THE PENSION BILL.

Some metropolitan newspapers sharply antagonize what is known as the Sulloway pension bill which recently passed the house of representatives. The rate provided by the bill is $15 a month at 62 years of age; $20 a month at 65 years; $25 at 70 years, and $36 at 75 years.

The only objection urged against the bill is the claim that it will add $45,000,000 to the pension appropriation bill. This is denied. It should be borne in mind that the older pensioners are dying much more rapidly than a few years ago the heaviest mortality being between 60 and 70 years, and the mortality at present averages 36,000 annually. In other words every twelve months 36,000 veterans of the civil war are mustered out and their names are wiped off the pension roll. This mortality is bound to increase as the years roll on.

Another result of the passage of this bill would be to lessen the large number of special bills which are passed by congress for the reason that the physical condition of the veterans in whose interest such bills are pushed through, is such that in common justice it is demanded. It would also reduce to a minimum the large number of increases in pensions being asked for on the same score. There are few men who served in the civil war who received an honorable discharge who are not approaching or have passed the three score landmark in the journey of life.

The Sulloway bill passed the house by a vote of 212 to 62, an indication of the temper congress and of general public sentiment regarding the measure. Congress has always taken a broad view of volunteer pensions from the time it dealt with the veterans of the revolution, including all from the privates to the officers who, in 1828, were voted in the pay of captain during the remainder of life. The concurrence of the senate in the bill just passed the house by a good majority is not in doubt.

Senator Smith Favors the Bill

In response to a telegram sent by Stevens Post G. A. R., the following letter was received:

January 31, 1911.

Mr. J. W. Rogers,
Commander of the Post,
East Jordan, Michigan.

My Dear Sir:
I am just in receipt of your kind telegram of recent date, requesting favorable action on the Sulloway Pension Bill, providing a new basis for increase of pensions to veteran soldiers of the Civil War. I greatly appreciate your interest in the matter and desire to assure you of my friendly disposition toward any measure which has for its object appropriate recognition for those who defended our country in the hour of its greatest trial. You may rest assured that I shall avail myself of every opportunity to show my appreciation of the gallant service rendered by the members of your post, as it has always been my pleasure to do in the past.

With great respect, I am,
Yours cordially,
WILLIAM ALDEN SMITH.

The Crime of Agriculture.

The average yield per acre is a disgrace. The farmers are not seizing the opportunities among which they are thrust, they are not doing justice to the land and climate with which a generous Creator has endowed them. When they realize how much more per acre can be produced by only a little additional labor, and at no great additional expense, and when they meet the soil and climate half way, then the farmers may be truly proud of their achievements.

Would Bar Antis From Pulpit.

The Michigan Anti-Saloon League has opened its campaign to make 47 counties dry, meets entirely new opposition this year.

The Prohibition party has come in to the open against the league, and, while not siding with the "wets," will oppose the local optionists at every turn.

Leaders in the Prohibition party have sent circular letters to every evangelical minister in the state, asking him not to permit supporters of local option to occupy their pulpits in the interest of that cause.

The Prohibition party is not objecting to the territory going "dry," but it is objecting to the manner in which the Michigan Anti-Saloon league gets funds to conduct campaigns.

The True American, the official organ of the Prohibition party in Michigan, in its latest issue says:

"Sometimes good temperance men wonder why Prohibition party men are not very enthusiastically in favor of the policies of the Anti-Saloon league. It is because they fail to make clear distinctions as to the methods advocated by the Anti-Saloon league and the Prohibition party. We are frank to say that the league holds no place which we want to see the Prohibition party occupy."

The Michigan Anti-Saloon league will also find other opposition in probably twelve counties in the state.

While there is this split in the "dry" workers there also comes a division among the "wet" forces. It is claimed that the brewers in Detroit, Grand Rapids, Saginaw and Bay City will not assist the smaller brewers in the fight to secure "wet" territory, because success would mean the elimination of much trade that now goes to the big brewers.

Brewers in Detroit, Grand Rapids, Saginaw and Bay City are now shipping practically all the beer that is sold in "dry" counties.

The Car Portercrats

If the news had come that the negro porters who perform the sacred rite of hitting people on the back with the butt of a whisk-broom, had secured control of the Pullman Company, not much surprise would have been manifested. But the news that the Pullman porters have asked for a raise in wages because they cannot live on what they receive causes much mental unrest. Every mean man who has watched a porter's face light up with pleasure when he was handed a dollar, and who watched that same face express bewilderment, chagrin, disappointment and anguish when its owner was asked to give back seventy-five cents, has held the thought that every porter was a multi-millionaire in disguise and that he wielded the brush-butt and inflicted an imitation shine because of eccentricity.

Booker T. Washington, asked his opinion on tipping, gave an answer that would have delighted the Delphic oracle. "If the wages are too low, tipping should be continued," says this educator. But why in the name of the nine gods and the seven sacred hills of Rome the Pullman Company, after charging first-class hotel rates for an ill-ventilated, jerky, uncomfortable sleeping shelf, should first expect the public to pay the tanned chambermaid in addition—well, that is something that seems to have been born without being fathered by reason. This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial. If our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair for you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping or any inconvenience whatever. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember you can get them in East Jordan only at our store. 12 tablets 10 cents; 36 tablets 28 cents.—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

IMAGINE AGE GIVES FLAVOR

That Seems the Only Explanation as to Why Fresh Nuts Are Never Served on Shipboard.

"Whence do all the old nuts come, and where do they go?" was the question put to a New York Times reporter by a broker who had just returned from his semi-annual trip to Europe.

"On my many voyages across the Atlantic and in the eastern seas," the broker went on to say, "I have never seen fresh nuts on the dining tables which were laden with all the delicacies of the season. The only person I ever met who had seen fresh nuts was a grizzled quartermaster, who looked old enough to have sailed the jagging main with Paul Jones. He said tersely:

"I've seen 'em wunst. On the Tanjong Pagar pier at Singapore in sacks, but they never come aboard the ship."

"Fellow-passengers with whom I have discussed the problem were of the opinion that the steamship companies had some big cave where all nuts were stored for a few decades until they had aged.

"Capt. Pritchard, the retired commodore of the Cunard line, once told me that the Island of Tobago, where Robinson Crusoe lived, was the clearing house for nuts, and the companies sent them there in sacks to be exchanged after they had been afloat for three years. This was corroborated by Capt. Arthur P. Mills of the American liner Philadelphia, who said that an old shipmate of his, Capt. Ben Brails, had carved his initials on a Brazil nut and put it back on the dish while his ship was crossing the North sea, and got the same nut on another vessel four years later in the Straits of Shimonoseki, Japan. This had such an effect on the mind of Skipper Brails that he marked all kinds of nuts with his initials and the date and wrote letters to all his old shipmates requesting them not to crack any of his marked nuts if they met them on their voyages."

Veteran stewards, when asked why the companies do not put fresh nuts on board their ships, say that perhaps the companies are afraid they will disagree with the passengers.

Hobble Skirt in Bible Time.

Can any one doubt, asks a writer in a French newspaper, that the ladies of Jerusalem in Biblical times were impeded in their walk, like the ladies of today? In the latter part of the third chapter of the Prophecy of Isaiah, says the writer before referred to, we get a glimpse of how these daughters of Zion dressed on gala occasions. We learn further, he says, from a passage in the Talmud (Babylonian), chapter vi. (Schabbath translation), that the robes of the ladies were so tight that they could only walk with short steps. By this means a greater opportunity was afforded to their admirers to observe them. The writer, quoting from the Vulgate, observes: "Nihil sub sole novum." The suggestion evidently is that the hobble skirt was in vogue in very far-away times.

She Knew.

A New York physician recently told me this story of a precocious little girl of ten. She is the daughter of an attractive lady of society whom the faculty doctor—a young man—was attending for influenza. He felt her pulse gravely and tenderly, holding her wrist after the orthodox manner of a ladies' doctor, as he sat beside her in the drawing room. As he did so he became aware that the child had her great grave eyes, full of inquiry, fixed upon him.

"You don't know what I am doing, my little lady?" said the medical man lightly to the interested little miss.

"Yes I do," was the prompt and positive reply.

"And what may that be, pray?" continued the doctor.

"Well, if you want me to tell you, you are making love to mamma."—Metropolitan Magazine.

Each to His Own Game.

"That was a pretty good trick you turned with that Easterner, Jim," says the Nevada boomer. "Sellin' him ten town lots in the middle o' Death Valley was sure scientific work!"

"Mebbe so," growls Jim. "Didn't hear the rest o' thaat, did ye? Say, that feller got me so convinced he was a nice little piece o' apper faced honesty that he got me to go back East with him on interduced me to his brother an' his brother's wife."

"Some you city lots within easy walking distance o' the Noo York city hall."

"What about that?"

"What about it? Easy walkin' distance, all right—if you want to walk for ten days!"—Judge.

Odd Small Hats

MILINERY modes have run to the new and strange lately and the question of "what next" is asked with an anxious tone by those who must suit the caprice of fashion or lose in the business race. Just what next no one up to this writing knows exactly, but of one thing we are fairly sure, and that is, a continuing vogue of small hats. We have come about as close to the bonnet as we are likely to get, and we will depart therefrom, when spring comes. But the small hat is here and will be here; for which all those who travel in street cars and ride in elevators or walk upon wind-swept streets, are duly thankful.

