School Meeting Erect New Lines County Equalized

At the High School Building, Michigan State Telephone Com- Supervisors Complete Monday Evening July 10th

Reports of Officers Will Be Made, Estimates Considered and Two Trustees Blected.

The annual meeting of School District No. 4 will be held in the assembly room, High School building, at 6:30 p. m., Standard time, Monday, July 10th,

At this meeting two trustees are to be elected to succeed Trustees S. G. Rogers and W. P. Squier. The annual reports of the officers of the board will be made and considered and the estimates and recommendations of the board will be passed upon by the voters.

It is important that every tax-payer of the district be present at this meeting, not only to have a share in directing the use of public funds and the selecting of important public officers but to show due interest in our excellent and progressive public schools.

We publish below the financial statement as prepared by the treasurer: Cash on hand from

The route decided upon is by way of East Jordan, When the much needed improvements have been made, the company will have three circuits to East Jordan, three to Boyne City, one to Ironton and six to Petoskev. Another long distance tine is now being placed between Traverse City and Grand Rapids, giving better service on the state lines.

Liable to Have to Pay More

Since the state passed the law taxing railroads on their physical value. and the roads were assessed by a commission of men who know their business, the railroad companies have persistently claimed that they were unjustly treated. It has been their contention that other property was not assessed as near to'lts actual value; as was railroad property, and hence they were paying more than their share.

While people smiled and thought it all right to "tuck in onto the railroads," the cities have taken up the question on the theory that farms are not assessed as much as anything else. and are preparing a big fight before the next board of equalization. Men have been employed by Kent, Wayne, Jackson, Saginaw and other large counties to make an investigation, and already they have carefully gone into the records of seven counties, to learn the exact condition. Every description of land has been compared with the price at the last transfer, and it is asserted that these comparisons indicate a very low rate of assessment—as low in some countles as 40 per cent.

As a result of this investigation there will probably be a boost of the equalization of many rural counties.

Will See Circus at Petoskey

Thousands From This Section to Visit Fore paugh and Sells Bros. Show.

Thousands of people from Bast Jordan and immediate neighborhood will on Monday, the tenth day of July, see Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' big 1911 circus at Petoskey on Wednesday, July 12. Transportation lines are preparing for the day and the indications point to a great circus event.

organization this season is remarkably | ballot to be voted for at a special elecattractive, more so than ever before in | tion hereafter to be called and held its fifty years of travel. The performance is being given by the world's 400 best artists, the menagerie has been newly reorganized and the forenoon eral provisions of the primary law of parade is a masterwork of pageantry. The thrillers of the show are the double somersaulting automobile, the Ty-Bells "Human Butterfly" act and the sensational wild riding of the Pajara family of Gypsies.

Capt. Webb's two troupes of riding and juggling seals, Taylor's wonderful monkey and dog circus, the Hines-Kimbail troupe of acrobats, the Alvo, the Alpine and the La Fayette families of aerialists and the lifty funniest clowns on earth are a few of the more prominent features. There are over 100 big acts, all novelties and the entire show is newly equipped and costumed. Over $3,000,000 has been spent in hullding the new outfit and the resuit is dazzling.

For many years the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus has been the pattern of excellence. This year it is vastly improved and enlarged. It now travels in a train more than one mile in length. Its many tents cover ten acres of ground and it gives employment to 1,124 men, women and children. In the menageric are 728 of the rerest specimens of animal life and in the canvas stables are 550 of the finest horses in the world. The parade equipment was all built last winter in the foreign workshops of the show by the best artists, designers, sculptors and spectacle builders of France and Italy.

AS TOLD BY THE DRUMMER

Many and Varied Are the Experiences of Traveling "Knighte of the Road."

I bought a ticket last summer on one of the busiest steamboat lines running out of New York, where the flat was "No whole stateroom to any one passenger," and finding a suitcase already on the lower berth I placed my own obligingly in the upper, When I turned in that night my companion was still absent, but along toward morning, when I finally awoke, there was a bloody jackknife on the floor and the window was open. Just what had happened we never found out. I told my tale to the purser and gave him the "exhibits," but who my stateroom companion was, except for the name on the boat's register, I have never known, nor do I know what became of him.

