No. 12

Commission Busy

Charter Commission Preparing Commission Form of Government.

The charter commission is devoting a large amount of time to research, investigation and examination for the proposed new Charter for the city of East Jordan. The powers of government, legislative or otherwise, will be conferred through a commission form of government. There are some knotty problems arising at every meeting, but the commission is working with earnestness and determination to bring out the very best for the new charter that can be found practical for a city like ours.

One of the best points of the commission form of government is going to be putting the responsibility directly on those who are charged with the duties or work of running the different divisions of the city. People will know all the time just exactly what is being done. They will know just exactly who to go to if something is wrong or if they want something done instead of having to run from a boss to a superintendent and from the superintendent to a committee and from a committee to a councilman or mayor to get some little thing done.

The commission has now had six or seven sessions in the council room over the post office and the meetings are all open to the public and are most interesting. It would seem as though people would interest themselves to a large degree as they are so vitally affected in this proposed new form of government.

E. Cross is chairman of the commission and the other members are W. P. Porter, W. A. Loveday, Carl Stroebel, Geo. G. Glenn, James Majpass, W. E. Squier, Atty. D. H. Fitz and Atty. F. E. Boosinger. You can find out from any of these gentlemen when the meetings will be held, and they will be very glad indeed to have you attend any of the meetings and offer any suggestions along the line of this new charter.

WHEN I COME HOME NOW

George Harrison of the Village of Athens Makes an interesting Statement.

The following letter written by a resident of Athens to the manager of the local option organization of Calhoun county fully explains itself. Thorough inquiry made at Athens made it quite plain that the letter stated facts. The Athens man had used no imagination but his truthful statements formed one of the most effective and persuasive arguments in behalf of local option that has ever been presented to the people of any county of Michigan.

Athens, Mich., March 15, 1911
Mr. L. E. Stewart, Dear Sir:—

Thirty years a drunkard—what has local option done at Athens?

It has taken the liquor from under my nose, and I have not touched a drop since it has gone. I used to spend $5 a week on an average. It has been 98 weeks. At $5 a week, it amounts to $490.

Now this has gone in the channels of decent trade. It has bought clothes and shoes and food and smiles and happiness.

When I come home now to my little family I do not find them peeping out at the widow or around the corner of the house. They come to me with outstretched hands.

This is not one lone case. There are lots of them and if anyone thinks I want the saloons back, they can find my wish in the ballot box.

GEORGE E. HARRISON,
Athens, Mich.

You can show this to every person in the state, or you can publish it, or throw it in the wastebasket.

The Lambert 1911 Model

W. F. Empey wishes to say to the public that he is agent for the Lambert Auto. His car goes out regardless of roads or conditions and never finds a hand too deep or hills so steep that it cannot take you to your journey's end and bring you home without a tow.

A demonstrating car is here on display. If you anticipate getting a car be sure you see the Lambert before deciding.

INSTITUTE TRAIN STARTS JOURNEY

Will be Near Here Next Wednesday.

E. J. & S. R. R. Will Run Free Train to Bellaire.

For the benefit of the farmers hereabouts the East-Jordan & Southern R. R. management will donate the use of their train free of charge to all those who wish to go to Bellaire on Wednesday next. Take the morning train, attend the Institute and return in the afternoon.

Farmers living along one thousand miles of Michigan railroads will have opportunity to secure scientific agricultural research and experiment results at first hand as the result of the annual Farmers' Institute train sojourning through the various agricultural districts. The itinerary began Monday and covers more miles and lasts longer than any other institute train ever run by the college. Prof. L. R. Taft, superintendent of farmers' institutes in Michigan, is in personal charge of the "school on wheels," and many members of the college instructional staff accompany the train to give short lectures upon various phases of the work.

This year, Superintendent Taft has arranged to have the train run a week earlier than ever before. His reason in doing this is to give all farmers an opportunity to attend the train's arrival at each town and not let any early spring activities detain the farmers from the splendid opportunities offered. It is conservatively estimated that nearly 14,000 farmers will receive the benefits offered by the train on its long trip.

The train consists of four baggage cars and nearly as many coaches. Exhibits of spraying apparatus, various breeds of poultry, and exhibits of alfalfa, corn, grain, forage crops, specimens of hog cholera, tuberculosis and various cultures occupy most of the space in the baggage cars, while the coaches are utilized as lecture rooms by agricultural experts.

Stops of an hour's duration are made at the places named. Opportunity is first given to hear the addresses, after which there will be time to examine the exhibits. All farmers are requested to bring samples of milk for testing and plant diseases for naming and the giving of remedies. Anyone who suspects that the San Jose scale exists in his orchard is requested to bring samples of infected bark to the experts.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29th.
At Bellaire - - 11:00 a. m.
At Central Lake - 1:00 p. m.
At Ellsworth - - 2:30 p. m.
At Charlevoix - - 4:00 p. m.

Dairying in Western Michigan

There is no better indication that Western Michigan is enjoying a healthy development than reports that constantly come to hand regarding the establishment of new creameries and cheese factories. Hardly a week passes but one or more plants are established, or one or more factories that have been dormant are revived. The last time a count was made there were 72 creameries in the Western Michigan territory and seven cheese factories. By the time the next count is made there will probably be an even one hundred factories for the making of butter.

The dairy industry is one that logically goes with fruit raising. When the two supplement each other, the maximum of returns is obtained. Persons desiring to get literature regarding the dairying industry can secure the same from the Western Michigan Development Bureau at Traverse City, Michigan, for the asking.

Primary Today

South Arm Republicans to Nominate Officers.

The annual South Arm Republican Caucus to place in nomination township officers will be held at the Town Hall this Saturday afternoon, March 25th, from 2:00 to 7:00 p. m. A heavy vote will probably be cast as there are to be friendly contests for several of the offices. A full list of the candidates appear on fourth page of this issue.

Among those whom we believe should be returned to office is Supervisor visior Jacob H. Graff. He has served our township ably for the past six years and even his few political enemies must admit that he is one of the best representatives at the County meetings of Supervisors. Mr. Graff has always been a staunch republican and this alone insures his re-nomination and election.

Whether or not East Jordan becomes a city, the supervisor elected April 3rd will spread the assessment and represent this township in the Board meetings.

