Lecture Course

Line List of Attractions Secured By The High School.

A notable course of lectures and entertainments has been arranged for East Jordan under the auspices of the public schools. The attractions are all among the very best known on the lyceum platform today. The entire course is booked with Reupath Lyceum Bureau, the bureau which began its long career of more than forty years with such men as John B. Gough, Wendell Phillips and Henry Ward Beecher and which has been the booking center for big attractions both lectures and musicals from that day to this.

STRICKLAND W. GILLILAN.

The opening number of this notable course, is Strickland W. Gillilan. Mr. Gillilan is too well known to the American readers to require extensive comment here. Not only is he a newspaper, magazine and platform humorist, but he is a poet and philosopher. The Ladies Home Journal of last January, contained five original poems of Gillilan's with an introductory paragraph by the editor who commented upon the versatility of a writer who being the author of five tender and serious poems there given, had also written the famous "Off Agin, On Agin, Gone Agin - Finnigin." His literary work has also appeared in the Woman's Home Companion, Success, Judge, Life, Saturday Evening Post and many other publications.

Mr. Gillilan is one of the positive and distinct personalities presented in the world through the lyceum and the public prints. He is not a copyist, neither in manner or matter, his originality being his most distinctive characteristic besides his merit.

One of Mr. Gillilan's humorous lectures is entitled "Sunshine and A-wardness". Another is: "A Sample Case of humor."

Mr. Gillilan will appear in East Jordan on the evening of November 9.

EDWARD AMHERST OTT.

The second number on the course will be a lecture by Edward Amherst Ott. Dr. Ott is not only a lecturer but an author. He has appeared before more than three thousand audiences in America and more than twenty-five thousand copies of his books have been sold. American audiences can scarce get enough of this man and his purposeful oratory.

Every lecture should answer some one of the fundamental inquiries of the mind. If a lecture is also humorous and highly entertaining, so much the better. Although known as the purposeful orator and author, Dr. Ott yet combines much of the humor and entertainment in each of his lectures. His lecture on "Sour Grapes" in which he treats extensively of heredity and environment, he has delivered nearly one thousand times. During the past summer he appeared at the original New York Chautauqua in two lectures. For two years Dr. Ott was president of the International Lyceum Association and he has done much for the lyceum movement in general throughout this country.

We are wont to think in this day of rush and worry there is no time for the art of oratory. Social and economic conditions have made it necessary that each man should cultivate the art of being brief; of speaking only when it is absolutely necessary and then saying what he wants to say as expeditiously as possible. There are those among us who regret this tendency of the times sincerely, just as we do the changes in home life and the loss of other cultural leisure. We would like to go back to the days of the old Greeks and Romans, when men and women had time to talk things over and indulge in frequent flights of oratory.

Oratory, however, is not dead yet. Upon this point also concerning Dr. Ott, both as a public speaker and as a teacher of oratory, Governor Cummins of Iowa has this to say: "It is a curious error to assume that the day of the orator has passed. Upon the contrary, I believe his influence is greater to day than ever before. Therefore, I feel a deep interest in the work Dr. Ott is doing. He is an accomplished speaker, a close and indefatigable student and eminently fitted to train men, whether old or young, in the art of public speaking. The date of Dr. Ott's lecture at East Jordan is November 30.

THE SAUNDERS COMPANY.
On the evening of December 13 will be a concert by the Nellie Peck Saunders Concert Company. This company is a trio composed of Mrs. Saunders, a reader of rare ability, Mr. Milton Bertoli, a young singer with a rich baritone voice, and Miss Barney a soprano.

After three years of teaching in one of the great conservatories of the middle west, Nellie Peck Saunders has again taken her place upon the platform. For several years she has born the reputation of being one of the few really good readers and impersonators of the country. In the program which is to be presented here, some of her readings will be given with musical accompaniments. Also some artistic and high class playlets will be presented by Mrs. Saunders and Mr. Bertoli.

Concerning Bertoli—a baritone, the Detroit Evening News has this to say: "Mr. Bertoli, baritone, so captivated the audience that he was recalled several times."

KELLOGG-HAINES SINGING PARTY.

In the Kellogg-Haines Singing Party, another number of the forthcoming East Jordan course, there is an attraction which has no superior in its particular line of work on the lyceum platform today. There are five in the party. Much of their program is given in elegant and appropriate costume. Some of these costume numbers are the best example of humor and wit that good musical literature has to offer. Scenes are also given from grand opera. The chief claim that is made for this company is that they give an entertaining concert of such solid musical character and fresh wholesome humorous power, that is sure to captivate the musical layman while winning admiration from the musical critic of the severest type. As some one has truly said: "They have discovered just what most audiences want in the way of a musical entertainment. Some real good things in music and then some of the light and catchy with a big allowance for humor and melodious rhythm." Their solo work is excellent but their claim to recognition is in their quartet work. It is doubtful if any other mixed quartette in America can approach them in that sinking of individuality and perfect blending of voices that realizes ideal quartette work. It is heard in the singing of the foremost male quartettes but almost unknown in mixed quartettes. This quartette is made up of two ladies and two gentlemen.

Prof. Charles A. Prosser, Superintendent of the New Albany, Ind., Chautauqua says: "The Kellogg-Haines Singing Party has given, in the opinion of our patrons, the greatest satisfaction of all the musical organizations that have appeared at our assembly in the last four years." Many other similar quotations could be given, if space permitted. This company will appear here on January 14.

DR. W. A. COLLEDGE.

Dr. W. A. Colledge will close the course on April 15. For nine years Dr. Colledge has been associated with Dr. Gunsaulus in the work of Armour Institute of Technology. He was with Stanley in Africa for three years. He is a graduate of the University of Glasgow and while in Scotland was a boyhood friend of Robert Lewis Stevenson.

Dr. Colledge was the first editor of the Technical World Magazine, editor-in-chief of The New Standard Encyclopedia, and a member of the Royal Geographical society. His lectures are not only highly educational but are entertaining; for he is a good story teller.

"IT BEATS ALL."

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completely cured me." Contains no opiates. Hite's Drug Store.

STORE BUILDING FOR RENT.—Mrs. Florence Jepson has just completed repairing her store building on State st., near the warehouse, and offers same for rent at reasonable terms.

A pain prescription is printed upon each 25c box of Dr. Shoop's Pink Pain Tablets. Ask your Doctor or Druggist if this formula is not complete. Head pains, womanly pains, pains anywhere get instant relief from a Pink Pain Tablet. James Gidley.

NEW PASTOR HERE

Rev. T. Porter Bennett, Wife and Children Now With Us.

Rev. T. Porter Bennett, recently appointed pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, together with Mrs. Bennett and two sons, arrived here from Mesick Wednesday evening, and are getting domiciled in the parsonage. At present they are making their home at Mr. Robertson's.

Rev. Bennett is a young man al-

How To Tell If Your Hair Is Diseased

Even if you have a luxuriant head of hair you may want to know whether it is in a healthy condition or not. 98 per cent. of the people need a hair tonic.

Pull a hair out of your head; if the bulb at the end of the root is white and shrunken, it proves that the hair is diseased, and requires prompt treatment if its loss would be avoided. If the bulb is pink and full, the hair is healthy.

We want every one whose hair requires treatment to try Rexall's '93' Hair Tonic. We promise that it shall not cost anything if it does not give satisfactory results. It is designed to overcome dandruff, relieve scalp irritation, to stimulate the hair roots, tighten the hair already in the head grow hair and cure baldness.

It is because of what Rexall's '93' Hair Tonic has done and our sincere faith in its goodness that we want you to try it at our risk. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Sold only at our store, The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

To quickly check a cold, druggists are dispensing everywhere, a clever Candy Cold Cure Tablet called Preventics. Preventics are also fine for feverish children. Take Preventics at the sneeze stage, to head off all colds. Box of 48-25c James Gidley.

A Bischof model—strictly mantailored

You can tell it easily by the back

This coat illustrates the smoothness, the exactness of Bischof garments.

This is due to the hand work. Three fourths of the workmanship on Bischof garments is done by hand and the fitting is always done over live models, which makes all the difference in the world in the effect of the finished garment.

If you have not already selected your Fall coat, we advise an immediate visit before his best designs are taken.

We have put some exceptional values on sale today. Be sure to visit our coat department.

GOOD WILL a Valuable Asset.

THE Good Will of the customer is the most valuable asset of any store. The only way to get that good will is by treating the customer fair, square and right. We can best show the genuineness of our desire to do this by putting out the best goods at the lowest prices.

One of our leading lines is the J. C. C. Corset. This corset has made so many friends for our store that we take great pleasure in recommending them. They are smart in style, sell at medium prices, and wear splendidly. Whether or not you enjoy corset comfort depends largely on the model you select. If you wore a nineteen in a short corset, then you will require a twenty in the new fall long corset. No, your waist won't appear any larger. On the contrary your entire figure will appear straighter and more slender. We can fit any figure from splendid stock of the J. C. C. Corset at from 50c to $3.00.