In a Connecticut town one night I met a stranger in the hotel lavatory. "What have you lost, my friend?" I asked, as I saw him searching for something.

"I'm looking for the house toothbrush," he answered without hesitancy. "I have found the house brush and comb, but where the -- is the toothbrush?"

One day I was busy with a customer right up to train time, and asked an enterprising bell boy to run up to my room and pack up my belongings. "Put in everything in the room!" I called after him cautiously. When I opened my bag in another town I found he had obeyed me. The Bible belonging to the hotel was rolled up in my pajamas.

One night I left a call to be awakened at seven the next morning. It was the only train leaving in the forenoon, and I simply had to take it. Of course I ordered breakfast and I was down on the minute. When I reached the dining room another drummer was just finishing my breakfast, and there was not a minute in which to cook an-

Vanity Dangers

Specialist Finds Many Obstacles in Her Way

By THURDE RAYLE BRUCE

VERY good specialist finds his level by and by, but many who are vain of their specialty get a start with difficulty,

The friendless, trust-to-luck one who comes to the city with just one little talent to depend on doesn't succeed as does the girl who can boast of doing one thing well, another thing better, and one particular thing best, and who isn't too proud to do either to get a start.

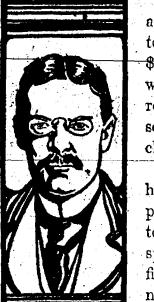

That sanguine specialist who comes to the big city with grand dreams ought to be prepared to make some sacrifices before she can get the big positions.

There was a music teacher once—the kind who sneered at every other occupation but that of running delicate white fingers over piano keys. Her home town showered her with compliments until it became too narrow for her, and pastures new in Chicago was the natural alternative. She would have a choice studio in a choice locality and get choice pupils from choice families—in fact, her whole dream was so choice that Providence chose to bestow some choice disillusionments. She came and saw but didn't conquer much-not even fifteen pupils wherewith to pay her

Her funds gave out and she was too vain of her specialty to fall back temporarily on something less pretentious, also not wise enough to realize in the first place that Rome isn't built in a day where there is fierce competition.

During this period of stress a friend offered her the position of cashier in a jewelry store and suggested that she take the place for a month or so until she could get more pupils, and was also advised to get a position as piano player in one of the stores. She only sniffed haughtily that all these positions were beneath her, and passed the matter up because "sliding along that way" was awfully distasteful to her and "not her style at all," and that "her art was too dear after all." Perhaps so, but if she had really loved her art she would have been brave and strong enough to make some sacrifices for it.

The versatile girl in the city who is willing to utilize her lesser talent in behalf of her beloved specialty can float along quite a while without danger of sinking.

One girl with artistic ambitions kept accounts and did the correspondence in a crossroads cheese factory. She went to the city to take a course in art with $50. Her fifty had melted at the end of two months, from the goads. Immediately after when there wasn't the slightest prospect of getting returns from her drawings, and it was up to her to secure night work of some kind or go back to the cheese factory.

The upshot was that she diligently followed up half a dozen ads one Saturday when the future looked particularly murky. Her versatility and willingness to make use of her lesser gifts while perfecting her specialty has been her main boost to victory. It verifies the truth of the idea that all great people are not afraid to appear small when a good object de-

Hard Problem of High School for Boys

By WALTER LEUTZ Chicago

Whether to give a boy a high school education or give him a chance to learn a trade is a question that is bothering me. I have two sons. I, like a good many other fathers, would like to make good men of my boys, but I can't decide what to do for the best, though the time is short. I would like to send one to high school, as I always desired to have him study law. Of course that means four years in high school and two years to a university, which is six Now, the Americans coming north years more of schooling. As he is now fif- relate, all this is a thing of the past teen years old all but three months, he would then be nearly twenty-one years old.

