Creamery Opened

Traverse City Men Back of New-Old Enterprise.

The East Jordan Creamery & Ice Cream Co. is the latest addition to our city's many enterprises. And its a pretty healthy youngster, too. The gentlemen comprising the company are W. A. McCool and M. M. Mather, owners and operators of the Traverse City Creamery. They have purchased the Creamery building and machinery here, also the N. Muma ice cream machinery, and have already commenced operations.

M. M. Mather is the gentleman in active charge here and intends to make our city his home, moving his family from Traverse City and locating in the former Lewandousky residence on Main street.

Cream routes are being established and the first churning of butter will be made latter part of this week. Ice cream is already being manufactured for the wholesale trade.

It is a matter of gratification to our citizens that the Creamery has been purchased and in the hands of men who are experienced in this line of business and intend to build it up and make it a permanent institution.

J. C. ROCKWELL'S SUNNY SOUTH CO.

The pennant winner of colored shows, known as the J. C. Rockwell Sunny South Company, said to be an exceptionally strong one, both in quality and quantity, is announced to appear in Temple Theatre, East Jordan, Saturday evening, May 10th. This company has something that is well calculated to furnish just what is wanted to a person who goes to a show to see something that will make him laugh. It is an aggregation of vaudeville stars, each and everyone is an artist. During the performance a number of novelties, features and surprises are introduced and one must be in a misanthropic mood not to appreciate the good things offered. It refreshes you, dries away earthly cares and makes you a kid once more. The comedy, which abounds throughout the performance, is said to be of an unusually diverting character and free the horse play usually seen in performances of this kind. The company numbers twenty-five people, including some of the cleverest and most versatile performers in their respective lines at present before the public. Mr. Rockwell has not sacrificed quality for quantity and the performance is guaranteed to be just as represented. There is plenty of fun, in fact it was built for laughing purposes only and it is generally conceded to be one of the funniest shows since time began. If you want to have a good laugh, enjoy the evening and go home whistling happy and contented, this is where you will get full value for your money.

The organization is accompanied by a solo concert band and a superb orchestra. The band will head the Koonlown parade, taking place at noon.

LOCATES RELATIVES.

Miss Neva Jenkins is Now Miss Anna Leeds Henderson.

A romance in everyday life had its culmination the past week when Miss Neva Jenkins of Harbor Springs, primary teacher of our West Side School located her father and brothers whom she never remembered and whom she did not know existed up till a couple of years ago. At that time she learned that she was an adopted child, her former name being Henderson, and she proceeded to advertise in various publications in an effort to locate her relatives. Once again the saying that "it pays to advertise" was borne out by facts, for a brother saw the advertisement and commenced an investigation which brought out the fact that her father was a well-known business man of Muskogee, Oklahoma, and she has six brothers and sisters located in that state all of whom are married.

Miss Henderson's mother died some twenty-two years ago at Chasles, Wash. leaving Mr. Henderson with seven children to care for, Miss Henderson being the youngest, aged about three months. Neighbors of the Hendersons by the name of Jenkins asked for and adopted the infant. Later both families moved to different locations and, so the story goes, Mr. Henderson was notified that his daughter had died. Immediately upon receipt of definite information, Mr. Henderson left his Oklahoma home for this city where a reunion was held at the home of Mrs. H. Keenholts where Miss Henderson is boarding, last Sunday. He will return in a few days, and Miss Henderson will probably join her father and other relatives upon completion of the school year.

FREE TRIP TO GETTYSBURG

Michigan Will Furnish Transportation to All Veterans Who Were in Famous Battle.

Every old Michigan soldier who fought in the Battle of Gettysburg and was a member of the army on July 1, 2, 3, 1863, is entitled to free transportation to and from Gettysburg in June, when a national reunion will be held. Circulars to that effect are being sent to all Michigan G. A. R. posts.

The communication reads as follows: "Senate bill No. 49 has become a law, and we enclose you a copy of the enrolled bill, which should be read in every grand army post—the officers and comrades are requested to secure the name, postoffice address, company regiment, date of enlistment, and date of discharge, of every comrade that took part in the battle of Gettysburg. They must have been members on July 1, 2, and 3, 1863, and send such names and information to Henry Spaulding, Lansing, Michigan, secretary of the Gettysburg commission. As soon as the names with other information as above are received at this office, the applicant will be sent a card to fill out (written plainly) and returned promptly to this office, and if found correct after comparing it with the records here in this office, he will be sent at once an order on the railroad ticket agent, good to Gettysburg and return. The comrade when he presents the order to the railroad agent, will have to get some one to identify him as the identical person named in the order. The state only furnishes transportation to Gettysburg and return, the general government sleeps, and the state of Pennsylvania feeds them while there. The applicants must get their names in by the first day of June, 1913.

Gettysburg committee, Geo. W. Stone, Chairman, Henry Spaulding, Secretary, Edwin B. Havens, Treasurer.

BIG SURPRISE TO MANY IN EAST JORDAN.

Local people are surprised at the QUICK results received from simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler's, the German appendicitis remedy. J. Gidley, Drug-gist states that this simple remedy antiseptizes the digestive system and draws off the impurities so thoroughly that A SINGLE DOSE relieves sour stomach, gas on the stomach and constipation INSTANTLY.

A Menace No Longer

Forest Fire Department Ready For Another Season of Forest Fire Prevention Work

The Michigan Hardwood Manufacturers Association are perfecting arrangements for another aggressive campaign against the destruction of their properties by Forest Fires, beginning with the first signs of dry weather in April.

During the summer season of 1912 they maintained an organized patrol system having in the field eleven mounted rangers and a Chief Fire Warden with headquarters at Gaylord, the County seat of Otsego County. Gaylord being selected as it is the geographical center of the Forest fire situation in Lower Michigan. The Association controls a trifle less than one half million acres of timber land. However their system of patrol is a liberal one and covers one million one hundred thousand acres of timber, brush and plain lands.

In order to make the patrol system as effective as possible, the Manufacturers' Ass'n have purchased an automobile for their chief warden, thus enabling him to keep in close touch with all sections of his territory and aiding him in inspecting the work of his various wardens at seasons when he can leave his office. The department is sparing no expense in raising the standard of their patrol system to the highest efficiency.

It has been proved that careful and painstaking patrol of a given area is of great value in discovering and controlling small fires. It is a well known fact that small fires are cared for we will not have large ones. All of the large destructive fires of the past, had they been attended to by an organized effort none of the calamities would have happened which befell many localities, burning homes, towns, and taking human lives, leaving large areas a blackened and desolate waste.

It was thought at one time that Forest Fires could not be prevented. The reason for this conclusion was the fact "what is everybody's business is nobody's business," and while one person was waiting for another to take action the merciless ever consuming flames were steadily creeping forward until finally a sweeping conflagration was the result. However, this condition is a thing of the past. Private owners realizing the terrific losses they were subjected to each year, formed a co-operative plan for the suppression of fires which we are pleased to note is a very successful one.

In this connection it might be stated that Northern Michigan passed thru the season of 1912 without a single disastrous fire while other sections were devastated in like manner as before. This is graphically shown by comparison of the report from the state department with that of Chief Warden Hickok of the Forest Fire Protective Department.

STATE REPORT, 1912.

40,000 acres burned over. Property loss—$67,696.00.

PROTECTIVE DEPT. REPORT.

Property loss by fire, 1 cord of wood, value $2.00.

Practically every fire in the district patrolled by the wardens of the protective department was reported to Warden Hickok. The loss is as above stated. Therefore the loss reported by the state department must have been outside the territory of the Forest Fire Protective Department. This is significant in that the territory patrolled by the wardens of this department had formerly been the worst fire zone in Michigan and had sustained the greatest loss of life and property.

The Forest Fire Protective Department of the Michigan Hardwood Manufacturers Association in the Lower Peninsula and the Northern Forest Protective Association of the Upper Peninsula have demonstrated their usefulness by saving from loss the properties protected by them. These departments work along the same lines, co-operating with one another in all matters pertaining to this great work. The men financing this movement are entitled to much credit for their liberal use of money in pushing this campaign. More than $25,000.00 was used in the patrol service of these Associations, during the year 1912. Their motive may at first glance appear as a selfish one but the patrol covering as it does more than twice the acreage under assessment, the hundreds of settlers living in the protected zone are receiving the benefits, without cost. The timber owners do not ask the settlers to contribute to the fund, the only request being made is that they give their co-operation in return for the protection the timber men are so cheerfully paying for.

The extinguishment of small fires, the prompt reporting of those too large to be quickly put out and the careful use of fire in every particular from the lighting of a pipe to the burning of their slash is asked and the records of these Forest Protective Departments show that 95 per cent of the people residents and visitors alike respond to the call to help in the good work.

Many of the Railroad systems penetrating the Fire zone of Michigan, have been negligent in the past relative to proper screening of ash pans and front ends of their locomotives. However, since it has been brought to their notice by an accurate system of compiling records that the offending roads are responsible for 75 per cent of the forest fires it is demanded and expected that much improvement in equipment will be made by certain railroad companies. It is believed that railroad men in general are becoming interested in the No Forest Fire idea as they now fully realize that the disastrous fires of the past, has materially reduced the shipping from many localities and that every large fire means to them a great loss as well as to the timber owners.

