Murder At Harbor Springs

Mrs. Orville Ferguson Kills Husband and Commits Suicide.

As he stood before the dresser in the sleeping room, apparently in the act of changing his collar, Mrs. Orville Ferguson of Harbor Springs shot her husband in the temple, Monday night. Ferguson dropped to the floor, dying in a few moments. As he lay dying his wife lay down on the bed and fired two shots into her temple, killing herself instantly. The bodies were discovered by their fourteen year old daughter Velma.

Mr. Ferguson, aged 33, was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Ferguson, and had resided in Harbor Springs all his life. At the time of his death he was freight cashier of the G. R. & I. railroad and had held the position of Village Clerk.

It is thought that Mrs. Ferguson committed the crime while insane from jealousy.

The funeral was held Thursday.

LUMBER JACKS IN TROUBLE

Jump Jobs at Boyne Falls and Go To Charlevoix Jail.

Swift justice was meted out by W. A. Davoll Thursday afternoon to seven Chicago men who jumped their jobs while employed by Cobbs & Mitchell. Their schemes to beat the company out of money advanced for their transportation ended with jail sentences.

A bunch of laborers was brought in from Chicago Wednesday morning. They were taken to camp by J. W. Locke, foreman, who had a special breakfast prepared for them.

"Turn to boys and have a good sleep," said Locke, when the travelers had eaten heartily.

The bunch "hit the straw" and did not wake up until supper time. Then they had another good meal and more sleep.

Breakfast over Thursday morning, orders were issued for the men to get busy on railroad construction. Some of the boys didn't relish the idea of building road and seven of them promptly went on strike. Arrived at Boyne Falls they bought tickets for Gaylord. As they were about to board the train, the seven were arrested and brought before Justice Davoll. He read act No. 106, laws of 1903, which covered their case in which they were attempting to defraud the lumber company out of $7.50 advanced for their transportation. The court scene ended with the justice imposing a sentence of 30 days in the county jail. The trip to Charlevoix was started late Thursday and now they are booked under the sheriff's care.—Boyne City Journal.

RURAL Y. M. C. A. MEET

Held at East Jordan Last Saturday Afternoon.

South Arm and Eveline township schools held a field meet in this city last Saturday, the 17th.

Ernest Peaslee's school, Eveline No. 2, and Mr. E. Murray's, South Arm No. 7, were the only schools participating but considering the fact that the work is absolutely new in the county this "meet" was a success. August Leu and Ralph Gaunt, both of Eveline No. 2, were the only Honor Standard winners and Ralph Gaunt scored the highest number of points. A similar contest will be held on school day, Sept. 11th, at the County Fair.

Prof. D'Ooge, of the Michigan State Normal college, Ypsilanti, who has come to Charlevoix for a number of years as a resort, thought so well of this county for agricultural and horticultural possibilities, that he purchased the 40-acre Grandy farm on Pine lake. His son arrived here recently and bought an outfit for farming and is now located on the place. Prof. D'Ooge paid $1,000 for the farm. It is a nice property.

A worthless dog unremittingly demonstrates how faithful a nuisance can be.

A critic by any other name would be a knocker just the same.

Won Prizes.

East Jordan School Pupils Write Good Compositions.

In the contest recently inaugurated by the Grand Rapids News in the Junior News Department, Theresa Flagg, a pupil of the sixth grade, is the winner of the first prize. The schools of western Michigan are invited to contribute selected school compositions, the work of pupils from the fifth grade up. Grades five and six constitute one class, grades seven and eight another, and the high school the third class; pupils in three classes compete with others of their class. The prize for the best essay or story is a framed picture; for the second best a button with "Honorable Mention." In the first class Theresa Flagg wins first prize in the first weeks contest; in the second class Olive Brandt of the eighth grade wins the second honors. The stories of Mildred Miles of the seventh grade and Will Shepard of the eighth grade were also awarded buttons and printed in the Junior News. The subject of the stories assigned is "My Summer-time Friends." We give herewith the stories of our two winners and we congratulate them upon the distinction they have won for themselves as well as for our schools.

Through Fairyland.

I was walking in the woods and was very tired, when pretty soon I sat down to rest.

A fairy came and changed me into a child no larger than your thumb. The fairy said, "Follow me," and I did so.

We wandered around through the woods until dark, then we went to the church. Jennie Wren, Cook Robin and Mr. Oriole, Mr. Thrush and Mr. Lark were to sing in the choir.

Fireflies furnished light, Mr. Spider tolled the bell and Mr. Owl acted as deacon.

The church was very beautiful and had a green carpet and was situated under a Hawthorn bush.

The Violet family, Johnny Jump-up Brown-eyed Susan, Ox-eyed Daisy, Adder-tongues and many others were present to hear Jack-in-the-pulpit preach the sermon.

The fairy introduced me to these woodland inhabitants, and I made friends with them, and I shall always love them dearly.

Jack-in-the-pulpit finished his sermon and the choir were singing their sweetest when suddenly I was awakened by someone calling me. It was my brother in search of me, for I had been gone all the afternoon and it was growing dark.

I was very sorry that it was only a dream, for I was enjoying the evening.

They had not changed me a particle for I had only dreamed it all.

But the next day and other days besides, I went out in the garden and meadow and woods also and learned the habits of birds, animals and plant life, and they grow to be, and always will be, my summertime friends.

Ben, The Bear.

About the month of May my friends Lyle and Vivian came to spend their vacation with me. We spent most of our time out of doors after flowers or else fishing.

Once while we were out fishing a big storm came up. We were some two or three miles from any house, it kept getting darker and darker until it grew so dark we could hardly see. We did not know which way to go nor which way we came.

We sat down on a log thinking the storm would soon be over, and it would become light again. As we sat there talking we heard the branches behind us crack and the rustling of leaves. Lyle got up and looked around and he could just see the dim outline of some large animal. We all sat quiet thinking that it would pass by without noticing us, but this indeed was a bad mistake. It came up to us and laid its head in Vivian's lap, it was then that we discovered it to be a large black dog.

By this time the storm had passed over and we started for home. The dog went with us. When we got home we called him "Ben."

A few days later Lyle and Vivian started for their home in Detroit, and in all the letters that they write they ask about "Ben" or "Their Summer-time Friend," as he is always called.

Memorial Day Proclamation.

Decoration and Memorial Day has come to mean more to the American people than any other day set apart for paying tribute to patriotism. It is a day that recalls sacred memories. These memories become more sacred with every added year, because the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic are becoming thinner and thinner. Those who are with us now will soon join the Grand Army of the Dead. To the earlier Decoration Days have been added new memories of thousands of Spanish American War veterans who laid down their lives for a more glorious America.

Let the people of Michigan make next Decoration Day the most beautiful in all her history. This should not be a day of recreation and amusement but rather a day for consecration. Flowers for the dead betoken a kindly spirit, but flowers for the living of the Grand Army of the Republic are an expression of love and valor.

The thirtieth of May is set apart for appropriate exercises in every school house and church in Michigan whereby our boys and girls may be encouraged to cherish an abiding love for both our heroic dead and living.

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby issue this my Proclamation and heartily urge the observance of Friday, May 30, 1913, as Decoration and Memorial Day.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this eighth day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, and of the Commonwealth the seventy seventh.

Well by the hen feathers on Cupid's dart, that man must be color blind in the palate. They tell us, those who have tried it, tastes like the double distilled essence of honey spread thick on a piece of pumpkin pie. Away back in the dim joyful years before we lost our teeth and our chin on the beauty prize, the prettiest girl in all the world told us with her own eyes that it felt like a covey of quail flying out of each ear and ended with a sensation like a flock of angels pouring molasses down one's back. ORDINANCE NO. 36.

An Ordinance to regulate the time when children under the age of fourteen years may be upon the public street, public alleys, or other open public place within the limits of the city of East Jordan, making it an obligation and duty on the part of the parents, guardians, and other legal custodians of such children to prevent children from being on said streets, alleys and public places within prohibited hours, making it a misdemeanor or for a violation of the provisions of the ordinance and fixing a penalty therefor.

The City of East Jordan ordains.

Section 1.

That it shall be unlawful for any child under the age of fourteen years, unaccompanied by his parent, legal guardian or custodian, to be upon any of the public streets, sidewalks, alleys school grounds, church grounds, or upon any other open public grounds, within the corporate limits of the City of East Jordan after the ringing of a curfew bell, or the giving of the curfew signal provided for in Section 1 of this Ordinance until the breaking of day the following morning. Provided; that nothing in this section contained shall be construed to prevent any child under the age fourteen years from being upon any of the street thoroughfares of the City upon any errand at the direction of the parent, guardian or custodian of such child, or in returning from any place where such child may have been during the evening by and with the consent of such parent, guardian or custodian. This provision, however, shall not permit such child to loiter, loaf or play upon the streets or public places above mentioned after the ringing of said curfew bell or giving of the curfew signal.

