Alfalfa Culture in Michigan

We should grow alfalfa because it produces more digestible protein per acre than any of the other forage crops, because through its deep root system it is able in a dry time, when other plants with their shallow roots are suffering from drought, to get its water and gather plant food from deep down in the soil, as these roots are often found at a depth of 16 to 20 feet, and because the nodules on its roots change the free nitrogen of the air into plant food.

The soil best adapted to alfalfa growing is a deep, rich, loam, which is well drained, with a subsoil sufficiently porous to permit aeration, and penetration of the roots. Alfalfa may be grown on clay soil and also on gravel and sandy soils. Soils that are not adapted to alfalfa are those where the water table comes within four feet of the surface, or where a hardpan subsoil lies near the surface, or on land where red clover would heave badly, and where you find it is best to sow alsike rather than red clover.—A. B. Potts, Michigan Agricultural College.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN

Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Loses in Love and Marriage

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could one arrav to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness and success. Yet right here in East Jordan, there are thousands of women who are neglecting their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons over-heated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, fall out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have the remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either cure dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and over-come scalp and hair trouble; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots have been extinguished the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 93 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall "93" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You had better think this over, and see us about this offer. You will be well repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

A Talk On Colds

Put Yourself in His Place

THE INSURANCE PRESS, in a recent issue, gives a fac-simile of the following tragic letter received by the representative of a life assurance company from a friend of his under sentence of death by cancer. The name of the writer is, of course not revealed;

DEAR BILL,—Acknowledging your letter of yesterday, I would gladly increase my life insurance $50,000—if you could place it. But you couldn't. For tomorrow I am to be operated on for cancer, and the doctors tell me that my chance of survival is one in twenty.

This news will surprise you, since it is less than a year ago that your examiner passed me—the fourth time in ten years. I am trying to be hopeful, but there is an impressive solemnity in the thought that this may be my last day on earth.

I have been putting my house in order. It did not require an expert accountant. My assets are: (1) Cash in bank, $341; (2) household and personal effects, not worth selling; (3) life insurance, $30,240.

Liabilities as follows:—(1) Mortgage on house, $4,500 (2) household monthly bills, $195.

This is my financial exhibit after sixteen years in business. Not a strong showing for a man of 37! But I began on nothing and had to work my way up. Just as things are beginning to come my way, I find myself on the brink of the unknown.

My only comfort in this crisis is my life insurance, and I honestly thank you, Bill, for your council and persistence. Sometimes I have almost hated you for loading me with such a burden. On a yearly income never higher than $3,800, it has been a big strain to carry $30,240. Last year, out of every dollar I earned 16 cents went for life insurance premiums.

But it was worth the sacrifice. What else would I be leaving behind today? If I had banked the amount of the premiums, my savings would have been less than $4000. And I doubt if I would have saved even that much, for sometimes it was a terrific struggle to pay the premium, and only the fear of forfeiture forced me to it.

But now I thank Heaven that I took the insurance and kept it, for it enables me to go into the operating-room with anxiety only for myself, and none for Neil and Buster.

I face the uncertainty of tomorrow with neither remorse or worry. Ten years ago I confidently looked forward to riches and old age. Tomorrow, life and its opportunities may be cut off. My arcades will have tumbled and my cherished hopes be as dead as my flesh.

However, through life insurance, my family will receive some of the money I did not live long enough to make. They will have a home and a sure income for life—things which, even had I lived, I could not have guaranteed to them because of the uncertainties of health and business. Life insurance has done for my family what I could not do myself.

It may seem strange for me to write you thus from my grave-side, as it were, but I wanted you to know of my heartfelt gratitude to you and the great cause you represent.

Yours sincerely,
HOWARD.

Girl Moper

Ought to Bring Herself Back to Earth

By BLANCHE BRUCE

THAT poor girl moper who goes around wedging wormwood into your views because Miss Gild was born with a gold spoon in her mouth and you weren't, or because the general divine scheme of things has queered you from way-back, or because some darling of fortune can carry around poodles while you must tote-bills and order books—that moper ought to bring herself to task before she goes to the ash heap or under the tube roses.

The "Brushwood Boy" and "William the Conqueror," two stories we have surely heard of some time, considering the fame of their author, can best give you a new relish for work if you have lost it through moping. The main people in these stories are all-keen on the joy of using their facilities. Some of them even love their work first and their sweethearts afterwards.

Then that delightful story of the faithful and conscientious Jane Eyre, and that uplifting one in which Maggie Tulliver, who never has the things she would have, has such a wonderful gift for self-sacrifice.

And no books are quite so cheering and instructive to the worker as Dickens' novels, in which we are always taken to the heart of work houses and poor houses and all kinds of trades and industries and brought next to people who have things to contend with like ourselves.

The best way to get away from your own mistaken views is to read those of others. But there is still another way for the girl moper who suffers with decrepit standpoint.

A stenographer who used to mope because she wasn't the manager and who had too many dreams in her head that wouldn't materialize got a turn in the right direction one cold winter morning. A half-frozen woman with two little children accosted her just as she left the snug warm apartment of her mother, herself well protected against the wind in a new fur coat.

After she had heard the woman's story and called her mother to attend to her comfort she watched a vision in costly furs and billowy plumes carry her poodle across a little snowdrift and hug him to her pretty self. This gave her another turn.

When she reached the office, she didn't mope. She only revelled in her ability to do the chief's correspondence unaided, and reckoned that if fortune ever smiled on her in the shape of a real rich husband she would give more of her time to paupers than to poodles.

Regular Hours for Child's Study and Meals

By WELLS ANDREWS, M. D.

Hours for children's study and for meals should be regulated. Sufficient time should be allowed before each meal to permit children to wash and prepare themselves comfortably, without going to the table excited by hurry. And they should be required to remain at the table throughout a fixed time, never being allowed to swallow their food hastily in order to complete an unfinished task or game. An interval of half an hour or more should intervene after meals for recreation, in order that digestion may be well under way before any mental exertion is required.

Constant nibbling of food between meals should be forbidden. It destroys the appetite, increases the saliva and interferes with stomach digestion.

Children should never be hurried off to school in the morning with an insufficient and rapidly eaten breakfast. Their appetites are often poor at this hour from the effects of an ill-ventilated sleeping-apartment, and if they are kept at school for several hours without luncheon they are very ill prepared for mental work.

The greater number of children have a natural craving for sweets. The important role of sugars in furnishing energy in active childhood necessitates the consumption of a larger proportion of sugar than is required by adults. The craving of children for confections, candy and the like furnishes a true indication of the actual requirements of nature, and it must be admitted that a certain amount of wholesome candy, like plain molasses candy, not only does most children no harm but may serve them as an excellent food.

Simple forms of well-cooked bread and custard puddings should be furnished as dessert occasionally.

Tea and coffee should be withheld. They interfere with digestion and make the child nervous.

Too much water should not be allowed with meals, and what is given should not be iced.

Deciding on Right Kind of Husband

By Mrs. Harold Sanford

Whom shall the girl marry—the young man with muscle or the old man with money?

The question involves the matter of temperament. There is the woman who has little more emotion in her makeup than the average sack of flour. She lives for her personal well being, aided and brought about by material comforts. To her marriage is little more than the entering into a contract whereby she will gain more of the world's goods than at present she is blessed with. The fact that it entails the performance of a few unpleasant duties is the only fly in the ointment, and in view of the benefits to accrue, she considers the payment slight and strikes a good bargain accordingly.

But the woman of primitive instincts, whose emotions have not been dulled by civilization's edge, the idea of marriage with a man whom she does not love is an impossible issue.

