Chair Factory

New Industry Assured For East Jordan.

Plans have been under way for the past few months toward the erection of a Chair Factory at East Jordan and these plans are now commencing to assume definite shape. The firm is to be a stock company and the stock is now all placed. Owing to the fact that the firm is not as yet incorporated the gentlemen behind the deal are reticent about having their names used at the present time.

The new plant will be located on a branch of the East Jordan & Southern Railroad, just east of the A. M. Haight Co. and Box Co., on a plot of ground comprising four acres. The main building is to be two-stories high, 50 feet wide and 210 feet long. It is to be of brick and modern in every respect. In addition will be the boiler and engine room. The new plant will manufacture dining and rocking chairs, complete, and expect to start construction work about April 1st.

Want To Be Rural Carriers.

A bunch of six candidates for Uncle Sam's service braved the cold weather and storm Saturday to drive over from East Jordan to take the civil service examination for Rural Route Carriers. There was sixteen applications for East Jordan but only six turned up for the examination. The six appeared before Special Examiner E. Davis at 9:30 Saturday morning, nearly frozen but ready for business. Their names are as follows: L. C. Madison, O. H. Moyer, H. B. Russel, A. Lalonde, A. L. Fox and Mr. Lanway. They left for home early in the afternoon.—Boyer City Journal.

Electric Light Co. Announcement.

We wish to inform our patrons and the public in general, that the East Jordan Electric Light and Power Co. has discontinued with Mr. Lindroth's services and are giving their personal attention to inside wiring. We suggest if you are contemplating wiring your house or having repair work done that you call at the office at once, as the greater portion of the spring and summer will be spent improving lines and power house.

L. G. BALCH, Supt.

More than a column of newspaper space was recently given to the telling of how a Grand Rapids police judge had effected desirable changes in the lives of some of the so-called "drunks" of that city. It is said of Judge Hess that he has succeeded in reforming some former victims of drink by requiring that they shall remain away from saloons, shall promptly and completely stop drinking, and that they shall spend more of their time at home. Failure to comply with Judge Hess' commands brings jail sentences. The effort of the Grand Rapids police judge deserves approval. He is evidently doing his best in behalf of the home and against the saloon. But he probably realizes that the opportunity to do anything in behalf of the home doesn't come to him until the saloon has made what he terms "common drunks" of its patrons. It is stated that Judge Hess' first police court experience gave him an insight into conditions that he did not think existed in Grand Rapids. Probably the business men's association that so strenuously appealed in behalf of the saloon for business purposes would express the same shock if some of its members were permitted to make note of the saloon's output from Judge Hess' point of view. The fact that Judge Hess is having some success in his fight for men and for homes in opposition to the saloon vividly suggests how much easier his labor would be if he had more than one chance for success where the saloons of Grand Rapids have a hundred chances for adding to the number of their patrons that will after awhile find their way to the police court as common drunks. Experience and observation are the most important factors of education in right directions and Judge Hess is providing for the people of Grand Rapids an educational opportunity which should not be overlooked or forgotten.

ENDORSES CANDIDACY

Charlevoix Courier Says Att'y E. N. Clink Would Make Good Judge.

At the primary to be held March first, candidates for circuit judge will be named by the primary system, for the first time in the history of the state.

While no one has yet made formal announcement of their candidacy, in this circuit, it has been rumored that E. N. Clink was being considered for the republican nomination and was being urged to get into the race by his friends.

Mr. Clink, when asked, frankly admitted he was seriously considering the matter and would have something to say in a few days. Should Mr. Clink get into the race his opponents will realize that they must go some. His legal ability is recognized all over the circuit and his friends are legion. Mr. Clink has always been a progressive in his political ideas. He is not a recent convert to the ideas that the people should rule, and would, not only be willing, but anxious, to leave the question of his nomination to the people themselves. If defeated he would take his defeat as the verdict of the people in a graceful manner.

He has served the people of this county as prosecuting attorney and left behind him the record of a good public official. We have no hesitancy in saying, that, if nominated, he would be elected by a large majority and would make as good a judge as any in the state.

I have Fruit Lands, Lake Shore Farms, Improved Farms and City Property in all parts of Charlevoix County to sell or trade. Also farms and business chances anywhere in United States.

JOEL JOHNSTON.

Advertising is the wonder of the age. It sells goods, unites loving hearts, disposes of baby cabs, makes the mare go and returns a long-lost bull pup to a "lobster." Advertising brings business to the bug eradicator, trades a consumptive automobile for a doped plug, disposes of gold bricks to "good things," makes folks think they have symptoms of diseases cured by patent medicines and sells parrots to the unwary. Advertising, like a bumble-bee, has two ends—one that bumbles and one that kicks back with a stinger in its tail. Advertising has made poor men rich and rich men poor; it has been bread and meat for the successful advocate of its virtues and wrecking shoals for thousands who have overestimated their persuasive qualities. It is the golden sesame that unlocks the palace of opportunity, but a two-edged sword to the man who understands it not and trifles with its favor. It makes or it breaks. Linked with good common sense it triumphs for its traveling mate. Fundamentally it is as certain to produce satisfying results as is the surmise that the young couple who sell their baby cab after the first born has outgrown it, will have to buy another one. If one is willing to make a working partner of advertising, they will have to buck up; if not stay out—Advertising will not carry all the load.—Fx.

FOR CONSTIPATION

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which are odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit-acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action. We will refund your money without argument if they don't do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store, W. C. Spring Drug Co.

Presbyterian Church Notes

Reader don't forget that the Presbyterian church is open to everybody Sunday morning at 10:30 and evening at 7:00. It is the duty and privilege of all to join in public worship of God, and thanksgiving, it is done for your good and gain, and is your loss if you neglect it.

The annual offerings for the Board of Relief of aged and poor ministers and the widows of such, and also for the Board of Missions to the Freedman will be received next Sunday morning. The friends who received envelopes will be good enough without fail to return same with as liberal contributions to both Boards, or to the one they deem most deserving, and both are deserving so the church expects a liberal response.

The topic for next Sunday evening will be "Things that are catching." Sunday School at 11:45.

Mrs. Grigsby is in charge of the Junior C. E. that meets at 3:15.

The Senior C. E. meets at 6:15, and a hearty welcome is extended to all young people to come and get interested in these evening meetings.

Miss Mildred Sweet played a beautiful violin selection last Sunday evening accompanied by Miss Arlene Hammond on the pipe organ.

FOR THE STOMACH

Here's an Offer You Should Not Overlook

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets remedy stomach troubles by supplying the one element, the absence of which in the gastric juices causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They aid the stomach to digest food and quickly convert it into rich red blood and material necessary for overcoming natural body waste.

Carry a package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket, or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal and indigestion will not bother you.

We know what Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. We guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail we will refund your money. Three sizes: 25c, 50c, and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at—The Rexall Store, W. C. Spring Drug Co.

The Oakland county member of the board of supervisors who explained his recent theft from the poor fund of that county by saying that he could give no reason for his act other than that he had not been himself lately because of drink, was probably one of the "business men" of that county who worked and voted for the return of the saloons to Oakland county because of their prospective business value. It is usually true that such men have it in mind that the disgrace and ruin the saloons are sure to cause will fall upon their weaker and less influential fellow citizens. But in this case the saloons that returned to Oakland county brought with them to one of their zealous supporters at least a measure of the loss and disgrace which he had expected would follow to the lot of some other citizen. Oakland county people have had their attention directed anew to many inevitable accompaniments of the saloon within the comparative few months that have elapsed since the liquor traffic recaptured that county.

These Goods Have Been Tested

By your neighbor and you can have the same satisfaction that he has had, right now.

It is the new Clarendon shirt that you will be interested in. You will say they are the snappiest, and the prettiest styles you have ever seen in this well known shirt. It was only yesterday that one of your neighbors said "I wear the Clarendon Shirts." He said they are really better than the $1.50 shirt that he has been buying. These shirts always fit. They never fade. They never stretch out. They are always right. You are protected by the manufacturer through us. Call and see the new styles and your time will be well spent even if you are not quite ready to buy now. They are the great $1.50 Shirts that we sell at $1.00.

We are just unpacking and marking today, the new Majestic and Royal Hats. The shapes are a little different this spring, but the same quality that you have always bought, is in these hats, or if anything a little better than ever before. They are priced at $2.25 and $3.00, and the models are just like the Dunlap or Stetson $4.00 and $5.00 hats. There is no use of your spending more than $3.00 for a hat and many people are well pleased and are well dressed up in the $2.25 grade.

We wish you would come in and let us show these to you, it gives you a chance to see what the new styles are a great deal better than reading this add.

