Our County Fair

Only a Month Away. Premium Lists Ready. Excellent Attractions.

OFFICERS.
 President..... ROBERT PRICE
 Vice President..... H. L. OLNEY
 Secretary..... A. B. NICHOLAS, JR.
 Treasurer..... MARTIN RÜHLING
 Marshal..... H. L. OLNEY

The Quarter-Centennial Exhibition of the Charlevoix County Agricultural Society, which will be held at East Jordan, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28-29-30, promises to be the banner one of the series of banner fairs. Sec'y Nicholas as well as the other officers are hard at work making the necessary preparations and already a number of attractions are being planned.

In the Speed division, as has already been stated in these columns, the purses have been increased and Sec'y Nicholas has the promise of a nice string of horses for the contests. Below is the race program:

Wednesday, Sept. 29.		Purse
3:00 Class, trot or pace.	Charlevoix Co. horses only	$ 50 00
2:18 Class, trot or pace	Novelty Race	200 00
Running Race, 1/2 mile	2 out of three heats	100 00
Thursday, Sept. 30.		Purse
2:40 Class, trot or pace	Free for all	100 00
Running Race, 1/2 mile.	2 out of 3 heats	150 00

The Premium Lists, printed by The Herald, are now complete, and will be in the hands of Sec'y Nicholas for distribution next Monday. Several changes have been made, the following being some of the most important ones:

New Rule for Exhibitors: Before entering any article or animal for premiums the exhibitor must first purchase a membership ticket. This ticket entitles the holder to free exhibition in his own, his wife's and minor children's name in all departments of the fair where no percentage fee is required.

In Division D—Sheep—each one of the premiums have been increased one dollar except the first number of each class which has been increased $2.00.

In the Grain and Vegetable Division the quantity of exhibits of grain has been decreased from one-half to one bushel.

In the Fruit department the contents of plates have been decreased from "not less than six" to "not less than five" specimens. Also the number of plates by any one grange have been limited to 300 owing to lack of space. Several numbers have also been added to both the Apple and Pear classes.

The booklet contains seventy pages and is the largest and best-arranged typographically of any Premium List ever turned out for the Society. Sec'y Nicholas has included some new features, among them being an index, a list of all the state fairs, and a special announcement.

Fr. Bruno New Pastor of St. Francis Church.

From Petoskey Record.
 The news of the removal of Rev. Uric Petri, O. F. M., from the pastorate of St. Francis Catholic church was received on Monday. Father Uric came to Petoskey a year and a half ago and it fell to his lot to complete the interior, decorate and furnish the new church. The excellent taste shown in the mural decorations, the massive and very beautiful altars with their fine statues, all in most perfect harmony of coloring, will be a lasting reminder of the faithful, loving care of the pastor. Father Uric is a quiet and very retiring man, but those who have come to know him most intimately not only respect and honor him as a good and holy priest, but love and love him as a friend. He will be followed by many good wishes to his new work in Chicago.

Rev. Bruno Torke, who has been a missionary here for many years, succeeds Father Uric as pastor, and the members of the congregation feel that they have an old friend, whom they have known and loved long, to go in and out among them. Rev. Seigfried Riederer, also leaves Petoskey, and we understand that two Polish priests will take the vacant places.

New Liquor Law

"Quenchers" Will Be Hard to Get After September 1 in Dry Counties.

If the supreme court never sees fit to change the amended liquor laws which become effective September 1 and regulate the sale of intoxicants in local option counties, the thirsty one will have to stay up nights to find a loophole through which their parched tongues may be relieved.

For the legislature has put the lid down tight, double locked it on every side and provided punishment for the person who attempts to pry it up.

After September 1 all the old timers in local option counties who have been pestering the drug store keeper, and whose names have appeared at the county prosecutor's office with such startling regularity that those officials believe that many sections of the state are in the throes of a sickness, relieved only by clear whiskey, will have to visit the wet zones to quench their thirst.

Kibosh on Old Plan.
 The kibosh has been put on the old plan of making a sour face at the drug clerk and then telling him that "my head aches" and later walking out with a bottle of booze with only a record which gave the name and address of the purchaser and "medicinal purposes" left behind to tell the tale of a thirst that could not be controlled.

The man with the thirst must now secure the "quencher" through his family physician.

And besides this the physician must have a personal knowledge that the "patient" is really sick, must state just how much and what kind of intoxicant will fill the bill, must write the name of the purchaser on the prescription and practically make oath that the booze is a necessity as a means of cure for a condition that requires medical attention.

Scientists Can Get It.

Of course, there will be other ways—wholly within the law—to secure intoxicants. One provision in the amendment provides that superintendents of hospitals, medical and educational institutions may issue an order for the sale of intoxicants, if such liquors are to be used for scientific purposes. An oath must accompany the order.

Intoxicants may be sold for "art" and "mechanical" purposes, but the purchasers, must in those cases swear before a notary public concerning the use to which the liquor is to be put.

The search and seizure clause in the law is broad and contemplates eradicating evils which have jeopardized the force of the unamended act. A substantial suspicion that intoxicants are being sold is all that will be necessary to secure a warrant from the court for the confiscation of the liquors and a careful search of the suspected premises by an officer.

Drunks Must Confess.

The law also provides that a person found in a drunken condition may be summoned into court and compelled to tell how, where, when and why the fluid that contributed to intoxication was secured. Prosecutions for drunkenness after a confession has been made are impossible, the law contemplating that the thirsty one shall assist the authorities in getting at the foundation of the violation rather than the prosecution of the victim.

All drug store keepers will be compelled to make a weekly report of the sales of intoxicants, the purchasers and the physician writing the prescription, to the prosecuting attorney. In addition to this a monthly report of the purchases of intoxicants made by the druggist will be required.

The law also contemplates that the person handling a C. O. D. shipment of intoxicants is guilty of carrying on illegal business.

Briefly, the lid will be on tight in dry zones after September 1.

Final Tax Notice.

Sept. 5th will be the last day on which Village Taxes may be paid. After that all taxes will be returned. I will be at Hudson's Shoe Store each Saturday, other times at my residence, until the 5th, to receive taxes.

Know Thyself!

People of Wester Michigan Have Been In Ignorance.

A great accomplishment would be credited to the Western Michigan Development Bureau if it should no more than remove some of the foolish traditions that have too long served to prejudice people against Michigan lands. For a generation half-informed people have told what you can do and can't do on the lighter lands of Western Michigan, and only recently has much of this inept advice been found to be mistaken.

A few bolder than the rest put the sandy lands to various uses and made wonderful successes. Then came along the scientist and explained why it was.

