Petoskey suffered one of the most severe blows in its history when a $20,000 fire of unknown origin destroyed the piano mill plant of the W. L. McManus company last Friday morning. The plant was stored with finished lumber and there was no insurance. Martin and Son's grocery suffered a $2,000 loss, half covered by insurance. The fire threatened the business section of the city but a shift in the wind saved it. The Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad suffered considerable loss when several freight cars burned, and traffic delayed for two hours.

Your friend will think it is a shame if you make a lot of money by following the advice he gave you, but which he was afraid to follow himself.

A poor man is always saying he would like to be rich because of the great amount of good he could do with the money.

The recording angel couldn't keep up with his job if men and women were credited with all their good intentions.

Vacation Camp

County Y. M. C. A. Gather at Big Beaver.

Camping for boys is as old as time. Purposeful camping for boys is a comparatively new thing and the best thing. A go-as-you-please camp or a do-as-you-please camp soon becomes a place of moral deterioration. Character building might be given as the purpose of the Y. M. C. A. camp. It is to be a camp of ideals, not a summer hotel or a supplanter of the home. The principal reason for its existence is the providing of a safe place where parents can send their boys for a summer vacation, where, under the leadership of Christian men, they may be developed morally, physically, mentally and socially. The day of the extreme rough-house camp has passed. Boys have discovered that real fun does not mean hurting and discomfoting others, but consists in making others happy. The boy who gets the most out of camp is the boy who puts the most into camp.

Growing things need the out of doors. Growing boys need range and range. The medicine of the hills, the streams and the woods will rest tired nerves and return every boy to his home with increased vitality. Boys need to place themselves where nature can speak to them. They should get close to the soil. They ought to be toughened by sun and wind, rain and cold. Nothing can take the place of stout physique, robust health, good blood, firm muscles, sound nerves for these are the basis for character and efficiency. A trained brain is handicapped by an untrained and undeveloped body.

Parents should think of the camp not as a luxury or a good time only, but as something that is planned to meet the need in the lives of real boys. Many boys will come back with a vision and inspiration of usefulness in their lives.

Equipment is not, but leadership is, the foundation upon which a successful boys camp is built. An adult leader for six boys is necessary. These leaders have absolute of all details concerning their respective groups and are at liberty to settle all questions that arise unless their importance makes it seem wise to refer them to the camp director. In securing camp leaders the aim of the committee is to secure young men of unquested character and moral leadership, men of culture and refinement, who are good athletes and understand boy life. Here is a form of altruistic service that should appeal to purposeful men.

Charlevoix county is, of all the organized counties in Michigan, the best supplied with delightful camping sites. Along the shores of Pine lake there are many and on the shores of Deer and Thumb lakes are camp sites that would make the secretaries of southern counties turn of envy. After considering all of the available sites on the main land Beaver Island came up for consideration and investigation. It was found on investigation that the island possessed all of the attractions of any place on the main land and had numerous additional advantages that made it, by far, the most satisfactory place to locate the First Annual Charlevoix County Y. M. C. A. Boy's Camp. The site chosen lies between Font Lake and the shore of lake Michigan about two miles from the village of St. James. Here there is a clearing large enough for the baseball games and the track meets that are an important part of the camp life. The site was donated by W. J. Gallagher who has volunteered to do all that lies in his power to make the camp a success and thus insure the happiness of the campers.

Camp will open on the afternoon of July eighth and close at noon on the eighteenth. This arrangement will make it possible for all the campers to return home that afternoon. Tuesday July fifteenth will be Visitor's Day and arrangements are being made for an excursion to the island on that day thus making it possible for parents, members of the county committee and all other interested parties to visit the camp. However if this date is not satisfactory to all who wish to visit the camp they will be welcomed on any day that the camp is in session.

A limited number of boys twelve, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen years of age, may make application on the form provided. Application will be accepted in the order received until the limit has been reached. All applications must be in the hands of the county secretary, A. B. Ball, Boyne

City, on or before the first day of July. Each application must be accompanied by an enrollment fee of one dollar and the balance of the camp expense, four dollars, is to be paid upon arrival at camp. This charge of five dollars pays for all items of camp expense but does not include transportation to and from St. James. From Boyne City and East Jordan the round trip will cost one dollar and fifty cents and from Charlevoix one dollar. Further information will be furnished if application is made to the county secretary.

MICHIGAN CROP REPORT

Lansing, Mich., June 7, 1913.

WHEAT. The average condition of wheat is 83 in the State and southern counties, 81 in the central counties, 85 in the northern counties and 92 in the Upper Peninsula. The present condition of wheat is practically the same as reported on May 1st. The condition one year ago was 58 in the State, 48 in the southern counties, 60 in the central counties, 73 in the northern counties and 91 in the Upper Peninsula. The per cent of wheat sown that will be plowed up because winter killed or otherwise destroyed is 5 in the State and southern counties, 6 in the central counties, 4 in the northern counties and 2 in the Upper Peninsula. The damage by Hessian fly is 5 per cent in the State, 8 in the southern counties and 2 in the central and northern counties.

RYE. The condition of rye in the State and southern counties is 88, in the central counties 88, in the northern counties 90 and in the Upper Peninsula 94. One year ago the condition was 78 in the State, 76 in the southern counties, 74 in the central counties and 85 in the northern counties and 94 in the Upper Peninsula.

CORN. The acreage of corn planted or to be planted as to be compared with last year, is 100 in the State, 99 in the southern counties, 101 in the central counties and 103 in the northern counties and Upper Peninsula. The condition of corn as compared with an average is 84 in the State, 82 in the southern counties, 87 in the central and northern counties and 105 in the Upper Peninsula.

OATS. The condition of oats as compared with an average, is 90 in State, central and northern counties, 89 in the southern counties and 97 in the Upper Peninsula. The condition one year ago was 87 in the State, 90 in the southern counties, 79 in the central counties, 86 in the northern counties and 97 in the Upper Peninsula.

