MICHIGAN NIMRODS

No License Necessary to Hunt in Home County

Fishermen are still confused over the action of the legislature relative to sportsmen's licenses as a result of the passage of the hunter's license bill. Those who go outside of the county in which they live must pay a $1 license fee. No license is required to hunt in the same county in which you live.

No fisherman's license bill was passed so far as Michigan fishermen are concerned. Persons who come from outside the state to fish in Michigan waters must pay a license fee, but this does not apply to Michigan fisherman fishing in the waters of this state.

The confusion has become so general that many local fishermen referring in a Detroit paper that every person who went outside his county to fish would be forced to pay $3 a day license fee had decided not to do much fishing this year. But that story is not true. It was a confusion of the non-resident fisherman's license the hunter's license and perhaps some local acts. Moreover, the acts, whatever they are, will hardly cut much fish this year since they will not go into effect until August 15.

PLAN CELEBRATION

Teachers Urged to Arrange Perry Day Program Now.

Perry Day is to be officially observed by the schools of Michigan on September 10, the hundredth anniversary of that notable victory of Perry and his fleet on Lake Erie. The importance of this victory to Michigan is incalculable so the department of public instruction is earnestly urging that Perry Day shall be fittingly observed in every schoolroom in the state. Teachers will necessarily have to begin planning their programs at once in order to be ready for the tenth of September as the date comes right at the beginning of the fall term.

It is suggested that the program be of a patriotic nature with suitable tributes to Perry and his heroes predominating. As the event is associated so closely with the history of the United States and of Michigan, the program is expected to give zest to the regular school program.

The legislature of Michigan at the recent session appropriated $30,000 toward the million dollar memorial which is being erected at Put-in-Bay. The accepted design, when completed, as contemplated, will cover, with its plaza, almost all of the reservation dedicated as a park to the memorial. The plaza, rising in a gradual ascent from the water's edge to the level height of 12 feet, is 758 feet long and 461 feet wide. The Doric column in the center is 335 feet in height, from the base to the light on the tripod surmounting the cap, which is 300 feet high, with a spectators' gallery reached by electric elevators from the crypt at the base, where the bones of the dead in the battle of Lake Erie will be interred. The column is 45 feet in diameter at the base and 35 feet at the top—the highest monument in the world, with the exception of the Washington monument at the national capital, and the highest column without exception. The material used in the column will be granite.

Even a married man may do as he pleases—as long as he pleases his wife.

Unlike most workers, the mosquito presents his bill before he does the job.

Of course there is a risk in marriage, but every normal man is fond of adventure.

Time isn't money to the man who wastes a dollar's worth of time in trying to save a penny.

It's a wonderful thing to be a man whom everybody will trust—including the grocer and the butcher.

The cynical world would be far more likely to sit up and take notice if more of the reformers would begin on themselves.

After he has failed to make good a weakling spends all the rest of his time explaining that he didn't get a square deal.

During courtship a man easily makes a dollar look like 30 cents. After marriage he tries to make 30 cents look like a dollar. This is less easy.

Commission Proceedings.

Moved by Hudson, supported by Kenny, that the plans and specifications of the fair ground stone road as submitted by H. L. Winters be approved, accepted and adopted. Carried.

The City Commission of the City of East Jordan having under consideration the matter of paving Main street from the north line of Garfield street to the north line of Division street, Commissioner Hudson offered the following resolution and moved its adoption. Seconded by Commissioner Kenny.

Whereas the Assessor of the City of East Jordan has completed his assessment according to the directions of this Commission heretofore given for the purpose of defraying that part of the cost and expense of paving Main Street from the north line of Garfield street to the north line of Division street, which this Commission has decided shall be borne by special assessment on the special assessment district heretofore established according to frontage.

Resolved, that said special assessment roll be filed with the Clerk of the City, and open to inspection to all persons interested; further

Resolved, That the City Clerk give the notice required by the Charter of said City to all persons assessed in said special assessment roll and all persons interested, to be published in the East Jordan Enterprise that this Commission together with the Assessor of the City will meet at the second floor of the City Hose House, (that being the place of the holding of the sessions of this Commission), on the nineteenth day of June, A. D. 1913, at 7:30 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of reviewing said roll, at which time all persons interested will be given opportunity to be heard.

Adopted by aye and nay vote of said Commission on the second day of June, A. D. 1913, as follows: Ayes, Cross, Kenny, Hudson. Nays, none.

Up-to-date and Novel Advertising Methods Adopted by an Enterprising House.

That East Jordan is fast becoming metropolitan in the methods of advertising used by our merchants to call the buying public's attention to the many splendid values which they are offering, also that the wide-awake firm of W. C. Spring Drug Co. are keeping up with and just a little ahead of the times in an advertising respect is again practically demonstrated by what is perhaps the most elaborate system of advertising ever attempted by any business house in this section, namely: the giving away of the beautiful Claxton-Parlor Grand Piano which is now on exhibition at their store.

This piano retails at $400.00 each, guaranteed for ten years. The principal points of superiority of this celebrated Claxton piano over any other of this class of instruments lie in the three strings in unison with over-strung bass, the splendidly pitched scale and true sounding board which give the Claxton that rich, deep, even tone so much admired.

In a recent interview with Mr. Spring regarding this decided innovation in advertising, Mr. Spring declared: "We have been enjoying the patronage and confidence of the buyers of this community for some time now and by always trying to keep our stocks complete the saying that 'You can get it at Spring's' has become a household expression. In giving away this piano we are actuated by a double purpose, to show our appreciation of the patronage of our friends during the past, also to encourage new trade and to bring the many splendid values we are now showing in all lines to the attention of every buyer in this territory. The plan we are using in giving away this piano is equitable and fair to all, simply this, every person buying one dollar's worth of anything at our store will receive a coupon good for 100 votes. The person returning to us the largest number of votes will be given the piano absolutely free of all cost. No favors will be shown. Our reputation for 'square dealing' assures our customers of that fact.

This four hundred dollar Claxton Parlor Grand Piano is surely a present worth having and we predict a very 'merry race' for votes during the next few months.

W. C. Spring Drug Co. is surely to be congratulated upon their broad-minded methods and "Trade Getter" advertising system.

Resolved, That said Special Assessment roll be filed with the Clerk of the City, and open to the inspection of all persons interested; further

Resolved, That the City Clerk give the notice required by the Charter of said City to all persons assessed in said special assessment roll and all persons interested, to be published in the East Jordan Enterprise that this Commission together with the Assessor of the City will meet at the second floor of the City Hose House, (that being the place of the holding of the sessions of this Commission), on the nineteenth day of June, A. MARRIAGE LAWS AND DIVORCE.

To what extent the divorce evil is encroaching on our national life is shown by the report of the Illinois commission appointed to secure evidence on that subject. The figures it submits are staggering. Within the last half century divorce has increased on an average of more than three and one-third times as fast as the population. In the past year it is estimated that 100,000 divorces were granted. It is within moderation to say that in the last 50 years, 2,000,000 homes have been wrecked, and that nearly a million and a half of children under the age of ten were deprived of one or both parents. Compare the figures for 1900 in 20 European countries, in addition to Australia, Canada and New Zealand, with a total population of 267,000,000, as against our population at that time of 76,000,000. The divorces granted in the 23 countries were 27,000. The divorces granted in this country were 56,000. The rate here was seven times that of Europe. The commission believes a remedy can be found only by a revision of our marriage laws. "We can never hope," says its report, "to eradicate the evil of the divorce court until we safeguard the morals and health of the community by just, sane adequate marriage laws."

Dr. William Brown of London tells us that "every dream is the fulfillment of some wish." Maybe so—maybe so. But a lot of them are due to indigestion, due to ill temper or gluttony. Others result from headaches, falling out of bed and liquid refreshments. Some are the result of long suppressed, ungratified desires, too. With these exceptions the doctor may be quite correct in his opinion. But no philosophy of dreams which fails to take into account the contributive influence of Welsh rarebit, mince pie and the hereinbefore mentioned liquids can be wholly correct. These things must not be ignored if we are ever to fully understand dreamology. That we shall fully comprehend it, is just as important as that we shall understand well, what, for instance?