The writer remembers when sandy land was thought to be "poisoned" by pine needles.

We know now that the land was bereft of its soil bacteria by fierce forest fires. We know that there is no land, however light, that will not produce good clover crops if it is inoculated with bacteria and that the process is so cheap and easy to be no burden upon the farmer.

We know that clover results in the accumulation of nitrogen in the soil, and that it also furnishes humus, which is of value to many crops.

These are a few of the facts which the Western Michigan Development Bureau hopes to present to home-seekers everywhere. This bureau, embracing twelve counties of the western part of the lower peninsula, aims to develop a great democratic movement for encouraging the settlement of these counties.

To overcome some of the ignorant prejudice that has existed the bureau will be able now to point to many remarkable successes on even the lightest of our lands.

That this district embraces the finest fruit lands between the Rockies and the Alleghenies is admitted everywhere. That it is "the land of opportunity" also for the general farmer is apparent to all who know the facts.

The comparative production of heavy and light lands last year when we experienced the most severe drought in fifteen years was a revelation and it bore out all that has been claimed for sandy land. The sand everywhere and always is underlaid with moisture. In the driest part of last year one could find the moist sand by denting it with his heel while in the clay land it was bone dry for many feet down.

This is possibly the greatest virtue of Michigan's lighter soil. But there are many good features, not least of which is the ease with which the land is worked and its warmth early in the season and consequent quickness in producing growth.

The farmer on light land can go on it at any time to work it and he cultivates it for a small part of the expense of cultivating heavy land. It is far cheaper to keep free from weeds. The tendency is to encourage frequent cultivation, which again assists in conserving the moisture of the soil.

The lake shore climate is peculiarly adapted to the lighter soils, for it is characterized by an abundance of moisture and the sand land is never harmed by too much rain.

It was formerly said that any land was good land which could be used to grow clover. We know now that clover can be grown, by proper inoculation of the land, in even the very lightest of sand land. Clover forms in a large measure the basis of the farmer's prosperity, affording a valuable crop either for seed or for forage, and constantly enriching the land it grows upon.

All root crops, including potatoes, thrive upon Western Michigan's lighter lands as nowhere else, and are free from blights and pests than the same root crops grown on heavy land.

Our quick, responsive, easily worked land has a great future for corn production which is just being properly realized. No claims are made for wheat. New England farmers ruined themselves trying to compete with the bonanza wheat farm of the prairie. Michigan settlers know too much to follow their example.

On much of our unoccupied land there is a natural grass which fattens sheep and the mild winter climate makes an irresistible bid for the favor of western sheep ranchers, who are taking up our land rapidly.

We have seen these millions of acres rise from a few cents an acre to a price of $8 to $15 an acre in the past four or five years. We people of Western Michigan know that this is only a beginning and we want to inform the entire country of the advantages we have to offer, because a more rapid settling up of our land will increase tax valuations, lessening the rate of taxation and will permit of building better roads, bigger schools, and securing more and better lines of transportation, as well as building up our towns and cities and so creating a better home market.

This, then, is the direct object of the newly formed Western Michigan Development Bureau. It deserves the hearty support of every resident of this entire region.

"Vanda Enos and Her Girls."

An unusual attraction is booked to appear at the Loveday Opera House, next Monday night, Aug. 30th, when Vanda Enos and her Girls will make their first appearance in this city. The attraction is unusual because it is refined and entertaining at the same time, because it combines all the merits of a musical comedy attraction without containing one single thing which could possibly offend the most fastidious theatre goer.

Miss Enos herself is the most wonderful violinist in the world. This broad statement is made by her manager, Fred G. Conrad, but not until he had personally investigated her claims to the title and had secured the opinions of the great musical authorities of this and other countries. "It is all well enough to talk about the 'masters'" he said recently, "to honor them is a right and a pleasure. However in our admiration for those who have lived in the past we must not be prejudiced against the great violin players of the present, and I find that musicians everywhere agree with me in this classification of Miss Enos."

It is not often that such an attraction comes to this city and it is only natural that interest should be at a high pitch. This Company has been secured on a guarantee and there never has been an entertainment given in the opera house which has been looked forward to with so much pleasure.

Miss Enos is supported by an excellent company and the newspapers of neighboring cities are enthusiastic in praise of the entertainment. All writers agree that it is "unusual" and "meritorious" and theatre managers are already trying to arrange return dates.

Constant Intermingling of People of the Various States Has Made America Great.

Less than half the members of the United States senate and house of representatives are native-born in the states which they represent.

This wandering from state to state has resulted in the organizing in New York city of many state societies, which aim to gather together the natives of their respective states annually to revive the pleasant memories of the old home days.

What would happen if the American people should cease to wander about the country? is a question often asked. It is said that an eastern man never amounts to anything until he goes west.

Real Thrillers. "Talk of dime novels!" exclaimed the insurance man. "You ought to read a Pinkerton report on an insurance case if you want a thriller."

Eminent in Two Lines. Hans Hubert Dietzsch, a popular member of the Berlin Lustspielhaus company, does not devote all his time to the stage.

Trouble for the Constables. London constables, when stationed in the neighborhood of Westminster, are glad to wear gloves, and not alone in order to exhibit the proper gentleness to women.

Europe's Record Snowfall. The snowfall in central Europe last winter broke all records for many years, Germany probably receiving the worst of it.

They Both Remembered. Among the wreaths placed on the grave of Field-Marshal Sir F. Haines, who was laid to rest at Brompton cemetery on Wednesday, June 16th, is one bearing the simple inscription: "From the bugler at Alma who gave you a drink of water on the battlefield and who you remembered 44 years after, when he was overtaken by misfortune."

Forced to Shut Down Mines. Recently the authorities of Carlsbad were much concerned over a decrease in the flow of the famous Sprudel and other mineral springs.

Several friends who have seen the remarkable effects of Postum and Grape-Nuts on me have urged that I give the facts to the public for the sake of suffering humanity.

Fashion Governs When It Is Sin and When Joy

By REV. MADISON C. PETERS

THAT we should all be glad as beautifully and as gracefully as possible is proved by the fact that God has put robes of beauty and glory upon all his works.

The love of beauty belongs to every woman. A sloven is an abomination. Rudeness is sin. Excess is what I inveigh against.

The prevailing spirit of extravagance is making more defaulters than any other one thing. Many a man has given up all high ambition for study, for self-denying service of his fellow-men, stifled the voice of his conscience when it demanded sacrifice and devoted himself to the one object of gaining, by hook or crook (and either of them is far from being straight), the wherewithal to keep sunshine in his house by the unlimited indulgence of a fashion-pampered woman's fancies.