If all went smoothly I could afford that, but my son says that the teachers in the grammar grades are now preaching that when people enter high school they must be prompt in their studies all around and if they are slow or drop behind the class they are suspended and can't enter any other high school, and that there are many who enter high school who in a short time are expelled.

All this is rather discouraging. I might send him a year or two Rivers (erasing something he has and then he might be expelled. He then would be no more the wiser, as an ordinary business man, than if he never entered high school.

At this point he might feel too big for common work and yet would you think of something not quite so not be educated enough to make a better man, and at length, after lingering around he would become a young man of no account.

I find that people who give their boys a trade are about the most satisfied, but as I would like my boy to be superior to his father I am willing to try him, at least to give him a chance, so he can't say that he had no show.

ELEPHANT IN A FURY SLAYS ITS TRAINER

BIG BEAST IN WILD WEST SHOW ATTACKS KEEPER AND KILLS HIM INSTANTLY.

Dixon, Mo. Hundreds of persons saw an infuriated elephant hurl its trainer into the air and then, after crushing him with its weight, repeatedly pierced the body with its tusks. The tragedy came while James Hildebrand, the trainer, was endeavoring to put Monte, the smallest elephant with a Wild West show, into a car. A crowd had gathered to watch the departure of the big animal and Hildebrand, was adjusting the chains which bound Monte to its mate. Without warning the elephant became enraged, and, wrapping its trunk around the trainer's body, lifted him high in air. Hildebrand screamed for help, but while the onlookers stood overcome with horror Monte dashed the man to the ground,

It is believed he was killed instantly. With rage still unsatisfied, the elephant trumpeted loudly and began kneading the trainer's body with its forefeet. Then it dragged the body thirty feet along the railroad tracks in the yards and repeatedly thrust its tusks into the lifeless form. Women among the spectators fainted. Attaches of the show ran to the rescue with pitchforks and drove the elephant from its victim. It was not subdued until its sides were streaming with blood the tragedy the elephant was shot.

MEXICAN BORDER

Season a Bad One for This Pictur esque Part of Montezuma Courtship.

San Antonio, Tex.—It is reported that the armed difference of opinion just beyond the Rio Grande has seriously interfered with the ancient and honorable custom of "playing the bear." "Playing the bear" has long been a picturesque part of many Mexican courtships. The ardent Romeo stationed himself below the balcony or just outside the window of his Juliet and there paced back and forth, casting languishing glances toward the object of his affections. Finally, if the young man proved acceptable, he would be permitted to do his courting on the inside of the house. Before this end was attained, however, it was frequently his delight (and the misfortune of the neighbors) to play the mandolin, the guitar or other instrument under the lady's window, accompanying himself with sentimental Wondering how it would all end she made her way with her chattering relatives to the table in the small dining-room. She was grateful for the chilling presence of a black and white automaton of a waiter. He seemed, in some way, a means of postponement of the moment of judgment.

"And what time do you put the corn crop usually?" she heard Uncle John say. With unbelieving ears she heard the answer: "Oh, at the end of the rainy season

How Cloves Grow.

Clover are the unexpanded flower buds of a beautiful evergreen tree which grows only in tropical countries. The buds are at first a pale color and gradually become green, after which they develop into a bright red, when they are ready for collecting.

During the drying process they are exposed to the smoke are a wood fire and then to the action of the sun, which-accounts for their dark brown color when ready for the market. The clove tree, which attains a height of 30 feet, is a native of a small group of islands in the Indian archipeligo called the Spice islands, but in the last four centuries it has been carried to all the warmer parts of the world.

Cloves were one of the principal oriental spices which early ented the cupidity of western commerce communities, having been the basis of a rich and lucrative trade since the early part of the Christian era

"You're going on the stage?" She nodded.

"I've had a very big offer." The judge leaned forward, and in a low voice, so that no one in the outer office might hear, he said: "Well, I'll give you twice as much your efuse the engagement."