We have KNIT UNDERWEAR for the whole family at from 25c to $3.00. Don't wait until the snow flies before you order Knit Underwear for yourself and household.

Underwear, like other lines, is bought best when assortments are complete and unbroken. In fabrics there are new kinds of fleece-lined goods, flat ribbed and spring needle kind, open and linen meshes, double layer and other patented weaves—silk, wool, cotton, linen and combinations of these materials. A leisurely inspection of our line is sure to result in your learning a lot of new and interesting facts about Underwear.

A SHOE that fits perfectly outwears any shoe that fails of this object. It gives the wearer a satisfied feeling with himself, with the world and of course with the store whence the satisfying shoes came. If have been having trouble with your feet drop in at our store and let us show you what skilled shoe people and the right lines to select from will do for you. The fall lines for men, women and children, are in. From $1.50 to $5.00.

"Quality First of All" our motto.

THE DESERT PLAIN OF LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

wood. Apparently the presence of an excess of gypsum is prejudicial to the growth of the mesquite.

The bottoms among the dunes have a dense vegetation as compared with that of the dunes themselves. It is characterized especially by the presence of a grama grass (Bouteloua), forming almost a turf, and by frequent clumps of Ephedra of a grayish purple color at this season and with three scaled nodes. These bottoms usually show no sign of moisture, but in two places we found water holes, the water so alkaline that the horses would not drink it at the end of their first day's drive.

Probably the most extraordinary product of the Sonora desert, west of Torres, Mex-echinocactus was represented by a half-dozen species, of which one, E. grande, is undoubtedly the most massive of all the genus, being as much as 8 or 9 feet in height and 30 or even 36 inches in thickness, which, with the many convolutions of its surface, makes it a very grotesque feature of the scenery.

E. flavescens forms small heads in clusters, while in E. robusta colonies 10 or 15 feet across, making mounds 2 or 3 feet high, include hundreds of heads.

No systematic account of any desert is to be found in which the storage function appears so highly developed and by so many species. Of course all of the cacti exhibit this feature in a very marked degree, and a single plant of Pilocereus sulciceps may retain several hundred gallons of water. The large stems of Yucca, which is a prominent member of the flora of the slopes,

TUCSON has a climate of a thoroughly desert character, and a flora, including mountain and plain, rich in species and genera. In addition to its situation in the heart of the desert of Arizona, it is centrally located, both as to position and transportation, with reference to the deserts of Texas, Chihuahua, New Mexico, California and Sonora.

The University of Arizona, with its School of Mines, and the Arizona agricultural experiment station are located at Tucson.

Not the least of the advantages of Tucson as a center for the activities of the government desert laboratory is the broad-minded comprehension of the importance of the purposes of the institution evinced by the citizens, accompanied by an earnest desire to cooperate in its establishment. This appreciation was expressed in the practical form of subsidies of land for the site of the building and to serve as a preserve for desert vegetation, the installation and construction of telephone, light and power connections, and of a road to the site of the laboratory, about two miles from Tucson. This spirit of hearty co-operation has animated every organization in the city, and has enabled the laboratory to gain control of a domain of 360 acres, of the greatest usefulness for general experimental work.

Extending northward for nearly 100 miles from El Paso is the noted Jornada del Muerto (Journey of Death), which has a width of 30 to 40 miles. It formed a portion of the route connecting the earliest settlements along the Rio Grande, and here the traveler was compelled to leave the stream far to the westward, in its deeply cut, inaccessible canyon, and toil for two or three days in the burning heat without water, except such as might be carried. It was for three centuries one of the most menacing and hazardous overland journeys to be encountered in the American desert. Recent investigations, however, have shown that the region traversed is in reality a basin, and that water is to be found, as in many other deserts, within a reasonable distance of the surface.

Beyond lies an equally remarkable desert, the Gero basin, which is the bed of an ancient lake, and is noted for a great salt and soda flat, a salt lake, and, most striking of all, the "White Sands," an area of about 300 square miles covered with dunes of gypsum sand rising to a maximum height of 60 feet.

The surface of the dunes is sparkling white, due to the dry condition of the gypsum powder, but a few inches beneath it is of a yellowish or buff color and is distinctly moist and cool to the touch, even when the air is extremely hot.

The most characteristic plant of the dunes is the three-leaf yucca (Rhus trilobata), which occurs in the form of single hemispherical bushes four to eight feet high, the lower branches hugging the sand. The plant grows vigorously, the trunk at or beneath the surface often reaching a diameter of three inches. The binding and protecting effect of this bush is often shown in a striking manner when in the cutting down of an older dune by the wind a column of sand may be left protected above from the sun by the close covering of the branches and leaves, and the sand in the column itself bound together by the long, penetrating roots. One of these columns was about 15 feet high from its base to the summit of the protecting bush and about 8 feet in diameter at the base.

A marked peculiarity of the White Sands is that a cottonwood is occasionally found in the lower dunes, reaching a foot in diameter, but seldom more than 15 feet in height; yet at the same time not a mesquite was seen. The mesquite is a tree requiring less moisture than the cotton-ico, is the guarequi (Iberveria sonora), a tendril-bearing plant whose nodulately thickened root and stem base lies gray and half exposed upon the ground beneath some trellising shrub. These tuberous formations may be seen during the dry season lying about wholly unanchored, as the slender roots dry up with the close of the vegetative season, which lasts but a few weeks.

OASIS OF PALMS IN THE MOUTH OF A CANYON COLORADO DESERT

In February, 1902, some of these tubers were taken to the New York Botanical garden, and a large specimen not treated in any way was placed in a museum case, where it has since remained. Annually, at a time fairly coincident with the natural vegetative season in its native habitat, the major vegetative points awaken and send up a few thin shoots, which reach a length of about two feet only, since they do not obtain sunlight. After a period of a few weeks they lie down again and the material in them retreats to the tuber to await another season. Seven periods of activity have thus been displayed by this specimen with no apparent change in its structure or size. It does not seem unreasonable to suppose, therefore, that the guarequi is a storage structure of such great efficiency that water and other material sufficient to meet the needs of the plant for a quarter of a century are held in reserve in its reservoirs.

The morning-glory (Iphomoea arborescens) is here a tree 20 to 30 feet high, with smooth, chalky gray trunk and branches. During February it is leafless throughout, while its large white flowers open one by one on the ends of the naked branches. From its white bark the tree is sometimes known as palo blanco, and from the gum or resin, which exudes from incisions made in it for the purpose and which is used as incense in religious ceremonies, it is also called palo santo.

One of the striking features of the Tehuacan desert of southern Mexico is the extreme localization or strictness of colonization exhibited by many species which are found to cover an area of a few square yards, the face of a slope, the crest of a cliff or the floor of a barranca, with no outliers and with the nearest colony perhaps many miles away.

The Cactaceae are more abundant here than in any other part of the world yet visited, several of the species being massive forms.

Cephalocereus macrocephalus is a tall species of the massiveness of the saguaro, and like it having a central shaft bearing numbers of branches which are more closely appressed. It was seen only along the cliff near the Rancho San Diego, along the eastern edge of the valley. Pilocereus sulciceps, of more general distribution on slopes, has a series of branches, in many instances 40 or 50 in number, densely clustered and arising from a short trunk, which barely rises from the ground before it branches.

PAPAGO INDIAN DRINKING FROM A CACTUS function to this purpose to some extent, while the fleshy leaves of Agave marmorata and other species and of Hectia, are essentially storage organs for reserve food and surplus water. Here is also a Euphorbia and a Pedilanthus, with thick upright cylindrical stems, in which the storage function is made more effective by the possession of a thick milk juice.

As one proceeds to the ancient ruins of Mitla, 26 miles to the southeastward of Oaxaca, the aridity increases until in the vicinity of the hacienda of that name extreme desert conditions are found. The ancient structures here are indicative of a type of civilization characteristic of the desert, in which co-operation or communism was carried to as great lengths as it must have been in the pueblos of the northern deserts in America.

One of the most difficult problems to solve is that of transportation in the desert, and there are extensive areas in American deserts that have not yet been systematically explored by reason of this condition.

A comprehension of the part that water plays in existence and travel in the desert is to be gained only by experience. Some of the native animals, such as mice and other small rodents, have been known to live on hard seeds without green food for periods of several months, or even as long as two or three years, and nothing in their behavior indicated that they ever took liquid in any form.

Deer and peccary are abundant in deserts in Sonora in which the only available supply of open water is to be found in the cacti.