Section 2.

It shall be the duty of the Chief of Police of the City at the hour of nine o'clock in the afternoon from the first day of May to the first day of November of each year, and at the hour of eight o'clock in the afternoon from the first day of November to the first day of May in the next succeeding year to blow or cause to be blown the fire whistle of the City of East Jordan, or to give or cause to be given such other signal as the City Commission may from time to time by resolution prescribe for the purpose of notifying the children and the parents, legal guardians and legal custodians of the children under the age of fourteen years that the hour has arrived when by the terms of this Ordinance children under the age of fourteen years are not allowed upon the streets, alleys and public places of the City of East Jordan. Central standard time shall be observed to determine when such curfew signal shall be given.

Section 3.

It is hereby made the duty of every parent, legal guardian and legal custodian of every child under the age of fourteen years, within the corporate limits of the City of East Jordan, to keep their child and children off from the public streets, alleys and public places within said City during the hours when the same is prohibited by Section 2 of this Ordinance. Every parent, guardian and legal custodian of such child under the age of fourteen years who allows or permits such child to be upon the public streets, alleys and public places within the City of East Jordan, contrary to the provisions of this Ordinance, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by a fine of not more than twenty-five dollars and cost of prosecution, or imprisonment in the County Jail of Charlevoix County not exceeding thirty days, or both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the Court.

Section 4.

This Ordinance shall be in full force and effect twenty days after its adoption by the City Commission of the City of East Jordan. All Ordinances or parts of Ordinances in conflict with the provisions of this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

Adopted by the City Commission of said City of East Jordan the 19th day of May, A. D. 1913, by aye and nay vote as follows.

Ayes, Cross, Hudson, Kenny.
Nayes, None.

Telling Character by One's Handwriting

By R. C. LAIRD

labor incident to handwriting, there never was a time when more real interest was evinced in good penmanship than the present time.

School men are convinced that a great weakness in the public schools of this country is the lack of thoroughness of instruction in English. Enough is not accomplished when the pupil has become able to criticize the language of others and to know when he himself is in error, but special effort is being given to instruct him in expressing his thoughts, ideas and impressions, completely and correctly, and in living words that best suit the purpose.

In spoken language the tone, gesture and facial expressions are important adjuncts to the uttered words. Well-formed sentences delivered in a halting, slovenly manner, lose much of their desired effect. How much more important, then, it is when voice and gesture cannot be added to words, that their purpose be not hindered by untidy and illegible scribble forms. When a mind is busily engaged in trying to decipher a scrawl that mind is in no condition to receive the complete meaning intended to be conveyed by the writer.

In the usual run of circumstances there are two parties to a piece of written paper, and each is entitled to a certain amount of consideration. If the writer has no regard for the opinion or convenience of the reader he may show it in his slovenly, tangled-up handwriting, which in proportion to the opinion he desires to create, will be use care in the penmanship. Most cases of "handwriting horrible," such as is popularly believed to be a resultant of ultra mental development on the part of lawyers and other notoriously bad writers, are really a selfish disregard of the rights and comforts of readers.

The extensive use of the writing machine has narrowed the field for the pen. Nearly all business correspondence and much of the other kinds is done by the aid of the typewriter, but there is a vast amount of work that probably always will be pen-written. The typewriter has accustomed people to absolute legibility and to economy of space. As a consequence, in offices the space allowed to writing has been reduced by having closer rulings, and there is little or no courtesy shown the illegible penman.

Bad penmanship may be blamed for a considerable portion of the annual loss of millions through forgeries and check raising. A check so badly written that no letter is decipherable, unless it lean for support upon its neighbor, invites the low cunning of the check raiser, while a signature made up of a lot of meaningless strokes, or one written in a cramped style, is a delight to the forger. A strong, clear, well-formed handwriting cannot be successfully imitated, because it expresses the pronounced individuality of the writer through the complete writing machinery from the tips of the fingers to the broad muscles of the shoulders. The forger may simulate as far as form of writing goes, and he may even imitate a cramped and crabbed movement, but when he undertakes to reproduce the writing of a person who has been well trained in the "Muscular," or arm movement, method of penmanship, the task is too great, for, under the powerful microscope, the difference of nervous temperament expresses itself with distinctness.

Madagascar Fable of Truth and Deceit

By J. Rode Jacobsen, Minneapolis, Minn.

learn how a far-away people regard the matter of truth and lies; so I repeat a fable that is current among a certain tribe of the natives of Madagascar. It was published by a missionary of the Norwegian Missionary society of Norway in the official publication of that body:

A boy named Retsy stumbled one day over a human skull.

"Poor skull," he said, "what hast thou done that thou shouldst thus lie in the mud? Hast thou murdered or thieved?"

"I have neither murdered nor thieved," answered the skull. "Why art thou here, then?" queried Retsy.

"I await the company of another skull," replied the skull.

Retsy was amazed at seeing a skull that could speak, so he ran into the village and told everybody. Naturally everybody became curious, and they all went out to see this remarkable skull.

"Now, you go ahead and talk to the skull," the elders of the village commanded Retsy.

Retsy, poor fellow, did the best he could and asked question upon question, but the skull was as silent as a dead skull could be. Whereupon the inhabitants of the village became enraged at Retsy for making fools of them.

"Of course we all know that a dead skull can't talk," they said, so they killed Retsy and threw his skull on the ground, saying: "Now, let us see if you can talk."

But no sooner had Retsy's skull touched the ground than the first skull spoke out: "That's what I told Retsy; that I was awaiting the company of another skull—and here it is."

Then the villagers all lamented the sad fate of Retsy, for had he not told the truth about the skull he would still have been alive. Thus ends the fable.

There is much darkness still in the world.

Bostonian Would Turn Prisons Into Colleges

By W. L. MOORE, Boston, Mass.

There is a man in Boston who, if he had his way, would free 90 per cent. of the convicts now in the Massachusetts prison and turn the prison into a college.

This man has very peculiar ideas about prisons. He says that prisons are cruel, absurd, antiquated, vindictive, stupid and suicidal.

His idea is to turn each prison in the country into a college, name it, model it in part on outside colleges, give a diploma for good work, but blend practical productive labor and industry with the studies. He says give to the prisoners what society ought to have given them before they committed crimes.

He thinks that these prison colleges would soon become models for our literary colleges, whose crucial blunder is that they do not require every student, rich and poor, to do some productive work toward earning his own living through out the course as part of his education.

This accomplished, the prisons would be a great agency for the uplift of those who most need it. Every inmate would be taught a skilled craft, so that he would be able to support himself after prison graduation.

With such a system prison gates, bars and walls, except for a very few, would be needless, for the inmates could be trusted. Such prisons would build up better characters than are produced by our social institutions.

Notwithstanding the millions of typewriting machines marketed in recent years, and various other appliances invented and in use, all with the idea of avoiding or reducing the

GREATEST ENEMY OF APPLE IS MOTH

Baldwin Apple Tree in Bloom.

The codling-moth will get your apples if you don't look out. This is the greatest enemy of the apple, and must be fought constantly to prevent its ravages.

Late in April or early in May the cocoon opens and the caterpillar emerges, transformed into a pupa. The pupa is in a semi-dormant state in which the insect has almost no power of motion, but wonderful changes are it begins to feed upon the foliage or the young apples. Upon reaching the nearest apples about three-fourths of the worms enter them at the blossom end. The rest of the worms enter the fruit through the side. The worms often hollow out the seeds, their work being indicated by the well-known excreta thrown out at the calyx, showing the worminess of the apple.

In about a month it eats its way out through the side of the apple and seeks a place in which to form a cocoon.

The way to kill the apple-worm is to spray with arsenate of lead, Paris green, and Bordeaux mixture.

Woodpeckers and Nuthatches destroy millions of the apple-worms by digging them out from under the bark of the trees in winter. By thoroughly scraping the bark with a sharp hoe so as to destroy the larva is a great aid in keeping this insect under control.

In spraying it is very important to spray at just the right time. The first spraying should be made before the buds open, the second spraying should be with Bordeaux mixture insecticide, to catch the early leaf-feeding insects, applied after the leaf buds have opened, but before the trees have bloomed. Never spray while a tree is in blossom.

