The Fairies of Mackinac.

WARREN W. LAMPFORD

This the story that is told
Of the cheesecake of old;
This is what the wiseman saw
'Neath the isle of Mackinac.

Many, many years ago,
In the moon of Manitou,
In the still and starry night,
Once there came a little sprite,
Envoy of the myriad hosts
Of the little fairy ghosts,
Dwellers in the mystic hall
Down beneath the rocky wall.
And he woke the cheesecake,
Saying, "Come, O come with me;
Down together let us go
To the great wigwam below;
Let us seek the dwelling place
Of the giant-fairy race.
Let us wander forth awhile
Thro' their haunts beneath the isle.
Opened wide the mystic gate,
Hasten, hasten, do not wait."

'Rose the cheesecake and went,
Full of awe and wonderment,
Down a pathway lit below
By the firefly's glimmering glow,
O'er a rough and rugged road
To the underworld abode.
There he saw a wigwam high,
Like the great dome of the sky;
There assembled in conclave,
Saw he the great spirits grave;
There he saw the fairy queen
On her throne of emerald green;
There he saw the little fays
Sporting in fantastic ways,
Saw them jest with sword and lance,
Saw them dance the Maypole dance,
Saw them flit on flying feet,
Thro' the moon-chase, fast and fleet;
Saw a thousand things and more
Mortal never saw before.

Then at dawn of morning light,
Guided by the little sprite,
Up the path he came again,
Back into the haunts of men.
But alas! how shall I tell!
On his lips was laid a spell,
That of most he saw and heard
Never gave he sign or word;
Not one secret might he breathe
Of that fairy realm beneath.
Oft when evening shadows came,
In the lodge-fire's flickering flame
Would he sit in reverie deep,
As if lost in dreamy sleep,
With a far-off look that told
Of that wondrous night of old;
And they said, "The cheesecake
Wanders where the fairies be;
Would that he might let us know
More of that bright world below."
But in vain! The magic spell
Held him fast, he could not tell.

This the story that is told
Of the cheesecake of old;
This is what the wiseman saw
'Neath the isle of Mackinac.
This is how we know the place
Of the giant-fairy race.
It is in the mystic hall
Down beneath the rocky wall,
Where the great wigwam is hung
'Neath Mock-che-ne-mock-e-aung.

Are You a Martyr At the Stake?

Some people don't know what a beefsteak really is. They think it is any kind of a strip of beef. We cut our steaks to give satisfaction and that means they are cut from the best fed cattle, at least 1 1/2 inches thick, and containing just enough fat to make them exceedingly tender when broiled or fried. Considering quality, prices are low.

Big-City Tailoring At Small-Town Cost Through Fred E. Boosinger

The Problem Solved

Since you cannot go to the great tailor—the tailor who makes an art of his craft—he comes to you through the authorized representatives of M. BORN and SCHLOSS BROS. in your town. If you cannot afford to pay or, affording, do not care to pay the great tailor's charges, you need only pay $12.50 to $25.00—little prices made possible by a big organization—prices based on small profits and large sales. Think, then, of what you save and then think of what you get! Good fabrics and conscientious endeavor are not rare in tailoring, but the tailor who confers expression upon a garment must have it within himself—must put something of his own impulses and ideals into his handiwork.

We have taken great pains in the selection of our assortment of patterns for the Spring and Summer Season and we believe you will agree when you see them that no more beautiful line was ever placed on the market. Special prices all this month at $12.50, 15.00, 16.50, 18.00 and 20.00.

CHURCHMAN'S STOMACH WEAK

Rev. Lapley Suffered Twelve Years
From It—How He Conquered It;
You Also Can, Free.

Through an announcement that he saw in his local paper the Rev. J. D. Lapley of Avondale Station, Birmingham, Ala., learned that he could obtain a free trial bottle of a remedy for the cure of indigestion, and as he was interested, because he suffered that way, he wrote for it. The remedy was Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Lapley, who is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a member of the Central Alabama Conference, took the free bottle with the result that he was very speedily cured. Mrs. Alice Northrup, who is another sufferer from constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, sick headache and such digestive troubles can have a free trial bottle sent to your home prepaid by forwarding your name and address. It is the gentlest, mildest, best tasting, most effective laxative tonic ever tried. Druggists will sell you the regular bottles at 50 cents or $1, and results are guaranteed. A picture of Mrs. Northrup, of Quincy, Ill., a cured patient, is presented herewith. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand write the doctor and he will advise you. The address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 205 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

Whole Country is Stirred.
One of the most interesting reports at the recent meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis was that of the executive secretary, Dr. Livingston Farrand, showing the growth of the anti-tuberculosis movement since May 1, 1909. The number of associations for the prevention of consumption has increased from 290 to over 425; the number of sanatoria and hospitals for the treatment of tuberculosis is from 298 to 400; and the special tuberculosis dispensaries from 212 to 265. During the year 1909, thirty-six out of forty-three legislatures in session considered the subject of tuberculosis, and in 28, bills were passed for the prevention or treatment of this disease. Since the opening of the legislative season of 1910, out of ten legislatures in session up to May 1, all have considered the subject of tuberculosis and every one of them has enacted some law that bears on this subject.

Terrors of Frankness.
"There is no worse vice than frankness," said Booth Parkington, at a farewell dinner in New York precedent to his departure for Europe. "How should I feel, for example, if I asked you for your opinion of my plays, and you answered me frankly, quite frankly?"
"Why, I should feel like the poor lady at the bridge drive who said to her hostess' little daughter:
"Your eyes are such a heavenly blue. And what color are my eyes, darling?"
"The child's high treble traveled easily to the further corner of the quiet room as she replied, looking earnestly up into her questioner's face:
"Dwab middles, yellow whites and wed wims!"

How He Expressed It.
Every small boy—the right kind, anyhow—thinks his own mother the symbol of all perfection. Few, however, have the ability to express their admiration as prettily as the little hero of the following anecdote:
Richard's mother was putting him to bed, and as she kissed him good night, she said: "Do you know you are the whole world to mamma?"
"Am I?" he answered, quickly. "Well then, you're heaven and the north pole to me!"—Youth's Companion.

CHICLE THE BASIS OF CHEWING GUM

BY RUSSELL
HASTINGS
MILLWARD

EARLY three billion pieces of chewing gum are manufactured in the United States annually, practically all of which is made from one product of tropical America. This clearly accounts for the $1,500,000 in chicle, annually exported by our sister republics, and brings to light the workings of a most gigantic industry.

In the fifteenth century chicle was known to the intrepid Spanish explorers, who reported that the Indians employed the gum to quench thirst and relieve exhaustion; but the universal use of the gum can not be said to have begun until as late as 1876. Since that time the demand for this almost-mysterious commercial commodity has increased to such an extent that importing firms have been obliged to search the markets and exploit the growing of the tree in order to obtain a supply sufficient to meet existing requirements.

Prior to 1883 chicle sold for from 7 to 8 cents per pound; in 1896 it sold for 30 cents per pound; and now it is selling for $2 per pound.

The tree, Achras Sapota, from which the chicle is obtained, is indigenous to northern South American countries, Central America, and in the Mexican states of Yucatan, Campeche, Tabasco, Chiapas, Veracruz, Oaxaca, Puebla, Jalisco, San Luis Potosi, and the territories of Tepic and Quintana Roo.

As yet the systematic cultivation of the Achras Sapota has not been carried on to any great extent, but experiments have shown that trees planted at a distance of 10 feet apart, or 400 to the acre, will yield from 5 to 6 pounds of chicle gum when from 8 to 10 years old and from 12 to 15 inches in diameter. In its wild state the tree is usually found in groups, frequently growing to a height of from 40 to 50 feet; it is straight, and has a long, clear length, thus making it most desirable for timber. While it grows well in a variety of soils, it seems to thrive best in a rich clay loam, with good drainage and an annual rainfall of about 90 inches. Lands well adapted to the growing of the tree vary in price from $3 to $15 sold, per acre, and are being largely dealt in at the present time.

