That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic, and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart field to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous in the unparalleled cures it constantly makes of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements. Dr. Pierce's "Fruit of Life" is abundantly attested by thousands of grateful testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drainage, painful periods, irregularities, profluvium, and other displacements caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle wrapper.

Explosion of the Earth.

We frequently hear the theory advanced that the planets and suns explode and that our own earth might possibly explode from pent-up forces within. A high explosive exerts about the limit of pressure capable of being exerted by gases set free and expanded by the heat generated by any chemical reaction. Such a pressure, great as it is, is far too insignificant to explode the earth. Were the whole great molten interior of our globe to be replaced by dynamite and detonated, the explosion would not lift the earth's crust. We have, but to calculate the weight of a column of granite of a height equal to the thickness of the earth's crust to see that the pressure of the crust on the molten interior far exceeds the pressure exerted by exploding dynamite. We have seen that the speed of the detonative wave is about four miles per second. The speed of the earth in its orbit is four times as great, declares Hudson Maxim, in the Independent. If, therefore, the interplanetary space of our solar system were to be filled with an explosive mixture capable of being detonated and consumed with the speed of dynamite, and if this were to be set off just behind the earth in its orbit, the earth would not feel it, but would rapidly rush away from the wave of explosion, pass clear around the sun, and come back again to meet it more than six months later. It would take nearly a year for such a detonative wave to reach our sun from the earth. If the earth itself were a ball of dynamite, it would require half an hour to explode; and if the sun were a mass of dynamite, it would require about two and a half days to explode.

New Customs Regulations.

With a view to securing greater courtesy and dignity in the administration of the customs laws, the treasury department has issued a series of instructions to inspectors, copies of which will be furnished to each passenger on incoming steamers from foreign countries. For the purpose of customs administration, passengers are divided into non-residents of the United States and residents. This classification has no reference to citizenship. Non-residents are of three classes: actual residents of foreign countries; persons who have been abroad with a fixed foreign abode for one year or more, who elect to declare as non-residents; and persons who have been abroad for two years, with or without a fixed place of foreign abode, who elect to declare as non-residents. Residents include all others. There is no limit to the value of articles which non-residents may bring in free of duty, explains the Youth's Companion, provided they are articles actually accompanying the passenger, and necessary and appropriate for his or her use for the purposes of the journey and present comfort and convenience, and not intended for other persons or for sale. Residents may bring in all wearing apparel and other personal effects which they took abroad with them, if not remodeled abroad to the value of $100, if the articles are not for sale. Under the new regulations passengers are not required to make oath to their declarations. The offer of a bribe or a "tip" to a customs officer will continue to be held as a violation of the law.

The cottage in East Hampton, Long Island, where John Howard Payne lived as a boy when his father was principal of Clinton academy in the village, will be preserved for many years to come. Its site is needed to make room for a new church, and the cottage was in danger of destruction. An admirer of "Home, Sweet Home" has bought the building—it is more than 200 years old—and will move it to another site and remodel its interior for use as a summer home. The outside will be unchanged, so that those who may be gratified who wish to see the place which Payne had in mind when he wrote, "Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home."

After all, it was not shocked modesty on the part of King Edward that led him to leave the theater at Marlenbad in a huff. In fact, it wasn't the naughty song at all that offended him, but another which seemed to show disrespect to a local abbot who had been his host at a recent dinner. Thus is another beautiful vision of virtuous royalty destroyed.

That rich New York young woman who has discarded stockings and other articles of apparel which she deems superfluous probably will make some concessions to the Gotham climate a little later in the year.

That New York wife who is going to allow her husband to get a divorce because he loves another woman may be sure that the nearest way to get revenge is to let the other woman have

CUT THROAT OF HIS SIX YEARS OLD SON BECAUSE HE WAS A CRIPPLE.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF

The Man Who Committed the Horrible Crime Seems To Be Sane and May Recover.

Lying at the point of death, with chances favoring the latter, John E. Jones, a well-to-do farmer, is in his home at Bear Lake, Pleasanton township, with a jagged gash in his throat. His little 6-year-old crippled son, victim of a crazed father, lays dead in an adjoining room.

Flendish care was exercised in committing the fearful deed. Taking his son to a room in the second story of the farm house, Jones locked the door and there made the sacrifice. The child's throat was cut so that death must have been almost instantaneous. Jones was not so successful in his next attempt. He gashed his throat and then his hand fell him. He was found a few minutes later by a member of the family lying on the floor in a welter of blood. Jones's daughter, running to the road to get a neighbor, saw Dr. Norconk and hurried him to the death chamber.

"He may yet live," was the doctor's opinion after a hasty examination. Apparently Jones heard and understood for at that instant he made another savage slash at his throat with the razor, which he had kept concealed to that time. The second cut made his condition much worse.

Jones's appearance lately has not indicated ill health, though his nervous condition has been such that he could do no work on the farm this season. Members of his family say that he acted a little strangely for a few days preceding the tragedy, but they had no occasion to feel alarmed. He undoubtedly brooded over the condition of the child which was crippled and was also mentally deficient.

Jones is about 48 years of age. He had many friends and was known as a genial, good natured man with more than the usual fondness for his children.

Queer Antics These.

When lightning tore a hole in the roof of the residence of William Money the bolt caused damage in bath room and kitchen, and went crashing into the shed at the rear of the latter. Here it attacked a large cupboard and tore it to pieces. In the cupboard were four baking powder cans with tops on and filled with herbs. The tops were removed, the contents taken out and the cans filled with cloths-pins from a basket which stood near the cupboard. The ring was melted off the dustpan in the kitchen and the paper in the cupboard and on the wall was torn as if by mice. While the family was frightened, no one was shocked except Mrs. Money, both of whose thumbs were affected.

A Scathing Rebuke.

Wellington Taylor, of Fenton, who was arrested for neglecting to provide for his wife, who is dying of consumption at the home of her sister was rebuked in scathing terms by the court when arraigned before Justice Halsey. In adjourning the case for four weeks the court rounded out his denunciation of the accused by admonishing him to hasten to the bedside of his wife and make her as comfortable as possible in her last hours.

"If you go over there and say one unkind word to your poor wife," the court added by way of a parting warning, "you will be sorry for it when you come before this court again."

Man Slept, Horse Wandered.

Falling asleep in the carriage after driving from Flint to Plushing, where he attended the fair, Edward Hartwell was awakened by water about his knees. The horse had wandered into the river, and was making his way upstream in a direction opposite to that which Hartwell had been going. The banks are very steep, and although Hartwell was at last able to get to the shore himself, he was unable to find a place where the rig could be gotten out. It was a matter of several hours before the outfit with the assistance of several who happened to be in that vicinity, was hoisted back into the roadway.

D. G. H. & M. Taxes.

The United States district court at Detroit has ordered Auditor General Bradley, who was preparing to seize property of the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railroad, for taxes, to show cause why he should not be enjoined from so doing. The road claims by a special charter it is permitted to pay a tax of 1 per cent on its capital stock and is exempt from the ad valorem tax. The D. G. H. & M. was assessed $67,517.20, while under its special charter it has paid $25,171.40.

The apples grew so thick in the Traverse City section that in many instances they are forced to grow together. There are many of these freak apples, perfect in form and coloring, except where the union is formed.

NEWS OF THE NATION

VICE PRESIDENT FAIRBANKS COCKTAILS CAUSED HIS DEFEAT.

A NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

The Story of Cocktails and Wine Was Effective—The Majority Fight in Cleveland a Key-Note.

Fairbanks Defeated.

Chas. W. Fairbanks, vice-president of the United States, was defeated in Columbus for delegate to the quadrennial conference of the M. E. church. The temperance laymen refused to condone what they regard as an unpardonable offense against temperance, and the distinguished candidate went down because of having served cocktails and three kinds of wine at the dinner given to President Roosevelt on Memorial-day at the Fairbanks home.

There were 18 candidates for the seven places, but it was fully believed that the vice-president would head the delegation by being selected by acclamation. Just before the voting, however, a decided change of feeling was shown and temperance laymen insisted on all the names being voted on. This was decided on. Considerable feeling was manifested over the effort of some of the vice-president's friends to put the responsibility for the cocktails upon President Roosevelt. It required 97 votes to elect and, on the first ballot two candidates were chosen. Mr. Fairbanks received but 79 votes. His support dwindled away and after the fifth ballot his friends withdrew his name.

