A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Walter French Escapes Death at Kenosha.

Death by a narrow margin was what Walter L. French escaped at Kenosha, Wis., Tuesday night when he was thrown under a train and two fingers of his left hand cut off.

Mr. French had gone to Kenosha to join a party on a hunting trip, and when the train was pulling into Kenosha, he mistook a train on a siding for a moving train, and believing that the train on which he was riding had stopped, he swung himself off the platform. The train was running fourteen miles an hour and he was thrown to the station platform and rolled off the platform under the train.

He grasped the rail with his left hand, and although two trucks passed over the hand he managed to hold his body away from the rail until the train had been stopped. He was badly bruised, but the only broken bones were in the crushed fingers, which the physicians found necessary to amputate. He is again able to be around again.

Mrs. French, with daughter left Wednesday for Kenosha in response to a message informing her of the accident.

Michigan's Industries.

Michigan leads the world in several respects. It probably produces fully fifty per cent of the world's copper supply. Its furniture goes to every quarter of the globe, and it furnishes more of that commodity than any other states combined. It ranks first in the value of farm products generally. The Michigan apple, peach, potato, beet and wheat have long been in demand, and still supply unnumberable markets. One state only exceeds it in the manufacture of beet sugar. It has 7,000 square miles of coal lands, with a monthly output of over 50,000 tons. In lumber, iron ore, charcoal, iron, salt, cement, hardwood forests, gypsum, seeds, paints, varnishes, manufacturing and industries, the state takes either the foremost place or closely follows her superiors in the matter of production. The more recent industry of automobile or motor car manufacture has placed it at the head in that line throughout the world. That Detroit is a logical place for the world's auto center can be better understood after considering the following points. For years it has outclassed its competitors in the manufacture of radiators; in the building of cars; in turning out bodies for carriages and wagons; in the building of boats and watercraft of all kinds; in sheet brass and copper products; in paints and varnishes; it had at command all the finer and desirable woods; everything in the line of necessities or requirements in connection with the new industry was in abundance at its very doors. The first auto factory in Detroit was established in 1899. This industry has grown to mammoth proportions and today exceeds every other one in the city.—Ex.

The Detroit Journal recently referred in an editorial to the saloon evil in words and sentences so truthful and so conclusive that it leaves no question as to the actual sentiments of the Journal's editorial writer on that question. This is the Journal's statement: "A saloon at that corner meant that the workmen going to and from their shop or walking at lunch hour would be waylaid by the temptation of the saloon. Money would be left there that should go to the support of families. Young workmen would have their first taste in that place. Children would see their own fathers and brothers customers of the bar. It is no wonder that fathers and mothers protest. Manufacturers oppose saloons for the same reason that manufacturers provide light and comfort for their employees, for the sake of the men and the work." If there had been no anti-saloon literature published in Michigan during the past year other than this Detroit Journal editorial the argument and the appeal and the facts here given on that question would have been worthy to be regarded as thoroughly sufficient and conclusive.

Just received a new and beautiful line of Ladies Plush Coats of the well known Bischof make, at B. C. Hubbard & Co.

EXCELLENT ATTRACTION

"The Squaw Man" Coming at Temple Theatre Nov. 13th.

In "The Squaw Man," which comes to the Temple Theatre Nov. 13th Edwin Milton Royle has written a drama in which there is much stirring incident, and has mingled the tragic and lighter shades of life in the right proportions. The play tells a story that is full of throbbing interest that often becomes intense. Its glimpses of English life in the upper circles is followed by a picture of ranch life in the West that is breezy and natural. Its action is spirited, without being overdrawn, generally, its lines are meaty, and nowhere does it become "talky or tame. Much of its incidents are new, and in theme and treatment it is far above many of the latter-day successes, so far as morality is concerned. The leading role of "The Squaw Man" is admirably suited to Mr. Dill, and there is every indication of the part being one of his greatest successes. Clarence Bennett and Company, the managers of the enterprise, have given Mr. Dill an exceptionally strong, supporting company.

Most of the speakers sent to Maine to assist in the liquor traffic struggle to have the saloons opened up again in that state were very strenuous and urgent in their advocacy of local option. Local option could be forced, they said, and its success elsewhere ought to commend it to the people of Maine. The representatives of the liquor traffic made these statements in opposition to state prohibition. But the same fellows who so earnestly recommended local option in Maine are now in other states urging and advising against local option. They are for the saloons everywhere because of the money there is in it for them, and they are opposed to local option in one section just as vigorously as they are opposed to state prohibition elsewhere. It is necessary therefore that every opponent of the saloon, prohibitionist, local optionist, total abstinent, and all who recognize liquor selling and liquor drinking as public and individual evils should unite their forces in opposition to the saloon. They have a common foe and a mutual purpose and they should make a united fight in its behalf.

FREE IF IT FAILS

Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives or cathartics do much harm. They cause a reaction, irritate, and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associate organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They may be taken at any time, day or night. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments, if taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Sold in East Jordan only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

It is surprising to some to hear Empey Bros. say their business far exceeds any year yet. We presume to say that is brought about from the fact they are carrying a larger stock than ever.

The lecture of Mr. Booth, a missionary home from China on a furlough. In the Presbyterian Church last week was highly appreciated and was of unusual interest in the light thrown on his own work there, and its difficulties and encouragements. He and his wife are supported by C. E. Societies of this state including the Local Society. At the close of the lecture those present adjourned to the chapel and a pleasant informal time was spent, questions being answered by Mr. Booth many interesting curios and photographs illustrative of Chinese life and manners.

Howard Porter is in attendance on the great State Sunday School Convention in Bay City as Delegate from the Presbyterian Sunday School.

Lookout for further notice as to place of meeting of the Presbyterian Ladies Missionary Society next Friday afternoon at 2:30. A very interesting program has been prepared.

County Normal Notes.

Last week the class made beet pickles. The children from the training room pulled the beets so they have a share in them.

Winnie Cunningham and Enid Todd are editors for this week, Marguerite Munger has charge of the ventilation of the room and Georgia Adams is gardener.

Miss Taylor and Mr. Bennett, of the class of 1911, were visitors at the normal Thursday morning. They both spoke of their school work and the best methods that they found to be of the most use in a country school.

Mr. Catton, principal of the Benzie academy, gave a very interesting talk before the high school and normal students Monday morning.

Countess Mason was sent as a delegate to the W. C. T. U. district convention which was held at East Jordan. We are patiently waiting for a report of the meeting.

The normal room has new slate blackboards. They are divided into sections allowing one section for each person.

Miss Jarvis invited the normal class to observe the reading class of her first grade. The lesson was well developed by means of objects.

Necessary Labor.

Everything within and about us shows that it never was intended that man should be idle. Our own health and comfort and the welfare and happiness of those around us, all require that man should labor. Mind, body, soul, all alike suffer and rust out by idleness. The idler is a source of mental and moral offense to everybody around. He is a nuisance in the world and needs abatement for the public good, like any other source of pestilence.

