WILSON.

Fine growing weather.
 School closed on Wednesday in Afton with a short program by the children, in the afternoon.
 Miss Neva Stackus visited relatives in Afton the past week.
 Miss Mabel Shepard spent a few days at her home in this place recently.
 Mrs. Bert Seymour and children of East Jordan are guests at Frank Smith's this week.
 Mrs. Thos. Shepard has been quite ill the past week. Dr. Yarne was summoned by phone Monday evening.
 Chas. Hudkins and family and Miss Lottie Robinson spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Isaman, at Intermediate.
 Pat Hill started for the state of Washington last Monday morning. Two of his sons are already there and they speak very highly of the country.
 The orchards in this vicinity are white with blossoms and if the clerk of the weather will only remember it is June instead of January there will be an abundance of fruit.
 Wilson Grange met in regular session Saturday evening with about 30 members present. 1st and 2nd degrees were conferred on two candidates followed by a short program. During the business meeting it was voted to enlarge the horse sheds, and a committee was appointed to obtain material for same. Next Tuesday was appointed for a bee to begin work on the sheds. Let everyone come that can and assist in this work.

Now don't kick about the weather being too hot for you. Remember what you have had.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative and my Book on either Dyspepsia, the Head, or the Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating the symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, not the Cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by Warner's Pharmacy.

Michigan Crop Report.

The extremely cold and freezing weather during the month of May was very severe on all growing crops and retarded planting to such an extent that the acreage of corn, potatoes and sugar beets, given in this report is evidently far below the exact figures, as many correspondents report much planting yet to be done. The condition of corn and potatoes is difficult to determine as only a very small percent of these crops has appeared above ground.

The determination of the voters of Menominee county to establish a school of agriculture within their county, taking advantage of the privilege given through an act of the present legislature, will give the people of Michigan an opportunity to note the results of that experiment from a home interest point of view. It is fortunately true of Menominee county, too, that its problems and unknown quantities in an agricultural way directly represent many of the counties of the northern section of the state to whom the results and determinations of its county agricultural school will be of direct importance and practical value.

EVENTS NOTED

LONG SESSION OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE TO END JUNE 25.

LONGEST SESSION EVER.

Grand Rapids Home Ready to Be Probed—Fished the Girl Out—A Physician on the Down Grade.

Preparing to Go Home.

The senate has passed the house resolution providing for ceasing legislative work on June 19, making it one of the longest sessions of the Michigan legislature ever held.

Soldiers' Home Ready.

The board of managers of the soldiers' home have issued a formal statement in response to the resolution passed in the legislature providing for a committee to investigate the expenditure of veterans' money at the home.

A Reasonable Expiration.

Henry James is credited with the remark that he "never heard an American woman say 'thank you.'" We can lecture, says Chicago Tribune, that on one or more occasions Mr. James has risen in a crowded car and offered a seat to some woman who did not say "thank you" for the reason that she recognized him by his printed portraits and knew she would not have time to say "Sensible in a high degree, although it should be observed, perhaps, that in the domain of the intellectual there should not be needed the propulsive effect of a motive as a stimulus to the process of realization in the abstract, apart from an implied obligation willingly assumed, and not wholly conventional, even though it may be the result of unconscious volition, or to express the thought in terms less vague and elusive, and frankly recognizing, in the background, of consciousness, the simulacrum of an anticipated quid pro quo—dismissing all this, I say, as shadow and unreal, and subjecting the ponderable residuum to such analysis as we may, with such crude materials as we have at hand, for in the realm of the imagination there will be found the crucible of the alchemist, quite as real and substantial, albeit composed of substances not-existent on the material plane," etc.

Now Comes Divorce.

Wm. F. Pack, former Michigan legislator and member of a Michigan regiment in the war with Spain, seeing service in Cuba and afterward going to the Philippines in the regular service and becoming governor of the province of Benguet, is defendant in a suit for divorce brought by his wife in Centerville. An attempt was made to keep the case quiet, but it is learned that the charges are cruelty. Pack will not contest the case, as he is now in Frisco on his way back to the Philippines, after spending three months at home recovering from a serious illness.

Not So Bad Weather.

Contrary to the opinions of most people this weather is not so bad after all. Many can recall that in 1897 Michigan experienced a killing frost on May 31. While crops in the vicinity of Detroit did not suffer to a great extent further north there was serious damage. Ephraim Abbott, a resident of River Rouge, who has seen 93 winters, springs, summers and falls go by, says that he has never yet seen the time when the people of Michigan did not have ample time in which to gather their crops before the frosts set in in the fall, no matter how late the spring.

Wedding and Death.

Within 15 hours after her marriage, Mrs. Homer Decker died at her home in Lansing. Mrs. Decker, who was 41 years of age and a widow, was married Monday night. There was a merry wedding. The excitement of the occasion and the preparations for the wedding had undermined the constitution of the bride, who was taken sick shortly after the ceremony and died Tuesday. Besides her husband, Mrs. Decker is survived by a daughter 7 years old.

Some of the justices of the lower courts in New York when the wearing of gowns on the bench has lately been introduced, are rebelling against them.

One of the solemn judges is quoted as exclaiming, "that he'd be darned if he would submit to it, or words to that effect. And yet the judicial gown is a rather imposing garment, and it sometimes covers less becoming array. Let their honors submit to it, suggests Troy Times, and thank goodness that they don't have to wear wigs!

The average condition of wheat is 70, according to the June crop report issued by the state department. This is 4 per cent lower than one month ago, but it shows that the entire crop will not be lost as was feared. It is estimated that 8 per cent of the wheat sown last fall was winter killed, and that 4 per cent has been destroyed by the Hessian fly.

The condition of rye is reported at 81 per cent, corn at 73, oats at 75, meadows at 69 and potatoes at 2. The acreage of potatoes is estimated at 91 per cent, sugar beets at 89 per cent, barley at 85 per cent and corn at 9 per cent.

"Call of the Wild."

In a wild and almost impenetrable swamp one, and one-half miles south of the village of Suttons Bay, Leelanau county, in the midst of a thickly populated section dotted with well-tilled farms and only twelve miles from a city of 12,000 inhabitants, Jack London's "Call of the Wild" has been duplicated. In this case, however, the dog is a female, the mother of six puppies and all have "reverted to type."

How long ago this dog left the haunts of man and took up her abode in the wilds of the swamp is not known, but it must have been over a year. Four months ago she was noticed, and with her were seven puppies that were several months old. Since then the pack has been frequently seen, and on several occasions they have given battle to men, and it was only by strenuous efforts that they escaped being torn to pieces by the sharp teeth.

A Fair Slice.

Attorney-General Bird expects, now that the legislature has given him full authority to do so, to begin suit to rearrange the boundary line between Wisconsin and Michigan. As fixed back in the '30s, the boundary is declared on the part of Michigan to be incorrect through an error by the engineer in charge, detailed by the war department to make the survey. Because of the error, Wisconsin now holds a few hundred square miles said to rightfully belong to Michigan.

Documentary Information.

That has come to the attorney-general's department is correct, then the attorney-general feels that Michigan has a good case. It is probable that the proceedings will be by suit in the United States supreme court and that preliminary to the trial of it, the state will have a survey made under the instructions laid down for the original survey.

Doctor Suicides.

Edwin F. Kressler, formerly of Scottville, Mich., hanged himself in his room in Milwaukee after writing the following letter to Senator S. M. Marsh, who is pushing a medical registration bill in the legislature: "May my untimely death be regarded on those who drove me to it; I have been persecuted by the attorney for the state board of medical examiners, robbed of my certificates of registration and not being financially able to fight in the courts, nothing remains for me but the clothesline."

A Trusty Escapes.

William W. Hawley, alias William Smith, the trusty who escaped from the Jackson prison farm Sunday night, has not yet been located. His defection caused the prison officials to lose faith in "trusty" human nature. Hawley has worked outside for some years, and as he had but a short time to serve, it was thought that he would be found in some saloon and all were searched, but nothing was found of Hawley. He made good his escape, apparently. He had about $150 in his credit on the prison ledgers, and draws a pension of $10 a month. Now he will experience difficulty in giving an address to which Uncle Sam's dollars may be sent.

White Plague Victims.

Ellen Clark, aged 44 years, of Battle Creek, died Friday of tuberculosis. During the past year her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, has silently watched the entire family pass away from this disease. First the father died, then his son Robert, a daughter, then son, William, and finally Ellen.

STATE NEWS BRIEFS.

Harry Darling's dog bit Miss Hanna Granger, aged 60, of Saginaw, just above the ankle, and she has recovered $500 damages.

At a special election Dowagiac voted $25,000 bonds for public improvements, the amount to be used to induce factories to locate there.

The San Jose scale has ravaged fruit trees all through Birmingham and vicinity. One orchard of 5,000 trees is being uprooted and burned.

Eaton Rapids voted at a special election to bond for $15,000 for the construction of a brick pavement. Property owners benefited will put up $45,000.

While peaches have been frosted and affected by other things that hinder a good crop, and strawberries are so late that they may not mature at all, there is promise of a great crop of pears round and about St. Joseph. Apple orchards are also looking their best.

Insurance Companies Affected.

Insurance companies and those carrying large fire risks in Michigan are deeply interested in a decision of the supreme court which prohibits the use of the so-called co-insurance rider in policies. The decision will necessitate rewriting a large number of policies and compels companies to abandon the use of the rider. Ever since the enactment of the so-called anti-company co-insurance law of Michigan in 1895, fire insurance companies have been using in this state the following percentage value clause: "In consideration of a reduced rate of premium it is hereby agreed that in case of loss this company will pay only such proportion of the loss as the sum hereby insured bears to 50 per cent or other agreed rate of the value of the property insured, but in no case shall this company be liable to a greater proportion of any loss than the amount hereby insured shall bear to the whole insurance whether valid or not." The anti-co-insurance law prohibited a requirement that the property owner be compelled to carry any specified amount of insurance. The above clause was considered valid by successive commissioners of insurance because it made no such requirement, although by its terms the property owner agreed to carry a portion of the risk himself. The legality of this clause and ruling was recently brought into question and a case made to secure a determination by the supreme court in the case of the attorney general on the relation of the Michigan Lubricator company vs. the commission of insurance. Commissioner Barry is promptly notifying the companies operating in Michigan of this decision and warning them against the future use of the clause above quoted, or any similar clause, as well as against using such clause as a basis of settlement under policies "to which they have been attached" previous to this date.

