Village Election Next Monday. Two Tickets and a Fair Fight.

Two separate tickets for Village officers were placed in the field last Saturday evening.

At the Town Hall, the "People's Caucus," composed of some of our representative men, met and placed in nomination the following ticket: President, W. P. Porter; trustees, Clark Haire, A. M. Haight and H. J. Carpenter; clerk, C. A. Hudson; treasurer, W. E. Palmfiter; assessor, W. A. Stone.

The "Village" caucus met at the hose house at the same hour and place.

WM. P. PORTER
He Has Done More For the Up-Building of Our Village Than Any Other Man.

ed in nomination the following gentlemen: President, H. I. McMillan; trustees D. E. Goodman, M. A. Lemieux, Harry Curkendall; clerk, C. A. Hudson; treasurer, J. H. Milford; assessor, W. A. Pickard.

Both sets of candidates represent men who are identified with East Jordan's business interests, but of the two tickets we believe the "People's" candidates should and will be elected.

Because our town is now without an elected Village President and the office belongs to Mr. Porter. He has done more for the up-building of East Jordan than any other one man in it. Through his efforts as active member of the East Jordan Lumber Co. he secured last year the location in our town of two big industries—the Iron Furnace and Chemical Plant—and which a half dozen other towns were working hard to secure. What this has done for our town is better told in the 1907 work of our Board of Trade published elsewhere.

Because the election of the "Village" candidate for president would create a vacancy on our Council, as he is already a trustee, and which that body could fill without the consent or approval of our voters. He should have resigned the trusteeship and allowed his ticket to place a candidate in the vacancy.

And because the gentlemen comprising the People's Ticket are heavily interested in our Business Interests, who will work for the advancement of our town in every way possible.

The nominees, Mr. Porter as President, and the Trustees, of the People's Party are in favor as soon as practicable of constructing a system of water works on the west side of our town, also of extending the main line on the east side of the town to Bowen's Addition and elsewhere throughout the city as necessity may require and the same shall be practicable.

The above gentlemen are also, in favor of using every honorable means of inducing outside industries to locate in our town.

Vote for them, Elect them and see the town grow.

That Banquet Was a Hummer and That Is No Mistake.

The East Jordan Board of Trade held their First Annual Banquet Thursday evening at Loveday Opera House, and if the second is any better the management will have to go some. The affair was strictly for the gentlemen but the handiwork of the ladies was everywhere manifest as were also a few in person. The decorations and tables were certainly works of art and those who had these in charge are deserving of much credit. The menu was well prepared and the feast of wit and wisdom most excellent. The Orchestra furnished excellent music, as is their point, and the "Huts Solo" by Jay Hite and vocal solo by B. A. Dole was well received.

Following the opening selection by the Orchestra, "Ballard's Stein Song" by a chorus of male voices was sung. Rev. A. D. Grigsby pronounced the invocation, and then came a feast of goodies, served by the young men of our Village. After the last course, Pres. Squier introduced the Toastmaster, Supt. H. H. Fuller in a brief talk on the inception of the Banquet and its purposes. Mr. Fuller gave sundry reasons of why he happened to be selected to the honorary position. He stated that it was a representative gathering of the laboring, merchant and manufacturing interests and was an occasion for congratulation.

Att'y A. B. Nicholas gave the Address of Welcome. In welcoming the guests he stated that it was an occasion for jubilee, and in addition it was not alone what the Board had done but what they want in the future.

Att'y J. E. Converse of Boyne gave the response. He said, We are glad to be here. We are not so large but what we are interested. We are one of you. What helps one town, helps both. We must break down the corners and get a co-operative spirit. There were three classes of men undesirable for a community's growth—the mail order buyer, the employee who knocks, and the merchant who knocks. In concluding, Mr. Converse stated that he only hoped that our people were as glad to see him as he was to see them.

"The Pioneer Farmer" by Thomas E. Niles was a pointed speech bringing out the necessity of closer relation between the farmer and the business man.

Att'y L. F. Knowles of Boyne had for his subject "What I know about the Con Con." That gentleman knows a lot about the constitutional convention as he was our representative, and his speech, while devoid of fireworks, dealt interestingly with this important subject.

"Material Organization for Industrial Progress" by E. A. Stowe of Grand Rapids was next on the program. This speech was, to the writer, a disappointment. He confined himself altogether too much to tunking up a little burg down on the G. R. & I. and talking in favor of the open shop—a feature which should have been left out entirely.

In "The Work of 1907" F. A. Kenyon as former secretary of the Board read a statement showing the work of last year, and short addresses were given by J. W. Empey and A. E. Cross.

Pros. A. W. E. N. Clink spoke upon "Raising money for Board of Trade Purposes; the Methods which are Legal, Equitable and Feasible;" Owing to the lateness of the hour, Mr. Clink boiled his subject down into a few words, which were, nevertheless, to the point.

"The Work of 1908" was led off by Pres. Squier who stated that we would, in a very few days, have a proposition to accept from a firm who wish to place a factory here and employ some 25 to 50 men. If the deal went through, and it is more than likely, we will have to raise $1,000. Now where will we get it? Several good suggestions were made and possibly we have a solution to the problem.

Short addresses were also given by Will Hampton and Mr. Marting of Charlevoix, the latter in the interest of the West Michigan Sugar Co.

Two features of the Banquet program folder were a retrospect of 1907 and a statement of conditions as they are at present. The matter is so good and timely that we herewith publish same in full.

Charlevoix County produced more barrels of Apples and more bushels of Potatoes than any other county in Michigan.

Approximately $100,000.00 in cash was paid out at East Jordan alone for these two commodities besides large amounts for Seed Peas and general Farm Produce.

Deep water vessels loaded at East Jordan Docks ten million feet of Pine Lumber manufactured in the interior, shipped to East Jordan by rail and transferred across East Jordan Docks.

East Jordan manufactured and shipped as her own products 10,763,384 feet of Hardwood Lumber, 4,432,534 feet of Hemlock, 1,021,804 feet of Pine, 5,812,145 feet Flooring, 1,725,000 Lath, and 15,513,400 Shingles.

Computed upon the capital stock represented in the new industries acquired during the year, and based on the valuation of East Jordan realty as of Jan. 1 1907, East Jordan shows for the year a greater percentage of gain than any other town of equal or greater size in Michigan.

More East Jordan Realty changed hands in the last four months of 1907 than in the three years previous and at from 20 per cent to 50 per cent higher prices.

What has stimulated East Jordan conditions in the face of adverse general conditions?

Manifestly the presence of new industries.

That the East Jordan Board of Trade assisted materially in securing the industrial acquisition is conceded. Its officers labored unceasingly for the upbuilding of the town; they carried financial responsibilities which in the conduct of their private business they would not have assumed, and all this has been done with no hope of compensation except a participation in the common good.

If you are a citizen of East Jordan did you not receive a measure of the good? If so, did you help to "boost" the proposition?

If not, will you help in 1908?

Here is our "declaration of principles."

The magnificent work of 1907 regardless of general conditions.

We want more new industries and invite suggestions from you to-night as to what the town and surrounding country most need for their mutual benefit.

We want, by locating factories which demand products of the soil, by securing better transportation facilities, and by other legitimate methods to improve our local markets and make them the best in Northern Michigan.

We want the immense track of Hardwood, still untouched and lying within easy reach of East Jordan, to be controlled by interests which have "East Jordan" blown in the bottle.

We want every silver of this timber to come to East Jordan, be manufactured into the finished product in East Jordan Factories, by East Jordan Labor, and go out to the world as East Jordan Products. We want Summer Visitors upon a revenue basis. In short, we want a Lot.

Like others, we may not get all we want but we expect to get something. More than anything else we want YOUR co-operation. We want it bad. We want it NOW. We must have it. Do we get it?

Cash Road Tax Law.

Some newspapers have told the people through their columns that now Earle has the cash road tax law fastened onto the people—the man who lives on the by-road will not get a dollar's worth of repairs, for the township highway commissioner will expend it all on the main auto-mobile road.

