Election Monday

Local and County Issues Before the Voter.

Next Monday is Spring Election and when the voters of our city present themselves at the polls they will be given four ballots on which to pass their judgment, viz:—

- A city ballot.
- A ward ballot.
- A Local Option ballot.
- A County Roads ballot.

With exception of the ward ballots, the effect of the voters choice will be far-reaching and we urge each and every man to lay all personal prejudice aside and cast his ballot as his conscience dictates.

Without question the city ballot will receive the greatest attention as close contests are on. For the office of Mayor, Messrs Richard F. Steffes and George G. Glenn are the candidates for an unexpired term of one year. For Commissioner, Charles A. Hudson is a candidate for re-election and James Gidley aspires for the same office. All of these gentlemen have spent a goodly share of their life in our city, and each has his friends who will put forth every effort to laud their candidate to office.

The Local Option question is of vital importance to the citizens of our county. For three years the county has been under a "dry" regime and the voters are to decide whether, or not it shall continue. So far, the gentlemen who asked for a re-submission of the question have failed to publicly state their grounds, but it is reasonably safe to assume that by election morn our "wet" friends will be out with some argument in favor of their position. To the writer, there is only one side to the question—that of right. The open saloon is a canker upon our civic life; we removed this affliction three years ago; we do not believe our citizens desire its return.

Beware How You Vote—Vote "YES." Note the Question on the Ballot.

Shall the manufacture of liquor and the liquor traffic be prohibited within the county? Yes (X)

Do not be deceived—vote yes for dry.

Let every dry man remember that he "cuts no ice" in this campaign unless he presents himself at the polls. Let nothing prevent you from being where you belong at some time upon that day and from doing your duty. Let's count a big vote. We have the votes—let's use them. Reader, this means you, whose eyes now see these lines.

Charlevoix county must not go wet because of the stay-at-home vote.

Remember the disgrace of Jackson, Calhoun and Genesee counties, where the saloons were allowed to return by majorities of less than 100, because many dry men were so sure the "county would go all right." It will not if dry voters stay at home. Go to the polls, please, every man. Resolve to do that duty first on that day and have every other thing stand aside. No matter whether you have only one township ticket or two, whether there is township interest or not. That is not the question. But, lowering above every other question is—Shall the saloons come back? Its correct answer is for you to make. Do not leave the responsibility to others. Discharge your own responsibility.

The wet people are planning surprises and will start something before election. Be not deceived. Do not believe reports coming from them. They will in other counties, and may in Charlevoix, exhibit photographs of a check which they will claim was sent to the secretary of the local option committee by some brewing or liquor company "to help keep your county dry." Pay no attention to such deceptions. They will do no such thing. They will, however, write the check and sign it and photograph it and then destroy it, but will use the pictures of it to deceive people. Other schemes just as shrewd will be employed to deceive, for they must deceive the people to get their votes.

Not a man, drunk or sober, in all the motley multitude of saloon advocates, was ever heard to claim one atom of virtue or patriotism, or righteousness for the business.

Salting Station

For Cucumbers at East Jordan If Farmers Want Same.

We believe the farmers and gardeners around East Jordan desire a pickle salting station in this city and if this is true it can be had. Betsey letter from a Detroit firm indicates their desire to locate here. A meeting of our business men was held Thursday evening and efforts will be put forth to interest our agriculturists in the project. This city is in the heart of a rich agricultural region. In other localities near here cucumbers have been grown which netted the grower a neat profit. Are you interested? If so, call upon Mr. Squier and he will be glad to submit the proposition.

March 28, 1912.

Mr. W. P. Squier, President, Board of Trade, East Jordan, Mich.

Dear Sir: Last fall we had some correspondence with you regarding the locating of a pickle salting station in your town. At that time we were undecided as to what new acreage we would want to take on this year and wrote you to that effect, but telling you if later on we found we could take care of any additional acreage we would correspond with you further.

We now find that we are in a position to take on a somewhat increased acreage over last year, and if the people in your town could guarantee us 200 acres of cucumbers, we would undoubtedly be ready to locate a salting house with you.

We enclose you one-half dozen copies of our contract. Cucumbers grown under this contract make a very profitable crop for the farmer, and one feature of this contract which is especially pleasing to our growers is the fact that we pay every day, as the crop is delivered, making check either on the local bank in the town, with which we will carry a deposit, or through the merchants of the town in case there is no bank. In this case, of course, it would be through the bank.

As stated above, we would prefer not to consider a station on under 200 acres, as less than this makes the cost of handling to us too high. Under no circumstances would we erect a house unless we could have a full 150 acres.

If you care to take this matter up, we would be glad to have you advise us at once.

Cucumbers, as you know, are not planted before June 1st and up to June 15th, and even as late in some cases as July 1st.

Very truly yours,
The Williams Bros. Co.
of Detroit.

Gentlemen: I am in receipt of your favor of the twenty-sixth inst. regarding a salting station at this point.

We have called a meeting for tonight and will endeavor to report favorably on the acreage within a week or ten days.

Very truly,
W. P. Squier.

DON'T BE BALD

Nearly Any One May Secure a Splendid Growth of Hair

We have a remedy that has aided to grow hair and prevented baldness in 83 out of 100 cases where used according to directions for a reasonable length of time. That may seem like a strong statement—it is, and we mean it to be, and no one should doubt it until they have put our claims to an actual test.

We are so certain Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will cure dandruff, prevent baldness, stimulate the scalp and hair roots, stop falling hair and grow new hair, that we personally give our positive guarantee to refund every penny paid us for it in every instance where it does not give entire satisfaction to the user.

Rexall "93" Hair Tonic is as pleasant to use as clear spring water. It is delightfully perfumed, and does not grease or gum the hair. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. With our guarantee back of it, you certainly take no risk. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

Telegraph Office

East Jordan to Have One This Spring.

Through the efforts of our Board of Trade, East Jordan has finally been assured of a local telegraph station. The Western Union Telegraph Company have long realized that East Jordan is on the map, but the "mills of the Gods grind slowly" and considerable red tape was necessary before a final decision.

Our Board of Trade has been corresponding for some time with officials of the company and the latter have been going over the matter thoroughly. Last week, President of our Board of Trade W. P. Squier was a Detroit business visitor and, while there, called upon the officials of the Telegraph Company. Supt. H. J. Kinnucan assured Mr. Squier that they have been going over the matter thoroughly and have decided to put a line and office into East Jordan this Spring.

This is indeed good news to our business men. The system of telephoning messages to either Charlevoix or Boyne City telegraph stations has been very unsatisfactory, although the local operators at both cities have been very courteous and obliging.

To The Voters of East Jordan

"The education of our boys and girls is a matter of vital importance to both home and state. An intellectual education is not all that is needed to produce splendid, loyal citizens. Unless life's training ripens the moral force, it becomes the tool of selfishness and sin, corrupted intelligence is worse than misled ignorance."

In the busy turmoil of life are we not neglecting to stop and look our own actions in the face and see if our influence is leading to those things that help the children.

Voters—Many of your homes are bright by the presence of happy children whose education begins at home where they imitate the actions and words of father and brothers. Would it not be a great injustice to your children if by word and action you uphold and sanction anything that has a degrading influence upon the mind and the body?

Father—Do you believe that keen little chap at your home will shun the saloon, in the future, if he knows his father votes for a saloon, sees his father enter the saloon, and smells the saloon on his father's breath.

Should sickness overtake this little fellow your most loving care would be given to save him, and your last cent given to help him. Yet, at the same time some of you seem to be willing, yes, even anxious to place before your child the dangers and temptations of the saloon. Now by so doing are you not pushing your own child down towards disgrace and helping to ruin his soul and body? Every child needs the stimulating influence and helpful example of a good father and mother. It is a hard task to repair character. Why not give your own children a fair chance and a square deal? "God often sees heroes where the world sees apparent failures."

Fathers—You cannot always be present to protect your pure and attractive daughter, therefore is it not your parental duty and privilege to keep temptation and danger out of your city so that your daughter need not be afraid because some one forgets his honor.

I wish that we might remember that the child who must fight against an inheritance of dissipation does not have a fair and equal chance in life with the child whose inheritance is pure and healthy.

When you cast your ballot next Monday will you please remember how many mothers and children need your help and sympathy because of strong drink.

Young Men—East Jordan, your home and mine, needs your help so that she may become a city which needeth not to be ashamed. May your influence ever be on the side of right and when you are called to take up the burdens your father lays down, may you prove to be the loyal and honored citizens the world needs.

"It is well to think well; it is divine to act well."

From your sincere friend and well wisher.

"Laugh and the World Laughs With You."

The poet was right—there is nothing so catching as joyous laughter. Next to a kiss a laugh is the most popular thing in the world. The supply of kisses is limited, being controlled by a fair but capricious trust. The supply of laughs, however, is practically unlimited so long as you don't get too grouchy to look for them. One reason for the remarkable success of THE CHICAGO RECORD-HERALD is its daily recognition of the value of kind, wholesome fun. The "Alternating Currents" column of S. E. Kiser, the humorist and poet, is one of the brightest things in American journalism. The "Vest Pocket Essays" of George Fitch, printed daily in THE RECORD-HERALD, are gems of refined wit and humor. Each one is as good as a circus. And there is always a smile or a good laugh in Ralph Wilder's cartoons, bringing a cheery greeting as you pick up the paper each morning.

In THE SUNDAY RECORD-HERALD the colored comic section is full of laughter for young and old, and these amusing illustrations are free from the vulgarity and mischievous suggestions that have barred so many comic sections from refined homes. There is always a lot of high-class humor in the Sunday Magazine of THE RECORD-HERALD led by Sewell Ford's famous tales concerning Shorty McCabe and his red-headed rival, Turley. THE RECORD-HERALD has the right idea. Clean humor doubles the welcome of a good newspaper.