New Idea for State Fair.

Representative Alvord introduced a bill which provides an entirely new governing body for the State Fair association. It authorizes the governor to appoint a director from each congressional district; makes the lieutenant governor ex-officio president and the director of the Michigan experiment station a member, and authorizes the State grange, farmers' club, Dairymen's association, Live Stock association and State Horticultural society to elect one director each, 21 in all. The holdings of the society are limited to $500,000.

Victims of Law Violations.

Game Warden Chapman in his monthly report says that May was remarkable for the large number of vicious and aggravated infractions of the game laws in all sections. The department investigated 193 cases; there were 74 prosecutions and 61 convictions. Deputies have been very active and stringent measures are being devised for violators of fishing laws.

White Ribboners Meet.

Three hundred women, representing 425 local organizations throughout Michigan attended the thirty-third annual convention of the Woman's Temperance union here. The meetings began with the annual address of the president, Mrs. E. L. Calkins, of Kalamazoo. Reports of the officers show the membership in the state is now nearly 10,000.

Salaries Bill Passed.

The bill providing a salary of $2,500 for the deputy auditor general and deputy secretary of state, has passed the senate, and will be up to Gov. Warner in a few days. The bill increasing the salary of the deputy state treasurer to $2,500, has passed the senate and is in the hands of a house committee.

Silver and Flags for the Michigan.

The senate passed an appropriation of $10,000 for a silver service and flags for the battleship Michigan. The bill includes the appointment of a large commission, which may cause its downfall in the house.

May Was Cold Month.

The records of the state board of health show that last month was the coldest May during the last 28 years. The temperature was six degrees lower than the average for the 28 years.

Changes in Postmasters' Salaries.

Talk of Special Session.

There is more or less talk concerning the possibility of a special session, but Gov. Warner is not yet prepared to say whether or not he will call the legislature together again. In any event the special session would not be called until next year and a great many things might happen before that time. "I have been asked several times," said the governor, "whether I would call a special session if I deemed it advisable and I have answered that I would not hesitate to do so. There are two or three things which I think the legislature should do and if they are left undone the question of convening an extra session will be decided. Under the present primary law it costs $50,000 for each primary election and we must have two, one in June and the other in September. By having one primary day the state would save $50,000. A special session would not cost to exceed $20,000 and on that score it might be a good thing." The boxers say that they are willing to amend the law so as to provide for one primary day, but the administration does not want that amendment unless several others, which they deem necessary can also be secured. The result is that the situation is absolutely deadlocked.

New Bank Chartered.

The comptroller of the currency issued his certificate authorizing the Vassar National bank, of Vassar, Mich., to commence business with a capital of $25,000. Frank Hellerick is president, Ewing H. Knight vice president and George D. Clarke cashier.

Bank Increases Capital Stock.

Amended articles of incorporation of the Dime Savings bank, of Detroit, have been filed with the state banking department. The bank has increased its capital stock to $500,000.

Twenty-nine People Killed and Forty Injured.

Twenty-nine known dead and 40 persons injured constitute the list of casualties resulting from storms of wind and rain which swept over southern Illinois and Indiana and Central Kentucky Friday night and Saturday. These fatal visitations came in the shape of cloudbursts, high winds and electrical disturbances. The property damage is many thousands of dollars. Houses were swept away, bridges demolished and thousands of acres of growing crops destroyed.

Gradyville, Ky., was the worst sufferer. A cloudburst caused the brook to deluge that village of 175 persons last night, and 21 persons were drowned or crushed by falling houses. In New Miner, Ill., a tornado this morning killed five persons and injured six others.

In York, Ill., three were killed and 20 injured by a tornado. In Duquoin, Ill., many houses were blown down in the outskirts of the town and four persons were injured.

A Mighty Conflict.

A mighty conflict has just begun in San Francisco. It is a war between capital and labor. Conditions resemble those in the nation about the time of the firing on Fort Sumter. A great issue has been dalled with and temporized with until the battle has been joined.

San Francisco is suffering from over-capitalization in every line. Labor has formed itself into a trust, which is over-capitalized. The cost of rebuilding the fallen city has been altogether excessive. Material dealers have been forced to lower prices within the last two days.

The next step is to squeeze the water out of the stock of the labor trust. There is no indication that labor will yield peacefully. Even with the strike of 12,000 iron workers settled, there are now 8,000 men on strike in San Francisco. Indications are there will be many thousands more. With violence and bloodshed as an incident, and that the progress of the city will be stopped until this great issue has been settled. Building is practically at a standstill.

HARRY ORCHARD CONFESSES TO CHAIN OF AWFUL CRIMES

Mayer of Gov. Steunenberg Takes Stand in Haywood Trial and Relates Bloody Tale—Alleges Miners' Leaders Were Instigators.

VICTIMS MARKED FOR DEATH AT ORCHARD'S HANDS.

FRED BRADLEY, retired mine official, San Francisco; blown half way across street and maimed for life by bomb concealed by Orchard under doorstep; also object of poison plot. Motive, revenge.

SHERMAN BELL, adjutant-general of Colorado national guard, Denver; waylaid by Orchard and other assassins who sought his life; escaped. Motive, revenge for activity in putting down strike lawlessness.

JUSTICE GABBERT of Supreme court of Colorado, Denver; bomb placed in his pathway exploded by another man, who was blown to pieces. Motive, decisions against Moyer.

GOV. PEABODY of Colorado, Denver; bomb placed in front of his home to kill him by Orchard failed to explode by accident. Motive, upholding law in strikes.

DAVID MOFFATT, president of First National bank of Denver; Adams and Orchard tracked him with guns, but he escaped. Motive, supposed activity on side of mine owners.

JUDGE GODDARD, Denver. Motive, declared eight-hour bill unconstitutional.

FRANK STEUNENBERG, former governor of Idaho; Caldwell. Blown to pieces by bomb placed at gate of home by Orchard.

Boise, Idaho.—Alfred Horsley, alias Harry Orchard; the actual assassin of Frank Steunenberg, went on the stand Wednesday as a witness against William D. Haywood, and made public confession of a long chain of brutal, revolting crimes, done, he said, at the instigation and for the pay of the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners.

An undertaking by the special prosecutors for the state that they would, by later proof and connection, legitimize his testimony opened the way like a floodgate to the whole diabolical story and throughout the entire day Orchard went on from crime recital to crime recital, each succeeding one seemingly more revolting than those that had come before.

Tells of Revolting Crimes.

Orchard confessed that as a member of the mob that wrecked the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill in the Coeur d'Alenes he lighted one of the fuses that carried fire to the giant explosion; confessed that he set the death trap in the Vindicator mine at Cripple Creek that blew out the lives of Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck; confessed that because he had not been paid for his first attempt at violence in the Vindicator mine he had been treacherous to his associates by warning the managers of the Florence & Cripple Creek railway that there was a plot to blow up their trains; confessed that he cruelly fired three charges of buckshot into the body of Detective Lyte Gregory, of Denver, killing him instantly; confessed that for days he stalked Gov. Peabody about Denver, waiting a chance to kill him; confessed that he and Steve Adams set and discharged the mine under the depot at Independence that instantly killed 14 men, and confessed that, failing in an attempt to poison Fred Bradley, of San Francisco, he blew him and his house up with a bomb of gelatin.

And he has more brutal crimes to tell that will bring his bloody career down to its end at Caldwell, where with a great bomb he killed Gov. Steunenberg. These will come Thursday, for he is to resume the stand when the district court sits again.

Crowd Sickened by Recital.

The story was told to a tense, nervous, rigid crowd that watched with staring eyes for every move and word of the confessing witness; a crowd that was sickened and weary of its disgusting details long before James H. Hawley, pleading illness of himself at three o'clock in the afternoon, secured adjournment for the day.

Orchard retained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand, and if he suffered much he did not show it. His eyes met those of Haywood several times and the two gazed fixedly at each other.

There were a few preliminaries as to Horsley's birthplace and real name and his first days in the North Idaho cessful attempt at the Vindicator mine country, and then Hawley led him down to the destruction of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine. Horsley said that W. F. Davis, later the president of the union of the Western Federation of Miners at Cripple Creek, had command of the mob. He told of the seizure of the train, the theft of the giant powder, the attack upon the mines, and concluding, said: "I lit one of the fuses myself."

Destruction of Vindicator Mine.

Horsley then told of his flight into Montana and of various journeys in the western country until he turned up in Cripple Creek in 1902, went to work in the mines and joined the Western Federation of Miners again. The witness told of the plot to blow up the Vindicator mine. He confessed that after the strike began he went down into the mine "high grading," and there discovered a quantity of powder. He reported this to Davis, and there, he said, began the plot to do violence in the mine. He said the first attempt was a failure because the cage man discovered him and his pal and drew their fire, but later a contrivance was successfully fixed by which a discharged pistol set off a bomb and killed Superintendent McCormick and Foreman Beck. Five hundred dollars, he said, was the reward for the murderer.

Then came the journey to Denver, where the witness said he met Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone and entered

INTERESTING POINTS OF ORCHARD'S STORY.

Haywood told me this blowing up of the Vindicator mine was a fine piece of work. Moyer gave me $200 and Haywood paid me $300 for blowing up the mine.

Haywood and Moyer both told me I could not get too fierce to suit them—to go ahead and blow up everything I could think of—to get some of the soldiers if possible.

Moyer and Pettibone wanted to know if I could not work up some scheme to assassinate Governor Peabody of Colorado.

Haywood thought Steve Adams was the best man for the work. Pettibone gave us some sawed-off shotguns and shells loaded with buckshot. We kept after Peabody for three weeks, when Haywood told me to lay off for awhile.