Tom Johnson's Campaign.

A national campaign is being fought out within the narrow confines of twenty-six wards in Cleveland this fall. Victory for Tom L. Johnson will make him the largest figure in the national Democratic party, next to William J. Bryan; defeat may relegate him to the political graveyard. Victory for Congressman Theodore E. Burton will wonderfully increase his already great prestige among the national Republican figures at Washington; defeat will send him back to the house stung and crippled by a rebuke given him by the people who know him best. A congressman who cannot carry his own city for mayor, when that city normally belongs to his own party anyway, cannot be considered senatorial size, house-speaker size or even cabinet-size.

San Francisco Graters.

The inner workings of the confessed hoodlums who, formerly administered the affairs of San Francisco as a board of supervisors were laid bare during the trial of T. J. Ford, chief counsel for the United Railways, on a charge of bribery. Thomas F. Lofergan, former supervisor, told on the stand of receiving $4,000 with the understanding that it was to be paid to influence his vote upon the application of the United Railways for an overhead trolley franchise.

James F. Gallagher, former chairman of the board, related how he had received the sum of $85,000 from Abraham Reuf after the latter had requested and urged him to ascertain how the 18 members of the board stood with regard to the application for such a franchise and directed him to learn the price for which each member would return a favorable vote.

Beavers Is Out.

Geo. W. Beavers, formerly superintendent of the salary and allowances bureau of the postoffice department, sentenced to prison two years ago for postoffice frauds, was released from the penitentiary at Moundsville, W. Va., Tuesday night, and it is presumed that he departed at once for his home. Beavers is the man Machen once called the limit for nerve in perpetrating frauds on the government, because he asked the former superintendent of rural free delivery to buy an operating table for a physician friend and charge it to the free delivery department.

Bubonic Plague.

At a meeting of the California board of health, Gov. Gillet presiding, it was decided to appropriate $1,500 to fight the plague in San Francisco. Steps were also taken to establish a barge in the bay to fumigate bay and river craft. The totals in the bubonic plague situation at San Francisco to date are as follows: Cases verified, 43; deaths, 26; death percentage, 60.04; suspects under observation, 23.

Canada Wants Exclusion.

A monster petition signed by hundreds of British Columbians is on its way to the premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It prays that, regardless of foreign countries and all sentimental and political considerations, the government immediately pass such legislation as may be requisite to insure the absolute exclusion of orientals from the dominion of Canada. So far the Japanese government has made no claim on the dominion government for damages on account of the Vancouver troubles.

Charles Fredericksen, aged 30, was killed by a cave-in in the Cadillac gravel pit.

From eating an over-ripe watermelon, Rynald Weltman, aged 5, of Muskegon, died of ptomaine poisoning.

Railroad Commissioner Glasgow says the new railroad commission will take office October 15. George Dickinson, a member of the commission, is going to Ohio to study the railroad commission in that state, and Commissioner Glasgow will attend the national convention of Railway Commissioners.

M'KINLEY'S TOMB.

The Resting Place of the Martyred President and His Wife Dedicated.

The ceremonies attending the dedication of the McKinley mausoleum began with the arrival of President Roosevelt and his party at 10:15 a. m. They were greeted at the Pennsylvania station by a great throng. Upon leaving the train the reception committee entered carriages and accompanied the president to the Central high school. As he neared the school building the 1,700 children, grouped and dressed to represent the national flag, arose in a body and sang "America."

The mausoleum in which rests the bodies of President McKinley and his wife stands on an eminence to which has been given the name of Monument hill, about two miles due west of the McKinley home, in the city of Canton. It is not an ornate affair, but its simplicity is relieved by sufficient artistic embellishment to make it an object of beauty.

From the first step of the approach to the monument to the actual top of the structure is 163 feet 6 inches, the mausoleum itself being 98 feet 6 inches high above the summit of the mound.

Half way down from the top of the 125 granite steps that lead up to the main entrance of the south side of the mausoleum stands an heroic bronze figure of President McKinley, representing him in the attitude usually assumed when speaking.

Upon the face of the pedestal of the statue these words are inscribed: "William McKinley, president of the United States; a statesman singularly gifted to unite the discordant forces of government and mould the diverse purposes of men toward progressive and salutary action; a magistrate whose poise of judgment was tested and vindicated in a succession of national emergencies; good citizen, brave soldier, wise executive, helper and leader of men, exemplar to his people of the virtues that build and conserve the state, society, and the home."

Flagler Is Ill.

Henry M. Flagler, vice president of the Standard Oil Co., is seriously ill in the Mt. Washington hotel, Britton Woods, N. H. His condition is understood to be serious.

Mr. Flagler's illness is attributed to the effects of an attack of the grip, from which he suffered while he was in St. Augustine, Fla., last April. At that time he was much weakened by overwork incident to the Key West railroad. He did not recover rapidly and his physician advised his removal to a cooler climate. Early in the summer he was brought to his summer home in Mamaronock, West Chester county.

A Cuban Rebellion.

War department officials discredit the probability of any uprising against the provisional government of the island.

The negro population, composing 90 per cent of the people who opposed Palma's government, claim they have not been fairly treated. A continuation of this agitation, it is admitted, might have a serious effect in driving some of the malcontents to attempted uprisings in isolated places, but Gov. Magoon is said to be prepared to nip in the bud anything like an insurrection.

Life and Property Lost.

Unprecedented rains in Andalusia, Spain, have caused immense destruction of life and property. The Guadalquivir river has been converted into a raging torrent three miles wide, and entire villages have been swept away.

Considering the extent of the flood the loss of life has not been great. Thirty persons were drowned at Malaga, 23 at Velez de Benamargosa, 13 at Coleman, and about 100 elsewhere.

Railroad communication has been destroyed. The governor has appealed for assistance from the government, fearing that the decaying carcasses of animals drowned will create an epidemic.

Now They Can Merge.

The granting of immunity to the Chicago & Alton railroad for paying rebates to the Standard Oil Co. removes the only obstacle in the way of ratification of the sale of the Rock Island railroad of a controlling interest in the Alton to the Toledo, St. Louis & Western, of Clover Leaf railroad, and the consolidation ultimately of the Alton, Clover Leaf, Minneapolis & St. Louis, and Iowa Central railroads. As soon as the necessary financial details are adjusted a reorganization of the four roads will be effected, but the independent organizations of each may be maintained for some time, and the combination deferred until it is certain that no legal complications will result.

Southern Michigan was visited by a severe frost and late corn and vegetables ruined in some sections.

Pleading guilty to taking her daughter to a Grand Rapids resort, the mother of Laura Babcock, aged 15, explained that she wanted the girl to have a good time. Laura was sent to the Adrian school and the mother is held in jail.

President Will Approve.

President Roosevelt has decided to approve the exceedingly radical constitution adopted by Oklahoma. This constitution provides for:

- Direct legislation through the initiative and referendum.
- Nomination of all state, county, district and township officers by direct primaries.
- Prohibition of succession in office to state officers.
- Prohibition of railway corporations from owning any productive agency of a natural commodity.
- Prohibition of corporations from owning more land than is absolutely necessary in the operation of their business.
- Prohibition of watered stock and provision that the books of all corporations shall be open to examination at any time.
- Prohibition of the employment of children under 15 years of age in factories and mines.
- Abrogation of the fellow servant law.
- Elective state corporation commission with complete supervision of all corporations.
- Two-cent railway fares.
- Labor and arbitration commission with compulsory powers.
- Agricultural commission.
- Oil, gas and mineral commission.
- Prohibition for 21 years in the present Indian Territory and all Indian reservations and state-wide prohibition for the entire state as voted on a special ballot.
- Eight-hour day.
- Establishment of a state printing plant.

In announcing his decision the president said he felt that the question of his approval ought not to be based on his personal opinion of the document, but upon whether it came within the terms of the enacting act. His personal opinion of the document, the president laughingly said, was "not fit for publication."

Fear United States.

J. Hamilton Lewis, of Chicago, who went to Russia to investigate a project to tunnel the Behring strait and build a railroad connecting Siberia with Alaska, reports that he found that the Russian government would not grant a concession for the Siberian end of the tunnel, it being regarded by the Russians as undesirable for military reasons.