Every fiber of her being rebels at the barrier; she has no choice in the matter.

Money to her is a very insignificant part of the formula for happiness, and not to be reckoned in conjunction with the big primal forces that go to make up her existence.

She scorns to hawk her wares from one prospective buyer to another, but reserves for herself the right to win her own happiness, and gives herself with the splendid generosity of a great nature.

Of such are the real mothers of the race.

Empire Mail Bag

NO up-to-date costume is considered complete without the inevitable hand-bag, which must harmonize with, if not match, the costume. This bag is suspended from the shoulder—either side—and made of embroidered moire—three Persian palm leaves bordered with pearls being the chief decoration. The fringe and fringe is the mode at present—is made of pearl and wood beads, in brown to match the cloth suit.

URGENT NEED FOR A NAME

If the Blessed Skirt is to Be Generally Worn Let it Have Feminine Appellation.

It is thought by some in Germany that the name "harem skirt" or more horrible still "trouser-skirt" is the only thing that prevents the spread and general use of this much talked of article of wearing apparel. So these same people have offered a prize for the best names and have hit up "Amazon" and "cavalier" skirt as a result, and hope by keeping these more alluring titles before the feminine public to popularize the garment. Not that it needs so much to be popularized, they say. The leading German shops advertise it in bewildering variety, and privately claim that orders are pouring in to a degree which shows that, like other extreme modes gone before, the trousers—er, that is, the cavalier skirt—is sure to conquer in the end. But if the more timid follower of fashion buys one, and keeps it hanging in her closet to gaze upon with awe and admiration, yet is afraid to wear a "trouser" skirt upon the street, by all means let us christen it with something softer and more feminine.

DRESSES FOR EVENING WEAR

Slight Change in Styles Will Be Noted in the Coming Season's Garments.

An unusually decollete neck finish, extremely short sleeves and an irregular-shaped train inclined to shortness are features having a bearing on the new evening gowns for fall and winter. Lace plays a large part, both as a foundation material and for trimming purposes, every variety being used, no matter what the texture or pattern. Allover designs or robe gowns are used as an underbody, in which case the filmy draperies paralyze used for draping over soft finically-conceal the pattern. They are laced silks, crepes and satins, and in these instances usually are cut in one with the waist. Some of the newest models show the allover lace extension below the waist line in cutaway coat effect, Citoienne frill or peplum. In some instances the pointed effect is made in the front, with tapering lines cutting off to the waist in the back.—Dry Goods Economist.

Detachable Flower.

It must have been the girl of small allowance who invented the detachable flower for her hat. Trimming the winter's chapeaux is so simple that it is an easy matter to whisk off one flower and put on another to match the next costume worn.

Velvet poinsettias are a favorite flower on winter hats for those who can stand the vivid red so close to the face.

Another popular flower is huge velvet roses in rich dull tones. A new idea is to outline the edges of these roses with tiny beads to correspond to the color of the costume worn.

Instead of sewing on the detachable roses each time, they are provided with tiny safety pins on the under side, which are quickly adjusted to the trimming.

Making a Pillow Cover Fit.

The cover of a sofa pillow can be made to fit well by the following little trick: After sewing up three sides but before turning the cover right side out, tack the two finished corners of the case securely to two corners of the pillow. Turn the case over the pillow. Sew up the fourth side for an inch or two at each end. Tack these two corners to the corresponding corners of the cushion: Finish as usual: This keeps the pillow from pulling and sagging away from the cover.—Housekeeper.

Large Revers Popular.

The use of the large collar is no doubt responsible for the popularity of the large revers. Some are long and narrow, coming down below the waist line. Others are square and a few round.

In a certain number of cases the coats are made with a single revers on one side and double revers are seen in some instances. The long shawl collars are again meeting with favor.

CHILD'S SIMPLE FROCK

This pretty frock is of gray blue cashmere embroidered in the same shade. The waist is finished across the front with a band of maderia embroidery on linen, of which the shoulder collar is also made.

This last is placed over a collar of black satin, bands of which finish the silk cord matching the gown forms the girdele.

CANADA'S IMMENSE WHEAT FIELDS

THE ATTRACTION FOR THREE TRANSCONTINENTAL RAILWAYS.

Last August there visited the Canadian west the vice-president of the largest individual hardware company in the United States. As his firm have a turnover of millions, and deals extensively with farm implements, this man took a deep interest in crop conditions in Canada, and on his return he embodied his findings in an article for the Hardware Reporter. This article should be of special interest to farmers.

The writer speaks of the importance of the spring wheat crop of Western Canada. He might also have spoken of the importance of the oat crop and also of the winter wheat crop, as well as barley. Winter wheat during the past few years has been a great success, and experiments have shown that it can be grown with success in almost any portion of the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. But apart from this, the spring wheat crop is the one generally grown, and all who know anything of grain, anyone who has had anything to do with markets, knows or has heard of the high character of this cereal and the splendid yields that are annually produced. Reproducing from this article:—

"In a land of such great sweep, and of such difference in soil and climate, there are many resources, but none are at present of the same overwhelming importance as the spring wheat crop. In the interminable prairie stretches of the northwest provinces it is the one absorbing topic of interest and of conversation during its growing and its harvesting, for upon its success or failure hangs the weal or woe of a large part of the Dominion. Its influence extends far down into the United States, drawing thousands of farmers northwards with the lure of cheap lands, but likewise beyond the great lakes, even to the easy going maritime provinces, calling the flower of their young men to its opportunities. Development in these prairie provinces goes on at high pressure for everything hangs on the outcome of spring wheat. Success has emboldened the raisers of this one all-important crop, and each year there is further incursion into those northern fields that only a short time ago were regarded as Arctic wastes. The Canadian Northwest seems to be one of those modern agricultural examples set forth to drive the final nail in the coffin of that ancient Malthusian delusion that population tends to outrun the means of subsistence, since the only fear now among Canadian economists is as to the danger of overstocking the wheat market. Only about two and one-half per cent of possible arable lands in the northwest provinces is now under cultivation, and this year the crop promises to be close to 200,000,000 bushels, so that your imagination and your arithmetic can easily supply the answer as to the possible or even probable outcome."

During the months of July and August the weather was unfavourable and the production of a 200 million yield of wheat will not likely be realized, but even with this, the threshing reports coming to hand show that the crop will be a splendidly paying one.

A Change of Opinion.

"Talk is cheap," chuckled the politician with the telephone frank in his pocket.

After talking $20 worth, he pulled out his frank and found it had expired "By heck!" he muttered ruefully, "that guy was right when he said that 'Silence is golden.'"—Judge.

SERIAL STORY

The Courtship of Miles Standish

The Wedding Day

Forth from the curtain of clouds, from the tent of purple and scarlet, Issued the sun, the great High Priest, in his garments resplendent, Holiness unto the Lord, in letters of light, on his forehead, Round the hem of his robe the golden bells and pomegranates, Blessing the world he came, and the bars of vapor beneath him Gleamed like a grate of brass, and the sea at his feet was a laver!

This was the wedding morn of Priscilla, the Puritan maiden. Friends were assembled together; the Elder and Magistrate also Graced the scene with their presence, and stood like the Law and the Gospel, One with the sanction of earth and one with the blessing of heaven. Simple and brief was the wedding, as that of Ruth and of Boaz. Softly the youth and the maiden repeated the words of betrothal, Taking each other for husband and wife in the Magistrate's presence, After the Puritan way, and the laudable custom of Holland. Fervently then, and devoutly, the excellent Elder of Plymouth Prayed for the hearth and the home, that were founded that day in affection. Speaking of life and of death, and imploring divine benedictions.