Man and his most constant companion on the desert of America, the horse, are comparatively poorly equipped against the rigors of the desert. A horseman may go from the morning of one day until some hour of the next in midsummer and neither he nor his horse will incur serious danger; experiences of this kind are numerous. If the traveler is afoot, abstinence from water from sunrise to sunset is a serious inconvenience to him, and if he continues his journey, the following morning his sufferings may so disturb his mental balance that he may be unable to follow a trail, and by the evening of that day, if he has not come to something drinkable he may not recognize the friendly stream in his way. Instances are not unknown in which sufferers from thirst have forced streams waist deep to wander out on the dry plain to grisly death.

Scouting Indians have long used the bisnaga, and a drink may be obtained in this manner by a skilled operator in five to ten minutes. Some travelers are inclined to look with much disfavor on the liquid so obtained, but it has been used without discomfort by members of expeditions from the desert laboratory. That it is often preferred by Indians to fair water is evidenced by the fact that the Whipple expedition found the Mohaves near the mouth of the Bill Williams river, in 1853, cooking ducks and other birds in the juice of these plants by means of heated stones dropped into the cavity containing the pulp.

RANCHER FOLLOWS WOLVES INTO CAVE

AFTER ONE IS SHOT, INTREPID HUNTER IS SAVAGELY ATTACKED BY ANOTHER.

THREE ARE FINALLY KILLED

Men in Dark Cavern Engage in Rough and Tumble Fight With the Ferocious Beasts Before They Are Shot.

Sloux Falls, S. D.—To crawl into a wolf den with a rifle and fight a life and death battle with gray wolves—those pest of the range—was the experience of George Porch, a rancher, living in the region between the Missouri river and the Black Hills, in western South Dakota.

The gray wolves of that part of the state are unusually large and fierce, and when the region was devoted to cattle raising, it was nothing uncommon for the wolves to attack and kill a half-grown steer. The losses of stockmen from the raids of these pests being greater than from any other cause, not even excepting the fierce storms of winter when great herds of cattle were turned loose on the open range to shift for themselves until spring.

Recently the small ranchers, who have supplanted the big cattlemen, have suffered considerable loss from the depredations of gray wolves, and Porch and four neighbors started to run down and kill the varmints which had been particularly active in killing their cattle and sheep.

The five men came upon the trail of four full-grown wolves, and after following the trail several miles, killed one of them on the open prairie. The other three animals were cornered in a cave. Porch, however, when the party reached the opening to the wolf's den, did not hesitate, but entered the cave after the wolves. He crawled a mile or more into the side of the high bluff before he reached the lair.

It was necessary at times to enlarge the hole which, while large enough to admit of the passage of the wolves was not large enough at some points for a man to pass. One of Porch's companions did a part of this work while engaged in enlarging the passage. Porch suddenly saw ahead of him, in the darkness, six sparkling bright eyes. But there was no stopping short of securing the three wolf pelts which he had set out to capture. Some more rimming out of the hole and he was near enough to fire a shot from his rifle straight into the group of whining wolf eyes ahead of him.

Hang went the rifle and in an instant all was darkness and smoke. Porch's lantern was extinguished by the concussion of the rifle. He relighted the lantern and saw the body of one wolf.

As he reached forward to drag out the dead wolf, one of the live ones attacked him, snapping at his arm. The sharp teeth of the animal closed upon his coat sleeve, tearing it and leaving a mark on his arm. A rough and tumble struggle, between Porch, an old cowboy, and the wolf followed. The courage and strength of the old cow-puncher was not lacking and after a fierce battle he overpowered the wolf and then shot it.

The remaining wolf was then attacked and killed by Porch. When the hunter emerged from the wolf den he was covered with grime and dirt and his companions declare they would not have known him elsewhere. By his feat he has won the distinction of being the champion wolf killer of western South Dakota.

Scored Feat in Falling.

Hazleton, Pa.—Hungry Sam Miller, who holds the eating record in Columbia county, has a strong rival in the person of Rocko Levitch of this city.

Levitch made a wager of $26 that he could devour 40 plates of ice cream in one hour. He made a desperate attempt to win the wager, but fell just three plates short.

Levitch has a record for eating and on a recent evening got away with 50 hard-shell crabs and then topped off with a large sirloin steak.

USED HYPODERMICS.

Only Relief From Terrible Suffering.

Thomas H. Vest, 1505 S. 12th St., Terre Haute, Ind., says: "I had no control over the urine and the pain when voiding it was so great I often screamed. I grew worse and lay in bed for weeks, the only relief being from hypodermics. I was treated by three physicians without help and the last one said an operation was necessary. At this time I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and passed a gravel stone as large as a pea. The next day I passed two more and from then on improved rapidly until cured." Remember the name—Doan's.

NO HEALTHY SKIN LEFT

"My little son, a boy of five, broke out with an itching rash. Three doctors prescribed for him, but he kept getting worse until we could not dress him any more. They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but its treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura he was so bad that I had to cut his hair off and put the Cuticura Ointment on him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one square inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heart-breaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day, twelve years or more since the cure was effected. Robert Wattam, 1148 Forty-eighth St., Chicago, Ill., Oct. 9, 1909."

Puzzled by Wireless.

"Mistah Jenkins," asked an old negro of Atlanta of his employer, "would y' be so good, sah, as to explain to me 'bout this wireless telegraph business—I hears 'em a-talking 'bout'?"

"Why, certainly, Henry," responded the employer, "though I can do so only in a general way, as I myself know little of the subject. The thing consists in sending messages through the air instead of over wires."
"Yassah," said Henry. "I knows 'bout dat; but, sah, what beats me is how dey fasten the air to the poles!"

In a Hurry.

It was Anna's first visit at the seaside. She was only a little girl, and very enthusiastic over the long-looking opportunity to go into the water.

They came too late the previous day for a dip in the surf, so Anna was up early, and as she put on her bathing suit while the rest were at breakfast some one questioned her as to her haste.

"Well, you see," replied the thoughtful child, "I want to hurry and go in before so many people get in and get the water cold."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running nose or inflamed throat, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever. Blue Pills of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sent by express, free of charge. F. J. GENEVY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 25c.

Made Sure of Death.

A student of a school in Shinshu, Japan, recently committed suicide by jumping into the crater of Asamayama. The tragedy was not discovered until three days afterward, when some documents left by the suicide near the crater were picked up.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. Sold every-where.

Woman's sphere now seems to be the whole earth.

Hats for Mourning

THREE hats of excellent design are shown for those who are wearing mourning. It will be noticed that the shapes are small or moderate in size, that the designs are simple but the workmanship intricate and beautiful. These characteristics are what the wearer should look for when purchasing mourning millinery.

The first hat, a small round turban with rolling brim, is made of tiny folds of crape laid in parallel rows on circles about them or four inches in diameter. These are applied to the crown and brim which have previously been covered with crape laid on plain. The wire frame is covered and lined with silk and the hat is finished with a wired bow of taffeta. A rolled border of crape sometimes binds the edges of such bows and makes a very handsome finish for the ornament.

Fig. 2 shows a moderately large flat brimmed hat in which the underbrim is faced with chiffon and the upper brim and crown are of crape fitted to the shape wings made of folds of chiffon are used for trimming. They are even more effective when made of folds of crape in hats for first mourning. The veil of point de esprit, is bordered with crape and dull jet ornaments hold it to place. Cabochons of the same are sewed to the wings.

No. 3 is a turban made of uncut velvet which is one of the richest materials used in mourning millinery. A soft crown and puffed rim are arranged by shirring in the material. The role trimming is a full bunch of black fancy feathers in aigrette effect, at the right side. A net veil of the Brussels is finished with a simple embroidery design in silk. Such veils bordered with a two-inch band of crape, or with three narrow crape folds, are very elegant. Black lynx furs are worn and black suede gloves.

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was fate that made Juliet's birthday and that of her prospective mother-in-law come in the same week. It is not expected that the course of true love will run smooth, and, heretofore, the love affair of Juliet had had no uneven places. She loved her betrothed; he loved her, and they both loved his mother.

Now and then a little jealousy of Carter's mother crossed Juliet's mind. The older woman was fascinating and beautiful in a way that Juliet had never been and never could be. Juliet was pretty and fresh and pink and white, while Carter's mother was stately and classic.

The two women talked of the son and lover who was in the far west, and planned for his homecoming. "He will get here in our birthday week," the mother said, "and we will have two cakes; a white one for you and a gold cake for me. You shall have white candles and I'll have yellow ones, and we will have jonquills and lilies of the valley in the middle of the table."

Their disappointment came when Carter wrote that he could not get back in time for the celebration. He sent a box with his letter. In it was a silver purse and a set of Browning. The two cards told that the purse was for Mrs. Crowell, the books for Juliet.