The wood is of a reddish color, closely resembling mahogany, is quite hard, heavy, compact in texture, and fine grained. Prehistoric door frames and rafters of sapota wood are found among the Mexican ruins, and are still in an excellent state of preservation. This wood is today greatly in demand by cabinetmakers, who employ it in the manufacture of high-grade furniture and household fittings.

For many years the sapodilla pear, which also comes from the Achras Sapota tree, was a popular variety of fruit found in the markets throughout Latin America; but now, on account of the great demand for chicle gum and the attractive rewards offered for its gathering, the fruit is seldom dealt in by the natives.

The operation of gathering chicle and preparing it for the market is similar to that employed in the maple sugar industry in the United States. Throughout the rainy season, and while the sap is up, the tapping is done by the chicle gatherers, or "chicleros," as they are called. Their outfit is most simple, and consists in nothing more than a piece of rope and a machete. By means of this rope, which is fastened about the waist and slipped around the tree, the chiclero is enabled to hold any desired position and wield the machete in cutting the incisions or gullies.

Great care must be exercised in tapping not to cut too deeply, as excessive bleeding of the sap will cause the rapid decay of the tree. It is possible for a chiclero to gather, properly, from 10 to 15 pounds of the sap per day, for which he is paid, in most cases, a contract price of from 10 to 15 cents per pound; but on many of the large estates an effort is now being made to effect payments for the labor by the day, week or month, and in this way prevent the destruction of the trees frequently caused by a greedy desire on the part of the chiclero, when under contract, to obtain as much sap as possible without regard to the injuries sustained by the trees.

In granting concessions to gather chicle in the national forest reservations, the Latin-American governments demand that natives shall be properly instructed in the gathering and preparation of the gum, as promiscuous tapping will not be longer tolerated.

In some instances trees have been tapped for 25 years, where care has been taken, although after that time they produced but from one-half to two pounds of sap. However, if allowed to remain untapped for a period of five or six years, they will then produce from three to five pounds of gum. Authorities differ in regard to the average height of the sapota, and the length of time required for its maturity; but a general average height can be placed at from 25 to 40 feet, and maturity is reached at from 40 to 50 years. A tree 25 years old, and producing from 20 to 25 pounds of chicle each year, will measure 25 to 30 feet in height, and 22 inches in diameter.

In tapping the trees a Y-shaped incision is cut spirally all around the tree, the arms of the cut extending upward, in order to permit the sap to flow freely to the bottom, where a receptacle is placed at the end of the gully. The sap has the appearance of milk as it flows from the tree, but it afterward takes on a yellowish color, and thickens until it is about the consistency of treacle.

After gathering the sap it is carried to the boiling sheds, and by a rather primitive boiling process is brought to the proper consistency. As the operation continues, it is necessary to knead the mass from time to time, in order to extract the water. The gum, if properly handled, will take on a light gray color, although there is considerable variation in the shades and colors of the products received from the different districts. In the old days much deception was practised by the chicleros, who, in order to increase the weight, would insert stones, bark, sand or wood in the boiling chicle, before it was formed into loaves.

This clever deception is a thing of the past, however, as the contracts today call for a pure straight article, and there is little opportunity of adding any foreign substances.

Much of the chicle is shipped in rough, uneven loaves to the United States via Canada, where it is refined and dried out to one-half of its original weight, thereby saving 50 per cent. of the duty.

Under the Wilson bill the gum was admitted free; but in accordance with the tariff-revision act of 1897 a duty of 10 cents per pound was fixed, which is the present rate.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1909, there were imported into the United States 5,450,139 pounds of chicle, valued at $1,987,112, as compared with 929,959 pounds, valued at $156,402, in 1885.

Repeated attempts have been made to mix, adulterate, or substitute chicle in every conceivable manner, but nature insists that the gum shall only be used to furnish unlimited molar action, and that it can not be artificially prepared by chemical or mechanical means. No medicinal use has yet been discovered for chicle; but in the manufacture of chewing gum various digestants, such as pepsin, have been added and the product pronounced by eminent medical authorities as pure, free from any injurious substances, and beneficial in the relief of various forms of dyspepsia and indigestion. In the strict sense of the word, chewing gum is an indigestible residuum, the user having the advantage of both the finest confection and a medicament as well. Its distribution extends in the Western Hemisphere from Hudson bay to the Argentine Republic; in the east, from London to Hongkong; and the inhabitants of the be witnessed the interesting processes by which chewing gum is manufactured. The factories are sanitary in every particular, and methods of absolute cleanliness prevail in each department. An official report by the department of commerce and labor states that a chewing gum factory was the second cleanest plant inspected in the United States.

The process of manufacture consists in simply mixing and boiling the gum, in copper kettles, to a required consistency, and adding some flavoring extract, such as vanilla, peppermint or wintergreen, and sugar, after which it is transferred to large centrifugal receivers. Here it is whipped into a dough, and afterward removed to tables and kneaded in powdered sugar. It is then rolled into sheets, cut to desired sizes, dried, wrapped by machinery in attractive papers, and placed in boxes ready for the market, the entire process being at all times under the closest inspection.

A visit to any of the chewing gum factories will convince the most skeptical that the product is nothing more nor less than a pure and wholesome article and absolutely harmless to its vast and faithful army of consumers.

OCEAN MONSTERS IN BATTLE

Early on the morning of August 14 last, while engaged in building new quarters for the light-house keeper at Breaksea Island, near Rottneest, Western Australia, the contractor and his men noticed a bull whale with a cow and a calf passing the island some distance off.

An hour or so later—about nine o'clock to be exact—the men were startled by an extraordinary noise, apparently coming from the eastern end of the island, a noise unlike anything they had ever heard before. Dropping their tools and starting toward the east, they beheld such a sight as it falls to the lot of few people to witness. There, not 500 yards from the shore, was being waged a battle to the death—a fight between the great cow whale previously seen and a school of thresher sharks.

The sharks, as though acting in accordance with some preconceived plan, had completely surrounded the two whales and, apparently realizing that nothing was to be feared from the calf, concentrated all their efforts upon the cow. Again and again they charged in upon her, their jaws snapping, tearing at her mighty sides until the sea was red with blood. Meanwhile the cow lashed her tail furiously, hurling up sheets of reddened water and occasionally crashing down with terrific force upon one of her voracious opponents.

Presently the spellbound spectators realized two facts—first, that the calf had disappeared in the melee, and secondly that the tortured whale was undoubtedly becoming weaker. It was obvious that the unequal struggle could have only one ending. Still, however, she fought on doggedly, winning admiration and sympathy by her exhibition of hopeless courage. Altering her tactics, by a supreme effort she hurled her whole great bulk clear of the water for a moment and the fascinated on-lookers beheld the sharks hanging from various parts of her gleaming body by their serrated teeth. Then down she went again with a crash like thunder and for an instant whale and sharks were buried amid masses of foam, heavily colored with the poor mammal's life blood. Rising again, she essayed another change of plan, making for the rocks and desperately striving to rub off the clinging sharks against their edges. But the threshers were equal to the occasion; while those on the outside maintained their grip, the others dived under their enemy and charged her anew, tearing at the whale's side in an ecstasy of ferocity that was bloodcurdling to witness.

More and more feeble grew the whale's struggles and at last—the heartfelt relief of the spectators, for her death fight had been terrible to behold—the great body turned over and sank beneath the red-tinted water. The unequal battle was over.

Didn't Care to Mention His Name.
A colored woman presented herself the other day in an equal suffrage state at the place of registration to qualify for the casting of her vote on the school question at the next election.

