"THE FORTUNE HUNTER"

At Temple Theatre Next Tuesday Night, Jan'y 7th.

At Temple Theatre on Tuesday evening, Jan. 7 "The Fortune Hunter" will take you along merry paths that lead straight to the brightest kind of dramatic sunshine. There are no didactic moments to dim the joy of Mitchell Smith's play and theatre goers are assured a particularly happy evening. What happens to Nat Duncan when transported from Broadway to the little town of Quillville, Penna., makes the story. Nat, who is practically down and out, has been persuaded by his old college friend, Kellogg, that the way to earn a fixed and substantial income is to move into a small town and be the leading banker's daughter victim at the altar. Nat has a reasonable excuse for engaging in the scheme, however he has been a veritable failure in business and the sad line yawns before him. In Quillville, he is to lead the spotless attend church regularly, cut out smoking, liquors profanity, and above all things he must work. His early struggles to maintain a proper standard of living lead to complications that make the play the most delicious comedies. It is hard work for Duncan to outgrow his Broadway bits, and they creep into his daily routine in ways that go direct to our laugh center.

Of course things move smoothly in Quillville, but not along the lines shown by his friend, Kellogg, who has planned the undertaking. Nat himself developing a mental regard for the daughter of the old druggist with whom he is to be married. It is through the energy and surprise of Duncan, that the security shop is moved out of Broadway Row and settled comfortably on Main Street, for Nat has hitherto unsuspected business ability. He meets the daughter, but discovers he does not want her after all, for he finds his fortune in his love for the druggist's daughter, which she returns and the splendid business he has built, so the play ends happily for all concerned.

Seats now on sale at Mack's.

NEW LAW FIRM.

Will Open Office in our City Next Week.

Attorneys J. Ernest Converse and Dwight L. Wilson, of Boyne City, have formed a partnership under the firm name of Converse & Wilson, and while continuing their law practice at Boyne City, will open a law and insurance office in our city this coming week in rooms over the State Bank of East Jordan occupied by the Price Bros. Company.

Mr. Wilson will make this city his home and will take care of the main part of the business here. He was formerly principal of the Charlevoix high schools for several years and is a graduate of the Ypsilanti State Normal and the law department of the University of Michigan.

Att'y Converse is one of our former business men, who some time ago removed to our sister city. He made many lasting business and social friends while a resident among us, and his ability as an attorney is unexcelled.

Converse & Wilson have purchased the fire insurance business conducted by W. A. Loveday, the transfer to take place Jan. 15th, and will thereafter represent the several well known insurance companies which Mr. Loveday handled.

The Herald wishes the new firm, born with the new year, a happy and prosperous life, and, if there's any luck in odd numbers the new firm of 1913 will surely be successful.

PORTER—CROSS NUPTIALS

Popular East Jordan Couple Wedded Last Monday.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Alden E. Cross was the scene of wedding festivities last Monday evening when their daughter, Miss Maude, was united in marriage to Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Porter.

The ceremony took place at 7:30 p. m., Rev. A. D. Grigsby, pastor of the First Presbyterian church officiating, and using the Episcopal service. Miss Flora Porter presided at the piano. The bride was beautifully gowned in pink crepe de chine and tulle.

The rooms were decorated with smilax and pink and white carnations, and with lighted candles, made a pleasing scene.

Following the ceremony, delicious refreshments were served to about fifty relatives and friends. The happy couple left that evening for Boyne Falls, taking the G. R. & I. from there to Grand Rapids and other points.