BARLEY. The acreage of barley sown or that will be sown as compared with last year is 89 in the State and northern counties, 92 in the southern counties, 83 in the central counties and 97 in the Upper Peninsula.

MEADOWS. The condition of meadows as compared with an average is 83 in the State, 85 in the southern counties, 78 in the central counties, 81 in the southern counties and 91 in the Upper Peninsula.

The condition one year ago was 89 in the State, 85 in the southern counties, 90 in the central counties, 94 in the northern counties and 101 in the Upper Peninsula.

WHEAT. The acreage planted as compared with last year is 93 in the State and southern counties, 92 in the central counties, 96 in the northern counties and 94 in the Upper Peninsula.

The condition as compared with an average is 89 in the State and southern counties, 87 in the central counties, 92 in the northern counties and 94 in the Upper Peninsula.

SUGAR BEETS. The acreage of sugar beets planted or to be planted as compared with last year is 84 in the State, 79 in the southern counties, 87 in the central counties, 83 in the northern counties and 97 in the Upper Peninsula.

COLTS AND CALVES. The number of colts as compared with last year is 93 per cent in the State, southern and northern counties, 92 in the central counties and 95 in the Upper Peninsula. The number of calves as compared with last year is 96 per cent in the State, 95 in the southern counties, 94 in the central counties, 97 in the northern counties and 101 in the Upper Peninsula.

FRUIT. Fruit correspondents in 26 of the 28 counties in the southern, four tiers of counties, 11 of the 13 in the central counties, 16 of the 27 in the northern counties and 4 of the 15 in the Upper Peninsula report serious damage to fruit by the heavy frosts on May 8th to the 11th, which has reduced the prospect of the various kinds of fruit considerably below the figures given in the May Crop report.

The following table will show the prospect at the present time for a crop of the various kinds of fruit in the State and the different sections:

	State	Southern Counties	Northern Counties
Apples.....	65	71	80
Pears.....	58	62	67
Peaches.....	50	54	69
Plums.....	55	58	56
Cherries.....	66	61	69
Strawberries	63	69	73

Secretary of State.

TRAIN FOR LIFE

Superintendent Wright Contends
That Girls be Fitted for Their Work

That high schools do not properly prepare girls for their work in life is the contention of Superintendent of Public Instruction Luther L. Wright. He claims that boys and girls differ in their natures and destiny and it is futile to treat them alike in school. He says:

"We cannot always tell what line of education is best for a boy because we do not always know what he is to do. We may educate him for one line and he may choose another. But we need have no such uncertainty about girls. The great business of their lives is to be a housekeeper, a home maker and the mother of children. It is well enough to say that mothers ought to prepare their daughters, but they do not in fact. Not always do mothers even have a knowledge of the underlying sciences, however proficient they may be in household arts.

Even in Michigan not enough attention is given to the education that will fit a girl for her work. Forty-five cities out of 100 in Michigan, or practically 50 per cent, have instruction in domestic science. Seven incorporated villages out of 333, or only two per cent, report instruction given in domestic science; but only 24 of those 55 cities and the seven villages give work in household arts four days in the week.

"There are 10,377 girls in Michigan studying Latin, French or German while 9,551 girls study algebra or geometry. The number of girls studying household arts four days in the week is 3,258. One third as many girls are studying the household arts as are studying Latin, French or German; and a little more than one-third as many girls are studying algebra or geometry. If I had my way I would have every girl in every high school every day study the science and art of housekeeping and home making."

Death of Asher J. Shearer.

Asher J. Shearer was born in Toronto, Canada, Feb. 16th 1864 and fell asleep at East Jordan, Mich. June 9th 1913 being past forty-nine years of age. In 1888 he came with his parents to Saginaw, Michigan, where he resided until 1873 when he came to northern Michigan, working at his trade, a Blacksmith.

November 11th, 1895, he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Tibbitts of Central Lake. To this happy union was born two children Carrie age 14 and Frank age 11 who with the wife, a brother Arlen Shearer of Birchdale, Min., and a father, Levi J. Shearer of Central Lake who are left to mourn the loss of a good father, a true husband, a loyal brother and a worthy son. Mr. Shearer had a large number of friends.

Mr. Shearer was working at his trade on Friday May 23 and a stroke of paralysis overtook him from which he did not recover. While he regained consciousness yet there were no hopes for his recovery from the first.

He was a member of the Mystic Workers and the Modern Brotherhood of America. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Methodist Episcopal Church and will be conducted by Rev. T. Porter Bennett and Rev. A. D. Grigsby will assist at the service. The Mystic Workers will also be in attendance as a fraternity. Interment will take place at the East Jordan Cemetery.

The young man who professes a willingness to die for a girl before marriage may live to wish he had.

Sick people seldom know any more about the medicine they swallow than the doctors who prescribe it.

OUR GRADUATES WANTED

University of Michigan Endorses
Work of East Jordan.

The below letter from the University of Michigan shows the high esteem in which graduates of the East Jordan High School are held by the leading University in the middle west.

Ann Arbor, June 6th, 1913.
Supt. J. T. Northon,
East Jordan, Michigan.

Dear Sir:—
I take pleasure in sending to you a few application blanks for the Engineering Department. We hope to see more of your bright young men next year as your graduates do excellent work with us. Please let me know if you or your pupils wish catalogues or additional blanks.

Yours very truly

CHECKREIN ON PUBLICITY.