"With what political party do you affiliate?" inquired the clerk of the unaccustomed applicant, using the prescribed formula.

The dusky "lady" blushed, all coyness and confusion. "Is I 'bleged to answer that there question?"

"Certainly; the law requires it."
"Then," retreating in dismay, "I don't believe I'll vote, 'case I'd hate to have to mention the party's name. He's one of the nicest gent-mums in town."—Ladies' Home Journal.

ROBBER'S BLUFF CALLED BY GIRL

HOLD-UP MAN'S THREAT TO SHOOT FAILS TO FRIGHTEN YOUNG STENOGRAPHER.

BOLD HIGHWAYMAN IN FLIGHT

"Money Or Your Life" Demands Is Changed to "Give-Me-a-Dollar" Before the Bandit Takes to His Heels.

Chicago.—The pluck and bravery of a 19-year-old North side girl, who, in defense of herself and her mother, reduced a hold-up man from a "money-or-your-life" demand to a miserable "well-give-me-a-dollar-anyway" plea, was the topic of discussion in the suburb.

Miss Edith O'Beirne, daughter of Mrs. Ida O'Beirne, a widow, living at 297 Beacon street, is the heroine who called the bluff of the hold-up man, who was unarmed, in true American fashion. Before she was through with him he had made up his mind that robbing is not his best line of endeavor.

The hold-up man had followed Miss O'Beirne and her mother for several blocks, and when he tried to overtake them they ran into the middle of Beacon street, between Leland and Lawrence avenues.

"Give me your money, ladies," said the robber in a voice he tried to make big with determination, "or I shall shoot you. I'm a desperate man."

But Miss O'Beirne did not frighten worth a cent. She drew herself up to her full height of something over five feet and said:

"We shall do nothing of the sort. And don't you dare to harm my mother. I don't believe you're a robber anyway."

"Then I shall shoot you," replied the man as he began to search in his hip pocket.

But Miss O'Beirne did not weaken, and the situation began to flatten out, from the robber's point of view.

"I don't believe you even have a revolver," said Miss O'Beirne sharply.

"Well, I'll settle for a dollar," came

"We Shall Do Nothing of the Sort," the unexpected reply. "You can give me that, can't you?"

"There comes a man," cried Miss O'Beirne, and the robber, all his nerve gone, took to his heels.

Mysterious Illness of Young Woman Is Solved by Removal of the Animal.

Paterson, N. J.—Miss Katherine Purcell has the unusual medical distinction of unwittingly harboring a live mole in her body for several months. For weeks Miss Purcell has suffered pains in her chest. The pain gradually worked up in her throat. She seemed likely to die, although the doctor was unable to diagnose the case.

It became apparent that the cause of the trouble was a mole, which Miss Purcell had apparently swallowed when it was very small and which kept alive until it reached full size.

Life.

A person who would stand before you and advise you to get the most out of youth—that it is the happiest season of your life—is not telling you the truth. You grow happier as you get older. As I stand before you young folks I don't envy any one of you your youth. I had as fine a time as you when I was young, but I would not go back to my youth for anything. I'm much happier now. I really believe that by the time I'm 80 I'll be having the time of my life.—Prof. William Lyon Phelps, of Yale.

HUNTING 'EM BOTH.

Texas Bear (to senator on a walking trip in the mountains)—Hully gee! Is the president after you, too?

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else." Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909.

Flight of Eloquence Wasted by Friend of Dobkins—Pretty Enough, But Not Appropriate.

"What makes you act so grouchy this morning, Dobkins?" "Had an addition to my family." "What? Why, you ought to be ashamed to be gloomy over that! To think that a normal human being should be angry because of the advent of such a cherub! Do you actually grudge a place in your happy home to an innocent creature fresh from heaven, bringing with it the very fragrance of those celestial realms? Do you greet with an unwelcoming chill a small epitome of all purity and sweetness given into your keeping as a priceless, though undeserved treasure by a too benevolent Providence? A lovely copy of what fancy feigns the angels to be like—a tiny shred of grace and glory, snatched from the—" "Say, that's very pretty, but do you know you're talking about my mother-in-law?"

"Huh," was the young woman's rejoinder, "some o' the Colorado men must have been going around walking on their heads."—Denver Post.

WESTERN CANADA

What Prof. Shaw, the Well-Known Agriculturist, Says About His Anticipation of the Future of the West. "I would sooner raise cattle in Western Canada than in the corn belt of the United States. Feed a sheep and you get a better return for the purpose. Your market will improve faster than your farmers will produce the surplus. The surplus will be grown up to the 60th parallel (100 miles north of the international boundary). Your vacant land will be taken up by a race beyond present conception. We have enough people in the United States alone who want homes to take up this land. Nearly 70,000 Americans will enter and make their homes in Western Canada this year. 1909 produced another large crop of wheat on this territory, in addition to which the cattle exports was an immense item. The Indians were the first tanners in America. They knew how to make a tough pliable leather, and for this reason we adopted the Indian trade mark (in colors) and use the name Rouge Rex, meaning Red King, for our shoes.

We are now tanning our own leather from which Rouge Rex shoes are made. This assures the purchaser that he is getting a shoe made from a tough, pliable leather that with proper treatment will give long and comfortable wear. We use no substitutes for leather.

Saving Himself.

An Irishman who was repairing a chimney on a house top fell from the roof and luckily hit several clotheslines that broke his fall until he landed uninjured on a wire about twenty feet from the ground. After he had struggled there for a few moments the man deliberately let go and fell with a heavy bump on the ground. Another workman ran and picked him up and asked, "What the devil did ye let go for, ye blunderin' blockhead?" "Faith," was the reply, "I was afraid the down'd wire would break."

DANGEROUS TO DELAY LONGER

Selection is Still Good but is Getting Smaller Every Day

Such Low Prices Have Never Been Made Before and Many Instruments Have Been Sold.

Our Direct from Factory to Home Plan Saves You Fully $100 to $150.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY Store Open Evenings

When we announced a few days ago that we were conducting a bona-fide Factory Sale of High Grade Pianos in the Miles Building, in East Jordan, the response was instantaneous. A great many pianos have been sold. We still however, have a number of beautiful instruments on hand, and will receive more this week from our factories. For the next few days we can show you a fine selection to choose from, and would suggest that you call as early as possible, while the assortment is good.

NO HUMBUB ABOUT IT

We make no misrepresentations. We are not advertising a single instrument that we do not have, and at its advertised price.

If you will investigate at once you will find that the greatest piano bargains ever offered in East Jordan can be secured now.

HOW CAN WE DO IT?

The Cable Company is today, and has been for years, the largest manufacturers of pianos and inner-player pianos in the world. We operate two immense factories, employing over two thousand men. We have branch houses in every state and most large cities. We sell thousands of pianos each year, and at the lowest prices at which they can be manufactured and sold. During this sale we have reduced these prices a great deal more, until we can prove to you that we are SAVING YOU OVER ONE THIRD THE PRICE OF A PIANO.

DELAY IS DANGEROUS

If your home needs a piano, if you intend buying one within the next year, come and see us now. Do not let this opportunity pass. The selection is still good, but if you delay even a few days you may not be able to get what you want.

ALL OUR PIANOS ARE GUARANTEED

We guarantee all our pianos for ten years. Our whole reputation of thirty-five years of honorable dealings and millions of dollars are back of each and every guarantee.

EASY TERMS

During this sale we make such liberal terms that any honest family in Michigan can have a piano in their home. Do not let the lack of ready cash keep you away. If you need a piano, come and see us NOW. We can make terms to suit you.