She laughed ironically. "You mean that my father-in-law will give it," she said, lightly. Then she went on: "You know it's no use your asking me to concede anything unless you agree to defend Howard." The lawyer shook his head. "I can't—it's impossible."

"Then neither can I," she exclaimed,

Judge Brewster could not refrain from smiling. This young woman had actually enveigled him into an argument. Almost mockingly, he said:

She leaned eagerly forward. Her face was flushed from excitement, her eyes flashed.

"There's only one Judge Brewster," she exclaimed. "He's the greatest lawyer in the world, and he's going to help us. He is going to save Howard's life."

The judge shifted uneasily on his chair. He didn't like this forceful, persistent young woman. Almost fretfully, he said:

"You always say that. Upon my word, I shall begin to believe it soon." "I shall say it again," she exclaimed, "and again every time I see you."

The lawyer turned round. There was a comic look of despair in his face which would have amused his visitor had her errand not been so serious.

for its money, and everybody knows it has the money. So what was simpler, when a little art was required, than to send to New York for it? All the agent in New York had to do was to rush along the best art obtainable, emphasis being laid upon the classical and antique statuary, and the rest was easy. And that was bor it happened that one day several cumbersome packing cases were dumped off a train at Weatherford, consigned to the Southwestern Normal. The packing cases were sent out to the school building, and a janitor was instructed to open them. A little while later the janitor appeared apologetically in the office of one of the faculty members. "Boss," he said, "I'm afraid somebody's done busted de arms offen

And this was what New York has sent to occupy prominent places around the college grounds and building of a perfectly respectable institution for young ladies and gentlemen. There was a hurried call of the facalty. To drape or not to drape—that was the question. And then somebody brought chisels into use and the statues were made to conform to the local ideas of decency. And that was how Appollo, Hercules and Mercury, not to mention some lesser heroes and delties, remained in obscurity in a cellar under the normal school building until the state board of education made its recent visit.

Then the mutilated statues (and this story, as well) were dragged shamefacedly into the garish, open light of the day.

We Are Proud to Announce the Twenty Anniversary of Our Association With the

STERLING PIANO

Twenty-five years ago we accepted the agency for this reliable old make and received our first shipment. That initial transaction, although we could not foresee it at the time, was one of the most important events in the history of our House. The Sterling Piano proved to be a big success from the start. Its rich, sympathetic, singing quality of tone; durable construction and other superior features make it a big favorite with Piano buyers throughout the entire state. Every year of this quarter-century has increased our sales of the Sterling and today nearly 15,000 homes in Michigan alone contain Sterlings purchased of us.

The excellence of this instrument has made it a favorite with musical people everywhere. Many of the Sterlings we sold twenty-five years ago are still giving splendid service. Their cases may be oldfashioned and lack the original lustre, but their sweet, mellow tone still remains, and will last as long as there is a key to press or a string

See the magnificent new styles in rich Mahogany, mandsome Circasslan Walnut, beautiful Golden Oak and other fancy woods embraced in our stock. Notwithstanding the high quality of these instruments our prices are most underate, ranging from $325 to $456. We sell on terms as low as $10 down and $6 monthly. Let us send you catalogue be of service to my fellowmen, but have never had the health to do the things which seemed to be most worth while. Lately, I have begun to realize that what the world needs as much as any one thing is this; A class of people who are willing to occupy humble positions in life and there look around them with loving, willing spirits, duing their best to be helpful to others.

No service, however humble, if ren dered in the right spirit, is ever refused by the Great Father. He understands our hearts and always sees our motive. To be of practical service we do not need to go out into the world and battle with the forces of evil. God is preparing workers for those fields of labor and we weaker ones may accomplish much for the good of humanity by being faithful where we are. God never expects us to do things which are beyond our

I have found in many places that there is a sad lack of even such trivial things as smiles, kind words and plain, old-fashioned sympathy. Often when some one is sadly in need of ust these things we give them criticism and advice instead. I know from experience that they make poor

I think that we brings some opportunity for doing a kindness. While it may appear insignificant to us, we cannot tell how far-reaching its results may be. If we would each put this rule into practice, what a different world we would soon be living in. Always a River to Cross.

