Republicans Victorious

Carry State and County Tickets
by Good Majorities.

"Labor Party" Gag Did't Fool
Voters.

Last Tuesday marked one of the quietest elections that ever was held in Charlevoix County. The vote in every precinct was light, but nearly every one gave a substantial republican majority.

The so-called "Labor Ticket" was snuffed under in spite of their vigorous campaign, and the voters showed that they cannot be fooled by popular names for a party.

County Treasurer Richard Lewis led in majorities in the county ticket receiving about 735. Clerk Payton received a majority of about 662, Register Emery 629, Sheriff Robbins 515, Prosecuting Att'y Fitch 682, Chas. S. Osborn received a majority of 841 for governor over Hemans. State Senator Scott led the ticket by about 1034 majority over his democratic opponent, Congressman Dodds received about 1023 majority and State Representative Pearson about 649.

RICHARD LEWIS,
County Treasurer.

Arthur Reidel, the Detroit bartender who drank carbonic acid and died in a police ambulance one day last week as a result of a drunken carousal, Tolley Buzynski who shot and killed a fellow laborer in a Bay City saloon Sunday night, Volney Smith, the Detroit saloonkeeper who shot and killed Edward Sullivan a few days ago, and Henry Nozz, a Grand Trunk gatekeeper who became so drunk while on duty as a result of repeated visits to a nearby saloon that a disastrous train accident was only averted through a policeman hurriedly taking his place, were all exercising their assumed personal liberty and saloon privileges up to the last hours of the above fateful incidents. But their crimes are burdens which the members of their families and society as a whole must fully bear. The saloons which are responsible for such results open as early and remain open as before. They accept no responsibility, take note of none of the accumulating results of their so-called "business" and when public indignation is directed against them they alibi talk of the rent they pay and of their contributions to local trade. But the misery and misfortune and death created by the saloon will inevitably cause it to be put out of existence. That fate has been delayed but cannot be avoided.

BOTH SPEEDY AND EFFECTIVE.

This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek, Mich. illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation." Hites Drug store.

NOVEMBER.

Mr. Taft, who rules the nation Offers this, his proclamation: Whereas, Providence continues Blessing us from day to day, And the boon of independence Has, we take it, come to stay;

And whereas, Indigent Nature Lavishes upon us still; Bounty in excess of what the Weather and the bugs can kill;

And whereas, The old republic Could not be improved upon, Notwithstanding everybody Gets to run it off and on;

Therefore, I, as delegated Now and for a short time hence President, decree that turkey Shall go up to 20 cents.

That's about all there is to it. Once the country raised its own, and the White House proclamation was not greeted with a groan. Father simply grabbed the hatchet, mother got the water hot, father read the proclamation to the turkeys in the lot, all the young and female turkeys promptly fainted from the shock, and after due farewells the gobbler laid his head upon the block.

No one telephoned the butcher, asking what a turkey cost. No one in his deep resentment wished the Pilgrims had been lost. No one, while the feast proceeded, knew the torment of the rack flapping upon his napkin what the day had set him back.

Everybody was provided, as the founders pre-supposed. No one can be very thankful, if the truth should be disclosed, paying what we pay for turkey, and for all of Heaven's gifts feeling that the day was founded for the Armours and the Swifts.

November gets its name from the Latin novem (nine), and was originally the ninth month of the year. This brought Thanksgiving around two months earlier than we have it now, and it became very unpopular. The insurgents, who constitute a majority in the agricultural districts, were bitterly opposed to it. They made two contentions: First, that young turkeys were not old enough to market; second that crops had not progressed to the point where it was possible to make out whether there was anything to be thankful for or not. In 713 B. C. the storm broke. The insurgents carried Gaul, Britannia and 17 other doubtful states, and the Forum immediately assembled and made November the eleventh month of the year.

CURING CATARRH.

Accept Our Advice and Try This Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. The mucous membrane is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system.

When the catarrhal poison attacks the mucous membrane, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature fails to throw off the accumulated poisons. The organ which has been afflicted ceases to perform its proper functions as nature intended it should. The result is, complication upon complication, which may lead to other even more serious afflictions.

We honestly believe Rexall Muc-Tone will do wonders toward overcoming catarrh. It is made from the prescription of an eminent physician who made a long study of catarrh, and his great success with this remedy was an enviable one.

We want you if you are a sufferer from catarrh in any form, to give Rexall Muc-Tone a thorough trial. Use it with regularity and persistency for a reasonable length of time, then if you are not satisfied, come back and tell us, and without question or formality we will hand back to you every cent you paid us. This certainly is the fullest offer that any one could and should attest our sincerity of purpose. It comes in two sizes, prices 50c. and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at—The Rexall Store.

A HOUSEHOLD MEDICINE.

To be really valuable must show equally good results from each member of the family using it. Foley's Honey and Tar does just this. Whether for children or grown persons Foley's Honey and Tar is best and safest for all coughs and colds. Hites Drug store.

NO REASON FOR DOUBT.

A Statement of Facts Backed by a Strong Guarantee.

We guarantee complete relief to all sufferers from constipation. In every case where we fail we will supply the medicine free.

Rexall Orderlies are a gentle, effective, dependable and safe bowel regulator, strengthener and tonic. They re-establish nature's functions in a quiet, easy way. They do not cause any inconvenience, griping or nausea. They are so pleasant to take and work so easily that they may be taken by any one at any time. They thoroughly tone up the whole system to healthy activity.

Rexall Orderlies are unsurpassable and ideal for the use of children, old folks and delicate persons. We cannot too highly recommend them to all sufferers from any form of constipation and its attendant evils. Two sizes, 10c. and 25c. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Orderlies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heart and Kidneys. The old fashioned way of dosing the stomach or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is surely wrong! Dr. Shoop first found this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs", said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerve". When these nerves fall then those organs must surely falter. This vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by Jas. Gidley.

Conduct Counts

Gentle Breeding Boosts Chances for Success

By JOHN A. HOWLAND

BUSINESS men of the older school are disposed at the present time to resent some of the shortcomings in deportment which they find in the younger generation. They are inclined to find fault with the young man because of his general lack of reverence for anything. They criticize his dress as loud. They see in him almost the antithesis of the young man as he was in their day.

Remembering all that was required of themselves in deportment, these older observers of the younger generation may go a little too far in their criticisms of the present type of young-business man. They may exaggerate a little their own early virtues; they may fail to recognize that the times and the manners of men are subject to change.

But it remains that for the young man entering business not a little of his chances for success may depend upon his deportment. There can be no cut and dried standard of pose and manner measuring up to every line of occupation.