Lo! when the service was ended, a form appeared on the threshold, Clad in armor of steel, a somber and sorrowful figure! Why does the bridegroom start and stare at the strange apparition? Why does the bride turn pale, and hide her face on his shoulder? Is it a phantom of air, a bodiless, spectral illusion?

Is it a ghost from the grave, that has come to forbid the betrothal? Long had it stood there unseen, a guest uninvited, unwelcomed; Over its clouded eyes there had passed, at times an expression Softening the gloom and revealing the warm heart hidden beneath them, As when across the sky the driving rack of the rain-cloud Rows for a moment thin, and betrays the sun by its brightness. Once it had lifted its hand, and moved its lips, but was silent, As if an iron will had mastered the feeble intention. But when were ended the troth and the prayer and the last benediction, Into the room it strode, and the people beheld with amazement Bodily there in his armor Miles Standish, the Captain of Plymouth! Grasping the bridegroom's hand, he said with emotion, "Forgive me! I have been angry and hurt,—too long have I cherished the feeling; I have been cruel and hard, but now, thank God! it is ended. Mine is the same hot blood that leaped in the veins of Hugh Standish, sensitive, swift to resent, but as swift in atoning for error. Never so much as now was Miles Standish the friend of John Alden."

Thereupon answered the bridegroom: "Let all be forgotten between us,— All save the dear, old friendship, and that shall grow older and dearer!" Then the Captain advanced, and, bowing, saluted Priscilla,

Gravely, and after the manner of old-fashioned gentry in England, Something of camp and of court, of town and of country, commingled, Wishing her joy of her wedding, and loudly lauding her husband. Then he said with a smile: "I should have remembered the adage,— If you would be well served, you must serve yourself; and more-over, No man can gather cherries in Kent at the season of Christmas!"

Great was the people's amazement, and greater yet their rejoicing. Thus to behold once more the sun-burnt face of their Captain, Whom they had mourned as dead; and they gathered and crowded about him, Eager to see him and hear him, forgetful of bride and of bridegroom, Questioning, answering, laughing, and each interrupting the other, Till the good Captain declared, being quite overpowered and bewildered, He had rather by far break into an Indian encampment, Than come again to a wedding to which he had not been invited.

Meanwhile the bridegroom went forth and stood with the bride at the doorway, Breathing the perfumed air of that warm and beautiful morning. Touched with autumnal tints, but lonely and sad in the sunshine, Lay extended before them the land of toll and privation; There were the graves of the dead, and the barren waste of the seashore, There the familiar fields, the groves of pine, and the meadows; But to their eyes transfigured, it seemed as the Garden of Eden, Filled with the presence of God, whose voice was the sound of the ocean.

Soon was their vision disturbed by the noise and stir of departure, Friends coming forth from the house, and impatient of longer delaying. Each with his plan for the day, and the work that was left uncompleted. Then from a stall near at hand, amid exclamations of wonder, Aiden the thoughtful, the careful, so happy, so proud of Priscilla, Brought out his snow-white steer, obeying the hand of its master, Let by a cord that was tied to an iron ring in its nostrils, Covered with crimson cloth, and a cushion placed for a saddle. She should not walk, he said, through the dust and heat of the noonday; Nay, she should ride like a queen, not plod along like a peasant. Somewhat alarmed at first, but reassured by the others, Placing her hand on the cushion, her foot in the hand of her husband, Gaily, with joyous laugh, Priscilla, mounted her palfrey.

"Nothing is wanting now," he said with a smile, "but the distaff; Then you would be in truth my queen, my beautiful Bertha!"

Onward the bridal procession now moved to their new habitation, Happy husband and wife, and friends conversing together. Pleasantly murmured the brook, as they crossed the ford in the forest. Pleased with the image that passed, like a dream of love through its bosom, Tremulous, floating in air, o'er the depths of the azure abysses. Down through the golden leaves the sun was pouring his splendors, Gleaming on purple grapes, that, from branches above them suspended, Mingled their odoriferous breath with the balm of the pine and the fir-tree, Wild and sweet as the clusters that grew in the valley of Eschol, Like a picture it seemed of the primitive, pastoral ages, Fresh with the youth of the world, and recalling Rebecca and Isaac, Old and yet ever new, and simple and beautiful always, Love immortal and young in the endless succession of lovers. So through the Plymouth woods passed onward the bridal procession.

PROPER FORMATION OF TREE HEADS IN MODERN ORCHARDS

How to Prune to Get Best Results Both in Shape and Quality of Fruit—Apples and Pears Now Headed Much Lower Than Formerly to Guard Against Any Loss by Wind Storms.

(By L. C. CORBETT.)

In forming the heads of orchard trees, they should be much closer to the ground than those of ornamental trees. Commercial orchards of apples and pears are now headed much lower than formerly, three feet being a very common height for starting the head, while the heads of peach and plum trees are started even as low as 18 or 20 inches from the ground.

The reason is that in certain localities where windstorms are frequent, a low-headed tree is less likely to be broken, and will lose a smaller proportion of fruit, and does not suffer so much from sun-scald, as the low head serves to a certain extent as a shade for the body.

During the early years of both ornamental and fruit trees, they should be pruned vigorously, because they make much longer, natural growth during the first ten years, than later. With pears and apples, the main body branches left at planting time should not be more than eight inches long. At the close of the first season, when pruning time arrives, the growth of that year should again be shortened to at least one foot, and each of the main body branches should carry not to exceed three subdivisions about eight inches long.

The same operation should be repeated the third year, but the number of branches carried by each subdivision should be reduced to two. The arrangement of these branches should be based upon the same principle as the arrangement of the main body of the trees.

One additional precaution is necessary with trees which have an upright or pyramidal tendency; the terminal bud which is intended to form the leading branch from any primary branch, should be left on the outside rather than toward the center of the tree. By observing this precaution, the plant will have more tendency to spread.

On the other hand, if a tree has a tendency to spread and it is desirable for any reason to prune it into the form of a pyramid, leave the terminal bud on the opposite or inside of the branch.

With common peach trees, which are shorter-lived than apple or pear trees, these precautions are not so important particularly in the after-pruning. At the time of forming the head, however, this is very important because these trees are much more liable to split down with heavy loads of fruit, than the apple and pear.

A. A five-branch tree at the end of the first season's growth. B. Relation of root to top in a nursery tree lifted for shipment. C. How the roots are cut at digging time.

The general rule in the after-pruning of the peach tree is to shorten the yearly growth about one-half. Of course this is not always necessary, particularly during seasons of heavy crop and sparse rainfall, when the natural growth of the plant is very short.

Whenever the normal growth is under eight inches little additional pruning is necessary, but whenever it exceeds that amount, heading in will be advantageous. This serves the double purpose of preserving a compact, symmetrical tree, and at the same time reducing the annual crop of fruit.

Thus, the fruit which is allowed to remain on the tree receives a larger amount of nourishment than would be the case were the full annual growth left and the tree permitted to bear its normal quota of fruit. The fruit will also be larger and of better quality.

HOUSE FOR TWO SMALL FLOCKS

I have found the building shown in the illustration about the best and cheapest house for poultry, says a writer in the Farm and Home. For siding I use six-inch matched lumber and for the roof ordinary sheeting covered with two-ply prepared roofing. The studs are 2x3s, which are just as satisfactory and somewhat cheaper than 2x4s. This house can be built for about $20 here. It is built in two units 6x12 feet each, with roosts, nests and droppings boards in the rear. As many units as needed may be added.

The partitions of ordinary two-inch mesh wire netting, boarded up 18 inches above the floor to prevent the male birds from fighting. Each unit will accommodate 15 birds, comfortably, and 20 birds may be kept if necessary.

