The Land of Fruit and Flowers

The people of this region know it is a smiling country and like to have others recognize that fact, hence the following from the pen of A. I. Root of Medina, O., in his magazine, "Gleanings in Bee Culture," is duly appreciated:

"The Land of Fruit and Flowers" is what the Pere Marquette railroad has to say of Northern Michigan. About a year ago I told you about their wonderful cherries up in Leelanau county and Traverse City, Michigan—not only wonderful in size and beauty, but wonderful in quality and quantity; in fact I never before saw any cherries like them, and I very much doubt if there are any better in the world. But what made me think of those cherries just now is a statement in a pamphlet sent out by the Pere Marquette in regard to the cherry industry of that region. I knew cherries were going to Chicago, carload after carload, but I did not have an opportunity then to get hold of any figures. Well, what do you think of this?

"James W. Markham received $2,145.00 for the cherries that grew on five acres. Guy Tomkins of Grand Traverse county has two cherry orchards. From one of them containing two acres he received $5,118.80. From another orchard he received $1,652. These statements were sworn to before a notary public. If you want further particulars address W. C. Sousey, 423 Madison St., Toledo, Ohio.

Just a word more about the fruit in that region. I think the finest apples are grown there to be found anywhere, and, better still, they often get full crops there when we have very few around here further south."

Dr. Risk Locates Here.

Dr. F. C. Warne this week sold his physician's outfit, consisting of office furniture, instruments and library to Dr. Robert A. Risk of Pellston. The deal is made with the understanding that in case Dr. Warne should regain his health he will be at liberty to resume practice in East Jordan. Dr. Risk is a graduate of the Detroit College of Medicine and has practiced in Pellston for the past five years. He is a cousin of Dr. Rayercraft of Petoskey. Dr. Risk is a young man of pleasing appearance, and, for the information of our marriageables, he has a wife, a son, and one dog. We welcome all except the latter.

Residence Burned, Tuesday.

The residence of Mrs. Larson on the State road was badly ruined by fire last Tuesday morning about 1:00 o'clock. Loss insured for $800 on building and $300 on contents. The fire originated under a stairway—probably from spontaneous combustion. Mrs. Larson was sleeping in the house and the neighbors had some difficulty in awakening her. Only a few household articles were saved.

This was the first time the new water-works tank-pressure and the new "Bowen's Addition" extension have been used in case of fire, and they proved adequate. A strong westerly wind was blowing and but for the new system a number of residences on the east side of the building burned would probably have been wiped out.

Shingle Mill Struck.

The East Jordan Lumber Co.'s Shingle Mill was struck by lightning during the storm of early Thursday morning, causing a fire-alarm to be turned in. Prompt action made the loss small.

Speaking of advertising: There is no business that cannot be increased and benefited by advertising. No class of advertising pays as well as a written newspaper ad. There is no work that you could do that would bring you as great returns as to use thirty minutes time each day in the study of advertising, if you are in business. The great trouble with most advertisers in a country town is that they write an ad involving their stock in trade and expect by letting it stand week after week in the country newspaper to get direct returns from it.

Wear Your Own Colors.

Heaven help the man who imagines he can dodge enemies by trying to please everybody! If such an individual ever succeeded, we would be glad of it—not that we believe in a man going through the world trying to find beams to knock and thump his poor head against, disputing every man's opinion, fighting and elbowing, and crowding all who differ with him. That again is another extreme. Other people have a right to their opinion, so have you; don't fall into the error of supposing they will respect you less for maintaining it, or respect you more for turning your coat every day to match the color of theirs. Wear your own colors in spite of wind and weather, storm or sunshine. It costs the vacillating and irresolute ten times the trouble to wind, and shuffle, and twist, that it does honest, manly independence to stand its ground.

The Badge of Honesty

Is an every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherry bark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklets which quote extracts from well-known medical authorities such as Drs. Bartholow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia, as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all wasting diseases where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

"The Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

SHE REMEMBERED GEORGE

Brought Him Some Liquid Damnation from the Gaylord Celebration.

The Gaylord Herald says "that during the two days of the celebration and Sunday no less than 17 offenders against law and common decency were arrested and run into the "Hotel de Dürree." Would this thing have happened if Otsego county were rid of her saloons? In every case so far as we have learned the mischief is responsible to this cause—the open saloon; in fact, Nightwatch Lovehace says that booze was responsible for every case. When the saloons are closed up good and tight by vote of the people this thing will not obtain, and disgraced court scenes and hard earned money paid in fines will be eliminated to a large extent. Five of these cases were from Vanderbilt and two from Elmira. Just before the Boyne City train pulled out Saturday night two nicely dressed ladies (?) were observed trying to get aboard staggering drunk. One of them disclosed a quart bottle of liquid damnation which she shamelessly said she was "taking home for George."

Present Unrest Among Women

Gertrude Atherton Says the Edict that Man Alone Shall Woo Affects the Mental and Moral Tone.

I think there is little doubt that this world-old statute that the man alone shall woo has more to do with keeping down the mental and moral tone of woman, with cultivating her ignoble talents for deceit and intrigue, than any of the other forces that she finds arrayed against her, says Gertrude Atherton in the Deliberator for August. It is not the softening influence of the matrimonial and maternal states that works so many miracles, but the abrupt removal of the necessity to practise a demoralizing self-control, to appear something that she is not, to still much ugly anger and resentment. I have known many girls, plentifully endowed with good looks and charm, to confess that they have "lain awake nights scheming how to get that man," only, in nine cases out of ten, to find him, later on, quite unworth the trouble.

We are all familiar with the selfishness, the slyness, the lack of real frankness, in what might be called the Threshold Girl—anywhere between seventeen and nineteen. This is nothing worse than the mating instinct driving her, blindly until she has learned to play her part with taste and tact. During that period she gropes about in her still childish brain for those qualities that will enable her to hold at least her own in the great game, and she is the more befuddled because of that curious tradition that a girl must seem other than she is.

Of course, with only this old standard of femininity, and being still fluid and plastic, the poor things more often than not model themselves upon some favorite heroine of romance, and are only knocked into shape by those indefatigable partners, Life and Time. Some of our Western girls, it is true, have a disposition to rush at a man with both arms outstretched—one sees it constantly among the second class hordes traveling Europe; and this, I infer, is the primitive impulse of almost primitive tribes to get what they want in the shortest possible time. But even these girls, when they are walking more thoughtfully in their twenties, when they are "young ladies," evolve a far finer set of tactics; they lose the savagery of adolescence, and cultivate those qualities which, when persisted in long enough, make them more than a match for any man.

ABRUZZI CLIMBING HIMALAYANS

THIBETANS IN LABHAK

DUKE OF THE ABRUZZI

The duke of the Abruzzi is either at or near Bombay, which city is to be the starting point of his expedition to the Himalayas.

A considerable and unnecessary amount of mystery has been thrown around the plans of the ducal explorer, who has been romantically supposed to be seeking relief from his love misadventures by braving the dangers of the Indian glaciers, but the following details can be considered authentic:

The party which accompanies the duke of the Abruzzi consists of Marchese Negrotto, Cavalier Vittorio Sella, Cavalier Filippo de Filippi, Signor Botta, and seven guides from the Courmayeur. Marchese Negrotto is the duke's flag lieutenant in the Italian navy. Cavalier Sella accompanied the duke on his former expeditions at Mount St. Elias in Alaska and to Ruwenzori. His skill as a photographer is well known.

His illustrations added not a little to the interest of the book published on the Ruwenzori, and were one of the chief attractions of the account given by Douglas Freshfield of his explorations round Kunchinjinga. Cavalier Filippo de Filippi also was a companion of the duke on his Polar exploration; and though he could not accompany him to Ruwenzori, wrote the history of that expedition which has since been published.

Signor Botta goes as assistant photographer to Sella; he, too, was a member of the earlier expeditions to Alaska and Ruwenzori, and has had moreover some mountaineering experience in the Caucasus and the Himalayas.

Besides Sella and Botta, four of the seven guides have had Himalayan experience. Joseph Petigax, who accompanied the duke on his former expeditions, was for some time with Dr. Bullock Workman in his expedition in 1903 in Baltistan. Alexis and Henri Brocherel were with the expedition of Messrs. Longstaff, Mumm and Brace to the Nanda Devi group in 1907; and G. Savoie was with the two Swedish mountaineers who established a Himalayan record by climbing Kabru, 24,000 feet, in Sikkim.

The fact that the duke has arranged for the collection of coolies at Srinagar leaves, of course, no doubt as to the Karakoram range being the scene of his explorations, and the large proportion of guides among the members of the party would show that his main object is climbing.

Now, the western part of the Karakoram has recently been explored by the Workmans. The central part of the range, however, contains the highest peaks of all, grouped round the great Baltoro glacier; and, as it offers the most tempting ground for a mountaineer of the duke's ambitions, one may safely assume that it is here that the choice of mountains to ascend will be made.