Juliet eyed the silver purse wistfully. She had wanted one for years, and Carter knew it. She felt a little hurt that he should have sent her books. Of course on the flyleaf he had written "With love, from Carter."

Talked of the Son and Lover.

She took her books and went home rather soberly. That night, she read them and finding certain of the exquisite love poems, was thrilled and enraptured. She wrote to Carter and told him how lovely it was of him to think of her and to send a message of his love in the words of his favorite poet.

The next day the two women went downtown together. Mrs. Crowell wore the silver purse, Juliet with her shabby pocketbook, and away from the glamour of the love passages, again felt slightly aggrieved. Why should Carter add to his mother's beauty with dainty trifles, when that of his sweetheart needed enhancing? Moreover he had heard her speak of her love of pretty things. Yet he had sent her grave books that must stand on the shelf.

Mrs. Crowell fingered the silver handbag with delight. "It was dear of Carter to send me this," she said. "Did you like the books, Juliet?" Juliet answered faintly. The purse at close range seemed so desirable and the books on the shelf were remote. She wanted something that she could show the girls, something that would glitter and swing from a silver chain and add the final touch to her costume. On the way home she still cherished her sense of grievance. To quiet her doubts she got out Carter's letter. It was written in his usual difficult scrawl, and she read it slowly. It breathed his love for her and she went to bed comforted.

Bit the next day her best girl friend came to see her. "What did Carter give you for your birthday?" Mary asked. Juliet hesitated. "Books," she said at last.

"Oh," Mary's voice held no enthusiasm. "I hope no one will give me books for my birthday. I think a man ought to pick out something personal. Did you see the purse he gave his mother?"

Juliet sighed. "Yes," she said. "It would have been more appropriate for you," Mary said. "I don't see what an old woman like his mother wants with a thing like that."

The next morning Mrs. Crowell telephoned to Juliet. "I have a long letter from Carter," she said, "and I can't read it, my eyes are so bad, and you know his scrawl, my dear."

"I'll come up," Juliet promised, "this afternoon and read it for you."

"Come to lunch," Mrs. Crowell invited, and Juliet agreed. While Mrs. Crowell prepared the lunch Juliet looked over the letter. "It's a little hard to make out," she called to the older lady in the other room. "I'll read it aloud when I have deciphered it."

As she read a flush came to her cheeks and a light to her eyes, for this was the letter:

"Mother Dear: I have just received a note from Juliet. In it she thanks me for my gift of Browning's poems. I also have a letter from you in which you thank me for a purse. Now, as a matter of fact, I sent the silver purse to Juliet, and the poems to you—I know how you love Browning. I am so sorry that you should have been disappointed because I intended you should have the books you have so long coveted. But Juliet seems so pleased that I hate to tell her of her mistake. Will you buy yourself the books? I want Juliet to have pretty things, yet knowing her, I feel that if I explain she will feel it necessary to return the books to you and to take the silver purse which would mean so much less to her. Some day I can give her all the trifles to wear that she needs, and she has called the books "precious." So don't tell her anything about it. I'll write again soon and give you the news; this is simply to correct my blunder. I suppose the cards were mixed in some way.

Yours always,
Carter."

When she had finished Juliet drew a quick breath. He had wanted her to have the purse, he had remembered her love of pretty things. The exchange would be easy. Mrs. Crowell coveted the books.

At this moment the elder woman came in with the salad in a silver dish. "Did he say anything about the purse?" she asked. "It was so lovely of him to send it to me. Men are so apt to think that we older women care nothing for the dainty things of dress. I get books, and books, and books, and practical things. It's a pleasure now and then to have something different."

Juliet's breath came quickly. Surely Carter would want his mother saved from disappointment. It seemed to bring her closer to him to think that she might have a secret with him, something that they could hide from his mother, rather than something that he and his mother should hide from his sweetheart.

"Read the letter," the older woman said as they sat down to the table, and Juliet read it, making up as she went along sentences which told that he was glad she liked the purse, glad that Juliet liked the books and said nothing of his mistake. After that they chatted of the coming marriage and Juliet's plans for it.

When Juliet went home she wrote to her lover and told him all about it—how she loved the books and how his mother had delighted in the silver purse.

"I want her to keep it," she said, "and you must not send me another to make up to me, for I like to feel that it is my gift to your mother as well as yours. Some day I'll give her a set of Browning and then she will have both things, and never know the difference."

The answer that came from him repaid her for her sacrifice. "I am going to take you at your word," he said, "and let you do without the purse."

But on their wedding day, besides the diamond pendant that he gave her, there was another gift. Wrapped in tissue paper and tied with white ribbon, it made a rather bulky package. Within she found a golden bag, all glittering mesh and sparkling stones. It was a thing beautiful enough for a duchess, a thing a prince might have presented to the lady he loved, and that was what it meant to Juliet; the gift of the lover who had given her the greatest gift of all—his heart's best and purest adoration.

PROOF OF SWIFT SERVICE

Anecdote That Should Confound Those Who Rail at Delay in Restaurants.

"Gentlemen," said a Broadway diner to his impatient companions, "keep your tempers. The marvel is not that the service is so slow, but that it is so swift. Shall I prove it?"

They jovially encouraged him. "Last week," he continued, "I went one noon for a hurried bite at a popular lunch place. I took my seat at a crowded table just as the waiter addressed a neighbor, whose mouth was full of sinkers.

"Dessert?" "Sure, Watermelon." "It was brought—a large tempting section of melon. The man uttered an ejaculation and turned to me.

"This is the first meal I have eaten in New York," he said. "Last thing I did in Georgia yesterday morning I cut my initials on the rind of a watermelon. There they are."

"He pointed to the green surface, on which the letters showed in white. It was the very melon. It had reached the consignee with a shipment, had been delivered to the kitchen of the restaurant and had been carved, all in time for the farmer's first luncheon away from home."

Money Saved to Apple Growers. Evaporating low grade apples for export has lately had a good start in the apple-producing districts of Tasmania, and promises much increase. During the last year on account of the establishment of several good apple evaporating plants, utilizing up to date American machinery, about $50,000 was saved to apple growers on apples which would otherwise have nearly all been thrown away as unsalable waste on account of low grade.

If you find any substance in your baking injurious to health made from baking powder in this can there is

$1000 In it for you

Calumet has been backed for years by an offer of $1,000 for any substance injurious to health found in the baking prepared with it.

Does not this and the fact that it complies with all pure food laws, both State and National, prove that Calumet is absolutely pure?

With the purity question settled—then Calumet is undoubtedly the best Baking Powder. It contains more leavening power; it is more uniform—every can is the same. It assures better results—and is moderate in price.

The Effects. "I have come to you, my friend, for comfort. My best girl has treated me very badly. I was trying to explain something to her, but she gave me such sharp looks, they cut me to the heart; she withered me with her scorn, crushed me with her coldness and stabbed me with her keen edged tongue."

"See here, man, you oughtn't to come to me for comfort; what you need is to go to a hospital for treatment."

His Only Affliction. "Have you ever had writer's cramp?" asked the beautiful maiden. "No," replied the poet, "but I've often had writer's kink." "Writer's kink? What is that?" "It's a trouble that consists of the kinking of the stomach around the spine, due to non-eating."

NEW SHIRT-WAIST MODEL.

FASHION EASY TO FOLLOW

Additions in Dress Accessories That Are Well Within the Reach of All.

This new model is of tussah silk or drap de soie. It is trimmed in an original way with applique bands of the material and with straps of passementerie.

COMBINING LACE AND BEADING

Slight Carelessness or Lack of Preparation Sufficient to Mar the Result.

When lace and beading are to be sewed to thin materials, such as muslin dresses or underwear of any kind, it must be carefully and thoroughly done to produce good results. Lace edging nearly always has a stout thread in the selvage which serves admirably as a gathering thread. Pull this thread and stroke the gathers to make them even. Roll the edge of the material and, holding the lace and edge together with the thumb and forefinger of the left hand, with the lace nearest you, overcast the two together with firm even stitches. When sewed to a straight edge insertion can be sewed in exactly the same manner, but to let insertion in, to form a design, first basto the material on the right side to form the desired design, and hem it down on both edges. Cut the material from underneath the insertion, leaving a narrow strip on each side of the insertion. Crease this strip back from the insertion toward the material and turn as to a hem. Overhand this, taking stitches close to the line of the hemming.

There is a late fancy among some Parisian costumers for making the belts of the more elaborate gowns of a color in contrast to the whole color scheme of the garment.

This girdle, though differing in its tone, is of like material, and is merely a new touch—a little oddity—and more evident because of the attention bestowed on the waist line at present.

A dinner gown of sapphire blue, trimmed with crystal embroidery, is given an old rose girdle, and the combination could win its way anywhere, so knowing and artistic was the choice of shades.

