Eveline Suicide

Fred Dean Takes Rifle Route To the Great Beyond.

Fred Dean, a well known resident of Eveline township, committed suicide Monday afternoon last by shooting himself through the heart.

Mr. Dean had lived on his farm near Ironton for several years. About three months ago he purchased the large farm of I. Mitchell in the same township.

Mr. Dean had not been in the belt of health lately and several times had been heard to make the remark that he was ready to die.

He was about fifty years of age and leaves a wife and four children, Hertha, Charles and Datus of Charlevoix county, and Mrs. Wilson who resides in the southern part of the state.

Coroner Armstrong held an inquest, the jury bringing in a verdict that he committed suicide while suffering from mental aberration.

The funeral was held Thursday.

A MODERN STORE.

We wonder if our citizens are awake to the fact that there have been a great many improvements made in our business places during the past summer and do we realize how much is really being done?

We wonder if the same improvements had been taking place inside the stores and with the object in view of finding out, we stepped into one of our principal business places the other day and as we started in, we could not help but notice the ingenuity displayed in the arrangement of goods in the window.

We told the merchant as we went in just what we had come for and he invited us to look through his store. He told us before starting in, that stores are not just a place where goods are stored waiting for people to come and buy, but that they are really specialty shops where manufacturers display their best goods, and this we found to be true upon investigation.

We could not help but notice in talking with this merchant, that he called his merchandise, "Lines of goods", as "Lines of shoes", "Lines of clothing", "Lines of hats."

The first of these lines to draw our attention was the shoe line which filled nearly the whole space on one side of the store. We certainly were surprised to see how many different kinds it takes to complete a line of shoes. To illustrate—He showed us one kind of shoe in just one style, in one make which takes from $30.00 to $40.00 worth to have the sizes in just this one line and when you come to consider all of the styles and all of the widths and the different priced shoes that this merchant has on his shelves, it looks as though it would keep him busy to keep track of just this line alone.

Our attention was then directed to the large racks of clothing, and while we had been surprised at the size of the shoe stock, we are certainly amazed at the size of the clothing stock as we had no idea that such an amount of clothing was carried by any one merchant in our city.

Next we were shown the lines of men's ready-to-wear garments such as shirts, collars, neckties, underwear, sweaters and other accessories that go to make up a man's wardrobe, and found as large a stock of these things as the stores in many of the larger cities are showing.

Our attention was then turned to the drygoods department and there we found the most perfect arrangement of corsets, hosiery, piece goods, silks, ribbons, laces and everything you can think of that would be handled in a department of this kind.

We went up stairs and took a look and then went down stairs and took another look and found clear through this up to date store, the same perfect arrangement in all of the various lines.

The merchant told us that there is no such thing any more as hit-or-miss buying, but goods are specialty goods and by this he said he meant, goods that are put out by a manufacturer with some special feature that gives them prominence and thoroughly reliable features.

We must admit we were highly entertained as well as enlightened and would say to anyone who is not thoroughly posted on what is going on by way of improvements in our city, that they would find a trip like this not only interesting, but profitable as well. The particular store that we visited, was the store of Fred E. Boosinger.

"THE SQUAW MAN"

In "The Squaw Man" which comes to the Temple Theatre next Monday evening, Nov. 13th, one finds a play of the West replete with types and characters of that region, and with a spice of novelty that is far too frequent upon the stage. Strangely enough, for that is true, a drama that touches on the teeming strenuousness of the Wyoming territory, there is little of the swashbuckling element in the play. While there is a bad man and a sheriff, and several cow punchers, one misses the rip-roaring, tearing clash of personalities that is expected in a Western play. In fact, there is no hint of coarse ruffianism so often to be found in plays of this description; and while the emotions are stirred by many moving climaxes, these are safely side-tracked in an artistic manner by the dramatist until they satisfy the sense without shocking the nerves. Edwin Milton Royle who wrote the play, has admittedly done the best work of his career in "The Squaw Man," which by the way, was evolved from a short one-act piece Mr. Royle wrote for the Lamb's Gambol in New York quite four years ago. He has built up a drama that is of the heroic mould, and which moves steadily forward with an inexorable purpose until the plot has been filled out in a satisfactory manner down to the last detail. There is no point that is left uncovered, but just a good whole-souled, clean and satisfying picture of men and things that moves the auditor irresistibly and carries him along. It is a play that deals with men as they are, and points to the dormant something that lies at the bottom of every man's soul when there is a woman somewhere in his life. While the first act is laid in England, the last three are placed happily in Wyoming, in the heart of the cattle country as it was some twenty years ago, and the character of the British Army officer, who for love of his brother's wife, deliberately saddles himself with a crime of which he is innocent and buries himself in the West, is splendidly drawn and ably handled.

PONONA GRANGE

Despite the extremely bad weather members of six subordinate granges met in Ponona session with Peninsula Grange, Nov. 3, 1911. The B-Annual election of officers resulted as follows:

Master, William Mears, Boyne Falls

Overseer, John Knudsen, East Jordan

Lecturer, Walter Black, Charlevoix

Steward, William Steenberg, East Jordan

Ass't Steward, Arthur Gaut, East Jordan

Chaplain, Viola Heller, East Jordan

Treasurer, Henry Black Sr., Charlevoix

Secretary, Leo D. Willson, Boyne City

Gate-keeper, Fred Heller, East Jordan

Ceres, Ursual Crawford, East Jordan

Pomona, Blanche Wallace, Bay Shore

Flora, Emma Todd, East Jordan

Lady Ass't Steward, Fannie Knudsen, East Jordan

Member Executive Com., Nat. Burns Charlevoix

Pomona Delegate to Michigan State Grange, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ruhling East Jordan

In evening all officers elect were installed, R. A. Brintnall acting as installing officer. It was decided to place Building Fund at interest until time to commence work on hall next year. The committees appointed returned favorable reports regarding the general condition of the grange in our county. Harmony Grange was declared the Banner Grange for the third quarter. Two applicants for the fifth degree were duly obligated and instructed. Having declined a reelection retiring secretary R. A. Brintnall was accorded a unanimous vote of thanks for the manner in which his past service had been rendered. The next meeting will be held with Rock Elm Grange in February.

A GREAT DISCOVERY

Certain Ingredients That Really Promote Hair Growth when Properly Combined

Resorcin is one of the most effective germ destroyers ever discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which destroys the germs which rob the hair of its natural nourishment, and also creates a clean, healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Hillocarin, although not a coloring matter or dye, is a well-known ingredient for restoring the hair to its natural color, when the loss of hair has been caused by a disease of the scalp.

These ingredients in proper combination, with alcohol added as a stimulant and for its well-defined nourishing properties, perfect perhaps the most effective remedy that is known for scalp and hair troubles.

We have a remedy which is chiefly composed of these ingredients, in combination with other extremely valuable medicinal agents. We guarantee to positively cure dandruff and to grow hair, even though the scalp in spots is bare of hair. If there is any vitality left in the roots, it will positively cure baldness, or we will refund your money. If the scalp has a glazed shiny appearance, its an indication that baldness is permanent, but in other instances we believe baldness is curable.

We want every one troubled with scalp diseases or loss of hair to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic. If it does not cure dandruff and grow hair to the satisfaction of the user, we will without question or quibble return every cent paid us for it. We print this guarantee on every bottle. It has effected a positive cure in 93 per cent of cases where put to a practical test.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is entirely unlike, and we think, in every particular better than, any thing else we know of for the purpose for which it is prescribed. We urge you to try this preparation at our entire risk. Certainly we know of no better guarantee to give you. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies in East Jordan only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

DRINKS THAT ARE UNUSUAL

"Acorn Cup" Is Liked by Tanners— Peculiar Tiptle of the Ironstone Workers.

Some men boast of knowing the taste of every drink except water. They do not. One tiptle they have never sampled is "acorn cup," or "the liquor," the stuff in which hides are tanned into leather.

Made from oak bark and acorns and acorn cups, it has a sharp, bitter taste that is anything but agreeable to the ordinary palate; but the men engaged in some tanneries habitually drink it in small quantities—a wineglassful at a time is the limit—as a pick me up.

Another drink unknown to the general tippler is a favorite among ironstone workers. It is a natural product of a very curious kind. In the best sort of such stone are found hollow pieces, inside of which is about a pint of mush, a cold liquor with a sweet, sharp taste, and either red or white in color. Strangers seldom want more than one sip of mush, but the workers quaff it with avidity.

There are, too, many kinds of alcoholic products which are rarely if ever tasted outside particular trades. Methylated spirit is drunk not only by furniture polishers but by hatters and others who use it in their work, and it seems impossible to make it so vile that they cannot swallow it.

A man engaged in one of the shops of a London warehouse was found to be drinking considerable quantities of methylated spirit, whereupon the remainder of the stock was dosed with that noxious drug asafetida, which it was thought, would make the stuff undrinkable. But the spirit actually disappeared faster than ever!