The most important spraying is the next one, which should be given just after the petals fall or as soon as most of the blossoms have been plinated and have set. This must be going on. About 20 days later the pupa wriggles itself out of the cocoon, its skin splits down the middle of the back, and out crawls the adult moth ready for flight.

This moth is rarely seen, because it flies at night, and during the day remains motionless or hides under the bark almost invisible.

Its front wings have the appearance of brown watered silk crossed by numerous lines of gray and brown scales something like the plumage of a bird. On each front wing is a large dark-brown spot marked with streaks of bronze or gold.

The moths begin to lay their eggs at once. The egg upon a leaf or fruit looks like a small white blister about the size of a pin-head. They hatch in about five or ten days. As soon as the young worm crawls from the egg done within a few days after the blossoms fall, never later than five days. This is the spraying which forms a thin film or poison over the calyx cavity of the apple, so that the young worm's first meal will be his last.

RAISING LETTUCE IN EARLY SPRING

One of the Hardest of Garden Plants—Method of One Practical Gardener.

There are few green vegetables on the farm table relished so much as the first lettuce in spring.

Lettuce is one of the hardest of all the garden plants, and the seed may be sown even before all the frost is out of the ground. In fact, the crisp and best-flavored lettuce is grown in a cool and moist atmosphere, and the sooner in the spring it can be produced the better it will be in every way.

A practical gardener of many years' experience has a bed of the very finest lettuce from two weeks to a month ahead of all her other neighbors. This is the way she does it:

The location for the bed always on the south side of the grape arbor, in a very high, dry, sheltered place. About the middle of winter this bed is heavily manured with the finest, well decomposed stable manure that can be procured, with a liberal proportion of poultry droppings.

The manure is not simply scattered on the soil, but piled on four to six inches deep. Very early in March when the soil can be spaded the bed is dug up and prepared for planting, and at the first mild spell in spring the seed is sown.

Around the lettuce bed is placed a rude wooden frame, and over the frame is spread old matting and old carpets when it freezes, or the weather is very severe.

The covering does not prevent the ground or young plants from freezing, but it prevents sudden freezing and thawing, and hold the temperature at a mild degree.

On warm days the covering is removed, and the lettuce is ready to use often before the lettuce in the other gardens is up.

SUNFLOWER SEED FOR THE POULTRY

Considered to Be Equal to Flaxseed to Mix With Other Grains for Hens

Sunflower seed is largely fed by poultrymen and is considered to be equal to flaxseed to mix with other grains as a winter food for laying hens. It is especially valuable to feed during the season of molting.

In Russia the sunflower is grown for human food, the seed being ground, the oil pressed out and the cake, when fresh, is mixed with rye flour and made into bread, which is said to be both nutritious and palatable. Sunflower cake is equal to cottonseed meal for cows and nearly equal to flaxseed meal for horses and hogs.

Any good soil that will grow corn will grow the sunflower. It is a hardy plant, a vigorous, rapid grower, and a desirable plant to grow about the home because of its bright, cheerful, yellow blossoms. The plant when in bloom will supply the honey bees with food for several weeks, says a writer in the Baltimore American.

The Russian is the best variety. Four quarts of seed will plant an acre. The seed should be planted the latter part of April. Plant in four-foot rows, drop two to three seeds 20 inches apart in the row, give clean culture. An acre of good land will give a yield of 20 to 35 bushels of seed. The stalks when dry make excellent kindling. Select deep, rich, mellow, well-drained land. The single-headed Russian variety will give a larger yield of seed than the American sunflower.

Single heads of the Russian sunflower have been grown to measure 14 inches across the face and to have yielded over 2,100 fully developed seeds to the head. One-quarter acre of land would produce enough seed for several hundred laying hens. Good new crop seed may be had for 10 cents a pound.

"THE GRANARY OF NORTH AMERICA."

GOVERNOR SULZER SAYS THAT OF WESTERN CANADA.

The close ties of friendship existing between the United States and Canada were dwelt upon in addresses by Premier Robert L. Borden, of Canada, and Governor Sulzer, at the annual dinner of the University Club of Albany.

"Canada and the United States," said Premier Borden, "have a common heritage in the language, the literature, the laws, the institutions and the traditions which have come down to them from the men of bygone days.

"Perhaps no more instructive object lesson ever has been given to the world than the four thousand miles of undefended boundary line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, which bears silent but eloquent testimony to the mutual confidence and respect of the two nations. Time will shortly place upon the brow of each nation the laurel of one hundred years of peace. It matters not so much as to the form of the outward celebration, but let us hope that its full significance may sink deep into the hearts of both nations, and that, whether north or south of the boundary, we may stand with bowed and reverent heads, offering grateful thanks for the Divine blessing of peace, and earnest prayers that in the century to come, mutual confidence, good-will and respect may truly animate the ideals and aspirations of both nations."

Referring to the natural resources possessed by the United States and Canada, particularly along the St. Lawrence River, the premier urged that they be "preserved and developed for the people."

Governor Sulzer predicted that the "Great Canadian Northwest is destined to become, before long, the granary of North America."

"Many of our best citizens, I regret to say," said the governor, "are leaving the States of the west and going into the Canadian northwest, because of the fertility of its soil, the liberality of the Canadian government and the ability of those people to better their conditions here.

"We should extend to them a helping hand in their onward march of progress. Instead of closing our doors by tariff barriers against these countries and their products, in my opinion, we should open them wider and do everything in our power to facilitate closer commercial relations. We want their products and they want our products, and all restrictions to prevent a fairer and freer exchange of goods, wares and merchandise should, in so far as possible, be eliminated."—Advertisement.

MONEY HIS SECOND THOUGHT

Artist Accepted Destitution in Preference to Sale of His Precious Works of Art.

Destitute in a house full of masterpieces, penniless and unknown, an old man who began life as a chimney sweep and eventually became a sculptor, has died in a sordid lodging at Ivory, a Paris suburb. "Father Fraissard," as he was familiarly known, was born in Savoy and as a boy was employed as a sweep. Later he was apprenticed to a mason in Paris. His genius manifested itself and he became a sculptor. If he had consented to sell his works of art he would have been a rich man; but he would not part with them and died destitute. His two humble rooms were full of examples of exquisite workmanship. One, a table in black marble, has on it a chess board in African onyx, and half a dozen cups and glasses, all beautifully carved. M. Fraissard was eight years in executing this piece of work. But his greatest triumph took him twenty-two years to finish. It is a black marble table, inlaid with squares of lighter colored marble, and is covered with the accessories of various games. In the center is a chessboard; to the right and left are cards arranged in the shape of a fan. In the corners are dominos and the cigars and cigarettes of the players, with several gold and silver coins. The materials used are porphyry, agate, onyx, malachite and lapis lazuli, and the combination of rich tones—red, black, orange, white and azure blue—produces a delicate effect. Ninety different kinds of marble were employed.

Eyes, Ears—and Nose.

"Intemperance is the chief cause of marital unhappiness," said Jerome S. McWade, the Duluth reformer.

"It was a wise young bride who recognized this fact. Her mother on her wedding day said to her with a sad smile:

"Now, darling, if you wish to avoid conflicts, you will have neither eyes nor ears when your husband returns home in the small hours."

"But, mother," said the bride, "what shall I do with my nose?"

And the Audience Smiled.

An Irish lecturer, expatiating on the nature of man, remarked that one point of distinction between human beings and lower animals consisted in capacity for progress.

"Maa," exclaimed the lecturer, "is a progressive being; other creatures are stationary. Take, for example, the ass. Always and everywhere it is the same creature. You never have seen, and never will see, a more perfect ass than you see at the present moment."

They are gladdening souls who mean what they say and expect you to say exactly when you mean.—Shepard.

The STOLEN SINGER

SYNOPSIS.