Haywood, Pettibone and Simpkins then wanted something pulled off at Cripple Creek. We planned to blow up the independence depot. The depot was wrecked and twelve or fourteen men killed. The next day Pettibone gave me $200. Adams told me he got $200.

young child and wife in Ontario, fleeing to British Columbia with Hattie Simpson, the wife of another man, and committing bigamy by marrying a third woman at Cripple Creek.

The defense fought the story with a multiplicity of objections and succeeded in heading off an attempt to tell the story of the murder of Arthur Collins at Telluride and in temporarily shutting out the contents of a telegram received and a telegram sent by Orchard after his arrest. But for the rest the state managed to get in the story intact.

Haywood and his kinsfolk listened quietly to the long recital, and about their first show of feeling was one of amusement when Attorney Richardson began his onslaught and brought out Orchard's domestic crimes.

The courtroom was crowded again Thursday, many of the spectators being women.

Orchard's Story Unshaken.

Boise, Idaho.—Counsel for William D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Harry Orchard at both sessions of the trial Friday, and centered their strongest assault on the events beginning with the explosion in the Vindicator mine and ending with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Federation of Miners in Denver. To the extent that traffic with "the outside" in the war of labor and capital in Colorado was discreditable they succeeded in discrediting the witness.

Orchard stood the test and strain very well and held tenaciously to the story he related Wednesday and Thursday.

More crimes, great and small, were added to Orchard's record Friday. The Cripple Creek woman with whom he committed bigamy had three sons; Orchard stole high-grade ore from a neighbor; he stole two cases of powder from the Vindicator mine; he stole powder to make one of the bombs thrown into the Vindicator coal pits, and he told a lie.

Clings to His Story.

The defense endeavored in various ways to throw the shadow of doubt and improbability around the whole Vindicator story and the alleged connection of W. F. Davis and William Easterly with this affair and the circumstances under which Orchard testified he met Moyer and Haywood and was paid for the commission of the crime, and to discredit Orchard's story, that he was sent back to Cripple Creek with unlimited credit and orders to commit any act of violence that he cared to. They confronted Orchard with Easterly and Owney Barnes and paved the way for the contradiction by them of the story told by Orchard, and several times during the day paved the way for the controverting of his testimony on material points.

HARRY ORCHARD. (Confessed Murderer of Gov. Steunenberg and Many Others.)

Robert Edeson

Well-known actor who will soon wed Ethel Levy, divorced wife of George Cohan.

WORK OF LION TRAINER.

Trainers Risk Their Lives in Teaching Animals to Perform.

The lion trainer who risks his life in some trick does not receive the applause to which his work entitles him. The public has become so accustomed to witnessing these daring exploits that the danger to the trainer is discounted by the frequency with which these performances are given. The trainer is in peril every time he undertakes to make the lions perform. How often a trainer has been injured or maimed teaching lions to understand and perform some especially difficult trick the public never knows.

There is scarcely one trainer who is not scarred in a dozen places. It is the satisfaction of having succeeded in some difficult task which is recompense for the trainer—the same kind of satisfaction that a sculptor or painter finds after months of efforts in completing a work of art admired by connoisseurs, a life's effort, as it were. The man who never missed a certain lion act because, he said, some day the trainer would be eaten alive and he was going to be on hand when the feast of the lions took place would have another opportunity to indulge his craving were he to witness the performance of Major Crawford of Col. Mundy's White City Wild Animal Arena, especially that feature of his act where he feeds a lion with a piece of meat which he holds between his teeth—a tug-of-war between the man and beast for the coveted titbit. The trainer permits the lion to take hold of one end of a strip of tough meat and he places the other end in his mouth. They pull against each other, swaying backward and forward. Each time the trainer moves forward the lion takes a firmer and shorter hold, until the animal's lips touch his, when the trainer lets go of the meat.

PEOPLE AND PLAYS.

Henry Arthur Jones' new play, which Klav & Erlanger will produce next season, will be called "The Gallican Victory." The plot is said to deal with social and religious questions of the day in a powerful manner.

"Fascinating Flora" is the latest New York production. It is a musical comedy by Messrs. R. N. Burnside, Joseph W. Herbert and Gustave Kerker. The leading members of the cast are Miss Adèle Ritchie and Louis Harrison.

Arthur Bouschler has followed Otis Skinner's lead by producing Henri Lavedan's "The Duel" in London.

"Cleopatra in Judea," a one-act play by Arthur Symonds, has been produced in London at the Bijou theater under the auspices of the English Drama society.

"Brewster's Millions," acclaimed by New Yorkers as an unusually enterprising book play, in which Edward S. Ables and Mary Ryan have the principal parts, will be a summer attraction in Chicago. It was given an English production in London recently, with Gerald Du Maurier as Monty Brewster.

SUCCESS OF JOE WEBER.

Comedian Who Has Made Musical Comedies Popular in America.

Joe Weber is a native of New York city. His first appearance on the stage was at the age of eight years, when he and Lew Fields ran away from home and appeared in a song-and-dance turn at a little theater just off the Bowery for the meager sum of 50 cents each. This gave the two boys just the necessary courage to go ahead at their chosen profession and day and night they were practicing jig steps and dialect to fit themselves for the careers they had mapped out for themselves even at that early age.

Before Mr. Weber was 20 years old he was a half partner in a theatrical enterprise, and before he was 28 was financially interested in and managed personally the affairs of no less than ten traveling companies. It was just 11 years ago that Mr. Weber conceived the idea of making the Music hall at Broadway and Twenty-ninth street, New York, a great popular home for the best classes of theater goers who do not care to be annoyed with heavy plots and problem plays. He succeeded beyond the expectations of anyone. For 11 years there has been an uninterrupted series of great musical plays, farce and burlesque successes at what is now called Weber's theater, and this is the best evidence of the wisdom and foresight of a young man who always knew just what he wanted to do and never failed to fulfill the aim. This season Mr. Weber is doing more acting than he ever has before, for he has the leading part in "Dream City."

Doesn't Mind Being a Boy.

Christie McDonald, who makes an attractive boy, is rather fond of appearing in masculine attire.

"Yes, I like being a boy," she admits frankly, "and if a woman wears men's clothes in the right, clean spirit, I certainly do not think that such apparel hurts her modesty or self-respect. I just loved my boy in 'Mexicana,' and I liked the one in 'The Toreador' so well that I cried the night I played the role for the last time. It was as a boy that I made my first real hit—I was so shy about the costume that I insisted on pinning my cloak so it covered my legs entirely. And, by the way," she went on brightly, "it was in Pittsburgh I had my first star opportunity. I had a third part with Francis Wilson and was understudy for Miss Glaser. One night she was ill, and my chance came! I had such a bad case of stage fright that I couldn't sing—my mouth opened, but no voice came. When it was all over Mr. Wilson said: 'Well, little girl, you were pretty bad! But you have it in you, I know, and we'll give you another try.'"

May Irwin Weds Her Manager. May Irwin, the actress, was married the other day to her manager, Kurt Elsfeld. Miss Irwin, it is said, had been engaged to Elsfeld, who has been associated with her in a professional capacity for several years, for six months. He is 27 years old and is well known to the public. Miss Irwin, whose name off the stage is Mrs. Frederick W. Keller, was born in Whiteby, Ontario, Canada, in 1862. She was married when quite young and has two grown-up sons, one of whom attends the naval academy at Annapolis.

Home-Made Perfume. A pleasant perfume for clothes is made by mixing one ounce each of cloves, caraway seed, nutmeg, cinnamon and Tonquin beans, ground or beaten to a powder. Put this mixture in a number of little bags, and place them among the woolen clothes that are put away for the summer. It is said to be an excellent moth preventive also.

Green Pea Soup. Press through a colander one can of green peas. Add to this two cups of water, one teaspoonful of salt and one heaping tablespoonful of coconut butter. Cook in a double boiler until the butter is melted. Dried peas may be used by first cooking until tender, then pressing through a colander.

Removing Cream Stains. Milk and cream stains can be removed from linen cloths by washing the stains first with cold water and soap, then in the usual manner. Roll in water in which soda, in the proportion of one tablespoonful to three gallons of water, has been dissolved, and

DIVERSITY IN SLEEVES.

As in the Case of Skirts, There Are All Sorts and Conditions.

There is wide diversity in the treatment of fashionable sleeves; in fact, it is a question whether or not they are more varied than skirts, for the best models among the latter are limited to six or seven styles. Not so with sleeves, however, which are as numerous in shape and design almost as the patterns of lace which adorn them. The open bell sleeve is a favorite model for dressy tailored suits, especially as designed for forenoon wear. The opening is usually bound with embroidery, lace or braid and underneath appears the sleeve of the blouse or guimpe.

One of the very smartest of the new sleeves has a long, tight undersleeve with a "loop" extension at the inside, the outer sleeve being formed of rows of lace ruffles. The "loop" is a feature of many of the new sleeves on French frocks and makes a charmingly chic effect.

The fancy panamas used for dressy tailor-mades are so designed that they tempt one to the unique in sleeve effects. They combine the newest colorings with the latest words in patterns, and, in addition, can be well handled by the average tailor. They are sufficiently cool and dust-resisting to make them a reliable fabric for spring and summer, while their cost is by no means extravagant. A gown in black and white striped panama exhibited in the Rue de la Paix this week was sufficiently striking to be picked out from a group of new models for especial admiration. The skirt is cut plain and touches the ground all around; whatever the fashion authorities of New York and London may say about the walking skirt's predominance, it certainly does not go in Paris for dressy occasions. Around the bottom of the skirt in question there is a fold of liberty satin, with a piping of platted foulard on either side of the satin band.

TO TEMPT THE PALATE.

Raisin Pie—One cup raisins, two cups water, two eggs, three teaspoonfuls cornstarch, one and one-half of ginger, juice of two lemons.

Blanc Mange—A pretty effect may be gained by molding white blanc mange in egg cups (arranging the molds in a circle, raising the center one), and garnishing the dish with strawberries and their leaves.