Now if our last two years spring suit will only stand for a third term.

To make sawlogs into lumber is a business, but to make boys into drunkards is crime. Have you a boy for the saloon? If you have a boy, think hard before you vote to bring the saloon back to Charlevoix. It might get him. Would you care if it did? Some fathers say, "The boy can shift for himself, I did." But he didn't make a very good job of it, did he?

The publisher of a paper must live as well as the clothier, the dry goods man or the grocer. To get the where-with to live he has one thing to sell and another to rent. He sells his paper and he rents the space in his columns; these are his principal sources of income and can any one inform us why he is expected to give either away? He can, of course, do so if he chooses and as a matter of fact he does furnish a good deal of his space rent free. But it does not follow that he ought to be expected to do so as a matter of course, and further, when once he does it, ought to be recognized as a "contribution" just as much as the sugar or coffee given by the grocer. But is not generally looked at in that light, yet everybody knows that the very existence of a newspaper depends upon the selling of the paper and the rent of the space as much as a merchant's success depends upon the sale of his goods. There is just as much reason for the merchant giving his goods away free as there is for the publisher.

SIMPLE MIXTURE USED IN EAST JORDAN

Many in East Jordan are now using the simple buckthorn bark and glycerine mixture known as Adler's, the new German Appendicitis remedy. A SINGLE DOSE relieves constipation, sour stomach or gas on the stomach almost INSTANTLY. This simple mixture antiseptizes the digestive organs and draws off the impurities and people are surprised how quickly it helps. James Gidley, Druggist.

DAVIS CALLED OFF THE BET

Editor Had the Best of Author in One Way, but Victory Was Not Altogether Complete.

John Kendrick Bangs tells this story of an attempt he made to get the better of Richard Harding Davis, according to the New York Evening Post.

"Davis and I were talking one day of his Van Bibber stories, and incidentally, I asked him how long it had taken him to write them.

"O, about ten days each," he replied. "I ventured to express the opinion that such a story could well be written in a couple of hours, and the result was that we made a bet of a dinner based on my ability to write a story similar in style to the Van Bibbers, and to have it accepted by a New York editor.

"When I reached my home in Yonkers that night I wrote the story, the work occupying the time from eight until ten o'clock; at ten the next morning I reached my office in Franklin square, at 10:30 I submitted my story to myself; by 10:45 I had read it, my warm regard for the author leading me to expedite the matter as much as possible; at eleven o'clock I accepted the manuscript; and at 11:15 I drew an order on the cashier for $100 in payment, which I at once cashed. Then I went out to find Davis. Meeting him, I told him of what I had done, detailing the various steps, and at the end held out in my hand the cash to prove that the transaction really had been consummated.

"Davis looked at me, then at the bills. "Well," I said, "what of that dinner, Davis?"

"Huh," grunted Davis, "if you have all that money you can afford to buy your own dinner."

When She Grows Up

The latest addition to the prize compositions from children of the public schools now rests at the Franklin building, the headquarters of the local school system, and is a most naive dissertation on "When I Grow Up."

The author of the composition is an eight-year-old girl, who plays with dolls and is in the third grade. The teachers all believe she has the correct idea of leap year, for she has announced in her composition that she intends to marry the little boy who sits across the aisle from her.

"When I am 19," begins this work of art, "I am going to be a school teacher. When I am 25 I am going to get married to—"

Here follows the name of the fortunate lad of 3 1/2 years.

"If the first child is a girl, it will be named Freida Egbert. If it is a boy it will be named Lucullus.

And then the concluding line brings a sadly prophetic vision: "Maybe I will be an old maid."

The English in Shakespeare's Day

"The English are good sailors, and better pirates, cunning, treacherous, and thievish; about 300 are said to be hanged annually at London. . . They are powerful in the field, successful against their enemies, impatient of anything like slavery; vastly fond of great noises that fill the ear, such as the firing of cannon, drums and the ringing of bells, so that in London it is common for a number of them, that have got a glass in their hands, to go up into some belfry, and ring the bells for hours together, for the sake of exercise. If they see a foreigner, very well made or particularly handsome, they will say: 'It is a pity he is not an Englishman.'"—Quoted in "Life in Shakespeare's England."

Felt He Had a Safe Risk

H. A. Harris, the champion pistol shot, told a shooting story at a supper in San Francisco. "There was a party of amateurs here," he said, "who thought they'd do some live pigeon shooting; so they ordered thirty birds from a suburban dealer. The shoot came off duly. It was a wonder. To give you a correct idea of it, I must quote from a letter sent by the dealer to the amateurs the next day. The letter ran: 'Gentlemen—I thank you for your order, and beg to state that I will be only too happy to supply you with birds for all future shoots. The entire thirty pigeons, for which you paid me fifteen cents a head, returned home safely, and, moreover, brought two strays with them. My price to you hereafter will be one cent per pigeon.'

Impossible, Though. "You are going to inherit all my money," said the rich old man. "Yes," sobbed the youth.

"I wish to goodness I could fix it so that you could also inherit my ability to take care of it," was the old man's last expression.

Stunned. "Your case is nolle prossed," said Police Judge Church White of Atchison to a prisoner the other morning.

"I don't know what that is," replied the prisoner, "but I think I ought to have a chance to consult an attorney before being handed a bunch like that."

Lovable Women

Those Spoken of Least by Men are Best Liked

By LOUISE LYNDON SIBLEY

WOMEN like the woman who has hitched her wagon to a star and who stops it to take you in. Conventional manners she may not have, but moral and mental manners she does have.

She is Mrs. Cleveland or Mrs. Wiggs, friendly, adaptable, steady, dependable, ever cheerful with cheerfulness that is the "calm of deep waters, and not the mere glassiness of the shallow pool"—and this the same whether she is sedate or vivacious by temperament.

Women like taste and style in dress, and with it that subtle grace they name in the country when they say of one that she is "not too good to speak to common folks."

Women like the woman who possesses some, at least, of the crowd of appealing graces of body, soul and mind resembling the lovely composite we used to make of our history class—who was to wear Polly Smith's eyes and Polly Brown's nose and Polly Jones' chin.

She will be one who can listen well. All the world loves a listener. Because if she listens she cares, thus mutely promising to further one's cherished plans, rather than searching about seeking whom she herself may devour.

Also she must be kind to your fancies and needs in the matter of hospitality. A mile from a lemon she may be, but ever a hostess of infinite resources and sagacity. She will not set before you the pickles and tea which are the chief of her own diet, making believe to flatter you in letting you take her as you find her, as the form has it. The woman women like always has the wholesome and pleasant grapes, and the jug of milk of Baucis and Philemon somewhere in reserve.

Women like a woman who lends "joy and grace to all her little world of friendship, to make her home a place which every guest enters with eagerness, and leaves with reluctance. She lends encouragement to the timid and ease to the awkward, represses violence, restrains egotism, makes controversy courteous."

Women like a woman with ease of manner, the mark of the habitual intercourse with the world—and having put you at your ease and comforted your appetite and shared your joys and divided your sorrows; and made you think you are worth while after all, yourself, and lent you the pattern of her prettiest waist, and discovered that your hand is smaller than hers and her feet are larger than yours—she disappears from discussion, for that woman is best and most liked by woman who is "least spoken of among men, whether for Louise Lyndon Sibley good or evil."

Young Man Being Favored in Business

By CHARLES F. SUNDELL

It does seem a great wrong that business men in hiring help should discriminate in favor of the young man when it is very evident that the older man is superior in every way.

All men of forty-five or thereabouts should not be classed together, as there are those men who at that age have every quality of superiority over the young man.

They have had the experience; their judgment is the ripest and their knowledge the amplest and broadest.

From the very nature of things there have to be two classes, the employers and the wage earners. We cannot all be masters and consequently most of us must be servants. It stands to reason, therefore, that the man of fifty has to seek employment as well as the man of thirty.

I cannot see why a man of fifty is not as good a salesman as a much younger man, as he certainly has had a much harder and a more varied experience.

Under these conditions, it should not be considered a disgrace to the man whose hair is sprinkled with gray to compete in the labor market with the young man. On the contrary, he should be treated courteously and given the opportunity to prove that he is fully the equal of the young man.

Why should not a man who is able to use good English be eligible to any position regardless of a few years either way?

When A Girl Is Old Enough To Marry

By Mrs. W. B. Waller, San Francisco

A girl should be competent to preside over that home intelligently, economically and helpfully. She should be trained to be a thorough helpmate.

Let her begin as an apprentice to master all that pertains to home making at twenty and at twenty-five she will not only be a competent housekeeper, but a husband keeper at the same time, these two things being almost synonymous.

What Our Children Should be Taught

By James E. Sullivan, New York

Pupils in the New York public schools should be taught, above all, the fundamental principles of right living in connection with a most thorough and exhaustive drilling in the three R's, and what they embrace. Too much time and money are literally thrown away by compelling students to take special courses, such as manual training, music, painting, etc.

If the pupil has a natural ability to specialize let the parents pay for it and send him to a special school after he leaves the public school. Irksome school regulations engender a tendency toward lying and deceit. Superficial instruction in the three R's produces boys who can neither read, write nor spell correctly. Thus they are incompetent from the start for a successful business career.

PRACTICE OF PROPAGATING, PRUNING AND TRAINING GRAPE

Vines are Ordinarily Germinated from Cuttings, by Layering or by Grafting—Selection and Proper Keeping of Scions are Very Important—Treatment Given Determines Profit.

By GEORGE C. HUSSMANN, Pomologist, United States Department of Agriculture.

Ordinary practice grapevines are propagated from seed, from cuttings, by layering, or by grafting. For originating new varieties, seedlings must of course be used. The individual seedlings differ so widely that they are seldom used by the intelligent planter even for grafting stock.

