings, the recumbent sheep, and all the rest.—Springfield Republican.

Veteran Driver Has Record.

James H. Johnson of Washington, who drove the remaining members of the Davis family at the funeral of Mrs. Jefferson Davis, in Richmond, has driven the Davis carriage at the funerals of each of the members who have gone before. He drove at the funerals of Jefferson Davis and Miss Winnie Davis. He has never missed attending a Confederate reunion since the war.

INSOMNIA CURED.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored Wrecked Nerves to Normal Condition and Good Health Followed.

The sufferer from sleeplessness too often resorts to habit-forming drugs to order to secure the coveted rest. But sleep obtained by the use of opiates is not refreshing and the benefit is but temporary at best.

Mrs. H. A. Fletcher, of 59 Flodgett street, Manchester, N. H., is living evidence of the truth of this statement. She says: "I received a shock of an apoplectic character. It was so severe that the sight of my right eye was affected, causing me to see objects double. I was confined to my bed about four weeks, at one time being told by the doctor that I could not get well. When I could leave my bed I was in such a nervous state that I could not sleep at night. I would get up and sit on a chair until completely tired out and then go back to bed and sleep from exhaustion."

"I had been under the doctor's care for six weeks when my sister, Mrs. Loveland, of Everett, persuaded me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I began taking the pills with the result that I soon experienced relief. One night soon after taking them I lay awake only a short time and the next night I rested well. From that time I slept well every night and soon got well and strong. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a number of times, and my niece has taken them for weak nerves and poor blood and found them very beneficial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many severe nervous troubles, headache, neuralgia and sciatica as well as diseases of the blood such as anemia, rheumatism, pale and sallow complexion and many forms of weakness. All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Freaks in Animal World.
Unlike most animals horses have no eyebrows and have no minus eyelids. Consequently the eyes of the latter cannot be shut and a thin membranous substance covers them when asleep. The eye of the owl is also very peculiar, seeing that it is immovably fixed in its socket and cannot stir in any direction. To compensate for this seeming disadvantage it can turn its head almost completely around without moving its body.
If you were to keep a frog's mouth open many minutes it would soon die, as owing to its peculiar construction it can only breathe with the mouth closed. On the other hand, fishes are compelled to keep opening and closing their mouths in order to give their respiratory organs full play.
A curious fact about the eel is that it has less life in its head than its tail; consequently when killing an eel the fisherman smashes its tail. It also has two hearts. Snakes usually have their teeth in the head, but one variety in Africa, whose principal food is, eggs, is provided with a substitute for them in its stomach.

Found Grocer Was Honest.
"Do you know," a pretty bride of three months said to a friend the other day, "I think all these jokes about young wives having so much trouble with butchers and grocers and being cheated and all that is just too foolish."
"Then I presume you are getting on all right with yours, dear?" her friend inquired.
"Why, of course I am! Anybody would if they would just deal at a reliable place," the young wife declared.
"Now, there is my grocer," she continued. "He is just as obliging and thoughtful as can be. The other day I ordered a dozen oranges and when they came I found there were but 11 in the bag, so when I went to the store again I told him so.
"Why, yes, ma'am," he said. "I know there were. I had put in a dozen, but I noticed that one of them was spoiled and of course I couldn't send you any but the best goods, so I took it out."
"Now, don't you think that was nice in him to be so thoughtful and honest?" she concluded.—Harper's Week.

Little Boy—Are not all the words used to be found in the dictionary, papa?
"No, my child; new words are coined every day."
"And what is the last word, papa?"
"I don't know, dear. Ask your mother; she always has the last word."

A MISSOURI WOMAN

Tells a Story of Awful Suffering and Wonderful Relief.

Mrs. J. B. Johnson, of 603 West Hickman street, Columbia, Mo., says: "Following an operation two years ago, dropsy set in, and my left side was so swollen the doctor said he would have to tap out the water. There was constant pain and a gurgling sensation around my heart, and I could not raise my arm above my head. The kidney action was disordered and passages of the secretions too frequent. On the advice of my husband I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Since using two boxes my trouble has not reappeared. This is wonderful, after suffering two years."