Agatha Redmond, opera singer, starting in an auto driven in New York, finds a stranger sent as her chauffeur. Later she is accosted by a stranger who climbs into the auto and chloroforms her. James Hamilton of Lynn, Mass., witness the abduction of Agatha Redmond. Hamilton sees Agatha forcibly taken aboard a yacht. He sees a tug and when near the yacht drops overboard. Aleck Van Camp, friend of Hamilton, had an appointment with him. Not meeting Hamilton, he makes a call upon friends Madame and Miss Melanie Reynier. He proposes to the latter and is refused. The three arrange a boat trip on Van Camp's yacht, the Sea Gull. Hamilton wakes up on board the Jeanne D'Arc, the yacht on which is Agatha Redmond. He meets a man who introduces himself as Monsieur Chatelet, who is Agatha's abductor. They fight, but are interrupted by the sinking of the vessel. Jimmy and Agatha are abandoned by the crew, who take to the boats. Jimmy and Agatha swim for hours and finally reach shore in a thoroughly exhausted condition. Recovering slightly, the pair find the chauffeur who assisted in Agatha's abduction. He agrees to help them. Jim is delirious from the verge of death. Hand goes for help. He returns with Dr. Thayer, who revives Jim, and the party is conveyed to Chatelet's house. Agatha is taken to the Sea Gull, which is at anchor and get tidings of the wreck of the Jeanne D'Arc. Aleck finds Jim on the verge of death and Agatha in despair. Dr. Thayer declares his sister, Mrs. Stoddard, is the only one who can save Jim. She is a woman of strong religious convictions, and dislikes Agatha on account of her profession. She refuses to nurse Jim. Agatha pleads with her, and she consents to take the case. Van Camp hears Agatha's story and gets on the track of Chatelet. Hamilton is finally out of danger. Chatelet, a friend of Van Camp, goes after Chatelet. Agatha meets Melanie Reynier and both are surprised at their remarkable resemblance. Chatelet, by a ruse induces Chatelet to go to Agatha's house. Melanie recognizes Chatelet as the spy of her persecutor, on whose account she left home. It was Melanie Chatelet he thought he was abducting. Before he can be arrested Chatelet escapes in an auto. Jim, meantime, slowly recovers, tells who he followed Agatha. Jim proposes marriage to Agatha. She declines his offer and he leaves her in despair. His love alarms his friends, who, with Agatha, follow him.

CHAPTER XXIV.

After You, Monsieur!

Jim had no desire to create a sensation among his friends at the old red house; but as he left the pine grove all his instincts led him to flee in another direction. He did not fully realize just what had happened to him, but he was conscious of having received a very hard jolt, indeed. The house, full of happy associations as it was, was just now too tantalizing a place. Aleck had won out, and he and Melanie were radiating that peculiar kind of lover's joy which shines on the eve of matrimony. Jim wished them well—none better—but he also wished they wouldn't make such a fuss over these things. Get it done and out of the way, and the less said about it the better. In fact, Jim's buoyant and sunny spirit went into eclipse; he lost his holiday ardor, and trudged over the hill and into the shore road in a state of extreme dejection.

But he lingered on the way, diverted almost against his will by the sight of fishing smacks putting into harbor, an island steamer rounding a distant cliff, and the Sea Gull lying motionless just within the breakwater. Women may be unkind, but a ship is a ship, after all. One can not nurse the pain even of a shattered heart when unning before a stiff wind with the spinnaker set and an open sea ahead. The thought decided him. The sea should be his bride. Jim did not stop to arrange, at the moment, just how this should be brought about, but his determination was none the less firm. He became sentimental to the extent of reflecting, vaguely, that this was but philosophic justice. The sea had not conquered him—far from it; neither should she conquer him. He would follow the sea, the path of glamour, the home of the winged foot and the vanishing sail, the road to alien and mysterious lands.

Thus Jimmy, in reaction from the Arctic douche to which his emotional self had been subjected. He was, figuratively speaking, blue with the cold, but trying valiantly to warm himself.

As he gazed at the Sea Gull, asleep on the flood tide, cutting a gallant figure in the glowing sunset, he felt an overmastering longing to be aboard. He would stay on the yacht until Chamberlain came, at least; possibly all night.

Having made up his mind on this point, James persuaded himself that he felt better. Philosophy is a friend in need, after all. Why should one failure in getting one's desired crush about-face, travel for a year on a sailing vessel, see the world. That was it. Hang the shoe business!

Immersed in mental chaos such as these fragments of thought suggest, Jim did not perceive that he was being overtaken until a slow greeting came to his ears.

"Good evening, friend." It was the deliberate wide-eyed youth of the Reading-room.

"Ah, good evening." "If you are on your way to the Sailors' Reading-room, I wish to inform you that I have been obliged to lock up for tonight, on account of an urgent errand at the village." Jimmy stared vacantly for a moment at the pale, washed-out countenance of his interlocutor. "I thought I'd tell you," the youth went on in his copy-book style, "so as to save your taking the long walk. I am the librarian of the Reading-room."

"Ah, thank you. But I wasn't going to the Reading-room tonight. I am on my way to the village."

"Well, there's a large majority of people do go to the Reading-room, first and last," the youth explained, with pride. "And some of them are not worthy of its privileges. I am on my way now to prevent what may be a frightful accident to one who has enjoyed the benefits of our work."

"Jim gazed at the youth. 'A frightful accident! Then why in Heaven's name don't you hurry?'"

The youth exhibited a slightly injured air, but did not hasten. "I was just about to continue on my way," he said, "when it occurred to me that you might be interested to know."

"That's good of you. But what is it all about?"

"Some time ago, a very profane and impatient gentleman, waiting for money to be telegraphed him from New York—"

"Well, man, go on! Where is he?"

"I know nothing about the movements of this ungodly person, but it appears that today, for the first time in its history, the quarry up yonder has been robbed. Circumstances lead the manager to suspect that this same gentleman was the perpetrator of the theft, and I am on my way to further the ends of justice."

"No need to be so particular about calling him a gentleman. But what is the 'accident' likely to be?"

"It is feared that the thief may not be aware of the nature of the article he has stolen, and it is very dangerous."

"What on earth is it?"

"It is a fairly large-sized stick of dynamite."

The youth might have been discussing a fancy dance, so suave and polite was he. Jim interrupted rudely.

"Dynamite, is it? Good. If it's old Chatelet, he ought to blow up. Serve him right!"

"I'm surprised and pained at your words, my dear friend. No soul is utterly—"

"Yes, it is. Which way did he go? Where is he?"

"I don't know. The manager sent me to inform the sheriff."

"It won't do any good. But you'd better go, all the same."

The judge in chancery went on his dignified way. He would not have hurried if he had heard Angel Gabriel's trump. The news he had brought was in the class to be considered important if true; but there was nothing in it to alter Jimmy's plans. He took the shortest cut to the shore, found a flat-bottomed punt that was regarded by the village as general property, and pushed off.

The Sea Gull was a tidy craft, and looked very gay with even the half of her festal flags on view. But the gaiety did not beguile Jim's dazed spirit. He went aboard feeling that he'd like to rip the idiot things down; but the yacht, at least, offered a place where he could think. The sunset light on the water blazed vermilion—just the color that Jim all at once discovered he hated. He looked down the companionway, but finally he decided to stretch out on deck for a few minutes' rest. He was very tired.

Off on the stern was a vague mass which proved to be a few yards of canvas carefully tented on the floor. Some gimcrack belonging to the ship's ornamentation had been freshly gilded and left to dry, protected by an old sail-cloth. This, weighted down by a rusty marlinspike, spread, couchwise along the taffrail, and offered to Jim just the bed he longed for.

He lay down, face to the sky, and gave himself up to thoughts that were very dark indeed. He had been thrown down, unexpectedly and quite hard, and that was all there was to it. Agatha, lovely but inexplicable maid, was not for him. She had been receptive—yes, that was the word; and he had been a fool—that was the plain truth. He might as well face it at once. He had been idiot enough to think he might win the girl, just because they had been tossed together in mid-ocean and she had clung to him. The world wasn't an ocean; it was a spiritual stock-exchange, where he who would win must bid very high indeed for the prizes of life. And he had so little to bid!

Communing thus with his unhappiness, Jim utterly lost the sense of time. The shameless vermilion sunset went into second mourning—and thence to nun's gray, before the figure on the sail-cloth moved. Then, through senses only half awake, Jim heard a light sound, like a scratch-scratch on the hull of the yacht. Chamberlain, no doubt, just rubbing the nose of his tender against the Sea Gull. Jim was in no hurry to see Chamberlain, and remained where he was. The Englishman would leave in sight soon enough.

But though Jim waited several minutes, with half an eye cocked on the stairway, nobody appeared. The wind was still, the sea like glass; not a sound anywhere. Struck by something of strangeness in the uncanny silence, Jim sat up and called, "Alo! Chamberlain!" There was no answer. But in the tense stillness there was a sound, and it came from below—the sound of a man's stealthy tread.

Jim sprang to his feet and made the companionway at a bound. He listened an instant to make sure that he heard true, cleared the steps, and landed in the darkness of the ship's saloon. As he groped along, reaching for the door of the principal cabin, the blackness suddenly lighted a little, and a dim shadow shot out and up the stairway. Jim's physical senses were scarcely cognizant of the soft, quick passing, but his thumbs pricked. He dashed after the shadow, up the stairs, out on deck, and aft.