Cream Pie—Bake under crust when convenient. Put in double boiler one pint milk, three tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon tapioca, yolk of one egg; flavor to taste, when thick as custard, and add well beaten white of one egg. When cool add to your crust.

Mocha Tart—Beat seven eggs separately, add one cup of confectioner's sugar, one cup of pulverized graham crackers and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and bake in layers. When cold whip one-half pint of cream; add two tablespoonfuls of coffee extract and the same amount of confectioner's sugar. Place between layers and on top.

Indian Fruit Punch—Boil a pound of sugar, a quart of water and the grated yellow rind of a lemon five minutes and strain. Add a teaspoonful of bitter almond extract, the juice of three lemons, a teaspoonful of vanilla and two cups of strong tea. When very cold add ice and a pint of effervescent or plain water.

Strawberry Pie—Put a good crust on a pie plate and brush it over with the white of an egg. In measuring ingredients allow half as much sugar as berries, and one-fourth as much flour as sugar. Mix sugar and flour together. Arrange berries and sugar in alternate layers on the crust. Cover the top with inch strips of pastry which cross each other and are pressed down where they touch the under crust. Bake in a quick oven.

Fried Onions.

As usually served, fried onions are a delusion and a snare, but cooked in the Kenilworth ranch way it will be a rare thing if they go begging. Cut in slices and soak in milk ten minutes. Then dip in flour and immerse in boiling fat, hot enough to brown instantly. You can not keep the slices whole, after they have fried six or seven minutes. Take out with a skimmer, lay on brown paper a few moments to absorb every suspicion of fat, and serve with steak or veal cutlets. They will be firm and thoroughly delicious.

Entered at the postoffice at East Jordan Michigan, as second class mail matter.

In the Gold Ring Contest.

- Miss Jennie Waterman.
- Miss Rosa Jernette.
- Miss Bessie Light.
- Miss Inga Burg.
- Miss Hazel Cummings.

As some of those receiving the highest number of votes wished to withdraw (expecting perhaps a gold ring from a more agreeable source) the committee found it necessary to make some changes in the list of contestants. It has also been decided to extend the time for voting up to and including Wednesday evening, June 19. The result will be announced at the Firemen's Benefit Thursday June 20th.

Firemen's Benefit—Thursday evening, June 20 the Electric Theatre will be turned over to the local fire department, they to have the entire proceeds of the evening, except $5.00, about one half the cost of operation—as a benefit. A quartette, will sing. An exhibition drill will be given previous to the entertainment. The fire ladders are worthy the support of all and for this occasion there will be no favor, everybody from the Mayor to the Cop must pay a nickel. Should you feel like putting down a quarter or a half and saying "Keep it" we are sure they will do so with thanks. A very fine film service has been secured for this occasion.

PROGRAM.

The Monday and Tuesday program will be announced at the Theatre.

Wednesday—2 p. m., Mothers' and Children's day— and 7 p. m.

Thursday—7 p. m., Firemen's Benefit.

Motion Pictures—

1. The Female Spy.
2. Voyage around the Star Song, Montana.

Always, something good at the Electric Theatre.

Two special attractions have been arranged for the bee and honey department at the State Fair this year. A live bee demonstration will be held daily for the purpose of showing how easily bees may be handled. A man enters a wire screen cage with bare head and arms and illustrates exactly how the bees should be handled. Lectures will also be given from time to time on the care of bees and other subjects of general interest. Bee keepers are invited to meet under the south end of the grand stand on the afternoon of Bee Keepers' Day, where a general discussion of matters of mutual interest will be held.

Ladies interested in needle and fancy work will find an elaborate exhibit in the Administration building at the State Fair this year. Ample space has been provided and every exhibit will be well displayed. A wide range of awards will be given, which is open to residents of Michigan only.

NEW PREMIUM LIST OUT

The Beautiful Michigan Building at the St. Louis World's Fair Now Stands in the Foreground of the Michigan State Fair.

Despite the adverse comment of people who were not in possession of the facts, the State Fair of 1907 will be conducted on the same orderly and broad basis that has characterized the exhibitions held by the Michigan Agricultural Society in the past. Every attraction on the grounds will have to come up to the high standard set by the executive committee of the permit under which it will be given access to the grounds will be revoked. It is the aim of the society to make the great Michigan fair an event to be looked forward to by those enjoying keen and exciting contests of speed, the opportunity to study the products and natural resources of the Wolverine state, and high-class entertainments.

In 1906 the fair was open on Sunday. It was the desire of the management to give those who could not get out to the grounds on week days an opportunity of viewing the exhibits that had been gathered from all parts of this great state. The Sunday program was in keeping with the day. There were sacred concerts, both in the afternoon and evening, while no shows of any kind were operated and all boisterousness was sternly repressed.

The fair of 1907 will be closed upon Sunday. This action was taken, not because the previous openings of the fair on this day had not borne out every contention made by the executive committee as to the advantages that would accrue to those who could not visit the fair at any other time, but simply to silence the criticism that came from many quarters, and to weld into a compact unit those who were giving the society's officers their support.

MICHIGAN BUILDING AT STATE FAIR.

Standing conspicuously in the foreground as one approaches the main entrance to the State Fair grounds, Detroit, is the magnificent structure that entertained thousands of visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition under the name of the Michigan Building. As one views the grounds from the Woodward avenue approach its tall columns, airy verandas, and ornate architecture show the care that was expended by the St. Louis commissioners who selected the plans before its erection in St. Louis.

After the long journey from St. Louis to Detroit, and reconstructed it is even more beautiful and graceful than when erected in the Missouri city. It is now a permanent structure, while when first built the walls were of staff and intended to stand only for a few short months. While at St. Louis the building stood upon a temporary foundation consisting of a few piles, today it is on a solid foundation and there is not the slightest danger of the structure sagging, for no expense was spared when it became a companion structure to the glass and brick buildings nearby.

Early in 1905 the St. Louis fair commissioners offered the building to the officers of the Michigan Agricultural Society for the sum of $1,250. The original contract price had been $16,000 and in addition to this the contractors stood a loss of $4,000 due to the high wages that were paid during the fair. The offer was eagerly accepted, but before the building was finally erected in Detroit the society paid out an additional $17,000.

This year the entire upper floor will be devoted to the art collection which will be under the direction of Prof. A. H. Griffith, director of the Detroit Museum of Art. Part of the lower floor will be devoted to the mineral exhibit, of which Rep. W. J. Galbraith, of Calumet, will be the superintendent. This exhibit promises to be the finest collection of mining products ever shown in the history of the world.

In the Michigan building friends can meet friends, and seek rest on its cool verandas. The views in all directions are worth patiently sitting in a steamer chair and studying as the kaleidoscope of life and activity passes before one's view.

NEW PREMIUM LIST OUT.

Replete with information the 1907 list of premiums that will be given by the Michigan Agricultural Society at the State Fair in Detroit, August 29 to September 6, will be mailed to livestock dealers, farmers and manufacturers early in June. The premium list will be in the form of a 124-page book and will be as attractive as the printer's art can make it.

The book will show a marked increase in the number of prizes that will be given to exhibitors this year, and will contain useful and varied information that will be essential to every person visiting the fair.

Among the illustrations in the book will be likenesses of President Postal, Secretary Butterfield, General Manager Charles Floyd, and General Superintendent A. J. Doherty, of the new grounds, the Michigan building, and the immense exposition hall and horticultural building.

In the book will be the announcement of the details that have been worked out in order to take care of the greatly increased attendance that is expected this fall. Provisions that have been made for the comfort of visitors will be outlined, while a number of pages will be devoted to information particularly valuable to the exhibitor. This book will be sent to anyone on application.

NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AT STATE FAIR.

In connection with the night attractions to be offered at the State Fair at Detroit this year, the inspiring and brilliant pyrotechnic spectacle, "The Eruption of Vesuvius," will be the feature.

before Deon attempted by Henry J. Pain. The magnitude of the production can best be appreciated when it is known that the entire field in front of the grandstand and bleachers will be required to stage the paraphernalia and apparatus used to portray one of the greatest catastrophes in the history of the world. Nearly 300 employees are required to erect the parts of the ancient Romans—their slaves and attendants, while many thousands of dollars worth of fireworks are used in this fair masterpiece.

In the designing of the "Eruption of Vesuvius," the most skilled pyrotechnic inventors and the most skilled scenic artists have expended their best efforts. No cost has been spared to portray the scene with a realism and grandeur never before equalled. The beautiful Bay of Naples is shown with the awe-inspiring Mt. Vesuvius in the center and the city of Naples on the left. On the mountain side are the towns where the peaceful Italian peasants had their homes.

There will be a wealth of color in the costumes of the Neapolitans who will take part in a real Italian carnival which forms the opening scene of the spectacle. Actors will represent the king and queen of Italy, the crown prince and the crown princess, the director of the famous government observatory and his honorable assistant, Cardinal Frisco of Naples. Generals of the Italian army, officers, soldiers, natives and foreigners will mingle with the throng. While the native band is playing, the people in gala attire are reveling in the streets. The royal family, the church dignitaries and the military officers occupy a conspicuous position in the parade through the streets. The picturesque "battle of flowers" then follows, and in the midst of the merrymaking a courier dashes on the scene with a warning message.

As a divertissement the author here introduces brilliant specialties, including the "feast of flowers," water pantomime, Italian dances and chorus. Vesuvius begins to give warning of the terrible eruption that buried two cities for hundreds of years. Jets of smoke issue from the crater, tiny flocks of lava and ashes settle upon the nearby villages, the earth opens up with terrible rumblings. The inhabitants of the villages on the mountain side swarm into the city and add to the terror of the frightened populace. The hurried departure of the king and queen for towns on the sea coast is the signal for a general panic. Priests vainly endeavor to quiet the people and pray for relief. The rumblings and groanings from subterranean sources increase and furnish further alarm. Courier after courier dashes upon the scene with reeking horses. Vesuvius becomes more and more active and terror strikes every heart.