Home Missionary Work

During the past week the illustrated lecture "Developing Western Michigan" has been given at Howard City, Mecosta County, and Evart, Osceola County. In both cases the secretary of the Western Michigan Development Bureau, Mr. John I. Gibson, was received by large crowds, the people of which were anxious to learn of the resources of this wonderfully fertile territory. The lecture was given twice in a single day at Howard City and it was the prelude to a Board of Trade banquet at Evart. This lecture will be one of the features at the big Ganger Round-Up to be held in Shelby, Oceana County, about the middle of April. During the second week in March the lecture was given at five Mason County points as follows: Ludington, Scottville, Custer, Fountain, and Friesland.

THE LOBSTER'S POPULARITY.

During the year just past the fishermen of Maine caught and marketed 19,936,542 lobsters, an excess of 2,000,000 over the catch of the preceding year and of 8,000,000 over that of the year 1905.

Uncle Sam closed the fiscal year with a handsome surplus instead of the deficit that had marked some preceding periods. And the second half of 1910, which was the first half of the new fiscal year, has shown a big reduction in the shortage that is always expected as a result of large expenditure during such months.

Candy Girl

Young Woman Made Her Way by Selling Fudge

By MAUDE E. BERNARD

NOT so very long ago a young girl in the northern part of New York state decided to go to college, but when ways and means were discussed it was found that she would have to supplement in some way the limited amount the family could afford to give her.

During the first few weeks she discovered that the college girls' fondness for candy was no fable and she made some fudge and other candies from her own recipes, which had in her home town been considered superior to anything that could be bought, and offered the candy for sale among the girls.

It met with instant success, and she made more, which she disposed of with such rapidity that in a short time the demand had grown among the girls in the college and their friends to such an extent that she found it necessary to open a place of business outside the college.

Still she had her way to pay through college and could not take large financial risks, so she rented a space under the stairs in one of the busiest business buildings and used a kitchen table for a counter. In this she displayed her various goods done up in attractive boxes with each box labeled with the contents and weight and price.

She lacked a card up, saying, "Make your purchase and leave the money," and she declares she never lost a cent or a piece of candy. Today this same girl has a chain of candy shops throughout the country and she is fully convinced that the secret of her success is the faith she had in the old college days with the little stand under the stairs.

Shoes Afford Hiding Place for Germs

By ROSCOE WILTON

The elusive germ discovered in everything conceivable has been caught hiding in another stronghold by British scientists recently and the humble instrument of his propagation proves to be nothing more than an old shoe.

The shoe dealer and the cobbler are to be subjected to medical inspection if the health officers of Manchester carry out their threats because, they declare, millions of germs are conveyed from one person to another by the common practice of trying on shoes and also by the transfer of germs from one shoe to another while in the cobbler's hands.

The germ hunter is ever active and it seems to the man who is in love with the good old times when we all drank out of the same rusty tin cup at the spring, that we are not going to be permitted to breathe in the same room with another after a time, but will each wear our own little breath purifier.

And yet the precautions which we take and which our fathers never heard of are doubtless the only reason why we can live in our congested overpopulated quarters and contrive to keep alive at all—so look out for your shoes.

Lighten the Burdens of Heavy Laden

Hats and Coiffures

IT IS to be the small hats for early spring, made of exquisite, lustrous, light braids, that is light in weight. And these little hats are soft, many of them made without a wire frame, so that they sit carelessly upon the hair and conform themselves to the shape of the head.

These small hats worn over a coiffure from which a few stray tufts and bobbing curls contrive to stray out, and covered with a fine floating veil of lace, are simply entrancing. These veils come in a variety of fancy weaves. Nothing is prettier than a Brussels net with a little dot or figure over the surface and a lace pattern in the border.

Two good models in small hats are shown here. In Fig. 1 the round, cap-like turban is made of silk braid in bright champagne color, the brim and crown are both made of the braid, sewed and afterward draped on the fine light frame. These hats are not for the amateur millinery, because they require a knowledge of the art of draping. The rosette and petals are made of brown velvet and gold cord. It is a beautiful color combination, and suited to almost any color in the costume.

The second hat is of an elegant braid in black and white. It is trimmed with a double collar of velvet and kid, and finished with velvet covered buttons. It is a cool and crisp combination of black and white which we can never hope to excel in elegance. Imagine these hats on a head with the hair drawn back and not appearing about the face and neck! The pretty face and the pretty hats would both be spoiled. The importance of the coiffure with the small hat increases. They are both well worth while.

NIGHTDRESS IN ONE PIECE WILL PLEASE THE INVALID

Pattern Simple in Construction and Garment Most Comfortable to Wear.

Anyone who wants to make a night-dress with little trouble should use this pattern, as it is very simple in construction and comfortable to wear; the sleeves are cut in with the body part, an opening being made down the left side; the neck is cut square and trimmed with two rows of insertion m-

Pretty and Useful Trifles That Will Lighten the Tedium of the Sick Room.

Among the appropriate things for the invalid are flower holders. These can be fastened to the foot of the bed, and are large enough to hold three or four carnations or roses, generally all that are to be allowed in the sick room. Another acceptable gift is a dainty piece of china—a flower bordered plate, a gruel bowl of eggshell thinness, or a fragile cup and saucer of delicate design. Never mind if these things are likely to break with their first tumble; because of their beauty, they will give enough pleasure, perhaps real benefit, to make their possible short existence well worth while. A lightweight leather writing case, provided with a screw-top bottle of ink, compartments for paper, envelopes, stamps, and pen and pencil, gives the invalid who is strong enough to write a certain feeling of independence. Some of these cases have keys which add to their usefulness. A pint or half pint vacuum bottle, for keeping liquids warm or cold, is another comfort-giving gift for the invalid and a time-saving gift for the nurse or caretaker.

tered at the corners, but the pattern is cut quite up to the neck, so that one row of trimming only need be used.

The sleeves are gathered into insertion-trimmed bands, and are finished with lace. Materials required: Four-yards 36 inches wide.

Two Little Hints.

Do not throw away boot polish when it has become hard through the lid being left off, but place it on top of a warm oven until it softens. I have tried it and found it worth the trouble.

To open a tin of black lead, pull away the paper and put it in front of the fire—on the fender will do. It will open quite readily and better than knocking the tin with a knife.

Care of Silk Gloves.

In trying on silk gloves cover the hands well with talcum and you will not tear the gloves. If a seam rips, do not whip it over and over. Turn the glove, catch one side of the torn part and then the opposite, going back and forth, and the work will not be done in a similar manner.

