Big Population May Cause War.

It is pointed out in the report of the Malthusian league that the enormous increase in Germany's population (about 1,000,000 annually) is very likely to drive her into war owing to the necessity for new markets, but a report of the royal Prussian statistical land bureau has shown that the physical deterioration due to overcrowding in the large towns is so bad that in Hamburg the recruiting efficiency has fallen 42 per cent. and in Berlin to 39 per cent. of its proper value. On the other hand the recruiting efficiency of France (where population is on the decline) has increased, and Mr. Hilaire Belloc contends that France is much better equipped for war than Germany.

Protection During Fog.

Two brothers named Hodgkinson have invented an apparatus which acting as "ears" for a ship will afford a protection now lacking in time of fog. Tests in the Mersey at Liverpool appear to substantiate the claims made for this invention, that it will definitely determine the direction of sounds. The invention consists of a drum nine feet long by five feet in diameter set up aloft so as to miss sounds on deck, but to receive other sound waves on a "receiver" divided into units for each direction. An electrical appliance connected with a lamp shows by a small light the direction whence the sound may be coming.

James Theria, Iron River, Mich., says of Foley's Honey and Tar compound: "This winter both my children and I were troubled with bad coughs. We used Foley's Honey and Tar compound and it promptly cured us. I can recommend it as a good cough and cold cure." Contains no opiates. Hites Drug Store. (adv.)

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Cooking under modern methods and conveniences is made so attractive the whole family is becoming interested. "These biscuits are delicious; this cake is excellent," says the father. "I made them," says the daughter, and both father and daughter beam with pleasure. Royal Baking Powder has made home baking a success, a pleasure and a profit, and the best cooking today the world over is done with its aid.

New Pest of Flowers. The presence of the diaspis pentagona, which destroys the mulberry tree, and thus menaces the silk industry, has become so serious in France, that the government has prohibited the importation of Italian cut flowers from May 1 to November 1 of each year, the period during which the pest comes to maturity. During the year 1911 Italy exported 6,198,720 pounds of fresh flowers, valued at $1,631,390. Of this amount, continental countries took nearly all.

The Italian ministry of agriculture and commerce, in order to protect the florists of Italy and elsewhere, has recently published a list of plants which are recognized as subject to the infection of the pest. It includes roses, carnations, violets, the lotus, Japonica, catalpa, the ceanothus americanus, woody nightshade, spindle bush, mulberry, jasmine, hop, persica, salva and many others.

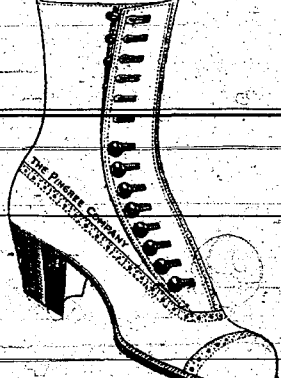

Were it not for the lazy men in the world lots of labor saving devices would never be invented.

SYNOPSIS.

Least Harry Mallory is ordered to the Philippines. He and Marjorie decide to elope, but wreck of taxicab prevents their seeing minister on way to the train. Transcontinental train is taking on passengers. Harry is lively with an Englishman and Ira Lathrop, a Yankee business man. The elopers have an exciting time getting to the train. "Little Jimmie" Wellington, bound for Reno to get a divorce, boards train in excellent condition. Later Mrs. Jimmie appears. She is also bound for Reno with same object. Likewise Mrs. Sanny Whitcomb. Latter blames Mrs. Jimmie for her marital troubles. Classroom of Mallory decorates bridal berth. Rev. and Mrs. Temple start on a vacation. They decide to cut loose and Temple removes evidence of his calling. Marjorie decides to let Mallory proceed alone, but train starts while they are lost in farewell. Passengers John Mallory's classmates in giving couple wedding party. Marjorie is distracted. Ira Lathrop, woman-hating bachelor, discovers an old sweetheart, Annie Gattie, fellow passenger. Mallory vainly hunts for a preacher among the passengers. Mrs. Wellington hears "Little Jimmie's" voice. Later she meets Mrs. Whitcomb. Mallory reports to Marjorie his failure to find a preacher. They decide to pretend a quarrel and Mallory finds a vacant berth. Mrs. Jimmie directs Wellington on the train. Mallory again makes an unsuccessful hunt for a preacher. Dr. Temple poses as a physician. Meeting and discussing the doctor, Wellington to smoke a cigar. Sight of preacher on a station platform raises Mallory's hopes, but he takes another train. Meeting and discussing the couple to borrow from passengers. Jimmie gets a clinder in his eye and Mrs. Whitcomb gives first aid. Marjorie resumes. Still no clergyman. More borrowing. Dr. Temple puzzled by behavior of different couples. Marjorie's jealousy aroused by another husband. Marjorie suggests wrecking the train in hopes that accident will produce a preacher. She tries to induce the conductor to hold the train on the spot. Marjorie's dog is missing. She pulls the cord stopping the train. Conductor restores dog and lowers a quarrel. Lathrop directs Mallory to marry him and Miss Gattie. Mallory tells Lathrop of his predicament and arranges to borrow the preacher. Harry Lowell, former sweetheart of Marjorie's, appears and arouses Marjorie's jealousy. Preacher boards train. After marrying Lathrop and Miss Gattie, the preacher escapes Mallory by leaping from moving train. Mallory's detection moves Marjorie to reconciliation. The last day of the train brings to Marjorie the foot of missing his transport.