A Chance Now.

Some enterprising man in East Jordan can step into a nice business that is bound to grow in your town. We have had so many letters from ladies asking us "why we can not establish a carpet cleaning machine here." If you have a gray line or any business to run in connection write us at once and we will assist you in placing the most modern machine made at a price that will surprise you and your city will amply support such an enterprise. A visit to our plant in Petoskey will convince the most skeptical. Write at once as the fall cleaning will pay for it.

Sort of Job He Wanted.

"There's what I'm looking for," said the lazy man going through the want advertisements for an easy job, as his eye lighted on a call for canvassers to sell something that "would sell itself." "That's the sort of a job I want," he said to himself. "Something that I can earn money at without work." And he thought that really some day he must go down and look 'em up.

TUBERCULOSIS TO DISAPPEAR.

Tuberculosis is diminishing in amount the world over, and it is predicted that in 25 or 30 years it will have quite disappeared.

While a rather low percentage of hits was attained with the 14-inch gun, which is to be the offensive weapon of the new battleships, New York and Texas, it is claimed that one well-placed shot from this terribly powerful piece of ordnance will fatally disable or destroy any fighting ship now afloat.

Nobody wants to stop cold storage. That has come to stay, and, fairly conducted, it is a benefit to the public.

There are always consolations in any misfortune. One Frenchman tries to assuage the grief of his afflicted nation by remarking that Mona Lisa's smile is nothing more than a consumptive grimace.

An aviator in Illinois broke another record by taking his mother with him on an air ride 2,500 feet high.

A New York broker is looking for a wife who has "the English conservatism and love of home, the vivacity of the French and the intensity and fervor of the Italian girl."

It has officially been decided in Boston that a woman is young until she is 35.

Why doesn't the Paris editor challenged by a lecturer on woman's rights and accused of cowardice because he doesn't accept the challenge, name five lives as the weapons to be used?

Patsy Flynn of Hartford, Conn., has been sent to jail fifty-seven times in sixteen years, and claims to hold the record.

Boston has a variety of mosquito that sings but does not sting. Still, even the free concert business may be overdone.

Atwood may quit aviation, which he says is certain to lead to sudden death. It usually is extremely sudden in the case of an aviator.

Business Education

High School Tries to Make a Man of Student

By JOHN BRAYLE BRUCE

UNLESS one intends to study law or medicine a high-school education is unnecessary, according to a writer. I cannot agree.

It is true that certain studies are taught that are preparatory to these professions, but we have also a commercial course, such as bookkeeping, penmanship, stenography, commercial geography, commercial law, political economy and many similar studies in our high-school course.

Does not a good knowledge of German (not merely knowing how to say "Wie gehts" or "Guten morgen") come in handy in business life? Studies like algebra and geometry are not only of interest, but they develop quick thinking and sound judgment.

Of course, nine times out of ten, algebra or geometry will never be used in business, but it is the results of such study that count.

The statement that high-school chaps lower the wage scale is not only wrong but absurd.

A high-school graduate will not work for lower (let alone as low) wages than many boys who have not his education. He knows his ability and expects to be paid wages accordingly.

A high-school graduate certainly is not "satisfied with cigarette money" and it can be readily seen that few of them, comparatively, smoke cigarettes.

Now, aside from the business education of high school, there are other things, and are there not other things in life than merely a business education?

In conversation does not one like to be a little informed on all topics, whether historical, scientific or on any other?

A business man must know a little more than the mere facts relating to his business.

A salesman, to be successful, must know of other things to talk about than his wares.

I do not mean by this to imply that a grammar-school graduate will not succeed. It depends on him. But a good education combined with good natural qualities must of necessity fetch the better results.

The high school tries to teach and make a man out of every student who has the will to exert himself.

So we see that a high-school education is very good for the one of moderate as well as of small means, that it is essential for business as well as for professions and that it certainly should be encouraged.

How Clerks Treat Many Fancy Post Cards

By J. L. DOUGHERTY

A tissue paper envelope is like any other envelope and a card inside with writing on it requires postage at the rate of two cents an ounce or fraction.

The postage stamp must always be on the envelope, not on the card below.

Any card bearing some material other than paper fastened to it must have the regular first-class postage if it contains a message.

Besides being lost because of violating these rules, many cards are not delivered because of careless addressing by the sender.

Would Banish All Canines In Cities

By DR. CHAS. W. DUDLEY Montreal

In looking over the columns of a morning paper I noted where during the previous twenty-four hours five or six people in a certain locality had been more or less severely bitten by dogs, some of which were in the category of pets.

My view is that the time is now at hand when dogs will be considered as much out of place in cities as hogs or cattle.

As a matter of fact, the ideal urban community will not give shelter to any dumb animal with the possible exception of the horse, and even its presence is extremely objectionable on sanitary grounds, for if there were no stables crusades against the filthy housefly would be unnecessary.

As far as dogs are concerned there is not a single tenable argument for their retention in towns; in the unpoliced rural districts they are unquestionably of value in driving off the predatory tramp.

Any man who has witnessed the awful laceration of little children by ferocious brutes or watched the death agonies of those in whom hydrophobia developed, will hail the day when it will be an offense against the law to keep a dog inside the limits of a city.

Escape Hay Fever In Far East

By SUMERI NAGASHIO Los Angeles

If hay fever is caused by the dust which does not every one have it? Why does it always come in the fall of the year and stay until the first frost, instead of the early summer, when dust is even more plentiful.

Why do we have hay fever worse in some states than in others, and in some not at all? And why do we have it worse in the country where the air is free from dust, but filled with the poisons thrown from the dry dog weeds, rag weeds and jimson weeds?

INTEREST SHOWN IN BOX PACK FOR SHIPMENT OF APPLES

It is Commercial Proposition and Cannot be Made Successful Unless Grower Will See That Fruit is Well Sprayed, Grown, Picked at Right Time and Properly Assorted.

There is a woeful lack of realization of what the requirements of a good box pack are. Those seen on the market show no system of packing, or if they were once placed in the box in regular order the pack was so loose that the apples did not remain in position.

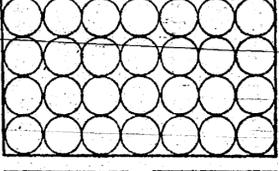

Grading Board.

been graded. Some were fairly uniform as to size—at least on top. The commission men said they were no better in the middle than the proverbial barrel pack, but others showed no uniformity whatever in size. The quality was usually "something awful," the fruit being, in most cases, third-grade stuff.

The first requisite in catering to the box trade in apples is to grade the fruit as to size and quality. One of the illustrations shows a grading board which is used only at the start, because men and women soon train their eyes to recognize differences in sizes.

The packing table, found most useful, is shown herewith. It is about 3 feet high, 3 feet wide and 3 feet long. The bars are made of 2x4-inch material, and beveled off at their tops so as to leave no corners which would bruise the fruit.

