EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1911.

No. 17

8th Grade Xams

To Be Held at East Jordan, Boyne City, Charlevoix and St. James.

The Annual Grade Examination will be held on Thursday and Friday, May 4th and 5th, beginning at 8:30 a. m. standard time.

The examination in reading will be based on "Evangelists."

Applicants will bring legal cap paper and pen or pencil.

The examination will be conducted in the high school buildings in the following places:—Charlevoix, Boyne City, East Jordan and St. James.

Rural pupils may select the most convenient place or if more convenient may attend elsewhere and have their papers forwarded to me, provided the examiner at such other place does not refuse to forward papers.

The recent legislature amended the Tuition Law making it necessary that a pupil shall be the holder of an eighth grade diploma in order to have his tuition paid by the district. (This does not apply to ninth graders who had their tuition paid last year.)

This makes the examination an important factor to any one from the rural districts who may wish to attend high school.

The examination will be made as practical as possible and will be fair and free from puzzles.

An average of 80 per cent with a minimum of 70 per cent will be required for a diploma.

Teachers will please see to it that all prospective high school pupils understand the importance of this examination and urge them to attend.

Each applicant will bring a certificate from his teacher stating the length of time he has pursued the studies of the eighth grade.

J. H. MILFORD,
Commissioner.

Spencer Lands Sewer Job.

At the meeting of the Common Council last Tuesday evening, bids were opened for the construction of two trunk sewers, and the contract was awarded to George Spencer, his bid being $1215.50.

The sewers are to be of 12 inch tile, and on State St. connects near Coulter's Warehouse with the sewer already laid and runs east to Third St.

On Esterly St. the sewer runs from the lake east to the south-west corner of J. F. Kenny's lot.

Free Orchard Demonstrations.

Claude E. Smith, a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural College, with the class of 1910, has been engaged by the Western Michigan Development Bureau to conduct orchard demonstrations in Western Michigan the coming season. Mr. Smith is a fruit expert and well qualified to give information on all phases of the subject of orchard development. Granges, horticultural societies and fruit growing associations desiring to have demonstrations will please address their requests to Western Michigan Development Bureau, Traverse City, Michigan. The only expense to the local organizations will be that of getting a goodly number of fruit growers to attend the demonstrations.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the membership of the Western Michigan Development Bureau will be held at the offices of the Bureau in Traverse City on Wednesday, May 3, 1911, at 2 o'clock. At this meeting two directors will be elected for each of the twenty counties in good standing and one director for each transportation company holding membership in the Bureau. In addition to the election of directors, the annual reports of the officers of the Bureau will be read and the work of the past year reviewed and plans made for the future.

The tax on bachelors in Wisconsin is classed as a tax on unimproved property.

Wexford county is to have a new court house. There is now on hand $27,000 for that purpose, and at the recent election a bonding proposition for $20,000 additional carried by over 800 majority. With such a fund to draw on this progressive county should be able to erect a court house that will be a source of pride to every citizen.

Among those from East Jordan who will take part in the program are Mrs. A. D. Grigsby, Mrs. M. H. Robertson and Miss M. A. Porter.

Officers of the association are: President, May E. Heston, East Jordan.

Vice President at Large, Maria B. Beech, Boyne City.

Corresponding Secretary, Sarah M. Wilkinson, Charlevoix.

Treasurer, Mary M. Robertson, East Jordan.

The mad dog excitement has broken out in Charlevoix again, and the board of health has taken prompt and vigorous action.

A dog belonging to John Schaeffer has been acting strangely. Last week he entered the sheep yard of Richard Shapton and maimed several sheep.

Two other dogs are known to have been bitten by him, and how many more nobody knows. The three dogs were executed, and the head of the Schaeffer dog was sent to the hygienic laboratory at Ann Arbor for examination.

The microscope disclosed unmistakable evidences of rabies. The duty of every dog owner is plain. They should not wait for further official ceremony but promptly muzzle their dogs.

And the authorities should see to it that fake leather baiter muzzles do not pass. Public safety demands prompt action.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Red Haired

Dealing Gingerly With Auburn Haired Women

By THURDE RAYLE BRUCE

IN DEALING with the red-headed type of woman I must walk gingerly. In regard to her I should like to make free with a little known but exquisite French proverb.

Good red hair and great green eyes are worth making a fuss about. If the red-headed type, who generally has long, but unnoticeable eyelashes, is clever enough to put a slight line of artistic black beneath them, you may as well consider yourself to be the usual number of skittles, for down you will go.

Now, let us come nearer to the red-headed type. Let us approach her and analyze. Let us be chemists and forget we are men. The red-headed type is not very general. She forms the exception to the rule.

Warily, warily, my friend, for the red-headed type has a red-hot temper. Should her dignity be upset by the fraction of an inch she will say those things which are better left unsaid.

She is mostly a queen. She moves, or rather glides, in her small circle, throwing favors to a kneeling crowd of worshippers, bearded and scraped. She takes all that she can get, and gives nothing.

She talks in periods about Love, always with a big L, mind you, she is not insincere. At, no. She hasn't got it in her to be insincere. She hasn't sufficient depth for that great gift.

Every man she meets comes, according to her, under her sway, within her aura, if I may say so without knowing what it means. She is, as you will see, if you are not hopelessly gone, if you are not befuddled out of common sense, a laughter-making darling.

You can say anything you like, anything you've read, anything that seems in the cold light of day utterly ridiculous, and yet you cannot be foolish. You can, and must, hurl at her head--from your kneeling position--headlines, quotations, but you cannot do more than kiss the hem of her robe.

And when she has found it, what then? Why, she leaves her pose behind her in the ancestral halls, and immediately develops into a good wife and a sound mother.

What will people do with two more daylight hours of leisure? asks a writer.

Well, it would enable them to visit bathing beaches, for which they clamor, oftener than once a week in daylight; to enjoy a cool evening's ride by daylight to some of the outlying parks or suburbs on one of the various street-car lines.

It would also be possible to secure and cultivate a small garden, where they could devote more daylight to growing and enjoying better and cheaper fruits and vegetables.