Cuttings for propagation may be prepared at any time after the vines have become dormant. Other things being equal, and if they are afterwards well cared for, the sooner they are prepared after the vines have become dormant the better. The length of the cuttings may vary from 8 to 20 inches, depending on the climatic and other conditions of the locality in which they are to be planted. Usually the hotter and drier the climate the longer the cuttings will need to be. They should always be made from young, well-matured wood, and preferably from medium-sized, short-jointed wood.

The treatment given vines during the first years of their growth largely determines the profit and pleasure to be derived from them. If improperly cared for during this period satisfactory returns are not obtained afterwards.

If cuttings are planted and the supply is sufficient, two in each place increases the chances of getting a full stand. Should both cuttings grow, one of them can easily be pulled up without injuring the other. To protect the cuttings from drying out, plant them so that the top bud projects only a trifle above the ground. If rooted vines, either plain or grafted, are used, the roots should be cut back to 3 or 4 inches, depending on their vigor. Only one cane of the top should be left, and this should be cut back to two or three good buds. If grafts are used, all scion roots and all suckers should be carefully removed.

Fig. 1—A Vine With Two Canes Layered, showing the Method of Propagation by Layers.

During the first year after planting no pruning or training is usually given, although it is, perhaps, a good plan with vigorous plants, especially if the season is propitious, to rub off all except the straightest and strongest of the young shoots that start.

There are various ways in which the objects of pruning are accomplished. For instance, the growth and health of a plant are promoted and the size of the fruit is increased (1) by removing all the diseased parts and suckers; (2) by shortening extended shoots, side shoots and laterals; (3) by putting upright the part whose rapid growth is desired; and (4) by removing the fruit buds or fruit. The plant is retarded in growth and made to bear earlier and richer fruit by shortening the leading shoots and leaving the fruit-bearing wood and by bending down the branches and ring-pruning them. The healing of wounded and diseased plants is promoted by removing the injured parts and dressing the wound. The head of a plant is renewed by cutting off the branches above; the head is made to grow thicker by cutting back the outer branches and to grow thinner by amputating all canes on which there is too much growth.

There are so many species of grapes, each having peculiarities of its own and therefore responding most readily to certain cultural methods, to which it is best adapted, that the pruning, training and growing of vines, which otherwise may appear quite simple, become complicated operations in which comparatively few people become expert, and vineyards in which serious mistakes are not made are rare.

In the overhead system, which has been used to some extent in New York, the vines are carried upon a canopy or overhead arbor six feet above the ground, consisting of three horizontal wires stretched at the same height. The center wire is fastened to posts which are placed at regular intervals, and the side wires are attached to three-foot cross arms of wood fastened to the posts. The head of the vine is annually cut back to five canes and five spurs. The canes are fastened on the wires, two in one direction and three in the other, this division being alternated each year. Fig. 3, A and B, shows vines pruned and unpruned, trained according to this system.

CLEANLINESS OF FIRST IMPORTANCE

No man can succeed in dairying and make it realize to its full capacity who does not inform himself and become a student in the business and put his best thought into his every day practice.

If there is anything next to good cows—that is needed on a dairy farm, it is clean, well kept, sanitary stables. If we are to keep cows it is far cheaper to keep them in a well appointed stable.

Success or failure in the dairy business does not depend upon the size of the farm or the number of cows a man keeps, or the rushing he does, but upon the character of the man, the intelligent thought he gives his business and his management. Men who take time to think, read and study are the ones that are making the money and are well satisfied with their vocation.

It is not breeding alone that is going to determine the future usefulness of the cow, but it must be supported by liberal feeding, daily care and careful observation.

The illustration shows an ideal stall in which the maximum amount of freedom is given by means of the chain tie.

Stops Pain in the Bladder, Kidneys and Back.

Wouldn't it be nice within a week or so to begin to say good-bye forever to the scalding, dribbling, straining, or too frequent passage of urine; the forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; the stitches and pains in the back; the growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and the despondency? I have a recipe for you that will do what you can depend on, and if you want to make a quick recovery, you ought to write and get a copy of this. Many a doctor would charge you just for writing this prescription, but I will and will be glad to send it to you entirely free. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 15282 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send it by return mail in a plain envelope. As you will see when you get it, this recipe contains only pure, harmless remedies, but it has great healing and pain-conquering power. It will openly show its power once you use it, so I think you had better see what it is without delay. I will send you a copy free—you can use it and cure yourself at home.

Natural Avoidance.

Mayor Gaynor of New York was defending his anti-suffrage views: "Woman has her place and man has his," he said, "and when I think of the confusion that would come from intermingling their places, I am reminded of an anecdote about Lady Holland. Lady Holland once said to Lord John Russell: 'Why hasn't Lord Holland got a post in the cabinet?' 'Well, if you must know,' Lord John answered, 'it is because nobody would work in a cabinet with a man whose wife opens all his letters.'"

HANDS WOULD CRACK OPEN

About two months ago my hands started to crack open and bleed, the skin would scale off, and the good flesh would burn and itch dreadfully. When my hands first started to get sore, there were small blisters like water blisters which formed. They itched dreadfully, it just seemed as though I could tear the skin all off. I would scratch them and the skin would peel off, and the flesh would be all red and crack open and bleed. It worried me very much, as I had never had anything the matter with my skin. I was so afraid I would have to give up my employment.

My doctor said he didn't think it would amount to anything. But it kept getting worse. One day I saw a piece in one of the papers about a lady who had the same trouble with her hands. She had used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was cured. I decided to try them, and my hands were all healed before I had used one cake of Cuticura Ointment. I am truly thankful for the good results from the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, for thanks to them I was cured, and did not have to lose a day from work. I have had no return of the skin trouble. Work Begets Work.

George W. Perkins, the New York financier, was talking about the scarcity of the $10,000 a year man—the man actually worth a $10,000 salary. "The advantage of the $10,000 a year man," he said, "is not alone that he works splendidly—it is also that under him everybody else works splendidly. There's a Chinese proverb," he said, "that expresses exactly what I mean: 'If a farmer is diligent the soil will not be lazy.'"

SERIAL STORY

THE GIRL from HIS TOWN

(Copyright, 1916, by The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father has been courted by Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind. He meets Lily, Duchess of Breakwater, a beautiful widow, who is attracted by his immense fortune and takes a liking to her. When Dan was a boy, a girl sang a solo at a church, and he had never forgotten her. The Galoreys, Lily and Dan attend a London theater where one Letty Lane is the star. Dan recognizes her as the girl from his town, and going behind the scenes introduces himself and she remembers him. He learns that Prince Poniotowsky is suitor and escort to Letty. Lord Galorey and a friend named Ruggles determine to protect the westerner from Lily and other fortune hunters. Young Blair goes to see Lily; he can talk of nothing but Letty and this angers the Duchess. The westerner finds Letty ill from hard work, but she recovers and Ruggles and Dan invite her to supper. She asks Dan to build a home for displaced theatrical people. Dan visits Lily for the time forgetting Letty, and later announces his engagement to the Duchess. Letty refuses to sing for an entertainment given by Lily. Galorey tells Dan that all Lily cares for is his money, and he is shocked that he and the Duchess have been mutually in love for years.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued.

Galorey repeated vaguely, "State?" "Why, she's all run down, tired out; she's got no real friends in London." The other man flicked the ash from his cigarette and looked at Blair's boy through his monocle.

"And you thought that Lily might befriend her, old chap?"

"Yes," nodded Dan, "just give her a lift, you know."

Galorey nodded back, smiling gently. "I see, I see—a moral, spiritual lift? I see—I see." He glanced at the woman with his strange smile.

She put her cigarette down and seated herself, clasping her hands around her knees and looked at her fiance.

"It's none of my business what Letty Lane's reputation is. I don't care, but you must understand one thing, Dan, I'm not a reformer, or a charitable institution, and if she comes here it is purely professional."

He took the subject as settled, and asked for a copy of the program and put it in his pocket. "I'll get the names of her songs from her and take the thing myself to Harrison's. And I'd better hustle, I guess; there's no time to lose between now and Sunday." And he went out triumphant.

Galorey remained, smoking, and the Duchess continued her notes in silence, cooling down at her desk. Her companion knew her too well to speak to her until she had herself in hand, and when finally she took up her pen and turned about, she appeared conscious for the first of his presence.

"Here still!" she exclaimed.

"I thought I might do for a safety valve, Lily. You could let some of your anger out on me."

The Duchess left her desk and came over to him.

"I expect you despise me thoroughly, don't you, Gordon?"

They had not been alone together since her engagement to Blair, for she had taken pains to avoid every opportunity for a tete-a-tete.

"Despise you?" he repeated gently. "It's awfully hard, isn't it, for a chap like me to despise anybody? We're none of us used to the best quality of behavior, you know, my dear girl."

"Don't talk rot, Gordon," she murmured.

"You didn't ask my advice," he continued, "but I don't hesitate to tell you that I have done everything I could to save the boy."

She accepted this philosophically. "Oh, I knew you would; I quite expected it, but—" and in the look she threw at him there was more liking than resentment—"I knew you, too; you couldn't go very far, my dear fellow."

"I think Dan Blair is excellent stuff," Gordon said.

"He is the greenest, youngest, most ridiculous infant," she exclaimed with irritation, and laughed.

"His money is old enough to walk, however, isn't it, Lily?" She made an angry gesture.

"I expected you'd say something loathsome."

Her companion met her eyes directly. She left her chair and came and sat down beside him on the small sofa. As he did not move, or look at her, but regarded his cigarette with interest, she leaned close to him and whispered: "Gordon, try to be nice and decent. Try to forget yourself. Don't you see what a wonderful chance it is for me, and that, as far as you and I are concerned, it can't go on?"

had for him had never lessened since the day when he told her he loved her, long before his marriage, and they were both too poor.