SCARF OF SHETLAND WOOL

One of the Prettiest and Most Comfortable of the Season's Head Coverings.

Something more than a coat is required by the girl going forth in the evening to some gala function or other. She needs a head muffing, a throat protector of some sort, and is very well protected if she has velvet or silk overboots and long wool mittens for the thin gloves. These things make her comfortable, and if they are selected they need not be clumsy or unbecoming. One of the cheapest and most rewarding head muffings of the season is a Shetland wool scarf or auto veil, for these pretty things can be worn over the face. These filmy scarfs come in all colors and pure white, as well as in white with gay Scotch borders. For a dark girl who is going to have a bit of vivid color in her party get-up the Scotch-border scarfs are superb. They have a look of Mexican splendor and cost exactly one dollar and ten cents each!

Novelties.

Nets are gaining in favor as a foundation for chiffon corsages, producing a much softer effect than silk. Large velvet bags with the personal touch of an embroidered monogram in one corner are much favored. Among scarfs the newest material is fine silk tulle, like glove silk. These come in all the fashionable shades. Many of the sleeves in the new evening gowns are slashed, with any other material appearing underneath.

Beat the light from your old kerosene (coal oil) lamps and burners that from their fumes, and the smoke they give off, cause the eyes to become sore and the head to ache. CHILDREN AFFECTED By Mother's Food and Drink.

Many babies have been launched into life with constitutions weakened by disease taken in with their mothers' milk. Mothers cannot be too careful as to the food they use while nursing their babes.

The experience of a Kansas City mother is a case in point:

"I was a great coffee drinker from a child, and thought I could not do without it. But I found at last it was doing me harm. For years I had been troubled with dizziness, spots before my eyes and pain in my heart, to which was added, two years later, a chronic sour stomach.

"The baby was born 7 months ago, and almost from the beginning, it suffered from sour stomach. She was taking it from me!

"In my distress I consulted a friend of more experience and she told me to quit coffee, that coffee did not make good milk. I have since ascertained that it really dries up the milk.

"So, I quit coffee and tried tea and at last cocoa. But they did not agree with me. Then I turned to Postum with the happiest results. It proved to be the very thing I needed. It not only agreed perfectly with baby and myself, but it increased the flow of my milk.

"My husband then quit coffee and used Postum and quickly got well of the dyspepsia with which he had been troubled. I no longer suffer from the dizziness, blind spells, pain in my heart or sour stomach.

"Now we all drink Postum from my husband to my seven months' old baby. It has proved to be the best hot drink we have ever used. We would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever drank." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

The Third Degree

A NARRATIVE OF METROPOLITAN LIFE

By CHARLES KLEIN AND ARTHUR HORNBLow
ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

SYNOPSIS.

Howard Jeffries, banker's son, under the evil influence of Robert Underwood, fellow student at Yale, leads a life of dissipation, marries the daughter of a gambler who died in prison, and is disowned by his father. He tries to get work and fails.

CHAPTER I.—Continued.

"I wish I could help you, old man. As it is, my own salary barely serves to keep me in neckwear. Wall street's great fun, but it doesn't pay much, that is, not unless you play the game yourself."

Howard smiled feebly as he replied: "Nonsense—I wouldn't accept help of that sort. I'm not reduced to soliciting charity yet. I guess I'd prefer the river to that. But if you hear of anything, keep me in mind."

The athlete made no response. He was apparently lost in thought when suddenly he blurted out:

"Say, Jeffries, you haven't got any money, have you—say, a couple of thousand dollars?"

Howard stared at the questioner as if he doubted his sanity.

"Two thousand dollars?" he gasped. "Do you suppose that I'd be wearing out shoe leather looking for a job, if I had $2,000?"

Coxe looked disappointed as he replied: "Oh, of course, I understand you haven't it on you, only I thought you might be able to raise it."

"Why do you ask?" inquired Howard, his curiosity aroused.

Coxe looked around to see if any one was listening. Then in a whisper he said:

"It's a cinch. If you had $2,000, you and I could make a snug little fortune. Don't you understand? In my office I get tips. I'm on the inside. I know in advance what the big men are going to do. When they start to move a certain stock up, I'm on the job. Understand? If you had $2,000, I could raise as much, and we'd pool our capital, starting in the business ourselves—on a small scale, of course. If we hit it right we might make a nice income."

Howard's mouth watered. Certainly that was the kind of life he liked best. The feverish excitement of gambling, the close association with rich men, the promise of a luxurious style of living—all this appealed to him strongly. But what was the use? Where could he get $2,000? His father couldn't go to his father. He shook his head.

"I'm afraid not, old sport," he said as they left the saloon and he held out his hand to say good-by. "But I'll hear it in mind, and if things improve, I'll look you up. So long!"

Grabbing wearily up the dirty stairs of the elevated railroad, he bought a ticket with one of the few nickels remaining in his pocket, and taking a seat in a north-bound train started on his trip back to Harlem.

The day was overcast, rain threatened. A pall of mingled smoke and mist hung over the entire city. From the car window as the train wound its serpentine course in and out the maze of grimy offices, shops and tenements, everything appeared drab, dirty and squalid. New York was seen at its ugliest. Ensnared in a cross-seat, his chin leaning heavily on his hand, Howard gazed dejectedly out of the window. The depressing outlook was in keeping with his own state of mind.

How would the adventure end? Reconciliation with his father was out of the question. Letters sent home remained without response. He wasn't surprised. He knew his father too well to expect that he would relent so soon. Besides, if the old man was so infernally proud, he'd show him he had some pride, too. He'd drown himself before he'd go down on his knees, willing to be forgiven. His father was dead wrong, anyway. His marriage might have been foolish; Annie might be beneath him socially. She was not educated and her father wasn't any better than he ought to be. She did not talk correctly, her manners left much to be desired, at times he was secretly ashamed of her. But her bringing up was her misfortune, not her fault. The girl herself was straight as a die. She had a heart of gold. She was far more intelligent, far more likely to make him a happy home than some stuck-up, idle society girl who had no thought for anything save money, dress and show. Perhaps if he had been less honorable and not married her, his father would have thought more highly of him. If he'd ruined the girl, no doubt he would have been welcomed home with open arms. Pah! He might be a poor, weak fool, but thank God, they couldn't reproach him with that. Annie had been loyal to him throughout. He'd stick to her through thick and thin.