The truth of the matter is that never in the history of Michigan did the by-road taxpayer have such protection as he has under the cash road tax law, for it says in the law—the road repair fund must be expended on the roads directly benefitting the property taxed. It further says that if ten taxpayers think that the commissioner is not doing this, it is their right to protest to the township board, and the board must look into the matter and decide which is right, and order how the work shall be done.

The bill is a home-rule bill giving the townships the right to say how much they will raise in both the road repair and highway improvement funds, although it limits the amount of each fund to one-half of one per cent.

The township board has the right to borrow three-fourths of the fund voted, so the highway commissioners can pay cash for work done; one-fourth may be reserved for emergency repairs and taking care of snow in the winter time.

The highway commissioner can hire men in different sections of the township to look after snow in winter and pay them for their work.

It would be a wonder if a man could draw a perfect bill the first time, and Commissioner Earle does not expect that he did, so he asks the citizens of the state to stand by the township commissioners and help them along, and when defects appear, to write to the State Highway Department and tell where the law can be improved, and why; but to write in a spirit of interest to the state of Michigan, and not in a spirit of having a general kick coming.

For good goods, at honest prices Sherman's is the place, they are doing a cash business.

The Girl from Tim's Place

BY CHARLES CLARK MUNN
COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD CO.

SYNOPSIS.

Chip McGuire, a 16-year-old girl living at Tim's place, in the Maine woods is sold by her father to Pete Bouduc, a half-breed. She runs away and reaches the camp of Martin Frisbie, occupied by Martin, his wife, nephew, Raymond Stetson, and guides. She tells her story and is cared for by Mrs. Frisbie. Journey of Frisbie's party into woods to visit father of Mrs. Frisbie, an old hermit, who has resided in the wilderness for many years. When camp is broken Chip and Ray occupy same canoe. The party reach camp of Mrs. Frisbie's father and are welcomed by him and Cy Walker, an old friend and former townsman of the hermit. They settle down for summer's stay. Chip and Ray are in love, but no one realizes this but Cy Walker. Strange canoe marks found on lake shore in front of their cabin. Strange smoke is seen across the lake. Martin and Levi leave for settlement to get officers to arrest McGuire, who is known as outlaw and escaped murderer. Chip's one woods-friend, Tomah, an Indian, visits camp. Ray believes he sees a bear on the ridge. Chip is stolen by Pete Bouduc who escapes with her in a canoe. Chip is rescued by Martin and Levi as they are returning from the settlement. Bouduc escapes. Old Cy proposes to Ray that he remain in the woods with himself and Amzi and trap during the winter, and he concludes to do so. Others of the party return to Greenville. Chip stays with them. Chip starts to school in Greenville, and finds life unpleasant at Aunt Comfort's, made so especially by Hannah. Old Cy and Ray discover strange tracks in the wilderness. They penetrate further into the wilderness and discover the hiding place of the man who had been sneaking about their cabin. They investigate the cave home of McGuire during his absence. Bouduc finds McGuire and the two fight to the death. Finding a watery grave together, Ray returns to Greenville and finds Chip waiting for him. Ray wants Chip to return to the woods with them, but she, feeling that the old comradeship with Ray has been broken, refuses. When they part, however, it is as lovers. Chip runs away from Aunt Comfort's and finds another home with Judson Walker. She gives her name as Vera Raymond. Aunt Abby, Aunt Mandy Walker's sister, visits them, and takes Chip home with her to Christmas Cove. Chip goes to school at Christmas Cove. She tells Aunt Abby the story of her life. Aunt Abby tells her of her family, and she discovers that Cy Walker is a long-lost brother of Judson Walker, but fear of betraying her hiding place prevents her telling of Cy. Old Cy investigates McGuire's cave in the wilderness and finds a fortune that belongs to Chip. Old Cy returns to the wilderness camp with the news that Chip had disappeared and proposes to start out to find her. He turns over to Martin a bank book showing a deposit of $50,000 in Chip's name. Chip returns to the home of Judson Walker at Christmas Cove. She goes on a summer vacation. Chip tells Judson of Cy and writes a note to Martin which discloses her hiding place. Martin immediately visits the Walkers. He gives Chip her money and asks if she shall send Ray to her, but she says no. Aunt Abby's husband dies. Chip asks Martin to find Cy who is seeking the countess for her. He had been a youthful lover of Aunt Abby, and was supposed to have been lost at sea. Ray wants to go to Chip, but Martin advises him not to.

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued.

Whether Aunt Abby's heart responded to that wish or not, she never disclosed. But the days, weeks and months swept by, and Old Cy came not. Neither did any message come to Chip from Greenville. At first, rebelling at Ray's treatment of her, Chip felt that she never wanted to see him again. She had been so tender and loving toward him at the lake, had striven so hard to learn and to be more like him, had waited and watched, counting the days until his return, only to be told what she could not forget and to find him so neglectful, so cool to her, when her girlish heart was so full of love, that her feelings had changed almost in one instant, and pride had made her bitter.

Hannah had told an unpleasant truth, as Chip knew well enough; but truth and confiding love mixed with Ray's conduct, leaving her as he did with scarce a word or promise, was an episode that had chilled and almost killed Chip's budding affection. As is always the case, such a feeling fades and flares like all others. There would now be a brief space when Chip hoped and longed for Ray's coming, and then days when no thought of him came. It was perhaps fortunate for him that Christmas Cove contained no serious admirer of Chip the while, else his cause and all memory of him would have been swept away. But, that quaint village was peopled chiefly by old folk, those of the male persuasion being quite young, with a few girls of Chip's age. Few young men remained there to make their way, and so no added interest came to vary Chip's life.

CHAPTER XXX.

After Chip had run away from Greenville, concealment of her name and all else had forced itself upon her. It was not natural for her to deceive. She had kept it up for one unhappy year only under inward protest, which ended in abject confession and tears. Now recalling that unpleasant episode, she made haste to confess her long conversation with this fluent fellow. "Mr. Goodnow followed me over to the point this afternoon," she explained that evening to Aunt Abby, "and talked for two hours. He was nice enough, but he made me sick of him, he flattered me so much." Aunt Abby looked at her with a slight sense of alarm. "He certainly has the gift of impudence, at least," she said, "in view of the way I declined his invitation yesterday. I think you'd best discontinue your long rambles for the present, or until he leaves here. He is not our sort. He is not even a friend of ours, and if people see you together, they will say unkind things." That was warning enough for Chip, and from that time on she never even walked down to the village store except with Aunt Abby.

A curious and almost ridiculous espionage followed, however, for a week, and not a pleasant afternoon passed by but this fellow was noticed strolling somewhere near the mill or past the house.

Another amazing evidence of his intent was received a few days later, in the shape of a five-pound box of choicest candies, that came by express with his card. Aunt Abby opened this and saw the card, and the next day she commissioned the stage driver to deliver the box, card and all, to Mr. Goodnow at his boarding house.

A long and affronted letter to Chip came a day later, so humble, so flattering, and so importuning that it made her laugh.

"I think that fellow must have gone crazy," she said, handing the letter to Aunt Abby, "he runs on so about how he can't sleep nights from thinking about me. He says that he must go away next week, and shall die if he can't see me once more. What ails him, anyway?"

"Nothing, except evil intentions," responded Aunt Abby, perusing the missive. "He must think you a fool to believe that sort of stuff," she added severely, after finishing it. "Honest love doesn't grow like a mushroom in one night, and the difference between his position and yours gives the lie to all he says. I hope he will go away next week, and never come back."

Whether Chip's studied avoidance of him, combined with the snubbing, served its purpose, or he decided his quest was hopeless, could only be guessed; for he was seen no more near ization that she was a nobody, and an outcast unfit for Greenville.

And then came the climax of all this: the bitter sneers of Hannah, Ray's cool neglect, the consciousness that she was only a dependent pauper, and then her flight into the world and away from all that stung her like so many whips.