Also it would enable them to save about two-thirds of the present expense of artificial light, as well as the resultant strain on the eyes caused by excessive use of such light.

They could enjoy any number of outdoor amusements and sports daily, instead of on Saturday half holidays and Sundays, as at present. All of this would work for better health and would reduce doctors' and druggists' bills.

Would eight or ten hours' work under "more daylight" conditions be so much more exhausting than under present conditions? It would leave 14 to 16 hours of rest, as now.

Probably on further consideration he would place the soft pedal on his "no" and join the ranks of the enthusiasts, regardless of whether we are copying our English cousins, who, no doubt, get more health and pleasure out of life than the vast majority of us more up-to-date Americans.

It has been asserted that in the west the cowboys are looked upon as common workmen and that the western girls do not notice them. That's what they say when they are in the big cities, but if the people could see them among the cowboys they could see for themselves whether the western girls regard them as common workmen.

I was a cowboy for 12 years and have had experience in the western states and I also have been with the 101 ranch as one of the expert bucking horse riders and I know the western girls from A to Z.

The western girls have to work just as hard as the cowboys. They do not have it as easy as the eastern girls.

And as to an American girl marrying an Indian, I think she is sensible. I would rather see her marry him than to see her marry a duke or lord with a title.

There are a lot of girls who spend their vacation in the west and on their return to the cities they respect a cowboy as a gentleman and that is the western girl jealous, because the cowboys pay more attention to

A word to the wearer of the turban as to the coiffure. A little fringe of hair must show about the face, and a few puffs and curls are as essential to the little hat as to the big one; in fact, more so, because a big hat obscures the hair while a little one rests on it. LOOKS WELL ON DESK

Cretonne Writing Set a Gift Which Will Be Pleasing to Any Girl.

For the maid who loves white enameled furniture and dainty curtains and dresden china toilet articles nothing could be more charming than a cretonne-covered writing set for the boudoir desk. It is especially appropriate in a simple rosebud design for a young girl.

First there is the big blotter, the foundation cut out of heavy cardboard after a leather model and the cretonne carefully pasted on, with tiny stitches to round the corners properly. A narrow gimp edging may be used if desired, but if you can do the work neatly enough it is really prettier without.

Next in order is the set of note-books, ranging from the big dairy to the little address book, and each neatly bound. Here the gilt or green gimp is more in order, but you may suit your own tastes about that.

Calendar (the cards for the perpetual variety may be bought, with a light, cheap frame, at any stationer's) and picture frames belong together; and after them come the little boxes for pen points, elastics, etc.—These may be merely little jewelry boxes lined with silk or velvet or, better, gray chamolis.

There are three articles which must not be included in this set. These are the ink well and the pen tray, because of the danger of staining them, and the candlesticks, because of that of fire. But if you wish your set to be complete, you can get these in dresden china, with a little clock to match, in a design closely approximating that of the cretonne. Perhaps it would be better to buy the china first and match the cretonne from it.

All sorts of smaller articles, such as little blotters, penwiper, paper-cutter, etc., may be covered with the pretty fabric. Of course, brocaded silk may be used instead, if you desire to make the set a more expensive one.

And, by the way, give a piece of the plain fabric with your present, or get it extra if you are making the set for yourself. For accidents will happen, and first aid is a useful thing to have at hand.

Bridesmaids All Abloom.

Seven bridesmaids at a recent fashionable wedding walked in single file up the aisle of the church. All wore gowns of cream messaline over rain-bow silk. Their short lace veils were caught with half wreaths of flowers. One wore moss rosebuds in her hair and carried a muff of the same blossoms. Next came a girl decked with sweet peas. Violets, yellow and brown nasturtiums, clematis, Meteoroses and orchids also bloomed in the piquant-decoration of the bride's attendants.

inches wide, 1 1/2 yards braid, 2 yards satin for lining.

The bodice is made with one tuck at each side, and has a plastron laid on front piped at the edge and trimmed with buttons at the upper part.

Material forms the oversleeve, also part of under; lace undersleeves are taken to the wrist; a lace collar finishes the neck; satin is used for the waist-band.

Material required: 5 yards 48 inches wide, 1/2 yard satin, 3/4 yard lace, 1 dozen buttons.

New Shades in Pink.

From rose-petal down to glowing cerise and coral and peach tones the manufacturers have brought out irresistible pink shades which no woman could possibly resist.

With the advent of the new "Helen pink" also there will be a great demand for this color, since it is predicted that it will be as popular as "A. S. Blue."

AID TO MARRIED HAPPINESS

Southerner Evolves the Panama Cocktail Which Makes Man Thoughtful of Wife.

Russell Hopkins, a southerner, who lives in the St. Regis, is responsible for the Panama cocktail. He and Charles Luther Burnham were talking over Hopkins' latest concoction, which had been placed in the little book kept by the bartender.

"You take half a pony of brandy, half a pony of curacao, a dash of gin and French or Italian vermouth, and there you are—there's your drink before dinner," said Hopkins.

"Yes," interposed Burnham, "it's a cocktail, all right. One of your friends came in here the other day with more than $300 in his wallet. He was initiated into the mysteries of the Panama cocktail. He seemed all right when he left, but he was found the following day in a ferry-house hugging a set of furs he had bought for his wife. From what could be gleaned from him he had, on a passably warm day, thought his wife ought to have new furs, and, with that idea, he went to a store and spent all the cash in his pocketbook for a set.—New York Press.

COFFEE HEART Very Plain in Some People.

A great many people go on suffering from annoying ailments for a long time before they can get their own consent to give up the indulgence from which their trouble arises.

A gentleman in Brooklyn describes his experience, as follows:

"I became satisfied some months ago that I owed the palpitation of the heart from which I suffered almost daily, to the use of coffee; (I had been a coffee drinker for 30 years) but I found it very hard to give up the beverage.

"One day I ran across a very sensible and straightforward presentation of the claims of Postum, and was so impressed thereby that I concluded to give it a trial.

"My experience with it was unsatisfactory till I learned how it ought to be prepared—by thorough boiling for not less than 15 or 20 minutes. After I learned that lesson there was no trouble.