CHAPTER XXXIII—Continued.

Mallory put out his hand. "Would you be kind enough to lend me your razor again this morning?"

"Sure thing," said Ashton. "You'll find your blade in the box there."

Mallory then negotiated the loan of one more fresh shirt from the Englishman, and a clean collar from Ashton. He rejoiced that the end of the day would bring him in touch with his own baggage. Four days of toraging on the country was enough for this soldier.

Also he felt, now that he and Marjorie had lived thus long, they could survive somehow till evening brought them to San Francisco, where there were hundreds of ministers. And then the conductor must ruin his early morning optimism, though he made his appearance in the washroom with several good mornings for all.

Mallory acknowledged the greetings, and asked off-handedly: "By the way, how's she running?"

The conductor answered even more off-handedly: "About two hours late—and losin'."

Mallory was transfixed with a new fear: "Good Lord, my transport sails at sunrise."

"Oh, we ought to make Frisco by midnight, anyway."

"Midnight, and sail at daylight?"

"Unless we lose a little more time."

Mallory realized that every new day managed to create its own anxieties. With the regularity of a milkman, each morning left a fresh crisis on his doorstep.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

The Complete Divorcer.

The other passengers were growing nervous with their own troubles. The next stop was Reno, and in spite of all the wit that is heaped upon the town, it is a solemn place to those who must go there in purgatorial penance for matrimonial error.

Some honest souls regard such divorce-importunities as acts of evil, where the wicked make a mockery of the sacrament and assail the foundations of society, by undermining the home. Other equally honest souls, believing that marriage is a human institution whose mishaps and mistakes should be rectified as far as possible, regard the divorce courts as cities of refuge for ill-treated or ill-matched women and men whose lives may be saved from utter ruination by the intervention of high-minded judges.

But, whichever view is right, the ordeal by divorce is terrifying enough to the poor stagers or martyrs who must undergo it.

Little Jimmie Wellington turned pale, and stammered, as he tried to ask the conductor casually:

"What kind of a place is that Reno?"

The conductor, somewhat cynical from close association with the divorce-mill and its grist, grinned: "That depends on what you're leaving behind. Most folks seem to get enough of it in about six months."

Then he went his way, leaving Wellington red, agape and perplexed. The trouble with Wellington was that he had brought along what he was leaving behind. Or, as Ashton impudently observed: "You ought to enjoy your residence there, Wellington, with your wife on hand."

The only reprieve that Wellington could think of was a rather unspirited: "You go to—"

"So long as it isn't Reno," Ashton laughed, and walked away.

Wedgewood laid a sympathetic hand on Little Jimmie's shoulder, and said: "That Ashton is no end of a bounder, what?"

Wellington wrote his epitaph in these words:

"Well, the worst I can say of him is, he's the kind of man that doesn't lift the plug out when he's through with the basin."

He liked this so well that he wished he had thought of it in time to crack it over Ashton's head. He decided to hand it to him anyway. He forgot that the cardinal rule for repartee, is "Better never than late."

As he swung out of the men's room he was buttonholed by an individual new to the little Trans-American colony. One of the camp-followers and suitors who prosper round the edges of all great enterprises had waylaid him on the way to the battleground of marital freedom.

The stranger had got on at an earlier stop and worked his way through the train to the car named "Snowdrop." Wellington was his first victim here. His pushing manner, the almost vulture-like rapacity of his gleaming eyes, and the very vulturine contour of his profile, his pamy gestures, his thick lip, and everything about him gave Wellington his immediate pedigree.

It ill behooves Christendom to need reminding that the Jewish race has adorned and still adorns humanity with some of its noblest specimens; but this interloper was of the type that must have irritated Voltaire into answering the platitude that the Jews are God's chosen people with that other platitude, "Tastes differ."