But a revulsion of feeling was coming. Chip, no longer a simple child of the wilderness, was realizing her own needs and her own nature. Something broader and more satisfying than school life and the companionship of Aunt Abby was needed; yet how to find it never occurred to her.

With September came Aunt Abby's annual visit to Peaceful Valley. A few days before their departure, Chip received a letter which was so unexpected and so vital to her feelings that it must be quoted.

It was dated at the little village of Grindstone, directed to Vera McGuire, care of Judson Walker, by whom it was forwarded to Christmas Cove.

"My Dear Chip," it began.

"I feel that you will not care to hear from me, and yet I must write. I know I am more to blame than anyone for the way you left Greenville, and that you must consider me a foolish boy, without much courage, which I have been, and I realize it only too well now, when it is too late. But I am more of a man to-day, I hope, and some time I shall come and try to obtain your forgiveness for being so blind. No one ever has been, and I know no one ever will be, what you are to me. As Old Cy says, 'Blessings brighter as they vanish,' and now, after this long separation, one word and one smile from dear little Chip would seem priceless to me, and I shall come and try to win it before many months."

"I am here with Uncle Martin's old guide, Levi. We are going into the woods to-morrow to gather gum and trap until spring. I have hired two other men to help, and hope to do well and make some money. I think you will be glad to know that Old Cy was here this summer and was well. He does not know that you have been found, and is still hunting for you. Levi told me that the people here are much interested in you, that they have fixed up the yard where your mother is buried, and he put up a small stone. 'I wish I could hear from you, but there is no chance now. Please try to forgive a foolish boy for being stupid, and think of me as you did during those happy days by the lake. Good-bye.' RAY."

How every word of this half-boyish, half-manly letter was read and re-read the mill, and the next week his yacht left Christmas Cove, and Chip felt relieved.

I Was Just Sixteen When He First Came to See Me.

It had been an experience quite new to her, and, in spite of its annoyance, somewhat exciting. It also served another purpose of more value—it recalled Ray to her by sheer force of contrast. She had felt hurt ever since the night she left Greenville. She had meant to put him out of her thoughts and forget all the silly hours and promises at the lake; and yet she never had succeeded. Instead, her thoughts turned to him in spite of her pride.

And now, contrasting and comparing that honest, manly lad, a playmate only, and yet a lover as well, with this polished, fulsome, flattering, shifty-eyed fop, who sneered at everything good, only made Ray, with his far different ways, seem the more attractive. Then conscience began to smite her. She had yielded to pride and put him away from her thoughts. His uncle had almost pleaded for her to return to Greenville, if only for a visit. She knew Ray had spent weeks in searching for her; yet not once in all the two years since they parted had she sent him a line of remembrance.

More mature now, Chip began to see her own conduct as it was, and to realize that she had been both ungrateful and heartless; but she could not confess it to any one, not even Aunt Abby.

Chip's life had been a strange, complex series of moods of peculiar effect, and her conduct must be judged accordingly.

First, the dense ignorance of years at Tim's Place, with its saving grace of disgust at such surroundings and such a life. Then a few months with people so different and so kind that it seemed an entrance into heaven; to be followed by weeks of a growing realization; how it woke the old memories of the wilderness and of herself, a ragged waif there; and how, somehow, in spite of pride and anger, a little thrill of happiness crept into her heart needs no explanation.

But she was not quite ready yet to forgive him, and what he failed to say when he might, still rankled in her feelings.

But Old Cy, that kindly soul, so like a father! Almost did she feel that to meet him would be worth more than to see any one else in the world. And to think he was still hunting for her, far and near!

And now, quite unlike most young ladies, who deem their love missives sacred, Chip showed hers to Aunt Abby.

"It's from Raymond Stetson," she said, rather bashfully, "a boy who was in the woods with those people who were kind to me, and we became very good friends."

Aunt Abby smiled as she perused its contents.

"And so he was the cause of your running away from Greenville," she said. "Why didn't you write him a note of thanks after you learned he had been searching for you? I think he deserved that much, at least."

"I wouldn't humbly myself," Chip answered spiritedly, "and then I was ashamed to let any one know I had used his name. I hadn't time to think what name to give when Uncle Jud asked me, and his was the first that came to mind," she added naively.

Aunt Abby laughed.

"I guess Master Stetson won't find forgiveness hard to earn," she said, and then her face beamed at the disclosure of a romance while she read the letter a second time.

But there was more to tell, as Aunt Abby knew full well, and now, bit by bit, she drew the story from Chip, even to the admission of the tender scenes between these two lovers, in which they promised to love each other and be married.

"It was silly, I suppose," Chip continued blushing, "but I didn't know any better then, and I was so happy that I didn't think about it at all. I never had a beau before, you see, and I guess I acted foolishly. Old Cy used to help us; too, and took us away so we could have a chance to hold hands and act silly. I was so lonesome, too, for Ray all that winter in Greenville, and nobody knew it. I walked a mile to meet the stage every night for a month, to be the first to see him when he came. I guess he must have thought he owned me. I wouldn't do it now."

Once more Aunt Abby laughed, a good, hearty laugh, and then, much to Chip's astonishment, she took her face in her hands and kissed it.

"You dear little goose," she said, "and to think you ran away from a boy you cared for like that! I only hope he is good enough for you, for I can see what the outcome will be."

That night when the tea-table had been cleared and the lamp lit, Aunt Abby once more began her adroit questioning of Chip; but this time it was of Old Cy, and all about him. For an hour, Chip, nothing loath, recited his praises, repeated his odd sayings, described his looks and ways and portrayed him as best she could, while Aunt Abby smiled content.

"It makes me feel young again to hear your story and about Cyrus," she said when all was told. "I was just 16 when he first came to see me. He was also my first beau, you know. I should judge he must have changed so I would never know him, and maybe he wouldn't recognize me. Forty years is a long time!" And she sighed.

And now Aunt Abby closed her eyes, let fall her knitting, and lapsed into by-gones.

No longer was she a staid and matronly widow—not young, it is true, yet not old, but with rounded face, few wrinkles, and slightly gray hair. Instead was she sweet Abby Grey of the long ago, and once more the belle of this quiet village and Bayport, and the leader at every dance, every husking, and every party. Once more she primped and curled her hair, and donned her best, and waited her sailor boy's coming. Once more she heard the bells jingle and saw the stars twinkle as they sped away to a winter night's dance—and once more she felt the sorrow of parting, the long years of waiting, waiting, waiting, and at last the numb despair and final conviction that never would her lover return.

And now he was still alive, though a wanderer, and some day he might surely would come to see her, just once, if no more.

"Ah, me," she said, rousing herself at last and looking at Chip's smiling, sunny face, "life is a queer riddle, and we never know how to guess it." Then she sighed again.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Some sneering critic once said that few young men ever start out in the world until they are kicked out, and there is a grain of truth in that assertion. It is seldom an actual kick, however, but some motive force quite as compelling.

In Ray's case it was his uncle's assertion that if he hoped to win Chip he must first show the ability to provide a home for her, which is excellent advice for any young man to follow.

"It won't be a pleasure trip," Martin said when Ray proposed to go to the wilderness and, with Levi and a couple of other assistants, make a business of gum-gathering and trap-setting, "but you can't lose much by it. You are welcome to the camp; Levi will see that you have game enough to eat, and boss the expedition. I will loan you five hundred, and with what you have, that is capital enough, and you ought to do well. It would be better if Old Cy could take charge, but as it is, you must go it alone." And go it alone Ray did.

Levi's services were easily secured. Two young fellows whom he knew were hired at Greenville. A bateau was purchased, together with more traps and supplies, and after Ray had written Chip his plan, the party started for Martin's camp. They had been established there a month and were doing well. The first ice had begun forming in shallow coves when one afternoon, who should enter the lake and paddle rapidly across but Old Cy.

"Ye can't sit rid o' me when trap-pin's goin' on," he said cheerily, as Ray and Levi met him at the landing. "I fetched into the settlement kinder homesick for the woods last week. I heard the good news 'bout Chip's bein' found 'n' you'd come here for the winter, 'n' I didn't wait a minute 'fore I hired a canoe 'n' started." And then, in the exuberance of his joy, he shook hands with Ray and Levi once more.

That evening, Ray, who had hard work to keep the secret so long, told Old Cy who lived in Peaceful Valley.

It was like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky, a shock of joyful news that made Old Cy gasp.

"Why, I feel jest like a colt once more," he said after the exclamation stage had passed. "An', do ye know, boys, I felt all the way comin' in ez though good news was waitin' fer me I s'pose 'twas from hearin' Chip was all right agin'."

Chance for Inventors.

Suppose that one could find an alloy that would bear the same relation to aluminum that steel does to carbon or bronze to tin, says the Engineering Record. The result would be a new structural material of immense importance in mechanical work. The builders of light machinery are looking for just this thing.

Plays & Players

IDOL OF LONDON THEATER-GOERS

American actress who is the charming "Peter Pan" in the play of that name now running in London.

MISHAPS ON THE STAGE.

Amusing Experiences That Have Convinced Audiences.

Several years ago Jefferson De Angelis played the part of Marks in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and as he was riding the donkey off the stage the donkey decided not to go. The comedian kicked him, pinched him, and pulled his ears, but the donkey kept on backing until he slipped and his hind legs went down under him. "I went over backward and did a slide over the footlights, landing in the arms of a thoughtful and considerate fiddler," says Mr. De Angelis. "The bass drummer got the donkey. You never saw such a mixed up mess of comedians, donkeys, and bass drum as there was that night."

Elna May Spooner recently was playing "Zaza" and by making the right remark at the right time recovered from a ludicrous accident. She had just invited Dufrene into her dressing room when she stubbed her toe and fell over a trunk. Quickly picking herself up she smiled and making a deep courtesy said: "I beg your pardon, I did not mean to greet you so unceremoniously." The audience rewarded the actress by a burst of applause.

One time when Mr. Edwin Forrest was playing Hamlet he did not have the miniatures called for in the part. The actor looked in his pockets for them, but did not find them. Seeing a shaving box behind the scenes he thrust lid, soap, brush, and all into his pocket. When he came to the lines which he addressed to his mother: "Look here upon this picture," he handed her the lid of the box. Continuing he says: "And now upon this, this was your husband. This is your husband," whereupon the soap, lather, brush, and all tumbled out, which convulsed the audience with laughter.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Virginia Harned has begun rehearsals of "Camille," which she will play on the road.

Chrystal Herne has been chosen to play the title role in "My Mamie Rose," with Arnold Daly.

Annie Russell has been taking an entire season's rest. She will emerge from her retirement to appear in "Paid in Full" when that play is produced in New York.

Eddie Foy has insured his voice for $50,000, the policy to last during his production of "Hamlet."

Eleanor Robson's next play, it is said, will be a dramatization by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett of her story "The Dawn of To-Morrow." The production will probably not be made until next season.

As a part of her preparation for her appearance next autumn in "As You Like It," Ethel Barrymore has taken into her own hands the task of designing the costumes for Rosalind and the other principal characters.

Miss Maude Feeley has closed her tour in "The Stronger Sex."

W. J. Locke, author of "The Morals of Marcus," is writing another comedy for Miss Marie Doro.

The authoritative life of Henry Irving which Austin Breton is writing will be brought out next autumn. The actor's sons have supplied all the records and other documents relating to their father which they possess. An excellent site, by the way, has been granted in London for a statue of Irving.

STAGE STARS AND SALARIES.

Many Receive Good Incomes But Money Goes Easily.

Although stars are in many respects to be envied, facts prove the average actor is not so fortunate an individual as is popularly supposed. He makes $35 or $40 a week for 35 weeks if the season is a successful one, but he must wear good clothes and live at first-class hotels, so that summer finds him poorly prepared, and he is idle for a long time, with little to live on.

There are few actors who are so much in demand that they can make contracts for the entire season. They are always subject to the two weeks' clause. Stars, however, are engaged for a term of years. Only players who have made hits receive large salaries, and stars spend their earnings in proportion. Popular stars range in salary from $500 to $1,000 per week, with part of the profits.

Maude Adams is said to have earned not less than $50,000 a year since her first season in "The Little Minister." It is said that she received at that time a salary of $500 a week with 50 per cent of the profits. This has been increased since. Before Mrs. Carter left Belasco her salary reached the thousand mark with a percentage. Mrs. Fiske draws an enormous salary.

Other prominent women stars fare as well, for they are more in demand than are men, whose incomes do not reach such a high figure. The average male star draws $300 per week and a percentage of the profits, while a mere leading woman will often get almost as much.

The actor loves to spend money, and he thinks nothing of investing a few thousands in automobiles, yachts, and other pleasures. There are a few members of the profession, however, who give serious thought to old age. Lotta is said to be a millionairess. Maggie Mitchell owns huge sections of real estate.

Modjeska made a fortune and spent it in taking care of persons in the west who were needy. She once owned an extensive ranch, but this was sold in her time of need. Sol Smith Russell, at the time of his death, was considered the richest actor on the stage. He invested his money in real estate in St. Paul and Minneapolis and afterward sold his property, and re-invested the money in houses and land in Washington.

Joseph Jefferson was another man who saved his money and left his family in comfortable circumstances. Mr. Jefferson supported no luxuries. May Irwin owns a beautiful place in the St. Lawrence river. Julia Marlowe is pronounced the richest actress on the percentage, which have been hers for stage to-day. Miss Marlowe dresses well, but she does not fritter away her earnings, most of which are carefully invested.

Mrs. Leslie Carter, on the contrary, is a woman of such extravagant habits that out of the enormous salary and some years past, it is generally believed that she has saved practically nothing. Viola Allen is another wealthy woman. She owns her home and has large real estate properties. Margaret Anglin has of late begun to add her name to the list of rich women.

Alkali Ike and the Yankee. "Eh-yah!" remarked Alkali Ike a trifle reluctantly in response to the tourist's polite and half veiled criticism of certain amenities of life as she is lived in the care free and wind swept occident. "I didn't s'pose it would suit you, Mr. Eastman. You New England people think that hain't nuthin' west of the Alleghany mountains but sagebrush an' blunket Injuns!"

"Oh, not at all, my dear sir!" deprecated the gentleman from the effete east. "I assure you that I hold the people of the west in the highest respect, and for many of your customs and institutions I entertain the most profound admiration. You are an enterprising, pushing, progressive people. If any criticism could be justly offered it might be that, in the midst of your bustling enterprise, you have not yet had time to acquire some of the finer shades that life in the older commonwealths has. For instance, one might say without offering the slightest disparagement that you as a people are lacking in repose. Of course!"

"Huh!" ejaculated the ingenious Isaac. "If we're lackin' in repose it's becuz we have guthin' better to do than to sleep away our time. We are alwars up an' a-comin', if anybody asks you! And that's what knocks!" "Very true, my dear sir! But your progressiveness has its drawbacks. It has made you a pardon me—race of iconoclasts, and"

"None!" interposed Ike. "Thar are more Methodists around yere than anything else."

Fine Prescription.

A well-known authority on Rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable, yet simple and harmless prescription, which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost, and, being of vegetable extraction, are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly for a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of Rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose, until permanent results are obtained, and without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called Rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results, and the above will no doubt, be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately, or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers if asked to.

Indigestion

Stomach troubles is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought this success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend.

THE SOCIAL SHOW.

But the thirst of soul soon learn to know The moistureless froth of the social show; The vulgar sham of the pompous feast Where the heaviest purse is the highest priest; The organized charity, scribbled and lead, In the name of a cautious, statistical Christ; The smile restrained, the respectable cant, When a friend in need is a friend in want; Where the only aim is to keep ahead, And a brother may drown, with a cry in his throat. —John Boyle O'Reilly.

A Blessing in Disguise.

Five Landis brothers were born on a farm in Indiana. Two of them are now members of congress, one is the now-famous federal judge in Chicago, one is supervisor of posts in Porto Rico and one is a physician in Cincinnati.

"We had to work from daylight to dark on that farm," says Congressman Charles Landis. "Father had a team, and it took up all our time to get enough off that farm to support that team. We were working night and day to get provender for those horses."

"Fortunately, one of the horses died, and a couple of us got away. Then the other horse died, and that let the rest of us out, and since then we have hopped along as best we could."

Self Interest.

The real estate firm of Solomon & O'Sullivan had lots for sale in a new suburban addition. O'Sullivan, young, enthusiastic and Irish, was writing the advertisement and urged impending purchasers to seize the passing moment.

"Napoleon not only met opportunity; he created it!"

Mr. Solomon read this line in the advertisement slowly and carefully. "This fellow Napoleon," he said, "what's the use of advertising him with our money?" —Lippincott's.

Everybody Fitted but Father.

"Shall we have to buy new woolen underwear for all of the boys this year?"

"No, dear. Yours have shrunk so they just fit John; John's shrunk so they just fit Jimmy; Jimmy's shrunk so they fit Willie, and Willie's are just snug on the baby. You are the only one that needs new ones."

Where Johnny Put the "G."

A teacher in a New England school had, found great difficulty in training her pupils to pronounce final "g." One day when a small boy was reading he came to a sentence that he pronounced as follows: "What a good time I am havin'!"

"No, Johnny," interrupted the teacher, "you made a mistake. Don't you remember what I've been telling you? Try that last sentence again."

Johnny reread as before, "What a good time I am havin'!" "No, no," said the teacher a little impatiently. "Don't you know all I've told you about pronouncing the 'g'?"

Johnny's face lightened, and he began again confidently, "Gee, what a good time I am havin'!" —Everybody's.

The Sabbath School class of Mrs. W. A. Stone gave that lady a pleasant surprise party Saturday evening.

The Herald office turned out this week a poster for W. A. Loveday advertising East Jordan and we're just egotistical enough to think that they're a pretty good job for a country printshop.

If you would like to fool some wise Coffee Critic, who "knows fine Coffee on taste and flavor," quietly make for him a batch of Dr. Shoop's "Health Coffee" and serve it piping hot. It deceived Mrs. Shoop, and will I believe deceive any one. And there is not a grain of real Coffee in it. Health Coffee is made from pure toasted grains, malt, nuts, etc. Made in 15 minutes—no 20 to 30 minutes tedious boiling. 14 pounds 25c. G. L. Sherman & Son.

Double the amount of light for the same price is what may be expected through the services of electricity during the present year. The advancement in the perfection of electric lamps during the past few years has been very satisfactory and considered economical, when the time saving, and cleanliness features are compared with other modes of lighting. The first important step that proved practical in Electric Lamp Construction within the past three years was when the metallic filament lamp was placed on the market and known to our local users as the "Gem"—this gives from one sixth to one fifth more light than the common lamp with equal current consumption; then comes the "Tantalum" lamp with which 40 candle power is claimed with 80 watts of current (compared with the ordinary—32 c. p. consumes 100 watts); but, the greatest of all is the "Tungston" lamp with which more than double the light is claimed, with a given amount of current, than with the common lamp. These new types of lamp are expensive, as compared to the others, but will very quickly save the excess price, in saving current, or, as most people want light, and plenty of it, it gives them an opportunity to get it without adding to their expense for current. Our local lighting company proposes, as soon as they can get more pressing details adjusted, to enter into a campaign of "more light for the money," and would have been in it now, only for the handicap under which they have been working of late.

"What Shall We Eat?"

Every day the same old question, "What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner?" assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at moderate cost. The Chicago Record-Herald has gone far toward solving the problem by devoting space to three departments on this all important topic in its various issues. "Meals For a Day," which appears daily, gives the daily menu and the necessary recipes. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the contest and weekly prizes are offered for the best menus. Marion Harland's Sunday page gives weekly a list of selected recipes which if clipped and pasted in a scrapbook make a most valuable collection. ### Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate woman's organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed complexion. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Fearful and Wonderful Memorandum of Baltimore Cook.

In the family of a former Baltimorean now residing in Providence, R. I., there is a middle-aged German woman—a relative of the family—who, though having lived in this country over a quarter of a century, has not yet thoroughly mastered the English tongue.

Happening to visit the kitchen several days ago the head of the household discovered tacked up against the wall a crude memorandum pad. Inquiry developed the fact that it was a remainder of the day's culinary needs.

The memorandum was confiscated and sent to friends of the family in Baltimore. It is being preserved as a classic.—Baltimore News.

VOLUMES MIGHT BE WRITTEN

Of the Success That Awaits the Farmer in Western Canada.

The story of wheat farming in Western Canada (that portion of Canada lying north of Dakota and Montana) has been frequently told, but it will stand a lot of telling, and still retain its touch of interest.

Continuing the same writer says: "While a million human beings throng the shores of the United States every year, the smaller number arriving in Canada come with a more well-defined purpose." The question has been asked why do these people come to Canada? The available land between the Mississippi and the Pacific has been exhausted, and the farmers within that territory find that their sons have to seek newer climes.

TRAPPED By JOHN CHESHIRE

(Copyright.)

The man with the dark mustache groaned painfully; the other merely shook his head in silent agreement.

"They were decently clothed, but obviously depressed in spirits. There was that in their dejected attitude which told of disaster, and the way in which the bigger man's hands fidgeted in his pockets plainly indicated their emptiness.

"What luck!" muttered the dark man for the twentieth time. "Oh, dry up, do!" snapped his companion. "What's the good of keeping on like that?"

"The chance of a lifetime!" went on the other in the monotonous tone of one reflecting on lost opportunities. "To think that we are the only two people in the world—besides the stable—who knew that Velveteen can win to-morrow. Simply stroll—in! And here are we without so much as the railway fare to take us to the meeting."

"You got a watch an' chain." "Pah! Silver! Couldn't get a dollar on it, and the—"

"Well, whose fault is it?" interrupted the little man viciously. "Who would play billiards with a stranger last night and lose all a pal's money as well as his own? Who—?" He changed his tone to one of ridicule. "Nice sort o' partnership, upon my word!"

The dark man took no notice whatever of this outburst. "A trial at six in the morning—stripped! Us in a straw-stack watching the finish. Velveteen, by ten lengths! Was there ever such luck?" he pondered.

The other turned away with a short exclamation of annoyance, went to the side of the road and sat down moodily. The dark man's lips moved. He was making calculations. Presently he looked up; his expression changed; he listened.

A soft hum-rose on the air—very faint, very distant—rose and fell again. For a few moments the dark man's eyes searched the horizon where the road seemed to end. Then he gave a start as a black speck showed where earth and sky touched. The hum became a rhythmic throb.

"By jingo, yes, I'll do it!" he said, under his breath. He turned to the other man. "Quick, quick!" he cried. "Behind the hedge!" The little man jumped up suddenly. "Watchman?" he asked anxiously. Before he was aware of it the dark man had him by the arm and was pulling him through a gap in the hedge. "Down!" he admonished, dropping to a crouching attitude.

The motorist looked along a mile and a half of deserted road. "That's all right," he said, as his foot pressed the accelerator and the car jumped into its top speed. "She can go!" exclaimed the pretty girl by his side.

"Wait a moment and you'll see," returned the driver proudly. The wind whistled past them. Behind a cloud of dust hid the road. To the two in the car there came only a soft purr of smooth-running machinery; but they were eating up distance.

"Forty-five, or I'm a Dutchman!" shouted the man as they raced smoothly along. The words were hardly out of his mouth when a big man with a dark mustache jumped into the road a hundred yards ahead. One of his hands was raised in warning, the other held a watch. A smaller man came through the hedge and joined him.

"Trapped by Jove!" cried the motorist. For a moment he hesitated whether he should stop or not, then he shut off power and applied the brakes. The car came to a standstill before the two men.

"This won't do," said the man with the dark mustache in a tone of severity. "Do you know what pace you've been going?" He consulted what, to the motorist, was the inevitable police stop-watch.

"I say, look here," returned the man on the car, trying to bluff. "What's your authority for stopping me?"

"Very sorry, sir; county police, you know." He extracted a printed paper from a pocket and held it for a moment before the other's eyes. "Must do my duty," he added in an apologetic tone.

"But we couldn't possibly have been exceeding the speed limit," said the girl, beaming sweetly on the dark man. "I'm—sure, policeman, you wouldn't—"

"Tipped you over the straight mile, miss. One minute forty-three seconds. That makes it 35 miles an hour." He pointed down the road. "My man's posted under the trees yonder and signaled when you passed him. Got the car's number, Williams?" He asked the little man.

The little man pulled out a dirty notebook and wrote in it hurriedly. "I'll trouble you for your driver's license, please, sir," went on the dark man in a tone of authority.

The motorist was weighing matters in his mind. For answer he beckoned the dark man to his side. "Just a word," he said.

"Williams," said the dark man, "step o' one side a moment. Now sir, what is it?"

"Look here," began the motorist in an undertone, "can't we settle this between ourselves, constable?"

"Can't be done, sir," was the reply, made with a vigorous shake of the head. Then, after a pause, "Got witnesses, you see?"

The motorist's hand went to his pocket. "If a ten dol—"

The dark man shook his head again. "Two?" said the motorist. The dark man did not seem to hear.

"George—" The girl whispered something. "Oh, well," was the reply. "All right."

The dark man's hand rested on the mud-guard, conveniently near. The little man caught the "chink"—the unmistakable "chink"—of gold. "An open throttle began talking. The dark man stepped aside.

"My mistake, of course. You'll not hear anything about this little matter, sir," he called whimsically after the car as it gathered speed.

For a moment or two they stood in the dusty road silent. Then asked the little man: "How'd you kid him about the county police?"

"Dog license," said the dark man. "I'm backin' Velveteen. Come on."

WHEN WALL STREET IS WILD. Millions at Stake in the Game, But There's Little Excitement.

In the arena itself are none of the scenes that one might expect when men see the fortunes of a score of years leave their grasp in perhaps an hour, says D. A. Willey in Putnam's in describing a panic in Wall street.

It is a fine display of nerve which the true American possesses. If anything is needed to prove the adage that he is "a good joser," a "panic" day in Wall street is proof enough.

Again look over the floor. Here is a man strolling up and down, hands in pockets, apparently as unconcerned as if pacing the lobby of the hotel with his after-dinner cigar. Over in a corner are two others, talking together. They are not smiling, but might be discussing a mere trifle, to judge by their calm attitude.

The delinquent subscriber who had been "dunned" beyond all endurance wrote the assistant editor: "Do let me know when I kin ketch yer editor-in-chief in his office. Every time I stop that they tell me he's out. What I want to do is to beat hell outen him!"

The assistant editor replied: "Come right away. His wife says he's got both the devil and the other place in him, and she wants you to keep your word and beat 'em out of him. Come on."

Case for an Expert. "Have you fixed up my will just the way I told you?" asked the sick man, who was the possessor of many needy relatives and some well-to-do grasping ones.

"I have," asserted the lawyer. "Just as strong and tight as you can make it, eh?" asked the client.

The lawyer nodded. "All right," said the sick man. "Now I want to ask you one thing— not professionally—who do you think stands the best chance of getting the property when I'm gone?" "Your's Companion.

When a Home Is Not a Home. Mrs. Margaret Sangster calls attention to the fact that the home is not a prison nor a reformatory. PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 1.

Dr. Hartman is now offering Peruna to the public as a regular pharmaceutical product. It is just as ethical as any compound put up for the medical profession. No straining of medical ethics can find any fault with it.

The only departure we shall make from medical ethics in the conduct of Peruna affairs in the future, is the fact that we shall continue to advertise and sell our product TO THE PEOPLE.

If we would agree to sell to doctors only, to advertise for doctors only, then the medical fraternity would be obliged to recognize Peruna as being entirely within their approval.

But we shall NOT do this. We shall continue to offer Peruna to the people. We shall continue to convey to the people our claims for Peruna as a household remedy.

We are proposing from this time on to take the public into our confidence. Notwithstanding that some imitators and substitutes will be attempting to put up something which they consider just as good as Peruna, we are going to draw aside the veil of secrecy and allow any one who chooses to know exactly OF WHAT PERUNA IS COMPOSED.

This ought to disarm all honest criticism. We expect, however, that criticism will continue. On some pretext or other those who are envious of the success of Peruna will continue to find fault. But we are determined to give such people no just complaint.

PERUNA IS A GREAT MEDICINE. It has become a household word in millions of homes. Our faith in the remedy is stronger than ever. Every year we expect to establish new plants in foreign lands until the people of all the world are supplied with this valuable household remedy.

WE CLAIM PERUNA TO BE A CATARRH REMEDY. Buy a bottle and try it. If it helps you, be honest and acknowledge that it has helped you. If you want us to we will publish your statement exactly as you furnish it to us.

Peruna has cured thousands of people of chronic catarrh, in many phases and locations. At least, that is what the people say to us, through unsolicited testimonials. Peruna will cure many thousand more, in spite of fabricated slanders to the contrary.

WE GUARANTEE EVERY BOTTLE OF PERUNA TO CONTAIN THE INGREDIENTS PRINTED ON THE LABEL. We guarantee that every testimonial we use is absolutely true—in the exact language of the testifier.

We guarantee that every photograph published is the photograph of the person whose name it bears, that every word of every testimonial was authorized by the hand that signed it.

We are determined to beat our opponents by being fairer than they are, by dealing squarer than they dare to. We are determined to meet falsehood with truth, duplicity with candor, insincerity with sincerity.

We know that the users of Peruna will appreciate our stand. We believe that the dealers in Peruna will applaud our course. We expect even our opponents will be obliged to acknowledge finally that Peruna is not only an honest and useful remedy, but one of the GREATEST HOUSEHOLD MEDICINES ON THE CONTINENT.

Her Mistake.

"My dear," said Mr. Brown to his wife, "where did all those books on astronomy on the library table come from? They are not ours."

"A pleasant little surprise for you," responded Mrs. Brown. "You know you said this morning that we ought to study astronomy, so I went to a bookstore and bought everything I could find on the subject."

It was some minutes before he spoke.

"My dear," he then said, slowly, his voice husky with emotion, "I never said we must study astronomy; I said we must study economy."

BABY CRIED AND SCRATCHED

All the Time—Covered with Torturing Eczema—Doctor Said Sores Would Last for Years—Perfect Cure by Cuticura.

"My baby niece was suffering from that terrible torture, eczema. It was all over her body but the worst was on her face and hands. She cried and scratched all the time and could not sleep night or day from the scratching. I had her under the doctor's care for a year and a half and he seemed to do her no good. I took her to the best doctor in the city and he said that she would have the sores until she was six years old. But if I had depended on the doctor my baby would have lost her mind and died from the want of aid. But I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and she was cured in three months. Alice L. ## One to Three at Whist.

The late Senator Hoar was extremely fond of whist, which he played with remarkable skill.

A friend says that the only time he ever knew the usually placid and genial man from Massachusetts to be absolutely impatient was when on one occasion at whist the senator had an unusually stupid partner. Notwithstanding this handicap, the pair were winning right along even against good players.

In the middle of one game, some one paused behind the senator's chair and asked, "Well, senator, how are you getting on?"

"Very well, indeed," was the reply, "in view of the fact that I have three adversaries."—Sunday Magazine.

COFFEE DRINKING

A Doctor Says it Weakens the Heart.