The Baltoro glacier explored by Sir W. Martin Conway in 1892, when he climbed Pioneer Peak, 22,000 feet, to its south. It was revisited in 1902 by the Eckenstein-Guillarmod expedition, of which an account was published by Dr. Guillarmod on their unsuccessful attempt to reach K2. To judge from the photographs which have been brought back both of K2 and of other giants of the range, the formidable character of the climbing can hardly be exaggerated.

In spite of the assurance that the duke of the Abruzzi has not yet fixed his hopes upon any particular summit, one cannot doubt that Mount Godwin Austin, or K2 as it is more familiarly called, is the peak which he will first reconnoitre. Should nearer examination prove that it is hopeless, even for an expedition so experienced and thoroughly organized as that of the duke's, one may still be sure from his previous record that he will not return empty-handed.

Even if he does not succeed in scaling the 28,250 feet of K2, there are plenty of geographical discoveries to be made and other virgin heights to be climbed in, and especially beyond the main range.

The region on the north of Karakoram has been little explored, and, as both the duke and his flag-lieutenant, Negrotto, are fully qualified for any topographical work, we may at least expect from them some valuable additions to our knowledge of the Trans-Himalayan country.

From Bombay the party will proceed by train to Rawal Pindi, and then to Srinagar, where the coolies will be in readiness and the caravan formed. From Srinagar on to Iskardu would be a distance of some 125 miles, owing to a detour which will be necessary at this time of year to avoid the high-lying plateau. Another 65 miles or so should bring them to Askoley, right in the heart of the mountains, which is within a comparatively easy distance of the Baltoro glacier.

CANCER IS ON THE INCREASE.

Theory That Dreadful Disease May Be Caused by Excessive Eating of Meat.

One of the latest theories propounded in regard to the rapid and most alarming increase in the deaths from cancer is that it may be caused by excessive meat eating and by eating bad meat.

Statistics show in the annual report to the state health department that the average death rate from cancer has increased in the last 13 years a little over 23 per cent.

The Chicago board of health some time ago discovered that the percentage of deaths among immigrants from cancer was far in excess of the death rate from the same disease in the countries they had left. The physician who undertook to investigate and discover the causes for this found the mortality records showed that deaths from cancer among immigrants from Oriental countries and native Americans were much less in proportion to numbers than among Germans and immigrants from Southeastern Europe. On studying their diet he found the Orientals did not eat meat and the Americans comparatively little, while the people of other nationalities ate flesh in large quantities.

Another theory is that cancer comes largely from indigestion and consequent poisoning of the system through lack of proper mastication of one's food, and also through overeating, so that where people eat largely of meat and are in the habit of "bolting" their food cancer is more than likely to increase.

To eat slowly does not necessarily imply masticating properly, for one can dilly-dally and not chew. In any event, the careful chewing of food is absolutely necessary to good health. Slow chewing prevents over feeding and the consequent choking up of the system and results in a clearer brain and a more active and beautiful body.

Every one knows that too much fuel chokes an engine, and so in like fashion too much food chokes the body. At its best, cancer is a frightful disease, painful and disgusting, and every care should be taken by all to avoid it. If prevention can do it, every one should join in the crusade and by right diet and proper eating ward off one of the greatest curses of humanity.

Island All Their Own.

When moral suasion fails, the Salvation army in New Zealand proposes to save inebriates from their worst enemy by sending them to a newly completed resort with the appropriate name of "Drunkards' Island."

Pakatoa is the chart name of "Drunkards' Island." It is an ideal little colony of seventy acres, set in the Huraki Gulf, twenty-five miles from Auckland. The only communication with the mainland is by the Salvation army motor boat, and the residents have no means of reaching a public house. All spirits and alcohol in any form are forbidden on Pakatoa, and the colonists lead the simple life on a fruit diet, without drugs or policemen. The New Zealand government recently passed an act giving magistrates power to commit persons who have been four times convicted of drunkenness to Pakatoa. The residents work at market gardening, fruit culture, frame making and the manufacture of children's toys.

Driving a Fish-Bone.

Bill—I see the use of fish-bones as nails was common before the time of Noah. Jill—I suppose then it was common in those days to say that a cigarette-smoker was driving another fish-bone in his coffin.—Yonkers Statesman.

Store Has Come to the Ex-

Store Has Come to the Ex- Store in Development of Profit-Sharing Scheme.

Profit sharing, which in America is an experiment, has been in application for a quarter of a century in England. The number of profit-sharing societies there is now 15 in 1883 to 112 last year, and the increase in business from 1880 to about $20,000,000.

South Metropolitan Company has divided $180,000 among its employees, the equivalent of a seven per cent. dividend on wages, and in 18 years it has paid $2,100,000 to workmen as shares of the profits. Six English companies adopted the profit-sharing plan during the year.

According to Moody's Magazine, Carnegie says that a Boston store is the furthest of all in "the direction of making its employees shareholders." This establishment, he estimates, employs 700 to 900 men, the stock is held only by employees and is returned to the corporation at its value should the employee leave the service. Every share of stock belongs to some one working in the store.

Side Ride of 60 Miles for a Wife.

A wedding was solemnized recently at the Wesleyan church at Colchester, Mass., under unusual circumstances.

The necessary certificate from the registrar not having arrived on Saturday night, the anxious bridegroom, F. Moore, accompanied by the brother of the bride, T. E. Wright, started off at 3:30 a. m. on Sunday to cycle to Boston, where they awaited the start of the morning mail. The expected letter was not, however, in the mail, and the pair then cycled to Worcester, the residence of the registrar. He kindly went to the registrar's office at Harwich with them and secured them the all essential document.

The cyclists then rode back to Colchester, having covered in all sixty miles. The wedding had been fixed for 8 a. m., but it was duly solemnized at 2:30 p. m.

The Power of the Ad.

John Harnitt Lowndes, the noted psychologist of Richmond, was praising the power of advertising.

A lady disputed the compelling power of Mr. Lowndes' advertisement, and on a wager the psychologist inserted in a Richmond ally the following: "I promise nothing. I contract to perform nothing. But—"

"Send me 50 cents in stamps. Perhaps there is a surprise in store for you. Who knows?" J. H. L., P. O. box 217.

And Mr. Lowndes won his wager. His curious advertisement brought him in enough stamps to make a substantial contribution to Richmond's charities. It also caused—for the story spread—a boom in advertising among Richmond's men of business.

Hawk That Wouldn't Be Trapped.

An interesting hawk story comes from Concord township. Recently N. V. Kearns, a farmer, set a steel trap for his chicken lot to catch some sly animal that had been robbing him of chickens.

The day after it was set an investigation showed that the trap had been carried away. Nearly a week passed before he heard a great commotion among his chickens, and going out he saw a hawk soaring upward with a chicken in his beak and another in one of his claws, and from the other claw was dangling the steel trap that had been carried away a few days before.—Ashboro Courier.

Services on a Church Tower.

Rev. J. Enraght, vicar of Ranworth (Norfolk), and the church choir mounted to the top of the church tower and there offered prayers and sang hymns and psalms, invoking the Almighty's blessing upon the growing crops.

Despite the altitude of the tower and a good breeze, every word was audible to the congregation assembled in the church yard below and on the road.—London Evening Standard.

Popular German Publisher.

Albert Langen, the founder and publisher of Simplicissimus and of the semi-monthly Marz, who died in Munich a few days ago, was only 40 years old. The cause of his death was an automobile accident. Speaking of him, a fellow-publisher said: "His was a unique character, comprising artistic tendencies and business ability and a gentility which made him a general favorite."

Hard Food Good for Teeth.

"Eat hard food if you wish to keep the teeth clean and preserve them," is the advice of Dr. George Cunningham, who has been conducting a crusade for the preservation of the teeth of English children. The best of all bread, said Dr. Cunningham recently, was that provided in the prison. Mothers who had the interests of their children's teeth at heart should select a good crusty loaf made from "seconds" flour, and not from the white roller milled. The crusts should be cut off and given to the children.

Woman's Rights

What More Do They Need?

By PROF. GEORGE B. FOSTER

HERE was a time in the history of humanity, in the most elementary stage of human culture, when man, not unlike the wild-roaming beast of the forest, eked out a precarious livelihood as best he could by plunder and the chase.

Woman turned to agriculture for her livelihood, and so there is history behind the legend that it was a goddess that ruled over agriculture.

This attitude of woman was not an arbitrary matter. She did not reason it all out and thus turn from the chase to agriculture. The new movement was born of a natural necessity.

It grew from her function as the mother of the race, her function as a woman in bearing children.

As progress went on the mother gave the name to the child, and even to the tribe. Woman also founded the sanctuaries of religion, and so was mother of the divine as well as the human.

Later it was a significant fact in the great turning point in civilization, when the triune God of the church had become motherless in its attitude and content. At such a time it was a goddess, Maria, queen of heaven and mother of God, that wrestled with the omnipotent church God and won the victory.

Today we are at another fork of the road in civilization, and a new turning point in the history of the race has been reached. One of the signal and characteristic features of it is the woman's movement.

Something significant is going on in the soul of woman to-day. How profound it is is understood neither by friend nor foe of the movement. Nor do we sufficiently bear in mind that there is an awakening of woman all over the world simultaneously.