ARTISTS WHO USE OUR INSTRUMENTS

Madam Schumann-Heink, Campanari, Chas. W. Wallace, Director of Music, Monroe College; Samuel P. Snow, Director of Music, Southern Female College; Chas. Gimbell, Professor of Music, Baptist Female College; L. M. Bartlett, President Des Moines Musical College; W. Waugh Lauder, Professor Wesley College of Music; Geo. A. Parker, Professor Syracuse University; Michigan Conservatory of Music, Detroit School of Music, Chicago Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art; Charles P. Garratt, Director of Music, University of Tennessee; Jos. R. Howard, composer of "Time, the Place and the Girl"; Madam Rives-King, the great concert pianiste; Emil Seifert, Concert-Meister of Berlin, Germany; Mrs. Lois Davidson Lutz, graduate of Sherwood and also of Leipzig, Germany, Conservatories, the greatest pianiste in Northern Michigan, now located at Traverse City, and thousands of others which lack of space forbids our using.

Come in at once and get the first choice of this entire stock of High Grade, Fully Guaranteed Pianos. Terms to suit anybody.

EQUIP YOURSELF FOR BUSINESS

Advantages of a Course in A Good Commercial College.

In this business age, the young man or woman who has not received a business training is badly handicapped. The demand for skilled accountants and stenographers is constant and increasing. Good positions await expert young people. In this connection we may allude to the special advantages offered by the McLachlan Business University, Grand Rapids, Mich. Located in one of the most active and progressive cities of the country, the student has the best practical examples of business to aid his instruction. Young men and women will do well to investigate the merits of this school of business, the scope of which includes every branch necessary to fit one for a business career. The Summer School offers special rates, special classes and other inducements. The College issues a very handsome paper, "The Clarion," which contains full information in letter press and fine photographs. It is "a call to ambitious young men and women," and the response will not doubt be general. The hundreds of graduates of the McLachlan Business University who occupy high positions in the business world are the best proofs of its excellence. We advise all interested to send for a copy of "The Clarion," and list of students recently placed in positions, which will be mailed free.

Evolution.
Observe constantly that all things take place by change and accustom thyself to consider that the nature of the universe loves nothing so much as to change the things which are and to make new things like them.—Marcus Aurelius.

A Queer Salute.
A French soldier on active service was informed by the mayor of his village that his father had recently died. In acknowledgment he wrote as follows: "Monsieur le maire, I heartily thank you for my father's death. It is a little accident that often happens in families. As for myself, I am in the hospital minus one leg, with which I have the honor to salute you."

You can't afford to miss the bargains at W. Weiss, the F&F Store.

In sickness, if a certain hidden nerve goes wrong, then the organ that this nerve controls will also surely fail. It may be a stomach nerve, or it may have given strength and support to the Heart or Kidneys. It was Dr. Shoop that first pointed to this vital truth. Dr. Shoop's Restorative was not made to dose the Stomach nor to temporarily stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. That old-fashioned method is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to these falling inside nerves. The remarkable success of this prescription demonstrates the wisdom of treating the actual cause of these falling organs. And it is indeed easy to prove. A simple five or ten days test will surely tell. Try it once, and feel Sold by James Gedley.

Your Opportunity
Before the spring plowing and planting starts is a good time to "spruce up" the farm buildings. The paint will dry quickly these warm days and you have more time now than later. A good job of painting requires care. The best results are obtained only by rubbing the paint in and rubbing it out thoroughly. If you want to cover the most surface per gallon and get the utmost wear you should use

Lowe Brothers Standard Barn Paint
It is ready for instant use. Dows easily under the brush and falls by gradual wear, leaving the surface in good condition to receive a new coat. In using High Standard Paint you get the benefit of Lowe Brothers' 35 years experience in making paint for every purpose.
We are exclusive agents. Come in and let us tell you how much less of "High Standard" Paint, Barn Paint, etc. you will require for your houses or other work.

FRED KAUFFMANN'S
World Famous
BIG WHITE SUNDRY SHOPS

NONE OF THIS

WOULD you want your mother to be the figure in the left hand picture? That is a portrait of the mothers of thousands of other men! Would you want your father to be the one represented in the right hand picture? And your little sister to be as the child here shown? The fathers, and the sisters, of thousands of men are as these! But if ever we find no choice but to thus sap the life from our fellow creatures in order to make a living, we will quit the business!

The big point is that

FRED KAUFFMANN
WHO TAILORS OUR GARMENTS

Don't find himself up against any such choice! And, rightly viewed, neither do any of the tailors or "clothes-manufacturers" who pile up rotten profits on the ruins of human life!

Look at that picture in the middle.

That is one view of a part of Fred Kauffmann's "big white shops" as the artist sees it. He wants happy workers. They do better work. He wants sunshiny work-rooms. Good work can't come out of dark holes. He wants elbow-room. Many a slip in clothes-making comes from crowding! We have ideals—and also business sense.

BOTH are best served by the same kind of conditions. Better conditions. Healthful conditions. Clean, bright, stimulating conditions.

"We are for Success!" all right, but not at the cost of human souls!

AND WE HAVE PROVED, AND ARE PROVING EVERY DAY, that SUCCESS does not need to have the sweat shop price-tag on it!

Every stitch of Fred Kauffmann's work is done on his own premises—under his own eye—in OUR own sunlight!

Do you care? You bet you do. We show 500 new Spring Woolen Samples, and our tape is waiting for you.

WE want to call your attention to our FRED KAUFFMAN book of samples for good, dressy, "Made To Your Measure" Suits. We want you to know that there is not a better way to get a good, perfect-fitting Suit than to have us take care of your measurements and by learning from you what kind of a suit you require. We guarantee you a perfect fit. We get most of our orders through satisfied customers who are delighted with their suits, and wanting to do their friends a favor, advise them to see us. We are so confident we can please you that we do not require any deposit until you know that you have a perfect fit—then it's so evident that it's a bargain you will find it a pleasure to pay the price.

The I. O. O. F. observed their memorial day on Sunday last. They attended to the number of forty-six, the morning service at the Presbyterian church. Rev. A. D. Grigsby preached a very appropriate sermon filled with a fraternal spirit, taking for his text "But to do good, and to communicate forget not." He spoke enthusiastically of their work that had come to his notice in his rounds of duty. A choir of twelve voices sang, "This always morning somewhere," Mesdames Bush and Haire, duet, "One sweetly solemn thought," both were exceedingly beautiful for the occasion. After the service the order marched to the cemetery through the rain and seeking each mound where a brother rests, decorated it with evergreen and flowers, emblems of love and remembrance. It was a scene worthy of notice, as it has its influences for good, as all such demonstrations have, silently teaching sympathy and loyalty for our fellow men.

A suggestion to wives: If a husband has a way of looking thoughtfully at the floor, out into the dark, or at the fire, thus causing his wife suspicious that another woman is floating before his mental vision, here is a way to end it: Hang a large picture of him in that room, and he will in future spend all his time in front of it. A man enjoys looking at a picture of himself just as much as a girl enjoys herself with a handglass and a pimple, with this difference: the man doesn't pick at the picture,

WORKED ON DOG'S NERVES

Experiments Made by French Admiralty to Determine Effects of Future Sea Fights.

Remarkable effects were produced by the new shells in the gunnery experiments carried out against the discarded French battleship Jena.

It was found that the explosives did not kill the animals by suffocation or poisoning. But the dogs' nervous systems suffered severely under the repeated action of the shells and the resulting concussions.

Two dogs, after being subjected to the experiment, became somber and timid, hiding themselves when called. Finally they committed suicide by jumping into the sea and allowing themselves to sink without making any attempt to swim.

They Had to Own Bibles. The first Bible printed in Scotland was issued complete in 1579. In the same year, by act of parliament, every gentleman, householder and others worth three hundredth merks of yearle rent or above, and every yeoman and burgess with £500, had to provide, under a penalty of £10, a Bible and Psalme buke in vulgare language in their houses for the better instruction of thame selfis and thair fameljs in the knowlege of Gpd.