The Michigan State Forest Law provides that supervisors of townships shall act as Fire Wardens in their respective townships and it shall be the duty of each Fire Warden to take precautions to prevent the settling of forest fires and when his district is suffering or threatened with fire to go to the place of danger to control such fires and the fire warden shall have the authority to call to his assistance any able bodied male person over eighteen years of age, if such person refuses without reasonable justification or excuse to assist, or if any fire warden refuses or neglects to perform the duties assigned him, such officer or person shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed three months. This is a very good law but has been largely in-operative in the past since the law further provides that two dollars per day shall be the wages paid for fire fighting and the cost of fire fighting shall be paid by the township in which the fire takes place, one-third of the amount to be returned by the State to the Township from the general revenue fund. Many supervisors have side stepped fire fighting on account of the expense created for their townships. The private Forest Protective Department insists that supervisors do their duty according to the law in such cases provided. For the Supervisor to refuse to take hold of the situation during dry periods when fires are prevalent, is very short sighted on his part for if destructive fires are allowed to roam at will, the damage to a community is so great that in striking a comparison between fire fighting cost and loss from unchecked fires the balance shows much property of cash value has gone skyward in smoke never to return that might have been saved by the expenditure of five, or at the outside ten per cent of the loss sustained. Grant the loss to individual timber owners in any Township to be one hundred thousand dollars figured on a stumpage basis, the loss to the community is at least five times this amount, the money which would have been paid for labor in the harvesting of this lumber is lost to labor and in its stead remains a devastated and blackened ruin.

We are convinced the day of the destructive Forest Fire in Michigan is about to become a condition of the past. The systematic manner in which the Forest Protective Associations are going at the work is bound to bring to the minds of every one the fact that fire is an element which must be handled with care. The careful use of fire and the prompt extinguishment of incipient fires augmented by the constant patrol for the Forest Rangers during the summer season spells victory in this battle against this much to be feared good servant when under control and ever destroying hard master when neglected. Following is a list of the wardens for the respective districts of the departments:

LITTLE WAHAB TAD.

(Warren W. Lamport.)

Little Wahab Tad
Was an Indian lad,
And the pride of his dad was he.
He lived where the bay
Of the Saginaw rolls on its way
To the floods of the Huron sea.
And along the same shore
For a half league and more
Had Monk-cho, the sturgeon, his home;
Where he lived out his day
In a full round of play
With his brother monks, racing away
Up and down thru the brineless foam.
Now Monk-cho loved best,
When the waves were at rest
On the edge of the shingly strand,
To push by on the sand
And sleep in the sun
As his fathers before him had done.
A most excellent way
Of spending a day,
Or an hour of its tedium to rob;
But as risky a thing
As a trap with a spring
When the Indian was on to his job.
For fish
Was the redskin's favorite dish,
And a fisherman bold was he:
And the way he could land
His prey on the strand
Was a sight that was worth while to see.
Then again, with a soft and a cat-like tread
He would creep from the strand
With his tomahawk gripped in his hand,
And would bury it deep in the sturgeon's head,
Then jumping astride
The old lord of the tide
He would hold him down fast
Till his struggles were past,
And when all was o'er
He would haul him up safe on the sandy shore.

Now little Wahab Tad
Caught the trick of his dad,
And he said he would do the same.
A perilous thought
For the youth to have caught,
But Wahab was true game;
And as sure as your born,
On a bright sunny morn
He planted his tommy kerplunk
In the head of a monster old monk.
And straightway straddled his back.
But alas, and alack!
It was only flesh deep;
And, aroused from his sleep,
The old king of the tide
Backed off and proceeded to give Wahab a ride
With the speed
Of a mermaid driving her favorite steed.
And all went well
For a spell,
Wahab held to the handle and guided the course
Of his fiery and untamed aquatic horse.
To and fro, here and there,
'Round and 'round everywhere,
Until wearied he thought him once more
Of the friends he had left on the faraway shore.
And the same
They might safely have reached at the end of the same.

Had not Wahab, little man,
Disconcerted the plan
By plumping his toe
In the belly of old Monk-cho
And tickling him so
That he clapped down his fin
'O'er the urchin's shin
And suddenly dropped 'neath the tide,
Thus unceremoniously ending the ride.
And that was the last of Wahab Tad.
Our cute little Indian lad.
He was never seen more
'Long the Saginaw shore.
At least, 'tis the story that's told
By such as remember the brave days of old.
But sometimes at night,
When the moon shines bright,
Full-orbed and with soft and irradiant light,
Far out on the sheen
Of the glade may be seen
A shadow that glides to and fro.
They say 'tis Monk-cho
And little Wahab Tad; but I do not know.
Should an original idea strike some men it would give them headache.
Very few men are so in love with their job that would refuse a better one.

W. C. SPRING DRUG CO.

Good Novels Thrown In.

A reader of The Chicago Record-Herald with a mathematical turn of mind has calculated that the serial novels published in that paper in a year represent a saving of from $15 to $18 to its readers. He figures that for the fiction lover it is more economical to subscribe for The Record-Herald than to go without it.

"No other large city daily," he continues, "prints so much of the best new fiction, in addition to all the news of the day. Not counting the innumerable short stories in the Sunday Magazine of The Record-Herald, that magazine prints yearly at least four serial novels by some of the best popular authors—Rider Haggard, Conan Doyle, Louis Tracy, George Gibbs Jeffery Farnol and others in that class. Then in the body of the paper there is nearly always another good serial, running daily and Sunday, which means a complete new novel every month or two, or, say, eight whole books of high-class fiction in a year. At the usual price $1.50 these twelve novels in book form would cost $18. I get all this thrown in extra with a mighty good newspaper. I call it a bargain."

"That is one way to look at it, and it seems to be a sensible way. The real cause of the popularity of The Record-Herald, however, is that it is the best all-around home newspaper in the country.

County Normal Notes

The class observed the work in music and reading in Miss Bon's and Miss Manson's room last Thursday afternoon.

The practice teachers for the following three weeks are Miss Mabel Dunlop, Miss Mabel Cliffe, Miss Agnes Worth and Mr. George Hamlin.

Two Catholic sisters from Beaver Island were visitors at the normal room Friday afternoon.

Miss Agnes Worth substituted in the sixth grade room Friday on account of the illness of Miss Noid, Miss Sophia Berg substituted in Miss Kitchner's room Thursday afternoon on account of the teacher's illness.

The chart class from Miss Jarvis' room, which the normal class have in charge, will be under the direction of Miss Hazel Mills and Miss Jennie Barkley, the former having charge of the sense training and the latter having charge of the reading.

Miss Florence Hudkins visited the normal room Friday afternoon.

WANTON WASTE.

Now that the whale fishers who valued that denizen of the deep merely for his oil and his ambergris and his bone have nearly depopulated the ocean of whales, it is beginning to be realized that the abandoning of the colossal carcasses after these spoils had been secured involved a shocking waste—that the flesh of the whale is valuable for human food. The inhabitants of West Africa, it is said, always have been aware of this fact, and have feasted upon many a whale abandoned by the whalers and tossed upon their coast. The Japanese can eat the flesh of the whale and esteem it as a delicacy. There seems to be no reason whatever why hereafter it should be wasted by the seamen of any of the nations which are engaged in the pursuit of this monster of the deep. But think of the millions upon millions of tons of good whale meat that have been abandoned at sea! There is nothing to compare it with but the ruthless slaughter of the American buffaloes for their hides that followed the opening of railroad communication with the Pacific slope, and that in a few years nearly extinguished the race of those noble denizens of the plains.

The scheme of changing the Gulf stream, so that it will sweep up the east coast of this country instead of sliding over to Europe, has reached the dignity of a bill in congress providing an appropriation for advancing the project. The New York Tribune suggests a more practical way of ameliorating our climate by means of dams, increasing the oblateness of the earth and reducing the angle of the ecliptic so that the sun would not go so far south or come further north and providing the whole year the climate of the southern states, and thus make it possible to raise strawberries and peas the year round. But the real consideration concerning this change would not relate to the strawberries and citrus joys but to the character of the people. Temperaments and temperatures are closely allied. A person who is used to frost and freezes can never get along with a tropical climate without losing some of his "get up" and enterprising dash. The fact is the earth as finished by the Creator in the first place cannot be improved upon. The Gulf stream is in the right place, and the oblateness of the spheroid likewise.

The lower house of the Pennsylvania legislature toyed with a bill proposing to make it criminal for finger bowls in public eating houses to be used a second time without having been thoroughly cleaned. After half an hour's humorous debate the bill was killed. The public is not ripe for what look like super-refinements of precaution growing out of the germ theory. Of course, however, nice people will want perfectly clean finger bowls or none at all.

The new Russian stamps have been called in because they could not be cancelled without stamping on the czar's face. If the latter is so sensitive, he should take pattern by the way in which George Washington smiles serenely on under the daily and hourly nutrition of his classic countenance, confident in the knowledge that while he is intact in the hearts of the nation he cares not what becomes of his features on its letters.

While Burbank in California has been developing a spineless cactus, Burrows in Essex, England, has been endeavoring to evolve a stingless bee. Many a farmer who would add the occupation of an apiarist to his other activities has refrained because he dreads the industrious insect's "hot foot." If Mr. Burrows can give the world a honey-producing bee with cold feet, there will be a larger production of honey.

The governmental edict is that the name is "catchup" and not "ketchup." But, says the New York World, "all the power of government regulation will not cause it to be popularly pronounced that way." Will it not be so pronounced by the popular element that pronounces "catch" as if it were spelled "ketch"?

Be American and Forget Royal Blood

By JAMES HAMMILL, Chicago

"Royal blood in my veins!" How nice it sounds! "I am descended from royalty!" Soothing to the senses of him who lulls himself into a state of blissful happiness over the thought of his great descent; for great, indeed, it is. To such as these the world moves backward, for do they not coddle themselves with the contemplation of their great, blue-blooded, royal ancestors? Personally, we should much dislike to admit the descent, for, comparing the conditions of now and then, physical and moral, we should rather rejoice over our ascent from anything royal of the middle ages.