"Postum proved to be a most palatable and satisfactory hot beverage, and I have used it ever since.

"The effect on my health has been most salutary. The heart palpitation from which I used to suffer so much, particularly after breakfast, has disappeared and I never have a return of it except when I dine or lunch away from home and drink the old kind of coffee because Postum is not served. I find that Postum cheers and invigorates while it produces no harmful stimulation." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial proves an eye opener to many. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SYNOPSIS.

Howard Jeffries, banker's son, under the evil influence of Robert Underwood, a fellow-student at Yale, leads a life of dissipation, and is finally arrested for a gambler who died in prison, and is disowned by his father. He tries to get work and fails. A former college chum makes a business proposition to Howard which requires $2,000 cash, and Howard is broke. Robert Underwood, who had been expelled by Howard's father, Annie, in his college days, and had once been engaged to Annie, Howard's stepmother, has apartments at the Astoria, and is apparently an prosperous circumstances. Howard recalls a $250 loan to Underwood, that remains unpaid, and decides to ask him for the $250 he needs. Underwood, taking advantage of his intimacy with Mrs. Jeffries, she becomes a sort of social highwayman. Discovering his true character she denies him the money. Annie receives a note from Underwood, threatening suicide. She decides to go and see him. He is in desperate financial straits.

Underwood laughed nervously. Affected to misinterpret the other's meaning, he said:

"Yes, you're right. The art and antique business is a delicate business. God knows it's a precarious one!" Reaching for the decanter, he added: "Have a drink."

But Mr. Bennington refused to unbend. The proffer of refreshment did not tempt him to swerve from the object of his mission. While Underwood was talking, trying to gain time, his eyes were taking in the contents of the apartment.

"Come, take a drink," urged Underwood again.

"No, thanks," replied Mr. Bennington curtly.

Suddenly he turned square around. "Let's get down to business, Mr. Underwood," he exclaimed. "My firm insists on the immediate return of their property." Pointing around the room, he added: "Everything, do you understand?"

Underwood was standing in the shadow of the lamp so his visitor did not notice that he had grown suddenly very white, and that his mouth twitched painfully.

"Why, what's the trouble?" he stammered. "Haven't I got prices for your people that they would never have gotten?"

"Yes—we know all that," replied Mr. Bennington impatiently. "To be frank, Mr. Underwood, we've received information that you've sold many of the valuable articles entrusted to you for which you've made no accounting at all."

"That's not true," exclaimed Underwood hotly. "I have accounted for almost everything. The rest of the things are here. Of course, there may be a few things—"

Taking a box of cigars from the desk, he offered it to his visitor.

"No, thanks," replied Bennington coldly, pushing back the proffered box.

Underwood was fast losing his self-control. Throwing away his cigar with an angry exclamation, he began to walk up and down.

"I can account for everything if you give me time. You must give me time. I'm hard pressed by my creditors. My expenses are enormous and collections exceedingly difficult. I have a large amount of money outstanding. After our pleasant business relations it seems absurd and most unfair that your firm should take this stand with

"Oh, that's all right, too, if they'll only give me time," he cried desperately. "Good God, you don't know what it means to me, Bennington! The position I've made for myself will be swept away and—"

Mr. Bennington remained distant and unsympathetic and Underwood threw himself into a chair with a gesture of disgust.

"Sometimes I don't think I care what happens," he exclaimed. "Things haven't been going my way lately. I don't care a hang whether school keeps or not, if they drive me to the wall I'll do something desperate."

A ring at the front door bell interrupted him.

"Who can that be?" he exclaimed, startled. He looked closely at his companion, as if trying to read in his face if he were deceiving him.

"Probably your friend of the telephone," suggested Bennington.

Underwood opened the door and Howard entered jauntily.

"Hello, fellows, how goes it?" was his jocular greeting.

He was plainly under the influence of liquor. When he left home that evening he had sworn to Annie that he would not touch a drop, but by the time he reached the Astoria his courage failed him. He rather feared Underwood, and he felt the need of a stimulant to brace him up for the "strike" he was about to make. The back door of a saloon was conveniently open and while he was refreshing himself two other men he knew dropped in. Before he knew it, half a dozen drinks had been absorbed, and he had spent the whole of $5 which his wife had intrusted to him out of her carefully hoarded savings. When he sobered up he would realize that he had acted like a coward and a cur, but just now he was feeling rather jolly. Addressing Underwood with impudent familiarity, he went on:

"The d—d boy didn't seem to know if you were in or not, so I came up anyhow." Glancing at Bennington, he added: "Sorry, if I'm butting in."

Underwood was not in the humor to be very gracious. Long ago young Howard Jeffries had outgrown his usefulness as far as he was concerned. He was at a loss to guess why he had come to see him uninvited, on this particular Sunday night, too. It was with studied coldness, therefore, that he said:

"Sit down—I'm glad to see you." "You don't look it," grinned Howard, as he advanced further into the room with shambling, uncertain steps.

Concealing his ill humor and promising himself to get rid of his unwelcome visitor at the first opportunity, Underwood introduced the two men.

"Mr. Bennington—Mr. Howard Jeffries, Jr."

Mr. Bennington had heard of the older Jeffries' trouble with his scapegrace son, and he eyed, with some interest, this young man who had made such a fiasco of his career.

"Oh, I know Bennington," exclaimed Howard jocularly. "I bought an elephant's tusk at his place in the days when I was somebody." With mock earnestness he added, "I'm nobody now—couldn't even buy a collar button."

"Won't you sit down and stay awhile?" said Underwood sarcastically.

"If you don't mind, I'll have a drink first," replied Howard, making his way to the desk and taking up the whisky decanter.

Underwood did not conceal his annoyance, but his angry glances were entirely lost on his new visitor, who was rapidly getting into a maudlin condition. Addressing Bennington with familiarity, Howard went on:

"Say, do you remember that wonderful set of ivory chessmen my old man bought?"

Bennington smiled and nodded.

"Yes, sir; I do, indeed. Ah, your father is a fine art critic!"

Howard burst into boisterous laughter.