Some after-dinner speakers like to prate of the waning influence of the press as they enjoy enlarging upon the diminishing authority of the put-rits. The facts rise up, in the one case as in the other, and give the lie to them. Every morning the vast majority of literary men reads the newspaper as an open letter to the race. This multitude of readers might pay no heed, whatever to the editorials, says the Philadelphia Ledger. It might merely scan the "news." Yet what is found in the news columns each day is plentiful to make, and unmake reputations. The token in proof is that a man held up to ridicule or blame by the mere impassive, impersonal recital of his own action, even when he cannot deny the deed, indignantly resents the publicity. The mere plain statement of abuses in the newspaper has often been sufficient to correct them. It has been said that the beginning of every reform is to ask questions. It has repeatedly been the useful function of every worthy journal to lead the public to ask questions and to demand an answer. That is what is meant by public opinion, and the power of irresistible public opinion is the power of fearless, conscientious journalism. The certainty that the truth will be made known has called a halt upon the promotion of many a reckless and unscrupulous enterprise.

Watch the passing automobiles. Sitting comfortably in the machines are elderly men and women, and in their faces is new happiness. They are enjoying themselves; the fresh air gives them vitality and the swift motion stirs their blood. A clergyman past seventy, who administers the affairs of a large congregation, at his side has a telephone through which he makes pastoral calls and in front of him a typewriter on which he does his sermons. We have been associating these contrivances with youth, but the ancients have taken hold and are showing us that life after sixty is not a matter of folded hands and easy chairs. It is delightful to welcome the change. To have the middle-aged and the old enjoy themselves is to lift the whole human race. To extend the age of efficiency is to add immeasurably to the world's production.

A suggestion is made that moving pictures of an educational kind should be supplied to the schools by municipalities. No doubt this suggestion will in time be an accomplished fact, for the moving picture is destined to more practical uses than mere amusement. As things seen are mightier than things heard, so lessons of geography, history and general fact will be more impressive on the youthful brain by the actual representation than by the printed or spoken word. The schools of the future will doubtless be supplied with moving-picture machines as a matter of course.

Measles, which is causing anxiety to the authorities and pain to the students of Osborne college, is an ailment that has been sadly misjudged, says the London Chronicle. For centuries it is mentioned in Arabian writings as early as the tenth century—it was regarded (and treated) as a variety of smallpox, and when that fallacy was discovered, it was generally confounded with scarlet fever. No race of the earth is immune from measles.

A remarkable cure of lockjaw in its worst form and almost in the last stages has been made in Brooklyn. One by one modern science is attacking the most dreaded scourges of the human system, and the result of the fight is reasonable hope which further experiment will doubtless develop into certainty. These are the real and vital victories of the world.

Now an educator offers the theory that the exceptionally bright pupil is just as abnormal as the dull-witted and that it is as much a mistake to hustle the normal to keep up with the abnormally gifted as to expect the deficient to pace with the normal. In plain words, there is too great a tendency to teach children in mass and not according to individual needs.

The two or three papers in the United States that use the "thru" spelling will cheerfully adopt such beautiful words, we conjecture, as "laf," "cot," "nat," "nee," "pranst," and "necac."

The proposal to celebrate the centenary of the high hat has been postponed indefinitely for two sufficient reasons. One is that the date of origin is shrouded in obscurity and the other that so few thought it anything to celebrate.

A Chicago university professor proves that the mother-in-law joke is 5,000 years old. But as a joke the Chicago university professor can't claim any such distinction.

How Pension System Works in France

By J. P. Hastings, New York

I have just returned from a trip to France. I looked into the labor question in a number of countries in Europe, but was greatly impressed with the pension system of France. The following report was published in a Havre (France) newspaper, which published a list of 107 persons (84 men and 23 women) employed in this city and its vicinity to whom silver medals of honor have been awarded by decree of the minister of commerce and industry of France, for faithful service of thirty years in the same industrial establishment or business house. In this list are included superintendents, managers, dock foremen, accountants, clerks, weavers, spinners, tailors, dressmakers, tramway conductors, masons, cabinetmakers, boiler-makers, stokers, laborers, etc.

The medal of honor for employes and workmen was established in France by the decree of July 16, 1886, which authorized the minister of commerce and industry to give them to persons whose services had covered thirty years. This service must be in the same establishment, although it might have changed hands several times. Intervening military service will not interfere. An important condition is that the beneficiary be a citizen of France, although his employers may be foreigners.

Applications must be made on stamped paper by the employer in behalf of his employes to the prefect of the department, who forwards them, with such notations as he deems necessary, to the minister of commerce and industry, and a formal inquiry is then made respecting the character and standing of the persons on whose behalf the applications have been made. The medals are then presented, with suitable ceremony, to the employes by the mayor or his representative at his office (Mairie), in the presence of the employers and the friends of those to be honored.

This institution is very properly held in high regard by those for whom it is intended. It is, in fact, a form of decoration bestowed by the French government analogous to the Legion of Honor, since those who have received the medal are permitted to wear on the lapel of their coat, or, in the case of women, pinned on their corsage, a narrow tricolor ribbon of red, white and blue. There is an organization at Havre, the Association des Medailles du Travail, composed exclusively of those who have received the medal or honor.

This institution has, of course, nothing to do with the old-age pension system in operation in France; but it is undoubtedly a factor in bringing about industrial solidarity, esprit de corps, loyalty to employers, and cordial relations between employers and their employes.

Happy Little Girls in Zululand

By H. D. HOLT, London, England

In few countries are the native girls happier up to the age of about ten than in Zululand; in still fewer countries do they have a harder existence after that. According to their tradition, the women, therefore, do most of the manual labor, while their husbands, fathers and brothers laugh and sing, lie about at their kraals and tell one another what fine fellows they are.

A little Zulu girl is welcomed into the world by her father because she will become a valuable asset in years to come. If she is taken care of some Zulu lover will pay a cow, or perhaps two cows, for the privilege of marrying the lady, and so that she may retain all her charms the little maid is not allowed to do any hard work until she marries, excepting such things as carrying food or fuel on her head to her parents' kraal.