Dress has sent many men to the penitentiary. Benedict Arnold proposed to sell his country to get money to keep up the extravagance of the home wardrobe.

Many a poor girl, bewildered by the applause which greets her pompous sisters, concludes that the world loves ornament and display above character and disposition and soon is wrapped in style—at too high an expense.

Faust's casket of jewels—who shall count the Marguerites it has slain? Fashion dwarfs the intellect and eats out the heart of our people. Genius dies on its luxurious altar.

Goodness gives up the ghost at her nod. If has made society a great showroom, hollow and insincere. Fashion kills more than the hardships of poverty.

The shop girl sees two generations of her fashionable sisters fade away. The washerwoman, with scarce a ray of hope to cheer her in her toils, lives to see her fashionable sisters die all around her.

The cook is hearty and strong, while the women dressed like a doll, fed to order, must be nursed like a baby and kept from a hysterical fit by a sugar plum.

Adornment can never take the place of graces of character. If you will wear ornaments outwardly, see to it that there are pearls and diamonds within, and that for everything that is beautiful, either in hair or dress, there is something richer for the hidden life of the soul.

The devices of the toilet may disguise a bad complexion, but all the arts of a Jezebel cannot remove from her countenance the traces of pride or paint there the sweet motherliness of a Hannah!

Life is not a toy to be played with, an ornament to exhibit, a bubble to float in the air, nor an insect to dance on the wave until some wind overtakes it. It is not a slow or dreamy indulgence, not a plague that wastes.

Life is a gift of God, a single opportunity with possibilities vast enough to fill time and eternity with the beatitudes of God, the joy of angels and the praise of men.

Cause for Old Maids and Bachelors

By E. LOUNSBURY

Years of close observation and daily contact with both men and women have disclosed to me beyond question why there are so many more old maids and old bachelors to-day than there were 20 or more years ago.

Looking back into the past brings to my mind the fact that women, either married or single, who engaged in business were comparatively few, and this is doubtless one of the reasons why there were fewer divorces and more marriages.

The independence of the working girl frightens many would-be lovers away. When a man is earning $75 or $80 a month he doubtless would have some delicacy in proposing to a girl who is capable of earning as high a salary as he and even if he should be brave enough the girl to whose hand he aspires would hardly consider him eligible as a husband.

Another and perhaps the chief reason why a great many girls do not get married is simply that they do not get the opportunity. And whose fault is it that they do not get the opportunity? Usually their own. Girls—at least a large majority of them—are so eager for the society of men that they make themselves absolutely disgusting.

A man admires the girl who does not fling herself at his feet and the more she avoids him the harder he will try to win her. If a girl is not innately refined and delicate she should at least assume to be, for her own sake.

If girls could but see it, their happiness lies entirely within their own power.

Polygamy Solves Domestic Problem

By W. JULIAN GASSON

Polygamy is the rule in Nigeria, the reason given by the natives being that it is impossible for one woman to do all the work of the house, look after the children, prepare and cook the food, fetch the daily supply of water (often an arduous job), cultivate the plantation and go to market.

And the reason is that the African is an exceedingly hungry person. It is their custom to eat several times a day when at home and the men spend most of their day sitting in the palaver house, or market place, while the women bring the food all day long. One wife could not possibly do this.

Besides, the African lady encourages it, for she says: "The more wives the less work." Among the Ahiaras, Onichas, Obuwus and the lower class of pagan tribes in the interior there is very little form of marriage.

STARTED THE TEARS AFRESH

Thoughtless Act of Little Eben That Reminded Sorrowful Widow of Her Loss.

Mr. Jefferson had not been altogether an exemplary husband and father, but he possessed certain engaging qualities which secured him many friends and made his death the cause of sincere mourning to his widow.

"Mis' Jefferson, she's done broke up over Eb'nezer's being took off fr'm pneumonia," said one of the neighbors. "She sutt'nly is," said another.

"Mournin' round de house all de time, she goes. Why, day befo' yist'day I was thar helpin' her, an' she only stop cryin' once, an' dat was to spank little Eben for takin' m'lasses out'n de jug right into his mouf when her back was turned.

"When she spanked him good an' set him down, she say to me: 'He makes me tink ob his pa so much I cya'n't bear it!' and bus' right out cryin' agin."—Youth's Companion.

HEARTLESS.

Horace—Ah! Miss Grace, what should a young man do when he wants to write spring poetry? Grace—He should see a doctor.

Physician's Mean Trick. A doctor was one day stopped in the streets by one of his woman patients whose malady was purely imaginary.

The doctor, who was known for his intolerance of and nonsympathy with such invalids, after listening somewhat impatiently to the woman's detailed account of all her feelings and symptoms, told her to shut her eyes and put out her tongue. She promptly did so. On opening her eyes in a few seconds the doctor was nowhere to be seen, and the woman awoke to the fact that he had left her standing by herself in a busy thoroughfare with her eyes shut and her tongue hanging out.

Crop Growing on Small Scale. A small holder in East Lexham is making an interesting experiment in barley growing upon his land to test the possibility of raising corn on a small scale.

In 1907 he sowed 78 specially selected grains of barley, which yielded 400 ears. The resulting kernels he sowed in 1908 and harvested in 14 weeks, with the result that he got a bushel of threshed barley, which he has sown this year, his object being to show what can be done in cereal cultivation from very small beginnings.—London Standard.

And the Old Man Grinned. "Duke," said the heiress, eagerly, "did you see father?" "Yes." "Well?" "We talked about the weather."

"What? Lose your nerve again? Why don't you brace up and talk like a man?"—A subject of a king on whose domain the sun never sets. "Can't," moaned the duke. "All the time I was in your father's office he kept grinning at a big painting." "What painting?" "The battle of Bunker Hill."

THE NEW WOMAN

Made Over by Quitting Coffee.

Coffee probably wrecks a greater percentage of Southerners than of Northern people for Southerners use it more freely.

The work it does is distressing enough in some instances; as an illustration, a woman of Richmond, Va., writes: "I was a coffee drinker for years and for about six years my health was completely shattered. I suffered fearfully with headache and nervousness, also palpitation of the heart and loss of appetite.

"My sight gradually began to fail and finally I lost the sight of one eye altogether. The eye was operated upon and the sight partially restored, then I became totally blind in the other eye.

"My doctor used to urge me to give up coffee, but I was willful and continued to drink it until finally in a case of severe illness the doctor insisted that I must give up the coffee, so I began using Postum, and in a month I felt like a new creature.

"I steadily gained in health and strength. About a month ago I began using Grape-Nuts food and the effect has been wonderful. I really feel like a new woman and have gained about 25 pounds.