With a mighty roar rivers of living fire come plunging down the mountain side. The pressure clears the obstruction in the volcanic crater with a tremendous explosion and a vast cloud of vapor arises. The lava escapes while at the same time immense numbers of red-hot bombs and incandescent rockets are shot into the air. The destruction of the palaces and temples is dramatically portrayed. Walls fall upon priests while endeavoring to calm the terror-stricken multitude kneeling at the altars.

The "Eruption of Vesuvius" is but part of the program. Following is one of the most elaborate displays of fireworks ever seen in Michigan. Bombs, rockets and shooting stars burst hundreds of feet up in the air, while ingeniously arranged set pieces burst into flame.

The custom of giving your farm a name is a good one. Decide on a suitable name and then erect a neat sign that passers by might see it. Then have some writing paper and envelopes printed with the farm name as a heading and the proprietor's following. It is business, and who after all is a greater business man than the farmer?

The presidential postoffices throughout the country, are not to have stamps with the name of the office printed thereon, as has been previously announced. When an investigation was made, of the cost of such a move, it was found that stamps for 6,000 offices would each have to be printed separately and the expense would reach far beyond present appropriations.

Representatives of the East Jordan Board of Trade—Messrs J. W. Empey, Frank Kenyon, W. A. Loveday, E. A. Lewis, E. N. Clink, Carl Stroebel, John Kenny and H. I. McMillan—gave a return call to Charlevoix Board of Commerce, Tuesday evening, and were royally entertained. Our popular young dentist, Dr. H. B. Lehner joined the ranks of benedicts, Wednesday, and thereby surprised even his most intimate friends. Rader, when their daughter, Miss Florence M. Rader, and Dr. H. B. Lehner of East Jordan, Mich., were married. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Judson P. Durham, superintendent of the Clark Memorial home, at 4 o'clock, in the presence of the immediate relatives. A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Carr Wednesday evening at eight o'clock, when their daughter Florence E. was united in marriage to Leonard C. Swafford, the Rev. Arnold D. Grigsby officiating. The ring service was used. The rooms were decorated with apple blossoms and smilax. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. Ben Reed and Miss Lena Vogel. The bride was gowned in cream—nun's veiling and carried bride's roses, the bridesmaid in the same color and carried carnations. Preceding the ceremony Misses Verschel Lorraine and Reta Carr rendered music on the piano. Miss Reta Carr, sister of the bride, played the flower song during the service. A beautiful supper was served, the mysterious five acting as waiters, (they are the Misses Verschel Lorraine, Ethel, Crowell, Gladys Kenny, Reta Carr and Flora Simons).

The bride had a number of showers previously tendered her, and these with the gifts at the wedding, she was well fitted out with utensils for cooking—from a cooking range to a rolling pin; table linen, beautiful china, silver, furniture, and other useful as well as ornamental gifts.

The out-of-town guests were Mrs. W. C. Hoover of Kalkaska and Mrs. J. C. Swafford of Mancelona. Other than these, only the relatives were present. The happy couple repaired to the home which they had in readiness in the Flagg house, upper Main street and will be at home to their friends after June twenty fifth.

All in all it is worth anybody's nickle to spend a half hour in such wholesome entertainment. If you haven't attended yet, you don't know what you're missing; if you have attended, you'll go again.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

An immense man stood stiffly at the window awaiting us. His bearing was slovenly, as was his attire. The spectacles and the puffy face, unnaturally pale, suggested the habits of the student. But the eyes, small, crafty, and very bright, instantly corrected my first impression, and left me baffled and vaguely distrustful. It was the man whose reflection I had seen in the pier-glass.

"Ah, my cousin at last!—Georges, this is Mr. Haddon, an American. He comes to the chateau at Alterhofen as our guest."

It was impossible to doubt that he had spied on me with Madame de Varier's consent. But I was certain that he heard of my consent to go to Alterhofen with positive annoyance. I was not blind to the significant look that passed between them: the eyes of Madame de Varier dilating in triumph and defiance; Dr. Starva equally defiant and sullen.

Evidently there was discord in the camp. Dr. Starva did not welcome the idea that had consented to walk into the web. Well, so much the better. A little discord might prove useful. "Madam is an admirable host," Dr. Starva said slowly in French. "But if the guest is to be quite happy he must be content to amuse himself as madam wishes."

The words were almost a threat. I looked with repulsion at this pale, flabby, shuffling giant. It would be well to be on my guard against him. He might be dangerous. But half the battle was won in realizing that.

Madame de Varier met his bold sally, insolently careless.

"A diner, messieurs," she cried gaily, and took my arm, leaving the huge Dr. Starva to follow.

CHAPTER XII.

Treachery.

Three hours later Dr. Starva and myself were on the little steamboat en route for Vitznaar, a journey of an hour. I had met him at the quay; he was alone. Madame de Varier, he coolly informed me, had taken an earlier boat. I was not to see her until next morning.

Frankly, I scarcely liked that. I could have wished for a more congenial companion. However, I was embarked on an adventure; and must take things as they came. It was to be a game of give and take. I was deliberately permitting myself to be their tool for the moment; I was to serve their purpose. My wages for the service were to be the opportunity of finding Sir Mortimer Brett. Until I had penetrated the mystery of his disappearance I would be as clay in their hands. Perhaps it might be necessary to be their partner for the nonce in their intrigues. They might wonder at my docility or guilelessness, but they should not question it. That was the delicate task I must bend myself to for the present.

We had seated ourselves well forward and were quite alone, for at this late hour the boat carried few passengers. The wind coming from the snow-clad peaks was piercing. I shivered, but rather from excitement than from the chilly air. Already the lights of Vitznaar could be seen dimly through the thick mists.

Dr. Starva, rolling a huge cigar in the corner of his loose, sensual mouth, regarded me fixedly under shaggy eyebrows.

"It is cold. We must have some cognac." Without asking for my assent he summoned a waiter.

Even in so trivial a matter as the appropriateness of refreshments his tone was more a command than an invitation. The waiter would be welcome enough, but one less observing than myself might have noticed the alacrity with which he welcomed the excuse for the liquor.

"Do you know what it is to have a headache?" he asked, and, fumbling clumsily in his waistcoat pocket, he produced a tiny packet.

"No," I said, yawning, and watching him, idly.

"Ah, you are fortunate. This little powder is a great benefactor to me. We are close to Vitznaar. Through the trees there you can get a glimpse of the hotel we are to stop at."

He pointed at a building a quarter of a mile distant. From the landing stage we were fast approaching, holding in mid-air the packet of powder preparatory to placing it on his tongue.

"I looked where he pointed; there was not much to see; the mist enveloped everything. The boy approached with the cognac.

My elbows on the table, I gazed carelessly the little glass placed in front of me, while that of Dr. Starva was being filled. As I tipped it toward me, I caught a glimpse of a white powder in the bottom of my glass.

Dr. Starva's headache powder! There was treachery indeed! But I did not move, a muscle. I lifted my eyes slowly. Dr. Starva's great head was tipped back. The packet, empty of its powder, of course, was placed at his lips. But his rat-like eyes were watching me narrowly.

I had need to think and act quickly. The powder was a narcotic to deaden my senses. That must be prevented at any cost; and yet he must think that I had taken the drug.

He had called my attention to the hotel while he cleverly slipped the powder into the glass. I ought not to be less adroit.

As the waiter passed around the table his decanter in hand, I thrust out my leg and tripped him up neatly. He fell against Dr. Starva, the decanter still held carefully aloft.

In that moment of confusion I emptied the contents of my glass into my handkerchief. When Starva, furious and perhaps suspicious, pushed the man fiercely from him and looked at me, I was laughing heartily at his mishap, the handkerchief in one hand, the other holding out the glass for the brandy, the fingers closing over it to hide it from his view.

"Santé," he cried boisterously, and drained the contents of his glass at a gulp. I followed his example, and in spite of the powerful liquor, I tasted (or fancied I tasted) the dregs of the bitter drug.

"Pah!" I cried in disgust, and was careful to hand the glass to the waiter instead of placing it on the table. "I have tasted better brandy than that in my life."

The expression of disgust promptly assured him that I had really drunk late, and his antics so extraordinary. When I left the carriage presently, surely the driver must see the change in my attire, and have his suspicions—unless he were in Dr. Starva's confidence!

And this fact did not escape me: The hat did not injure me, as it must have done had it been Dr. Starva's.

Then if it were not his own—In an instant I had guessed something of his game.

CHAPTER XIII.

I Masquerade Unwillingly.

It must have been after midnight when the carriage drew up under the porte-cochere of the hotel. Dr. Starva alighted and met the concierge at the vestibule. I heard little of what was said at first, but the surprise of the concierge was evident. He tossed his arms about and burst into excited protests. Presently (and I could see that Starva was annoyed at the action) he came to the door of the carriage and peered within. I sat huddled up in the corner, apparently asleep.

"He is very ill, his Excellency!" cried the concierge in French.

"Listen to me," sternly replied Starva in the same language. "That is not his Excellency, imbecile. That is only a tourist, a Mr. Haddon. You understand," he repeatedly slowly, shaking the concierge by the lapel of his gorgeous coat, "that is only a tourist."

The fellow looked at Dr. Starva, bewildered.

"Mais, mais, mais—" he stammered in expostulation, pointing at me.

"Appearances are sometimes treacherous," said Starva grimly, and added with marked carelessness, "Is Madame de Varier arrived?"

"An hour ago," muttered the man, his round eyes still staring at me.

"Then do you think, fool, that his Excellency would come to this hotel at midnight, and at the hour that she arrives? Are there no tongues to talk? Are there no eyes to pry? If Mr. Haddon," he emphasized the name—"prefers to be nursed by a corridor, was deserted at this late hour, he is not alone."

Living at the suite of rooms allotted to us, the concierge was summarily dismissed. But before he left us the servant insisted, on whispering to Dr. Starva these words, which no doubt startled him as much as they did me:

"The sister of his Excellency is in the hotel. Shall I tell her that—"

Dr. Starva clutched the shoulder of his informant, and held him in a fierce, vise-like grip.