Many crimes have been justified by the doctrine that "the king can do no wrong." I am glad to admit that so far as I know there is no royal lineage in my family. I claim no interest by descent in the mountebank splendor of some ancient clan or principality, which at best could furnish but a scant following for a Chicago alderman. If I should find an ancestor to have been ruler of one of the larger courts, the habits of the middle ages would make me loath to accept the distinction, diluted though it is by 1,000 intermarriages, unless a signed, sealed and acknowledged certificate of decent modern morality went with it in addition to the hallmark of quality.

While I repudiate any royal distinction, I do claim the royal blue blood of American citizenship, the grandest of all privileges, which places within our grasp opportunities so great that the pomp and circumstance of medieval royalty pale into insignificance beside it.

Read if you will the unpurged historical tales of the middle ages, which deal almost exclusively with intrigues, crimes and outrages of the titled classes, and tell us honestly why one of royal descent is proud of his lineage. Behold the profligacy of the French court, the most glittering and gorgeous that ever surrounded a throne! Should one be proud to feel the same vicious instincts in him through ancestral privilege?

I would rather trace my ancestry to the great unlettered, unvarnished, undeveloped plebeian stock, which contained the seed of future moral manhood and intelligence, unclouded by the diseased mentality of royalty, and feel that my children were marching onward and upward to that high goal which is negated by every pretense of royalty. The kings of today are those who come unheralded.

Be American, and, if your ancestry has been clouded by royal blood, forget it!

Plumber Helps State Board of Health

By Herbert L. Owens, M. D., Chicago

The master plumber's article of recent date on the subject of having a member of his craft on the state board of health is well worthy of consideration by all medical men, as well as by the general public. There is today urgent need of the services of a practical sanitarian on our state board. The physicians who compose the state health body can cure disease and give advice as to its prevention. Here their capacity is unquestioned. But what real, practical knowledge have they, as members of a state health body, of the best methods of preventing disease through the medium of scientific schemes of sewage disposal and sanitary plumbing? Very little, I dare say.

The need, then, is this: A master plumber or a practical sanitary engineer should be a member of the state board of health and should give the doctors his advice as to ways and means of conserving the public health through the best system of sanitation as regards the water we drink and the proper disposal of waste matter.

In Ohio there is a state inspector of plumbing and he looks after the public health very well, indeed. In Illinois we have no state inspector of plumbing or any state supervision of matters concerning sanitary engineering. If we can't have a state inspector we should at least be allowed a master plumber on the state board of health. This would help matters a good deal.

Making Man More Humane to Horse

By Vernon Dudderidge, Chicago

Evenly, by the measured tread of progress, the horse will be no more—it will have outlived its usefulness and disappeared. Our noble friend has been attached to us so closely for years that he has become like us; he reflects our mental states, and that is why we do not like to see him ill treated.

We all have noticed animals who have been attached to persons of strong individuality, how they reflect their natures and become like them.

There is that indescribable resemblance that makes us exclaim: "Well, if that animal doesn't look like that man!"

It is well known that a man who owns and loves animals has a tender heart. There is something in his makeup that is lacking in the man who uses every ounce of the life energy in an animal for his own selfish ends and fumes and swears and frets when the animal falls in the street and even begrudges the time lost.

But the human race is reaching the point where it can no longer stand by and see the horse abused. When all cruelty to horses is done away with mankind will have climbed another step on the ladder of progress.

Let us speed the coming of that day until the whole race gets the idea. Then we shall all have a clear conscience, knowing that, although we treated our friend roughly at times during his long stay, yet he left us with a glad heart fully recompensed for his sufferings.

Mutual Benefits Gained by Saturday Holiday

By THEODORE P. GIBSON, Baltimore, Md.

We may try to find some good reason why more employers do not adopt such a worthy custom as the closing of business at noon on Saturday. Some employers perhaps say that when they furnish steady employment their employes should be satisfied. They may reason that the employes do not have to stand the brunt of carrying on the business, are not worried about the raising of money to meet the payroll and other expenses or rack their brains to find methods to meet competition successfully.

This is in a measure true, but it does not prove that their working the full day Saturday will relieve the employer of any of the burdens which are common to any business. I believe the cases are very rare, indeed, where it can be shown that any great loss is occasioned by closing at noon on Saturday.

On the contrary, it is plain that much can be gained in things essential to the welfare of the business. The granting of such little courtesies to employes promotes a spirit of respect, good will and a more intelligent interest in the business.

Surely the thousands of the most progressive business men who have shown an interest in the welfare of their employes by granting them this favor bear an eloquent testimony to the mutual benefits derived therefrom.

"Royal blood in my veins!" How nice it sounds! "I am descended from royalty!" Soothing to the senses of him who lulls himself into a state of blissful happiness over the thought of his great descent; for great, indeed, it is. To such as these the world moves backward, for do they not coddle themselves with the contemplation of their great, blue-blooded, royal ancestors? Personally, we should much dislike to admit the descent, for, comparing the conditions of now and then, physical and moral, we should rather rejoice over our ascent from anything royal of the middle ages.

BIDDING DEFIANCE TO RAIN

Waterproof Materials Light and Neat, and Keep Off the Too Insistent Moisture.

There are all sorts of waterproof goods. Some perform the functions allotted to them well, while others are only rain-proof in a light shower. It requires more than waterproof material to resist the gusts of rain which are blown against one in an open car. The very force of the rain seems to drive it through the thickest of stuffs. The best protection in such a storm is the good, old-fashioned sou-wester which the fishermen wear when the sea is in an angry mood. The modern interpretation of the oilskin of the fisherman is a fabric as light and as subtle as silk. It comes in fascinating browns and blues and purples, and is so light in weight that it can easily be slipped over the top coat. It is a very comforting thought to know that one of these coats, in its accompanying envelope, is stowed away in the motor for the unexpected storm. To accompany this coat, there is a cap which is almost a replica of the genuine sou-wester. This may be fastened so that the neck is well protected.

FACE POWDER OPENLY USED

Strikingly New Acquisitions Are Provided for the Really Up-to-Date Toilet Table.

This is a period of paint, powder and perfume; society belle and "chorus lady" alike are frank about its use. Today we complete our toilette with a spray from an atomizer filled with Bacchanale; tomorrow we will adopt Cyclamen. The bouquet odors such as ambre antique, Mimosa or Dier Kiss are preferred at present, but the popularity of a special perfume like the flowers from which it takes its fragrance, is short lived. Carolina White extract has eclipsed the extracts named for the other notable woman, namely, Mary Garden and Sarah Bernhardt. The violet odor is always popular. It is said Queen Mary of England never uses anything else in extract, toilet water, soap, sachet or bath salt. The rose, both the Jacqueminot and the white, is always well liked.

Gold-colored or Oriental powder as it is called is strikingly new. The violet, purple and bright vermilion tints have been seen before, but gold never. Color in rouge has deepened. The brunette rouge which is so much affected is almost a purple red. Powder pomponettes, consisting of tiny puffs of cotton spread with powder in the rose blanche or rochelle shades, and are sealed in individual tissue envelopes. A hundred of these little jackets are arranged in a French wall-paper box.

The moist lip-stick is new. It is a vegetable compound and remains on the lips until removed, unlike the lip-stick of red-cream which is soon absorbed.

Kitchen Aprons.

Aprons for wear in the kitchen should be all enveloping. They can be made of gingham, percale or white lawn, but however made they should completely cover the skirt, and should have a large bib. A ruffle about the bottom of the apron protects the hem of the dress, as it catches and wards off anything which is spilled or dropped.

Kitchen aprons need not be unattractive because they are big and serviceable. They can be made of white self-figured percale or madras, edged with blue or pink or any other color. A folded bias lawn band can be folded over the edges of the apron like a binding, or scalloping braid, which is sold in many colors and styles, can be stitched under a neatly turned hem.

Hot-Water Remedy.

Over-tired women who retire at night or lie down for a few minutes during the afternoon vainly seeking sleep, which refuses to come, should try the hot-water remedy. Simply bathe the face and temples, the wrists and behind the ears with water as hot as can be borne. This will often induce sleep.

A glassful of hot water with a lump of sugar and a few drops of lemon juice added is a favorite "soothing" drink of Frenchwomen, and helps to woo sleep. It often takes the place of tea in the Frenchwoman's dietary.

CANADA WINS AGAIN

THE COLORADO SILVER TROPHY FOR OATS WON A SECOND TIME BY CANADA.

The most recent achievement of Canada's West is winning for the second time the magnificent $1,500 silver trophy awarded by the State of Colorado for the best pack of oats. At Columbus, Ohio, in 1911, J. C. Hill & Sons of Lloydminster, Saskatchewan, placed a peck of oats grown on their farm in competition, with oats from every part of the world. The judges had no difficulty in deciding, and the award was given to the Saskatchewan grown oats. In 1912, the Corn Exposition had no exhibition, and our Canadian friends, although ready for a second contest had no opportunity. In 1913, the exhibition of the Society was held at Columbus, S. C., and it is said of it that it was one of the best yet held. At this exhibition, which comprised corn and all the smaller grains, Hill & Sons of Lloydminster had on exhibition for the contest another peck of oats grown on their Saskatchewan farm, in 1912. There was no trouble for the judges, no time necessarily lost in reaching a decision. Hill & Sons won, and for the second time their name will appear on the crest of the cup. The third space will doubtless be occupied by their name, and then this splendid trophy will be theirs.