From the State Capital

Information and Gossip Furnished by Special Correspondent at Lansing.

Lansing.—Two Michigan railroads have refused to file reports and other information regarding the value of their properties with the state tax commission, which is now preparing to make the annual assessment. The Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railway refuses to report for the reason that it claims its property is exempt from ad valorem taxation by the terms of its special charter, but the attorney general is contesting the company's contention in the courts. The Au Sable & Northwestern Railway company has been dissolved and the property is now owned by H. M. Loud's sons, of Au Sable who assert that it is private property, assessable locally, and is not within the jurisdiction of the tax commission. On this account it refuses to file a report. As the dissolution of the corporate existence of the company was not effectuated until after June 30, the tax commission will place the property on the rolls and leave the collection of the tax to the courts. Complaints that a number of coal mines in the vicinity of Bay-City are under-assessed are being investigated by the state tax commission. A review of the rolls has been fixed for Oct. 2, and witnesses subpoenaed for the hearing.

From Newsboy to Legislator.

From former Detroit newsboy and later page in the house of representatives, Alex. Cohen will pass to a seat in the legislature. Cohen was elected a member from the Lansing district to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Representative S. D. Montgomery, winning by a majority of 22 over John E. Crotty, Democrat.

ALEX. COHEN

Cohen was appointed page by the late Gov. Pingree, when the latter told the Detroit newsboys he would appoint any one of their number chosen by them as page. He later became chief clerk in the state department and retired to start a coal business, which has become a prosperous enterprise.

Taxation Must Cease.

School district No. 4, in Colfax township, Wexford county, has been levying school taxes for six or seven years without conducting a school, and has accumulated a fund of about $600. An investigation has been made by the department of public instruction, and the district has been directed to establish a school or cease levying taxes. A suit has been brought by a lumber company paying most of the taxes to compel the school board to refund the taxes collected, and it will probably be required to do so by the court, as districts are prohibited by the constitution from levying taxes under such circumstances.

Israelites Get Scared.

A lawyer representing the House of Israel at Benton Harbor had a conference with Deputy Attorney General Chase in regard to the commencement of proceedings to dissolve the corporation under which the Israelitish colony is doing business. It was agreed that if the colony ceases to transact a commercial business as a church organization the information in the case will not be filed.

Pamphlet on Legislative Evil.

Each delegate-elect to the constitutional convention will within a few days receive a bound volume containing the constitution of 1850, annotated by sections. Decisions of the supreme court construing the section and a history of amendments follow in each case. Blank leaves will be as numerous as the printed ones, and members are expected to come to the convention with notes and observations throughout. This is to be the first of three bulletins prepared for the use of the convention by Lewis M. Miller and George Clark, of the legislative reference department. One pamphlet is directed at the special legislation evil. In 1881 the legislature passed 142 special local acts; the legislature of 1907 passed 414 such acts, not counting exceptions to general acts, joint and concurrent resolutions, game and fish provisions and other neighborhood measures. Mr. Miller says that in its legislative department Michigan is 50 years behind the times. In all southern and western states, Mr. Miller finds, there are sweeping prohibitions of local acts, the legislatures being limited in most cases to special measures of great importance and local measures if intricate nature. In the east, New York and Pennsylvania have taken decided stands against losing time on county supervisor matters. The initiative and referendum is in operation in Oregon and the constitution of Oklahoma carries the idea still further. The plan is now pending in Maine. A section of the pamphlet is devoted to this. Another bulletin contains the original constitution of 1835 and the rejected drafts of 1867 and 1878. A member, before the election, suggested this work. They are printed without annotation. Secretary of State Prescott will call the constitutional convention to order on October 22. The convention will probably follow closely the usual lines of legislative organization, choosing a secretary and sergeant-at-arms and a corps of assistants. On the organization of committees more clerks will be added. If the debates are reported as is customary in such bodies a corps of stenographers will be employed. There will be between 12 and 20 committees. There are 22 articles of the present constitution, including the double Art. 19, which is obsolete. It relates to the upper peninsula. There are 15 important subdivisions.

Get Purer Food Products.

Interesting facts in relation to the adulteration of food products are given in the report of State Dairy and Food Commissioner Bird. From January 1 to June 30 the department chemist analyzed 672 samples of food products, and of this number found 311 adulterated. Inasmuch as only suspected samples are taken these analyses show a considerable decrease in the quantity of adulterated foods on the market. More analyses of milk were made than of any other food product, and out of 477 samples analyzed 114 were found adulterated. Prosecutions followed in a large number of cases.

Veteran Cavalry Reunion.

Company G, Third regiment, Michigan Veteran Volunteer cavalry, held its seventeenth annual reunion at Ann Arbor with 33 veterans in attendance. T. W. Quackenbush, who raised the company and served as captain for three years, and W. C. Stevens, the original first lieutenant of the company, were both present. This company was mustered into the service in 1861 and served until the close of the war.

Michigan Needs 1,000 Miners.

Malcolm J. McLeod, state labor commissioner, went to Saginaw to investigate the labor situation in the coal mines, having been advised by Mining Commissioner Thomas W. Davis that there was a shortage of miners in Michigan. This is likely to be increased by the opening of new shafts. Mr. Davis makes an estimate that 1,000 extra men could be used in Michigan mines.

Women Will Have Lobby.

At the annual convention of the Michigan Equal Suffrage association it was decided not to ask the constitutional convention to frame any laws in regard to suffrage, but to ask instead that special attention be paid to the initiative and referendum. It was also decided to have a lobbyist from Chicago at the convention to look out for the interests of the suffragists.

ETHICS.

Ethics is a pretty good thing after all. It is to ethics that the disgruntled make their last appeal, and who of us, the way things are going, is never disgruntled? If there were no ethics, it would probably become expedient, if not necessary, to invent one. Ethics is morally brought up to date and adapted to the tastes of a fastidious generation. It resembles morality as the porcelain bathtub resembles the swimming-hole. That is to say, it is more advertised and can be had in the house. Ethics takes its place among the modern conveniences, morality among the inconveniences. Business is business. In a sense less strict, ethics is ethics. Ethics and the zeitgeist are better friends than would appear from their manner in company.—Life.

METHOD IN SCHEME

JACOB SCHIFF, FINANCIER, FAVORERS TARIFF REDUCTION.

This Would Stop the Building Up of Great Monopolies and the Accumulation of Vast Fortunes, and Make Mr. Schiff's Money Worth More.

Money talks, but not always reasonably or intelligently. For example, Mr. Jacob H. Schiff, member of one of the world's largest banking houses and director in a dozen or so of lesser banking and loan concerns, has lately broken into print with the following: "Nothing will so thoroughly prevent the building up of great monopolies and the accumulation of the vast fortunes, the existence of which is at the bottom of the prevailing social unrest, as a sound and sensible revision of the tariff. It is right that American industry and the American workman be protected against undue foreign competition, but it cannot be right to compel the American consumer to pay a vast profit to the manufacturer where the latter under a much lower tariff would be able to maintain himself. Herein lies the principal remedy which needs to be applied if the causes which have brought about present conditions are to be permanently eradicated."

It will be noticed that Banker Schiff's sole concern is for the consumer. Most consumers are also producers, but we are not aware that Banker Schiff is a producer. Breeder, perhaps, but not producer. He marries coin and currency together and takes the increase. He profits by the merger of corporate properties, but we have not heard that by so much as a dollar's worth he has ever advanced raw or partly finished material in value by a manufacturing process. Mr. Schiff is said to control a larger quantity of spot cash than any other person in the United States. Naturally he is interested in enlarging to the utmost extent the purchasing power of his cash. Not being the producer of any commodity advanced in value by human labor, he would like to buy more of the products of labor with his dollars. A dear dollar and a cheap man would suit Mr. Schiff better than a cheap dollar and a dear man.