"Three times stubborn fool!" he growled, "what concern is it to Mr. Haddon that the sister of Sir Mortimer Brett is at this hotel? Certainly you will not tell her."

He thrust his spectacled, pallid face close to that of the trembling servant. Then, releasing him suddenly, he pushed him without, the little concierge rubbing his shoulder ruefully. Immediately he regretted this unnecessary violence. He stepped out into the corridor, and I guessed that he had smoothed the injured vanity of the gold-laced official with more of the crisp notes.

He had scarcely entered the room again before he admitted Madame de Varier, and again the key was turned.

They lost no time in vain talk or congratulations on the success of their trick, whatever its meaning might be. Dr. Starva half led, half carried me into a bedroom adjoining. There I was put to bed with as little ceremony as a helpless infant is disposed of for the night. For a moment Starva looked down on me grimly. Then he disappeared, closing the door carefully behind him.

Now, indeed, I understood why Helena Brett and her mother had been so startled when first they had seen me—why Madame de Varier had shown herself no less concerned—why I had caught Dr. Starva spying on me—why it was plotted that I should be drugged and brought hither in this melodramatic fashion.

In the world's history there have been many instances of men playing the pretender, but certainly none more innocent than myself. I should be dense indeed now did I fail to comprehend everything—from Madame de Varier's first greeting, to the episode of the cloak and hat.

I recalled the woman's ghastly despair when she had read the telegram in the kursaal. "He is dead," she had repeated over and over.

Sir Mortimer Brett, minister plenipotentiary at the court of Sofia—was dead. The adventurers for some purpose of their own, not yet to be guessed, had deliberately planned that I be mistaken for him at this hotel.

That the ambassador was dead was a bitter disappointment to my hopes. The opportunity to fulfill the task that Helena had given me was not to be mine after all. And now that I knew that, what further excuse had I to be as clay in the hands of these people? I was tempted to burst into the room, there, to prick the bubble of their intrigue.

But if I did that, though I might baffle the execution of their plans, I should be utterly ignorant as to the nature of those plans. The danger to myself in continuing to play the role of accomplice was very great. The officers of the law would not be so touchingly simple as to believe that I was abetting the plans of this precious couple only with a view of bringing them to final justice.

But much more alarming than possible danger to myself was the fact that Helena Brett was in this hotel.

Before morning a cruel but—just chance might bring us face to face, and in her eyes I should stand convicted of the grossest villainy. With diabolical cunning, Dr. Starva had insisted that I was Mr. Haddon, and yet he had deliberately planned that I be mistaken for Sir Mortimer Brett. The intent to deceive was obvious.

When that were proved, on my head would fall the greatest censure. For who would believe that I was an innocent victim? But I had gone too far to retreat now. Or rather, I had not gone far enough. Granted that Sir Mortimer Brett were dead, and that my elaborate plans to rescue him from the hands of these adventurers were a failure, the fact remained that for some dark purpose of their own the conspirators were either concealing the knowledge of his death, or were using that knowledge for some base purpose. They must be brought to justice. That justice could be obtained surely and swiftly only at risk to myself.

How many minutes had passed now? Dazed I move, dared I even open my eyes? For aught I knew they were watching me, were even in the room at this instant. I lay quite still, breathing stertorously.

The handle of the door was turned sharply. I heard the weight of Dr. Starva thrown against it as it jammed and for some moments, resisted his efforts.

The flare of an electric light fell on my face. He stood at my bedside. I muttered incoherently, tossing about, and turning my face from the glare. Then I was alone again.

I was in a room little larger than an American hall bedroom. They were cavalier enough of the dignity of Sir Mortimer Brett's understudy; I must be lying in the chamber of the valet and not of the master!

I leaped lightly to the floor, I tried to the closed door. To my consternation it was too tightly closed to permit me to see anything in the room beyond. It had creaked loudly in resisting Dr. Starva's efforts; certainly I was not so rash as to attempt to open it; however cautiously and slightly.

BIGGEST QUESTION

IS THAT OF EMPLOYMENT AND WAGE EARNING.

A Political Party Takes Upon Itself Grave Responsibility When It Encourages Foreign Competition.

The question of employment and wages is the chief issue involved in the new departure of the administration in the matter of granting special tariff concessions to foreign countries which raise their tariff rates against American exports as a club wherewith to compel a reduction of the American tariff. It is the one big question, bigger than all other questions combined. It is a question so big as to seriously menace any political party that makes a mistake in the treatment of it. That party will go down to swift defeat which perpetrates the colossal blunder of injuring our domestic trade relations in attempting to enlarge our foreign trade relations.

Ninety-five per cent of our manufacturing trade is in our own country and between the people of our own country. Eighty-five millions of people—16,000,000 voters among them—are vitally concerned in this 95 per cent of trade.

Taking liberties with the 95 per cent of domestic trade and trying experiments for the benefit of the beset five per cent of foreign trade have so often proved disastrous to the political party concerned in them that "what not to do" would seem perfectly obvious by this time.

Long before election day in 1908 comes round the practical effects of the new policy of surrender to foreign tariff threats will have become visible. Either the new policy will greatly increase the inflow of competitive commodities, or it will not. If it does not, we shall have simply handed the foreigners some gold bricks. That, however, is not of overwhelming consequence. They hand us gold bricks when they first mark up their tariffs against us and then consent to mark them down again to where they were before in return for net tariff reductions on our part.

But, if the new policy of tariff surrender shall work out as the foreigners expect it to work; if largely increased importations of competitive goods come into our market and displace equivalent quantities of domestic labor products, thereby diminishing place equivalent quantities of domestic wage, what then?

The answer to this question is suggested in a letter addressed to the president of the United States by a prominent American manufacturer and a large employer of American labor. Under date of May 6, 1907, Mr. Richard Campion, of Philadelphia, wrote President Roosevelt, urging that the proposed commercial agreement between the United States and the German empire, he not consummated. In this letter Mr. Campion brings to view that biggest of all questions, American employment and wages, as follows:

With the present high cost of production in this country, caused chiefly by the high rates of wages now prevailing—high wages, it can be safely said, all manufacturers are glad to have prevail—it is difficult for our manufacturers to compete with imported goods, even undervalued, but if these safeguards be removed in accordance with the proposed agreement our markets will be flooded with German goods at prices which our manufacturers cannot meet, our markets taken from us, our factories closed and our workmen thrown out of employment—unless our rates of wages be reduced to cover the difference, and surely Mr. President, it is only fair to presume that you are no more willing to have reduced the wages of American workmen than are we manufacturers.

Herein is the whole question, distinctly and powerfully presented. Will the new policy of tariff surrender, when it shall have been extended to all the producing nations of Europe, as in time it must be if extended to any one of those nations, close American mills and factories, throw American workmen out of employment, and reduce American wage rates?

It is a serious question, much the most serious question which the present administration has ever had to deal with.

Where the Danger Lies.

The danger lies in making a hodge-podge of special tariff concessions, one for each country. If tariff concessions, either through lower valuations by the United States appraisers or by a lower tariff, are to be made at all, they should be granted to every country which grants the United States the "most favored nation" clause, and against every country that seeks to discriminate against the United States this country is abundantly able to protect itself. Our exports are largely of foodstuffs, and these are necessities which other nations need. If they want them let them make such tariff rates as will admit them. If they don't there's no need of ill feeling over the matter. Foodstuffs are staples, and their market is wide.—Zanesville Courier.

If She Had Her Choice.

Both senators and every representative Massachusetts has in congress know that congress is not going to enact free raw material for Massachusetts workshops. Roger Q. Mills promised Massachusetts that in 1890, and that very year Massachusetts sent more Democrats than Republicans to the fifty-second congress. If Massachusetts had her choice it is quite likely that she would substitute the Wilson tariff for the Dingley. Certainly she would do so with free coal and free iron ore added.—Washington Post.

EVERY FARMER PROTECTED.

Should Dread Competition of Foreign Labor Products.

The editor of an Indian territory paper cannot see how the tariff protects the farmer. He is very properly honest in his position, though he is putting charity to somewhat of a strain when he declares "that a farmer can be a Republican is one of the curiosities of the political situation."

That a farmer who votes in accordance with his own so-called class interests can be anything but a Republican would be still more curious. There are lots of farmers who are Democrats, and sincerely so, but who venture the assertion that their political creed is not based upon a careful study of their own interests. They are Democrats for other reasons.

It is argued that "the prices of nearly all the necessities he buys are protected at the average rate of 60 per cent, while the prices of the commodities he produces are made in competition with the world."

Those who argue that way are not fools. But in our opinion they are most egregiously mistaken. If the farmers who are directly protected by the tariff against Mexican cattle, or those who are directly protected against Canadian wheat, should suddenly find the bars let down, those farmers at least would soon see where they are protected. But this is only a very small degree of the protection which the farmer receives.

The greatest degree of protection is that which he receives indirectly. The tariff provides him with a market for his products at home by putting wages into the pockets of workmen and by enabling the vast and varied commercial enterprises of the country to flourish. It is superficial to say that Liverpool fixes the price of the American farmer's wheat and corn. It must not be forgotten that the farmer more than any other producer is the victim of the speculative market, with which the tariff has nothing whatever to do. But aside from this disturbing and extraneous influence, which is itself intimately affected by fluctuating crops, the price which the farmer receives for his product is determined entirely by supply and demand. The supply may be limited by poor crops and the demand may be increased by prosperous times. Conversely the supply may be abundant and the demand small in times of commercial depression.

As a producer of hard times nothing has ever been so successfully tried in this country as a substantial reduction in the tariff. When the factories are idle and commercial industries languish, the farmer finds his most profitable and extensive market cut off. The severest blow which the agricultural interests could sustain would be the enactment of legislation at all approaching free trade.

In protecting industries which furnish buyers for what the farmer raises protection protects every farmer in the land. The farmer's real competitor is not the grower of wheat in Canada or Siberia or Argentina, it is not the raiser of cattle and hogs in Mexico or South America. It is the manufacturers across the sea, whose products are excluded by tariffs that keep American factories running and furnish American workmen and allied consumers with the means of buying what the farmer has to sell.—Kansas City Journal.