Occasionally one sees the extreme modest type of young man in public places, who, in the effort to be regardful of his deportment, goes to painful extremes. Perhaps he enters a general office which has a general lobby outside a railing which is set aside for the general public. He may remove his hat on entering the door and stand at the railing, hat in hand, waiting attention from an attendant.

In my observations the young man may be guilty of a faux pas costing him dearly if his mission to the place admits. Almost universally the office attendant is disposed to show his contempt of such a caller. He decides that such a man, seeking audience of some one inside, is cringingly anxious. In the experience of the attendant those persons cringingly anxious to get inside are persons whom he has found it wise to dismiss, if he can.

In these busy, crowding times a little of the old-fashioned courtesy and consideration which once ruled among gentle people comes to the hurried man of business with all its old subtleties and balm. When occasionally a hurrying man passing through a doorway ahead of you pauses a moment to hold it open and you nod the "thank you" that springs unthought to your lips, can't you feel that mutually the two of you have experienced a little something not exactly related to the sordid cares of life?

There is plenty of time, still, for these small observances of gentle breeding. Deportment, based on honest decency, still is at a premium in the world. The young man at large cannot afford to forget the fact.

Would Widen Scope of Juvenile Courts

By JUDGE WILLIAM H. DeLACY, Washington, D. C.

The juvenile court is born of the realization that during childhood the young are in a formative period, in which they may develop good habits, and for infractions of law they should receive correction rather than punishment. Now, correction involves the idea of adjustment of conduct to approved standards; involves the idea of education and culture, and herein lies the opportunity of such courts to aid good citizenship.

This court, exercising the chancery powers of the state as parens patriae, places needy little ones bereft of their parents under proper care and guardianship, and rescues children from vicious or immoral surroundings. These courts punish adults who debauch the young or influence them to illegal acts; they enforce the child labor legislation intended for the conservation of childhood; they enforce the laws requiring the husband and father to support the wife and children. They aim to so intelligently handle the children who have violated the laws of the state as to correct their evil doings and save these children to themselves and to the community. In a painstaking manner they instruct the children in their duties and in their rights, and strive to awaken their self-respect.

From the juvenile court it is hoped that our citizens of tomorrow will derive knowledge and imbibe a spirit of obedience to the laws of their country. This truly educative function makes the juvenile court the complement of the public school and demands in the judge the qualities of the jurist, the teacher, sociologist and philanthropist.

"Kicking" Against Abuses Makes Progress

By ROBERT EVANS

It is poor patriotism to defend the corruption and dishonesty of legislatures and institutions of this country against just criticism. I am a foreign-born American, and often in the course of a friendly conversation or discussion I point out the low standard of certain things in this country as compared with Great Britain. But the young American who has read little and traveled none seems to resent this. He does not seem to appreciate the need for reform or amelioration. It is a lamentable fact that though this country is inexhaustibly rich in natural resources, yet there is as much poverty and privation in this country as in Great Britain. To parade their wants, assert their rights or agitate for reform would in this country seem to be inconsistent with patriotism. This is a gross error.

A striking characteristic of the average American is that he is too easily satisfied. His acquiescence in the prevailing state of affairs is nothing short of servility. A worm will even turn up when trampled upon, but the people in this country will readily submit to be huddled together like sardines in street cars, steam trains and steamboats, as is the case in no other civilized country.

The man who "kicks" is he who makes for progress; he is the salt of the earth.

Daniel O'Connell, the great Irish emancipator or liberator, was asked his advice on a very important question of the day. His answer was: "Agitate, agitate, agitate."

HOBO LOCKED IN A CAR OF OATS THREE DAYS

HAD A LIVELY TIME TO KEEP SHIFTING LOAD FROM BURYING HIM.

New York.—With oats in his hair, ears, mouth, pockets and shoes, Joseph Patrick, 19 years old, of Montreal, half-felt and was half-lifted out of a freight car on the Long Island railroad as the train stood in the Brooklyn yards.

The man had been three days in a car filled with oats. To hold off starvation he ate oats. It was dry diet and the first thing he did when found was to gasp for a drink of water. In his three days' ride he had not dared to sleep, for the shifting of the oats in the car threatened him with suffocation and he had to be on the alert constantly against the sliding of the cargo. When the car bumped on ties or rounded switches it raised a smothering dust.

At every stop Patrick banged with all his strength on the locked door of the car and shouted for help. He was so weak that he succeeded only in faintly tapping on the door.

Locked in a Car of Oats.

Fortunately, Thomas Kyle, a special officer of the railroad, paused while walking down the track to rest a few seconds. He heard the tapping, called the conductor and other members of the train crew and the door of the car was forced open. Patrick staggered into view in a shower of oats. He could not stand. But he was conscious. He was given water to drink and a stimulant and then was able to tell of his adventure.

"I got in the car at Little Falls, N. Y., late at night," he said. "I wanted to get back to Montreal where I belong. It was all right when the car wasn't in motion and I was snug enough a-laying on top of the oats. But then the door was locked and the train started.

"Glory be—but I had a grand time. With the train movin' the oats was a regular quake and every time I went to lie down I'd slide in. It kept me scrambling the whole time to keep me red head above water, I mean oats. But, of course, it isn't all complainin' I'm doin'." The car might have been loaded with buckshot. Ye can eat oats.

"Tis a horse's diet but 'twas a jackass I'd ever been to get into the car, so I took me medicine. I munched me oats like a truck horse. But 'twas a fearful time I had without water. Me tongue swelled so I could only look at the oats and be that time I couldn't eat oats anyway. I kept up a knockin' on the door, but never was there any answer. I couldn't keep the oats out of me system. They leaked into me ears and stuck in me hair and filled me pockets, and I was so tired I thought sure I'd have to die, for if I fell asleep, it'd be to wake up 'tween' oats and scramblin' to keep the shiftin' oats from buryin' me entirely."

Patrick was taken to the police station and then to the Police Court, where his answers concerning himself to Magistrate Nash were so evasive that the magistrate decided that Patrick would have to go to the workhouse for six months for rest.

"Tis small care I have o' that," said Patrick, departing, "unless they have oatmeal for breakfast. If they do, I'll break jail."

Chicken Hawks Prove Blessing. Loveland, Col.—Chicken hawks, once the bane of the farmers' life, are now the best protected bird in this part of Colorado. Ranchmen are guarding them against slaughter with a vigilance that has put state wardens to shame. The unusual alliance is due to a pest of grasshoppers which has threatened the alfalfa crops with ruin. The hawks, nearly a thousand of which have collected in this neighborhood, have proved to be the most successful means of destroying the grasshoppers, which they evidently regard as delicacies in the matter of food, leaving chickens unmolested.