Yet you know how offensive this whole movement is to many men and women to-day. They cry: Is it more rights that they want? But what more do they need? Are they not secure in their position as wives and daughters? It is mere wanton audacity when woman would overstep her present well-defined sphere of rights. Is there not such a thing as divine rights, and have not these destined man to be ruler and woman servant?

The point is not whether woman can live quite comfortably in a state of subjection. The point is that this subjection is contrary to the moral nature of mankind. The point is that woman is naturally rightless and has only rights that are given her by others. In the case of woman the free unfolding of her personality is abridged.

Courtesy Keeps Home Life Happy

By HELEN OLDFIELD

It scarcely is too much to say that, barring habitual drunkenness and jealousy, with or without reason, the lack of everyday courtesy between husbands and wives has wrecked the happiness of more marriages than other cause whatsoever.

The pity of it is that the harm done is so unnecessary, almost always so wholly innocent of malintent. Somebody has defined relatives as "persons who consider themselves privileged to be as rude as they please with impunity." Not many people will be found fully to indorse this cynical definition; yet none can deny that many people are of the opinion that lack of ceremony includes the want of politeness, and that at home one is privileged to take one's ease in speech and behavior, even to the often disregard of the comfort of the rest of the family.

Not long ago a woman lamented to the "home circle" of her favorite family magazine that her husband neglected his shaving in the most scandalous fashion when, as he expressed it, "there was nobody to see." He forgot that his wife was there to see. If any one else were to speak of her as a nobody he would be indignant; he reserves that privilege for himself.

So also the woman who abroad is the picture of dainty neatness thinks a wrapper good enough for her husband at home, nor perhaps always is she careful that the wrapper is tidy and fresh enough to please fastidious eyes.

So also there are company manners and manners for home, but as cleanliness is next to godliness, so courtesy, which merely is tender thought for others, comes next to love as a factor in home happiness. Courtesy means much more than politeness; it suggests thoughtful consideration for others, unselfishness, and hopefulness as well.

Exercise Care in Giving Medicine

By Dr. Gustave E. Henschen

Few people realize the danger of allowing druggists to prescribe for them. I have never known a druggist who wouldn't immediately prescribe for a person who had a headache. As a rule, coal-tar analgesic is given. Such a drug will ease the head, slow down the heart and weaken its force, and also reduce fever if present. But the headache may be the beginning of an acute disease. Later, when a physician is called, he loses valuable time in recognizing the disease, as the drug has masked the symptoms.

Let us presume a person has a headache from kidney troubles. The drug gives relief. As the kidneys have not been attended to the attack recurs. Sooner or later the patient may become a chronic drug-taker. The kidney trouble would remain and there would be superadded the condition brought on by the drug.

GROWLS LIKE A DOG; EATS GRASS IN PARK

NEW YORK POLICE DISCOVER INDIVIDUAL CRAWLING AROUND ON HANDS AND FEET.

New York.—On his hands and knees and occasionally growling as if trying to imitate a dog, a man was found in Central park by Policeman Arthur Hunt, eating grass. The grass eater is now in Bellevue hospital with the doctors in attendance mystified. They are unable to diagnose his case at present. He exhibits symptoms of hydrophobia, or delirium and temporary loss of mind.

Policeman Hunt had his attention attracted to the man by a gathering just outside of the park wall. It was evident to the policeman that the crowd was greatly enjoying a show of some description, for everybody had a smile.

When Hunt joined the rapidly swelling ranks to investigate he saw a man on his hands and knees eating grass with seeming relish. The unfortunate would leap in a bullfrog fashion from one bunch of clover grass to another, chew a cud and swallow it. He tackled a couple of shrubs rather ravenously and seemed oblivious to the surrounding and laughing crowd.

Hunt climbed over the wall and grabbed the grass eater, who became offended and sought to escape. He fought for a few minutes, when he suddenly became pacified. Then he dropped to his knees again and insisted on eating more grass.

When the prisoner saw water he became unmanageable and frantic. His peculiar behavior led to the belief that he had hydrophobia, although he made no attempt at biting the policeman. The only other evidence of hydrophobia was his propensity to growl like a dog.

After being attended by an ambulance surgeon the man was taken to Bellevue. He became very wild and excited there. He was placed in the alcoholic ward, but he is not supposed to be affected by intoxicants. His violence increased to such an extent that he had to be put in a restraining apparatus.

After he had been quieted some he was questioned as to his identity. He muttered "William Brennan." That is supposed to be his name. He stared in blank amazement when asked for his address.

GIVE GHOST BLACK EYES.

Fearless Youths Spoil Fun of Mean Spook Who-Frightened Timid Young Lasses.

Philadelphia.—It was a very much chagrined and sore "ghost" that limped home from the vicinity of St. Mary's cemetery, Gloucester, late one night recently. For weeks the "ghost" had had fun of its own, frightening many timid lasses whose waists were concealed by many coat sleeves, for that particular vicinity is a favorite spot for twos of a kind in the spring evenings. Many of the more timid ones shunned the place, declining invitations to go for a walk, and the enshrouded spook was about having the field all to itself when some hardy young men of the neighborhood decided that the time had arrived to bring about a change.

They gathered in numbers amid the shadows of the trees, silent and determined. They had not been posted long when the white-robed figure appeared along the walk. Some of them felt a trifle creepy, even then, but the braver among them led the attack, and in about four minutes that "ghost" was loudly crying for mercy. What the crowd of youths did to it was enough. They slammed it and pounded it and thumped it, tore its white shroud to shreds and gave it black eyes and such kicks as will compel it to eat from the mantel shelf for a week. But the love-lorn lasses will have their walks again.

Growing Trade in Condensed Milk.

The exportations of condensed milk from the United States have shown a very rapid growth in recent years, the total value being in 1895, $219,785; in 1898, $671,670; in 1900, $1,139,402; in 1905, $2,156,616, and in 1908, $2,456,168.

JOB WOULD KEEP HIM BUSY

Greenhorn Sailor Realized the Captain Had Given Him a Big Contract.

In the height of the recent wheat to mult Broker Patten, discussing the government's wheat estimates with a reporter, said calmly:

"But some of the men the government takes its figures from are green horns. Perfect greenhorns. As bad as the Dutch sailor, you know."

"The captain said to the sailor when the ship came to port:

"Take a boat, run ashore and buy two dollars' worth of vegetables."

"The sailor didn't know what vegetables were, so as soon as he struck land he said to a longshoreman:

"What is vegetables, mate?"

"Oh, dried peas, for instance," the longshoreman answered.

"So the Dutch sailor spent his two dollars on a huge sack of dried peas."

"When he drew near the ship again with his load the captain called him from the bridge:

"Well, have you got those vegetables?"

"Aye, aye, sir," said the sailor.

"Then," said the captain, "hand them up to cookie on a table."

"Shiver my timbers!" said the sailor, "I've got a job before me now and no mistake!"

SORE EYES CURED.

Eye-Balls and Lids Became Terribly Inflamed—Was Unable to Go About—All Other Treatments Failed, But Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About two years ago my eyes got in such a condition that I was unable to go about. They were terribly inflamed, both the balls and lids. I tried home remedies without relief. Then I decided to go to our family physician, but he didn't help them. Then I tried two more of our most prominent physicians, but my eyes grew continually worse. At this time a friend of mine advised me to try Cuticura Ointment, and after using it about one week my eyes were considerably improved, and in two weeks they were almost well. They have never given me any trouble since and I am now sixty-five years old. I shall always praise Cuticura. G. B. Halsey, Mouth of Wilson, Va., Apr. 4, 1908." Potter Drug & Chem. Great Improvement.

The patient told the doctor all his symptoms. At the end of the recital the medical man looked severe.

"My dear sir," he said, "you must gradually give up whisky and soda."

Some months later he met the patient and inquired whether the advice had been followed.

"To the letter," replied the patient, beaming. "Why, I've already given up soda completely!"

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an American heiress, Lord Winthrop, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a brusque American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake recovered from a drunken stupor. Blake, shunned on the boat because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was stung for the hand of Miss Leslie. Blake started to swim back to the ship to recover what was left. Blake returned safely. Winthrop wasted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was scored by Blake. Their first meal was a dead fish. The trio started a ten mile hike for higher land. Thirst attacked them. Blake was compelled to carry Miss Leslie on account of weariness. He taunted Winthrop. They entered the jungle. That night was passed roosting high in a tree. The next morning they descended to the open again.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

"How wide is it?" inquired Winthrop, gazing at his swollen hands.

"About 300 yards at high tide. May be narrower at ebb."

"Could you not build a raft?" suggested Miss Leslie.

Blake smiled at her simplicity. "Why not a boat? We've got a plank here."

"Well, then, I can swim."

"Bully for you! Guess, though, we'll try something else. The river is chuck full of alligators. What you waiting for, Pat? We haven't got all day to fool around here."

Winthrop twisted the creeper about his leg and slid to the ground, doing all he could to favor his hands. He found that he could walk without pain, and at once stepped over beside Blake's club, glancing nervously around at the jungle.