Both of these young people are actively connected with the social and business life of our city, and have a host of friends who wish them every happiness on the sea of matrimony.

to Mothers

Mrs. Mary Wicks, Editor

Beginning of a Child's Education

Beginning of a child's education made with great advantage in infancy. It is not necessary to instill any formal method of instruction, but a safe principle of education would seem to be the bringing out and development of the natural qualifications of the child. Dr. Edward P. Davis says in "Mother and Child" that it is of primary importance that the child be surrounded by those who are habitually kind, gentle and honest. Such persons are difficult to find in any walk of life, and no greater mistake can be made than to place a child in the custody of a caretaker who is dishonest, ill-tempered or revengeful. Such a person will teach the child to deceive most successfully. The regularity which should be practiced in the nursery has an educational influence upon the child. As it learns that its wants are supplied at a regular time, it soon becomes accustomed to an element of regularity and stability. If the child is not indulged whenever it cries, it soon learns the value of self-control. Regularity and self-control are large factors in forming discipline and thus, unconsciously, Dr. Davis points out, even the infant receives a proper discipline. All so-called discipline (breaking of the will, etc.), is to be absolutely forbidden. It breeds obstinacy, deception, nervous condition and many undesirable qualities—and all these may have the foundation laid in the first 12 months of nursery life—if great care be not exercised, to have kind, sympathetic, yet perfectly just treatment for this early period. Children who are handled by careless and ignorant servants invariably show little consideration for others. The mother misses a great opportunity when she gives her child over to the complete care by others. It is at this time she should be entering into Froebel's spirit of "living with her child," and she should be making notes of the gradual unfolding of the little mind in order that she may be guided later on in her methods of training and developing her child.

Ribbons for Spring

The ribbon outlook in Paris for spring is decidedly promising, says the Godey's Economist. The best milliners are favorably inclined toward a large use of ribbons and are planning to employ them in a wide variety of ways. Tall, flat-topped, bandieres ending in novel bows, crowns formed entirely of ribbons interlaced so as to suggest the texture of straw, and high-wired ribbon ruches will all be represented in the new millinery lines for spring. In costumes, ribbons will continue a prominent feature. New forms of ruffles will be in evidence and there will be some use of sashes arranged in new ways. Handsome flower novelties will be featured in gaiters. The best of these will be of a character, with emphasis on Chinese and on Turkish effects. Among the most unusual velour novelties offered is one which has a huge bird of Paradise design shown, with the head of the bird tucked under its wing. In colors, the big movement will be in rich, dark shades. However, there will be a limited distribution of novelties in sweet pea shades with the ultra exclusive trade. Some very effective novelties are shown in black and white and it is believed that these effects will grow stronger as the season progresses. In plain ribbons, blues on the Chinese order will be especially prominent, and greens on the Kelly order are favorably mentioned. The biggest movement, however, will be blacks.

True and Tried Recipes

Fancy Work and Cooking for the Season

Cooking Fresh and Fried Fruit.

When fresh fruit is to be cooked, stewing, baking or steaming should be resorted to, depending on the character of the fruit. Well ripened apples, quinces or pears may be baked or stewed. Apples, however, are the only one of the three available at this time. If fruit is cooked too fast steam will form and the shape will be destroyed. In baking the outside will burn before the inside is thoroughly cooked if the heat is too great. Baked fruit should be sweetened when put to cook; stewed fruit after it is done. Some of the dried fruits are of high value. Among them are raisins, figs, dates and prunes. Dried apples, peaches and apricots are not of such high food value, but are useful on account of their acids and salts. Dried apples are usually cheaper than the fresh and are very useful to those living far from the markets. They should be washed carefully to remove all dirt and cooked until quite soft. Do not soak them in too much water, and cook them in the water in which they were baked. If they have taken on all the water, add a little more when they are on the fire. If sugar is added to fruit when it is first put on the acid of the fruit chemically changes a part of the sugar, and more is required. Dried fruit carefully cooked and lightly seasoned is far superior to preserves in the standpoint of health. Preserves rank as a confection rather than a fruit. Raisins are seldom cooked alone, but are a valuable addition to simple puddings, etc. Dates make a delicious dish if the outer and inner skin removed; then the pulp spread between two slices of bread and butter, a little lemon juice added. The best fruits for persons of delicate digestion are perfectly ripe pears, apples, either stewed or baked with sugar. Sweet oranges, dried figs, prunes soaked until plump, then stewed without sugar. In cooking use granite, enameled or earthenware pans and a silver or enameled spoon. As soon as fruits are pared drop in cold water until ready to cook.

Baked Apples.