Whatever she may be carrying, a Zulu girl instinctively puts it on her head. If she goes to a store to buy a pot of jam she walks gravely over the rugged country with it balanced there, and I have seen women in remote districts carrying great bundles of wood, which I tried and failed to lift quite off the ground. They get it on to the head unaided by lifting up one end first and gradually working the body under the burden until it is balanced. It is certainly no exaggeration to say the women could carry a bundle equal to their own weight for twenty miles in a day and think nothing much of the feat.

The younger Zulu women have a noble carriage, which is the result of carrying burdens on their heads. They walk with a singularly stately tread; their head and shoulders being thrown well back. But as they get older the drudgery of working in the fields begins to tell on them, and there is very little difference in the appearance of a woman of forty and a woman forty years her senior.

Woman's Secret of All Easy Work

By C. W. NORTON, New York

When asked how she accomplished so much work so easily the mother of a large family replied, "I work by schedule." That is the secret of all easy work. If you live in a nerve-racking rush, try what keeping a schedule will do for you.

Buy a notebook and head opposite pages with the day and date. Before going to bed plan and write down the work of the next day. In the evening sum up what has been accomplished.

It does not take long to keep this simple schedule, but it is surprising how quickly you learn system from it. Busy women go so far as to plan certain duties for certain hours.

Do not plan to do too much in one day, for then the opposite page is a disappointment which spurs you to unwise efforts or needless discouragement. What is left undone one day may be carried over to the next day's planning page as a jog against procrastination.

Reading over such a notebook is an object lesson to the shiftless housewife who works by fits and starts, gets nothing accomplished, has no time for leisure, and ends by being a nuisance to herself and a burden to her family.

Why Woman Should Have Preference

By Eugenie Comment, St. Louis, Mo.

Men ought to give women the preference where seating is the question because every woman may be or is a mother. As few soldiers serve their time in the army without some physical disability to show for it, so few women endure maternity without injury.

The young woman, if not actually, is potentially, a mother. Because of the fact that motherhood means risk of life, risk of health, and certainty of agony and self-denial, we ask you to make the occasional sacrifice, not of life, not of health, but of comfort.

The sharp jolt which is a moment's unpleasantness to you may mean a life of invalidism to that young girl, the life of her unborn child as well as her own to the expectant mother, and cruel torture to the woman who is of the neuter sex, as the French term it.

But alas! "mother" though she may now be, she is forever to suffer for the long hours of bringing a man child into the world.

I have just returned from a trip to France. I looked into the labor question in a number of countries in Europe, but was greatly impressed with the pension system of France. The following report was published in a Havre (France) newspaper, which published a list of 107 persons (84 men and 23 women) employed in this city and its vicinity to whom silver medals of honor have been awarded by decree of the minister of commerce and industry of France, for faithful service of thirty years in the same industrial establishment or business house. GROWING ANNUAL FLOWERS NOT DIFFICULT

An Old-Fashioned Garden.

(By H. F. GFINESTEAD.)

Whether your flower garden is to be a square rod against a city wall, or the ample grounds of the country home, there will always be a place for the annuals. It often happens that one wishes to change the location of the flower beds from year to year, which is impossible with everlasting kinds; then the annuals bring quick results.

Most annuals grow well from seed sown in drills or broadcast where they are to stand, but it is often desirable to have them started early, which can be done by sowing in a hotbed or window box and transplanting to the open ground after all danger from frost has passed. Well-rotted leaf mold or other vegetable manure is best for flowers.

The aster is one of the most desirable of the annuals, and rivals the most rare and difficult growers in point of beauty and hardness. It commends itself to general planting with its great variety of color and from the fact that it may be planted close or the tall growing sorts may be given more room. They are a late bloomer, coming when others have failed. Seed sown in the open ground in May will bloom in October or late in September, while for blooms in July and August, the seed must be sown in the hotbed or window box in March. Cover the seed lightly, and when the plants have three or four leaves transfer them to small pots or another part of the bed, setting them two inches apart each way.

After all danger of frost is past they may be transplanted to the open ground to stand 18 inches apart. Well-rotted manure should be used with a small quantity of ashes mixed in with the soil. The California poppy, or Escholtzia, is one of the comparatively new creations, and is surely one of the most beautiful. The seed are small and should be scattered on the surface of the soil and covered very little by having loose soil sifted over them. When they are allowed to seed they will come every year in the same place without further seeding. They are also desirable pot plants.

Candytuft is easily grown by sowing the seed in the open and thinning later in the season. This annual is more desirable for edging and borders, and a succession of bloom may be had by making later sowings. Long rows of marigold are beautiful, the range of color being great, and the size differing greatly from the dwarf to the tall African varieties. The French marigold does better and comes much earlier if the plants are grown in boxes and later transplanted once or twice before being set out of doors. A foot apart is none too far for the marigold to stand.

Mignonette is so easily grown that every garden must have it. The flowers are modest and very fragrant. While the average size of the plant is less than a foot in height, it is of compact growth and a mass of bloom till November. The Zinnia is hardy, like the marigold, and does best in rich soil, and the plants will be more stocky and better bloomers if the seed are sown in the house and later transplanted once or twice. There is a great variety of color as well as form in the blossoms.

The sweet william, which is a kind of pink, is an old-time favorite and easily grown by following the methods laid down for most of the annuals. It is rather hardy, and the seed may be sown in the spring in the open ground about corn-planting time. The Scotch pink or grass pink is another favorite of the same family, and is grown in the same way.

Few annual plants are more easily grown from seed than is the Phlox Drummondii, and there is such a great variety and wealth of bloom that a few plants make a large showing. It can be sown in the open or in boxes, as you wish late or early bloom. The plants should be thinned or set a foot apart; if crowded they are subject to mildew. The removal of the flowers and prevention of seed pods lengthens the blooming period.

The pansy is a favorite with all, but is not so easily grown as some of the annuals. For early bloom the seed should be sown in the fall in beds and transplanted to pots as winter approaches. If the spring these little plants may be set in beds and will bloom in profusion early in the summer. Except in the far north it is possible to winter the plants by leaving in outdoor beds and covering with mulch, which should be raked off in the spring. Seed sown in rich soil in July will produce blooming plants for the fall months.