As the train swept round the curve at Fifty-third street and started on its long, straight run up the West side, his mind reverted to Robert Underwood. He had seen his old associate only once since leaving college. He ran across him one day on Fifth ave-

Underwood was coming out of a curio shop. He explained hurriedly that he had left Yale, and when asked about his future plans talked vaguely of going in for art. His manner was frigid and nervous—the attitude of the man who fears he may be approached for a small loan. He was evidently well aware of the change in his old associate's fortunes, and having squeezed all he could out of him, had no further use for him. It was only when he had disappeared that Howard suddenly remembered a loan of $250 which Underwood had never repaid. Some time later Howard learned that he occupied apartments at the exclusive and expensive Astoria, where he was living in great style. He went there determined to see him and demand his money, but the card always came back "not at home."

Underwood had always been a mystery to Howard. He knew him to be an inveterate gambler and a man entirely without principle. No one knew who his family were or where he came from. His source of income, too, was always a puzzle. At college he was always hard up, borrowing right and left and forgetting to pay, yet he always succeeded in living on the fat of the land. His apartments

The train stopped with a jerk at his station and Howard rode down in the elevator to the street. Crossing Eighth avenue, he was going straight home when suddenly he halted. The glitter and tempting array of bottles in a corner saloon window tempted him. He suddenly felt that if there was one thing he needed in the world above all others it was another drink. True, he had had more than enough already. But that was Coxe's fault. He had invited him and made him drink. There couldn't be any harm in taking another. He might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb. By the time he emerged from the saloon his speech was thick and his step uncertain. A few minutes later he was painfully climbing up the rickety stairs of a cheap-looking flat house. As he reached the top floor a cheerful voice called out:

"Is that you, Howard, dear?"

CHAPTER II.

A young woman hurried out of one of the apartments to greet Howard. She was a vivacious brunette of medium height, intelligent looking, with good features and fine teeth. It was not a doll face, but the face of a woman who had experienced early the hard knocks of the world, yet in whom adversity had not succeeded in wholly subduing a naturally buoyant, amiable disposition. There was determination in the lines above her mouth. It was a face full of character, the face of a woman who by sheer dint of dogged perseverance might accomplish any task she cared to set herself. A smile of welcome gleamed in her eyes as she inquired eagerly:

"Well, dear, anything doing?"

Howard shook his head for all response and a look of disappointment crossed the young wife's face.

"Say, that's tough, ain't it?" she exclaimed. "The janitor was here again for the rent. He says they'll serve us with a dispossession. I told him to chase himself, I was that mad."

Annie's vocabulary was emphatic, rather than choice. Entirely without education, she made no pretense at being what she was not and therein perhaps lay her chief charm. As Howard stooped to kiss her, she said reproachfully:

"You've been drinking again, Howard. You promised me you wouldn't."

The young man made no reply. With an impatient gesture he passed on into the flat and flung himself down in a chair in the dining room. From the adjoining kitchen came a welcome odor of cooking.

"Dinner ready?" he demanded. "I'm devilish hungry."

"Yes, dear, just a minute," replied his wife from the kitchen. "There's some nice Irish stew, just what you like."

Howard sat, awaiting his meal was the largest room in a flat which boasted of "five and bath." There was a bedroom of equally diminutive proportions and a parlor with wall paper so loud that it talked. There was scarcely enough room to swing a cat around. The thin walls were cracked, the rooms were carpetless. Yet it showed the care of a good housekeeper. Floors and windows were clean, the cover on the table spotless. The furnishings were as meager as they were ingenious. With their slender purse they had been able to purchase only the bare necessities—a bed, a chair or two, a dining room table, a few kitchen utensils. When they wanted to sit in the parlor they had to carry a chair from the dining room; when meal times came the chairs had to travel back again. A soap box turned upside down and neatly covered with chintz did duty as a dresser in the bedroom, and with a few photographs and tacks they had managed to impart an aesthetic appearance to the parlor. This place cost the huge sum of $25 a month. It might just as well have cost $100 for all Howard's ability to pay it. The past month's rent was long overdue and the janitor looked more insolent every day. But they did not care. They were young and life was still before them.

Presently Annie came in carrying a steaming dish of stew, which she laid on the table. As she helped Howard to a plate full she said: "So you had no luck again this morning?"

Howard was too busy eating to answer. As he gulped down a huge piece of bread, he growled:

"Nothing, as usual—same old story, nothing doing."

Annie sighed. She had been given this answer so often that it would have surprised her to hear anything else. It meant that their hard hand-to-mouth struggle must go on. She said nothing. What was the use? It would never do to discourage Howard. She tried to make light of it.

"Of course it isn't easy, I quite understand that. Never mind, dear. Something will turn up soon. Where did you go? Whom did you see? Why didn't you let drink alone when you promised me you would?"

"That was Coxe's fault," blurted out Howard, always ready to blame others for his own shortcomings. "You remember Coxe? He was at Yale when I was. A big, fat fellow with blue eyes. He pulled stroke in the 'varsity boat race, you remember?"

"I think I do," replied his wife, indifferently, as she helped him to more stew. "What did he want? What's he doing in New York?"

"He's got a fine place in a broker's office in Wall street. I felt ashamed to let him see me low down like this. He said that I could make a good deal of money if only I had a little capital. He knows everything going on in Wall street. If I went in with him I'd be on 'Easy street.'"

"How much would it require?"

"Two thousand dollars."

The young wife gave a sigh as she answered:

"I'm afraid that's a day dream. Only your father could give you such an amount and you wouldn't go to him, would you?"

"Not if we hadn't another crust in the house," snapped Howard savagely. "You don't want me to, do you?" he asked looking up at her quickly.

"No, dear," she answered calmly. "I have certainly no wish that you should humble yourself. At the same time I am not selfish enough to want to stand in the way of your future. Your father and stepmother hate me, I know that. I am the cause of your separation from your folks. No doubt your father would be very willing to help you if you would consent to leave me."

him what he chose. He wondered why he had not tried to resist. The truth was Underwood exercised a strange, subtle power over him. He had the power to make him do everything he wanted him to do, no matter how foolish or unreasonable the request. Every one at college used to talk about it. One night Underwood invited all his classmates to his rooms and made him cut up all kinds of capers. He at first refused, point blank—but Underwood got up and, standing directly in front of him, gazed steadily into his eyes. Again he commanded him to do these ridiculous, degrading things. Howard felt himself weakening. He was suddenly seized with the feeling that he must obey. Amid roars of laughter he recited the entire alphabet standing on one leg, he crowed like a rooster, he hopped like a toad, and he crawled abjectly on his belly, like a snake. One of the fellows told him afterward that he had been hypnotized. He had laughed at it then as a good joke, but now he came to think of it, perhaps it was true. Possibly he was a subject. Anyway he was glad to be rid of Underwood and his uncanny influence.