Little Jimmie Wellington, hot in pursuit of Ashton, found himself checked in spite of himself; in spite of himself deposited somehow into a seat, and in spite of himself confronted with a curvilinear person, who said:

"Excuse, please! but are you getting off at R-reno?"

"I am," Wellington answered, curtly, essaying to rise, only to be delicately restored to his place, with a gesture and a phrase:

"Then you meet me."

"Oh, I need you, do I? And who are you?"

"Who ain't I? I am Baumann and Blumen. Our cart, please."

Wellington found a pasteboard in his hand and read the legend:

Baumann & Blumen
Divorce Outfitters
212 Filimony Avenue, Reno, Nevada

Notary Public — Divorces Secured
Justice of the Peace — Satisfaction Guaranteed

Wellington looked from the crowded card to the zealous face. "Divorce Outfitters, eh? I don't quite get you."

"Well, in the first place—"

"The first place, eh? You're from New York."

"Yes, originally. How did you know it? By my fashionable clothing?"

"Yes," laughed Wellington. "But you say I need you. How?"

"Well, you've got maybe some baggage, some trunks—yes?"

"Yes."

"Well, in the first place, I am an expressman. I deliver 'em to your address—yes? Vero iss it?"

"I haven't got any yet."

"Also I am an addressman. Do you want it a nice hotel?—or a fine house?—or an apartment?—or maybe a boarding-house?—yes? How long do you make a residence?"

"Six months."

"No longer?"

"Not a minute."

"Take a fine house, den. I got some beauties just wacated."

"For a year?—no thanks."

"All the leases in Reno run for six months only."

"Well, I'd like to look around a little first."

"Good. Don't forget us. You come out here for six months. You want maybe a good quick divorce—yes?"

"The quickest I can get."

"Do you want it confidential? or very nice and noisy?"

"What's that?"

"We are press agents and also suppress agents. Some likes 'em, one way; some likes 'em another. Vich do you want it?"

"Quick and quiet."

"Painless divorce is our specialty. If you pay me an advance deposit now, I file your claim de minute de train stops and your own wife don't know you're divorced."

"I'll think it over," said Wellington, rising with resolution.

"Don't forget us, Baumann and Blumen. Satisfaction guaranteed or your wife-refunded. Avoid subtleties." And then, seeing that he could not extract any cash from Little Jimmie, Mr. Baumann descended upon Mallory, who was just finishing his shave. Laying his hand on Mallory's arm, he began:

"Excuse, please. Can I fit you out vit a nice divorce?"

"Divorce?—me!—that's good," laughed Mallory at the vision of it.

Then a sudden idea struck him. It took no great genius to see that Mr. Baumann was not a clergyman, but there were other marriage to be had. "You don't perform marriages, do you?" he asked.

Mr. Baumann drew himself up: "Who says I don't? Ain't I a justice of the peaces?"

Mallory put out his hand in welcome: then a new anxiety chilled him. He had a license for Chicago, but Chicago was far away: "Do I need a license in Nevada?"

"Why shouldn't you?" said Mr. Baumann. "Don't all sorts of things got to have a license in Nevada, saloons, husbands, dogs—"

"How could I get one?" Mallory asked as he went on dressing.

"Ain't I got a few vit me? Do you want to get a nice re-marriage license?"

"Re-marriage?—hub!" he looked round, and seeing that no one else was near: "I haven't taken the first step yet."

Mr. Baumann laved his hands in one another: "A betchelor?—Ah, I see you want to marry a nice divorcee lady in R-reno?"

"She isn't in Reno and she has never been married, either."

This simple statement seemed to astound Mr. Baumann:

"A betchelor marry a maiden!—in Reno!—oh, oil, oil! It hasn't been done yet, but it might be."

Mallory looked him over and a twinge of distaste disturbed him: "You furnish the license, but—er—ah—is there any chance of a clergyman—a Christian clergyman—being at the station?"

"Vy do you want it, a clergyman? Can't I do it just as good? Or a nice fat alderman I can get you?"

Mallory pondered: "I don't think she'd like anything but a clergyman."

"Well," Baumann confessed, "a lady is liable to be particular about her first marriage. Anyvay I sell you de license."

"All right."

Mr. Baumann whipped out a portfolio full of documents, and as he searched them, philosophized: "A man ought always to carry a good marriage license. It might be he should need it in a hurry." He took a large iron seal from his side-pocket and stamped the paper and then, with fountain pen poised, pleaded: "Vat is the names, please?"

"Not so loud!" Mallory whispered.

Baumann put his finger to his nose, wisely: "I see it is a confidential marriage. Sit down once."