Woman 60, Swims 5 Miles. St. Louis, Mo.—Mrs. Andrew Brandenberger, 60 years old and weighing 170 pounds, swam five miles in the height of one of the heaviest rainstorms in the city's history. She swam from the east end of the Eads bridge, at the heart of the business section to the St. Louis Alton hotel at 5408 South Broadway. Mrs. Brandenberger was quite fresh at the conclusion of the swim and climbed a flight of 495 steps from the levee where she landed to the top of the hill.

TOAD OF INCALCULABLE VALUE TO HORTICULTURIST

Interesting Information Regarding Habits of This Little Creature and How It Benefits Gardens and Farmers.

(By F. L. LANDACHE.)

Toads have been found to be friends of the farmer.

They feed entirely upon an incredible number of insects. The federal department of agriculture, investigating the toad, discovers the startling fact that in 24 hours the insect food consumed by one toad equals in quantity four times the capacity of its stomach, which is practically filled and emptied four times every 24 hours. One hundred and fifty-nine stomachs examined by the department showed a content of 19 per cent. of ants; 16 per cent. of cut worms; 10 per cent. of thousand-legged worms; 9 per cent. caterpillars; 8 per cent. of ground beetles; 5 per cent. of destructive weevils; 3 per cent. of destructive weevils; 3 with crickets, spiders, sow bugs, potato bugs and a miscellaneous lot of other insects.

Protect the toad. Teach the thoughtless boy friendliness to this helpless, harmless, useful animal.

The frogs and toads, like many animals that are unable to defend themselves with teeth or claws, and are slow of foot and at the same time make a tempting morsel for almost any flesh-eating animal, rely to some extent at least on protective coloration.

That is, they may seek surroundings in which their permanent color is inconspicuous or, as in the case of the frog and toad, they may in addition change their color to suit the surroundings.

If you examine a toad particularly, or even a frog, you will see several colors, such as red, yellow and brown shading into black.

The intensity of these colors and the amount of surface covered by them varies, so that the effect of the blended colors varies considerably.

An interesting experiment for a young naturalist consists in placing frogs, particularly the tree frogs, on a green, brown or gray background to see to what extent they will assume the color of their surroundings.

The skin of the toad is covered with warts, which have a more or less unpleasant taste to animals if we may judge by their actions when they pick up a toad.

The raccoon is said to roll the toad between its paws some time before eating it. While the secretion of the skin is protective neither it nor any other act of the toad produces warts.

The food habits of the toad can be easily tested by keeping them in the yard or garden and feeding them in the evening. They feed at night, and are not at all wild after being handled a few times.

In feeding them, only live insects should be used, and when placed near the toad, insects disappear as if by magic.

The toad's tongue is fastened in the front part of its mouth and loose behind, and is flipped out so suddenly that it is almost invisible, even if you keep your eye on the animal when it is in the act of catching an insect.

They will be found to eat almost any kind of insect and will devour large numbers, and any one attempting to supply a toad with all the insects it will devour will find a large task on his hands.

They are simply invaluable in ridding gardens and fields of injurious insects.

The feeding habits of toads and frogs are closely related to their method of spending the winter.

During the summer food is stored in the body in the form of fat, in the liver in the form of glycogen, a form of sugar, and in the muscles.

In the fall, on the approach of cold weather, they bury themselves below the frost line and slowly use their stored-up food.

The temperature of the body is only slightly above the surrounding earth, and they may be partially frozen over and revive. During hibernation they cease to breathe by using the lungs and breathe through the skin; the beating of the heart and the circulation slow down, so that a very small amount of food and oxygen is sufficient.

On hot sand beaches the toad escapes the extreme heat in the day time by burying itself. Its temperature varies with its surroundings, being below the highest temperature in which it can live and above the lowest.

It would be more accurate to describe the toad as having a variable temperature than to call it cold-blooded.

The method by which frogs bury themselves is not easy to observe, as they usually hibernate in the mud, but toads can sometimes be found burrowing in the ground backwards, working the loose soil in front of them.

The winter sleep is followed immediately in the spring by egg-laying, and much of the stored-up food is probably used in forming the large masses of eggs which toads and frogs lay.

These are always deposited in the water. The frog's eggs are in a mass and the toad's in a long string; both are covered by a jelly-like coat, which swells up and makes the mass of eggs frequently larger than the parent.

This covering probably protects the eggs from being eaten and also serves to retain the heat of the sun's rays.

The rate of growth of the egg depends upon the temperature, but in a few days the young tadpoles come out of the eggs remaining attached, however, to the masses of jelly or to adjacent vegetation.

The metamorphosis of toads and frogs is one of the most marvelous processes in nature and gives us a hint how other animals that now always live on land once came out of the water, for all land animals show evidence of having descended from water animals.

The inflation of the body is a curious habit of toads and frogs. If pursued or seized, they swell the body up, thus making it more difficult for the snake, which is their worst enemy, to swallow them.

Individual Watermelons.

Individual watermelons about the size of a cantaloupe, of delicious flavor, yellow and red in color, have been introduced into this country by Horace Knowles, former minister to Roumania, who discovered them in the foothills of the mountains of that country.

Huckleberries in Texas.

A farmer near San Antonio, Texas, has succeeded so well in raising huckleberries which plants he received from the department of agriculture, that he has given up his entire farm to this fruit.

WEIGHT RETURNS HAY FORK

In using a weight to return a hay fork an excellent plan is to stretch a No. 9 wire from the end of the track to a post set in the ground about ten feet farther from the barn than the building is long, says Ohio Farmer. That is, if the barn is 40 feet long, set out 50 feet from the barn. Have pulley (A) running on the wire with weight (B) attached. Connect the pulley to the car (C) with a light rope. When the fork is pulled back into the mow the weight is raised, and when the fork is released the weight runs down the wire, bringing the fork out to the end of the track.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. In the latter's home he is attracted by a picture of a young girl, who the millionaire explains is his granddaughter. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Puritan Bible. He gives her lower eleven and retains lower ten. He finds a drunken man in lower ten and retires in lower nine. He awakes in lower seven and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower ten is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the unknown man who had exchanged clothes with him. Blakeley becomes interested in a girl in blue. The train is wrecked. Blakeley is rescued from the burning car by the girl in blue. The girl in blue and they go to the Carter place for breakfast. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Her peculiar actions mystify the lawyer. She drops her gold bag and Blakeley puts it in his pocket. Blakeley returns home. He finds that he is under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip.

CHAPTER XVI.

The Shadow of a Girl.

Certain things about the dinner at the Dallas house will always be obscure to me. Dallas was something in the fish commission, and I remember his reeling off fish eggs in billions while we ate our caviar. He had some particular stunt he had been urging the government to for years—something about forbidding the establishment of mills and factories on riverbanks—it seems they kill the fish, either the smoke, or the noise, or something they pour into the water.

