Good Fellowship

Keynote of the Republican Banquet Held Last Evening.

The first annual Banquet of the Charlevoix County Republican Club will mark one of the leading historic points in the history of Charlevoix County Republicanism.

That the Republican Club of Charlevoix County is now on an established basis is now a certainty and the good it will do in bringing together each year the Republicans of all parts of Charlevoix County for both pleasure and counsel, is inestimable.

The Banquet of last evening was all that could be desired in every respect and all who took part in making it the success that it was, are deserving of highest praise. President Mc-

JUDGE J. M. HARRIS, Toastmaster

Millan and Secretary Robbins have been indefatigable workers the past few weeks and the event of last evening is one that they may well feel proud of.

The Annual Meeting.

Prior to the Banquet the first annual business meeting was held and the members of the organization, fully realizing the value of the different officers, who had been elected temporarily last February, decided that they should continue another year.

Those elected were:

President, H. I. McMillan of East Jordan.

Secretary, Ford P. Robbins of Boyne Falls.

Treasurer, L. S. See of Charlevoix.

Executive Committee:—J. H. Milford of East Jordan; Frank Blair of Boyne City, A. J. Stroud of Horton Bay.

The officers and executive committee were authorized to make any changes in the list of Vice Presidents they might deem advisable.

The By-Laws Committee, who were appointed previously to adopt a suitable set of by-laws, reported that they were not ready to report and Judge Mayne "fessed-up" that he had forgotten all about it up till a week ago, that he had then drafted up some by-laws and forgot and left them at home. The Committee was continued another year, at which time it is hoped there will be "somedings doing."

The time and place for the next Banquet was left in the hands of the officers.

No resolutions were adopted, as is customary in such gatherings.

HON. PATRICK H. KELLY

The Banquet.

The new dining-room of the Russell House was opened last evening to as large a crowd as will grace their board for many a day. Over 150 partook of the refreshments, it being necessary to set second tables to accommodate the guests. The room was artistically decorated in the national colors, with pictures of Washington, Lincoln, McKinley and Roosevelt adorning the walls. In the centre was a large banner bearing the title "Charlevoix County Republican Club." The tables were artistically arranged, with carnations as favors. Prior to and during the Banquet the Metropolitan Orchestra furnished delightful music, the "Hang Your Hat in East Jordan" receiving particular appreciation. President McMillan called the assemblage to order and Rev. A. D. Grigsby, pastor of the Presbyterian church, pronounced the Inyocation. Following is the

HON. HENRY R. PATTENGILL

Toastmaster Hon. J. M. Harris of Boyne City took charge of the Toasts and, following a few well-chosen remarks, introduced Congressman Francis H. Dodds of Mt. Pleasant, who spoke on "The Revision of the Tariff and the Effect of That Revision." Mr. Dodds spoke briefly of the history of the tariff in the United States from its inception down to the present time and its effect upon our industries. In conclusion he said that conditions were as good now as they ever have been, and that our officials stand ever ready to do what was right.

Dr. F. H. Wilkinson of Charlevoix favored the audience with the song "The Sword of Bunker Hill" which was much appreciated by the audience, although it was detracted from somewhat by the blasts from the Str. Beaver out in the lake. In fact that "dog-gasted" boat hastened the evening's enjoyment to an altogether too early end for the treat of the evening was the short talks by Michigan's two Pats—Patrick H. Kelly and Henry R. Pattengill. Mr. Kelly gave a short address on "Republicanism," and he prefaced it by paying a tribute to Congressman Dodds, under whom Mr. Kelly studied law for a number of years, at Mt. Pleasant. Mr. Kelly made a host of friends while here. He has a warm, genial personality, that to know the man is to like him.

Following Mr. Kelly, Hon. H. R. Pattengill—Michigan's original Pat—spoke for a few minutes in his usual pointed way, injecting some of his innumerable terse stories by way of application. It was regretted by all that the night had so far advanced that it was necessary for the speakers to cut their addresses short.

Earlier in the evening our Band played several selections on the street, and Mr. Kelly and Mr. Pattengill both addressed a large audience in behalf of the former's candidacy for governorship honors.

Present Position

May Be Key to Your Future Success

By THURDE RAYLE BRUCE

KEEP your eye on your present job even while you are looking for a new one, is advice any good business man will give for the asking.

The young man in question is drawing a fair salary, but has kept one young man I know from advancing beyond the years and in all that time has had his hopes and ambitions set on a position with a large coal company, where the chances for advancement are great.

Again and again has he tried for a place with the coal firm, only to be "turned down," although other young fellows with less energy and native ability than he has have been given good jobs with that same concern.

The head of the coal firm, in response to the minister's queries, told him a few years before this young aspirant for a job was sent by his employer to the yards of the coal company.

He was to watch the weighing of a quantity of coal that was to be delivered to his employer's store. The head of the coal concern was doing the weighing himself.

Probably the clerk thought this was a good way to curry favor with the coal dealer and that to attend to his proscribed work would seem to reflect on the honesty of the dealer.

"Give that chap a job?" concluded the dealer, after reciting this little story to the minister. "Well, I guess not. He wouldn't do the work his other employer had set for him and how do I know but that he would shirk my work as well?"

Hard Work of Checking Operator

By HAZEL M. BLOOM

In spite of the many stories that have been written and told about the telephone girl and her troubles, there is one girl behind the scenes that is seldom spoken of and few people know exists. This is the checking operator and her position is important.

It is generally known that the great amount of profit made by any phone system is through the long-distance section and it is in this department that the checking girl reigns supreme.

good long-distance operator is insistent on knowing the correct name and phone number and particularly if the phone the person is speaking over belongs to him.

Constantly throughout the month this check-girl calls up offices of the surrounding towns and compares the tickets and checks up with the girl at the other end of the line.

The checking operator generally is a girl, who has been promoted first from the regular switchboard to the long distance board and then to her present position.

In large cities from eight to ten of these girls are employed all the time to keep account of the company's business, but in a town of from 30,000 to 50,000 one check operator is able to handle the work.