A New York hotel proprietor undertakes to protect his patrons from the extortions of tip-exacting employes by forbidding cloakroom boys and girls the right to receive fees, and giving a ten per cent. reduction on all checks, to cover the tips to waiters. He declares that he has not increased his prices, and that there is no reason why the portion of the public which deals with his establishment should not be immune from exploitation by takers of tips. It will be interesting to note the report of this experiment which is made after a year's trial—if the experiment is bona fide.

In 1850 only three per cent. of the population of Switzerland were foreigners. Since that time the total has risen to 15 per cent. Now it is proposed to levy a special tax upon them. Perhaps it might induce some of them to procure the naturalization of their children. Perhaps it might drive some of them away. Since taxation began its recent upward movement in Germany there have been Germans who have removed to Switzerland for the purpose of escaping its pressure. If Switzerland tries to tax them too roundly some of them will move back.

Bulletin 120, bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, tells of an interesting trip of one of the department's scientists to India and the Orient in search of natural enemies of the citrus white fly. This insect causes widespread damage to the citrus fruit industry of the country. The trip resulted in the discovery in several places of insects which are destructive to the white fly, but further investigation will be necessary before their practical worth in destroying the orange and lemon enemy is demonstrated.

The three thousand girl stenographers in Canada who protested against being exhibited in moving pictures as gum-chewers will awake responsive sympathy. No self-respecting, self-supporting young woman wants to be held up to public ridicule as the victim of such a habit, and the fact that the remonstrance is coming three thousand strong ought to count.

An old lady recently died in Denver claiming to be over one hundred years of age. She never married and expressed herself as pleased that she had not. Just think how many more years she might have lived had she been happily married.

Walking the floor, with the baby when it howls at night unsettles the mind, says a specialist. Any old person can also add that it unsettles the temper, as well.

Patriotism Is Quite Broad Subject

By JOHN B. LEWIS

Patriotism is a subject so broad and comprehensive that it might be easier to tell what it is not than to define what it is or should be. Much that passes as patriotism is mere "eagle screaming," an hysterical outburst that soon exhausts itself and vanishes completely when called upon for real service.

The Century Dictionary defines patriotism as "the passion which moves a person to serve his country, either in defending it from invasion or in protecting its rights and maintaining its laws and institutions." While this statement covers the ground fairly well it is capable of many divisions, so many, indeed, that volumes might be written along the various lines indicated.

During the Civil war there were patriots upon both sides of the questions at issue, each fighting for what to him seemed best for his country, represented by his own geographical section. It is sublime to thus immolate oneself, but it is greater by far to so live for one's country that the loftiest ideals of citizenship shall be attained therein.

While the valor of the soldiers of the sixties will ever furnish a theme for song and for story, and deserves the eulogy and gratitude of all future generations, the energy and determination shown by those same young men on their return to civic life, taking up as they did the threads of normal existence which had been so rudely severed and weaving them into a fabric which includes every worthy line of human achievement, is equally "patriotic" and worthy of commendation.

Greater than all is the truly patriotic spirit which actuates many of those men today, both of the north and the south, who, rising superior to all former differences, are seeking to cement firmly the bonds of reconciliation while yet the friendly handclasp between those who once were foes is possible.

Patriotism of the finest type may be found in the home, in the school, in the workshop, in the office, in the courts, in the halls of legislation—everywhere when the object sought is upliftment. The mother who teaches her children consideration for the rights of others; the father who sacrifices his own comfort and gratification that his boys and girls shall have the best equipment for lives of usefulness; the man of affairs who devotes a portion of his time and means for the general welfare, the husbandman who seeks the enhancement of nature's bounty that all may be benefited; the philanthropist who strives to raise the fallen and to succor the needy; the man or woman who shares advantages for culture and enjoyment with those less fortunate—all who in any way are striving to add to the sum total of human happiness and upliftment and prosperity, are serving their country and may be ranked as patriots.

All honor to the men who saved our country from disruption. Their deeds have made them immortal and their memory will survive the ages to come. There are, however, various kinds of patriotism, and the man (or the woman) who gives to his community or his country the best service of which he is capable, in the position wherein he is placed, whether civic or military, may well be designated as "patriotic."

Work for Our Youthful Offenders

By Mrs. D. O. Rosenthal, San Francisco

What shall we do with our youthful offenders? The following: Give them work, find out what their ambitions are, study their characteristics and lead them along the lines that their ambition desires; feed them nourishing foods and keep them in physical development; have them respect themselves through a course of training that will lead, not drive them to acts; put them on their honor, but always keep them employed, not in a work that they would consider arduous, but work so arranged that it will draw out their thoughts and awaken their interest.

Make the remuneration such that they will be satisfied. Place before their minds the desire to excel and do well what they have to do.

The great trouble with the present system of human affairs is that people are not given the opportunity to be employed. The problem is simple if handled in an intelligent way.

Athletics, pure surroundings, ample nourishment, cleanliness, ambition to excel inculcated into the minds of boys and girls and the question what to do with them is solved.

In addition to the above, teach them to accumulate some portion of their earnings; instill in their minds that the gloss of city life is not as conducive to their happiness and welfare as the country.

Teach them thrift, honesty, sobriety, self-control, energy, efficiency. Make them strong, robust human beings and you have the question solved.

Loud Talking During Play at Theater

By Harriet Tyler, Des Moines, Iowa

I think that the theatrical managers throughout the United States should form some plan by which persons who witness the play should not be annoyed by persons in the audience talking and humming the songs with the actors on the stage. I have been compelled to leave the theater on several occasions through the annoyance of persons talking out loud during a performance. I do not know which is the most annoying, the man who hums the songs or the young man with his sweetheart that keeps up a continued string of conversation during the most interest-absorbing scenes.

Theater parties of fashionable persons, as a rule, never consider those around them. They talk all through the performance, much to the annoyance of persons sitting near them. A notice should be placed in the theater where everybody could see it, requesting persons in the audience not to talk during the show. If they do not heed the notice ushers should request them to either stop talking or go to the box office and get their money back. Usually persons who go to the theater are lovers of the drama and if the people who talk during performances knew how obnoxious they were making themselves the chances are they would stop.

Loyal Champion of the Little Sparrow

By Mrs. C. G. SEATON, Chicago

That the sparrow does not drive away other birds from one immediate vicinity I know to be a fact. I have never seen a quarrel between sparrows and the other beautiful birds which are surprisingly numerous in our neighborhood. I often wonder at the number of different birds—robins, thrushes, yellow-hammers, bluejays and tiny birds—I think they are wrens.

The sparrows are certainly useful and industrious. They will be on my mint bed in the yard a whole afternoon, on and off, and never destroy a leaf—the caterpillars do that. The sparrows must eat the small green lice that infest different plants.

SPRAYING OUTFIT NECESSARY FOR THE PRODUCTION OF PROFITABLE FRUIT CROP

Common Mistake to Try to Economize in Purchase of Equipment for Eradication of Orchard Pests—Easy Matter for Farmer to Have Liberal Supply of Small Fruits.

Showing the Good Effects of Spraying.

It is well for the farmer to realize at outset that the conditions are very different from what they were thirty or forty years ago, and that without a good spraying outfit good fruit cannot reasonably be expected. It is well to emphasize the word "good" in this sentence, writes E. E. Miller in the Country Gentleman; for it is a very common mistake to try to economize in the purchase of a spraying outfit, and so to get one which will make good work impossible, or at least make the cost of doing it twice as much as it should be. The manufacturers of spraying outfits who lead men to believe that an apple tree can be sprayed with a bucket pump are doing an injustice to their own machines, as well as to the men to whom they sell.

All this said, not to discourage the growing of the farm orchard, but merely to point out some things necessary to make it a success; and to show by contrast how easy it is for the farmer to have a liberal supply of the small fruits.

It is poor economy for farmers to try to get on without a home orchard, but it is much worse for them to try to get on without berries and other bush fruits and grapes. All berries are easily grown. The strawberry can be planted one year and be in full bearing the next. Most of the others need only two years in which to bear abundantly. Except in certain localities none of them are seriously attacked by other insect foe or disease.

