Humpty-Dumpty

Under caption of "It Was Good" the Big Rapids Pioneer of last Tuesday, the 8th, has the following to say about "Humpty-Dumpty" which appears at Loveday Opera House next Wednesday evening, Oct. 16th: "Saville's 'Humpty-Dumpty' played to a large house at the Colonial last evening. "The play itself forms only a part of the entertainment, there being many special acts of a meritorious kind. George H. Adams, who takes the part of the clown, as Humpty Dumpty, is a show in himself, and makes the audience laugh in spite of themselves. During the play he worked in a monologue part in which he complimented Big Rapids on having such a fine theatre as the Colonial and such a public spirited citizen as Mr. Doe, the builder. The play is in three acts, all of which are highly scenic. The end comes in a grand transformation scene, which is probably one of the prettiest tableaux witnessed in this city. The company gives one more performance tonight."

County Normal Notes.

Several of the county papers have been received and we have enjoyed reading them very much. A letter was received by Miss Himes from Miss Ethel Caibe, a member of last year's class. She is teaching in Osego county near Vanderbilt, and is enjoying her work very much. Maymie Scroggie substituted for Miss Lewis in the fifth grade Thursday forenoon, Miss Lewis was attending the funeral of her aunt. Thursday afternoon the normal class elected their officers for the year, Maymie Scroggie president; Anna Metcalf vice president; Leah Persons secretary and treasurer.

Approach of an Important Event

Attitude of the Michigan Voter Relative to Constitutional Amendments.

Lansing, Oct. 7, 1907. With the near approach of the opening day of the constitutional convention, which will begin its sessions in Representative Hall Tuesday noon, Oct. 22, we stand face to face with an event more important to our state than any that has occurred for many a year. This is fully realized by thoughtful people; but there seems to be a pretty large class of people who do not give much evidence of thoughtfulness, who may be described as "kateckers" at the convention. The common form of their criticism is that it will be a waste of effort, because the people will vote down the revision. No matter how desirable may be the instrument that shall be prepared, they say, the voters will inevitably reject it. This unreasoning declaration is repeated by many who have no desire to prejudice the effort in which the state is engaged, and they have no reason for it except the impression that such is the habit of the Michigan voter. This impression is fostered by much repetition, but not supported by the facts.

Years ago, it is true, the disposition of the Michigan voter was not especially friendly toward propositions to change the constitution. For the reason that he was not so well informed about proposed changes as he desired to be. And yet, of the thirty-three amendments submitted in the twenty years previous to 1900, seven were adopted, to sixteen rejected. Four propositions for revision were also voted down in the same period, though for three of them there were more yeas than nays. But look now at the seven years since—years of trolley and telephone and rural free delivery. Twice he has passed upon revision, rejecting it in 1907, though giving forty-five thousand majority for it, and adopting it in 1906 with the needed majority of all voting at the election, and of thirteen amendments submitted in that period he ratified all but one. The attitude of the Michigan voter at the present time is favorable to any amendment that comes with reasons behind it; and he realizes the great need of revision. The notion that he will turn his back upon a revision regardless of its merit, labels alike his intelligence and his patriotism.

As to the convention, there is every reason to expect good work from it. Here in Lansing, as elsewhere in the state, the delegates are commonly rated to rank high in ability and character; and the convention will have access to stores of information hardly equalled by any conven-

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them Remedies of Known Composition. By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulae are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the closest scrutiny. Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, bilious liver or biliousness and all catarrhal diseases wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral acids or other poisonous or injurious agents and that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable ingredients contained in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak, nervous, over-worked, "run-down," nervous and debilitated women, were employed long years ago, by the Indians for similar ailments affecting their women. In fact, one of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Saw-Wood." Our knowledge of the use of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the womanly functions, correcting displacements, as indigestion, constipation, and retroversion, and restoring the natural health of the system. It is a most valuable remedy for all ailments of women.

tion ever assembled in any state. A mass of literature and works of reference covering every line of investigation and discussion with which the convention will have to deal, will be available to the members at short notice in our unrivaled state library. It is no extravagance to call it unrivaled. The people of the state have become acquainted with some of the resources and advantages of the state library in recent years through its admirable system of traveling and loan libraries by which standard books of instruction and entertainment are brought within the reach of the people of any community, however remote or humble.

But, it is not these features to which reference is here made. It is to the volumes of statute law, unequalled in extent and scope by any other state library except it may possibly be in New York and Massachusetts, and to a collection of constitutions embracing every state in this Union, and many South American, European and other states, together with former constitutions of most of the states, amendments and debates and proceedings of nearly all their constitutional conventions, and ample files of supreme court decisions of the various states, and a complete set of United States court records and briefs—the only one west of the Alleghanies, and possessed by only two of the eastern states—a series of priceless value, being now impossible to obtain anywhere in the world, and, in addition, literally wagon loads of discussion in periodical and permanent literature covering the entire range of civil, criminal, political, sociological and economical problems involved in law-making and constitution making. So comprehensive is this mass of material that there could scarcely be named a subject under any of those classifications upon which many treatises more or less exhaustive could not be produced, as well as the history of movements and efforts in behalf of theories and measures along these lines. Much of this material has been

Michigan Crop Report.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 9, 1907.
 The temperature throughout the State during the month of September was about normal until the 20th, when a killing frost did considerable damage to corn, beans and garden vegetables. The rain fall in all sections of the State was greatly in excess of the average and caused some injury to potatoes, serious damage to the bean crop and retarded the sowing of wheat.

WHEAT.
 The final estimated yield of wheat in the State, southern and northern counties is 14 and in the central counties 13 bushels per acre. The yield is below the standard, the crop being considerably shrunken. The estimated total yield for the State is approximately 30,500,000 bushels, which is 1,500,000 less than the estimate for 1906. The average date of sowing wheat in the southern counties is September 22nd, in the central counties the 19th, in the northern counties the 18th, and in the State, September the 20th.