An able financier may not be an able industrialist. The man who knows how to make two coins grow where one coin grew before is not necessarily a high authority on anything but his finance. It is more than possible that he knows very little of the relation of labor cost to production cost in manufacturing and the relation of tariff to both. Quite certain it is that Mr. Schiff does not speak where he personally knows when he asserts that American manufacturers, paying double the European rate of wages and ten times the oriental rate, could maintain themselves "under a much lower tariff." Ninety-five per cent. of the business men engaged in manufacturing, to say nothing of the 10,000,000 men who work for wages, do not agree with Banker Schiff in this matter. They do not think that American labor and production would under a much lower tariff remain as prosperous as they now are. To prove this they have an argument that even money lenders should be able to see the force of. They point to the fact that this country is now importing each year more than $800,000,000 worth of competitive products. Generally speaking, this does not indicate that the tariff is much too high.

If Mr. Schiff could spare a moment from his tariff ripping lucubrations he might discover something of direct fiscal significance in the latest trade returns. The official statistics for the seven months ending with July, 1907, show that our imports had increased, over the same period in 1906, $136,158,370, while our exports show an increase of $99,469,605. The net increase of imports for the seven months has been $36,688,765, or at the rate of $63,000,000 a year. But the showing for the month of July, 1907, is still more significant. Imports show an increase over the same month in 1906 of $22,238,517, or at the rate of nearly $267,000,000 a year; while exports for July, 1907, increased $16,861,961, or at the rate of a little over $200,000,000 a year.

This marked rate of increase of imports as compared with exports has occurred under the tariff as it is—or as it is supposed to be. When the tariff should be reduced to suit Mr. Schiff the flood of imports would enormously increase, that being the main object sought by tariff reduction. Then we should be sending gold abroad out of our banks to balance trade. At the rate imports are even now gaining upon exports our trade balance is being greatly reduced. Any further increase of the rate of gain of imports would be likely to bring on a gold exportation panic. Tariff reduction would hasten the advent of that situation.

Foolish to Force It.

That the tariff will some time have to be revised does not admit of doubt or of dispute. Every intelligent man concedes that this time will eventually come, since constantly changing business conditions will naturally bring it about, but, until that time does arrive, the party would be very foolish indeed to undertake to force it. The people of this country are not slow to express their preference upon great questions of this character and when they become dissatisfied with the tariff they may be depended upon to say so in plain words. Until they do declare the president will do well to stand pat, as he has evidently decided to do.—St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette.

TARIFF FOR REVENUE ONLY.

Phrase Cannot Be Accepted At Its Face Value.

Senator Hemenway of Indiana is quoted as follows on the subject of next year's campaign:

"For the first time in sixteen years the tariff will be the main issue, in my opinion. The corporation problems have been mostly attended to now, and unless some big new issue should crop up as the result of the next session of congress, the tariff will be the principal topic on the stump. The Republicans will contend that the tariff should be revised after the inauguration of the next President in the interests of protection and by the friends of protection. The Democrats will contend that the tariff should be revised with the idea of tariff for revenue only in view. On that issue I have not the slightest doubt that the Republicans will be returned to power. This is a protectionist country."

"A tariff for revenue only," has in times past led to a good deal of discussion. Until 1894 the phrase was accepted at its face value. It meant the levying of no more duties on importations than necessary to carry on the government economically administered. Such was the explanation offered by men of the Carlisle-Morrison, Waterson-Mills school of tariff reformers, who for years had made the land resound with the issue.

But when the Democratic party, with Mr. Cleveland in the white house, was called upon to put the issue into legislative shape it "fell down" with the task distressingly, and to its own loss and humiliation. The Gorman-Wilson measure proved to be anything but "a tariff for revenue only," being stuffed full of duties designed expressly for protection. Even the bill that Mr. Cleveland wanted would have carried a large amount of calculated protection.

As the government must have money for its support—no party would dare put the United States on short commons—much importance attaches to the proposition that the government be "economically administered." Our expenses at present are not what they were in 1884, when Mr. Cleveland was first elected, nor what they were in 1892, when he was the second time elected, on a platform carrying a demand for "a tariff for revenue only." Now, what is economy? If we are spending too much money, where shall retrenchment begin? How, and to what extent, should the pruning knife be applied?

Mr. Hemenway is justified in his statement that this is "a protectionist country." The truth of that will readily appear if the "tariff for revenue only" men take the ground next year that the English of their issue means the challenge of protection to a duel to the death.

A Midsummer Night's Dream.

It is difficult to sufficiently admire the cheerful optimism of the new tariff editor of American Industries. Mr. Miles has got it all settled. The tariff is to be taken out of politics, he says, before the Sixtieth congress assembles on the first Monday in December, a little more than 90 days hence. This is quick work indeed. Puck in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" declared "I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes."

The Miles midsummer night's dream is even swifter and more difficult of realization. Puck's promise has been verified by electricity and a telegraph wire. The Racine (Wis.) Puck will need a larger dose of electricity to help him take the tariff out of politics in 90 days. He will have to kill off some 16,000,000 voters arrayed on one side or the other of the question, "Protection or Free Trade?" and bring into being before the first Monday in December 16,000,000 new voters, including about 500 senators and representatives in congress who have absolutely no views on this question. It will be a great man who can take the tariff out of politics in 90 years. Let alone 90 days.

Tariff Ripping Reasons.

The fact of an $87,000,000 surplus suggests to the New York Tribune the conclusion that "the Dingley schedules have done their work in certain lines and need revision." By a similar process of reasoning the same conclusion might be reached regarding other facts and conditions. The country is more prosperous than ever before; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. We have a yearly trade balance of about half a billion dollars, which enables us to keep out of debt to foreign countries; the Dingley schedules have done their work and need revision. In its search for tariff ripping reasons the Tribune ought not to overlook these things.

More, Too.

Considering the fact that in the first month of our new system of making competition easier by the reduction of tariff duties through undervaluation, imports of competitive articles have increased nearly $12,000,000, is there any real necessity for either tariff reduction or reciprocity by act of congress? Is it not a fact that when we were scared into allowing foreigners to appraise their own merchandise we revised and reciprocated about all we can stand? And more, too, it will probably turn out.

WAS IT FATE?

A Romance of Roller Skating.

If the bicycling fever doubled the price of wedding rings, what is the roller-skating craze going to do? What brought about Runner's wedding to Shyly's or Sour's or Little Willow's? Roller skating.

Willow loved Vera. My, how he did love that girl! He idolized, worshipped, adored her until it was almost funny. Not to Willow, but to others, Vera and paradise; no Vera, the other thing. That was how he felt about it, though otherwise he seemed perfectly rational.

With Willow the one question of the hour and all hours was how to marry and eat three meals a day on $15 a week. He passed hours gazing in at grocers' windows reading prices, though Vera had told him time and time again that she would manage it all right.

Vera was the slave of a crabbed old uncle, her only relative, who needed lots of waiting-on and some one to abuse. Vera cost him less than three dollars a week and never talked back. Vera talk back to uncle! Her amateur performance would have made a fine showing beside uncle's professional nagging, he having been born with a gift for that sort of thing.

Whenever Vera had a beau uncle had a convulsion. Willow was pretty busy most of the time, covering his tracks, as he knew that excitement was bad for uncle. They managed things rather nicely so that uncle's weak heart would get no jolts. Then the roller-rink fever broke out.

Willow, a clever ice skater, had very little to learn. But Vera! Honest, it looked as if she just never would learn. Willow presented her with a pair of skates, and she began home practice, guided by Willow's instructions, and some printed rules. It was easy enough. In fact, there was very little to it. See that the skates are fastened securely, stand firmly, advance right foot, throw full weight upon it, bend well forward to get "send," and glide away. It sounded easy, but it did not seem to work in practice.

Vera never glided. Instead she would wobble and wobble frantically here and there and then zigzag helplessly to the exact place she did not want to go. There invariably was nothing to grab, so down she would go with such force that everything in the room would jump, her skates always striking last. But she persevered.

At last there came a time when she consented to attend a masked carnival at the roller rink. They wore hired cheesecloth costumes. In a dinky peasant dress Vera surely looked all right to Willow.

She was considerable of a girl, to begin with, brimming with energy. Before she knew it she had torn herself from Willow's bashful and respectful hold and was whizzing across the mammoth rink with power enough to carry a loaded through freight four miles uphill on a wet day. She had lost all control of herself and that diabolical momentum increased with every second.