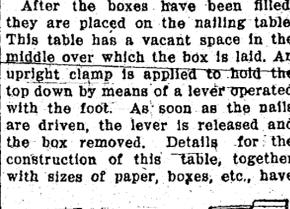

Styles of Packing.

The fruit rubber hose is nailed around the top of the table. A board is nailed across the end and another at the side to serve as supports for the boxes, which are placed at an angle, as shown. The tray shown at the left is for holding paper, which is wrapped about each individual apple.

Apples of only one size are brought to the packing table at one time, so as to facilitate packing. The packer begins by first lining the sides of the box with paper a trifle smaller than the length of the box.

After the boxes have been filled they are placed on the nailing table. This table has a vacant space in the middle over which the box is laid. An upright clamp is applied to hold the top down by means of a lever operated with the foot.

CONDITION OF LAYING HENS

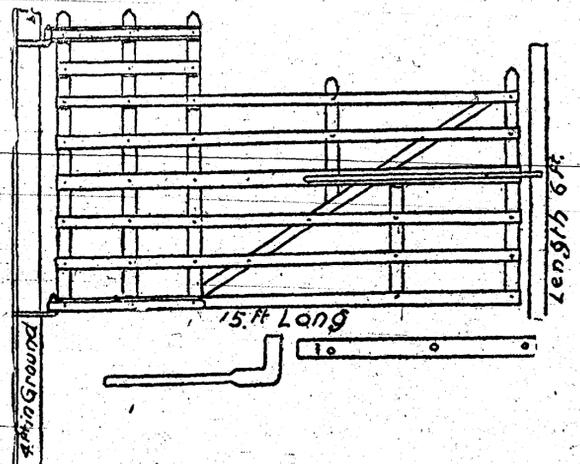

Little Surplus Fat Indicates That Her Bodily Wants Have Been Well Taken Care of.

A hen in the best laying condition has some surplus fat on her body. This means that her bodily wants have been supplied and that there is some food to spare. A very fat hen seldom lays well; a poor hen cannot lay well.

The first part of the egg which is made is the yolk, which contains 30 per cent. albumen and 64 per cent. fat. New growth and egg production only come from the surplus food not needed to keep up the body.

Fine-Wooled Sheep Best. Fine-wooled sheep, as a rule, are longer lived than the medium or coarse-wooled.

ERECTION OF DURABLE GATE

The gate shown in the illustration can be made any height or length, and of lumber of any size. Use six boards 1 by 8 inches and 15 feet long. Three upright pieces, the first 2 by 8 inches, the second 2 by 6, and the third 2 by 4.

for brace to hold, which makes it very strong. The gate is fastened to the post with strap hinges made of old wagon tire. Hinges must be long enough so they may be bolted onto each of the three upright pieces.

Clear corn is far from being the best feed for fattening sheep, especially fattening lambs. A little wheat or some form, even if damaged badly will help greatly.

SPLENDID CANADIAN CROPS

Wheat, Oats and Barley Universally Good Throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The reports that come to hand from the wheat fields of the western Canadian provinces show remarkably good yields in all parts. Yields are recorded of wheat going 35 and 40 bushels in many places, and oats from 60 to 100 bushels per acre.

Some Mosquitoes. "Yes," said the traveler who had just returned from South Africa. "I was one day so annoyed by mosquitoes that I was compelled to take refuge in an old iron safe which lay discarded on the yard."

This One Is on Hugh. "When I came into the Union station the other morning, after traveling all night," said Hugh Kelly, at the Commercial club, "I went into the barber shop. When you spend the night in a sleeping car, I said to the barber, 'It doesn't improve your personal appearance, does it?'"

Overheard in Venice. "Isn't it romantic, John, dear," said she as they sat in the little Venetian garden, "to sit here and listen to these Italian troubadours singing their ballads bathed in the moonlight?"

A Superior Person. F. H. Elliott, the secretary of the American Automobile association, was talking about a somewhat supercilious and conceited millionaire.

Important to Mothers. Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher.

It requires a great deal of mind to be silent at the right time and in the right place. Circumstances form the character; but like petrifying matters they harden while they form.—L. E. London.

His Blasted Life. "You refused me ten years ago." "I remember," said the heiress. "You said it would wreck your life." "It did. I have had to work for a living ever since."

Early Standards of Mendacity. Evo meditated. "I think that story Adam told me is a lie out of the whole leaf," she announced. Why is it that so many people suffer with lame back? Hamline Wizard Oil will cure it and for Aches, Sprains, Bruises, Cuts, Burns, etc., there is nothing better.

Priscilla

Thus for a while he stood, and mused by the shore of the ocean, thinking of many things, and most of all of Priscilla; and as if thought had the power to draw to itself, like the lodestone, whatsoever it touches, by subtle laws of its nature, lo! as he turned to depart, Priscilla was standing beside him.

"Are you so much offended, you will not speak to me?" said she. "Am I so much to blame, that yesterday, when you were pleading warmly the cause of another, my heart, impulsive and wayward, pleaded your own, and spake out, forgetful perhaps of decorum? Certainly you can forgive me for speaking so frankly, for saying what I ought not to have said, yet now I can never unsay it. For there are moments in life, when the heart is so full of emotion, that if by chance it be shaken, or into its depths like a pebble, drops some careless word, it overflows, and its secret, spilt on the ground like water, can never be gathered together. Yesterday I was shocked, when I heard you speak of Miles Standish, praising his virtues, transforming his very defects into virtues, praising his courage and strength, and even his fighting in Flanders, as if by fighting alone you could win the heart of a woman, quite overlooking yourself and the rest, in exalting your hero, therefore I spake as I did, by an irresistible impulse. You will forgive me, I hope, for the sake of the friendship between us, which is too true and too sacred to be so easily broken!" Thereupon answered John Alden, the scholar, the friend of Miles Standish: "I was not angry with you, with myself alone I was angry, seeing how badly I managed the matter I had in my keeping."

"No!" interrupted the maiden, with answer prompt and decisive; "No; you were angry with me for speaking so frankly and freely. It was wrong, I acknowledge; for it is the fate of a woman. Long to be patient and silent, to wait like a ghost that is speechless, till some questioning voice dissolves the spell of its silence. Hence is the inner life of so many suffering women. Sunless and silent and deep, like subterranean rivers running through caverns of darkness, unheard, unseen, and unfruitful, Homeward Together They Walked.

Chafing their channels of stone, with endless and profitless murmurs." Thereupon answered John Alden, the young man, the lover of women: "Heaven forbid it, Priscilla; and truly they seem to me always more like the beautiful rivers that watered the Garden of Eden, more like the river Euphrates, through deserts of Havilah flowing, filling the land with delight, and memories sweet of the garden!" "Ah, by these words, I can see," again interrupted the maiden, "how very little you prize me, or care for what I am saying. When from the depths of my heart, in pain and with secret misgiving, frankly I speak to you, asking for sympathy only and kindness, Straightway you take up my words, that are plain and direct and in earnest, turn them away from their meaning, and answer with flattering phrases. This is not right, is not just, is not true to the best that is in you; for I know and esteem you, and feel that your nature is noble, lifting mine up to a higher, a more ethereal level. Therefore I value your friendship, and feel it perhaps the more keenly if you say aught that implies I am only as one among many, if you make use of those common and complimentary phrases. Most men think so fine, in dealing and speaking with women, but which women reject as insipid, if not as insulting."