Not in years has there been a season when small accessories could add so much to the general style of a costume as do the neck and wrist frills worn with the tailor-made suits of every color, design and material. Such frills may be developed of wide lace, plain or fancy net, chiffon, tulle, and even sheer lawn. And the best feature of the fashion is that every woman may, if she wishes, be her own frill maker.

Chiffon, tulle and lawn are undeniably perishable, but then frills of these materials are inexpensive, if homemade, and quite as becoming as those of lace or net.

The art of fine needlework is more in favor now than it has been for many years past, and where children's frocks are concerned remnants of lawn, muslin, lace and embroidery that have been secured at reduced prices during the summer sales can be made up into fascinating little garments at a nominal cost.

To Hold Her Veil Tight.

One girl has conceived the idea of running narrow beading around the bottom and threading it with baby ribbon, which she pins at back. Both beading and ribbon are, of course, of the color of the veil, and fasten under the chin, so as to be inconspicuous. She finds this a solution of the veil problem with a low-necked blouse, as her veil never looks either untidy or bulky.

New Combinations.

The latest in color combinations is a dark red and a rather bright blue, so combined as to give the effect of the modish purple. This is very smart indeed, but be careful not to trim with either of these colors; black is the best, or some neutral shade.

Board of Supervisors.

Legislative work was, as usual, the smallest part of the proceeding of the board at this fall's session. Committee work in auditing bills and accounts with county officers occupied most of the time.

In the re-adjustment of officers' salaries the pay of clerk--$850 and fees--was unchanged; register--fees only--unchanged. The treasurer's salary was raised from $1,100 and fees to $1,150 and fees. The pay of the prosecuting attorney was cut from $1,500 and pay his own expenses, to $1,000, and the county pay hotel and livery expenses.

The board voted that the county pay all the expense of maintaining the Ironton ferry. Heretofore the county paid two-thirds and the township of Eveline the remainder.

From the report of the committee on equalization we take the following: South Arm equalized at $1,000.; 006; Charlevoix city, $1,222,855; Boyne City, $1,521,688.

Total valuation of county, $6,470,981.

Appropriated to agricultural society, $547.09.

To grange committee, $100.

Fred Smith was re-elected superintendent of poor; E. M. DeVos school examiner, and A. B. Nicholas Jr., Ellsworth Dutton and C. C. Burnett board of county canvassers.

Total state tax, $19,362.33.

Total county tax, $51,767.85. Of this, $11,000 is to be paid on county debt. The county tax this year is $10,000 less than last.

An official call for a meeting of the board the third day of January was filed with the clerk.--Charlevoix Sentinel.

A Good Position.

Can be had by ambitious young men and ladies in the field of "Wireless" or Railway telegraphy. Since the 8-hour law became effective, and since the Wireless companies are establishing stations throughout the country there is a great shortage of telegraphers. Positions pay beginners from $70 to $90 per month, with good chance of advancement. The National Telegraph Institute operates six official institutes in America, under supervision of R. R. and Wireless officials and places all graduates into positions. It will pay you to write them for full details at Cincinnati, Ohio, or Philadelphia, Pa.

County Normal Notes.

Miss Himes and Miss Whiting gave the normal class a marshmallow roast Tuesday Oct. 18.

Hazel Price substituted in Miss Wilson's room Tuesday and Wednesday, Jennie Hunderman, Thursday and Florence Mc Kee, Friday.

Miss Jessie Durance visited the normal class Tuesday afternoon. At the request of the class she told a few of her experiences in the normal class of '09, and in the German district where she is teaching.

The class visited the court house, Wednesday, Oct. 19, to see the work of the supervisors. The committees gave their reports which were voted by the board. After a motion was made to adjourn and was supported, the board served to the class grapes and candy.

Wednesday afternoon the class with Mr. De Voe, went aboard the government dredge that has been working in the harbor the last few days. Because the boat was loaded and so could not get up to the pier, the life savers took the party out in one of the surf boats. The captain took the class around the boat and explained how the work was done.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA WHERE SALVE FAILS

In regard to skin diseases medical authorities are now agreed on this: Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid. WASH THE GERMS OUT. A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription, penetrates to the disease germs and destroys it, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done. A 25-cent trial bottle will start the cure, and give you instant relief.

A young man named Scott kissed a chambermaid in a hotel in Cadillac. While embracing the lady he almost dislocated her neck. It cost him $13.50 to adjust the matter in justice court. (Not the neck—they have no chiropractors in Cadillac.) What was the young man thinking of anyway? He should have gone about it gently and systematically. Had he exercised more care, it probably would not have cost him anything.—Traverse City Record.

Forty Hours at St. Joseph's Church.

The forty hours devotion was held at St. Joseph's church was held on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday last. The services were very well attended, especially the early morning mass. The Rev. Fr. Malone, of Beaver Island, Nacmarek of Garford, Whalen of Carson City, Williams O. F. M. of Petoskey, Lamontagne of Au Sable, O'Toole of Alpena, Reiss of Grayling and Albin of Onway were in attendance to assist Father McDonald in the work. About three hundred approached the sacraments of penance and Holy Communion.

Solemn indeed was the closing Tuesday evening. Especially impressive was the beautiful rendition of appropriate hymns by the children so well trained by the Dominican Sisters of St. Joseph's school. At the head of the procession marched the little girls, dressed in white, carrying bouquets of choicest flowers. Rev. Fr. Malone officiated and gave Solemn Benediction after which Rev. Fr. Albin delivered a very impressive and instructive sermon to an exceptionally large audience, dwelling at length, on the sublimity of that faith and devotion of the Catholic people through the world towards the Blessed Eucharist, so admirably exemplified at the eucharistic Congress recently held in Montreal. The Rev. Clergy spoke very highly of East Jordan and its people and predicted for it a very prosperous future.

Modern Ideal

More Intimate Unity Among Human Family

By ADA MAY KRECKER

AN ANATOMIST of humor supposes that if all the nations of all the ages were to see each other in a colossal crowd their first impulse would be to laugh at each other's differences.

Current differences in social rank we democratically denounce as most horrifying. But they compare well with the feudalistic and Oriental castes of a few hundred years ago.

The social distinctions which formerly were regarded as mutually inimical in these latter days are being conceived as mutually helpful.

Social settlers were wont in days of old to undertake themselves to the poorer quarters of the city for the sake of their unfortunate fellows.

The same dictum applies with perfect fitness to the differences in masculine and feminine careers. Man and woman go to college, man and woman enter professions.

This would leave the same number of hours for business and sleep as now, and would give two better hours for the day's work, and two additional hours of daylight to the evening hours.

Thousands of families would, under these circumstances, move into the country or suburbs who are now held back by the fact that the men at the present time could not reach their homes until too late to get much benefit from a move of this kind.

Nicholas of Montenegro Affectionately Known as "the Father of His People" Literally Worshipped by His Subjects.

Vienna.—One of the most interesting monarchs in Europe, perhaps anywhere, is Prince, now King, Nicholas of Montenegro, who has recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his reign.

Nicholas was born at the little village of Njegos, a priest in the mountains, in 1841. His uncle, Danilo, the late Vladika of Montenegro, designated him for his successor.

The Princess Mellenia is as popular as her husband, and presides over the palace with stately but graceful dignity. She wears the native costume when she is in Montenegro, but has a Paris outfit when she visits foreign countries.

Nicholas usually rides around in a little pony chaise, drawn by a diminutive animal like that Queen Victoria used to use in her garden at Osborne and in the park at Balmoral.

From 1460 to 1851 the executive authority in Montenegro was exercised by Vladikas, or prince bishops as they were called, the same man being the head of the church and the head of the state.

The daughters of King Nicholas are uncommonly beautiful and accomplished and those of them who have married have done well.

FALL SET STRAWBERRIES ARE MOST EXCELLENT

Well Cared for Bed Will Produce Better Berries and Fully as Many as Spring Sets—Extra Care Doubles Yield.

A Fall Runner Set in a Box.

This plan of setting strawberries is better than spring planting. Want of time and uncertainty of the season causes neglect in the work.

We do not intend this for the commercial planting of acre areas, but for the farm home garden. A bed well cared for will produce better berries.

We select our ground and get it in the best possible condition for planting, also we care for the new plants intended for transplanting.