Two types, as unlike as possible, are shown here. One is of the present mode, fitting like a bonnet and trimmed at the back with a big rosette of ribbon. This is an old development of the bonnet-turban style which is dear to the winter girl in many varying forms. This is a double crown turban, a development of the turban, on lines familiar, in every community from one ocean to the other. The double crown is by way of variety and the draping is very cleverly arranged by means of this peculiar frame.

A precursor of new ideas is shown

POINTLESS HATPINS.

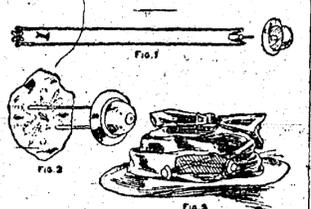

Fig. 1. Structure of the New Hatpin—Fig. 2. The Holder—Fig. 3. Manner of Arranging in Hat.

A pointless hatpin with interchangeable heads has become popular in Paris. Having no point to protrude beyond the side of the hat, it is obvious that the pin will not endanger the eyes of other people. Each hatpin is in reality two pins with one head, the pin part sliding through a star-like fixture permanently attached to the hat. Heads of various designs are provided with each pin.

Gold Used on China.

The newest designs in china reveal a lavish use of gold, not only in the border of the dishes, but in large floral and conventional designs, and sometimes combined with the flowers, in colors, that may decorate a dish.

The patterns for the most part are simple but striking. Among the designs carried out solely in the gold, the Oriental, the Greek and the Byzantine effects predominate.

The flowered china shows the graceful garland decoration of a happy use of trailing vines, with a heavy border effect. In shape, the fluted design—the flutings are widely separated—is being greatly used.

A new ware has appeared which will no doubt be very popular in the old pieces, such as sugar and creamer, chocolate set or odd plates.

In the jaunty little helmet hat with visor front. Brought forth in Paris and transplanted to New York, it is shown in the smartest of Fifth avenue shops. Worn at just a little angle one can see how widely it differs from the demure bonnet-like shapes.

It is a simple looking piece of millinery, but will bear studying. The frame is covered with white satin and faced with black velvet. Piping cord finishes the brim edge and the velvet collar and flat bow at the front. This particular model is one of these bidding for favor and is a radical new departure. Whether "she will or she won't" is the all important question. My lady of fashion is ready for changes, but just what will please her restless fancy remains to be found out. Small, flexible hats are the most promising for street wear. They are commendable from the standpoint of comfort, but their correct adjustment will take care on the part of the wearers and a tendency to lose their original lines will have to be combated.

In felts and velvets, as in furs, the soft hats have body enough to remain shapely. They are without doubt the most successful of new things placed before the public.

FASHIONS FOR LITTLE ONES

In Profusion of Raiment the Rising Generation Is Not Far Behind Its Elders.

Nowadays they cater just as much to the children in the matter of dress as they do to the grown-ups, and a glimpse into the children's department of our stores today would open the eyes of the most incredulous.

Here will be found in the greatest profusion raiment for all ages and sizes, from the tiniest tot just walking to the young lady about to make her bow to society, who realizes, however, that as yet there is a distinct line drawn between her gowns and those of her mother or elder sister.

There is a charming litter of baskets on this season's dressing table for holding everything that a girl uses in making her toilette, from hatpins and pin cushions to hair ribbons.

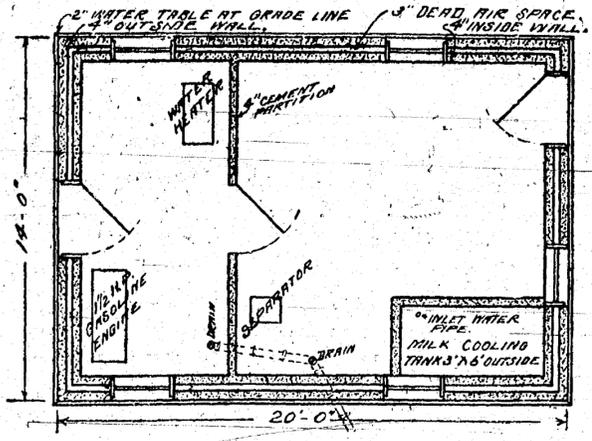

A general but not exact uniformity in shape is preserved in the many sizes of baskets used in a girl's room, and a general style of decoration is carried out in colors that must match. Baskets for the dressing table are chosen with relation to their uses and supplemented with flat desk baskets that contain materials for correspondence and with baskets for sewing and for holding veils, hosiery, collars and neckties.

For Evening Frocks.

Bordered silk mousselines and gauzes with borders of plain orange, above which are floral borders, are made up into charming frocks with touches of black velvet to give them character, and there are other exquisite bordure stuffs in which the border is of Persian design, with orange the predominating color.

REINFORCED CONCRETE FOR CONSTRUCTING MILK HOUSE

Building Is Fire and Water Proof and Easily Kept Clean and Will Give Satisfaction for Many Years—Cost $250.

This milk house is 14x20 feet in size and eight feet high to the eaves. The roof has a two-foot rise to the peak and is also built of concrete.

The following is a description of the material used and method of erecting this building. The owner did all the excavating and furnished the gravel for the concrete, and the lumber used for the concrete forms and scaffold, writes R. C. Angevine in Hoard's Dairyman. The contractor furnished the cement, the doors and windows complete, the steel for reinforcing the concrete and performed all the other labor of construction not mentioned as furnished by the owner.

There was a detailed contract signed by both parties which was carried out to the satisfaction of the parties concerned. Such a contract will almost entirely guarantee a well-carried out job of work. The work was carried on as follows:

The ground was staked off in the proper manner for the location of the building, and leveled by removing the sod to a point four inches below the finished floor line. The trenches were dug 14 inches wide, 30 inches deep and at the bottom were cut out wider, making them about 28 inches wide for a footing. A cross trench for a footing for a partition was 16 inches wide and 12 inches deep. These trenches were filled with concrete, mixed one part cement to eight parts gravel, and to the proper grade line. The walls above grade line were hollow, constructed with 24-inch walls spaced three inches apart and tied together at intervals by steel ties made of three-eighths inch rods. These walls were cast monolithic by the use of a set of forms 24 inches high, reaching entirely around the building. These forms were set in place and held in place by bolts and guides, and then filled with concrete, which was mixed quite wet and in proportion of one of cement to six of gravel. These forms were raised and filled each day till the desired height was reached.

There were strands of No. 5 gage wire put in the concrete once every foot around, and around the building with an extra allowance over windows and doors. Also at the top of the wall a double strand of wire was put in all the way around in each four-inch wall. The window and door frames were set in place in the forms at their proper locations and the concrete placed snugly about them.

When the side walls and partition wall had been finished, a false wooden roof of the proper design was put on with a cornice projection, but all was constructed in such a way as to be taken out entirely after a concrete roof had been put on and hardened. Over this false work the reinforcing steel was placed and wired together to hold it in proper place and then the whole thing covered with 3/4 inches of concrete, mixed one to four, and this was surfaced with a trowel finish of rich mortar one-half inch thick.

The reinforcing steel for this roof consisted of three-eighth inch steel rods 12 feet long which were spaced eight inches apart and extended from the eaves up over the peak and they were bent at each end to fit down over the roof form. These rods were crossed once each ten inches by a No. 5 wire running lengthwise of the roof and at each place of contact the wire and rods were wired together with broom wire.

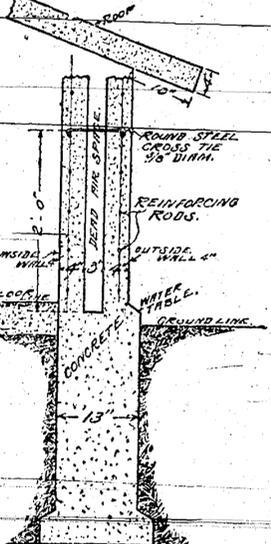

A chimney having a flue 8x8 inches and walls four inches thick was also made in place with concrete. The outside of the walls were finished first by rubbing them with a rich cement mortar put on with a wooden float and then by a coat of cement wash put on with a brush which made a very pleasing finish as well as a water proof one. The inside walls were all plastered smooth with rich cement mortar finished perfectly smooth.

The building is divided into two rooms, one five feet six inches by twelve feet in size, contains the gasoline engine, used to run cream separator and churn and any other machinery needed. The water heater is also in this room and it can also be used to store needed supplies. The rest of the building is the milk room, 12x12 feet in size and in it is located the machinery needed to properly handle milk. In this case they make butter and have a separator and churn and other needed articles in use. Also there is a cooling tank in this room 3x6 feet and two feet deep with the inlet water pipe located in the bottom, also proper overflow pipes. The concrete floors in each room are finished smooth with a perfect grade to carry any and all water to drains located in their surface.

This building would be large enough to care for the milk from a herd of fifty or seventy-five cows except in case of using bottles. I believe it would require at least as much room again where milk was bottled, to have it thoroughly good and practical for the same number of cows.

The drawing of the floor plan and photographs will give a good idea of the design and appearance of this building. Such a building is water and fireproof and easily kept clean and will give satisfaction for years to come. The contract price for this milk house was $250 plus the cost of the gravel and excavation and the damage to the lumber which was afterward used for other purposes. The gravel cost about 30 cents a yard on the ground. She excavating cost less than five dollars.

INDUSTRY IN BIRDS' NESTS

Valuable Article Is Found Along Coast of Siam and Is Consumed by Chinese, Who Regard It as Great Delicacy.