The box-like hole where Howard sat, awaiting his meal was the largest room in a flat which boasted of "five and bath." There was a bedroom of equally diminutive proportions and a parlor with wall paper so loud that it talked. There was scarcely enough room to swing a cat around. Howard laughed as he replied:

"Well, if that's the price for the $2,000 I guess I'll go without it. I wouldn't give you up for a million times $2,000!"

Annie stretched her hand across the table.

"Really?" she said.

Engineering in Hospitals.

Practically all the important infirmaries and hospitals in England have their own electric generating stations, and the size of the installations would surprise the majority of engineers. The equipment has to be designed with unusual care, owing to the special conditions which prevail in hospital work. Even where a public supply is available, the use of an independent system is justified on account of the security which it gives against failure of current at a critical moment. The installations are used for lighting, heating, ventilating, telephoning and other purposes, and many hospitals have laundries operated electrically. One county asylum has its own private electric railway for conveying supplies from the nearest railway station.

The Duration of Dreams.

Something regarding the duration of dreams can be gathered from this experience of a man who, on sitting down for a dental operation, took gas and dreamed. He saw himself finish his work, go to the club, leave for the station, run for the train and miss it. He returned to his club and reclined on a settee in the library. There he passed a miserable, restless night, getting gradually colder and colder as the fire died down, and with a pain gradually growing about his head, and face from the hardness of his couch. Five o'clock in the morning came, and the steward roused him to say that the club must now be closed. The sleeper got up feeling very stiff—to find that the steward was his dentist, and that the night's adventures had lasted exactly 42 seconds.

This Home-Made Cough Syrup Will Surprise You

Stops Even Whooping Cough Quickly. A Family Supply at Small Cost.

Here is a home-made remedy that takes hold of a cough instantly and will usually cure the most stubborn case in 24 hours. This recipe makes a pint—enough for a whole family. You couldn't buy as much or as good, ready-made cough syrup for $2.50.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. This keeps perfectly and has a pleasant taste—children like it. Brings up the appetite and is slightly laxative, which helps end a cough.

You probably know the medical value of pine in treating asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, sore lungs, etc. There is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in gualic acid and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

The prompt results from this inexpensive remedy have made friends for it in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada, which explains why the plan has been imitated often, but never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not send to The Pinex Co., 221 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Farmer's Rather Humorous Explanation for Telling Exceedingly "Tall" Story.

Irving Batcheller once told a story of a farmer on the Connecticut hills. "Pretty steep land for planting, isn't it?" a visitor asked the tiller of the soil.

"Pretty steep," the farmer assented. "I suppose it's quite difficult to plant your corn?"

"Quite difficult," came the echo. The visitor was interested, and would not be put off with short replies.

"Eh—how do you manage to plant on this hill?" he persisted. The farmer gazed at him pityingly. "We have to shoot it all into the earth with shotguns, stranger," he assured his guest.

The visitor gasped. "Really?" he ejaculated. "Really now? Is that actually true?"

The farmer sighed and turned upon his guest a look of withering scorn. "No, that isn't true," he answered. "I'm trying to make conversation."

A WOMAN'S KIDNEYS Are Often Responsible for Urinary Suffering.

Mrs. August Wittenberg, 1032 Hopkins St., Milwaukee, Wis., says: "Kidney trouble came on me almost before I was aware of it. There was a constant inclination for the kidneys to act and the secretions were accompanied by burning and scalding. The headaches and giddy feelings that oppressed me were almost unbearable and life soon lost all interest. Doan's Kidney Pills came to my attention at that critical time and I used them faithfully until entirely cured."

The Subtlety of Him.

"John, dear," said Mabel, as her lord and master entered the house, "I've just had a letter from mother, and she is coming to visit us. It is a pretty expensive trip for little Muddy, and I wondered if we couldn't help her out a little."

"Of course we can," said John, giving his wife a generous kiss. "Just you write and tell her that I'll be only too glad to pay for her railroad ticket back home again as soon as she decides to go."—Harper's Weekly.

Critics.

"Only competent critics can give competent criticisms," said Admiral Mahan, at the Immortals' recent reception in New York. "The ignobler the critic the ignobler the criticism—even of the very finest things—that he will pronounce."

"A man in a bar was praising a famous American journalist, a justly famous journalist, a journalist who gets out a really fine paper."

"Yes," the bartender agreed, "his paper is a good one. It picked two winners last week."

True Humility.

"I suppose you are tempted to put on airs since you own a motor car."

"I should say not," replied Mr. Chuggins. "A man with a motor car puts in most of his life apologizing."

If a man's wife can read about politics without wishing she were a man, he will never experience the pleasure of being henpecked.

Proposed Amendment To Constitution.

L. L. Right, Superintendent of Public Instruction, is an interview with press correspondents today in relation to the proposed amendment to the constitution relating to the distribution of primary money, says:
"I urge the adoption of the proposed amendment because under the present system of distribution a large number of school districts receive more primary money than they use. The teachers wages in the state approximate $9,000,000 annually. The amount of primary money distributed annually approximate $8,000,000. There are approximately one thousand and districts in the state which now have on hand enough money or more than enough to pay the teachers wages and all tuition charges for a period of two years in advance. The census enrollment in the districts approximate 65,000. If this amendment shall be adopted, when we come to distribute the primary money we shall not count these 65,000 pupils in making up the apportionment. Heretofore, in making the apportionment we have divided approximately $8,000,000 by approximately 750,000. If this amendment prevails, we shall divide the $8,000,000 by 601,000. This will make the per capita apportionment larger by about eight per cent. No primary money will go to those districts which have on hand enough money to pay their expenses for two years or more until their surplus is reduced to a point sufficient for a two-year supply. They will then again participate. All the money will be distributed to the districts which have not a two-year supply on hand. This will insure the active use and expenditure of all the primary money distributed."

SUDDEN DEATH

Howard Pinney Succumbs to Pneumonia Within Week.