When he had asked Mallory the necessary questions and taken his fee, he passed over the document by which the sovereign state of Nevada graciously permitted two souls to be made more or less one in the eyes of the law.

"Here you are," said Mr. Baumann. "Vit dat you can get married anyvare in Nevada."

Mallory realized that Nevada would be a thing of the past in a few hours more and he asked:

"It's no good in California?"

"Hummel, no. In California you hot gotta go and be examined."

"Examined?" Mallory gasped, in dire alarm.

"Vit questions, poissonally," Mr. Baumann hastened to explain, "Oh!"

"In Nevada," Baumann insinuated, still hopeful, "I could marry you myself—now, right here."

"Could you marry us in this smoking room?"

"In a cattle car, if you want it."

"It's not a bad idea," said Mallory. "I'll let you know."

Seeing Marjorie coming down the aisle, he hastened to her, and hugged her good-morning with a new confidence.

Dr. and Mrs. Temple, who had returned to their berth, witnessed this greeting with amazement. After the quarrel of the night before surely some explanation should have been overheard, but the puzzling Mallorys flew to each other's arms without a moment's delay. The mystery was exciting the passengers to such a point that they were vowing to ask a few questions point blank. Nobody had quite dared to approach either of them, but frank curiosity was preferable to nervous prostration, and the secret could not be kept much longer.

Fellow-passengers have some rights. Not even a stranger can be permitted to outrage their curiosity with impunity forever.

Successful Woman Farmer.

Miss Grace M. Putnam is said to be one of the most successful farmers in New Jersey. She was born and brought up in the city, never even visiting the country until after she was 15 years old. Her farm consists of about five acres and is planted exclusively in cantaloupes. She reports that she rented her farm for the first year. The second year she bought it, the third year she paid up every debt she owed and put $2,000 in bank. She does all the work herself after the first plowing, for which she pays a farmer $12. Her seeds cost her $1 an acre, fertilizer $10 an acre and barrels for shipping one year's crop $60. She sells her melons direct to dealers at $6 a barrel. She thinks her success as a farmer is largely due to the fact that she loves the work better than anything else in the world.

By Natural Reasoning.

A keen student of human nature must have written the following: "When you see a young man sailing down a street shortly after midnight with his collar crumpled, you can make up your mind that there's a young girl crawling upstairs not far distant, with her shoes under her arm and an extinguished lamp in her hand."

PLAN FOR PRACTICAL AND INEXPENSIVE SANITARY STRUCTURE FOR DAIRY FARM

Building Should Be Conveniently Located and Must Be Entirely Free From Contaminating Surroundings—Abundance of Hot Water Is Needed for Proper Sterilization.

Recent developments in dairying have caused a large demand for a dairy house which will fulfill sanitary requirements and at the same time be practical and inexpensive. For those who are striving to improve the quality of their products, such a building is an absolute necessity. Milk which is poured or strained in the barn, or allowed to stand there, is apt to be contaminated by germs and to absorb stable-odors. The best practice is to remove the milk to the dairy house as soon as each cow is milked. Milk should also be cooled immediately, so the dairy house should be provided with proper facilities for this purpose.

While the dairy house should be conveniently located so that the milkers do not have a long walk from the barn, it must be so placed that it is free from contaminating surroundings. It should be built somewhat away from the barn on a well-drained spot, and the drainage of the dairy house itself should be carried well away from the building. If possible, the ground should slope from the dairy house toward the barn rather than from the barn toward the dairy house.

The principal purpose in building a dairy house is to provide a place where dairy products may be handled apart from everything else. To carry out this idea it is necessary to divide the interior of the building so that utensils will not have to be washed in the same room where the milk is handled. Thorough cleanliness must always be kept in mind; therefore there should be no unnecessary ledges or rough surfaces inside the building, so that it can be quickly and thoroughly cleaned. Ventilators are necessary to keep the air in the milk room fresh and free from musty and other undesirable odors, and to carry on steam from the wash room. Windows are of prime importance, as they let in fresh air and sunlight, and facilitate work. In summer the doors and windows should be screened to keep out flies and other insects.

It is imperative that there should be a plentiful supply of cold running water at the dairy house. If it is not possible to have a regular water system, the supply may be piped from an elevated tank fed by a hydraulic ram, engine, windmill or hand pump. The dairyman can ill afford to spend his time in carrying water in a pail to cool his milk and wash his utensils.

For the proper sterilization of utensils an abundance of steam or hot water is needed. A pail or can may be cleaned to the eye and yet may carry numberless germs which will hasten the souring of milk, cause bad flavor in butter or cheese, or spread contagion. After utensils are washed clean they should be either scalded with boiling water or steamed.