In the same way some of the alcohol used in scent works is drunk by those who have the handling of it, and some men engaged at drug warehouses get into the dangerous habit of taking "nips" of essences and the like. Not long ago a man employed by a large firm of wholesale chemists was seriously ill through long indulgence in the practice.—Tit-Bits.

Record for Chewing.

It might be well for those who adopt the one meal a day system to become chewers at the same time. A chewer, according to a dietetic expert, is one who chews all things so long as they have any taste in them. Gladstone, it is recorded, used to take 32 bites to every mouthful of food. This would be considered dangerously rapid eating by the modern school of chewers. "I have tried chewing conscientiously," writes Mr. Eustace Miles. "A banana has cost 800 bites, a small mouthful of bread and cheese 240 bites, a greedy mouthful of biscuit (while I was walking on a Yorkshire moor) more than 1,000 bites. It still seemed to taste about as much as at first; but I knew that taste by then, so I swallowed."—London Chronicle.

The County Fair.

A thousand boyhood memories cluster round the county fair—the glorious autumnal weather, the joy of harvest, the strife for excellency, the greetings of friends. But it is the simplicity of the fun that is most worthy of remark. In these days of the costly show and spectacle, with theaters that are palaces and opera houses maintained by fabulous outlay, the inexpensive joys of the county fairs of the fathers are suggestive. There is nothing extravagant in the old fair. Yet for a royal good time and an amusement that was all-compensating and genuine it never had a rival.—New York Mail.

The Girl Who Helps Mother.

Why not give us a few moving pictures of the girl who helps mother? They are worth more than the Nan Pattersons, the Evelyn Thaws and the Beulah Binfords, who appeal to nothing but morbid curiosity and a taste for tragedy and depravity. Why don't the film makers pay big prices to the real heroines to pose for human interest shows?—Washington Star.

Hard Hit.

"Did the recent drought hurt you farmers much?" "I should say it did," answered Mr. Cornstossel. "We used to make a heap o' money haulin' out automobiles that got stalled. While that drought was on we couldn't afford to haul water to keep up some of our best mud holes."—Washington Star.

A Sedative.

"It's terrible to see the eccentricities of stock quotations," said the financier.

"Yes," replied the statesman "it's a pity we can't hold things to a steadier course by feeding some governmental red tape into the stock ticker."

A Frank Preference.

"Doesn't your wife want the privilege of going to the polls and casting a ballot, as an enlightened and responsible citizen?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Growcher, "but she'd rather have a new hat."

Heard in Advance.

"Fathers of small boys report that their sons are much easier to manage now than they were a month ago."

"I'll bet I know why."

"You've seen the hillboards?"

"Yes. A circus is coming to town."

Would-be Farmers

Many of City-Bred Under-estimate Work

By GEO. B. BRABBIT

THE VAST majority of city-bred persons have no place on farms and no conception of the self-denial, independence, initiative and self-reliance required to make a success of farming or fruit or poultry raising or of any branches of rural industry, aside from the capital required.

Indeed, most of those who undertake such a change are destined to a disastrous failure, much more far-reaching in its results than the life of the particular individual.

There is a large class of city dwellers to whom this does not apply who have been reared on farms and who, for one reason or another, have drifted into city employment.

The plan of Rudolph Spreckels hardly meets the situation. A better plan would be the organization on a strictly business basis of a national land exchange, along the lines of the board of trade and the stock exchange, the object of which should be to regulate the conduct of members selling lands at a distance, either for colonization or investment; to provide facilities for investment, sale and exchange of lands and to give to the purchaser some guaranty of fair dealing from the land seller and of getting full knowledge of what he is buying and the difficulties he may expect to encounter if he becomes a settler or investor.

Those engaged in the business of selling lands should themselves take the initiative on such a scale as to assure the confidence of the public and the success of the enterprise.

Our rural communities are in need of educated men and women for the farms. What is wanted is more accurate information for the land purchaser and a fuller understanding of the demands made upon him by the new occupation in which he proposes to engage.

A national land exchange would help greatly in this direction.

Such an organization could co-operate with railroads and steamship lines and board of trade and other public bodies in all parts of the United States to secure better distribution of immigrants coming to the country from abroad and could assist in securing an intelligent and reasonable presentation of the merits of each section of the country for the settler and investor.

Honest Business Methods Pay in Long Run

By HARVEY PEAKE

A prominent merchant once dismissed a salesman whom he overheard saying to a shopper: "We usually sell that for $1.25, but seeing it's you, I'll let you have it for $1."

The article regularly sold at $1. Nothing could injure a business more than to make customers feel that personal influence governs prices. In the first place, an intelligent buyer cannot help discovering the salesman's duplicity, and aside from the fact that it is against all good business principles, there is another thing to be considered.

Some people, foolishly enough, allow themselves to be persuaded that they are of special importance and can buy goods at that particular store at lower prices than anyone else. They become accustomed to looking for reductions and feel angered if called upon to pay the regular price for anything.

But, worst of all, they spread the impression among their friends that they have a so-called "pull" at So-and-So's, and offer to use their influence to get the reduction in price for their friends also.

Of course there are times when it is necessary for ever well-regulated business concern to cut prices upon merchandise—for instance, when certain lines refuse to leave the shelves or assortments are depleted. But in this case the cut is general and applies as much to Mrs. Jones as to Mrs. Smith.

Some salesmen who desire to be clever and who have a high opinion of their ability along this line are inclined to work this sort of confidence game on their customers: They will take the favored ones (?) aside and inform them that, as a special favor, they are going to let them have for $1 an article for which every one else is paying $1.25, while in reality $1 is the regular profit-bearing price.

This ruse may work for a while, but it is, nevertheless, bad business. It is well enough to impress a customer with the fact that an article is worth more than he is asked to pay for it if this is actually the case, but they must not be led to believe they can buy it for less money than any one else can.

Honest business methods pay in the long run.

Creator Intended Some Men to be Fat

By W. R. RUDELL, Portland, Ore.

I have about come to the conclusion that the good Lord intended for some of his creatures to be fat and some thin, regardless of medicines and so-called infallible cures.

For a long while I tried all the alleged obesity cures and none of them did me any good. Then I determined to starve myself and take lbs of exercise.

All my life I had been a lover of good eating, and counted that day lost on which I did not consume for my dinner the better part of a sirloin steak as thick as a dorky's foot, with all the trimmings.

For breakfast I usually destroyed a platter of cakes, three eggs and no end of thin-sliced bacon, besides fruits and two cups of coffee.

This lifelong system I abandoned for an entire month, cutting out all the meat and about all the vegetables, a piece of toast and glass of milk taking the place of my morning meals and a little rice being the chief item on the meager dinner bill of fare. Lunch I omitted wholly.

In addition I walked at least six miles every day and did all sorts of stunts in my room with a gymnasium outfit. Prior to going to bed I perpetrated all sorts of muscular contortions and rolled on the floor till my body was bruised.

At the end of thirty days I felt fit to run a three-mile footrace or go in the ring with the champion.

About this time it occurred to me that I ought to get weighed, and I made a bee line for the scales.

My grocer assured me that they were correct to an ounce, but they showed I had gained fourteen pounds in the period of my abstinence.

Meeting an Emergency

"Lemme sit by the window! Lemme sit by the window, dad!" shrieked the small boy, making a dive for the last double seat.

"Don't make so much noise," growled dad, a fussy little man with white eyelashes, following his son into the seat. "Here, turn around and take your dirty shoes off my clothes."

Giving a farewell wipe with the shoes, the small boy turned his attention to raising the window shade.

"Here, leave that alone!" grumbled dad. "Don't you see that lets the sun shine right in on me? Why can't you have a little consideration for other people?"

"What's consid—Say, dad, look at that kid out there. Say, looky! He hit that other kid right in the nose. Say, I bet if I was that other kid I'd punch him in the snoots. Say, looky, dad!"

"If you don't shut up I'll drop you out of the window," observed dad, sourly. "Keep still, now. I want to read the paper."

"Say, dad, what're we stoppin' for? Oh, gee! Look at all the people gettin' on. Where's they all goin' to sit? Say, dad, look at all the people!"

Dad buried his nose in his paper and grunted.

An injured looking man with a receding chin stationed himself in front of the pair and fixed dad with a meek glare.

"Say, dad," remarked the small boy, punching his parent in the ribs, "that man's lookin' at you. Say, what's he lookin' at you that way for, dad?"

"Look here," muttered dad, in restrained but wrathful tones. "If you say another word I'll give you the worst whipping you ever had in your life the minute we get home."

The small boy stuck his thumb in his mouth and returned with a round eyed stare the glare of the injured looking man. At the next stop the injured looking man was pushed forward and his place was taken by two short sleeved, low necked, hobble skirted damsels.

"Wish I had some place to sit down," remarked one, glancing from dad to his son.