More Attention to Crippled Children

By WELLS ANDREWS, M. D.

The New York state hospital shows an altogether creditable report. To Minnesota belongs the credit of the establishment in 1897 of the first hospital for crippled children through the efforts of Dr. Gillette of St. Paul.

An institution of this character should be a home for these unfortunate ones, where educational advantages go hand in hand with medical and surgical measures.

And why should not the state aid in such an effort? A strictly dependent and every day much-neglected class is being only half cared for by the excellent medical institutions established for its relief.

The educational and charitable systems of the state should be adapted to meet the demands of this class of crippled and deformed as fully as are those for the deaf, the dumb, the blind or the insane

Of late years much has been said about the value of the small farm. Few people stop to consider the value of the small field when it is given intelligent care and cultivation.

Not many years ago the farmer who tried to cultivate large fields was considered the man who was doing large things. Modern methods of farming have taught us that large things can be done in the small field.

THE LAST VOYAGE OF THE DONNA ISABEL

BY RANDALL BARRISH
AUTHOR OF "DARWIN'S DISCOVERY," ETC.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the introduction of John Stephens, an adventurous Massachusetts man marooned by authorities at Valparaiso, Chile. Being interested in mining operations, he had been denounced by Chile as an insurrectionist and as a consequence was hiding. At his hotel his attention was attracted by an Englishman and a young woman. Stephens rescued the young woman from a drunken officer. He was thanked by her, Admiral of the Peruvian navy, who had been declared between Chile and Peru and offered him the office of captain. He agreed that that night the Donna Isabel was to be captured. Stephens accepted the commission. Stephens met a motley crew to which he was assigned. He gave them final instructions. They boarded the vessel. They successfully captured the vessel supposed to be the Kamerada, through strategy. Captain Stephens gave a signal for the departure of the craft. He entered the cabin and discovered the English woman and her maid. Stephens quickly captured them. It was Lord Darlington's private yacht, the lord's wife and maid being aboard. He explained the situation to the crew. Then Captain Tuttle laid bare the plot, saying that the Sea Queen had been taken in order to go to the Antarctic circle. Tuttle explained that on a former voyage he had learned that the Donna Isabel was lost in 1753. He had found it frozen in a huge case of ice on an island and contacted much of the expedition. He told Lady Darlington. She was greatly alarmed but expressed confidence in him. The Sea Queen encountered a vessel in the fog. Stephens attempted to communicate. This caused a fierce struggle and he was overboard. Tuttle finally saved the situation. Then the Sea Queen headed south again. Under Tuttle's guidance the vessel made progress toward its goal. De Nova, the mate, told Stephens that he believed Tuttle, now acting as skipper, insane because of his queer actions. Stephens was awakened by crashing of glass. He saw Tuttle in the grip of a spasm of religious mania and overcame him. The sailor upon regaining his senses was taken ill. Tuttle committed suicide by shooting. Upon vote of the crew Stephens assumed the leadership and the men decided to continue the treasure hunt, the island being supposed to be only 200 miles distant. Tuttle was buried in the sea. Lady Darlington pronouncing the service. Stephens awaking from sleep saw the ghost, supposed to have formed the basis for Tuttle's religious mania. Upon advice of Lady Darlington, Stephens started to probe the ghost. He came upon Lieutenant Sanchez, the drunken officer he had humbled in Chile. He found that at Sanchez' inspiration, Engineer McKnight played "ghost" to scare the men into giving up the quest. Stephens announced that the Sea Queen was at the spot where Tuttle's quest was supposed to be. Stephens and his crew went on in further search. De Nova and Stephens conquered them in a fist fight. Lady Darlington thanked him. The Sea Queen started north. Stephens was in a quandary for Stephens, De Nova, Lady Darlington and her maid being among those to set out on a life-or-death quest. Stephens had only one chance in a thousand for life. Lady Darlington entrusted her life to Stephens and he did likewise. Lady Darlington was wrecked in a storm and her hand was paralyzed for a time, her yearning for absent love. She revealed herself as the school chum of Stephens' sister. She expressed a wish to die in the sea rather than face her former friends and go back to the old life. A ship was sighted. The craft proved to be a derelict. They boarded her. She was wrecked in a storm with hundreds of years of ice. The vessel was the Donna Isabel, lost in 1753, 125 years previous. The frozen bodies of the former crew were removed.

CHAPTER XXV.—Continued.

When the dishes had finally been removed I gave the men permission to smoke, went back to the after stateroom, and brought forth the log-book, which we made an effort to decipher. It was roughly written and by a number of different hands, and between us our knowledge of early Spanish script was barely sufficient to enable us to read a portion of it. The earlier entries made by the captain, although badly faded, were legible enough, bringing the story of the voyage down to the latter part of July, and recounting a series of severe gales, involving the loss of several members of the crew. Then a new hand took up the pen. "Balaza, first officer," the captain having been killed by a falling spar; for a week or ten days the tale was of fierce struggles in the ice-pack, and a steady drift to the southward. Others followed—"Alcassar, second officer," "Salvatore, government agent," every line the record of new disaster, gales, wrecked rigging and death. They were locked in beyond all hope early in August, vast hummocks overhanging the deck, the forecabin sealed by ice, the cold so deadly the red-hot stove scarcely kept the numbing chill from the cabin, the doors and windows of which they had covered with blankets. Not a day passed but that they carried out their dead upon the ice, leaving them beyond sight of the deck. The names were all written down. There came a time when the survivors were too few and weak even for that service; when they could do nothing but cower within the cabin and cast dice to settle on who should go down into the icy hold and bring up the fuel which alone kept life in them. They drank and played cards; they quarreled, forgetting everything human and reverting to brutes. The child of Senora Alcatraz died; the next day the mother went quietly to sleep, never to wake again. They did not even know when her final breath came. She was the last of the women. The boatswain, Pedro Reo, passed away that same night, sitting on the deck; and there was left only Salvatore, who had gone mad, a seaman named Juan Ruiz, and a passenger, Antonio Salter. It was the latter who wrote the final entry, September 11, 1753: "I touched Ruiz just now, he was stone cold; there is only Salvatore left, grinning at me across the table; the last candle is going out, too, and I haven't strength to go after more. Jesu, mercy." It ended in the blank page.

"Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me, Over Life's Tempestuous Sea."

"Doris, sweetheart," I whispered, my words barely audible to her alone, "this will drive us all mad unless we can do something to bring back faith and hope. I beg of you to sing to us, sing to us here."

She looked up, white-faced, wet-eyed, her hands trembling violently as they touched mine.

"Oh, I could not, I could not; the words would choke me."

She arose unsteadily to her feet, gripping the table, then the back of the bench, and thus helped, staggered rather than walked forward. A long, breathless moment she stood, grasping the window-casing, staring blindly into the dark, the snow flecking the glass, her shoulders bent and trembling. She turned slowly, ashen-lipped, one hand shadowing her eyes. Twice she endeavored vainly to find voice; then, clear, yet with the glistering of tears clinging to each word, she sang:

Jesus, Saviour, pilot me
Over life's tempestuous sea;
Unknown waves before me roll,
Hiding rock, and treacherous shoal,
Chart and compass come from Thee;
Jesus, Saviour, pilot me.

While I live I remember the wondrous change in her face as she sang—the effect pictured in those faces watching her.

As a mother stills her child,
Thou canst hush the ocean wild;
Boisterous waves obey Thy will,
When Thou sayest to them: "Be still,"
Wondrous Sovereign of the Sea,
Jesus, Saviour, pilot me.

She straightened, her fine eyes darkening, and I noticed Johnson leaning forward, clenching the table with his hard hands.

When at last I near the shore,
And the fearful breakers roar,
Twixt me and the peaceful rest,
Then, while leaning on Thy breast,
May I hear Thee say to me,
"Fear not, I will pilot thee."

In the intense silence that followed she crossed to where I sat, placed one hand upon my shoulder, and bent down until her cheek pressed my sleeve. One by one the men fled gravely out into the darkness of the deck, leaving us there alone.

CHAPTER XXVI.

In Which We Find Treasure.

We began to dream of treasure as soon as the fierce winds ceased and the waves fell. The lust for wealth, partially blunted by the requirements of hardship and peril, revived within us the instant nature granted a temporary respite. The memory of the three million pesos that might be stowed away below began to haunt our imaginations, and the story of it found utterance on our lips. The negro blurted it forth, his eyes rolling, and De Nova came direct to me, asking, in behalf of the men, the privilege of making search. There was no excuse for refusal, even had I desired to find one, as the decks were cleared of the debris left by the storm, and the Donna Isabel rode her course easily to a lashed helm. Leaving Dade above to keep a watchful eye on the weather, I willingly led the others into the steward's pantry, where we pried open the door leading down into the lazarette.

That same intense cold of the Antarctic smote us the moment the creaking hinges yielded, and we stood peering down through the aperture. We waited impatiently for the first frigid breath to escape, huddled about the stove in the cabin, and recalling various sea tales of treasure seeking, which only served to whet our appetite for the coming adventure. Now and then I lifted my eyes, meeting Doris' questioning glance, and assured that I understood her mood.

At last, but well wrapped in our mufflers and bearing a candle aloft to cast its flickering yellow light through the pitchy darkness, we ventured below, scrambling down the short ladder. Cole held the gim, his black face shining, the whites of his eyes conspicuous as he stared eagerly about. We found innumerable boxes and barrels, crates, bottles and wicker flasks, some open, the packing straw strewn about; others tightly nailed, piled everywhere, evidence that the galleon had been amply provisioned for a long voyage, and that her crew had never perished of starvation. It had been the cold, the loneliness, the awful agony of their hopeless condition that had left the Donna Isabel a charnel ship. We handled this collection rapidly, contenting ourselves with merely testing the weight of each package, quickly convinced that none was heavy enough to conceal precious metal. This job must have occupied more than an hour, handicapped as we were by the poor light, and several times I glanced through the open trap overhead to observe the faces of the women framed there as they watched us silently. Once Dade stared down, bringing word the sky was thickening in the west, and lingering to observe our operations until I had to order him back upon deck.

A solid, nail-studded, oaken door appeared in the forward bulkhead, and so soon as we had succeeded in mandling every article stored within the lazarette, I had a passage cleared to it, the men working with feverish impatience. When finally reached, the door was locked and seemingly as solid as the bulkhead itself, nor did a search of the after staterooms reveal any keys. No doubt they were in Salvatore's pocket, many a league astern. But Kelly and McKnight brought down the cleaver and an iron bar, and proceeded to burst it open, the rest of us crowding about, too cold and excited to keep still, but very confident the treasure awaited us within. My own heart beat fiercely with anticipation, and I heard De Nova swearing in French, quite unable to control himself. It seemed to me that door would never yield; but at last Johnson managed to get a purchase low down, and with Cole heaving at his side, they fairly tore the wood asunder. Through the considerable opening thus made there burst a torrent of icy water into our very faces, extinguishing the light, and sending us stumbling backward to the ladder, up which we swarmed almost in panic. Anything unexpected in that ghost-ship made cowards of us all, and we fought our way forth into the daylight in a suddenness of terror almost ludicrous, swearing and clawing at each other like madmen.

It required another hour for the deluge of water to drain away through the deck, after which we ventured below again, the roughest candle revealing slush-ice everywhere, with a considerable trickle still gurgling through the hole in the door. However, we had an opening to work at, and soon succeeded in tearing most of the obstruction away piecemeal, only to be confronted by a solid barrier of glittering ice fully five feet thick, leaving a space at the top of the door barely sufficient for a man's body to pass through. De Nova, cursing as if he had gone crazy, hoisted me to the top of it, where I clung precariously, holding the sputtering candle aloft, and peering about over the gleaming surface and through into the black shadows. Good Lord, but it was cold, repellent, frightful! The beams supporting the deck, huge, black timbers, were within easy reach of my hand, and forward the spectral glow of daylight streamed in through the rift in the deck-planks above. But from one bulging side to the other extended this solid mass of ice, the congealed draining of a century of waves that had dashed their salt spray down the opening ripped by the wrecked mainmast. No wonder the old bulk hung sodden with all that load below!