Edible nests are found in the islands off the coast of Siam, and are the products of a species of birds belonging to the family of swifts. The nests consist almost entirely of the silvery secretion of these birds, whose salivary glands are much more developed than those of the ordinary swift. The season for the gathering of the nests begins in April, and ends in September.

The female bird, occasionally assisted by the male, makes the nest. About three months are spent by the birds in completing their first nest, which is taken by the nest gatherer before eggs are laid in it; then the birds immediately begin to make another nest, which is finished in about thirty days, and which is also taken. Finally, a third nest is made in about three months, in which the bird is allowed to rear its offspring, after which this nest is also gathered. Each family of birds thus furnishes three nests in one season. The nests taken at the beginning of the season are considered the best in quality.

Most of these edible nests are consumed by the Chinese, who regard them not only as a great table delicacy, but also as a valuable tonic medicine in neurasthenia and pulmonary disorders. It is said that the demand in Hongkong for the nests exceeds the supply, and that the prices range from $15 to $25 per pound, according to quality.

Where the Victims of the Maine will Rest

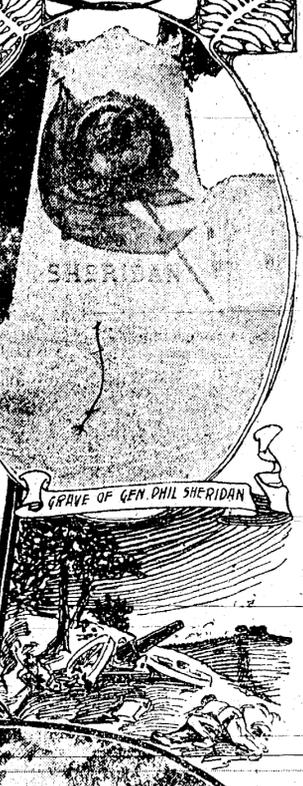

A VIEW OF ARLINGTON NATIONAL CEMETERY

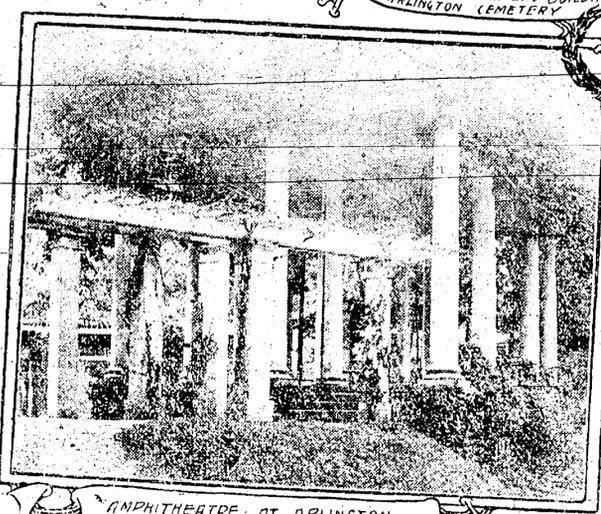

WHEN the congress of the United States at its last session appropriated money for raising the ill-fated battleship Maine it made an important proviso in connection with the gigantic wrecking project. The stipulation in question was to the effect that the remains of the members of the Maine's crew which have never been accounted for shall when recovered be brought back to the United States and buried with due honors. Probably it has escaped the memory of many of our readers that not all of the ship's company on the old Maine were accounted for after that vessel was blown up in Havana harbor just on the eve of the Spanish-American war, which this tragic incident did so much to precipitate. However, such was the case. Captain (now Rear Admiral, retired) Sigbee, who was in command of the vessel on the fated night, escaped together with a number of his officers and men, but a large proportion of the ship's company went to watery graves. Following the disaster there were recovered the bodies of 163 men of the Maine's crew, but more than three score of the men who gave up their lives for their country on that night have never to this day been accounted for. The officials of the government are all confident that the remains of these missing men will be found in the hold of the wrecked vessel when she is raised to the surface in accordance with the elaborate salvage plans now in progress. Probably only the skeletons of the unfortunates will remain, but the government will provide a regulation coffin for each and accord the full honors of the service in connection with interment in their final resting place.

It is fitting that the national legislature should designate Arlington as the resting place of this final grim muster squad from the long-submerged Maine. For Arlington is probably the most significant of all our great national cemeteries, and here already repose in their last dreamless sleep these other heroes of the Maine who gave up their lives because of treachery. The remains of the Maine's men that were recovered immediately after the disaster were first interred in a cemetery at Havana, but arrangements were later made to transfer them to their native land and they were reinterred at Arlington with solemn ceremony the latter part of December, 1898, about ten months after the Maine went to destruction.

Already plans are under way for a splendid monument to be erected, after the new graves shall have been made to all the victims of the Maine. Rear Admiral Sigbee, who was in command of the ill-starred vessel, is interested in the project and so are many other prominent public spirited citizens, including a number of the men and women who were instrumental in raising the money for that stately monument to the Rough Riders in connection with the placing of which former President Roosevelt delivered one of his best addresses. Within sight of the graves of the Maine victims at Arlington also is the towering shaft of the monument erected by the National Society of Colonial Dames in honor of the memory of the heroes of the Spanish-American war, more than one thousand of whom—victims of the Cuban campaign of 1898—rest within the shadow of this lofty tribute.

Indeed the green hills of Arlington overlooking the Potomac river just opposite the city of Washington are covered with tributes in granite and marble and bronze to the nation's heroes—men who fell in three wars! There are notable general monuments such as those above mentioned and the famous "monument to the unknown dead" erected over the unidentified remains of more than two thousand soldiers that fell on the fields of Bull Run and other scenes of conflict in Virginia. And there are also monuments to individual graves—which are of the greatest interest to all visitors to the cemetery. Among these latter are the sculptured tributes over the graves of Gen. Phil Sheridan, the famous cavalry leader, General Crook, the great Indian fighter, and the gallant Lawton.

Arlington was, prior to the civil war, the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee, the leader of the military forces of the Confederacy, having come to him through his marriage with the great-granddaughter of the Widow Custis, who married George Washington. The federal government confiscated the property during the war, but later reimbursed the Lee family for it. The old manor house, which was the home in turn of several very prominent citizens of the republic, still stands in a perfect state of preservation—an ideal example of the southern manor house of the colonial period and not a stone's throw from this old dwelling is the amphitheatre, with a capacity of 5,000 persons, which was erected in 1873 and is the scene of all memorial exercises, such as those which will be held for the Maine victims, when the remains of the rear guard of the battleship's martyrs shall have been recovered and brought home to rest with their shipmates.

A GREENBACK STORY

THE other day in the Treasury building a heap of worn-out greenbacks lay awaiting Nirvana by the fire route when, in greenback lingo, of course, a bill suggested:

"Let's kill time by autographing a bit. Wake up there, Onebuck! Suppose you tell us upon what occasion in your opinion your purchasing power was greatest, or least?"

A lop-eared bill yawned and answered: "I've bought some pretty nifty things in my day. Drinks for two boes who'd just hit town after 200 miles of imprisonment in an empty freight car, a photograph a girl had taken to send her soldier boy sick in the Philippines. Once I paid for a ticket out of Chicago to some Indiana town."

"Pretty good as far as you went," cut in the interlocutor. "Now we'll hear from Fiver."

"Well, I urged a messenger boy to walk a block in 15 minutes—"

"Listen to the bromide!" Greek chorused the others. "Next!"

Another one-dollar bill responded. Judging by appearance he had the heart of the poet, for even in that tattered company his raggedness was noticeable. He spoke softly:

"I once paid for the pearl of greatest price. A woman, whom the world had bruised, took me to a drug store and converted me into a tiny vial of rest."

The interlocutor cleared his throat suddenly and called on Old Hundred.

"I've never bought anything worth much, I must confess," responded the hundred-dollar bill, "and I always got a grouch when I saw myself bring in so little of the real goods. Oftenest I've been spent in such fool ways that I blush at the remembrance, as for instance, when Reggie left me in a Broadway shop in exchange for a gilt basketful of purple blossoms not to be named in the same day with the common or garden flowers."

"At one time I thought I had fallen into quiet quarters for good. That was the time when a horny-handed Jay of the good old homestead species took me in payment for his crop of 'aters and let me sleep out the spring and early summer in a red yarn sock, but one morning in August, ere the dawn had flushed the faintest rose, even before Chantecler had flapped his wings, I was yanked out of the sock and deep down within me I knew that it was me for the giddy whirl again."

"After all, it was refreshing to be back where things were doing and being done at the county fair. I longed to get out of Jay's trousers pocket, but Jay was foxy. The barkers barked strenuously before I got out of the pocket. However, come out I did, and—well, thinking it over dispassionately, I believe the privilege of seeing what was not under the walnut shell came higher to Jay than did the fool gilt basket of flowers to Reggie on Broadway."

Onebuck held up his hand, craving speech.

"Well, Onebuck, what is it?" asked the interlocutor.

"I once bought the blue chip with which a good but erring youth staked the last dollar of his employer's money which he had taken, meaning to pay it back—the chip with which the youth recouped and saved honor, good name, and—"

"Shut up, Onebuck! This experience meatia is on the level. Two spot, what's the story of your biggest purchase?"

The two-dollar bill spoke, deliberately, soberly: "Upon a certain May morning a young man with dreams in his eyes grasped me with trembling fingers and took me to the city hall. I could feel his heart beat as he went, and every soul or two I heard him say: 'Angel! Joy of my soul! Beautiful darling, soon to be my own!'"