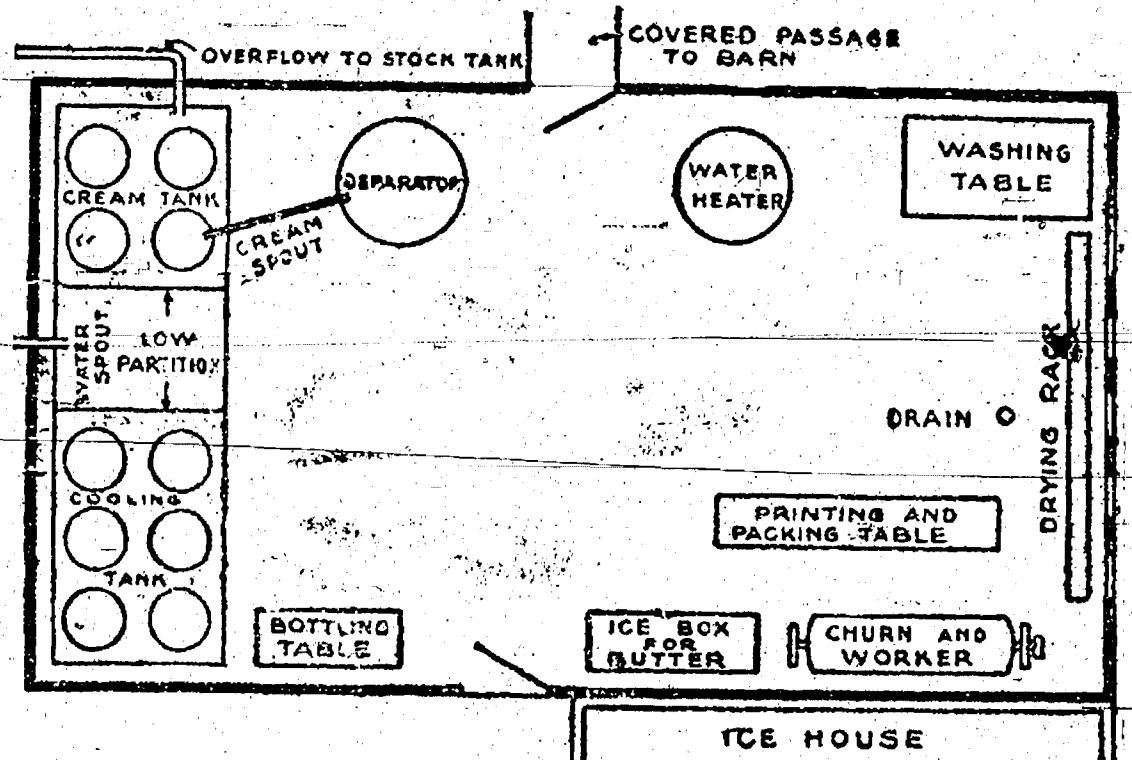

The plants should be set one foot apart in rows three feet apart.

berries. Sometimes we allow three or four runners to set, distributing them equally in the spaces so as to make a uniform bed.

Such beds do not require much winter protection because of the rank foliage they carry.

The picture is of a pot-grown plant set last fall. Its fruiting and foliage when so small a space as four inches square of soil is considered, is remarkable.

SMALL MILK-BUTTER DAIRY

The accompanying drawing shows our dairy room. It is in a separate building from the barn, and is connected to the milking room by a short covered passage.

The cooling tank is connected by a pump to the pump and water is kept flowing through the tank whenever there is sufficient wind to run the windmill.

The floor is made of cement and very easily kept clean. It is not corrugated or creased, and is easily tided off after each milking.

At the right side of the tank is the separator. The cream spout is long enough to reach to the cream cans in the tank, and the cream is run immediately into these, where it is cooled. At the left end of the tank is the bottling table.

There are five large windows on the opposite end of the building from the tank, and in front of this is the rack for drying the utensils.

In one corner of this end of the building is a washing table and a small stove for heating wash water, and in the other corner is the churn and worker, the table on which is made the prints, and an ice box in which the butter is temporarily stored.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to take the deposition of the chief witness for the prosecution, John Gilmore, a millionaire. In the latter's house the lawyer is attracted by the picture of a girl whom Gilmore explains is his granddaughter, Alison West. He says her father is a rascal and a friend of the forger. Standing in line to buy a Pullman ticket Blakeley is requested by a lady to buy her one. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a man in a drunken stupor in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakens in lower seven and finds his bag and clothing missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. It is learned that the dead man is Simon Harrington of Pittsburgh. The man who disappeared with Blakeley's clothes is suspected of the murder.

CHAPTER VI—Continued.

"Then you haven't heard the rest of the tragedy?" I asked, holding out the case. "It's frightfully bad luck for me, but it makes a good story. You see—"

At that moment the conductor and porter ceased their colloquy. The conductor came directly toward me, tugging as he came at his bristling gray mustache.

"I would like to talk to you in the car," he said to me, with a curious glance at the young lady.

"Can't it wait?" I objected. "We are on our way to a cup of coffee and a slice of bacon. Be merciful as you are powerful."

"I'm afraid the breakfast will have to wait," he replied. "I won't keep you long." There was a note of authority in his voice which I resented; but, after all, the circumstances were unusual.

"We'll have to defer that cup of coffee for a while," I said to the girl; but don't despair; there's breakfast somewhere."

As we entered the car, she stood aside, but I felt rather than saw that she followed us. I was surprised to see a half dozen men gathered around the berth in which I had awakened, number seven. It had not yet been made up.

As we passed along the aisle, I was conscious of a new expression on the faces of the passengers. The tall woman who had fainted was searching my face with narrowed eyes, while the stout woman of the kindly heart avoided my gaze, and pretended to look out of the window.

As we pushed our way through the group, I fancied that it closed around me ominously. The conductor said nothing, but led the way without ceremony to the side of the berth.

"What's the matter?" I inquired. I was puzzled, but not apprehensive. "Have you some of my things? I'd be thankful even for my shoes; these are confoundingly tight."

Nobody spoke, and I fell silent, too. For one of the pillows had been turned over, and the under side of the white case was streaked with brownish stains. I think it was a perceptible time before I realized that the stains were blood, and that the faces around were filled with suspicion and distrust.

"Why, it—that looks like blood," I said vacuously. There was an incessant pounding in my ears, and the conductor's voice came from far off.

"It is blood," he asserted grimly. I looked around with a dizzy attempt at nonchalance. "Even if it is," I reconstructed, "surely you don't suppose for a moment that I know anything about it!"

The amateur detective elbowed his way in. He had a scrap of transparent paper in his hand, and a pencil.

"I would like permission to trace the stains," he began eagerly. "Also—to me—if you will kindly jab your finger with a pin—needle—anything—"

"You don't keep out of this," the conductor said savagely. "I will do some jabbing myself. As for you, sir—" he turned to me. I was absolutely innocent, but I knew that I presented a typical picture of guilt; I was covered with cold sweat, and the pounding in my ears kept up dizzily. "As for you, sir—"

The irrepressible amateur detective made a quick pounce at the pillow and pushed back the cover. Before our incredulous eyes he drew out a narrow steel dirk which had been buried to the small cross that served as a head.

There was a chorus of voices around, a quick surging forward of the crowd. So that was what had scratched my hand! I buried the wound in my coat pocket.

"Well," I said, trying to speak naturally, "doesn't that prove what I have been telling you? The man who committed the murder belonged to this berth, and made an exchange in some way after the crime. How do you know he didn't change the tags so I would come back to this berth?" This was an inspiration; I was pleased with it. "That's what he did, he changed the tags," I reiterated.

There was a murmur of assent around. The doctor, who was standing beside me, put his hand on my arm. "If this gentleman committed this crime, and I for one feel sure he did not, then who is the fellow who got away? And why did he go?"

"We have only one man's word for that," the conductor snarled. "I've traveled some in these cars myself, and no one ever changed berths with me." Somebody on the edge of the group asserted that hereafter he would travel by daylight. I glanced up and caught the eye of the girl in blue.

"They are all mad," she said. Her tone was low, but I heard her distinctly. "Don't take them seriously enough to defend yourself."

"I am glad you think I didn't do it," I observed meekly, over the crowd. "Nothing else is of any importance."

The conductor had pulled out his note-book again. "Your name, please," he said gruffly.

"Lawrence Blakeley, Washington."
"Your occupation?"
"Attorney. A member of the firm of Blakeley & McKnight."

"Mr. Blakeley, you say you have occupied the wrong berth and have been robbed. Do you know anything of the man who did it?"

"Only from what he left behind," I answered. "These clothes—"

"They fit you," he said with quick suspicion. "Isn't that rather a coincidence? You are a large man."

"Good heavens," I retorted, stung to fury, "do I look like a man who would wear this kind of a necktie? Do you suppose I carry purple and green barred silk handkerchiefs? Would any man in his senses wear a pair of shoes a full size too small?"

The conductor was inclined to hedge. "You will have to grant that I am in a peculiar position," he said. "I have only your word as to the exchange of berths, and you understand, I am merely doing my duty. Are there any clues in the pockets?"

For the second time I emptied them of their contents, which he noted. "Is that all?" he finished. "There was nothing else?"

"Nothing."
"That's not all, sir," broke in the porter, stepping forward. "There was a small black satchel."