We have the new samples for spring made-to-measure clothing. Just knock off for a little while and come in, it will pay you to see these things we have been telling you about in the paper. Of course we want to take your order when you are ready to buy, if these things are right and you well know and will say they are right in quality, style and price after you see them.

A Brand from the Burning

True Story of the Secret Service

By COL. H. C. WHITLEY, Former Chief United States Secret Service

GEOERGE Sheldon was an honest and industrious young man, ingenious and possessed of a good education, he had acquired high excellence in the practice of the engraver's art.

In the winter of 1869 and '70 he was employed to do government plate work by a large bank note engraving company in the city of New York. Although conservative in many things, he was fond of display in dress and the enjoyment of high living. He took his dinners at a fashionable uptown restaurant. In the course of time he noticed that a seat on the opposite side of the table at which he usually dined was regularly occupied by a genteel appearing middle-aged man.

One day when there chanced to be no other persons sitting near, the stranger remarked that they ought to become better acquainted with each other. He then led the conversation in a manner to draw from Sheldon his name and business. When he learned that he was an engraver in the employ of a bank note company, he affected great surprise.

"An engraver? Indeed, well, I am glad to know it. I want some work done in that line, but I was not certain where to apply. I am very particular about it, and would be willing to pay well for a good job."

"What is the subject?" Sheldon inquired.

"This," said the stranger, as he handed out the photograph of a pretty female face. "It is a nicely done what would it cost?"

"That depends on the fineness of the work. Anywhere from $50 to $200."

"The price is not so much an object with me as the quality of the work. I will pay liberally for a good job."

One hundred and seventy-five dollars was the sum finally agreed upon. When the engraving was completed and delivered the employer was so well pleased that he said he understood the price to be $200, and insisted on paying that amount. Sheldon was afterwards supplied with a number of small jobs from the same source and was liberally paid for his work.

One day his patron suddenly broke out with the exclamation: "You are an excellent workman, and I am greatly surprised to see a man of your skill with the graver plodding along in this way when you could easily make your fortune in a short time if you were so disposed."

"How could it be done?"

"By making plates for bonds and money. You engrave the plates for certain persons. They pay you big money. You have nothing to do with the use they are put to."

This man who was adroitly tempting young Sheldon was the procurer, or to be more explicit, the capitalist of one of the most dangerous gangs of counterfeiters ever organized in this country. To Sheldon he was Mr. Devoe, but this was only one of the many names by which he was known to the different persons employed by him. He was the autocrat of all the counterfeiters and forgers of his day, and one of the few criminals that escaped physical punishment for their many misdeeds. He was discovered by the officers in the latter days of his life and it was a close race between them and the devil. The latter won. Devoe was a gifted manipulator of men, and he was successful in crazing young Sheldon's mind with visions of great riches. Sheldon quit the employ of the bank note company, and following Devoe's advice took lodgings at a house where the people were not inquisitive in regard to his business.

In the summer of 1871 a counterfeit $10 treasury note made its appearance in most of the great cities of the country. To the untrained eye the note was a good fac-simile of the genuine. The lettering, the seal, the vignette and everything about it, except the eccentric lathe work, were quite perfect, but it was not difficult to discover by the use of a magnifying glass that the fine lattice lines were irregular. In the genuine these lines are made by machinery so perfect that it is impossible to imitate them by hand. A counterfeit note even to the practised eye may appear all right at a casual glance, but its base nature can be readily discovered by a careful examination of its eccentric lathe work.

The note of which I speak was an excellent imitation, but it was early discovered and its circulation checked. At this time the branch office of the government secret service of New York was being almost daily visited by persons offering information in regard to the various crimes against the government. There were many secrets, suspicions and surmises offered for sale at prices ranging from one hundred to a million dollars. The greater part of the informers were anxious to conceal their identity.

On one particular occasion my office was visited by a genteel appearing young woman. She came into the main office and requested a private interview with the chief. She was carefully veiled and cautious in her manner. Her interview with me appeared to be more for the purpose of obtaining information than giving it. In the course of her conversation she inquired as to the disposition of persons arrested for counterfeiting and the results of confessions, etc. She hinted of a counterfeiting scheme, but she either did not know or was unwilling to give any definite information. I finally drew from her that she might be able to find out something that would be of service to the government. The conclusion I came to was that some of her family were in some way connected with counterfeiting and that she was seeking a way to check their operations and at the same time save them from punishment. I questioned her carefully but was unable to gather sufficient information to lead to anything tangible. I thought there was something worth looking after, but did not know just how to get at it. When she left my office she was followed by a detective, but the officer was unable to shadow her without giving himself away, as she repeatedly turned around and looked about as though she suspected she was being followed, and the detective finally lost sight of her.

Some weeks after this I received an anonymous note couched in somewhat singular terms. It was in a fine female hand and read as follows: "To the Chief of the Govt. Secret Service, 56 Bleeker St."

Believing that confidential communications may be addressed to you without fear of exposure, I have determined to give you information that I front door and put his ear to the key-hole. He heard the clicking and was positive that it was a printing press in operation. For a time I was undecided just what course to pursue. I finally concluded to employ a ruse to get into the house and learn what was going on. An excuse that was thought to be better than no excuse at all was invented to be offered in case of failure. It was known that the doors of the house were kept securely fastened and that any person ringing the door bell would be sighted and refused admittance.

The plan to overcome this difficulty was simple but effective. It was about the middle of the day when a light spring wagon containing a trunk was backed up to the front door of the Rhetschlag house. Two men dressed as laborers took the trunk out of the wagon and carried it up the steps close to the door. The bell was rung. Soon there was an eye at the peephole. The person thinking that the expressman had made a mistake in the house threw open the door to explain. The trunk was quickly thrust across the threshold and the two expressmen sprang into the hall. Two other detectives that had been hovering near were also admitted. Almost at the first glance I discovered that the young woman tending the door was the one that had called at the secret service office and vaguely hinted of a great counterfeiting scheme. I think the recognition was mutual. She bowed slightly in a half welcoming way as she placed her hand upon the stair rail. An elderly man at this moment stepped into the hall from a side room. He had probably been taking a nap from which he was suddenly roused. I caught a glimpse of a piece of paper as he swiftly put it in his mouth. Springing forward I seized him by the throat. The young woman came to my assistance. She put her hand to the old man's lips and said: "Spel es aus, vater! Spel es aus, vater!"

He yielded and she handed me a bit of closely folded paper. On it was written: "I will bring the back at nine this evening.—Sheldon."

The old man was placed in charge of one of the officers. The young woman now accompanied us upstairs and led us to a door that was locked. The key was turned from the inside. An entrance was demanded, but there was no response. Deliberating a few moments, the officers rushed against the door and burst it open. We found a young man in the room. There was a printing press, a quantity of printer's ink, a long table, a couple of chairs and a stove. But there was not a scrap of paper in sight, nor anything to show that counterfeiting was being carried on. There was plenty of suspicion, but we were unable to find evidence to warrant a conviction. One of the detectives chanced to put his hand on the stove. It was hot. On looking inside we discovered that a considerable amount of paper had been recently burned. A systematic search of the premises was now begun. Every nook and corner of the house was examined. We tore up the carpet and pried up the weak places in the floor. Every piece of furniture and every rag of clothes was searched. The detectives crawled under the roof and on top of it. They looked down the chimney. Nothing of an incriminating nature was found.

The old man wouldn't talk. He shut his mouth tightly and shook his head to every question asked, and the young man was dumb as an oyster. While the woman did not appear to be anxious to conceal anything from us, she said she was quite unable to render any further assistance. We were about to give up in despair and leave the house when one of the detectives, more suspicious and hopeful than any of the others, remarked: "There is only one place left. Let us try that hanging lamp."

Taking it down, we unscrewed the top. Here to our great relief we found several thousand dollars in counterfeit $10 bills. They were newly printed. The old man now broke down and the woman began to cry. She said she had been working under orders from her father, but knew little of what was going on. She was sure that counterfeit money was being made there, but she did not know what was done with it. She was also aware that her lover was mixed up in the scheme. She was between the devil and the deep sea and was at a loss what course to take, but had finally concluded to become an informer.

I was satisfied I had obtained the bottom facts so far as the woman was concerned and that Sheldon, who was expected there that evening, would bring the back of the counterfeit. The father and brother had been doing the printing. If the old man now told me the truth, he had never been engaged in selling or passing the bogus stuff. They were not trusted with both of the counterfeit $10 plates at the same time. When the face of the note was finished the plate for printing the back was brought and the face plate taken away. Sheldon was the man that brought the plates and took away the counterfeits. The young woman had assisted in these operations to a certain extent, but she had been doing this under pressure. She had now informed the officers and chanced the result.