Women at Strenuous Tasks.
On the western coast of the United States, at Monterey, Cal., Mrs. Fish keeps the lamps lighted in the Point Pinos lighthouse. On the eastern coast, at South Portland, Me., Mrs. Gordon earns her living by working as a deep-sea diver. Sprinkled over the country between these two women are thousands of other members of the female sex who deserve to be enrolled as auxiliaries to Mr. Kipling's corps of "Unhairy Gentlemen." And then, from the woman in Utah who is sheriff and hangs murderers, to the woman in Chicago who bosses a gang of Italian street cleaners, he tells the role of women who are engaged in strenuous occupations in the United States. Wherever man has tried to wrest a living from an unwilling nature there woman has also left the impress of her daring exploits.—Technical World.

A Well-Known Remedy.
One of the oldest, safest and most favorably known remedies in the world to-day is Brandreth's Pills—a blood purifier and laxative. Being purely vegetable, they can be used by old or young with perfect safety, and while other remedies require increased doses and finally cease acting altogether, with Brandreth's Pills the same dose always has the same effect, no matter how long they are taken. One or two pills taken each night for a while is the best thing known for any one troubled with constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia or any trouble arising from impurity of the blood.
Brandreth's Pills have been in use for over a century, and are for sale everywhere, plain or sugar-coated.

Workman's Pride at Rest.
Joseph Mowbray, who was building a chimney at the Westwood church, Kalkaska, having raised it to the height of 25 feet, and ran out of brick descended to the ground. He had scarcely done so when lightning struck the church. The point where Joe would have been, had he remained, was that at which the bolt did some of its worst work. Joe feels grateful for being out of brick, as had he been killed at work he would always have thought Providence dissatisfied with the job, and Joe prides himself that no man this side of Jordan can build a better chimney than he.—Detroit News.

Cosmopolitan America.
Is there a type of "average American workman?" Dr. Arthur Shadwell, an Englishman, author of "Industrial Efficiency," tells how in one of the older towns of Massachusetts he witnessed a procession of cotton operatives on strike. "They were marshaled by nationalities with a curious effect. The different types, cheek by jowl, stood out in vivid contrast—the French, the familiar English, the Celtic, the Scandinavian, the Slav, the small Portuguese and the swarthy Greek. Such a sight can be seen nowhere else. It brought before my eyes in one living picture the amazing cosmopolitanism of American labor and made me think with a smile of that convenient abstraction but almost mythical person of whom we have heard so much—the 'average American workman.'"

COFFEE IMPORTERS
Publish a Book About Coffee.
There has been much discussion as to Coffee and Postum lately, so much in fact that some of the coffee importers and roasters have taken to type to promote the sale of their wares and check if possible the rapid growth of the use of Postum Food Coffee.
In the coffee importers' book a chapter is headed "Coffee as a Medicine," and advocates its use as such.
Here is an admission of the truth, most important to all interested.
Every physician, knows, and every thoughtful person should know, that habitual use of any "medicine" of the drug-stimulant type of coffee or whiskey quickly causes irritation of the tissues and organs stimulated and finally sets up disease in the great majority of cases if persisted in. It may show in any one of the many organs of the body and in the great majority of cases can be directly traced to coffee in a most unmistakable way by leaving off the active irritant—coffee—and using Postum Food Coffee for a matter of ten days. If the result is relief from nervous trouble, dyspepsia, bowel complaint, heart failure, weak eyes, or any other malady set up by a poisoned nervous system, you have your answer with the accuracy of a demonstration in mathematics.

Boston Society Fad.
Dealers in pet stock say that suburban residents of Boston are adopting as the latest fad the raising of game chickens. The stately carriage and brilliant plumage of these belligerent fowls make them valuable for decorative purposes on the lawn to people who would, however, never dream of putting their combative qualities to the test. The dealers are prophesying that before long the old-time fancy of keeping gamecocks chained with silver chains on the lawns of country houses will be revived.—Boston Record.

FEARFUL PAINS

SUGGESTIONS HOW WOMEN MAY FIND RELIEF.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. This is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. When pain exists something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.
Thousands of women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes woman's special pains and irregularities.
It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.
The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.
Miss Nellie Holmes, of 540 N. Division Street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"Your medicine is indeed an ideal medicine for women. I suffered misery for years with painful periods, headaches, and bearing-down pains. I consulted two different physicians but failed to get any relief. A friend from the east advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so, and no longer suffer as I did before. My periods are natural; every ache and pain is gone, and my general health is much improved. I advise all women who suffer to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."
Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Lorimore, N. D., writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain had I only known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sooner; for I have tried so many remedies without help.
"I dreaded the approach of every month, as it meant so much pain and suffering for me, but after I had used the Compound two months I became regular and natural and am now perfectly well and free from pain. I am very grateful for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."
Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.
The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of American women.
When women are troubled with pain or irregularities, displacements or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.
Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

Success in the Gulf Coast Country

Here is an example of what YOU could do.
$500 Realized from One Acre of Onions.