Mrs. Dallas was there, I think. Of course, I suppose she must have been; and there was a woman in yellow; I took her in to dinner, and I remember she loosened my claims for me so I could get them. But the only real person at the table was a girl across in white, a sublimated young woman who was as brilliant as I was stupid, who never by any chance looked directly at me, and who appeared and disappeared across the candles and orchids in a sort of halo of radiance.

When the dinner had progressed from salmon to roast, and the conversation had done the same thing—from fish to scandal—the yellow gown turned to me.

"We have been awfully good, haven't we, Mr. Blakeley?" she asked. "Although I am crazy to hear, I have not said 'wreck' once. I'm sure you must feel like the survivor of Waterloo, or something of the sort."

"If you want me to tell you about the wreck," I said, glancing across the table, "I'm sorry to be disappointing, but I don't remember anything."

"You are fortunate to be able to forget it." It was the first word Miss West had spoken directly to me, and it went to my head.

"There are some things I have not forgotten," I said, over the candles. "I recall coming to myself some time after, and that a girl, a beautiful girl—"

"Ah!" said the lady in yellow, leaning forward breathlessly. Miss West was staring at me coldly, but, once started, I had to stumble on.

"That a girl was trying to rouse me, and that she told me I had been on fire twice already." A shudder went around the table.

went her way and I went mine. If she recalls me at all, she probably thinks of me as a weak-kneed individual who faints like a woman when everything is over."

"What did I tell you?" Mrs. Dallas asserted triumphantly. "He fainted, did you hear? when everything was over! He hasn't begun to tell it."

"I would have given a lot by that time if I had not mentioned the girl. But McKnight took it up there and carried it on."

"Blakeley is a regular geyser," he said. "He never spouts until he reaches the boiling point. And by that same token, although he hasn't said much about the Lady of the Wreck, I think he is crazy about her. In fact, I am sure of it. He thinks he has locked his secret in the caves of his soul, but I call you to witness that he has it nailed to his face. Look at him!"

I squirmed miserably and tried to avoid the startled eyes of the girl across the table. I wanted to choke McKnight and murder the rest of the party.

"It isn't fair," I said as coolly as I could. "I have my fingers crossed; you are five against one."

"And to think that there was a murder on that very train," broke in the lady in yellow. "It was a perfect crescendo of horrors, wasn't it? And what became of the murdered man, Mr. Blakeley?"

McKnight had the sense to jump into the conversation and save my reply.

"They say good Pittsburgers go to Atlantic City when they die," he said. "So—we are reasonably certain the gentleman did not go to the seashore."

The meal was over at last, and once in the drawing room it was clear we hung heavy on the hostess' hands. "It is so hard to get people for bridge in September," she wailed. "There is absolutely nobody in town. Six is a dreadful number."

"It's a good poker number," her husband suggested.

The matter settled itself, however. I was hopeless, save as a dummy; Miss West said it was too hot for cards, and went out on a balcony that overlooked the Mall. With obvious relief Mrs. Dallas had the card table brought, and—I was face to face with the minute I had dreaded and hoped for for a week.

Now it had come, it was more difficult than I had anticipated. I do not know if there was a moon, but there was the urban substitute for it—the arc light. It threw the shadow of the balcony railing in long black bars against her white gown, and as it swung sometimes the face was in the light. I drew a chair close so that I could watch her.

"Do you know," I said, when she made no effort at speech, "that you are a much more formidable person to-night, in that gown, than you were the last time I saw you?"

The light swung on her face; she was smiling faintly.

"The hat with the green ribbons!" she said. "I must take it back; I had almost forgotten."

"I have not forgotten—anything," I pulled myself up short. This was hardly loyalty to Richey. His voice came through the window just then, and perhaps I was wrong, but I thought she raised her head to listen. "Look at this hand," he was saying. "Regular planola; you could play it with your feet."

"He's a dear, isn't he?" Allison said unexpectedly. "No matter how depressed and downhearted I am, I always cheer up when I see Richey."

"He's more than that," I returned warmly. "He is the most honorable fellow I know. If he wasn't so much that way, he would have a career before him. He wanted to put on the doors of our offices, Blakeley and McKnight, P. B. H., which is Poor But Honest."

From my comparative poverty to the wealth of the girl beside me was a single mental leap. From that wealth to the grandfather who was responsible for it was another.

"I wonder if you know that I had been to Pittsburg to see your grandfather when I met you?" I said.

"You!" She was surprised.

"Yes. And you remember the alligator bag that I told you was exchanged for the one you cut off my arm?" She nodded expectantly. "Well, in that valise were the forged Andy Bronson notes, and Mr. Gilmore's deposition that they were forged."

She was on her feet in an instant. "In that bag!" she cried. "Oh, why didn't you tell me that before? Oh, it's so ridiculous, so—so hopeless. Why, I could—"

She stopped suddenly and sat down again. "I do not know that I am sorry, after all," she said after a pause. "Mr. Bronson was a friend of my father's. I—I suppose it was a bad thing for you, losing the papers?"

"Well, it was not a good thing," I conceded. "While we are on the subject of losing things, do you remember—do you know that I still have your gold purse?"

She did not reply at once. The shadow of a column was over her face, but I guessed that she was staring at me.

"You have it!" She almost whispered.

"I picked it up in the street car," I said, with a cheerfulness I did not feel. "It looks like a very opulent little purse."

Why didn't she speak about the necklace? For just a careless word to make me sane again!

"You!" she repeated, horror-stricken. And then I produced the purse and held it out on my palm.

"I should have sent it to you before, I suppose, but as you know, I have been laid up since the wreck."

We both saw McKnight at the same moment. He had pulled the curtains aside and was standing looking out at us. The tableau of give and take was unmistakable; the gold purse, her outstretched hand, my own attitude. It was over in a second; then he came out and lounged on the balcony railing.

"They're mad at me in there," he said airily, "so I came out. I suppose the reason they call it bridge is because so many people get cross over it."

The heat broke up the card group soon after, and they all came out for the night breeze. I had no more words alone with Alison.

I went back to the incubator for the night. We said almost nothing on the way home; there was a constraint between us for the first time that I could remember. It was too early for bed, and so we smoked in the living room and tried to talk of trivial things. After a time even those failed, and we sat silent. It was McKnight who finally broached the subject.

"And so she wasn't at Seal Harbor at all?"

"No."

"Do you know where she was, Lolie?"

"Somewhere near Cresson."

"And that was the purse—her purse with the broken necklace in it?"

"Yes, it was. You understand, don't you, Rich, that, having given her my word, I couldn't tell you?"

"I understand a lot of things," he said, without bitterness.