The dairy house should be so built that labor is economized to the greatest extent. To do this the building must be arranged so that unnecessary steps will be avoided.

It is not possible to submit a plan which will suit all conditions, but it is believed that the accompanying design will meet the needs of the average dairy that ships either milk or cream in cans. This plan is capable of considerable variation to adapt it to a wide sphere of usefulness. For larger dairies the same arrangement may be used on a larger scale, each room being made of greater size.

The building illustrated herewith is 20 feet long, 10 feet wide, 8 feet 6 inches high in front and 6 feet 6 inches high in the rear, and is covered with a shed roof. The exterior of the building may be covered with sheathing and building paper or weather boarding and shingles; expense, durability and appearance being the deciding factors. The interior, however, should be carefully finished, so that the walls and ceiling may be smooth and free from corners or projections which might accumulate dust and dirt.

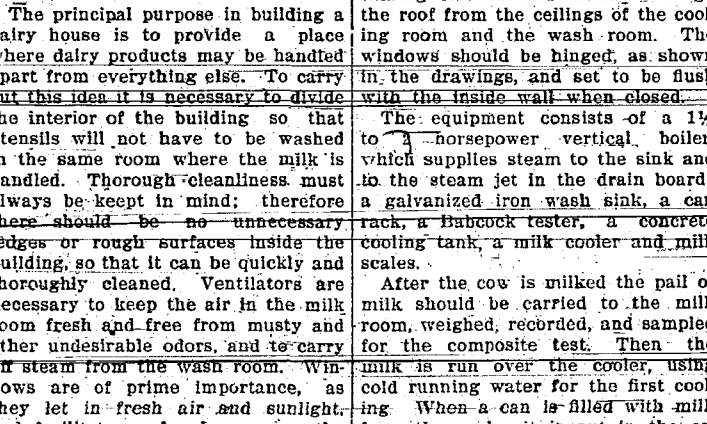

The building should have a good concrete floor, pitched to drain through bell traps. The side walls should be plastered with cement plaster on metal lathing as high as the windows. The remainder of the walls and ceiling may be covered with matched flooring, and both walls and ceiling should be painted with a white, washable enamel paint. Ventilating fines should extend through the roof from the ceilings of the cooling room and the wash room. The windows should be hinged, as shown in the drawings, and set to be flush with the inside wall when closed.

The equipment consists of a 1/2 to 1-horsepower vertical boiler, which supplies steam to the sink and to the steam jet in the drain board; a galvanized iron wash sink, a can rack, a barcock tester, a concrete cooling tank, a milk cooler and milk scales.

After the cow is milked the pail of milk should be carried to the milk room, weighed, recorded, and sampled for the composite test. Then the milk is run over the cooler, using cold running water for the first cooling. When a can is filled with milk from the cooler it is put in the cement tank, which should be filled with ice and water high enough to come well up on the neck of the can, and the contents should be stirred frequently with a clean stirrer and thoroughly cooled. When the milk is not being stirred the cans should always be kept covered to prevent the entrance of dust, dirt, insects, etc. Never mix warm and cold milk or cream. The doors of the milk room should be kept shut except when necessary to pass in or out.

When all the milk is cooled, the cooler, pails, strainers, etc., can be carried into the wash room, where they should be rinsed in cold water and then washed with hot water and washing powder. After this they are inverted on the drain board and rinsed and steamed. For this purpose two pipes may be used, one carrying cold water, the other steam. These may be controlled by either hand or foot levers. Or a single jet may be installed, fed by both cold water and steam. Utensils after being steamed should be inverted on the drying rack.

The little closet in the wall between the milk room and the wash room is to hold bottles in which composite milk samples from each cow may be kept.

Chivalrous in Face of Misfortune.
At a mass meeting recently in a nearby town an old and foremost citizen who clings to the sartorial style of years ago, was called upon for his views on the subject in discussion. He made a brief speech, and as he was compelled to hurry back to his office, he turned to the seat next to his, on which he had deposited his silk hat, just in time to see a woman flatten it completely by sitting on it.

A very pretty wedding was that which took place in St. Joseph's Church on Wednesday morning when Miss Ella Catherine Bellinger and Alfred Bissonette were united in holy wedlock. The young couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lawler. After the services the party was taken to the home of the groom's mother, Mrs. Julian Bissonette where a large gathering of relatives and friends partook of a delicious wedding breakfast. Their many friends wish them much happiness in their new state of life.