"I am quite an elderly lady and before using Postum and Grape-nuts I could not walk a square without exceeding fatigue, now I walk ten or twelve without feeling it. Formerly in reading I could remember but little but now my memory holds fast what I read.

Several friends who have seen the remarkable effects of Postum and Grape-Nuts on me have urged that I give the facts to the public for the sake of suffering humanity, so, although I dislike publicity, you can publish this letter if you like."

VENTILATE THE STABLE IN A PROPER MANNER

Fresh Air is One of the Many Essentials Necessary for the Good Health of All Animals—Flues Are Helpful.

In many stables the ventilation provided is largely the result of accident rather than of a prearranged plan. The idea seems to be not how to admit a supply of pure, fresh air but how to keep it out. As a consequence the animals are breathing over and over again the same air which gradually becomes poisoned with an excess of carbonic acid.

Moreover, the atmosphere is likely to become laden with disease germs, breeding tuberculosis, anthrax, glanders, etc. During the summer the subject presents few difficulties. By throwing open the doors and windows to the action of the breeze, the air is kept continually pure and fresh.

How are we to harmonize the demand for fresh air with the demand for warmth without sacrificing too much of either? Three other requirements there are which must be taken into account before any system pipe is erected about 100 feet from the building and is connected with the main conduit in the feeding alley by an underground pipe or sub-conduit sunk eight feet below the surface of the ground. This stand-pipe is surmounted by a revolving cowl, so arranged with a wing or tall that the mouth is always open to the breeze, no matter which way the wind blows. The under pipe being below the frost line, the temperature at this level is much higher than that of the atmospheric air and varies but slightly throughout the year.

of ventilation can be called complete: (1) A constant change of air in the stable. (2) The introduction and distribution of fresh air without draughts. (3) The removal of foul air without condensation and consequent dripping.

Of the many systems devised most of them fulfill some of these principles, comparatively few all of them. Some are very simple, but only partially effective, others are quite effective, but too cumbersome and expensive for ordinary farm buildings.

A system installed on a farm near Tillsonburg, Ont., seems worthy of description. Based on accurate scientific principles, it has given excellent results, is practical and willful may be so modified as to match the needs and pockets of the average farmer.

The fresh air is admitted to the stable by means of a pipe passing just below the floor of the feeding alley and running the whole length of the passage. It is 24 inches in diameter and is made to do duty for 40 head of cattle. This main conduit is tapped every eight feet and the air is distributed by lateral pipes nine inches in diameter, alternately on opposite sides of the main and opening out at the floor level just in front of the manger. To prevent the open ends plugging with dirt they are protected with a woven wire covering. While keeping out refuse this does not in any way retard the free circulation of air. Warming the outside air before it is admitted to the stable is a prominent feature of this system. A large stand-foot. These are built somewhat larger than is required for this purpose in order to serve as feed chutes. The shafts are supplemented by flues built in the wall about 20 feet apart and extend like chimneys well above the eaves. Each has a square or oblong opening near the floor and a smaller one near the ceiling. While the flues are not essential to ventilation they no doubt increase its efficiency. Their installation is based on the principle that while in theory the stable impurities diffuse throughout the warm air and with it are drawn off by convection through the foul air shafts, in practice a small portion frequently falls to a lower level and may be taken up by the flues.

It will be seen that by this method the fresh air is admitted below the heating area, as in a furnace. It is distributed evenly and without drafts. It is liberated at the heads of the cattle, giving them a chance to use it before being mixed with the stable gases. The system is automatic in its action; the more stock in the stable the stronger the convection current and the more fresh air introduced. Making the foul air shafts sufficiently large to be used as feed chutes is a weak point. There is danger of an occasional down draft which strikes the whole system to go on strike. It is the generally accepted rule that the total area of foul air shafts should be from one-fifth to one-tenth greater than the area of inlet pipes, since the warm air leaving the stable occupies greater space than the cool air entering.

ANNUAL SCARCITY OF FARM HELP

No Clean, Careful Man Willing to Work Refused Employment.

In this disease prevention is much better than cure. Colic is prevalent in hot, sultry weather, and may be prevented in most cases by care in feeding, says the Baltimore American. When green, succulent grass and clover or partly cured hay is fed, colic is common. It is caused by the production of gas in the stomach and intestines from the fermentation of the food or by permitting the horse to drink too freely of cold water when tired and exhausted by severe labor. The safest food for the work-horse as well as the driving horse is well-cured hay, sound grain and frequent watering during the day, giving a small quantity at each time, and only when the horse has rested and cooled off. Feed sparingly of green feed at all times and until the horse has become accustomed to the change. If the horse has worked several hours without water and is very thirsty, sponge out his mouth; then, after a rest of 15 minutes, a half bucket of moderately cool water may be given. Never allow the horse to drink too much water, either before or after meals. In case of an attack of colic give at one dose two ounces of sweet spirits of niter and once ounce of tincture of opium, mixed in half pint of water; walk the horse about. If necessary, repeat the dose in half an hour, adding one ounce of the tincture of aloes. As soon as symptoms of colic are noticed give one pint of good whisky mixed with half ounce of pure ginger. This may effect a cure at once. All medicines should be carefully given. By moderation in working when weather is hot, care in feeding and watering, the harvesting and working of the crops may be done without injury to the teams. A good horse should be given good treatment. It will pay to do it.

Good Stock in Fowls. To maintain the health and vigor of the flock it is very essential that the breeding stock be of strong vitality. No undersized or inferior fowls should be kept in the flock.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an American heiress, Lord Winthrop, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a brusque American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake recovered from a drunken stupor. Blake, shunned on the boat, because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was suing for the hand of Miss Leslie. Blake started to swim back to the ship to recover what was left. Blake returned safely. Winthrop wasted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was scolded by Blake. Their first meal was a dead fish. The trio started a ten-mile hike for higher land. They attacked them. Blake was compelled to carry Miss Leslie on account of weakness. He taunted Winthrop. They entered the jungle. That night they passed roosting high in a tree. The next morning they descended to the open again. All three constructed huts to shield themselves from the sun. They then feasted on coconuts, the only procurable food. Miss Leslie showed a liking for Blake, but detested his roughness. Led by Blake they established a home in some cliffs. Blake found a fresh water spring. Miss Leslie faced an unpleasant situation. They planned their campaign. Blake recovered his surveyor's magnifying glass, thus insuring fire. He started a jungle fire, killing a large leopard and smothering several cubs. In the leopard's cavern they built a small home. They gained the cliffs by burning the bottom of a tree until it fell against the heights. The trio secured eggs from the cliffs.

CHAPTER XI.—Continued.