At the opposite end of the rink, luffing up out of the distance and the disturbance he was causing, careened a huge, red, ungainly, masked Santa Claus, whiskers streaming, his four extremities doing everything but the right ones. Plainly the man was determined to cut some particular caper that he had set mind on if he had to kill everyone on the floor. Singles and couples sprawled in his wake, some able to sit up and send maledictions after him, while others had only life enough to wave a skate-laden foot in useless protest. A trolley car would have been as sensible of attack.

The rollers under Willow seemed riveted to the floor with horror. He saw that at a point near the center of the rink it was foredoomed that Santa Claus and Vera should collide with the impulsion got from new skates well oiled, a floor that cost $4,000 to lay and polish, a hundred and forty pounds of uncontrolled girl and nearly twice that weight of man resolutely sending himself in the direction he was determined to go.

As in a dream, Willow heard an attendant say: "Pal, you shouldn't of shoved your lady out that way when old reapi'n' and thrashin' machine is operatin' hisself. We don't dare say a word, for he is one of the main ropes here, and can order us out of our jobs any time he likes. Gee! It looks like we was goin' to need a doctor or a hearse or somethin'."

They struck with a frightful impact and then fell apart and spun about. One of Vera's skates came down on Santa's head kerwhack. His wig and beard had fallen off and, ere she faltered, Vera saw that it was Uncle! Talk about poetic justice!

The attendant had almost to carry Willow across the floor. He was nearly dead, and, oh, how he wished Uncle was also! Willow's wishes never did come true.

Uncle dead! Before the doctor got there he was sitting up, stanching the trickle of blood from his head and telling the crowd how he had seen Vera coming and by skillful maneuvering had managed to save her life by heroically sacrificing himself. Further, he told Vera and Willow that skating was the first sensible thing he had ever known either of them to do. Then, after he had seen what a skater Willow was, he made Willow manager of the rink at more than $15

Funeral of A. E. Meisner.

The funeral of Archibald E. Meisner was held at the Methodist church Sunday morning, Sept. 29th. The church was prettily decorated with white drapings and flowers, and the large audience testified to the esteem in which our young friend was held. Representatives of the K. O. T. M. M. and N. P. Matthews. Rev. Yost gave a few eloquent remarks, taking for his text, "Wherefore comfort yourselves together," 1st Thessalonians fifth chapter. Hymns were sung by Mrs. Blanche Robertson Dole and Misses Danforth and Walsh, Bertha Shier as accompanist. Rev. Kater closed the service with prayer.

The body in its flower laden casket was carried to its last resting place by Messrs Hanson, Cummings, Chapman, Gidley, Sherman and Gregory. The service at the grave were conducted by Rev. Lampert.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Sloop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc. All Dealers

Make This According To The Directions.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup, Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and primary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Louis R. Lick, for sometime past employed at Warner's Pharmacy, was detected embezzling money from his employer and on Wednesday evening taken into the Prosecuting Attorney's offices and after an hour and a half's strong denial of any wrong-doing, finally confessed to systematic pilfering for the past year and a half. Just what the amount taken is, will never be known, but it is said to run up to at least $2,000.00. Lick restored something less than $1000.00 and left town the following day. The young man had, until the past fortnight, enjoyed the utmost confidence of his employer, and was well liked by citizens in general. He was a member in good standing in one of our churches, and noted for his exemplary habits. The money purloined was never spent foolishly. As he endeavored to make restitution his employer leniently decided not to prosecute.

The Castle of Lies

BY ARTHUR HENDY VESEY

"That is not necessary," assured Starva. "Let all these candles be snuffed except those in the candelabrum that stands at the head of the staircase. Bring your man, Jacques, to that point and no farther. We shall see him; but he will not be able to see us."

Fortune was favoring us—indeed. Locke and I silently bestirred ourselves. Now at last had come the moment for action. But still another grumbled; and still fortune favored us.

"That is all very well," objected Ignatieff. "And perhaps a traitor may strike a blow in the dark. I for one refuse to gratify the curiosity of Kuhn in this matter."

"But Starva was determined to have his way."

"To prevent that," he answered, "each of us will lay his weapons on the table at the end of the hall."

There were cries of fierce dissent. Starva silenced them with an angry gesture.

"One moment, friends," he purged. "You do not quite understand. When we first came into this room I suggested that lots should be drawn, and he who was favored with the lucky number should fire, concealed in the gloom, that none might be sure who had been chosen to snuff out Ferdinand's little soul. But since our friend Kuhn's loyalty has been questioned, it is he who shall have that honor, and with Gornji's dagger he shall do the work. And lest an accident should happen, or lest his courage should fail him, Bratnau and I will keep our revolvers. I think there is none to question our loyalty."

Kuhn had grown frightfully pale; he trembled. But he spoke no word.

"By this arrangement," continued Starva, "the loyalty of Kuhn of Macedonia will be established. And if," he was glaring at Gingaja and Count Piteschti, "there are any mad enough to dream of disloyalty at this late hour, and harbor treachery, they will be powerless."

Starva's ruse was hailed with shouts of approval. Gornji, Ignatieff, and Gortschakoff strode to the table, at the end of the hall and flung down their weapons defiantly. Gingaja reluctantly followed their example. Piteschti folded his arms defiantly, standing motionless.

"This is child's play," he muttered, with pale lips.

"Nevertheless," whispered Bratnau in his ear, "you will obey, and quickly. By all the saints, Starva, I think your plan has proved a wise one. Come, sir, we are waiting. Or are you so ignorant of the rules of etiquette that you insist in taking precedence over a king?"

With a gesture of despair Count Piteschti walked slowly to the table and left his revolver there.

"Now, friend Kuhn, we are waiting only for you!" cried Starva sharply.

"I have no arms," answered the poor wretch, with a sob.

"You shall be armed presently," cried Gornji.

"Now, Jacques, you may go. Out with the candles, Gornji and Ignatieff. The rest of you remain quietly as you value your lives. You will find your man defenseless, Jacques. But if he proves troublesome, you have only to call and I will come. You have taken care of Alphonse?"

"I have put him to sleep," he chuckled.

As Jacques lifted the tapestry Locke choked him into silence. Together we carried him struggling up the hidden staircase and burst into the anteroom of the tower. Not until we had flung him breathless into the room of the safe, and had locked the door, did we answer Forbes' frenzied questions. Locke gripped his arm for silence.

"Quick, there is not a moment to lose. Have you arms?"

"No," growled Forbes, ready for action.

"In the first room to the right of the corridor," panted Madame de Varnier. "In the drawer of the cabinet near the door."

"Then come. And you two stay here. There is man's work below."

We stole silently down the stairs, Locke and myself in the lead, to the cabinet, where both Locke and Forbes chose their revolvers.

"Do you, Capt. Forbes, make your way along the gallery until you come to the spiral staircase at the end of the hall," I commanded, briefly.

"When I appear at the main stairway with Locke, rrench the hall with no delay. There is a table by the little stairway; there are arms on it; let no one approach that table until Locke or myself have reached your side. Now then, Locke, are we ready?"

We had fled silently into the corridor. Forbes sped with caution to this vantage ground. Locke was already approaching the main staircase when I seized him by the arm.

"I am going to fool Starva. I am going to call for help. He will think it Jacques. As he comes, I shall take care of him. Bratnau is your man. Wait till he shows himself, and

I raised my voice in a cry of distress.

"A moi, Starva!"

My trick succeeded admirably. Starva bounded up the staircase. As he showed himself in the light of the candelabrum I fired. He fell headlong without a groan. Locke stood at the head of the staircase waiting; I peered down in the darkness below.

Forbes' revolver rang out again and again. The uproar was terrible.

"Kuhn! Gingaja! Piteschti! To the staircase!" I cried in French. That was the last I knew of our melee.

I sank gently to my knees behind the antique rug. Bratnau's bullet had struck me.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"Honor, My Sword."

I awoke to consciousness to find myself in the music room. I opened my eyes languidly. Helen was bending over me.

"What is it?" I murmured. "Yes, I remember—the fight on the staircase."

"I struggled to my feet, but sank back dizzily, my hands to my aching forehead."

"Thank God you are alive, and it is all over!" cried Helen, brokenly.

"And Ferdinand is safe?"

"Quite safe and unhurt. Already

"Don't!" she cried in pain. "How can you speak of love at such an hour?"