"Arrived at the impressive stone building my young man, still trembling, said something in an inaudible voice to the party behind the desk. Evidently the party behind the desk was accustomed to mind reading. He understood what the young man wanted all right, and after a few preliminaries the young man handed me to the party behind the desk and received in exchange a slip of paper."

"You think a slip of paper an insignificant purchase? Well, you've got several thickets coming to you. That spring day when the young man carried me to the city hall, my purchasing power was greater than it has ever been in a long lifetime. I bought more—"

"I know," butted in Onebuck. "What you bought for your young man was Happiness with a big H!"

Two spot looked at Onebuck sadly, pityingly.

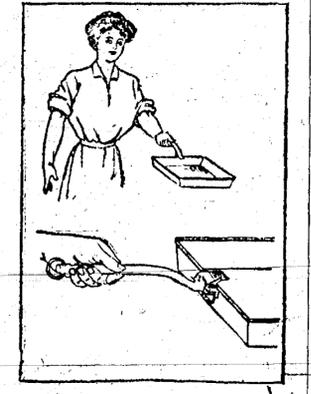

"My boy, your innocence is positively refreshing. What I bought for my young man that May morning in the city hall begins with a big H all right, but it doesn't end with a—"

KEEPS HANDS FROM HEAT

Pan-Lifting Device That is Worthy of a Place in Every Kitchen in the Land.

Cooks have been heard to express wonder that the big oblong frying pans are equipped with handles at all. The movable wire clutches that serve this purpose are always lying flat along the ends of the pan and they get so hot that they cannot be touched with the bare hands and are hard to grip with a cloth. A Texan woman has come to the rescue with a pan lifter which eliminates all danger of burns. This lifter has a long handle with upwardly and downwardly curving jaws at end and a further downwardly projecting lip is dropped into them. With the lower jaw acting as a lever and the upper one gripping the Lifts Pan at Long Range. end of the pan, the latter can be lifted off the stove or drawn out of the oven. If it is used for roasting, without the cook's hand coming within six inches of it. The extension at the top can be used to hold a lid on the pan if there is one.

ODD NAME, BUT GOOD CAKE

Confection Known as "Witches" or "Devils" is Recommended as Good Eating.

This is sometimes called "devil's cake." Ingredients are four ounces of chocolate, one-half pint of milk, one-half cup of butter, one-half cup of sugar, four eggs, three cups of flour and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Put the chocolate in the milk and cook in a double boiler till smooth and thick about five minutes. Stand aside to cool. Then beat the butter to a cream, and add gradually the sugar and yolks of eggs; then put in the cold chocolate paste and add the flour after it has been sifted with the baking powder. Then add the well-beaten whites of the eggs, flavored with vanilla. Bake this in layers, put together with soft icing mixed with chopped nuts or figs.

Bigger young folks want something more substantial, and vegetable sandwiches and a fruit or wine punch, made very weak, are considered acceptable, with dishes of jelly or fudge, and a plentiful supply of nuts served along with these good things.

Needle Soup.

Put three pints of milk, lacking a cupful, in a double boiler over the fire and add to it one slice of onion and a blade of mace. Mix together three tablespoonfuls flour and the left over milk, beat with a fork until smooth and free from all lumps; then when the milk in the double boiler has reached the boiling point add the paste to the boiling milk.

Add salt and pepper to season and cook fifteen minutes. Add the noodles, cook for five minutes, longer and serve.

Noodles may also be dropped into rapidly boiling consommé, covered closely for five minutes and served with any seasoning preferred.

Giblet Sauce.

Put the giblets—the neck, the gizzard, the liver, the heart and the legs (skinned)—into a saucepan with a quart of cold water; cover and cook gently until the gizzard is tender—for about one hour. Strain. Chop fine the liver, gizzard and heart, and put them back into the water. After you lift the turkey from the pan pour off all but four tablespoonfuls of fat, add to this four level tablespoonfuls of flour, mix, and add the giblets and the water in which they were boiled. Boil for five minutes, add half a teaspoonful of salt, and, if you like, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce.

Nut Loaf.

Four cups of sifted flour, four level teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful salt, one-half cup of sugar, one cup nut meats chopped fine, two cups sweet milk, and two eggs. Stir the dry ingredients together, then add beaten eggs and milk. Bake in moderate oven about forty-five minutes. This makes two loaves. I find that this bread is fine for the lunch box just buttered, or lettuce with salad dressing may be placed between two thin slices for a change.

Banana Salad.

A delicious salad is made of bananas cut in slices, dipped in mayonnaise rolled in minced nuts and served on white lettuce heart leaves. Thinly sliced bananas moistened with mayonnaise and placed between buttered slices of bread make excellent school sandwiches.

SKIN TORTURED BABIES SLEEP AND MOTHERS REST

A warm bath with Cuticura Soap, followed by a gentle anointing with Cuticura ointment, is generally sufficient to afford immediate comfort in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly eczemas, rashes, irritations, and inflammations of infants and children, permit sleep for child and rest for parent, and point to permanent relief, when other methods fail. Peace falls upon distracted households when these pure, sweet and gentle emollients enter. No other treatment costs so little and does so much for skin sufferers, from infancy to age. Just Shopping. A fashionably dressed young woman entered the post office in a large western city, hesitated a moment, and stepped up to the stamp window. The stamp clerk looked up expectantly, and she asked, "Do you sell stamps here?"

The clerk politely answered, "Yes." "I would like to see some, please," was the unusual request.

The clerk dazedly handed out a large sheet of the two-cent variety, which the young woman carefully examined. Pointing to one near the center, she said, "I will take this one, please."—Everybody's.

Good Support
E. N. Clink's Candidacy Receiving Hearty Approval.

From every section of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit is coming the heartiest kind of endorsement to Atty. E. N. Clink's candidacy for the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge of this circuit. One of the strongest factors in Mr. Clink's candidacy is the fact that there is hardly a town or hamlet in the four counties of Charlevoix, Antrim, Grand Traverse and Leelanau in which that gentleman is not known and has many warm personal friends, who, realizing his ability as an attorney and an interpreter of law, are willing and glad to do all in their power to further his aspirations.

Mr. Clink's ability as a lawyer is known throughout Northern Michigan, and he stands high in the estimate of his fellow attorneys. His thorough knowledge of law, which is a prime requisite in the position which he aspires to, eminently qualifies him to the position.

The Republican voter in these four counties will make no mistake if they cast their ballot for Atty. E. N. Clink at the primary, Wednesday, March 1st.

Michigan Crop Report

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 7, 1911.

WHEAT. In reply to the question, "Has wheat during January suffered injury from any cause?" 109 correspondents in the southern counties answer "yes" and 207 "no;" in the central counties 43 answer "yes" and 91 "no;" in the northern counties 7 answer "yes" and 115 "no" and in the upper peninsula 22 answer "no."

Snow protected wheat in the southern counties 2.15 weeks; in the central counties 2.88; in the northern counties 3.94; in the upper peninsula 4.14, and in the State 2.76 weeks.

The average depth of snow on the 15th in the southern counties was 3.73 inches; in the central counties 5.45; in the northern counties 13; in the upper peninsula 24.76, and in the State 7.34 inches.

On the 31st the average depth in the southern counties 0.89; in the central counties 0.90 of an inch; in the northern counties 8.73; in the upper peninsula 16.92, and in the State 3.17 inches.

The total number of bushels of wheat marketed by farmers in January at 126 flouring mills was 206,564 and at 107 elevators and to grain dealers 166,174 or a total of 372,738 bushels. Of this amount 266,615 bushels were marketed in the southern four tiers of counties; 93,480 in the central counties, and 12,743 in the northern counties and the upper peninsula. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in the six months, August-January is 6,759,000. Fifty-five mills, elevators and grain dealers report no wheat marketed during January. The average condition of live stock in the State is reported as follows, comparison being with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition; horses and cattle 99, sheep and swine 97.

ALL MY PIMPLES GONE

Girl Tells How a Blotchy Skin Was Cleaned By a Simple Wash.

"I was ashamed of my face," writes Miss Minnie Pickard of Altamahaw, N. C. "It was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema, and that was three years ago."

D. D. D. has become so famous as a cure and instant relief in Eczema and all other serious skin diseases, that its value is sometimes overlooked in clearing up rash, pimples, blackheads, and all other minor forms of skin impurities.

The fact is, that while D. D. D. is so penetrating that it strikes to the very root of Eczema or any other serious trouble, the soothing Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol and other ingredients are so carefully compounded there is no wash for the skin made that can compare with this great household remedy for every kind of skin trouble.

D. D. D. is pleasant to use, perfectly harmless to the most delicate skin, and absolutely reliable. A 25-cent bottle will give you positive proof of the wonderful effectiveness of this great remedy.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is one of the most progressive companies doing business to-day in the world. In looking over the annual statement for the past year we find that large gains were made in all important items. The company is growing stronger as each year rolls around.

The Company paid to policyholders last year nearly three million, and since organization the amount is $23,- 243,147. The life assurance in force stands at nearly 130 millions.

The Company's growth during the past ten years is as follows: Income in 1899, 2,596,207—in 1909, 7,- 778,132; assets in 1899, 9,247,664—in 1909 this item is 32,804,996; the life assurances in force in 1899 were 52,806,035—in 1909 this item is nearly 130 millions.