"Art critic!" he exclaimed. "I should say he was. He's a born critic. He can criticize any old thing—every old thing. I don't care what it is, he can criticize it. When in doubt 'criticize,' is nailed on father's escutcheon." Bowing with mock courtesy to each he raised the glass to his lips and said: "Here's how!"

Bennington laughed good humoredly, and turned to go.

"Well, good night, Mr. Jeffries. Good night, Mr. Underwood."

Underwood followed the manager to the door.

"Good night!" he said gloomily.

CHAPTER VI.

The door slammed, and Underwood returned to the sitting room. Taking no notice of Howard, he walked over to the desk, slowly selected a cigar and lighted it. Howard looked up at him foolishly, not knowing what to say. His frequent libations had so befuddled him that he had almost forgotten the object of his visit.

"Excuse my butting in, old chap," he stammered, "but—"

Underwood made no answer. Howard stared at him in comic surprise. He was not so drunk as not to be able to notice that something was wrong.

"Say, old fellow," he gurgled; "you're a regular Jim Dumps. Why so choppfallen, so? My! what a long face! Is that the way you greet a classmate, a fellow frat? Wait till you hear my hard-luck story. That'll cheer you up. Who was it said: 'There's nothing cheers us up so much as other people's money?'" Reaching for the whisky bottle, he went on:

"First I'll pour out another drink. You see, I need courage, old man. I've got a favor to ask. I want some money. I not only want it—I need it."

Underwood laughed, a hollow, mocking laugh of derision. His old classmate had certainly chosen a good time to come and ask him for money. Howard mistook the cynical gaiety for good humor.

"I said I'd cheer you up," he went on. "I don't want to remind you of that little matter of two hundred and fifty bucks which you borrowed from me two years ago. I suppose you've forgotten it, but—"

A look of annoyance came over Underwood's face.

"I wouldn't remind you of the loan, old chap; but I'm up against it. When the family kicked me out for marrying the finest girl that ever lived, my father cut me off with a piking allowance which I told him to put in the church plate. I told him I preferred independence. Well," he went on with serio-comic gravity, "I got my independence, but I'm—I'm dead broke. You might as well understand the situation plainly. I can't find any business that I'm fitted for, and Annie threatens to go back to work. Now, you know I can't stand anything like that. I'm too much of a man to be supported by any woman."

He looked toward Underwood in a stupid kind of way, as if looking for some sign of approval, but he was disappointed. Underwood's face was a study of supreme indifference. He did not even appear to be listening. Some-what disconcerted, Howard again raised the glass to his lips, and thus refreshed, went on:

"Then I thought of you, old chap. You've made a rousing success of it—got a big name as art collector—made lots of money and all that—"

Underwood impatiently interrupted him.

"It's impossible, Jeffries. Things are a little hard with me, too, just now. You'll have to wait for that $250."

Howard grinned.

"Taint the $250, old man, I didn't want that. I want a couple of thousand."

Underwood could not help laughing. "A couple of thousand? Why not make it a million?"

Howard's demand struck him as being so humorous that he sat down convulsed with laughter.

Looking at him stupidly, Howard helped himself to another drink.

"It seems I'm a hit," he said with a grin.

Underwood by this time had recovered his composure.

"So you've done nothing since you left college?" he said.

"No," answered Howard. "I don't seem to get down to anything. My ideas won't stay in one place. I got a job as time-keeper, but I didn't keep it down a week. I kept the time all right, but it wasn't the right time."

Again raising the glass to his lips, he added: "They're so beastly particular."

"You keep pretty good time with that," laughed Underwood, pointing to the whisky.

Howard grinned in drunken fashion. "It's the one thing I do punctually," he blurted out. "I can row, swim, play tennis, football, golf and polo as well as anybody, but I'll be damned if I can do anything quite as well as I can do this."

"What do you want $2,000 for?" demanded Underwood.

"I've got an opportunity to go into business. I want $2,000 and I want it deuced quick."

Underwood shrugged his shoulders.

"Why don't you go home and ask your father?" he demanded.

His visitor seemed offended at the suggestion.

"What!" he exclaimed, with comic surprise, "after being turned out like a dog with a young wife on my hands! Not much—no. I've injured their pride. You know father married a second time, loaded me down with a stepmother. She's all right, but she's so confoundedly aristocratic. You know her—Say, didn't you and she—wasn't there some sort of an engagement once? Seems to me I—"

Underwood rose to his feet and abruptly turned his back.

"I'd rather you wouldn't get personal," he said curtly. Sitting down at a desk, he began to rummage with some papers and, turning impatiently to Howard, he said:

"Say, old man, I'm very busy now. You'll have to excuse me."

If Howard had been sober, he would have understood that this was a pretty strong hint for him to be gone, but in his besotted condition, he did not propose to be disposed of so easily. Turning to Underwood, he burst out with an air of offended dignity:

"Underwood, you wouldn't go back on me now. I'm an outcast, a pariah, a derelict on the ocean of life, as one of my highly respectable uncles wrote me. His grandfather was an iron puddler." With a drunken laugh he went on: "Doesn't it make you sick? I'm no good because I married the girl. If I had ruined her life I'd still be a decent member of society!"

Sardines Suggested It.

Richard Croker, at a luncheon at Palm Beach, was reminded, by a course of grilled sardines, of a story.

"You know, of course," he said, "the Horse Guards at Whitehall in London. They are the finest English regiment. Every man is over six feet, from the colonel down, and on guard before Whitehall, with their jack boots, their snowy buckskin breeches, their enormous shakoes and their brass breast-plates, they make, on their fine horses, an imposing sight."

"Once, as I motored past Whitehall, I saw a little street urchin leaping up and down before one of the stately guards in his bright, bulging breast-plate, and shouting:

"Now, then, old tin jacket, I'm after you with a sardine opener!"

The KITCHEN CABINET

THE world is mine oyster, which I with a sword will open. Canst tell how an oyster makes his shell? No! I neither.

Preparing Oysters.—The custom which forbade the use of oysters in the months without an R, no doubt originated in the fact that during the months of May, June, July and August they are poorer in quality and lack flavor, nature's way of protecting her own. May is the month when the spawning season opens.