To see that the provisions of the above act was carried into effect, the following year a searcher was appointed, with power to visit the houses of those signified by the act, and to require the sight of thair psalme bukis and bybills. In a footnote it is added: "The privy council had in 1575 commanded and charged the principallis and heidismen of every parochin aswell to burgh as landward, to contribute and collect £5 for the purchase of a Bible to be placed in every parish kirke."

Church Provided Object Lesson.

Just before the benediction the minister expressed a polite wish that his congregation would pause in the vestibule on their way out and look at a series of photographs on the wall. Everybody looked. Some said: "Oh, isn't that terrible?" Others said: "Well!" in various tones, and still others said nothing at all. The pictures had been put up by the Audubon society and represented different periods in the life of a bird that supplies feathers for women's hats.

"We can't get women to come to us, so we have concluded to come to them," said a member of the society. "Church seems about the best place to find them in a sympathetic mood. In every church whose pastor will give us permission we shall put in a set of pictures. Later we shall tackle theaters, museums and every other place where women who wear fine feathers are likely to congregate, but the churches are looked to for the most conversions."

Empress of Abyssinia.

Menelik's wife, the empress of Abyssinia, who is reported to be a prisoner in the hands of those favoring the immediate succession of the heir apparent, is a lady who was once a great beauty and who had four previous husbands before she became the wife of Menelik. Her first husband was one of King Theobald's generals, her second she divorced, her third was killed by King John, her fourth was, as has been euphemistically expressed, "removed," and in 1863 she married the late emperor. The fact is sometimes lost sight of that many of the Abyssinians are Christians. The Abyssinian church is of Egyptian origin and is one of the oldest Christian bodies in the world.

Playing It on the Chauffeur.

Neighbors who happened to be watching the front door of No. 211 when the taxicab drove up noticed that the woman visitor from Detroit had her head bandaged. Immediately they called to see what had happened. "Oh, there is not a thing in the world the matter," said the hostess. "We just decided to come home in a taxicab, that's all, and we were so afraid of getting an incompetent chauffeur. To make sure of getting a careful one we sent in a sick call. All the taxi companies send out their most reliable men on sick calls. In order to carry out the deception and keep the chauffeur from finding out he had been faked Aunt Harriet tied a handkerchief around her head and he brought us home without a jar."

Efficient Reform

Youth Addicted to Petty Thievery Broken of Bad Habit

By P. EVAN JONES, Former Police Official

IT IS often the case that it takes a tremendous scare to make a boy who has been pursuing an evil course see the error of his way and begin a better life.

So long as a boy is treated leniently by his parents he is apt to go on with his vicious deeds, thinking he will always be protected by his father or mother should he get in trouble with the law. In all big cities there are plenty of young fellows who realize that parental help will be forthcoming when they are caught up with for flagrant misconduct. Sometimes they get a rude shock by having this protection withdrawn; and it is then they get frightened into abandoning habits that will land them in a felon's cell.

One of the worst forms of boyish folly is the vice of stealing, and I used to have more trouble with this class of offenders than any other. A woman once came to me to complain of her 16-year-old boy, who, she said, had become almost a chronic thief. He had a mania for stealing hardware, shovels, picks, axes and all sorts of tools. Fearing to tell his father, the mother, at a heavy sacrifice, made good the loss to the owners of the property, but the boy seemed incorrigible and once he had the nerve to steal the same article twice in one day.

She wept bitterly as she recited the wrongdoings of her son and sobbingly asked my advice. I told her to get the lad and bring him to my office without rousing his fears. She did so immediately and the youngster when brought into my presence almost swooned with fright.

I saw at once that he was of a kind that could be influenced by fear and in a stern voice I proceeded to tell the young man what I intended doing with him if ever I heard of any bad deed in the future. He would be locked up and given nothing but bread and water for six months. As he listened he trembled violently and I knew there would be no more trouble with him. Neither was there, for today he is a prosperous and respected business man and a model for honest dealing.

Utmost Liberty Allowed Public Speech

By WALTER A. WEBSTER

Freedom of public discussion is the very keystone of liberty. The bar of public opinion must be opened to all; otherwise free government cannot endure.

The utmost liberty should be permitted to speech, whether spoken or written, in a free country. Subject only to the laws against treason, the property rights of others and public morals. In such cases if a man by his utterance has violated the criminal law of the land he can be tried like any other offender by a jury of his peers and punished if found guilty. If he has transgressed the civil law he will be liable in money damages. This is guaranteed by the national Constitution and by practically all of the state constitutions.

The right to speak and the right to hear are fundamental in the United States and the reason is clear. The absolute sovereignty of a republic is in the people. The people created the Constitution. The Constitution provides a form of government consisting of the executive, the legislative and the judiciary to carry out the people's will. The people can abolish or curtail the authority of all or of any one of these branches of their government in any way they choose and at any time. If any branch of the government discharges its trust improperly or unworthily, it is elementary that the people should condemn and criticize it. Nay, more, it is the duty of an intelligent electorate to discuss the acts of the government, for the censorship of public opinion is the most effective remedy known for misgovernment. Restrain free speech and the sovereignty of the people is impaired, for free speech is the strongest curb against executive, legislative and judicial ambition.

Young Infants Require Much Care

By WELLS ANDREWS, M. D.

Even the youngest infants require sunlight and air. Due discretion must be employed, however, in sending them out. They are better carried in the mother's arms and thus assisted to maintain their own heat by that derived from their mother's body than placed in baby carriages. As soon as they can crawl they should be encouraged to do so, on a carpet in the back yard in summer months, protected from the wind, but open to sunlight. Cold and dark places should be especially avoided and when the weather is cold they should be encouraged to amuse themselves on a blanket or soft rug, so as to learn to stretch their limbs and put in use their muscles.

They learn first to sit up, then to stand, helped by their arms against a chair; next to stand without support, and at some period between one year and two years of age should be able to walk about by themselves.

Infants require day as well as night sleep. Very young babies do little else but nurse and sleep.

As they grow they need and take less and less sleep. And by the time the first dentition, 16 to 20 teeth, is accomplished, at about three years of age, a child may usually dispense with day sleep, except an hour's nap early in the afternoon or between 11 and 12.

Sound sleep coincides in the infant, as in the adult, with short sleep hours and the strongest children require the least sleep.

The baby should have its own cradle and the child its own cot placed close beside the bed of its mother.

In extra cold weather the cot should be warmed by a hot water bottle.

The sleeping room ought not to be kept warmer than 65 degrees nor colder than 50 degrees; the nearer it is maintained to 55 degrees during the winter months and 65 during the summer the sounder the child will sleep.

The more freely the whole house and nursery are ventilated the less prone the infant and child will be to all infantile disorders.

Bishop Eats His Own Boots.

Few bishops have to lead such a strenuous life as Bishop Stringer. In company with a missionary companion he made a tour recently to Herschel island, in the Arctic ocean, and back to Dawson City, where the bishop resides.

Their small supply of food becoming exhausted, they were obliged to eat their muckalucks and moccasins. These, made of raw sealskins, were soaked until they became glutinous, and were then toasted in strips over the fire. The bishop says the food was real good, especially the muckalucks.

PROFIT IN STRAWBERRY AND ASPARAGUS GARDEN

Both Plants Do Well on Any Well-Drained Soil, But Yield Can Be Immensely Increased by Fertilizing and Cultivation.

A Money-Making Garden Combination.

One of the first vegetables of spring, as well as one of the best grown, is asparagus. It is hardy, grows year after year from the same roots and, if properly cared for, never fails to produce a crop. As ordinarily grown on the farm it is a troublesome crop and often poor in quality, but by proper management and cultivation, a first-class product can be grown as cheaply and easily as any other garden vegetable.