The best of the annual climbers are Moonflower, Morning Glory, Cypress, Canary-Bird flower and Dolichos. Moonflower seed should be soaked in warm water over night, and the seed of all should be sown in boxes, and later transplanted in rich soil when it is warm. (Copyright, 1913, by C. M. Shultz.)

1,000 SETTLERS A DAY

WESTERN CANADA MAKING RE-MARKABLE PROGRESS.

Settlers from the United Kingdom and other countries of Europe landed in Winnipeg last week at the rate of one thousand a day. The predicted boom in the populating of the prairie provinces this spring has materialized, as it did last year, and today the busiest city in America is probably the Manitoba-metropolis.

The sturdy nations of Europe are all contributing to the rapid growth of Canada West. Two of the largest contingents reaching Winnipeg last week were from Germany and Scandinavia.

The British Isles are sending out larger contingents than ever before. The old land newspapers are filled with accounts of send-offs and farewells being given to popular town-folk on the eve of departure for Canada.

Numerous editorials record the sentiments, bordering on despair, of the Britons who see their towns and villages desolated by the desertion of favorite sons and daughters. We can sympathize with those left behind while felicitating the young people who have their own way to make in the world, on their new opportunities in the country of mammoth crops.

Scotland lost 5,000 of her best blood and brain in a single week this month. No wonder the young aspiring Scots take so quickly to Canada. They have been reading of the triumphs and wonder working of Scottish pioneers in the Dominion ever since they were "bairns." A great part of Canada's success was wrought by Canadians from Caledonia, and the young Caledonians of today are eager to demonstrate that they can do as well out west as their forebears.

In addition to those from the old countries, the United States still keeps up in a strenuous manner, and is sending its thousands into that new country of the north. They take up the free homesteads of 160 acres on which they live for six months of each year for three years, and then get a deed or patent for a farm that is worth anywhere from $15 to $20 per acre; or they may purchase lands at from $15 to $18 per acre that will yield with proper care in cultivation, excellent returns for the time, work and money expended.—Advertisement.

Electricity and Plant Life. The theory has been advanced and backed up by experiments which are at least interesting, that pointed leaves standing up at the top of growing plants attract electricity from the atmosphere and that such electric forces aid materially in the growth of plants so equipped by nature. One investigator, R. E. Dimick of Almena, Wis., reports that vegetables which were well cultivated have shown a smaller growth than the normal when they had pointed wires stuck up among them to act like lightning rods in drawing off the electricity which Mr. Dimick believes to be attracted by points and needful to plant life.

RASH SPREAD TO ARMS

759 Roach Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.—"At first I noticed small eruptions on my face. The trouble began as a rash. It looked like red pimples. In a few days they spread to my arms and back. They itched and burned so badly that I scratched them and of course the result was blood and matter. The eruptions festered, broke, opened and dried up, leaving the skin dry and scaly. I spent many sleepless nights, my back, arms and face burning and itching; sleep was purely and simply out of the question. The trouble also caused disfigurement. My clothing irritated the breaking out.

"By this time I had used several well-known remedies without success. The trouble continued. Then I began to use the sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Within seven or eight days I noticed gratifying results. I purchased a full-sized cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and in about eighteen or twenty days my cure was complete." Backache Is a Warning

Thousands suffer kidney ills unawares—not knowing that the backache, headaches and dull, nervous, dizzy, all tired condition are often due to kidney weakness alone.

Anybody who suffers constantly from backaches should suspect the kidneys. Some irregularity of the secretions may give just the needed proof.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been curing backaches and sick kidneys for over fifty years.

A Minnesota Case. Mrs. Anna Rossard, 11 Seymour St., St. Paul, Minn., says: "I suffered terribly and doctors couldn't help me. I was so helpless with the pain in my back I couldn't turn in bed. I grew thin and had terrible dry spells. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and today I am in perfect health."

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him. She repairs thither in search of him. She repairs thither in search of him.

He was sorry for her; at the same time he was subject to the reaction of his exhausting labors as song-leader. "Then," he said, with tired resignation, "if you'll follow me, I'll take you where you can spend the night, and tomorrow, I'll try to find you work."

"Work!" She laughed. "Oh, thank you!" Her accent was that of reputation. Work, indeed!

He drew back in surprise and displeasure. "You didn't understand me," she resumed. "What I want is a home. I don't want to follow you anywhere. This is where I want to stay."

"You cannot stay here," he answered with a slight smile at the presumptuous request, "but I'm willing to pay for a room at the hotel."

At this moment the door was opened by the young woman who, some hours earlier, had responded to Fran's knocking. Footsteps upon the porch had told of Gregory's return.

The lady who was not Mrs. Gregory was so pleased to see the gentleman who was Mr. Gregory—they had not met since the evening meal—that, at first, she was unaware of the black shadow; and Mr. Gregory, in spite of his perplexity, forgot the shadow also, so cheered was he by the glimpse of his secretary as she stood in the brightly lighted hall. Such moments of delighted recognition are infinitesimal when a third person, however shadowy, is present; yet had the world been there, this exchange of glances must have taken place.

Fran did not understand—her very wisdom blinded her as with too great light. She had seen so much of the world that, on finding a tree bearing apples, she at once classified it as an apple tree. To Gregory, Grace Noir was but a charming and conscientious sympathizer in his life-work, the atmosphere in which he breathed freest. He had not breathed freely for half a dozen hours—no wonder he was glad to see her. To Grace Noir, Hamilton Gregory was but a benefactor to mankind, a man of lofty ideals whom it was a privilege to aid, and since she knew that her very eyes gave him strength, no wonder she was glad to see him.