There he was—Chatelet, armed, facing his enemy once more, cool but not smiling, desperately at bay. Below him, riding just under the stern of the yacht, was the tender whose scratch-scratch had awakened Jim. A man, oars in hand, was holding the boat close to the Sea Gull.

Jim saw all this during the seconds between his turning at the stair-top and his throwing himself plump against the figure by the railing. He was quick enough to pass the range of the weapon, whose shot rang out in the clear air, but he was not quick enough to get under the man's guard. Chatelet was ready for him, holding his weapon high.

As he pressed forward, Jim felt something under his foot. He ducked quickly, as if to dodge Chatelet's hand, and on to the downward-swing he picked up the rusty marlinspike.

It was a weapon of might, indeed. Jim's blow caused Chatelet's arm to drop, limp and nerveless. But in gaining his enemy's weapon, Jim was forced to drop his own. He put a firm foot upon the spike, however, while he held Chatelet at arm's length and looked into his face.

"So we meet once more, after all!" he cried. "And once more I have the pistol." Even as Jim spoke, his adversary made a spring that almost enabled him to seize the weapon again. Jim eluded his clutch; and quick as thought threw the gun overboard. It struck far out on the smooth water.

It was a sorry thing to do, as it proved, for Chatelet, watching his chance, stooped, wrenched the spike from under Jim's foot, and once more stood defiantly at bay. And at this point, he opened his thin lips for an remark.

"You'll go to hell now, you pig of an American!"

"But after you, Monsieur!" Jim cried, and with the words, his arms were about the other in a paralyzing grip.

Had Jim been as strong as when the two men measured forces weeks before, in the fo'c's'le of the Jeanne D'Arc, the result might have been different. But the struggle was too long, and Jim's strength insufficient. Chatelet freed himself from his antagonist sufficiently to yield the spike somewhere about Jim's head, and there came over him a sickening consciousness that he was going down. He dropped, hanging like a bulldog to Chatelet's knees, but he knew he had lost the game. He gathered himself momentarily, determined to get on his feet once more, and had almost done it, when sounds of approaching voices mingled with the scuffle of their feet and their quick breathing. Before Jim could see what new thing was happening, Chatelet had turned for one alert instant toward the port side, whence the invading voices came. He was cut off from the yacht, his weapon gone. He gave a quick call in a low voice to the boat below, stepped over the taffrail and then leaped overboard.

Propped up on an elbow, dazed and half blinded, blood flowing down his cheek, Jim stretched forward dizzily, as if to follow his disappearing enemy. He heard the splash of the water, and saw the rowboat move out from under the stern, but he saw no more. He thought it must have grown very dark.

When Jim regained sight and consciousness, which happened not more than three minutes after he lost them, he found himself supported affectionately against somebody's shoulder, and a voice—the Voice of all voices he most loved—was in his ears.

"Here I am, dear. Do not die! I have come—come to stay, if you want me, James, dearest!" And bending over him was a face—the very Vision of his dream. "Look at me, speak to me, James, dear!"

The voice was a bit hysterical, but the face was eloquent, loving, adoring. It was too good to be true, though Jim was disposed to let the illusion prolong itself as far as possible. He put up his hand and smoothed her hair gently, in gratitude at seeing it kind once more. Then he smiled foolishly.

"It's great, isn't it!" he murmured, faintly, before thinking it necessary to remove his hand. Her face was still the face of tenderness, full of yearning. It did not change. She took a handkerchief from her pocket and carefully pressed it to his cheek and chin. When she took it away, he saw that it was red.

"Lord, what a mess I'm making!" he exclaimed, trying at last to sit up. As he did so, it all came back to him—the flying shadow, the gun—the struggle. He leaned over to peer again through the crossed wires of the deck railing, down into the water. He turned back with an amazed expression.

"Did he jump overboard, honest, true, hanging on to that spike?"

Neither Aleck nor Agatha could say, nor yet Mr. Chamberlain, who had been searching the yacht. Wherever it was, the rusty marlinspike had disappeared. The rowboat, too, had gone into the darkness. Jim got up, dazedly thinking for a moment that it was necessary for him to give chase; but he quickly sat down on the sail-cloth again, overcome with faintness and a dark pall before his eyes.

"You are not hurt badly?" The voice was still tender, and it was all for him! As Jim heard it, the pall lifted, and his buoyant spirit came back to its own. He laughed ringingly.

"Lord, no, not hurt. But—"

"But what? What did you wish to say?"

"Is it true? Are you here, by me, to stay?"

For answer she pressed his hand to her lips.

Aleck and Chamberlain, once assured that Jim was safe, went below to make a search, and Jim and Agatha were left together on the sail-cloth. As they sat there, a young moon shone out delicately in the west, and dropped quickly down after the lost sun.

"It's the first moon we've seen together!" said Jim.

"But we've watched the dawn."

"Ah, yes; and such a dawn!" Little by little, as they sat together, the story of the fight came out. Jim told it bit by bit, not eager. When it was done, Agatha was still puzzled.

"Why should he come here? What could he do here?"

THE END.

Moon's Influence on Tides

Survival of Old-Time Superstition Which Has Been Found Impossible to Eradicate.

The influence of the moon upon the weather was in ancient times assumed in much the same way as the influence of the moon upon the tides of the sea was assumed. There was no proper knowledge of the facts in either case, and it was accepted in both cases merely because the regular changes of the earth's shadow on the moon were used as the great primitive time-keeper, and any frequent changes in other things must happen after some one or other of those regular changes.

The barbaric gues, "Post hoc ergo propter hoc," proved, when careful study of the matter was made and Newton's law of gravitation was applied to it, to be right in regard to the tides, but wrong in regard to the weather. The "banking up" of the sea in a moving hood which passes, as it were, "over the face of the waters" twice (approximately) in the 24 hours is now known to be due to the "drag" or gravitational attraction exerted on the heavy but mobile mass of the ocean by the moon as it circles round the earth, with a returning change in its relative position to earth and sun, the phases of which occupy a month.

But it has no such action on the filmy vapors of the air. An immense number of exact numerical details, depending on the weight of the moon, its position, and movements in relation to the earth at successive moments, consequently of its action in producing the tides of the sea, have been ascertained with astounding accuracy. At the same time astronomers and meteorologists (those who study the atmosphere of our earth) have come to the conclusion that what we call "the weather" is not affected by the posi-

"I don't know, though we shall probably find out soon enough. But I don't care, now that you are here."

"James, dear, will you forgive me for this afternoon?"

"I'll forgive you if you'll take it all back, hide, hoofs and horns, for ever 'n ever, amen."

"I take it back. I never meant it." "Then may one ask why—"

"Oh, James, I don't know why. Anybody could have told them that it was only a phase of feminine panic in the face of the unknown, necessary as sneezing. But, as Jim said, it didn't matter."

"Never mind. Only I don't want you to marry me because you found me here all buggy and pitted me."

"James! To talk like that! You know it wasn't—"

"Then, what was it?" Jim, suddenly grown serpent-like in craft, turned his well-known ingenuous and innocent expression upon her.

"The moment you left me, up there in the pine grove, I knew I couldn't do without you."

"How did you know?"

"Because—"

"Yes, because—" Jim prompted her. "Oh, Jimmy, you know."

"No, I don't."

Agatha, loving his teasing, but too deeply moved, too generous and sincere to play the coquette, turned to him again a face shining with tenderness. Her eyes, like stars; her lips, all sweetness.

"Only love, James, dear—"

Something rose again in Jimmy's soft heart, choking him. As he had thrilled to the unknown ecstasy in Agatha's song, many days before, so now he thrilled to her voice and face, eloquent for him alone. Love and its power, life and its meaning, the long thoughts of youth and hope and desire—these held him in thrall. Agatha was in his arms. Time was lost to him, and earth.

EPilogue.

No one ever knew whether the accomplished Frenchman reached shore, ultimately, in the rowboat, or descended to "Sabbath" beneath the waves. If that last hasty exit from the deck of the Sea Gull was also his final exit from life, certain it is that his departure into the realm of shades was unwept and unsung. The stick of dynamite was found, after a gingerly search, lying on one of the berths in the large cabin, where it had been dropped by the Frenchman in his fight.

Jimmy Hamilton did not let the shoe business entirely go to destruction, though his taste for holidays grew markedly after he brought his bride home with him to Lynn. One year, when the babies were growing up, he ordered a trim little yacht to be built and put into her berth at Chatelet's. She was named the Sea Gull. Jimmy's chauffeur, called Hand, was her captain.