This is certainly fine progress, and one the officers and stockholders may be proud of. The Company is well managed by President Robertson Mac-

Beautiful Miss Howard

By ANTOINETTE PATTERSON

Langdon Drew was of a frivolous nature and had already figured in two broken engagements. And now a girl had come into his life determined to teach him a lesson. Katherine Howard and the ex-fiancees had been friends at boarding school. This was unknown to Mr. Drew who had moved from Pittsburg, the home of one of his former loves—the other was a Bostonian—to New York, where he had just met the beautiful Miss Howard.

Katherine Howard was a beauty. In her hair was the tint of the sun itself, and in her face the flush of the wild rose. Her eyes were big and clear and blue.

There were six men supposed to be in love with Katherine; soon, Mr. Drew made the seventh. Also, he felt he was the most favored.

Among the first six was a young clergyman, Rev. Mr. Henry Strong of Boston, who had met Miss Howard the previous summer while visiting friends on the Massachusetts coast. He saw as much of her as his meagre vacation would allow, and in the fall came to New York and asked her to marry him.

Katherine told him she liked him very much, but she wished to see something of the world first; that probably it would prove so charming she would prefer to live in its midst the rest of her life. To her surprise, Mr. Strong agreed at once. It was a natural wish, and it was far from his desire that any woman should be his wife unless she realized the many things she would have to give up; there would be so much else for her to do. He was indeed an unusual lover, for he had added that he would be so busy all winter it would be impossible to leave Boston, but he would find time to see her just before Lent, when perhaps she could tell him whether she felt she could become the wife of a rather hard-working clergyman—not a poor one, as he had an independent income of his own. And then he had quietly said good-bye.

Katherine had thought often of that afternoon. Strong was the one man who seemed not to have noticed her beauty. This had not pleased Miss Howard at first, but afterwards she liked to think it implied a greater compliment. All winter she had heard from him three times; letters such as any friend might have written.

Katherine assured herself she did not love Mr. Strong. Yet often amid worldly scenes she would hear the harsh roar of the sea, and picture against a grey sky a dark figure, vigorous, erect—rather militant. She wondered if he would come again before Lent. Then she would become oppressed by a stifling fear that he might not.

Langdon Drew meanwhile grew more in love, daily assuring himself he was making greater headway. It occurred to him he was occasionally avoided rather abruptly; as for instance at the Wainwright dance when, in the beautiful conservatory where he had been about to throw himself and his fortune at Miss Howard's feet, she had announced that she was "dying for another ice."

No one would have put up with such things in a lesser beauty than Katherine Howard.

Affairs took Drew to Boston before long and while he was walking down Tremont street he collided with a man moving in the opposite direction.

"Why, Langdon! Why, Henry!"

The two had not met since they were in college together.

"Come to my rooms tonight," urged Rev. Mr. Strong, "to talk over old times. I haven't a minute just now."

"Awfully sorry, old man," Drew answered, "but I'm just leaving for New York."

"When you come to Boston again, let me know and we'll arrange things better. Not married yet, Langdon?" The smile on Strong's face brought back the days when Drew's friends had teased him unmercifully about the girls.

soon to announce my engagement to Miss Katherine Howard, the prettiest girl in New York!"

Had Drew been observant, he would have noticed a tightening of the clergyman's lips.

"Well," Henry said, a trifle unsteadily, "I must be off—I'm late now to an appointment." Then he added, "I hope you'll be awfully happy, Langdon—and will make her happy. Good-bye."

"So this is the end," Strong said to himself when he had gone to his rooms and poked the fire. "That girl with such possibilities will fritter her life quite away." He thought of Drew's well known lack of steadfastness, but he dismissed this as having no special bearing. "She won't be actually unhappy; Drew will never grow tired of her, and he's a nice fellow in a way. And awfully good looking. Ah, Katherine, Katherine! I must have made a poor lover—but you were the only one for whom I ever cared, and I think I didn't understand quite the way to show you how much. I wanted you to see the world first; but how could I have been idiot enough to hope for a different ending? Tonight I feel I would give anything if only you could have known how much I loved you!"

Strong awoke to a new difficulty; it was near Lent and he now felt the promised visit to New York would be most unwelcome. Later, Miss Howard would probably write him. Herein lay the difficulty: Langdon Drew had assumed he would say nothing about his love affair, yet the letter must suggest some kind of an explanation.

However, a day afterwards, Katherine Howard received the following:

"My Dear Miss Howard—I feel that for many reasons it will be best for me to postpone my visit to New York this spring. I hope you will believe how great is the interest I shall always feel in you and how much I trust your life will be a happy one.

"Always most sincerely,
HENRY STRONG.

"February 28, 190—"

Katherine was alone when the note came. She had not been feeling too well pleased with herself. She had refused Langdon Drew and Mary Browning and Bessie Wetherill had been avenged. But, since the reading of this note, Katherine felt sorry for Drew.

The main thing concerning the letter was its incomprehensibility. Had Henry Strong become too absorbed in other things—the Boston papers were constantly quoting him as a man worth listening to—to have the time to think of love?

The season wore away and many persons wondered why the beautiful Miss Howard had not become engaged.

And then an odd thing happened. Mr. and Mrs. Wetherill, whose daughter was once engaged to Mr. Drew and who had just returned from abroad, moved into a house adjoining Mr. Strong's church. Within a few weeks the rector called.

Mr. and Mrs. Wetherill were out, but Miss Wetherill would be down in a few minutes. Mr. Strong's eyes fastened themselves upon a large photograph of Katherine Howard. He did not know Miss Wetherill had come into the room until he heard her say:

"I'm glad to see you, Mr. Strong. You are admiring, I am sure, the picture of one of my old school friends, Katherine Howard."

Mr. Strong turned the conversation to other things. When he rose to go Miss Wetherill noticed that his eyes again sought the picture. But this photograph had always attracted attention.

"She is one of the most loyal-hearted as well as beautiful girls," Bessie Wetherill said, "and would do anything in the world for a friend. I hope soon to have her visit me, though I have just heard she has become engaged to a distinguished southerner whose name I can't remember."

Mr. Long took his leave feeling much confused. Langdon Drew could never in the world be taken for a Southerner, and he was not distinguished. Strong bought a New York paper. On the front page was a picture of "The Beautiful Miss Howard." It headed a column reporting her engagement to a royal personage, Prince von Schamberg.

Mr. Strong read no more. He stuffed the paper into his pocket, for once in his life forgot an engagement, and took the first train to New York.

Miss Howard entered the drawing room. Her greeting was distant. But Henry Strong noticed nothing. Something was going to be definitely settled then and there.

"Miss Howard, are you engaged to be married, or going to be, to Mr. Drew—a distinguished southerner—or Prince von Schamberg?"

There was something so compelling in the tone that Strong did not have to repeat his question.

"No," Katherine said, "I am not."

A look came into Strong's face which rendered it at the moment beautiful.

"Katherine, will you marry me?"

"Yes."

Explanations awaited their own good time. Even the need of them was forgotten for the moment.

THE GROWTH OF TOWNS IN WESTERN CANADA

A BAROMETER OF THE GROWTH OF THE AGRICULTURAL DISTRICTS.

The traveler passing through a country is impressed favorably or otherwise by the appearance of the towns along the line of railways. As they appear prosperous and of healthy growth he at once assures himself that there is either a local industrial factor to cause it, or a splendidly developed agricultural area from which is drawn the resources that contribute or make for the growth that is so readily apparent. On the other hand, if evidence of impoverished streets, badly appearing residences and business places and lethargic citizens, there is an absence of local industry and surrounding agricultural prosperity. There is no line of railway, whether main or branch, throughout western Canada, that through the towns or cities that are built along the ribs of steel do not convey the most favorable impression. The cause is not always apparent, but the facts are there and easily seen. In most cases the growth and the stability of these towns are caused by the excellent agricultural districts that are tributary; in some cases, manufacturing enterprises have sprung up, caused by the agricultural demands and needs. The Winnipeg Free Press and the Edmonton Bulletin have recently sent corps of correspondents through the provinces to secure data concerning the growth of the two or three hundred towns that have come into existence during the past two or three years. The particulars make interesting reading, and as one reads of the station house, the blacksmith shop, the boarding house and the store of April, being dwarfed in August by a hundred or more dwellings, by large hotels, by splendid stores, and a half dozen implement warehouses, not forgetting the two or three churches and the excellent public school buildings, it causes one to stop and think if they ever heard of such marvelous changes. Certainly not often. These are facts, though, as related of western Canada. Then, too, there are now cities—yes, cities of from ten to fifteen thousand people—where five or six years ago there was but the bare prairie and the lone section post. The changes in the Canadian West during the past eight or ten years have been marvelous, and it is no idle tale to say that the development in number and growth of the cities, towns and villages there in the past decade has eclipsed anything in the history of the building of a new country. Agriculture has been the basis, and it is agriculture of the kind that is lasting. The ease with which an excellent productive farm, capable of yielding a splendid living and large profit to the operator, is such that it has encouraged thousands to follow that pursuit, and also other thousands on the limited and expensive farms throughout the Central Western States as well as some of the Coast States, to enlarge their field of enterprise. The climate is excellent, and just the climate that is desirable for the healthy growth of man and the products of the field. All varieties of the smaller and better paying grains are raised, and generally with every assurance of good fields. With government supervision of railway rates, splendid markets are certain, and the highest prices realized. The Dominion Government, that has been carrying on a propaganda of securing settlers for the vacant lands, issues literature descriptive of those available in the provinces, and on request of your nearest Canadian government agent, copies will be forwarded free.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded if It Fails.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 2 quarts warm water, and stir for 3 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives instant relief. It stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gallocate and other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A Lesson for Diplomats. Ellhu Root, at the luncheon in Providence preceding the dedication of the John Hay Memorial library at Brown university, said of John Hay:

"His diplomacy was gracious, and it was prudent as well. I remember in an argument about a certain international complication, how very warmly and aptly he once insisted on prudence."