Miss Leslie sighed. "Why did you speak of them? I am still hungry enough to eat more eggs—a dozen—that is, if we had a little salt and butter."

"And a silver cup and napkins!" added Blake. "About the salt, though, we'll have to get some before long, and some kind of vegetable food. It won't do to keep up this whole meat menu."

"If only those little bamboo shoots were as good as they look—like a kind of asparagus!" murmured Miss Leslie. "I've heard that the Chinese eat them," said Winthrop.

"They eat rats, too," commented Blake.

"We might at least try them," persisted Miss Leslie.

"How? Raw?"

"I have heard papa tell of roasting corn when he was a boy."

"That's so; and roasting ears are better than boiled. Win, I guess we'll have a sample of bamboo asparagus a la Les-lee!"

Winthrop took the penknife and fetched a handful of young sprouts from the bamboo thicket. They were heated over the coals on a grill of green branches and devoured half raw.

"Say," mumbled Blake, as he ruminated on the last shoot, "we're getting on some for this small hole of a coast house, and chicken ranch and vegetable in our front yard. We've got old Bobbie Chusee's boat, hands down, on the start off, and he with his shipful of stuff for handicaps!"

"Then you believe that the situation looks more hopeful, Mr. Blake?"

"Well, we've at least got an extension on our note for a week or two. But I'm not going to coddle you with a lot of lies, Miss Jenny. There's the fever coming, sure as fate. I may stave it off a while; you and Win, ten to one, will be down in a few days—and not a smell of quinine in our commissary. Then there'll be dysentery and snakes and wild beasts—No; we're not out of the woods yet, not by a considerable."

"I must say, you're not very encouraging."

"By Jove, Blake," muttered Winthrop, "didn't say I was trying to be."

"But, Mr. Blake, I am sure papa will offer a large reward when the steamer is reported as lost. There will be ships searching for us."

"We're not in the British channel; and I'll bet what few boats do coast along there don't nose about much among these coral reefs."

"I fancy it would do no harm to erect a signal," said Winthrop.

"Only thing that would make a show is Miss Leslie's skirt," replied Blake.

"There is the big leopard skin," persisted Winthrop. To his surprise the engineer took the suggestion under serious consideration.

"Well, I don't know," he said. "If we had a water background, now. But against the rocks and trees—no; what we want is white. I'll tell you when Miss Jenny sets and makes herself a dress of that skin, I'll fly her skirt to the zephyrs."

"Mr. Blake! I really think that is cruel of you!"

"Oh, come now; that's not fair! I wouldn't have said a word, but you said you wanted to help."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Blake. I did not quite understand you. I really do want to help—to do my share."

He at Once Began Experiments in the Art of Pottery.

just because we've failed to stick out a signal that'd catch the eye twice as far off as any other color than scarlet. Do you suppose I worked my way up from axman to engineer, and did not learn anything about flags?"

"But it is all really too absurd! I do not know the first thing about sewing, and I have neither thread nor needle."

"It's up to you, though, if you want to help. My sisters sewed mighty soon after they learned to toddle. 'Bout time you learned—There, now; I did not mean to hurt your feelings. You've made a fair stagger at cooking, and I bet you win out on the dressmaking. For needle you can use one of these long, slim thorns—poke a hole, and then slip the thread through, like a shoemaker."

"Ah, yes; but the thread?" put in Winthrop.

"The cocoon fiber would hardly do," said Miss Leslie, forgetting to dry her eyes.

"No. We could get fairly good fibers out of the palm leaves; but catgut will be a whole lot better. I'll slit up a lot for you, fine enough to sew with. And now, let's get down to tasks. No offense—but did either of you ever learn to do anything useful in all your blessed little lives?"

"Why, Mr. Blake, of course I—"

"Of course what?" demanded Blake, as Miss Leslie hesitated. "We know all about your cooking and sewing. What else?"

"I—I see what you meant. I fear that nothing of what I learned would be of service now."

"Boardingschool rot, eh? And you, Winthrop?"

"If you would kindly name over what you have in mind."

"Um!" grunted Blake. "Well, it's first of all a question of a practical—practical, mind you,—knowledge of metallurgy, ceramics, and how to stick an arrow through a beef roast."

"I—ah—I believe I intimated that I have some knowledge of archery. But I doubt—"

"Cut it out! You'll have enough else to do. Get busy over those bows and arrows, and don't quit till you've got them in shape. Leave my bow good and stiff. I can pull like a mule can kick. Well, Miss Jenny; what is it?"

"Is not—has not ceramics something to do with burning china?"

"Sure!—china, pottery, and all that. Know anything about it?"

"Why, I have a friend who amuses herself by painting china, and I know it has to be burned."

"And that's all!" grunted Blake. "Well, let me tell you. When I was a little kid I used to work in a pottery. All I can remember is that they'd take clay, shape it into a pot, dry it, and bake the thing in a kiln. We've got to work the same game somehow. This kind of eating will mean dysentery in short order. So there's going to be a bean-pot for our stew, or Tom Blake'll know the reason why. Nurse up that ankle of yours, Win. We'll trek it to-morrow—coconuts, and maybe something else. There's clay on the far bank of the river, and across from it I saw a

CHAPTER XII.

Survival of the Fittest.

THE next four days slipped by almost unheeded. Blake saw to it that not only himself but his companions had work to occupy every hour of daylight. When not engaged in cooking and fuel gathering, Miss Leslie was learning by painful experience the rudiments of dressmaking.

At the start she had all but ruined the beautiful skin of the mother leopard before Blake chanced to see her and took over the task of cutting it into shape for a skirt. But when it came to making a waist of the cub fur, he said that she would have to puzzle out the pattern from her other one. Between cooking three meals a day over an open fire, gathering several armfuls of wood, and making a dress with penknife, thorn, and catgut, the girl had little time to think of other matters than her work.

Winthrop had been gazzeted as hunter in ordinary. His task was to keep Miss Leslie supplied with fresh eggs and each day to kill as many of the boobies and cormorants as he could skin and split for drying. Blake had changed his mind about taking him when he went for coconuts. Instead, he had gone alone on several trips, bringing three or four loads of nuts, then a little salt from the seashore, dirty but very welcome, and last of all a great lump of clay, wrapped in palm fronds.

With this clay he at once began experiments in the art of pottery. Having mixed and beaten a small quantity, he molded it into little cups and bowls, and tried burning them over night in the watch-fire. A few came out without crack or flaw. Vastly elated by this success, he fashioned larger vessels from his clay, and within the week could brag of two pots suitable for cooking stews, and four large nondescript pieces which he called plates. What was more, all had a fairly good sand glaze, for he had been quick to observe a glaze on the bottoms of the first pots, and had reasoned out that it was due to the sand which had adhered while they stood drying in the sun.