Sometimes, when James and Agatha were alone, in the zone of stillness hung over the listening water, there would rise a song, clear and birdlike:

"Free of my pain, free of my burden of sorrow, At last I shall see thee—"

And again Jimmy's heart would rise buoyant, free, happy—the heart of unquenchable youth.

THEY SIDESTEP FOR MOTORS

Philippine Meed the Signal and Give the "Devil Machine" Plenty of Road.

Manila may now be said to be up-to-the-minute in things metropolitan. The latest adjunct to its activities calling attention to progress in this direction was the recent appearance upon the streets of a motor car washed in mud and powdered with fine dust of various grades of colors produced between here and Baguio. It had made a new record between the summer capital and Manila.

The machine was stripped to a condition almost immodest, fenders and top were superfluous to requirements and no windshield protected the driver's face against the hot winds that blow at midday across the plain.

The friendliest feeling exists for the motor car. The barrios become a chorus of children with the ready "hello," even the dogs and chickens get the inspiration.

It may be due to the machine's being a stranger in this new section, but it is a fact that pedestrians and people in vehicles do respect the warning signal and give plenty of road—Manila Bulletin.

K. C. M. G.

A pompous British politician who was proceeding to take over a governorship in one of the overseas dominions was approached on the promenade deck by an innocent-looking fellow-passenger, who, raising his hat, humbly inquired: "Would you mind telling me what 'K. C. M. G.' means at the end of your name, sir? It has puzzled me or two of us."

"Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George, of course," said the pompous one, as he inflated his chest. "Oh!" said the innocent, "I thought it meant 'Kindly Call Me Governor!'"

When saloon keepers begin to talk temperature there is something wrong.

RESINOL CURED AWFUL PIMPLES

Whole Face Covered, Now Clear.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 9, 1912. "I was troubled with two or three pimples coming out on my chin. In a week or so my whole face was covered with them. Friends advised me to use different lotions and salves. I tried them, but they did me little good, if any. I finally washed the pimples with Resinol Soap and applied Resinol Ointment before going to bed. In the morning I found the swelling gone down, and the inflammation gone from the pimples. I tried this treatment for about a week, and found that most of the pimples had disappeared. I kept the treatment up for about a month, and then my face was clear of all pimples. I have used Resinol Soap since and find that the pimples do not come back." (Signed) Walter A. Stenstrom, 54 Willoughby Ave.

If you are suffering from itching, burning skin troubles, pimples, blackheads, dandruff, stubborn sores or piles, it will cost you nothing to try Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Just send to Dept 19-K, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., for a free sample of each. Every druggist sells Resinol.

Early Showed Heroism.

As a boy, Rear Admiral Young, who died last month, showed qualities that were sure to put him in the front rank of his profession. As a midshipman, he leaped overboard to rescue a seaman, and before the boats could be lowered and rowed to him, he was three miles astern, swimming, and supporting the unconscious sailor.

Later, when the ship Huron was wrecked on a reef off the North Carolina coast, he and another man tried to reach the shore on a raft. When the raft capsized, he not only swam ashore, but dragged his companion to safety with him. Then he ran to a life-saving station, broke into the building, dragged out the apparatus, and succeeded in saving 34 officers and men out of a crew of a hundred and thirty-two. For this act of heroism congress advanced him in rank, and the legislature of Kentucky, his native state, made him an honorary member.

BULGARIA'S RAPID PROGRESS

SINCE last October, when the quick mobilization and successful advance of the Balkan armies against their common enemy, Turkey, astonished the world, there has everywhere been surprise over the remarkable progress made in the past few years by Bulgaria, the plucky leader and brains of the four-state federation. Even to citizens of the United States, where political development has been rapid, the radical change in a single generation, from Turkish serfdom to practically one of the most progressive and purely democratic governments known to history, is bewildering. But back of this free government is the liberty-loving and justice-demanding spirit of the great majority of the 5,000,000 people, most unlooked-for in its high ideals and broad principles, after five centuries of the most cruel and degrading subjection at the hands of the rapacious Turk.

It is one of the marvels of our time, that in practically 30 years those who formerly knew no form of freedom, should plan and make possible, universal male suffrage, splendidly equipped popular education, for both boys and girls; one of the best penal systems extant, with probation for first offenders, indeterminate sentence and parole provisions; and quite unusual "social legislation." Laws coming under this latter division, include government insurance against accident and sickness for all those employed on public works; a similar compulsory insurance for all other laborers under corporation or private employ; the forbidding of the employment of women and girls in any and all trades or forms of business which would tend to injure their health or morals; child life and development carefully guarded, no form of child industrial labor being allowed, and factory hygiene and safety device laws on all manufacturing machines, fully enforced.

Trusts Uncle Sam.

When one realizes that Bulgaria, about the shape and size of the state of Pennsylvania, is as yet essentially an agricultural country, with 75 per cent. of the people owning and cultition of their compatriots still under Turkish power. In 1886, eastern Roumelia was incorporated into the Bulgarian principality, in direct opposition to the ruling of the European diplomats. This union gave a greatly increased working force, and while still improving steadily their own conditions, the people of larger Bulgaria began a carefully planned educational scheme, of the most unselfish type, among their own people in Macedonia. This drain financially to an already heavily-taxed nation has been a tremendous one, but so fully has the responsibility been felt, not once has there been any cessation of the work.

True Patriotism.

With this one, all-controlling desire to free all the Balkan region from the deadly Turkish grip, Bulgaria, at great sacrifice of men, treasure and time—since all her young men in their prime must give at least two years to military service—organized years ago, an army to that end, and drilling under competent leaders was incessant. When, last fall, the time came for the blow to be struck practically, every man available for active service was ready and eager to go. The recruiting stations were crowded with the thousands anxious to go to the front. To the complete surprise of the Turks and the rest of the world there was no hitch in the plan or preparation. A deeper and truer patriotism than is often seen, was back of the readiness of this nation to fight. Stories of past Bulgarian and Macedonian atrocities, so foul and horrible as to be but whispered with bated breath, had strengthened the purpose and served the arm to put forever out of Europe the hated Turk.

In considering the rapid progress made by Bulgaria the query naturally arises as to how this has been accomplished. Racial character, travel, education and contact with other progressive nations have each had a part and share in the great result. But those who know most fully the conditions in the past forty years give large credit to two rather unusual influences. One is Robert College, which has trained, almost without exception,

Pretty Hat for Child Has Braid Brim of Sapphire Blue

For little misses from nine to fourteen years old a great number, of shapes to choose from have been provided. New fabrics and new colorings furnish, too, opportunities for unusual millinery for children. It is a season of gay colors and odd fabrics.

Ratine in silk has been employed with fine results in hats for misses. Soft crowns of this material are combined with braid-covered brims. A hat of this sort looks best trimmed with ribbon.

Another sort of crown with a braid brim is shown in this picture. This is an unusually pretty hat with braid brim of sapphire blue. The crown is covered with silk over which is stretched a flowered chiffon showing the pattern of gray grounds covered with the brightest of flower forms.

Ribbon is here the most appropriate trim and is placed about the base of the crown in a plain folded band. Four loops, wired to hold them in place, protrude at the back. The frame shows a graceful irregular brim and well balanced round crown. The little hat is constructed to follow out the most up-to-date ideas as to outline, material and colors.

BEAUTIFUL EVENING GOWN ADORNING THE GUEST ROOM

Particularly Effective Touches May Be Given to Draperies, Especially if They Are of Cretonne.

If you have cretonne draperies in your guest room there are many attractive articles you can make to add comfort and beauty to the room. Purchase cretonne to match, or, if this is impossible, a design showing the same coloring.

Lovely bureau scarfs are fashioned by cutting the cretonne the exact dimensions of the bureau top. Cover this with white marquisette and between the top and the china silk lining place one thickness of cotton wadding. Whipstitch the edges together and finish them with a narrow edging of gold lace.

The marquisette softens the colors of the cretonne, producing a pastel effect.

A rectangular sofa cushion can be made of the same materials, and is particularly beautiful when ornamented with a large flat bow of ribbon in one corner.

In rose designs the cretonne is extremely artistic when veiled with marquisette.

For the dressing table a long pin-cushion should be made to match. Finish either end with a rosette of satin ribbon.

Frames for sewing stands can be purchased to match any wood, and it would be nice to supply your guest room with one with a cretonne top to match the draperies.