Mute and amazed was Alden; and listened and looked at Priscilla, thinking he never had seen her more fair, more divine in her beauty. He who but yesterday pleaded so glibly the cause of another, stood there embarrassed and silent, and seeking in vain for an answer. So the maiden went on, and little divined or imagined what was at work in his heart, that made him so awkward and speechless. "Let us, then, be what we are, and speaking what we think, and in all things keep ourselves loyal to truth, and the sacred professions of friendship. It is no secret I tell you, nor am I ashamed to declare it: I have liked to be with you, to see you, to speak with you always. So I was hurt at your words, and a little affronted to hear you urge me to marry your friend, though he were the Captain Miles Standish. For I must tell you the truth: much more to me is your friendship than all the love he could give, were he twice the hero you think him." Then she extended her hand, and Alden, who eagerly grasped it, felt all the wounds in his heart, that were aching and bleeding so sorely. Healed by the touch of that hand, and he said, with a voice full of feeling:

"The Porto Rican's Arsenal. 'I have been visiting one of our outlying possessions,' said E. Stanley Faversham. 'I wanted a new sensation in the way of travel, and thought it would be worth while to take a look at Porto Rico. 'The Spanish inhabitants cling to their old customs to a great extent, and a stranger is impressed by the remarkable devotion to canes. Men, young and old, and even boys, carry some sort of a walking stick, and the Porto Rico dandies are very proud of the way they can twirl a cane and make passes with it as with a sword. 'The dude of the Porto Rico country is very proud of his collection of canes and refers to it as his arsenal.'—Washington Post.

Without Regard to Expense. After a week in the country, up in Montgomery county, a prominent lawyer returned to town determined to stay here during the summer. But before coming home he had the satisfaction of telling the keeper of the 'real old country boarding farmhouse' just what he thought of things. 'There is one thing on your table,' said the lawyer, 'which is not to be excelled by the best hotels of New York or Philadelphia. 'What is it?' asked the farmer. 'The salt,' answered the attorney with a fine display of biting sarcasm. 'Well, I'm glad ye liked it,' returned the farmer. 'It's the best Jimson's keep, an' I ain't pertickler about the price.'—Philadelphia Times.

Girl Fire Chief. Port Tampa, Fla., is to be protected from fire by a brigade organized and trained by the daughter of the late chief of the Tampa Fire Department. This girl, Maggie Harris, is said to be the first girl in the United States, and probably in the world, to organize a fire department. About 40 men have agreed to serve under her direction. She is drilling them according to the rules and methods of her late father.—Popular Mechanics.

"Yes, we must ever be friends; and of all who offer you friendship let me be ever the first, the truest, the nearest and dearest!"

Casting a farewell look at the glittering sail of the Mayflower, distant, but still in sight, and sinking below the horizon, homeward together they walked, with a strange, indefinite feeling. That all the rest had departed and left them alone in the desert. But, as they went through the fields in the blessing and smile of the sunshine, lighter grew their hearts, and Priscilla said very archly: "Now that our terrible Captain has gone in pursuit of the Indians, where he is happier far than he would be commanding a household, you may speak boldly, and tell me of all that happened between you, when you returned last night, and said how ungrateful you found me."

Thereupon answered John Alden, and told her the whole of the story—told her his own despair, and the direful wrath of Miles Standish. Whereat the maiden smiled, and said between laughing and earnest, "He is a little chimney, and heated hot in a moment!" But as he gently rebuked her, and told her how much he had suffered, how he had even determined to sail that day in the Mayflower, and had remained for her sake, on hearing the dangers that threatened, all her manner was changed, and she said with a faltering accent, "Truly I thank you for this; how good you have been to me always!"

Thus as a pilgrim devout, who toward Jerusalem journeys, taking three steps in advance, and one reluctantly backward, urged by importunate zeal, and withheld by pangs of contrition; slowly but steadily onward, receding yet ever advancing, journeyed this Puritan youth to the Holy Land of his longings, urged by the fervor of love, and withheld by remorseful misgivings. Many New Ideas Are to Be Found Among the Latest Effects Designed.

Practically all the new coats are made full length and cut on straight lines. They are made up in pongee, soft finished taffeta and rubberized silk.

Among the novelty coats for fall are those made of taffeta or silk serge and lined with heavy cloth, the cloth being used for the trimming.

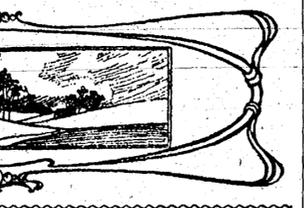

Silks, and especially silk velvets, are in the highest favor, and three silk frocks are seen now where before two were shirtwaists and suit skirts.

The large collar revers and deep turn-back cuffs are much in evidence in new jackets. Quite a number have skirts trimmed to correspond with the jackets.

The grandfather frill is still in favor. Formed of a triple frill of point d'esprit net falling in a cascade down one side of the corsage, it makes a pretty finish for almost any gown.

When sleeves are of the peasant type, large folded back cuffs are usually employed as trimmings, with perhaps a narrow undersleeve of some sheer white material, net or all-over embroidery.

Black or dark blue taffeta tailor-mades, trimmed with fringe, are one of the inventions of the year. Taffeta is coming into more and more favor and a strenuous vogue for it is undoubtedly ahead.

Two-Sided Jabots.

The modest little jabot which used to fill in the V of the coat opening now looks prim and old-fashioned, indeed. New jabots are stupendous affairs, which make the whole coat front white and fluffy with sheer material and lace frills. This jabot has on one side a rever of tucked lawn and lace. At the straight edge of the rever is a jabot frill of platted lawn and lace, very wide at the top and tapering to nothing at the bottom. The frill turns back over the left side of the coat front, the rever lying flat across the right side.

Three Costumes

Walking Costume.—Cloth of serge would make up well in this style; the skirt has a floating panel down front taken to within a few inches of foot. The basque of the Russian coat is added under a belt of black satin, the revers are also of satin edged with black and white striped silk; this with a binding of satin trims the sleeves; a frill of soft lace adds a finish.

Hat of black satin, trimmed with ostrich feathers.

Visiting Dress.—Eau de Nil Venetian cloth is used here, the skirt is slightly high-waisted, and is trimmed part way down each side by cord sewn on quite straight, with a waving of narrower cord between; a row of buttons is sewn on the inside, little openings are left at the foot, to show pieces of material trimmed with cord. The Magyar bodice is trimmed to match, with the addition of black satin, which forms straps outside cord, and finishes collar and cuffs.

Hat of Tassel to match, trimmed with a feather and head cabouchon.