OATS.
 The estimated average yield per acre in bushels, in the southern counties is 21, in the central counties 19, in the northern counties 16 and in the State 20. The estimated average harvested is 1,383,976 and estimated yield 79,520 bushels.

CORN.
 The estimated average yield per acre in bushels, in the southern counties is 31, in the central counties 27 and in the State 28. The estimated acreage harvested is 625,850 and estimated yield 18,775 bushels.

POTATOES.
 The estimated average yield per acre in bushels, in the southern counties is 86, in the central counties 82, in the northern counties 101 and in the State 88. The estimated acreage harvested is 309,683 and estimated yield 27,251,224 bushels.

BEANS.
 The estimated average yield per acre in bushels, in the State and counties is 13, in the southern counties 12 and in the northern counties 15. The estimated acreage harvested is 371,464 and estimated yield 9,002 bushels.

SUGAR BEETS.
 The estimated average yield per acre in tons, in the State, southern counties is 9 and in the northern counties 7. The estimated acreage that will be harvested according to the best reports obtainable is 100 and estimated yield 873,000 tons. Favorable weather at planting caused a considerable reduction in acreage.

At least there is one good result of that domestic trouble of the Earle family; That word "affinity" has been so dragged in the mire it will never dare intrude in polite society again. We always did dislike the word.

The East Jordan high school football team came down here last Saturday afternoon and were defeated in a well played contest by the local high school eleven by a score of 6 to 0. The best playing for the home team was done by Frank Osborne, Dolezel and Culbertson, although all the boys did good work, else the score would have been different as the visitors were a husky lot and put up a good game. —Mancelona Herald.

A weak Stomach, causing dyspepsia; a weak Heart with palpitation or intermittent pulse, always means weak Stomach nerves or weak Heart nerves. Strengthen these inside or controlling nerves with Dr. Shoop's Restorative and see how quickly these ailments disappear. Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. will mail samples free. Write for them. — A test will tell. Your health is certainly worth this simple trial. Sold by All Dealers.

Exchange—The war on rice throwing and charivari, as adjuncts of wedding ceremonies,—begun by a good priest at Racine, and approved by Archbishop Mesmer, grows apace. The latest warrior to array himself on the side of common sense and decency is a Cheboygan, Wis., priest, and it is to be hoped that his example may help others to see the light and give this timely movement their assistance. The very best that can be said of the rice throwing, shoe throwing and charivari accessories of present-day weddings is that they are a last remnant of a barbarous age, and yet modern society clings to them with a tenacity that beggars description and admits of neither excuse nor explanation.

"When tempted to speak harshly to 'Central,' says a Kansas exchange, it might be well to remember the response of Munford Savage, at the Illinois Telephone Association, to the toast, 'The Telephone Girl.' 'Here's to the telephone girl. An employe who does the most work and suffers the most abuse; who does the most favors that are unappreciated by those upon whom they are conferred; who knows more about men than the sociologist; more about women than the officer of the federation of clubs; more about the manner of children than the teacher does; and can tell where every gentleman and lady lives. She is seen in all lands and all climes, and speaks all tongues. God bless her.' —Kansas City Journal.

Something to interest and amuse the masses, old and young alike of every nationality. This is what is claimed for that grand old pantomime production, "Humpty Dumpty," which is to be at Loveday Opera House next Wednesday, Oct. 16, with a carefully selected cast of well-known entertainers, headed by the greatest of all pantomime clowns and fun-maker, Mr. Geo. W. Adams, the original and only. The man who has made millions laugh. One thousand dollars has been offered any person—Indians included—who can sit through this entertainment without laughing. A bevy of handsome young ladies make up a fine chorus, who will entertain with the very latest songs and dances. An interesting and beautiful feature being the famous "Buster Brown" chorus, introducing the "Buster Dog," etc. Magnificent scenery and effects make a very dramatic picture of each scene. Remember the children enjoy this play, take them and let them have a good laugh, it's better than medicine.

When four years of age, a girl, named Lillian Fields, was placed in the State Public School at Coldwater, and for the past two years has made her home with Mr. H. G. Wakefield, being now sixteen years of age. After the death of Mrs. Wakefield, Lillian was taken by Mr. Madison, agent of the State Board of Corrections and Charities, to East Jordan. Mr. Madison notified the authorities, who replied that she was the age when she ceased to be a ward of the state. Mr. Madison then asked the school if her parents could be located and was informed that her mother was living in Tuscola county. Lillian wrote her mother and in reply received her mother's picture and money for her to come and visit her, also the information that her father left her mother with five children, and she sent Lillian and her brother to the state school. She is now married again and has two children, and wishes Lillian to make her home with her. Lillian has gone to her mother, but does not know whether she will stay or not.—Charlevoix Courier.

Miss Fields is still with Mr. and Mrs. Madison but leaves next week to visit her mother.

But their release will be the most effectual way of spreading the news. On the contrary, they cannot make it known without exposing themselves. If they do that, Ferdinand will see to it that their respective sovereigns quietly but effectually remove them. Each of them is so well known that they may be arrested at any time. Ferdinand shrewdly makes them hostages, as it were. The three certainly will exert their great influence to check the rebellion they themselves have fostered. As for Gornji and Gortschakoff, before they are released from the hospital the crisis will have passed.

"And are we left to account for the deaths of Starva and Bratinau as best we may?" I questioned anxiously.