The Grim Reaper entered our midst early Friday morning and removed from his suffering Howard Pinney. He had been ailing for some time but not until last week Thursday did he find it necessary to consult a physician when it was found that he was suffering from pneumonia in an advanced stage and with little hopes of recovery. A trained nurse was summoned and all that loving hands could do to aid him in recovering was done. He passed away at 1:30 a. m., Friday.
Howard Curtis Pinney was born in forty-two New York State, years ago. Some 15 years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Ida Smith of Jordan township. Three children were born of the union, who, together with the bereaved wife, survive. The children are Erma aged eight years, Clayton, and Glenn, the latter aged two years. Deceased was son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Pinney of this place and he also leaves three brothers and a sister, Herman, Atkinson and Hubert, and Miss Mabel L. He was a member of the local lodge of Woodmen.

The CHILDREN of our LEADING OFFICIALS

By WALDON FAWCETT

THE past decade has witnessed a most decided change in what might be termed the status of children as a class in the higher official circles of the nation. Time was, and not so many years ago, either, when there were comparatively few children of an age that entitled them to be classed as young people in the households of Uncle Sam's best-paid servants. If there were junior members of such households, they were for the most part grandchildren or cousins or nephews and nieces. The result of this state of affairs was that the juveniles, neither collectively nor individually, were much of a factor in the social activities of officialdom, and very few of the entertainments in this sphere were planned especially for the benefit of the younger contingent of the community.

But, as has been said, the past half score of years has seen a gradual change of conditions that has made the juveniles and the unmarried young men and young women an element to be reckoned with. The explanation of the new state of affairs is to be found, of course, in the capture by younger men of a large proportion of the most exalted positions in the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government. No longer need a public man be a grandfather ere he is deemed to have arrived at the years of discretion necessary to warrant the nation in entrusting its most momentous affairs to him. Something of this same leaning in favor of younger men has even been manifested on the part of many of the leading foreign governments, that send envoys to act as accredited resident representatives at Washington.

The natural sequel of this invasion of young blood in our governing circles is that the elders have been indulging in forms of entertainment less staid and solemn than those of some years back—why, President Taft himself delights to trip the light fantastic toe—and the juniors of officialdom have had all sorts of parties planned with especial reference to their well-known propensities. The White House furnishes an apt criterion as to the revolution in sentiment that has taken place. Prior to the Roosevelt administration there had been in many years only a few periods when there were present in the executive mansion children of age to influence the social calendar. Indeed the children of the Grant and Hayes families were about the only youngsters to live up the old mansion since the days of the Civil war.

MEXICAN AMBASSADORS AND SONS

households of the members of the "little cabinet," as the assistant secretaries of the departments, the assistant postmaster general, etc., are dubbed, there are a number of young folks. Secretary to the President Norton, who might be placed in this category, if, indeed, he is not entitled to rank as the equal of the cabinet members themselves, his children of the interesting age, and so have Assistant Postmaster General Stewart and other of the proxies of the cabinet members. Children have even invaded the conservative supreme court circles in formidable numbers. Time was when the thought of young people in the homes of the aged and dignified members of the nation's highest tribunal seemed almost incongruous, but as in other spheres of governmental activity this is an age of younger men on the supreme court bench, and this has created a supreme court community with a number of junior members. Mr. Justice Hughes, who came so near to winning the coveted appointment of chief justice, has perhaps the most interesting family, consisting of three daughters and one son, but Mr. Justice Day has several sons who yet rank as young men, though they have left the paternal roof, and there are grandchildren in several of the supreme court households who have all the privileges claimed by closer kin.

Probably the most interesting family in that section of officialdom made up of the households of the members of the United States senate is that of Senator La Follette, the insurgent leader. There are two manly sons and two very beautiful daughters, the oldest of whom has already demonstrated her inheritance of her father's marked histrionic ability. Senator La Follette is the chum and companion of his children to a degree that is almost ideal. Senators Smoot, Dick and Tillman are other wearers of the toga whose children have become fairly well known to newspaper readers through the publication of characteristic anecdotes, and there are a number of other members of the upper house of congress who are kept youthful by their energetic offspring.

Among the families of the members of the house of representatives children are so numerous as to render it impracticable to attempt a detailed roster. The recent elections which turned the control of the house over to the Democrats will likely serve to bring a couple of children into the limelight—the son and daughter of Champ Clark of Missouri who is the fortunate man who has been selected to succeed "Uncle Joe" Cannon as speaker. Speaker Cannon has no young children of his own, but he has had with him in his Washington home much of the time the two sweet-mannered daughters of a married daughter, and since the veteran legislator makes his home in summer with this daughter at Danville, Ill., he has enjoyed the companionship of these girls as continuously as he could expect to enjoy the society of young children of his own.

DAUGHTERS OF CHAMP CLARK

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE AND HIS CHILDREN

SENATOR HARRISON AND HIS CHILDREN

Gen. Leonard Wood, the new head of the United States army, furnishes another example of a man attaining an exalted post at an unusually early age. He and Mrs. Wood have three children. The sons, Leonard, Jr., and Osborn, are of about the age to enter college, but the dainty daughter of the family, named for her mother, Louise Condit-Smith Wood, is but ten years of age. Some of the children of public men in whom the people of the nation take the greatest interest are the little sons of daughters of former national officials now deceased. Prominent in this category is Miss Elizabeth Harrison, only child of the late ex-president by his second marriage and the youngest living daughter of an American president. Other fatherless young folks for whom the people at large feel a warm regard are the children of the late Grover Cleveland and the children of the late United States Senator Doolittle of Iowa, perhaps the ablest of all the leaders of the "Progressives" in congress.

In our "official foreign colony," made up of the families of the men of different nationalities who are sent by their respective governments to act as diplomatic representatives in the United States, there are many children. Moreover, inasmuch as the foreign envoys have in many instances married American wives, it naturally follows that the children of such unions are half American. This is true of the children of the minister of Belgium and Countess de Huisseret and Countess Louise Alexandra von Bernstorff, only daughter of the German ambassador and his Yankee consort. And, by the way, it is of interest in this connection that the young countess is to be married this coming spring to one of her father's secretaries, the Count Pourtales, who also has an American mother.

Baron Hengelmueller, the ambassador of Austria-Hungary, and present dean of the diplomatic corps (although, if he confirms current gossip, he may resign ere this reaches the eyes of our readers), has a very pretty little daughter in her early teens who has spent virtually her entire life in the United States, her father having been stationed here continuously for some 16 years. The minister from Costa Rica and Senora Cervo head another family that has tarried long enough in this republic to feel perfectly at home. Alike to most of the Latin-American households, the Calvo family includes a number of children, and these young people are very talented in music and have formed an orchestra within their family circle.