Smart Dress.—This becoming dress is made up in vieux rose delaine, patterned in black and white, and in plain vieux rose delaine. The tunic and lower part of bodice are of the fancy delaine, the latter is prettily trimmed with strappings of black satin, which also edge the over-sleeves and yoke, while lace is used for the under-sleeves and yoke; the lower part of skirt and upper of bodice are of the plain delaine.

Hat of black chip, trimmed with an aigrette and a large rosette of vieux rose tulle.

ADORNMENT FOR THE BABY

Much Consideration Has Been Given to Designs for the Small Hausenoid Monarch.

Sunray shirring is coming in again, and very quaint it looks on the little white bonnets for infants and their sisters of two or three years. The backs of the bonnets are stiffened and round and the side portions also are shirred.

One dainty little bonnet of this style is bordered with a band of white fur, and a second has a narrower band of mink and tiny dabs of the mink over the ears.

Pink apple blossoms appear on one model, and a cluster of round, pink, unopened buds on another. A wreath is also a very pretty decoration, one being just an applique of alternating leaves and petals, the leaves being of moss-green velvet and the petals of pink silk. White chiffon makes some of these bonnets and white bengaline others. One combines the two materials, the chiffon being shirred in bands and used to trim the more severe outlines of the bengaline.

For a very new baby a long dress has a three-inch ruffle at the foot, applied with cording. A bow of pale blue ribbon, with streamers that reach almost to the hem of the long skirt, is caught at the left side near the shoulder.

For a little tot in short dresses there is a dainty coat of accordion-plaited white chiffon, with a forward turning hem, and a little cape made of white bengaline, embroidered.

CHILDREN'S GARMENTS

The best-selling styles in children's garments are those that are copied from women's wear, says the Dry-goods Economist. It is surprising how becoming these little coats are. For example, the shawl collar and side fastening, so popular with the grown-ups, are also meeting with great success in children's coats. The same is true of the hood effects, pointed collars, new shape sailors and Incroyable revers. Even the cut-up seams are being employed by the designers with considerable success.

LITTLE SILK BOLEROS

The dressmakers have experimented with boleros for two seasons, and they seem to have landed them into fashion at last. They are worn in bright colors, with white muslin gowns or old-fashioned frocks of floral or gaudie. They are finished around the edge with a plaited ruffling of ribbon or a ruffle of lace. The severe ones have only a thick cable cord covered with silk or satin.

MUNYON PREACHES HOPE PHILOSOPHY

New Association Gaining Many Members.

FAITH'S CURATIVE POWER

NOTED HEALTH EXPERT GIVES REASON FOR BIG SUCCESS IN MEDICINE

Tremendous success has attended the organization of the new Munyon "Hope Cult." Professor Munyon claims that he has secured more converts than he anticipated, and says that his "Hope Cult" is growing in leaps and bounds. It is said that the total membership of the association throughout the United States is now well over the half million mark. In a statement for publication Prof. Munyon said:

"I want to talk to every sick, ailing and despondent person in this city. I want to preach my new creed to them. I want to tell them about my new philosophy of health, which is the fruit of a lifetime of study and experience in dealing with sick folk.

"I want to expound the Great Truth that I have learned that there is more curative power in an ounce of Hope than in pounds of Dope. That sick people should not take medicine except as a medium through which the great curative power of Hope may be made effective. Medicines are necessary in the present state of the world's progress because they give a patient physical support and strength and renew vigor with which to brace up the will power. One knows, from the action of the proper medicine, that he or she is feeling better by this inspired hope and faith, which complete the cure.

"I think that probably a million persons at least in the United States have declared themselves cured by my medicines, and I know that these people have had the best remedies medical science had to offer. I have always contended that if there is any virtue in medicine my followers should have the best, but I very rarely have more than one-half of those who have been lifted to health from the bondage of chronic illness, through taking my medicines, have been really cured by the knowledge that they had the utmost in medical lore at their command, and the Hope this inspired.

"I am not in any sense a practicing physician, employ at my laboratories in Philadelphia a large staff of expert physicians and chemists, and I have many other physicians in various cities of the United States detailed to give free advice to the sick and afflicted. My headquarters are at Munyon's Laboratories, 524 and Jefferson Sts., Phila., Pa., and I have there a staff of duly registered physicians and consulting experts, and to all who desire it I offer the best of medical advice absolutely free of charge.

Write today, addressing Prof. J. M. Munyon personally, and your letter will have a special care.

RASH ALL OVER BABY'S BODY

Itched So He Could Not Sleep

"On July 27, 1909, we left Boston for a trip to England and Ireland, taking baby with us. After being in Ireland a few days a nasty rash came out all over his body. We took him to a doctor who gave us medicine for him. The trouble started in the form of a rash and was all over baby's body, head and face, at different times. It irritated, and he would scratch it with all his might. The consequence was it developed into sores, and we were afraid it would leave nasty scars on his face.

"When we reached England we took baby to another doctor, who said his condition was due to change of food and climate; and gave more medicine. The rash got no better, and it used to itch and burn at night so bad that the child could not sleep. He was completely covered with it at different times. It was at this time that my mother advised us to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for about nine months the places disappeared. There are not any scars, or other kind of disfigurement, and baby is completely cured by the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. We have no further trouble with baby's skin. Nothing stopped the itching, and allowed baby to sleep but Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Margaret Gunn, 29 Burrill St., Roxbury, Mass., March 12, 1911.

ALTHOUGH CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT ARE SOLD EVERYWHERE, A SAMPLE OF EACH, WITH 32-PAGE BOOK, WILL BE MAILED FREE ON APPLICATION TO CUTICURA, DEPT. 14 K, BOSTON.

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do, without a thought of fame.—Longfellow.

Cork the Beauty Center.
For several months go to Cork. On the occasion of her first visit to Ireland—in 1870—Queen Victoria wrote of the women of Cork: "The beauty struck us much; such beautiful dark eyes and hair, and such fine teeth; almost every third woman was pretty, and some remarkably so." Of the women of Belfast there was less to be said, nothing more than: "The people are a mixture of nations, and feminine beauty had almost disappeared."—London Chronicle.

"It's a Failure."
When a man's marriage is a failure, he might as well ask, "Is life a failure?" for marriage partakes of the imperfections of life, and, no more than life, is to be condemned for its imperfections. It is quite true that no marriage is perfectly happy, just as no lives are perfectly happy. But those who seek marriage for this reason assume that it is an institution designed to produce perfect happiness—that is to say, they assume an absurdity.—London Times.

Character in Hand Shake.
How we think a man's nature is shown by the way he shakes hands; that he may have the manners of Chesterfield, and smile very sweetly, but yet say still or steel your heart against him the moment he shakes hands with you. But there is, he says, a cordial clasp which shows warmth of impulse, unhesitating truth, and even power of character—a clasp which recalls the classic trust in the "faith of the right hand."

Blood Thicker Than Some Water.
"Blood is thicker than water" though not much thicker—and not so thick as sea water. The water of the ocean contains 35 parts of saline material a thousand, while the vital fluid of the human body contains but seven parts a thousand or one-fifth as much. In the human body each of its myriads of cells is bathed with this seven-tenths per cent. saline fluid.—Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette.