Wash and core the apples, place in a granite or enameled baking pan. Fill the center with sugar. If the apples are very tart or very sweet, use sugar accordingly. Pour in one-half cup of boiling water and bake in a quick oven. Apples washed, quartered and cored, then sprinkled with sugar, allowing about one-half cup of sugar to eight apples, and baked slowly until tender are very nice. They are best when cold and may be served for breakfast with a nice little cream.

Apple Compote.

Eight or nine tart apples, one cup water, one cup of sugar, one inch of Boil in cold water until ready to cook. Put them in the syrup and cook gently until clear and tender. Lift the apples out very carefully on a perforated ladle and place them in a flat pan; put them in the oven for a few minutes to dry and slightly brown the top. Boil the syrup until it will jelly. Pour it into a small bowl and when cold put a spoonful in the center of each apple. Serve with whipped cream.

Apple Sauce.

Pare and slice six or eight tart apples; remove the core, put them in a saucepan with just enough water to keep them from burning; cook gently until soft, then add one cupful of sugar (the sugar of course depends on the acidity of the fruit); stir well and cook for 10 minutes longer; beat well and cool. If liked the sauce may be seasoned with cinnamon when done, or a few cloves or an inch stick of cinnamon may be cooked with the apples.

Dried Apple Sauce.

Wash and soak the apples as directed, or wash, then pour enough boiling water over them to cover; boil rapidly for a few minutes; lower the heat and cook until very tender; season to taste and add nutmeg or cinnamon to taste. Beat until very smooth, removing all hard pieces or bits of core or skin.

Stewed Prunes.

Wash the prunes carefully, rubbing well, cover with cold water and soak overnight; cook in the water in which they were soaked, adding more if necessary; simmer until very tender and the water is reduced. Prunes are better without sugar, but if liked very sweet, just before removing from the fire add one-fourth cup of sugar to each one-half pound of prunes. The juice from half a lemon or a little candied lemon peel may be added.

Peaches and Apricots.

Peaches and apricots may be cooked in the same manner as prunes; they will require more sugar, and should be cooked very little after the sugar is added.

Oat-Meal Cookies.

Two and one-half cups oatmeal, two cups sugar, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, two and one-half cups flour, one cup shortening, four tablespoons sour milk, one teaspoon cinnamon. Cream the butter or lard, add the sugar and cream well, then add the eggs, slightly beaten. Dissolve soda in the sour milk. Sift the flour and soda together, then add oatmeal, flour and sour milk. Mix well; this will make a very stiff dough. Cover and let stand overnight. Roll on a lightly floured board and bake in a moderately hot oven. These cookies are delicious and can hardly be distinguished from nut cakes.

Spinach.

One-half cup spinach, two tablespoons melted butter, one cup of water, two hard cooked eggs.

Pick the spinach over very carefully, wash in several waters, put the water and spinach in a smooth saucepan over the fire; lift the spinach every now and then to prevent sticking. When it is very thoroughly heated drain well, sprinkle with salt, reheat in a frying pan and pour the melted butter over it; garnish with rings of egg.

This is for very young and tender spinach; if older it should be cooked longer time and in more water.

Turnips.

Pare the turnips, slice, cover with boiling water, cook for 30 minutes or until tender, drain and serve with a little melted butter and salt. Or the turnips may be well drained and mashed, then seasoned with butter and salt. If desired salt pork may be used for seasoning instead of butter; it should be put in when the turnips are put to cook. Rutabaga turnips are in better condition than the white turnips at this season, and are very good served with game or turkey.

Warning Against Uncooked Raw Pork

While American people as a rule prefer cooked pork which is wholesome there are many who unknowingly or deliberately consume pork in an uncooked condition, either in the form of raw ham or smoked sausages. In many districts, particularly in sections with large foreign populations, a great deal of pork is made privately or commercially into such products for home use or for sale. Great risk always attends the use of raw or undercooked pork. The illness which may result from eating raw pork, known as trichinosis, is caused by a parasite or a worm, microscopic in size, which occurs in the flesh of hogs. There is no known effective method of treating the disease. The patient dies or recovers apparently irrespective of the nature of the treatment. Many who do not die have their health impaired. Statistics based on microscopic inspection of over 8,000,000 hogs during a period of nine years in this country have shown that 1.41 per cent of the hogs were infested with live trichinae. This fact alone makes it important that everyone who eats pork should for the protection of health eat it only when thoroughly cooked.

How to Eat Pork Safely.

The trichina parasites die and become harmless when exposed to a temperature of 140 degrees F. for a short time. In the case of uncured pork the thoroughness of the cooking can be judged by whether the meat is clear to the center of the piece has lost its reddish bloody appearance and has become more or less white in color. In order to obtain a temperature of 140 degrees at the center it is necessary that the temperature to which the piece of meat is exposed during cooking should be considerably higher than 140 degrees.

How Long to Cook Pork.

The following rule for cooking pork by boiling is based on careful experiments carried out by a Danish investigator:

Cook the meat 15 minutes (summer) to 18 minutes (winter) for each pound of weight if put into boiling water, keeping the water boiling throughout the cooking process. If the meat is put into cold water, deduct half the time required to bring the water to a boil.

Examples: How long should a 10-pound ham be boiled if placed in boiling water?

10X18-30 equals 150 minutes, or 2 1/2 hours.

How long should a 10-pound ham be boiled if placed in cold water and if one hour is required to bring the water to a boil?

10X18-30 equals 150 minutes, or two and one-half hours, after boiling begins.

The 18 minute per-pound allowance should be allowed in summer if the meat is taken from a refrigerator and cooking begun before it has had time to reach the ordinary house temperature. For high altitudes where the temperature of boiling water is considerably less than at sea level, the time of cooking must be lengthened.

Our Fashion

All prevailing styles of blouses have a touch of "French" styles especially those adapted to soft materials. Revers are seen on many of the new models, outlining pretty vests of chiffon, tulle, net or lace.

A smart costume is shown in Patterns 9805 and 9761 which is composed of a blouse with chemisette and revers trimming, and a skirt with shaped front draping. The waist may be made with or without the peplum. Its fronts are crossed low revealing the chemisette, that may be of lace, net or contrasting material. As here shown taupe gray velvet was used with trimming of brocade silk in cashmere colors. Brown serge with trimming of old gold satin would also be effective. ## ANGER FROM GRIPPE

Lies in That Cough and Weak, Worn-out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia, these are greatly to be feared at this time of the year.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system quickly.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

Mrs. A. A. Gräbill, of Strasburg, Va. says: "Grippe left me weak, run down and with a severe cough, from which I suffered four years. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol, from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone, and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money.

A Prominent New York Politician Near Death

Mon. R. N. Lansing, of Bessolaer, N. Y., Six Times a Member of the Assembly, Told of Narrow Escape.

"About fifteen years ago I was taken with rheumatism which affected my heart producing what was called valvular trouble. Three doctors told me I would never do another day's work. While I had many remedies recommended to me I got a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and it helped me inside of 48 hours. At the end of the week I called on my doctor and asked him to examine me. He said I was better than he ever expected to see me and asked if I was taking his medicine. When I told him I was not, but was taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy, he said, 'Thank the Lord for Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy.' I continued to take it, and while I realized my heart was damaged so I could not expect a permanent cure, for fifteen years I worked every day, notwithstanding I had been told I would never work again. In July, 1911, I was taken with rheumatism again, and it went to my heart as before. I got so bad that one of the Albany papers wrote up my life and said I could not live but a few hours. I again took Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy with very satisfactory results, and have not missed a day at business or in the legislature since January. I feel that Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy has saved my life and cannot recommend it too highly."

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

THEIR NEW DOCTOR

Excitement in Mayville When Old Physician Is Supplanted by Young Man.

By MILDRED CAROLINE GOODRIDGE.

There was great excitement in the social circles of Mayville when the successor to the practice of old Dr. Cyrus Dall arrived. For forty years the latter had been the chosen physician of the town. When he had sold his practice to Dr. Brian Eversley, a young, handsome and wealthy member of the profession, all Mayville was agog, and speculation and gossip held the various social coteries in a kind of pleasant thrall.