I crawled forward as far as the silvery butt of the mainmast whence I could look up through the splintered deck to the narrow strip of sky overhead. There was a bulkhead forward, but the ice extended the solidly to the wood. I could hear the ceaseless swell of the sea pounding against the sides, the groaning of timbers, the flapping of the jib's canvas, and realized more than ever before the sickening, sudden roll of the laden hull. The level surface of the ice told plainly enough its story of formation; when all that water came through, the vessel had been upon an even keel, imbedded firmly, no doubt, in the ice-pack. I crept back as cautiously as I had advanced, the rolling of the wreck rendering the slippery surface dangerous to travel over. The men watched me anxiously as I slid down into the lazarette.

"What did you find, sir?"

"Nothing except ice, solid ice clear to the forward bulkhead. It looks as though we had reached the end of our treasure-hunt, my lads."

There was a sullen growl of profanity, McKnight viciously slashing at the ice-front with his cleaver. Twice he struck, with no other object except the venting of his ungovernable anger, his forehead beaded; the great muscles of his arms standing out like whiplashes. A considerable chunk scaled off, falling thumping to the deck, and causing him to spring backward to escape injury. As if maddened by this, he drove in the blade of the ax again—it clanged against metal! We all heard it; we all witnessed the rebound.

and sending us stumbling backward to the ladder, up which we swarmed almost in panic. Anything unexpected in that ghost-ship made cowards of us all, and we fought our way forth into the daylight in a suddenness of terror almost ludicrous, swearing and clawing at each other like madmen.

It required another hour for the deluge of water to drain away through the deck, after which we ventured below again, the roughest candle revealing slush-ice everywhere, with a considerable trickle still gurgling through the hole in the door. However, we had an opening to work at, and soon succeeded in tearing most of the obstruction away piecemeal, only to be confronted by a solid barrier of glittering ice fully five feet thick, leaving a space at the top of the door barely sufficient for a man's body to pass through. De Nova, cursing as if he had gone crazy, hoisted me to the top of it, where I clung precariously, holding the sputtering candle aloft, and peering about over the gleaming surface and through into the black shadows. Good Lord, but it was cold, repellent, frightful! The beams supporting the deck, huge, black timbers, were within easy reach of my hand, and forward the spectral glow of daylight streamed in through the rift in the deck-planks above. But from one bulging side to the other extended this solid mass of ice, the congealed draining of a century of waves that had dashed their salt spray down the opening ripped by the wrecked mainmast. No wonder the old bulk hung sodden with all that load below!

At Haslach, in the Kinzig valley, in Germany, February 22 is a holiday and has been observed as one for hundreds of years. Once upon a time, the story teller who explains its origin begins, Haslach was overrun with snakes, and no one knew how to drive them out. One day a great flock of storks appeared, and they were the saviors of the place. In recognition of this deliverance from the pest, which occurred on February 2, the day has been kept sacred and is known as "Stork day." An appointed official known as the "Stork Father" parades the streets, followed by as many children as care to join the procession. He wears his "Sunday clothes" and a high hat, decorated with two stuffed storks. Storks are made by this procession at houses along the line and the children receive gifts of sweets and small coins, every householder feeling pleased to show his gratitude to the stork.

Puzzle for Cupid.

A young man named Jamie had been calling quite often where there were two sisters of nearly the same age. It was a sort of joke to the girls as to which was the attraction, as he invariably asked for both and divided his attention impartially. One evening when he called only one of the girls was at home—by arrangement—but, as usual, he asked her to sing, as they were all fond of music. In a spirit of mischief she sang, "Take Me, Jamie, Dear," which left him rather breathless, but smiling. A little later the other sister came in, bright and bewitching, and upon being requested to sing she sat down at the piano willingly and sang, "If Jamie Asks Me to Marry Him What Shall I Say?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Would Sell Mountain.

A peculiar real estate deal is under consideration by the authorities of Veybaux, in Switzerland, who have been approached with a proposal for the purchase of a mountain in the neighborhood. The mountain is valued at some $55,000, and as it is difficult of access, it is proposed to construct one of those wonderful railways to be seen at Pilatus of the Rigi, and then to establish hotels on the top. Of course the commune is poor, and the "Conscript Fathers" think the purchase price would prove a windfall, hence their desire to realize on their mountain. The offer to purchase comes from a company.

SHARKS ARE THE VICTORS IN BATTLE WITH A WHALE

FIGHT LASTS THREE HOURS AS HUGE MAMMAL VAINLY STRUGGLES WITH THRESHERS.

Meibourne.—While engaged in building new quarters for the lighthouse keeper at Breaksea Island, near Rottnest, Western Australia, the contractor and his men noticed a bull whale, with a cow and calf, passing the island some distance off.

An hour or so later—about nine o'clock, to be exact—the men were started by an extraordinary noise, apparently coming from the eastern end of the island, a noise unlike anything they had ever heard before. Dropping their tools and staring toward the east, they beheld such a sight as it falls to the lot of few people to witness. There, not 500 yards from the shore, was being waged a battle to the death—a fight between the great cow whale previously seen and a school of thresher sharks.

The sharks, as though acting in accordance with some preconcerted plan, had completely surrounded the two whales, and, apparently realizing that nothing was to be feared from the calf, concentrated all their efforts upon the cow. Again and again they charged in upon her, their jaws snapping, tearing at her mighty sides until the sea was red with blood. Meanwhile the cow lashed her tail furiously, hurling up sheets of reddened water and occasionally crashing down with terrific force upon one of her voracious opponents. Maddened with pain and rage, she dashed this way and that, but the sharks hung to her side with a persistency and ferocity that made the fascinated onlookers shudder.