Wanted His Disguise.
A man who traded horses with a Queen to him a few days later and said: "You beat me in that trade." "Well, what does thee want me to do?" Does thee want me to trade back?" inquired Broadbrim. "Oh, no; not at all. I just want you to lend me your hat for a few days, till I trade with somebody else."—Ran's Horn.

Indians in European Dress.
A growing number of Indians are adopting European dress. For our own part we think this is very much to be regretted in its life. We wish Indians would retain their own easy and dignified dress and spare their money for something more worth having than cheap and ugly imitations of European cloth.—Madras Weekly Mail.

Happiness in Employment.

CAUSES MUCH DISEASE
Advice About Stomach Troubles and How to Relieve Them.

Do not neglect indigestion which may lead to all sorts of ills and complications. An eminent physician once said that ninety-five per cent of all the ills of the human body have their origin in a disordered stomach.

Our experience with Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets leads us to believe them to be among the most dependable remedies known for the relief of indigestion and chronic dyspepsia. Their ingredients are soothing and healing to the inflamed membranes of the stomach. They are rich in pepsin, one of the greatest digestive aids known to medicine. The relief they afford is very prompt. Their use with persistency and regularity for a short time tends to bring about a cessation of the pains caused by stomach disorders.

Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets help to insure healthy appetite, to aid digestion, and thus promote nutrition. As evidence of our sincere faith in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, we ask you to try them at our risk. If they do not give you entire satisfaction, we will return you the money you paid us for them, without question or formality. They come in three sizes, prices 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

Two little boys nine and four years old, sat on a front seat in the court room and their eyes bulged out as they looked about the great room where papa and mama were being legally separated. It was another case where the saloon and its influences were destroying a home. Augusta Nau was suing her husband George Nau for divorce, because of drunkenness and nonsupport. The husband admitted to Judge Donovan that he had spent considerable time in the saloons this summer. He had tried to keep away from them he said, and many times through recent years had succeeded in avoiding them for a season. But always the saloon had finally taken him away from the home and had left his family without support. Judge Donovan decided that in this case, as in many others, the saloon would continue to hold its victim and he granted the divorce. And that is why it was told in the Detroit News that two little boys, nine and four years old, sat on the front seat in the court room and looked into the strange faces about them while their papa and mama were being legally separated. The penalty of saloon demands were being paid in full including the wrecking of a home and the suffering and separation of its children.

THE ICE HOUSE

By H. H. MUSSELMAN, Instructor in Farm Mechanics, Michigan Agricultural College.

Perhaps during some of the hotter days of summer not a few have resolved to forestall the running of the butter, the souring of the milk and the spoiling of the roast by means of some method of cooling. The present is not a bad time to think about carrying these resolves into action.

One method where good ice may be obtained at a reasonable distance from a lake or stream is to provide an ice house and ice box or refrigerator. Ice making, though somewhat disagreeable, may be done at a time of the year when other work is slack, and if attacked in the right way is no worse than much other work which must be done. With a bountiful supply of ice, and a refrigerator of sufficient capacity, cold storage may be provided for food and dairy products. It is recommended that a refrigerator of not less than 100 pounds capacity of ice be used for average conditions, and one of from 150 pounds to 200 pounds capacity will be found to advantage in some cases.

The ice box or refrigerator should be easily accessible to the kitchen and dining room, and for filling. If placed so that it may be filled without entering the house a great deal of dirt may be avoided. This is sometimes accomplished by placing the refrigerator on the back porch or in a permanent location where it may be filled from an outside window.

With regard to ice storage, an expensive or specially constructed building is not essential. Any room of proper dimensions where good underdrainage may be provided, the walls fairly airtight and so arranged that ventilation may be secured above, ice may be stored without great loss from melting. A building designed for this purpose will have several points of advantage, however.

In building an ice house the capacity is the first thing to be considered. Solid ice weighs about 56 pounds per cubic foot, and stored ice, allowing for voids between cakes and layers, averages about 40 pounds per cubic foot. On this basis a cube of stored ice 10x10x10 feet would weigh 20 tons. Assuming a consumption of 500 pounds per week, a weight of one ton per month would be consumed, which for six months would be six tons. Considerable allowance must be made for meltage, however, so that it is safe to say that space for not less than fifteen or twenty tons should be provided. In cutting ice the size of cakes should be such as will be best suited to loading, storing and the size of the ice box or refrigerator. A cake of ice 8 inches thick, 18 inches wide and 30 inches long weighs 140 pounds, so that some care should be taken not to get the cakes too large for handling, especially where lifting must be done.

The keeping property of ice depends almost altogether on how well it is insulated from the heat. Air, mineral wool, asbestos, sawdust, shavings and chaff are good non-conductors. Air is one of the best, provided it is confined to small porous spaces, as in the voids in sawdust, shavings, etc. Dry materials are also more effective as non-conductors of heat as a rule than wet. Let us note how these principles may be applied in ice storage.

We have mentioned good drainage beneath the ice. In any event there will be considerable meltage and the water thus formed should be drained away to prevent wetting of the non-conducting material and thereby rendering it less effective. A line of ordinary drain tile should be laid under the center or along each side below the ice and covered with six inches of gravel. This, then, should be spread with from four to six inches of cinders, if obtainable, which is a better non-conductor than gravel. On the cinders then should be placed from six to twelve inches of sawdust or shavings, upon which the ice is laid. The tile drain should be provided with a U trap outside of the ice house to prevent any possible chance of circulation of air beneath the ice.

The walls of the ice house may consist of studding sheathed on the inside with rough lumber, and with tar paper and siding outside. Cement blocks should also make excellent walls, since they do not deteriorate by dampness as does wood. Little is gained by placing sawdust between the sheathing and siding, as it is likely to become damp. Placing it thus does save rehandling each year, however. In any case the total thickness of insulation should not be less than 12 inches either at the sides, above or below the ice.

Ventilation is necessary above the ice to keep the air and insulating material dry. This may be accomplished by latticed windows and a ventilating flue or shaft at the peak of the roof. Protection from the sun is also advantageous. Shade trees and wide roof projection help in this respect. A continuous door, in the ice house is also desirable so that the ice may be put in at any level and unnecessary lifting avoided either in filling or taking out. Some means of keeping this opening closed quite tightly as high as the top of the non-conducting material should also be provided. To prevent channels forming for air to circulate heat to the ice, the insulating material should be rammed or packed down at intervals as the ice melts away and the top always kept well covered after each time ice is taken out.

It is fully as important to milk at regular times as it is to feed regularly—both affect the milk flow.

HAS THE FARMER TIME TO READ

By R. J. BALDWIN, Michigan Agricultural College.