The young doctor had purchased The Oaks, a beautiful estate near the edge of the village. A maiden sister was to be his housekeeper. When a new automobile and some wonderful house furnishings arrived, Miss Cyrille Rushton, aged thirty, and passing for twenty-two, as the real leader of the real social set of Mayville, was said to brighten up at a chance to once more angle for a husband. When it was further announced that the young physician was philanthropically inclined, Miss Breda Dorman, president of the Ladies' Aid society, was in transports of anticipation and delight.

The young doctor arrived, and he was not a disappointment. He was something more than handsome—earnest, affable and intellectual. He was pleased at the gracious attentions of Miss Rushton, and it seemed to interest him to listen to the ceaseless chatter of Miss Dorman. High society shrugged its shoulders at his "free dispensary" ideas for the benefit of the poorer classes living over on the flats. Still, an exhibition of his skill in their own service caused him to be received as a fit successor to the old practitioner, Doctor Dall. The Ladies' Aid society held weekly meetings in an old store, which had been neatly fitted up for them. Mrs. Fulton lived in apartments behind, and kept watch and ward over the place. Miss Rushton had recently joined the circle, and Miss Dorman had never been so active in her supervisory duties. The society clothed the ragged, fed the poor and had done some free nursing—Miss Dorman very little, however. She acted as the ornament of the group! As to the haughty Miss Rushton, all she pretended to do was to donate the raw material for the really industrious ones of the club to sew into garments. One of these latter was Nettie Lane, who sat in a corner of the room now, engrossed in the task of making four tiny night robes. The rest of the group were chattering and gossiping. Whenever Doctor Eversley's name was mentioned, Nettie's eyes brightened with interest. It was mentioned very frequently.

"The way Cyrille Rushton has set her cap for the doctor is simply brazen," observed Sarah Bates, who had graduated into old maidenhood several years ago.

"Not half as bold as Breda's sly puss way," broke in cynical, wasp-tongued Selma Marton. "She pretended to have neuralgia, just to get the doctor's attention."

Plain, quiet Nettie smiled to herself. She was happy in knowing that the doctor had made quite a friend and confidant of her. Miss Eversley had taken a decided fancy to her. Nettie was, in fact, very close to the doctor; something in their natures harmonized. Miss Eversley had seen through the feigned illness of several young ladies who had called for her brother's professional care. She had laughed over these plausible subterfuges with Nettie.

If anybody had told Nettie that these ripening friendships indicated a chance to capture the handsome young physician, she would have been overwhelmed with confusion. Such an idea had never entered her sensible little head. For all that, she knew she had never met a man whose kindly, human spirit had so awakened respect and admiration in her pure, gentle soul.

"And what do you say of all this babble, our little busy Dorcas," challenged Miss Bates, noticing the unobtrusive Nettie.

"I only know that Doctor Eversley is a very splendid man," replied Nettie softly. "Why, I am making these little trifles for a child who belongs to a family that the doctor has practically taken charge of at his own expense. He is a good, good man."

Nettie grew so enthusiastic that she flushed consciously. Miss Bates gave her a keen look and whispered to Miss Morton.

"It can't be possible that little nobody has ideas."
"About the doctor," said Miss Morton. "Oh, ridiculous."

Nettie finished her work somewhat later and went home. Miss Rushton came in, then the lady president, and then a messenger arrived. He brought a note from Doctor Eversley. It was addressed to the society. A contagious sickness had broken out in a poor family without means or friends. Could the society appoint some one to give half a day for a week to day nursing for two little children in the family?

There was dead silence at the word "contagious." Miss Rushton had an urgent engagement. Miss Dorman talked of "volunteers." The group gradually broke up and the doctor's note received no reply.

That afternoon Doctor Eversley's automobile stopped in front of the poor home where his services were so sorely needed. He was a trifle disappointed at receiving no recognition of his message, and had decided to enlist the sympathies of his sister. His knock brought a neat figure wearing nurse cap and apron to the door.