During the past few years Western Canada grains—wheat, oats, barley and flax—have been in competition with grains from all other countries, and in every case their superiority has been shown. It is not only in oats, but in wheat, in barley and in flax, that Canada more than holds its own, when placed side by side with grains from other parts.

Mixed farming is taking a strong hold not only in those parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, which up to the present have been devoted solely to grain growing, but also in the districts contiguous, where the conditions of climate, shelter, water, grass and hay make farming of this kind, easy to prosecute and large in profits. It was in the Province of Manitoba that the steer was raised that carried off the Championship of the steer class, at Chicago last December. This beast had been fattened on the grass and hay of the Province and the only finishing grain it had was barley; not an ounce of corn.

Western Canada presents innumerable opportunities for the big farmer who wants to cultivate his thousands of acres, the medium man satisfied with a few hundred acres, the man who is content to farm his free homestead of one hundred and sixty acres; it has opportunities for the investor, the capitalist, the business man, the manufacturer and the laborer.

Agents of the Canadian Government located at different points in the United States will be pleased on application, to give any desired information, free of cost.—Advertisement.

PIRATE TREASURE NOT FOUND

Well-Furnished Expedition Returns Without the Riches It Had Been in Search Of.

The treasure-hunting party from Plymouth, England, which has been searching Cocos island in the Pacific for treasure supposed to have been buried there by pirates many years ago, has arrived at Panama on board the steamer Melmore without the hoped for pirate spoils. The Melmore sailed from Barry in September last, carrying in addition to the officers and crew, two London ladies and three gentlemen financially interested in a venture which was fondly hoped to return 100 per cent. profit.

Two other unsuccessful attempts to locate the buried gold and jewels of the buccaners made by Earl Fitzwilliam and Mr. Harold Gray did not diminish the faith of the members of the Melmore expedition, who declared they had specific information of the exact position of the accumulated hoard.

One treasure was actually brought from Lima in 1820, consisting of gold bullion and articles to the value of about $25,000,000, and the other treasure, which is placed at an even higher figure, was taken to Cocos island by the famous pirate Bonito. Despite the care with which the Melmore was fitted out—the expedition was estimated to cost $500,000—the search appears to have been fruitless.

Bear's Grease and Baldness.

In a recent volume of reminiscences the writer states that baldness is much more common now than in his early days, and ascribes the modern man's loss of hair to the decrease in the use of "bear's grease." This pomade was made, principally of lard colored and scented, but "hairdressers," many of whom called themselves "professors," used to advertise the slaughter of another fine bear, exhibiting a canvas screen depicting in glaring colors a brown animal of elephantine proportions expiring in a sea of gore.

Better Give Up Fish.

Some people are always prepared for trouble which may not materialize, like the man who carried a raw egg wherever he went.

"Why must you always carry about a raw egg?" asked a friend one day. "Because it is such an excellent remedy for fishbone in the throat!"

An Instance.

"There is nothing in analogy." "Why not?" "Because if there was, if a colt is a little horse, wouldn't a Colt revolver be a little horse-pistol?"

BORROWING AS A FINE ART

Proof That This Bad-Habit is Impossible to Eradicate in Some People.

Day by day, as Mrs. Worth's household and kitchen furniture and groceries slowly disappeared, she saw that the moment approached when a final stand must be made. One morning, when Jimmy, son of the borrower, appeared at the back door with the statement, "Ma wants the wash-bollet," Mrs. Worth determined to act.

"You tell your ma that when she brings back what she has already borrowed, I will lend her the bollet." In a little while Jimmy reappeared. "Ma wants to know what she borrowed."

"There is a quart of flour," began Mrs. Worth, "a peck of potatoes, a cup of sugar, a can of coffee, a half-pound of lard, some onions, and butter and spices; the screw-driver, the hatchet, a pair of scissors," she paused, recollecting, "three spools of thread, a paper of needles, and—"

But Jimmy was gone. Presently he rapped on the back door again. "Ma says for you to write 'em down. I forgot some of 'em."

Mrs. Worth sat down with pencil and patiently made an alphabetical list of all the articles she could remember. Jimmy took the list and disappeared. A half-hour later he once more reappeared at the back door and announced:

"Ma says if you'll lend her the wash-bollet to carry 'em in, she'll bring 'em home."—Youth's Companion.

POETRY IN PAGAN LEGEND

According to This, Woman is Made Up of a Compound of Many Contradictory Things.

"Our fable of the creation of woman is more poetical than your Christian one, which forms woman out of a man's rib," said a Hindu. "Listen, and see if you don't agree with me. 'Twashtri, at the beginning of time, created the universe and man, but when he came to create woman he found that he had exhausted his materials and no solid elements remained."

"Twashtri mused a while. Then an idea came to him, and in order to make the first woman he took moonlight and the unglutinations of the serpent, the slenderness of reeds and the soft movement in the wind, the tears of a raincloud, the velvet of flower petals, the grace of a roe, the tremor of grasses, the vanity of the peacock, the softness of the down on a dove's breast, the hardness of diamonds and the sweetness of honey, the cruelty of the tiger and the warmth of fire, the cold of snow, the chatter of a jay and the coo of a dove—and out of these things Twashtri created woman."

Glass-Over Paintings.

Yielding to the criticism of artists and art experts, the authorities at the galleries of the Louvre have removed the glass that covered and was supposed to protect some famous pictures. A few, however, are yet inclosed in glass, and among these are 'Antiope of Correggio, the Laura Di anti of Titian and the Concert Champetre of Giorgio. It is held that for all purposes of art, for study, for admiration, the canvasses should be naked, as under glass all the fine qualities of these great paintings are lost. Examination of the paintings from which the glass has been removed shows that a number of them, among which is Titian's famous Man With the Torn Glove, have been injured by moisture that formed under the glass; others are the Antiope of Correggio, the Country Concert of Giorgio and the Virgin on the Rocks, of Leonardo da Vinci. "All these deteriorations," says a critic, "have been without doubt accelerated by moisture inclosed by glass."

In Simple Language.

Beware of the habit of using big words. Like other habits, it grows upon its victim. A horrible example is instanced by the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The superintendent of a Sunday school in Philadelphia recently called upon a visitor to "say a few words" to the school, the members of which are mostly children of tender age.

The visitor, a speaker well known for his verbose and "circumlocutory" manner of speech, began his address as follows:

"This morning, children, I purpose to offer you an epitome of the life of Saint Paul. It may be, perhaps, that there are among you some too young to grasp the meaning of the word 'epitome.' 'Epitome,' children, is in its signification synonymous with synopsis."

Regular Stairs.

A lawyer was cross-examining an old German about the position of the doors, windows and so forth, in a house in which a certain transaction occurred.

"And now, my good man," said the lawyer, "will you be good enough to tell the court how the stairs run in the house?"

The German looked dazed and upsettled for a moment. "How do the stairs run?" he queried.

"Yes, how do the stairs run?"

"Well," continued the witness, after a moment's thought, "ven I am down stairs dey run oop."—National Monthly.

SMALLNESS OF THE WORLD

How Grecian Currency Found Its Way to a Pigeon Loft in the City of Indianapolis.

Charles M. Cross took from his pocketbook a piece of thin yellow card-board that looked something like the old-fashioned fractional United States currency—thin plaisters.

"Where do you think I found this?" he asked, waving it at a group around him.

Of course nobody knew, but supposed that Mr. Cross had been digging in the family archives, and had come across a bit of money.

"My men have been tearing down the old Ritter house. Up in the loft they found a pigeon's nest. The house had been deserted, the windows broken, and the pigeons had taken possession. In use as a part of the nest was this money. You can see it is of Greek issue, as it is marked 'two drachmas'; but how did it get into an Irvington house, and in a pigeon's nest?"

Demarchus C. Brown, one of the listeners, was showing increasing interest. "I think I have the mate to that piece of money," he said and he took from his pocketbook a duplicate. "I believe, also, that I can unfold the mystery. Years ago, when teaching Greek at Butler college I had some Greek money that I had brought home from Athens. This money was exhibited in the classroom, and I gave a two drachmae piece to a Greek student who was then living in the Ritter house. I have no doubt that it was left there and that the pigeons afterward appropriated it. That was a good many years ago, and it was a long way from Athens, but it proves in another sense that the world isn't so big, after all."—Indianapolis News.

CUT GROUND UNDER BOASTER

Exceedingly Neat Rejoinder Made by Salesman to His Puffed-Up Rival.

Rivalry among motor car manufacturers is acute, if good natured. At a dinner of manufacturers' representatives one guest dwelt at length on the remarkable popularity of his car and the wonderful organization of its selling force.

"Why, just think of it, gentlemen," said he, "last month our sales averaged a car every two minutes of each working day. There was never anything like it."

When he had concluded the representative of a rival factory arose and remarked: "With the last speaker's permission, I would like to offer my compliment on his statement that there's one of his cars sold every two minutes." Permission was granted.

"I understood you to say that you call that 'good salesmanship. Am I right?"

"I certainly do," affirmed the previous speaker.

"Well, I don't; that's all. I call it mighty poor salesmanship."

"What do you mean?" demanded the boaster. "A car every two minutes—"

"Poor salesmanship—there's no other name for it. The gentleman forgets that there's a sucker born every minute."

After which the next speaker was introduced.

Misjudged the Uniform.

During the war in the Philippines General Charles King, one day while resplendent in his uniform, which was made especially brilliant by several rows of new brass buttons, came up on a raw recruit. The latter was on post duty and failed to salute the general.

"Are you on duty here?" asked General King, with a show of anger.

"I guess so," said the recruit. "They sent me out here, anyway."

"Do you remember your general orders?" asked the general.

"I guess I do—some of them," said the raw recruit.