Blake jerked up the end of the creeper, and passed the loop about Miss Leslie. Before she had time to become frightened he swung her over and lowered her to the ground lightly as a feather. He followed, hand under hand, and stood for a moment beside her, staring at the dew-dripping foliage of the jungle. Then the remains of the night's quarry caught his eye, and he walked over to examine them.

"Say, Pat," he called, "these don't look like deer bones. I'd say—yes; there's the feet—it's a pig."

"Any tusks?" demanded Winthrop.

Miss Leslie looked away. A heap of bones, however cleanly gnawed, is not a pleasant sight. The skull of the animal seemed to be missing; but Blake stumbled upon it in a tuft of grass and kicked it out upon the open ground. Every shred of hide and gristle had been gnawed from it by the jackals; yet if there had been any doubt as to the creature's identity, there was evidence to spare in the savage tusks which projected from the jaws.

"Je-rusalem!" observed Blake; "this old bear must have been something of a scrapper his own self."

In India they have been known to kill a tiger. Can you knock out the tusks?"

"What for?"

"Well, you said we had nothing for arrow points—"

"Good boy! We'll clinch them and ask questions later."

A few blows with the club loosened the tusks. Blake handed them over to Winthrop, together with the whisky flask, and led the way to the half-broken patch through the thicket. A free use of his club made the path a little more worthy of the name, and as there was less need of haste than on the previous evening, Winthrop and Miss Leslie came through with only a few fresh scratches. Once on open ground again, they soon gained the fallen palms.

At a word from Blake, Miss Leslie hastened to fetch nuts for Winthrop to husk and open. Blake, who had plucked three leaves from a fan palm near the edge of the jungle, began to split long shreds from one of the huge leaves of a cocconut palm. This gave him a quantity of coarse, stiff fiber, part of which he twisted in a cord and used to tie one of the leaves of the fan palm over her head.

"How's that for a bonnet?" he demanded.

The improvised head-gear bore so grotesque a resemblance to a portrait type of picture hat that Winthrop could not repress a derisive laugh.

Miss Leslie, however, examined the hat and gave her opinion without a sign of amusement. "I think it is splendid, Mr. Blake. If we must go out in the sun again, it is just the thing to protect one."

"Yes. Here's two more I've fixed for you. Ready yet, Winthrop?"

The Englishman nodded, and the three sat down to their third feast of cocconuts. They were hungry enough at the start, and Blake added no little keenness even to his own appetite by a grim joke on the slender prospects of the next meal, to the effect that if in the meantime not eaten themselves they might possibly find their next meal within a week.

"But if we must move, could we not take some of the nuts with us?" suggested Winthrop.

Blake pondered over this as he ate, and when fully satisfied he helped himself up with his club he motioned the others to remain seated.

"There are your hats and the strings," he said, "but you won't need them now. I'm going to take a prospect along the river, and while I'm gone, you can make a try at stringing nuts on some of this leaf fiber."

"But, Mr. Blake, do you think it's quite safe?" asked Miss Leslie, and she glanced from him to the jungle.

"Safe," he repeated. "Well, nothing ate you yesterday, if that's anything to go by. It's all I know about it."

He did not wait for further protests. Swinging his club on his shoulder he started for the break in the jungle which marked the hippopotamus path. The others looked at each other, and Miss Leslie sighed. "If only he were a gentleman!" she complained.

Winthrop turned abruptly to the cocconuts.

CHAPTER VII.

Around the Headland.

It was mid morning before Blake reappeared. He came from the mangrove swamp where it ran down into the sea. His trousers were smeared to the thigh with silty mud; but as he approached the drooping brim of his palm-leaf hat failed to hide his exultant expression.

"Come on!" he called. "I've struck it. We'll be over in half an hour."

"How's that?" asked Winthrop.

"Bar," answered Blake, hurrying forward. "Slung on your hats and get into my coat again, Miss Jenny. The sun's hot as yesterday. How about the nuts?"

"Here they are. Three strings; all that I fancied we could carry," explained Winthrop.

"All right. The big one is mine, I suppose. I'll take two. We'll leave the other. Lean on me if your ankle is still weak."

"Thanks; I can make it alone. But must we go through mud like that?"

"Not on this side, at least. Come on! We don't want to miss the ebb."

Blake's impatience discouraged further inquiries. He had turned as he spoke, and the others followed him, walking close together. The pace was sharp for Winthrop, and his ankle soon began to twinge. He was compelled to accept Miss Leslie's invitation to take her arm. With her help he managed to keep within a few yards of Blake.

Instead of plunging into the mangrove wood, which here was undergrown with a thicket of giant ferns, Blake skirted around in the open until they came to the seashore. The tide was at its lowest, and he waved his club towards a long sand-pit which curved out around the seaward edge of the mangroves. Whether this was part of the river's bar or had been heaped up by the cyclone would have been beyond Winthrop's knowledge had the question occurred to him. It was enough for him that the sand was smooth and hard as a race track.

Presently the party came to the end of the spit, where the river water rippled over the sand with the last feeble out-suck of the ebb. On their right they had a sweeping view of the river, around the flank of the mangrove screen. Blake halted at the edge of the water and half turned.

"Close up," he said. "It's shallow enough; but do you see those logs over on the mud-bank? Those are alligators."

"Mercy—and you expect me to wade among such creatures?" cried Miss Leslie.

"I went almost across an hour ago and they didn't bother me any. Come on! There's a wind in that cloud out seaward. Inside half an hour the surf'll be rolling up on this bar like all Niagara."

"If we must, we must, Miss Genevieve," urged Winthrop. "Step behind me and gather up your skirts. It's best to keep one's clothes dry in the tropics."

The girl blushed, and retained his arm.

"I prefer to help you," she replied. "Come on!" called Blake, and he splashed out into the water.

The others followed within arm's length, nervously conscious of the rows of motionless reptiles on the mud-flat, not 100 yards distant.

In the center of the bar, where the water was a trifle over knee-deep, some large creature came darting downstream beneath the surface and passed with a violent swirl between Blake and his companions. At Miss Leslie's scream, Blake whirled about and jabbed with his club at the supposed alligator.

"Where's the brute? Has he got you?" he shouted.

"No, no; he went by!" gasped Winthrop. "There he is!"

A long bony snout, fringed on either side by a row of lateral teeth, was flung up into view.

"Sawfish!" said Blake, and he waded on across the bar without further comment.

Miss Leslie had been on the point of fainting. The tone of Blake's voice revived her instantly.

There were no more scares. A few minutes later they waded out upon a stretch of clean sand on the south of the river. Before them the beach lay in a flattened curve, which at the far end hooked sharply to the left and appeared to terminate at the foot of the towering limestone cliffs of the headland. A mile or more inland the river jungle edged in close to the cliffs; but from there to the beach the forest was separated from the wall of rock by a little sandy plain, covered with creeping plants and small palms. The greatest width of the open space was hardly more than a quarter of a mile.

Blake paused for a moment at high-tide mark, and Winthrop instantly squatted down to nurse his ankle.

"I say, Blake," he said, "can't you find me some kind of a crutch? It is only a few yards around to those trees."

"Good Lord! you haven't been fool enough to overstrain that ankle— Yes, you have. Damn it! why couldn't you tell me before?"

Stopped to Survey the Coast Beyond.

"It did not feel so painful in the water."

"I helped the best I could," interposed Miss Leslie. "I think if you could get Mr. Winthrop a crutch—"

"Crutch!" growled Blake. "How long do you think it would take me to wade through the mud? And look at that cloud! We're in for a squall. Here!"

He handed the girl the smaller string of cocconuts, flung the other up the beach and stooped for Winthrop to mount his back. He then started off along the beach at a sharp trot. Miss Leslie followed as best she could, the heavy cocconuts swinging about with every step and bruising her tender body.

The wind was coming faster than Blake had calculated. Before they had run 200 paces they heard the roar of rain-lashed water, and the squall struck them with a force that almost overthrew the girl. With the wind came torrents of rain that drove through their thickest garments and drenched them to the skin within the first half-minute.

Blake slackened his pace to a walk and plodded sullenly along beneath the driving downpour. He kept to the lower edge of the beach, where the sand was firmest, for the force of the falling deluge beat down the waves and held in check the breakers which the wind sought to roll up the beach.

The rain storm was at its height when they reached the foot of the cliffs. The gray rock towered above them 30 or 40 feet high. Blake deposited Winthrop upon a wet ledge and straightened up to scan the headland. Here and there ledges ran more than half-way up the rocky wall; in other places the crest was notched by deep cliffs, but nowhere within sight did either offer a continuous path to the summit. Blake grunted with disgust.

"It'd take a fire ladder to get up this side," he said. "We'll have to try the other, if we can get around the point. I'm going on ahead. You can follow, after Pat has rested his ankle. Keep a sharp eye out for anything in the flint line—quartz or agate. That means fire. Another thing, when this rain blows over, don't let your clothes dry on you. I've got my hands full enough without having to nurse you through malarial fever. Don't forget the cocconuts, and if I don't show up by noon save me some."