The door bell was rung promptly at nine o'clock and Sheldon was admitted. When he was confronted with the situation, he witted and staggered to a seat. His every faculty seemed paralyzed with blank despair. The woman drew her arms about him and pleaded with him to tell the truth. He now became greatly excited and declared in a trembling voice that he would make a clean breast of the whole affair and take what was coming to him. I listened to the recital of his story. It was the counterpart of the others. He hoped for wealth and a life of ease. It was an unhealthy longing, but the opportunity was so plausibly presented to him by the oft-tongued Devoe that he sacrificed his manhood and yielded to the tempter. Once within the hypnotic influence of this great procurer he was compelled to do his bidding. Now that he knew the worst he felt relieved. With a curl of his lip and a sudden elevation of his head his eyes met mine as he gave me his promise to surrender the counterfeit plates and to add the government by every means within his power.

All classes of confederated criminals fear the squealer more than they do the detectives. In fact, it would be quite impossible to destroy a well-organized gang of counterfeiters without using one man against the other. For this reason I never hesitated while chief of the government secret service to act upon my own judgment. We arrested the counterfeiters without process of law, and used them to the best possible advantage to the government. The records of the secret service of the treasury department, will, if examined, show that the system of using one counterfeiter against another was successful. When a confederate who has for years been associated with others in crime, is made to confess and assist the government, he is more dreaded by his associates than any other force that can be employed.

Counterfeiting combines the worst features of fraud interwoven with the most cunningly devised modes of escape. The confederate is better booked and more fully equipped to undertake the unearthing of a gang of counterfeiters than the best trained detective.

I mention these facts that the reader may better understand the object I had in view in this case as in most others. Young Rhetschlag pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the penitentiary. His father was old and feeble. Upon his promise that he would never again engage in counterfeiting, I pardoned him. The young woman had rendered good service and I did not attempt to hold her or to use her as a witness. Sheldon made important disclosures that enabled me to arrest several dangerous counterfeiters. He was weak and easily persuaded, but after using him on the witness stand against his confederates I did not think him dangerous to go at large. The bank note company was only too glad to employ him notwithstanding the fact he had been engaged in counterfeiting. Besides, Miss Rhetschlag, who had been so prominent in assisting in bringing young Sheldon upon the stool of repentance, and putting him in a way to redeem himself, was anxious to marry him. The consummation of this I made as one of the conditions of his release. It might have been a little out of order, but it turned out all right. A wedding soon followed.

I some time afterward received from Mr. Boutwell, the secretary of the treasury, a letter saying that he had been informed that a certain engraving company doing government work, had in its employ a dangerous counterfeiter named Sheldon, and suggested that I attend to this matter at once. In reply to the secretary's letter I gave him a detailed account of the capture and release of Sheldon together with my reasons for the same. My course met the secretary's approval, in fact I was commended for it. So far as I know Sheldon has since led an honest life. If he has ever violated the pledge he gave me, I have not heard of it.

His Ruling Passion. The young man waited for the millionaire's reply.

"I don't blame you for wanting to marry my daughter," said the latter. "And now how much do you suppose you and she can worry along on?"

The youth brightened up. "I think," he cheerfully stammered, "that $200,000 well invested, would produce a sufficient income."

The millionaire turned back to his papers. "Very well," he said, "I will give you $100,000, providing you raise a similar amount."

And the young man went away sorrowing.

LAND OF THE WHITE ELEPHANT

THE LATE KING OF SIAM IN HIS STATE BARGE

THE recent death of Chulalongkorn I, king of Siam, marked the passing of one of the best known eastern monarchs of our time, for he was the first of the orientals to look to the west for inspiration. He was the fifth of the present dynasty, which was founded in 1782, and it was his father, Mongkut, who took the first steps toward opening the country to foreigners.

King Chulalongkorn, who was born September 21, 1853, was one of a family of 14 children and succeeded to the throne when he was fifteen years of age, becoming king of Siam, with which office went the high-sounding oriental titles of lord of the white elephant, brother of the moon and possessor of four-and-twenty golden umbrellas. When he was nine years old he commenced his English studies, under the tutelage of an American lady, and he showed extraordinary aptitude for assimilating everything English, overcoming the difficulties and obstacles he encountered with a resolution that gained strength as his mind gained ideas. His fascination was increased for him by a visit to India in 1870 and on his return he adopted several reforms.

A prince in Siam, though legitimate heir to the throne, may be rejected by the secret council, composed of 12 of the highest officers of state, should they find him morally or physically incapacitated, but on the death of his father this prince was unanimously elected to the throne and was crowned November 11, 1868. One of his first acts on coming to the throne was to liberate all the state prisoners in his kingdom on the occasion of his father's coronation, and shortly after this he issued a remarkable proclamation giving perfect religious freedom to all his subjects. In 1871 he issued a royal decree that slavery should cease to be an institution of Siam and that a general tax, according to the circumstances of each and every man, should be levied on the nation to remunerate the slaveholders for the loss of their slaves. In his daily habits the late king was remarkably industrious and frugal. He lived to see his territory cut up very considerably, nearly 300,000 square miles going to the greed of France and England, but there remained for him 195,000 square miles and six and a half millions of subjects, and these he ruled ground garden. He could almost see them grow. The soil appeared to be with a genuine interest for the welfare of his country.

He instituted a great many modern improvements especially in Bangkok, the capital, which, strange to say, possesses, in comparison to its size, six times as many motor cars as London. He was like the ecclesiastics of old, a great bridge builder, there being over 20 royal bridges in the capital, which has a perfect electric railway system and electric light. He also introduced typewriting into the royal palaces and yet retained all that was best in his own civilization.

The late king had 90 children, nearly all of whom were alive at his death, and he had sent a great many of his sons to England to be educated, including the one who succeeds him at the age of twenty-one.

The White Elephant.
All white animals are held in the deepest reverence by the Siamese because, according to the Buddhist's philosophy of metempsychosis, each successive Buddha, in passing through a series of transmigrations, must necessarily have occupied in turn the forms of white animals of a certain class, particularly the swan, the stork, the white crow and sparrow, the dove, the monkey and the elephant, all of which are peculiar to Siam. The white elephant in particular is supposed to be animated by the spirit of some king or hero, and having once been a great man is thought to be familiar with the dangers that surrounded the great, and to know what is best and safest for those whose condition was once his own. Hence, he is supposed to avert national calamity and bring peace and prosperity to the people.

The temples are beautifully situated amid spacious parks and avenues of trees, paved and inclosed by gardens, while their tapering pyramidal roofs, sculptured facades and lofty spires are made vocal with tiny air-rung bells at all hours of the night and day, and resplendent in the sunlight.

Crowning the King.
The son who succeeds to the throne, Prince Chorofa Maha Vajiravudh, was born on New Year's day, 1880, and was proclaimed crown prince when he was fifteen. He was educated in England, and learned soldiering at Sandhurst, Aldershot and Potsdam. He is an excellent linguist and has written a book on his country.

The ceremony of allegiance to a new sovereign in Siam is very simple, for it consists mainly of the drinking of consecrated water in the temple of the emerald idol, which is prepared by stirring it with spears, swords and pistols. The banks of the Melan river are brilliantly lighted up. Accompanied and announced by numerous flights of rockets, a number of floating palaces, built on rafts, the grandest of which belongs to the king, comes sailing down the stream, preceded by tens of thousands of lamps and lanterns wreathed with chaplets of flowers which cover with their gay brilliancy the entire surface of the flashing water. The rafts, which are formed of young plantain trees fastened together, are often of considerable extent and the structures which they bear are such as Titania herself might delight to inhabit. Towers, gates, arches and pagodas rise in fantastic array, bright with a thousand colors, and shining in the light of numberless cressets. So the fairy-like spectacle moves on, while admiring crowds of men, women and children through the banks of the river, not only to join the brilliant pageant, but to watch their own frail little plantain tree barge, freighted, perchance, with a single lamp, yet full of life's brightest hopes, as it floats unextinguished down the rapid stream, glittering with ruddy flame amidst the shadows of night.

Young Age Pensions.
Tithes, honors, riches, pensions and most other good things are, as a rule, postponed to a period of life when the capacity for enjoying them has been blunted. Australia was one of the first countries to adopt old-age pensions, and now a Labor member of the commonwealth parliament proposes a complementary scheme of young age pensions. He would start by pensioning the fourth child at birth. The fact that three had previously been born showed that the parents were doing their duty and deserving well of the state. The young age pension would "reward industry and encourage the birth rate."—London Chronicle.