The currant worm, gooseberry blight, blackberry anthracnose and strawberry weevil will do considerable damage in the aggregate, but all of them are more or less localized, and most of them are easily controlled. A man with a $6 knapsack sprayer need spend only a few hours in a season to protect enough bushes and vines to produce all the small fruits the average farm family will need.

The following are the standard formulae:

Bordeaux Mixture: This is a fungicide and used during the summer on plants that have resistant leaves; it is made as follows: Copper sulphate or blue stone, 3 to 4 pounds; quick lime, 5 to 6 pounds; water, 15 gallons. Dissolve the blue stone in 25 gallons of water; slack the lime in as much more and pour the two together at the same time, into a third barrel; pour them through a sieve so all the rocks, trash, etc., will be kept out of the final mixture. While applying this mixture keep it well stirred.

Paris Green: A deadly poison for biting insects, made as follows: Paris green, 1 pound; quick lime, 1 to 2 pounds; water, 150 to 200 gallons. Mix the paris green into a paste with water; slack the lime and add the whole required amount of water. Paris green may also be used in connection with bordeaux mixture instead of water; the bordeaux taking the place of the water. Paris green is not used with self-boiled lime sulphur.

Arsenate of Lead: A biting insecticide as paris green, but more effective, as it is not so apt to hurt the foliage of the tree; it is, however, more expensive than the paris green: Arsenate of lead, 2 to 3 pounds; quick lime, 2 to 3 pounds; water, 50 gallons. Slack the lime in the water and mix in the arsenate of lead. Either bordeaux mixture or self-boiled lime sulphur can be used with the material instead of water.

Kerosene Emulsion: This is a contact insecticide, used in the summer time for soft-boiled insects, like plant lice; it is made as follows: Soft water, 1 gallon (add borax to soften if water is hard), a good hard soap, 1 to 2 pounds; kerosene, 1 quart. Shake the soap into the water and warm until thoroughly dissolved; then add the kerosene and churn or pump it back and forth into itself for at least 15 minutes or a half hour; when thoroughly emulsified, add 21 to 22 gallons of water to make a 7 per cent. solution; 2 gallons gives an 8 per cent. and 11 to 12 gallons gives a 9 per cent.; the original solution is 15 per cent. Never apply the 15 per cent. first; always start with the 7 per cent. solution and work up to the stronger ones; it is hardly ever necessary to use more than a 7 per cent. for ordinary plant lice.

Be careful in making this mixture, for if the oil separates upon the plant the leaves are sure to be injured and likely killed.

Soap Solution: Where foliage is too tender to stand the kerosene soap, at the rate of 1 pound to 6 to 8 gallons of water may be used instead; it is not as good as the emulsion, but a great deal safer.

CRUSADE AGAINST POISON IVY PEST

While Not Fatal in Its Effects It Causes Much Unnecessary Suffering.

Wage war upon the poison ivy and keep at least the home place free from it. Only the most drastic measures have any effect upon it.

Teach the children to avoid any sort of climber that has a three-lobed leaf. While poison ivy is not fatal in its effects and many people are immune from its attacks, it causes much unnecessary suffering and it often affects and impairs the health.

Start a crusade against the pest among your neighbors and work against the common enemy. Try to pass laws to authorize road supervisors and commissioners to see that their districts are kept clear of it. Dig or plow it up to the smallest root and branch, for it is so tenacious to life that a twig allowed to lie upon the ground has been known to take root.

If every root cannot be dug touch the broken end with crude oil or some strong acid. A load of fresh manure dumped upon a clump of poison ivy in August will finish it.

DUCKS REQUIRE VERY LITTLE CARE

Fowls Consume Vast Quantities of Food and Rapidly Convert It Into Money.

It will pay to add ducks to the poultry department of every farm, says The Poultry Journal. Nothing was ever known to grow so fast and cause so little worry and work as ducks. Everything is "grist" that comes their way. They consume vast quantities of coarse foods, and convert it rapidly into flesh and money.

The growth they make is wonderful. They are independent of the caretaker, except so far as food is concerned. When they have grown to be two or three weeks old they even provide the greater part of their own food by hunting for it. They are the happiest, brightest and most independent things on the farm. They require a house or houses of their own, plenty of water to drink and puddle their bills in, and grit in some form.

Profit in Young Cattle. The Central experiment station farm at Ottawa, Canada, found that by comparing 1,000 pounds live weight in the case of calves, yearlings, two and three-year-olds, that the profit for each 1,000 pounds was: Calves, $31; yearlings, $27; two-year-olds, $19.10; three-year-olds, $12.80.

HAVE LONG DURATION OF LIFE

Salt Water Denizens Attain Immense Age, if Scientific Investigations Are Correct.

Water, particularly salt water, seems to conduce to longevity. There are gigantic mussels and oysters whose age is assumed to be comparable only with that of the Cape Verde baobab tree and the big tree of California, which live for 5,000 years. Indeed, there appears no particular reason why mussels should ever die, though it is also true that, considering the sort of life a mussel leads, there seems no particular reason why it should ever have lived.

Sea anemones, again, delicate and sensitive though they look when we see them in the rock pools, may attain great age. Sir John Dalyell, a Scottish naturalist, captured in 1828 a sea anemone of the liver-colored sort so common around our shores. Its age was then estimated at seven years. It flourished in Edinburgh until 1887, and was just attaining a vigorous and sober maturity when, from some unknown cause, it died—London Mail.

Very Plain Criticism.

Children are not always grateful beings, and they are notably hard to entertain. At a birthday party a kindly natured adult had toiled hard in the effort to amuse the children by means of parlor magic, ventriloquism, burlesque dancing and the like. The other adults present were highly amused, and some of the children deigned to chuckle mildly. The mother of the hostess, however, felt that full justice had not been rendered, so before announcing refreshments she took pains to thank the entertainer, and to call the attention of the youngsters to his gifts.

"Mr. Blank is very funny, isn't he, children?" she concluded.

From the rear of the room came a small, shrill voice:

"Yessum, but not so funny as he thinks he is!"

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thrither in search of him. Laughs during the service and is asked to leave. Abbott Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent.

CHAPTER III.—Continued. The young man was astonished. "Didn't you see him in the tent, leading the choir?"

"He has a house in town," Fran said timidly. "I don't want to bother him while he's in his religion. I want to wait for him at his house. Oh," she added earnestly, "if you would only show me the way."

Just as if she did not know the way! Abbott Ashton was now completely at her mercy. "So you know Brother Gregory, do you?" he asked, as he led her over the stile and down the wagon-road.

"Never saw him in my life," Fran replied casually. She knew how to say it prohibitively, but she purposely left the bars down, to find out if the young man was what she hoped.

And he was. He did not ask a question. They sought the grass-grown path bordering the dusty road; as they ascended the hill that shut out a view of the village, to their ears came the sprightly Twentieth Century hymn. What change had come over Ashton that the song now seemed as strangely out of keeping as had the peacefulness of the April night, when he first left the tent? He felt the prick of remorse because in the midst of nature, he had so soon forgotten about souls.

Fran caught the air and softly sang—"We reap what we sow."

"Don't!" he reproved her. "Child, that means nothing to you." "Yes, it does, too," she returned, rather impudently. She continued to sing and hum until the last note was smothered in her little nose. Then he spoke: "However—it means a different thing to me from what it means to the choir."

He looked at her curiously. "How different?" he smiled. "To me, it means that we really do reap what we sow, and that if you've done something very wrong in the past—ugh! Better look out—trouble's coming. That's what the song means to me."

"And will you kindly tell me what it means to the choir?" "Yes, I tell you what it means to the choir. It means sitting on benches and singing, after a sermon, and it means a tent, and a great evangelist and a celebrated soloist—and then going home to act as if it wasn't so."

Abbott was not only astonished, but pained. Suddenly he had lost "Nobody's little girl," to be confronted by an elfish spirit of mischief. He asked with constraint, "Did this critical attitude make you laugh out, in the tent?"

"I wouldn't tell you why I laughed," Fran declared, "for a thousand dollars. And I've seen more than that in my day."