He stooped to drink from a pool in the rock which was overflowing with the cool, pure rainwater, and started off at his sharpest pace. Winthrop and Miss Leslie, seated side by side in dripping misery, watched him swing away through the rain without energy enough to call out a parting word.

Beneath the cliff the sand beach was succeeded by a talus of rocky debris which in places sloped up from the water 10 or 15 feet. The lower part of the slope consisted of boulders and water-worn stones, over which the surf, reinforced by the rising tide, was beginning to break with an angry roar.

Blake picked his way quickly over the smaller stones near the top of the slope, now and then bending to snatch up a fragment that seemed to differ from the others. Finding nothing but limestone he soon turned his attention solely to the passage around the headland. Here he had expected to find the surf much heavier. But the shore was protected by a double line of reefs, so close in that channel between did not show a whitecap. This was fortunate, since in places the talus here sank down almost to the level of low tide. Even a moderate surf would have rendered farther progress impracticable.

Another 100 paces brought Blake to the second corner of the cliff, which jutted out in a little point. He clambered around it and stopped to survey the coast beyond. Within the last few minutes the squall had blown over and the rain began to moderate its downpour. The sun, bursting through the clouds, told that the storm was almost past, and its flood of direct light cleared the view.

Canal That Russia Needs.

Russia's ministry of ways and communications has appointed a board of engineers to make preliminary surveys for the long-projected canal to connect the Baltic with the Black sea. The canal, in the making of which several rivers will be turned to account, will have its northern end at Riga on the Gulf of Riga, 309 miles southwest of St. Petersburg, while the southern end will be Kherson, on the right bank of the Dnieper, and 92 miles east-northeast of Odessa. When this project is completed Russia may move her own ships to and from the Black sea without asking permission.

The State Fair of Today.

The state fair has become recognized as an auxiliary in helping to build up the general agricultural interests of live stock and agricultural districts. The incentive of exhibition contest and friendly competition at the Michigan State Fair, which opens September 2 and continues until September 10, will stimulate and encourage in the mind of Michigan stockmen and agriculturists a desire the following year to do something better.

The fair influence is not confined to one line or one branch of agricultural industry, but extends to every department of home life, farm and industrial enterprise. It is sufficiently broad to take in every feature of manufacture and production, even to the educational accomplishments of the public schools of the state.

The Michigan State fair has become the great clearing house institution as it were, for the breeder, the feeder, the producer, the scientist, and in fact every branch of industry to be introduced to an intelligent and appreciative public. It is here where the wide-awake producer brings the best, the choicest of his herd, the pick of his product of whatever nature, to test the merit and its value when placed in comparison with the work and efforts of others. The State Fair is an educational institution and a means of congregating into one systematically arranged exhibition, the best of everything the state has produced.

School Meeting

E. J. Crossman Elected Trustee, School year same as last.

The annual meeting of School Dist. No. 4, South Arm Township, held last Monday evening at the High School Building, was not as well attended as usual. President Murphy called the meeting to order and the minutes of the last annual meeting and the special meeting of Sept. 5th, 1908, were read and approved. The secretary's financial report and treasurer's report were read and adopted.

Ladies' Equity Notes.

The third local convention met at the pleasant country home of our State Treasurer, Mrs. Nellie Thompson. Early in the forenoon the ladies began to arrive, some driving their own rigs, others walking, until thirty-six ladies answered to the roll call. A forenoon session was held lasting two hours, when we adjourned for dinner. As the day was warm it was suggested that we have dinner out on the lawn, so very quickly cloths were laid and a bountiful picnic dinner was spread, then a jolly crowd enjoyed their lunch. Our farmer-artist, Will Webster, was on hand and took the picture of the convention at dinner and several other views. The afternoon session was called and our lengthy program carried out. Some good and decisive work was done for the good of our society, and all left for their homes glad that they attended the farm women's convention.

Equity My Equity

(Mrs. Nellie Thompson.)
Tune "Michigan My Michigan."
They say a paper I must read,
Equity, my Equity,
And if their orders I must heed,
Equity, my Equity,
I'll tell them of our locals grand
All scattered now throughout our land
Yet coming still on every hand
Equity, my Equity.
Thy sons and daughters now have learned
Equity, my Equity,
The lesson they so long have spurned
Equity, my Equity.
'Tis that if prosperous they would be
In this dear homeland of the free
Together must they all agree
Equity, my Equity.
Yes, Equity has multiplied,
Equity, my Equity,
With locals now on every side,
Equity, my Equity.
We note with joy each added one,
From eastern shore to setting sun,
And say "God bless them, every one,"
Equity, my Equity.
As older ones shall pass away,
Equity, my Equity,
Our noble sons will learn to say:
"Equity, my Equity."
And may God help our noble band
To bring right prices thro the land,
And may we all together stand,
Equity, my Equity.

BUSINESS MEN'S DAY.
Detroit Wholesalers to Entertain Michigan Retail Dealers.
Wednesday, September 8, will be "Wholesalers' day" at the Michigan State Fair and the Detroit Wholesalers' association has arranged a program of entertainments that will give the visitors an extremely delightful time. On this occasion merchants from all parts of Michigan and the surrounding states will be guests of the Detroit organization, which will see that nothing is left undone for their enjoyment. The Michigan State Fair and the city of Detroit has a reputation for doing things and the visitors on that day will be treated to surprises at every turn.
The Wholesalers' association will have a tent on the grounds with free telephone service to visitors, who thus will be able to talk with friends back home.
The evening will be known as "Wholesalers' night," for which a special entertainment will be prepared, including a magnificent horseshow and a general vaudeville performance which will take place in front of the grand stand. A grand display of fireworks, including many large pieces, will conclude the evening.
Michigan retail merchants say that Detroit is one of the best places in the country in which to buy goods. About everything under the sun can be found there. The shops, mills and wholesale houses are numerous and the proprietors cater to the very highest class of trade. This fact was demonstrated a year ago when five thousand visiting merchants attended the annual meeting.
It is expected that this year's attendance will exceed that of 1908. The railroads are interested in the event and will furnish cheap rates into Detroit from every part of the state.

One of the enactments of the last legislature places all the steam and power boats carrying passengers plying on the inland waters of the state under the supervision of the labor department, and making them subject to inspection as to hull conditions, boiler, life boat and preservers and other important points that relate to safety. The law does not go into effect until Sept. 2nd.

Ohio is prohibition territory and the law seems to forbid treating, at least on the railroad car. Wright pleaded that he didn't know the law as he hailed from Michigan, but that did not save him, rather it increased the size of his fine.

The Petoskey Independent of recent date contains the following relative to a part taken by Miss Louisa Loveday at a recital given by Miss Marion Aurilla Osborne at that place: A delightful and unexpected feature of the program was several readings given by Miss Louisa Loveday of East Jordan, who has just completed a post-graduate course at the Columbia School of Expression and Dramatic Art, in Chicago. John W. Wallace is in receipt of a letter from John E. Bird, state attorney general, in which the latter gives it as his official opinion that the new law exempting old soldiers from taxation up to $1,200 assessment, does not go into effect until next year, and also that it disfranchises them from voting at school meeting if they have not property in excess of the above amount.—Mancelona Herald.

There is a growing impression that the public school may take a wider range than the mere elucidation of mathematical problems or the unfolding of natural and scientific laws. It is now held that a boy cannot too early regard himself as a citizen of the Republic, and be taught along with a clear idea of such responsibility, a loyal reverence for the flag and the names that have perpetuated it. Should the first day of every school year be given over to a semi-social review of public affairs, to the carrying of banners, and the singing of patriotic songs, it would be a day well spent. The Republic has had already very serious problems before it of race and of the amalgamation of nationalities and religions. The children in the schools today must be equipped not only with education, but the loyalty to solve these problems.

A Charming Old Gentleman

By W. J. LAMPTON.

He was a charming old gentleman, full of anecdote and reminiscence, and eager to talk that he was almost ravenous. Less elderly persons are sometimes so. He had come to our coral sanctum sanctorum with a letter from a friend and we had introduced him there to a professor of anthropology who had, without provocation, treated him to a dissertation

"A Dissertation on Prehistoric Man." "A prehistoric man. When the professor had departed the old gentleman heaved a sigh of relief. "Prehistoric man," he said to us cheerfully, "does not interest me at all. What I like are living men, or, at least, those who may, in comparison with the professor's acquaintances, be called modern. Now I quite well remember meeting Adam for example. It was shortly after he had given up his country place at Eden and moved to town.

"We said there was some room yet in the world for that type of man. "Speaking of types," chirruped the old gentleman, "reminds me of a call I made on President Roosevelt a few days before he retired from office. I told him I thought he was the typical American.

"Typical I may be, old chap," he responded in that manner which has so endeared him to his enemies, "but I'm not the kind of type that is easy to set."

We remarked upon Mr. Roosevelt's broad knowledge which included even printers' terms and added mildly that he was strenuous.

"Speaking of the strenuous," the old gentleman followed glibly, "reminds me of what Julius Caesar said to me on one occasion. It was in Rome and he was looking out for No. 1 in his usual vigorous manner. I asked him why he had crossed the Rubicon.