We sat for some time and smoked. Then Richey got up and stretched himself. "I'm off to bed, old man," he said. "Need any help with that game arm of yours?"

"No, thanks," I returned.

I heard him go into his room and lock the door. It was a bad hour for me. The first shadow between us, and the shadow of a girl at that.

CHAPTER XVII.

At the Farm House Again. McKnight is always a sympathizer with the early worm. It was late when he appeared. Perhaps, like myself, he had not slept well. But he was apparently cheerful enough, and he made a better breakfast than I did. It was one o'clock before we got to Baltimore. After a half hour's wait we took a local for M—, the station near which the cinematograph picture had been taken.

We passed the scene of the wreck, McKnight with curiosity, I with a sickening sense of horror. Back in the fields was the little farm house where Alison West and I had intended getting coffee, and winding away from the track, maple trees shading it on each side, was the lane where we had stopped to rest, and where I had—it seemed presumption beyond belief now—where I had tried to comfort her by patting her hand.

We got out at M—, a small place with two or three houses and a general store. The station was a one-roomed affair, with a railed-off place at the end, where a scale, a telegraph instrument and a chair constituted the entire furnishing.

The station agent was a young man with a shrewd face. He stopped hammering a piece of wood over a hole in the floor to ask where we wanted to go.

"We're not going," said McKnight, "we're coming. Have a cigar?"

The agent took it with an inquiring glance, first at it and then at us.

"We want to ask you a few questions," began McKnight, perching himself on the railing and kicking the chair forward for me. "Or, rather, this gentleman does."

"Wait a minute," said the agent, glancing through the window. "There is a hen in that crate choking herself to death."

He was back in a minute, and took up his position near a sawdust-filled box that did duty as a cuspidor.

"Now fire away," he said.

"In the first place," I began, "do you remember the day the Washington Plier was wrecked below here?"

"Do I!" he said. "Did Jonah remember the whale?"

"Were you on the platform here when the first section passed?"

"I was."

"Do you recall seeing a man hanging to the platform of the last car?"

"There was no one hanging there when she passed here," he said with conviction. "I watched her out of sight."

"Did you see anything that morning of a man about my size, carrying a small grip, and wearing dark clothes and a derby hat?" I asked eagerly.

McKnight was trying to look unconcerned, but I was frankly anxious. It was clear that the man had jumped somewhere in the mile of track just beyond here.

"Well, yes, I did." The agent cleared his throat. "When the smash came the operator at MX sent word along the wire, both ways. I got it here, and I was pretty near crazy, though I knew it wasn't any fault of mine."

"I was standing on the track looking down, for I couldn't leave the office, when a young fellow with light hair limped up to me and asked me what that smoke was over there."

"That's what's left of the Washington Plier," I said, "and I guess there's souls going up in that smoke."

"Do you mean the first section?" he said, getting kind of greenish-yellow.

"That's what I mean," I said; "split to kindling wood because Rafferty, on the second section, didn't want to be late."

"He put his hand out in front of him, and the satchel fell with a bang."

"My God!" he said, and dropped right on the track in a heap.

"I got him into the station and he came around, but he kept on groaning something awful. He'd sprained his ankle, and when he got a little better I drove him over in Carter's milk wagon to the Carter place, and I reckon he stayed there a spell."

"That's all, is it?" I asked.

"That's all—or, no, there's something else. About noon that day one of the Carter twins came down with a note from him asking me to send a long-distance message to some one in Washington."

"To whom?" I asked eagerly.

"I reckon I've forgot the name, but the message was that—this fellow—Sullivan was his name—was at M—" and if the man had escaped from the wreck would he come to see him?"

"He wouldn't have sent that message to me," I said to McKnight, rather crestfallen. "He'd have every object in keeping out of my way."

"There might be reasons," McKnight observed judiciously. "He might not have found the papers then."

Russian Wheat Production.

An enormous crop of wheat has been grown in Russia this year, placing that land for the first time at the head of wheat-growing countries. Its harvest of 783,000,000 bushels exceeds that of the United States by 26,000,000 bushels, and is greater than its own previous record by about 100,000,000 bushels. The development of wheat growing has been most rapid along the line of the Trans-Siberian railway. As the home consumption is small in proportion to population, this has made Russia one of the great sources of supply for the rest of the world. France consumes much of the wheat that it grows. The present price of wheat in the United States, when placed against the surplus product of Russia, makes it more difficult for this country to hold its place as an exporter of that cereal.

East Jordan To Be Congratulated.

It is a foregone conclusion that we are to have a Twenty Thousand Dollar Hotel built on the West Side of Pine Lake on the line of the D. & C. R. R. which will be built the coming season somewhere near Prof. Tat's Fruit Farm. This has probably been brought about by Mr. Taft.

This is not all for East Jordan. It is now understood that through the untiring efforts of some prominent men of East Jordan and Boyne City, who took a large block of stock in the Automatic Transportation Co. of Buffalo, N. Y., have through their about closed a deal whereby East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix are to have an Elevated Railroad. This will be the greatest boom that ever came to Charlevoix county. There is no longer a doubt but what Pine Lake will become the summer resort of the country.

We are also confronted with the fact that eight miles south of East Jordan on the farm of W. H. McAllister, in boring for water they struck a coal vein, penetrating 19 feet and are not through it yet. The coal has been analyzed by an expert chemist and it tests 94 per cent good.

We have other projects in view that look good. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and encourage all such enterprises and in the near future this county will become the attractive center of Northern Michigan.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No East-Jordan Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's East Jordan's proof:

E. D. Porter, Rawu & Mill Sts., East Jordan, Mich., says: "I can give Doan's Kidney Pills my strongest recommendation as they have helped me wonderfully. My back was extremely lame and in the morning when I got up, I could hardly straighten. When I attempted to stoop or lift, sharp, darting pains passed through my body. My kidneys were sluggish and the kidney secretions were unnatural and contained sediment. Doan's Kidney Pills procured from the Spring Drug Co., acted like a charm and it did not take them long to drive away the pains and aches. You are welcome to use my reference."

Temperance Rally

There will be a Union Service of the Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches next Sunday evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. The pastors will give short addresses and there will be reports from the Sunday School Conventions. All are invited.

WASH THAT ITCH AWAY

It is said that there are certain springs in Europe that give relief and cure to Eczema and other skin diseases. If you knew that by washing in these waters you could be relieved from that awful itch, wouldn't you make every effort to take a trip to Europe at once? Would you not be willing to spend your last cent to find the cure?

But you need not leave home for these distant springs. Relief is right here in your own home town! A simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients as compounded only in D. D. D. Prescription will bring instant relief to that terrible burning itch, and leave the skin as smooth and healthy as that of a child.