After-Theater Oysters.—To a pint of oysters with their liquor, a dash of paprika, celery salt, salt, a squeeze of lemon juice and half a cup of rich bouillon. Cook until the edges curl, then serve on buttered toast.

Lincoln Stew.—Place a quart of milk in a double broiler, season with paprika, celery salt and salt. Grate a small onion, allowing the juice to drip into the milk, add a dozen oyster crackers well crushed and two tablespoonfuls of butter. When boiling hot add a quart of oysters with the liquor. When they commence to curl, remove them to the tureen and add a beaten egg. Serve at once.

Oyster Loaf.—Cut a box-shaped piece from a loaf of rather stale bread. Brush with melted butter and brown in the oven. Fill with fried oysters or creamed oysters. To cream oysters, allow a dozen oysters to a cup of cream. Heat the cream to the boiling point, add the oysters, and when curled, remove and serve immediately. The seasoning may be added by each guest to suit his taste.

Oysters a la Creole.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a slice of onion and cook until a pale brown. Remove the onion and add a tablespoonful of flour and when brown a cupful of tomatoes. When hot add a pint of drained oysters, cook until the edges curl, add a drap of tabasco, a tablespoonful of minced parsley and salt to taste. Serve on toast.

Oyster Cocktails.—Clean and chill 60 small oysters; mix with three tablespoonfuls of horseradish, one teaspoonful of tabasco sauce, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, five tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, three tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup and one and a fourth teaspoonfuls of salt. Serve in lemon, grapefruit or tomato cups.

Moissant's Comparison. "The late John B. Moissant was as genial as well as a skillful airman," said a Chicago editor.

"I remember well a visit he once made me, with drawings of an aeroplane of his own invention under his arm. I joked him a little about the machine—it certainly had a heavy, awkward look. But he said with a laugh:

"Oh, don't judge even an aeroplane by its outside. What if the man who discovered the oyster hadn't stopped to pry open the shell?"

Chicken, All Right. A Camden lawyer walked into a restaurant the other day, prepared to order himself a chicken dinner.

The waitress approached him. He looked at her and said: "How's chicken?"

"I'm all right," she answered, cheerily; "how's yourself?"

A Cold Comparison. "So you are going to give up poetry?"

"I am," replied the earnest youth. "I'm going to study medicine. A prescription commands enormously more respect than a poem."

Resolutions, K. O. T. M. M.

Whereas, It has pleased the Great Creator of the Universe to call Sir Knight George L. Strömberg from labor on earth to rest and immortality in the Supreme Tent above, where the Supreme Commander himself presides; therefore

Resolved, That we acknowledge the wisdom and goodness of our Supreme Commander, and bow in humble submission to his inevitable edict; yet we mourn the death of our brother as of one whom we shall nevermore meet in Review, and we deplore his loss to the Tent, to his family and friends, and to the community in which he lived. He was a just and upright Maccabee, a kind husband and father, an honorable and useful citizen, a sincere friend, a courteous and obliging neighbor, a man who endeavored always to perform every duty—to his God, his country, his family, his lodge, his neighbor and himself—honestly, faithfully and well.

Resolved, That in token of our sincere friendship and sympathy in the dark hour of this great affliction, and as a pledge of our fidelity to the memory of our deceased brother, our charter draped in mourning for a period of thirty days; that a copy of these Resolutions be published in the local papers and that our Record Keeper be instructed to deliver a copy thereof to the widow and family of the deceased.

SOME OLD NEWS

Methodist Corner Stone Gives Up Old Newspaper.

In making alterations on the Methodist church the corner stone fell out and its contents spilled. Rev. Bennett favors The Herald with one of the papers contained therein. It is The Enterprise of East Jordan, June 17th, 1886, Vol. 4, No. 45, Thomas F. Nelson, editor and proprietor, and is remarkably well preserved.

Among the advertisers we notice the names of A. E. Pickard (now at Ellsworth), C. H. Whittington, East Jordan Iron Works, Caton & Sherman, John Nicholls, James H. Stone, D. C. Lovejoy, J. C. Glenn, C. G. VonPlatton of Advance.

This issue also contains an ad. for a celebration July 3, and among the officers is W. F. Binney, Marshal.

Below are some of the locals contained in that issue:

It is rumored that the furnace at Ironton is soon to go into blast.

Vol. 1, No. 2, of the Antrim County Independent, has reached our table. It is a six-column paper, all printed at home, well filled with local news, with D. S. Ashman, as editor. We welcome it to our table with a hope that its publisher will never regret his choice of location.

The corner stone of the new M. E. church will be laid tomorrow, Friday, June 18th. The services commence at 10:30 a. m., Rev. W. R. Stinchcomb, of Traverse City, will deliver a sermon, after which Lieut. Gov. Butters will lay the corner stone assisted by the masonic fraternity of this place. Delegates from the lodges at Traverse City, Elk Rapids, Torch Lake, Charlevoix and Petoskey are invited and expected to be present. The Humb was launched Monday and is expected to make her initial trip to East Jordan soon under the command of Capt. William Jepson of Washington Harbor who will put forth every effort to accommodate the passengers of this popular boat. — Charlevoix Courier.

Charles Spencer suffered a paralytic stroke last Monday forenoon, his entire right side being affected. At present he is resting easily but is not recovering as rapidly as is desired. He was doing some carpenter work on W. S. Carr's residence and was alone at the time he suffered the stroke.

Wm. T. Boswell has decided to erect a two-story brick store building on his Main St. property just north of the Postoffice building. The building will be 23x75 feet. He intends leasing the first floor and use the second for his photograph gallery. Work on same will commence in the near future.

Several carloads of fruit trees have already been received at East Jordan this spring and are being planted on the farms hereabouts. Among those who are setting out trees is the Eve-Hae Land and Fruit Co. who are handling about 5,000. Stroebel Bros. 600, W. A. Loveday 500, and many others.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hammond Saturday evening when Miss Dessie Balsler became the wife of William Montroy, both popular young people of East Jordan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Porter Bennett pastor of the Methodist church. The bride was assisted by Miss Hattie Graff and the groom by Forest Carney.