"By Jove," he said with a snap, "I crossed it because it was too far to go around. See?"

We ventured the suggestion that Napoleon might have said the same of the Alps.

"Speaking of Napoleon," the old gentleman broke right in; "now there was a man. I recall meeting him on his return from Elba.

"Hello, sire," I said familiarly, for I had known him as a boy in Corsica. "You didn't like it on the snug little isle, did you?"

"No, colonel," he replied with that perfect candor which characterized all his utterances on important questions;

I didn't. There wasn't Elba room for me there and I left the island." In somewhat sly fashion I smiled at his wit.

"Oh, that's all right," he laughed. "I didn't have to leave it. It wasn't so big that I couldn't have brought it away with me, but I had no further use for it."

We said that Bonaparte was politic. "Speaking of politics," the old gentleman garruled on, "reminds me of a question I once asked George Washington. He had served his two terms as president and had retired to Mount Vernon, where I dined with him one Sunday.

"General," I said to him as we sat on the broad veranda overlooking the Potomac drinking mint juleps that were pure nectar, "did you really chop down the cherry tree?"

"Don't ask me, my dear fellow," he begged. "Once I might have been unable to tell a lie, but I've been in politics a whole lot since that time."

We intimated that Washington was a careful man.

"Speaking of careful men," the old gentleman came up promptly, "reminds me of an experience I had not long since with Mark Twain. He was smoking one of my 25-cent cigars at the time. I made a remark for the express purpose of drawing a flash of his brilliant humor. He did not respond in words, but winked slyly.

"I catch on," he said nodding and rubbing his hands, "but I won't say what you want me to. I'll write it and get my established rate for it."

We intimated firmly but gently that Mr. Clemens was becoming quite thrifty with age.

"Speaking of age," chattered the old gentleman, "reminds me of a story Chauncey Depew told me the other—"

"German? Huh? Say, is that it? And that orchestra piece I thought was a waltz was a waltz?"

"I'm glad to know I was sober all that time, anyway," spoke up the other drummer with a sigh of relief.

"The only German word I ever did know is 'gesundheit,' and I don't know what that one means."

Two Strangers Attend a Show

By FRED C. KELLY.

And now we come to the case of the two drummers. These drummers started to stroll up the street from their hotel one Sunday evening, wondering if it might be possible to find entertainment in a lid-on town.

They hadn't strolled far from the hotel until they found themselves in front of a vaudeville house.

"Well, well," observed one of the drummers, gleefully, "here's just what we're looking for—a good show. Somehow I'd got it into my head that there weren't any shows running here on Sunday, but I'm glad I was mistaken. This looks good to me."

The other drummer said a show would just about hit him, too. They bought seats about half way down.

The orchestra was playing a fuzzy waltz tune when they got seated that neither of them had heard before.

"They're handing us out some brand new stuff, anyway," remarked drummer No. 1. "They don't just play 'The Merry Widow' waltz, like they do in New York. Wish I'd thought to get a program when we came in, though, to see what it is they're giving us."

Then the curtain went up and a lot of people came out and began to sing.

"Funny," observed drummer No. 2, "but I can't understand a word they say. Queer thing about songs. A fellow can't catch the words."

By and by a comedian tripped in and got off something. The audience nearly hurt itself laughing.

But the drummers couldn't catch the joke. And if there's anything that makes a man sore it's to have a crowd laughing at something he's missed.

"We didn't get our seats far enough to the front," complained one drummer, irritably. "I couldn't get what that duck said at all."

"Now," snapped his companion. "The fact is, I haven't caught a word that's been said. Certainly is a rotten show."

"Suppose we sneak out," suggested the other drummer. "I never tried to observed one of the pair, sarcastically, as he stuck his head through the window at the ticket seller. "You had your nerve with you to sell a fellow a ticket for that?"

"Don't you care for German opera?" inquired the man with a grin.

Why Is a Plumber's Bill?

By J. W. FOLEY.

The plumber had a rush order for 9 a. m. at No. 3343 Elm street. There was a leak in the water supply pipe to the kitchen sink.

"There is no hurry," he observed to the helper, "for our time is going on just the same."

The helper checked his pace to accord with the plumber's, for he was a very young man and enthusiastic.

"I wonder if I forgot that small wrench," mused the plumber, as they neared No. 3343.

"Let's look in the kit," suggested the helper. "If it's not there, I'll hurry right back and get it."

The plumber frowned. "How many times have I told you to cut out that word 'Hurry'?" he said crossly.

"I forgot," explained the helper in an apologetic tone.

Eventually they reached the back door of No. 3343 and the maid admitted them. "The water's leaking all over my floor," she explained in some anxiety. She said "my" floor because she was the maid and it was hers for that week, anyway.

The plumber, apparently, was not much interested, for he filled his pipe and lighted a little fire in a kettle he carried in his hand. Over the top of the fire he placed a number of tongs and pincers. Then he lighted his pipe and leaned over the kitchen table, where the sporting page had been used as a table cover.

"Young Jenks'll put out 'Silver' Jones in two rounds," he observed to the helper, while the maid put another dish towel compress on the leaky pipe.

"The leak's getting bigger," said the maid.

"Of course it is," agreed the plumber. "They always do."

When he had finished with the sporting page he opened the kit.

"It ain't here," he observed.

"What?" said the helper.

"The small wrench," said the plumber.

"We've got an adjustable wrench in the cellar that will fit any pipe," said the maid gladly. The plumber checked her with a dark frown. "I can't put none but my own tools on the job," he said sternly. "Go back to the shop and bring the little wrench, Jimmy."

The helper started on the run for the door.

"Jimmy!"

The plumber's tone was ominous. Jimmy reduced his speed to plumber's rates.

The plumber blew up his fire and found a pink sheet in the coal scuttle. He moved a chair over by the stove and read placidly. The drip of water did not disturb him for he was used to it.

"What do you get for plumbing?" said the maid timidly.

"Seventy cents an hour," responded the plumber gruffly.

"And for waiting?" suggested the maid.

The plumber scowled. "I ain't waiting here because I want to," he muttered. "I'm waiting because I have to. The kid forgot some of my tools."

The kitchen clock ticked off the minutes at a little over a cent apiece. The maid wrung out another dish towel with which to poultice the leak.

The plumber yawned and dropped the pink sheet. Then he knocked out his pipe on the floor.

"Would you like to look at the leak?" inquired the maid.

"Now," said the plumber. "I've seen more'n a million leaks. I've stopped more'n a million of 'em, too."

"Absent treatment?" suggested the maid, who was a pert thing.

Jimmy returned with the wrench at 11.45. The plumber took it leisurely, gave the pipe a twist, dabbed on some solder and sizzled it with a hot iron.

Then he spilled some bits of hot solder on the floor and stepped on them for the maid's benefit.

Jimmy gathered up the paraphernalia and they started back for the shop.

When the bill went in it read:
5 hours' services, plumber... $3.50
5 hours' services, helper... 1.25
Solder..... .05

Total..... $4.80

"You're a lucky kid, Jimmy," said the plumber on the way back to the shop. "There ain't many kids got the chance you have—to be a plumber."

Graceful Gown of Cashmere That Would Be Appropriate in Almost All Season's Colors.

Alligator-gray is the color chosen for this graceful gown, but it would look well in many of the beautiful shades there are to be had this season. The plastron down center of front and back is trimmed each side with satin covered buttons to match, the other part of skirt is plain, and rests slightly on the ground all round. Two folds are arranged on each shoulder, and brought slightly toward the plastron, both front and back. The revers are trimmed with braid, and edged with ball fringe, the sleeve is trimmed to match. Tucked silk forms the yoke, and plain silk slightly tucked is used for the deep cuff edged with frilling.

Paris Adopts Tailored Hats. The chapeau tuteur is having an astonishing vogue in Paris. So great is the demand for this particular kind of headgear that the leading Paris designers and even those whose specialty until now has been the elaborate hat exclusively do not disdain to devote some of their attention to it.

The New Sailor. The new sailor has a low, broad crown, with a wide brim a little wider at one side than the other, the sides curling up very slightly.

Of Wicker, Lined with Mercerized Satine and Covered with Paris Muslin.

A fascinating baby basket just made for a young mother was of wicker, shallow and oblong. It was lined with mercerized satine, pink, of high luster, and covered with Paris muslin, which is as dainty looking as organdie and much more durable.

The pink lining was put in plain, but the muslin was gathered slightly at top and bottom of the sides, the bottom being plain. Double strips of inch-wide valenciennes insertion were arranged across the bottom to form a diamond.

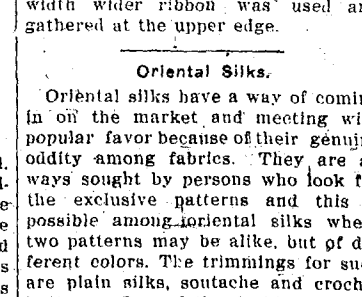

Along each side were pockets of the muslin gathered at the top on an elastic and edged with narrow lace. The fronts of the pockets as well as of the long pin cushion across one end and, the equally long, stiffened cover with leaves of flannel underneath to hold safety pins at the other end were also striped with insertion in diamond effect.