"We have always been too poor, and Edith is jealous of me every day and hour of her life. Can't you be generous?"

He rose and stood over her, looking down at her beautiful form and her somewhat softened face, but his eyes were hard and his face very pale.

"You had better go, Gordon," she said slowly; "you had better go. . . ."

Then, as he obeyed her and went like a flash as far as the door, she followed him and whispered softly: "If you're really only jealous, I can forgive you."

He managed to get out: "His father was my friend; he sent the boy to me, and I've been a bad guardian." He made a gesture of despair. "Put yourself in my place. Let Dan Blair go, Lily; let him go."

Her eyelids flickered a little, and she said sharply: "You're out of your senses, Gordon—and what if I love him?"

With a low exclamation he caught her hand at the wrist so hard that she cried out, and he said between his teeth: "You don't love him! Take those words back!"

"Of course I do. Let me free!"

"No," he said passionately, holding her fast. "Not until you take that back."

His face, his tone, his force, dominated her; the remembrance of their past, a possible future, made her way-

"Think of it," she said, "Letty Lane of the Galey is going to sing. I'd sit through a great deal for that. Let that man with the fiddle do his worst."

Blair laughed appreciatively. He thought Lady Calworn would be a good friend for Miss Lane, better than the Duchess herself. "I wish Lily could bear you talk about her violinist," he said, delighted; "she thinks he's the whole show." And tentatively, his ingenuous eyes fixed on his friend, he asked: "I wonder how you would like to meet Miss Lane. She's perfectly ripping, and she's from my state."

"Meet her!" Lady Calworn exclaimed, but before she could finish, through the room ran the little anticipatory rattle that comes before the great, and which, when they have gone, breaks into applause. The great actress had appeared to give her number. Dan and Lady Calworn, behind the palms in a little corner of their own, watched her.

A clever understanding of the world into which she was to come this day, had made the girl dress like a charm. She stood quietly by the piano, her hands folded. Among the high ladies of the English world in their splendid frocks, their jewels and feathers, she was a simple figure, her dress snow white, high to her throat, unadorned by any gay color, according to the fashion of the time. It was such a dress as Romney might have painted, and under her arms and from across her breast there fell a soft coral-colored silken scarf. The costume was or under his eyes, and the woman smiled at him as Blair had never seen her smile.

"Very well, then, goose," she capitulated almost tenderly; "I don't love that boy of course. I'm marrying him for his money. Now, will you let me go?"

But he held her still more firmly and kissed her several times before he finally set her free, and went out of the house miserable—bound to her by the strongest chains—bound in his conscience and by honor to his trust to Dan's father, and yet handicapped by another sense of honor which decrees that man must keep silence to the end.

CHAPTER XVII.

Letty Lane Sings.

The house of the Duchess of Breakwater in Park Lane was white, with green blinds and green balconies; beautiful, distinguished and old, mellow with traditions, and the tide of fashion poured its stream into the music-room to listen to the Sunday concert. Without, the day was bland and beautiful, mild spring in the deep sweet air, and already the bloom lay over the park and along the turf. Piccadilly was ablaze with flowers, and in the windows and in the Tower women's baskets they were so sweet as to make the heart ache and to make the senses thrill. Keen to the spring beauty, the last guest to go into the drawing-room of the Duchess of Breakwater was the young American man in whom the magic of the season had stirred the blood. He seemed the youngest and the brightest guest to cross the sill of the great house whose debts he was going to pay, and whose future he was going to secure with American money.

Close after him a motor car rolled up to the curb, and under the awning Letty Lane passed quickly, as though thistledown, blown into the distinguished house. The actress was taken possession of by several people and shown up-stairs.

Dan spoke to his hostess, who wore over her azure dress, a necklace given her by Dan. She said he was "too late for words," and why hadn't he come before. After greeting him she set him free, and he went eagerly to find his place next to an elderly woman whom he liked immensely, Lady Calworn. She had given him twenty pounds for some of his poor. Lady Calworn had a calm, kind face, and Dan sat down beside her, well out of the crush, and they talked amiably throughout the violin solo.

"Cat and Dog Chums."

When my dog was a puppy I got a little kitten to keep him company, says a writer in Fur News. They got to be good friends, but as they got older the cat seemed to think she could take care of herself.

When the cat climbed a tree it seemed to puzzle the dog, and he would stand below the tree and look up at the cat and then at me, as if trying to understand how the cat could get up into the tree while he had to stay on the ground.

When evening came the dog would hunt up the cat and carry her to the kennel where they slept at night. The dog kept one of his forelegs over the cat and there she had to stay until morning. At last the cat was killed, but I have the dog yet.

ban, but is in evidence in toques and bonnets when there is a preference for it.

The beautiful sailor shape with square crown and rolling brim, is covered with a dull-finished black silk. A band of crape as wide as the crown is laid smoothly about it. A broad crape bow is poised across the front with a crape-covered buckle at its center.

The long trape veil laid in a double box plait and sewed to the upper brim, close to the head, is a purely decorative feature, although it may be worn about the neck in a scarf-like manner. This fashion of wearing the drape like a throw about the neck may bring about a lengthening of the veil. It is a very graceful fashion since crape is manufactured so that it is waterproof, it is as useful, indeed, more useful, than fabrics not so protected, and may be used more freely than ever before.

COAT FOR YOUNG GIRL

Austrian blue cloth makes a smart little coat in this style. The long revers, which is continued quite to foot of coat, is faced with black satin to within half an inch of edge; it is also cut out about the bust line to show the material facing on which are sewn three small satin-covered buttons. The cuffs are to match. A belt of material stitched at edge is worn at waist-line.

Hat of black beaver with quills at side.

Materials required for coat, 2 1/2 yards 50 inches wide, 1 yard satin 20 inches wide.

SEPARATE SKIRT A NECESSITY

Many Materials From Which to Choose, but Garment Must Be in One's Wardrobe.

If you would profit by the example of French tailors, you will order separate skirts of one of the following materials:

First, a double-faced cloth that has leaped into important place is being used. It practically trims itself, and will be very popular for this economical reason.

Then there are chevrons and serges for lightweight models, and all colors are in vogue, the neutral shades and dark blue leading.

Heavy fancy suitings are very popular. The English tweeds and mixed suitings are having a tremendous favoritism shown them by the leading houses.

Tailored skirts are not so straight in outline, many showing slashed effects at the side, and all are made walking length.

Some have a slightly raised waist-band, so that no belt is needed, while others show a normal line, with a stitched band attached to the skirt. On others, a back panel is attached with a modified front edge that extends toward the front, thus forming a belt or girde.

MATCH THE HAIR AND EYES

Appropriate Touch of Color in the Toilette Adds Immensely to the Appearance.

To be becomingly dressed is the desire of every woman worthy of the name, and here I would say one is greatly helped towards this end if in one's toilette a touch of color to match the hair and eyes is introduced. It accentuates one's "points." For example, an ideal dance frock for a lark-haired girl would be a pale green shot with mauve crepe de sole. This emphasizes the black hair and brown eyes of the wearer.

To the woman with brown hair which has golden lights one commends the new color, which is of greenish gold. And as hair of this color is frequently accompanied by gray eyes, which almost invariably have a yellowish halo around the iris, this is the color for her.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

New Flame Color.

A positive furore is noticeable now for flame colors. The glowing red tones that are seen in the feather decked hats of the winter season are repeated in the ballroom, where flame, carnation, rhododendron, rose, cerise and currant shades make vivid splashes of color.

In simple lustrous velvet, softened about the bodice by silver lace or cream net, these red frocks are especially effective for midwinter entertainments, and while the dowagers and young married women choose this fabric and satin the debutantes appear in chiffon and mousseline de sole that are equally bright, in some cases made up over white and usually touched with silver, crystal or cut steel embellishments.

Mourning Millinery

NEW models from Paris in mourning millinery show a degree of style and smartness which is hard to achieve in any apparel having less individuality than this special class. A turban and a hat, both designed for a widow, are pictured here. They are wonderful examples of this class of millinery.

The turban, which might more consistently be called a turban-bonnet, is as simple in outline as possible and covered with English crape drawn smoothly over the crown. Its distinction lies in the graceful draping and great length of the beautiful veil. A width of crape, two yards long, is finished with a hem set on at the bottom a quarter of a yard deep. The other end is wound about the turban frame, exactly in the fashion of an Oriental turban. The crape veil thus provides drapery for the turban, a scarf about the shoulders and the regulation widow's veil, all in one. A ruche is not worn with this crape turban, but is in evidence in toques and bonnets when there is a preference for it.

REV. CHAS. SAGER SAYS

Mr. C. A. ABBOTT, August 22, 1905.
 35 Ann St., New York City.

Dear Sir: I have known for over 20 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy (which is Preparation of Hypophosphites and Bismuth) in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of that 25 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was consumptive and my family physician told my wife that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,

The City Commission of the City of East Jordan having under consideration the matter of paving Mill, Main and Eslerly streets, Commissioner Hudson offered the following resolutions and moved its adoption. Seconded by Commissioner Kenny.