BABY'S HAIR ALL CAME OUT

"When my first baby was six months old he broke out on his head with little bumps. They would dry up and leave a scale. Then it would break out again and it spread all over his head. All the hair came out and his head was scaly all over. Then his face broke out all over in red bumps and it kept spreading until it was on his hands and arms. I bought several boxes of ointment, gave him blood medicine, and had two doctors to treat him, but he got worse all the time. He had it about six months when a friend told me about Cuticura. I sent and got a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. In three days after using them he began to improve. He began to take long naps and to stop scratching his head. After taking two bottles of Resolvent, two boxes of Ointment and three cakes of Soap he was sound and well, and never had any breaking out of any kind. His hair came out in little curls all over his head. I don't think anything else would have cured him except Cuticura. I have bought Cuticura Ointment and Soap several times since to use for cuts and sores and have never known them to fail to cure what I put them on. I think Cuticura is a great remedy and would advise any one to use it. Cuticura Soap is the best that I have ever used for toilet purposes." (Signed) Mrs. F. E. Harmon, R. F. D. 2, Atoka, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1910.

We're All Her Friends.
A pretty story of Miss Ellen Terry and a gallant young playwright has gone the rounds of the Players' club. Miss Terry attended in New York the first night of this playwright's latest work and at the end of the third act he was presented to her. She congratulated him warmly.

"It is very good," she said. "Your play is very good, indeed, and I shall send all my American friends to see it."

"In that case," said the playwright, with a very low and courtly bow, "my little piece will sell 90,000,000 tickets."

On the Dog.
A small West Philadelphia boy may be an author some day. He has just finished his first essay. It is on a dog. "A dog is an animal with four legs, a tail and pants but he never changes them. He wags his tale when he is glad and sits on it when he is sorry. A dog is a useful animal because he bites burglars but he is more trouble than he is worth when he tracks mud on the carpet. A bulldog is the king of beasts."

A Sounding Name.

"She? Oh, she's our sleigh belle."

Small reached her ninety-eight birthday on November 6, and both these ladies are bright and active. Mrs. Mary A. Frank was ninety-six last September, and is in her usual health. Mrs. Hannah T. Rowe is ninety-one; Mrs. Mary Leighton also is ninety-one.—Kennebec Journal.

A Young Philosopher.
Time is a relative quantity. Some minutes seem like hours and some hours seem like minutes. How to control this flight is beyond any person, but the little boy mentioned below seems to have progressed pretty well for a youngster.

The teacher was surprised to see that he remained perfectly idle all through recess, and accordingly asked him why he did not play.
"Cause," he said, slowly, "it makes recess too quick if I play, and I want it to la-a-ast!"—Youth's Companion.

Ended the Controversy.
On the steeple of an old Universalist church in Bath, Me., there is a wooden figure of an angel. It is not a remarkably fine specimen of art, and has always been somewhat laughed about, especially because of its high-heeled shoes. The Bath Enquirer recalls the story that a former pastor of the North Congregational church once accosted a devoted Universalist with the question: "Mr. Raymond, did you ever see an angel with high-heeled shoes on its feet?" "Why, no," answered Mr. Raymond, "I can't say that I ever did; but did you ever see one without them?"

REALLY OPENED THEIR EYES
Parishioner's Remark, However, Left Young Minister Somewhat in the Dark.

Rev. Henry R. Rose in the Newark Star tells the story of a young minister who had recently taken charge of a small parish in Vermont. He aspired to greater things and a large field, and in the hope that his reputation would travel beyond the limits of the village to which he had been sent he threw into his sermons all the force and eloquence at his command. He was, however, totally unprepared for what was intended for a compliment, but which was put to him in such a way that it left him in doubt as to the real impression he had made. One Sunday morning, after an especially brilliant effort, he was greeted by an old lady, who was one of the most faithful attendants at all services. Approaching the young minister, she said: "Ah, sir, we do enjoy your sermons so much, they are so instructive. Do you believe it, we never knew what sin was until you came to the parish."

GOT HIS SOBRIQUET EARLY

"Honest John" Kelly Proved His Right to the Title Long Before Manhood.

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-umpire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a New York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face. "I think the first time I was ever called 'Honest John' was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenuous countenance I presented to the world and hailed me. 'You look honest, boy,' said he. 'What might your name be?' 'John,' said I, quite simply. 'John,'—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink. But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore thirst, and they took the tinware. And then they came back and took the cushions off the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away. True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse.'"

Breaking It Gently.
Callahan was stopped on the street by Father Clancy. The good priest's countenance took on a sad expression.

"What's this, I hear, Callahan," asked he, "about your breaking Hogan's head last night? And the two of you friends for years!"
Callahan seemed somewhat taken back. "Sure, I was compelled to do it, your reverence," he explained apologetically, "but out of consideration for that same frindliness, I broke it gently, your reverence."—Lippincott's.

Now About Clean Food

Another Splendid Opportunity to Bring Out Facts

When the "Weekly" which sued us for libel (because we publicly denounced them for an editorial attack on our claims) was searching for some "weak spot," they thought best to send a N. Y. Atty. to Battle Creek, summoned 25 of our workmen and took their sworn statements before a Commissioner.

Did we object? No. On the contrary, we helped all we could, for the opportunity was too good to be lost.

Geo. Haines testified he inspected the wheat and barley, also floors and every part of the factories to know things were kept clean. That every 30 minutes a sample of the products was taken and inspected to keep the food up to standard and keep out any impurities, also that it is the duty of every man in the factories to see that anything not right is immediately reported. Has been with the Co. 10 years.

Edward Young testified he had been with Co. 15 years. Inspector, he and his men examined every sack and car of wheat and barley to see they were up to standard and rejected many cars.

H. E. Burt, Supt., testified he had been with Co. over 13 years. Bought only the best grain obtainable. That the Co. kept a corps of men who do nothing but keep things clean, bright and polished.

Testified that no ingredient went into Grape-Nuts and Postum except those printed in the advertising. No possibility of any foreign things getting into the foods as most of the machinery is kept closed. Asked if the factory is open to the public, said "yes" and "it took from two to three guides constantly to show visitors through the works." Said none of the processes were carried on behind closed doors.

At this point atty. for the "Weekly" tried to show the water used was from some outside source. Testified the water came from Co.'s own artesian wells and was pure.

He testified the workmen were first-class, high-grade and inspected by the Co.'s physician to be sure they were all in proper physical condition; also testified that state reports showed that Co. pays better wages than the average and he thought higher than any in the state.

F. B. Marlin, Asst. Supt., testified Grape-Nuts made of wheat, barley, yeast and water. Anything else? "No, sir." Postum made of Wheat, Wheat Bran and New Orleans Molasses. Statements made on his experience of about 10 years with Co.

Testified bakers are required to wear fresh white suits, changed every other day. Said had never known any of the products being sent out that were below the high standard of inspection. Asked if any one connected with the Postum Co. had instructed him how to testify. Said, "No, sir."

Horace Brown testified he had been with Co. 9 years. Worked in Grape-Nuts bake shop. Testified the whole of the flour is composed of Wheat and Barley. Atty. tried to confuse him, but he insisted that any casual visitor could see that nothing else went into the flour. Said machinery and floors always kept clean.

So these men were examined by the "Weekly" lawyers hoping to find at least one who would say that some under-grade grain was put in or some unclean condition was found somewhere.

But it was no use.

Each and every man testified to the purity and cleanliness.

As a sample, take the testimony of Luther W. Mayo.

Testified been with Company about 10 years. Now working in the bakery department making Grape-Nuts. Testified that the ovens and floors are kept clean and the raw products as they go in are kept clean. Also that the wearing apparel of the employes has to be changed three times a week.

Q. Do you use Postum or Grape-Nuts yourself at all?
A. Yes, I use them at home.

Q. If from your knowledge of the factory which you have gained in your ten years at the factory you believed that they were dirty or impure in any way, would you use them?
A. I do not think I would. No.

Asked if any one on behalf of the Company had asked him to testify in any particular manner. Stated "No."

All these sworn depositions were carefully excluded from the testimony at the trial, for they wouldn't sound well for the "Weekly."

Think of the fact that every man swore to the purity and cleanliness so that the Atty. for the "Weekly" was forced to say in open court that the food was pure and good.

What a disappointment for the "Weekly!" But the testimony showed:

All of the grain used in Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties is the highest standard possible to obtain.

All parts of the factory are kept scrupulously clean.

None of the workmen had been told how to testify.

Most of them have been from 10 to 15 years with the Co. and use the products on their tables at home.

Why do their families use the products, Grape-Nuts, Postum and Post Toasties, that they, themselves, make?

For not insuring ONLY

When death obeys instead of commands.
 When the wife no longer becomes a widow
 When the orphan ceases to cry for bread.
 When poverty and want are unheard of conditions
 When wealth and the wealthy are never divorced
 When the mortgage on the home are never foreclosed.
 When success is the rule and not the exception
 When old age and a competence are life long companions
 When debt shall cease to be a burden and sheriffs are unknown
 When the Golden Rule becomes the business world's constitution
 When all these conditions get hold of human affairs then will there be some excuse for not insuring. Only then.