"If you remember, I told you at Lucerne that I am an old newspaper man. It is impossible to hide the fact that an attack has been made on Prince Ferdinand here to-night. But an attack by his own countrymen that has proved a disastrous failure is quite a different thing—a deliberate gathering here of representatives of each of the Balkan States. Ferdinand has taken my advice to post in hot haste to Sofia. I shall see to it that this night's work does not get into the papers until 24 hours have passed. By that time he will have shown himself safe and sound in Sofia. The episode of the death-mask will have proved a complete fiasco. My story will make Prince Ferdinand a hero triumphant over his foes and not a weak king who was lured here unwittingly by his mistress to his doom."

"There still remains Jacques."

"Oh, Jacques," said Locke, with contempt. "He was only a tool of Starva's and a stupid tool at that. It was he who was to lower the flag at half-mast, it seems—to give the signal to the conspirators who were watching in the village. But when he rushed to the chamber window to lower the flag he found both rope and fastenings wrenched away. He supposed that the gale had done this, but seeing the flag at half-mast, the rope being caught in the pulley, he said nothing about the matter to Starva. I suspect that you were responsible for the lowering of the flag, and not the gale."

"I needed the rope," I said, shortly, too impatient to make further explanation. "And now for my last question: What the devil did you mean when you said that you had promoted me? And why this haste that I leave Alterhoffen?"

"Are you so anxious then that it be known that you have been impersonating the British ambassador?"

"Scarcely," I said, uneasily.

"And, my dear fellow, Kuhn and the rest think that it was Sir Mortimer who came to the rescue of Prince Ferdinand, and not Mr. Ernest Haddon, an American tourist."

"But why do you allow them to think this?"

"Haddon, at times you are singularly dense. If these men believe that the British ambassador has been killed by one of their number while defending Ferdinand, do you not see that this will keep them even more silent regarding their share in this night's tragedy? For if England's ambassador were really murdered, you may be sure that she would not rest until she had brought the assassins to justice."

"You are right, Locke; I must leave Alterhoffen at once."

CHAPTER XXXVII.

The Second Dispatch.

I was about to go to Helena in the music room to bid her good-by, when Capt. Forbes returned from his errand.

"Well, that's settled," he cried, joining us. "And do you agree with Locke and myself that it is wise that you should leave Alterhoffen before daybreak?"

"Perfectly."

He heard my decision with evident relief.

"You will accept my apology for mistrusting you, Haddon, and I hope we shall be friends," said he, offering me his hand with a winning smile. "But you must confess you gave me ample grounds for being a little wary of you. Before long we shall meet, and I shall hope to hear your reasons for going into this extraordinary adventure. In the meanwhile, may I trouble you for the dispatch I gave to you in the hotel at Vitzna, or did it fall into Starva's hand that night?"

"To prevent that I dropped it from the window into a disused fountain in the garden below."

"Where I found it," interrupted Locke. "Here it is, and please observe that the seals are unbroken."

"Frankly, Forbes," I said, "I thought you rather an idiot to give me an important dispatch that night. You must have seen that I was more or less in Starva's power, and that he was likely to gain possession of the papers."

"Had that dispatch fallen into his hands," replied Forbes. "It is quite possible that Ferdinand would have saved his bad half hour. Do you remember I told you, my pseudo-ambassador (and you acted the part remarkably well, let me tell you), that I carried two dispatches for Sir Mortimer, and that I gave you the one of lesser importance?"

"Yes. And the second dispatch? Was it stolen from you by Starva when he trapped you in the tower?"

Forbes nodded. "I took the liberty of taking it from him just now."

"And may a humble American consul ask," drawled Locke, "how to-night's episode would have been averted had the dispatch you gave Haddon fallen into Starva's hands, instead of into the fountain?"

"My chief at Downing street would retire me, and with no pension, if he knew that I were going to divulge state secrets. However, I am going to tell you."

"This dispatch you have returned to me, I happen to know, authorized Sir Mortimer Brett to meet in conference the men, who so very nearly snuffed out Ferdinand's life an hour ago. I am referring now to the dispatch which I gave you at Vitzna, Haddon. He was to assure these representatives of the various states that England realized that a harmonious confederation could alone permanently allay the present discontent in the

"Our Happiness," She Said, Shyly, "We Share with Others."

Peninsula. Had Starva seen this dispatch it is not likely that he would have had recourse to violence."

"Do you mean to tell me," exclaimed Locke, incredulously, "that your ministers of the foreign office cherish so Utopian a scheme? Are the various kings to abdicate because England nods?"

"I am telling you nothing of the sort," chuckled Forbes. "You Americans are infants when it comes to the intricacies of diplomacy. Secret agents and spies at Sofia had warned the government of the intended uprising. It was necessary that England should know more of the conspirators. Therefore, Sir Mortimer was instructed to profess a sympathy for the cause which, of course, was not sincere. This dispatch Sir Mortimer or myself were to allow to be spoken if necessary. Its contents were explained to me before I left London, that I might repeat verbally the message, should the dispatch not reach him."

"Since you have already betrayed your government's confidence," said Locke, jocularly, "tell us the purport of the second dispatch."

"I will read it to you since the seals are broken," agreed Forbes after a moment's hesitation.

"To His Excellency, etc.—Sir: The same messenger who gives you this dispatch will deliver you another which authorizes you to treat with the committee of the various states of the Balkans, who have for their aim a confederation of these states. You will use the aforementioned dispatch at your discretion. It is needless to say that neither this ministry nor the other powers can for an instant sanction a scheme so impossible. But it has come to our knowledge that a dangerous conspiracy exists to overthrow the rulers of the various states. To check this conspiracy it may be well for you to temporize. If you think it expedient, permit the dispatch mentioned to fall into the hands of this committee. Capt. Forbes will follow the same course if necessary. He has full instructions to exercise his discretion in this matter."

"It is not without surprise that the ministry has learned of your promise to Ferdinand regarding England's support of his project, namely, the threatened invasion of Macedonia. Fortunately, the ministry is convinced that some such move as you sanction is expedient to free Macedonia from the atrocities of Turkish misrule that have shocked Europe so long. His majesty's ministry therefore is inclined to overlook in this instance any undue bias you have shown in espousing Macedonia's cause."