Asparagus does well on almost any good, well-drained soil, but best results are obtained on deep, rich, loose loam. Good corn land will give satisfactory crops of asparagus. It requires liberal manuring and good cultivation.

A few stalks may be cut the spring of the second year, but after that a good yield may be expected.

The largest expense in growing strawberries is in the hoeing, weeding and cultivating necessary, therefore if you can double the yield of strawberries by making the soil very rich, you will be more than repaid by adding this excessive supply of fertility.

Remember that your strawberry plantation will require no more hoeing, weeding or horse cultivation on rich soil than on poor soil. Thus, if you can increase the yield one hundred per cent, by adding $20 worth of commercial fertilizers or other fertilizers, you can readily see how profitable will be the investment.

It is true that you can raise a good fair crop of strawberries on almost any soil which will produce a good fair crop of corn or potatoes. Most people are satisfied with an ordinary crop of strawberries, such as can be secured on this ordinary soil, but you can make no better investment than to heavily fertilize every inch of the land you have planted to strawberries.

PREPARING THE FAMILY GARDEN

Suggestions Regarding Proper Quantity of Seed to Plant to Supply Family of Six With Vegetables.

People who have not made a study of gardening are sometimes puzzled to know how much of each kind of vegetable to plant. The following quantities will be sufficient to supply an average family, say of six persons:

Asparagus—Furrows 20 feet long and three feet apart.

Artichokes—One ounce of seed will furnish an ample supply.

Pole Beans—Two quarts planted one week apart.

Lima Beans—One quart planted one week apart.

Beets—Two ounces of seed.

Brussels Sprouts—One ounce of seed. This is one of the most delicious vegetables raised and should be in every garden.

Carrots—One ounce of seed.

Cauliflower—One ounce of seed. This is another excellent vegetable which is much neglected in the average farm garden.

Celery—One ounce of seed will produce about fifteen hundred plants.

Sweet Corn—One pint of seed for each planting. This should be planted about ten days apart.

Cucumbers—One-half ounce of seed will plant 25 hills.

Lettuce—One-half ounce of seed. Sow ten days apart.

Onions—Plant two rows 15 feet long, making three plantings ten days apart.

Peas—Did anybody ever raise too many peas? Plant one quart at a planting about ten days apart.

Peppers—One-half ounce of seed.

Radishes—Sow one-half ounce every three weeks.

Rhubarb—One dozen roots will last a family a lifetime.

Spinach—Sow two ounces of seed in drills.

Squash—One ounce of seed will plant about twenty hills.

Turnips—One ounce of seed sown broadcast will produce a big cast. Sow thinly and do not be afraid to thin out after the plants come up.

Amateur gardeners often make the mistake of planting vegetables too close together. Plants having large foliage such as tomatoes, peas and beans should be given plenty of room in order that the sunshine may reach all parts.

Value of the Hog.

No animal on the farm is better adapted to turning good feed quickly into marketable meat than the hog, and none can better repay, from a market standpoint, a discriminating system of feeding. This is particularly true as to first costs, for the hog is by nature planned to utilize the least expensive feeds, and will manufacture into toothsome pork much that might otherwise be reckoned of little value, if not waste. In any phase of farm economy the hog is a feature, and his proper feeding has in innumerable instances been the factor that kept a farm's profit on the right side of the ledger.

Cream Cheese.

Genuine cream cheese is made from a rich cream thickened by souring, or from sweet cream thickened with rennet. This is put in a cloth and allowed to drain, the cloth being changed several times during the draining, which requires about four days. It is then placed on a board covered with a cloth, sprinkled with salt, and turned occasionally. It is ready for consumption in from five to ten days.

PRACTICAL DEHORNING CHUTE

In the construction of the chute herewith illustrated two heavy timbers are used for the sills and the uprights may be four inches by four inches. A trough-shaped piece, marked H, is made of two-inch stuff and securely fastened to bottom cross pieces. After the animal is secured in the stanchion a halter is thrown over its head and the halter rope passed through the hole just below the letter H. The end of the rope is attached to the pole lever and by this means the animal's head can be brought into position on the trough and held, the rope B being thrown over the neck. The width of the chute at the front is three feet and at the rear eight inches wide.

THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL

BY RANDALL PARRISH
AUTHOR OF "DASH HANFORD OF FLORIDA," ETC.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY DEARBORN REEVILL
DRAWING BY H. E. H. CUMING & CO. 1926

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, an adventurer, a Massachusetts man, marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations in Bolivia, he was denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her, Admiral of the Peruvian navy, who confronted Stephens, told him that war had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He desired that that night the Esmeralda, a Chilean vessel, should be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew, to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Esmeralda, through strategy. Capt. Stephens gave directions for the capture of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly learned the wrong vessel had been captured. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht. The lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to her ladyship. Then First Mate Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost. He had found it frozen in a huge case of ice on an island and contained much gold. Stephens consented to be the captain and the English woman. He told the lady Darlington. She was greatly alarmed, but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen anchored a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate. This caused a fierce struggle and he was overcome. Tuttle finally squaring the situation. Then he headed south again. Under Tuttle's guidance the vessel made progress toward its goal. De Nova, the mate, told Stephens that he believed Tuttle now acting as skipper, insane because of his queer actions. Stephens was awakened by crashing of plates. He saw Tuttle in the grip of a spasm of religious mania and overcame him. The sailor upon regaining his senses was taken ill. Tuttle committed suicide by shooting. Upon vote of the crew Stephens assumed the leadership and the men decided to continue the treasure hunt. The islands being supposed to be only 200 miles distant. Tuttle was blown in the sea, Lady Darlington pronouncing the service. Stephens awaiting from deep saw the ghost, supposed to have formed the basis for Tuttle's religious mania. Upon advice of Lady Darlington, Stephens started to probe the ghost. He came upon a light. Stephens and a drunken officer he had humbled in Chile. He found that at Sanchez's inspiration, Engineer McKnight played "ghost" to scare the men into giving up the quest. Stephens announced that the Sea Queen was at the spot where Tuttle's quest was supposed to be. The crew was anxious to go on in further search. De Nova and Stephens conquered them in a fist fight. Lady Darlington thanked him. The Sea Queen returned to the coast. Stephens, his wife and her maid being among those to set out in a life boat.

CHAPTER XXI.

In Which Love Speaks.

No one uttered a sound after that first wild cry. We sat there stunned into silence by the horror of the situation, every eye staring blindly into the mist, the long-boat tossing like a chip on the swell caused by the engulfing of the yacht. The crippled Sea Queen had evidently gone down like a shot. "Twice I endeavored to speak, but something choked me, and my voice failed. I reached down into my pocket, held close to my eyes the small compass I always carried, and swung the boat's head northward. Even this slight effort at action gave me back some measure of self-control.

"You had better step the mast, Mr. De Nova, and get out what canvas you can spread. There is not much wind, but we'll make the best of what little there is."

They went at the task as though glad to have work given them, but I could see nothing but the dim outlines of their forms.

I bent down toward Lady Darlington; she glanced around and directly into my eyes.

"Are you warm enough?"

"Oh, yes; but—but I hardly know how I am. This has come so suddenly. I am not frightened, but dazed, horrified. Were all the others on board drowned?"

"They must have been. I will question the men in a moment. Only I beg of you do not permit your courage to give way."

She rested her hand upon my knee. "You need not fear for me," she said firmly. "I will not fall you."

The mainsail belled out, catching whatever breeze there was, the boom swinging free and the long-boat leaping well over, as it leaped forward into the fog. The swift motion brought new heart to all of us.

"Pass back the provisions, lads, and we'll stay them away here in the stern."

This task required only a few moments, and when it was completed I was able to discern the mate, seated next to Celeste.

"Now tell me just what occurred, Mr. De Nova," I said. "What was it we bumped into—an iceberg?"