Illustrated Lectures for Western Michigan.

The illustrated lecture "Developing Western Michigan" will be given at East Jordan, Wednesday, Feb. 1st, at Boyne City on January 31st, at Suttons Bay on February 6th, and at Ludington February 22nd.

At Suttons Bay the lecture will be under the auspices of the local Fruit Growers' association and at Ludington it will be in connection with the annual banquet of the Ludington Board of Trade. The lecturer is Mr. John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development Bureau, and the pictures to be thrown upon the screen are scenes on Western Michigan farms and in orchards. Many of these pictures have been taken for the express purpose of showing the people of the Western Michigan country, just what is being accomplished by the progressive farmers and fruit growers, in the several sections.

NEWLY INCORPORATED

East Jordan Produce, Fuel and Ice Company.

Messrs E. E. Brown and Richard Spurnaw, with others, have formed a stock company and incorporated under the state laws. The new institution is known as the East Jordan Produce, Fuel and Ice Company, and, as the name indicates, they intend to deal in those commodities, also feed, lime and cement. In addition to the warehouse on State street, they have purchased the J. H. Graff ice business and property. The ice house is lake front property and they intend to build a dock and handle coal by the lake route, believing they can do so much cheaper and also assure their patrons of plenty of fuel the year round.

CAPT. GODFREY'S TEN GIRLS

Nucleus From Which Was Started Famous Monticello Seminary for Young Ladies.

The most interesting trip that I took during my fortnight in the west was down from Chicago about two hundred miles on the Alton road, only an hour from St. Louis to Godfrey, Ill., where stands the famous Monticello seminary, founded 73 years ago by good old Captain Godfrey.

"What kind of cattle be you going to put in that big barn o' yours, cap'n?" asked one of them derisively. "Girls," answered the captain, "conically. 'The finest girls in Illinois.' 'Where you going to get 'em?' pursued the scoffing questioner.

Captain Godfrey was a warm admirer of Thomas Jefferson, and the seminary was named for that hero's home, Monticello. It was here that Lucy Larcom received her life impetus and here she wrote many of her most beautiful poems.

It was bound to come. Sooner or later we knew the lawmaking bodies of this country would be compelled to take note of the crime of giggling. If it is a crime to giggle, as many people believe it is, Indianapolis has the distinction of being the first city to recognize the crime, and to provide for its punishment, but it is generally believed that other cities will follow the lead, if that is the way to express it.

John Barrett, director of the international bureau of American republics, now has a thorough knowledge of the meaning of the word "stung," as it is used in a popular sense. One of his bureau's principal duties is to promote trade relations between this country and the Latin-American republics.

Insanity Causes

Alcohol Easily Holds Place at Top

By DR. H. H. COWLEY

ARE YOU nervous? Do you sleep poorly at night, and is it an effort for you to take the necessary amount of food? If so, consult your family physician.

Dr. Walter M. Seward of New York, who passes upon the mental condition of many persons in the course of his work as an examiner in lunacy proceedings, has made a close study of the causes leading to insanity, and places alcoholism at the head of the list.

"Reliable statistics from all over the civilized world," he said, "show alcoholism to be the exciting cause of insanity in from 15 to 20 per cent. of all cases—that is to say, one out of every five or six persons sent to the insane asylum would never have been put there were it not for drink."

The frequency of overwork as a cause of insanity cannot be accurately stated in figures on account of the great difficulty of obtaining accurate data for statistics, but Dr. Seward expressed the opinion that if such figures could be obtained they would be large.

"Is any provision being made at present for this class of patients, simply on the verge of nervous collapse?" was asked.

"There seems to be a tendency to establish clinics, particularly one in connection with the Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, for the care of commencing nervousness, with a view toward preventing insanity. In Europe these institutions have been in existence for some time and the results have been most gratifying."

"Until these clinics are an established fact in every large city, what course would you prescribe for nervous people who might have tendencies toward insanity?"

"First of all, the advice of a good physician, who would naturally prescribe regular hours, an even, everyday life and plenty of exercise in the open air, in addition to any medicines which he may suggest. These are the essentials for nervous people to follow in their daily life if they wish to ward off insanity."

Good Reason for Saving Some of Income

By H. W. HAYWARD

To the young men who happen to read these lines, I have a few words, which, I believe, are well worth their attention. They are: No matter what your income, save a little.

My present feelings, as I write this, would not be with me now, had I saved a little each week, each month, each year. Always earning a good monthly salary, I always spent it, not in riotous living, but carelessly and foolishly, for things I could well have done without and from which I received no returns whatever.

This kind of living led me into careless ways. My credit being unquestioned at that time, I was able to procure my wants, if I cared to, on charge accounts, and while not making a habit of that by any means, I did procure some things in that way, to my regret.

I found it harder, still living the careless way, to pay for what I had purchased, than to get the charge account.

I was consequently in debt when married, and, in fact, I married when I did because continuation at her work would have made a nervous and physical wreck of my wife.

I was therefore with the added burden of supporting two and maintaining a household.

But, oh, the feelings that have possessed me at times, when pressed for money by those to whom I am in debt.

As I am honest at heart as the day is long, words cannot express those feelings.

Suffice it to say that instead of being as happy as a lark, which I would be if freed of debt, I am today troubled in spirit and despairing and discouraged.

My advice is save, save! Spare the dollars you would spend in careless ways and save yourself the feelings that attend the position of the young man who writes this.

I attended several of the great aviation meets in France and on the continent, and my conclusion based on study and conversation with the foreign experts is that there is not the remotest likelihood that the average every-day citizen will ever journey through the air.

The talk of reducing aerial transit to a commonplace basis, where the generality of the population can make safe and rapid voyages via the aeroplane, has few sponsors among the candid and scientific men.

The thing is simply not feasible and never will be. There has been really no improvement in the machines in months, and though I do not mean to assert that the limit has been reached, it is not in the nature of things that any very great development can now take place.

The bird men themselves will tell you that the passenger-carrying proposition is fanciful. Of course one or two people can be carried, but remember that it now takes a 50-horsepower engine to lift only a couple of men, and they must not be heavyweights.

STARTS REIGN OF TERROR ON SHIP

BIG LION, ROARING DEFIANCE AND BLEEDING FROM WOUNDS, SPRINGS OVERBOARD.

SCARED CREW CLIMBS ALOFT

Beast Was Being Brought From His Lair in India to Be Made Part of an American Menagerie—Storm Starts Thrilling Experience.

New York—The perils of bringing a huge lion from his lair in India to New York, to be made a part of a menagerie, is set forth by the thrilling experience of the crew of a German freight steamer, the Berkenfels, commanded by Captain Friedrich, which reached this city from Calcutta a few days ago.

It was while the vessel was making for Bermuda that the trouble began. Fierce winds, almost strong enough to be dignified as a hurricane, rocked the steamer from side to side. This rolling frightened the male and female of the big-cat family and the former exhibited his anger by throwing his body against the wooden bars which held him in captivity.

It was just as night was beginning to give away to day and objects were none too distinct. An East Indian sailor was spied splicing a rope and before he could stir the lion was on top of him tearing him to pieces. Death must have been instantaneous from shock. While the lion stood gazing into the face of the dead a group of seamen saw him and fled.

The second officer was the first to renew the fusillade. This one hit the beast in the belly, throwing him on his knees when he rolled over and lay kicking for a few seconds. Regaining his feet the animal ran the length of the deck, tumbled over and rolled in the scuppers; up again and back toward the deck to which the officers had returned. Finding he could not leap upon them he jumped into a well and ran up a companionway, where the officers stood firing. In the meantime the latter once more sought the rigging. The audacious quadruped grinned revenge, and soon a shot in the head sent him stumbling along on unsteady legs. Then he ran up to the deck, where safeguards do not run along the edge, roared mightily, peered into the sea and, straightening himself out, jumped overboard. He undoubtedly made a good meal for the sharks following the vessel. The lioness never left her open cage, and a brave ship carpenter ventured near it and nailed up the broken bars which let out her foolish mate.

EXCELLENT METHOD FOR ERECTING CHEAP GREENHOUSE

Pennsylvania Men Construct Building for $60—Work Was Performed in Winter When Labor Was Inexpensive—Used Old Burner.

Plan for Cheap Greenhouse.