"Wonder he wouldn't make that kid get up and let somebody have that seat," observed her friend.

"Dad," said the small boy, in a loud, hoarse whisper, "she says it's a wonder you don't make me get up and give her my seat. Do I have to give her my seat, dad? Ain't she got nerve, dad?"

Dad, his head completely enveloped in his paper, made no response. The two girls giggled. The small boy smacked himself for a few moments by sticking out his tongue at them. When this palled, he looked about for some other means of entertainment and hit upon the novel diversion of reclining upon the small of his back and running his heels up and down the back of the seat in front of him. The seat was occupied by a man who sat with hunched up shoulders and twisted legs, reading a railroad time table.

He wore a dusty looking brown hat with a rather wide brim, which the small boy kicked with each gyration of his feet.

"Dad, watch me kick that man's hat. Say, ain't that a funny hat, dad?" No response from dad.

The train stopped again and the two girls gave place to a fat, perspiring man with a heavy suitcase. He planted the suitcase on the floor and drew a handkerchief from his pocket.

"Phew!" he observed to the public in general, mopping his face with the handkerchief. "This ain't the kind of a day to run for a train."

With the exception of the small boy, the passengers all assumed the stony, far away expression that is supposed to be appropriate when a general remark is made by a stranger to nobody in particular. The man looked down and caught the eyes of the small boy.

"Say, son," he asked cheerfully, "don't you want to get up and let me have that seat? You can sit on my lap."

"Naw!" replied the boy, regarding his interlocutor dispassionately.

The fat man, with considerable effort, seated himself upon his suitcase.

"Well," he observed, as he seated himself, "I ain't in the business of bringing up other folks' children, but I must say that when I was a kid I'd 'a' sat down when there was a lot of grown people standing my dad would 'a' fixed me so I prob'ly wouldn't 'a' been anxious to sit down anywhere for a week."

Then, suddenly, something happened. The hunched up man, thrusting the time table into his pocket, untwisted his legs and rose to his full height, which was about six and a quarter feet. The shoulders straightened to an astonishing breadth.

Without a word, he reached across the back of the seat, and seizing the small boy under the arms, lifted him and set him down on his father's knees. Then he beckoned to the nearest woman.

"Here's a seat, lady," he said. For a moment there was a tense silence. Then the fat man leaned over and touched one of the broad shoulders.

"Pardon me," he said, earnestly. "But would you mind giving me your address? I'd like to have 'em send you a Carnegie medal."

Motor Costume

A neat, natty and practical head-wear for women automobilists is this cap, which is modeled after the soft material college hats of dressy youths and retains all the jauntness of the latter.

It is made of soft white felt, having a colored band; the veil being attached by an elastic silk weave; the color of both to match that of the machine.

The coat shown in the picture is of light weight Vienna, plaine and warm. It is cut pretty and has spacious pockets. The whole get-up is as workmanlike as it is fetching.

SAVE MONEY ON STOCKINGS

Judicious Selection Will Accomplish Wonders of Economy During the Year.

Many women do not give much thought to the matter of buying stockings. Their cost is so little that it would seem as if one could not save much, even if she were careful in this matter. But more can be saved by judicious selection than is thought, and in the course of a year or so this saving mounts up.

If suspension garters are worn, choose the double top, garter-veil stocking, and then do not fasten the garter below the garter top. Some buy the garter top stocking and then fasten the garter below it, where it immediately proceeds to tear out. Stockings without the garter top can be made strong at this point by running two or three rows of machine stitching where the garter fastens.

The white-foot stocking does not wear quite so well as the all-black foot. The white part is heavier than the black part, and is apt to break above the joining. Then, too, at the joining there is a slight thickening of the fabric scarcely visible to the eye, but the sensitive foot soon becomes conscious of it.

For an inexpensive dressy stocking the mercerized lisle is quite satisfactory. It has almost the luster of silk, costs less and wears better.

A PRETTY HAT.

Styles in Negligees.

The new season has opened up with few radical changes in style features, but with a stronger indorsement than ever of all kinds of the laces and soft clinging fabrics so favorable to negligent construction, says the Dry Goods Economist. Long tunics are again incorporated in the highest grade garments, all-over laces and fancy printed silks being largely used for these over draperies. While the strong colors are usually toned down considerably, brighter colors than usual are being shown this season, doubtless owing to the vogue of East Indian effects.

EMPIRE BAG HERE TO STAY

In Present Stage It Is Thing of Beauty and Joy of the Season.

There is no end to the variety of form and color assumed by the ever increasingly popular empire bag. In its present stage it is a thing of beauty and a joy of the season, though, being a child of Dame Fashion, it cannot be a joy forever.

You have no idea how much money can be centered on the development of these handsome and thoroughly charming envelopes. Costly gilt ornaments are seen on many of the more elaborate ones, some of which are made entirely of gold, silver, copper or steel colored lace. Semi-precious stones are used to carry out a flower pattern or to lighten the effect of conventional designs. Inside are trappings of silver, gold or ivory, tiny vanity cases, mirrors, powder puffs, lip pencils and the like.

Another idea that has caught the fancy of the woman who counts not cost, is an empire bag of brocade, either velvet or satin, to match her hat or its trimmings. Usually this hat is one of the small bonnetlike models edged with bands of fur, such as moleskin, Persian lamb, chinchilla or ermine. A band of the fur outlines the bag and the flap, which buttons over envelope fashion. Of course, the plainest of autumn suits would assume a smart tone when worn with such ultra fashionable foibles.

Bags of broadcloth of the same material as the suit have deep chemise fringes around the sides and bottoms, and correspondingly plain mountings of gun-metal, old gold or frosted silver.

Any odd piece of silk or velvet picked up on the remnant counter may be transformed into a strikingly handsome empire bag in an afternoon. And there is a splendid chance for a display of individuality.

Favorite Dishes.

A woman who enjoys having friends to lunch or dinner has the happy faculty of hitting on just the things her guests enjoy eating. For some years she has made it a point to jot down the favorite dishes of this friend or that in a tiny note book in her desk. When her cousin Molly is coming to lunch she looks up her name, and there finds recorded that the aforesaid Molly is particularly fond of custard desserts of any kind; clam is her favorite soup, and in meats she dotes on anything cooked in a casserole. With these hints spread before her the matter of planning a meal is considerably simplified.

Another friend has often said she never tastes such pies as are served by her hostess; another likes tomatoes in any form, and still another prefers fish to meat.

The guests little know that they themselves have at some time given the hints as to their likings.

SERIAL STORY

The Courtship of Miles Standish

With Illustrations by Howard Chandler Christy

The March of Miles Standish

Meanwhile the stalwart Miles Standish was marching steadily northward, winding through forest and swamp, and along the trend of the sea-shore. All day long, with hardly a halt, the fire of his anger burning and crackling within, and the sulphurous odor of powder seeming more sweet to his nostrils than all the scents of the forest. Silent and moody he went, and much he revolved his discomfort; He who was used to success, and to easy victories always.

Thus to be flouted, rejected, and laughed to scorn by a maiden, thus to be mocked and betrayed by the friend whom most he had trusted!

Ah! 'twas too much to be borne, and he fretted and chafed in his armor!

"I alone am to blame," he muttered, "for mine was the folly. What has a rough old soldier, grown grim and gray in the harness, need to the camp and its ways, to do with the wooing of maidens? 'Twas but a dream,—let it pass,—let it vanish like so many others! What I thought was a flower, is only a weed, and is worthless; Out of my heart will I pluck it, and throw it away, and henceforward be but a fighter of battles, a lover and wooer of dangers!"

Thus he revolved in his mind his sorry defeat and discomfort, while he was marching by day or lying at night in the forest, looking up at the trees, and the constellations beyond them.

After a three days' march he came to an Indian encampment pitched on the edge of a meadow, between the sea and the forest; Women at work by the tents, and the warriors, horrid with war-paint, seated about a fire, and smoking and talking together; Who, when they saw from afar the sudden approach of the white men, Forth He Sprang at a Bound.

Saw the flash of the sun on breast-plate and saber and musket, Straightway leaped to their feet, and two, from among them advancing, came to parley with Standish, and offer him furs as a present; Friendship was in their looks, but in their hearts there was hatred. Braves of the tribe were these, and brothers gigantic in stature. Huge as Goliath of Gath, or the terrible Og, King of Bashan; One was Pecksuot named, and the other was called Wattawamat. Round their necks were suspended their knives in scabbards of wampum, Two-edged, trenchant knives, with points as sharp as a needle. Other arms had they none, for they were cunning and crafty.

"Welcome, English!" they said,—these words they had learned from the traders. Touching at times on the coast to barter and chaffer for peltries. Then in their native tongue they began to parley with Standish. Through his guide and interpreter, Hobomok, friend of the white man, begging for blankets and knives, but mostly for muskets and powder. Kept by the white man, they said, concealed, with the Mague, in his cellars, Ready to be let loose, and destroy his brother, the red man!