"Zat was it, monsieur. You saw how ze fog lay. By gar, I not see ze fo'c'stle from ze bridge for more as four hour. We run at half-speed w'en you went below. Sacre, zat also was dare! I know you w'at tired, an' so I stand ze watch for six hour. By gar, my eyes burn tryin' to see somethin'. Zen I send down for you to be call. Frotty soon I leave. Lapsch on ze bridge, an' start aft to see w'y you

"Please Tell Me, I—I Wish to Know the Very Worst."

"Not come more quick; I get most to ze companion, when bang! we hit ze iceberg! Zat all I know for ze nex' minute, only zere be hell for'ard, an' zat ship up on end."

"Is that all you can tell? Is there any one else here able to explain?"

"Well sir," said a deep rumbling voice forward, "I was just aft o' the main-hatch when the rumpus happened, a-hangin' on to a life-line. I couldn't see much, but I figure it out like this. We hit a big berg bows on; a lot o' ice caved off on us, an' smashed in the for'ard deck like it was paper, crushin' down everything as fur aft as the engine-room. Both boilers blew up, an' then nothin' held the stern in the air but the after bulk-head. When that finally gave way the ol' hooker dropped to Davy Jones. There wasn't a man ahead o' the main-hatch that had a chance even to run for it."

I caught my breath, feeling a shiver shake me.

"I am unable to make out who are on board," I said at last. "Name yourselves, beginning at the bow."

"Jem' Cole, sir." It was the voice of the negro.

"Next. Speak up, men!"

"Johnson."

"Kelly."

"McKnight."

"Dade."

"Sanchez."

There was a pause, the last voice sounding just abaft the mast-but.

"Is that all?"

"That's all, sir."

"With De Nova, myself, and the two women it makes the count ten. Well, we shan't be crowded for room. This is going to be a hard cruise, lads, but we'll make a stiff fight for it. We're sailors, with a stanch boat under us, and a chance to win out."

There was a faint cheer, rumbling, as if it had caught in their throats, and the negro asked:

"How much of a run is it, boss?"

"I am unable to tell you, Cole," I answered, endeavoring to make my voice sound hopeful, "because I have not had any observation for three days. There is no use lying to you fellows. There is a mighty long stretch between us and any land worth trying after. We are out of the track of ships, and our only hope is to keep the long-boat right side up, and get out of her all the speed possible. Two of you stand by to watch the running gear; the others had better lie down and get some sleep while the wind is light. Turn in with them, De Nova; you will have to relieve me at the tiller later."

The breeze perceptibly freshened, but not sufficiently to require any reefing of canvas, and the fog began drifting away like a great white cloud, leaving revealed the vista of cold gray sea stretching about us. "Lord, but it did look barren and desolate, that ceaselessly heaving expanse of water, amid which we were but the merest speck, scarcely more important than those floating cakes of ice, tossed by the waves through which we sought passage.

At six o'clock we took careful stock of our supply of provisions, and served out a small ration all around; afterward arranging the several watches for the night and distributing, as equally as possible, the blankets and extra clothing. The wind felt colder, the sea coming up a bit, and Dade and Kelly fixed up a piece of spare canvas at the stern to protect the steersman from the dash of icy spray. De Nova took the tiller, and seeing no signs of a bad night I lay down amidships, though not until I had compelled Lady Darlington to seek rest also. Whether she found it or not I can not say, but I was asleep instantly, and knew nothing until Johnson called me at midnight.

There was no great change in conditions as I stumbled sleepily aft to take the tiller. The boat was sailing free, but with a reef in the mainsail, owing to a marked stiffening of the wind. The intense loneliness of the scene cast an even stronger spell over me now,—those awful wastes of solitude above and below; the far-off steely glitter of stars; the near-by white-crested waves; the little, insignificant dot of a boat in which we tossed. I thought upon those leagues upon leagues of barrenness stretching away to the north, east, west, south, the vast fields of ice, the extent of storm-lashed seas, the seeming hopelessness of our efforts at escape, and choked in my throat; my lips pressed tight, my eyes staring blindly out into the smother.

Suddenly the blanket at my feet stirred, and Lady Darlington sat up, her back against the gunwale and face upturned to mine. The cold gleam of the moon revealed her features, clear cut as a cameo, framed by the darkness of her hood. I could distinguish the delicate tracery of her lashes, and, beneath that light, the gray of her eyes appeared black.

"I have been studying your face, Mr. Stephens," she said quietly, "and have read there the helplessness of our situation."

I rallied instantly, endeavoring to speak lightly.

"You translate wrongly. That was only the depression of the scene yonder; the awful loneliness of sea and sky affected my spirits. You should not draw hasty conclusions."

"Nor have I. Even such a sea and sky never gave you that look of despair. I know you too well to believe that. You consider our situation desperate."

I looked at her closely, but it was not fear I saw in the uplifted face.

"It is certainly serious enough," I admitted, believing it useless to attempt any deceit, "but not hopeless. We have a stanch boat under us, sufficient food for all our probable needs, and a favorable wind. While there is life there is hope."

She made a little eloquent gesture of the hands.

"Please do not say that. Those words are always the last effort to bolster up courage. Keep them for the men, but trust me with the exact truth."

"Ask and I will answer."

"What chance have we of rescue?"

"I turned my eyes away before venturing to reply, yet I dared not utter an untruth.

"Two: the being plucked by some passing vessel, or the attaining of inhabitable land."

"Are there any vessels in this sea at this season?"

"It is hardly probable there are, unless it should be some whaler blown from her course around the Horn."

"Then our only practical hope lies in reaching land by our own efforts?"

She leaned forward, her hand touching mine as it grasped the tiller, her earnest eyes compelling me to look at her. "Yes."

"How—how far away is this land?"

I hesitated, actually afraid myself to speak the answer, but her hand clasped merely tightened.

"Please tell me. I—I wish to know the very worst. Such knowledge will be easier to bear than this awful doubt."

"But I hardly know myself," I confessed desperately. "I have had no observation for several days, and can only guess the rate of progress of the Sea Queen, or our drift during the storm. I will be perfectly honest with you, though, and give you my best judgment. I believe we must be between four and five hundred miles to the east and north of Dougherty island, and not yet beyond the limit of drift ice. There would be no use in our attempting to turn back for that point of land, as it is nothing but a rock, and we could never find it by the mere guidance of a compass. Our only chance is to bear away to the north-east toward land and the track of ships."

"How far? What land?"

"The western coast of South America; at least 1,500 miles."

I felt her shudder, and scarcely realizing that I did so, or the significance of the action, impelled by an impulse beyond all control, I drew her hand within both my own as though in pledge of protection.

"It can be done," I insisted. "Such boat voyages have been accomplished."

She made no effort to draw away, her eyes still upon mine.

"Not through such a sea as this; not at this season of the year."

I could not answer, my lips dry, my throat parched.

"You know the utter hopelessness of it," she went on, stimulated by my silence. "You know we can never survive the cold, the closing in of the ice, the certainty of storm. You are a sailor, and a brave man—trust me with the whole truth."

"It would be almost a miracle," I faltered, the words fairly forced from my lips by her insistence. "This is the beginning of winter in the stormiest ocean on the globe. God could do it, but not man."

Her head sank, the white cheek touching my sleeve, but the fearless gray eyes were still open, gazing straight into mine.

"Then it is the certainty of death," she said soberly. "Death together."

My heart leaped as though it had received an electric shock.

"Together! you mean—"

"That I should rather be here, facing death with you, than anywhere else alone," she exclaimed swiftly. "Oh, I can say it frankly now; say it here before you and God; say it in all purity and honor. Perhaps, to-night, perhaps to-morrow, somewhere amid this awful waste of waters we will go together into eternity. What are the dictates of men to us now? What meaning is there any longer to the hideous requirements of the world? We are beyond them all. Here, now, we can be ourselves, ourselves. To-night we are free; to-night I can hear you speak what I have already read in your eyes, and am not afraid to hear it."