The One Thing Certain.

If we can be browbeaten by Germany, which is conceded, and probably will be similarly treated by France, what is to prevent six or seven other European countries from following this clever, lead of their German and French neighbors? And what becomes of our "sacred" schedules if their elasticity can be stretched so?—Wall Street Journal.

The answer is obvious. The schedules are knocked out, of course. When the foreign exporter is permitted to consign goods to his American clerk at "export value," the American producer can never be certain what his tariff protection is going to be, or whether he has any tariff protection at all. The only certain thing is that the domestic wage payer and wage earner is going to get the worst of it.

The One Important Fact.

The fact of more importance than all others in connection with tariff discussions and industrial subjects so far as this country is concerned, is that 95 per cent of all the goods made in American mills and factories are produced on American farms is sold direct to home consumers. It is this splendid home market which deserves first and most consideration in all discussions in any way related to it. Only five per cent of the products of our country is sold to consumers else where. Full realization of this fact will prevent repetition of some absurd statements which have been made and some even more absurd movements which have in recent years been attempted.—Houghton (Mich.) Gazette.

Congress, Not Consulted.

So far as it goes, it is full-fledged reciprocity. Germany admits agricultural products and certain chemicals and machinery at less than her maximum rates; in return the president dares to raise his reckless hand against the hallowed, Dingley schedules and let in at cut rates certain products of the "pauper labor" of "effete" Germany.—N. Y. Evening World.

It is a full-fledged reciprocity than any which has ever been submitted to congress for its approval, for it proposes to admit at cut prices not certain products, but all products of low-priced German labor. No wonder congress was not consulted. Congress would have turned it down. Incontinently.

the poison given me. But now that I was supposed to have taken it, I wondered precisely what effect it should have on me, and how soon that effect should be felt.

Fortunately, he concerned himself with our luggage, for the boat was almost at the dock. When he returned to my side I greeted him in sleepy indifference. He looked at me keenly. I was not blind to his satisfaction. He shook my shoulder.

"What is it! Are we arrived?" I rose to my feet unsteadily.

"Yes, and it is necessary to hurry." The handful of passengers had already left the boat. We descended the gangway slowly; Dr. Starva's arm grasping mine.

We entered the closed carriage that awaited us. I lurched clumsily into the vehicle, and sat crouched up in the corner, my head sunk on my breast. I assumed it safe and fitting that I should appear passably indifferent as to what passed now. Certainly by this time the drug would have taken some effect had I swallowed it. But I need not say that I had my wits with me.

My companion unfastened a valise he had brought into the carriage with him. I confess I watched him out of the corner of my eye in some trepidation.

I was thankful when he produced nothing more formidable than a military cloak and a felt hat. To my astonishment he deftly slipped from my shoulders the light cover coat I wore, and took my hat from my head, substituting the garments he had taken from his bag.

I could have laughed aloud, his confidence in my condition was so absolute, and his antics so extraordinary. When I left the carriage presently, surely the driver must see the change in my attire, and have his suspicions—unless he were in Dr. Starva's confidence!

And this fact did not escape me: The hat did not injure me, as it must have done had it been Dr. Starva's.

Then if it were not his own—In an instant I had guessed something of his game.

As the waiter passed around the table his decanter in hand, I thrust out my leg and tripped him up neatly. He fell against Dr. Starva, the decanter still held carefully aloft.

In that moment of confusion I emptied the contents of my glass into my handkerchief. When Starva, furious and perhaps suspicious, pushed the man fiercely from him and looked at me, I was laughing heartily at his mishap, the handkerchief in one hand, the other holding out the glass for the brandy, the fingers closing over it to hide it from his view.

"Santé," he cried boisterously, and drained the contents of his glass at a gulp. I followed his example, and in spite of the powerful liquor, I tasted (or fancied I tasted) the dregs of the bitter drug.

"Pah!" I cried in disgust, and was careful to hand the glass to the waiter instead of placing it on the table. "I have tasted better brandy than that in my life."

AFRAID OF PARALYSIS

A NERVOUS SUFFERER CURED BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

The Medicine That Makes Rich, Red Blood and Performs Wonders as a Tonic for the Nerves.

Why do nervous people invariably pale people? The answer to that question explains why a remedy that acts on the blood can cure nervous troubles.

It explains why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are also for nervous people.

It is because of the intimate relation between the red corpuscles in the blood and the health of the nerves. The nervous system receives its nourishment through the blood. Let the blood become thin, weak and colorless and the nerves are starved—the victim is started on the road that leads to nervous wreck. Nervous people are pale people—but the pallor comes first, Enrich the blood and the nerves are stimulated and toned up to do their part of the work of the body. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make red blood and transform nervous, irritable, ailing people into strong, energetic, forceful men and women.

Mrs. Harriet E. Porter, of 20 Liberty avenue, South Medford, Mass., says: "I had never been well from childhood and a few years ago I began to have dizzy spells. At such times I could not walk straight. I was afraid of paralysis and was on the verge of nervous prostration. Then a neighbor set in and affected the side of my face. The pains in my forehead were excruciating and my heart palmed me so that my doctor feared neuralgia of the heart. I tried several different kinds of treatment but they did me no good."

"One day my son brought me some of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I found that they strengthened my nerves. I took several boxes and felt better in every way. There were no more dizzy attacks, the neuralgia left me and I have been a well woman ever since."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable in anemia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers and in sick headaches, nervousness, neuralgia, and even partial paralysis and locomotor-ataxia.

Our booklet, "Nervous Disorders, a Method of Home Treatment" will be sent free on request to anyone interested. Write for it today.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Corporations Oust Miners.

The Klondike proper—that is, that portion of the Yukon territory in the vicinity of Dawson—as far as the individual miner is concerned, is on a rapid decline owing to the immense area of ground being acquired by dredging companies. One company alone has purchased nearly all the placer ground on the three principal creeks, namely: Bonanza, Eldorado and Hunker, and has bonded considerably more on Dominion and other creeks for various reasons. Where formerly hundreds of miners were working for wages or working their own ground, thus creating a demand for provisions, clothing, machinery, hardware, etc., and the transportation from Dawson to the different mining operations, now dredges are either operating or in course of construction. Consular Reports.

Whole Outfit in Harmony.

"You've seen that new dress of mine," said Miss Dowdy, "now that I want to get a hat to match what would you suggest?"

"Why not get a slouch?" remarked Miss Knox.

66, BUT PERFECTLY WELL.

The Happy Experience of a New Castle, Pa., Woman.

Mrs. John Mansell, 614 So. Jefferson St., New Castle, Pa., says: "For years I was running down with kidney trouble without knowing what it was, and finally got so bad I was given up. The urinary passages were painful, sometimes scanty and again very profuse. My limbs, feet and ankles bloated dreadfully, and sometimes my whole body. My heart palpitated and I had smothering spells. A week's treatment with Doan's Kidney Pills healed me and a few boxes cured me. At 68 I am strong and well."

PAT SET ONE-ONE LIMIT.

Would Quit When He Was Done With All Things Earthly.

A rich man out in the suburbs who owns a large place, has among the many people employed to keep it in shape an Irishman of whom he is particularly fond on account of his unconscious wit, says Harper's Weekly. This Irishman is something of a hard drinker, and as his income is limited, he is more particular as regards the quantity than the quality of his liquors. The other day the employer, who had been awaiting a good opportunity, remarked in a kind tone, as the closing sentence of a friendly lecture: "Now, Pat, how long do you think you can keep on drinking this cheap whiskey?"

To which Pat instantly replied: "All my life, if it doesn't kill me."

The World's Dairy the Parent of Consumption.

This is the argument put forward by scientists to-day, and is causing no little alarm, because practically all the leading men who have made the subject a careful study and test are united on the statement and agree that a great per cent. of all cattle in the U. S. have Bovine Tuberculosis. In Denmark 50% of all cattle are infected. Recently The Mutual Mercantile Co., Cleveland, O., has issued a free booklet showing how it is wrong to kill so many thousands of our Dairy Cows when a few cents worth of Rasawa purchased at any Drug Store will positively prevent Tuberculosis. The claim is made that it is a germicide and renders the cow immune. Ask your dealer or the above company for a free book.

The Human Shield.

The advent of Decoration day caused Admiral Dewey, at a recent dinner, to praise the bravery of the American troops during the civil war.

"Both sides alike were brave," he said. "North and south, soldiers and sailors. And the bravery of the raw recruit was a thing to be seen to be believed."

"There used to be circulated, though, a good story about a Connecticut recruit. This young man, after he had gotten initiated, fought heroically; but in his first engagement he was very nervous."

"A chum of his was in the line ahead of him, and when the bullets began to fly, the chum began to dodge. Thereupon the recruit shouted excitedly: "Hey, Jim, don't duck. I'm behind ye."

Senator Morgan a Model.

Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, occasionally writes magazine articles which involve a great deal of research, but he uniformly refuses to accept pay for them. In the course of his career many railroad passes have been offered him, but he never accepted any either for himself or any member of his family. Though over 80 years old, he thinks nothing of working half the night. The senator never haunts the departments looking for jobs for constituents. Of moderate means when he entered the senate, he is now a poor man, having little or nothing but his salary.

Not a Provident Millionaire.

A funeral cortege passed over Williamsburg bridge the other day with 32 open carriages filled with flowers preceding the hearse, and 76 carriages with mourners followed after. By the time the first carriage reached the Brooklyn side the last carriage in line was just going up the bridge approach from Delancey street, Manhattan, a mile away.

"That must be a millionaire's funeral," remarked a promenade to a policeman who stood with him looking down on the apparently endless procession of carriages.

"Not on your life," replied the policeman. "The dead chap is an Italian from the Mulberry Bend section and it is an even bet that his widow won't have $500 to her name after she foots the bill for that parade. But that does beat the record on flowers. We had 27 carriage loads over the bridge once, but never anything like that."—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Kangaroo.

"I didn't get to the field sports in time," said the hare. "Was there anything interesting?"