"It was the Christmas season, and he said that we might learn a lesson from a little girl who was naughty in the early part of December."

"Dear me," her mother said, "if you're going to be naughty I'm very much afraid Santa Claus won't bring you any presents."

"The little girl frowned.

"Well," she whispered, "you needn't say it so near the chimney."

Hand Beats Machine. Cigars are still made by hand, no machine having yet been invented that will roll them so nicely and evenly as do deft human fingers. The cheapest cigars—the three-for-five variety—are made of French, Kentucky, Algerian or Hungarian leaves. At the other extreme are the cigars smoked by the czar of Russia, which are of the choicest and best matured Havana, and which cost $1.50 each.

A Deadly Error. Dr. W. B. Cannon of Harvard, discussing anti-vivisection literature at a dinner in New York, said with a smile:

"This literature, in part, at least, is as flagrantly erroneous as the medical department conducted by a young college girl in a weekly paper. A sample reply in this department ran:

"Bereaved.—The reply given last week was a mistake, it should have been ten drops of laudanum, not ten cups of laudanum. Yes, we advocate cremation rather than the old-fashioned burial."

The Shadow of Science. It is hard to believe that a shadow is probably the origin of all astronomical, geometrical and geographical science.

The first man who fixed his staff perpendicularly in the ground and measured its shadow was the earliest computer of time, and the Arab of today who plants his spear in the sand and marks where the shadow falls is his direct descendant. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the early Egyptians told the length of the year. It is from the shadow of a gnomon that the inhabitants of Upper Egypt still measure the hours of work for a water wheel. In this case the gnomon is a hurra stalk supported on forked uprights and points north and south. East and west are pegs in the ground, evenly marking the space of earth between sunrise and sunset. In a land of constant sunshine a shadow was the primitive chronometer. It was also the primitive foot rule.

NOT AS BAD AS IT SOUNDED Wonderful Highland Dialect Responses for Wrong Impression Given Divine. Andrew Carnegie, at a dinner in New York, talked about the Scotch dialect.

"It's a hard lingo to understand," he said. "It often causes awkward mistakes."

"Once an American divine spent Christmas in a Highland inn. On Christmas morning he gave the maid a tip of a sovereign, and he said, looking earnestly at her—for she was a pretty maid—

"Do you know, Kathleen, you are a very good-looking lassie?"

"Of course Kathleen was pleased, but, being modest, she blushed like a rose and answered:

"Ah, na! Ah, na! But my kisser, sir, is beautiful!"

"The divine frowned.

"Leave the room, you wicked young baggage!" he said sternly.

"He didn't know you see, that modest Kathleen had been simply praising in her Highland dialect, the superior charms of her cousin Janet of Peebles."

A Prime Cause of Ill Health. A famous physician on being asked recently what is the chief cause of ill health, replied: "Thinking and talking about it all the time. This senseless introspection in which so many of the rising generation of the nervous folk indulge is certainly wearing them out. When they are not worrying as to whether they sleep too much or too little, they are fretting over the amount of food they take or the quantity of exercise necessary for health. In short they never give themselves a moment's peace."

The Inevitable. "You don't resent that successful candidate's proud and haughty manner?"

"Nope," rejoined Farmer Cornstossel. "The fact that he's in politics is all the guarantee I want that sooner or later he'll meet with some kind of a terrible finish."

Some Suspicious Persons

Enquired if we were "hiring" a certain "weekly" paper to abuse us.

Of course every time a spot light is turned on from any source it offers a splendid chance to talk about the merits of the products, but pon honor now, we are not hiring that "Weekly."

The general reader seldom cares much for the details of "scraps."

A few may have read lately some articles attacking us and may be interested in the following:

Some time ago a disagreement arose with a "Weekly." They endorsed our foods by letter, but wanted to change the form of advertising, to which we objected.

The "Weekly" discontinued inserting our advertisements while they were negotiating for some changes they wanted in the wording and shape of the advertisements, and during this correspondence our manager gave instructions to our Advertising Department to quit advertising altogether in that "Weekly."

Quite a time after the advertising had been left out, an editorial attack came. We replied in newspapers and the scrap was on.

Then came libel suits from both sides, and some harsh words. Generally tiresome to the public.

That "Weekly" has attacked many prominent men and reputable manufacturers.

Our Company seems prominent enough for a sensational writer to go after, hunt for some little spot to criticize, then distort, twist and present it to the public under scare heads.

So an attorney from New York spent more or less time for months in Battle Creek hoping to find impurities in our foods, or dirt in the factories. After tireless spying about he summoned twenty-five of our workmen and took their testimony. Every single one testified that the foods are made of exactly the grain and ingredients printed on the packages; the wheat, barley and corn being the choicest obtainable—all thoroughly cleaned—the water of the purest, and every part of the factories and machinery kept scrupulously clean.

That all proved disappointing to the "Weekly." There are very few factories, hospitals, private—or hotel and restaurant kitchens that could stand the close spying at unexpected times and by an enemy paid to find dirt or impurities of some kind.

In any ordinary kitchen or factory he would find something to magnify and make a noise about.

But he failed utterly with the Postum Works and products. Twenty to thirty thousand people go through the factories annually and we never enquire whether they are there to spy or not. It makes no difference to us.

He next turned to discover something about our advertising that could be criticized.

An analysis of the methods and distorted statements of the "Weekly" may interest some readers, so we take up the items one by one and open them out for inspection. We will "chain up" the harsh words and make no reference in this article to the birth, growth and methods of the "Weekly" but try to confine the discussion to the questions now at issue.

Some Facts

Battle Creek, Michigan, December 30, 1910.

We the undersigned certify that never to our knowledge has a testimonial letter been printed by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., which did not have behind it a genuine letter signed, and believed to be an honest statement.

To the best of our knowledge and belief the Company has received upwards of fifty thousand (50,000) genuine testimonial letters.

This company has never knowingly made nor permitted an untruthful statement regarding its products or its methods.

Distortion No. 1 stated that we have been accustomed to advertise Grape-Nuts and Postum as "cure-alls for everything."

It has never been the policy of this Company to advertise Grape-Nuts or Postum to cure anything.

We say that in cases where coffee disagrees and is causing sickness its dismissal will remove the cause of the trouble, and we suggest the use of Postum for the reason that it furnishes a hot palatable morning beverage, and contains natural elements from the grain which can be used by nature to assist in rebuilding nerve centers that coffee may have broken down.

Likewise Grape-Nuts food does not cure anything, but it does assist nature tremendously in rebuilding, providing the indigestible food that has been used is discontinued and Grape-Nuts taken in its place.

Charge No. 2 states that the passage of the National Food & Drug Act compelled us to drop from the packages some assertions regarding the nutritive value of Grape-Nuts.

We have never been "compelled" to make any change.

Since the beginning it has been a universal rule to print clearly on every package exactly what the contents are made of.

Before the passage of the Pure Food Law the packages stated that Grape-Nuts food was made of wheat and barley.

We did not esteem the small amount of salt and yeast as of value enough to speak of, but after the new law came in we became as technical as the officials at Washington and added the words "yeast" and "salt," although we have no recollection of being asked to.

We believed that our statement that Grape-Nuts will supply elements to nourish the brain and nerve centers is true and bring authorities to support the fact.

Some state chemists believed this a gross exaggeration and inasmuch as the Food Dept. at Washington could easily harass grocers, pending a trial on the disputed question, we concluded that much the better way would be to eliminate from our packages such claims, however certain we may be.

Another statement related to read as follows: "It will absorb a greater amount of nourishment from one pound of Grape-Nuts than from ten pounds of meat, wheat, oats, or bread."

Some Department chemists deceive themselves as well as the public.

"Caloried" is the word which defines a unit of heat determined by the amount necessary to raise one kilogram of water one degree centigrade. On this basis a table of calories is prepared showing the percentage of different kinds of food. Butter shows 8.00; Grape-Nuts 3.99; milk 0.70. Remember the statement on the package spoke of the nourishment the system would absorb, but did not speak of the calories of heat contained in it, for the heat is not nourishment, and the nourishment cannot be judged by the number of heat units, notwithstanding the fact that certain chemists would have the public believe so.

As an illustration: Attempt to feed a man sixty days on butter alone, with its 8.00 calories. The man would die before the experiment had run sixty days.

Then take Grape-Nuts with 3.99 and milk with 0.70—the two combined equal about one-half the number of calories contained in butter. The man fed for sixty days on this food would be well nourished, and could live not only sixty days, but six months on that food alone, and we do not hesitate to say from our long knowledge of the sustaining power of the food that a man at the end of sixty days would be practically the same weight as when he started, if he be a man of normal weight.

We will suppose that from his loss he lost a pound a day and made up a pound each day from food. If that premise proved to be true the man in sixty days' time would make sixty pounds of tissue to replace what had been lost, and this would be done on Grape-Nuts and milk with half the number of calories of butter, upon which no one can sustain life.

Therefore, we have reason to believe that our contention is right that concentrated food like Grape-Nuts, which is partly digested and ready for easy assimilation by the body, presents more nourishment than the system will absorb than many other forms of food, and we will further say that in cases of digestive troubles where meat, white bread and oats cannot be digested, that Grape-Nuts and milk contain more nourishment than the system will absorb than many pounds of these other foods.