We built a greenhouse for a trifle over $60 complete, exclusive of labor, as it was built during winter, says a writer in the Rural New Yorker. We used 12 sash (6 on a side) 6 feet 5 inches by 3 feet 2 inches, for a roof. For sides we used unfinished siding, having an air space of 4 inches caused by the 2x4 uprights to which roof rafters and siding were nailed. Door was made of match boarding. The 12 sash were hinged together in pairs at ridge of roof, making 6 on a side. They could then be lifted up at bottom for ventilation. We solved the heating problem by using 8-inch tile under the benches, joining to an elbow and tee at end, then out to chimney. We used old furnace burner in the first tile of each side, and by covering the tile with dirt and keeping it damp, we raised very early plants. We have globe valves back of each burner so that gas can be lit on one or both side to suit weather. The benches on each side 4 feet wide with an aisle of 2 feet 6 inches in the middle. As sash are now more expensive than when we built it would raise the cost a trifle.

PRODUCE OILS AND PERFUMERY

Development of Special Utensils Have Resulted in Discovery of Methods for Separating Odors From Plants.

Of the countless numbers of plants in the vegetable kingdom, many possess peculiar aromatic odors. Before the art of distillation was known, the ancient peoples used odoriferous plants and spices in their dried forms for their agreeable odors. Gradually, however, the development of special utensils for other domestic purposes may have resulted in the discovery of methods for the separation of odors from plants and plant products. The first mention in ancient Greek writings of the separation of an odor from a crude substance is that of the oil of cedar, which was separated from the oleo-resin by means of the crudest form of apparatus.

At the present time the number of plants in the United States yielding oils in a commercial way is very small, but the number capable of yielding oils of probable value is correspondingly great. At present the cultivated plants are principally the mints, peppermint and spearmint, together with small quantities of wormwood, tansy and wormseed. The wild plants include sassafras, wintergreen, sweet birch, Canada fenbane, bluegum, wild-bergamot, Horsemint and Pennyroyal.

EARLY-VEGETABLES IN HOTBED

In order to have early vegetables you must start them in a hotbed. This is not at all difficult to make. You can buy hotbed sash of any length and three feet wide. The best size is 3x6. Dig a pit two feet deep. It should be protected from the north and west winds by hillside, hedge or trees. Make a frame of one and one-fourth inch boards to fit the pit. The upper side should be about six inches higher than the lower so the water will run off the glass freely. Use two by three inch stuff for sash supports across the frame. Place horse manure containing plenty of straw in the bottom of the pit, tramping down firmly in layers. Soggy heavy manure will bake and prove unsatisfactory. When the bed is filled within six inches of the top it should have a springy feeling under foot. Put a thermometer in the hotbed so the heat may be regulated. Seeds should not be planted until the temperature is about 80 degrees. When the bed's first made it will be much hotter than that. Put six inches of good soil on top of the manure, and plant the seeds directly in that. Many prefer to sow the seed in shallow boxes and then transfer the plants to the hotbed. The hotbed should be made about two weeks before time to sow seed. Raise the sash a little every morning for ventilation. This is essential but do not let the cold air blow directly on the plants. Be sure the sash is closed at night.

of the oleoresin obtained from several varieties of pine trees.

Information concerning plants yielding materials used in the manufacture of perfumery products, also concerning the processes and apparatus required to utilize these oil-bearing plants, is given in Bulletin No. 195, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, recently issued.

APPLES SENT TO ENGLAND

Experimental Shipment of Fruit From State of Washington to Southampton Proves Satisfactory.

An experimental shipment of apples to Southampton from the Wenatchee section of the state of Washington, made in 1908, proved so successful both in a financial way, and greater still in the more substantial lines of a good reputation, that in 1909 the same dealer made another shipment, this one amounting to 20,000 cases. The fruit was neatly packed and went on the market in first-class condition. It is a matter of financial record that this Wenatchee fruit sold at the highest price above any American apple ever offered in the open English market, and much of the shipment, which was attended to by the shipper, was sold to the retail market at 8 to 12 cents per pound, and eagerly taken at that price by the best trade.

It is gratifying to note that the orders now made will more than exhaust a shipment of the same size during the crop year of 1910. Of course it should be stated that the quality of this Wenatchee fruit was first-class, true to name in every case and no seconds put in to fill up, yet much depended on the method of packing, and in that it was found superior in every way. Therein lies the way to success for the American fruit packer and shipper—good fruit, well packed.

Working Cows. A farmer who has been traveling in Switzerland and Germany noticed that cows were used quite commonly for drawing loads or plowing on the little farms of those countries. He found that the cows could be worked to a moderate extent without much reducing their milk yield, and he suggests that the idea be practised for small farmers in other countries.

SYNOPSIS.

Lawrence Blakeley, lawyer, goes to Pittsburgh with the forged notes in the Bronson case to get the deposition of John Gilmore, millionaire. A lady requests Blakeley to buy her a Pullman ticket. He gives her lower 11 and returns in lower 10. He finds a drunken man in lower 10 and returns in lower 9. He awakens in lower 7 and finds his clothes and bag missing. The man in lower 10 is found murdered. Circumstantial evidence points to both Blakeley and the man who stole his clothes. The train is wrecked and Blakeley is rescued from a burning car by a girl in blue. His arm is broken. The girl proves to be Alison West, his partner's sweetheart. Blakeley returns home and finds his name under surveillance. Moving pictures of the train taken just before the wreck reveal to Blakeley a man leaping from the train with his stolen grip. Investigation proves that the man's name is Sullivan. Mrs. Conway, the woman for whom Blakeley bought a Pullman ticket, tries to make a bargain with him for the forged notes, not knowing that they are missing. Blakeley and an amateur detective investigate the home of Sullivan's sister. From a servant Blakeley learns that Alison West had been there on a visit and Sullivan had been attentive to her. Sullivan is the husband of a daughter of the murdered man. Blakeley's house is ransacked by the police. He learns that the affair between Alison and his partner is off. Alison tells Blakeley about the attention paid her by Sullivan, whom she was on her way to marry when the wreck came. It is planned to give Mrs. Conway the forged notes in exchange for Sullivan. Mrs. Conway kills herself and Bronson, and the ashes of the forged notes are found in the room.

"When did you find it?" asked the loan detective, bending forward. "In the morning, not long before the wreck." "Did you ever see it before?" "I am not certain," she replied. "I have seen one very much like it." Her tone was troubled. She glanced at me as if for help, but I was powerless. "Where?" The detective was watching her closely. At that moment there came an interruption. The door opened without ceremony, and Johnson ushered in a tall, blonde man, a stranger to all of us. I glanced at Alison; she was pale but composed and scornful. She met the newcomer's eyes full, and, caught unawares, he took a hasty backward step. "Sit down, Mr. Sullivan," McKnight beamed cordially. "Have a cigar? I beg your pardon, Alison—do you mind this smoke?" "Not at all," she said composedly. Sullivan had had a second to sound his bearings. "No—no, thanks," he mumbled. "If you will be good enough to explain—" "But that's what you're to do," McKnight said cheerfully, pulling up a chair. "You've got the most attentive audience you could ask. These two gentlemen are detectives from Pittsburgh, and we are all curious to know the finer details of what happened on the car Ontario two weeks ago, the night your father-in-law was murdered." Sullivan gripped the arms of his chair. "We are not prejudiced, gentlemen," he said slowly. "I give you my word of honor that I did not kill Simon Harrington, and that I do not know who did." "Fiddlededee!" cried Hotchkiss, bustling forward. "Why, I can tell you—But McKnight pushed him firmly into a chair and held him there. "I am ready to plead guilty to the farce," Sullivan went on. "I took Mr. Blakeley's clothes, I admit. If I can reimburse him in any way for the inconvenience—" The stout detective was listening with his mouth open. "Do you mean to say," he demanded, "that you got into Mr. Blakeley's berth, as he contends, took his clothes and forged notes, and left the train before the wreck?" "Yes." "The notes, then?" "I gave them to Bronson yesterday. Much good they did him!" bitterly. We were all silent for a moment. The two detectives were adjusting themselves with difficulty to a new point of view. Sullivan was looking dejectedly at the floor, his hands hanging loose between his knees. I was watching Alison, from where I stood, behind her, I could almost touch the soft hair behind her ear. "I have no intention of pressing any charge against you," I said with forced civility, for my hands were itching to get at him. "If you will give us a clear account of what happened on the Ontario that night." Sullivan raised his handsome, haggard head and looked around at me. "I've seen you before, haven't I?" he asked. "Weren't you an uninvited guest at the Laurels a few days—or nights—ago? The cat, you remember, and the rug that slipped?" "I remember," I said shortly. He glanced from me to Alison and quickly away. "The truth can't hurt me," he said, "but it's devilish unpleasant. Alison, you know all this. You would better go out." His use of her name crazed me. I stepped in front of her and stood over him. "You will not bring Miss West into the conversation," I threatened, "and she will stay if she wishes."