"Yes," replied the tortoise, "that big Australian champion broke the record in the 100-yard jump."—Philadelphia Ledger.

So Clever of Him.

"Yes," when Dubley tells an Irish story there's no mistaking it. "You know it's Irish right away eh?"

"Yes, indeed," he says. "Be jabbers after every sentence."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

FLITTINBY'S REFORM

CLEANS UP THE ACCUMULATIONS OF YEARS.

Reaches the Mature Age When He Throws Away Dead Matter, and is Ready to Begin Life Again.

"I am beginning to throw away things," said Mr. Flittinby, "going through my papers and things and throwing things away."

"I find among them newspaper clippings about things that I would never have thought of again but for this reminder, and some things I have forgotten so completely that even the sight of the clippings does not recall to me why I cut them out and saved them; so important, really, are many of the things about which we bother ourselves or which at some time we found of interest."

"There are letters from men long since dead, and old bills that recall forgotten periods of our life, that now seem strange to us, we live so much in the present. And why keep these old receipts? The men that gave them are dead now or moved away and these accounts will never be sent in again, and if they were they have long since been outlawed by the lapse of time. Throw them away."

"Here are old birthday cards, with pretty, with affectionate, with loving greetings; bringing most pleasant memories, though they do remind us of the years that have gone since first they came to us. And why should we preserve them? We can remember, we can cherish those who sent them, without them to remind us, and they would only be there with the old papers in the drawer. To the basket gently with them."

"And here, as I live, are some old valentines! Well, well. This does make us young again. But dear, dear, that was long ago. Why should we keep them longer? To the basket, gently. We have the valentine herself now."

"There are so many things that we put away to save, to treasure, life seems to stretch interminably before us, while we are young, and we are going to keep these things always. And it takes us, happily, a long, long time to get to where we can see the beginning of the end. Youth envelops us with a buoyancy and strength that makes life seem a joy that is to go on forever, and in sturdy middle age, indeed, we take little account of the years, but then comes a time when we begin to realize that two and two make four and no more."

"Now I have arrived at that time of life when I begin to know. Don't for heaven's sake think that I am taking a mournful view. Far from it."

"Life never seemed to me so full of joy as now, and I'm good for a good long stretch of it yet, with senses keen and understanding broadening, finding enjoyment in every thing; and taking this broader view of things, not occupied too much by detail, this stored up accumulation of long gathering truck seems superfluous and useless, and so I'm just going through it and throwing things away."

"This lot that I've been going through to-day is just stuff that has accumulated in the cubby holes in my desk; but I've got boxes and bundles of such stuff stored away, and I must get it out, a box or bundle at a time and go through it, and throw it away. For of what use will it ever be to anybody? What becomes of this sort of stuff, anyway, when people err—I mean why shouldn't I sort this stuff out now myself, and not leave it to cumber things up for somebody else to throw away?"

"There may be some things, to be sure, that I'll want to save, things that other people will want to keep, and these things I will save; but as to the bulk of this stuff, why, it's just so much hindering useless baggage, and this I'll throw away, and with the decks cleared start life anew."

Chappens and Improves Coal.

Consul General W. R. Holloway, of Halifax, says that the Canadian commercial agent at Manchester, England, reports an invention at that place for depriving soft coal of its most objectionable feature by abstracting the oils safe to produce smoke, and calling the resulting article "coalite," which is something like coke in appearance and which can be furnished at one-third the present cost of coal. Five acres of land near Manchester have been purchased, and large works will be erected for its production.—United States Consul Reports.

AN OLD EDITOR

Found $2000 Worth of Food.

The editor of a paper out in Oklahoma said: "Yes, it is true when I got hold of Grape-Nuts food, it was worth more than a $2000 doctor bill to me, for it made me a well man. I have gained 25 pounds in weight, my strength has returned tenfold, my brain power has been given back to me, and that is an absolute essential, for I am an editor and have been for 35 years."

"My pen shall always be ready to speak a good word for this powerful nutritive food. I had, of course often read the advertisements regarding Grape-Nuts, but never thought to apply the food to my own use, until, in my extremely old and sickness the thought came to me that it might fit my case. The statements in regard to the food are absolutely correct, as I have proven in my own case. One very fortunate thing about the food is that while it is the most scientifically made and highly nourishing, concentrated food I have ever known, it has so delicious a taste that it wins and holds friends."

"There's a Reason." Read "The Road to Wellville" in pink.

CHOICE OF TWO EVILS.

Request That Was by No Means a Compliment for Papa.

A New York scientist, the father of a large and growing family, has his troubles. One evening his youngest was holding forth in her best style. The mother could do nothing with the child, so the man of science went to the rescue.

"I think I can quiet little Flora," he said. "There's no use humming to her in that silly way. What she wants is real music. The fact that I used to sing in the Glee club at Yale and sang well, too, may make a difference."

Accordingly, the professor took the child and, striding up and down the room, sang in his best manner. He had not finished the second verse of his song, when a ring was heard. The door was opened, and there stood a girl of 14, who said:

"I'm one of the family that's just moved into the flat next to yours. There's a sick person with us, and he says, if it's all the same to you, would you mind letting the baby cry instead of singing to it?"—Success.

Made for Fat Men.

One of the narrow arches in the gallery of the chapel at Columbia university is not exactly symmetrical, although the defect is not noticeable to the casual observer, says the New York Globe. The reason for the widening of the arch after its original construction had rise in a somewhat humorous occurrence. One of the early visitors was a remarkably fat man, who found himself wedged into the arch when he tried to squeeze through and was extricated with difficulty. The builders, recognizing the possibility of other fat people being numbered among the future visitors, decided to widen the arch, sacrificing symmetry and harmony to practical need, as the pier was so constructed as to bear no loss of width on one of its sides.

The Business Instinct.

A party of tourists were visiting the ancient landmarks of England, according to a writer in the New Orleans Times-Democrat, and their guide was supplying them with valuable historic facts.

"This tower," he remarked, "goes back to William the Conqueror."

"Why, what's the matter?" inquired one of his listeners. "Isn't it satisfactory?"

ECZEMA COVERED BABY.

Worst Case Doctors Ever Saw—Suffered Untold Misery—Perfect Cure by Cuticura Remedies.

"My son, who is now twenty-two years of age, when four months old began to have eczema on his face, spreading quite rapidly until he was nearly covered. The eczema was something terrible, and the doctors said it was the worst case they ever saw. At times his whole body and face were covered, all but his feet. I used many kinds of patent medicines, to no avail. A friend teased me to try Cuticura. At last I decided to try Cuticura when my boy was three years and four months old, having had eczema all that time and suffering untold misery. I began to use all three of the Cuticura Remedies. He was better in two months; in six months he was well. Mrs. R. L. Risley, Piermont, N. H., Oct. 24, 1905."

If You Are Sick

It is because some of the organs of the body are not doing their work well. There is a lack of that nervous energy that gives them motion. Consequently you are weak, worn-out, nervous, irritable, cannot sleep; have headache, indigestion, etc. because there is not sufficient nerve force to keep the organs active and allow them to perform their natural functions. Dr. Miles' Nerve restores health because it restores this nervous energy.

"I have been sick for a year, and did not know what was the matter with me. I tried many remedies and none of them proved of any value. I bought a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nerve and after taking it I was better. I had had nervous prostration. It had not got this medicine when I did. I continued to take it until I was entirely well. I have since recommended it to five of my lady friends, and they have all thanked me for doing so, for it benefited them all."

The Two Mysteries.

We know what it is, dear; this sleep so deep and still. The folded hands, the awful calm, the cheek so pale and chill. The lids that will not lift again, though we may call and call; The strange white solitude of peace that settles over all.

We know not what it means, dear, this desolate heart pain, This dread to take our daily way and walk in it again. We know not to what other sphere the loved who leave us go. Nor why we're left to wonder still nor why we do not know.

But this we know: Our loved and dead, if they should come this day— Should come and ask us, "What is life?" not one of us could say. Life is a mystery as deep as ever death can be. Yet oh, how dear it is to us, this life we live and see!

Then might they say, these vanished ones—and blessed is the thought: "So death is sweet to us, beloved, though we may show you naught. We may not to the quick reveal the mystery of death. To cannot tell us, if ye would, the mystery of breath."

The child who enters life comes not with knowledge of intent; So all who enter death must go as little children sent. Nothing is known, but, hearing God, "What hath the soul to dread? And as life is to the living so death is to the dead."
—Mary Mapes Dodge.

Blue China.

There's a joy without canker or care, There's a pleasure eternally new; 'Tis to gloat on the glaze and the mark Of china that's ancient and blue. Unchipped all the centuries through It has smiled since the child of its name, And they fashioned it, figure and hue, In the reign of the Emperor Hwang.

These dragons their tails, you remark, Into bunches of gillyflowers grew; When Noah came out of the ark, Did these lie in wait for his crew? They snorted, they snapped, and they slew; They were mighty of fin and of fang, And their portraits Celestials drew In the reign of the Emperor Hwang.

Here's a pot with a cat in a park, In a park where the peach blossoms bley; Where the lovers' eloped in the dark, Lived, died and were changed into two Bright birds that eternally flew Through the boughs of the May as they sang.

'Tis a tale was undoubtedly true In the reign of the Emperor Hwang, —Andrew Lang.

When a drummer must beat on his little brown drum; A voice there is, and it calls to some, Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub!

With a little drumstick in each brown hand, Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub! The drummer he drummed at the head of the band; He drummed them to sea, and he drummed them to land, And he drummed the colors over the sand. Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub!

The little gray bullets, they came to slay, Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub! And the poor little drummer he feared to stay; But when he feared more was to run away, So he stayed, and he drummed, and he cried "Hedraay!" Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub!

He was shot, and they buried him under the sand, Rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub! With a little drumstick in each brown hand And the little brown drum that he might stand At the head of the hosts of God's command. With a rub-a-dub-dub-a-dub-dub! —Gouverneur Morris.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Possibly, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—slightly weak, and must have more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart just continues to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and ailing nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real genuine heart relief. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with