The residence of Elder John Hackett in Echo township was the scene of wedding festivities Sunday evening when four young people were joined in holy wedlock. Miss Antonio Hillman was united in marriage to Robert Evans, both young people being of Ellsworth. The second marriage was that of Miss Nettie Mylo to Louis Painer, both of this city. An odd feature of the weddings was that both the couples called at the home of Rev. Hackett to be united in marriage at the same time without any knowledge of the other.

Colonel Sanford, United States engineer in charge of the harbors in this district, was in the city the latter part of the week, accompanied by W. H. White of Boyne City and W. P. MOUNT of the HOLY CROSS

ABOVE the timberline in the Rockies, and beneath the giant cross of eternal snow which has given the famous Mount of the Holy Cross its name, several Colorado churchmen participated in a unique and impressive commemorative service a short time ago.

Bishop Benjamin Brewster, Archdeacon Dennis, Rev. J. W. Hard of Glenwood Springs, and Rev. F. C. Smith of Grand Junction, Colo., braved the hardships of one of the roughest, steepest trails in the Rocky mountains in order to make a long-contemplated pilgrimage to the Mount of the Holy Cross. The staff and scrip of these modern pilgrims was represented by blanket rolls, knapsacks, "grub" and religious vestments. Supplies were packed on burros as far as those faithful and sure-footed animals could be taken. Then the pilgrims struggled the rest of the way on foot, crawling over huge boulders and risking life and limb until at last they had reached a place on Notch mountain, far above timber line, from which a glorious view of the Mount of the Holy Cross rewarded their efforts.

After selecting a large rock as the altar, the churchmen donned their religious vestments, and the commemorative service was held, after which the altar was marked with a cross of loose stones.

Inspiration for Artists.

Bishop Brewster's missionary district in western Colorado includes the Mount of the Holy Cross, which has inspired poets and painters for generations. A trip to the mountain has been long in contemplation and a short time ago the start was made from Red Cliff. The difficulties of the journey were well understood by the churchmen, who have all lived in the Rocky mountain country many years.

There are only two available routes from Red Cliff, one being 18 miles long, with a mountain climb at the end, and the other up the canyon, a route some six or eight miles in actual length, but taking the steepest of the best mountain climber all the way. The latter route was chosen, with a minor of the neighborhood as a guide.

The dignified churchmen scrambled up the creek bed, alternately pushing and pulling the burros on which had been packed their camp equipment. Camp was made at night, well up the divide, and the next morning the burros were left behind while the pilgrims started on the rough and perilous part of the ascent. After climbing the divide, the clergymen found Notch mountain looming in the foreground. Notch mountain faces the Mount of the Holy Cross. From its top one can look across a great rock-strewn basin, above timberline, and can get the full majesty of the giant cross of snow which gives the larger mountain its name. Notch mountain, above timberline, is simply a great pile of boulders, thrown together as if from the wheelbarrow of some giant workman. Scrambling over these boulders proved hard and dangerous work, and with torn clothes and bleeding hands the clergymen finally stood on the summit, and commanded a superb view of the object of their trip.

A storm was threatening, but as the religious service on the mountain progressed, the clouds lifted and the cross of snow loomed white in the sunshine. The clergymen unite in declaring that it was the most impressive hour of their lives. Snow fields were on every hand, and the pine-clad Rockies stretched out below. In the immediate vicinity, however, there was no verdure, save the Alpine flowers and grasses that flourish above timberline, even in the rockiest localities. Long's Peak and other prominent mountains could be seen in the distance, and to the north the impressive Gorge range was outlined against the sky.

"There should be some means of letting the public glimpse this impressive spectacle," said Rev. F. C. Smith, who took part in the Holy Cross service. "This view is one of the greatest in the world, beyond all doubt. A trail could be made from Red Cliff, which would enable tourists to make the round trip in a day, with an early start. Even with the trail in its present condition, the trip is well worth anybody's time and effort. The majesty of this great cross, when viewed close at hand, will never be forgotten by the onlooker."

The Mount of the Holy Cross has been a source of inspiration to poets and painters for generations. Eugene Field has written a pretty legend concerning it. He tells of a monk, who is informed in a vision that his sins will not be forgiven until he finds suspended between heaven and earth the symbol of the faith. The monk journeys many years through many lands, and at last he penetrates the wildest part of the Rocky mountains, and, beholding the cross on the mountain, falls to his knees in rapture, knowing that the vision has been fulfilled.

Probably the most famous painting of the Mount of the Holy Cross is the work of the celebrated artist, Thomas Moran. This painting is more or less idealized, but it catches the stern majesty of the mountain. It has been copied and reprinted on postcards, and is one of the first pictures the western tourist generally sends to the folks at home. The views of the cross vary greatly, according to one's position, but the finest is from a certain point on Notch mountain, very difficult of access and reached by few artists or camera men.