They walked on. He was silent, she impenetrable. At last she said, in a changed voice, "My name's Fran. What's yours?"

He laughed boyishly. "Mine's Abbott."

His manner made her laugh sympathetically. It was just the manner she liked best—gay, frank, and a little mischievous. "Abbott?" she repeated; "well—is that all?"

"Ashton is the balance; Abbott Ashton. And yours?"

"The rest of mine is Nonpareil—funny name, isn't it!—Fran Nonpareil. It means Fran, the small type; or Fran who's unlike everybody else; or—Oh, there are lots of meanings to me. Some find one, some another, some never understand."

It was because Abbott Ashton was touched that he spoke lightly: "What a very young Nonpareil to be wandering about the world, all by yourself!"

She was grateful for his rallery. "How young do you think?" "Let me see. Hum! You are only—about—" She laughed mirthfully at his air of preposterous wisdom. "About thirteen—fourteen, yes, you are more than fifteen, more than sixteen. But take off that enormous hat, little Nonpareil. There's no use guessing in the dark when the moon's shining."

Fran was gleeful. "All right," she cried in one of her childish tones, shrill, fresh, vibratory with the music of innocence. By this time they had reached the foot-bridge that spanned the deep ravine. Here the wagon-road made its crossing of a tiny stream, by slipping under the foot-bridge, some fifteen feet below. On the left lay straggling Littleburg with its four or five hundred houses, faintly twinkling, and beyond the meadows on the right, a fringe of woods started up as if it did not belong there, but had, come to be seen, while above the woods swung the big moon with Fran on the foot-bridge to shine for.

CHAPTER IV.

The Woman Who Was Not Mrs. Gregory.

Hardly had Abbott Ashton disappeared down the village vista of moonlight and shadow-patches, before Fran's mood changed. Instead of seeking to carry out her threat of bearding the lion in the den, she sank down on the porch-steps, gathered her knees in her arms, and stared straight before her.

Though of skillful resources, of impregnable resolution, Fran could be despondent to the bluest degree; and though competent at the clash, she often found herself purpling on the eve of the crisis. The moment had come to test her fighting qualities, yet she drooped despondently.

Hamilton Gregory was coming through the gate. As he halted in surprise, a black shadow rose slowly, wearily. He, little dreaming that he was confronted by a shadow from the past, saw in her only the girl who had been publicly expelled from the tent.

The choir-leader had expected his homecoming to be crowned by a vision very different. He came up the walk slowly, not knowing what to say. She waited, outwardly calm, inwardly gathering power. White-hot action from Fran, when the iron was to be welded. Out of the deepening shadows her will leaped keen as a blade.

She addressed him, "Good evening, Mr. Gregory."

He halted. When he spoke, his tone expressed not only a general disapproval of all girls who wander away from their homes in the night, but an especial repugnance to one who could laugh during religious services. "Do you want to speak to me, child?"

"Yes." The word was almost a whisper. The sound of his voice had weakened her.

"What do you want?" He stepped up on the porch. The moon had vanished behind the rising masses of storm-clouds, not to appear again, but the light through the glass door revealed his poetic features. Flashes of lightning as yet faint but rapid in recurrence, showed his beauty as that of a young man. Fran remained silent, moved more than she could have thought possible. He stared intently, but under that preposterous hat she was practically invisible, save as a black shadow. He added again, with growing impatience, "What do you want?"

His unfriendliness gave her the spur she needed. "I want a home," she said decidedly.

Hamilton Gregory was seriously disturbed. However evil-disposed, the wail should not be left to wander aimlessly about the streets. Of the three hotels in Littleburg, the cheapest was not overly particular. He would take her there. "Do you mean to tell me," he temporized, "that you are absolutely alone?"

Fran's tone was a little hard, not because she felt bitter, but lest she betray too great feeling. "Absolutely alone in the world."

be wandering about the world, all by yourself!"

She was grateful for his rallery. "How young do you think?" "Let me see. Hum! You are only—about—" She laughed mirthfully at his air of preposterous wisdom. "About thirteen—fourteen, yes, you are more than fifteen, more than sixteen. But take off that enormous hat, little Nonpareil. There's no use guessing in the dark when the moon's shining."

Fran was gleeful. "All right," she cried in one of her childish tones, shrill, fresh, vibratory with the music of innocence.

By this time they had reached the foot-bridge that spanned the deep ravine. Here the wagon-road made its crossing of a tiny stream, by slipping under the foot-bridge, some fifteen feet below. On the left lay straggling Littleburg with its four or five hundred houses, faintly twinkling, and beyond the meadows on the right, a fringe of woods started up as if it did not belong there, but had, come to be seen, while above the woods swung the big moon with Fran on the foot-bridge to shine for.

Fran's hat dangled idly in her hand as she drew herself with backward movement upon the railing. The moonlight was full upon her face; so was the young man's gaze. One of her feet found, after leisurely exploration, a down-slanting board upon the edge of which she pressed her heel for support. The other foot swayed to and fro above the flooring, while a little hand on either side of her gripped the top rail.

"Here I am," she said, shaking back rebellious hair. Abbott Ashton studied her with grave deliberation—it is doubtful if he had ever before so thoroughly enjoyed his duties as usher. He pronounced judicially, "You are older than you look."

"Yes," Fran explained, "my experience accounts for that. I've had lots."

Abbott's lingering here beneath the moon when he should have been hurrying back to the tent, showed how unequally the good things of life—experience, for instance—are divided.

"You are sixteen," he hazarded, conscious of a strange exhilaration. Fran dodged the issue behind a smile. "And I don't think you are so awfully old."

Abbott was brought to himself with a jolt that threw him hard upon self-consciousness. "I am superintendent of the public school." The very sound of the words rang as a warning, and he became preternaturally solemn.

"Goodness!" cried Fran, considering his grave mouth and thoughtful eyes, "does it hurt that bad?"

Abbott smiled. All the same, the position of superintendent must not be bartefed away for the transitory pleasures of a foot-bridge. "We had better hurry, if you please," he said gravely.

"I am so afraid of you," murmured Fran. "But I know the meeting will last a long time yet. I'd hate to have to wait long at Mr. Gregory's with that disagreeable lady who isn't Mrs. Gregory."

Abbott was startled. Why did she thus designate Mr. Gregory's secretary? He looked keenly at Fran, but she only said plaintively: "Can't we stay here?"

He was disturbed and perplexed. It was as if a fitting shadow from some unformed cloud of thought-mist had fallen upon the every-day world out of his subconsciousness. Why did this stranger speak of Miss Grace Noir as the "lady who isn't Mrs. Gregory?" The young man at times had caught himself thinking of her in just that way.

School superintendents do not enjoy being mystified. "Really," Abbott declared abruptly, "I must go back to the meeting."

Fran had heard enough about his leaving her. She decided to stop that once and for all. "If you go back, I go, too!" she said conclusively. She gave him a look to show that she meant it, then became all humility. "Please don't be cross with little Nonpareil," she coaxed. "Please don't want to go back to that meeting. Please don't want to leave me. You are so learned and old and so strong—you don't care why a little girl laughs."

Fran tilted her head sidewise, and the glance of her eyes proved irresistible. "But tell me about Mr. Gregory," she pleaded, "and don't mind my ways. Ever since mother died I've found nothing in this world but love that was for somebody else, and trouble that was for me."

"If you're in trouble," he exclaimed, "you've sought the right helper in Mr. Gregory. He's the richest man in the county, yet lives so simply, so frugally—they keep few servants—and all because he wants to do good with his money. I think Mr. Gregory is one of the best men that ever lived."

Fran asked with simplicity, "Great church worker?" "He's as good as he is rich. He never misses a service. I can't give the time to it that he does—to the church, I mean; I have the ambition to hold—one day—a chair, at Yale or Harvard—that means to teach in a university—" he broke off, in explanation.

"You see," with a deprecatory smile, "I want to make myself felt in the world."

Fran's eyes shone with an unspoken "Hurrah!" and as he met her gaze, he felt a thrill of pleasure from the impression that he was what she wanted him to be.

"Fran allowed his soul to bathe a while in divine eye-beams of flattering smile."