Senor de la Barra, the Mexican ambassador, whose wife died a little over a year ago, and who is about to marry his sister-in-law, has two handsome boys aged 11 and 13 years, who are being educated in American schools, and the Chinese minister has daughters who are acquiring a Yankee education in the seclusion of their own home by the aid of an American governess. Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, has a pretty daughter, and there is also an attractive daughter of the "bad" age in the household of Marchese Susani Canfalone, the new ambassador of Italy.

THE COURAGE OF LIFE.

The two virtues that help us along most in life are trust and courage. Apart from the tragedies invited by sin and violence and self-indulgence, a large part of our trouble comes from anxiety, distrust, apprehension. It was not all frivolity that dictated the answer of a young girl, who, being urged to prepare herself for a profession or a definite work, responded: "I'm not going to look ahead and worry. I can do a lot of useful things: I can mend, and make salad, and amuse children, and be patient and economical, and help people to enjoy themselves, and I don't believe nice girls starve." Courage and faith are always assets. Even if life goes back upon them and fails to come up to expectations, the practice of these virtues is just that much to the good, and we have at least not lived in the evil moment until it arrived.—Harper's Weekly.

A Frequent Speaker.
A member for a northern constituency, who was one day reproached by a disappointed supporter for never opening his mouth in the house, repudiated the accusation with indignation. Not a day passed, he declared, but that he said something; and it was reported in the papers, too. In confirmation of his statement he produced the report of the last debate, and pointed triumphantly to the "Hear, hears," with which certain speeches were punctuated. "That's me," he said.—Tit-Bits.

"Well?"
"Don't be hasty. Promise to give him $50."

COULD NOT STAND SUFFERING FROM SKIN ERUPTION

"I have been using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for the past three months and I am glad to say that they cured me of a most annoying skin eruption. It began by my noticing red blotches appearing on my face and scalp. Although they were rather disfiguring, I did not think anything of them until they began to get scaly and dry and to itch and burn until I could not stand the suffering. Then I began to use a different soap, thinking that my old kind might be hurting me, but that didn't seem to do any good. I went to two different doctors but neither seemed to relieve me any. I lost many nights' sleep in continual scratching, sometimes scratching till I drew the blood on my face and head." Then I started in to use the Cuticura Remedies and in two months I was entirely relieved of that awful pest. I am so delighted over my cure by Cuticura Remedies that I shall be glad to tell anybody about it." (Signed) G. M. Macfarland, 221 West 115th St., New York City, Oct. 5, 1910.

Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) are sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., sole props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, for free book on skin and scalp diseases and their treatment.

IF YOU HAVE A SICKLY

YOUNGSTER TRY THIS FREE

The family with young children that is without sickness in the house now and then is rare, and so it is important that the head of the home should know what to do in the little emergencies that arise. A child with a serious ailment needs a doctor, it is true, but in the majority of instances, as any doctor knows, the child suffers from some intestinal trouble, usually constipation.

There is no sense in giving it a pill or a remedy containing an opiate, nor is flushing of the bowels to be always recommended. Rather give it a small dose of a mild, gentle laxative tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, by cleaning out the bowels and strengthening the

THAT AWFUL BACKACHE

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Morton's Gap, Kentucky.—"I suffered two years with female disorders, my health was very bad and I had a continual backache which was simply awful. I could not stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal's victuals without my back nearly killing me, and I would have such dragging sensations I could hardly bear it. I had soreness in each side, could not stand tight clothing, and was irregular. I was completely run down. On advice I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills and an enjoying good health. It is now more than two years and I have not had an ache or pain since. I do all my own work, washing and everything, and never have the backache any more. I think your medicine is grand and I praise it to all my neighbors. ## EASTERN MAN'S CONVENIENT COLD FRAME GREENHOUSE

Permanent Structure Is Believed to Be Better for Growers in North Than Ordinary Frames—New Yorker Tells How to Erect One.

New York Growers' Convenient Cold Frame.

Some of your readers may be interested in our method of building a permanent cold frame, which we believe is better for growers in the north than the ordinary frames. We use plants that must be started and grown before danger of considerable snow and cold is past and handling sash on the ordinary frames under such conditions is hard work. Last fall we built two cold frames, 10x80 feet, and we would not change to sash again for a considerable sum. The sketch shows a cross-section of this cold frame house. The beds are put where the plants can be easily set and the air enclosed is of so large a volume that a considerable degree of frost can be suffered without danger to the plants. In extreme cold weather we used straw for a cover. We will build two more frames like this the coming spring, writes H. P. Langdon of Constable, N. Y., in the Weekly Market Growers' Journal.

In making the frame we dug the trench wide enough to set two rows of cedar pickets, three feet apart in the row. We set these pickets so that the trench was two feet wide and about three feet deep. We boarded them up on the outside and made the beds as shown in sketch, four feet wide on either side of trench. Then we drove a row of short pickets at the outside edge of each bed, and boarded these up on the inside. We banked up earth on the outside to a 2x4 plate, which was nailed to the pickets. We then put up sash bars to make the walk in the trench 7 1/2 feet in the clear.

The bars were set at distances apart to suit the glass used. We used butted glass, 10x14, set up and down. The bars were grooved one-sixteenth of an inch deep and three-eighths of an inch wide and set far enough apart to allow one-sixteenth of an inch fall for side play of glass. The glass was fastened by ordinary lath put on with one-inch fine nails.

The ventilators were made of bar material, four lights each, hinged to the ridge five bars apart on the east side. On the west side there are five ventilators full length from ridge to plate, two bars wide and hinged to the ridge. In the north end we made a door above ground level and another door full depth in the south end, just the width of the alley with two steps leading down to it. All the pickets were set very firmly with bar and ledge to prevent spreading.

If one is handy with tools this cold frame can be made at home with the exception of the sash bars. Especially for the north it is much superior to any cold frame in comfort and saving of work in handling sash. The plants can be set in cold, rainy or windy weather. This is often desirable when the work is rushing. It is well to cover the plate with a strip of roofing paper before the bars are put on. The house should stand north and south.