Sunflower Seeds Good. Sunflower seeds are excellent for molting fowls and are quite an assistance to the fowls in loosening the feathers, but they should be fed sparingly.

POTATO SPRAY IS PROFITABLE

Results for Five Years Show Gain of Goodly Proportions in Yield and for Labor Applied.

For five consecutive years of testing potato spraying has proven each year a useful and profitable practice with me, says a writer in the Baltimore American. The test of three seasons ago was the least favorable of any of the five for the development of the principal potato disease, late blight and rot, yet even in that year the test showed good returns for the money expended and the labor applied. The results for five years on sprayed and unsprayed fields show an average gain of 80 bushels per acre on the sprayed field, which this season is worth $72 in the retail market at home. The cost of spraying on an average was $2.84 each year.

Any farmer can test these figures by planting one acre of ground for two or three years, so as to allow for the seasons that late blight and rot are less prevalent.

The whole acre should receive the same attention as to work and fertilization, except one-half must be sprayed anywhere from two to five times. The unsprayed must also be kept free from bugs to warrant a fair test.

Harvesting Sorghum. Sorghum-sown for fodder should not be cut until cool weather comes. The ideal time is just before the first heavy frost. If cut before the cool weather, there is great danger of souring and a consequent loss of the crop. Let the sorghum alone until time for the first frost approaches.

CHURCH BUILT OF FOSSILS

Building Constructed of Blocks Hewed From the Petrified Depths of a Nearby Swamp.

Mumford, N. Y.—In Mumford is a church building constructed of fossils. At first glance the walls appear to be constructed of rough sandstone smeared with an uneven coating of gritty, coarse, plaster; but a closer view shows delicate traceries of leaves, lace-work of interwoven twigs, bits of broken branches, fragments of mossy bark, splinters of wood, all preserved against the wasting of time and decay by being turned into the hardest of flinty limestone. Every block of stone in the four walls is a closely cemented mass of dainty fossils, literally packed and interwoven. There is no basic rock at all, but only fossil fibers, which give the rock cohesion and strength. Nevertheless, the stones are light in weight compared with granite and sandstone.

The blocks were hewed from the petrified depths of a nearby cedar swamp. Mumford is situated in the heart of the great area of rock, once the bed of an ocean, known to geologists as the Niagara limestone. It crops out either in the form of the soft, calcareous stone, or the hard and more serviceable blue limestone. The clear, cold water which gushes from innumerable springs or flows in frequent brooks throughout the Mumford country is alkaline from the lime held in solution.

GERMANY'S GREAT MONUMENT

Colossal Memorial Nearing Completion Is Built to Commemorate the Battle of Leipzig.

Leipzig, Germany.—Perhaps the most colossal monument in all Germany is nearing completion here. Leipzig was the scene of three noteworthy battles—two in the Thirty Years' War and one in the Napoleonic wars. The monument is to commemorate the battles between the French under Napoleon and an allied army of Austrians, Russians, Prussians and Swedes. The monument will be dedicated in October, 1913, on the battle's centenary.

In the accompanying illustration the monument is shown as it will appear when completed. Some of the gigantic carvings—one of them forty feet high—are already in place. Even incomplete, the monument thrills you with its colossal dimensions. It is three hundred feet in height, but it is built on such a mountainous scale that its tremendous height is minimized. It faces the city fronting a concreted lake several acres in extent. A broad boulevard will lead from it straight into Leipzig.

THE DIMENSIONS OF HEAVEN

Preacher Figures It to Be the Equal of a 792,000 Story Building.

Louisville, Ky.—Heaven's exact dimensions were figured out in the sermon of the Rev. M. B. Dodd, pastor of a Louisville church, preached to his congregation recently. In the course of his sermon the preacher said:

"In Revelations, twenty-first chapter, sixteen verse, nervous Christians have read where the dimensions of heaven are only 1,500 cubic miles. Immediately they jump at the conclusion that even this space will not accommodate the vast multitude of which the Bible speaks.

"However, calculation will show that this space will accommodate a building 792,000 stories high, and it is easy to demonstrate that such a building would accommodate an innumerable multitude."

GEORGE S. LOVELACE, Great Commander, K. O. T. M. M.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 1, 1911.—"The wisdom displayed by the delegates to the special Great Camp Review in Port Huron, in readjusting rates of the society, has been fully and completely demonstrated," declared George S. Lovelace, "Members of all ages, particularly the younger and older, are transferring in large numbers. Misunderstandings are being explained away, distrust is eliminated, members are assured that no further raises in rates will ever be necessary. Today the Knights of the Modern Maccabees is stronger than at any time since the organization in 1881," declared Mr. Lovelace.

Some men are so small that a five-cent cigar looks big to them.

A Jolt to Romance. "Hubby, you have a lock of my hair, haven't you?" "Next my heart."

"See if you can match it in some puffs when you go downtown."

Torture. "I wonder how Tantalus felt," said the student of the classics. "Probably," replied Colonel Stilwell, "like a thirsty Maine man listening to the election returns."

Up to Date. "I notice that young Doctor Curren uses autohypnosis in his practice?" "Of course he does. Didn't you know he specializes in motor nerves?" All the world may be a stage, but unfortunately we can't always hear the prompter.

More English Humor.

The first night Walter Kelly, known to vaudeville as the "Virginia Judge," walked up the Strand he complained to his English companion that the famous street in London was dark at nine o'clock. "Why," said he, "at this hour Broadway is as bright as day. There is one sign alone, 'The Charlot Race,' in which there are 50,000 electric lights." "But I say, old top," said his English friend, "wouldn't that be rather conspicuous?"

Musician Wanted. In a parish in Wales where very little English was spoken a general meeting was held to consider the desirability of putting a chandelier into the schoolroom. Every one seemed in favor of the idea.

"Do you think we ought to have one, Mr. Davis?" said the schoolmaster to a venerable parishioner. "I agree to it," was the reply; "but there is one thing I wish to know. If we have a—"

"Chandelier," said the schoolmaster, helping him out. "If we have a chandelier," the old man continued, "who is going to play it?"

THE TEA PENALTY. A Strong Man's Experience.

Writing from a busy railroad town the wife of an employee of one of the great roads says:

"My husband is a railroad man who has been so much benefited by the use of Postum that he wishes me to express his thanks to you for the good it has done him. His waking hours are taken up with his work, and he has no time to write himself.

"He has been a great tea drinker all his life and has always liked it strong.

"Tea has, of late years, acted on him like morphine does upon most people. At first it soothed him, but only for an hour or so, then it began to affect his nerves to such an extent that he could not sleep at night, and he would go to his work in the morning wretched and miserable from the loss of rest. This condition grew constantly worse, until his friends persuaded him, some four months ago, to quit tea and use Postum.

"At first he used Postum only for breakfast, but as he liked the taste of it, and it somehow seemed to do him good, he added it to his evening meal. Then, as he grew better, he began to drink it for his noon meal, and now he will drink nothing else at table.

"His condition is so wonderfully improved that he could not be hired to give up Postum and go back to tea. His nerves have become steady and reliable once more, and his sleep is easy, natural and refreshing.

He owes all this to Postum, for he has taken no medicine and made no other change in his diet.

"His brother, who was very nervous from coffee-drinking, was persuaded by us to give up the coffee and use Postum and he also has recovered his health and strength." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Germs Spread in Skin

Eczema, Psoriasis and other skin troubles are caused by myriads of germs at work in the skin. Unless these germs are promptly destroyed they rapidly multiply, gnawing their way deep into the sensitive tissue. This is what causes that awful itch, and what seemed a mere rash may grow worse and develop into a foul-smelling and torturing skin disease with its years of misery.