There is always a river to cross; Always an effort to make f there's anything good to win, Any rich prize to take.

Yonder's the fruit we crave, Yonder the charming scene;

But deep and wide, with troubled tide, Is the river that lies between.

For the treasures of precious worth We must patiently dig and dive; For the places we long to fill

"The Liver Pills act If Your Are So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."

A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill. Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta, are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

If the first bottle falls to benefit, your druggist will return the price. Ask him. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

BEENWARD B. CLARK UBA has reciprocity in trade with the United States. The bill giving the Island the benefits of the trade agreement was considered at an extra session of congress called by President Roosevelt. There was a good deal of sentiment in the Cuban matter, more than there has been in connection with the Canadian reciprocity measure. The bill went through the house and was sanctioned by the senate taking all told only three weeks in its passage. The members of congress debated and talked twenty percentum reductions, sugar trusts and the like for four days and then the tense hour approached when the vote was to be taken. The time was tense notwithstanding the fact that it was known that the bill was to carry by a great majority. The galleries were packed with people and in the halls without were hundreds unable to gain admission, yet standing still and listening for the result of the ballot that was to show we knew how "to help a weak sister republic to her financial feet."

The house clock hands were at the exact hour of 4. The vote of the representatives of a great and sovereign people had been taken. The republic was true to its trust. The solemnity of the feeling of duty well done still hung upon the great chamber. Each of the thousands were busy with his thoughts.

The voice of a member from Ohio broke the stillness.. "I have a resolution of privilege to offer." it said.

"It must be a question of high privilege, sir, to receive consideration at such an hour," said Speaker Cannon in solemnly subdued tones. "Let the resolution be read."

"Resolved, That this house of representatives of the United States of America authorize the hiring of another rubber for the capitol Turkish-bath reems."

When the Appalachian Mountain Forest Reserve bill was under consideration a member of congress who was in favor of saving the trees told a striking story about the saving of a great tree in far off Australia. It was a long way to go for a tree story, but perhaps the moral was worth the journey.

In 1868 John Boyle O'Reilly, the Irish poet, was a political convict in Australia, sentenced to hard labor for life. With a gang of fellow convicts under the charge of a British officer and a squad of soldiers he was breaking a road through a tropical forest: They came to a tree and the men were about to lay the ax at its roots when O'Reilly made them stop, dropping his own ax the while. The British officer ordered the men to work. O'Reilly put his hand to his cap, saluted and said, "I should like to speak to you."

The officer was amazed at this convict's impu dence, but perhaps it was the very boldness of the thing that wrought the purpose intended. "This tree is too beautiful to fell; please let it stand, said the convict. The British soldier looked dumfounded, "Come over here, 's said O'Reilly, "and look at it from this point of view."

The convict was now the commanding officer. The Englishmen followed the Irishman for a hundred yards, and then, turning his horse, looked upon the tree, and his eye kindled. He looked down upuh O'Reilly and said: "The orders are for the road to run straight, but we'll send it around the If the Australian tree is still standing, it stands as a monument to an Irishman who had a soul.

THE AUGUST TRIBUNAL

Once Representative William Alden Smith, now a United States senator, tried his level best in the house debate on Panama to make Congressman Dinsmore of Arkansas supply a stock of good Republican campaign material, just as Blaine baited Ben Hill in the old days. Dinsmore was talking about the hasty recognition of the independence of Panama by the United States and drew a comparison between that action and the attempts of this government to keep foreign nations from recognizing the confederacy in 1861. The Arkansas member got warmed up and began to talk about the power of the confederacy. He made the statement that its soldiers had thrashed the Union army in the first six battles of the war. He got still warmer as he went on, and suddenly Smith of Michigan sprung the question, "Are you defending the rights of the states to secede?"

Dinsmore came to himself like a flash. "Ah, Brother Smith," he said, "how you would love to lead me into the pit! I have an abiding affection for you, but neither my feet nor my tongue shall go astray for the benefit of the Republican party."