Where each pocket and cushion joined the basket the sewing was concealed under fluffy rosettes of pink baby ribbon.

The ruffle that fell over the sides was made of straight strips of the Paris muslin, with an inch-wide hem at the bottom, and above it eighth of an inch tucks a half inch apart, with baby ribbon sewed between each tuck. The ribbon was put on plain, though it would have been equally pretty if a width wider ribbon was used and gathered at the upper edge.

WHY HE LIKED TIGHT SHOES

Little Remark That Threw Great Light on the Home Conditions of Amos Dore.

"We always wondered a little how Amos Dore and his wife got along—really," "Aunt Em" Macomber said, frankly. "Some in the neighborhood said they'd never overheard a single loud or cross word on either side, but Life Daniels always stuck to it that Amos was as mis'able at home as a man could be.

"He never spoke right out till Amos died and Mrs. Dore went back up-country to her folks. Then he let out."

"What?" queried Aunt Em's visitor. "Well, Amos worked logging along-side of Life every winter, and summers they hayed together most all ways, and it seems," said Aunt Em, impressively, "that Amos complained of his shoes hurting him about all the time. Finally Life asked why he wore tight shoes.

"Why don't you get a pair big enough?" says Life, one day.

"Why, mamma?" he asked. "You didn't say your prayers. Get right out of that bed and say them." GOOD WORKING IDEA FOR SPRAYING POTATOES

Extract from Bulletin of Wisconsin Agricultural Station Showing How Machine Can be Operated on Ten-Acre Patch.

Provide five 50-gallon barrels, two galvanized ten-quart pails for mixing and dipping. One hundred and fifty pounds of blue vitriol, two hundred pounds of fresh lime and five cents' worth of potassium ferro-cyanide crystals.

The two hundred pounds of fresh lime will be sufficient for the season and should be bought in small lots at the time of spraying. The first application will require forty pounds of blue vitriol and fifty pounds of fresh lime.

Suspend the blue vitriol in one-half barrel of water (twenty-five gallons) the evening before spraying. Hang the blue vitriol well up from the bottom of the barrel and use when possible only wooden or copper vessels in handling the solution. Iron and tin will be eaten through by the free acid in the blue vitriol solution. It is well to rinse all metal vessels containing blue vitriol solution with lime water after using.

Slake fifty pounds of fresh lime in a barrel the evening before spraying. Then in the morning the stock solution of both lime and vitriol will be ready for mixing.

Place one-fifth of the blue vitriol stock solution, prepared as above in one empty barrel, and fill with water. Place one-fifth of the lime in another empty barrel and fill with water. Stir thoroughly. Then, with two men dip-coloration or precipitate is produced, the mixture needs more lime. The potassium ferro-cyanide can be purchased from any drug store.

It is necessary also to see that all grit and unslaked particles of lime are strained from the mixture before it is poured into the spray tank. This will prevent loss of time from the clogging of the nozzles. Several important details should be observed in applying the mixture to the vines. If the vines are large, double nozzles should be used. The pipes and nozzles should be carefully adjusted so as to cover all the rows. It requires about one-half an hour to empty a 100-ing, strain the contents of the two barrels through a gunny sack into a third and fourth barrel, making altogether two barrels of Bordeaux mixture, or enough to fill a 100-gallon tank.

Caution.—The lime is added to the blue vitriol water principally to prevent the blue vitriol from injuring the foliage. If the mixture is made according to the above directions no damage to the foliage will result, but in case of doubt use the following test: To the barrel of Bordeaux mixture add a few drops of potassium ferro-cyanide solution. If a deep brown dis-gallon tank where ten rows are taken at each round. Twenty acres should be covered during a ten-hour day when the provisions stated above are observed.

An abundant water supply is very desirable where large fields are to be sprayed. Many growers err in not providing sufficient barrels and pails for mixing and preparing the stock solutions. The concentrated lime and blue vitriol stock solutions must be poured directly together, but diluted as directed above. Hence the necessity for providing the barrels to make the mixture on a large scale.

FACTS ABOUT APPLE PESTS

Fungus Diseases Show in Summer and Need Prompt Attention.

The apple scab, grape scab, and other forms of fungus disease show themselves in midsummer and require the most prompt and persistent work with Bordeaux mixture. Meanwhile, through all this hot weather we have at work in our orchard a rather recent pest, called the tripeta fly. This is the worst enemy that the horticulturist just now has to deal with, says E. P. Powell in Outing.

This fly works all summer, and it stings right through the skin of an apple, at any season of its growth. The eggs produce the most insignificant worms in size, but they tunnel the apple until the whole contents is a blackening pulp. You will sometimes know nothing at all of the mischief going on until a customer charges you with selling rotten apples. Some eggs hatch in midsummer, as soon as laid, but others lie dormant until winter, when they will hatch out in your cellar, and go on with their ruinous work.

A practiced eye can generally tell of the presence of larvae by dark lines on the skin of the apple. The only remedy is to keep all dropped apples picked up and destroyed. If possible, make a sheep pasture of your orchard.

The fly likes shade, and for that reason raspberry or currant bushes under your trees will encourage its work. Spraying will do little or no good, for we cannot reach the fly at its work, nor the egg that is thrust through the skin.

Lime for Beets.—Lime, when applied to sugar beet land in Michigan, produces a slightly larger development of leaf than on the unlimed plants, and an increase of 1,200 pounds per acre over the unlimed beets. The percentage of sugar in the beets remains practically the same.

Meadow Land in New York.—New York alone has nearly 5,000,000 acres of meadow land upon which upward of 6,000,000 tons of hay are raised every year. In the United States approximately 60,000,000 tons of timothy hay are grown on about 40,000,000 acres of meadow land.

ALFALFA AND CEMENT BEST AIDS

Insure Cleanliness and Health for Stock; Are Cheap.

"Cement and alfalfa are going to make the western farmers the most independent people on earth."

This is the opinion of Charles Gurney of Red Cloud, Neb., who marketed cattle worth $9,240 in Kansas City recently. In explaining the use of cement on the farm Mr. Gurney said:

"The time is coming when cement will be the universal building material on the farm. A concrete floor and wall eliminates the rodent and most vermin, and in a few years a well constructed building, with bin attachments, will save enough grain to pay for the cost of construction.

"In extreme cold weather such a building affords an even temperature for live stock. I never have to worry about my young stock on a cold night. Another advantage is the cleanliness. I have no tuberculosis among my cattle, no cholera hogs and no roup in the chickens.

"And alfalfa is making it possible for the western farmer to live in luxury. I have fattened a large herd of cattle this year, sold alfalfa worth $300 and have 500 tons left."

Mice Versus Garden Seeds.—A new terror, especially to lady clerks, has come with the establishment of the government seed depository at Washington from which congressmen supply constituents with samples, says the Troy Times. The seeds are quite as attractive to mice as to men, and the building where the grain is stored is overrun with the creatures. As most of those employed in doing up the packages are girls a fearsome state of things is prevailing in that branch of the government service.

Rotation Crops.—Those of us who have good farms and want to keep them that way must practice better rotation of crops with more intensive cultivation. Rotating farm crops is profitable in many ways. It destroys innumerable injurious insects and it keeps the weeds in check; it gives better crops and makes the land richer in more than one way. Do not plant spuds and beets all the time and run the land down, but change often.

COURTS GIRL BY USE OF WIRELESS

YOUNG WOOER BARRED FROM HOUSE CIRCUMVENTS IRATE PAPA AND WINS BRIDE.

THRILLING JERSEY ROMANCE

Calls of "Sweet" and "Dear" Are Intercepted by Former Suitor Who "Butts" In, But to No Avail.

Trenton, N. J.—The old saying, "Love will find a way," was demonstrated as true by announcement of the engagement of Miss Lillian Vincent of Morrisville, Pa., and Charles G. Clay, who resides near Yardley, Pa. An angry father, with a shotgun, guarding his home from a sweetheart, the bringing into play of a wireless apparatus as a means of communication between sweethearts, and the attempt of a jilted suitor to interfere with the love wireless messages, all figured in a romance which led up to this engagement.

A year ago Clay met Miss Vincent at "Harvest Home," and for a time afterward called at the Vincent home. He had once worked in a large city, and this fact barred him from close friendship with George Vincent, the young woman's father, who is a farmer and does not trust "city chaps."

Clay was ordered to cease his calls, but his friendship had ripened into a deeper affection. His love was returned. For a time secret meetings were held near the Vincent home, but the father soon learned of these and brought his shotgun into play. With the weapon he stood guard over the premises, threatening to shoot Clay if he found him about the farm.

Communication between the sweethearts for a time thereafter was by means of notes carried by friends. Clay was once an electrician and telegraph operator. He had become deeply interested in the wireless system. He instructed his sweetheart how to arrange a wireless apparatus above the garret in her home, the batteries, coil and other apparatus being taken to her by farm boys, who told her father they were bringing material from a dressmaker.