"Good Evening, Professor Ashton."

approval, then gave him a little stinging to bring him to life. "You are pretty old, not to be married," she remarked. "I hope you won't find some woman to put an end to your high intentions, but men generally do. Men fall in love, and when they finally pull themselves out, they're lost sight of the shore they were headed for."

A slight color stole to Abbott's face. In fact, he was rather hard hit. This wandering child was no doubt a witch. He looked in the direction of the tent, as if to escape the weaving of her magic. But he only said, "That sounds—er—practical."

"Yes," said Fran, wondering who "the woman" was, "if you can be practical, there's no use to be. Well, I can see you now, at the head of some university—you'll make it, because you're so much like me. Why, when they first began teaching me to feed—Good gracious! What am I talking about?" She hurried on, as if to cover her confusion. "But I haven't got as far in books as you have, so I'm not religious."

"Books aren't religion," he remonstrated, then added with unnecessary gentleness, "Little Nonpareil! What an ideal!"

"Yes, books are," retorted Fran, shaking back her hair, swinging her foot, and twisting her body impatiently. "That's the only kind of religion I know anything about—just books, just doctrines; what you ought to believe and how you ought to act—all nicely printed and bound between covers. Did you ever meet any religion outside of a book, moving up and down, going about in the open?"

He answered in perfect confidence, "Mr. Gregory lives his religion daily—the kind that helps people, that makes the unfortunate happy."

Fran was not hopeful. "Well, I've come all the way from New York to see him. I hope he can make me happy. I'm certainly unfortunate enough. I've got all the elements he needs to work on."

"From New York!" He considered the delicate form, the youthful face, and whistled. "Why you please tell me where your home is, Nonpareil?"

She waved her arm inclusively. "America. I wish it were concentrated in some spot, but it's just spread out thin under the Stars and Stripes. My country's about all I have." She broke off with a catch in her voice; she tried to laugh, but it was no use.

Suddenly it came to Abbott Ashton that he understood the language of moon, watching woods, meadow-lands, even the gathering rain-clouds; all spoke of the universal brotherhood of man with nature; a brotherhood including the most ambitious superintendent of schools and a homeless Nonpareil; a brotherhood to be confirmed by the clapping of sincere hands. There was danger in such a confirmation, for it carried Abbott beyond the limits that mark a superintendent's confines.

As he stood on the bridge, holding Fran's hand in a warm and sympathetic pressure, he was not unlike one on picket-service who slips over the trenches to hold friendly parley with the enemy. Abbott did not know there was any danger in this brotherly handclasp; but that was because he could not see a fleshy and elderly lady slowly coming down the hill. As superintendent, he should doubtless have considered his responsibilities to the public; he did consider them when the lady, breathless and severe, approached the bridge, while every pound of her ample form cast its weight upon the seal of her disapproving, low-voiced and significant, "Good evening, Professor Ashton."

Fran whistled. The lady heard, but she swept on without once glancing back. There was in her none of that saline tendency that made of Lot a widow; the lady desired to see no more.

Fran opened her eyes at Abbott to their widest extent, as she demurely asked, "How cold is it?" My thermometer is frozen."

The young man did not betray uneasiness, though he was really alarmed, for his knowledge of the fleshy lady enabled him to foresee gathering clouds more sinister than those overhead. The obvious thing to be done was to release the slender hand; he did so rather hastily.

"Have I got you into trouble?" Fran asked, with her elfish laugh. "If so, we'll be neighbors, for that's where I live. Who was she?"

"Miss Sapphira Clinton," he answered as, by a common impulse, they began walking toward Hamilton Gregory's house. "Bob Clinton's sister, and my landlady." The more Abbott thought of his adventure, the darker it grew; before they reached their destination it had become a deep gray.

"Do you mean the 'Brother Clinton' that couldn't get 'through'?" "Yes." He's the chairman of the School Board."

"Ah!" murmured Fran comprehendingly. At Gregory's gate, she said, "Now you run back to the tent and I'll beard the lion by myself. I know it has sharp teeth, but I guess it won't bite me. Do you try to get back to the tent before the meeting's over. Show yourself there. Parade up and down the aisles."

He laughed heartily, all the sorrier for her because he found himself in trouble.

"It was fun while it lasted, wasn't it?" Fran exclaimed, with a sudden gurgle. "Part of it was," he admitted. "Good-by, then, little Nonpareil."

He held out his hand. "No, sir!" cried Fran, clasping her hands behind her. "That's what got

HOLD RECORD FOR FASTING

Two Eccentric Englishmen Who Practiced Self-Denial Through Many Years of Their Lives.

The most persistent faster of all time was probably Roger Crabb, who lived in the time of the commonwealth.

In order to carry out his ideas most effectually he sold off his stock in trade, distributed the proceeds among the poor and took up his residence in a hut near Ickenham, where he lived on three farthings a week.

"Instead of strong drinks and wines," says the eccentric Roger, "I give the old man a cup of water and instead of roast mutton and rabbit I give him broth thickened with bran and pudding made with bran and turnip leaves chopped together."

Vigorous health was the result, says the London Chronicle, but his abstinence from food was regarded with such suspicion that on one occasion he narrowly escaped being burned alive as a wizard.

Another famous hermit who managed to reduce diet to very simple proportions was James Lucas, with whom many of us are doubtless familiar as Mr. Mopes in Charles Dickens' "Tom Tiddler's Ground."

CLEARED AWAY

Proper Food Put the Troubles Away.

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles. "I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes a N. H. man. "For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering."

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with an attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery that would sometimes last a week or more, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk."

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I can eat almost anything I want without trouble."

"When I began to use Grape-Nuts I was way under my usual weight, now I weigh 30 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change. Want School 12 Months.

Gov. Ferris introduced some new ideas along pedagogical lines in an address given at the dedication of the new high school building at Alma Thursday night, and declared himself as strongly favoring a twelve month term for public schools. "The school of today is to smart to accomplish the work it should. It should be opened up for the year with both day and night schools, with sessions six days in the week. Bring in the fathers and mothers, give them some of the advantages and real pleasures of education. The school could be the center of all activities in the community. As soon as this policy is adopted, watch the results." Gov. Ferris took occasion to state that more than 100,000 teachers are needed in the public schools and one way to bring about this condition is to raise the salaries of high school teachers. "I do not wish to discount the value of the women teachers in the high school of today, but a change would be a desirable thing. Let the women marry these men teachers; then they would be taken care of."

ONE DOLLAR PER YEAR

Entered at the postoffice at East Jordan Michigan, as second class mail matter.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913.

He aims too low who tries to please everybody.

Those who always fear want will never want fear.

People who love to hear themselves talk should take something for it.

One-half of the world not knowing how the other half lives cheats the dyspepsia and appendicitis specialists and the other half ought to be happy, but they ain't.

Capt. Christopher, who "teached port with the steamer Rygnels yesterday, is telling a true story which some persons scarcely believe. The captain said that when the boat arrived at Ft. William, Ont., after a recent trip from this city through the Great Lakes, the pilot house was heavily coated with ice. He says the cold was almost unbearable on Lake Superior and was probably the most severe weather that part of the country has ever received at this time of the year.—Boyer City Journal.

The West Michigan Pipe Association has been formed with Dr. DeKleine of Grand Haven as president, and Richard Hoffman, Manistee Secretary-Treasurer. This association has adopted for its slogan "Chicago to Mackinaw, Lake Shore all the way." The principal business of the association will be to promote the Chicago to Mackinaw highway by using all legitimate means. It is proposed that a booklet and map describing the lake shore country be issued and a publicity committee with John I. Gibson as chairman was appointed.

Last week supreme court affirmed the decision of Judge Lamb in the case of Samuel Brockway et al. vs. Hydraulic Power & Light Co. The case grew out of the contention of land owners on the upper lake that the Power Co's dam at this place had raised the water in the lake until their premises were flooded, and was heard in the circuit court about a year ago. Judge Lamb, of Cadillac, presiding for Judge Mayo. The court decided for the plaintiffs and the Hydraulic Power & Light Co. were ordered to lower their dam two feet.—Bellare Independent. This is the company that supplies Charlevoix with electricity.