"That's so," I exclaimed. "I forgot the bag. I don't even know where it is."

The easily swayed crowd looked suspicious again. I've grown so accustomed to reading the faces of a jury, seeing them swing from doubt to belief, and back again to doubt, that I instinctively watch expressions. I saw that my forgetfulness had done me harm—that suspicion was roused again.

The bag was found a-couple of seats away, under somebody's raincoat—another dubious circumstance. Was I hiding it? It was brought to the berth and placed beside the conductor, who opened it at once.

It contained the usual traveling impediments—change of linen, collars, handkerchiefs, a bronze-green scarf, and a safety razor. But the attention of the crowd riveted itself on a flat, Russia leather wallet, around which a heavy gun band was wrapped, and which bore in gilt letters the name "Simon Harrington."

CHAPTER VII.

A Fine Gold Chain.

The conductor held it out to me, his face sternly accusing.

"Is this another coincidence?" he asked. "Did the man who left you in his clothes and the barred silk handkerchief and the tight shoes leave you the spoil of the murder?"

The men standing around had drawn off a little, and I saw the absolute futility of any remonstrance. Have you ever seen a fly, who, in these hygienic days, finding no cobwebs to entangle him, is caught in a sheet of fly paper, finds himself more and more mired, and is finally quiet with the sticky stillness of despair?"

Well, I was the fly. I had seen too much of circumstantial evidence to have any belief that the establishing of my identity would weigh much against the other incriminating details. It meant imprisonment and trial, probably, with all the notoriety and loss of practice they would entail. A man thinks quickly at a time like that. All the probable consequences of the finding of that pocket-book flashed through my mind as I extended my hand to take it. Then I drew my arm back.

"I don't want it," I said. "Look inside. Maybe the other man took the money and left the wallet."

The conductor opened it, and again there was a curious surging forward of the crowd. To my intense disappointment the money was still there. I stood blankly miserable while it was counted out—five $100 bills, six twenties and some fives and ones that brought the total to $650.

The little man with the note-book insisted on taking the numbers of the notes, to the conductor's annoyance. It was immaterial to me: Small things had lost their power to irritate. I was seeing myself in the prisoner's box, going through all the nerve-racking routine of a trial for murder—the challenging of the jury, the endless cross-examinations, the alternate hope and fear. I believe I said before that I had no nerves; but for a few minutes that morning I was as near as a man ever comes to hysteria.

I folded my arms and gave myself a mental shake. I seemed to be the center of a hundred eyes, expressing every shade of doubt and distrust, but I tried not to flinch. Then some one created a diversion.

The amateur detective was busy again with the sealskin bag, investigating the make of the safety razor and the manufacturer's name on the bronze-green tie. Now, however, he paused and frowned, as though some pet theory had been upset.

Then from a corner of the bag he drew out and held up for our inspection some three inches of fine gold chain, one end of which was blackened and stained with blood!

The conductor held out his hand for it, but the little man was not ready to give it up. He turned to me.

"You say no watch was left you? Was there a piece of chain like that?"

"No chain at all," I said sulkily. "No jewelry of any kind, except plain gold buttons in the shirt I am wearing."

"Where are your glasses?" he threw at me suddenly; instinctively my hand went to my eyes. My glasses had been gone all morning, and I had not even noticed their absence. The little man smiled cynically and held out the chain.

"I must ask you to examine this," he insisted. "Isn't it a part of the fine gold chain you wear over your ear?"

I didn't want to touch the thing; The stain at the end made me shudder. But with a baker's dozen of suspicious eyes—well, we'll say 14—there were no one-eyed men—I took the fragment in the tips of my fingers and looked at it helplessly.

"Very fine chains are much alike," I managed to say. "For all I know, this may be mine, but I don't know how it got into that sealskin bag. I never saw the bag until this morning after daylight."

"I Don't Want It," I Said.

New York.—Hereward Carrington, investigator of spiritualistic phenomena, gave what he called an "expose" of the methods of mediums the other afternoon in the Berkeley theater.

The audience was treated to manifestations of the ordinary seance, including slate writing, bell ringing, table levitation and finally a materialization, all of which manifestations he afterwards explained.

Mrs. Carrington introduced the audience into the proper atmosphere by playing the piano, and the hall was darkened, the red curtains parted, and the stage was disclosed set for a seance.

First, Mr. Carrington took an ordinary wax hand, made to resemble the human hand, with a cuff and part of the coat cut off just above the wrist. He placed this on a piece of glass supported by four tumbler on an ordinary table. He then retired to the further corner of the stage and asked the hand questions which could be answered by rappings. The hand tipped and rapped. The audience was mystified until Mr. Carrington explained that by means of a black thread from the cabinet to the hand of his assistant the hand, which was finely balanced, could be easily tipped.

A glass bell was rung by a somewhat similar contrivance. Mr. Carrington held the bell close to Daniel Frohman, who sat in a box, but that manager was unable to detect any trickery, although the bell was ringing at the time.

Mr. Carrington then placed a mandolin, a bell and a tambourine on a table. He held a red handkerchief in front of these. Both of his hands seemed to be visible, holding the handkerchief, yet the bell was hurled over the top with great violence, the strings of the mandolin were twanged and the tambourine was shaken.

All this was explained when Mr. Carrington exposed the back of the handkerchief. A wooden rod held in his left hand held the handkerchief in position, and at the other corner the simulated fingers of a wooden hand appeared. His right hand was free.

A large oak table placed in the center of the room was raised three feet from the floor and then dropped. A smaller table even performed evolutions in the air guided by Mr. Carrington's hand. A delicate piece of wire was found connected to the table and twisted around one of the medium's fingers.

The larger table was moved first with hooks attached to the wrist and

CHAPTER VIII.

The Second Section.

Have you ever been picked up out of your three-meals-a-day life, whirled around in a tornado of events, and landed in a situation so grotesque and yet so horrible that you laugh even while you are groaning, and straining at its hopelessness? McKnight says that is hysteria, and that no man worthy of the name ever admits to it.

Also, as McKnight says, it sounds like a tank drama. Just as the revolving saw is about to cut the hero into stove lengths, the second villain blows up the sawmill. The hero goes up through the roof and alights on the bank of a stream at the feet of his lady love, who is making daisy chains.

Nevertheless, when I was safely home again, with Mrs. Klopion brewing strange drinks that came in paper packets from the pharmacy, and that smelled to heaven, I remember staggering to the door and closing it, and then going back to bed and howling out the absurdity and the madness of the whole thing. And while I laughed my very soul was sick; for the girl was gone by that time, and I knew by all the loyalty that answers between men for honor that I would have to put her out of my mind.

And yet, all the night that followed, filled as it was with the shrieking demons of pain, I saw her as I had seen her last, in the queer hat with green ribbons. I told the doctor this, guardedly, the next morning, and he said it was the morphia, and that I was lucky not to have seen a row of devils with green tails.

I don't know anything about the wreck of September 9 last. You who swallowed the details with your coffee and digested the horrors with your chop, probably know a great deal more than I do. I remember very distinctly that the jumping and throbbing in my arm brought me back to a world that at first was nothing but sky, a heap of clouds that I thought hazily were the meringue on a blue charlotte russe.

As the sense of hearing was slowly added to vision, I heard a woman near me sobbing that she had lost her hat pin, and she couldn't keep her hat on.

I think I dropped back into unconsciousness again, for the next thing I remember was of my blue patch of sky clouded with smoke, of a strange, roaring and crackling, of a rain of fiery sparks in my face and of some body beating at me with feeble hands. I opened my eyes and closed them again: The girl in blue was bending over me. With that imperviousness to big things and keenness to small that is the first effect of shock, I tried to be facetious, when a spark stung my cheek.

"You will have to rouse yourself!" the girl was repeating desperately. "You've been in fire twice already." A piece of striped ticking floated slowly over my head. As the wind caught it its charring edges leaped into flame.

"Looks like a kite, doesn't it?" I remarked cheerfully. And then, as my arm gave an excruciating throb—"Jove, how my arm hurts!"

The girl bent over and spoke slowly, distinctly, as one might speak to a deaf person or a child.

"Listen, Mr. Blakeley," she said earnestly. "You must rouse yourself. There has been a terrible accident. The second section ran into us. The wreck is burning now, and if we don't move, we will catch fire. Do you hear?"

The larger table was moved first with hooks attached to the wrist and placed under the table while the hands were above, and later by hooks protruding from under his waistcoat.

In these table levitations Mr. Carrington was assisted by a confederate, as he explained, mediums generally are. He said that with hooks protruding from the waistcoat supported by straps from over the shoulders that a table with a man on it could be lifted. Other methods, he said, were used by some mediums, but this was the most common.