"If you are convinced that the financier of New York city whom you have named is sincere in his offer to give Prince Ferdinand financial support, you are authorized to tell him that his majesty's ministers are heartily in favor of Prince Ferdinand's invasion, and will exert every influence to insure him unrestricted action. Moreover, the foreign office is in full accord with your views as to the sum of money indispensable to Ferdinand's project."

"But while his majesty's government agrees with you that lofty principles actuate Bulgaria, it realizes with yourself that lofty principles are not sufficient to insure the success of Ferdinand's cause."

"In conclusion, we hasten to assure you of our fullest sympathy in your endeavor to help an oppressed people gain their liberty; and that it is not without satisfaction we find ourselves enabled to further your personal wishes and ambitions in this matter. Nor need you have anxiety that your own interests will run counter to those of England. We view with concern the precarious state of your health; but we trust that it will not prove an obstacle to your contemplated meeting of the financier in conference at Alterhoffen at the chateau of Prince Ferdinand's secret agent. With renewed expressions of our complete confidence in you, "Believe me, sir, etc."

"Haddon," said Locke, not a little crestfallen, "was ruefully wide of the mark in my conjectures concerning Sir Mortimer's relations with the Countess Sarahoff. I told you that morning at Lucerne that I was behind the scenes. I confess myself the veriest amateur."

Never has writing thrilled me as did that dispatch. A great light was dawning on me. I clutched the paper. I held it with a trembling hand.

"Forbes," I cried, hoarsely, "once, though quite unwillingly, I tricked you out of the dispatch Locke just returned to you. But now I ask you to give me for half an hour the dispatch you have just read. It means everything to Sir Mortimer's sister. Man, there has been more devilry in this Castle of Lies than you are aware of. The honor of Sir Mortimer himself is at stake. This dispatch will help to save it. Give me the paper that I may show it to Miss Brett."

"I have been too much astonished at the events of the past 24 hours to wonder at your request. Take your dispatch, but you will return it intact."

"You need have no fear as to that. But I have still another request; the papers you saw me take from the safe, which Madame de Varnier wrestled from me—they belong to Miss Brett."

"On my honor, they concern no one but her. What! Do you still mistrust me?"

"No, my dear fellow."

He placed the packet in my hand. I entered the music room to bring to Helena tidings of great joy.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

Tidings of Great Joy.

She stood at the open window looking out on the mountains in the far distance. They were phantoms of despair beckoning to her in the moonlight. They had brought suffering to her as well as to myself; for had I not gone to Lucerne, and told her the story of my cowardice, perhaps she would have been spared the knowledge of her brother's disgrace.

"Dear," I said, gently, "do you remember the little beacon that shone long after the lights on Pilatus and Rigi had flickered out? That little light put heart into me then. It tells you to hope now."

"There is no light on the mountains over there to-night."

"It may burn though you do not see it. The packet I took from the safe, have you destroyed it?"

"I was about to do so as you entered. Here it is."

"Capt. Forbes has just given me the second packet—the one that Madame de Varnier took from me forcibly. It is possible that its contents concern your brother. May I open it?"

"Yes," she said listlessly.

I tore open the packet with deliberation, though heavens knows my fingers trembled. I spread the paper on the piano where I had shown Madame de Varnier the death-mask the evening before. I read them one after the other. The proof was absolute. Sir Mortimer's honor could no longer be questioned. Fools we had been and blind.

"Helena," I said, mastering my emotion with an effort "it is as I thought; these papers throw a flood of light on the letters and notes of your brother that we have so harshly misunderstood."

"She came, swiftly to my side. "Harshly misunderstood!" she repeated with blanched lips.

I was sorting carefully the papers Helena had just given me, the letters supposed to have been written by the committee of freedom, and to which Sir Mortimer's comments were pinned. I laughed aloud when I saw that these letters, supposed to be the originals were typewritten, as were the copies.

Now I understood why Madame de Varnier had refused to let me see what she called the original papers. It was not so much that she feared I should destroy them; she knew that the fact of their being typewritten would at once awaken my suspicion.

"Did it not occur to you as being rather suspicious that these letters were written on a typewriter?"

"At first it did," replied Helena, searching my face wonderingly. "But she quieted my doubts by explaining to me that the letters were typed to prevent the possibility of their being traced."

"The ingenious Madame de Varnier!"

Helena did not speak; her agitation was too great for words. She watched me, at once bewildered and eager, while I read the contents of both packets carefully once more. When I had read them, I sorted them no less carefully. For ten minutes there was silence between us.

"Helena," I said with a deep sigh, when I had finished my task "once to-night I said this was a Castle of Lies, but I did not realize until now how surely I spoke the truth. These letters are forgeries."

"Impossible," she murmured, wringing her hands in anguish. "I know my brother's writing too well."

"Follow me carefully, and you will see that I speak the truth. I do not question your brother's handwriting. But listen first of all to this dispatch which was taken from Capt. Forbes when he was trapped in the tower. Tell me if any of the expressions in it are familiar to you."

"Yes, yes," she cried eagerly, when I had finished. "Lofty principles actuate Bulgaria, but lofty principles are not sufficient to insure success; you need have no anxiety that your own interests will run counter to those of England; the references to the loan, to my brother's indiscretion, to his ambitions—all these appear in my brother's notes in connection with the letters of the committee of freedom."

"Now read these letters—the contents of the second packet. They were written to your brother by Prince Ferdinand himself, and deal with the loan to be floated by the banker to finance Ferdinand's invasion of Macedonia. The notes and comments of your brother have reference, not to these typewritten letters, which were never written by any committee of freedom, which were never received by Sir Mortimer, but are the cunning fabrications of that woman—but to these letters of Ferdinand. Look, you can see the pins pierced each of Ferdinand's letters. As I place your brother's notes on the respective letters to which they have reference, the pin marks fit precisely. You may still cherish proudly the motto of your house: 'Honor, my Sword!'"