"Forgive me. What a selfish brute I am. But by the by—when time has softened your bitter pain—in happier days may I come to you?"

"Happier days!" She clasped her hands in quick despair, looking beyond me as if into a future that must be always dark for her.

"Yes," I said, passionately, "there shall yet be happier days for you and for me. Do you remember on the terrace the little beacon light in the far-off mountains? That was my star. It comforted me then; it bids me hope now; it tells me, Helena, you love me!"

"Never!" She withdrew her hand. I had held almost fiercely.

Her vehemence brought me rudely to my senses. I had been mad to hope. I turned slowly from her, groping my way toward the door; for my head was still throbbing furiously.

She stopped me with a cry of distress. She clung to me in her eagerness.

"You don't understand," she pleaded. "You have saved my brother's honor as far as the world can know. But this shame that crushes me this disgrace, can I forget it?"

"I would help you bear it."

"Mr. Haddon, we Bretts have been a proud race. Our happiness we share with others. But disgrace we bear alone."

"Don't say that; you are bitter now, but—"

"If you had known me better," said Helena, quietly, "you would understand that I do not give to-morrow what I must deny to-day."

When I told her of Willoughby's tragic death, I had thought it pathetic that a woman should be so strong. It was her calm courage that had first awakened my love for her. I must not complain now if she was not to be moved by my entreaties. But this question I did ask:

"If I could have proved that your

"Prince Ferdinand insisted that she must go at once to Sofia. He has sent her on some secret mission. I think she must be one of his spies."

"And she left no message for me?" I demanded, gloomily.

"No," replied Helena, looking at me in wonder. "Why do you ask?"

I did not tell her of Madame de Varnier's promise. I knew now that it had been given me quite recklessly to spur me to action. I was mad to expect mercy and gratitude from such a woman. She was too determined on her revenge. I remembered bitterly how she had told me in the tower that she sacrificed friends and enemies if they proved obstacles to her plans.

"I had hoped," I answered, vaguely, "now that Ferdinand was saved, that she might in some way be able to show us that your brother's dishonor is not so great as it appears."

"But could she explain away his writing?" asked Helena mournfully. "No; even if she feels remorse for her cruelty in torturing me, it is, too late. I have eaten of the tree of knowledge. Mr. Haddon, and it is very bitter. Heaven has reversed my fate and yours. It is I who now have lost my self-respect, while you have gained—"

"No," I cried, bitterly, "I have failed utterly in my task. I dared hope for too much. I have dared too greatly in dreaming that I should find happiness in this Castle of Lies."

"But," she whispered, "I, too, have dared, Ernest, and I shall not forget."

"Helena!" I crushed her hands in mine. "Even now I refuse to despair. I will find this woman though I search the earth for her. She shall tell me everything, and perhaps even now—"

"Not even your love can bring about the impossible."

"But if it could— If by a miracle your brother's honor were shown to be stainless?"

"Ah, if you could work miracles—yes," she faltered.

The door was flung open brusquely. Locke stood at the threshold, his keen glance bent cynically on me.

"So you are quite yourself again?" He concealed his embarrassment by a stiff demeanor. "So much the better; for you must be off before the dawn, my friend."

"And where?" I demanded, astonished and not a little piqued at his cool assurance.

"En route for America, if you are wise."

"You are setting my destiny in a rather high-handed manner," I cried, angrily. "And will you tell me why you dispose of me so summarily?"

"Why," replied he, with a quiet laugh, "I have promoted you—"

He became suddenly serious, glancing uneasily at Helena.

"Miss Bret, Capt. Forbes and myself will accompany you to your hotel presently. Will you wait here while I say a few words to Mr. Haddon?"

"But it is not possible that you still mistrust him after to-night?" she demanded with indignation.

"No, no," he assured her. "I would spare you from embarrassment; that is all."

"Come, then," I said, shortly.

When we had reached the gallery I saw to my astonishment that the hall below was empty. I listened and there was complete silence.

"What have Forbes and yourself done with your prisoners?" I demanded. In my perplexity I forgot to ask what Locke had meant in saying flippantly that he had promoted me.

"They are all gone but two," Locke answered coolly. He lighted a cigarette, and leaning on the gallery rail stared down into the hall. "Starva and Bratnau's bodies are in the dining-rooms, but their souls have been swiftly ferried across the Styx by old Charon. Nothing reminds us of our fight except the dark stain on the staircase carpet yonder. It was a good scrap while it lasted. Your shot-winged Starva, as you probably know, I settled Bratnau. Forbes peppered away in the dark, and had fair luck. The man called Go on or Geupp, or something like that, got a shattered ankle, and the Serbian a rather nasty wound in the thigh. As for the rest of the gentry, three of them rallied to your slogan and joined me at the staircase; the other two were easily settled with. Yes, it was a good fight, but much too short—especially for you, old chap." He shook his head despondently.

"But your prisoners?" I demanded again, irritated by his superfluous comments.

"It was Prince Ferdinand who insisted on their release."

"Their release?" I interrupted, furiously. "What incredible folly!"

"You remember that Starva and Bratnau were the only Bulgars among the conspirators, and they are dead. The two ringleaders are wounded badly enough to go to a hospital. Forbes himself has accompanied them there to see that they are not discharged until one of us is told. Practically they are prisoners. There remains Kuhn, Piteschti and Gingaja, the three men who showed that they had some instincts of humanity when it came to the crisis. The other two were arrant cowards; Ferdinand prefers to consider the three his loyal friends and two others powerless. He has set them at liberty."

"By Jove, his magnanimity or his folly will cost him dear."

"I am not so certain of that," resumed Locke, thoughtfully. "It is possible that he has made five friends of five enemies. You must remember that even if he wished to punish the conspirators he is powerless to do this without advertising to the world the intended uprising of the Balkan States."

A SLAVE TO DUTY

Also a Mean Trick Played on a Friend.

A hurried glance under the closely drawn shade convinced Mrs. Owen that this time, at least, it was a neighbor who stood on her doorstep, and not that silky person with something to sell.

"Come right in, Mrs. Smythe," said Mrs. Owen, hospitably.

"The shades were drawn and I was afraid you were away from home," said her visitor, making herself comfortable.

"No, I put them down so I can peek out when the bell rings. If it's a promoter or canvasser, I don't open the door. They always persuade me to buy against my own judgment. I can't trust myself, so don't take any chances."

"But, if you don't need the article—"

"But I can't get rid of them. They either make me think that I can't do without what they are selling, or they work on my sympathies. The house is full of hair restorer and breakfast foods, to say nothing of court plaster, shoe strings and brooms."

"But a woman of your intelligence would only buy what was worth the money."

Mrs. Owen looked pleased.

"I wish I was as good a bargain hunter as you, Mrs. Smythe."

"When you are my age, my dear, you will be a wonder. I just ran in to tell you of the bargain I got yesterday. It's a real snap. I subscribed for some beautiful books—12 volumes at three dollars a month, printed on hand-made paper and the loveliest bindings—"

"We don't need any books. I don't get time to read. With housework and the children's clothes—"

"That's just it, Mrs. Owen; you are a slave to duty. I believe in keeping pace with my husband's brains. I don't intend to forfeit his love by letting my intellect get rusty. Some women don't care. They think their husbands can't escape, and so they neglect this great duty."

Mrs. Owen smiled pleasantly. She felt no anxiety on that score.

"I read in one of my new books about the belfry in Bruges, and last night when Mr. Smythe looked bored and restless I just opened a conversation and steered it to the subject on which I had been studying. He had lots of interesting things to say, and seemed so pleased to find me so well informed. Now, if I hadn't those books I might have been stupid, and he'd have gone to the club instead of having such a nice evening at home. A woman should not be a slave to household duties. No wonder men tire of their wives—"

But Mrs. Owen never tires of me.

"That's just it. He will. You won't know it at first. It creeps like a little serpent—"

"My goodness! you don't mean to say—"

"Yes, I do. Unless you keep posted on what's doing in the world, as a man does, it is bound to come. I read about a man who loved his wife for ten years and as she became occupied with her household affairs he began going to the theaters—and he met another woman."

"Oh, Mrs. Smythe, you frighten me! What if my husband should be led astray that way?"