Presently the spellbound spectators realized two facts—firstly, that the calf had disappeared in the melee, and secondly, that the tortured whale was undoubtedly becoming weaker. It was obvious that the unequal struggle could have only one ending. Still, however, she fought on doggedly, winning admiration and sympathy by her exhibition of hopeless courage. Altering her tactics, by a supreme effort she hurled her whole great bulk clear of the water for a moment, and the fascinated onlookers beheld the sharks hanging from various parts of her gleaming body by their serrated teeth. Then down she went again, with a crash like thunder, and for an instant whale and sharks were buried amid masses of foam, heavily colored with the poor mammal's life blood. Rising again, she essayed another change of plan, making for the rocks and desperately striving to rub off the clinging sharks against their edges. But the threshers were equal to the occasion; while those on the outside maintained their grip, the others dived under their enemy and charged her anew, tearing at the whale's side in an ecstasy of ferocity that was bloodcurdling to witness.

More and more feeble grew the whale's struggles, and at last—the heartiest rener of the spectators, for her death fight had been terrible to behold—the great body turned over and sank beneath the red-tinted water. The unequal battle was over, having lasted from nine o'clock until noon—as awe-inspiring a contest as man was ever privileged to witness.

Forty-eight hours afterward the whale's body, which had in the mean time become distended with gas, rose to the surface and exploded with a roar like a miniature powder magazine, causing the startled people to rush to the shore to discover what had happened.

Bad Now and Growing Worse.

The Sunday News, of Port Huron, the especial organ of the liquor traffic of that city and that section of the state, makes this declaration in its issue of last Saturday, July 9:

"There were more drunken men on the streets of Port Huron last Sunday than we have seen before in five years and men cannot get drunk unless they get liquor and they cannot get liquor unless the places where liquor is sold are open. And therefore there were places open. And under the present state of affairs it won't be long until they will all be open. There are not only men getting liquor on Sunday who should not get it but the "Indian" list is being violated openly and the town is full of drunks that could be employed at good wages so that they could take care of their families or parents. But so long as we have a mayor with strong liquor interests this deplorable state of affairs will continue."

This is the status of the "regulated" saloons of Port Huron as openly admitted by a newspaper that now seeks recognition as their first friend and representative. Where how is the business men's association of Port Huron that pledged for the saloon-keepers observances of law? Where? Just where it was expected it would be—waiting in silence until the saloons of that city need its assistance again.

Briefs of the Week

Att'y A. H. Nicholas, Jr., and brother-in-law J. D. Pennington took in the Elks convention at Detroit this week.

The Boyne City Marine Band brought over a crowd of excursionists on the Str. Cummins Saturday evening. While here the band favored our townspeople with several selections.

A party of our young ladies consisting of Florence Maddaugh, Harriet Graft, Ruby Taylor, Winnie Mollard, Winnie Raino, Mary Miller, Norma Stachus, Grace Light, Winnie Maddaugh and Isabel Lampert, are taking an outing down near Holy Island.

The interior of the vaults of the State Bank of East Jordan are being re-constructed. A lot of the old equipment is being thrown out and in their place a fine line of safety deposit boxes are being installed, which will amply care for their increasing business.

The county local option gathering at Charlevoix on Wednesday interested our local workers. Those in attendance from here were W. P. Porter, who was made chairman of the meeting, J. H. Milford, Clark Haire, E. A. Lewis, E. J. Crossman, M. H. Robertson, Elder Dudley, Frost Robertson and W. W. Lampert.

Two cases of the largest and finest strawberries that ever grew out of doors were contributed by a Charlevoix fruit grower to the Western Michigan Development Bureau. The berries have been put in a preserving solution, in large jars that they may be used as evidence of the producing power of the Charlevoix section of Western Michigan.

A bunch of East Jordan's fair daughters, chaperoned by Mrs. Crowell, Miss Lydia Cook, and Miss Beulah Harburt, spent the past week outing on the Ashley farm near Holy Island. The party consisted of Reta Carr, Gladys Kenny, Flora Simmons, Ethel Crowell, Verschie Lorraine, Erma Hulbert, Hazel Cummins, Edna Tompkins, Mamie Churchill and Delia Martinek of Central Lake.

The Annual School Meeting last Monday evening was one of the most harmonious ever held. The annual financial statement showed receipts of $18,744.38 and an equal amount of disbursements. The Board recommended the raising of $13,000, which was endorsed by the taxpayers. Trustees L. A. Hoyt and A. M. Murphy were elected to succeed themselves. It was voted to have nine and one-half months of school.

Of course it is easy for those who want to succeed Senator Burrows, to find fault with the tariff. But are these ambitious gentlemen going into the details as to the changes they would make if they were to have their way in working a new tariff? Would they cut the farm products schedules? Would they slice the schedules of manufactured goods? Would they put the raw materials which Michigan produces on the free list? It is easy, dead easy to find fault in biased and glittering generalities, but why do not the fault-finders give particulars? When they criticize the tariff what special schedules have they in mind?

Following the adjourned session of two weeks ago, a meeting of local option workers of the county was held at Charlevoix on Wednesday to consider articles of agreement for a permanent organization. The committee appointed at the earlier meeting submitted their report, the same having already been quite thoroughly discussed in various sections of the county so there was no lengthy debate on Wednesday. The constitution as finally adopted commits the organization to the enforcement of law and order, and leaves untouched the question of political interference. There will be another meeting the first Monday in August at Van Peit's hall, Charlevoix, to elect officers and look after other interests of the organization.