We have had experience with many remedies for skin trouble but have never seen such remarkable cures as those from D. D. D. Prescription. Instant relief from the very first application. We are so confident that D. D. D. will cure your case that it will cost you nothing if the very first full size bottle fails to make good every claim. If you have any trouble of any kind we certainly advise you to drop in and investigate the merits of D. D. D. anyway. We know that D. D. D. will help you.

Honest and effective argument and appeals are being made to the people of Cass county in opposition to the effort headed by an ex-saloonist of Dowagiac, to have a campaign started for the return of the saloon to that county. The Cass County Vigilant says that the buildings formerly occupied by saloons in Cassopolis and Dowagiac are now filled with stock of goods and restaurants and other useful and honorable lines of business. And from $150,000 to $200,000 that was formerly spent for beer and whiskey and gin and brandy in Cass county are now passing through the channels of legitimate trade to make hundreds of women and children better clothed, better fed, warm, comfortable and happy. Forty years and more of saloon experience in Cass county followed by barely eighteen months of local option yet within these comparative few months better conditions than the people of Cass county ever before knew have been attained.

Phillip H. Toby of Traverse City, a fireman on the Pere Marquette, and H. J. Hartman of Muskegon, brakeman on the same train, received injuries in a collision at Petoskey, Thursday, from which both died on the operating table at the Petoskey hospital shortly afterward. The men were members of a train crew who were switching cars in yards at Petoskey Stone company, both were riding on the engine where in some unaccountable manner the engine was run beneath the pusher, which being too low, stripped it of everything above the boiler, injuring and scalding the two men and breaking the engine into a tangled mass of iron. Toby was caught between the cross head and reverse lever, where he was held and scalded.—Both were married men with families.

Those who see "Dorothy" at the Temple Theatre, Wednesday evening Dec. 6th, may rest assured they will be well entertained. "Dorothy" is brimful of interest from start to finish. The spoiled child, Edith, the mischievous Chloe, Sarah Ann from "down kentoy", Ezekiah Pinkerton and his talkative wife, all furnish much amusement. The drama is in two acts. Scene one, first act, shows the garden of General Ormsby's home on Fifth Avenue, New York, and introduces Dorothy; scene two, the interior of the house, a maid from "down kentoy" and a clever, plotting nurse girl, domestic troubles; a spoiled child; Dorothy and her stepmother; Edith, the spoiled child is kidnapped by Matilda, the nurse. Act two takes place seven years later. Scene one shows the farmhouse of Ezekiah Pinkerton who rescued Edith Ormsby from drowning the night she was stolen by Matilda. Scene two a country road leading to the Mane, field cottage which the Ormsbys have rented for the summer. Besides this the program will be varied by drills, songs and musical selections by the pupils of St. Joseph's School of Music.

That they had made her husband a common drunkard, was a charge brought against eight Kalamazoo saloonkeepers by Mrs. Addie E. Ryder and the charge was proven to the satisfaction of a jury of twelve men and it was approved by the presiding judge. The latter's participation in the case was upon the request of the saloonkeepers for a new trial. After listening to their reasons for a re-hearing Judge Knappin refusing to grant the request of the saloonkeepers for a further trial. That circuit jury verdict is one of the strongest anti-saloon arguments ever put forth in Michigan. The decision of a Michigan jury that that group of saloons and saloonkeepers had made a common drunkard of one of their patrons completely disposes of every alleged reason and argument as to why in any city or village or county saloons should continue to exist. Common drunkards are the outputs of the saloon in every instance.

HEDGES, WALLS AND FENCES IN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

A NUMBER of different factors have contributed directly or indirectly during the past few years to the appearance of American farms and rural estates as viewed from the highways and railroads. It is safe to say, however, that nothing has been more influential in this direction than the improved means introduced for marking the boundaries of fields and estates. Nor has the provision of better facilities in this respect been confined by any means to the wealthy folk who have taken up country life as a fad and have the means to indulge every caprice in that connection. The common-sense, every-day farmer is fully holding up his end of the responsibility of providing a more orderly countryside.

ORNATE IRON FENCE ON A RURAL ESTATE

Until comparatively recent years in most sections of the United States and even yet in many of the more newly settled districts, farm fences were considered solely from the standpoint of utility. This was perfectly natural. A homesteader establishing an agricultural domain or a sheep and cattle ranch in territory recently opened to settlement has other things to think of beside providing ornamental boundary markers for his acreage. And anyway he has numerous heavy drains upon his pocketbook at such a time and probably can ill afford to go in for anything fancy at such a juncture, even though he have the strongest inclinations to have everything about the place in apple-pie order.

These considerations explain how it has been that as each section of the United States has in turn been settled the pioneers have availed themselves of the most economical means of indicating boundary lines. The farmer wants to have his lines, as vouchsafed for by a surveyor, marked clearly, since that forestalls trouble later on and he wants to keep cattle, etc., out of his cultivated tracts, even if he has no stock of his own that he wishes to restrict to a given area. But in the old days no farmer felt that he could afford to lay out much money in fixing such limitations. Almost invariably the pioneer or early settler in any community was anxious to find material for his fences on the place. This will explain the almost universal use in our whole broad farm domain of the old familiar type of zig-zag rail fence. And just here be it noted that it is an admirable type of fence, too—cheap to construct, if the rails be split from timber on the place; easy to keep in repair; substantial and enduring; it is calculated to yield excellent service. This is the type of fence that Abraham Lincoln constructed and its fame may go down to posterity through the rails which are treasured as precious relics because he split them.

The early settlers in stony districts, such as New England and certain sections of New York, including the famous Mohawk Valley, in many instances made their first fences of stone. In this respect they were in one sense ahead of their times because stone fences are constructed nowadays because of their artistic and picturesque attributes and are preferred by people to whom expense is no object. As a matter of fact a fence of loose stones was never a cheap form of construction. On the fact of things it has always been an extravagance as compared with the rail fence, but the consideration that leads to its selection in many localities was that the land had to be cleared of stones ere it could be tilled. It was no more trouble to pile the stones thus collected in the form of a fence than in a pile which would serve no good purpose and it took less time to thus arrange the stones along the boundary lines than to cart them to some distant dump. So the average farmer working such land killed two birds with one stone, so to speak, and set up fences that in most localities have endured to this day.

The appearance of the wire fence and particularly the barbed wire variety marked a new era in fence building in our rural districts. Nobody has ever contended that the average wire fence was anything very beautiful to look upon, but it has proven a boon to thousands of farmers in the west where timber was too scarce to be wasted on rail fences and where there were no stones to be cleared. The wire fence has proven an even greater boon to stock raisers, many of whom need fence large tracts and who are not disposed to quibble over cost if they can get a fence that can be put up quickly and will stand hard usage. Of course the dramatic incidents of "wire cutting" days in the cattle country proved that the wire fence was as easy to destroy as it was quick to build, but of course that turbulent condition is not one that has continued.

LODGE AND GATEWAY OF A SOUTHERN PLANTATION

GATEWAY TO A FARM HOME

COUNTRY SEAT OF A WEALTHY AMERICAN

And while we are on the subject of the wire fence it may be noted the regeneration of the wire fence has been one of the most marked features of the present era of more presentable farm fences. The treatment that has been accorded many of the old wire fences reminds one in its ingenious expedient for covering up old material with new—of the scheme now so frequently followed in coating old brick houses with a layer of stucco or concrete that gives them a pristine freshness. In some instances ivy, roses, or rapidly-growing vines of one kind or another have been planted at frequent intervals along a wire fence—say at each post—and in a surprisingly short time the fence becomes a trellis for a luxuriant growth that is bound to charm even the most fastidious person and one to whom a wire fence unadorned would prove a perfect eyesore.