He next turned his attention to metallurgy. The first move was to search the river bank for the brown bog iron ore which he believed he had seen from the farther side. After a dangerous and exhausting day's work in the mire and jungle, he came back with nothing more to show for his pains than an armful of creepers. Late in the afternoon, he had located the haematite, only to find it lying in a streak so thin that he could not hope to collect enough for practical purposes.

"Lucky we've got something to fall back on," he added, after toiling of his failure. "Pass over those keys of yours, Win. Good! Now untangle those creepers. To-night we'll take turns knotting them up into some sort of a rope-ladder. I'm getting mighty weary of hoofing it all around the point every time I trot to the river. After this I'll go down the cliff at that end of the gully."

Winthrop, who had become very irritable and depressed during the last two days, turned on his heel, with the look of a fretful child.

To cover this un diplomatic rudeness, Miss Leslie spoke somewhat hurriedly. "But why should you return again to the river, Mr. Blake? I'm sure you are risking the fever; and there must be savage beasts in the jungle."

"That's my business," growled Blake. He paused a moment, and added, rather less ungraciously: "Well, if you care, it's this way—I'm going to keep on looking for ore. Give me a little iron ore, and we'll mighty soon have a lot of steel knives and arrow-heads that'll amount to something. How're we going to bag anything worth while with bamboo tips on our arrows? Those bear tusks are a fizzle."

"So you will continue to-risk your life for us? I think that is very brave and generous, Mr. Blake!"

"How's that?" demanded Blake, not a little puzzled. He was fully conscious of the risk; but this was the first intimation he had received or conceived that his motives were other than selfish—"Um—! So that's the ticket. Getting generous, eh?"

"Not getting you are generous! When I think of all you have done for us! Had it not been for you, I am sure we should have died that first day ashore."

"Well, don't blame me, I couldn't have let a dog die that way; and then a fellow needs a Man Friday for this sort of thing. As for you, I haven't always had the luck to be favored with ladies' company."

"Thank you, Mr. Blake. I quite appreciate the compliment. But now, I must put on supper."

Blake followed her graceful movements with an intentness which, in turn, drew Winthrop's attention to himself. The Englishman smiled in a disagreeable manner, and resumed his work on the bows, with the look of one mentally preoccupied. After supper he found occasion to spend some little time among the bamboos.

When at sunset Miss Leslie withdrew into the baobab, Winthrop somewhat officiously insisted upon helping her set up her screen in the entrance. As he did so, he took the opportunity to hand her a bamboo knife, and to draw her attention to several double-pointed bamboo stakes which he had hidden under the litter.

"What is it?" she asked, troubled by his furtive glance back at Blake.

"Merely precaution, you know," he whispered. "The ground in there is quite soft. It will be no trouble, I fancy, to put up the stakes, with their points inclined toward the entrance."

"But why—"

"Not so loud, Miss Genevieve! It struck me that if any one should seek to enter in the night, he would find these stakes deucedly unpleasant. Be careful how you handle them. As you see, the sharper points, which are to be set uppermost, run off into a razor edge. Put them up now, before it grows too dark. You know how ninetails are set—that shape. Good-night! You see, with these to guard the entrance, you need not be afraid to go to sleep at once."

"Thank you," she whispered, and began to thrust the stakes into the ground as he had directed.

He had not been mistaken. The vague doubts and fears which she already entertained would have kept her awake throughout the night, but thanks to the sense of security afforded by the sword-bayonets of her silent little sentries, the girl was soon able to calm herself, and was fast asleep long before Blake awakened Winthrop.

Immediately after breakfast, Blake—who had spent his watch in grinding the edges from a stone and experimenting with split and bent twigs—put Winthrop's keys in the fire, and began an attempt to shape them into a knife-blade. To heat the steel to the required temperature, he used a bamboo blowpipe, with his lungs for bellows.

Winthrop turned away with an indifferent bearing; but Miss Leslie found herself compelled to stop and admire his dexterous use of his rude tools.

Always Light in the Sky.

"The sky," says the Scientific American, "is never dark. This, however, is not due to the sun, but to the stars. The Milky Way is above the horizon in summer in our latitude, and it gives a great deal of light by night, enough to make the night sky of that time brighter than when it is not a part of our night sky, as is the case in winter. Thus, too, the stars which cannot be seen by the unaided eye give us much light. The stars which are not visible to the eye give more light than those which are visible."

BOY OF SIX PRACTICES DENTISTRY ON THE DOG

TRIES PLYERS ON BABY FIRST, GETS SPANKED, AND EVENS UP ON SETTER.

Newark, N. J.—Little Edward Horner put the pup in a corner in spite of the doggy's "ki-yi!" He stuck in a pair of pliers and pulled out three teeth and said: "What a smart boy am I!"—until his mother caught him and told his father, and then little Edward Horner got something that was not any Christmas pie by a long shot.

Edward Horner of Jacksonville, N. J., believes his son Edward, six years old, is cut out for a dentist. Edward's mother took him to a dentist a few days ago to have an aching tooth extracted.

The Yelps of the Pup Brought Mrs. Horner to the Carriage House.

When the boy saw the dentist's kit of tools he squirmed. Promises of candy, ice cream and pennies were of no avail. His mother was bound he'd have that tooth out, and young Edward was forcibly placed in the chair. He squirmed and kicked. The doctor suggested an anesthetic, but the boy's mother objected. She agreed to have Edward strapped in the chair. This was done.

The aching tooth was removed, the dentist being kicked in the face and having his nose damaged in the scrimmage.

When Edward returned home he was mad as a hornet. His mother caught him in the act of putting a pair of pliers into the baby's mouth, with the intention of removing its only tooth. Edward got a spanking for this, which moved his seat of distress some distance from his jaw. He was madder than a hornet by this time.

A few days ago Mr. Horner brought home a puppy setter dog for which he paid $25. He put the pup in the carriage house.

Edward stealthily carried the baby's high chair to the carriage house, got a rope and tied the dog in the chair, took the pliers and proceeded to do business.

The yelps of the pup brought Mrs. Horner to the carriage house just as young Edward was yanking out the third tooth from the dog's mouth.

Edward's father attended to him, and Edward is madder than a whole nest of hornets.

CHILD TAKES 45-FOOT DROP

After Plunge Through Skylight Five-Year-Old Boy Asks for Dish of Ice Cream.

New York.—Anthony Roach fell through the skylight on the roof of his home to a platform 45 feet below. Then the boy of 5 years said he wanted a dish of ice cream.