If you have not already tried it, get at least a 25-cent bottle today. We assure you of instant relief.

W. C. Spring Drug Co.

You are cordially invited to the Presbyterian Church next Sunday morning at 10:30. Also to Sunday School at 11:45.

Junior C. E. meets at 3:15 under control of Mrs. Griesby.

Senior C. E. are having excellent and well attended meetings to which the people are invited at 6:15.

Instead of the usual Sunday evening service there will be a Union Temperance meeting in the M. E. Church which will be addressed by the two pastors, and a short report of the state Sunday School Convention so far as it relates to temperance will be given. All are invited and will be heartily welcomed.

The cost of fire insurance is so cheap you cannot afford to carry the risk. Nicholas & Nicholas will be glad to quote to you prices at any time.

Paul Jones First American Naval Hero

by Edward B. Clark COPYRIGHT by W. A. PATTERSON

VISITORS to the Naval academy frequently write letters to the authorities in Washington asking why it is that the body of Admiral John Paul Jones is allowed to remain in an obscure corner under a stairway in one of the Naval academy halls. It is proposed eventually to provide a fitting resting place in the academy chapel for the remains of the great sailor, but one delay after another has come and the delay has not only caused comment, but complaint.

When the remains of the admiral were brought to America there was a great commemorative service. Theodore Roosevelt, who was then president, members of his cabinet and officers of high rank in the navy spoke in praise of the deeds of the hero, but when the exercises were over forgetfulness seemed to come where all had been attention.

John Paul Jones not only had a stirring, warlike life, but his life was touched with romance of a gentler kind.

The British government thought enough of this man to cause to be posted at every seaport in the United Kingdom this placard:

For the Capture of JOHN PAUL JONES, Commanding an American Ship, the Government will pay the sum of 10,000 Guineas.

John Paul Jones was the first man to pluck the laurel wreath for the American navy. Taking into consideration the means at his command, his exploits were more daring and fully as successful as those which forty years later gave lustre to the name of Balmbride, Rogers, Porter and Decatur. Of the deeds of John Paul Jones, though they are written down in the histories of four nations, the world seems to know comparatively little today, while of the man, John Paul Jones, though volumes of speculation have been written, the world knows almost nothing. From his youth he seemed to prefer that everything touching his inner self should be shrouded, though he was nothing loath to demand proper recognition for the acts which he performed for his country's good.

FIGHT BETWEEN THE BON HOMME RICHARD AND THE SERAPIS

There have never been lacking insinuations that the real reason for the admiral's reticence arose from his desire to hide certain things which had been said touching his parentage. It was commonly reported at the time that John Paul Jones, though born to the family of John Paul, a thrifty Scotch gardener at Arbigland on the Solway Firth, was in reality the son of Lord Selkirk, upon whose estate Gardener Paul dined. Careful inquiry has disproved the scandal. Jennie Macduff, the mother of the naval hero and the wife of Gardener Paul, was a woman of character, possessed in full measure of the homely domestic virtues.

It must be said here that the American admiral added the name Jones to his family name of Paul at the time when he first made application for a commission in the American navy. Why the name was added, though speculation has been rife for more than a century, no one to this day knows. The boy Paul, the youngest of five sons, was born in a little cottage standing in a glade near where the Nith comes flowing into the Solway. When only twelve years of age he was apprenticed to a ship merchant at White Haven, a village where years afterward the people frightened their children into obedience by the mention of "the demon, Paul Jones."

The future admiral's first voyage took him to the Kappahannock river of America. Twice or three times the trip was repeated, and finally, owing to the death of his master, the apprentice was released from his engagement at the age of sixteen. An elder brother had settled on the banks of the American river, and with him the boy lived and studied for some time. He again went to sea about the time that he attained his majority, sailing for Scotland as a first mate on a brig. On the voyage the captain and mate died, and the crew placed Jones in command. On his arrival in Scotland the owners of the vessel gave him the berth of captain.

JOHN PAUL JONES MEDAL

On a voyage outward bound from Scotland, Jones, as captain of the merchant brig, ordered that a mutinous carpenter be flogged. A year afterward the man died, Jones' enemies said as a result of the beating. Jones' friends said as a result of a long-continued disease. The youthful captain succeeded in clearing his character in the eyes of all unprejudiced persons, but the treatment that he received while under suspicion, at the hands of his former Scotch friends, so aroused his indignation and anger that he quit Scotland never to return except as an implacable enemy. Jones, or as he was then, John Paul, was next heard of living in penury, near Fredericksburg, this country. The Revolution came on. At the time of the battles at Lexington and Concord the colonies did not have a single vessel that could be used for a navy save some good sailors. The future American admiral walked to Philadelphia in the autumn of 1776 and appeared before the marine committee appointed by congress to make some provisions for a navy, and when asked his name he said "Jones," and by that name history has since known him. The committee would have paid little attention to his request for a commission had it not happened that one of its members, Richard Henry, Lee, knew something of the career of the supplicant sailor. He was given a commission as first lieutenant of the Alfred, a merchantman, which had been made over into a man-of-war, and placed under the command of Commodore Hopkins. To the masthead of this vessel Jones, with his own hands, hoisted the first ensign ever shown on an American man-of-war. It was the famed rattlesnake flag, with the motto "Don't tread on me." By a remarkable coincidence, some time later on the Ranger Jones displayed at the peak the first bit of Stars and Stripes bunting ever flung to the breeze of an American man-of-war. A little later he had the honor of hearing fired in recognition of the same flag the first salute which it ever received from a foreign nation, the roar of the guns carrying with it the acknowledgement by France of the independence of the United Colonies.

John Paul Jones physically was not a heroic looking figure. He was only five feet tall and of slight weight, but in his fighting qualities his ounces counted like other men's pounds. His face was grave and thoughtful, and his eyes were as sharp as his cutlass. The fleet in which Jones sailed under Commodore Hopkins was a miserable affair, and Hopkins was the weakest of commanders. Jones succeeded in inducing his superior to sail for Nassau, where under the direction of the junior officer a vast amount of British stores were seized. On the way back to the United States the British frigate Glasgow was sighted, but it escaped the American fleet owing to the poor seamanship of Hopkins. A court of inquiry was held, and it was determined that if Jones's suggestions had been carried out the Glasgow could have been captured or sunk. Hopkins felt disgraced and became a bitter enemy of his subordinate.

Shortly after this Jones was made captain of the Providence, carrying twelve guns. He cruised about, capturing many merchantmen, and finally when off Nova Scotia he fell in with the Milford, a huge British frigate, which was disguised as a trading ship. Jones bore down on it until he was within pistol shot of the vessel. He then discovered his error, and by magnificent seamanship succeeded in escaping without a scratch, although a single well-directed broadside would have sunk his ship. The Milford chased the Providence, but was quickly left astern. The British ship kept firing at the Yankee long after it was out of range. In contempt and derision of this act of the British captain, and knowing that his actions were being watched through a glass, Jones ordered a single sailor to stand at the stern and shoot a musket at the pursuer every time he fired his big bow chaser.