But when Standish refused, and said he would give them the Bible. Suddenly changing their tone, they began to boast and to bluster. Then Wattawamat advanced with a stride in front of the other, and, with a lofty demeanor, thus vauntingly spake to the Captain: "Now Wattawamat can see, by the fiery eyes of the Captain, Angry is he in his heart; but the heart of the brave Wattawamat is not afraid at the sight. He was not born of a woman. But on a mountain, at night, from an oak-tree riven by lightning, Forth he sprang at a bound, with all his weapons about him, Shouting, 'Who is there here to fight with the brave Wattawamat?' Then he unsheathed his knife, and, whetting the blade on his left hand, Held it aloft and displayed a woman's face on the handle.

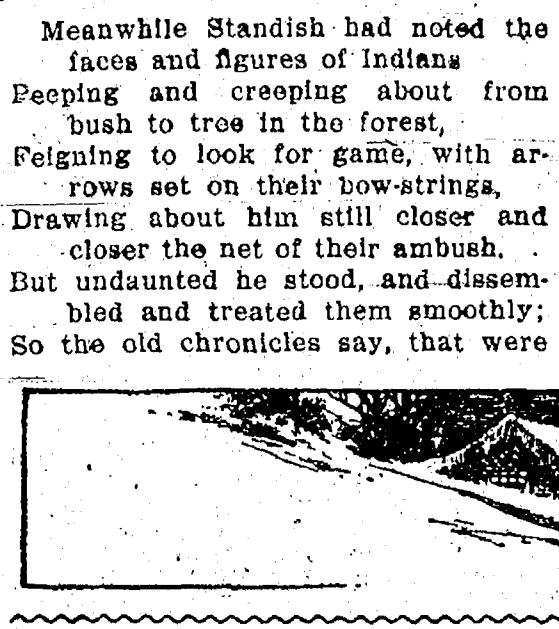

Plunged It into His Heart.

Saying, with bitter expression and look of sinister meaning: "I have another at home, with the face of a man on the handle; By and by they shall marry; and there will be plenty of children!"

Then stood Pecksuot forth, self-vaunting, insulting Miles Standish; While with his fingers he patted the knife that hung at his bosom, Drawing it half from its sheath, and plunging it back, as he muttered: "By and by it shall see; it shall eat; ab, ah! but shall speak not! This is the mighty Captain, the white men have sent to destroy us! He is a little man; let him go and work with the women!"

Meanwhile Standish had noted the faces and figures of Indians peeping and creeping about from bush to tree in the forest, Feigning to look for game, with arrows set on their bow-strings, Drawing about him still closer and closer the net of their ambush. But undaunted he stood, and dissembled and treated them smoothly; So the old chronicles say, that were

Biggest Cities of World

London Still Far in Lead, but New York is Growing Faster Than Any Other.

London, the largest city in the world, has a population, as now officially announced, of 7,252,963, as against 5,581,462 in 1901—an increase in ten years of 671,561, or only 12.2 per cent. The population of New York is 4,769,883, and with a gain in the ten years of 38.7 per cent, is growing faster than any other great city in the world. At the rate at which the two largest cities are growing it will take a long time for New York to catch up with London; but it would be a great misfortune if it ever did catch up—there is too much congestion in New York already. The third city in size is Paris, whose population is perhaps 3,000,000. The fourth city is perhaps Berlin, which had a little over 2,000,000 five years ago. Tokyo and Chicago fall a little under the 2,500,000 mark, and St. Petersburg, Vienna, Canton, Peking, Moscow and Philadelphia are below 2,000,000.—Rochester Post-Express.

Clothes and the Man.

"The better a person is dressed the less money he has as a rule." Thus Judge Parry, whose experience in the county court certainly gives him a right to speak on the subject.—London Telegraph.

writ in the days of the fathers. But when he heard their defiance, the boast, the taunt, and the insult. All the hot blood of his race, of Sir Hugh and of Thurston de Standish, Boiled and beat in his heart, and swelled in the veins of his temples. Headlong he leaped on the boaster, and, snatching his knife from its scabbard, Plunged it into his heart, and reeling backward, the savage Fell with his face to the sky, and a fiendlike fierceness upon it. Straight there arose from the forest the awful sound of the war-whoop. And, like a flurry of snow on the whistling wind of December, Swift and sudden and keen came a flight of feathery arrows. Then came a cloud of smoke, and out of the cloud came the lightning, Out of the lightning, thunder, and death unseen ran before it. Frightened the savages fled for shelter in swamp and in thicket. Hotly pursued and beset; but their sachem, the brave Wattawamat, Fled not; he was dead.—Unswerving and swift had a bullet Passed through his brain, and he fell with both hands clutching the greenward. Seeming in death to hold back from his foe the land of his fathers.

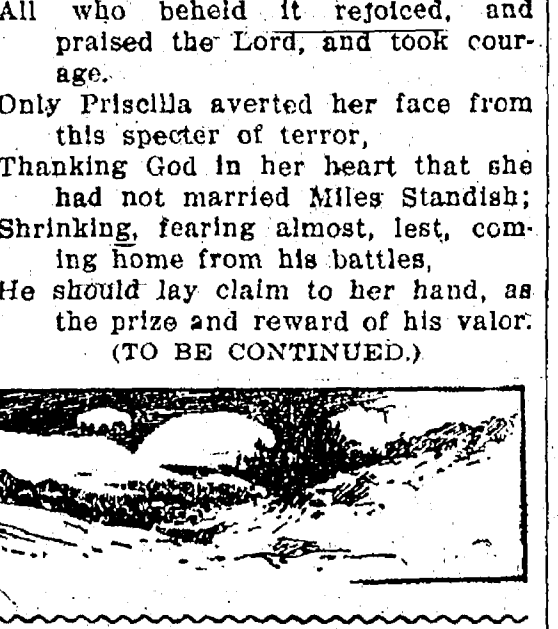

There on the flowers of the meadow the warriors lay, and above them, Silent, with folded arms, stood Hobomok, friend of the white man.

Smiling, at length he exclaimed to the stalwart Captain of Plymouth:

"Pecksuot bragged very loud, of his courage, his strength and his stature. Mocked the great Captain, and called him a little man; but I see now Big enough have you been to lay him speechless before you!"

Thus the first battle was fought, and won by the stalwart Miles Standish. When the tidings thereof were brought to the village of Plymouth, And as a trophy of war the head of the brave Wattawamat Scowled from the roof of the fort, which at once was a church and a fortress, All who beheld it rejoiced, and praised the Lord, and took courage. Only Priscilla averted her face from this specter of terror, Thanking God in her heart that she had not married Miles Standish; Shrinking, fearing almost, lest, coming home from his battles, He should lay claim to her hand, as the prize and reward of his valor. Wild Scramble of Women

London Paper Tells of Scene in Cloakroom After the Racing at Ascot.

At the end of the racing at Ascot yesterday it seems that the cloakroom arrangements miscarried, and when the women went to get their wraps they were not ready to hand. A wild report circulated that the thief who stole the gold cup four years ago had been busy in the cloakroom and all the women rushed to find for themselves if the dreadful thing were true. There has not been such an outburst of feminine excitement since the last suffragist raid on the house of commons, and the attendants grew so alarmed and were so afraid of the cloakroom being stormed by the angry owners of the precious wraps that they sent for the police. When the constables came several ladies fled ignominiously without their things. The police ultimately straightened out the tangle and the honor of Ascot was saved. The cause of the commotion is said to have been the action of some women who left early and put everything in confusion in the search for their cloaks.—London Express.

Leaving a Piano Open.

It is best to close the piano as soon as you have finished playing, both on account of the dust and the variations of the atmosphere. The keyboard should be kept scrupulously clean. Alcohol or diluted ammonia may be used for this purpose with advantage.

FARM BEAUTY AND FARM SPIRIT

By R. J. BALDWIN
Michigan Agricultural College

The farm which is run exclusively as a money-making proposition quite often lacks the attractive features which ought to be found on every farm that is the home of a family. The first consideration must always be to make the farm pay, but fields and stock will yield none the less profit if the farm possesses features of beauty. Some places have natural beauty in streams and trees such as is shown in the picture of the College Lane bridge; every place can be made pleasingly attractive by trees, lawns, well-kept fences and neat painted buildings.

The far-reaching effects of the appearance of farm surroundings may be appreciated when it is remembered that these things appeal to a part of man's nature and make up, which is deeper and more important than his instinct of possession and his ability to make money. It is the barren monotony of unattractive farm homes that has made many a boy become restless and look forward to the time when he could leave it all and find things more to his taste in city surroundings. Farmers themselves who are not thoughtful of the looks of things will soon find that they are losing interest and respect for the business they ought continually to learn more to love. Business and life affairs are so curiously knit and interwoven that the pride and care taken in one thing will show its effect in all things. It is an observable fact that the farms on which most attention is given to neatness and beauty, there also is found the greatest profit in business.