Ascended the Cross.

Several years ago two daring young mountain-climbers made up their minds to ascend the cross itself. After a long and perilous trip, they reached the base of the great chasm of rock containing the snowbank which forms the upright of the cross. It is estimated that this upright is at least 1,200 feet in length, while each of the side arms is about 300 or 400 feet. These chasms, which are always filled with snow, form a perfect cross. When the surrounding snows have melted in summer, the snow in the deep chasms of the cross remains unmelted, and in July and August and early September the cross looms up as if painted in white on the granite side of the mountain.

The daring climbers ascended the steep slope of snow until they reached the arms of the cross. One of them had done some Alpine climbing, and he brought an ax and rope. It was necessary to cut many steps in the icy slopes. The climbers were in danger of losing their lives at every step, but they actually climbed out one of the side arms, and from there managed to descend in safety. That is the only time the cross itself has ever been climbed, though Enoch Mills, probably the most celebrated mountain-climber in the west, has scaled the peak.

The Mount of the Holy Cross is part of the Saguaque range, pronounced "Sawatch." It is 14,170 feet in height, according to official estimates. Mount Massive, near Leadville, is part of the same range, and is the highest peak in Colorado, being 14,424 feet high. The Mount of the Holy Cross is higher than Pike's Peak by 61 feet. It is very rocky on its summit, and contains little verdure, hence it is not used for sheep grazing, as are some of the less precipitous peaks of the Rockies.

The mountain climbers of Colorado recently organized a Rocky Mountain Climbing club, for the purpose of exploring the main peaks of the Great Divide and adding to the general sum of information concerning the mountains. The Mount of the Holy Cross is one of the peaks to be ascended by the most skilled climbers in the club. Maps will be made, routes for trails will be recommended, and it is expected that the public will be given much valuable information concerning the mysterious mountain, whose white symbol is visible for many miles throughout the Holy Cross region. With the difficulties of the trip smoothed away it is not unlikely that the recent pilgrimage of Colorado churchmen will be repeated by many, who have heard of this unique mountain, and who wish to gaze on its symbol of snow.

TO RESTORE FAMOUS CHURCH

Boston's Revolutionary Landmark Is Taking an Odd Appearance.

Boston.—From the chaos of loose bricks and unplastered panels, Christ church (better known as the Old North church of the school histories) is re-emerging in something closely resembling its original guise. Restoration it at best a difficult and often thankless task, but fortunately this process at Christ church was in part simplified by certain authentic records of the building's earlier history.

The first conspicuous change is in the building's exterior. During the last summer the walls have been sand-blasted, ridding them of the drab paint which has darkened them for years, and revealing the brick in a warm, rich tone, which will weather to a still more mellow red. The front doors of the church, which were without doubt not original, have been removed and a new pair, the lower panels of which have been given the diamond or triangular shape, has been substituted. Above them is a fanlight with leaded panes of glass. With the walls freshened to a glowing red and the spire and window frames trimmed with white paint, the church wears probably more nearly its original look than it has within the memory of any living person.

The pew plan of the church was fortunately extant, and it was possible from the paneling which remained to reconstruct the new arrangement in virtually the original form. This has been carried out, using as much of the original paneling and as many of the old doors as remained, and making the new a faithful reproduction of the old. The pews as thus rebuilt are of the long, "slip" shape, and nearly uniform size, except those set apart for the notables—the governor's pew (which has, by the way, been made the graceful occasion of a generous gift from Governor Foss), and "the Pew for the Gentlemen of the Bay of Honduras," a group of merchants who gave, in the early days, the money for the spire.

During the turmoil of restoration the bust of Washington has been removed from the marble niche, but will be replaced, not for any special merit as a work of art which it may possess, but for long association and for its unique position as being the first public monument erected to Washington in America. Its date is 1815.

The walls, which were previously blank, save for frescoes, will be diversified by an array of appropriate tablets; one in memory of the first officers of the church, bearing the date April 1724; one in memory of Maj. John Pitcairn; one in memory of the Rev. Timothy Cutler; one in memory of the Rev. Mather Byss, the last minister before the revolution; one in memory of Capt. Thomas James Grucly, commander of the privateer Queen of Hungary, who gave the cherubim which ornament the front of the organ; and one to the memory of Capt. Cyprian Southack, who gave the bellry clock in use before the revolution.

GOLF BALL KILLED A BIRD

And It Kept on its Way Toward Hole Without Even a Swoosh at Country Club Links.