"Well," said the general, "don't you know that you are supposed to salute your officers? Don't you know I am the general of this brigade?"

"You the general?" said the new recruit. "Gosh, no; I didn't know it. I thought you was the chief of the fire department."—Kansas City Star.

BLINDNESS MADE THEM KIN

Joseph Pulitzer Could Feel for Favorite Animal Afflicted as He Himself Was.

The late Joseph Pulitzer's years of blindness gave him a deep sympathy for any creature similarly afflicted. For years he had a saddle horse named Mac, of which he was very fond. When he went abroad, Mac went along, too, and came to know Rotten Row and Hyde Park corner, Unter den Linden and the Bois de Boulogne as well as the byide paths of Central park and Riverside drive. The horse made at least a dozen transatlantic voyages with its master.

"What is the matter with Mac—he seems to go strangely?" asked Mr. Pulitzer one morning when he was riding with his secretary in Central park. The horse was not so sure-footed as it had been before, and Mr. Pulitzer, whose other senses were the keener because of his blindness, was quick to notice it.

Investigation showed that the horse was going blind. His master had accidentally flicked Mac in the eye with the leather of his riding stock some time before, and he was deeply affected when he learned the cause.

"Poor Mac! Poor Mac! To think that I should have been the cause of his blindness!" mourned Mr. Pulitzer. He had the horse sent abroad, to a farm near Nice, where he might end his days happily in knee-high meadows, under the azure skies of southern France.—Youth's Companion.

Bite of a Centipede.

Jeff Fitch has had about the closest call of his life the last few days. About one week ago, while sleeping in his bachelor quarters, he felt something bite him and after applying some turpentine he thought no more of it.

A day or two later the wound began to swell and in a short time Fitch was a very sick man. He was removed to the home of Chris Powell, where for a time it was feared he would not recover. A search of the room where Fitch had been sleeping revealed a dead centipede upon the floor back of the bed, where it had fallen when the half-awakened man had crushed his tormentor. Fitch is now said to be out of danger, although far from recovered.—Arizona Republican.

OF COURSE HE MEANT THAT

Man With Hair Lip Had Rather the Better of the Bartender in This Particular Deal.

A man with a hair lip strolled into a saloon one day, ordered a drink and, after "putting it away," offered to match the bartender for the price of it. The bartender consented, and, taking out a coin, threw it into the air and told the hair-lip man to "call" it. The coin came down and the bartender's palm hid it from view on the counter.

"What do you cry?" he asked. "Tneah," said the man, making such a peculiar grunt that no one could have said whether he meant heads or tails.

"What?" "Tneah" again. "Is that what you mean?" asked the bartender, lifting his hand, exposing the coin.

"Yeth," replied the man, and he walked out, leaving the bartender to figure out whether he'd been "done" or not.—New York World.

What Perfumes Are Made Of.

There are few perfumes today that cannot be made from chemicals, synthetically, as the chemists call it. Formerly all perfumes were extracted from flowers, fruits, spices, woods, or other vegetable and animal substances. The first perfume to be imitated was vanilla, in 1876. Heliotropine followed, being obtained by oxidation of a byproduct of camphor. Terpinol is one of the most freely used constituents of perfumes. This is a near relation of turpentine. With this, a little oil, and aqua fortis a chemist can produce a perfume that can scarcely be distinguished from those exhaled by the lily of the valley, lilac, and Cape Jessamine, varying according to the proportions in which the chemicals are blended. Artificial violet is a combination of citrol (an essence extracted from lemon), Indian vervaine, or lemon verbena, with common acetos, a substance very like pyroligneous acid. Most of the cheap perfumes are imitations, and they are almost always inferior to the flower extracts. So it might properly be said that it is a wise flower that knows its own perfume.

The annual tax sales for unpaid taxes for the year of 1910 and previous years will be held at the County Treasurer's office in Charlevoix next Tuesday, May 10th.

G. G. Thora, residing on his farm in Echo township, met with a painful accident last Saturday afternoon. He was working in a hay-mow and in jumping from one part to another, struck a pitch fork, one of the tines entering near the hip and burying itself nearly six inches, striking the hip-bone. Physicians were summoned from East Jordan and the wound dressed.

A petition was circulated among our business houses this week, and freely signed by the proprietors, pledging to close their stores each evening at six o'clock standard time except on Saturday nights and pay-days. This is a commendable move on the part of our merchants and should be faithfully adhered to. The average store-keeper and his help puts in more tedious hours of labor than any of our citizens and the evenings, as a whole, should be devoted to rest and recreation. The new plan will probably take effect May 10th.

The people gathered about the depot early last evening awaiting the departure of the 7:25 train were surprised to see Mrs. Florence Lutz, deliberately pick up a suit-case belonging to another lady and boldly walk off down the street in the direction of her husband's upholstering shop. Witnesses of the act attempted to call her back, but she paid no heed and they were obliged to follow her. Upon learning that her act had been detected and that she was being followed, she would-be pilferer looked about for a place of concealment. By this time, however, Officer Bentley had arrived and after an exciting scene and much resistance on the woman's part, succeeded in getting her into the city jail, where she spent the night. The arrest was made on a charge of grand larceny and the prisoner appeared before Judge Hammond this morning, waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court, with a bond fixed at $500, which as yet she has been unable to procure. Early this morning W. M. Lutz, husband of Florence Lutz, was arrested by Chief of Police Madden on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He is lodged in the jail today and will be arraigned in court tomorrow.—Thursday's Boyne City Journal.

School Entertainment

"One Day's Fun," at Temple Theatre, Friday, May 9th.

The pupils of the third grade of the Central School, under the direction of their teacher, Miss Alice Eaton, have in preparation an entertainment entitled "One Day's Fun." It is a musical play in three acts representing the trials and experiences of a single day of a family of children who have been left in care of their grandmother and the servants, during the absence of the parents. The songs are original and very pretty, the dialogue lively and plenty of dramatic action is introduced. Songs between the acts will keep things moving.

The proceeds of this entertainment will be added to the Educational Building Fund of the County Fair. The public are cordially invited to enjoy a pleasant evening and at the same time contribute to the building fund.

Prices of admission are 15c, 20c and 25c. Children under 12 accompanied by adults 10c. Seats may be reserved at Mack's.

6:45 Epworth League. Rev. Johns who took charge of the League service last Sunday and gave such a good address on prayer will have charge next Sunday night. You are wanted at this service.

7:30 "The Good Samaritan." This is one of the well known parables of our Lord, a parable given in answer to the question "Who is my neighbor?" Remember that these services are held for your benefit. Have you united with a church yet? The pastor will read the church letters that he has received next Sunday night.

Presbyterian Church Notes

Rev. A. D. Grigsby, Pastor.

"O come let us worship and bow down; let us kneel before the Lord, our maker. Know ye that the Lord is God; it is he that hath made us and not we ourselves; we are his people and the sheep of his pasture."

Let us then who believe in God and the need of public worship, and in its humanizing and uplifting influences meet on Sunday morning at 10:30 and evening at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Church. The Pastor will preach and expects to meet his many friends and parishioners.

Bible School at close of morning worship. Subject of the lesson Joseph interprets Dreams. Your attendance in Bible school is desired and urged especially the teachers are urged to be there without fail or to provide efficient substitutes.

Things have changed since Hannah died. Women are not satisfied with just a suit; coat or dress. It's a matter of style with the fashionable woman of today.

This store has long ago ceased to buy ordinary garments, and has turned all its energy to the 20th century way of garment merchandising—the showing and selling of the exclusive.

Tailored After Uncommon Fashion

One store excels, its nearly always so in every city. Weisman's store shows vastly greater assortments of women's dresses and children's garments than any other store in this section, and because of its policy to show only the distinctive apparel.

NEED TRAINING
Too Many Teachers Can Only Experiment Upon the Children

Michigan's greatest need for developing more efficient teaching in the public schools is more trained teachers. While most cities and an increasing number of the villages are making normal training a requisite for their teachers, there are many district boards which believe a third grade certificate is sufficient. Not infrequently these holders of a third grade certificate have had no further schooling than the eighth grade.

Next month in every county in the state examinations will be conducted for those who desire to teach. Probably more than a thousand young men and women will receive third grade certificates. Without a day's experience or training whatever this regiment of young people will begin to experiment on the boys and girls of Michigan. Most of them will go into the rural districts though it would be safe to estimate that more than half of them have never spent even a half day inside of a country school.

Lack of training, lack of knowledge concerning the country and often lack of sympathy with it on the part of teachers not only make failures of many, who otherwise might become good teachers, but they make the schools inefficient and hinder the proper development of the boys and girls. They also constitute one of the reasons why so many of the children lose interest and leave school before their education is completed.

Beware of a suspicious man; he's apt to judge you by himself.

It sometimes happens that a deaf mute is not highly educated, but what he knows he has at his fingers' ends.

A man living at Auburn, New York had a severe attack of kidney and bladder trouble. Being a working man, not wanting to lose time, he cured himself completely by using Foley Kidney Pills. A year later he says: "It is a pleasure to report that the cure was permanent." His name is J. A. Farmer. Hites Drug Store.

WHERE NO WOMAN MAY TREAD

A GROUP OF MONKS

RUSSICO (THE GREAT RUSSIAN MONASTERY)

AT VALOPEDI

XENOPHOLI

SINOPELTA

It was reported recently that the ambassadors of the powers had decided that Mount Athos was to be regarded as an independent ecclesiastical republic. Mount Athos, near the gulf of Saloniki, is a locality little known, but it is one of the most interesting in the world. On the end of a peninsula jutting into the Aegean sea, the mountain shoots up more than 6,000 feet, and its peak of white limestone is a landmark for many miles out to sea. The old Greek legend was that the giant Athos hurled this mountain at the gods upon Olympus, but that it dropped back and fell at the edge of the sea.