After serious trouble with the jealous Hopkins, Jones was finally given command of the Ranger, eighteen guns. He took a number of prizes on the way, and finally put into a French port. At Paris he met the American commissioners, Silas Deane, Benjamin Franklin and Arthur Lee, and they secured him an audience at the French court. By request he aided in planning the operations of D'Estaing's fleet, which was shortly to leave for America.

The heroic fighting career of Jones was just about to begin, though with the fame that he won in the next few months came the undying hatred of all the people of his native country, and there came also the loss of the only woman he ever loved, and whom he had hoped one day to make his wife. British privateers had ravaged the American coast, had seized American merchandise and had burned some American towns. Jones believed in making reprisals, and he spread terror and alarm along the Irish, Welsh and English coasts.

He chose, however, as the place of direct attack White Haven, where he had lived as a boy and a youth, and the masts of whose shipping were in sight of his birthplace. He contemplated burning all the vessels at the place and looting the town. David Freeman, deserter from Jones' ship, spread the alarm among the inhabitants of the town, and Wallingford, one of Jones' lieutenants, was slow in carrying out some of his instructions. As it was, however, the ex-patriated Scotsman succeeded in capturing one of the forts which guarded the place, leading the land attack in person. With his own hand he spiked every gun in the fortification, and then turned his attention to the firing of the shipping. As he was about to carry out this design a vast armed multitude appeared. They had been led to the scene by the deserter, David Freeman. Not to be balked in a part of his design, Jones succeeded in boarding one of the largest merchantmen in the Solway and applied the torch.

The Ranger had no sooner put out from the Solway than it ran across the British man-of-war Drake. The Drake was by far the heavier armed and manned, and a better equipped vessel than the Ranger. Jones, however, gave battle at once, and after a bloody fight he took the British vessel and hauled down its colors. He took his prize into a French port. The French people were not accustomed to naval victories over the English, let alone to victories won by an inferior force, and the name of Jones at once became the synonym for heroism.

After spreading terror once more along the coast of the British Isles, Jones returned to America to find the war ended.

Jones was essentially a sailor of fortune, and he went to St. Petersburg, where he was made an admiral in the Russian navy. On his way thither he stopped long enough in Denmark to flirt with the princess royal, who fell violently in love with him. Thirty English officers in the service of Russia threatened to resign if the "prize" were confiscated. Catherine said: "You'll have to double your number to make the loss equal to the gain." They stayed in the service. After winning honors in naval battles for Russia Admiral Jones went to Paris. There he was alternately grave and gay. He could have married into the houses of any of the nobility, but the memory of a Scotch girl was in his heart and there it stayed to the exclusion of all other loves until the day of his death.

DAINTIES FOR TABLE

RECIPES OF VALUE, BOTH NEW AND OLD.

Excellent Peach Cake That is Guaranteed to Please—Preparation of Sheep Kidneys—Fried Bananas with Meat.

For an excellent peach cake use this recipe, which never fails to give satisfactory results if carefully followed:

Half a dozen eggs, the weight of eggs in sugar, half their weight in flour, grated rind of one lemon, and two tablespoonsful of lemon juice.

Beat the egg yolks till they become pale yellow in color and thicken. Gradually add the sugar and lemon juice. Have the whites already beaten stiff and dry. Cut and fold one-half the quantity into the mixture, and then cut and fold in one-half the flour the remaining whites, and finally the rest of the flour. Bake in two shallow pans. While the cake is baking peel some peaches and cut into sections from end to end. Sprinkle with lemon juice, which will prevent discoloration. Cover one layer of the cake with the sliced fruit. Sprinkle lightly with sugar. Cover this with the other layer, which must be right side up. Spread the top with the icing, recipe for which follows, and decorate with sliced peaches.

Icing—Grate the thin rind of a lemon into a cup. Into this sift through a wire sieve enough peach juice and pulp to fill the cup one-half. Flavor with a few drops of almond extract and the juice of half a lemon. Gradually beat in confectioner's sugar to make a smooth spreading paste. The amount of sugar required is about three-quarters of a pound. The sugar must be beaten in slowly, a little at a time.

Oranges can be substituted for the peaches when desired, and these also make a delectable combination with the cake.

Two sheep kidneys, yolk of an egg, lemon juice, seasoning. Skin and core the kidneys and cut in small pieces. Melt one ounce of butter in a stew pan, boil, then add pepper and salt. Stir briskly over the fire for about five minutes or until the meat looks cooked. Then take the pan off the fire, drop in the yolk of an egg and mix. Add a few drops of lemon juice. Have ready as many rounds of toast as there will be breakfasters. Butter these and spread the preparation on them, having all very hot.

Fried bananas make a tasty accompaniment to cold beef, mutton, or veal, and may be new to some where fried apples are quite familiar.

Slice them long and thin, mix lemon juice and sugar, and marinate the slices in this for from fifteen minutes to half an hour. Drain, dip in flour, and brown in hot butter. Sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Sheep and lamb kidneys furnish a number of delicate morning viands. If perfectly fresh and gently cooked they are both delicious and digestible.

Pudding for All Seasons. One pint milk, four eggs, two ounces large raisins, four tablespoons marmalade, a few slices stale cake, five lumps sugar and a little grated lemon rind. Put the sugar to dissolve in the milk, add lemon rind. Whisk the eggs and stir into the milk. Have ready the raisins stoned, cut each one in halves and with the halved raisins pressed against it, line the inside of a well-buttered mold. Now pour in the custard, tie a sheet of paper over the mold and a cloth over that and boil gently one hour. Serve cold with hard sauce. This recipe comes from a very old cook book.

Corn Fritters. Cut the kernels from four good sized ears of young corn. Add two beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful salt, a saltspoonful pepper, a cup of flour pressed down and heaped a little, and a cup cold milk. Have ready a hot frying pan well greased and drop in the batter by spoonfuls. There should be enough for a dozen. Do not let the fritters touch. Cook in relays, frying on one side four minutes, then turn and fry the other. These are delicious as an accompaniment for chicken or to serve for breakfast.

Jars Must Be Whole. Now that glass jars are used by most housekeepers in preference to cans for putting up fruit and vegetables, it is important to know a few precautions which must be observed if success is to follow. Jars must be whole. Cracks may mean fatal burning at a critical moment, besides the loss of the contents. Jagged places on the top are more dangerous, because less considered. Not only does the glass chip off further, but it means escaping air and spoiled fruit.