Potatoes are glutting the market all over northern Michigan. On the M. C. R. R. tracks in Bay City stands one consignment of 800 bushels that is offered at 3 cents per bu. for the entire lot and has for over 24 hours remained unsold. The shipment was made by a Vanderbilt man who despaired of getting them, and out a taker could be found. Last year at this time potatoes from the north were snapped up on the jump at 80 cents per bushel. Bay county farmers are coming for 6, 8, 10 and 12 cents per bushel to carry out to their farms as hog feed. This is said to be the first instance on local records where the farmer has come to the city to buy farm products for use on his farm. The potatoes are boiled in great iron kettles and make excellent hog fateners. A movement is now on foot to induce charitable organizations to store potatoes for use later on among the needy.—Ex.

Ode to a Dish-Pan

From the Man's Magazine Page of The Delinquent.

By OSCAR LLEWELLYN

Oh, Dish-Pan!
Bright solace of my lonely days,
To thee I raise
This Dishpan of praise.
Thou wert not deemed of old
A proper instrument for man; the bold,

But fell to woman's lot, and she
Deftly did wonders every day with thee.

Now, times have changed and I
Must try
To solve the mysteries in thee' immored

(I must confess I liked it not at first,
But yet,
I am the husband of a suffragette,
And she must go
With her wild sisters, shrieking, to and fro.

To save our race
From everlasting depths of dire disgrace,
And I am left with thee, oh, Dish-
pan, dear;

We two must stay right here.
And in thy yawning depths I gaily pile

Glasses, china, silver (in my reckless style.)
Turn in hot water, set the soap afloat.
(I wish I knew why women want to vote!)

But man, mere man, must meekly
bear his lot,
(Great jumping parrot! that hot water's hot!)

So, Dish-pan, emblem of our Hearth
and Home,
To thee I dedicate this loving poem.
And unto thee I bring

To thee I sing,
All laud and honor, praise and fame;
No longer thou art but an empty
name

But stern reality. Though I might choose
Some nobler instrument each day to use,

'Tis not for me. Not yet,
For I'm the husband of a suffragette.
You bet!

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

branches of the National Guard of our various states, and a similar activity is manifest on the part of many civilian clubs organized primarily for the promotion of rifle practice. Finally, even the school boys of the country have been enlisted in the matches are held during the latter part of each summer at Camp Perry, in northern Ohio. The shooting is continuous for more than a month, on what are generally accounted the finest rifle ranges on this continent. At these tournaments shooting is in progress from 8 to 11 o'clock each morning, and from 1 to 5 o'clock every afternoon. There are revolver matches at 25 and 50 yards, and rifle contests at 200, 300, 600, 800 and 1,000 yards. Contesting teams are divided into different classes according to the showing they made in the last previous national shoot, and there are a great number of monetary prizes in all the different classes. For teams, first prizes range from $350 to $450, whereas, in the national individual matches the first prizes are in the neighborhood of $60 each. Many of these individual contests are open to any citizen of the United States between the ages of 18 and 45 years.

Congress annually appropriates about $12,000 as a mess fund for feeding the contestants in the great annual matches. Each competitor in the big contest is also entitled to the use of a cot and mattress, and the necessary camp furniture. It is a populous tented city which rises each year in the vicinity of the targets at Camp Perry. More than 100 officers and more than 1,000 enlisted men of the regular army enter the trials each year, and there is also upward of 1,000 team contestants and officers, and perhaps half as many National Guardsmen not attached to teams, and civilian rifle club members. Finally there is a considerable body of individual contestants, and not less than 500 members of the National Guard of the state of Ohio, who co-operate with a regiment of the regular army, in manning the range—attending to the Aiken targets, with which the range is equipped throughout, and acting as markers and scorers. The contests this year promise to attract a greater number of participants than ever before.

SECRETARY OF WAR DICKENSON

cause, and their interest is being stimulated by means of shooting competitions, in which the trophies and prizes are of sufficient value to incite keen rivalry. Much of this country-wide arqusal of interest in marksmanship is attributable to the "missionary work" performed by the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practise, a permanent body maintained by appropriation by congress, and the membership of which embraces both government officials and civilians.

Yet another factor in the present awakening is found in the very keen interest manifested in every phase of this subject by the present head of the United States war department. Secretary of War Dickenson is, himself, something of a rifle shot, being the only member of the presidential cabinet in many years who has attained any proficiency with firearms. Recently, when the war secretary visited one of the military rifle ranges near Washington in company with some army officers, he made a score of 42 offhand, for his first

GREATEST GOLD COUNTRY.

The largest gold-producing country is the Transvaal, where the output increased from $8,000,000 in 1889 to $133,000,000 in 1907. The increase in the production of the Transvaal mines made during the year 1907 almost equaled the entire production of the gold fields in Alaska. In round figures, the world's production of gold from the discovery of America in 1492 to 1880 was about $6,300,000,000. The entire world's supply of gold could not have been in excess of $6,500,000,000. The last 30 years has doubled this supply and if the present production is maintained for another generation it will double again, the National Magazine says. As gold has long been the world-wide standard of value, these statistics certainly suggest that the increase in the production of this precious metal may indeed vitally affect prices.

CUPID'S WAY IN MEXICO

"Playing the bear," in the current language of Mexico, means to court a woman. Although there are so many social classes in this country, especially in the capital city, where ten or more could be counted, all of them entirely different in customs one from the other, there are but two ways of "playing the bear."

When a young man of the middle or higher classes is attracted by a girl on the street, he begins by following her to her home, though he may spend a whole day without daring to speak to her. He remains on the street, looking at her balconies or windows. If the girl comes out or if the beau observes the slightest movement of the curtains or blinds, that is a sign that she is not entirely indifferent to him and from that day on he spends all his leisure hours and many that he should dedicate to his occupation—under the balconies or in front of his prospective novia's residence.

After three or four days, when the wooer appears, the girl comes out to her balcony, just for a moment. The following day she comes out again and stays a little longer, but only after ten or twelve days (never on nor after the thirteenth day, for fear of the number 13) does she deign to look in the direction of the patient beau, who salutes her with a bow, taking off his hat and beaming with his sweetest smile.