Whereas the City Commission of the City of East Jordan, together with the assessor of said City have met for the purpose of hearing and considering all objections made to the special assessments levied upon special paying district No. 1 of the City, levied for the purpose of defraying that part of the cost and expense of paying Mill street from the East rail to the East Jordan & Southern Railroad to the east line of Third street, and Main street from the north line of Mill street to the north line of Garfield street, and Eslerly street, and Eslerly street a distance of 170 feet east of the east line of Main street, and 10 feet west of the west line of Main street, which this Commission had determined should be paid by special assessment, and

Whereas the said City Commission and said assessor have considered all the objections made to said special assessment, and have made all necessary corrections in its judgment that ought to be made, therefore

Resolved that said special assessment roll be and the same is hereby confirmed in all respects. Further approved and the City Commission does hereby order that the amount so assessed against each parcel be divided into five equal parts, one part to be collected this year, to-wit $2215 00, and one part to be collected annually hereafter until the whole is collected. Further

Resolved that the tax roll for the special assessment for said paying district No. 1 be forthwith deposited by the Clerk with the City Treasurer for collection. That the City Clerk also prepare a statement containing the names of the parties liable for said assessment, the total amount levied against each of the said parties, and part one of said assessment to be collected this current year. The said City Treasurer shall cause notice to be given to all persons liable under such special assessment by publication in the East Jordan Enterprise and Charlevoix County Herald, and also by letter directed to the last address of each of the parties liable for said special assessment, that said special assessment roll is in his hands for collection and that the whole thereof or part one may be paid during the month of April without interest. Further

Resolved that all parties liable for said special assessment have until the 1st day of May A. D. 1912, in which to pay said assessment or part one thereof as the parties liable therefor shall respectively elect. All payments made on said special assessment before the 1st day of May, 1912, shall be without interest. The City Treasurer shall give a receipt to all parties making payment on said special assessment, and shall also enter upon the said assessment in a proper column opposite the assessment levied against the party making payment thereon the amount paid by such party. Further

Resolved that on the first day of May the said City Treasurer return to the said Clerk the said assessment roll showing the amounts paid thereon. Further

Resolved that upon the 1st day of May, A. D. 1912, the City Clerk report to the assessor the names of all parties not having paid said special assessment, or part one thereof, a description of the lots and premises of such persons as contained in said roll with the amount of the assessment levied upon each. The City Clerk shall also divide the several assessments levied against each of the parties into five equal parts. He shall direct the assessor to enter into the general tax roll of the City of East Jordan, for the year 1912, part one of said special assessment and the same shall be collected at the same time with the other taxes in the tax roll and in the same manner. Part one shall be collected in the year 1912, and one part each and every year thereafter until the total amount of said assessment is paid, together with interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from and after the 1st day of May, 1912.

Adopted by a ye- and nay vote by the City Commission of the City of East Jordan, this 28th day of March, A. D. 1912, as follows:

Ayes, Hudson and Kenny (2)
 Nays, Glenn (1)

Mr. Glenn explained his vote on the adoption of the special assessment roll as follows: He had no objection to confirming the roll, but thought the matter should be left for the final meeting of the Commission.

Moved by Hudson, supported by Kenny to adjourn. Carried.

THINK THIS OVER

This Offer Should Gain the Confidence of the Most Skeptical.

We pay for all the medicine used during the trial, if our remedy fails to completely relieve you of constipation. We take all the risk. You are not obligated to us in any way whatever, if you accept our offer. That's a mighty broad statement, but we mean every word of it. Could anything be more fair to you?

A most scientific, common-sense treatment is Rexall Orderlies, which are eaten like candy. Their active principle is a recent scientific discovery that is odorless, colorless, and tasteless; very pronounced, gentle and pleasant in action, and particularly agreeable in every way. This ingredient does not cause diarrhoea, nausea, flatulence, griping, or other inconvenience. Rexall Orderlies are particularly good for children, aged and delicate persons.

If you suffer from chronic or habitual constipation, or the associate or dependent chronic ailments, we urge you to try Rexall Orderlies at our risk. Remember, you can get them in East Jordan only at our store. 12 tablets, 10 cents; 24 tablets, 25 cents; 60 tablets, 50 cents. Sold only at our store—The Herald Store. The W. C. Spring Drug Co.

What Are The Facts?

The saloon advocates are sending out anonymous statements to make the people believe it costs more to run the county dry than wet, and point to the fact which no one disputes, that larger county taxes were raised in the last three years. They do not tell you what the county records show, that during the wet years the county did not raise nearly enough to pay its expenses but ran far behind, and that during the last three years a COUNTY DEBT OF $44,000.00, INCURRED IN THE WET YEARS, was paid and that the county not only does not owe a dollar but has a large balance in the treasury.

The fact that the heaviest taxpayers in the county, almost without exception, favor Local Option, shows their belief that the saloons make more expense to the county than they pay into the treasury, and that it is NOT A GOOD BUSINESS PROPOSITION to license the saloons.

Now let us look at these figures they give concerning the cost of taking care of the poor, which they state amount in the last three years to $27,296.70 "For taking care of the poor."

The figures obtained from Mr. A. E. Cross, County Superintendent of the Poor, for the last three years are as follows:

Oct. 1, 1908 to Oct. 1, 1909	$4,459.62
Oct. 1, 1909 to Oct. 1, 1910	3,765.86
Oct. 1, 1910 to Oct. 1, 1911	4,598.23
Total	$12,823.71

This covers the actual amounts expended for taking care of the poor in furnishing clothing, food, medical aid, fuel, etc. and expenses but not salaries of County Superintendents but DOES NOT cover improvement made to the County Farm buildings, on which large amounts have been expended, nor does it include machinery or stock bought for the farm or other expenditures of this kind, and do not forget that the population of Charlevoix County increased from 16,274 in 1904 to 19,157 in 1910. But let us ask you, does any man with common sense believe there are more poor under dry conditions than under the saloon regime? Every man knows that the saloon breeds poverty.

If you want to know when the community is the most prosperous look at the Savings Deposits in the banks. In the banks in East Jordan the savings deposits

February 1st, 1909, were	$ 97,035.66
February 1st, 1912, were	230,186.56
An increase of	133,150.90

Increase in three years of 137 per cent., and the other banks of the County show a like condition.

Their figures regarding increase of crime are equally untrustworthy and will not bear the light but as this has been shown up by others we will not go into it at this time. The claim of the saloon advocates that saloons decrease poverty and crime is a novel one to say the least.

Quite a business change took place in our city last of the week when the firm of B. C. Hubbard & Co. sold their stock of Ladies Furnishings and Dry Goods to M. E. Ashley & Company. Mr. and Mrs. E. P. They have continued to carry one of the finest stocks in Northern Michigan and the new firm in taking charge had nothing but fresh, up-to-date goods. Mrs. Ashley, who will have active charge, is well-known to our people, and we feel sure will continue the high-grade service. Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard will continue to reside with us, having a fine farm near this city.

The effort on the part of the Michigan Brewery Association and the saloon advocates to create opposition to local option through the claim that cider making and the sale of cider will be distributed in dry counties more than in wet counties has been almost abandoned by the saloon forces. It is probable that they are yet steadily circulating literature and are quietly making statements through which voters interested in cider making will be deceived. But there has been no open attempt to deny Attorney General Kuhn's official declaration that the decision in the case of the People vs. Eberly does not change the rule that formerly existed, and that sweet cider, fermented cider, and cider vinegar may be sold in dry counties just as they are sold in wet counties, and that any restrictions that would apply to the unlicensed sale of cider in dry counties would apply just the same in wet counties.

Senator William Alden Smith has recently announced his favor for the passage of the Miller-Curtis bill, the proposed national law which makes it impossible for the brewers and distillers of one state to ship beer or whiskey into the "dry" territory of another state. It is recognized as an injustice that when a state or county has declared its opposition to the existence of saloons and breweries shipments of liquor from outside distilleries and outside breweries should be permitted to disregard the state and local option law and the wishes of the people and make shipments of whiskey and beer into such territory. It is this injustice that Sen. Wm. Alden Smith believes should be prevented. Referring to the fact that there is a widespread and just demand that the shipment of liquor into prohibition territory shall be prevented by law, Senator Smith said in a letter to the Epworth League of the Central Methodist church of Lansing: "I have felt that the so called Miller-Curtis bill fully met the situation and I am in favor of the passage of such legislation as will have this end in view."

Why? First the dry regime has had a wholesome influence upon our finances.

When the county went dry three years ago, it was $44,000.00 in debt. The three years of no saloons has wiped out that indebtedness. Let us not forget that the debt came upon the county while we were taking the license from the saloon.

The resort business has not suffered, as was predicted it would, but on the contrary has very materially improved. Last year was the best resort year in the history of the county. The majority of the resorters are in hearty sympathy with Local Option and would deplore a return of the open saloon.

Private business has prospered by the removal of the saloon. A large number of business men have given written statements to the effect that their business has improved. Collections are better and a less number of people are asking for credit than was true in the days of the open saloon.

Second, the dry regime has had a wholesome influence on criminal conditions in our county.

In the last two years of the wet regime there were thirty-five criminal cases, other than violations of the liquor law in our circuit court. Thirteen men were sent to the Detroit House of Correction and nine to the Penitentiary at Jackson. During the last two years, which has been dry, only fourteen criminal cases were brought into circuit court, other than the violations of the liquor law. Six men were sent to the Detroit House of Correction as compared with the thirteen sent during the corresponding period of the wet regime and only one man was sent to the Penitentiary, as compared with the nine men in the corresponding period of the wet regime.

Third, the dry regime has had a wholesome influence upon the drinking habit of the people of Charlevoix County.

Express and freight offices show that the consumption of liquor in this County is but a mere fraction of what it was during the wet regime. The county jail where drunks have so frequently lodged, has been shy of boarders during this period. For two months there was not one case of this kind. In the days of the open saloon, drunken people upon the streets of our cities was a common sight every day in the year. It is only occasional that these characters appear upon our public highways.

These are the plain facts which voters do well to consider.

PEGGY POYNTER

By CATHERINE COOPE

Jane Harding gazed idly through the columns of the Daily Tatler. The paper was particularly uninteresting and it was in a semi-conscious way that her eyes traveled over a pictured face.

Suddenly she sat bolt upright. She was staring at her own picture there in the columns of a daily paper. Jane drew a sharp breath and the hot color flamed into her cheeks.