When we say "we have no time" to do certain things it would be well to think reasonably long enough to be sure that the thing being left undone is not of more importance than the things which keep us from doing it. It is true that every business has its busy season when all surplus energy is used in the day's work and there is little time and less inclination to read. Especially is this true on the farm, but there is no business man who has more valuable material at his command than the farmer and no business which is advancing more rapidly in methods than agriculture.

The only way to keep in touch with the latest knowledge along a man's line of business is to secure the publications containing the experiences and knowledge of other men who are also working and learning in that particular line. The physicians, lawyers, engineers and other professional men each have their journals and societies; the bankers, merchants and lumbermen each have their means of distributing latest information; the farmer has numerous farm papers and journals, the bulletins of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and the publications of experiment stations in every state of the Union. All these institutions are investigating farm problems and methods and every year's work brings out new points which ought to be known and used by every farmer. Much old information is unknown to some of us because we have not formed the habit of reading. Fortunately farmers are becoming fewer who will not believe that farming can be learned from books and bulletins. They will still become fewer who insist that they have not time to read; they will be left behind in the keener competition of production. It is not a question of having time to read, but it is an undeniable certainty that no man can afford not to read and keep up with the best and latest information obtainable.

The Michigan experiment station publishes bulletins every few weeks (from ten to fifteen per year) on the various phases of agriculture and these may be secured regularly when published by writing to "Director Michigan Experiment Station, East Lansing, Mich.," and asking that your name be placed on the mailing list.

Harvesting and Storing Apples.
Practically every farmer with a small orchard on his farm, desires to store a few apples for home use during the winter.

It is one thing to grow a good crop of apples and quite another thing to properly harvest and store a good crop. There seems to be as much ignorance and carelessness in harvesting and storing as in the growing, resulting in an inexcusable amount of decay and waste of the fruit. A few pointers, at this time, to prevent such waste, are worth considering.

Time to Pick Apples.
If apples are harvested too early, they are apt to be undersized and of poor quality. If harvested too late, they will not keep as long in storage although they will be of high color and of good size and quality when picked. We do not expect a winter apple to be ripe at harvesting time. It should be full sized, however, well colored and it should separate readily from the spur. If, when picking the apples, the stems are pulled out or the spurs broken, it is too early to harvest that particular variety.

Method of Harvesting.
Apples should be handled like eggs. Any break or rupture in the skin caused by worms or carelessness in handling is the starting point for the various rots and other forms of decay. No fruit harvested by shaking of branches or knocking the fruit off with poles, is worth storing. Hand-picking is absolutely essential. The fruit should be grasped by the palm of the hand that no abrasion may be made by the finger nails. By slightly twisting the fruit and bending it upward, it should separate readily from the spur.

Apples should be placed and not thrown or let fall into the picking basket. A careless picker will ruin more fruit by letting it fall into his basket instead of carefully placing it there than his services are worth. A great amount of fruit is also ruined by pouring it from the picking basket into barrels. If barrels are used, the basket should be inserted into the barrel and carefully inverted that the fruit may not be injured.

The fruit should then be stored as soon as possible. Piling the fruit in the orchard is a wasteful practice. The fruit heats in the piles and ripens very readily. The aim in storing fruit is to retard this ripening process that the fruit may be kept longer. Do not store fruit that has been piled in the orchard for any considerable time after picking. Get a good spring wagon for hauling the fruit into storage. A springless wagon, especially over rough roads, will injure the fruit for storing. If the fruit is packed in tight boxes or barrels, it will store better than if open crates are used.

Milford, N. H.—One of the remarkable curiosities of nature is the "Ballet Girl" tree, on the road from Milford, to the railroad station at Pownach.

The formation of the limbs of the tree is such that when the leaves come out it gives a remarkable representation of a ballet girl and is further intensified if a breeze is blowing, and the figure moves with a motion not unlike that of one going through the latest two-step.

The tree was first discovered by some summer guests, for although it

East Jordan High School LYCEUM COURSE

Five BIG Numbers.

Two Splendid Lecturers, Two Fine Musicals and An Evening of Interpretation, all booked again by the Redpath-Slayton Bureau.

Opening Number - - The Anita's Concert - - Nov. 17th

Much of the success of our course this year will depend upon the hearty co-operation of our patrons of former years. Last year we gave you Gillilan, Saunders, Colledge, Rogers-Grilley, and Kellogg-Haines. Did they not "make good" splendidly? Did you not get your money's worth? We know that you are going to be with us again, but we desire all your neighbors as well. Why should we not fill the theatre at every number? There are enough people in East Jordan who can easily afford it. We earnestly request the assistance of all who have the good of the community at heart to bring this to pass, that the benefits of the Lyceum may extend to every home in our city.

May we ask a careful and conscientious reading of our announcements in this and later issues. If you think we have been reasonably fair and truthful in our claims for the Lyceum, then join us in this worthy co-operative enterprise. What are you to do? Tell everybody that you enjoy the Lyceum, that it is a help to the town, that it is so cheap you almost feel ashamed to take so much for so little. Keep at it; tell them in-season and out of season. Tell them where they can get a ticket, and how little they cost. If you have already heard any of this year's talent, tell your friends how good they are. What for? (1) To fill the house and spread the Lyceum gospel; (2) To relieve the anxiety of the committee who assume the financial burdens without thought of personal gain. What is there in it? Read-on and see!

WHY EAST JORDAN SHOULD HAVE A LYCEUM COURSE

There are so many important reasons and all so obvious why every community should have a Lyceum course that it is strange that any town in this enlightened age should any more think of getting along from year to year without the benefits and advantages of this institution than it would its local newspapers. In fact, the community of the present day without a Lyceum course is about as much a back-woodstown as though it had no newspaper.

The Lyceum and Chautauqua platform is today recognized by our great politicians and statesmen, both progressives and conservatives, as one of two great factors in the wave of insurgency and reform which has swept over this in the last few years. The other factor is the press, and these two institutions have, to no small extent, been traveling hand in hand. The newspaper can not take the place of the Lyceum, however, nor the Lyceum of the newspaper, and the town which has not heard the views of our great public men from their own lips, and in their various effective styles of oratory, has missed that close touch and keen interest in the affairs of the day which the Lyceum town boasts.

And in every community there are young people both in and out of high school, who simply await the word rightly spoken, the inspiration rightly imparted, to spur them on through hardships to a goal worth while. Not only their parents but the community owes these young people the advantages which come from listening to good talent. Thousands of people throughout America today owe their inspiration and present success and happiness in life to the messages which came to them from the Lyceum platform at just the right time—messages not only to the head but to the heart. The Lyceum then is a large contributor to popular education. Comparatively few of America's millions of inhabitants go to college. If they are to be educated they must receive through other means and other institutions what is rightly styled "popular education."

Of equal importance is the maintaining of a high standard of entertainments in a country where everyone must in one way or another be entertained. The two great sources of popular entertainment today are the theatre and the Lyceum course. The theatre is run wholly for money. The Lyceum course in East Jordan is not run as a source of profit. Should there be a favorable balance after expenses are met, the proceeds are given to the library fund of the school. No small towns and few small cities are today enjoying anything really worth while in their respective theatres. America still has great actors but with few exceptions they are to be seen only in the large cities. The Lyceum puts its ban on all that is low. It offers to the American audience the highest and best from the standpoint of the intellectual, the artistic, and the moral. The Lyceum with its high ideals, therefore, fills a very important niche in our American life.