Could Fran have read their thoughts, she would not have found the slightest consciousness of any shade of evil in their sympathetic comradeship. As she could read only their faces, she disliked more than ever the tall, young, and splendidly formed secretary.

"Oh!" said Grace with restraint, discovering Fran. "Yes," Fran said with her elfish smile, "back again."

Just without the portal Hamilton

"I Don't Want to Follow You Anywhere. This is Where I Want to Stay."

Gregory paused irresolutely. He did not know what course to pursue, so he repeated, "Oh, yes, I am willing to pay."

Fran interrupted flippantly: "I have all the money I want." Then she passed swiftly into the hall, rudely brushing past the secretary.

Gregory could only follow. He spoke to Grace in a low voice, telling all he knew of the night wanderer. Her attitude called for explanations, but he would have given them anyway, in that low, confidential murmur. He did not know why it was—or seek to know—but whenever he spoke to Grace, it was natural to use a low tone, as if modulating his touch to sensitive strings—as if the harmony resulting from the interplay of their souls called for the soft pedal.

"What is to be done?" Grace inquired. Her attitude of reserve toward Gregory which Fran's presence had inspired, melted to potential helpfulness; at the same time her dislike for the girl solidified.

"What do you advise?" Gregory asked his secretary gently. Grace cast a disdainful look at Fran. Then she turned to her employer and her deliciously curved face changed most charmingly. "I think," she responded with a faint shake of rebuke for his leniency, "that you should not need my advice in this matter." Why should he stand apparently helpless before this small bundle of arrogant impudence?

Gregory turned upon Fran with affected harshness. "You must go." He was annoyed that Grace should imagine him weak.

Fran's face hardened. It became an ax of stone, sharpened at each end, with eyes, nose and mouth in a narrow line of cold defiance. To Grace the acute wedge of white forehead, gleaming its way to the roots of the black hair, and the sharp chin cutting its way down from the tightly drawn mouth, spoke only of cunning. She regarded Fran as a fox, brought to bay.

Fran spoke with calm deliberation: "I am not going away."

"I would advise you," said Grace, looking down at her from under drooping lids, "to go at once, for a storm is rising. Do you want to be caught in the rain?"

Fran looked up at Grace, undaunted. "I want to speak to Mr. Gregory. If you are the manager of this house, he and I can go outdoors. I don't mind getting wet. I've been in all kinds of weather."

Grace looked at Gregory. Her silences were effective weapons.

"I have no secrets from this lady," he said, looking into Grace's eyes, answering her silence. "What do you want to say to me, child?"

Fran shrugged her shoulders, always looking at Grace, while neither of the others looked at her. "Very well, then, of course it doesn't matter to me, but I thought it might to Mr. Gregory. Since he hasn't any secrets from you, of course he has told you that one of nearly twenty years ago—"

It was not the rumble of distant thunder, but a strange exclamation from the man that interrupted her; it was some such cry as human creatures may have uttered before the crystallizing of recurring experiences into the terms of speech.

"Of course he has told you all about his Springfield life."

"Silence!" shouted Gregory, quivering from head to foot. The word was like an imprecation, and for a time it kept hissing between his locked teeth. "And of course," Fran continued, tilting up her chin as if to drive in the words, "since you know all of his secrets—all of them—you have naturally been told the most important one. And so you know that when he was boarding with his cousin in Springfield and attending the college there, something like twenty years ago—"

"Leave us!" Gregory cried, waving a violent arm at his secretary, as if to sweep her beyond the possibility of overhearing another word. "Leave you—with her?" Grace stammered, too amazed by his attitude to feel offended.

"Yes, yes, yes! Go at once!" He seemed the victim of some mysterious terror.

Grace compressed her full lips till they were thinned to a white line. "Do you mean forever?"

"Oh, Grace—I beg your pardon—Miss Grace—I don't mean that, of course. What could I do without you? Nothing, nothing, Grace—you are the soul of my work. Don't look at me so cruelly."

"Then you just mean," Grace said steadily, "for me to go away for a little while?"

"Only half an hour; that's all. Only half an hour, and then come back to me, and I will explain."

"You needn't go at all, on my account," observed Fran, with a twist of her mouth. "It's nothing to me whether you go or stay."

"She has learned a secret," Gregory stammered, "that vitally affects— affects some people—some friends of mine. I must talk to her about— about that secret, just for a little while. Half an hour, Miss Grace, that is all. That is really all—then come back to me. You understand that it's on account of the secret that I ask you to leave us. You understand that I would never send you away from me if I had my way, don't you, Grace?"

"I understand that you want me to go now," Grace Noir replied unresponsive. She ascended the stairway, at each step seeming to mount that much the higher into an atmosphere of righteous remoteness.

No one who separated Gregory from his secretary could enjoy his toleration, but Fran had struck far, below the surface of likings and dislikings. She had turned back the covering of conventionality to lay bare the quivering heartstrings of life itself. There was no time to hesitate. The stone ax which on other occasions might be a laughing, elfish face was now held ready for battle.

"Haven't we better go in a room where we can talk privately?" Fran asked. "I don't like this hall. That woman would just as soon listen over the banisters as not. I've seen lots of people like her, and I understand her kind."

CHAPTER V.

We Reap What We Sow.

If anything could have prejudiced Hamilton Gregory against Fran's interests it would have been her slighting allusion to the one who typified his most exalted ideals as "that woman." But Fran was to him nothing but an agent bringing out of the past a secret he had preserved for almost twenty years. This stranger knew of his youthful folly, and she must be prevented from communicating it to others.

"My God!" Groaned the Man.

It was from no sense of aroused conscience that he hastened to lead her to the front room. In this crisis, something other than shuddering recoil from haunting deeds was imperative; unlovely specters must be made to vanish.

He tried desperately to cover his dread under a voice of harshness: "What have you to say to me?"