"I don't want to make you uneasy—but if you won't do anything to prevent—well, there's no telling."

"What can I do? Please advise me. It would kill me to lose him! We are all the world to each other."

"Yes, now, while you are young, and pretty. But some time he will tire of you and your petty troubles," rising to go.

"O, Mrs. Smythe, don't go yet. You have not told me what to do. Don't leave me with this awful tragedy staring me in the face."

"People seldom take advice—that's for their good."

"I'll take anything that you say."

"If you would read—"

"I'll study night and day."

"It's only necessary to keep a little ahead of your husband—and turn the conversation into the proper channel. Those books of mine have a little of everything select—but, perhaps, you'd rather select your own reading?"

"No, no, I want the kind you have."

"Ahem! I suppose I could—"

"O, will you lend—"

"I was going to say I could sell you mine or—"

"I can't take yours. You might not be able to get more at that price. Do you know the agent's name? I'll go right out and look for him."

"I am glad you realize what a family blessing those books are. I have just taken the agency for them."

"How smart of you! Isn't it nice to help your husband? I'll pay you the cash and not bother with the monthly installments."

Sentiment in a Pawnshop.

A watch had just passed from the hands of a sassy young man into those of a pawnbroker. Before the young man got out of the shop the broker called him back. "Here's a picture—a woman's picture—in the back of this watch," he said. "You'd better take it out." The young man blushed. "It isn't worth while," he said. "I'll redeem the thing in a week or two."

"Maybe you will, and maybe you won't," retorted the broker. "You never can tell about these things. I may not be strong on sentiment, but one thing I insist on is that no man shall leave a woman's picture in a

Aunt Susan's Heart Went Out to "Pore Missus Astor."

Uncle Eli felt he knew the metropolis pretty well. Had he not been there three times in four years—and twice he had ridden on the elevated. So when he brought Aunt Susan with him (on the fourth trip) he naturally assumed the role of guide.

She marveled at everything until they sat down for luncheon. They had gone into the Astor house for that meal, but all its other marvels seemed lost on the visiting country hostess, as she looked open-eyed at the crowds that filled not only the corridors but the restaurants. Scarcely had they found seats, when this amazement took definite shape.

"Eli," said she in a stagey whisper. "I can't set here an' eat peaceably. I jes' must go downstairs an' help pore Missus Astor with the cookin' an' dishes."—Bohemian.

When the Orator Soared.

In the course of an address extolling the virtues of the medical profession, Dr. L. B. McBrayer of Asheville, N. C., used the following characteristic southern language:

"Could I borrow from the sun his cheery smile, from the moon her golden beams of light, from the southern zephyrs their softness, from the rose its fragrance, from the rainbow its celestial beauty, from the babbling brook its laughter and song, from the sea its awe and wonder, from the valley its serenity; and from the mountains their majesty and put these down upon a piece of azure blue sky, with comets for commas and planets for periods, I might then patnt for you what the practice of medicine is like."

On Wit and Humor.

Man is the only animal that laughs and weeps, for he is the only animal that is struck with the difference between what things are and what they ought to be. We weep at what thwarts or exceeds our desires in serious matters; we laugh at what only disappoints our expectations in trifles. We shed tears from sympathy with real and necessary distress; as we burst into laughter from want of sympathy with that which is unreasonable and unnecessary, the absurdity of which provokes our spleen or mirth, rather than serious reflections on it.—William Hazlitt.

All soldiers who served ninety days or more in the federal army or navy between 1861-1865, and who made homestead entries for less than 100 acres on or before June 22, 1874, means that an additional right is due someone and that it can be sold to him for spot cash, no matter whether patent issued or not. PARKING HAIR BALM he has left the chateau. Capt. Forbes will tell you everything presently.

He Fell Headlong Without a Groan.

"I have been unconscious so long? Am I wounded? I feel no pain, only this headache and dizziness."

"A bullet grazed your temple—an eighth of an inch more—"

She shuddered. "It wounded you only slightly, but you have been unconscious nearly an hour."

"My usual luck," I cried, bitterly. "It was to have been my chance; I hoped to retrieve myself, and I am winged the first shot. Fate is determined, it seems, that I shall stick to my role of coward."

"Don't, don't ever say that horrible word again!" cried Helen, passionately. "It was your shot that killed Starva. It is you who have saved Ferdinand; it is you who have saved for me the honor of my poor brother so far as the world can know. How can I ever be grateful enough?"

"Helena!" I cried, passionately, "you remember at Lucerne, on the terrace, when I told you of Willoughby's death, how he had died calling me coward, and as you that pointed out to me a way of escape—you told me how I could regain the self-respect I thought I had lost forever. It was to be a life for a life, you said. When I had saved a life for the life that was lost through my cowardice, I was to stand once more upright among men. Tell me, you despise me no longer?"

"Despise you?" she murmured. "If you know how I honored you!"

"Ah, it is worth while to hear you say that. But you must say more, infinitely more than that, now, dear, to satisfy me. Helena, I thought only a week ago that if I could win your respect I should be happy; but now brother had not, after all, shown himself false to the motto of your house. "Honor, my Sword," would you still have refused to listen to me?"

"Ah, if, Mr. Haddon!"

For almost the first time since I had known her she smiled; and that faint smile opened the gates of paradise to me. She would not be moved to declare her love for me, but she did love me; I was sure of it.

And then suddenly I thought of the words of the Countess Sarahoff when I made my escape by the ladder of stones: "Go, and I swear by the cause I hold sacred, that, if you can save Ferdinand, the honor of Sir Mortimer shall be saved." That promise might mean little. It might mean that she would show her gratitude by refusing to make public Sir Mortimer's disgrace. Or had her words a deeper significance?

"But," I cried eagerly, "nothing is quite impossible. I repeat now what I said to you when in your grief you asked me to meet the banker. I cannot believe in your brother's guilt. I cannot conceive how a man whose integrity has been undoubted during a brilliant career should suddenly stoop to the shame of taking bribes."

A flash of hope shone in Helena's pale face, only to be followed by the deepest dejection. "But there are the proofs," she said, mournfully. "I cannot, would that I could, deny my brother's writing."

"I must see Madame de Varnier. A few hours ago she held us at her mercy. But now we have the upper hand; there are many things she must explain. Where is she?"

"She left the chateau with Ferdinand half an hour ago."

"Left the chateau!" I cried, aghast.

IN TOILS FOR FAIR

RESULT OF A PROPOSAL OVER THE 'PHONE.

Why Bangs Is Not as Joyful as an Accepted Man Should Be—Answer Not From His Adored One.

Bangs' beautiful blush lighted up Mrs. Prunes' boarding-house on every occasion that sentiment was under discussion.

You see, Bangs was in love, love was in Bangs; it penetrated his whole system; he saw and felt nothing else but love.

"Bangs hadn't fallen in love; he had risen, and now he was at the top notch; he was balancing on his toes on the top rung, and he found it quite hard to maintain his balance. Yet he was a cool-headed young man—except on the love proposition.

Josephine was her name, and it was enough to hear Bangs pronounce it to know that he loved her passionately.

Among other drawbacks which kept Bangs from declaring his love was that Josephine had a mother. "An austere woman, she wasn't passionate over Bangs, because Bangs was only a drygoods salesman. Her husband had been a plumber before Josephine's mother got hold of him and made him raise the price and keep it there.

Several times she had snubbed him, and Bangs went as cheerfully to her house as one does to an iced house in winter.

One night Bangs worked himself up and was about to pitch into a proposal, when, suddenly, softly, with a swish of skirts, Josephine's mother entered the room and sat down between them. The hot words froze in his mouth, while Josephine's mother was gazing passively through her lorgnette and looking at him as she would have studied a water color in an art gallery.

It was all off that night. Bangs knew it.

Again he tried to slip in a word or two of love edgewise—but no—Josephine's mother was there.

He didn't know when he could see Josephine alone.

Immersed in his murky thoughts, he sat behind his counter and tried to figure a way out.

A light broke suddenly upon him. Rushing eagerly to the 'phone, he called Josephine's house.

"O, I'm so glad it's you, Josephine. Don't interrupt me. I've something to say and I must say it quickly. I love you, Josephine, I love you. Will you marry me?"