Distortion No. 3 charges that our testimonials were practically all paid for and re-written in Battle Creek.

These testimonials were demanded by the opposing lawyers. Naturally this demand was refused, for they are held in vaults and kept safe to prove the truth, and are not to be delivered up on demand of enemies.

Testimony at the trial brought out the fact that we never printed a single testimonial that we did not have the genuine letter back of. Many of these letters came spontaneously. A record was kept of twelve hundred and four (1204) letters received in one month from people who wrote that they had either entirely recovered their health or been benefited by following our suggestions on food and beverages.

On three or four occasions in the past ten or twelve years we printed broadcast in papers offers of prizes to users of Postum and Grape-Nuts—two hundred dollars for the author of the best testimonial, and five of $15.00 each, stating that each must be an honest letter with name and address. We agreed not to publish names, but to furnish them to enquirers by letter. These letters were very generally answered those who wrote to them, and verified the truth of the statements.

Under this agreement not to publish names literally scores of letters came from doctors. We kept our word and neither printed their names or surrendered the letters.

Right here notice an "imitation spasm." The "Weekly" says: "Post got these testimonials by advertising for them. In New York he used for that purpose the New York Magazine of — whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary for fraudulent use of the mails. For example, Post announced in that magazine in 1907, etc." (then follows our prize competition.)

We used nearly all of the money and magazines in New York and the rest of America, but the sensational writer gives the impression to his readers that the only magazine we used was one whose editor is now in the Federal Penitentiary, etc., something that we know nothing of the truth of now, and never did. Space was bought in the magazine spoken of on a business basis for the reason that it went to a good class of readers. The incident seems to have furnished an opportunity for a designing writer to deceive his readers.

We look upon honest human testimony from men and women as to the means by which they recovered health as of tremendous value to those in search of it. Our business has been conducted from the very first day upon lines of strict integrity and veracity and have published a large testimonial of human experience. Many of these letters covered numerous sheets; some, if printed, would exceed over half a page of newspaper. If we would attempt to print one such letter in every one of the thousands of papers and magazines we use, the cost for printing that one letter would run into many thousands of dollars.

We hold down these letters exactly as a newspaper writer holds his news—sticking sacredly to the important facts and eliminating details about the family and other unimportant matters. This work of holding down, or editing, is done honestly, and with a full knowledge of our responsibility, but notice the art of the "twister" in the way he presents to his readers this matter of testimonials.

Distortion No. 4. This is a bad one. It reads as follows: "The very famous physician whose name was signed to a testimonial was produced in Court by Collier and turned out to be a poor old broken-down homopath, who now works in a printing establishment. He received ten dollars ($10.00) for writing his testimonial."

We will wager ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00) with any investigator that we have subject to inspection of any fair committee, upwards of three hundred (300) communications from physicians, many of them expressing the highest commendation of our products, but these will not now or ever be turned over to the publisher for his use.

Notice the statement in this charge: "The only famous physician whose name was signed to Postum testimonial, etc." The truth is, this Dr. Timmerwood was one of a great many physicians who have not only written commendatory words about the value of our foods, but every now and then some physician writes an article on coffee or on food, and sends it to us with a suggestion of compensation for his fine and medical knowledge. Previous to the time when we employed physicians in our own business, we occasionally employed a doctor to write an article on coffee, always insisting that the article be an honest expression of his opinion and research.

The "Weekly" hunted up this physician, and because he seemed to be poor, and as it says "broken-down," had him brought to Court to be exposed before a jury as the "only physician that had ever endorsed Grape-Nuts," but much to the chagrin of the "Weekly," when our attorneys asked him if the article he wrote about coffee was true he replied, "Yes."

Statement No. 5 reads: "The health officers of Mich., Maine, Penn., New Hamp., and other states in their official bulletins have for years been denouncing as preposterous and fraudulent the claims made by the Postum Cereal Company. We do not recall any criticism except from Mich., Penn., Maine and S. Dakota."

The average reader might think that the opinions expressed by the State Officials are always correct, but that official is not borne out by facts.

As an illustration: About thirteen years ago the Dairy and Food Commission of Michigan for some personal reason printed a severe criticism on us for making Postum of Barley (according to his official chemist) at market price and selling too high. He was shown there was never a grain of barley used in Postum. His report was false and misleading. The governor dismissed him.

We believe that most of the state officials are honest, and on the other hand we are firmly convinced that some of their conclusions cannot be substantiated by facts in scientific research.

They never criticize the purity of our foods, for so much we are thankful.

If our conclusions in regard to its being a brain food differ from theirs, and we are both honest, they have rather the advantage, because under the law they can order us to eliminate from the package any statement if it disagrees with their opinion. Otherwise they would harass process.

Spasm No. 6 says: "The most dangerous thing in the world for one threatened with appendicitis is to eat any food whatever. Notwithstanding he knew that danger, C. W. Post advertised Grape-Nuts at fifteen cents a package for those so threatened."

This is intended to muddle the reader into believing that we put out Grape-Nuts as a cure for appendicitis.

Mr. Post, himself, has had probably as wide experience as any other man in America in the study and observation of food as related to the digestive organs, and we proved in Court by the physicians and surgeons on the witness stand that the predominant cause of appendicitis is indigestible food, and that it is necessary to quit eating food, and when the body requires food again, use a pre-digested food, or at least one easy of digestion.

Dr. Ochsner in his work on appendicitis refers directly to the use of the well-known pre-digested foods that can be obtained on the market. He also brought out the interesting fact that in "after treatment" it is advantageous to take a pre-digested food.

The price of the package (referred to by the weekly) is not known by us to have any relation to the question.

Our advice to stop using indigestible food in bowel troubles and to use Grape-Nuts food has been a great blessing to tens of thousands of people, and we hope will continue to be a good many more in the succeeding years.

No. 7 is a live wire. It refers to C. W. Post and his studies and experience as "Suggestive Therapeutics" or "Mental Healing" which further lead to a most careful and systematic study of the effect of the mind on the digestive and other organs of the body.

He attended clinics in Europe and fitted himself for a future career in which he has become known as one of the food experts of the world, fitted to judge both from the material as well as the mental side of the question.

For about eight years previous to 1891 he was an invalid. In that year, after being under the care of several well-known physicians, he was quickly healed, by what to him was a curious and not well-understood method. Sufficient to say he became a well man, weighing about 185 pounds.

This experience challenged his investigation into causes of disease and their amelioration. Those studies and experiences developed a very profound reverence for a Supreme Power which directly operates upon the human being, and this reverence for the Infinite became to him a form of religion which included honesty of purpose towards his fellow-man. A statement which will be endorsed by everyone who knows him closely.

He will make a public announcement in detail of these facts, and the Postum Company will cause that statement to be published in newspapers and magazines in due time. We suggest the reader look for it.

Prevarication No. 8. "Post spends nearly a million a year in advertising and relies on that to keep out of the newspapers the dangerous nature of the fraud he is perpetrating on the public."

The Postum Company does pay out upwards of a million a year for trade announcements. Newspaper men believe our statements truthful or they would not print them. Large numbers of newspapers now use our products.

They are capable of telling the public whether or not we "bribe" them.

It may have escaped notice that we did not "bribe" that particular weekly.

No. 9 states that the amount of the verdict will be devoted by the "weekly" to exposing fraud.

This is almost real humor. We have two suits pending against the "weekly," total, $500,000.00. We haven't "devoted" the sum to any particular purpose yet.

Item 10 is a "discovery" that wheat bran is a part of Postum.

But the criticism neglected to mention that for years every Postum package announced in plain type that the outer covering of wheat (bran), made part of the beverage.

They ignorantly fell into a trap here, not knowing enough of food value to know that "Bran-Business" the article used by physicians the world over for "starch indigestion" is made from "wheat bran."

So we use that part of the wheat berry because it contains the element needed to develop the valuable diastase in manufacture. Good Postum is impossible without this part.

These self-appointed critics do make some laughable blunders through ignorance, but—be patient.

Item 11 is an illustration of the squirming and twisting of the sensational writer delivering distorted matter to his readers.

While on the witness stand Mr. Post testified to his studies in Anatomy, Physiology, Dietetics and Psychology—all relating to the preparation and digestion of food. Asked to name authorities studied he mentioned six or eight from memory, and commented on some clinical experience covering several years in annual journeys to Europe.

Now notice the distortion. (Copy from the printed criticism.) "He (Post) pointed out a pile of books in possession of his attorneys as the very ones he had read."

(Notice—the very ones he had read, leading the reader to believe that they were the only ones.) "Did you consult the books from these editions?" was asked. "From those and various editions," answered Post.

The attorney "picked up" book after book from the pile and showed the title pages to the jury—all except two had been published since 1905.

This is an example of distortion and false coloring to produce an unfavorable impression.

Physiological Chemistry, by Hammarsten. Biochemic System of Medicine, by Carey.

The "Weekly" carefully eliminates from its printed account testimony regarding the years of research and study by Mr. Post in fitting himself for his work, and would lead the reader of the distorted article to believe that his education began since 1905.

Distortion No. 12 reports Mr. Post as a "dodging witness."

His eye is not of the shifty kind observed in the head of one of his chief critics. On the witness stand Mr. Post looks quietly but very steadily straight in to the eyes of the haggling, twisting lawyer, trying by all his art to ask double-barreled questions and bull-doze and confuse a witness.

The "dodging" it seems consisted of replying, "I don't know."