Commencing May 1st and continuing until May 31st the local Postoffice department will be kept busy counting and weighing all mail passing through this office each day. This is in compliance with an order from the Postmaster General and applies also to Rural Carriers. All outgoing and incoming mail will have to be classified, numbered and weighed each day. The East Jordan office is handling about 5,000 pounds each week which will mean a lot of extra work. It will take about one-half hour longer to distribute and the pouches on outgoing mail will have to be closed one-half hour earlier. The E. J. & S. morning pouches will be closed at 7:45 and D. & C. at 8:00. The afternoon E. J. & S. pouches will be closed at 1:45.

Village President Cross has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens of East Jordan to clean up their premises. Thursday was the opening day and the cleaning up will continue for a week. The Village, through Street Com'r H. L. Winters, will furnish teams for hauling away the refuse free of charge during this time. Anyone having gathered up the debris around their premises should notify our Street Commissioner and he will see to it that it is hauled away. Already the improvements are commencing to show as our "white wings" are giving our main streets a thorough over-hauling. However we want to say right here that it isn't the main streets that are left in an undesirable condition. It's the back alleys and the back premises of some of our property holders that at times present disgraceful conditions. And it is these cases that we hope the proper department will get busy and compel a cleaning-up even if harsh measures have to be used.

The last issue of the Weekly Alimanian contains an account of a debate between a team representing Alma College and Hope College, the question being the commission form of government. Alma had the affirmative and won. Oral M. Misenar was one of the three representing Alma and the Alimanian has the following to say about him: "O. M. Misenar opened the debate. After defining the question and dwelling upon its practical significance, he pointed out that reforms failed to reform, citing the cases of Pittsburg and St. Louis. He then showed that the commission form of government had worked with success in a large number of American cities, correcting the evils of the present system."

COMFORTABLE BUILDING TO ACCOMMODATE HUNDRED HENS

More Important Features of Poultry House Illustrated Are Movable Roosts, Automatic Ventilators and Drop Curtain Nests.

Key—
 AA—Drop curtains.
 BB—Sitting hens.
 CC—Adjustable door.
 DD—Adjustable ventilator.
 EE—Movable roosts.
 FF—Dust bath.
 GG—Grit box.
 HH—Feed and water.
 III—Bins.

The accompanying plans illustrate a comfortable and convenient poultry house to accommodate about one hundred fowls. The more important features are the movable roosts, which are more sanitary and more easily cleaned than the old-style roosts with dropping boards, the automatic ventilators, feeding and watering rack, and more especially the drop curtain nesting system, by which nest capacity is doubled when setting time comes. The slides or curtains AA are set back in grooves at BH, the setting hen is thus shut off from the remainder of the flock, but still has an opportunity of feeding and exercising as her nest opens out into the alleyway.

A nest is still left for the laying hens, as indicated on section plan. The alley affords room for incubators and brooders, where the feed bins are conveniently located near the water troughs, writes Benton Steele in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze. Scratching room is provided with dust bath and grit or feed trough as indicated. The house should face to the south and have an abundance of light and ventilation. All is arranged so that no obstructions are in the way of speedy cleaning and complicated corners for trash are dispensed with. All partitions should be of wire, the floor of cement, and the walls lathed and plastered.

SETTING STRAWBERRY PLANTS

Many people fail to get strawberry plants to grow after being set, says the American Agriculturist. Probably the chief reasons are shown at the right and the left in this drawing. The plant at the right is set too deeply; that at the left too high or shallow. The correct method is shown in the center. The crown of the plant should be level with the surface of the ground.

ECONOMY IN FENCE POSTS

Careful Selection of Wood and Preservative Treatment Saves Time and Money—Average Cost and Life.

(By JOHN G. SCHAEFER.) It has been estimated by the U. S. department of agriculture that the farmers of the single state of Iowa use every year $1,400,000 worth of new fence posts, which cost the equivalent of $900,000 for setting them in the ground. Without doubt a part of this expenditure might be saved. The opportunity for economy is found, first, in using the kinds of posts which, taking into account both cost and durability, are cheapest in the long run, and, secondly, by treating the posts to prevent decay. When a farmer sets a post which will have a comparatively short life, he loses not only through having to buy a new post, but also because of the additional labor involved in setting it. It is true that in both cases no money outlay may be involved, for he may set the posts himself, after getting them from his own wood lot. Of the posts used last year in Iowa, 70 per cent, it is estimated, were grown on the farms where they were used, or were obtained from other farmers or wood lot owners, and only 30 per cent, were bought from lumber dealers. Nevertheless, the farmer is out his labor and the part of the product of his wood lot which is used up, even though he does not pay out any cash. The average life of a fence post is stated to be fourteen years, and the average cost 13.7 cents. There is, however, greater difference in the lasting properties of different woods. Osage orange lasts more than five times as long as willow, and for length of service it heads the list of post timbers in the state. The comparative life of other posts is shown in the following list, ranging from the longest period to the shortest: Red cedar, locust, white oak, northern white cedar (or arborvitae) catalpa, black walnut, butternut, red oak and willow. The average cost of posts varies for different woods, and for the same woods in different localities. Red cedar is most expensive, at an average of 26 cents each, and willow the cheapest, at six cents. Taking into consideration the time a post will last, and the cost of buying it and setting it in the ground, the conclusion must be drawn that the osage orange post is the most economical in Iowa, followed by white oak, locust, catalpa, red cedar, black walnut, butternut, willow, white cedar and red oak, in the order named. Comparatively few posts of some of these woods are used. Catalpa and butternut together do not constitute one per cent, while white oak exceeds forty per cent. From white oak, the highest, the numbers used range down in the following order: White cedar, osage, orange, red cedar, willow, black walnut, locust, butternut, and catalpa. A few posts are cut from other woods. Preservative treatment increases the life of all wooden posts and more than doubles the period of usefulness of those which are mostly sapwood. The $2,000,000 spent yearly by Iowa farmers in buying and setting fence posts might be materially lessened by putting into practice the well-known methods of wood preservation. It costs much less to treat a post than to buy a new one and set it in the ground, and in addition much wood could be saved for other purposes. The department of agriculture has made a special study of practical methods of preserving farm timbers, so that it is able to inform interested inquirers how to do this for themselves.