"Miss Lane!" he exclaimed in wonderment.

"Yes, it is I," Nettie smiled back. "A neighbor told me of this case, and I have so wished to see if I have the patience and skill to act the nurse."

"You are an angel," said Doctor Eversley with heightened color as he entered the sick room.

Never had a poor family such royal donations as those received by the one now under the care of Doctor Eversley as physician and Nettie Lane as nurse. Miss Rushton sent delicacies from her table every morning. The Ladies' Aid society invested all its surplus funds in sheets, pillowcases, comforters, an invalid chair and clothing.

"That dread word 'contagious' made greetings on the street quite few and far between for the doctor. His sister, however, was visited daily by the anxious young ladies, hoping the dear doctor was not overworking himself, that the dreadful disease would not spread, and eager to learn the real sentiments of the Eversleys as to "poor Miss Lane, who was just cut out for a nurse."

When the truth got out that the contagious feature of the case did not extend beyond light measles, Miss Rushton bit her lip and Miss Dorman denounced Nettie as a schemer.

"This is one of the great pleasures of a physician's life," said Doctor Eversley, as he and Nettie walked away from the home where they had taken the part of true ministering angels.

Nettie fully understood him. They had found the poor home filled with squalor, illness and suffering. They had left it supplied with the comforts of life and the inmates happy and hopeful.

There came a day when Miss Rushton took a sudden journey to relatives, and Miss Dorman resigned from the Ladies' Aid society. Two lines in the weekly announced an important engagement.

"You see, my brother is a very practical young man," was the way Miss Eversley explained the situation. "He thinks, as I do, that a good nurse makes a good doctor's wife."

PASSING OF SUNDAY SUPPER

Chafing Dish Meases Now Seem Largely to Comprise the Sabbath Evening Repast.

Time was when the Sunday night supper was of even more vital importance than the midday dinner, especially in those towns and villages where strict religious principles prohibited cooking on the Sabbath. It was not considered wrong to mix a pan of biscuits the night before and bake them for supper, so that these hot, puffy features of the meal, with honey or some of mother's quince preserves or canned cherries, were looked forward to with joyous anticipation.

As time passed, the stringent line relaxed as far as cooking for supper was concerned, and, in addition to cold salads, there would always be some hot dish, such as the real old-fashioned hash or scrambled eggs, with creamed potatoes.

City life has changed all this. Even the suburbanite who spies city ways has the mahogany table cleared, the dollies used in place of the regulation dinner cloth, and the chafing dish placed in front of the hostess, the ingredients at hand, and the lamp trimmed and burning. From this she turns out creamed chicken and ham, deviled sardines, mutton ragout and other "messes"—her grandmother would call them, as she waxes reminiscent on the honey and hot biscuit era.

Won't Hurt Bill.

A certain Indianapolis Sunday school, which is conducting a recruiting campaign by modern advertising methods, through a publicity committee, has received a suggestion for an appeal, to be posted abroad. It reads:

"Hello, Bill. Come, let us save your soul. It can't hurt you, and it will help us. Be a good fellow!"

The committee has the suggestion under advisement.

ODD SCOTCH CHURCH

Greenock Edifice at St. Andrews, N. B., Erected in 1824.

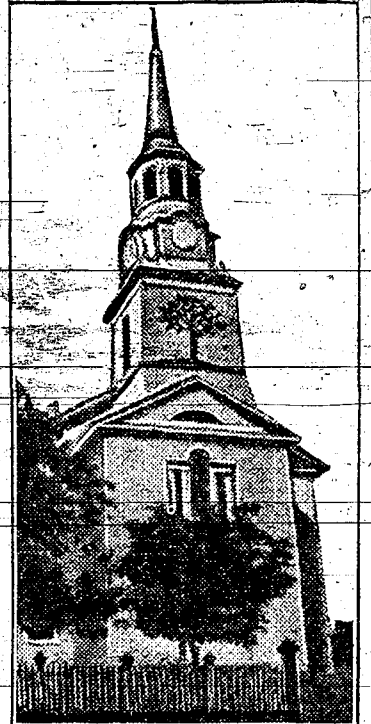

Building is Novelty in Construction—It is Queerly Carved—Has a Large Double Decker Pulpit of Mahogany—Cost £500 in England.