Everybody knows what a stickler the senate is for courtesy. Courtesy has a seat at every desk. When one senator refers to another, whether he be a political fee or a political friend, it is always as the "distinguished gentleman from Maryland," or from Maine or another state, as the case may be. Senator Tillman said a fairly good thing one day. It was a side remark, but it reached the gallery and was enjoyed by the auditors, who had become a bit weary of resisting the impulse to salaam every time a senator rose and handed a few verbal flowers to a colleague.

Senator Bailey had just referred to the 'distinguished senator from Maine. "Quit it," said Tillman, "you'll distinguish them all till they're so stuck up that no one else can distinguish them one from the other."

When James Wilson came to Washington as secretary of agriculture he understook a bit of self-description by saying to a caller: "I am what they call a hayseed." It should be noted that Mr. Wilson did not say that he was a nayseed. He has the Scotch Presbyterian habit of sticking to the truth even in his humor. It was rumored once that in order to evade the laws of this country certain great companies were planning to take out corporation papers abroad. The matter was called to the attention of the agricultural member of Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet. His comment was this: "We have laws; we have petit juries; we have grand juries; we have a department of justice; we have courts, and we have penitentiaries." Then Mr. Wilson smiled just a little grimly and refused to discuss the subject further. He couldn't have said anything that would have added one lota to his meaning, and he knew it. There is no waste 50 words in the conversation of James Wilson.

Secretary Wilson unquertonably would be a success as a managing editor of a great newspaper. He knows news. When the Beveridge packing-house investigation measure had passed congress and Secretary Wilson was in the west on a tour of inspection, he was asked by a newspaper man at the close of one of the secretary's busiest days in Chicago what the news was.

Mr. Wilson said: "Sit down and I'll give you the news and nothing else. These things have been done within the last few days and not one of them has been touched on in the newspapers. The rest of the stuff is ancient history."

"SIT DOWN AND I'LL GIVE YOU THE NEWS AND NOTHING ELSE Then the secretary, with all the discrimination of a trained city editor, gave his facts, and they were all new facts and worth the publishing. When a newspaper man goes to see the secretary | niece all wrapped up in her arms. It in Washington he knows that if he gets one word beyond the ordinary interchange of "pleasant day" courtesies he is going to get something worth publishing. Mr. Wilson having been in office for several years and being a keen student, has discovered that certain things are published and certain things are not published. He has learned how to save himself time and words. In the parlance of the press, Mr. Wilson is "good

Congress appropriated some money to erect a new building for the department of agriculture. Every congress wishes to make a record for economy. So it was that the amount appropriated was not sufficient to put up a structure that would meet the future demands of a rapidly growing branch of the government. The secretary of agriculture knew it, and so, with a certain shrewdness that was all for the good of the country and the service, he saw to it that the money was put into two comparatively small structures. The two taken together will be big enough for present suses, but in order that they shall form a contplete and artistic whole it will be necessary one day to join them, and the connecting link will be a big building in itself. The argument for more room is apparent and convincing. The agricultural department will get more building money from congress, and get it soon, and the anger that was aroused at first by the secretary's shrewdness will be turned to laughter and to something much like admiration. The Iowa farmer's successors in office will have to thank him for removing a mountain of trouble from their paths.

As government departments rank, the one devoted to the promotion of agriculture stands next to the foot of the list. This is on paper only. Its importance to the country is so great that men say its proper place is near the head of things governmental. The passage of the packing-house inspection and the pure food laws have increased the working duties of Mr. Wilson's department immensely.

Secretary Wilson sheds trouble. He is a good deal of an optimist, and when difficulties arose over cotton crop matters, and there seemed imminent danger that a scandal would result, there was no signs of worry on the secretary's part. President Roosevelt felt implicit confidence in the cabinet official who had come to him as a heritage from the McKinley administration, and there is no doubt whatever that he expressed his confidence personally.