The entire peninsula, of which Mount Athos forms the southernmost point, is about forty miles long and from four to seven miles in width, cut by numerous ravines and by long arms of the sea. The narrow isthmus which connects the mountain with the main peninsula was cut by a canal built by Xerxes when he came to invade Greece, and traces of the canal are still visible, though it has long since become dry land. The slopes of Mount Athos have for many centuries been the home of monks and hermits of the Greek church. Most of the monasteries which cling to the steep slopes of the mountain were founded by Byzantine emperors; one of the oldest, the monastery of St. Laura, has been in existence since 968. There are still several thousand monks living upon the mountain, supporting themselves by tilling hillside farms and living very much as their predecessors did a thousand years ago.

In 1,500 years no woman has been allowed to set foot on Athos. Few travelers ever come to Athos; it lies out of the beaten track of travel, and the monks would not welcome intruders. Since the fall of the Byzantine empire and Constantinople, in 1452, Athos has been nominally under Turkish rule. The Turks, however, have been liberal in their treatment of the Greek Catholic monks, and have permitted them practically to govern themselves. A council composed of representatives of the several monasteries has maintained law and order in the colony.

The comparatively few English and European travelers who have ever been to Athos unite in enthusiastic praise of the natural beauties of the place. The steep sides of the mountains are heavily wooded with huge oak and chestnut trees, while here and there pine and cypress give a touch of deeper color. The roads wind in and out along the mountain side, frequently affording glimpses of the deep blue sea which frets at Athos' feet.

Through the Middle Ages the Athos monasteries were the treasure houses in which much of the learning and culture of the Greeks was preserved to the world. The monks must have spent a world of time patiently copying the works of the old masters, and the libraries of Athos, even today, contain much that is fascinating to the antiquarian and the booklover. But the monks themselves have fallen into sad ignorance; the libraries of the monasteries are little used and some of them have been permitted to go completely to rack.

At Mount Athos, according to legend, the Virgin Mary and St. Thomas were wrecked and then miraculously saved; and since that day of grace no female foot has been allowed to tread the peninsula of Athos; indeed, since the eleventh century no female animals whatever have been permitted there. It is said that the only exception ever made to this rule in the last five hundred years was in favor of Lady Stratford de Redcliffe, and it is kept so strictly that not only must the whole population be masculine, but hens even may not live on the rock, hence all the eggs, of which a great number are consumed, are imported. The population of the Holy Mountain, called generally "The Garden of the Mother of God," is between six and seven thousand, made up of some three thousand monks and three or four thousand lay brothers. Most of the monks are Greeks, but there are also many Russians, a few Roumanians, and some Bulgarians, Servians and Georgians. The Turks respected the privileges of the monks, who submitted after the capture of Salonica and agreed to pay tribute. The republic has, up to this time, been directed by a council elected by the monasteries. The common seal of this council, which is divided into quarters for that purpose, is in the custody of the four senior members. Mount Athos, the second most holy place in eastern Christendom, is at the extremity of the peninsula of Athos, the easternmost peninsula of Chalcedia in Macedonia, which projects into the Aegean sea and is connected with the mainland by a narrow isthmus, which was pierced by a canal during the invasion of Xerxes. The monasteries are scattered over the entire peninsula. A most interesting account of a visit to Mount Athos is contained in a book written in 1837 by an Englishman, Robert Curzon, who went book hunting to the mountain. Speaking of a visit to one monkish library, he wrote:

"The library I found to be in a dark closet near the entrance of the church. It had been locked up for many years, but the agoumenos (head of the monastery) made no difficulty in breaking the old-fashioned padlock by which the door was fastened. I found upon the ground and upon some of the broken-down shelves about 400 to 500 volumes, chiefly printed books, but among them now and then I stumbled upon a manuscript. Of these there were about thirty on vellum, and fifty or sixty on paper. I picked up a single loose leaf of very ancient uncial Greek characters, part of the Gospel of St. Matthew. I made bold to ask for this single leaf as a thing of small value.

"Certainly," said the agoumenos, "what do you want it for?" My servant suggested that perhaps it might be useful to cover some jam pots or vases of preserves which I had at home. "Oh!" said the agoumenos, "take some more," and without more ado he seized upon an unfortunate thick quarto manuscript of the Acts and Epistles and, drawing out a knife, cut an inch thickness of leaves at the end before I could stop him. It proved to be the Apocalypse, which concluded the volume, but which is rarely found in early Greek manuscripts of the Acts. It was of the eleventh century. I asked him if he would sell me any of the other books, and he said certainly; they were of no use to him.

One monk whom Curzon talked with in the course of his journey round the mountain could never remember having seen a woman. He asked the Englishman whether they all looked like the pictures of the Virgin Mary. Curzon had an amusing experience with the agoumenos of another monastery. He tells it thus:

"The agoumenos declared his willingness to show me everything the monastery contained. "But first," said he, "I wish to present you with something excellent for your breakfast."

"So I expressed my thanks for the kind hospitality of my Lord Abbot, and he, sitting down opposite me on the divan, proceeded to prepare his dish. "This," said he, "producing a shallow basin half full of a white paste, is the principal and most savory part of this famous dish; it is composed of cloves of garlic, pounded down with a certain quantity of sugar. With it I will now mix the oil in just proportions, some shreds of fine cheese and sundry other nice little condiments; and now it is completed."

"Now," said the agoumenos, "crumbling some bread into it with his large and somewhat dirty hands, 'this is a dish for an emperor. Eat, my friend, my much respected guest; do not be shy."

"My servant saved me at last; he said that English gentlemen never ate such rich dishes for breakfast, from religious feelings he believed, but requested that it might be put by and was sure I should like it very much later in the day."

Mount Athos has seen few changes in the last 100 years. Except for an earthquake, which did some damage to the monasteries in 1905, the country is much as it was when Curzon visited it in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign. But the proposed republic which is to be founded there upon the downfall of Turkey may bring about a great awakening in the "sacred mountain."

BEAUTIES OF THE SOUTH

The world is just awakening to the fact that South American women are beautiful and fascinating and that the palm for charm and loveliness is fast being wrested from their North American sisters. Perhaps the most beautiful of all these new beauties come from Argentina; the land of surprises and wonders, and they seem to have found what Ponce de Leon sought further north—the fountain of youth.

The Argentine women dress better, look better and have finer manners than any other women in the world. They are enchanting creatures, and even now Europe is learning of their great charm and beauty. They are fond of home life and make ideal mothers, although they are not domestic to a sordid degree. They are as fond of society as the women of the United States, only they are absolutely without the faintest trace of snobbishness, which is probably due to their breeding. They are wonderfully well informed and well bred women, and strangely enough their social obligations are never such as to interfere with their home life.

They are a pleasure-loving people, fond of music, drama and entertainment. The latest styles are brought over from Paris, which is responsible for the introduction of the first artists of Europe, who are frequently heard in Buenos Ayres before they come to the United States. The people of Argentina make less of their three weeks' sail to France than we do of our one week's sail. They are very fond of Paris, and adopt more customs and manners from the French than from Americans or English.

The South American woman is becoming a great factor abroad. She has attracted the attention of shopkeepers, for she is as rich as the North American and even more lavish with her money and grace, for she has no duty to pay on her purchases and spends her millions with an open hand. She loves rich and beautiful things; and wears her clothes well with a great deal of dash and splendor, so that the great modistes and milliners have been turned away from the North American beauty and her scolding purchases because of her duties and pouring all their amiability upon the belles from Argentina and Brazil, and even Chile. For oh, they are rich! And they are growing richer with their mines and vast herds of cattle and sheep and their rubber and coffee plantations, their new railroads and real estate deals, and all sorts of other enterprises that make for sudden and vast wealth in new countries.

The rich South American woman makes Paris her playground. One rarely finds her in London. She does not like England or the English, but Paris and the French people just suit her, as she, like them, is of the Latin race, with all the warmth and gaiety of such people.

It is so with many other sphinxes.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

BREAKING OUT ON LEG

Hilltop, Kan.—"About two years ago I began to notice a breaking out on my leg. At first it was very small but soon it began to spread until it formed large blotches. The itching was terrible and almost constant. Many nights I could not sleep at all. After scratching it to relieve the itching it would burn so dreadfully that I thought I could not stand it. For nearly a year I tried all kinds of salves and ointment, but found no relief. Some salves seemed to make it worse until there were ugly sores, which would break open and run.

"One day I saw an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies. I got a sample of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment and began by washing the sores with the Cuticura Soap, then applying the Cuticura Ointment twice a day. I noticed a change and got more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few weeks I was cured. It has healed so nicely that no scar remains." (Signed) Mrs. Anna A. Lew, Dec. 17, 1911.

A CLERGYMAN'S TESTIMONY.

The Rev. Edmund Heslop of Wighton, Pa., suffered from Dropsy for a year. His limbs and feet were swollen and puffed. He had heart fluttering, was dizzy and exhausted at the least exertion. Hands and feet were cold and he had such a dragging sensation across the joints that it was difficult to move.

After using boxes of Dodds Kidney Pills the swelling disappeared and he felt himself again. He says he has been benefited and blessed by the use of Dodds Kidney Pills. Several months later he wrote: "I have not changed my faith in your remedy since the above statement was authorized." Correspond with Rev. E. Heslop about this wonderful remedy.