He pressed the receiver to his ear and listened intently for her soft, cooing "Y-y-y-es-s."

Suddenly he slammed the receiver down and looked about like a hunted animal.

"Well, I'll be blamed," he gasped, as soon as he could. "I thought it was Josephine and, there, it was her mother. What shall I do?"

All Bangs did was to blush and bite his finger nails. In fact, that was about all there was left for him to do now.

Island Home of the Jews.

Elephantine is an island of the Nile, where archaeologists are finding ancient curiosities. A sort of sanctuary decorated with miniature obelisks and covering a spot which was used for burying the bodies of sacred animals was found. These animals proved to be rams carefully mummified and buried in sarcophagi of granite. The wrappings of the mummies are gilded and ornamented with painted scenes of a mythological character and bear inscriptions. The ram was among the sacred animals of Egypt, and seems to have been especially sacred to the principal deity of the island. Many fragments of texts have been found. They are inscribed upon pieces of pottery and known as ostraca. The inscriptions are in hieroglyphic, Coptic, Greek and Arab. They show that as far back as the fifth century, B. C., the island was inhabited by Jews. Papyrus inscriptions had proved this fact, but the new discoveries show just what quarter belonged to the Jews. According to the records, a Jewish temple must have existed in this locality and now is being looked for by the investigators.

Time and Sex Have Changed.

Men nowadays are ashamed—absolutely ashamed—of tendering to women any of the little delicate attentions and courtesies that in the past endeared them to womanhood. A man now raises his hat to a woman not as a tribute to the sex, a sign of respect and observance, but more as the enforced fulfillment of an irksome duty. Where are the graceful curves and flourishes of the hat, the step back, the deep bow and courtly smile of the seventeenth, nay even the eighteenth century? Then it was a pleasure to meet a man in the street; one felt one's sway of sex. Who is now inclined to acknowledge a hideous smirk and a grudging touch of a hat brim?—London Judy.

HOME-MADE REMEDY

INEXPENSIVE AND EASILY PREPARED BY ANYONE.

Is Said to Promptly Relieve Backache and Overcome Kidney Trouble and Bladder Weakness Though Harmless and Pleasant to Take.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known authority, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic afflictions with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the feul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Brief Pantomime Told Everything to the Onlooker.

Harrison Grey Fiske discussed, at a dinner in New York, the art of acting.

"I believe," said Mr. Fiske, "in subtlety and restraint. A nod, a shake of the head, a silent pause—these things are often more effective than the most violent yelling and ranting.

"Life is like that, subtle and silent. What, for instance, could be more expressive than this scene, a scene without a spoken word, that I once witnessed in the country?"

She suffered a great deal and for three weeks we nursed her every night, using all the remedies we could think of. Nothing would help. We tried the Cuticura Remedies and after twenty-four hours we noted considerable improvement, and after using only one complete set of the Cuticura Remedies, in five consecutive days the little one, much to our joy, had been entirely cured, and has been well for a long time. A Point of View.

The new steamer City of _____ was built up for repairs and one of the rickety old-timers of the line was sailing in her place. A passenger who was somewhat irritated by the fact remarked to another, an Irishman, by the way: "The City of _____ always gets in at two in the morning and this old tub never gets in before six."

The Irishman thought for a moment and replied: "It's all right. The distance is just the same and we get a longer sail for the money."

ENGLISHMAN'S FIRST AND SUCCESSFUL ATTEMPTS IN MANITOBA—SOIL PRODUCES STRIKING RESULTS.

The Winnipeg (Canada) Free Press of a few days since contains account of the success that followed the efforts of William Knowles, an Englishman who located near Winnipeg, Manitoba. This is but one of many letters giving experiences of settlers, and should be encouraging to those who are looking about for a new home in which they may better their conditions. The following is a copy of the article referred to:

William Knowles, who cultivates some twelve acres of land just below Middlechurch ferry on east side of the Red River has probably as fine a display of horticultural products as any in Manitoba. The whole of his holding is in a high state of cultivation and literally crowded with splendid vegetable specimens, which have fortunately escaped damage by hail, although heavy storms have more than once occurred within a few miles. The potatoes are a wonderful crop, and he expects to raise 1,500 bushels from his patch of 4 1/2 acres. A half-dozen of tubers selected yesterday average more than a pound each. Adjoining the potatoes may be seen a marvelous collection of tomatoes. There are 600 plants, all growing under an enormous weight of fruit. One single stock picked yesterday contained eighteen tomatoes and weighed four pounds. This extraordinary example of marvelous growth, together with some of the potatoes were sent to the Free Press office.

The proprietor was the first in town with several specimens, including green corn. The season has been favorable for onions, and one square patch of nearly an acre is looking remarkably healthy. In addition there are good crops of cabbages, cauliflower, turnips, parsnips, carrots, pumpkins, marrows, cucumbers, celery, peas, lettuce, rhubarb, etc. The floral department has not been neglected and a charming display of all the well known blooms were shown, including a specially choice lot of asters.

Mr. Knowles, who gained most of his gardening experience in England, is loud in his praise of Manitoba soil for vegetable raising, and is gratified with the result of his first attempt at extensive horticulture.

Beaten.

Hereupon the widows and orphans, whom we had plundered, proceeded to call down the customary curses upon our heads.

"And upon your children and your children's children, unto the fourth generation!" they cried.

We gave them a rude stare and burst out laughing.

"Ever hear of a family as rich as we are now become having any children?" we sneered, and you should have seen how beaten they looked.—Puck.

Tender-Hearted Girl.

Miss Koy—Do you know that horrid Mr. Hanson insisted upon kissing me last night?

Miss Ascum—Why didn't you scream?

Miss Koy—I didn't want to scare the poor fellow.

Pure Food.

The pure food law does not prohibit the sale of Cream of Tartar Baking Powders because Cream of Tartar is as pure as Alum—but it is a well known fact that a baking powder in which Alum is used instead of Cream of Tartar is less injurious. Dr. Herman Reinbold, the expert German chemist, in a recent official report concerning Baking Powders, declares that a pure Alum baking powder is better and less injurious than the so-called Cream of Tartar powders. He says that if the quantity of alum contained in a sufficient quantity of baking powder for a batch of bread or cakes for an ordinary family, be concentrated to one mouthful of food, and taken into the stomach of any one person, no matter how delicate, it could do no harm.

Where He Had Best of It.

John and Willie are twins. Their best friend and playfellow is Archie, who is gifted with red hair and a hot temper. One day they quarreled and Archie started home in a huff. The unsympathetic twins called after him "red head, red head." Archie seemed not to hear until the insult was repeated, then he turned and called back, "Don't care if I am red headed, I ain't twins and folks can tell me apart."—Grand Forks Press.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Halls Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Proprietors have secured the Halls Catarrh Cure, and they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cure that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, etc. Take Halls Family Pills for constipation.

As to the Scorchers.

"Do many endurance race autos pass here?" asked the city boarder, peering down the road. "Yes, stranger," replied the old farmer. "They are all endurance racers to us." "To you?" "Sure. It is an endurance test of patience to keep from blazing away at them every time they run over a cow or scare a horse."

Revenge is a momentary triumph, of which the satisfaction dies at once, and is succeeded by remorse; whereas forgiveness, which is the noblest of all revenge, entails a perpetual pleasure.—Mountford.

Women Avoid Operations

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 26th St., N. Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

Weak Kidneys Make Weak Bodies.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Petoskey People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the whole breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds, and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer—except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ills. Petoskey cures are the proof.

"Daniel Harrington, living at 30 Bridge Street, Petoskey, Mich., says: 'Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a kidney trouble that was so bad that it caused me to lose a day's work. The kidneys were weak and the secretions contained a heavy brick dust sediment, were very offensive in odor and my back pained me intensely especially when I caught cold as it always settled on the kidneys. I got so that I could not bend, stoop or lift and at times I was laid up in my bed, having in addition to the other troubles the severest kind of headaches. After trying different remedies and prescriptions I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. The result in my case, as I have stated, was a cure. I will be glad at any time to corroborate every word of this statement should anyone ask me my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills.'

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or gripping pills, as they are too apt to reach again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pang of the deplorable disease.

In Germany with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt I found the last ingredients with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I uniformly cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These sand-like granular wastes found in Rheumatism seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend
