A Success in Toledo.

The Toledo Blade, under date of April 27th, 1908, has the following to say relative to "The Yankee Doodle Boy," which appears at Loveday Opera House, Wednesday evening, May 13th:

"Catchy musical specialties, a plot which is strong and well conceived and yet not too serious to detract from the merits of the numerous lyrics with which it is interspersed, and a capable cast, make Bud Hicks, 'The Yankee Doodle Boy,' which is at the Lyceum for the first half of the week, a clever entertainment.

Miss Cairo Portello, who handles with great skill one of the strongest roles in this musical comedy-drama, has also written the music for the lyrics. The merits of her music are enhanced by the fact that each number fits harmoniously into the play, uniting instead of severing the threads of the plot, thus removing the objections many entertain against specialties that interrupt the action of a play. In her march, 'Public Opinion,' in which she personally conducts the orchestra, she has scored a pleasing hit.

Halton Powell, author of the book and the lyrics and the villain of the play, was given the strongest compliment a stage villain can wish by being hissed loudly and consistently from entrance to exit whenever he appeared on the stage.

Johnny Fields, Jr., as Bud Hicks, has thrown much of his own intense personality into his role, handling his lines in a manner that is strong, unique and original. J. D. Jay, as Tony Salva, the villain's hireling, has succeeded in faithfully impersonating a Mexican troubadour. The other roles in the cast are filled satisfactorily."

An Ideal All-Round Newspaper.

Probably no other newspaper in the United States can show so brilliant an array of special features suited to the tastes and needs of every member of the family as the Chicago Record-Herald. Its regular daily and Sunday features include the letters of William E. Curtis and Walter Wellman, besides the special dispatches from the great centers. Next in importance comes the Record-Herald's unparalleled foreign news service, embracing its own special cables and those of the New York Herald, World, Journal of Commerce and Associated Press. Its pages devoted to financial news of all kinds are unsurpassed in scope and accuracy. Among other noteworthy features are its popular sporting page, its sound editorials, Kiser's humorous "Alternating Currents," the lively "Stories of Street and Town," the railroad and insurance columns, music and drama, society and clubs, daily reviews of the latest books, the continued story; the "Woman Beautiful" department, the daily fashion article, "Moods for a Day," news of the lakes, etc., besides a complete array of local and domestic news—all uniting to give the people of Chicago and the Northwest a complete and interesting all-round newspaper.

The Sunday Magazine of the Record-Herald is an artistic and literary triumph. Famous authors and illustrators, fine paper and presswork, combine to make it the rival of the great independent periodicals and a distinct departure in Sunday journalism.

The Waking of the Northland.

WARREN W. LAMPSON

The slowly northing sun again
Calls softly to the slumbering hills.
The arbutus, waking in the glen,
For joy her cup of fragrance spills.
The wanton wind a wand'ring goes
Along the valley's rugged side,
If he may find the sweet wild-rose
And woo her for his blushing bride.

From out its Antrim cradle springs
The Jordan for its lakeward run,
And to the bending willow sings
Of summer's joyous reign begun.

Adown the swiftly flowing stream
Dances again the light canoe;
And in the sunshine's golden gleam
The troutman whips the tide anew.

From yonder deadened hemlock tree
The sable crow sounds his alarm;
And on her snowy pinions free
Slowly the gull wheels o'er the Arm.

And sweetly trills the warbler's note;
The robin sings his cheer-up song;
While bursts from many a swelling throat
The chorus of the feathered throng.

Soft, happy harbingers of spring!
Hail winds and flowers and warming streams.
All hail ye joyous birds that sing,
Responsive to the sun's bright beams.

Ye tell us of the nearing day,
That happy day so soon at hand,
When friends shall come from far away
To share anew our "summer-land."

To relieve constipation, clean out the bowels, tone and strengthen the digestive organs, put them in a natural condition with Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, the most reliable tonic for thirty years. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. F. B. Gannett & Co.

Tired nerves, with that "no ambition" feeling that is commonly felt in spring or early summer, can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. One will absolutely note a changed feeling within 48 hours after beginning to take the Restorative. The bowels get sluggish in the winter-time, the circulation often slows up, the kidneys are inactive, and even the heart in many cases grows decidedly weaker. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is recognized everywhere as a genuine tonic to these vital organs. It builds up and strengthens the worn-out weakened nerves; it sharpens the failing appetite, and universally aids digestion. It always quickly brings renewed strength, life, vigor, and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold by James Gidley.

Lola Cross and Leah Persons spent Sunday at their homes in East Jordan.

Rev. R. A. Wright, pastor of the Methodist church, has been invited by the normal class to deliver their Baccalaureate sermon. He has kindly consented to do so.

Lola Cross substituted for Miss Tysver last Friday morning. Miss Tysver was ill.

Weak women should read my "Book No. 4 For Women." It was written expressly for women who are not well. The Book No. 4 tells of Dr. Shoop's "Night Cure" and just how these soothing, healing, antiseptic suppositories can be successfully applied. The book and strictly confidential medical advice is entirely free. Write Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Night Cure is sold by James Gidley.

A Prescription for Constipation

Eminent medical authorities agree that ninety per cent of their patients suffer from ailments due to clogged bowels (Constipation).

The bowels become clogged with impurities and body poisons, causing biliousness, colds, stomach trouble, headache, rheumatism, deranged liver and kidneys, etc.

A Tonic Laxative is prescribed in nearly every case. Those who need a laxative may use this prescription with assurance that no harmful results will follow its use. It has been given to the Public in tablet form and is known as Iron-ox (Laxative Iron-ox Tablets) and are put up in aluminum pocket cases.

The formula is wrapped around the case. The action of each ingredient is explained, that you may understand why Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are the safest Laxative to use; they strengthen the bowels, aid digestion and keep the liver and kidneys healthy and active. We have secured the selling agency for Laxative Iron-ox Tablets and recommend them to our Customers. F. B. Gannett & Co.

Cult of Horrible

A Protest Against the Modern Love of the Gruesome

By MRS. GEORGE NORMAN.

HIDEOUS murder is committed, an unhappy young woman has met with a violent death in an obscure alley, and the newsboys cannot meet the demand for extra specials...

Now, it may be true that a liking to "sup full with horrors" is a taste inbred in the natural man, and the emotions, it has been said, which men possess in common are the most profound...

But the fact of the masses having an apparently inexhaustible delight in horrors does not interpret the growing cult of the horrible in the educated classes...

Stevenson, the optimist, whose own life was a triumph of resolute cheerfulness over the horrors of depression, wrote that:

"The world is so full of such wonderful things. We should all of us be as happy as kings."

But it seems to be the utmost ambition of many who take upon themselves to mold the thought of the day to prove to the rest of humanity that the world is so full of such horrible things that not only is it impossible to be happy, but it is almost wicked to endeavor to be so.

Take, for example, much of the fiction of the day: so much of it is so gruesome, so debilitating in its so-called realism that anyone over 25 ventures warily among the "new books" on library shelves.

"Rather dreadful, but so powerful!" How often, times out of mind, has that familiar phrase struck on one's ears about some foolishly horrible book: young women, with about as much knowledge of life as their own little children, peruse half horrified, half fascinated, a one-sided, narrow presentation of life as a sordid medley of evil-living men and fatuously weak women...

Beauty and terror are only one, not two. And the world has room for love, and death, and thunder, and dew.

A distortion of the natural, beautiful facts of life and its continuance, is dwelt upon to the exclusion of all else, and the readers, totally bemused, realizing that they feel something as they close the precious book, but not quite knowing what, exclaim: "How powerful!"

Someone once remarked that Zola's genius consisted in sitting daily at his window and depicting exactly what he saw from it. "Pity then," was the dry, pointed rejoinder, "that he lives in so dirty a neighborhood!" For nothing is easier than to be "powerful," if by powerful one understands the casting away of the reserves good taste and good art impose alike. It is not particularly difficult to rend the veil of the ultimate deceptions, the difficulty lies rather in a true and measured presentation of life.

Our Place in the Universe

By SIR OLIVER LODGE.

On this planet we are the highest of the forms of life that we see. You are apt to think that you are the highest that exists, whereas there is no reason for thinking so at all. We are sometimes asked whether other planets are inhabited. I think we may say we know that the moon is not any life there may once have been on it appears now to be extinct...

Men have not been here long. I do not pretend to say how long. I may take it that the earth has gone through a long labor of preparation for the existence of the human race. We know less about the history of the human race than we know about the history of the planet.

Thus, then, the chances are that if we visit a planet, chosen at random, we shall find it either in the labor of preparation or in the state of rest after activity. The duration of the existence of a race akin to the human race may be but an episode in the life of a planet...

In our solar system, however, there are planets of all sizes, one a thousand times bigger than the earth—namely: Jupiter; others smaller than the earth; and there are still smaller lumps of matter careering around the sun, of which one occasionally falls on the earth and can be dug up. There are also large quantities of minute particles down even to separate atoms. The sun is so large that it has not had time to cool even on the surface. It is a blazing mass of gas and is not likely to be inhabited; nor is Jupiter. Others are cool enough to be inhabited, but it is not clear whether they have reached the period of the human race. One or two may have reached a period at which something recognizably higher than the human race is existing upon it.

As to how life originates on these planets, science is ignorant at present. It is an entire mystery. I would not have you build too much on that. I do not think it will always remain a mystery, nor would I have a theologian shaken in his views if science should discover something about the nature and origin of life. I want you to realize that this process of evolution is not a process which negatives or excludes the idea of divine activity. It is, I venture to say, a revelation to us of the manner of divine activity. It is the way the Deity works.

The attempt to show that evolution is unguided—that it is the result of absolute chance—fails. What is pointed to is not unguided random change, but guided change. The other could not be done in time.

What we have to realize in regard to our place in the universe is that we are intelligent, helpful, and active parts of the cosmic scheme. We are among the agents of the creator. One of the most helpful ideas is co-operation—helping one another. Co-operation—this in a new and stimulating sense—co-operation with the Divinity himself.

DISCOVERED AT LAST.

"I cannot marry you!" This highly original, but eminently conclusive, saying was uttered by the young and strikingly handsome and fabulously wealthy heiress.

"You cannot marry me!" exclaimed the suddenly disappointed lover, who, having nothing left but an automobile and an extra set of tires, had been courting her all these months with the utmost confidence of success.

"Reason enough. My ride with you yesterday through the streets of New York settled the matter."

She drew herself up haughtily. "Wait!" he cried. "Did I not drive slowly? Was I not careful?"

"Ah, yes. But you puffed smoke from your old machine into the faces of everyone. Now, any man who is so inconsiderate of others, I feel quite certain, would make the worst of husbands."

Burying his face in his hands, he passed out to meet his creditors. "What's the use?" he muttered, bitterly. "She has found me out."—Life.

SURE OF A CALL.

Cook (to her friend)—The new letter carrier is a charming fellow. Every afternoon when he calls he gives me a kiss!

Friend—But does he always have a letter for you?

Cook—Of course! I write a letter to myself every morning!—Pileggi-Blaetter.

The Old Story—Cut Short.

Contemplation. Adoration. (Gallant) thinks her great. Preparation. Decoration. (Off to learn his fate.) Palpitation. Trepidation. On the lover's side. Desperation. Occupation. Now she is his bride.

Handed Down.

"Ah, my lad," said the stranger, with an encouraging smile, "I can see that you were cut out for something big."

"That may be, mister," replied the diminutive farmer boy, "but it generally happens that something big is cut out for me."

"For you?"

"Yes, dad's trousers. These are a pair I have on now."—Chicago Daily News.

Reversed.

The amateur sleuth rushed down the road in a fever of excitement. "They are escaping in an automobile," he shouted. "We are on the scent!"

The modern Sherlock bit his lip. "Right the opposite," he murmured. "The scent is on us. We have been splashing in the pool of gasoline that dripped from their machine."—Chicago Daily News.

No Privileges.

The business agent stuck his head inside the shop door. A solitary man was at work.

"What are you doing here?" he demanded. "Don't you know this is a holiday?"

"Not for me," answered the solitary man, without looking up from his work. "I'm the boss."—Chicago Tribune.

Appreciation.

Mrs. Fourthly—The members of the congregation have voted to increase your salary, have they, Flavius? Well, I'm thankful for that, and sincerely hope they never will regret it.

The Rev. Dr. Fourthly—I shall see that they don't, Amanda. I am going to preach shorter sermons from now on.—Chicago Tribune.

Easy Guess.

"That is a celebrated spiritualist at the next table," confided the waiter.

"I guessed as much," replied the regular patron.

"And how did you guess, sir?"

"Why, I heard her call for a medium steak."—Chicago Daily News.

Willing.

"I have a spring poem here," said the young man with the long hair, "that I would like to read."

"Very well," replied the busy editor, "if it's short enough you can do it as you go down in the elevator."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Had Found That Out.

Dignified Walter—Yes, sir; I can guarantee our roast beef to-day. A man needn't ask for anything better.

Regular Customer—I guess that's right. It would be a waste of time here—he wouldn't get it.—Chicago Tribune.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

MAY STIR UP CIVIL WAR

Augustus Everett Wilson, governor of Kentucky, will engender the enmity of thousands in his state if he puts into execution his threat to veto the McChord bill forbidding any trust to carry on operations within the state...

The difficulties encountered by the governor in his endeavor to stamp out lawlessness will be appreciated, when it is stated that a detective whom no sent to Russellville appeared before the grand jury with a list of persons guilty of night riding, and discovered that four or five of those accused were on the jury.

The tobacco trust has apparently very little hope of the governor killing the bill, for it has made an offer to purchase 15,000 hogheads of tobacco from the association at 12 cents a pound—the very same tobacco which before the formation of the organization was selling for four cents.

MINERS' CHIEF RETIRES

After ten years of leadership of the United Mine Workers of America, John Mitchell has retired from the head of the great labor organization and has been succeeded by Vice-President Thomas L. Lewis of Ohio.

Mr. Mitchell will devote his time to regaining his health, which has given way under the strain of office. He has been called to Washington by President Roosevelt, who wants to send him to Panama as an investigator of conditions, but it is understood that he does not favor accepting the position.

Mr. Mitchell's work for the miners has been detailed at length many times. When he became the head of the organization about ten years ago there were only 43,000 members in the organization; to-day there are 350,000; wages have been advanced almost 100 per cent. Living conditions in the mining camps have improved several hundred per cent. The company store has been driven out of the mining settlements and men are now paid in money, not brass checks redeemable only in trade at the "pluck-me" store run by the employer.

SOUTH CAROLINA SENATOR

Frank B. Gary, who has been elected United States senator from South Carolina to fill an unexpired term, claims among his ancestors, Robert Bruce, king of Scotland; John Knox, founder of the Presbyterian church; John Witherspoon and other Scotch worthies. He is a nephew of the late Gen. Mark Gary, a picturesque character of the secession and reconstruction periods, who was a major-general of cavalry in Wade Hampton's legion, a brilliant soldier, a reckless leader and a hard fighter.

Gary quarreled with his former commander because he did not receive the political recognition that he thought he was entitled to, and, although the family belonged to the old slave-holding aristocracy, Gen. Gary and all his relatives joined the Tillman and the "wool hats" in the overthrow of Hampton. Under Gen. Hampton's oligarchy, none but the aristocracy of the state and those who had distinguished themselves in the confederate army were recognized by appointments to office.

Frank Gary has pledged himself not to be a candidate for election next year, but it is expected that he will do what he can to secure the election of his cousin, former Gov. John Gary Evans.

WILL WELCOME FLEET

Alfred Deakin, premier of the commonwealth of Australia, was probably quite sincere in his delight when his invitation for the American fleet to visit Australian ports was accepted, for Mr. Deakin is a warm admirer of the United States and its people.

Premier Deakin is a warm sympathizer with the United States and Canada in their attitude towards the Asiatic. From its geographical position off the coast of Asia, and its remoteness from any people of cognate race, the Asiatic problem is a very serious one to Australia.

Premier Deakin is also an admirer of the American system of government, and in the confederation of Australia he followed the American rather than the Canadian ideal. Thus the colony is a commonwealth rather than a dominion, and is composed of states instead of provinces.

Entered at the postoffice at East Jordan Michigan, as second class mail matter.

The Scrap Book

Why We Can Sit.

A Boston schoolboy gave the following definition of the spine: "The spine is a long bone reaching from the skull to the heels. It has a hump in the middle, so that you can sit down; otherwise you would have to sit standing."

THE BIRDS AND BEES.

I think the bees, the blessed bees,
Are better, wiser, far than we.
The very wild birds in the trees
Are wiser, far, it seems to me,
For love and light and sin and air
Are theirs and not a bit of care.

What bird makes claim to all God's trees?
What bee makes claim to all God's flowers?

Behold their perfect harmonies,
Their common bond, the common hours!
Say, why should man be less than these,
The happy birds, the hoarding bees?
—Joquin Miller.

Presence of Mind.

One of Mrs. Hamilton Fish's rules when her husband was secretary of state in Grant's cabinet was to return every call she received. Her husband was continually holding public receptions, and many women would come who had no desire that Mrs. Fish should call upon them.

One such woman attended a Fish reception, left her card and a little later was duly honored by a call from Mrs. Fish.

It was a beautiful, mild afternoon. The Fish equipage, all a-glimmer in the wintry sunshine, dashed down the narrow street and halted before the woman's little house with a musical jingle of silver chains. The footman leaped from the box and opened the carriage door, and Mrs. Fish descended.

The woman of the house was kneeling on the sidewalk beside a bucket of hot water, with a scrubbing brush in one hand and a cake of soap in the other. She was scrubbing the front steps.

Bending graciously over her, Mrs. Fish asked politely, "Is Mrs. Henry Robinson at home?"

And Mrs. Henry Robinson replied, "No, mum, she ain't," and went on scrubbing.—Lippincott's.

Her Position.

An applicant for teacher in a country school was asked, "What is your position with regard to the whipping of children?"

"My usual position is on a chair, with the child held firmly across my knees, face downward," was the reply.

A Noisy Eater.

Ex-Senator William E. Chandler has an admirer in New Hampshire who has ideas on how the government should be conducted and writes Mr. Chandler about them at great length.

After Chandler was defeated for the senate and before he was appointed president of the Spanish claims commission the friend wrote, condoling with the senator.

He said it was a shame that the nation and New Hampshire should be deprived of the services of so able a man as Mr. Chandler and closed with this prophecy: "Nevertheless, I do not think republics are ungrateful. I am confident that your great merits will again be recognized and that at no late date we shall hear of you feeding again at the public crib."

All the Same to Him.

One of a party of gentlemen left his corner seat in an already crowded railway car to go in search of something to eat, leaving a rug to reserve his place. On returning he found that, in spite of the rug and the protests of his fellow passengers, the seat had been usurped by a woman clad in handsome clothes. With flashing eyes she turned upon him:

"Do you know, sir, that I am one of the directors' wives?"

"Madam," he replied, "were you the director's only wife I should still protest."—Ladies' Home Journal.

What She Was Like.

"Do tell me what Mrs. Tewler is like," she asked of her husband.

"Well, she's a woman of sixty who looks fifty, thinks she is forty, dresses like thirty and acts like twenty."

A Rising Diplomat.

A curious neighbor espied the son of a new neighbor one morning in a doctor's office.

"Good morning," he said. "Little boy, what is your name?"

"Same as dad's," was the quick reply.

"Of course, I know, little boy, but what is your dad's name, dear?"

"Same as mine, sir."

"I mean what do they say when they call you to breakfast?"

"They don't never call me. I allus gets there first. See?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Crusoe's Good Friday.

"Now, boys," said a Sunday school teacher, addressing the juvenile class, "can either of you tell me anything about Good Friday?"

"Yes, ma'am; I can," replied the boy at the foot of the class. "He was the fellow that done the housework for Robinson Crusoe."

Bible Authority For It.

Mr. Rundlett, at one time a merchant in the town of Newcastle, Me., instructed his clerks to strictly follow the precepts of the Bible in all of their dealings.

One day a lady came in to buy a piece of dress goods, and one of the clerks spent a great deal of time showing her various cloths, which she said weren't good enough. The clerk said he had a better piece in the rear of the store. He showed her this piece, which she had already seen, but told her it was much finer and worth 50 cents a yard more. She said that she could readily see that it was better and made her purchase.

"Mr. Rundlett, who had seen the transaction, censured the clerk, who replied that he could refer to the Bible to justify his action.

"Why now is that?"
"Well, she was a stranger, and I took her in."

The Same Effect.

There had been a brilliant company at the home of a society leader in Des Moines, Ia., a woman whose husband was known better for his wealth than for his mental attainments.

"Well, Francis," she said after the last visitor was gone, "it was a complete success, wasn't it?"
"Sure!" observed Francis.

"Did you notice Professor Billing-ton?"

"The man with the bandage around his neck?"

"Yes. What an astonishing vocabulary he has!"
"From the way he held his head I thought it was a carbuncle."—Lippincott's.

Long Name, Short Lived.

In Boston there used to be a stammering college kept by Professor Graves," says Governor Guild. "Next door to this college was a flower store. Professor Graves' method was to ask each pupil what phrase he would like to learn to say perfectly. Then the professor would drill the pupil on that one phrase or sentence, and when the stammerer repeated it smoothly a cure was pronounced. One day a friend of mine, who was afflicted with the stuttering habit, decided to patronize the professor. Before he went into the studio, however, he stopped to look in the flower store at some chrysanthemums.

"Now, my dear fellow," said Professor Graves, "is there anything particular that you would like to learn to say perfectly?"

"W-w-w-well, y-yes th-there is. I sh-should like t-t-to be able t-t-to s-say or-crys-crys-cr-crysanth-the-m-m-mum before the darn th-thing f-fades!"

PETITION OF THE PLODDER.

Lord, let me not be too content
With life in trifling service spent.
Make me aspire.

When days with petty cares are filled,
Let me with fleeting thought be thrilled
Of something higher.

Help me to long for mental grace
To struggle with the commonplace
I daily find.

May little deeds not bring to fruit
A crop of little thoughts to suit
A shriveled mind.

I do not ask for place among
Great thinkers who have taught and sung
And scorned to bend

Under the trifles of the hour.
I only would not lose the power
To comprehend.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerves, all tissue, and all blood ailments. The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, causes nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Mrs. F. C. Warne Dead.

Above lady, wife of Dr. F. C. Warne, died suddenly at Shelbyville, Ind., Monday morning. Mrs. Warne had been ill for some time, and went to a sanitarium at that city about a week previous in the hopes of recuperating. Her son, Arthur, went at once for the body, returning Wednesday evening. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the house, Rev. A. D. Grigsby, pastor of the Presbyterian church, conducting same.

Mrs. Warne's maiden name was Margaret DeLitta Acker, and she was born at Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 16th, 1859. She was united in marriage to Dr. Warne Aug. 8, 1880, at Harbor Springs. Two children were born to them, Arthur W., and Miss Bessie. The Doctor and wife came to East Jordan in May, 1883, and have since made this place their home. Mrs. Warne was a member of the P. E. A. S. and beloved by a host of friends which was manifest by the large attendance at the obsequies and the floral tributes.

Our Debating Team Won.

East Jordan High School Debating Team—Misses Frances Malpass, Bertha Shleg and Bessie Light—won the debate with the Traverse City High School team—Messrs Eldred, Bennett and Miller—at Loveday Opera House last Friday evening. The local team had the hardest side of the debate—the affirmative on municipal ownership—and, realizing this, the team had been hard at work preparing for the contest. And the results justified the efforts.

A good-sized crowd was in attendance and applauded the efforts of the contestants heartily. As this was the "rubber" of three debates, considerable interest was manifested. The judges were: Dr. King—University Inspector of schools—Supt. Blodgett of Elk Rapids and Supt. Jeanson of Kalkaska.

Prof. Ferris next Saturday May 9th.

To accommodate Prof. Ferris, the date of his lecture was postponed and will now be given as above. The price of admission will be Children, 15 cents High School Pupils, 25 cents Adults, 35 cents.

This will close a very successful series of entertainments and the committee earnestly solicit the patronage of the public, that this last number may prove a complete success also.—Committee, Fuller, Winters, Miltord, Holliday.

Those "merry widow" hats would make fine circular saws. In Charles City, Ia., one of 'em blew off the head of a careless young thing and rolling madly down the street, out off a dog's tail, pared a slice from the handle of the town pump, and making a dash along the hitching pole south of the public square, cut the tie straps of 47 teams, liberating them for one of the maddest runaway mix-ups the place has ever experienced. The hat then fell over on the crown part and set to spinning until it wore a large hole in the pavement and completely disappeared. The next morning an oil well spouted where the hat went down and the mayor sent to Chicago by telegraph for a dozen merry widow hats to be used in oil-well prospecting.

Phantoms

O, Joy is but a gay deceiver,
And will not long decide you stay;
She lightly smooths your brow's hot fever,
She gives one kiss—and trips away.

But old Dame Sorrow pours her blessing
With pious fervor on your head;
She says her business is not pressing,
Sits down and knits beside your bed.

THE EXIGENT HOUR

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE

(Copyright, by Daily Story-Pub. Co.)

From time to time, Miss Sheplar cast impatient glances from the book she was reading to the whirling landscape without. There was a distinct judder between the pairs of golden-brown lashes that all but met over the wide-set, surprisingly black eyes. She tossed aside the volume in despair, and blinked aggressively at her vibrating likeness in the mirror at her elbow.

The porter came through at last, flourishing a premonitory whiskbroom, and the girl assailed him eagerly.

"How much further is it to the junction?" she asked. "Just how late are we? and are you perfectly sure I can make safe connection with that through train to New Orleans?" She pulled out her watch. "I mustn't be any manner of means reach there later than six," she urged as the chony individual made numbing calculation of the answer to each of her rapidly-fired questions.

"We'll get to the junction now in about ten minutes, miss; train's at most an hour late. Your train is generally meets this one, but it's 70 minutes behind."

"Thank you. Then I shall be in plenty of time, I suppose. And you may brush me off," she said with a palpable sigh of relief and submitted gratefully to the deft, flourishing strokes of the broom. Then she slipped a coin into the porter's hand and began to take inventory of her baggage.

When Miss Sheplar stepped out on the deserted platform, 15 minutes later, a fine drive of snow had set in that whipped her face like thousands of tiny lashes. She quickly pulled down her heaviest veil and hurried into the waiting-room. The usual crowd of lunching, fagged-out travelers and motley-faced children was there, and the room was sickening from the suffocating heat of a "Cincinnati" stove. She found a seat in a deserted corner, and endured the heat for exactly five minutes. Then she started up indignantly, intending to take a short walk while waiting for the train and off her way to the depot to ask the operator exactly what time the southbound was due.

Five hours late, now, miss, guess she'd be along at about four o'clock."

The girl caught her breath in alarm. Four o'clock? It was a three hours' run to New Orleans, and the wedding was to take place at half past seven. Her first sensation was of anxiety; it was followed instantly by a feeling of intense relief and thankfulness. The whole thing had been impossible to her from the first; and had it not been for the faithful promise she had made to act as maid-of-honor at the marriage of her best friend, Leona Stoddard—given when they were at college together, and renewed at each recurrent visit between them, she never would have consented to the humiliation. Here was a possible escape!

And in the biting air, she quickened her footsteps and walked rapidly for several squares, till she could feel the tension of her nerves relax and the blood pulse warm and free in her body. Something like exhilaration came to her suddenly, and with the sense of it racing through her veins she walked on and on, totally unmindful of the passage of time. When at length she came to herself, she must have been fully a mile from the station. She jerked out her watch, and noted with a palpitating face that only 15 minutes remained in which to catch her train! To, in spite of the fact that she had viewed the prospect of being delayed, as a blessed release from her obligations, the thought of having to be late and be forced to stand the night in a place like this filled her with consternation. She turned on the impulse to east about for some, any possible means of conveyance and came face to face with a very good-looking young fellow in a gray plaid suit, with the brim of his peacoat already pulled down almost over his eyes. A thrill went through her.

"Kittina!"

"You!" The pronoun was all-comprehending.

"Why are you so anxious to escape?" he asked, watching his step with eyes as she hurried along the soggy pavement.

"I, of course, we both ought to be in something of haste," she answered, once her shoulder, "if we miss that train."

Young Trescott hastened to reassure her. "Oh, she's lost another 30 minutes; it'll be 45 by the time we reach the station."

Miss Sheplar paused and contemplated him dazedly. "And that means," she said in a horrified whisper, "that we shall not arrive in time for the ceremony."

Trescott regarded her quizzically for an instant; his eyes made hers falter. "The wedding will doubtless proceed, anyway," he observed, dryly.

"By proxy?" Her brief disconcertion went off in a laugh.

"Not at all," He puzzled a second to know what she meant.

"Then how will you reach there?" she asked, curiously.

"I won't."

"What! The bridegroom?"

"Oh, the bridegroom's all right, as bridegrooms go," he replied, amusedly. And he looked into her face again; his betrayed and certain amount of wonder; hers underwent a stereotypical series of changes.

"I—I really don't understand what all this means," said the girl, with a touch of dignity.

"You would if you knew old Bill as well as I do. After spending five years of his young life in the pursuit of that girl, he isn't going to risk his good luck by allowing the ceremony to be postponed."

"Bill?" she ejaculated. "Bill—who?"

"The Honorable William Trescott, mayor of Redville, son of the late Jonathan Trescott—first cousin to your humble servant."

"Oh!" There were volumes, and a supplement or two, in the exclamation. "Your cousin!" she breathed with a swift heart-beat.

"To my everlasting sorrow, let me assure you of it. We are, as it occurs, brothers' children; and at one time, hailing both of us—from Shreveport. You see, it was pretty tough on me when I had to fall heir to all his duns and bills, while he was ranging in for all the good things. Oh, it was considerable of a joke, of course; but I shall have to admit that both of us enjoyed some famous escapes, to be exact."

Miss Sheplar turned nonplused but decidedly brightened eyes upon her companion. The first genuine smile for many a weary week flickered about her lips. Then she laughed. "How absurd it all is!" she said. The look he flashed back at her broke down the pretense between them all at once.

"Kitty," he said, "there's a reason for it, and I've already more than half-guessed what it is. But I want you to tell me with your own lips the reason for your sudden coldness—the abrupt cessation of your letters; the return of mine, unopened—"

The girl broke into a second laugh, a little uncertain sound that carried the suspicion of tears in its transcendence. "It's all so ridiculous," she jerked out, coloring furiously, "but when Leona wrote me that she was to marry a Miss William Trescott of Shreveport—"

Trescott nodded understandingly. "Just as I thought," he interposed indignantly, "and now," he bent toward her with a very earnest, an almost commanding fire in his eyes, "there's only one thing to be done, Kitty. We really haven't a right to tamper with Fate any longer. You see, don't you? Bill might take it into his calamitous old head to get smashed in a railroad accident, or something, whereupon, I should—as sure as the heavens are blue—be called upon to husband his widow—"

He paused.

Miss Sheplar had been watching the ground and walking very fast; when he finished speaking, she glanced up archly, a river of red running from throat to brow under his impassioned eyes.

"There never was any actual promise between us," he hurried on ardently, "but I was right, dear, in believing that you cared, was I not?"

"Billy! Do let's make haste; the train is coming. I see the smoke down the track. Look!"

"Right now, sweetheart, I can't possibly see anything but you. Besides, that is the wrong direction." He checked himself quickly. "Come along, then, it's only half a block." He drew her arm into his and together they hurried, half-running, toward the panting train. They had just time to get their baggage and board the Pullman when the engine bell rang.

The girl was the first to say anything. "Do you think we shall arrive in time for the wedding, Billy?" she asked.

"Which one?" He pulled down the shade.

"Why—why, Leona's, of course!"

Trescott's next words came in a rush. He bent forward quickly and gathered her hands in his. "Listen," he said, "we're going north to my aunt's home in Tennessee. I simply couldn't risk that other deal. We got on the wrong train; it'll be easy enough to explain. And—and a nice quiet wedding is much more to my taste. What do you say?"

It is not recorded, but the conductor, coming through at this juncture, thought a thing or two.

SPRING KIDNEY TROUBLE.

Vividly Described by One Who Has Suffered from It.

Mrs. H. Metzabauh, of Duncannon, Pa., says: "I was sick and miserable all last Spring and as I did not know what was the matter I kept going down and down until I was a physical wreck. I had smothering spells, flashes of heat over the kidneys and pain in passing the kidney-secre-tions, which contained sediment. My husband urged me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and at last I did so. They did me much good, and I used in all eight boxes which restored me to perfect health."

It tells How to Measure a Roof; How to Make "Valleys" and "Gutters"; How to Lay Heppes No-Tar Roofing Around Chimneys ("Chimney Flashing"), or over old Shingle Roofs, or up against the side of a building with a fire-wall ("Wall Flashing"), or how to apply No-Tar to the sides or interior of buildings, and a great many other practical points. The roofing knowledge you get out of this book is valuable—you can't get it anywhere else. Best of all, the book explains the process of making Heppes No-Tar Roofing—the grandest substitute for shingles ever known, because it gives ten times the protection against time, water, sparks, heat and cold, at a mere fraction of the cost of shingles. HEPPES NO-TAR ROOFING

Grandest of All Materials to Take the Place of Shingles

The prohibitive price and poor quality of the shingles now on the market has created a widespread demand for a satisfactory material to take their place. HEPPES NO-TAR ROOFING is that material. Its price is so extraordinarily low that the combined cost of buying and laying Heppes No-Tar Roofing is much less than the mere cost of shingles. The cost of laying a shingle roof is one-fourth the cost of shingles themselves, and Heppes No-Tar Roofing meets modern requirements ten times better than shingles ever did. It makes a handsome, leak-proof, weatherproof, fire-resisting and time-defying roof. It withstands the snow and ice and storms of winter. It is proof against the hottest sun. It is so easy to apply that any man, with the aid of the HEPPES ROOFERS' BOOK can be his own roofer. Its value as a fire-resister is shown by the fact that Fire Insurance Companies charge 25 per cent less for insuring buildings protected by Heppes No-Tar Roofing than for buildings with shingle roofs.

Used on All Farm Buildings

Heppes No-Tar Roofing is used on Houses, Barns, Sheds, Granaries, Hog Houses, Cow Barns, Silos, Poultry Houses, Ice Houses, Cattle Houses, Wagon Sheds, Cribbs and all other farm buildings. Covers the roof of buildings as well as roofs with it.—It will pay big returns on the investment.

Unlike shingles, it does not crack, curl or rot. Unlike tin or galvanized iron, it does not rust, blow off or deteriorate. It needs no repairs and lasts as long as the building.

Heppes No-Tar Roofing Better Than Shingles—Costs 50% Less

The Popularity of Heppes No-Tar Roofing extends from ocean to ocean. Ours is the fastest-growing roofing business in the world. Dealers everywhere sell our roofing.

It is made from the strongest wool felt, water-proofed, and made fire-resisting by being soaked with pure asphalt, and reinforced with coatings of Asphalt, Flint and Mica, under tremendous heat and pressure. Its cool, gray stone color is pleasing to the eye.

Heppes No-Tar Roofing is put up in compact rolls 36 inches wide, and in 1-ply, 2-ply and 3-ply weights. Each roll contains two "squares" or 216 square feet. Each "square" is guaranteed to cover 100 square feet of surface, including a 2-inch overlap. (It is also put up in 1-square rolls.)

Free Cement for Seams and Free Large-headed Nails, with instructions, are packed in the hollow center of each roll. Easy to lay—no experience necessary.

Warning!

Look out for certain brands of "imitation" roofing now on the market which are merely building paper soaked with tar and sprinkled with sand while hot. HEPPES NO-TAR ROOFING is guaranteed to be free from Tar. Send today for Free Roofers' Book.

It does not contain wood pulp, or resin, or oil. No-Tar is not an "imitation" roofing—it's the real thing!

NEW ARRIVALS IN CANADA

NEARLY 300,000 IN 1907.

ABOUT SIXTY THOUSAND FROM THE UNITED STATES.

Now that it is known that in the year just closed nearly sixty thousand from the United States declared their intention of making their homes in Canada, it might not be out of place to search for some reasons that would bring this about. These people are but following the example of the fifty-five or sixty thousand who did the same thing the year previous, and an almost equal number who the year before that but followed the example of the thousands of the year preceding. An excellent climate, certain and positive crops of grain of all kinds, good markets for their produce, land and good land, too, at low prices, easy terms of payment, (not forgetting the 160 acres of land given free by the Government, particulars of which the Canadian Government Agent whose name appears elsewhere will tell you about) and then the splendid social conditions. The situation is pretty well sized up by a writer in one of the magazines. Quoting from this article, we find this: "Those of us who made good in the States," interjected another settler as if to continue the story of his neighbor, "have had it easy from the start, a little money is a mighty good thing on coming into a new country. But those who make an entry, or even buy lands at low rates, are able to square things in two or three seasons' crops. There are hardships in building shanties, and then with increasing prosperity getting things into shape for better homes. But affairs go much as in the States. We have the largest liberty in the world; there is more home rule in the Provinces, than in the several states of the Republic. Taxes are light and with only a few million people west of Winnipeg we don't get in each other's way. Friends over the line probably thought we would not live through the winter; and while it is cold, real cold, it is free from the moisture experienced in the east. Schools are good as encouraged by the Government; the enterprising American promoter and Yankee drummer see to it that we take notice of the latest improvements and best agricultural machinery. Altogether we are as near to affairs as we would be on our own farms in the States. Winnipeg bears the same relation to us as Chicago did at home; and Edmonton with the surrounding region advances as Omaha did in the days when we were as young as the boys yonder. We get together much as they did in the granges over the border; the government has established experimental schools of agriculture; and progress in every line is stimulated. This is a great region for grazing; we hear the Calgary citizen continuing, "and then with building elevators of wheat at one dollar a bushel, many of us find time to go over to the live stock exhibition in Chicago or visit old friends during the course of the winter. Every man is taken for what he is worth or for what he can raise; and in this good air and on this fertile soil we intend to show our old friends that we are made of the right stuff; that we are chips of the old block who built up the American West."

ONE LESSON WHOLLY WASTED.

Little Surprise Planned by Billiger, McSwat Not a Success.

"Lobelia," asked Mr. McSwat, who was rummaging in one of the closets, "have you done anything with that old coat of mine that used to hang on the last hook in here?" "Yes," answered Mrs. McSwat. "I gave it to the Volunteers." "You did, did you?" Well, you'll be sorry to learn, perhaps, that there was a five-dollar bill in it which I was going to give you if I found that coat undisturbed at the beginning of March." "O, I think not, Billiger. I searched it thoroughly before I gave it away." "You're a pretty smart woman, Lobelia, but it didn't occur to you to look inside the lining." "O, yes, it did, and I found the five-dollar bill. I spent it for the rubber plant in the front parlor that you have admired so much, and wondered how I managed to buy out of my allowance. You're a pretty smart man, Billiger, but there are times when you don't look the part."

There being no further business before the house, Mr. McSwat adjourned without form.

REPARTEE.

Younger—I wonder if I shall lose my looks, too, when I am your age? Older—You'll be lucky if you do.

Prompt Payment.
A village doctor, whose most troublesome patient was an elderly woman—practically on the free list, received a sound rating from her one day for not coming when summoned the night before.
"You can go to see your other patients at night," she said, "why can't you come when I send for you? Ain't my money as good as other people's?" "I don't know, madam," was the reply. "I never saw any of it."

HURRY! A GREAT HELP TO HER.

Wife Found Him a Careful Adviser as to Woman's Dress.

It was pleasant to hear Mrs. Hammond speak of her husband's helpfulness in domestic matters, and also of his great taste in regard to woman's dress. "Nobody could guess what a help he is to me in choosing my new gowns each year," Mrs. Hammond said, earnestly, "without really hearing our conversations."
A graceless cousin, to whom fell the privilege of hearing one of these illuminating conversations, said that ever after the peculiar fitness of Mr. Hammond for the position of censor remained in her mind.
"William," said Mrs. Hammond, on this memorable occasion, "I am undecided between a green and a brown for my winter suit. Now I know what you're thinking. You're thinking that I said I was tired of death of brown, and so I was, and am. You think I'd better have the green."
"Still," said Mr. Hammond, "it spots, and is more apt to fade, perhaps, while brown is a more trustworthy color."
"Of course," began Mr. Hammond. "Yes, of course brown makes me look older," assented his wife.
"But how," ventured Mr. Hammond.
"But how," much smaller I look in brown than in any other color," and Mrs. Hammond nodded approval. "And as I'm really saving flesh all the time, perhaps I'd better not consider the green."
"You don't," began the careful adviser.
"I know I don't look stout to you," cried Mrs. Hammond, "but you'll feel more at home with me in brown, and so it's decided, just as I thought it would be." When one has a husband who is really interested, and takes thought about one's dress, and she turns a bright gaze to the visitor, "It does simplify things so," Youth's Companion.

Put End to Volubility.

Abernethy was supposed to influence people by a brusqueness amounting to absolute rudeness. It is related that one day a very voluble lady took her daughter, who was ill, to see him.
"Which of you two wants to consult me?" said Abernethy.
"My daughter," replied the woman.
Abernethy then put a question to the girl. Before she had a chance to reply, her mother began a long story. Abernethy told her to be quiet and repeated his question to the girl. A second time the woman began a story, and a second time he told her to be quiet. Then she interrupted him a third time.
"Put your tongue out," he said to the mother.
"But there's nothing the matter with me," she exclaimed.
"Never mind, put your tongue out," he commanded.
"Thoroughly overawed, the woman obeyed."
"Now keep it out," said Abernethy, and he proceeded to examine the girl's tongue.

Burning Up Old Letters.

What more distressing occupation can one hit upon than to burn up old letters on a rainy day? It is always a wet day one chooses for this, feeling rather like a Judas one minute and like Hercules in the Aeneas stable the next. It is positively surprising the way letters accumulate, especially with people who are either not philosophical enough or too sentimental to ruthlessly destroy letters not of any really permanent value, as they are read and answered. The gloom and pathos of this occupation are enhanced when it is our painful office to look over and weed out the correspondence of one dear to us who has journeyed "to the bourne whence no traveler returns." Certain letters are sacred, and should, I think, be kept, labeled "Strictly Private." This is a letter which must be considered with reverence to the importance of the letters to the happiness of the writers; where the disclosure of the contents of a letter would work sorrow or wrong to another it had better be destroyed at once. So much harm has been done through the careless handling of personal letters, so many friends have been estranged, that to neglect to destroy a letter is sometimes almost criminal.

He Grasped the Idea.

"Tommy," said his teacher, "the words 'circumstantial evidence' occur in the lesson. Do you know what circumstantial evidence is?" Tommy replied that he did not.
"Well, I will explain to you by an illustration. You know we have a rule against eating apples in school. Suppose some morning I should see you in your seat with a book held up in front of your face. I say nothing, but presently I go round to where you are sitting. You are busily studying your lesson, but I find that your face is smeared, while under the edge of your slate I see the core of a freshly-eaten apple.
"I should know, just as well as if I had caught you at it, that you had been eating an apple, although, of course, I did not see you do it. That is a case in which circumstantial evidence convicts you. Do you know what it is now?"
"Yes, ma'am," said Tommy. "It's eating apples in school."—Youth's Companion.

Still, Who Knows?

"In the old days in England the silt noses and crooked ears."
"My, my! I could never go in for such styles!"

PRACTICAL QUESTIONS FOR LIVE STOCK OWNERS

WORMS IN HORSES AND CATTLE

Question:—"Please tell me where to obtain a good book relating to Cows and Horses."—J. P. E. Mich.

Reply:—"We learn that new books on both these subjects have been recently issued costing 25c each, but if you will mention this paper and write to Pratt Food Co., Department R., Phila., Pa., they will send you a copy free of charge."

WORMS

Question:—"Please give a remedy for worms in horses."—L. J. P. Mich.

Reply:—"A very good remedy for worms is Pratt's Specially-Prepared Worm Powder which is on sale at your dealer's. We happen to know that this article will positively do the work."

INDIGESTION

Question:—"My four-year-old mare is very thin in flesh, and has been unable to fatten her. She shows very little life and I am anxious to know what will improve her condition."—G. C. Mich.

Reply:—"Your horse is troubled with indigestion and needs a good spring tonic. We can recommend Pratt's Animal Regulator mixed with the Feed twice daily as one of the very best remedies for the trouble you are experiencing. Would suggest that you feed well salted bran mash and do not limit her to only hay and oats."

HEAVES

Question:—"Whenever we have warm and damp days, my horse seems to show signs of Heaves and will not work. What can be done?"—A. B. Mich.

Reply:—"We have known Pratt's Heave Cure to be unusually successful in overcoming this disease, and can give it your unqualified endorsement."

BOG SPAVIN

Question:—"I have a colt three years old that has a soft bunch or puff on the front of the hock-joint. Please advise me how to cure this."—H. A. M. Mich.

Reply:—"Your colt has bog spavin. If you will have your dealer supply you with a small box of Pratt's Spavin Paste you will find that a few weeks' application will quickly remove the Spavin."

An Undesirable Article.

When Mr. B. went to call upon some friends the other afternoon, he was on his way out of town and so had his traveling bag with him. This he placed in a corner, and when he rose to leave he overlooked it. His hostess happened to notice it before he had reached the door, and called to her little daughter:
"Marie, run after Mr. B. and tell him he has left his grip here!"
The little one gave her mother one swift glance of surprise, but flew dutifully to obey orders.
"Oh, Mr. B.," they heard her say, "mother says you have forgotten to take your grip with you." Then she added, quickly, in a tone of polite apology: "You see, most all of us have had it this winter, and we'd rather not have any more!"

Hope.

Walter Damrosch tells of a matron in Chicago who, in company with her young nephew, was attending a musical entertainment.

The selections were apparently entirely unfamiliar to the youth; but when the "Wedding March" of Mendelssohn was begun he began to evince more interest.
"That sounds familiar," he said. "I'm not strong on these classical pieces, but that's a good one. What is it?"
"That," gravely explained the matron, "is the 'Maiden's Prayer.'"—Harper's Weekly.

A Gentle Request.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I wish you wouldn't pay so much attention to the personal popularity of horses this year."
"What do you mean?"
"You have a dreadful habit of picking out animals who are favorites before the race and absolutely friendless after."

"De Gustibus—"

"Some men think that a good dinner is the only thing to be desired."
"Yes, and there are some other men who think of a dinner as merely something to have a good smoke after."

LOST $300.

Buying Medicine When Right Food Was Needed.

Money spent for "tonics" and "bracers" to relieve indigestion, while the poor old stomach is loaded with pastry and pork, is worse than losing a pocketbook containing the money.
If the money only is lost it's bad enough, but with lost health from wrong eating, it is hard to make the money back.
A Mich. young lady lost money on drugs but is thankful she found a way to get back her health by proper food. She writes:
"I had been a victim of nervous dyspepsia for six years and spent three hundred dollars for treatment in the attempt to get well. None of it did me any good.
"Finally I tried Grape-Nuts food, and the results were such that, if it cost a dollar a package, I would not be without it. My trouble had been caused by eating rich food such as pastry and pork."
"The most wonderful thing that ever happened to me, I am sure, was the change in my condition after I began to eat Grape-Nuts. I began to improve at once and the first week gained four pounds.
"I feel that I cannot express myself in terms that are worthy of the benefit Grape-Nuts has brought to me, and you are perfectly free to publish this letter if it will send some poor sufferer relief, such as has come to me."

MACHINE-GROUND PAINT.

Occasionally one hears the "hand-mixed" paint of the painter slightly spoken of as "scientific" and "not thoroughly mixed." The facts are all on the side of the painter and his hand-prepared paint.

It is the most "scientific" paint there is, because it is made on the spot to suit the particular purpose for which it is to be used. It is as scientific as a good doctor's prescription. If the painter did not mix it thus it would be as unscientific as a patent medicine. Moreover, the paint which a good painter turns out is made of genuine white lead and pure linseed oil. If he does not mix it himself he is not sure what is in it, and consequently his client cannot be sure.

As for not being thoroughly mixed by machinery, that is simply a misstatement. White Lead as made by National Lead Company is thoroughly incorporated with 7 or 8 per cent. of pure Linseed Oil in the factory, making a paste. This paste need only be thinned with additional linseed oil to make it ready for the brush.

The thorough incorporation of pigment and oil has already been accomplished before the painter gets it. To know how to tell pure white lead is a great advantage to both painter and house-owner. National Lead Company will send a tester free to anyone interested. Address the company at Woodbridge Building, New York, N. Y.

Putting It Concretely.

Although Mr. Lawton was wont to indulge in a sort of language which left his hearers in some doubt as to his exact meaning, yet when he was "put to it" he never failed to make himself understood.

"No, I shouldn't want to live in a house like Phlander's," he announced to Mrs. Lawton on the evening of his return from a visit to a nephew. "His cellar, now—it's most desperately overflowed whenever the weather is any way damp."

"Just what do you mean by desperately overflowed?" asked Mrs. Lawton.
"I mean," said her husband, mildly, "that all they had to do was to open the door that led from the kitchen down cellar, and the apples come floating right in on to the kitchen floor. Is that plain to you?"—Youth's Companion.

A Rustic Sarcaasm.

"Did your husband catch chills and fever?" asked the woman who was standing in front of the cabin.
"No," answered the woman who was driving a spring wagon. "He wouldn't have that much gut-up-an-Kit. He's got around an' let 'em overtake him."

STUDY NOT A NECESSITY.

End and Aim of Woman's Life, as Understood by Rosie's Mother.

In one of the Philadelphia public schools is a little girl pupil whose ancestors and coreligionists have ever held that the principal end and aim of the life of a woman is marriage. This little girl is well up in most of her studies, but she has an inveterate dislike of geography and it seems impossible to teach the study to her. The other day her teacher, made impatient by her seeming unwillingness to learn her geography lesson, sent to Rosie's mother a note requesting her to see that the girl studied her lesson. The next day showed no improvement, however, and the teacher asked Rosie whether she had delivered the note.
"Yes, ma'am," was the reply.
"And did your mother read the note, Rosie," said the teacher.
"Yes, ma'am."
"What did she say?"
"My mother said that she didn't know geography, and she got married, and my aunt didn't know geography, and she got married, and you know geography, and you didn't get married."

I Am REYNOLDS, the Roofing Man

I have been in the roofing business for 40 years and they call me the "Pioneer." I have been in no other business.

I know the roofing business; have made a scientific, practical study of it. I am at the head of my company, of which I am proud. I have also made a success of my business. The result has been our two brands—Torpedo and Wolverine. The "red granite kind," which are the very best brands of roofing on the market today at any price.

This roofing will last longer, is cheaper to lay and cheaper in the long run than any other you can buy.
If we could make a better roofing, we would, but we can't. You will make no mistake in using it.
It only costs about half what shingles would cost laid on the roof.

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. I Am REYNOLDS, the Roofing Man

I have been in the roofing business for 40 years and they call me the "Pioneer." I have been in no other business.

I know the roofing business; have made a scientific, practical study of it. I am at the head of my company, of which I am proud. I have also made a success of my business. The result has been our two brands—Torpedo and Wolverine. The "red granite kind," which are the very best brands of roofing on the market today at any price.

This roofing will last longer, is cheaper to lay and cheaper in the long run than any other you can buy.

Why Suffer?

If you suffer pain from any cause, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve it—and leave no bad after-effects. That's the important thing. Neither do they create a habit. More often the attacks become less frequent, or disappear altogether. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no other effect except to relieve pain and quiet nervous irritation.

"We are never without Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. My husband and son, aged 13, were always subject to sick headaches until we began using these Pills—and they have broken them up entirely. Don't think they have had to use them for six months. I recommend them to every one. A few weeks ago I heard an old lady friend was sick. I went to see her. She was down with LaGrippe, and nearly crazy with awful headache. I gave her one of the Anti-Pain Pills and left another for her to take in a short time. They helped her right away, and she says she will never be without them again. Last winter my husband was taken with fluency on both sides, and I know he would have died if it hadn't been for the Pills. In less than half an hour he was sweating, and