Her picture was accompanying an article entitled "The Lover's Nook," by Peggy Poynter, and her own picture was supposed to be that of the person who gave free advice to lovers.

Jane sat in angry silence wondering in what possible manner such a mistake could have been made in a reputable paper. Finally, curiosity got the better of her anger and she read the column. A large sub-head informed the public that Peggy Poynter would each night give her advice to lovers.

"Well! She certainly will not!" Jane Harding informed the paper. "At least she won't with my picture attached to it. Miss Poynter is probably some hideous old maid who is ashamed of her own face." Jane thought vindictively and cast a smiling glance at her own wonderful likeness.

Jane remembered in a dark moment that she had once, in the dim past, given her photograph to an enthusiastic reporter who had talked her into it in spite of her better judgment. She had been a participant in a harmless academy escapade and had often been sorry that she had given her very best photograph in the hands of the newspaper.

The longer Jane looked at the supposed portrait of the author of "The Lover's Nook" the greater became her wrath.

She would go down to the Tatler office and demand an explanation. She would not have her picture appearing in the columns of the daily papers. Jane had visions of herself in a large case of libel or suit for damages or something. Jane's ideas were rather vague on the subject of lawsuits, but she felt very much like starting something of that order.

Perhaps her belligerent mood prompted Jane to use all her weapons of war, which proved to be an irre-and remained looking up—for Jane was beautiful.

"She stood, seemingly rooted to the spot and scarcely realizing that a very deep voice had addressed her.

"I am 'Peggy,'" he said and Jane caught at her under lip, to still the laughter that threatened her. He was all of six feet tall and he seemed to Jane quite the best looking man she had seen. She made an effort to control her voice and cast a quick glance around the room. She knew instinctively that every man in the room knew her to be the original of the photograph and that she had in some way played up to her part in a huge joke. That the joke was on the big man standing dejectedly beside her was also apparent.

Jane Harding did the only thing possible under the circumstances. She smiled a radiant smile that gave her the instant homage of every man in the editorial office.

"But—I am very angry," she said as if they had been talking long about the unwarranted use of her photograph. "I cannot make my friends believe that I am not Peggy Poynter," and because Jane found her position more or less trying and because the man at her side was so silent, she fled precipitately from the room.

Jane was almost out of the building when she discovered that Peggy, otherwise known as Jimmy Warren, had followed her.

She stopped and looked up at him and tried to feel some of the anger that had been hers a few hours before. She could only feel anger at herself for letting this big man bring color to her face.

"Miss Harding," he said as he swung into step beside her, "I want to explain and apologize. First, the chaps in the office all dared me to do what I have done—use your picture for that of Peggy Poynter, and run the column for as long as the public would stand for it."

"Stand for my picture!" Jane raised wide open eyes and Jimmy lost a step. "My 'Lover's Nook,'" he said, and smiled. Jane liked the smile. "For nearly two years I have been what the chaps called, mooning over a photograph that I found in the desk that was left by my predecessor," Jimmy Warren turned and looked at Jane, but she had found something of great interest straight ahead.

"I have spent the last two years looking for the original of that photograph and also for the reporter who once owned it."

"He did not own it!" Jane flashed quickly back. "He promised to send it back to me!"

"Which is more than I would have done," Jimmy calmly restored. "I knew if there was any way of finding you, it was by publishing that picture."

"Which you did. And the whole office force has been waiting for me to appear." Jane looked up accusingly. "The whole world has been waiting," Jimmy said. "At least it seems to me as if the universe had begun a new revolution." He piloted her down a sidestreet. "I am taking you to lunch," he replied to the question in her eyes. "It is only right that I begin to make amends at once."

PROPERLY PAID FOR FAKING
Press Agent Declares Experience Has Cured Him, but That Is Hard to Believe.

The press agents, as they dined, talked. "Next New Year," said a fat, successful-looking press agent, "I shall sweat off faking."

"Good!" they chorused. "Honesty is the best policy," he continued. "Faking doesn't pay. Listen."

"You know that new theater that the boss is putting up in Steepth street. Well, I thought last month that it would be a good ad. if a lot of Indian and colonial relics were to be found during the digging of the foundation. So, one night, I filled a tin-bag with the best pieces in my collection—you know that fine collection I had of arrowheads, tommyawks, blunderbusses, coins, silver buckles and so forth—and I sneaked down to the building site in the small hours, and I dug up the ground a few inches with my knife, and I buried all those valuable curios."

"Bright and early the next morning I turned up at the diggings."

"Well, any news?" I said to the foreman cheerily. "Anything that would make a good story for the papers?"

"No, sir," said he. "What's that?" I couldn't believe my ears. "What?"

"No, sir," he repeated. "Then my eye fell on his pockets. They were bulging. I fits assistant's pockets were bulging, too. And the pockets of half a dozen diggers bulged. My poor curios! But what was I to do? My honor as a press agent must be preserved at all costs."

"Right! Right!" the others chorused.

"My den is bare now," he concluded, "bare as a post's garret. And never again, so help me, will I try to fake."

UNLAI D GHOST OF TAR DELAYS SHIP

Mates Won't Sail on the Annie Smith With Steve Jackson's Wraith Roaming Decks.

SAILOR WAS MURDERED

And Worse Still, Two "Black Cats" perched on the Spirit's Form, So the Commander of the Barkentine Was Unable to Put to Sea.

New York.—It was not exactly the fault of Capt. Frederick Foots that the Annie Smith, as trim a little barkentine as you can see in any port, did not sail the other day for Brazilian ports. Nor was it the fault of Edw. Moore, the mate negro that of Steve Jackson, a negro seaman, lately deceased. The blame really belonged to the ghost of the said Steve Jackson.

The Annie Smith, with her general cargo stowed away, her clearance papers signed, her sails ready to be set, was unable to cast off, because Captain Foots could find no mate to sail in her.

And if you speak to Captain Foots and you'll conscience and your constitution can weather oaths that will make your hair stand on end, you will learn that when Steve Jackson slipped his cable with a knife stuck in between his ribs, he carelessly allowed his ghost to roam at random on the Annie Smith.

That was both unprofessional and unethical on the part of Jackson, and you can hardly blame Captain Foots for using plain and forceful, if unpleasant language.

Captain Foots, you see, joined the Annie Smith only a few days ago. In those few days Steve Jackson's ghost has been working overtime, and with such success that Moore, the mate, quit cold. Moore did not mind a ghost that helped to trim a sail, a hand at the wheel and a turn at watch, but he did draw the line at a ghost that pirouetted the forecastle deck with a couple of black cats poised on his shoulders. And so the mate quit and the captain became sore, and the Annie Smith did not sail.

It was five years ago, when the Annie Smith was bound for the east coast of Africa, that Steve Jackson gave up the ghost. The night they committed Steve's body to the deep with only a dead weight of iron to keep him company, the seaman's ghost appeared to the mate.

Moore was at the wheel, eyeing the fluttering of the topgallant sail, as the wind showed signs of shifting, when he heard Steve's voice say: "Good evening, mate." He looked in the direction whence the voice came and there, sitting on the starboard rail, was Steve's ghost, dressed just as Steve was dressed when he signed on the grim ship Death. The mate answered him, but though the ghost remained there, he did not utter another word until after an hour, when he said, "All's well," and disappeared. Moore soon became used to Steve's ghost, which appeared morning and night, and greeted him, and which said, "All's well," whenever a storm arose.

But after three and a half years the ghostly visitor became too much for Moore, and he left the Annie Smith. A year ago, however, he shipped again in the barkentine, and there was a great little reunion on the first day that the mate took the wheel.

"Morning, mate," said the ghost. "Hello, Steve," quoth Moore as was his wont.

"Well, I've been and you've bin away a awful long time," grinned the ghost.

"Glad to see you again, Steve," went on Moore. "And say, Steve, just go forward to the jib halliards and hoist that jib."

Sure enough, Steve's ghost hoisted the jib, and coming back, touched his hat, cried "All's well," and vanished.

But the other day the ghost got on Moore's nerves, for it there is one thing that the mate is afraid of is a black cat, and next to that two black cats, and Steve's ghost appeared to Moore with a black cat on each shoulder.

Moore went to Captain Foots. "See here, cap'n," said he, "I'm through. Ghosts is my middle name, but black cats don't go."

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

"The report spoiled the speech. It was like old Hiram Earwig's account of Daniel Webster's last words. Webster, you know, as he lay dying, uttered the profound and significant sentence, 'I still live.' Well, Hiram Earwig of Skater Beach said to a visitor from the city:

"Yawp, life's onsartin. Wot wuz it that that New Englander said—Webster, I think? Yawp, it wuz General Dan Webster. He got off a good thing just afore he died. He riz up in bed an says, says he:

A WOMAN DOCTOR
Was Quick to See That Coffee Poison Was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning, and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and have suffered untold agony. When I first began to have them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110."

"I went to many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day, a woman doctor advised me to drink Postum. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned."

"So I began to drink Postum, and gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and am still gaining, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks—long enough, I expect, to get the coffee poison out of my system."

"Now that a few months have passed since I began to use Postum, I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that relieved me."

"Before I used Postum, I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go alone, and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

sistible" effect in dull greens. Jane's eyes looked out from beneath a sweeping plume like twin seas in a storm and her cheeks were crimson.

When she was ready to start down town for the Tatler office the telephone rang.

Jane stamped an angry little foot as she hurried up the receiver. Jack Robinson had called up to congratulate her upon her advent into the literary world. "That Peggy Poynter, is a tricky non de plume," he had said. Jane smiled in spite of herself and before she left the house two telegrams and three more telephone calls were added to her list of congratulations.

When the elevator took her up to the editorial rooms of the Tatler, Jane felt that her every heart beat could be counted by the elevator boy. The courage with which she had been brimming over before leaving the house had vanished and she had resolved to let Peggy Poynter appear in every edition of the paper without her saying nay.