"In my opinion," says a well known German physician, "no one can truthfully say that coffee agrees with him, as it has long since been proven that caffeine, contained in coffee, is an injurious, poisonous substance which weakens and degenerates the heart muscles."

"For this reason the regular use of coffee, soon or late, causes a condition of undernourishment, which leads to various kinds of organic disease."

"Convinced of this fact, I have often sought for some healthful beverage to use instead of coffee. At last I found the thing desired in Postum. Having had occasion to forbid people using coffee, whose hearts were affected, I have recommended Postum as a beverage, since it is free from all injurious or exciting substances. I know this from results in my own family, and among patients."

"Hundreds of persons who now use Postum in place of coffee, are greatly benefited thereby." "There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read, "The Road to Wellville," in page.

IN THE REPAIR DEPARTMENT.

Best Ways of Performing the Important Work of Mending.

Rents will look much better when mended if they are attended to at once, because the longer they are left the more ragged the edge becomes.

Lay the garment right side down and put the edges of the rent as close together as possible. Cut a piece of mending tissue rather larger than the space that is torn and lay on top.

Take a piece of thin woolen material the same size as the tissue and as near the color of the cloth as possible, lay this on top of the tissue and when placed in exactly the right position iron with a hot iron until the patch adheres to the garment.

The heat will cause the tissue to dissolve, forming a sort of glue.

If the material is of light-weight goods it will be best to use a patch of exactly the same goods, but if the material is heavy, such as is used in men's suits or coats, a lighter patch will be very much better.

A clean cut in heavy materials may be mended by putting the two edges firmly together and basting them to a piece of paper on the right side.

Take a thread and insert the needle about three-eighths of an inch from the edge and carry it between the cloth to about half an inch the other side of the cut and draw the thread through; put the needle in where it came out and carry it to the other side about half an inch beyond the edge in a slightly slanting position.

Continue to do this until the whole cut is darned. Be careful not to pull too tight. Darn in the same way in the opposite direction.

It is difficult to use this method of mending if the edges are the least bit frayed, and on thin materials it must be done with the greatest care, using the finest thread and needle possible.

All darns must be pressed when finished. To do this, lay the right side down on the ironing board and on the wrong side lay a damp cloth and iron until perfectly dry.

HOUSEWORK AND THE HANDS.

How One Woman Does Her Own Work and Cares for Her Hands.

One reason why housework is so distasteful to many women is because of its effect upon the hands. Care will save them.

I never cut fruit or vegetables dry, with a dry knife and dry hands. All peaches, apples, potatoes, onions, turnips and carrots should be covered with water and cut with a wet knife and wet hands.

Onions may be peeled under a running faucet, and all odor to the hands avoided. Use no soap in bathing the hands after cutting fruit or vegetables. Blacking a kitchen range disfigures one's hands. A stove that has not been blacked for three months and is washed daily is as clean as a table treated similarly, and a platter will be heated upon its surface and placed upon a dainty table cloth without smothering it. I never permit a maid to soil my kitchen range with the vile, black stuff which sends its odor through the house and drapes her nails in mourning; and the cleanliness of my hands, when doing my own work, is of more importance to me than the appearance of my range.—Harper's Bazar.

Canned Peach Recipes.

Peach Salad.—Drain the peaches and wipe each one dry. Arrange on white lettuce, and put a little mayonnaise in the heart of each one; add a little whipped cream to this, if you have it.

Peach Melba.—Simmer the peaches in thick syrup; drain them and arrange on plates. Make a quart of vanilla ice cream; heap each peach full, and top with a maraschino or candied cherry. Or, stand each peach first on a round of stale sponge cake.

Peach Shortcake.—Drain the peaches and slice them as though fresh; make a two-layer-cake, put the peaches in and on top; serve with cream.—Harper's Bazar.

Spaghetti Jaquillard.

Get a pound of round steak, mince it, add one egg, one small onion minced, one tablespoon of chopped parsley, two tablespoons rolled cracker crumbs, then roll into small, firm balls, then take a can of tomatoes, one green pepper, seed removed, chop it fine; one onion; boil together one hour, press through a colander; to the strained sauce add one tablespoon of lard, salt and pepper; into this put the balls of meat, simmer one-half hour; then take out the balls, pour the sauce over the spaghetti, which should be boiled in salted water; arrange meat on top with a liberal supply of grated cheese; serve hot.

Silver Cake Without Eggs.

One teaspoon sugar, one-half cup butter, whites of four eggs, two-thirds cup sweet milk, two cups sifted flour, if bread flour is used one cup is enough, two teaspoons baking powder or one teaspoon cream tartar and one-half of soda, little salt and vanilla. Frost with chocolate frosting made from five cents' worth of vanilla creams, put into agate pan and melted with one teaspoon water, when melted stir till cool and spread on cake.

The Chopping-Basin.

A labor saving device is called the chopping basin. It consists of a wooden bowl fitted with a circular chopper, which may be used for preparing left-over cold meats for hashes and stews. For croquettes and forcemeat balls a small grinder or mill is manufactured which is a most useful and economical addition to the kitchen shelf.

AN OPPORTUNE TIME

$571,225.00 a Year.

Fortune is said to knock at one's door but once in a life time, and opportunity is very often lost to the man or woman who waits until to-morrow to consider, and then forgets. Most of the great men of our country gained fame and wealth by arriving at conclusions and grasping the opportunity of a proffered fortune, before others could get in ahead of them. Such an opportunity is now offered to you and you should not turn it aside lightly. IT IS YOUR TIME. What we offer you is an investment as safe as any bank can give you and with much greater earning powers. GOLD IS THE STANDARD MONEY OF THE WORLD.

The Nevada Empress Gold Mines and Milling Company owns 140 acres of Nevada's richest mineral lands, there has been expended in cash on the property upwards of forty thousand dollars in opening up the vast rich ore bodies by great tunnels and shafts, and several tons of rich ore have been taken out ready for the mill, and many thousand tons are in sight in the great mine ready to be taken out, the average value of which by actual mill test is twenty dollars per ton.

The following figures are a conservative estimate of earnings of a forty-ton mill such as we shall install:

Capacity of mill per day	40 tons
Value of ore per ton	$20.00
Gross value per day	$800.00
Cost of mining 40 tons	$80.00
Mill expense per day	15.00
Net earnings per day	$705.00
Working days per year	313
Net earnings per year	$220,665.00

Just consider these vast earnings for a moment and ask yourself if you can afford to let this opportunity go by, this is not all, we will increase our mill facilities to 100 tons within a few months, which will have an annual earning capacity of $571,225.00. Here is a profit of over one hundred (100%) per cent on the outstanding capitalization. Can you conceive of anything so vastly rich?

We have an option on 50,000 shares of the Nevada Empress stock which we offer you at fifty (50) cents per share, par value one dollar fully paid and forever non-assessable. Don't let this opportunity to get some of this stock get away from you, you will never get another chance like this one. Don't wait until to-morrow lest you forget, but buy now or you may be forever too late.

We expect an over-subscription of this stock, therefore those that come first will be sure to get the stock and share the profits of this great company. All over-subscriptions will be returned with the money. The price of Nevada Empress shares will be advanced to $1.00 after the closing of the sale of this 50,000 shares and there will be no more for sale after this issue. It is the company's intention to pay a dividend this year. No orders will be accepted for less than 100 shares. Remit by postoffice order or bank draft. Mail your order to us today, it may be too late to-morrow.

"Guess where I've been," said a man at the noonday lunch counter. "It is a city where in at least two churches they have little cuspidors which match the decorations of the church in the corners of the pews. In the vestibule of one of the large churches hangs a sign to this effect: 'No Spitting Allowed Inside the Church, Throw Away Your Tobacco as You Enter the Vestibule.' This a fact. I can prove it!"

An All-Round Man.

William V. McManus, the new president of the Letter Carriers' association of New York, had been discussing the ideal letter carrier.