Montreal.—At the quaint Canadian town of St. Andrews, N. B., 12 miles up the St. Croix river from Eastport, Me., is a novelty in church construction. Greenock church was erected in 1824. Its queerly carved and painted oak tree on the front of the bell tower can be seen from a considerable distance. Inside the church is a large double-decker pulpit of mahogany, with sounding-board on top and two flights of steps reaching the preacher's stand. It is protected with gates—and an inclosure of red curtains. It was brought out from England at a cost of £500.

At the time this Scotch church was erected the town was prosperous and the donor expected his congregation to pay yearly dues or taxes, but it is related that they neglected to attend to this. The story goes that one Sunday morning the donor mounted the pulpit and faced a large congregation; that he displayed a brace of loaded pistols which he fired into the air, and the frightened people rushed to their homes. The donor closed the church, pocketed the key, and said that when the churchgoers paid their dues they might have the church again.

The walls and the center of the church show decorations of large-sized Scotch thistles, handsomely painted and carved. There is a heavy old-fashioned look on the front door and the massive, quaintly shaped iron key is kept in a wooden box on the ground near the entrance, where any visitor can find it and visit the church at all times.

The church is less than two miles on the St. Croix river from where the world-famed Demonts island is located and where the celebrated French explorer Demont and his companion Champlain made a settlement in June, Greenock Church at St. Andrews, N. B., 1804, the first European settlement on the Atlantic coast, but it was only for part of a year.

HURT; WILL NOT STAY IN BED

Contractor, 81 Years Old, Injured Riding Bicycle, Says Maybe He'll Be Better.

Washington.—James Fitzpatrick, a contractor, was run down by an automobile while riding a bicycle here. When he recovered from the shock he was asked his name, which he gave, and then sitting up indignantly vouchsafed the further information that he was eighty-one.

"Don't you know better than to ride a bicycle around the streets?" inquired a young interne sternly.

"I'm as young in spirit as you," retorted Fitzpatrick angrily. "Where's my bike? I'm not a hothouse plant and I don't propose to sleep on your beds. When I get old I'll cut out some of my rough-and-tumble ways—maybe."

The aged man rode briskly off after several bruises had been treated. Apparently he was none the worse for his experience.

MOSCOW PUPILS BIG DRINKERS

Reports Show 66 Per Cent of Boys and 45 Per Cent of Girls Use Intoxicants.

Moscow.—According to official reports prepared by the Moscow town council, inebriety is rapidly increasing among Russian school children generally, but particularly in the Moscow district. Inquires show that 90 per cent of the adults addicted to drink acquired the habit while at school, and of 18,134 schoolboys between the ages of eight and thirteen, in the Moscow district, 12,152, or 66 per cent, have taken to drink. The percentage among girls of the same ages is scarcely less appalling, 4,733 out of 10,404, or 45 per cent.

RASH ON FACE FOR 2 YEARS

Sloux Falls, S. D.—"My trouble of skin disease started merely as a rash on my face and neck, but it grew and kept getting worse until large scabs would form, fester and break. This was just on the one side of my face, but it soon scattered to the other side. I suffered a great deal, especially at night, on account of its itching and burning. I would scratch it and of course that irritated it very much. This rash was on my face for about two years, sometimes breaking out lots worse and forming larger sores. It kept me from sleeping day or night for a couple of months. My face looked disgraceful and I was almost ashamed to be seen by my friends. "A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I would bathe my face with hot water and a lot of Cuticura Soap, then I would put on the Cuticura Ointment. In less than two days' time, the soreness and inflammation had almost entirely disappeared, and in four weeks' time you could not see any of the rash. Now my face is without a spot of any kind. I also use them for my scalp and hair. They cured me completely." (Signed) Miss Pansy Hutchins, Feb. 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.