Thereafter salutes and smiles are daily exchanged; then comes the sending of flowers or symbolical colors, slyly delivered by the "aguador" (water carrier) or the "carbonero" (charcoal vender), till at the end of a month a perfumed letter, written on rose-colored paper in the young man's best chirography, reaches the hands of his beloved, carefully concealed among the flowers of the prettiest bouquet that the novio was able to find at the flower market near the cathedral.

One ignorant of the country customs would think he had disgusted the mistress of his thoughts, because for two or three days after the sending of the letter she does not appear at her window, as she was in the habit of doing and it is necessary to send another letter, even more expressive than the first, to make her come out and smile again.

Neither is this letter answered. It is necessary to send a third one, speaking of nights of watchfulness, of despondency, of projects of suicides, etc., as they say in a well-known zarzuela: "Ni como, ni bebo, ni vivo, ni duermo, ni fumo, ni nada." (I neither eat, nor drink, nor live, nor sleep, nor smoke, nor do many other things.)

As a rule, this letter is answered evasively, but from that moment a correspondence is established. The appointments come next and the lover is no longer obliged to spend entire days awaiting the moment when the girl will come out.

The correspondence having been established and the girl having accepted and returned the love yows of the novio, then begin the evening coolings through the balcony grating, when all movement has ceased in the city and nothing but the whistles of the policemen at the corners or the footsteps of a night watchman are heard. The moonlight nights generally are particularly preferred by the lovers for their billings and it is not rare when one is going home at midnight to find three or four couples of lovers on every street; he on the sidewalk, she at the window, or in the second-story balcony, and the moon smiling on the picturesque scene.

With regard to "playing the bear" among the lowest class little can be said. A sort push, a pulling of the woman's rebozo, a few harsh words from the lips of the latter, then a smile, and subsequently a few medidas (drinks) at the nearest pulque shop, and the contract is closed.

None would think, however, when seeing how easily these poor people concluded their engagements, that they would be so devoted to each other. The woman, particularly, will patiently bear all kinds of suffering rather than to displease "her man." She would die before she could be induced to deposit against the man when he is in trouble with the authorities. If he falls sick, it is she who provides food and medicine.

SAVED OLD LADY'S HAIR

"My mother used to have a very bad humor on her head which the doctors called an eczema, and for it I had two different doctors. Her head was very sore and her hair nearly all fell out in spite of what they both did. One day her niece came in and they were speaking of how her hair was falling out and the doctors did it no good. She says, 'Aunt, why don't you try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment?' Mother did and they helped her. In six months' time the itching, burning and scaling of her head was over and her hair began growing. Today she feels much in debt to Cuticura Soap and Ointment for the fine head of hair she has for an old lady of seventy-four."

"My own case was an eczema in my feet. As soon as the cold weather came my feet would itch and burn and then they would crack open and bleed. Then I thought I would flee to my mother's friends, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I did for four or five winters, and now my feet are as smooth as any one's. Ellsworth Dunham, Hiram, Me., Sept. 30, 1909."

A Practical Discourse.

One stormy day the children were amusing themselves indoors, playing church. "Now, Florence," said Theodore, "I'll be the minister and tell you what you must do, and you'll be the people, and you must listen and do what I tell you." Climbing up on a chair, he began his sermon: "Florence, you must be a very good girl and do whatever your brother wants you to. If he wants your playthings, you must let him have them, and if you want any of his, you just let 'em alone."—Christian Herald.

Cook in Comfort. You no longer need wear your heat of an intensely hot kitchen. You can cook in comfort.

Here is a stove that gives no outside heat. All its heat is concentrated at the burners. An intense blue flame (hotter than either white or red) is thrown upwards but not around. All the heat is utilized in cooking—none in outside heating.

New Perfection Oil Cook-stove

entirely removes the discomfort of cooking. Apply a match and immediately the stove is ready. Instantly an intense heat is projected upwards against the pot, pan, kettle or boiler, and yet there is no surrounding heat—no smell—no smoke.

Why? Because The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is scientifically and practically perfect. You cannot use too much wick—it is automatically controlled. You get the maximum heat—no smoke. The burner is simple. One wipe with a cloth cleans it—consequently there is no smell.

The New Perfection Oil Cook-Stove is wonderful for year-round use, but especially in summer. Its heat operates upward to pan, pot, or kettle, but not beyond or around. It is useless for heating a room.

It has a Cabinet Top with shelf for keeping plates and food hot. It has long turquoise-blue enamel chimneys. The nickel finish, with the bright blue of the chimneys, makes the stove ornamental and attractive. Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners; the 2 and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without Cabinet. Mrs. Mary I. Remington, Eligleberry St., Gilroy, Cal., says: "I suffered so severely from pain and soreness over the kidneys that it was a task for me to turn over in bed. After taking other remedies without benefit, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and was permanently cured. I was going through the critical period of a woman's life at that time and after using Doan's Kidney Pills there was a miraculous change for the better in my health."

It Was His Turn.

Two weary travelers were compelled to seek lodging in a country hotel that was unpromising in looks at least. Upon conferring with the owner the prospects brightened.

"Certainly, gentlemen," he said, "I have one spare bed that the two of you may have—a large feather one. This way, please."

They followed and were loath to anticipate much ease, but accepted the only thing and retired. One was soon snoring long and loudly, the other could not sleep. At about two in the morning the wakeful one nudged his companion:

"Here, get up! Time's up," he said. "What's the matter?" asked the other; "we are not on duty."

"No, but it's my turn to sleep on the feather," was the reply.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Newberry, Mich., Feb. 12, 1910.
Petoskey Rug Mfg. Co.,
A. T. Washburne, Prop.,
Petoskey, Mich.

Dear Sirs:—
The Rugs came yesterday and are simply superb. If I could see old sinners converted and made over as new as those Rugs are I should think that perfection was reached in transforming men.

How you can do it out of such old carpets is a surprise to me. Your charges are reasonable. Your work is excellent. Your attention to patrons is commendable. And the products of your looms surpassing all our expectations.