Another present-day ruse for making the wire fence unobtrusive and yet retaining all its virtue as a boundary is to have the fence serve as a core for a hedge. The bushes, shrubs or other hedge-making vegetation may be planted on either or both sides (alternately) of the fence and in a few years the presence of wire strands and their supporting posts would be a complete surprise to a person who attempted to pass the barrier, so completely will they be hidden. Indeed, a close growing hedge reinforced by a wire fence has a twofold value as a preventive of trespass by man or beast and many persons of wide experience declare that it is the ideal form. The hedge may be permitted to grow to any height and there is, of course, no necessity for a farmer to keep such a hedge trimmed in symmetrical fashion as is done with those in the formal gardens of the rich.

The hedge, close-cropped, beautifully rounded and with no wire fence concealed is seen much more frequently than formerly as one traverses the most traveled roads in America. Such hedges, however, usually bespeak the indulgence of some wealthy land holder who is willing to spend freely for the sake of appearances. The invasion of the country districts by this leisure class, retired men of means and so-called gentlemen farmers, has also resulted in the appearance of great numbers of stone and concrete walls. Of course such barriers, likewise the ivy-covered brick walls, are costly and particularly so when we take into account the massive gateways which have usually been provided in such connection. There is no doubt, however, that such walls add much, in the estimation of most persons, to the beauty of our rural landscapes. Indeed, it is the walls and hedges more than anything else which cause returned travelers to grow enthusiastic over rural England.

The iron fence has shared in the stimulated activity but the iron fence, alike to the stone wall, calls for a pretty heavy outlay, although if it is kept painted it will endure for so many years that it is rendered fairly reasonable in the long run. The picket fence, preferably painted white or white and green, continues to have many staunch friends among the farming class and the running board fence which is said to have originated in New England has spread to many other sections of the country and taken on a few frills suggestive of the designs of "barred pie." Rustic work when well done is always mighty effective in any rural surroundings and the picturesque appearance of the logs with the bark on is heightened by the introduction of some bright-hued posts. Another latter day development is seen in the latitude now manifested in the height of the fences in the rural districts. A generation ago pretty much all the fences were about the same height. Nowadays they vary greatly. In some instances where the fence or hedge is purely ornamental its height is very much restricted whereas on the other hand it is not unusual to encounter a wealthy land owner whose desire for privacy has prompted him to erect—at least in the immediate vicinity of his dwelling—a wall so high that a man on horseback cannot see over it. A comparatively low stone wall surmounted by a high iron fence is another form of construction that has been introduced extensively.

DEVICE FOR FIREMEN

Helmet Enables Wearers to Rescue at Fires.

Has a Reservoir of Air, and Test Shows It to Be Effective—Has Been Adopted in Chicago.

Chicago.—Chicago fire officials have adopted a life-saving device to prevent suffocation. The apparatus resembles a life-saver's helmet and dress.

Lieut. Philip Ryan donned the apparatus in a test.

"It works fine," he declared, emerging from a subcellar filled with smoke. "I could breathe without any trouble. I figure that this new device will prove a great life saver."

Fixed close to the head by means of springs, the apparatus prevents the entrance of gas or other fumes. The fireman breathes through tubes connected with the body of the apparatus.

"The apparatus is just donned for the purpose of life saving," declared Thomas O'Connor, acting chief of the Chicago fire department.

"It is only possible to work in this uniform for about five minutes. That, however, would give us time to enter a building to rescue persons and emerge. Although we have made tests of the new apparatus, we have not as yet had occasion to bring it into actual use."

A New York device, which Chicago firemen believe to be impractical, is supposed to supply air to firemen working in cellars and lofts and is said to have withstood various tests. Alongside the nozzle carried by the firemen using the Halloran contrivance is a brass tube to which is connected a line of one-inch hose extending to the open air in the street.

This hose furnishes air for a suction which is caused by the powerful force of water sent through the nozzle.

The water rushes by an apparatus having direct connection with the air feeding pipe, and forms a syphon, which in turn is supplied to firemen. There are three supply pipes on the first model and these are held by the firemen in their mouths, with a hard rubber holder, which is perforated and looks like the noseguards worn by football players.

"While I will not say positively, not knowing anything about the experiments of the New Yorkers, it appears to me that a contrivance built according to the description would not be practical," said Assistant Chief O'Connor. "I have never yet heard of a contrivance which would protect firemen from smoke and fumes, especially ammonia fumes, for any great length of time."

"I consider our new device, which we have just adopted, is the nearest to perfection. We have tested it and have remained in smoke-filled basements for five minutes at a time."

MOUNTAINEER IS AN ADAM

Strange Man in the North Georgia Mountains Has Gone Naked for 61 Years.

Savannah, Ga.—Word comes via the North Georgia mountains of a strange man named John Castellow, who has grown to be 61 years of age, hale, hearty and happy, without ever wearing a stitch of clothing and without ever using a single word but the monosyllabic "Gee!" Says a traveler from Harris, describing the marvelous person:

"He lives four miles east of Windsor, in Bertie county, North Carolina, and his health is perfect. He has not missed a meal in fifty years.

"When I visited him he was entirely nude. He is the strongest man I ever saw. His body is normal and well shaped, but his strength is prodigious. He can break a double plowline as easily as if it were a cotton cord. He is gentle and has never been known to hurt a living soul intentionally. He cannot speak a word except the one monosyllabic 'Gee,' which he uses in various intonations to express all his desires and emotions."

Ruskin Pitted Americans. It is not only the half million bricks of Tattershall that have been numbered for trans-shipment across the Atlantic. Ruskin, when he was a boy, pitted the Americans for being so unhappy as to live in a country that has no castles. They all have a castle now, and no nation likes to be pitted. But the other importation, made by Mrs. Gardner as an addition to her Italian villa near Boston, was that of an entire chapel as it stands, with all its interior furnishings, even to the half-burned candles in the altar. The monks who served the chapel had been scattered by the strong hand of the law, and the building was to be devoted to the pick ax. The courageous American lady had it packed up in a Venetian fish country, where it stood, and carried down peacefully and embarked.—London Chronicle.

Kidney Trouble Is Very Deceptive

Few Realize They're Affected Till Danger Point is Reached—Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills Work Wonders—Sample Free!

Kidney disease is much more common than most people imagine. Many sufferers do not know what's ailing them—until the trouble becomes serious. Some trifling affection may run into the dread diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease before one realizes there's anything wrong with his kidneys.

Usually the most noticeable symptoms which first appear are far from the seat of the trouble, and the sufferer mistakes the nature of his ailment. Dull headaches or nervousness, for instance, he never thinks of as signs of diseased kidneys.

Even the aching back and sides, rheumatism, pains or twitching in groins or limbs, sore, inflamed muscles, he may consider indications of some other trouble. Unnaturally colored or cloudy urine, too frequent or too scanty urination, burning sensation, are of course readily recognized as symptoms of such disorders.

Because of the deceptive and dangerous character of these ailments, if you suspect your kidneys are diseased, lose no time in beginning treatment. The best possible remedy for you is Dr. Derby's Kidney Pills. They are quite different from anything else in the market. They act in two ways—cleanse the clogged kidneys of their poisonous impurities, strengthen them so they perform their duties normally, naturally. There's no other way to really cure kidney derangements, resultant bladder troubles and rheumatism—and permanently banish those frightful aches and pains.