Opposing counsel holds a book in his hand while he queries— "I want to know if there is a single thing in your whole book here that suggests any particular kind of food." They followed some discussion between attorneys.

When Mr. Post was allowed to reply, he said, "I don't know until I read the book over to see."

This book, it turns out, was written by Mr. Post seventeen years ago and probably has not been read carefully by him in the last fifteen years. It would require a remarkable memory to instantly say "yes" or "no" as to what a book of 147 pages did or did not contain, without reading it over—but such conservative and well balanced answers are construed by sensation seekers to be "dodging."

The attorney "sought" by every art to impress the jury with the fact that Mr. Post's belief in the power of Mind in relation to the body branded him as unreliable and worse.

The following is quoted from one of the questions:— (The lawyer reading from the book.)

"The writer of these pages desires to say nothing of himself other than a simple instrument through which the Divine Principle chooses to manifest itself by precept and example."

"Skill in mental practice is gained in the same way as skill in any department of science—by observation, study, experience and the ability to evolve correct conclusions."

"Read carefully, thoughtfully no more than twenty pages daily. Afterward seek an easy position where you will not be disturbed. Relax every muscle. Close your eyes, and go into the silence where mind is plastic to the breathings of spirit and where God talks to the Son. The thoughts from Divine Universal Mind come as winged angels and endow you with a healing power. If you go into the silence humble and trusting, you will come out enriched and greatly strengthened in body by contact even for a short time with the Father of all life and all power. You will feel refreshed in every way and food taken will digest readily as the stomach works smoothly when under the influence of a Higher Power."

"I ask you if you did not write that, and if you did not believe it when you wrote it."

For a moment the Court Room was in absolute silence.

Mr. Post slowly leaned forward over the rail, pointed his finger at the Attorney, face to emphasize his reply and with eyes that caused those of the Attorney to drop, he said, "Yes, I am proud to say I did."

It may be remembered that we were first attacked and have since defended ourselves by placing facts before that great jury—The Public.

A good "scrap" is more or less comforting now and then, if you know you are right.

In the case lately tried, an appeal has been taken to the higher courts. We have unbounded faith in the ultimate decision of our American Tribunal.

Our suits against the "weekly" have not yet been tried. They are for about and $500,000.00 is asked as damages, and may the right man win.

After all the smoke of legal battle blows away, the facts will stand out clearly and never be forgotten that Postum, Grape Nuts, and Post Toasties are perfectly pure, have done good honest service to humanity for years, the testimonials are real and truthful and the business conducted on the highest plane of commercial integrity.

"I suffered so long from stomach trouble and indigestion, that I lost flesh rapidly—VINOL cured me after everything else had failed. It strengthened my digestive organs—gave me a hearty appetite, and I can eat anything without the slightest distress. I do not believe anything equals VINOL for stomach trouble and indigestion."

W. E. WATERHOUSE,
Portland, Me.

Mr. Thos. G. Wallace, of Detroit, Mich., writes, "I suffered for years from a chronic stomach trouble. VINOL entirely cured me after everything else had failed."

It is the curative medicinal elements of the cod's liver, combined with the strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in VINOL, which makes it so successful in restoring perfect digestion, and at the same time building up the weakened run-down system.

Try a bottle of VINOL with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Some Facts From Kansas

During the past year forty-eight of the 105 Kansas counties, with a population of 430,274 did not send a single prisoner to the state penitentiary.

Fifty-seven out of the 105 counties had not a single pauper.

Eighty-seven of the 105 counties did not send a single insane patient to an institution.

Kansas' death rate is the lowest in the world, seven and one-half in one thousand persons.

The state still boasts of the lowest percentage of illiteracy.

Kansas bank deposits have increased from $70,000,000 to $190,000,000.

All this has happened under ten years prohibition.

Not being compelled to use their money for taxes to support prisons, poorhouses, and insane asylums, which are largely filled by victims of liquor, the people of Kansas are able to put their money in the banks or to buy automobiles, and to use their taxes in building schoolhouses and improving health conditions.

Prohibition has been a success in Kansas because that state has elected officials who enforce the law.—Omaha News.

The Cost of a Boy.

I read the other day that it cost $5,000 to bring up a city boy and educate him and dress him well. I said to myself: "That is because everything in the city has to be bought, and living is high." But I began to study the thing and I found that even the country boy costs his parents a great deal.

When you count what a boy eats and what he wears, and the school books he has to have, and the doctor's bills that have to be paid when he gets the measles or the scarlet fever, he will cost his folks at home at least $100 a year. If a boy is pretty bad to smash up things, or to kick his shoes right out, he costs more than that. So that when I am 21, and old enough to do for myself, I shall cost father more than $2,000.

Two thousand dollars for a boy! What do you think of that?

These are hard times. When parents have to put $2,000 into a boy, what have they a right to expect from him? Is it fair for him to play truant at school? Is it fair for him to play ball, go in swimming or hang around town all the time when maybe his father's potatoes are not dug nor the wood brought in for mother? Is it fair for him to disappoint them by swearing and drinking? Is it fair to forget his parents and neglect even to write them letters?

Some of our parents have put about all the property they have into us boys and girls. If we make whiskey dealers of ourselves, they will be poor indeed, but if we make good citizens and substantial men, they will feel as if they had good pay for bringing us up.

Boys, what are you worth to your parents?—Old Clipping.

The Sayings of Solomon

Listen, my son, to my precepts and harken unto the voice of wisdom, for I speak with the understanding of one who hath been stung.

If thou valuest thy peace of mind marry not a suffragette, for I say unto you that a man who is joined in wedlock to one of these, his life containeth a minimum of heaven and a maximum of purgatory.

He gaineth much notoriety, yea, he heareth himself talked about on every hand, but his shirt lacketh many a button and his toe protrudeth through a hole in his sock.

Behold she knoweth many ways for saving the country, but her children's faces are encumbered with much soil, and dust reigneth supreme on the what-not in the parlor.

Yea, he is as caught in his own household, for she possesseth so much wisdom and uncanny intuition that he getteth not away with the most plausible fabrication.

She listeneth not with bated breath when he speaketh, neither quoteth she his sayings to her friends, and if he attempts to assert himself she pooh-pooheth him into the corner.

Many a man has married one of these and sayeth to himself, "Now have I taken unto myself a wife who can talk intelligently upon many subjects," but when the honeymoon hath waned he mourns because she lacketh not good coffee.

For I say unto you, my son, that a well cooked meal, and frivolous babblings are better than an underdone roast and brainy arguments on the tariff bill.

If horses, like automobile radiators, had to be thawed out, perhaps more drivers would be careful to throw blankets over them on cold days.

Ask Your Neighbors

So many people scattered all over the American Continent have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Family Medicines that there's scarcely a hamlet where some of these grateful people are not to be easily found—ever ready to say a good word for the medicines which cured them and which very likely may cure you, if similarly afflicted. Look them up. They are walking advertisements for Dr. Pierce's medicines—ever ready to pass the good news along that these medicines cure when many others fail. Little advertised NOW, because their record of 40 years of cures makes great displays of their merits unnecessary. The great American people, pretty generally know of their unequalled record.

Resolutions of North Star Tent K. O. T. M. M.

Whereas: It has pleased the Almighty to remove from our Tent our Brother, Sir Knight Alfred Westgate, a charter member of North Star Tent No. 130, first chaplain and an active member of our Tent until his removal from this community. He was one of the oldest citizens of our city and at one time a member of the Common Council. Therefore be it Resolved: That we drape the charter of our Tent which our departed Brother lived up to and served so faithfully that we keep it draped for thirty days. Be it further,

Resolved: That this Tent does deeply and sincerely sympathize with the son and brother of our deceased Brother and that we shall ever endeavor to keep fresh in our minds that portion of our obligation which binds us to protect and care for the widows and orphans. Be it further

Resolved: That these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Tent and also a copy of the same be sent to the son and brother of the deceased.

Nervous Prostration For Three Years

"Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine cured me of a period of nervous prostration of over three years duration, and the Anti-Pain Pills are as necessary to us as the roof of our house. They have been household remedies with us for many years."
WM. J. LOUGHRAN,
1214 Catherine St.,
Philadelphia, Penna.

Much sickness is due to nervous troubles. Headache, dizziness, epilepsy and insanity are nervous troubles. Then there is a large class of disorders which arise from a weakness of the nerves of an organ or part, as weak lungs, heart, stomach, kidney, bladder, eyes, etc. Dyspepsia and indigestion are usually the result of nervous disorders.

Restorative Nervine soothes the irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force.
Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your druggist will return your money.

One Magazine and One Newspaper are indispensable to every person of intelligence.

The "one magazine" is CURRENT LITERATURE, because it alone sweeps the whole field of human thought and action in both hemispheres.

It contains a monthly review of the world's news; quotations from and comments on the press of the world; numerous graphic cartoons and other illustrations; photographs and biographic sketches of the conspicuous personalities of the month; the most recent advances in science and discovery; the noteworthy events in religion, literature and art; critical reviews of the best fiction, dramatic and musical works; a page of the best humor and a condensation of the leading play of the month.

It gathers impartially from every field of human thought and activity those facts which are best worth knowing and gives the reader a clear, well defined and illuminating view of what the whole world is doing.

Current Literature for one year for $3.00. The Charlevoix County Herald for one year for $1.00. Both for $3.00.

Some crank has estimated that over $40,000,000 was spent for toys this Christmas, and if you will ask the children you will find it was worth it.