The things we remember longest about our old farm homes are not how much the fat porkers weighed or how many bushels or tons per acre were ours on a certain field, although that was of first importance at the time. We remember mostly the spring with climbing vines and limbs, the elms and maples, the evergreens in the corner of the house yard, the red barns where we kept the silky-coated jerseys and the old house with all its comforts and conveniences.

To live the farm life ideal is to know the beauty of open fields and sky and trees; to appreciate the sacred blessing of home ties and neighbors' friendships. Nowhere is there more excellent opportunity to know the really great things of life than in the open country, if it is not forgotten that "making a life" comes first and is the very purpose of making a living.

CARE OF THE GRINDSTONE

By H. H. MUSSELMAN, Instructor in Farm Mechanics, Michigan Agricultural College.

Perhaps no farm implement or machine receives less attention than the grindstone, and yet it is as indispensable as the small boy who turns it. The efficient man takes some heed to the care he gives it since his efficiency depend upon it. A man cannot do the maximum amount of work with dull tools; and dull tools cannot be sharpened satisfactorily on a wobbly or eccentric stone. Especially at this season of the year should the stone be put in shape after the season's rush of grinding everything from penknives to mower knives. In grinding the latter it is difficult to prevent wearing away the corners of the stone.

Very often the stone is run in a trough of water in which the water is allowed to stand and soften one side of the stone when not in use, so that it wears away faster with use than the drier part, thus making the stone eccentric or out of true. A better method of supplying water while grinding is to hang above the stone a vessel having a small pet-cock or opening through which the flow of water may be controlled and made to drip upon the stone while grinding.

The grindstone and frame should be protected from the weather at all seasons of the year, though it appears that they are often left out of doors to furnish an excuse for not grinding dull tools on rainy days.

To true up the face of a grindstone get a piece of gas pipe about three-quarters of an inch in diameter and two or three feet long. Get a steady rest for the pipe about two or three inches from the stone and at a height that will allow the pipe to be held nearly horizontal with the end squarely against the stone; then turning the stone hold the pipe firmly at such a distance from the stone that it will strike and wear away the high part of the surface. Continue until the pipe wears the entire circumference of the stone, noting that the stone has no crown or high center on the face. Of course the pipe will be ground away rapidly, but as it becomes worn at an angle it may be turned over and the pointed side held against the stone.

Cull Out Poor Ewes.

During the early autumn the farm flock should be subjected to a rigid selection. All ewes known to have defects or poor records as breeders should now be in shops for the mutton market. This can be done much more efficiently if each sheep has an ear tag number and a record is kept of her performance during the year.

Relieves Backache Instantly

Sloan's Liniment is a great remedy for backache. It penetrates and relieves the pain instantly—no rubbing necessary—just lay it on lightly.

Here's Proof.

I had my back hurt in the Beer War and in San Francisco two years ago. I was hit by a street car in the same place. I tried all kinds of dopes without success. Two weeks ago I saw your liniment in a drug store and got a bottle to try. The first application caused instant relief, and now except for a little stiffness, I am almost well.

Some Shakespeare Statistics.

A Shakespearean enthusiast with a turn for statistics has discovered that the plays contain 106,007 lines and 814,780 words. "Hamlet" is the longest play, with 3,930 lines, and the "Comedy of Errors" the shortest, with 1,777 lines. Altogether the plays contain 1,227 characters, of which 157 are females. The longest part is that of Hamlet. The part with the longest word in it is that of Costard in "Love's Labor Lost," who tells Moth that he is "not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus."

The Angler's Bait.

A well-known angler at Peterborough having obtained a wasp's nest containing a large number of grubs, placed the nest in the kitchen over to kill the grubs so that he could use them for bait.

The next morning he went to get the grubs, but on opening the oven door a swarm of wasps flew out. The oven was not hot enough to kill the grubs, but was sufficiently warm to hatch them.—London Daily Mail.

FROM TEXAS

Some Coffee Facts From the Lone Star State.

From a beautiful farm down in Texas, where gushing springs up to form babbling brooks that wind their sparkling way through flowery meads, comes a note of gratitude for delivery from the coffee habit.

"When my baby boy came to me five years ago, I began to drink Postum, having a feeling that it would be better for him and me than the old kind of drug-laden coffee. I was not disappointed in it, for it enabled me, a small, delicate woman, to nurse a bouncing, healthy baby 14 months.

"I have since continued the use of Postum for I have grown fond of it, and have discovered to my joy that it has entirely relieved me of a bilious habit which used to prostrate me two or three times a year, causing much discomfort to my family and suffering to myself.

"My brother-in-law was cured of chronic constipation by leaving off coffee and using Postum. He has become even more fond of it than he was of the old coffee.

"In fact, the entire family, from the latest arrival (a 2-year-old who always calls for his 'potie' first thing in the morning), up to the head of the house, think there is no drink so good or so wholesome as Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in packages. "There's a Reason" never read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

MICHIGAN CROPS SHOW UP WELL

Secretary of State Issues Report of Conditions Up to Nov. 1.

Frederick C. Martindale, secretary of state, on Wednesday issued the following Michigan crop report, which details conditions up to November 1:

WHEAT—The condition of wheat, as compared with an average percent, is, in the state and upper peninsula, 95; in the southern counties, 87; in the central counties, 93; and in the northern counties, 94.

The total number of bushels of wheat marketed by farmers in October 129 flouring mills is 251,052 and at 143 elevators and to grain dealers 320,933, or a total of 671,986 bushels. Of this amount, 392,774 were marketed in the southern four tiers of counties, 145,465 in the central counties and 33,757 in the northern counties and upper peninsula. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in the three months, August-October, is 5,000,000. Seventy-seven mills, elevators and grain dealers report no wheat marketed in October.

CORN—The estimated average yield of corn in bushels is 32 in the state, 33 in the southern counties, 31 in the central counties, 30 in the northern counties and 37 in the upper peninsula.

CLOVER SEED—The per cent of acreage of clover seed harvested as compared with average years is 64 in the state and northern counties, 61 in the southern counties, 63 in the central counties and 81 in the upper peninsula. The average yield per acre in bushels is 1.49 in the state, 1.39 in the southern counties, 1.64 in the central counties, 1.64 in the northern counties and 2.00 in the upper peninsula.

POTATOES—The estimated average yield per acre in bushels is 92 in the state, 84 in the southern counties, 87 in the central counties, 103 in the northern counties and 128 in the upper peninsula.

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS—The per cent of farmers who have used commercial fertilizer on their wheat this fall is 19 in the state, 27 in the southern counties, 20 in the central counties, 4 in the northern counties and 1 in the upper peninsula.

LIVE STOCK—The average condition in the state of horses, cattle and swine 96 and sheep 95.

Table showing for the state the estimated acreage, total yield and yield per acre of the following farm products for the year 1911:

It doesn't take a very clever woman to compel a man to make a fool of himself.

The man who breaks into politics may not be a burglar, still he may be just as good.

It is surprising to some to hear Empey Bros. say their business far exceeds any year yet. We presume to say that is brought about from the fact they are carrying a larger stock than ever.

West Side School Notes.

Pupils of Room I are learning parts of Hiawatha.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" is being read for morning exercises in Room III. The fourth grade have made birch bark canoes with painted Indian symbols in connection with their reading of "The Early Cave Men."

The primary rooms are studying about Indians and have made drawings and free hand cuttings of bows, arrows, wigwams and canoes.

The seventh grade are taking topics from "Carpenter's Geographical Reader" in their study of South America.

The pupils of Room IV, made some autumn cookies this week: woods and field scenes in water color mounted as covers and containing suitable quotations in fancy printing.

Miss Keenifoltz supplied Tuesday in Room III, Miss Heller being absent on account of sickness.

The little people enjoy their exercises in sense training and are showing improvements along these lines.

The fine weather this week enables Mr. Powers to push the sewer work along rapidly.

LIFE NOT WORTH LIVING

Is the way Miss Alta Abel of West Baden, Ind., summed up her existence after having sought in vain for health. She writes: "I was a complete wreck—always tired, worn out and nervous. I had to spend about one-third of my time in bed."

"Vinol, your delicious cod liver and iron tonic, was recommended, and I can truly say it has done me more good than all the medicine I ever took in my life. That nervous and tired feeling is all gone. I have gained in health, flesh and strength, until I feel like another person." (We guarantee this testimonial to be genuine.)