Introduction of New Plants. But few farmers have any idea of the great work our government is doing in the way of introducing new plants and fruits from the old world into the United States. During the last fiscal year more than 2,000 seeds and plants were brought in. The department of agriculture has explored constantly on the lookout for all kinds of plants and fruits that seem capable of good yields in our own country. They are picked up especially in Manchuria, Korea and China. There are specimens from wild apricot trees ten feet in diameter. There are wild grapes and wonderful persimmons and bush cherries and other curious and valuable specimens that most of us never dreamed of.

Water for Stock. Water is cheap, but it is a necessity for sustaining the life of the stock. Laying hens need plenty of pure water, for an egg is about 90 parts

CHOICE APPLE DISHES

RECIPES FOR FIVE DESSERTS THAT ARE DELICIOUS

Gateau, Buttered and a la Paysanne Are Simple—Apple Cream and Souffle Require Somewhat More Elaborate Cookery.

Gateau of Apples.—Stew five or six large apples, peeled and cored, with one cup sugar, juice and grated rind of a lemon; stir until they are a thick, dry marmalade; turn into mold and leave till cold. Serve with boiled custard and whipped cream.

Buttered Apples.—Paré and core some apples without breaking them; put half a pint of water and a cup sugar on to boil; let boil up once or twice, then simmer the apples carefully until tender; lift out gently and arrange on a dish; place a small piece of butter on each and a little apricot jam on top; pour the sirup round.

Apples a la Paysanne.—Butter a pie dish, peel as many apples as will go in the dish, core them, and put a little butter in each; pour one-half pint water and one glass cherry brandy. Bake one-half hour and serve with powdered sugar.

Apple Cream.—Peel and core six large apples, stew with a little water ounces of raisins and the grated rind of a lemon till quite soft. When cold add a glass of sherry and put in a pie dish; beat the whites of three eggs very stiff, add a little sugar, spread it over the apples, and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Souffle.—For this pare and slice six or seven good juicy apples and stew in a closely covered jar without a drop of water, then beat to a pulp and add two table-spoonfuls of fresh butter and one cup sugar. When cool, whip in the yolks of three eggs; whip up the whites (an extra white is an improvement) very stiff and whip into the pulp along with one cup of fine bread crumbs; flavor with nutmeg, cloves, or grated lemon rind; beat all lightly until it looks like frothed cream; bake in a buttered dish in a moderate oven for nearly an hour; keep dish covered until within ten minutes of serving to prevent crust forming. Serve hot in dish it was baked in. Serve with lemon or custard sauce.

HOW LACES MAY BE CLEANED

White Waists Should Be Put in Solution of Pure Soap and Stiffened With Gum Arabic.

White waists badly stained with perspiration can be cleaned by putting them in a strong solution of castile or any pure soap, then placing in the direct sunlight until the yellow is withdrawn. To make the solution, shave one bar of soap and dissolve this in one to three quarts of hot water. The dirt is removed from the lace not by rubbing, but by washing up and down in a new soap solution, and it is then thoroughly rinsed in two or three clear, warm waters. The lace is next stiffened in weak gum arabic water—one or two kernels to one pint of water. The gum arabic is added to warm water and placed over hot water until dissolved. It is well never to wring lace, but rather to squeeze the water from it. To dry the lace it is pinned on a woolen blanket, or pad, which has been securely fastened to a table. Each point is firmly pinned and the lace is left until perfectly dry. Much may be done toward giving the effect of new lace, if each point is not only carefully pinned out, but when dry, picked out with the fingers.

Silk laces are cleaned by brushing or rolling in corn meal, or magnesia. The dirt adheres to the flour, or powder, leaving the lace clean. When treated in this way, laces need more frequent cleaning, but appear more like new lace. Yellowed, white silk lace may be steeped in a hot bath of milk and borax and bleached in the sun.

A Convenient Knife-Sharpener. There is one very effective way of sharpening a knife always at hand. The rough, unglazed bottom of a jar offers a fine substitute for a whetstone. Just hold a jar of any size upside down and pass the cutting edge of a knife back and forth over the bottom a few times, turning first one side, then the other. You will be pleased with the result.—Woman's Home Companion.

Peas, French Style. Put a good piece of butter in saucepan. Drop peas in dry; add two or three green onions, a few chives cut up small; salt and pepper to taste, one teaspoon of sugar, one head of lettuce chopped fine, one cup of water. Put back on stove, cook till done.

Unusual Salad. One-half dozen bananas diced, one cucumber diced or celery may be used, one cupful seeded white grapes, halves, one-half cupful English walnut meats, chopped fine. When just ready to use your mayonnaise dressing over all and serve. It is very pretty and may be made to look nice by placing the grapes on top.

To Keep Cheese. Cut and put in glass fruit jars, screw tops on tightly and it will never get hard or mouldy.

ROMANCE OF COLD WEATHER

Man Saves Two Lives but Subsequent Lionizing is Much to His Disadvantage.

Two lovers were strolling along a canal bank on the outskirts of Paris the other day when the woman suddenly ran from her companion and threw herself into the water. Though but a bad swimmer, her companion at once jumped in to rescue her, but he was unable to do so, and both were in peril of drowning. At this moment a stranger came along, and seeing the struggling couple, bravely jumped in and succeeded in bringing both the man and the woman to the bank, where they were soon revived.

A cheering crowd assembled to congratulate the rescuer who, however, showed great reluctance to be lionized. He was quickly walking away when two policemen came on the scene and insisted that the name and address of so brave a man should be taken. Their surprise was great when they found that the gallant rescuer was a burglar for whom the police were anxiously searching. He was taken into custody and will be brought up for sentence. It is expected that the gallant rescuer will lead to his dismissal, or at least to a reduction in any sentence that might otherwise have been passed on him for his less heroic deeds.