Fran had lost the insolent composure which the secretary had inspired. Now that she was alone with Hamilton Gregory, it seemed impossible to speak. She clasped and unclasped her hands. She opened her mouth, but her lips were dry. The wind had risen, and as it went moaning past the window, it seemed to speak of the yearning of years passing in the night, unsatisfied. At last came the words, muffled, frightened—"I know all about it."

"All about what, child?" He had lost his harshness. His voice was almost coaxing, as if entreating the mercy of ignorance.

Fran gasped, "I know all about it—I know—"

She was terrified by the thought that perhaps she would not be able to tell him. She leaned heavily upon a table with hand turned backward, whitening her finger-tips by the weight thrown on them.

"About what?" he repeated with the caution of one who fears. He could not doubt the genuineness of her emotion; but he would not accept her statement of its cause until he must.

"Oh," cried Fran, catching a tempestuous breath, uneven, violent, "you know what I mean—that!"

The dew glistened on his brow, but he doggedly stood on the defensive. "You are indefinite," he muttered, trying to appear bold.

She knew he did not understand because he would not, and now she realized that he would, if possible, deny. Pretense and sham always hardened her. "Then," she said slowly, "I will be definite. I will tell you the things it would have been better for you to tell me. Your early home was in New York, but you had a cousin living in Springfield, where there was a very good college. Your parents were anxious to get you away from the temptations of a big city until you were of age. So you were sent to live with your cousin and attend college. You were with him three or four years, and at last the time came for graduation. Shall I go on?"

He fought desperately for self-preservation. "What is there in all this?"

"You had married, in the meantime," Fran said coldly; "married secretly. That was about nineteen years ago. She was about eighteen. After graduation you were to go to New York, break the news to your father, come back to Springfield for your wife, and acknowledge her. You graduated; you went to your father. Did you come back?"

"My God!" groaned the man. So she knew everything; must he admit it? "What is all this to you?" he burst forth. "Who and what are you, anyway—and why do you come here with your story? If it were true—"

"True!" said Fran bitterly. "If you've forgotten, why not go to Springfield and ask the first old citizen you meet? Or you might write to some one you used to know, and inquire. If you prefer, I'll send for one of your old professors, and pay his expenses. They took a good deal of interest in the young college student who married and neglected Josephine Derry. They haven't forgotten it, if you have."

"You don't know," he gasped, "that there's a penalty for coming to people's houses to threaten them with supposed facts in their lives. You don't know that the jails are ready to punish blackmailing, for you are only a little girl and don't understand such things. I give you warning. Although you are in short dresses—"

"Yes," remarked Fran dryly, "I thought that would be an advantage to you. It ought to make things easier."

"How an advantage to me? Easier? What have I to do with you?"

"I thought," Fran said coldly, "that it would be easier for you to take me into the house as a little girl than as a grown woman. You'll remember I told you I've come here to stay."

"To stay!" he echoed, shrinking back. "You?"

"Yes," she said, all the cooler for his attitude of repulsion. "I want a home. Yes, I'm going to stay. I want to belong to somebody."

He cried out desperately. "But what am I to do? This will ruin me—oh, it's true, all you've said—I don't deny it. But I tell you, girl, you will ruin me. Is all the work of my life to be overturned? I shall go mad."

"No, you won't," Fran calmly assured him. "You'll do what every one has to do, sooner or later—face the situation. You're a little late getting to it, but it was coming all the time. You can let me live here as an adopted orphan, or any way you please. The important fact to me is that I'm going to live here. But I don't want to make it hard for you, truly I don't."

"Don't you?" He spoke not loudly, but with tremendous pressure of desire. "Then, for God's sake, go back! Go back to—wherever you came from. I'll pay all expenses. You shall have all you want—"

"All I want," Fran responded, "is a home, and that's something people can't buy. Get used to the thought of my staying here; that will make it easy."

CAT ENJOYED THE COMEDY

But of the Four Principals Involved, Tom Was the Only One That Had a Laugh Coming.

This is the tale of a cat with a sense of humor.

Mrs. Youngwife went to an east end butcher shop the other day. When she entered, the greeting was a high-pitched shriek. Naturally she shrieked, too, and then looked to see what the trouble was. Mrs. Butcher, in charge of the shop in her husband's absence, stood on a small box. Before her stood a large black cat, a gleam of fun in his yellow eyes and a mouse in his mouth.

A moment the tableau held. Then the cat walked away and Mrs. Butcher started fearfully behind the counter. The cat followed, her and dropped the mouse at her feet. Two screams, the flutter of skirts, and Mrs. Butcher again was safe on the box, and Mrs. Youngwife sat on the counter, her feet sticking straight out, her skirts gathered tightly about her ankles.

The mouse ran a foot or two and the cat had it again, and again walked away. Mrs. Butcher stepped off the box, picked it up and, carrying her ark of refuge with her, again tried "Easy!" he ejaculated. "Then it's your purpose to compel me to give you shelter because of this secret—you mean to ruin me. I'll not be able to account for you, and they will question—my wife will want to know, and—"

"Now, now," said Fran, with sudden gentleness, "don't be so excited, don't take it so hard. Let them question. I'll know how to keep from exposing you. But I do want to belong to somebody, and after I've been here a while, and you begin to like me, I'll tell you everything. I knew the Josephine Derry that you deserted—she raised me, and I know she loved you to the end. Didn't you ever love her, not even at the first, when you got her to keep your marriage secret until you could speak to your father face to face? You must have loved her then. And she's the best friend I ever had. Since she died I've wandered—and—and I want a home."

The long loneliness of years found expression in her eager voice and pleading eyes, but he was too engrossed with his own misfortunes to heed her emotion. "Didn't I go back to Springfield?" he cried out. "Of course I did. I made inquiries for her; that's why I went back—to find out what had become of her. I'd been gone only three years, yes, only three years, but, good heavens, how I had suffered! I was so changed that nobody knew me." He paused, appalled at the recollection. "I have always had a terrible capacity for suffering. I tell you, it was my duty to go back to find her, and I went back. I would have acknowledged her as my wife. I would have lived with her. I'd have done right by her, though it had killed me. Can I say more than that?"