With a laugh he ended: "Yes, the ideal letter carrier needs to be as all-round, as many-sided, as divinely gifted, as the man a Cincinnati suburbanite advertised for 'last month."

"The advertisement ran: 'Wanted—A man able to teach Spanish, water color painting, and the violin, and to look after the bull.'"

It Was a Stage Brand.

Gertrude, aged four, had been to the matinee. Later she tried to describe the play to a grown-up friend.

"They drank wine," said Gertrude, "and then they all went out."
"Well," said the friend, expectantly, "and what happened next?"

Gertrude worked her small brain hard.

"I guess," she said, "they split it out."

THEIR DEGREES OF HAPPINESS.

Marital Relations of Rural Postmasters Not All Serene.

The chief clerk of the post office department at Washington recently sent to all the postmasters in the country a list of questions asking for certain information, says the New York Sun, to be used in the preparation of the government Blue Book. One of the questions in the list was, "What are your marital relations?"

The object of this particular question was to find out whether the postmasters are married, single, widowed or divorced. But some of the rural postmasters did not understand, and many answers were received in which the persons addressed endeavored to give a clear and lucid explanation of the status of their married life. One postmaster briefly stated that his domestic affairs were "Fine and dandy." Another, not so fortunate, replied: "Fairly middling," while a third filled in the blank space with two words: "The worst."

HIS ONE AVAILABLE ASSET.

Mr. Johnson Willing to Give Well-Written Note of Hand.

The financial prospects of Mr. Washington Lafayette Johnson were decidedly clouded, but he still preserved a sanguine spirit, which his friends did not always appreciate.

"I'd like to borrow jes' a 'little money' ob you," said Mr. Johnson, confidentially, to a friend. "I—I wouldn't ax you fo' it, but I ain' got a single cent left in de world."

"What security can you gib me?" asked his friend, without any enthusiasm.

"Why, I gib you my note ob hand!" and Mr. Johnson looked pained and amazed at such a question. "I reckon you don' know what a good, clear handwriting I got in de ebening school."—Youth's Companion.

Wonderfully Made.

"What makes it so?" asked a little Boston maiden as her mother brushed her hair.

Introducing an Old Friend.

General Grosvenor, the Republican war horse of Ohio, was billed to speak in Pittsburg.

When it was time to introduce the general the chairman arose and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I need hardly say to you that we are particularly fortunate tonight in having with us one of the greatest Republicans of our sister state, Ohio. We are to have the pleasure of listening to a man whose name is a household word in Pittsburg, who has fought for us the battle of protection, upon which so much of Pittsburg's material prosperity depends. You all know him. Everybody in Pittsburg respects and honors him. He is our friend. His name is on all our lips. Friends, I now have the pleasure of introducing to you that sterling patriot, that rock ribbed Republican, that eminent statesman, General—General—Gen—"

The chairman flushed, stammered, wiped his forehead nervously and then blurted, "General Gossamer of Ohio."

Depends on the Yard.

English John and Pat were constantly tilting, each one trying to outwit the other.

"Are you good at measurement?" asked John.

"I am that," said Pat.

"Then could you tell me how many shirts I could get out of a yard?"

"Sure it depends on whose yard you get into."—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Case in Point.

"No man is so bad that there is not a little of the angel left in him," said the minister.

"Yes, that's so," replied the deacon. "Remember Spilkins? Everybody thought he was about the worst man on earth. Why, his own mother wouldn't come to his funeral! Well, sir, I've been told a thousand times a month for the last five years that Spilkins was the only real saint that ever lived."

"My goodness!"

"I married Spilkins' widow," sorrowfully continued the deacon.

No Cause For Complaint.

A young artist in Washington generally makes up for his lack of technique by spreading color recklessly and counting on distance for the effect. At an amateur exhibition he once hung one of his most extraordinary performances.

"Well," said a friend whom the artist had taken to see the work. "I don't want to flatter you, old chap, but that is far and away the best stuff you have ever done. I congratulate you."

The artist was receiving the compliment with becoming modesty when he chanced again to glance at the picture. The committee had hung it upside down! Hurrying to the head of the committee, he was about to launch into a loud complaint when he was informed of the good news that an hour before the picture had been sold for $61. The original price mark had been $10.—Lippincott's.

Job Outdone.

Sir Henry Hawkins was once presiding over a long, tedious trial and was listening apparently with great attention to a long winded speech from a learned counsel. After awhile he made a pencil memorandum, folded it and sent it by the usher to the queen's counsel in question, who, unfolding the paper, found these words: "Patience competition. Gold medal. Sir Henry Hawkins. Honorable mention. Job."

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have no natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. If they do not, the child will suffer from colic, griping, or other ailments, and will be liable to catch cold, and generally to be fretful and nervous. The best laxative for children is a pleasant, safe, and effective medicine, which does not irritate the bowels, and stimulates all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never grip or nauseate. 10c, 25c and 50c at all drug stores.

Afraid of Himself.

Joseph Jefferson, the actor, once told this story to a friend:

"I was coming down in the elevator of the Stock Exchange building, and at one of the intermediate floors a man whose face I knew as well as I know yours got in. He greeted me very warmly at once, said it was a number of years since we had met and was very gracious and friendly, but I couldn't place him for the life of me. I asked him as a sort of a feeler how he happened to be in New York, and he answered, with a touch of surprise, that he had lived there for several years. Finally I told him in an apologetic way that I couldn't recall his name. He looked at me for a moment and then he said very quietly that his name was U. S. Grant."

"What did you do, Joe?" his friend asked.

"Do?" he replied with a characteristic smile. "Why, I got out at the next floor for fear I'd ask him if he had ever been in the war!"

Was Thin Indeed.

A fine, robust soldier after serving his country faithfully for some time became greatly reduced in weight owing to exposure and scanty rations until he was so weak he could hardly stand. Consequently he got leave of absence to go home and recuperate. He arrived at his home station looking very bad. Just as he stepped off the boat one of his old friends rushed up to him and said, "Well, well, Pat, I am glad to see you're back from the front."

"Begorra, I knew I was getting thin, but I never thought you could see that much," replied Pat.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Carnegie Amended.

"I once gave an interview to a reporter in which I said that one reason for whatever success I may have had, was because I always got good men around me," said Andrew Carnegie.

"A rascally Pittsburg paragon quoted that remark and moved to amend it by saying that instead of getting good men around me I got around good men."

Didn't Know Many Folks.

Artemus Ward was once traveling in the cars, dreading to be bored and feeling miserable, when a man approached him, sat down and said:

"Did you hear that last thing on Horace Greeley?"

"Greeley? Greeley?" said Artemus.

"Horace Greeley? Who is he?"

The man was quiet about five minutes. Pretty soon he said:

"George Francis Train is sickening up a good deal of a row over in England. Do you think they will put him in a bastle?"

"Train? Train? George Francis Train?" said Artemus solemnly. "I never heard of him."

This ignorance kept the man quiet for about fifteen minutes. Then he said:

"What do you think about General Grant's chances for the presidency? Do you think they will run him?"

"Grant? Grant? Haug it, man," said Artemus, "you appear to know more strangers than any man I ever saw!"

The man was furious. He walked off, but at last came back and said:

"Say, did you ever hear of Adam?"

Artemus looked up and said:

"Adam? Adam? What was his other name?"

Keep The Kidneys Well.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Petoskey People Know How to Save It.

Many Petoskey people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer or to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Petoskey citizen's recommendation.

"David Hastings, blacksmith on 325 Water street, Petoskey, Mich., says: 'Mrs. Hastings has used Doan's Kidney Pills with great benefit. This remedy completely relieved her of an annoying weakness of the kidneys together with severe backaches and pains in the small of the back. Since we got Doan's Kidney Pills at the Central Drug Store it has been a pleasure for us to advise others who suffer from complaints similar to those Mrs. Hastings to give the remedy a trial. We can vouch for the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills in curing backache and kidney trouble.'"

For Sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.