With many thanks, we remain,
Sincerely,
Rex. LeVil Bldg., Ph. D.,
Pastor Newberry M. E. Church,
P. S.—You are at liberty to use this letter if you care to do so.

We have hundreds of such letters as above coming from nearly every state in the Union on file at our office for inspection.

A. T. Washburne, Prop.

WILSON

Farmers are rejoicing over the rain that came on Tuesday.

Several families of this place spent the fourth camping at Intermediate Lake.

Grasshoppers and cut-worms are doing a great deal of damage to crops, gardens and etc.

A large crowd was present at the fourth of July celebration at Deer Lake Grange Hall.

Frank Smith and family of East Jordan visited at O. D. Smith's in this place last Sunday.

James Payne spent the fourth with friends in Grand Rapids. His two younger children returned home with him.

Mrs. J. H. Koehler of Jordan twp. was a guest of Mrs. Chas. Hudkins last Saturday.

Elder Grigsty will preach in Afton next Sunday at the usual hour. Services will be held every two weeks hereafter.

Miss Edith Hiltman was called to Grand Rapids last Friday by the serious illness of her grandmother Mrs. Anthony Brown.

Mrs. Nettie Warner and children of Pellston are spending a few weeks with her sister Mrs. Alden Collins in this place.

Mrs. Willard Warden has been in East Jordan the past few days caring for that new grand-daughter that is making its home at Mr. and Mrs. Harry Batterbee's at present.

The Ladies Auxiliary spent a very pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edward Brimhall last Wednesday. The next meeting will be held at the Grange Hall next week Wednesday when the quilt will be finished. Ladies bring your dinners and stay all day.

An attendance of twenty-five at Wilson Grange last Saturday evening. During the Lecture hour a discussion in regard to school matters was taken part in by the various members, and an ice-cream eating contest between two members created much amusement. At the close of the session ice-cream and cake was served by the ladies and a pleasant time enjoyed by all.

Come in and look over our dandy line of Shoes. You will be surprised at the quality, styles and prices.—W. Weiss.

If a girl wants to marry that is her business, if a man wants to marry that is his business, if they both want to marry that is their business, if they want to furnish a home that is our business.—Empey Bros.

Must be Above Suspicion.

Kidney and bladder ailments are so serious in their consequences, and if unchecked so often fatal that any remedy offered for their cure must be above suspicion. Foley Kidney Pills contain no harmful drugs, and have successfully stood a long and thorough test. Hites Drug Store.

We are constantly getting in new furniture. Our line is very complete to day having just received a large consignment of chouches, dressing cases, buffets, chiffoniers, sideboards, library tables and extension tables in fact every thing to furnish a home.—Empey Bros.

HOT SHOT.

Mr. Kelley in Isabella County Has a Record.

Editorial bird shot from the Isabella County Republican, where the "repudiation" took place.
The Republican party in Michigan has a chance to redeem itself by nominating Chase S. Osborn at the September primaries.

Warnerism and Patrick H. Kelley, are inseparable—paste this in your hat and keep it there until after the primary. You will be money ahead when taxes are assessed.

Have you noticed that every Warner appointee is ignoring incessantly for Kelley since Pat says he has "cut loose from Warnerism"? Isn't it significant and doesn't it appear just a little ludicrous?

In his characteristic manner, Patrick H. Kelley says he has lost loose from Warnerism. The same Pat, who has materially helped to make Warnerism so repugnant to the people of the state of Michigan, and whose candidacy is still fostered by the element from which he says he has disengaged himself. Oh, my!

Pat Kelley's petition was circulated in this city for two weeks, and sent back with one solitary name. Pat is personally all right, but any man that is accused of having been exposed to Warnerism, must be thoroughly furnished before the fellows will tie up his name in this community.

The state banking department has authorized the bank of Fountain, capital $20,000, to commence business; the article of incorporation of the First State Bank of White Cloud, capital $20,000, have been approved; and the Ann Arbor Savings Bank has filed articles to increase its capital from $50,000 to $100,000.

DOWNWARD COURSE.

Fast Being Realized by East Jordan People.

A little backache at first, Daily increasing until the back is lame and weak.

Urinary disorders quickly follow; Diabetes and finally Bright's disease. This is the downward course of kidney ill.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of an East Jordan citizen:

W. T. Lord, State St., East Jordan, Mich., says: "I found Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured from Gannett Co.'s drug store, to be just as represented. My kidneys did not do their work properly and I suffered a great deal from backache and lameness across my loins. I could not stoop or lift without having sharp stitches and I was very anxious to get better. After I had used Doan's Kidney Pills a few days the lameness disappeared my kidneys were restored to a normal condition. Other members of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills and in each case, the results have been entirely satisfactory."

For Sale by all Dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, Sole Agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fall and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

The clever women have found a way of serving iced cherries that is so delicious even the worms taste good.

A falling tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silken thread—takes from the Heart its impulse, its power, its regularity. The Stomach also has its hidden or inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or falling Stomach, Heart or Kidneys. His prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed straight for the cause of these ailments—these weak and faltering inside nerves. This, no doubt clearly explains why the Restorative has of late grown so rapidly in popularity. Druggists say that those who test the Restorative even for a few days soon become fully convinced of its wonderful merit. Anyway, don't drug the organ. Treating the cause of sickness is the only sensible and successful way. Sold by James Gidley.

Welcome Words To Women

If you are an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest square-deal medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills. The makers of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible endorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. Is this not a significant fact worthy of careful consideration?

Women use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in preference to all other advocated medicines sold by druggists for their peculiar weaknesses and ailments because it is

THE ONE REMEDY which contains no alcohol or habit-forming drugs, is not anything like advertised secret compounds or patent medicines.

THE ONE REMEDY for women devised by a regularly graduated physician of vast experience in woman's ailments and carefully adapted to her delicate organism.

THE ONE REMEDY good enough that its makers are not afraid to print its every ingredient on its outside bottle-wrapper.

It's foolish—often dangerous to be over-persuaded into accepting a secret nostrum in place of this time-proven medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.