Leaving Lansing August 1, a special train containing exhibits of the state dairy and food commission, as well as the state board of health, will tour Michigan towns and cities. Dr. Robert L. Dixon, secretary of the state of health, will have charge of the exhibits of the health department while Fern L. Shannon, state analyst for the dairy and food commission will take charge of the exhibits of his department. Food commissioner Helme is expected to accompany the tour, and give talks on dairy sanitation and general conduct. The purpose of this trip is to educate the general public on matter of pure food, sanitation and preservatory of health.

The Brilliant Stars of June—By the end of June, Mars, Venus, Saturn and Jupiter will all be morning stars, but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is at all times the "Star" medicine for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. A cold in June is as apt to develop into bronchitis or pneumonia as at any other time, but not if Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is taken. Hite's Drug Store.

Four Boyne City men caught 144 speckled and four rainbow trout in the Jordan river Sunday. The members of this fishing party and the fish they caught are: Anderson R. E., Way 42; Al Goodrich, 48; James Johnson, 58; Ben Zimmerman, 30. Johnson caught three of the rainbow trout, Zimmerman caught the other one; The fishing was started at old headquarters camp on the Jordan, 18 miles south of this city. "The river seemed to be alive with fish," said Mr. Way to the Boyne City Journal. "They were of all sizes from minnows up. When you see their numbers you can understand that there is little danger of the stream being depleted, provided all fish taken are over legal size. It is surprising how large a fish a full grown trout will swallow. They seem to have the capacity of a snake."—Boyer City Journal.

A Worker Appreciates This. Wm. Morris, a resident of Florence, Oregon, says: "For the last fourteen years my kidneys and bladder incapacitated me from all work. About eight months ago I began using Foley Kidney Pills, and they have done what other medicines failed to do, and now I am feeling fine. I recommend Foley Kidney Pills." Hite's Drug Store.

Presbyterian Church Notes

Rev. A. D. Grigsby, Pastor.

Sunday morning worship in the Presbyterian Church at 10:30. But in consequence of the Baccalaureate Address in the M. E. church there will be no evening service.

Sunday School at 11:45. The Young Peoples Society meets at 6:45 and any not members are heartily invited.

No Praise and Prayer meeting next Thursday evening owing to the Graduating Exercises of the High School at the Opera House.

The Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church will hold the June meeting at the home of Mrs. Bretz on Friday next at 2:30.

A Concert of Sacred Music Vocal and Instrumental took the place of the usual evening worship in the Presbyterian church last Sunday evening. Messrs Collin and Powers in charge of Grinnell's Piano Display contributed very much indeed to its success by their splendid singing and the latters trombone playing. Messrs J. Hite and W. Webster on flute and violin accompanied by Miss Grigsby on the organ was listened to with close attention. The vocal numbers were beautifully rendered without exception. A Ladies Quartette consisting of Mesdames Fitch and Hammond, and Misses Porter and Lorraine and a male Quartette by Messrs Collin and Powers, Fitch and Bisbee were the principal numbers. The church was filled and the attendance were far more than repaid for their attendance.

First Methodist Episcopal Church

When in need of anything in my line call in and see me.

Our forged contact with the amenities of civilization profits us for a life of vagabondage.

No Substitute Could Do This. No inferior substitute, but only the genuine Foley Kidney Pills could have rid J. F. Wallich, Bartlett, Nebr., of his kidney trouble. He says: "I was bothered with backache, and the pain would run up the back of my head, and I had spells of dizziness. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they did the work and I am now entirely rid of kidney trouble." Hite's Drug Store.

Charley's Pomona Grange will meet with Barnard Grange on Thursday, June 19th.

In the Grand Rapids News Junior School Composition contest for the third week, Barbara Bennett, of the East Jordan seventh grade won first prize, a framed picture, and Elsie Miles of the ninth grade "honorable mention."

Messrs W. C. Spring, George Spencer and E. A. Ashley and son, arrived home from Detroit, Saturday evening last in their recently-purchased Cabin Cruiser. Mrs. Ashley, Mrs. Spring, Mrs. Spencer and Miss Frederica Johnson joined the party at Charlevoix.

Herbert Holbeck of Detroit, a brother of V. G. Holbeck, has leased the East Jordan Garage and is installing appliances for the repair and care of autos. Mr. Holbeck is an experienced automobile machinist and with the number of autos increasing, we believe he will find our city a paying field. Mrs. Holbeck will join her husband here this coming week.

Mayor Cross, Fire Chief Adams, and Messrs. Jos. Cummings, Coykendall, Hall, Giddor, Rogers, Anderson and Shubrick, went by auto first of the week to Cheboygan where they attended the State Firemen's Convention. While there they went to Mackinac Island where they were guest of Park Supt. Frank Kenyon. The party returned home Thursday evening and report a fine time.

Manager Eugene Adams installed this week a new radium gold moving picture screen at the Temple Theatre. This screen is the latest out in this line and, like all new material, the cost is quite an item, running considerable over a hundred dollars. Mr. Adams is to be congratulated in his efforts to furnish the people of our city the most modern and up-to-date in motion pictures, as well as vaudeville and regular theatrical attractions.

The talent selected for next winter's Lyceum Lecture and Entertainment Course consists of The International Operatic Company, (a high class organization including Telka Farn, soprano, formerly with Schuman-Hink Co.) Ralph Parlette, humorist lecturer. Dr. H. V. Adams, lecturer. The Stratford's male quartet, and Noah Bellhary, entertainer. These five numbers comprise a very strong combination and one which should meet with popular approval.

Mrs. Henrietta Bartels was born in Germany, February 4th, 1835, came to America in 1854 and took up their residence near Muskegon, Mich., after which they moved to the West. Of late years she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. August Leu of East Jordan, where she died May 29th after a very short illness. She was past 73 years of age. The funeral was conducted at the residence of August Leu on Sunday afternoon by Rev. T. Porter Bennett. Interment at East Jordan cemetery.

The postoffice department is contemplating changing the hour of rural carriers leaving the East Jordan office from 7:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. This will give rural patrons the advantage of receiving what is termed the "noon" mail, which now arrives here at 10:30. Postmaster Potter sent out cards, Friday to all rural patrons, asking them their desires in the matter and the proposed change will be based on these returns. With the present mail schedule it would be of advantage to rural patrons, to have the 11:00 o'clock schedule as this is the heaviest mail received during the twenty-four hours.

WE WANT YOUR BUSINESS.

EVEN AS A BROTHER

She Dared Not Refuse a Refuge in Nobility of a Loyal Soul.

The man was cold, but there seemed to be no warmth nor shelter for him. His soul craved compassion, a friendly word. No one offered it. He was hungry and weak. Through well-lit windows there showed tables gleaming with the rich roast, the steaming urn, the tasteful delicacies, and bright, happy faces. The refuse winds were tossed to the dogs, but none to the gaunt, thin, clad supplicant whom these very animals drove away into the biting blast with savage attacks.

There was a black shadow upon this forlorn being's face as upon his soul. The prison blight told in the unnatural pallor, the shrinking mien, the pained eyes. This man had been suddenly, mysteriously snatched from work, position and contentment, with little or no explanation. He had just ended five years penal servitude. The awful change to dreary solitude, a slave-chained existence, the consciousness of utter helplessness had broken his spirit and stunned him.

No news from the outside world had reached him during his convict life. He recalled his last day of liberty—teller in a country bank. He remembered a hideous charge of embezzlement, the case railroaded through. He has sent for his closest friend, the cashier of the bank, Ellis Wood. Word was brought back to him that young Wood was dangerously ill with brain fever.

Since the two-four-six-eight monotonous steps up and down his cell far into the night, the days, even the hours tallied off. Finally, liberty. The first move of the wretched convict was to visit the town where his life had been blighted. He learned that Ellis Wood had been abroad for five years, a confirmed invalid, and his father and sister had removed to some other town. Then a dispirited, almost purposeless wandering, and now Randal Thorne, a shivering outcast, fronted the wild night storm.

"What is Your Name?"