But alas, the elevator had stopped and Jane found that she was standing in the hall and that she was asking to see Peggy Poynter.

A very small boy in a very large uniform looked up at her and grinned. Jane felt her color rising under that feigning glimpse of recognition in the office boy's eyes. He turned on his heel and Jane braced herself to face the woman who was ashamed to use her own photograph.

"This way," Jane caught her breath and followed the office boy into a glass partitioned room.

She swept through the door with her head held high and panic seized her. She was standing before perhaps 20 men all of whom looked up

ARIZONA THE 48TH STATE

Scene on the wagon road, Roosevelt Dam Arizona

ARIZONA, whose entry as the forty-eighth member of the Union, and completed the nation of states from ocean to ocean, has had a history probably as turbulent and trying as any state in the Union. The struggles of the Pilgrims of Massachusetts, the Hollanders who colonized New York, the Quakers who settled Pennsylvania and the English who brought civilization to the Virginia shores were no harder than those of the pioneers of Arizona. They were killed by Indians, robbed by lawless people of their own nationality, starved upon the deserts, frozen in the snow-capped mountains and bitten by poisonous reptiles. They had no government for many years and fought as hard to get territorial rights as they have been fighting for the past ten years to get statehood rights. They were on the point of rebelling at one time and even went so far as to establish a territorial form of government of their own despite the expressed desire of congress, exemplified in its refusal to grant a territorial government, that they should remain a part of New Mexico.

Their nearest peace and judicial officials were then four hundred miles away, at Mesilla, N. M., and their law was the law of the strongest against the weakest. At one time all of the present state of Arizona was the county of Arizona, attached to New Mexico for purposes of administration only.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, General Lawton, General Crook and many other noted men of the United States army gained their first fame in campaigning in Arizona. It was from Arizona that the only raid of United States troops was ever made into a foreign country not then at war with us; the soldiers were after Indians who had been killing and robbing in Arizona. The history of Arizona is thrilling from its inception to the present day.

The origin of the name Arizona is not definitely known. Bancroft, the historian, and some others have insisted that the name is from a supposed Pima Indian word, "Arizonac," although Bancroft admits that the original meaning of the term is not known. The historian treats as "extremely absurd" the suggestion that the name is of Spanish derivation, and he apparently bases that conclusion upon the fact that there is no similar word in Spanish.

But it is possible that "Arizona" may have had its derivation from the Spanish words arida zona (arid zone). The well-known tendency of uneducated speakers of Spanish, to leave off the last syllables of words ending in vowels and their tendency to run words together would easily transform arida zona into "Arizonac."

First True Exploration.

It was about 1527 that Cabeza de Vaca turned his wandering footsteps to the Hopi and Zuni villages in the northeast, gaining Mexico at last by way of the friendly Pima settlements along the Gila.

It was in 1540 that Vasco de Coronado, governor of Mexico, lured by the golden tales of a monkish traveler, started northward on the first true exploration of that mysterious land. He sought the fabled Seven Cities of Cibola, where gold and precious gems paved the streets. Though he did not find the object of his search his expedition led to Spanish settlements and agriculture, and mining had some development.

Back again into barbarism was Arizona plunged by the Mexican war for independence, and not until the Gadsden purchase, in 1853, did the firm hand of governmental authority again take hold. Even then, however, all that was known of Arizona was a narrow strip within which the Southern Pacific railroad now runs and along which flowed the tide of travel from the eastern states to the gold fields of California.

Treachery of Indians of Long Ago. When the white man first came to Arizona there were approximately 40,000 Indians within the borders of the territory. The principal tribes were the Navajos, Hopis, Wallapais, Chemehuevis, Havasupis, Mohaves, Pimas, Maricopas, Yumas, Papagoes and Apaches of which there were several groups or divisions. The Navajos perpetrated several massacres in the early days, but it was not long before all the Indians except the Apaches had been subdued.

Tricky and cruel, the Apaches hold out for many years against the inroads of the whites upon their ancient hunting grounds. Such leaders as Cochise, Geronimo and Natchez led the Apaches against famous American generals like Nelson A. Miles and George Crook. A reward of $5,000 was once offered for Apache Kid, but was never claimed.

Up to 1874 the Indians terrorized large sections of the territory and kept out immigration and capital. In that year all the Apaches that could be rounded up were placed on the San Carlos reservation. It was supposed that an end had been put to the Indian troubles, but raids in 1882 and 1883 shook the feeling of security.

In the year 1883 there were 25,000 Indians in the territory occupying lands reserved for them by the general government. The government was supporting about five thousand of them.

In 1882 the Chiricahua, White Mountain and San Carlos Apaches broke out in open rebellion. On the morning of April 19 Loco's band broke out at San Carlos and after killing the chief of police started up the valley of the Gila, killing at least sixty white settlers. Then for six years Arizona was the scene of a merciless Indian war. In 1883 Geronimo became chief of the Apaches. He massacred settlers and burned ranches almost at will. After each raid he would escape to the mountain fastnesses of Mexico where the United States soldiers could not pursue him. Finally permission was secured from Mexico for soldiers to cross the frontier in pursuit of the Indians. In 1885 Captain Lawton, serving under Gen. Nelson A. Miles, surrounded Geronimo's warriors and made them prisoners. The whole tribe was taken to Florida and later transferred to Fort Sill, Okla., as prisoners of war.

Geronimo remained until his death, three or four years ago, and the remainder of his band is still there. All desire to return to Arizona and it is possible that sometime the government may see fit to grant them their wish. Today they are as peaceful and placid as any Indians having seen the folly of resisting the whites.

Of course there were bad men and gun men in Arizona in her early days. Stage and train robberies were by no means uncommon and excited only passing comment. Finally train robberies became so frequent that in 1889 the penalty for that crime was fixed at death. In the same year the legislature passed a law providing a fine of $25 for any one carrying concealed weapons.

It was not until after the penalty for train robbing had been fixed at death that Arizona became really peaceful. Now there is no train robbing any more, and as the day of the stage coach is practically passed the stage robber is extinct.

Until 1907 everything was wide open in Arizona. Gambling was unrestrained and, except where municipal laws prevented, women and minors were allowed in saloons. In that year the legislature responded to an urgent message from Governor Kibbey and to pronounced public sentiment and passed a rigid anti-gambling law that closed such games.

Starling Going South. Reports received at the department of agriculture state that the English starling, whose progress in this country has been watched with some uneasiness, has got as far south as Newport News.

This is one of the imported birds that it is feared will rank with the English sparrow as a pest. It does no particular harm in England, but it was introduced into Australia a number of years ago and there it has been a serious menace to the wheat crop.

Its only redeeming feature is that it is a much larger bird than the English sparrow, and therefore likely to be easier to handle. The birds were started in this country in New England and worked south slowly. For several seasons they seemingly were stationary in the latitude of Philadelphia.

Brazil Fosters Agriculture. During the first six months of last year the Brazilian government distributed sixty-one tons of seed among farmers and institutions besides a number of books containing advice.

IS THE PAIN THERE?

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Then Your Kidneys May Be Weak and in Need of Quick Attention

Backache is enough cause to suspect the kidneys. The kidneys are in the small of the back. Congested kidneys swell and throb. The back naturally aches. It hurts to bend or stoop or to sit down.

Kidney trouble may come on all unnoticed. A cold, a chill, a fever, a strain or irregular habits may start it. While sick kidneys can be cured in the beginning, it is a serious matter when dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease sets in.

Doan's Kidney Pills have made a reputation in the cure of backache, and kidney and bladder ills. The best proof is the testimony of the users. Here are two typical testimonials. Thirty thousand others are being published in the newspapers. A postage stamp will bring you reports of cases nearer home.

If you suspect your kidneys, get the best-recommended kidney remedy.

Who Resides at 1700 Burling St., Chicago, Ill.

Made Well After Being Almost Helpless from Wasting Kidney Troubles. "I had awful pains through my hips," says Mrs. Howes, "and frequently wished I had never been born. I seemed to have lost all interest in life. I doctored for female trouble thinking my condition was due to some derangement of that nature, but got no better. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise I began to improve. They not only corrected the kidney action, but stopped the pain and sickness I had thought was due to female trouble."

A Resident of Camden, O.

Cured After Being Confined to Bed for Seven Weeks. "I was in bed seven weeks with kidney trouble," said Mr. Dearth, "and grew worse in spite of all the doctor could do. Kidney secretions were in terrible condition. If left standing they thickened like glue and had to be removed with a knife. My own doctor gave me up. I then called in a specialist who said I was beyond recovery. I had lost over 20 pounds and was but a shadow of my former self. I used one box of Doan's Kidney Pills and soon felt better. Continuing I was cured and have not had the slightest trouble since."

Fortissimo. When a certain Baltimore matron returned home one afternoon not so long ago the first sign her eyes beheld was a badly damaged youngster of hers. Little Bobby's forehead bore a bump almost the size of a doorknob. "Heavens," exclaimed the mother. "What has happened to Bobby?" "Nuthin' much, mum," explained the new nurse. "You told me, mum, he might play on the piano if he wanted to. Well, mum, wanst while he was sliding on the top, he slid a bit too far, mum; an' that accounts for the bump ye see, mum."

The Remedy that revolutionizes and regenerates the victim of constipation is Garfield Tea, a herb combination. When a man does things he hasn't much time to talk about them.

Puzzle of Living. Religionists chided about their inability to agree on points of faith might point out that they differ only in incidentals, and not essentials, whereas the scientists differ on everything. Take the science of living. A week ago you would have died if you drank water with your meals. Now they say it doesn't do any harm at all. One variety says: "Eat meat, lots of it, to build good, rich blood." Another says meat is poison; that vegetables are the only food. A third declares meat and vegetables both increase debility, and that you will live twice as long on raw fruits and nuts. Some say "Talk with your meals, laugh; it makes the food digest." Others insist silence is never so golden as at the table.