What Vinol did for Miss Abel, we know it will do for every nervous, run-down, overworked, tired, thin and discouraged woman in this vicinity.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Charles Rush, who recently murdered Charles Johnson of Branch township, Mason county, in the course of a drunken brawl in a saloon at Custer, was found guilty of murder in the second degree and will be required to serve a term in the penitentiary. The convicted man is a victim of tuberculosis and is said to be in the last stages of that disease. But this fact does not prevent the further fact that he was known to be an extreme drinker. The saloon keeper from dosing him with whiskey until he was insanely drunk. The saloon floor was made red and slippery with the blood of Charles Johnson, but when the body had been removed and the blood swept from the floor business was resumed and the privilege of providing further for crime and death on the part of the saloon's patrons was actively continued. The people of Ma-

ASHAMED OF HER FACE

"I was ashamed of my face" writes Miss Pickard of North Carolina. "I was all full of pimples and scars, but after using D. D. D. Prescription for Eczema I can say that now there is no sign of that Eczema and that was three years ago."

This is but one of thousands of cases in which D. D. D. has simply washed away the skin trouble. D. D. D. cleanses the skin of the germs of Eczema, Psoriasis and other serious skin diseases; stops the itching instantly, and when used with D. D. D. soap the cures seem to be permanent. Nothing like D. D. D. for the complexion.

Trial bottle 25 cents, enough to prove the merit of this wonderful remedy.

We can also give you a full size bottle for $1.00 on our absolute guarantee that if this very first bottle fails to give you relief it will cost you nothing.

It is a manifest fact that the brewers do not approve of the effect of their own business on the community life, as 14 of them chose to live in Hyde Park, Chicago, one of the prohibition districts of that city, and so rear their sons and daughters away from the foul atmosphere which they themselves create—for others.

When the people can be made to understand that it actually costs more in time and money to travel over a poor road than it does to travel over a good one, they will be less inclined to so begrudge the expense of good roads, and what is more important still, will be willing and anxious to put the business of road making into the hands of intelligent men who understand the business. Poor roads are as expensive a thing as curse a county district.

If those who declare that they are anxious for the adoption of the best system of handling the liquor traffic were as fair and honest as they pretend to be they would not condemn local option after a brief of two years' or four years' trial even though it does not bring about entirely perfect conditions. No other law on the statute books of this state could accomplish so much as has been accomplished by the local option law in the same space of time. Urged by every form of selfish inclination the opponents of local option have sought to prevent its having even one day of unquestioned opportunity. They exaggerate its every weakness and refuse to admit any of its good results. The liquor business had an uninterrupted sway in our state through two or three generations. Why not give local option half a chance to show its practical merits? The American spirit of fair play finds no favor with the saloons or with the liquor traffic forces in their desperate struggle for continued control and further existence.

CHANGE IN WOMAN'S LIFE

Made Safe by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Grantville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffering from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. CHAS. BARCLAY, R.F.D., Grantville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

The Girl in Yellow

By LOUISE MERRIFIELD

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

It was dark and fragrant in the garden. Nevin left the crowded rooms with a quick sense of relief. He hated dancing with a lot of other girls when the only one he wanted avoided him. But he had caught her at last. And he was sure that no one would miss either of them.

Down through the shadowy alleys of shrubbery he strolled keeping in view the faint gleam of her gown. It was a pale yellow one. Mighty few girls wore yellow. It suited Irma's dark, pliant face perfectly. And she wore no jewels. He had noticed that also.

Nevin knew that she must have seen him. His cadet suit would have betrayed him if nothing else in the moonlight. But even the moon barely gave any light here under the pines. He set his teeth and followed the trail desperately.

For four weeks the cadets had encamped at Point of Pines and had owned the place, but none of the boys had received a worse wound in the lists of love than Ted Nevin.

"You've got about as much show as Puffy Blake," the boys told him. Puffy was the homeliest and happiest boy in the troop, and absolutely impervious to love. "You pick out your colonel's niece and you're only a year out of the Point."

"The old man's got five nieces and three daughters."

"As if that lessened their value. Ted, lad—Go to, child; go to."

But Ted had met her eyes and he was not afraid. Diligently he attached himself to the entourage of the colonel's wife. Valiantly he became tame cat, and fetched and carried for all of her three grown-up daughters, and some of the other nieces, all to get a quick, flashing smile and a shy, sidelong glance of amused understanding from Irma's eyes. Understand? Of course, she did. Who could help it, when his hungry, pleading gaze haunted her day after day?—and the touch of his hand was different from all other hands, when they happened to dance together. They did not talk while they danced, and Irma smiled when she thought of those dances. Even Aunt Frances could not guess the possibilities of a dance for getting better acquainted, even when one did not talk.

But this was positively the only opportunity he had had of seeing her alone, and Ted seized it. Yet when he finally caught up with her he was speechless. She had stopped, too, at sound of his hurrying footsteps in the narrow, hedge-bordered walk. It was so dark he could not see her face, and even that she turned from him. Before he knew or thought of what he would do next, he had reached out and taken her hands. She dropped her head and Ted bent quickly and kissed her—not on the lips. She gave him no chance, but on the cheek, her dear, soft cheek, with the fluffy, fragrant hair curling around it.

And then, just as he was about to speak, there came the sound of laughter and merry, girlish voices in the garden close by.

"Where are you?" they called. "We're going down to the shore. It's too warm to dance."

The next instant Ted found himself alone. The yellow dress had vanished precipitately down the dark pathway, and he went back to the hotel, glowing, triumphant and full of such assurance that when he saw the colonel's wife he went over and fumed her as if he already called her aunt.

It was only after their next walk that he found a chance of speaking to Irma. She seemed so self-possessed and gentle that he envied her. He almost trembled as he asked her if she would go into the garden with him. He wondered how she could help hearing his heart beat as they passed away from the crowd together.

There was a Roman seat out on the terraces that overlooked the sea, and Ted led her there.

"I am afraid Aunt Frances will miss me," Irma said, doubtfully. "We should have asked her first, I think."

"Nonsense. I left her talking to four subs. She's good for an hour Irma, you darling, isn't it great to be alone for half a minute. Great Scott, but I've worked for this."

Boysishly, he threw his hat on the ground and turned to her.

"I never was sure until tonight, you know."

"Sure of what?"

"Of you, just you," he said softly, under his breath.

"I think you are almost too sure, don't you—Mr. Nevin?" Irma asked demurely.

"Don't scold. I'll be humble and good. But you and I know, don't we dear? We've known all the while every time we met, and every time we danced together, every time we looked at me. You did care, didn't you? Look at me now. I can see your eyes in the moonlight, and tell, Irma."

The girl caught her breath, and leaned back from his reaching, eager arms, but they caught her and drew her close to him. When he raised his head from hers his voice sounded husky and with a new ring of manliness.

"I'm going to the colonel in the morning. I'm twenty-four, and will have my commission this year, and by Jove, we'll be married as soon as he'll let you. Will you take this world-wide trail with me, love?"

She pushed him back from her laughingly, her eyes full of tears.

"That's the nearest approach you've made to a real proposal of marriage, sir, do you realize it?" she asked.

"You take a great deal for granted, sir, after one kiss."

"One. Of course—it was—it was—long enough for two, but it was only one, really."

Ted hesitated, and thought hard. "Did I only kiss you once tonight, Irma?" he asked.

"You should know."

"Oh, of course, of course, I should know. Guess I do know, you sweet heart," he added fervently.

"There comes the girls," whispered Irma, suddenly. "They've been down to the beach for a stroll. I think you know them all excepting Phyllis, my other cousin; the girl in yellow."

Very dignified Ted looked as he stood up to face the ordeal when the flock of girls came up to them. Much he trusted to the discretion of Phyllis, much to the memory of Phyllis, but even he was not prepared for the frank, cheery greeting he got from this new cousin of his love's.

"I'm ever so pleased to meet you Mr. Nevin; but you won't mind if I forget you, will you? I simply can't keep track of you boys all in gray uniform. Why, I was just telling the girl. A gray uniform followed me out into the garden and kissed me without a blessed word and then vanished. How can I find out who wore it? Isn't it a mystery and a romance, all to one?"

"It—it's a tragedy," said Ted fervently, but Irma's hand closed on his arm.

"I wouldn't look too closely, Phyllis," she said, shyly. "You know love is blind."

Leonardo da Vinci Was Prolific.

Although Leonardo da Vinci was a voluminous writer, he never published a single line during his lifetime.

Only within the last thirty years have his writings been made known to the world. After the master's death in France his manuscripts were brought back to Italy. His heirs proved unworthy, and the precious writings were gradually dispersed. Loose pages were often detached, and were either given away as relics or stolen.

No attempt was made to publish any of his treatises except that on painting, for more than three hundred years after his death. This was partly owing to the great difficulty of deciphering his handwriting. Da Vinci was left-handed, and always wrote in oriental fashion from right to left. Besides this, his orthography is peculiar to himself; he abbreviates some words and joins others together and employs neither stops nor accents.

Famous American Schoolmaster.