A GOOD BEEF TYPE HEAD

By R. S. SHAW

"Good Beef Type Head."

From the standpoint of the butcher or packer the head from the carcass of a beef animal is only worth a few cents commercially while the rest of the animal may reach a value of from fifty to one hundred dollars, depending on its size and quality. On the other hand, however, the head is a valuable factor to the feeder in selecting animals to prepare for market with prospects of profitable returns for the feed consumed. Standards of excellence describing all the points of a perfect beef animal have been devised as well as those for feeder cattle which differ very materially in conformation and quality from the finest animal. It is extremely difficult to apply a scale of points to the feeder as there are so many varied degrees of flesh and condition.

The score card for a finished beef animal calls for a compact, blocky form, deep, thick and square, with broad, level, well fleshed black, long deep thick quarters, broad, well covered shoulders, deep wide chest and good handling qualities. The same standard calls for a short broad head with large mild eyes and large muzzle, and big expansive nostrils. Now the thinner a good beef animal becomes the less will its body conformation correspond to the standard, until the very opposite conditions may be reached as a state of great emaciation.

tion is approached. On the other hand however, the shape of the head changes very little with the condition of the body as it consists of a bony framework covered by sparse muscles and skin. The shape of the head and expression of the eye are valuable factors in enabling the feeder to select the best types of feeder animals. An animal with a long narrow head, small muzzle, small nervous eyes would be almost sure to possess the very opposite qualities as described in the standard for a perfect beef animal and would have back of such a head a long slim neck, long legs placed close together, a sharp back, flat ribs and a narrow, poorly fleshed shoulders and hind quarters. The eye would indicate a temperament the opposite of that desired in a good feeder. The correlation of parts in the animal body is so close and intimate that the stockman who has observed closely should be able to give an accurate description of the general conformation of the finished body of an animal with the head only exposed to view as in the case of one projected out through an open window with the body concealed.

The short broad head and large placid eye shown in the accompanying illustration belong to a very unusually well developed beef type body.

MUSHROOMS AND TOADSTOOLS

By ERNST A. BESSEY, East Lansing, Mich. Professor of Botany, Michigan Agricultural College

The abundant fall of rains having brought out a large crop of fungi in the woods, fields and lawns, the old question has come again to the fore: "How can I tell mushrooms from toadstools?" In the first place, the words mushrooms and toadstools are practically synonymous, is being in correct to reserve the first name for the edible and the second for the poisonous species. To put the question in correct form, one should ask "How shall I distinguish edible from poisonous mushrooms?"

In the first place, there is no one rule which can be used to distinguish the two. The following rules are dangerous, because they do not distinguish the edible from the poisonous ones, viz.: Cooking the mushrooms with a silver spoon; putting salt upon the under side of the gill to notice whether they change color; the presence of pink gills; the fact that the skin of the cap will peel off easily; the fact that the taste is mild, etc. As for the silver spoon, nearly every mushroom, whether edible or poisonous, will turn a silver spoon black if the mushroom is a little old, while most mushrooms whether poisonous or otherwise, if fresh, will not blacken the spoon. The change of color of the gills due to salt has nothing to do with their poisonous quality. It is true that the common cultivated mushroom, which is the same as the common field mushroom, has pink gills when young, but there are some species of pink gills which are looked upon by botanists with great suspicion. As for the peeling off of the skin of the cap, that is a characteristic which is common to some of the poisonous ones as well as to some of the edible ones. Indeed some of the edible ones do not peel well. The taste cannot be used as a criterion, for some of the most deadly mushrooms are pleasant to the taste, while some of the most wholesome ones are, before cooking, very peppery.

There is one good rule, and it is the only safe one, namely, know the particular mushroom you wish to eat as well as you would know your best friend. Never eat a mushroom on the description given by some neighbor unless the description enables you to definitely locate certain plants. Even then, do not eat them unless you have full confidence in your neighbor's ability to know the good kinds from the bad. Far more cases of poisoning are due to people ignorantly mistaking poisonous forms for harmless mushrooms if they have been accustomed to collecting. For this reason one must know his mushrooms well enough to be sure of his identification of the mushroom. When in doubt, do not eat, is a safe rule that ought to be followed by every would-be mushroom eater. Another point always to be observed is, do not look at just one or two of the specimens in your basket, and on finding them good, judge that the whole basketful are safe to eat. It may happen that the ones you picked up were wholesome ones, while others in the same basket were of poisonous kind.

It is only by trial of the different species that it has been determined which ones are poisonous and which ones are not. If you find certain mushrooms are abundant and you have no one to inform you whether they are edible or not, this can be determined by trial. Eat first a small piece no bigger than the head of a very small hatpin. If, after one-half hour or so, there is no discomfort, try a piece as large as a pea. Wait two or three hours before eating any large piece. If you still have no trouble, eat a piece as big as the end of your little finger. If this still has no bad effect, it probably will be safe to eat the whole of a small specimen. If this is harmless, you probably can eat that variety with safety.

One last word about mushrooms, never eat them after they are old and infested with maggots or after they have become very dark color or, in the case of the puffballs, after the inside has begun to get spongy and somewhat brownish rather than firm and white. Again I repeat, never eat a mushroom that you do not know, for although it is true that there are probably dozens of wholesome kinds for every poisonous kind, yet if you make a mistake and eat the poisonous one, it may be that they will say about you as they have said of others, "When he was dead he was very dead and will probably stay dead for a long, long while."

For packing use only perfectly fresh eggs, for stale eggs will not be saved and may prove harmful to the others. Do not wash the eggs before packing, for by so doing you injure their keeping quality, probably by dissolving the mucilaginous coating on the outside of the shell.

Of the 182 calf births recorded by the New York experiment station, the average period of gestation was about exactly 280 days. The shortest period was 264 days; the longest 296 days. Approximately the same number of births occurred on each day from the 274th to the 287th day, inclusive.

A DESPAIRING WOMAN!

Weak, Tired and Almost Helpless From Wasting Kidney Troubles. Mrs. Emily Howes, 1700 Burling St., Chicago, Ill., says: "I had awful pains through my hips and frequently wished I had never been born. I seemed to have lost all interest in life. I doctored for female trouble, thinking my condition was due to some derangement of that nature, but got no better. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and to my surprise I began to improve. They not only corrected the kidney action but stopped the pain and sickness I had thought was due to female trouble."

A LIVING IMAGE.

Mrs. Pondmar—There! Isn't baby the image of his father? Oldchumme—Sure! Same lack of expression, same red nose, no teeth to speak of—and, by George! prematurely bald head, too!

BABY'S TERRIBLE SUFFERING

"When my baby was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great scabs would come off when I removed his shirt.

"We tried a great many remedies, but nothing would help him, till a friend influenced me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, although we had tried several other things, and doctors, too. I think the Cuticura Remedies will do all that is claimed for them, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911. Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a sample of each, with 32-page book, will be mailed free on application to "Cuticura," Dept. 13 K, Boston.

Literary Criticism.

They were discussing a certain author at dinner, and a well-known critic raised a laugh by remarking: "Well, her hair's red, even if her books are not." The mild young man in the corner made a mental note of the sally for future use, and at another party shortly afterward he carefully guided the conversation into literary channels. "Titt-Bits informs its readers. Fortunately, some one mentioned the desired name, and he triumphantly cried out: "Well, she's got red hair, even if her books haven't!"

Synonyms.

The French Canadian always has trouble with the aspirate "th." At a debating club in the Province of Quebec members were required to draw a slip from a hat and debate upon the subject they received. A young countryman arose. "I have drawn the word 'bat.' I must told you dere is two, tree different kind of bat. Dere is de bat wot you play de baseball-wit, de bat wot fly in de air at night and also de bat where you take de swim."—Success Magazine.