The MAN in LOWER TEN by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART AUTHOR OF THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE ILLUSTRATIONS BY M. G. KETTNER COPYRIGHT 1909 BY DOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

Johnson Ushered in a Tall Blonde Man, a Stranger to All Of Us.

"Oh, very well," he said with assumed indifference. Hotchkiss just then escaped from Richey's grasp and crossed the room. "Did you ever wear glasses?" he asked eagerly. "Never," Sullivan glanced with some contempt at mine. "I'd better begin by going back a little," he went on sullenly. "I suppose you know I was married to Ida Harrington about five years ago. She was a good girl, and I thought a lot of her. But her father opposed the marriage—he'd never liked me, and he refused to make any sort of settlement. "I had thought, of course, that there would be money, and it was a bad day when I found out I'd made a mistake. My sister was wild with disappointment. We were pretty hard up, my sister and I. "I was watching Alison. Her hands were tightly clasped in her lap, and she was staring out of the window at the cheerless roof below. She had set her lips a little, but that was all. "You understand, of course, that I'm not defending myself," went on the sullen voice. "The day came when old Harrington put us both out of the house at the point of a revolver, and I threatened—I suppose you know that, too—I threatened to kill him. "My sister and I had hard times after that. We lived on the continent for a while. I was at Monte Carlo and she was in Italy. She met a young lady there, the granddaughter of a steel manufacturer and an heiress, and she sent for me. When I got to Rome the girl was gone. Last winter I was all in—social secretary to an Englishman, a wholesale grocer with a new title, but we had a row, and I came home. I went out to the Heaton boys' ranch in Wyoming, and met Bronson there. He lent me money, and I've been doing his dirty work ever since. "Sullivan got up then and walked slowly forward and back as he talked, his eyes on the faded pattern of the office rug. "If you want to live in hell," he said savagely, "put yourself in another man's power. Bronson got into trouble, forging John Gilmore's name to those notes, and in some way he learned that a man was bringing the papers back to Washington on the Flier. He even learned the number of his berth, and the night before the wreck, just as I was boarding the train, I got a telegram. "Hotchkiss stepped forward once more importantly. "Which read, I think: 'Man with papers in lower ten, car seven.' Get them." "Sullivan looked at the little man with sulky blue eyes. "It was something like that, anyhow. But it was a nasty business, and it made matters worse that he didn't care that a telegram which must pass through a half dozen hands was more or less incriminating to me. "Then, to add to the unpleasantness of my position, just after we boarded the train—I was accompanying my sister and this young lady, Miss West—a woman touched me on the sleeve, and I turned to face—my wife! "That took away my last bit of nerve. I told my sister, and you can understand she was in a bad way, too. We knew what it meant. Ida had heard that I was going—" He stopped and glanced uneasily at Alison.

"Finally, however, when things had been quiet for a time, I got up, and after looking along the aisle, I slipped behind the curtains of lower ten. You understand, Mr. Blakeley, that I thought you were in lower ten, with the notes." "I nodded curtly. "I'm not trying to defend myself," he went on. "I was ready to steal the notes—I had to. But murder!" He wiped his forehead with his handkerchief. "Well, I slipped across and behind the curtains. It was very still. The man in ten didn't move, although my heart was thumping until I thought he would hear it. "I felt around cautiously. It was perfectly dark, and I came across a bit of chain, about as long as my finger. It seemed a queer thing to find there, and it was sticky, too." He shuddered, and I could see Alison's hands clenching and unclenching with the strain. "All at once it struck me that the man was strangely silent, and I think I lost my nerve. Anyhow, I drew the curtains open a little, and let the light fall on my hands. They were red, blood-red." He leaned one hand on the back of the chair, and was silent for a moment, as though he lived over again the awful events of that more than awful night. The stout detective had let his cigar go out; he was still drawing—at nervously. Richey had picked up a paper-weight and was tossing it from hand to hand; when it slipped and fell to the floor, a startled shudder passed through the room. "There was something glittering in there," Sullivan resumed, "and on impulse I picked it up. Then I dropped the curtains and stumbled back to my own berth." "Where you wiped your hands on the bed clothing and stuck the dirk into the pillow." Hotchkiss was seeing his carefully built structure crumbling to pieces, and he looked chagrined. "I suppose I did—I'm not very clear about what happened then. But when I rallied a little I saw a Russia leather wallet lying in the aisle almost at my feet, and, like a fool, I stuck it, with the bit of chain, into my bag. "I sat there, shivering, for what seemed hours. It was still perfectly quiet, except for some one snoring. I thought that would drive me crazy. "The more I thought of it the worse things looked. The telegram was the first thing against me—it would put the police on my track at once, when it was discovered that the man in lower ten had been killed. "Then I remembered the notes, and I took out the wallet and opened it." He stopped for a minute, as if the recalling of the next occurrence was almost beyond him. "I took out the wallet," he said simply, "and, opening it, held it to the light. In gilt letters was the name, Simon Harrington." "The detectives were leaning forward now, their eyes on his face. "Things seemed to whirl around for a while. I sat there almost paralyzed, wondering what this new development meant for me. "Do you believe me now?" He looked around at us defiantly. "I am telling the absolute truth, and not one of you believes me!" "My wife, I knew, would swear I had killed her father; nobody would be likely to believe the truth. "After a bit the man in lower nine got up and walked along the aisle toward the smoking compartment. I heard him go, and, leaning from my berth, watched him out of sight. "It was then I got the idea of changing berths with him, getting his clothes, and leaving the train. I give you my word I had no idea of throwing suspicion on him." Alison looked scornfully incredulous, but I felt that the man was telling the truth. "I changed the numbers of the berths, and it worked well. I got into the other man's berth, and he came back to mine. The rest was easy. I dressed in his clothes—luckily, they fitted—and jumped the train not far from Baltimore, just before the wreck." "There is something else you must clear up," I said. "Why did you try to telephone me from M—, and why did you change your mind about the message?" "He looked astounded. "You knew I was at M—?" he stammered. "Yes, we traced you. What about the message?" "Well, it was this way; of course, I did not know your name, Mr. Blakeley. The telegram said: 'Man with papers in lower ten, car seven,' and after I had made what I considered my escape, I began to think I had left the man in my berth in a bad way. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

This Will Stop Your Cough in a Hurry Save $2 by Making This Cough Syrup at Home.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough—stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price. Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung troubles. The effect of pine on the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in galuol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this form. This Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been fattened, though never successfully. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., 284 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Hard-Hearted Judge. The Sympathetic Pal—Wotcher, Bill! You looks bad; been laid up? Bill—Yes, sort of. 'Avent' been out doors for three mums. The Sympathetic Pal—Wot was the matter wiv yer? Bill—Nuffin'; only the judge wouldn't believe it.—The Sketch.

A Card. We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50-cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded. Your Druggist, My Druggist, Any Druggist in Michigan.

Left Both Satisfied. It all happened on one of those few surviving pay-after-you-enter cars. "Oh, I insist on paying, Gladys," said the "brunette." "You paid coming down." "No, I shall pay," declared Gladys with equal firmness. "What if I did pay coming down—didn't you buy that last package of gum?" "Let me settle the quarrel, ladies," suggested the diplomatic conductor. "Why not use the denatured form of Dutch treat?" "What's that?" "Well, you each pay the other's fare."

And that was the way they solved it.—Cleveland Leader.

SLIGHT DIFFERENCE.

"Me mudder t'ought I'd be a cap'n of industry." "You missed it, eh?" "Yep; I became a major general of indolence!" They Both Knew. The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong. A week later the king was angry, because of an error he had committed, and exclaimed: "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.—Smart Set.

GOT IT. Got Something Else, Too.

"I liked my coffee strong and I drank it strong," says a Pennsylvania woman, telling a good story, "and although I had headaches nearly every day I just would not believe there was any connection between the two. I had weak and heavy spells and palpitation of the heart, too, and although husband told me he thought it was the coffee that made me so poorly, and did not drink it himself for he said it did not agree with him, yet I loved my coffee and thought I just couldn't do without it. "One day a friend called at my home—that was a year ago. I spoke about how well she was looking and she said: "Yes, and I feel well, too. It's because I am drinking Postum in place of ordinary coffee. "I said, 'What is Postum?' "Then she told me how it was a food-drink and how much better she felt since using it in place of coffee or tea, so I sent to the store and bought a package and when it was made according to directions it was so good I have never bought a pound of coffee since. I began to improve immediately. "I cannot begin to tell you how much better I feel since using Postum and leaving coffee alone. My health is better than it has been for years and I cannot say enough in praise of this delicious food drink." Take away the destroyer and put a builder to work and Nature will do the rest. That's what you do when Postum takes coffee's place in your diet. "There's a Reason." Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Ever read the above letter? $3.50 RECIPE CURES WEAK KIDNEYS, FREE

RELIEVES URINARY AND KIDNEY TROUBLES; BACKACHE, STRAINING, SWELLING, ETC.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say goodbye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and back-of-the-head aches; the aches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the dependency?