Dr. Colt of St. Paul's School was a tall man in a long black coat; and as he moved and walked about the paths and corridors, he remained always within an invisible tower of isolation, so that you could not be sure that his feet rested on quite the same ground as your own. He lived within that solitude which a great purpose and constant prayer sometimes cast about a man. There was a chasm between him and the rest of mankind which could not be bridged by trivial intercourse. Neither he nor the rest of mankind were at fault for the difference in tension between them. He was so charged with moral passion that many people could not receive the delivery of it.—John Jay Chapman in "Essays."

His Habit.

"In the picture taken of the party, your friend, the lawyer, is lying at ease—looks so natural."

"Wouldn't be natural unless he was lying at something."

The Kind.

"What policy do you think the best for a freeze-out game?"

"I should advise a blanket policy."

POULTRY

ONE GOOD FATTENING RATION

Pennsylvania Station Makes Suggestion as to Feed Where Different Kinds of Flesh is Desired.

The Pennsylvania station suggests the following grain rations for fattening poultry, as having been used with success:

Where a yellow flesh is wanted a ration should be made of cornmeal, five parts; ground oats, hulls removed, two parts; animal meal, one part mixed with sour milk. Where a white flesh is wanted the following rations are recommended: Corn meal, two parts; ground buckwheat, two parts; ground oats, two parts mixed with sour milk. Another: Barley meal, two parts; middlings, two parts; buckwheat, two parts; corn meal, one part, mixed with sour milk. Another: The refuse from shredded wheat and sour milk.

When birds are confined for fattening sour milk aids digestion and keeps the system from getting feverish. If no milk is available some form of animal or green food must be supplied to make the best gains. Should a chicken for any reason get off its food a good plan is to turn it out in the yard. It will usually recover in a short time. Water should be given once a day and grit twice a week. The rations should be fed rather soft, about like porridge. The food should never remain before them from one meal to another. Take it away twenty minutes after feeding.

CANDLING-OUTFIT FOR EGGS

One Can Easily Arrange Satisfactory Apparatus Out of Piece of Tin and a Lamp.

(By BERT COHN.)

Any person can make a candling outfit easily and cheaply. A cylinder of tin large enough to fit over a kerosene lamp or lantern or a piece of ordinary stove pipe is sufficient. This should have a hole cut in it about the size of a silver dollar, cut so as to stand opposite the flame of the lamp or lantern. The candling can be done in ordinary light, but better work can be done in a dark or semi-dark room. As a general rule if the egg shows clear, or in other words, if you can see through it, it is good. If it contains one or more dark spots, dark lines or dark rings, it is bad, and should be thrown away. If it is several days old, and has an air space at one end, it is not bad, but can be sold. The produce-dealers receive the eggs as seconds. If you cannot see through the eggs they are bad and should be thrown out. Some perfectly fresh eggs may show dark lines or rings. These are caused by unhealthy hens and the eggs are not good.

POULTRY NOTES

All houses and nests should be clean.

England has one hen to the acre of territory.

Sell off the scrub chickens and have only one breed.

Collect all eggs from nest at least once a day; hot weather twice.

Make ready a corner in each pen, that can be used as a dusting box.

The surplus cockerets and pullets may be sold as breeders and a fancy realized.

Hens over two years of age are seldom good layers, therefore should not be held over.

Keep eggs in a cool, dry place, but not in a cellar, as they are there likely to become musty.

Care should be taken at all times never to permit moisture to come in contact with the eggs.

When the hens are started in laying, great care must be used in not allowing them out on stormy days.

Oats, bran and green food are the best stimulants to egg production. Corn is rather fattening for use at this season.

A chick that is stunted because of lack of good food at any period of growth never is profitable as a layer or a breeder.

A little fresh meat minced fine is necessary for the laying hens during the winter months. This should be given about twice a week.

An ideal bird for winter egg production is a pullet matured about November 1st, which is strong and vigorous and is of a good laying strain.

Backache Means Dying Kidneys

A Remarkable Treatment That Cures the Kidneys. How You May Cure Yourself Quickly and Thoroughly.

With the progress of science comes one remarkable treatment for kidney disease. It has been so thoroughly tested and its results have proven so revolutionary that a well-known firm in Michigan has undertaken its distribution into every part of the country.

Those who suffer from kidney trouble and the diseases resulting from it will be pleased to know that every package of this treatment is thoroughly guaranteed. This should assure at last a positive cure to every sufferer.

Every man and woman should know that backache is usually a well-defined symptom of advancing kidney disease which may end fatally unless treated in time; that rheumatism and bladder trouble are caused from nothing more nor less than kidneys that do not filter the poison from the blood; that dropsy, Bright's disease, diabetes and bladder-stones are caused by bad kidneys.

Once they are made to work properly, these diseases should quickly disappear.

This is done by the new treatment, Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills.

We urge everyone who has pain in the small of the back, profuse or scanty urination, pain in the bladder, cloudy or foul urine, not to fail to get a package today of Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills, and drop all other kidney treatments.

Senator Stevenson of Washington writes from Olympia: "There is no question about the efficacy of Dr. Derby's Pills in curing kidney and bladder trouble. I know whereof I speak."

Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills are now sold at all drug stores—25 and 50 cent packages you would like to try them first, ask your druggist for a free sample package. Then buy a package; you will not regret it. Derby Medicine Co., Eaton Rapids, Mich.

CURSORY, AS IT WERE.

The Owl—What do you think of Mr. Robin's new home?

The Sparrow—It looks very nice, but I've only taken a bird's-eye view of it.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WEAK?

There are two ways to tell if you have weak kidneys. The first is through pains in the back. The second by examining the kidney secretions. If you suspect your kidneys, begin using Doan's Kidney Pills at once.

Mrs. J. L. Warrick, 406 W. Mulberry St., Lebanon, Ohio, says: "No tongue can tell the agonies I suffered. My feet and limbs were lifeless and there were weeks when I could not put my feet to the floor or stand alone. As a last resort, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. In six weeks I was as free from kidney trouble as if I had never had it."

Aerial Scout Work.

As an example of what German military airmen are already able to do, the performance of Lieutenant Mackenthum recently is cited. In a space of 35 minutes Lieutenant Mackenthum, who was acting for the Red force, rose and flew along the enemy's front and was back on the ground at his headquarters ready to report. To obtain the same results would have taken a strong force of cavalry four hours.

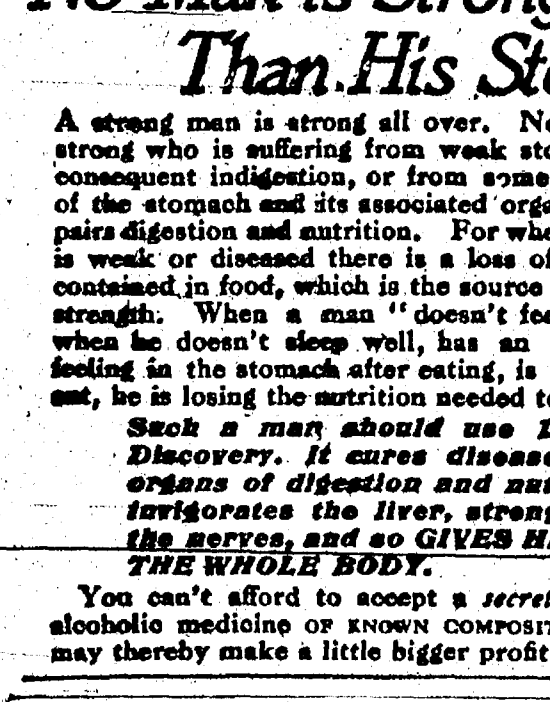

It's all right to help others, but it doesn't pay to be too busy to stop and help yourself.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so GIVES HEALTH AND STRENGTH TO THE WHOLE BODY.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

To Mend an Umbrella. To mend an umbrella that tears loose from the rib at the point, when you are on the street and needle and thread are not available, close the umbrella and bring the cloth in position, insert a small hairpin in the hole of the rib, and wind securely around cloth. This "first aid to the injured" is so efficient you will be tempted to leave it permanently.—National Magazine.

"The Liver Pills act So Naturally and Easily."

Such a statement, coming from the cashier of a bank, shows what confidence responsible people have in these pills. Mr. A. L. Wilson after trying them wrote:

"I have used Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and also your Anti-Pain Pills, on myself, with good results. The Liver Pills act so naturally and so easily that I scarcely know that I have taken a pill. Frequently being troubled with headache I take an Anti-Pain Pill and get immediate relief in every case."
A. L. Wilson, Sparta, Ill.
Mr. Wilson was for a number of years cashier of the First National Bank of Sparta.

Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills are different from others. Many kinds of liver pills are "impossible" after one trial on account of their harshness. Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills do not act by sheer force but in an easy, natural way, without griping or undue irritation. They are not habit forming.

Miss Himes and Miss Whiting went to Detroit last Tuesday morning to the Michigan State Teachers' association Institute.

Ella Rasmussen and Lila Gray substituted in Miss Whiting's room.