SATISFACTORY MACHINE SHED

As the result of our reference to the machine shed in a recent issue, W. H. Dunning sends in his plan, says the Orange Judd Farmer. Selecting a well-drained spot with a south front, the best shingles that could be procured were used for the roof of the shed and the sides are shiplap up and down, which will paint. The front is all doors and no sill to lift over. There is only one hinge door, the hinges being set in enough so that the roller doors will pass on a track nailed on to the 2x8 plate before the roof is put on. Use as short a roller as possible so it will roll under the eaves: There are only two posts in the center. After passing the door there is a space 16x24 feet so that it is not necessary to move everything to get what is wanted. The heavy machinery will go through the ten-foot door and can be taken in and out with a team. This shed may be built longer and the same kind of doors used without more hinge doors.

PROPER TIME FOR PRUNING

Apple Trees May be Treated Any Time From Late Fall Until Spring—Care Is of Utmost Importance.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Apple trees may be pruned any time from late in the fall until spring. Care should be exercised in pruning to give the trees an open head. This does not imply that all small limbs should be removed, leaving a lot of whiststocks, but that such of the larger limbs that are parallel and close together, or those that cross, should be cut out. Half of the difficulty of pruning is avoided if one decided to allow the tree to take its natural turn rather than to shape it to some particular model.

Too many fruit growers think that pruning a tree shortens its life. There is little reason for such a belief other than the general statement that it is unnatural to prune a tree. However, nature prunes more heavily than man and at all seasons and in the rudest manner. By this it should not be understood that care is not necessary in the mechanical operation of pruning; it is important that large limbs be removed with great care and the wounds painted to prevent the entrance of fungi which will induce decay.

Avoid all crotches that will have a tendency to split down or break when the trees become loaded with heavy fruits or sleet and ice. If bad crotches cannot be avoided they should be strengthened with iron bolts to prevent them from breaking and ruining the tree.

Drilled Grain.

Drilled grain will yield from one-fifth to one-fourth more crop than the hand-sown. The drill deposits the seed in the soil at a uniform depth and this cannot be done by hand sowing. When sown by hand many seeds fall in depressions and are covered too deeply by the harrow while others are left on top of the ground and are not covered at all. The roller should follow the drill.

Good Lice Killer.

A good liquid lice killer is made by dissolving in ordinary kerosene all the crude naphthalene flakes it will take up. The solution is an excellent disinfectant for use about poultry houses, as well as a lice killer. Used on the drooping boards and roosts, it will destroy and prevent red mites, and will also kill disease germs and seeds of worms and other parasites.

Uncle Joe's Check.

Col. Henry Carson, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, has the original check given by Speaker Joseph Q. Cannon a few years ago to a book agent, and about which an interesting story has been told. An agent visited the speaker and, interested him in an elaborate edition of something which Uncle Joe didn't want, but bought. When the books arrived Uncle Joe examined them and decided at once that something had been put over on him. When the agent came for his money the speaker determined to make him endorse a terse sentiment on books, so he wrote out a check for $78, the amount due, and on the back of it he inscribed: "Pay to the order of Mr. Blank, in full payment for an edition which was not worth a d—, and dear at that price, but for the ease and grace with which he put it over your Uncle Joe it was well worth the money."—Human Life.

The Anti-Saloon Crusade

The Anti-Saloon league began 17 years ago to teach the church how to use the ballot effectively against the saloon. There are 750 American pulpits open to official representatives of this league every Sunday in the year and many of the governing councils of the various denominations have endorsed its principles, have commended its actions and have co-operated with it in its campaigns.

More and more the Catholic church is taking a positive stand against the saloon and thousands of Catholics as well as Protestant ballots are used against the traffic. Archbishop Ireland was one of the founders of the National Anti-Saloon league and many of the archbishops, bishops, priests and lay members of the Roman Catholic church are most enthusiastic and potential warriors against the liquor traffic.

Plan "Dry" Michigan

Detroit, March 9.—The Michigan Anti-Saloon league is formulating plans for submitting state-wide proposition in Michigan in 1914.

The league next year will make a determined effort to carry all but five or six counties in the southern peninsula, and in 1912 it is hoped to have the campaign far enough advanced to warrant the submitting of a state-wide proposition in the following spring.

Immediately following the coming spring elections the league will place representatives in 14 counties. These counties are Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Wexford, Manistee, Mason, Lake, Crawford, Roscommon, Mecosta, Muskegon, Washtenaw, Oakland, Monroe and Macomb.

Thus, in the event of the league being successful in its campaign this spring there would be only four or five districts in the southern part of the state remaining dry.

"Wets Hire Men To Feign Drunk"

Lansing, March 13.—At the field day in Ingham county for the Michigan Anti-Saloon league yesterday, State Supt. George W. Morrow declared:

"I believe men are actually being hired to stagger down the streets of dry towns. A well dressed man was doing this on the streets of one town and an officer stepped up to arrest him. He at once straightened up and said, 'I'm all right, officer. I'm all right. I'm paid to do this.'"

"Fake traveling salesmen, who wear the button, are at work in the northern counties that vote this year," said District Supt. Bauer, of Traverse City. "They claim not only to have traveled widely over the state, but also in Maine and other dry states. They are doing gum shoe work, and we've been unable to draw any of them into the open for debates. These men urge that more liquor is being drunk now than ever in dry territory. But we can disprove that in Benzie county, where the freight and express books actually show that 50 times as much was shipped in when that county had the saloon."

Best Family Newspaper.

An ideal newspaper for the American home must be habitually clean and high-minded, it must offer something of interest to every member of the family, and it must present daily the news of the whole world in a readable and readable form. A large contract, you will say. Well, the newspaper that comes nearest to filling it in the West is The Chicago Record-Herald. Its moral tone is always high; its news surface is unsurpassed, and probably no other paper in the United States has so brilliant an array of special features suited to the tastes and needs of every member of the family.

Business and professional men have long regarded The Record-Herald as the best paper for their own reading because of its unequalled facility for getting all the news of the world and putting it into the briefest possible form for the busy man. They also esteem it for the reliability of its financial, agricultural and market reports. Young men perhaps find its greatest attraction in the excellent sporting department, which fills four entire pages on Sunday and a page or more on other days. Wives and mothers emphatically prefer The Record-Herald on account of its well-conducted feminine departments—its daily recipes and menus, its daily fashion news and hints for home dressmaking, Marion Harland's famous page and the rest of the good things that make up the handsome Woman's Section in the Sunday paper.