I have a recipe for these troubles that you can depend on, and if you want to make a QUICK RECOVERY, you ought to write and get a copy of it. Many a doctor would charge you $3.50 just for writing this prescription, but I have it and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 10-255 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-quieting power. It will quickly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

It would be easier to see good in others if we didn't have so many faults of our own.

Constipation causes and aggravates many serious diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. The favorite family laxative.

How Old People May Prolong Their Lives

At advanced age the organs act more slowly than in youth. Circulation becomes poor, blood thin and watery, appetite fitful, and digestion weak. This condition leaves the system open to disease such as Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Pneumonia, Rheumatism, etc.

VINOL is the greatest health creator and body builder we know of for old people, as it supplies the very elements needed to rebuild wasting tissue and replace weakness with strength.

HERE IS THE PROOF
A case is recorded in Albany, N. Y., of a woman who felt she was breaking down by age and was doomed to the weak and feeble condition of old people. She had no strength and the slightest exertion tired her, but VINOL made her well and strong, and she states that she feels ten years younger than she did before taking VINOL.

We ask every aged person in this neighborhood to try a bottle of VINOL with the understanding that we will return their money if it does not prove beneficial.

AN OPEN LETTER.

Newberry, Mich., Feb. 12, 1910.
Petoskey Rug Mfg. Co.,
A. T. Washburne, Prop.
Petoskey, Mich.

Dear Sirs:—
The Rugs came yesterday and are simply superb. If I could see old sinners converted and made over as new as those Rugs are I should think that perfection was reached in transforming men.

How you can do it out of such old carpets is a surprise to me. Your charges are reasonable. Your work is excellent. Your attention to patrons is commendable. And the products of your looms surpassing all our expectations.

With many thanks, we remain,
Sincerely,
Rev. Levi Bird, Ph. D.,
Pastor Newberry M. E. Church,
P. S.—You are at liberty to use this letter if you care to do so.

We have hundreds of such letters as above coming from nearly every state in the Union on file at our office for inspection.

W. C. T. U.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of this state has established headquarters at Lansing for the purpose of exerting the influences of that great organization of women as directly and effectively as possible for the benefit of the homes and of the children of Michigan. It is also the purpose of the W. C. T. U. in providing official quarters at Lansing to keep as fully in touch with anti saloon movements as such a central location will permit in order that it may give timely and helpful services in any direction where efforts to put away the saloon and to keep it away are in operation. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan is proving to be an increasingly influential and dependable factor in the contest in opposition to the saloon and to all forces of the liquor traffic.

"Let's Have A Drink" Doesn't Go.
Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 20.—Tacoma's anti "treating ordinance" went into effect today, and its results will doubtless be watched with close interest by persons throughout the country who are striving for the better regulations of saloons, the promotion of temperance and the placing of the liquor business on a higher plane. The new law absolutely prohibits any person from paying for another's drink and imposes a fine of $100 on the bartender or saloonkeeper who permits treating in his establishment. The saloons are required to post notices calling the attention of patrons to the new order of things. Mayor Fawcett is the "father" of the ordinance and he has instructed the police to see that it is strictly enforced.

A REVERIE IN STATUARY HALL BY A CONVENTION PILGRIM

And I saw, as in a vision, a great multitude whom no man could number gathered out of every nation and clime to pay tribute to their leader in God's Epic of Reform.
"Like a mighty army moves the church of God."
A nation was prepared and then a believing, separated people; and then in "Forest Home" environed with trees, the leaves of which were for the healing of the nations, a leader was prepared.
The vision grows; sighs, prayers and tears give way to the warrior hymn.
A charge to keep I have,
A God to glorify.

It is a clarion call to the advancing hosts; they pass before us and the canvas is overspread.
From India's coral strand,
Where Afric's sunny fountains,
Roll down their golden sand,
They call us to deliver
Their land from error's chain.
It is a triumphal army of all nations and peoples, and bearing aloft the banner of the Lord Jehovah—Jehovah-nissi and Jehovah-shalom—"The Lord your peace."

It is a picturesque army with lights and shades, with color and vision, and songs in the night; it is a victorious army because they "follow the gleam."
The scene changes. There is a higher call to higher service. It is a long way from the Crusade church to Statuary Hall and to the Hall of Fame.
When through the deep waters, I call thee to go,
The rivers of sorrow shall not overflow;
For I will be with thee, thy trouble to bless,
And sanctify to thee thy deepest distress.
The waters divide; the ranks are broken, and the leader is on the other side, Moses is taken, but Joshua is left.
Again and again the ranks close, marching to victory.
The Crusade is crowned. When Heaven honors, it is little that earth can do. Statues and tablets can only make vivid the triumphal march to the farther shore.

Women cry over their own troubles, not yours; and yet a woman who cries a good deal is called "sympathetic."

The fact that one-half the world doesn't know how the other half lives isn't due to any neglect on the part of the people in trying to find out.

Some fault is found with the pay as you enter street cars lately introduced in many cities, but there is no doubt that they succeed better than would a church conducted on that principle.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL.

Health is Worth Saving, and Some East Jordan People Know How to Save It.

Many East Jordan people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains die to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here in an East Jordan citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Rose Miles, State St., Jordan, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my home with the best of results. A member of my family was afflicted with a kidney weakness which was very annoying. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured at the Spring Drug Co. and their use was followed by the best of results. I know, judging from this experience, that Doan's Kidney Pills can be depended upon to bring relief. I heartily recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

To Consumptives.

Edward A. Wilson's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Blodgett from the original formula is the Sovereign Remedy for Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Catarrh, LaGrippe, Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung Maladies.

Thousands of people say they have been relieved by it.

Those who have used it will have no other, and recommend it to their fellow sufferers.

It has cured many after they were given up as incurable by their physicians.
The undersigned as a consumptive can testify from his own experience as to its value.

The class attended the W. C. T. U. meeting at the home of Mrs. Ripley, Friday, Jan. 20.

Equity Ladies Notes.

Golden Rod Local met at the pleasant home of Mrs. Laurence Stewart on Jan. 18 and a good meeting held. The election of officers for 1911 resulted in the following:

President—Mrs. James Howey.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Ransom Jones.
Secretary—Mrs. Anna Fox.
Treasurer—Miss Marcia Lanway.

The Local have adopted "Up To Date Farming" as their club paper, and have sent to their club of several names.

Resolutions of sympathy were read in behalf of our bereaved member.

Auditing and sick committees were named.

Plans were talked on for work and entertainment for the coming year, one of which will be the observing of all holidays by a literary program at the meeting coming nearest to that day. Each member will be expected to contribute something to this program.

Our popular young hostess treated the members to a fine lunch that was greatly enjoyed on a cold winter afternoon. Meeting then adjourned to meet with Miss Addie Brigham in two weeks, Feb. 1st.

Foley's Kidney Remedy—An Appreciation

L. McConnell, Catherine St., Elmira, N. Y., writes: "I wish to express my appreciation of the great good I derived from Foley's Kidney Remedy, which I used for a bad case of kidney trouble. Five bottles did the work most effectively and proved to me beyond doubt it is the most reliable kidney medicine I have ever taken."

PROBATE ORDER.

State of Michigan, Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, in and for the County of Charlevoix.

At a session of said court, held at the probate office in the City of Charlevoix, on the 15th day of January A. D. 1911.

Present: Hon. John M. Harris, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Aurelia May Cash, deceased.
The undersigned, having filed in said court her final administration account, and her petition praying for a allowance thereof and for the assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate.

It is ordered that the 20th day of February A. D. 1911, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at said probate office, be and is hereby appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

It is further ordered, that public notice thereof be given by publication of a copy of this order for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing in the Charlevoix County Record, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county.

JOHN M. HARRIS,
Judge of Probate.

Chancery Order

State of Michigan, Thirteenth Judicial Circuit, in and for the County of Charlevoix, in Chancery.
Suit Pending in Circuit Court for the County of Charlevoix, in Chancery. At Charlevoix on the 12th day of December, 1910, Charles Street, respondent, vs. James A. Kent, Anna Kent, Goodman, Irvin Doerr, and Allice Doerr, defendants.

Patriotism

The stomach is a larger factor in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" than most people are aware. Patriotism consists with a healthy stomach but not dyspepsia. The confirmed dyspeptic "is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils." The man who goes to the front for his country with a weak stomach will be a weak soldier and a fault finder.

A sound stomach makes for good citizenship as well as for health and happiness.

Diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition are promptly and permanently cured by the use of