Lillian Flanders had charge of the seventh grade during Miss Kelly's absence.

Lillian Bandahl and Marguerite Munger took charge of Miss Floucau's room Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Himes gave the class a report of her trip to Detroit and the important subjects discussed.

Enid Todd and Countis Mason serve as editors this week, Louisa Marsa and Marguerite Munger bookkeepers and Georgia Adams as gardener.

The Alumni who attended the State Teachers' Association were Tom Scroggie, class of '10, who is teaching near Boyne City, Mildred Drescher, class of '09, who is teaching at Grawn and Clara Floucau, class of '08, who is teaching at Norwood.

A Gift With A Thought In It

What other Christmas present costs so little and means so much as a subscription to The Youth's Companion—52 weeks for $1.75? It is a gift which benefits not only the one who receives it, but every member of the same household.

If you do not know The Companion if you are at all uncertain, just send us a postal card asking for sample copies.

Not only is The Companion the best gift for the money, but the easiest to choose. Keep the loving Christmas thought bright and unwearyed by making your Christmas gift The Youth's Companion.

The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free The Companion's Calendar for 1912, lithograph in ten colors and gold, and you too as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the Calendar.

The subscription price is now only $1.75 but on January 1, 1912, it will be advanced to $2.00.

W. E. Williams, a well known resident of Pontiac, in the course of a recent reference to the deplorable difference brought about by the return of the saloons to that county says: "During the 'dry' regime there I knew of many children who were well fed and clothed who have since gone hungry and ragged and I know of one woman in particular who moved here from Wayne county when Oakland went 'dry' to get her husband away from the cause of drink. Since the county went 'wet' the husband has fallen back to his old habits and the woman is again neglected and looking for work to support herself and children." Mr. Williams is decidedly in favor of a united and aggressive effort on the part of the people of Oakland county to bring to that county again the very desirable conditions secured through local option.

AVOID HARSH DRUGS

Many Cathartics Tend to Cause Injury to the Bowels

If you are subject to constipation you should avoid strong drugs and cathartics. They only give temporary relief and their reaction is harmful and sometimes more annoying than constipation. They in no way effect a cure and their tendency is to weaken the already weak organs with which they come in contact.

We honestly believe that we have the best constipation treatment ever devised. Our faith in it is so strong that we sell it on the positive guarantee that it shall not cost the user a cent if it does not give entire satisfaction and completely remedy constipation. This preparation is called Rexall Orderlies. These are prompt, soothing, and most effective in action. They are made of a recent chemical discovery. Their principle ingredient is odorless, tasteless and colorless. Combined with other well-known ingredients, long established for their usefulness in the treatment of constipation, it forms a tablet which is eaten just like candy. They may be taken at any time, either day or night without fear of their causing any inconvenience whatever. They do not gripe, purge or cause nausea. They act without causing any pain or excessive looseness of the bowels. They are ideal for children, weak, delicate persons, and aged people, as well as for the most hearty persons.

They come in three size packages, 12 tablets, 10 cents; 36 tablets, 25 cents; 80 tablets, 50 cents. Remember, you can obtain them only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

Youth's Companion Calendar For 1912

The publishers of the Youth's Companion will, as always at this season present to every subscriber whose subscription ($1.75) is paid for 1912, a beautiful calendar for the new year. The cover picture reproduces a water-color painting of a bit of New England coast, giving a glimpse of breeze-swept ocean, of smiling sky, of warm sunny rocks, which will come like a breath of sea air to those who have once lived near the sea and to those whose whole life has been passed inland. The picture being in eight colors, the tones of the original are faithfully reproduced.

"He was a good workman, but most of his earnings went for whiskey and cans of beer." This reference in the Detroit Times of November first was to Mike Lawrence who had been run over by an express wagon on Rivard street in Detroit Monday night. The old man's contributions to the saloon cash register through the payment for his "cans of beer" had driven himself and wife to occupy the part of an old mill which the newspaper reporter referred to as "probably the filthiest place in Detroit." He had been a good workman but now he was lying helpless on a miserable bundle of rags surrounded by an array of old furniture, boxes and paper and indescribable filth. He had exercised to the last limit his "personal liberty" which the brewers and saloonkeepers so greatly desired for him. As was stated by the Detroit newspaper, "He was a good workman but most of his earnings went into the saloon-keeper's pocket for whiskey and cans of beer."

A Household Medicine
That stops coughs quickly and cures colds is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Mrs. Anna Pezler, 2526 Jefferson St., So. Omaha, Neb., says: "I can recommend Foley's Honey and Tar Compound as a sure cure for coughs and colds. It cured my daughter of a bad cold and my neighbor, Mrs. Benson, cured herself and her whole family with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. Every one in our neighborhood speaks highly of it."

Who He Stood.
A certain Federal Judge who is so dignified that he doesn't wish his name to appear in print in connection with mere factiousness, tells an Ohio paper a story of a case where a colored woman was suing a railroad company for personal injury. An Irishman was being examined as to his fitness to serve on the jury. "Is there any reason why you cannot try this case?" asked the attorney. "No reason," "Have you any prejudice against railroad companies or corporations of any kind?" "Not a bit." "Will you try this case fairly and justly and according to the evidence?" "I will, sir." "Then at this present time you have no notion as to how this case should be decided." "Sure I have—you don't catch me there, sir. Me mind is made up—I'm for the colored woman an' agin the company."

Youth Never to Be Recalled.
"A man has a shrewd suspicion that age has overtaken him when he keeps assuring you that he feels as young as ever—and he doesn't know but—younger. Poor fellow, he whistles to keep his courage up; but, alas! he cannot recall youth as he calls his pointer—with a whistle."

Odd Conditions.
"I think it is extremely queer that they demand cash payments for telegrams." "Why shouldn't they?" "Because it is a well-known fact that all telegraphic messages go on tick."

A Mail Carrier's Load
Seems heavier when he has a weak back and kidney trouble. Fred Duchan, Mail Carrier at Atchison, Kas., says: "I have been bothered with kidney and bladder trouble and had a severe pain across my back. Whenever I carried a heavy load of mail my kidney trouble increased. Some time ago I began taking Foley Kidney Pills and since taking them I have gotten entirely rid of all my kidney trouble and am as sound now as ever."

ORDER FOR ELECTION.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
Whereas written application and petition addressed to the Board of Supervisors of the County of Charlevoix, have been received by the Clerk of said County, and filed in his office, praying that an election be held in and for said County of Charlevoix, under the provision of Act No. 207 of the Public Acts of 1899, approved June 29th, 1899, as amended by act 183 of the public acts of 1900, to ascertain the will of the qualified electors of said county, whether or not the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic should be prohibited within the limits of the said County; and whereas the said petition was presented to the Board of Supervisors of said County, at its regular session, held in October, A. D. 1911, and said petitioners were duly examined and whereas upon such examination it was determined and declared by resolution adopted by said Board, that such election has been prayed for by the requisite number of electors, to wit, by not less than one-third (1/3) of all qualified electors of said county, as shown by reference to the returns and County Canvass of the last preceding general election, held for State Officers, in said County;

Now therefore it is ordered and directed, by the Board of Supervisors of the said County of Charlevoix, that an Election be and the same is hereby called in the several Townships, Cities, and Election Districts in said County, pursuant to the provisions of the above named act, to ascertain the will of the electors of said County, "Whether or not the manufacture of liquors and the liquor traffic should be prohibited within the limits of said County;" and it is further ordered that the said Election as above directed shall be held at the next general election for the Township officers in the several Townships, Cities and Election Districts in said county on Monday the 1st day of April A. D. 1912.

Signed,
CHAS. J. ZETTLER,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors.
DANIEL S. PAYTON,
Clerk.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, ss.
County of Charlevoix.
I, Daniel S. Payton, Clerk of the County of Charlevoix, and Clerk of the Circuit Court for said County, the same being a Court of Record and having a Seal do hereby certify that I have compared the annexed copy of order of an election with the original record thereof now remaining in my office, and have found the said copy to be a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole of such or original Record.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Circuit Court at the City of Charlevoix, this 21st day of October A. D. 1911.
[SEAL] DANIEL S. PAYTON, Clerk

Dog Days.
Dog days is the name applied to the heated season of the year at the time of the heliacal rising of Sirius, the dog star; that is, the time when it rose just before the sun. They usually lasted for about 40 days. We still retain the expression of dog days as applied to the hottest season of the year, but owing to the procession of the equinoxes it is no longer the time of the heliacal rising of the dog star.

Fashions Change Little.
From the fresco paintings of women in the Cretan palaces of the period about 2,000 B. C. it is learned that the women of that time plaited in their waists, had bouffant of accordion plaited skirts, wore an elaborate collar of their heads, shoes with high heels and hats which might have come from a Parisian hat shop, while one woman might be described as wearing a tulle toilette.