The slate writing mystified the audience to some extent until Mr. Carrington explained. One trick of slate writing that was dazzling was too trivial to be interesting when shown up. The performer then sat at a table and materialized a baby's hand, which gradually rose over the top of the table. It was later discovered that this hand was attached to Mr. Carrington's foot.

In utter darkness Mr. Carrington then retired to a cabinet and materialized a Turk out of misty whiteness. The effect was startling until Mr. Carrington did the same thing with all the lights on. When it seemed easy to do with a false mustache and a piece of cheese cloth covered with phosphorus.

AFTER SUFFERING FOR YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Park Rapids, Minn.—"I was sick for years while passing through the Change of Life and was hardly able to be around. After taking six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I gained 20 pounds, am now able to do my own work and feel well."—Mrs. E. LA DOW, Park Rapids, Minn.

Brookville, Ohio.—"I was irregular and extremely nervous. A neighbor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I have become regular and my nerves are much better."—Mrs. K. KENNEDY, Brookville, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it is free and always helpful.

AN EXCUSE FOR EACH.

Mother (severely)—How many strawberries have you eaten out of this basket, Ethel?

Ethel—Only two. One to see how it tasted, and the other to take the taste out of my mouth.

Which Do You Like Worst? This is the greatest known way for undecided people to make up their minds.

None but a strong minded woman can ever decide which of two or three hats she likes "the best," particularly if they are all comely.

Popular belles have been known to have similar troubles with their sweethearts. Which do I like best is often a momentous question.

Why not try the other way? Decide which, of men, or hats, or attractive "dates" you like the worst, and then proceed to eliminate.

From there you can factor out in the grade of desirability, until you actually find yourself at a decision, because it, whatever it is, is the only one left.

The process is delightfully simple.

Nature makes the cures after all.

Now and then she gets into a tight place and needs helping out.

Things get started in the wrong direction.

Something is needed to check disease and start the system in the right direction toward health.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with hypophosphites can do just this.

It strengthens the nerves, feeds famished tissues, and makes rich blood.

L. T. HEMANS' OFFICIAL RECORD

Why Nothing is Being Said of It in This Campaign—Served as State Legislator.

ATTENDED HALF OF SESSIONS

Draw Full Pay, However—Introduced Bill to License Bucketshops in Michigan, and Voted For More Appropriation Bills Than Any Other Member.

It is worthy of note in this campaign that Lawton T. Hemans, the Democratic candidate for governor, is making no reference to his own official record. Not a word has he uttered touching his official performances or attempted accomplishments.

Yet Mr. Hemans was on the salary list through two full terms as a legislator. He was not present at more than half the sessions of the body to which he belonged, but he drew pay for full time.

He introduced a bill to provide for an additional state board. But as a candidate for governor he is now denouncing the existence of so many state boards.

Mr. Hemans introduced a bill to license bucketshops in Michigan. His bill sought to make the pretended sales and purchases through bucketshops "legitimate legal transactions." What the people of Michigan think of the bucketshop business which would have been licensed and legalized if the Democratic candidate for governor had secured the passage of his bill is shown by the fact that at the same session of the legislature following his effort a bill entirely prohibiting the existence of bucketshops in Michigan became a law.

Mr. Hemans is now seemingly distressed over state expenditures, but he voted for more appropriation bills than any other member of the legislature during his terms of service, and afterwards made an address in the constitutional convention declaring that it was not true that Michigan legislators had ever made extravagant appropriations.

As a member of the constitutional convention Mr. Hemans opposed the proposition that the legislature of Michigan should have power to enact laws relative to the hours and conditions under which women and children may be employed.

This proposition was especially urged by the labor organizations of Michigan. They petitioned that the constitution should give this power to the legislature. And the justice of the request was recognized by the majority of the members of the constitutional convention. It was adopted by the constitutional convention and later on was approved by the people, and is now a part of our state constitution.

But Lawton T. Hemans, made a speech against it and voted against it, sneeringly referring to it as "a little piece of sentiment." Why is Mr. Hemans not referring to this feature of his official record?

It will be observed that Mr. Hemans has an official record. He was a member of the legislature through four years. Why does he entirely fail to base any claim to favor from the people of Michigan on the work he performed, or attempted to perform, as a supposed representative of the people?

RECORDS COMPARED.

Lawton T. Hemans Did Nothing Himself, Yet is Finding Fault With Osborn's Accomplishments.

The same exaggerated statements as to expense accounts which are now being made by the Democratic candidate for governor with reference to Chase S. Osborn's expenses as railroad commissioner have been made in connection with every successful effort to compel the railroads of Michigan to reduce their railroad rates and passenger fares and to pay increased taxes.

The expenditures about which Mr. Hemans is finding fault have increased the income of the state of Michigan from railroad sources from less than $1,000,000 to more than $5,000,000.

They have resulted in reduction of railroad fares from three cents to two cents per mile.

They have brought to the people of this state advantages and conveniences and safety appliances in connection with railroad movements hardly equalled in value and desirability by those required in any other state in the union.

As a member of the legislature through two terms Mr. Hemans did nothing and said nothing in the direction of the work successfully accomplished by Mr. Osborn.

Mr. Hemans voted for all appropriation bills. He insisted that Michigan legislatures had never been extravagant and exhibited not the least interest or concern in any direction of state need or state economy.

No stronger appeal could possibly be made in behalf of the Republican candidate for governor as compared with his opponent than a fair comparison of the official accomplishments of Chase S. Osborn with the official record of Lawton T. Hemans.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No East Jordan Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's East Jordan's proof:

L. D. Porter, Bown & Mill Sta., East Jordan, Mich., says: "I can give Doan's Kidney Pills my strongest recommendation as they have helped me wonderfully. My back was extremely lame and in the morning when I got up, I could hardly straighten. When I attempted to stoop or lift, sharp, darting pains passed through my body. My kidneys were sluggish and the kidney secretions were unnatural and contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills procured from the Spring Drug Co., acted like a charm and it did not take them long to drive away the pains and aches. You are welcome to use my reference."

Special Reduction

Will give reductions on men's boys and children's shoes on Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. We need not exaggerate the quality of our shoes for it is well known to every one that Rouge R-x Shoes are the best made for all kinds of wear. And this is the secret of our success in meeting the wants of our laboring men in footwear.

We know what the farmer has to contend with. We know the service he expects and must get from his shoes. We have made ourselves acquainted with his tastes as to styles of last and leathers. Why should we then be able to satisfy him? Of course we must be progressive to keep up with the farmer of today. With his daily paper, his telephone, and his constant touch with all the live issues, his desires, his wants, his needs, in all lines have expanded. He buys more intelligently and of a better class of goods than his fathers. He has become a business man of the highest rank, and naturally he has developed with a more exacting purchaser as to quality and styles as well as comfort and serviceability than any generation that has preceded him. We know this, we have kept an ear close to the ground and have marked well this steady advance, and we have bent every effort toward meeting his changing requirement. The result—Rouge Rex Shoes.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism. Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this horrible disease.

In Germany with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made—a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. ## OSBORN WILL MAKE GOOD GOV.

If Elected, Soo Man Will Give Michigan Grand Administration.

W. S. GOOD R. R. COMMISSIONER

He Accomplished Things, and Made the Office a Substantial Benefit to the Public—It Cost Money to Do Business His Way, but He Got Results, Says C. S. Brown.

"I see that Lawton T. Hemans, the Democratic nominee for governor, is making campaign remarks to the effect that Chase S. Osborn, the Republican nominee, conducted the most expensive administration the state ever had, during his term as state railroad commissioner," said Charles S. Brown, of Grand Rapids, to a Detroit Free Press representative.

"I want to say, and say it with all the emphasis I can, that since the office of state railroad commissioner was created, Michigan has never had a man in the position before or since who accomplished so much good for the traveling public as Chase S. Osborn. Every commercial traveler in the state who knows anything about it will bear witness to that fact. He did things, and the office under him was not a sinecure, but a real and substantial benefit to the public. I take it for granted that it cost more to do business in that way, but we got results for the money."

Brown has been a commercial traveler for upwards of 30 years and is one of the best known in the state and throughout the middle west.

He is the man who was selected by President Roosevelt in 1906 to be inspector of the government printing office at Washington, an office which the president created for the purpose of cleaning out the graft which had infested the big establishment for so many years that it required the keenest kind of an expert to ferret it out and get rid of it. Brown stayed there one year and made a house cleaning that made him famous all over the country. He was offered all kinds of inducements to remain, but after the cleaning was done he preferred to return to private life and business.

"I have known Chase Osborn," said he, "for more than a quarter of a century, and he is not only a big man mentally, but one of the squarest and most efficient men I ever met. Michigan will have one of its old time administrations if he is elected governor. He will do in that office just what he did as railroad commissioner, accomplish results for the good of the state and its people. I shall make it a point to be in Michigan on election day so as to vote for him."