SCALES ALL OVER HER BODY

"About three years ago I was affected by white scales on my knees and elbows. I consulted a doctor who treated me for ringworm. I saw no change and consulted a specialist and he claimed I had psoriasis. I continued treatments under him for about six months until I saw scales breaking out all over my body, save my face. My scalp was affected, and my hair began to fall. I then changed doctors to no avail. I went to two hospitals and each wanted to make a study of the case and seemed unable to cure it or assume me of a cure. I tried several patent medicines and was finally advised by a friend who had used Cuticura on her children since their birth, to purchase the Cuticura Remedies. I purchased a cake of Soap, the Ointment and the Resolvent. After the first application the itching was allayed.

"I am still using the Soap and Ointment and now feel that none other is good enough for my skin. The psoriasis has disappeared and I everywhere feel better. My hands were so disfigured before using the Cuticura Remedies that I had to wear gloves all the time. Now my body and hands are looking fine." After Grippe or any Sickness

Vinol Creates Strength

"After a long attack of Grippe, Mrs. Vaught seemed unable to recover her strength. She was very weak and had no appetite. VINOL rapidly improved her condition and restored her to health. I sincerely recommend its use during convalescence or any run down condition."

JUDGE C. N. VAUGHT, Huntsville, Ala.

Miss Adelaide Gamm, of Watertown, Wis., writes, "After a severe attack of the Grippe, my system was in a very weakened, nervous, run-down condition. I took VINOL with the best of results, and it made me feel better and stronger than I have been for years."

We have never sold in our store a more valuable health restorer for weak and run down persons than VINOL, and we ask such people in this vicinity to try VINOL with the understanding that their money will be returned if it does not do all we claim for it.

Business and Saloons

Little by little the business interests of the country are arraying themselves against the saloons.

Railroads have no use for saloons. Great mercantile houses despise the saloons. Manufacturing establishments find saloons a detriment to their employees.

At Escanaba recently a local manufacturing company caused to be printed on every pay check this statement: "Not to be cashed in saloons."

On the back of the check were printed conditions that made the prohibition effective, too.

Prior to this inhibition, eighty-five per cent of all the company's checks have been cashed in saloons.

The action of this Escanaba firm may be taken as a sample showing a purpose on the part of legitimate business institutions which is now making itself actively felt all over the United States. It is now fully recognized that the saloon is a hindrance and a burden to business development. The movement in the direction of this recognition has been more marked during the past two years in this country than through twenty years before. It is a recognition that has been too long delayed.

What is the matter with Kansas? Those who have been inclined to recently answer that question with a sneer or shrug have something in the way of information coming to them. The people of no other bit of territory anywhere on this globe are more fortunately situated so far as material affairs and surroundings are concerned than are the people of Kansas. There are a half-million young men and women in Kansas over twenty-one years of age who have never seen a saloon in that state. There is not a Kansas newspaper which publishes a liquor advertisement. One-third of the counties of Kansas have not a prisoner in their jails nor a pauper in their poor houses. One-half of the counties of Kansas did not send a convict to the penitentiary last year. Kansas stands first in the per capita valuation of assessed property, and first in most conditions that go to make up the actual requirements of happiness and prosperity.

An effort is being made in behalf of Michigan saloon interest to have it believed that the results of the recent local option elections in Calhoun, Jackson and Genesee counties was due to a change of opinion on the part of the voters in these counties concerning the practical value of local option. This contention is very far from being true. In these three counties, and they are referred to because of the fact that more is being said of them than of any others, the total vote in favor of local option two years ago was 18,455. The total vote on the same side of the subject, in opposition to the existence of saloons, this year was 19,810, an increase in the number of voters opposed to the saloons in these three counties in two years of 1955. It will probably not be questioned that nine out of ten of those who make up this increase in the number of voters opposed to the saloons are permanent residents of these counties who were won to the anti-saloon side of the question because of the practical good which they could see had come to their counties through the local option policy. And it will further hardly be questioned, that the increase in opposition to local option came principally from the so called "floating vote" from the number of new voters and temporary residents who were not in these counties two years before and therefore possessed little care or concern as to the permanent welfare of any interest affected by their votes. In any event the statement that the local option policy has been in the least weakened as the result of its experience in Calhoun, Jackson and Genesee counties is completely answered by the gain of 1355 voters in two years as compared with the former total vote in these counties in opposition to the saloons.

A Master of The Art of Newsletter Writing.

William E. Curtis, the famous correspondent of The Chicago Record-Herald, probably has a more enviable position and is read by more men and women daily than any other newspaper-writer in the United States. He can go anywhere in the world and write on any live topic that he chooses, so long as he interests his hundreds of thousands of readers. He has traveled several times around the world and written entertainingly about almost every country under the sun.

Every day in the year, without vacation or intermission, Mr. Curtis has a two-column letter in The Record-Herald. The remarkable thing about these letters is their power to interest all classes of readers. Women read them with the same enjoyment as men. Whether the subject be politics, travels, a new link in the Monroe doctrine, an interview with the newest money king or the personal history of an Egyptian mummy, the story is always told with a limpid simplicity and an unflinching sense of interest that keeps one reading to the end. No other correspondent now living can match the record of Mr. Curtis as a popular purveyor of timely and useful information. Whether he writes from his home in Washington or from the wilds of the Caucasus, from the gay streets of Paris or some remote temple in Persia, he always has something fresh and entertaining to tell.

Mr. Curtis began his newspaper career in Chicago as a reporter in 1872, speedily became a managing editor, resigned to serve as secretary of a government commission sent to South America, and fulfilled his duties so brilliantly there that Secretary James G. Blaine placed him at the head of the new bureau of American republics. He is almost as widely known in South America and Europe as in the United States. At the world's fair in Chicago he was the executive head of the Latin-American department. He is a member of almost every learned society in Washington and many in Europe.

Nobody outside of the Record-Herald office knows under what flag Mr. Curtis will be hanging up his hat, but everybody knows that, whether it be in Patagonia or Kamchatka, he will find something interesting to write about. Merely to read his daily news-letters is a liberal education. He does his full share toward making The Chicago Record-Herald the best home newspaper in the West.