This is a day of advertising. Communities and institutions are judged by the public by the good reports of their practical activities. It is one of the wholesome signs of the times that our churches are backing the good strong Lyceum courses, attracting the young people away from the questionable and the mediocre in entertainment to the high and noble. People nowadays have little faith in the church which refuses to take a positive stand on the problems of the day and which, while holding a candle over the theatre, refuses to participate in types of entertainment which it can endorse.

The community which objects to a Lyceum course because it takes money out of the town is a back number. A good course does take some money out of town but it leaves behind something infinitely better than money, and the man is short sighted indeed to whom that which is left is not visible. One of the latest advantages which has been pointed out for a Lyceum course is its benefit to the town's commercial needs. The West is the first to take definite note of these advantages, and in some of the Pacific coast towns the Lyceum courses are offered and managed by the Boards of Trade. They say a successful course in a town is the best kind of advertising.

Show us a town without a Lyceum course, with a course supported grudgingly and in a half-starved fashion, and nine times out of ten we will show you a town with dead churches, mediocre schools, and little civic pride. Name us a bustling town, noted for its good schools, active churches and live chamber of commerce, and that town is sure to have a well-supported Lyceum course.

The High School Lyceum Course, 1911-12, appeals to the people of this community for support for the following reasons:

1. The Lyceum is an effective factor in national progress.
2. The Lyceum is a great popular educator.
3. The Lyceum course is a means of inspiration for the young.
4. A well-supported Lyceum course in a town commends the community to people of character and refinement as a desirable place of residence. A town that cannot support a good course looks good to the other kind.
5. A live Lyceum course means a live town with real estate booming.
6. If you citizens of character in East Jordan do not afford your young people wholesome entertainment, others will furnish the other kind and your children will be there to see.
7. The High School Lyceum Course is afforded for the public welfare, not for profit. We are trying in this way to "boost." Take hold and help.
8. The course offered this year is strictly high-class as heretofore consisting of five numbers—two concerts, two lectures and one evening of interpretation.
9. An adult season ticket costs only $1.25.
10. We offer you two dollars' worth for one and call you a good fellow when you take it.

THE COURSE

1. The Anita's—A Singing Orchestra, Nov. 17, 1911.
2. Hon. Lee Francis Lybarger, Lecturer—Orator, Jan. 1, 1912.
3. Mr. John F. Chambers, Interpreter, Feb. 8, 1912.
4. Hon. George D. Alden, Popular Lecturer, March 11, 1912.
5. The Strollers, Male Quartet, April 19, 1912.

Every number is booked through the Redpath-Slayton Bureau—the bureau which has furnished the course for our city for many years.

Opening Number, The Anita's, Nov. 17th

The Course will be opened on Nov. 17 by the Anita's—a Singing Orchestra. We need add little to what has already been said about the Anita's in recent issues of the local papers, to make it plain to all that a great treat is in store for us in this opening concert. The Anita's present unique programs of orchestral music, choruses, instrumental and vocal solos, duets, trios, quartets, and readings. You may bank on the Anita's.

Closing Number, THE STROLLERS, April 19th

The Strollers, who give the closing number, are bound to please. All male quartets do when they can sing, and these young men certainly can sing most acceptably, else why should they have so many calls for return engagements.

The Strollers are first of all good fellows personally with the happy faculty of establishing friendly relations at once with the audience. They are not stingy with their art but respond cheerfully to encores and in their programs give good measure.

They give a most enjoyable evening of song, violin, piano and recitations. Their dramatic songs in costume cannot help but please.

All will find delicious enjoyment in The Strollers' Concert with its varied program, and judicious mingling of the popular and the classic.

HON. LEE F. LYBARGER

Second Number, Jan'y 1st

Other platform orators are better known in some cases but very few are able to surpass this brilliant orator in pleasing the public. Kindly note this tribute to Mr. Lybarger from the Joliet (Ill.) News:

"Nobody realized that this man was going to be head and shoulders above any orator ever in Joliet. But he was—a regular Gulliver among the Lilliputians. And Joliet has had some big men come from afar to anoint her head with facts from silver tongues. Wherever Mr. Lybarger has been heard—and he has put in two seasons on the Chautauqua platform—he has proven to be an attraction of the first magnitude. But known or unknown, this man is great. His magnificent mind is trained and scholarly, and he has a tremendous grasp of truth. He sees the fundamental principles of things and can make his hearers see and understand them. There is nothing spectacular about his oratory or revolutionary in the principles he advocates. His explanations are lucid and practicable. As an orator Mr. Lybarger combines the qualities of a wonderfully profound mind with such brilliancy of expression and such simplicity of diction that the science of economics takes on the charm of a novel. He is a Socrates and Demosthenes in one.

MR. JOHN F. CHAMBERS

Third Number, Feb'y 8th

Mr. John F. Chambers, who will give the third number of the course, has remarkable skill as an interpreter of dramatic characters. Without employing wigs, paint or other makeup or theatrical delusions, Mr. Chambers presents the plot, scenes and characters of a play in such a manner that the audience loses sight of the impersonator and sees only his characters as they come and go.

Mr. Chambers presents nothing that is trivial. His programs are humorous, yet dignified and elevating; entertaining, yet instructive. In one program he presents "A Grand Army Man," a sparkling comedy drama with distinctive American atmosphere. As Mr. Chambers presents this play you have every part taken by the leading man, with no weak parts. Mr. Chambers is the entire show. The circular which you will find in the advertising booklet gives some spicy quotations from "The Grand Army Man," such as, "It's easier for a mother to support seven sons than it is for seven sons to support one mother." The dramatic presentations of this gifted artist are pleasing others, he will assuredly please you.

HON. GEORGE D. ALDEN

Fourth Number, March 11th

For another number we are indeed fortunate in being able to secure the Hon. George D. Alden. He will soon be in the "top notch" high-priced class, as he is already there in the quality of his lectures. Already prominent as a Boston lawyer and judge, his Lyceum career is nothing short of amazing-meteoric. Wherever he goes he attracts attention and leaves a stream of light in his wake. Here are some of the things others say of Judge Alden: "Judge George D. Alden's lecture, 'Needs of the Hour' was beyond all question the esp-heat of the Monday program. Judge Alden is from Massachusetts a son of the Mayflower Pilgrims and the Puritans. He is clean and clear cut; has yankee wit coupled with yankee practical sense; has courage and conviction; is the typical man with a message."—Norwood (Iowa) Index.

"He has the audacity to recommend Almighty God to the people."

"Regarding his lecture, 'Powder and the Match,' I can but quote one man's alliterative opinion: 'It was one of the boldest, brainiest, bravest and best lectures that I have ever listened to.'"