Western Michigan

A Region that is Rapidly Developing as a Fruit Growing and General Farming Section

ALFALFA GROWING IN MUSKOGON COUNTY.
A conservative estimate of the alfalfa acreage of western Michigan places the total figure at 6,000 acres. This is an average of 300 acres for each one of the twenty counties. Some of the counties fall far below the average and others go considerably above the figure. Emmet county, the northernmost of the twenty, has an estimated acreage of 800. Alfalfa as a forage crop is well established in Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Muskegon, Newaygo and Wexford counties; and is increasing in popularity in the other counties. There is enough lime in most of the western Michigan soils to cause the plant to thrive. The annual yield from the three cuttings which are made after the first season, runs from three to five tons an acre. The above scene is on the farm of O. F. Marvin at Holton, in Muskegon county. The yield in 1912 for the first cutting was 10 tons 750 pounds from four acres.

MICHIGAN APPLE BEST MEANS MUCH TO THE FARMER

Farm Management Work Under Federal Supervision to Be Carried on in Western Michigan.

Farm management work under federal supervision will be carried on in no less than seven of the Western Michigan counties the coming season. A federal agent is already at work in Kent and the arrangements are nearly completed for an agent for Newaygo county. The supervisors of Mecosta county have made an appropriation to get the work started in that county. In Anamir and Mason counties crop improvement associations have been formed and funds are being collected to meet the initial expenses. The call has been issued for a meeting of the public spirited men of Charlevoix county for the purpose of completing an organization that will take the matter in hand and do that which is necessary in order to get an agent at work by the time the frost is out of the ground. In Oceana county the subject has been laid before the board of supervisors with the expectation of favorable action.

The first farm management agent to be sent into Western Michigan by the federal department of agriculture was M. J. Thompson, who was located at Manistee. He was given ten counties reaching from Muskegon to Grand Traverse to look after. He began work about the first of last May and has been on the jump ever since. The summer was spent in studying the territory and carrying on field investigations during the day time and with meetings in the evening. For the winter season he has been most of the time speaking morning, afternoon and night.

A second district man was sent into Western Michigan late in the fall, namely, Charles F. Reed, who has his office at East Lansing and has a territory that reaches from Montcalm county to Charlevoix.

"Back to Farm" Campaign
Commercial Associations of Western Michigan Take Steps to Help the Movement.

The various commercial associations of Western Michigan are arranging to help along the "back to the farm" campaign. The Grand Rapids Association of Commerce has established the department of Western Michigan for the special purpose of aiding in the development of the agricultural lands of Kent county. This department expects to issue printed matter descriptive of the lands around Grand Rapids and to do its best to interest prospective farmers in the opportunities open to those who are not afraid of honest hard work.

The Muskegon chamber of commerce has created an agricultural department with Louis P. Haight as chairman. Nine suggestions have already been made by the chairman and only need the approval of the entire chamber of commerce to put them in force. Among the suggestions are: publish map of county showing improved and unimproved lands and stating the agricultural value of each, make exhibits of farm products, publish photographs, gather farm statistics, establish an experiment farm, establish a land bureau for those who have farms for sale and a labor bureau for those needing labor.

Surveying the Manistee.
What is taken to be a final and reliable profile survey on the Manistee river is now being made, iron posts with flags marking the points. The several lines extend a mile each way from the stream, and the inference is drawn that this marks the beginning of the final preparations for the construction of dams and the utilization of the enormous amount of horse power now going to waste.

Instructive Lectures.
The western Michigan development bureau now has three illustrated lectures, which it is prepared to give on suitable occasions. The titles of these lectures are: "Western Michigan, the Land of Fruit and Fortune," "Road Building in Western Michigan," and "Western Michigan, a Summer and Health Resort." The first lecture is descriptive of the wonderful western Michigan country and its resources; the second tells the story of the campaign for better wagon roads, and the third makes it clear that this is the best part of the world to be in so far as health and pleasure are concerned.

LITTLE GIRL GOOD AS THIEF CATCHER

Hangs to Burglar Who Posed as Gas Man.

COURT COMMENDS HER

Robber Had Entered Apartment Through Cellar Door and Was Just Taking Stock of the Jewels When Frightened Away by Child.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Helen Scully catches burglars. Inside of a year she's caught three, and a magistrate told her before a whole court full of admirers the other day that she might if she chose be a successful policeman when she grows up. For Helen is only twelve.

Helen's aunt, Mrs. H. J. Parsells, with whom the little girl lives at 421 Third street, had gone out leaving the apartment empty. Helen came in a little later from school. When she got to her own door a strange man walked out in a hurry. He told Helen that it was all right, that he was the gas man.

The girl thought that was strange, for the gas man had called on them only that morning. When she looked at the door and saw that it had been forced open and went in and found her aunt's jewel case lying in the front hall she marched right out again and downstairs and grabbed the visitor by his coat tails. He assured her that he was all he said he was and just to prove it volunteered to go back to the apartment.

He wanted Helen to go upstairs first, but Helen remembering her experiences with other burglars hung back and when they were half way upstairs again darted into an apartment on the third floor.

Mrs. L. L. Lax lives there and into her startled ear Helen poured the news that she had a burglar outside. As soon as the man missed Helen he turned and ran downstairs. Helen was right behind him. When he got to the street the child shrieked at the top of her voice, "Catch thief!" and in a moment the whole block was aroused. Through Fifth avenue to Second street went the procession, with Helen leading the pursuit and making enviable Down Second Street the Man Darted. Down Second street the man darted and into the arms of a policeman, who had run up.

Helen went around to the police station and there identified her quarry as the man who had walked out of her front door.

In the Butler street police court Magistrate Handy held Helen's burglar in $5,000 bail for examination. "Helen," said he, as the small girl stood up very straight before him, "I want to take this opportunity to congratulate you, for I may not have the pleasure of seeing you again. You have shown nerve that puts a lot of older persons to shame."

The burglar had entered the apartment house through a cellar door in the rear. He had jimmied his way into Mrs. Parsell's apartments and was just taking stock of her jewels when Helen came along and frightened him. They found his jimmy in the hall and several of Mrs. Parsell's diamonds scattered about through the apartment. The man got nothing, however. Six months ago Helen assisted in much the same way in the capture of two burglars who had stolen some jewelry from a house across the street.

GIRL SUFFERED TERRIBLY

At Regular Intervals—Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured her.

Adrian, Texas.—"I take pleasure in adding my testimonial to the great list and hope that it will be of interest to suffering women. For four years I suffered untold agonies at regular intervals. Such pains and cramps, severe chills and sickness at stomach, then finally hemorrhages until I would be nearly blind. I had five doctors and none of them could do more than relieve me for a time.

"I saw your advertisement in a paper and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took seven boxes of it and used two bottles of the Sanative Wash, and I am completely cured of my trouble. When I began taking the Compound I only weighed ninety-six pounds and now I weigh one hundred and twenty-six pounds. If anyone wishes to address me in person I will cheerfully answer all letters, as I cannot speak too highly of the Pinkham remedies."—Miss JESSIE MARSH, Adrian, Texas.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

RESINOL RELIEVED

ITCHING INSTANTLY

And Completely Cured Skin Humors.

If you have eczema or any other itching, burning skin trouble, the best evidence of what Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment can do for you is the word of one who was cured by them after weeks of suffering. Adolph Schoon, 742 Shepherd Ave., Brooklyn, writes: "Nov. 1, 1912.—"At first little red spots were seen on my arms and body, which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I stood up all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks, during which time I used _____, which seemed to do me no good whatever. Then, finally, I thought of trying Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times, I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away, and in about a month I was cured completely."

The soothing, healing balsams in Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, penetrate every tiny pore of the skin, clearing it of all impurities, driving away eczema, rashes, ringworm, psoriasis, and other eruptions, and making pimples and blackheads impossible. Prescribed by physicians for eighteen years. For free samples write to Dept. B, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment (50c) and Resinol Soap (25c), or sent by parcel post on receipt of price.

Guard Your Children

Against Bowel Trouble

Many children at an early age become constipated, and frequently serious consequences result. Not being able to realize his own condition, a child's bowels should be constantly watched, and a gentle laxative given when necessary. Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are especially well adapted to women and children. The Sisters of Christian Charity, 531 Charles St., Luzerne, Pa., who attend many cases of sickness say of them:

"Some time ago we began using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets and find that we like them very much. Their action is excellent and we are grateful for having been made acquainted with them. We have had good results in every case and the Sisters are very much pleased."

The form and flavor of any medicine is very important, no matter who is to take it. The taste and appearance are especially important when children are concerned. All parents know how hard it is to give the average child "medicine," even though the taste is partially disguised. In using Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, however, this difficulty is overcome. The shape of the tablets, their appearance and candy-like taste at once appeal to any child, with the result that they are taken without objection.

The rich, chocolate flavor and absence of other taste, make Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets the ideal remedy for children.

If the first box fails to benefit, the price is refunded. Ask your druggist. A box of 25 doses costs only 25 cents. Never sold in bulk. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

ARE ONLY WON BY PATIENCE

Things Best Worth Having in Life Be long to Those Who Can Wait to Conquer.

It is always costly to raise money on expectations. It is the same with many advantages we secure in life. We saddle the future with the debts of today, because we are too impatient to wait. It is patience that brings us whatever is best worth having. Maturity and strength of character are won by waiting. They cannot be forced up in a day. It is the mature man who comes and sees and conquers, because he has ripened and he is ready for action. The man who fails is almost always the man who has not been patient.

Yet it seems tame counsel to advise people to wait. The young especially are apt to think that they can go forth and possess the world. They believe in a sudden raid, a quick seizing. They think it both tedious and weak to delay. They tell themselves that success is for him who can grasp it. They reach for it too eagerly and fall heavily to earth.