"Ernest, if this be true—"

"It is true," I said firmly, and I drew her to me. "I must leave Alterhoffen to-night, Helena. It must not be known that I have been mistaken for your brother. I am going to find Madame de Varnier. When I return to you I shall bring with me her written confession. And when I return, sweetheart? You Bretons; you have told me, are a proud race. Disgrace you would bear alone. But your happiness?"

"Our happiness," she said shyly, "we share with others."

(The End.)

When Courage Failed.

"A man should always have the courage of his convictions." "Yes," answered the member of congress gloomily; "but when it comes to voting to increase your salary even the stoutest heart is liable to forget its high sense of justice and moral duty."

THE PLASTER HAND

By GRACE BRUTON

Grace Drew was not a pretty girl, but she was lovable and charming. Her hands made a strong point for her—they were so white and soft and appealing. Whenever Billy Dunn, her lover, was permitted to press one of these lovely hands he entered the seventh heaven. He loved just to look at the dainty palm and daintier fingers.

Wherefore, when an artist friend begged the privilege of casting the pretty right hand in plaster Billy rested not until he had secured possession of the plaster cast.

"I take it wherever I go," he told Grace, and truly—Billy was a traveling man and covered many long miles every month. "At night I take it out of the silk lined leather case I have had specially made for it, and lay it before me. It never fails to comfort my loneliness and keeps me in my room many a time when otherwise I might be out with the boys."

"Whenever you feel like going out with the boys the plaster hand must come back to me," Grace answered gravely. "I don't propose to give my hand, not even a plaster cast of it, to a young man who isn't living up to his best."

"I couldn't fall to try to, at least," Billy made response, "with that dear little hand before me. I use it for a paper weight when I write my letters, and it brings me more happiness and good thoughts than you know."

There came a time, moreover, when it kept Billy's life and love intact for his sweetheart. Good at heart, but none too determined, Billy temporarily had fallen under the wiles of a charmer exceedingly different from Grace, had spent, swayed by her alternate coaxings and tauntings, not only his own money but also money belonging to the firm at a certain alluring gambling table. He left the place dazed and hopeless. Nothing but disaster lay before him. Well, at least—so his confused thoughts wandered—he need not face the trouble in person. There was always the pistol way out.

It did not seem such a bad way, so long as the unaccustomed stimulant clouded his brain, but it seemed a horrible way when his eyes fell on the little white hand he had taken out of its protecting case before leaving the hotel at the behest of the heartless charmer. A bitter pang transfixed him at the thought of leaving Grace behind—perhaps for some better fellow! He sank into a chair beside the table and buried his face in his hands.

When he looked up presently he could have sworn that the plaster hand lay nearer the pistol farther away, than when he had dropped his head to the table. And the gently curving fingers, actually seemed to radiate a stern command, an interdiction, as they pointed towards the pistol. His head dropped again, and when he raised it there were tears in his eyes, tears of repentance and shame and sorrow.

And now it seemed that the gently curving fingers hinted at comfort and tender pity. No it seemed they almost spoke.

Suddenly he rose and, grasping the pistol, locked it out of sight—as one who distrusts his own powers of refusal. Then he sat for a long time with the plaster hand pressed to his heart. He laid it down only to write two letters, a long one to Grace and a short one to the firm, explaining the truth fully, and asking for another chance. Then he went to bed and slept as sleeps the prisoner who knows not what the morrow may bring forth.

The morrow brought him reprieve. The head of the firm lectured, was grieved, disappointed, and so on. He had not thought so sensible a man as Mr. Dunn could have acted in so wrong, so foolish a manner. Still—he commended the full confession and granted the second chance.

As for Grace—

"Take out the plaster hand and look at it," came her reply as quick as the mails could bring it. "If you think it a hand that could turn against a friend in trouble send it back to me and—receive your ring in return. If not—let me see you as soon as you can."

It was soon that he saw her, and was fully forgiven. And it was not much later that the plaster hand was relegated to second place in his affections, since upon the dear flesh and blood member from which it had been modeled he had placed a plain gold ring.

How Prisoners Read.

"It is rather pathetic," said a prison chaplain, "the way our inmates read their surreptitious newspapers. It is bad for the poor fellows' eyes, too. It is against the rule for them to read in their cells, and in the cell doors there are peepholes to which the jailers come noiselessly, seeing that all the rules are enforced. The prisoner who simply must read pastes with a bit of porridge his journal up against his cell door, beneath the peephole. He sits down on the floor a yard or two away and holds his dustpan in one hand and his brush in the other. In this awkward and wearisome position, his eyes nearly popping out of his head from strain, he reads away for dear life. And when the jailer's cold, hard eye peers in through the peephole it misses the paper and lights up with some faint approbation at the sight of the prisoner polishing up his shoes."

SAID TO BE SIMPLE

EASILY MIXED, RECIPE FOR KIDNEYS AND BLADDER.

Tells Readers How to Prepare This Home-Made Mixture to Cure the Kidneys and Bladder and Rheumatism.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a New York daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder and all forms of Urinary difficulties. This mixture acts promptly on the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys, enabling them to filter and strain the uric acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism.

Some persons who suffer with the afflictions may not feel inclined to place much confidence in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising, the relief being effected without the slightest injury to the stomach or other organs.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly comes highly recommended. It is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

HIS MEMORY WAS GOOD.

Commodore Vanderbilt Had Not Forgotten Old Days.

The coming of age of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt and the payment to her of some twelve millions of dollars inheritance has brought out a new crop of anecdotes about the Vanderbilt fortune. One of the latest illustrates the democratic spirit of the old commodore.