Anthony and his brother Joseph had built a shanty on the roof, to the delight of other boys in the neighborhood. Joseph gloried in the possession of a new kite recently and had climbed to the top of the chimney for a breeze. While he was perched there Anthony ran toward him, stumbled into the skylight and crashed through.

Mrs. Isabelle Owens saw his body pass her window and expected to find the boy dead, but when she reached him he was on his feet trying to raise a window of an empty flat in the next house. Dr. Dugbee was called from St. Vincent's hospital and by the time he had arrived the youngster had been carried, kicking, to his home.

"I don't want a doctor. I want some ice cream," said Anthony.

With the exception of a few scratches the boy was uninjured. And he got his ice cream.

Needle Gets Through Foot.

Washington, Ind.—Miss Bernadette Keller of this city has had the experience of a needle working entirely through her foot in less than a year.

Last September, while walking across the floor of her room in bare feet, Miss Keller stepped on a needle which was driven deep into the flesh. No particular attention was paid to the wound and it soon healed.

Several months later she experienced great pain in the foot, but would not consult physicians. A few days ago a red spot appeared on top of her foot near the instep and to-day, while applying a home remedy, the young woman touched the point of the needle, which she removed herself with the aid of another needle.

A SURE SIGN.

When It Appears Act at Once.

Trouble with the kidney secretions is a certain sign that your kidneys are deranged and that you should use Doan's Kidney Pills. They cure all irregularities and annoyances, remove backache and side pains and restore the kidneys to health. Charles Cole, 204 N. Buckeye St., Iola, Kans., says: "The kidney secretions were irregular, scanty and painful and contained sediment. My back was stiff and lame and my limbs swelled. I grew weak and discouraged. Doan's Kidney Pills removed these troubles entirely. I have been well for two years."

ITCHED FOR TWELVE YEARS.

Eczema Made Hands and Feet Swell, Peel and Get Raw—Arim Affected, Too—Gave Up All Hope of Cure.

Quickly Cured by Cuticura.

"I suffered from eczema on my hands, arms and feet for about twelve years, my hands and feet would swell, sweat and itch, then would become callous and get very dry, then peel off and get raw. I tried most every kind of salve anti ointment without success. I tried several doctors, but at last gave up thinking there was a cure for eczema. A friend of mine insisted on my trying the Cuticura Remedies, but I did not give them a trial until I got so bad that I had to do something. I secured a set and by the time they were used I could see a vast improvement and my hands and feet were healed up in no time. I have had no trouble since. Charles T. Bauer, Volant, Pa., Mar. 11, 1908."

A City Clerk's Garden.

A city clerk never misses a chance of expatiating on his garden to his colleagues, who, however, were never taken home to see it, but were under the impression it was of enormous size. Five of them resolved to have a look at it, discovered his address, and called one Saturday afternoon to see the hundreds of roses all a-growing and a-blooming. On being taken to the rear of the house, judge of their surprise on seeing a back yard about 12 feet by ten feet. One bold spirit ventured that it was not very big.

"Big!" replied the proud owner, pointing to the sky. "Why, man, alive, look at the height of it!"—Chicago Daily Socialist.

The Force of Habit.

One of the campers had done something peculiarly idiotic, and the dean said: "Dick reminds me of Thomas' colt."

"What about Thomas' colt?" asked Dick, cheerfully.

"Why," the dean responded, readily, "where I lived in Maine when I was a boy an old man named Thomas raised horses. He once put out to pasture a colt, which had been fed from its birth in a box stall and watered at the trough in the yard."

"The pasture lay across a small river, and in the middle of the day the colt swam the stream to go up to the barn-yard for a drink of water."

Youth's Companion.

Wonderful.

"This is a remarkable world!" exclaimed O'Brien. "I was walking down the street this morning and I met a man I hadn't seen for about twelve years."

"Yes," rejoined Murphy, "it is a remarkable world. I just had an experience much like that myself. I was walking down the street not ten minutes ago and I met two men—two, mind you—that I'd never met before."

Grangers Favor Development.

At a meeting of the Charlevoix granges, held at Maple Grove, a few days since, D. S. Payton, one of the directors of the Western Michigan Development Bureau, explained the work of the bureau and asked for the co-operation of the patrons. A committee was immediately appointed to visit the granges in the district, for the purpose of securing the best of the farm products and such information as will advance the interests of Charlevoix equity.

It was also decided at this county meeting that the Master of the county organization shall proceed to make arrangements for the transportation of 500 patrons from Charlevoix county to the meeting of the state grange to be held in Traverse City Dec. 14-18.

In making inventory of the grange in Charlevoix it was found that the order had a membership of 900 and that it has property valued at $11,000. During this county meeting the fifth or pomona degree was conferred upon a class of 37, by the Marion Center crack degree team. This was a record breaking class for Charlevoix county.

Equity Items.

A Local Union of the Farmer's Society of Equity was organized on Aug. 20th at the Mies school house. It will be known as the Mies Local Union and the following officers were elected: President, Burdett Evans; Vice President, Jerry Moble; Secretary, Elmer Reed; Treasurer, Albert Miles. The first meeting of this new group will be held on Saturday night, Sept. 4th. Members from other Locals should try to meet with these progressive farmers and welcome them into the ranks of Equity.

A letter from J. A. Everett, national president of the Farmer's Society of Equity, states that he expects to attend the potato growers' convention at Traverse City Sept. 8th.

GIB, THE ELEPHANT.

How Barnum Once Changed His Mind About What He Wanted.

When Mr. Bailey headed the old firm of Bailey, Hutchinson & Cooper, their chief attraction was "Gib, the elephant with two trunks." Gib was a wonder, the whole country was crazy to see him, and everywhere the Bailey, Hutchinson & Cooper show spread its tents they were crowded to their limit. Phineas T. Barnum did not like the tremendous success his rivals were having. Calling in his secretary, he said to a thoughtful and puzzled way: "Dan, did you ever see that Gib?" "No; I never did see him," replied Dan.

"Has he really got two trunks?" asked Mr. Barnum in a speculative manner.

"Can't say for sure, but they keep on saying he has good and bad." "Dan," said Mr. Barnum slowly, "we've got to have that elephant." And he reached for a telegraph blade and sent the following message to Bailey, Hutchinson & Cooper:

Will give you $10,000 for Gib, the elephant with two trunks.

P. T. BARNUM.

The next towns the Baileys, Hutchinson & Cooper show visited were placarded up and down their streets with posters reproducing Mr. Barnum's telegram with photographic accuracy and under it this line:

"That's how much P. T. Barnum thinks of the famous Gib, the only elephant in the world, with two trunks."