The Bishop and the Boy.

The late Bishop Williams of Connecticut was very fond of children, and it was always a joy to us youngsters when he came for his visit to my father's parish. His anecdotes and stories enlivened the whole household. Once when he was staying with us he told the following story:

"One Sunday morning, just after breakfast, I repaired to the rector's study, where I was soon followed by his little four-year-old son, who climbed up on my knee and began to talk. Suddenly the little fellow looked up into my face and said: 'Bishop, do 'oo want to see my piggy bank?'

"Yes, indeed," said I. So the child slid down and started to get the book. When half-way across the room a sudden idea seemed to strike him, and, running back and putting one hand on my knee, he looked up in my face and shook his little forefinger at me, whispering: 'Bishop, it's Sunday. We must do zis on ze sly!'"—Harper's Magazine.

Hardy as Bad as That.

The boy whose business it was to answer the telephone rushed into the room of the senior partner.

"Just got a message saying that your house was on fire," he said. "Dear me," returned the senior partner, in a bewildered sort of way. "I knew my wife was pretty hot about something when I left home this morning, but I didn't think it was so bad as to set the house on fire!"—Stray Stories.

Weak Heart

Many people suffer from weak hearts. They may experience shortness of breath on exertion, pain over the heart, or dizzy feelings, oppressed breathing after meals, or their eyes become blurred, their heart is not sufficiently strong to pump blood to the extremities, and they have cold hands and feet, or poor appetite because of weakened blood supply to the stomach. A heart tonic and alterative should be taken which has no bad after-effect. Such is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which contains no dangerous narcotics nor alcohol.

The ingredients, as attested under oath, are Stone root (Collinsonia Canadensis), Bloodroot (Sanguinaria Canadensis), Golden Seal root (Hydrastis Canadensis), Queen's root (Stillingia Silyvatica), Black Cherry bark (Prunus Virginiana), Mandrake root (Podophyllum Peltatum), with triple refined glycerine, prepared in a scientific laboratory in a way that no druggist could imitate. This tonic contains no alcohol to shrink up the red blood corpuscles; but, on the other hand, it increases their number and they become round and healthy. It helps the human system in the constant manufacture of rich, red blood. It helps the stomach to assimilate or take up the proper elements from the food, thereby helping digestion and curing dyspepsia, heart-burn and many uncomfortable symptoms, stops excessive tissue waste in convalescence from fever; for the run-down, anemic, thin-blooded people, the "Discovery" is refreshing and vitalizing. Stick to this safe and sane remedy, and refuse all "just as good" medicines offered by the druggist who is looking for a larger profit. Nothing but Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will do you half as much good.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

Genuine Merit Required to Win the People's Confidence

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfil the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sets itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been cured, to those who are in need of it.

In an interview on the subject a prominent local druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows immediate results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy that I know of has so large a sale."

The success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact that it fulfils every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder diseases, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. A free trial bottle will be sent by mail, absolutely free. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. Regular size bottles sold at all druggists—50c. and $1.00.

Luck. Bragg—Bah! Luck is but the product of care and diligence. Wags—Yes. An old friend of mine had a swamp which he couldn't get rid of, and by a great deal of care and diligence, a railroad was run right through the middle of it and now my friends is a rich man.—Life.

"Dr. Miles' Nervine Completely Cured Our Little Boy of Fits."

A family can suffer no greater affliction than to have a child subject to fits or epilepsy. Many a father or mother would give their all to restore such a child to health.

"I am heartily glad to tell you of our little boy who was completely cured of fits. He commenced having them at 10 years of age and had them for four years. I tried three doctors and one specialist but all of them said he could not be cured, but Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills made a complete cure. He is now hale, hearty and gay. It has been three years since he had the last spell. I shall give Dr. Miles' medicines praise wherever I go. The Dairy Cow a Machine

If one is to feed the dairy cow successfully, he must regard her as a machine capable of grinding or thrashing out from the hay, corn silage, and other feed, all the milk it contains, the same as the threshing machine threshes from the wheat, oats, and the barley, the ripened grain from the straw. When the threshing machine comes onto the farm a man secures an organized force of men and insists upon the machine working to its full capacity and doing its work efficiently in order that the threshing may be done in as short a time and entail as little expense as possible.

Some people dislike to call the dairy cow a machine, but she is a most wonderful machine, delicate in many ways in her make-up and requiring an operator who understands her if she is to do her work most satisfactorily. She works constantly, day and night, for her owner, converting the feed which she consumes into milk and butter fat and when properly fed, housed and cared for, she provides a means for converting the dairyman's hard-earned and high-priced feed into dollars and cents which can be equaled by no other machine. She is not only the means of making money for the farmer, but enables him to keep up the fertility of his land and thus make it more productive.—Professor George C. Humphrey, Wisconsin State University.

Dog Days.

Dog days is the name applied to the heated season of the year at the time of the heliacal rising of Sirius, the dog star; that is, the time when it rose just before the sun. They usually lasted for about 40 days. We still retain the expression of dog days as applied to the hottest season of the year, but owing to the procession of the equinoxes it is no longer the time of the heliacal rising of the dog star.

Hint for Housewife.

Paired the head of the crockery and chinaware department: "Every day we have to test pitchers with water to prove that liquids will not run back from the pitcher's mouth. If the housewife will only make sure to get a pitcher whose mouth curves down slightly she will have no trouble."

Fashions Change Little.

From the fresco-paintings of women in the Cretan palaces of the period about 2,000 B. C. it is learned that the women of that time pinched in their waists, had flounced or accordion-plaited skirts, wore an elaborate coiffure on their heads, shoes with high heels and hats which might have come from a Parisian hat shop, while one woman might be described as wearing a jupe enloutée.

County Normal Notes

Last Wednesday the normal class attended the meeting of the county school officers at the court house. State Superintendent L. L. Wright and Mr. Easher, auditor of the department, conducted the meeting. They explained the new school laws and discussed other school questions. The meeting was a great benefit to the class, giving them an opportunity to see and understand the work of school boards.

Mr. Bashaw, truant officer, and Hon. L. L. Wright both gave interesting talks, on Wednesday morning. Mr. Wright spoke of the teacher's place in the country school and how she should fill it.

The editors for this week are Lila Gray and Marguerite Munker, housekeepers are Louisa Marsa and Winnie Cunningham, and the gardener is Lillian Flanders.

A good vegetable rule is salt with vegetables that are green, no salt in those containing starch or grown underground. Most vegetables are put on in boiling water, though some housewives make exceptions to this rule.

A Week of Repertoire

Culhane's Comedians, one of the best organizations that annually tours the United States, will begin a weeks' engagements at The Temple Theatre on Monday night, Nov. 27th, presenting a line of royalty plays that are new and up-to-date. The company is one of the oldest attractions in the theatrical business, being before the public for over thirty years and there is no part of the United States or Canada where they have not appeared always under the same management. Every play presented is given every attention and detail and the performances are given with a smoothness that denote careful stage management. The opening play on Monday night will be the four act drama, Reaping the Harvest with a pretty story and lots of heart interest. During the week such well known successes as Lena Rivers, The Broken Trail, St. Elmo, Divorce, Circumstantial Evidence, Her Wedding Day, and The Honor of the Flag will be presented. The performance is a continuous one, no long waits as feature vaudeville is introduced between each and every act by vaudeville artists whose acts are features in vaudeville. Go expecting to witness a first-class and clean show and you will not be disappointed. Seats are now on sale at Mack's. Popular prices will prevail during the engagement.