Mr. Geo. Hoffman, of Kingsville, Texas, planted early this Spring five acres in carrots. In March, he sold his carrots to Denny & Co., of Chicago, for $5 per crate. His net returns on five acres of carrots were $320 per acre. One acre planted in onions yielded more than 20,000 pounds, for which he received 2 1/2 cents a pound. Result: $500 per acre.

Mr. Hoffman is not a myth, but a real, live, up-to-date farmer; write him at Kingsville and he will tell more about his wonderful success.
Such results may seem beyond belief, but they are facts. You might do as well in the Gulf Coast Country. It has a mild climate; tender vegetables can be raised almost every month in the year. The farmer there puts his crop on the market in Winter and early Spring, when the price is highest. By irrigation he insures himself against crop failure; rivers or artesian wells give a bountiful supply of water. Two and sometimes three crops a year are raised and twenty acres there will make as much as fifty acres in other places.

Don't you think this is better than a one-crop country where your success depends on uncertain weather with irregular rainfall? Come to the Gulf Coast Country and win success as others have done.
Now the land is cheap and you can get it on easy terms. Twenty acres will cost you about $500. The cost of clearing it is about $5 an acre. The cost of water for irrigation varies. You may want an artesian well of your own; you may get water from some river; or you may get it from your neighbor. But the cost is not great and those who have tried it have netted from the first crop, a sum which has paid all expenses, and left a good surplus.

It is not only a good place to make money, but it is also a good place for a home. The sunny, mild winters are delightful and the summers are tempered by the cool breezes from the Gulf.

A THANKSGIVING WISH.

You couldn't wish for anything better than one of our handsome Suits or Overcoats ready for Thanksgiving Day. It's a wish easily gratified too, for our prices are within the reach of the most conservative buyers.

The New Shadow Plaid $12.50

We not only give our customers the very best values obtainable but we are continually placing before them the most up-to-date articles in the clothing line, at such remarkable low prices for these new and exclusive styles, which you must know are always sold only by the first class merchant tailors and at unreasonably high prices. Fabric is a fine quality soft finished cassimere of quite heavy weight. Is of medium dark gray shade with a broken check or shadow plaid effect. We have had this suit made in double breasted style which is most suitable for the pattern. To make this an exceptional value we have used excellent linings and trimmings and given it special attention to see that not the smallest detail has been slighted in the tailoring and finishing of the different garments. If you want the neatest fitting, best wearing clothes made we have them and at prices that cannot be duplicated by any other concern. Suit ready made $12.50.

Fine Striped Gray Silk Mixed Cassimere $11.00

Men's Four Button Single breasted Sack Suit, made of fine quality gray hair line striped silk mixed cassimere. The greatest value of the season, a pure silk and wool fabric of full heavy weight, finely trimmed and tailored for only $11.00. We challenge any of our competitors to produce a better value for this price. They may quote silk mixed cassimeres, but are they silk mixed, do they really contain silk. This you must look out for as there are many quoted as silk mixtures that are only mercerized cotton. These suits are nicely made with fine mohair, serge body and sateen sleeve lining, good hair cloth and canvas stiffening and are well tailored in every respect. Don't purchase elsewhere. Suit ready made $11.00.

Oxford, Gray, Kersey Overcoat $11.00

Men's Plain, Oxford Gray, Kersey Overcoat. The fabric is of medium weight, has a soft, finished surface, and is a good, durable quality of kersey. A very popular overcoating, dark and smooth enough to be very dressy, yet a shade that will not easily show soil. Made in form fitting style, has black velvet collar, three outside and one inside pocket and is trimmed with a fine quality black venetian body and interline sleeve lining. A well tailored and handsome garment at a very moderate price. Men's Overcoat ready made $11.00.

As Handy Solomon says:--"You can kiss the book on that."