Miss Vincent carried out the instructions and soon had the apparatus in place. Clay installed an apparatus at his home and love messages were soon being flashed by wireless.

The only person taken into the confidence of the couple was George Butterworth, a friend of Clay, who had previously been a suitor for Miss Vincent's hand. The entire system was explained by Clay to his chum.

Butterworth arranged a wireless station at his home, which is about half way between that of Clay and Miss Vincent. "Sweet" was Clay's call for Miss Vincent and the young woman's call for her sweetheart was "Dear."

As the station established by Butterworth was in direct zone with that of Clay and the young woman, he could call either. One morning when Miss Vincent answered to the call of "Sweet," she was shocked when she found that Butterworth was in communication. She at first thought he was operating from Clay's home, but he immediately explained why he had rigged up the station. He was ardently making love when Clay went to the instrument to talk to his sweetheart. He also experienced a shock when he found there was a strange station within the wireless zone.

Although indignant, Clay did not interrupt the communication, but set out for Butterworth's home. What took place between the two has never been made known. A few weeks later Butterworth enlisted in the navy.

The wireless love messages were flashed for some time before Mr. Vincent became aware of them. He is now learning the international wireless code from Clay, and believes he will be able to master it by the middle of July, when his daughter is to become a bride.

"Why you can make love better by wireless than you can when talking directly to your sweetheart," is all Clay has to say.

What you can do on 10 acres

You have read of the big profits being made by growers in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas. Has it occurred to you to consider what you could do under similar circumstances? Isn't it reasonable to suppose that you can do as well?

If you should go to the Gulf Coast Country of Texas and buy a 10-acre tract this is what you might reasonably expect, if you do as well as the average—for these are not fanciful figures—but the actual average results, carefully figured from the yields of a large number of growers in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas:

WINTER CROPS	SUMMER CROPS—Same Land
3 a Bermuda Onions, $939.00	2 a Indian Corn, $ 44.50
1 a Cauliflower, 793.00	2 a Peanuts, 160.00
2 a Cabbage, 254.00	5 a Cotton, 310.00
1 a Potatoes, 380.00	1 a Sorghum, 75.00
1 a Cucumbers, 246.00
1.2 a Celery, 456.00
1.2 a Egg Plant, 400.00
1 a Peppers, 1000.00
10 acres Total $4468.00	Total yield from 10 a, $5057.50

The expense of raising these crops is not great, for you will not need much help on 10 acres. You can do what others are doing. Go, see for yourself. Very low excursion fares twice a month via Rock Island-Frisco Lines. The trip itself will be a pleasure. The climate is a marvel to all—winters mild and sunny—summers pleasantly cooled by Gulf breezes. Can you afford to miss such an opportunity?

Write tonight for full information about the big profits growers are making in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas, and set of colored post cards.

SANITATION OF THE STATE FAIR GROUNDS.

The State Fair officials are taking every precaution to protect the exhibitors of live stock at the 1908 meeting which opens Sept. 2. They have made arrangements for the complete sanitation of the live stock and, in fact, the entire show buildings and grounds during the Fair time.

Before any animals are brought into their quarters, all stables, barns, etc., will be thoroughly cleaned of any refuse that may have accumulated there, and then they will be thoroughly and completely disinfected so as to prevent any possibility of disease being acquired from the condition of the grounds before the live stock arrives.

During the entire time of the Fair a constant attendance of a corps of expert assistants will be continuously disinfecting all the live stock and buildings, so that it will prevent any possible outbreak of contagious diseases while on the grounds.

Arrangements will be made for parties who wish to have their stock sprayed before entering the grounds, and the fact that Messrs. Parke, Davis & Company will have this matter in charge, and will use the disinfectant Kresol for the purpose, is sufficient to know that it will be done properly and effectively.

This firm has taken care of over 200 large exhibitions of this description, and by using Kresol have prevented any outbreak of disease; this is certainly a safeguard against any such troubles that otherwise might arise.

FASTEST HORSE IN THE WORLD.

Dan Patch Will Race Minor Heir to Beat the World's Record.

Horse lovers and all followers of the racing game will be given an unusual treat at the Michigan State Fair Sept. 2-10 when they see Dan Patch (1:55) and Minor Heir (1:59½) fight it out for the world's championship honors.

M. W. Savage, who for several years has been the owner of Dan Patch, recently purchased Minor Heir for $45,000 and has consented to let these two world's fastest harness horses appear in a series of races.

True to his first love, Mr. Savage insists that as long as Dan Patch stays right he will be able to defend the championship against all comers, even against the fleet son of Heir-at-Law.

Mr. Savage has given orders that both horses be trained to the minute and that when they go their race exhibitions each shall be driven to his limit so that there will be an honest test of speed, gameness and stamina. There are some horsemen who believe that Minor Heir will develop as great, if not greater, speed than Dan Patch. He was a green pacer last year, and as such gave some of the most wonderful performances on record. He has a terrific flight of speed, and if under the scientific care of Harry Hersey, he can be fitted so as to hold his lick for a mile, he will give Dan Patch all he can do.

From present indications it is evident that the Michigan State Fair never had so popular a drawing card as the scheduled race between these two world's champions.

Thousands of people will go to Detroit for the opportunity merely to see these two champion horses go in one of the greatest races in the history of the world.

While discussing the two horses a short time ago Mr. Henry C. Hersey, superintendent of Mr. Savage's farm, and famous as the trainer and driver of Dan Patch, had the following to say:

"I am now working Dan and Minor Heir twice a week, Tuesdays and Fridays. I am repeating them now, giving each the last mile around 2:35. I will continue in this way until I begin working each horse four heats on Tuesdays and Fridays. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays and Saturdays the horses are now jogged about four or five miles, and I will continue this after the more severe work is in progress."

"My plan is to gradually to work them up to faster miles and to keep them as big and strong as possible. Dan Patch now weighs 1,100 and will work down to about 1,075 pounds, when he is fit for great miles. His rival now tips the scales at 1,020 pounds and will weigh in close to 1,000 pounds when he is ready."

I want to keep them both as big as I can and still have them hard and not fat inside. I am slowly working off the surplus fat, changing it into muscle."

"At present I am giving Minor Heir a little more jogging and a trifle stiffer work than the champion. He needs to develop more staying qualities. The physical condition of each horse seems perfect. They have plenty of lick and are feeling almost too good. Dan never looked better at this time of the year."

MAKES A FINE SHOWING.

Michigan State Fair One of the Nation's Best.

Comfort's Words

Many an East Jordan Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and the aches of a bad back removed, to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of East Jordan readers.

Mrs. I. A. Slack, 925 Grove St., Potosky, Mich., says: "There was a constant, dull pain across the small of my back and when stooping or exerting myself, it became worse. If I took cold it always settled in my back and made me feel miserable. I had so often read and heard about Doan's Kidney Pills that I finally got a box. The result of their use could not have been better. I began to improve from the first and in a short time the pains and aches disappeared. I have no hesitation in endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills in return for the good they have done me." (Statement made in 1901.)

CONFIRMED IN 1906.
On August 24, 1906, Mrs. Slack said: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills over four years ago I have given them my strong recommendation. I am glad to confirm all I have previously said in favor of this valuable remedy."

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Foreign missionaries will be pleased to hear that the King of the Cannibal Islands, who was wont to broil them on coals in his evening fire, has passed in his utensils. His last feast was an old editor who had turned missionary. The ex-editor's cheek proved to be indigestible and for the first time in his life the king succumbed to the force of circumstances.

An exchange advocates a plan whereby young ladies attending church in the evening can register their names in the church vestibule, so that the young men who are in the habit of lingering around the church door can see whether or not their best girl is present and thus set a troubled brain at rest. The plan would undoubtedly be a great convenience for a certain class of young men and would work well in many places.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—(an topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, making the renewal of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood elements.

"The Night Cure" as its name implies does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, breaks local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, cures nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

How To Make Mischief.

Keep your eyes on your neighbors. Take care of them. Do not let them stir without watching. They may do something wrong if you do. To be sure you never saw them do anything bad, but it may be on your account they have not. Perhaps if it had not been for your kind care they might have disgraced themselves a long time ago. Therefore do not relax any effort to keep them where they ought to be. Never mind your own business—that will take care of itself. There is a man passing along—he is looking over the fence—he is suspicious of him; perhaps he contemplates stealing, some of these dark nights there's no knowing what queer fancies he may have got into his head. If you find any symptoms of anyone passing out of the path of duty, tell everyone else what you see, and be particular to see a great many. It is a good way to circulate such things, it may not benefit yourself or any one else particularly. Do keep something going—silence is a dreadful thing; though it is said there was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour, do not let such a thing occur on earth; it would be too much for this mundane sphere.

If after all your watchful care you cannot see that they have done anything bad, it row out hints that they are no better than they should be—that you should not wonder if the people found out what they were after awhile—then there will be music and everything will work like a charm.

Follow the above directions and you will be pretty sure to make plenty of mischief.

A failing tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the Heart its impulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden, or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or failing stomach, heart or kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way.—Sold by James Gidley.