He knocked at the door of a small tumble cottage and asked for a meal, but first the work to pay for it. Its mistress told a tale of sickness and destitution that fairly shamed his own solitary condition.

The wanderer battled the elements anew until he felt that he should succumb if he did not soon reach shelter and food. He turned in desperation at the gate of a somewhat pretentious house. Necessity, the urgings of his sufferings, inspired him momentarily with a certain reckless audacity. He rang the door bell. A tall fair woman about his own age responded to the summons.

"Madam," he said simply, "I am a stranger in a strange place. I have been just released from a prison. I am bewildered, stunned, unable to find my way back into the world that has forgotten me since five years ago."

"Five years!" came in a strange gasp from the woman's lips. Her eyes seemed filled with a sudden dread, an indefinable emotion. "What is your name?"

"Randal Thorne."

She recoiled. But that she caught at the door she must have fallen. Her face had turned marble, she seemed to shrink within herself. Then with a mighty effort she opened wide the door.

"Come in," she said. "Oh, the pity of it! You are Randal Thorne? I am Laura Wood, the sister of your old friend."

Was it a dream—had the storm, exposure, utter despair—brought illusions to his shattered mind? Randal Thorne asked himself the question one hour later as he sat before a warm grate fire, a rejuvenated being.

With that same pallid face, not with spasms yet with a dreadful shrinking, as though some terrible fear oppressed her, the beautiful woman had led her invited guest into the parlor of the house. Her gray-haired house-keeper had been summoned to prepare a scanty meal. Now Miss Wood listened to his story with bowed head. Then she said to her brother:

"You were his friend," she spoke, never lifting her eyes to the face of Thorne. "That is enough for me. Had you not appeared here so strangely as you have, I should have sought you out."

"You would have sought me out—I, a convict!" murmured Thorne in profound bewilderment.

"Yes," was the reply, every word uttered as if it were an effort. "My brother died in Italy, where he had been a helpless invalid since—the time of your trouble. My father died a year ago. For a few days before his death my brother was rational. He sent a last message to me regarding you, Mr. Thorne. It was to say that—that you were an innocent man—a dark flush momentarily crossed the intense pallor of her face. "It was to direct me to take from my father's estate two sums, one to cover the bank defalcation, and $5,000 for yourself as a token of his undying friendship to you."

When Randal Thorne left the home of sorrow it was nearly midnight. When he planned the next day to go to some far country, where his disgrace was not known, somehow he could not. Always the pitiful, sorrowing face of Laura Wood came up before him. Always he felt that there was some sentiment chain of mutual bereavement and loneliness between them. Ambition, uninspired, did not allure him. He had not a friend in the world.

"I have come back," he said one evening a week later, as with some wonderment Laura led him into the house to which he had come not long since so strange a guest. "I have something to say to you, Miss Wood."

She sat with hands folded and downcast eyes. She trembled, and once more the gloom of a nameless dread seemed to rush her soul.

"I cannot face the world—alone," continued Thorne. "To me, after my terrible experience, it is cold, harsh, unreal. The generous gift of your brother does not help me. He is a lost link, even if only a memory, to the old life—he and you."

Thorne paused. His manner had grown unconsciously pleading, his utterance had the ring of earnestness and intensity.

"You have given me succor in the hour of my darkest need," he went on, "but all outside of that seems unreal. For your dead brother's sake give me your friendship—if you can; your love—I am perishing for that. The world, else, is a wilderness to me."

She arose to her feet in direful distress.

"You—you ask that," she cried, bursting into tears. "Of me, so unworthy of the family that has so cruelly wronged you. Oh, hero, martyr that you are, I must tell you all or my heart will break. It was for the crime of my brother that you suffered so nobly, so unjustly. It was not until after the death of my father that I learned how well he had kept the wicked, dreadful secret."

"But Ellis!" cried Thorne, his face illumined—"my poor sacrifice gave him five years of rest, of safety, if not of happiness? Thank God—I am content! His weakened, irresistible mind led him to an act he never realized. Oh, it is sweet, sweet to know that I could prove my friendship and bear his burden."

She put out her arms towards him. The nobility of a loyal soul was a refuge she dared not refuse.

GOOD IN "MOVING PICTURES"

Philadelphia Physician Uses Them for the Instruction of the Students Under Him.

In Philadelphia moving pictures are now being used to record actions and expressions in cases of nervous diseases. Dr. T. H. Weisenburg, a well-known neurologist of that city, is quoted in the Philadelphia Inquirer as saying that no development in recent years has been of so much value as the use of moving pictures in medical teaching. The usual method pursued by this physician is to first lecture on his topic, which may be epilepsy, and then to show a reel containing specimens of the different types. The film actually portrays a man having a fit. The physician maintains that the moving picture is the only way of keeping a permanent record of symptoms in rare cases, thus providing the only record which can be sent from place to place and reproduced hundreds of times with the same effect as though the original extremely rare case was being viewed.

The pictures also furnish in the case of a certain kind of epileptic spasm, where a movement is extremely swift, a means of diagnosis, because the operator can slow up the machine, lessening the speed of the film and thus allowing recognition of the movements in their slow form that was hard when they were encountered at the original speed.

Peanut as a "Civilizer"

The peanut seems to be playing the part of "civilizer" in some of the colonial districts of Africa. Traders give a negro a bushel of nuts for seed on condition that he returns four bushels from his crop, and since the yield in good years is twenty fold, the black man generally has a surplus that he can sell at the rate of a shilling a bushel. From a single station in Senegambia there were shipped in one year 20,000 tons. Small boys and scientists have long been in agreement as to the value of the peanut; now statesmen also will have to do it honor, since it seems likely to lead the native African into the paths of agriculture.

CAPTURE BULL WHALE ON COAST OF JERSEY

Leviathan of the Deep Lassoed and Pulled Ashore by Hawser and Windlass.

Ocean City, N. J.—A whale spilled himself into the shallow water of the beach here the other morning.

"Whale ho!" cried the lookout of the beach patrol, and the patrol bore down on the biggest bonehead ever seen in Ocean City.

"Get the harpoon!" cried Jimmy Kelly, the bravest and brightest of them all.

With a harpoon—said harpoon being a boat hook—they jumped on the leviathan.

"Give him the hook! The hook!" sputtered Kelly.

They prodded old bonehead with the boat hook, and he bellowed like a bull. He was a bull, anyhow. Then he spit at them. He sent up a fountain of water from his spout-hydrant in his head and nearly drowned them all. He rushed them with his big bull head, but could not rush far. He could have sunk a ship; that old bonehead, but he was out of his element.

He made the fatal mistake of getting that awful tail too high out of the water and the vigilant coast guards lassoed it.

The men got the hawser around a windlass and started two horses on a merry-go-round about the windlass. The whale began to come shoreward. When they had him powerless they got another line aboard his starboard fluke.

"Heave yo!" cried the captain of the guard.

They piped a sailor's chanty and with a long pull and a strong pull they yanked the leviathan up on the beach.

"Hooray!" yelled Jimmy Kelly. "Won by a fluke."

The monster of the deep measured 37 feet in length and about 7 feet in the beam.

WHEN PRISONERS PLAY BALL

Season at Atlanta Penitentiary Opened With Flag-Raising—Also Have "Robber" Umpires.

Allanta, Ga.—Attended by all the conventional ceremonies of the big leagues, the baseball season of 1913 in the prison league in the Atlanta federal prison has been opened. There was a parade through the grounds, in which all the players of the league participated, led by the prison band. The championship pennant of 1912, won by the "Giants," the stone cutters' crew, was raised after an appropriate speech by a prisoner, once prominent in the news of the day.

Warden Moyer was called upon to pitch the first ball. A double-header was played during the day in which the "Tigers" defeated the "Cubs" 12 to 3. The "Giants" defeated the "Crackers" by the score of 9 to 1. The "Giants" had as their pitcher a negro, generally known as "Georgia," but on the baseball diamond as "Black Matty," because he won 15 games straight last season.

The umpires selected from among the prisoners were freely and frankly denounced as "robbers." Enthusiastic fans rooted with all the vim and enthusiasm of their prototypes on the outside, and then all doffed their caps as the band played "America" at the close of the second game, gave three cheers for the flag of their country and then filed back to their cells.