Lemon for Washing. A careful laundress always uses lemon on wash day. She puts half a lemon, sliced, in the boiler full of white clothes. She maintains that it not only whitens them, but is helpful in removing slight stains.

Chocolate Doughnuts. One cup sugar, one egg, one cup milk, little salt, one-half cup cocoa, two teaspoons baking powder, and pastry flour to roll. We are very fond of these. You can use sour milk and soda if you wish.

Always Makes Good

You'll be delighted with the results of Calumet Baking Powder. No disappointments—no flat, heavy, soggy biscuits, cake, or pastry. Just the lightest, daintiest, most uniformly raised and most delicious food you ever ate. Received highest award World's Pure Food Exposition, Chicago, 1907.

WHAT'S Your Health Worth?

You start sickness by mistreating nature and it generally shows first in the bowels and liver. A box (week's treatment) of CASCARETS will help nature help you. They will do more—using them regularly as you need them—than any medicine on Earth. Get a box today; take a CASCARET tonight. Better in the morning. It's the result that makes millions take them.

A FEW THINGS.

Reggy—Bah Jove, I'd like to chastise those blawsted reporters! Cyril—Why so? Reggy—We have been insulted. The other day the fremen rescued us fellows from the burning clubhouse, and now the reporters have the account headed, "A Few Things Saved, but Nothing of Value."

Indications. "I might know this conservatory belonged to a baseball enthusiast." "Why?" "Because it has so many pitcher plants."

An Ohio man aged 70 married a girl aged 20, and deeded her 500 acres of land. Then she had plenty of grounds for divorce.

Petoskey, Mich.

Dear Sirs:

The Rugs came yesterday and are simply superb. If I could see old sinners converted and made over as new as those Rugs are I should think that perfection was reached in transforming men.

How you can do it out of such old carpets is a surprise to me. Your charges are reasonable. Your work is excellent. Your attention to patrons is commendable. And the products of your looms surpassing all our expectations.

With many thanks, we remain,
Sincerely,
Rev. Levi Bird, Th. D.

An observing reader has recently called attention to the advertisements of saloon property to rent near factories or mills where large numbers of men are employed. The desire of the saloon is to secure the working man as soon as possible after he receives his weekly wages, and in many cases much of the money earned through the entire week goes to the man behind the bar before the working man leaves his place. As directly as possible between the factory and the home the saloon desires to establish itself, and the owner of such property receives a larger rent for his location because it gives the saloon an opportunity at the wage earner in advance of his wife and children. Every weakness and custom and habit and social inclination of the men whose money they are seeking are studied by saloon keepers in order to gain further advantages over the home, and too many times the saloon comes out ahead. But that its success has been secured at a cost that will very soon deprive the liquor traffic of its very existence is indicated by the united protest now being urged against it by employers and employees and by the home—by all those who have been the greatest loser through the movements and existence of the weekly wage-gathering saloon.

HEXAMETHYLENETETRAMINE

Is the name of a German chemical, one of the many valuable ingredients of Foley's Kidney Remedy. Hexamethylenetetramine is recognized by medical text books and authorities as a uric acid solvent and anti-septic for the urine. Take Foley's Kidney Remedy promptly at the first sign of Kidney trouble and avoid a serious malady.

A clergyman writes: "Preventios, those little Candy Cold Cure Tablets are working wonders in my parish." Preventios surely will check a cold, or the Grippe in a few hours. And Preventios are so safe and harmless. No quinine, nothing harsh nor sickening. Fine for feverish and restless children.

Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is created from pure parched grains, malt, nuts, etc.—no real coffee in it. Fine in flavor, is "made in a minute". No 20 or 30 minutes tedious boiling. Sample Free.

Special Reduction

Will give reductions on men's boys and children's shoes on Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday. We need not exaggerate the quality of our shoes for it is well known to every one that Range Rex Shoes are the best made for all kinds of wear. And this is the secret of our success in meeting the wants of our laboring men in footwear.

We know what the farmer has to contend with. We know the service he expects and must get from his shoes. We have made ourselves acquainted with his tastes as to styles of last and leathers. Why shouldn't we then be able to satisfy him. Of course we must be progressive to keep up with the farmer of today. With his daily paper, his telephone, and his constant touch with all the live issues, his desires, his wants, his needs, in all lines have expanded, he buys more intelligently and of a better class of goods than his fathers. He has become a business man of the highest rank, and naturally he has developed with a more exacting purchaser as to quality and styles as well as comfort and serviceability than any generation that has preceded him. We know this, we have kept an ear close to the ground and have marked well this steady advance, and we have bent every effort toward meeting his changing requirement. The result—Range Rex Shoes.

OFFICE OF THE COMMISSIONER

WHEREAS, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned it has been made to appear that

The People's State Savings Bank of East Jordan

in East Jordan in the County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan, has complied with all the provisions of the General Banking law of the State of Michigan required to be complied with before a corporation shall be authorized to commence the business of Banking;

Now therefore, I, Henry M. Zimmermann, Commissioner of the State Banking Department, do hereby certify that in the village of East Jordan in the County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, is authorized to commence the business of Banking as provided in section seven of the General Banking Law of the State of Michigan.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, witness my hand and seal of office at Lansing, this seventeenth day of October, 1910.

HENRY M. ZIMMERMANN
Commissioner of the Banking Department.

PROBATE ORDER—State of Michigan, The Probate Court for the County of Charlevoix:

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the City of Charlevoix, in said county, on the 24th day of October A. D. 1910.

Present: Hon. John M. Harris, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Kal Roberts, deceased.

Jacob Roberts, having filed in said court his petition praying that the administration of said estate be granted to himself or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered that on the 21st day of November A. D. 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, he and is hereby appointed, for hearing said petition, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix County Herald, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

JOHN M. HARRIS,
Judge of Probate.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pang of this deplorable disease.

In Germany, with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt, I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I can furnish every case of this heretofore much dreaded disease. These and the same wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these noxious wastes really pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We will, and in confidence, recommend

Facts for Weak Women

Nine-tenths of all the sickness of women is due to some derangement or disease of the organs distinctly feminine. Such sickness can be cured—is cured every day by

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

It acts directly on the organs affected and is at the same time a general restorative tonic for the whole system. It cures female complaint right in the privacy of home. It makes unnecessary the disagreeable questioning, examinations and local treatment so universally insisted upon by doctors, and so abhorrent to every modest woman.

We shall not particularize here as to the symptoms of those peculiar affections incident to women, but those wanting full information as to their symptoms and means of positive cure are referred to the People's Common Sense Medical Advice—1008 pages, newly revised and up-to-date Edition, sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, or, in cloth binding for 31 stamps.