In one respect the secretary of agriculture holds himself to be particularly fortunate. Possibly he doesn't consider it to be really a matter of good fortune except at such times as he sees the trouble of his fellow cabinet officials who are more than suspected of having presidential ambitions. Presidential politics personally do not worry James Wilson. The constitution of the United States keeps such worry from him, for the secretary was born on the slopes of the Ayshire Hills in Bonnie Scotland, and on man from over the water can sit in the chief chair of the nation.

Sufferer From Toothache Summoned Philosophy to His Aid During Period of Trouble.

"Philosophers are not all dead yet," said the dentist. "I met one this morning who knocked me out of two hours' work on a day when I have nothing to do anyhow, and will make me work overtime tomorrow, when I shall be crowded with engagements. He was howling with a toothache.

The mite crawls very slowly, showing that its power of locomotion is weak. A female will lay from ten to twenty eggs during her lifetime. These eggs are so small that they cannot be distinguished with the naked eye. The period of incubation is from four to ten days, depending mainly upon temperature. Gerlach, a noted authority, estimates the descendants of a single female to be 1,000,000 females and 500,000 males at the end of 90 days. He estimates the average number of eggs from a single female to be 15, ten of which hatch females and five males, and allows 15 days for each

The infected spot first consists of a moist, yellowish, dandruff-like substance, often no larger than a pinhead, and unless careful examination be made, may easily escape detection. If this place is scratched, the sheep will respond by a nibbling-like motion of the mouth. Large patches are formed either by small infected spots located on different parts of the back growing and uniting, or by the gradual enlargement of a single spot. In obtaining their food, the parasites in these patches irritate the skin of the sheep to such an extent as to cause the secretion of a large amount of serum which, in drying, first takes on the form of dandruff, and upon extended irritation the dandruff is red ry, Fay's Prolific and Perfection are placed by thick scabs. EXCELLENCE OF CLOVER FEEDS

While Most Farmers Recognize That Red Clover Is Admir. able for Swine Few Understand How to Utilize.

(By WALTER B. LEUTZ.) Clover is the greatest pasture for hogs-provided it is not allowed to make pigs thrive at top notch. The clover blossom is a very pretty flower but it is about as much out of place in the hog pasture as a rose bush in the corn field. While most farmers recognize that red clover is an admirable food for swine, few of them, comparatively, understand how to utilize a clover pasture for hogs. We make this assertion in view of the fact that clover is, in many instances, allowed to blossom in the field devoted to hog-graz-

MAN AS MERCHANDISE SHIPPED BY EXPRESS

MAKES LONG JOURNEY NAILED UP IN A COMMON WOODEN

Lawrence, Kan.—Shipped from here as merchandise in a common wooden box, a man giving the name of Banks A. Meyers, succeeded in reaching Fort Worth, Texas, before he was discovered by officials of the American Express company at that place. Meyers' presence in the box was learned only when, almost overcome from suffocation, he was forced to make it known. Employees of the express company are at a loss to explain Meyers' motive. A man giving the name of John Trask bought an empty box, which had contained a talking machine. Later in the day he hired an expressman to haul the box to the American Express office, where he had made arrangements to have it shipped to Galveston. Neither the expressman nor the company employer noticed anything particular about the box, which was securely nailed and weighed more than 300 pounds. Whether Meyers and Trask are the same, is not known here, but the police believed Trask had himself after making arrangements for the shipment.

> In St. Louis recently another phase of this hysteria, as many term it, has developed to an unusual degree. A number of women, having gotten their husbands into court on one charge or another, have refused to prosecute. In one case the husband was returned several different times, and in each instance the wife relented at the last moment. Finally he appeared charged with wife-beating, and the court arbitrarily ordered the offender to prison,

The beating had been administered because of the failure of the wife to supply her husband with money. DOCTOR PRESCRIBES CUTICURA REMEDIES

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr. — of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body, thighs, elbows, chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions, but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife, who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, told me she nailed in the box by confederates | was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies and give them a fair trial. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr. and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Ointment generously. Believe me, from the very first day's use of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and today he is completely cured through their use. I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.