Cover the cretonne with the marquisette and line it with china silk. Gather this with a heading to the frame and finish each corner with a bow of ribbon. The top hangs pocket-like from the frame and holds all the articles necessary for mending. This is a very useful article, and the well-appointed guest room should be supplied with sewing stand.

Fashionable Colors.

This is the time of year when color change, just as do hats and gowns. Court blue is one of the latest. It is a cross between electric and gent-arme.

Tulle has shed its brown tinge and has acquired the tint-like elephant gray.

One of the prettiest blues is blue vig, a deep and yet bright shade. Shrimp is the favored pink.

A glorious red which looks extremely well with white is called rouse Venetian.

Chalk white is in vogue. Amaranth is a claret shade. Carmel is another pretty edition of brown.

Verdegris is one of the smartest greens.

Mimosa is a yellow that verges on orange.

Petunia is the successor of the fuchsia medley, with the purple and red tints predominating.

Protecting Jewelry.

It is well to cover jewelry with a thin coat of collodion when storing it in the safety deposit vault. The collodion can be dissolved with alcohol or ether when the jewelry is brought forth again. Jewelry of almost every description can be thoroughly cleaned with soap and water. It should then be packed in boxwood sawdust for several hours until it is dry in every crevice.

Screwdriver of Importance.

The engine had gone to pieces, the yacht of the millionaire rolled helplessly in the trough of the sea.

Anxiously signaling for help was the wireless operator. He was approached by the owner of the craft. "I wish," said the latter, "that you would advise my wife, in Brooklyn, of our accident."

"Shall I tell her the engine is broken, sir?" asked the wireless man.

"By no means!" exclaimed the millionaire. "Those bald words would be disconcerting to the sensitive woman. Send her a message which, while not transgressing the truth, will make her think our accident is only a trivial one. Tell her our screwdriver is broken."—Judge.

WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Nervousness Caused by Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains that sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me at all. Sometimes I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.

"Doctor's Daughter Took It."

St. Cloud, Minn.—"I was so run down by overwork and worry that I could not stand it to have my children talk aloud or walk heavy on the floor. One of my friends said, 'Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I know a doctor's daughter here in town who takes it and she would not take it if it were not good.'"

"I sent for the Compound at once and kept on taking it until I was all right."—Mrs. BERTHA M. QUICKSTADT, 727 5th Avenue, S., St. Cloud, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon as the most efficient remedy for female ills. Why don't you try it?

FACE ALMOST COVERED WITH PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

Atchison, Kan.—"For a number of years I suffered very greatly from skin eruption. My face was very red and irritated, being almost covered with pimples and blackheads. The pimples were scattered over my face. They were a fine rash with the exception of a few large pimples on my forehead and chin. My face burned and looked red as if exposed to either heat or cold. It was not only unsightly but very uncomfortable. I tried several remedies but couldn't get any relief. I was recommended to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I applied the Cuticura Ointment in the evening, leaving it for about five minutes, then washing it off with Cuticura Soap and hot water. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and hot water also several times during the day. After about four months of this application, my face was cleared of the pimples. I still use the Cuticura Soap." (Signed) Miss Elsie Nielson, Dec. 29, 1911.

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES, SOFIA

vating their own farms, these unusual social laws are most remarkable. But it shows, most clearly, the careful, long-headed planning for the future, which has characterized the policies and work of the Bulgarian leaders for the past quarter century.

That this progress, noticeable under the most auspicious conditions, has been made during disturbed and unsettled years, when there was seeming, by no surety for future stability to make the advance still more remarkable. For years the geographical, as well as political, buffer between Turkey and the European powers, betrayed and belittled alike by open enemy and false friend, Bulgaria looks with suspicion and distrust upon all European diplomacy and diplomats, but trusts fully the United States. And no one can wonder at this attitude, when he reads back through history's pages and sees how many times the long-persecuted country begged for help from her Turkish oppressor, and always in vain. Knowing full well the jealousy and tension between the powers, the wily sultans pitted one against the other, and in the meantime, did as they willed with the Bulgarian and Macedonian Christians. Their only help came from this country.

When, in 1878, independence, after a fashion, came, the first great task set for itself by the new principality, following the self-governing organization was the full and complete liberathe leaders in every phase of national progress. And the other was a weekly paper, the Zornitza, edited by an American missionary, Rev. T. L. Byington, D. D., who, in spite of Turkish opposition and Greek clergy, taught thirty years stirring lessons of the fundamental principles of national life. Studly, intelligent independence and an unusual appreciation of the possibilities and responsibilities of citizenship were the results.

Long Journey Through Space.

Our world's journey in space is a long one, if we are to accept the conclusions of Dr. Turner of the university observatory of Oxford, and Prof. H. C. Plummer, royal astronomer of Ireland. Recent astronomical work suggests that the sun and its planets form a single unit in a vast system, the stars in which, though separated by enormous distances, have a common center of gravity, and in response to gravitation all move in unison like a stupendous machine. The paths of these stars, instead of being nearly circular, like those of the planets around the sun, are much like the oscillations of a pendulum. The calculations show that on this elongated course our sun must travel 400,000,000 years before completing a revolution, and that it passed near the center less than a million—perhaps not more than 300,000—years ago, and is now on the outward stretch.

An evening gown of black satin and gold embroidered lace over groselle silk. The waist ends in a pointed back panel.

Trimmings From Chinese Skirts.

Chinese skirts in the original certainly possess as many varied uses as the famous porker, whose only loss is its squeal. The front and back panels, with their rich embroideries in Peking stitch, make exquisite long sailor collars which will miraculously turn your most commonplace frock into a veritable creation. The yards on yards of two-toned Chinese blue embroidery bandings make trimming galore for a stunning gown and hat. A striking parasol in these days of unique ones, is made from the skirt's pleated and embroidered sides, and an equally effective piano lamp shade can be evolved from the same, with the addition of the panels.

Irish Crochet in Colors.

The new Irish crochet, printed in colors, strongly resembles the Bulgarian designs. Bands of this trimming are used as a bordering on thin crepons and voiles. Colored voiles, such as champagne, pale gray, rose pink, etc., are trimmed with bands of all-white Irish crochet, while all-white voiles and crepons are trimmed with the Irish crochet in color.

Hesitated Between Courses.

Jamie, writing a letter, was unlucky enough to spill the ink upon a new rug. Remembering that his mother had used milk in a similar case, he was working renewed havoc when the maternal presence appeared.

His progress was somewhat impeded by the determination of the kitten to enjoy the cleaning fluid.

"James," cried the shocked mother, sternly, "what on earth are you doing?"

James considered before replying. Then:

"I wonder if you'd be most angry if I said I'd spilled the ink or was feeding the cat on the rug?"

Good Evidence.

Katherine had been brought up to believe that tale-bearing was despicable, but there were times when her greedy twin strained her principles to the snapping point.

"Katherine," said her mother one day, "is it possible that you and Howard have eaten that whole bag of peppermints that I meant to take to grandmother, just because I left the bag on the table?"

"I didn't take one of them, mother," said Katherine, indignantly, "but Howard—well, I sha'n't tell tales, but you just smell him!"—Youth's Companion.

Our Next Serial

A young girl arrives at night at the home of the man who is really her father, but who had not known of her existence. By the strength of her secret she forces him to take her into his household because she "wants to belong to somebody."

Once established, she undertakes to set right a situation intense in its possibilities. This girl, Fran, is the charm of an extraordinary story we have secured as our next serial; a girl whimsical, quaint, and shrewd, with a wonderful smile, the highest courage, and a great longing for home and love. You can't really describe Fran any more than you can your best friend. She comes so close, is so human, that analysis is impossible.

As this trees during the three intervening years, the probabilities are that there are census was taken three years ago, and there have been heavy settings of fully twice as many trees today. The cherry orchards in this county are famous because of the flavor of the fruit. This is especially true as regards the sweet varieties. The above pictured orchard, located at Thompsonville, in the angle between the tracks of the Pere Marquette and Ann Arbor railroads, is the property of Sam Willis. It covers sixty acres.

NEW IDEA IS SUCCESS

EDUCATIONAL PLAN AT ELK RAPIDS ATTRACTS ATTENTION.

High School Science Teacher Interests Boys in Scientific Agriculture—Government Experts Study Plan and Offer Support.

A new idea in education is being worked out by M. E. Duckles of Elk Rapids. Mr. Duckles is the science teacher in the high school and has been interested directly and indirectly in educational work for a long time.