Boston.—A strange freak of golf was witnessed on the Brae Burn Country club links a few days ago, when a ball driven from a tee killed a sparrow and then continued true in its flight. The incident was witnessed by a number of golfers.

The marksman was Joseph Gould. He was driving from the seventh tee. Mr. Gould got off a good drive and the ball soared high. The bird was flying in the same direction and swerved just a trifle, apparently when it heard the buzz of the golf ball coming behind.

It is common knowledge that a golf ball is no mean projectile, and in this case the bird was instantly killed and fell, a crumpled heap of feathers, as though it had received a charge of shot. The ball was hardly checked in its flight and landed on the green not far from the hole.

EASY TO FILL THAT ORDER

Floorwalker Hardly Had to Think to Make Satisfactory Answer to the Inquiry.

"Silk stockings must be very cheap in America. Nowhere in the world do women's slim and supple ankles gleam in lustrous silk as they do here."

The speaker was Robert Lorraine, the English actor. He continued: "A married man told me the other day that, going into one of your department stores, he said to a floorwalker: 'I'm looking for something pretty in silk stockings.' 'The floorwalker smiled, and with a gesture embraced the long rows of counters with their charming saleswomen.

"That remark," he said, "describes, I believe, practically every one of our young ladies."

England's Motto.

"Dieu et Mon Droit"—"God and My Right"—the royal motto of England, was the parole of the day given by Richard I. (the of the Lion Heart) to his army at the battle of Gisors, in France, on the 20th of September, 1198, when the French army was signally defeated. Dieu et Mon Droit appears to have been first assumed as a motto by Henry VI, 1422-1462. Semper idem—"Always the Same"—was one of the mottos of Queen Elizabeth, also adopted by Queens Mary and Anne.

Situations Vacant.

The rich bachelor sighed and looked fixedly at the beautiful girl. "Things with me," he said, "are at sixes and sevens—I feel the great need of a woman in my home—one who would straighten out my tangled affairs and make life worth living once again."

Her soft glance spoke her excitement and expectation.

"Yes," she queried, gently.

"Do you know," he continued, "of any good, able-bodied woman whom I could get to clean the house?"

Nor for Her.

"He seems to be so superficial," said Mrs. Oldcastle.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Gottalotte, as she hung her $15,000 necklace over the back of a chair. "I've noticed that. He's got half a dozen big ones stuffed that he claims he caught. I wouldn't have such things in my dining room."

The Best She Could Do.

"Why don't you want to let me hold your hand?"

"What good would it do you to hold my hand?"

"It would make me glad and give me courage, perhaps, to say something that—that I—"

"There, please hold both of my hands."

August 22, 1905.

Mr. C. A. Sweet, New York City.

I have known you for over 25 years of the best of Wilson's Remedies. Without a preparation of those remedies I could not have been cured of my chronic cough. At this point I will say to you that you have not let me know of that as you know I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was recently ill with a chronic cough, and I was in constant use of various physicians and I was not cured. I was then advised to try your medicine. I used it for a few days and I was cured. My feet and hands were all swollen and I was unable to walk. I used your medicine and I was cured. I am now well and I am glad to say that I am cured of my chronic cough. I am now well and I am glad to say that I am cured of my chronic cough. I am now well and I am glad to say that I am cured of my chronic cough.

Are Being Cured by Vinol.

Did you ever cough for a month? Then just think how distressing it must be to have a cough hang on for three months.

Mrs. Maria Primrose, of 87 Newell Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I had a very heavy cold which settled into a chronic cough, which kept me awake nights for fully three months, and felt tired all the time because my rest was broken so much. The effect of taking your cod liver and iron remedy, Vinol, is that my cough is gone. I can now get a good night's rest, and I feel much stronger in every way."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements, cod-livers, aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so efficient in curing chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis—at the same time building up the weakened, run-down system.

Try a bottle of Vinol, with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. P. S. For rough, scaly skin, try our Saxe Salve. We guarantee it.

W. C. SPRING DRUG CO.

Mr. Hiram Steele, 638 N. 5th St. Terre Haute, Ind., writes: "I came down with a severe case of kidney trouble. I had to get up too often at night, there was pain and much sediment puffs under my eyes, back pained terribly, and I was dizzy. Foley Kidney Pills cured me quickly and I feel 100 per cent better. THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from old Carpets" (trade mark established 1868) in which life a trade has been successfully established since the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and retinting department, which includes a large sterilizing apparatus for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time saving machinery devices run by electricity. Two of the largest rotary renovating machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for fine rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sewing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with largest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespoke a busy future for the FINEST RUG CO. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence should be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Fetters Evening News, April 13, 1911.—Make your shipments as early as possible.