Accommodating Judge.

New York—Francis Venli, a negro, in the Tombs on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, refused in court to answer questions, saying he wanted to keep his warm prison bed for a while. He was accommodated.

Baby as Security.

New York—Frank Sancher was arrested on a charge of abduction because he refused to give up Joseph Maglois' two-year-old baby that he was holding for a board mill. He was released on $1,500 bail.

Parrot Causes Accident.

Brussels.—A parrot imitating a trolley conductor's whistle caused the motorman to start up too soon and two persons were seriously injured.

Not on the Map.

Joan was a most conscientious pupil, eight years old. During one of the school study periods the teacher noticed her searching a large atlas intently with a most puzzled expression. After a few minutes she asked the child what she was looking for.

"Oh," said the anxious student.

"Miss Kane said we were to find all the places spoken of in the history lesson on the map, and it says that 'Columbus was at the Point of Starvation,' and 'I can't find it anywhere!'" —Youth's Companion.

THE RIGHT SOAP FOR BABY'S SKIN

In the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favorite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties are usually sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness, roughness and chapping, soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and hair health generally. Assisted by Cuticura Ointment, it is most valuable in the treatment of eczemas, rashes and other itching, burning infantile eruptions. Cuticura Soap wears to a wafer, often-outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston." Adv.

"I see you have a new cook," said Mrs. Keen, as she smiled at the hostess across the table.

"Yes," replied the hostess. "How did you know?"

"I've been studying the thumb prints on the plates," replied Mrs. Keen.

Certainly.

"I think an engagement is usually a blunder."

"Well, it is a miss-taken move."

What He Did.

In "Little Humorists at School," Mr. H. J. Barker tells a story of a school mistress who asked one of the little girls in her class, the daughter of a man who was not always so sober as he ought to have been: "What is your father?"

"Please, miss," was the prompt reply, "when he's working he's a brick-layer; but when he's out of work he's a testotater!"

Real Difference.

"I begin to perceive," said the tired business man, as the comedian executed a funny fall, "the difference between the classic drama and musical comedy."

"There are many differences."

"Yes. But the chief one is that while the classic drama uses cymbals, musical comedy uses the bass drum."

IT'S HARD TO WORK

It's torture to work with a lame, aching back. Get rid of it. Attack the cause. Probably it's weak kidneys.

Heavy or conching work is hard on the kidneys, anyway, and once the kidneys become inflamed and congested, the trouble keeps getting worse. The danger of running into gravel, dropsy, or Bright's disease is serious. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, a fine remedy for backache or bad kidneys.

SCHOOL ATHLETIC CONTEST

[This report was handed The Herald last week too late for publication, by Supt. Northon.]

Over one hundred boys of grades four to eight inclusive were found competent to take part in the athletic contests at the East Jordan Meet held on the fair grounds on Tuesday afternoon. The plan of this meet varied somewhat from the usual plan by which such affairs are conducted. Every boy weighing 80 pounds or over is expected to take part unless physically incompetent. The boys are assigned to classes according to weight, each being expected to try all the events of his class whether he excels in them or not. Each boy is graded on a scale of 100 in each separate event. If he attains a score of 50 or more in all of the events of his class, he is awarded the "Honor Standard" badge. The events include a 50-yard dash, baseball throw, standing broad jump, and running broad jump for the lightest (60 to 80 lb) class. In the heavier classes the dashes increase to 75 and 100 yards, and the shot put and running high jump are introduced. Different attainments are required of each class to win the same score, for example a boy in the lightest class scores 50 by throwing the baseball 120 feet, while a boy in the 90-100 class must throw it 180 feet to win the same score. The aim of the plan is to give every boy a chance to win thereby encouraging all to take part, rather than limit the entries to those who excel; also the plan encourages all-round development by requiring a certain standard in all the events of the class. The meets was conducted by the County Y. M. C. A. and its methods of procedure and the results obtained should commend it to lovers of boys.

We give herewith the names of those who were fortunate to win the badge and also the winners of the highest scores in the different events. The following have been awarded badges:

- Hilton Milford average score 69.
- Charles Danto average score 64.
- Charles Murray average score 68.
- Oscar Bennett average score 64.
- Dick Dicken average score 64.
- D. Wiggins average score 60-3-5.
- Eleven other boys scored an average of 50 or more points but fell below the 50 standard in one or more events.
- Highest score in each event:—
- Clare Wing, 60-80 class, 50-yard dash, 7 3/4 sec., score 55.
- Charles Danto, 60-80 class 50-yd dash, 7 4/5 sec., score 55.
- Hilton Milford, 81-95 class, baseball throw, 189 feet, score 69.
- Hilton Milford, 81-95 class, 75-yard dash, 10 4/5 sec., score 55.
- D. Wiggins, 96-110 class, 100-yard dash, 13 4/8 sec., score 55.
- Charles Murray, 60-80 class, standing b. jump, 5 ft. 8 in., score 80.
- Vernon Barnett, 96-110 class running high jump, 4 ft. 1 in., score 66.
- Charles Danto, 60-80 class, running b. jump, 11 ft. 8 in., score 73.
- Bruce Cross, 120 lb class, shot put, 8 1/2, 36 feet, score 54.

Women may look good without being accused of good looks.

Whenever poverty comes in at the door it never stops to wipe its feet. Most men make good loafers who can't make good at anything else. There is folks living yet that think that the earth is flat, like a big silver dollar with the sun rising and setting off its edges and nothing much on it but birds of prey. It's unfortunate for some folks that their mouths are located so close to their ears—they can't tell whether they are talking or listening, principally the latter.

THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from Old Carpets" (trade mark established 1858) in which line a trade has been successfully established all over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and Refitting department, which includes a large sterilizing abator for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time-saving machinery, driven by electricity. Two of the largest rotary agitating machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for fine rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sawing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with largest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespeaks a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence should be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 13, 1911.—Make your payments early as possible.

Flag Day

In accordance with the usual custom, Saturday, June 14, 1913, will be observed as Flag day all over this country. It will be the one hundred and thirty-sixth anniversary of the adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of our country. The public recognition of Flag day as a national anniversary, each year becoming more and more general, would seem to make unnecessary any reminder that all patriotic citizens are expected to observe the day by unfurling Old Glory to the breeze. Just one hundred and thirty-six years ago congress enacted that the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field representing a new constellation. The admission of new states increased the number of stripes but congress in 1818 restored the original thirteen, when it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white that the union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that, on the admission of a new state into the union, one star be added to the union of the flag."

Governors, mayors, patriotic societies, school teachers, business men and just plain citizens are joining in the work of spreading enthusiasm for and allegiance to the Stars and Stripes. The American Flag association is doing its share toward promoting reverence for Old Glory.

Memorial day, Flag day and every other day let it be displayed from public and private buildings, from schools and churches. Let it serve as an inspiration to the ambition of every liberty loving American. The Stars and Stripes, within the recent past, have come to possess new beauty for friendly eyes and new terror for foes of liberty.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 11th day of April, in the year 1908, executed by Albert J. Eicher and Nora Eicher, his wife, of East Jordan, Michigan, to Jerome B. Allen, of the State of Georgia, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, in their 42 of mortgages, on page 170 on the 14th day of April, in the year 1908, at 9:30 o'clock a. m. And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $755.40, of principal and interest, and the further sum of thirty-five dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage is the sum of $790.40, and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative, Notice is hereby given, that the virtue of the said power of sale, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the court house in the City of Charlevoix, in said county of Charlevoix, on the twenty-third day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day; which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: The south fifty feet of lot eight in block eleven in the Village of South Lake, now the incorporated village of East Jordan, Charlevoix County, Michigan, as per the recorded plat of Nichols first Addition to said village, said land being bounded as follows, to-wit: On the west by Main Street, on the south by the south line of said lot eight, on the east by the alley which runs through said block eleven on the north by a line ten feet south of and parallel with the north line of said lot eight.

Dated, May 29th, 1913. JEROME B. ALLEN, Mortgagee.