When Mr. Barnum heard of it, he meditated awhile in silence and then said:

"Dan, it's not the elephant we want; it's that man, Bailey."

And thus was the great partnership of Barnum & Bailey formed.

The lawn party on the grounds of the Presbyterian parsonage last Friday evening was attended by upwards of 100 and though the evening was chilly was an immense success. A pavilion was erected just inside the gate, where liquid refreshment was dispensed, and the broad porch was beautifully decorated with bunting and flags and the grounds were illuminated with Japanese lanterns swinging amid the trees.—A program of piano music by Misses Nicholas, singing by Mrs. Suleeba, recitations by Mrs. Smith and Miss Loveday made the hours pass pleasantly. The credit of this delightful party is due to Miss Grigsby, Allan Grigsby, and Dr. Suleeba. Only unmarried young people were invited and without any regard to church relations.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription". It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

CALL FOR MICHIGAN MEETING

Potato Growers to Meet at Traverse City, September 8th.

To All the Potato Growers in Michigan:

The prospect now is that Michigan will raise the largest crop of potatoes she ever produced.

Reports from other parts of the country, covering the whole 1909 crop, beginning with the early crop in Florida, show large yields and excellent prospects. The indications are that the crop in the United States will break all former records.

So large have been the yields in southern producing sections that prices in some markets have already reached an unprofitable level. This condition is not assuring for the large Michigan crop, which will soon be seeking a market.

The gravity of the situation is fully apparent to thoughtful potato growers, many of whom I have consulted with as to our course.

The consensus of opinion, as far as I have been able to gather it, is that a mass meeting of the potato growers of Michigan should be held at an early date as practicable. The purpose of the meeting will be to acquaint growers in all parts of the State with the exact situation and the necessity for prompt and definite action to secure profitable prices.

Therefore I call such meeting to convene at Traverse City, Mich., on September 8th next and to continue until all business that comes before the meeting is transacted.

While Traverse City is not central in the State, this city was selected because it is my home, and also of the secretary of the State Union, and we can do much more to promote the meeting here and arrange for the care of the people attending than if it were called for any other place.

As probably three-fourths of the farmers in Michigan are vitally interested in the price of potatoes, this call should bring representatives from all parts of the State.

Michigan papers please copy this call.

W. E. GREILICK, President,
CHARLES EMMERSON, Secretary,
Michigan State Union
Farmers' Society of Equity,
Traverse City, Mich.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

East Jordan People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease, or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's East Jordan proof:

Chas. A. Hudson, East Jordan, Mich., says: "Used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Gannett Co.'s drug store, and they brought the best of results. I had dull heavy pains in the small of my back and often the trouble was in evidence between my shoulders. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me promptly and also regulated the passages of the kidney secretions. I can recommend this remedy highly, in view of the benefit it has brought."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CHANCERY ORDER.—State of Michigan, Thirtieth Judicial Circuit, in Chancery. Suit pending in Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in Chancery, at the City of Charlevoix, on the 28th day of July, A. D. 1909. Alva Mitchell, complainant, vs. Harry Mitchell, defendant. In this cause it appearing that the defendant, Harry Mitchell, is a resident of this state, but his whereabouts are unknown, therefore on motion of Elisha N. Clink, solicitor for the complainant, Alva Mitchell, it is ordered, that the defendant enter his appearance in said cause on or before three months from the date of this order, and that within twenty days of the complaint cause this order to be published in the Charlevoix County Herald, said publication to be continued once in each week for six weeks in succession. FREDERICK W. MAYNE, Circuit Judge. ELISHA N. CLINK, Solicitor for Complainant.

LOW RATES TO WEST MICH. FAIR

One and One-half One Way Fares For Round Trip to Grand Rapids, Sept. 13-17, on All Roads. All roads lead to the West Michigan State Fair in Grand Rapids Sept. 13 to 17.

Better still, all roads converging in Grand Rapids are making it worth while to the public to attend the fair by materially reducing their transportation rates for the occasion.

The Michigan Passenger association, which has jurisdiction over the granting of special rates on all roads, has determined upon one and one-half the one way fare for the round trip as the rate which shall prevail during the big fair. Thus a regular fare of $1 each way may be obtained, going and coming, for $1.50, the saving in transportation paying admission to the grounds, no inconsiderable item in the necessary expenses of a trip to one of the greatest of educational exhibits.

This is a reduction over last year's rates, which were one and two-thirds the regular fare, denoting the growing importance of the West Michigan Fair as viewed by the transportation companies.

How to Go to the Fair.

Any railroad that enters or connects with others entering Grand Rapids will take you to the West Michigan State Fair, which will be held Sept. 13-17 this year. Further, they will give you reduced rates, one and one-half times the one way fare for the round trip, a very material saving where the trip is of any distance.

Two roads, the G. R. & I. and the Pere Marquette, maintain a station at Comstock park, directly opposite the upper entrance to the fair grounds. This is an especial convenience for visitors from the north. Passengers from the city are transported to Comstock park with comfort and celerity by the street railway company, whose fair service has ever been marked by splendid management. All roads, in fact, lead to western Michigan's great state fair.

A Pretty Broad Hint.

A popular and good looking bachelor who is a regular patron of a circulating library dropped in there the other day. "I am going on a short trip," Miss Blank, he said to the young lady at the desk, "and want to take a couple of interesting novels, but I can't make up my mind which two to select. Couldn't you help me out?"

"I am afraid my selections might not prove interesting to you," replied Miss Blank.

"Just pick out two books for me and I'll guarantee to like them," he rejoined gallantly.

"Have you read Barrie's or Reade's novels?" she asked.

"No; get me one of each and I'll be satisfied," he replied.

She selected two and handed them to her spouseless acquaintance, who, after warmly thanking her for the favor she had done him, turned up the backs of the books and read these titles:

"When a Man's Single."

"It Is Never Too Late to Mend."

Yes, She Knew.

Robson liked jokes and thought he knew one when he met it. One day a friend said to him:

"Robson, do you know why you are like a donkey?"

"Like a donkey?" echoed Robson, opening his eyes wide. "I don't."

"Because your better half is stubbornness itself."

The jest pleased Robson immensely, for he at once saw the possibility of a glorious little dig at his wife. So when he got home he said:

"Mrs. Robson, do you know why I am like a donkey?"

He waited a moment, expecting his wife to give it up. But she didn't. She looked at him somewhat pityingly as she answered:

"I suppose it's because you were born so."

Toil. If you want knowledge, you must toil for it; if food, you must toil for it, and if pleasure, you must toil for it. Toil is the law. Pleasure comes through toil and not by self indulgence and indolence. When a man gets to love work his life is a happy one.