Sitting on the porch of a fashionable hotel at a fashionable resort on one occasion, it is related, the commodore saw a lady approaching, with whom he was acquainted. His wife and daughter, who recognized her, could scarcely contain their anger when he arose and politely addressed her.

"Don't you know," said the daughter after she had gone, "that horrid woman used to sell poultry to us?"

"Yes," responded the old millionaire, "and I remember when your mother sold root beer and I peddled oysters in New Jersey."

A Ventilation Teet.

It is very hard to make an impression on those people who defend their possessions on all occasions. A lady was explaining to a visitor the many advantages of concrete hollow-block construction, of which the walls of her new home were built.

"The air spaces in the walls afford insulation against heat in summer and cold in winter," she explained. "Besides, such walls afford ventilation and insure a more healthful house."

The visitor reflected a moment, and replied: "Our frame house must be quite as well built. Every night we lock the cat in the cellar, and have to let her out of the attic in the morning."—Youth's Companion.

All Explained.

There is a little story going round the house of commons about a certain member who abstained from voting on the deceased wife's sister bill. Questioned by one of his friends as to the reason for his abstention, he replied: "Well, my dear fellow, it's just like this—my wife has a sister."—John Bull.

Chiroprapist's Prescription.

A lotion and powder for tender and swollen feet: One teaspoonful of boracic acid to one pint of lukewarm water, spray them with the lotion used in an atomizer, and fan until dry. The effect is delightful. Then rub over the feet this powder, or put it in the stockings:

Powdered starch, 35 grains, oil of bergamot, ten drops; oil of lavender, 6 drops; oil of wintergreen, 16 drops. Mix well, and pass through a sieve. Excellent.—National Magazine.

TRANSFORMATIONS.

Curious Results When Coffee Drinking Is Abandoned.

It is almost as hard for an old coffee lover to quit the use of coffee as it is for a whiskey or tobacco fiend to break off, except that the coffee user can quit coffee and take up Postum without any feeling of a loss of the morning beverage, for when Postum is well boiled and served with cream, it is really better in point of flavor than most of the coffee served nowadays, and to the taste of the connoisseur it is like the flavor of fine, mild Java.

A great transformation takes place in the body within ten days or two weeks after coffee is left off and Postum used, for the reason that the poison to the nerves—caffeine—has been discontinued, and in its place is taken a liquid food that contains the most powerful elements of nourishment.

It is easy to make this test and prove these statements by changing from coffee to Postum.

APPLE IN COOKING

MANY WAYS OF SERVING DELICIOUS FRUIT.

Filled with Nuts They Make a Dainty Dessert—Baked and Served with Meat—Apple Croquettes—Something New.

Baked Apples.—A baked apple is the most easily digested of any way of serving apples, but there are baked apples and baked apples.

For variety's sake, try peeling them before baking. Peel and core the apples carefully, fill the hollows with sugar and any spice preferred, lay in an enameled baking pan, pouring just enough water to cover the bottom, then bake in a moderate oven until tender and delicately crisped on the surface. Sometimes a bit of butter is placed on top of each apple before putting in the oven. Meantime take the cores and peelings, cover with water and stew gently for an hour. Strain, sweeten slightly, add a little nutmeg, cinnamon or lemon, and pour over the apples, cool in the pan in which the apples are baked, then serve cold with cream.

Apples should never be baked in tin, which darkens both apples and juice.

Fillings for Baked Apples.—As a variety is the spice of life, even in baked apples, here are a few good fillings that may be used from time to time. Nuts are especially nice for this. Any kind may be used, but pecans, black walnuts, hickory nuts or butternuts are perhaps best. For a dozen large apples, a cup and a half of the meats will be required. Chop fine and mix with sugar, allowing a dessertspoonful for each apple. Fill the cavities and bake in the usual way. A half banana sprinkled with sugar and lemon juice makes a good filling for an apple. Figs and dates steamed, chopped and rolled in sugar, chopped nuts with strips of lemon or orange peel, or honey and butter are all appropriate and usually approved.

Baked Apples to Serve with Meat.—Wash and core tart apples, then fill with equal parts crumbs and mushrooms. Season with catsup or fine herbs as preferred. Put a bit of butter on top of each apple, add a little water to the baking pan and bake until tender.

Fried Apples.—These are also excellent served with any form of pork. Select large, firm apples rather tart and wash without paring. Core out in slices half an inch thick, then brown in pork fat or butter, turning with a pancake turner, so as not to break. They should be tender but not broken. If preferred a trifle sweet, sprinkle sugar and cinnamon over the uncooked side just before turning. Fried Apples are especially nice with fried pork or sausage.

Apple Croquettes.—Put over the fire in a saucepan one cup stale bread crumbs and a half cup milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth, then add one large apple chopped fine, and a dozen almonds, ground, the yolks of two eggs beaten with a tablespoonful lemon juice and the grated yellow rind of half a lemon. Cook until thickened, then turn out on a platter to cool. When quite cool form into croquettes; roll in fine crumbs and fry in smoking hot fat. Serve with caramel sauce, maple sugar or powdered sugar.

Indian Relish.

Peel and chop one white cabbage and six white onions and arrange in layers in stone jar, covering each layer with salt. Stand for 24 hours, then rinse in cold water and drain in colander. Bring a pint of vinegar to the boiling point, with one-half pound of brown sugar, one-half teaspoon of alum, a heaping teaspoon each of turmeric, mace, black pepper, allspice and ground cinnamon and two teaspoons each of celery and mustard seed. Stir this spiced vinegar into cabbage and onion mixture, set aside overnight. In the morning drain off the vinegar, heat to boiling point again and pour it over the pickle. Do this again on the next day, then set aside overnight. Now turn the vegetables and vinegar into a kettle, boil hard for five minutes. Then set aside until cold and pack in jars.