It is never wise to envy another person the things that are won easily. If we covet anything at all, it should be those things that are won with slow patience, fruits of ripe and mature growth, fabrics raised carefully on a secure foundation. These things, though we may well covet them, are the gifts that we may win. They may be difficult, but they are always possible. Patience is their condition, and patience in proportion to their value. Being worth much, they cost much, and yet their price is always within our means.—Arthur S. Salmon.

DANGER FROM GRIPPE

Lies in That Cough and Weak, Worn-out Condition.

Grippe, pleurisy, pneumonia, these are greatly to be feared at this time of the year.

To prevent grippe from being followed by either pleurisy or pneumonia, it is important to drive the last traces of it out of the system quickly.

Our advice is to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil, and get your strength and vitality back quickly.

Mrs. A. A. Grabbitz, of Strasburg, Va. says: "Grippe left me weak, run down and with a severe cough, from which I suffered four years. I tried different remedies, but nothing seemed to do me any good until I took Vinol, from which I received great benefit. My cough is almost entirely gone, and I am strong and well again, and I am glad to recommend Vinol to others who suffer as I did."

Try Vinol with the certainty that if it does not benefit you we will give back your money. P. S. For children's Eczema, Saxo Salve is guaranteed truly wonderful.

Transplanted Rubber Trees Thrive.

Experiments covering a number of years in transplanting rubber trees from the original stock seem now to have justified the efforts of the growers. The former supply came almost entirely from the district bordering the Amazon and its feeders, but in recent years transplanting has been practiced on a rather large scale, the original stock having been taken from the old rubber districts and cultivated in portions of Brazil remote from the big river. One company, during the last year, gathered 193,750 pounds of rubber, compared with 41,983 pounds in 1910. The estimate for the current year is 325,000 pounds, all of which comes from the interior, far from the Amazon.—Popular Mechanics.

Cribs for the Baby Guests.

Among the luxuries, comforts and conveniences nowadays provided by the great hotel are cribs for the baby guests. Even in the finest hotels these are a comparatively recent addition to the house equipment. Up to about five years ago when a separate bed was required for a baby's use a cot was put into the room and many persons traveling for the first time with a baby still ask for a cot. They are agreeably surprised when informed that a crib can be supplied if desired. In a big hotel there may now be kept ready for use a dozen cribs in the care of the housekeeper; cribs simple but of the latest style of construction, ready to be sent whenever they are wanted.

WELCOMED AN OLD FRIEND

John Burroughs Wrote of Pleasure Experienced on Hearing the Skylark in Honolulu.

One of my pleasant surprises in Honolulu—one that gave the touch of nature which made me feel less a stranger there, was learning that the European skylark had been introduced and was thriving on the grassy slopes back of the city. The mina, a species of starling from India as large as our robin and rather showily dressed, with a loud, strident voice, I had seen and heard everywhere both in town and country, but he was a stranger and did not appeal to me. Yet the thought of the skylark brought Shelley and Wordsworth, and English downs and meadows, near to me at once, and I was eager to hear it. So early one morning we left Pleasanton, our tarrying place, and climbed the long, pastoral slope above the city, where cattle and horses were grazing, and listened for this minstrel from the motherland. We had not long to wait. Sure enough, not far from us there sprang from the turf Shelley's bird, and went climbing his invisible spiral toward the sky, pouring out those hurried, ecstatic notes, just as I had heard him above the South Downs of England. It was a moment of keen delight to me. The bird soared and hovered, drifting about, as it were, before the impetuous current of his song, with all the joy and abandon with which the poets have credited him. It was like a bit of English literature vocal in the air there above these alien scenes. Presently another went up, and then another, the singers behaving in every respect as they do by the Avon and the Tweed, and for a moment I breathed the air that Wordsworth and Shelley breathed.—From "Holidays in Hawaii," by John Burroughs, in the Century.

BREAKING IT TO HIM GENTLY

Naval Officers Knew Just How to Treat Officious Lawyer Who Was "Butting In."

Courts martial are not infrequently held on battleships in the Charlestown navy yard. Sometimes a sailor will send for a Boston attorney to defend him, although this tendency is discouraged by the officers. Most attorneys know they have no absolute right to practice in a naval court, and can do so only by permission of the court, but occasionally a lawyer goes aboard who does not realize this fact. A sailor who was charged with gambling had retained an attorney to get him off. This attorney, who had never had such a case before, went briskly into the officers' wardrobe, where the court was sitting, and without waiting on ceremony began to address the court in a blustering manner. "Just a minute," interrupted the presiding officer. "Who are you?" "I am Mr. Rudolph Smithers," the attorney replied, "and I am a member of the Massachusetts bar." "Oh, you are Mr. Smithers, are you?" continued the officer. "Then you are the man whom the orderly wants to see." He called the orderly. "What does the orderly want of me?" asked the attorney in a superior tone. "Nothing very much," replied the chief justice; "he merely wants to show you off the ship."

Some Hand for a Sick Man.

A certain man stayed out much later at night than his wife liked, and as he would never tell her where he had been she got their little boy to ask him. One morning at breakfast the youngster said, "Dad, where wuz yer last night?" "Never mind where I was," answered the father. "But," insisted the boy, "where wuz yer?" "Well, if you must know, I was sitting up with a sick friend." "Oh, did yer sick friend die?" "What an absurd question! Of course he didn't die!" "Oh, but did you hold your sick friend's hand?" "No," answered the father, "how foolish you are. Of course I didn't." And then he added, with a far away look in his eyes, "I wish to heaven I had. He held four axes!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Salaried Cat.

The only salaried cat in the United States, so far as one can find out, has just died in New Orleans, and was given a proper burial. This was Old Tom, who for years had been carried on the board of trade as official rat catcher, with a salary of ten cents a day, and was never discharged, though in his later years he was as reluctant as any other veteran office holder to get busy. But he had no enemies except of the feline sort, and his framed picture is to adorn the directors' room at the board of trade.—Springfield Republican.

NO NEED TO WASTE MONEY

Father's Common Sense Answer Should Have Driven Nonsense From the Mind of Son.

A certain well known actor—an established star of the first magnitude, in fact—has a son who has always given on the father a great deal of trouble. Despite his inherited talent, which would insure him permanent employment on the stage, the son shows a fondness for living on the income of his parent. He can see no reason why both of them should work.

One time the father got tired of advancing money to the son. An arrangement had been threatening for a long time. Finally, the father sealed the climax when, in response to a written "touch" for $50, he sent the boy a $5 note, with the added advice that that was the last money he should ever advance to him. To this threat the son sent the following answer:

"If you do not send me the $50 I requested I'll use this $5 in the purchase of a revolver and blow my brains out." The father, in reply to this tragic note, sent back this one: "I have told you time and again that you will have to quit wasting my money on useless luxuries. Don't spend that $5 for a revolver. Come up to the house and I'll lend you mine."

WHY ERMINE FUR IS COSTLY

Process of Trapping the Animal is Peculiar One, and Entails Hardship on the Trapper.

"This stole of Imperial ermine is worth $1,000," said the dealer. "Dear? Nix. Just consider how the animals comprised in it were caught!"

In the first place, they were caught in a winter of extreme cold, for it is only in such a winter that the weasel, or ermine, turns from tawny to snow white. In normal winters the ermine only turns to a greenish white—like this $400 greenish white stole here.—In the second place, the ermine were caught young; for, when fully developed, their coat is coarse and stiff—as in this $250 stole—and to catch them young, the tongue trap must be used. Any other trap would tear the delicate fur.

The tongue trap is a knife, an ordinary hunting-knife smeared with grease, that the hunter lays in the snow. The little ermine sees the blade, which it mistakes for ice. Ice it loves to lick—and so it licks the knife blade—and is caught fast, its tongue, in that zero weather, frozen to the steel.

Yes, sir, when you see a stole like this, don't begrudge a good price for it; for every ermine in it was tongue-trapped in subzero weather, a mighty slow and painful hard process."

Good Conversation.

I heard someone planning a luncheon lately, and she said she'd selected her topics—what the people would talk about. She said she intended to "keep the ball rolling." Not a dull minute. Everything—spicy and sparkling and bubbling. Talk about one thing and then about another. Ring the bell and change the course. Press the button beneath the table and bring on your spicy story, as the maid brings on the salad. Lord! Lord! what a luncheon that must have been! Who, alas, can be spicy to order? Or bubble or sparkle or be brilliant or even bright? These gifts are of the gods. Sometimes we are—and some times we are not, but it's a cinch that none of us are brilliant when we try to be. Good conversation consists in talk spontaneous. It has its source in a full mind and a full heart. Do I hear some one saying, "And in a full glass?" Ah, but even the full glass brings out in talk only the native wealth or poverty of the talker. I'm sure that must have been an awful luncheon.—New York Press.

Gambling Profits.

M. Empereur shows what huge fortunes have been made by running licensed gambling tables, says a Paris letter to London Truth. Three brothers, who ran for thirty years the casinos of Coburg, Aix-les-Bains and Pau, have netted $20,000,000. One of them was a coachman, another a cook and the third one a groom. The present lessee of the gambling tables of the Bellevue and Municipal casinos of Biarritz is a former public house keeper. He clears $20,000 a year and is worth $1,200,000. At a small casino like that of Dinan the lessee, a former cafe waiter, still quite a young man, has put by $20,000.

No man is born as free and equal as a hired girl.

This Interests Every Woman. A family doctor said recently that women come to him thinking that they have female trouble, but when he treats them for their kidneys and bladder, they soon recover. This is worth knowing, and also that Foley's Kidney Pills are the best and safest medicine at such times. They are tonic in action, quick in results. They will help you. Hites Drug Store.