Better than a year ago he conceived the idea of interesting the boys attending the high school, and those who ought to be attending the school, in scientific agriculture and so started a boys' department in one of the local papers. His first plan was simply to get the boys interested in the growing of corn and to get them to studying the subjects of seed selection, preparation of the ground, cultivation and harvesting. As the interest in his weekly articles was much greater than was anticipated, he found it necessary to broaden out his original plan so as to include a harvest home celebration, which celebration occupied part of a week in October last.

AN ATTRACTIVE WESTERN MICHIGAN FARM HOME.
Western Michigan is a good place in which to live. Better than 95 per cent of the farm operators own their own farms and better than 62 per cent of the owners are native whites. The exact figures are: Number of farms, 45,513; number of operators owning their own farms, 41,413; number of native white owners, 27,061. Of the total number of owners 19,762 own their places free from mortgage debt. Surely the region that can make such a showing as the above is a prosperous one, and one that is destined to have an enviable future. The above is a view of the James Williams farm in Banks township, Antrim county. Mr. Williams secured a quarter section from the federal government in 1862 and is still living on the place, which he has improved to its present prosperous condition.

BLAMES TOWN FOR EARLY AMBITIONS

Editor Says Lyceum Elevates Communities' Moral Tone.

Why should the Lyceum be encouraged? This question was asked of Ralph Parlette, the humorist-editor, and he replied:

The Lyceum is to furnish right ideals for a community. When I was a boy I lived in a town where the most popular man was a man that could "lick" everybody else in the town.

People bowed lowest to him. My father said it was wrong to fight, but I knew he wasn't up-to-date. I determined when I grew up I would be a man who could "lick" everybody else in town.

I had another hero. He had a dog that could "lick" every other dog in town. My father said it was wrong to have dog fights, but I knew he wasn't up-to-date. I determined when I grew up I would have a dog that could "lick" every other dog in town.

It wasn't my fault. It was the fault of that town, that applauded a slugger and a dog-fight. I wish I had never seen that town; I would have been a better man. That town blighted a lot of young lives because its heroes were sluggers and dog-fighters.

The child will do what the town applauds. Applaud the bad, and it will be bad. Applaud the good, and it will be good. Our town will be tomorrow what our town applauds today.

That is why we run Lyceum Courses and Chautauquas!

We are applauding right things. The people get their money's worth when they sit in the audience, but that isn't the beginning of the big thing they do. When they sit in the audience to hear a statesman, an orator, a writer, a scientist, a discoverer, a singer, an interpreter, an entertainer, they (the best people in town) are not applauding a slugger or dog-fighter, but right things. They are serving the strongest possible notice to the men and women of tomorrow that these are the proper standards of attainment. They are getting the impulse to become great.

You can preach, and write, and scold, and flog, but unless you make the right popular, you will find them following the wrong.

Every child that grows up in a community without right ideals will some day say: "I wish I had never seen that community!" And the parents of that community will some day sit in sorrow.

His "Played Rough."

The man who, inspired by the mug that cheers, maintains his prestige as head of the house by chastising his wife, is often saved from the indignity of the stonepile by the eternal feminine. Without the condemning testimony of the wife the court cannot do much with him, and, though her anger may be such as to countenance his arrest and arraignment, the chances are about ten to one that at the last pinch it weakens and falls her, as one or two stories from the city court will illustrate.

A woman with a badly blackened eye came before Judge Collins' bar for an adjustment of domestic affairs. The case looked bad and the judge intimated his intention of making an "example" of the culprit; but the woman interceded. "Ah, Judge, don't be hard on him—he was only playin'," she pleaded; then added by way of qualification: "But he do play so rough, Judge!" Indianapolis News.

It is three hours to Cairo by train, and every inch of the way is interesting. Even on the outskirts of Alexandria, says a writer in the Christian Herald, we passed nomadic groups of Bedouins, camping by the side of the Mahmoudieh canal. Out in the fields men and women, dressed alike in the loose cotton gown of the country, were busily at work. The fields were dotted with curious, doorless structures made of cornstalks. They are used as temporary homes at certain seasons of the year, as, for instance, when the crops are being gathered. Later on I entered one and found it to be not more than five feet square; one could not stand upright inside. The place contained nothing but a few jars and cooking utensils. In the winter the occupants wrap themselves up in their clothes at night.

Women's Aid Fund.

Among the bequests left by Mr. Henry Seymour Trower, of Surrey, England, whose estate is of the gross value of $1,341,805, is one of $50,000 to form a "Women's Aid Fund," to assist married or unmarried women with medical care and nursing, so as to help them in the rearing of their offspring. The fund is to be administered by Mrs. Caroline Huth, Mrs. Margaret Samson, Mrs. Edith Weathered, Mrs. Sophia Allen, and Frederick Morris, the honorable secretary of the Marylebone branch of the Charity Organization society.

BRONCHITIS SUFFERER

Takes Druggist's Advice With Splendid Result.

If anyone should know the worth of a medicine, it is the retail druggist who sells it over his counter every day in the week, and is in a position to know what remedy gives the best satisfaction.

Mrs. Frank H. Ulme, of West Sand Lake, N. Y., says: "For a number of years I was a great sufferer from bronchitis. Last July I had an attack which was more severe than any, and my friends thought I could not recover from it. Then I was advised by my druggist to try Vinol, which I did, with wonderful results. My cough has left me; I have gained in weight and appetite, and I am as strong as ever I was. I advise all who have bronchitis, chronic coughs, or who are run down to try Vinol."

It is the combined action of the medicinal curative elements of the cod's liver, without the greasy oil aided by the blood-making and strength-creating properties of tonic iron that makes Vinol so efficient.

Remember, we guarantee, Vinol to do just what we say—we pay back your money if it does not. P. S. Stop scratching, our Sazo Salve stops itching. We guarantee it.

THE FINEST IN THE STATE.

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from old Carpets" (trade mark established 1898) in which line a trade has been successfully established all over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and retting department, which includes a large sterilizing abattoir for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time-saving machinery devices run by electricity. Two of the largest rotary renovating machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for fine rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sewing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with latest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespeaks a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence should be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 15, 1911.—Make your payments early as possible.

County Normal Notes

Miss Mabyn Cliffe was absent from school Monday morning on account of not making connections with the boat.

The new practice teachers are Miss Merle Brecheisen, who has charge of the fifth grade reading, Miss Agnes Worth and Miss Dessie Groenink, who have charge of the fourth grade language.

Rev. A. D. Grigsby of East Jordan called at the normal one day last week and gave us a very interesting talk on some of the English poets whose homes he had visited.

Mr. George Hamilt, has charge of the little people from Miss Jarvis' room this week.

Miss Hazel Gilmartin and Miss Merle Brecheisen, spent Sunday at their homes at Bay Shore.

The children of the training room have worked very faithfully in the school garden and the work is nearly completed.

Jones's Daily Magazine.

For some months The Chicago Record-Herald has been trying out the newest idea in journalism—a daily magazine printed in the regular columns of the paper and it can no longer be denied that it is a popular success. "Jones's Daily Magazine" fills three or four columns daily and a whole page Sunday, offering a diverting variety of short stories, jokes, clever anecdotes, humorous pictures and well-selected miscellaneous matter for light reading. In short, readers of The Record-Herald not only have all the news of the world each morning, but a high-class vaudeville besides.

In order to test the popularity of this feature the editors recently printed a series of pictures without titles, offering prizes for the best titles suggested by readers. Thousands of letters about each picture promptly demonstrated that the people were reading and enjoying "Jones's Daily Magazine." Since then a special staff of editors from the Sunday department has been assigned to conduct this novel feature. Contributions from outside are solicited and paid for the same as with a regular magazine, and the editors already have bushels of manuscript to sift every week.

If S. E. Kiser's "Whimwhams and Sentiment" column in the same paper were not so unflatteringly fine it would be overshadowed by "Jones's Daily Magazine," but nothing this side of New York can throw the delectable Kiser into the shade. The Record-Herald is to be congratulated upon having two such breezy attractions every day in the week.

This Interests Every Woman.

A family doctor said recently that women come to him thinking that they have female trouble, but when he treats them for their kidneys and bladder, they soon recover. This is well known, and also that Foley Kidney Pills are the best and safest medicine at such times. They are tonic in action, quick in results. They will help you. Hites Drug Store.

Nothing worries a nagging wife so much as a husband who won't get mad.

Foley Kidney Pills repay your confidence in their healing and curative qualities. Any kidney or bladder disease not beyond the reach of medicine will yield to their use. Mrs. Ordeia Copland, Arden, Mo., says "I had kidney and bladder trouble for over a year and 5 bottles of Foley Kidney Pills cured me." It is the same story from every one who uses them. All say, "they cured me." Hites Drug Store.