Fried Corn.

Cut the corn carefully from six ears of nice sweet corn. Do not score, and be careful not to cut any of the cob with the corn, but have each grain separate. Put one tablespoonful of butter in a frying pan; put in the corn and fry until a nice brown, stirring often. Draw the pan away from the hot fire, add half a cupful of hot cream and salt and pepper to taste. Serve at once in a hot dish. Nice for breakfast or lunch.

Buying Window Curtains.

When buying window curtains always allow sufficient for a deep hem both top and bottom, one wide enough to take the lath. On the top hem sew a strip of tape, through which to put the nails or clips which secure the blind to the roller. When soiled at the bottom blinds made in this way can easily be turned upside down and need to go to the cleaner's not nearly so often as if made in the ordinary way.

Saving the Boiler.

When the boiler is dried and ready to put away after the week's wash, set it on the stove, and while hot rub it all over the inside and around the seams with laundry soap. It prevents rusting, and the boiler will keep new and last very much longer. All the soap is not lost either, as it is dissolved in the water for the next week's wash. Harpur's Dazzer.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt avenue, Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills."

COINED A BIG WORD.

Little One Wanted to Pick the "Underchildreable" Flowers.

When the first little granddaughter was big enough to want to pick the garden flowers, the grandparents tried every guileful means to save their pet posies from devastation. A truce was reached when it was agreed that Harriet should let the garden plants alone and pick only "children's flowers," a descriptive name bestowed at once alike on dandelions, buttercups, daisies and clovers. After this there was peace in the family. One day Katherine, the newest granddaughter, was contentedly pulling grasses while grandmother snipped off blossoms from the forget-me-nots. Katherine remembered that fresh flowers had not been gathered for the dinner table. She ran over to grandmother and promptly coined one of the longest words a four-year-old ever used. "Grandmother," she begged, "can't I pick the underchildreable flowers for dinner?"

SLEEP BROKEN BY ITCHING.

Eczema Covered Whole Body for a Year—No Relief Until Cuticura Remedies Prove a Success.

"For a year I have had what they call eczema. I had an itching all over my body, and when I would retire for the night it would keep me awake half the night, and the more I would scratch, the more it would itch. I tried all kinds of remedies, but could get no relief."

"I used one cake of Cuticura Soap, one box of Cuticura, and two vials of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, which cost me a dollar and twenty-five cents in all, and am very glad I tried them, for I was completely cured. Walter W. Pagluschi, 207 N. Robey St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8 and 16, 1906."

Know What She Wanted.

"A foreign looking woman, rather well dressed, came in the other day," said the librarian at one of the East side branches, "and asked for 'Cottage Cheese.' I supposed, of course, that some one had directed her to a dairy or perhaps a grocery, and that she had got into the wrong place. But she insisted that she was in the right place and that it was 'Cottage Cheese' that she wanted. 'It's the name of a book,' she said. 'That gave me the tip that she simply had a title mixed up, and sure enough, it was 'Scottish Chiefs.'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Conciliator.

"There goes the big-feel'n'ed man in town!" pessimistically said a citizen of Pettyville, indicating with a contemptuous jerk of his thumb a pompous-appearing personage who was passing. "He thinks so darned much of himself that he won't loaf in a grocery store like ordinary folks—if he can't loaf in the bank he won't loaf at all. And, as far as I can see, he ain't so all-fired 'better than some of the rest of us, neither!"—Puck.

Grammar and Grippe.

A professor at the University of Virginia was endeavoring to impress upon the youths of his class the monstrous crime of using the adverb "badly" where the adjective "bad" should be used. "Now," he said, after an exhaustive explanation, "if a man should say to you 'I feel badly,' what would you think?" "I'd think he had the grippe, sir," responded the wag of the class.

SURELY HAD PRIZE FLY.

Money Invested in Incubator Was Not All Lost.

Poultney Bigelow, the brilliant author and journalist, said the other day of the chicken farm that he is about to set up at Malden:

"I hope to succeed with this farm. I hope our experiences won't too closely resemble that of my old friend Horatio Rogers. Rash Rogers lived in the suburbs. On the suburban train one morning he said to me with a sour laugh: 'I've got something nobody else has got, Mr. Bigelow.' 'Have you, Rash?' said I. 'What is it?' 'Well,' said Rogers, 'I bought a $50 incubator last month, put $15 worth of eggs in it, and hatched out a blubottle fly.' 'He frowned, then, sighed. 'Yes,' he said, 'I've got the only $65 blubottle fly in the world.'"

Perfect Womanhood

The greatest menace to woman's permanent happiness in life is the suffering that comes from some derangement of the feminine organs. Many thousands of women have realized this too late to save their health, barely in time to save their lives. To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. If a woman finds that her energies are flagging, that she gets easily tired, dark shadows appear under her eyes, she has backache, headache, bearing-down sensations, nervousness, irregularities or the "blues," she should start at once to build up her system by a tonic with specific powers, such as the greatest woman's remedy for woman's ills, made only of roots and herbs. It cures Female Complaints, such as Dragging Sensations, Weak Back, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and all Organic Diseases, and is invaluable in the Change of Life. It dissolves and Expels Tumors at an early stage. Subdues Faintness, Nervous Prostration, Exhaustion, and strengthens and tones the Stomach. Cures Headache, General Debility, Indigestion, and invigorates the whole female system. It is an excellent remedy for derangements of the Kidneys in either sex.

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED

Eczeema is the most stubborn form of skin disease, but we guarantee a permanent cure.

Wonderful Dream Salve used according to directions kills the disease germ, softens the dry, scabby condition, restores the diseased surface to a healthy condition. W. D. S. Pills keep the bowels active and doing their work of cleansing the system and purifying the blood.