"You—you love me?"

"With all my heart and soul."

With everything else blotted out, with all else forgotten, I sat speechless, gazing down through the mist of tears into her eyes.

I turned my eyes away before venturing to reply, yet I dared not utter an untruth.

CHAPTER XXII.

In Which I Understand My Lady.

She rested motionless, her cheek barely touching my sleeve, her eyes filled with love, her hands in mine. Then I heard her voice, soft as a whisper, the breath of her lips on my cheek.

"You will not misjudge me; surely you can not. Those words would never have been uttered in any other circumstances. Not that I am afraid, not that I am ashamed or regretful; but nothing else could ever have set me free. Now we must know, understand each other—we must die with our hearts open, our souls clean. HIS HOBBIES.

Jimpson—Is Watson a pleasant talking man?
Simpson—Yes—if you don't get him started on religion, golf, automobiles or politics.

Knew Her Latin.

"De-f-e-n-d-a-m," spelled the youngster on the rear seat as the "rubber-neck" wagon was passing the Twenty-second Regiment armory, at Broadway and Sixty-eighth street. "What does that mean, auntie?"

"I didn't quite catch what the guide said," replied the old lady. "Oh, Mr. Guide, won't you kindly tell us what it says on that building?"

"De-f-en-dum!" roared the guide through his megaphone, dividing the word into three sections.

"That's what it is," said the old lady. "A deaf and dumb asylum."

Tit for Tat.

Stranger (to prominent clergyman)—I came in here, sir, to criticize your church management and tell you how it ought to be run.

Prominent Clergyman (amazed)—What do you mean, sir? How dare you? Who are you, anyway?

"I am the humble editor of the paper you have been writing to."—Life.

Something to Crow About.

The Gander—Suffering cats! What sort of noise-germ has got into that ridiculous rooster lately? His darn crowing has developed into a continuous performance.

The Drake—Why, he imagines he's in the public eye since the production of Rostand's "Chanteclair."

The Stock

which goes into a shoe is most important. Leather being the one ideal material, the only reason for "substitutes" must be cheapness. Cheapness never adds to quality, nor does a counterfeit equal the genuine.

For that reason the solid-leather "Star Brand" shoe is the proper shoe. It is real—exactly what it purports to be—is just what it is sold for, and worth every cent it costs. It stands for the trinity of shoe goodness—style, comfort, durability.

Foley's Kidney Remedy may be given to children with admirable results. It does away with bed wetting, and is also recommended for use after measles and scarlet fever. Hite's Drug Store.

In most of the local option counties of the state organizations have been formed through which the enforcement of law will be required and aggressive sentiment in opposition to the saloon will be kept alive. It is well recognized now that the fight against the liquor traffic cannot take a vacation in any county if the saloons are to be kept out. The education which the people of Michigan have received during recent weeks as to saloons means and saloon methods has been such as to fully acquaint them with what to expect from such sources. The formation of city and township organizations will prove the best possible means of preparation for successful anti-saloon work.

The Conservation of Nature's Resources. Applies as well to our physical state as to material things. C. J. Budlong, Washington, R. I. realized his condition and took warning before it was too late. He says: "I suffered severely from kidney trouble, the disease being hereditary in our family. I have taken four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy, and now consider myself thoroughly cured. This should be a warning to all not to neglect taking Foley's Kidney Remedy until it is too late." Hite's Drug Store.

"For God's Sake do Something"

We have answered this cry in our new book "Fighting the Traffic in Young Girls" by Ernest A. Bell, U. S. District Attorney Sims and others. The most sensational indictment of the White Slave Trade ever published. It tells how thousands of young girls are lured from their homes annually and sold into a life of shame. The Cincinnati Inquirer says "Of all the books of the season the War on the White Slave Trade is the most helpful; it should be read by every man, woman and child." Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

"Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statements of this East Jordan citizen.

Mrs. J. Litney, Easterly Ave., East Jordan, Mich., says: "I have no hesitation whatever in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills for I found them to be a remedy of great merit in cases of kidney trouble. I was afflicted with this complaint for several years and suffered greatly from backaches and distressing pains through my kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured from Gannett Co.'s drug store, have never failed to give me prompt relief, strengthening my back and regulating the passages of the kidney secretions."

Candidates Take Notice.

It pays candidates for public office to refrain from formally announcing their candidacy, according to assistant attorney general Chase.

"The candidate who has not announced himself as such has an advantage over the one who has gone in to the game with a formal statement early in the campaign," said Mr. Chase. "Until he is an avowed candidate, he cannot break the law as laid down in the statutes for it has no jurisdiction over him until that time. Therefore he may send out what matter he chooses; paste his likeness on every bill board and enjoy a dozen other privileges that his opponent who is an avowed candidate cannot enjoy."

"I know that every candidate in the field will break the law before he has closed his campaign. Most of them are doing it now. They are doing it innocently enough, however, it's merely that the wonderful maze of the primary-law is too intricate an entanglement for any man to thread without becoming bewildered."

Scared into Sound Health.

Mr. B. F. Kelley, Springfield, Ill., writes: "A year ago I began to be troubled with my kidneys and bladder, which grew worse until I became alarmed at my condition. I suffered also with dull heavy headaches and the action of my bladder was annoying and painful. I read of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them a few weeks the headaches left me, the action of my bladder was again normal, and I was free from all distress." Hite's Drug Store.

There were 108 arrests for drunkenness in Pontiac during month of May, under saloon influences, as compared with 14 for the previous month, just before the saloons returned. The justice whose privilege it was to give the jail sentences to the products of Pontiac's "regulated" saloons says that most of the past month's harvest was made of new faces, a majority of the "drunks" of former saloon days having been weaned away from their saloon habits during the local option period. The "new faces" will probably be more profitable to the Pontiac saloons until they too in time attain the status described as "old soaks" by that city's justice of the peace. Inasmuch as the drunks paid about $1,900 into the city treasury as fine requirements in addition to their helping the business of the town by paying most of their earnings into the saloon tills, the past month for Pontiac will probably be regarded as a big advance over the month before. Of course there must have been many families in Pontiac from whom—but who cares for the families or what happens to them if only other "business" elements are satisfied.

What a Summer Cold May Do.

A summer cold if neglected is just as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other season. Do not neglect it. Take Foley's Honey and Tar promptly. It loosens the cough, soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, and expels the cold from the system." Hite's Drug Store.

RELIEVE Neuralgia

TAKE ONE OF THESE LITTLE TABLETS AND THE PAIN IS GONE.

"I have awful spells of Neuralgia and have doctored a great deal without getting much benefit. For the last two years I have been taking Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills and they always relieve me. I have been so bad with Neuralgia that I sometimes thought I would go crazy. Sometimes it is necessary to take two of them, but never more, and they are sure to relieve me." MRS. FERRIER, 2434 Lynn St., Lincoln, Neb. Sold by druggists everywhere, who are authorized to return price of first package if they fail to benefit. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Newberry, Mich., Feb. 12, 1910.

A. T. Washburne, Prop.
Petoskey, Mich.

Dear Sirs:—The Rugs came yesterday and are simply superb. If I could see old stagers converted and made over as new as those Rugs are I should think that perfection was reached in transforming men.

How you can do it out of such old carpets is a surprise to me. Your charges are reasonable. Your work is excellent. Your attention to patrons is commendable. And the products of your looms surpassing all our expectations.

With many thanks, we remain,

Sincerely,
Rev. Levi Bird, Ph. D.,
Pastor Newberry M. E. Church,
P. S.—You are at liberty to use this letter if you care to do so.

We have hundreds of such letters as above coming from nearly every state in the Union on file at our office for inspection.