Cheerfulness keeps up a kind of sunshine in the soul, and fills it with a steady and perpetual serenity.—Addison.

Why Do I Use HENKEL'S FLOUR?

That's simple. I like good flour. Henkel's Bread Flour makes my best bread and lots of it. My best cakes are made with Velvet Pastry Flour. Of course I use it.

NOTE—Henkel's Pancake and Graham Flour and Henkel's Corn Meal are mighty good.

It isn't difficult for a man to see his affinity in a woman with an obese bank account.

For liver and kidney troubles, nothing is quite so mild, pleasant and effective as Garfield Tea.

Many a man has bumped into trouble while trying to dodge his duty.

Do You Feel This Way?

Do you feel all tired out? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your profession or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at nights unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and your stomach too? His ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you might as well put a stop to your misery. You can do it if you will. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your lazy liver to work. It will set things right in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a hagering cough, bronchitis, or bleeding at the lungs, it will bring about a cure in 98 per cent. of all cases. It is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., whose advice is given free to all who wish to write him. His great success has come from his wide experience and varied practice. WALL STREET IS INTERESTED

Fancy Job of Trucking That Takes the Minds of Financiers Off Money.

Finance is what engages it mostly, but Wall street can spare a moment for other things that are interesting, as it is doing occasionally just now to look on at some exhibitions of fancy trucking.

The structural-steel for the new building going up on Wall and Nassau streets is landed from lighters at a South street wharf at the foot of Wall street, so it is only a short haul from the wharf to the new building, though it's a lively one.

Some of the supporting columns on pillars going into this building weigh from 25 tons to 30 tons each, but they are handled easily. They back one of those long and ponderous trucks with low, broad-rimmed, heavy, solid iron wheels down on the wharf, alongside the lighter, and then the lighter's steam derrick lifts off its deck one of those 30-ton pillars and lays it gently on the truck, doing this quickly and easily.

To haul this load they have hooked to the team seven pairs of big horses, a team of 14 horses, all used to the business and all pulling ably.

All ready, the driver mounts to a seat on the forward end of the big pillar on the truck, which puts him high in the air, and gathers up his lines. There are three other men scattered along the team as leaders and guides for the horses, and then without hummer or ceremony they get away, starting the great load easily.

There's a broad, easy sweep from the wharf into the broad lower end of Wall street and the outfit makes this, describing a great arc, and then it straightens out for the run up Wall street. It's an up grade all the way from South street to Broadway, but the team takes it easily on a steady trot.

It's as good, if not better, than a circus, and primarily interested though it is to finance, Wall street finds time to look when one of these great outfits sweeps by.—New York Sun.

DOGS HUNT THE TRUFFLES

How That Table Delicacy is Obtained With Their Assistance in France.

Truffles, like mushrooms, belong to the family of the fungi, but are a distinct and very peculiar genus. They are cryptogamic plants and subterranean, their position underneath the soil varying from two to three inches to two feet in depth.

They have no root, stem, or leaf, and vary in color from light brown to black. They are sometimes globular in form, and vary in size from that of a pecan to that of a duck's egg. Their surface is warty and covered with a skin. Their exact method of growth is not precisely known. They are, of course, regarded as a great luxury by the epicure.

Truffles are mentioned by Juvenal, Pliny, Plutarch and Martial. The Athenian epicures were acquainted with them, and a story is told of a bon vivant who freed a whole family of slaves who had invented a delicious method of preparing them.

France has the credit of producing the finest truffles. Dogs are commonly bred to search for them.

The method of "breaking" these dogs is to give them for a time pieces of truffles every morning before they are allowed to partake of any other food. After a certain period, when their appetite for truffles increases, pieces are hidden in the ground, and they are made to find them. Thus they are gradually taught their business, though it often takes as long as 18 months before a dog becomes skilled in the art.

In some parts of France—Poltou and Perigord, for instance—pigs are trained for truffle hunting, and by some they are deemed to be better fitted for the work than dogs.

Blind Girl's Poultry Yard.

Recently the writer had the pleasure of meeting a young Scotch girl who though almost blind is active and accomplished to a very remarkable degree. One of her principal interests is her poultry yard, and there her almost unaided efforts have met with truly wonderful success.

Her yearly balance sheet shows substantial and increasing profits, while the care of her birds proves a source of much interest and provides a good deal of healthy outdoor exercise. She keeps careful and accurate accounts, a practice she being used for memoranda. She uses a typewriter for correspondence.—Feathered Life.

C. A. Gussner, 24 Ontario St., Rochester, N. Y., has recovered from a long and severe attack of kidney trouble, his cure being due to Foley's Kidney Pills. After detailing his case, he says: "I am only sorry I did not learn sooner of Foley's Kidney Pills. In a few days' time my back-ache completely left me and I felt greatly improved. My kidneys became stronger, dizzy spells left me and I was no longer annoyed at night. I feel 100 per cent better since using Foley's Kidney Pills." Hites Drug Store.

SKIN SORES

Easily and Quickly Healed

Those who suffer from Eczema, pimples or other skin eruptions, running sores, itchy skin, etc., should use this medicine. It is a powerful and effective remedy for all skin diseases. It is a simple and inexpensive preparation known as the Five-Drop Salve. It is a carefully compounded ointment that for fifteen years has proven its value as a soothing, healing, and protective agent. A single application will usually give immediate relief. The burning, irritating inflammation quickly subsides and the sores dry and disappear. The Five-Drop Salve is now put up in 25 and 50 cent packages and sold by nearly all druggists. If it is not obtainable in your locality you can order direct from Hites Drug Store, 100 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., and it will be sent postpaid upon receipt of price. It is an excellent remedy for cracked skin and scalp itching.

HINTS FOR MUSIC PUPILS

If They Reside in Flats They Should Practice When Everyone Else is Out.

Persons learning music and living in flat buildings should be induced to practice playing and singing on schedule.

A time at which nobody but the cook is around is suggested as a good one.

This would be considered a hardship by the grown person who works downtown and seeks the solace of music as interpreted by himself, but somebody in every community must make a sacrifice now and then.

"Eight o'clock Sunday morning is not the time for a man with faulty fingers and an erroneous ear to play on the violin 'Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?'" The answer of "no" is apparent, but the question is persisted in and the late once-a-week sleep which is a luxury to many is made impossible.

In fair weather the budding cornetist or violinist likes to sit by a window opening upon the light shaft. This spreads his villany all the easier among the neighboring apartments.

If it isn't a violin or a cornet it is a piano or the underdeveloped singer that is an infliction. "The Mikado" scale of justice is not available, but is pleasant to contemplate.

Crook With a Conscience.

A man walked into police headquarters the other night and handed Lieut. Gabe a pocketbook in which was $2.65.

"My name is Charles Schlick, and there is some money I picked from a man's pocket in the subway this evening," he said. "I'm no common crook, but I've been here three months and can't find a job. For two days I've been hungry. Tonight I sneaked by the ticket chopper in the Brooklyn bridge subway station, and standing next to this fellow I saw my chance. I got away with it, got off the train as Fourteenth street, got a good meal"—he straightened up—"and there's the change."

He said his conscience had so troubled him that he wanted to give himself up.—New York Sun.

Affection by Proxy.

"I find that my husband has been having the office boy call me up every day and murmur terms of endearment. That's a nice way to fool his wife. He's been going to the ball game."

"How is it that you didn't catch on to the voice?"

"Well, I'm busy at bridge every day and I've been having the cook answer the telephone."

A Test of Tact.

James Bryce, the British Ambassador at Washington, is the most tactful of men, and at a luncheon at the Country club he once defined tact in the following words:

"Tact is the ability to remove the sting from a dangerous stinger without getting stung."

BACKACHE ALMOST UNBEARABLE

Is an almost certain result of kidney trouble. D. Tomney, 803 E. Olive St., Bloomington, Ill., says: "I suffered with backache and pains in my kidneys which were almost unbearable. I gave Foley's Kidney Pills a good trial, and they done wonders for me. Today I can do a hard day's work and not feel the effects." Hites Drug Store.

THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from a Carpets" (trade mark established 1898) in which "the trade has been successful retailers" of over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much impetus to the Carpet Cleaning and retinting department, which includes a large sterilizing abattoir for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time saving machinery devices run by electricity. Two of the largest rotary renovating machines for general cleaning and a powerful vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for fine rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sewing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with largest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespeaks a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence should be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 18, 1911.—Make your shipments as early as possible.

Why She's a Suffragette.

"Dora" joined the suffragette movement.

"It's her belief that women ought to vote? eh?"

"Oh, I don't know that she's formed any opinion about that. But the suffragettes in our neighborhood have been giving such lovely teas. And Dora wanted to get-in on them."

HOW COLD CAUSES KIDNEY DISEASE

Partly by driving blood from the surface and congesting the kidneys, and partly by throwing too much work upon them; Foley's Kidney Pills strengthen the kidneys, give tone to the urinary organs and restore the normal action of the bladder. They are tonic in action, quick in results. Try them. Hites Drug Store.

DON'T SAY YOU'RE OLD

You Only Feel Old

Digestive organs are weak—don't assimilate food as they used to. Other organs act more slowly and less effectually.

Blood is thin and sluggish. Renewal of strength does not equal the wear and tear of your system. That's what makes you feel old. Nothing in the world will tone up and invigorate those weak, back-aching organs, make rich blood and create strength so quickly as Vinol.

Vinol is not a secret nostrum, it's the medicinal elements of the "coda" livers, with the useless nauseating oil eliminated, and tonic iron added. Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not make you stronger, feel younger and give you an added interest in life.