Anyone should desire to know of you the sealing power of Wonderful Dream Salve for the cure of eczeema just refer them to me. I have been troubled with eczeema for fourteen years. Have had a spot on my leg between the knee and the hip. All that time, during those fourteen years, have tried hundreds of salves, lotions, washes, mineral baths, X-ray treatments, everything in fact, except the faith cure. It remained for your Wonderful Dream Salve to accomplish the only permanent cure. I had just expended $300.00 with a skin specialist in trying to effect a cure, with no success, when I was told to try your ointment. I laughed at the idea, because every other ointment had failed. A little persuasion from my friend, however, succeeded in my giving it a trial. I have followed directions faithfully and in less than four weeks the spot had entirely disappeared, using as I did less than one-half of the 5c box. I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in the fourteen years of annoyance with this troublesome itching, skin ailment. I have since the cure of my case, heard of other cures, some of them more remarkable than mine, which led me toward demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer.

gathered with special reference to the use to which it will now be put. Nearly ten years ago, the state librarian, Mrs. Mary O. Spencer, realized that we should before long come to the work that is now before us, and that there would then be demand for reference works greater than we have ever met; and she went to work methodically in preparation to meet that demand. The result is what is now known to those informed at all those lines to be the finest and most complete equipped law library in the country with two possible exceptions, and one peculiarly adapted to the needs of a convention to frame a constitution. And this material is now classified and indexed so as to make it all immediately available.

The legislature last May passed "An Act to provide for a legislative and information department," as the title is, making the department a branch of the state library, and authorizing the librarian to appoint an assistant and a clerk to perform the services contemplated in the act. That service is to index all information contained in the public documents of this and other states, in the library, and compile in convenient form for reference, information as to proposed and pending legislation in other states, for the assistance of members and committees of the legislature.

It is manifest that such service would be of peculiar value to a constitutional convention, and no time was lost in getting it in operation. Mrs. Spencer, who as librarian, was made by the act the responsible head of the new department, appointed as the assistant in charge Mr. Lewis W. Miller, a lawyer, for many years clerk of the house of representatives, and peculiarly qualified for the duties required; and for the clerk to assist him in the work Mr. George Clark, for several sessions bill clerk of the senate. These gentlemen visited the capital of Wisconsin, where the pioneer institution of that kind had been in operation five or six years, and observed its methods and through purchase effected by Mrs. Spencer they procured a complete copy of the comparative index prepared by that bureau, which is just as valuable here our library containing all the documents and authorities quoted.

Indeed, it is more valuable here, for our reference department is a branch of the library where the books are kept, and under the same management, which is not the case in Wisconsin. Their index scheme, too, covers only five or six leading subjects, here it is enlarged to include all subjects treated in constitutions, so that any member of our convention desiring information about constitutional treatment of the liquor traffic, for instance, or taxation of corporations, or appointment and tenure of judges, or control of banking, or any other subject, can speedily be shown what every state has put into its constitution on that subject; and more than that, he can be referred to the discussions and arguments where the subject was debated in the conventions of the various states, and to theoretical treatment of the matter by reviewers and writers in books and magazines easily accessible in the library; so that in some cases a man may examine, if he cares to do so, more than a hundred articles discussing a single feature of constitutional provision. Requests for this information have been coming in swarms from the delegates soon to assemble here.

The department has prepared three bulletins, so called, but they are considerable volumes, putting some of this information in shape for more general use. It may interest the reader to know that Michigan does more printing to give her people full information of the doings of their state government than any other state of her rank in population and resources—more pamphlet copies of laws than many a half dozen states; and any citizen can have for the asking, a copy of any act of importance, or of any of the various bulletins of information, department and institution reports, etc., while in some of the states it has been difficult for the reference department to procure even one copy of a constitution, and impossible to procure the three copies needed for file and clipping. But through the wise conception and direction and the skill and industry of the reference department, and the unrivaled resources of our state library, the convention will have available to its land more complete information than any convention has been able to command, and there is no reason to apprehend that it will not do good work.

The special session of the legislature which begins today is limited to two weeks by the necessity of vacating the hall for the convention.

Weak Kidneys Make Weak Bodies.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Pains of Petoskey People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the whole breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds, and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Petoskey cures are the proof.

Daniel Harrington, living at 30 Bridge Street, Petoskey, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of a kidney trouble that was so bad that it caused me to lose a day's work. The kidneys were weak and the secretions contained a heavy brick dust sediment, were very offensive in odor and my back pained me intensely especially when I caught cold as it always settled on the kidneys. I got so that I could not bend, stoop or lift and at times I was laid up in my bed, having in addition to the other troubles the severest kind of headaches. After trying different remedies and prescriptions I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. The result in my case as I have stated was a cure. I will be glad at any time to corroborate every word of this statement should anyone ask me my opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a broken fine little nerve, that really is all that. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, sufficient to cause the heart to stop, and he discovered that the popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and ailing nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Don't Neglect It

It is a serious mistake to neglect a weak heart. It is such a short step to chronic heart disease. When you notice irregularity of action, occasional short breath, palpitation, fluttering, pain in chest or difficulty in lying on left side, your heart needs help—a strengthening tonic. There is no better remedy than Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. Its strengthening influence is felt almost at once.

"I have used 40 bottles of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and can truthfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever used, and I have tried nearly everything that I know of. The doctor who attended me asked me what I was taking and I told him Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, he said it was not going to do me any good, but it did. I have not taken any for a year now, and while there is occasionally a slight symptom of the old trouble, it is not enough for me to continue the use of the medicine. If I should get worse I would know what to do. Take Dr. Miles' Heart Cure as I did before. I consider myself practically cured of my heart trouble."
S. H. DUNNAN, Livingston, Texas.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails he will refund your money.