"I am glad you went back," said Fran softly. "She never knew it. I am so glad that you did—even that."

"Yes, I did go back," he said, more firmly. "But she was gone. I tell you all this because you say she was your best friend."

"A while ago you asked me who I am—and what—"

"It doesn't matter," he interjected. "You were her friend; that is all I care to know. I went back to Springfield, after three years—but she was gone. I was told that her uncle had cast her off, and she had disappeared. It seems that she'd made friends with a class of people who were not who were not—respectable."

Fran's eyes shone brightly. "Oh, they were not," she agreed; "they were not at all what you would call respectable. They were not religious."

"So I was told," he resumed, a little uncertainly. "There was no way for me to find her."

"Her?" cried Fran; "you keep on saying 'her.' Do you mean—?"

He hesitated. "She had chosen her part—to live with those people—I left her to lead the life that pleased her. That's why I never went back to Springfield again. I've taken up my life in my own way, and left her—your friend—"

"Yes, call her that," cried Fran, holding up her head. "I am proud of that title. I glory in it. And in this house—"

"I have made my offer," he interrupted decidedly. "I'll provide for you anywhere but in this house."

While There Was Yet Time

Mean Man Made His Suggestion and Departed in Some Haste From Meeting of Indignant Women.

With tense, eager faces, the great audience of women leaned forward in their seats, eagerly drinking in the noted speaker's every word.

"Here man," she was saying, "is wont to belittle woman's ability to enter the fields already usurped by him. As a matter of fact, she is capable of filling any post of public or private office now held by man, and if appointed to it, could even perform man's tasks with greater faithfulness and greater daring."

"Name, if you can, one post for which she cannot fit herself! Name one office to which she would not, could not, give the greatest measure of capability, the highest degree of courage, the—"

A mere man, who had slipped unnoticed into a back seat, rose at this point, and the light of sudden inspiration gleamed in his eye.

"Rat catcher!" he shouted. And then he fled.

Need of Sun and Air.

"A certain morbidity among girls and women, which rests so heavily on modern life," is due to lack of sun, air and sunshine, according to Professor Manjon of Nice.

"Sun-bathing, air-bathing and frequent physical exercise in loose garments, are indispensable to good health and good temperament in women," declared the lecturer.

Hunts Hares With Auto.

Sport in a new form now appeals to a New Zealand farmer. Driving in a motor car with two powerful headlights, he bags nightly between six and a dozen hares, the animals being so fascinated by the glare of the lamps that they become stationary targets.

Naturally Indignant.

"Did you tell your troubles to a policeman?" "Yes," said the man who had been robbed. "And I tell you that policeman was indignant. The hold-up man hadn't even asked his permission to operate on his beat."

Retort Courteous.

"Wouldn't it be nice if we could have our brains cleaned out now and then?"

"You would have to have yours done with a vacuum cleaner."

No Wonder.

"Why did you order that well-dressed lady out of the store?" "She's a well-known kleptomaniac."

"Did she take anything here?" "She took umbrage."

A pessimist is a man who thinks that when he gets to heaven it will be a waste of time for him to look around for his earthly neighbors.

HER "BEST FRIEND"

A Woman Thus Speaks of Postum.

We usually consider our best friends those who treat us best.

Some persons think coffee a real friend, but watch it carefully awhile and observe that it is one of the meanest of all enemies, for it stabs one while professing friendship.

Coffee contains a poisonous drug—caffeine—which injures the delicate nervous system and frequently sets up disease in one or more organs of the body, if its use is persisted in.

"I had heart palpitation and nervousness for four years and the doctor told me the trouble was caused by coffee. He advised me to leave it off, but I thought I could not," writes a Wis. lady.

"On the advice of a friend I tried Postum and it so satisfied me I did not care for coffee after a few days' trial of Postum."

"As weeks went by and I continued to use Postum my weight increased from 98 to 118 pounds, and the heart trouble left me. I have used it a year now and am stronger than I ever was. I can hustle up stairs without any heart palpitation, and I am free from nervousness."

"My children are very fond of Postum and it agrees with them. My sister liked it when she drank it at my house; now she has Postum at home and has become very fond of it. You may use my name if you wish, as I am not ashamed of praising my best friend—Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum now comes in new concentrated form called Instant Postum. It is regular Postum, so processed at the factory that only the soluble portions are retained.

A spoonful of Instant Postum with hot water, and sugar and cream to taste, produce instantly a delicious beverage.

Write for the little book, "The Road to Wellville."

LITTLE DEMAND FOR LEECHES

Almost Nothing Compared With What It Used to Be Only a Few Years Ago.

Forty years ago there were in Paris alone 10 wholesale dealers in leeches, each of whom sold between 300,000 and 400,000 leeches monthly, for which they received on an average about $50 a thousand.

Today there is only one dealer in the capital and he gets from six to seven francs ($1.80 to $1.40) a hundred. His name is Leya and he handles about 130,000 per month, his best market being the United States. He has sometimes half a million in stock.

In former times the Paris poor law administration purchased 80,000 francs ($16,000) worth a year; this was in the '30s and '40s of the 19th century; the administration now finds itself amply supplied with $40 worth annually.

The great breeding ground for French leeches was the marshes around Bordeaux. A poor peasant named Bechade was the creator of the industry. He rented a tract of marsh land for about $60, and this, when properly stocked with leeches, became worth $5,000.

Bechade collected the leeches by buying all the worn-out horses he could get hold of and driving them into the marshes five or six times a month, especially in April, May, June, October and November. Bechade's business flourished, and when he died he was worth 1,000,000f.

After a while the French leech trade was ruined, not only on account of the great decline in the demand, but on account of the accessibility of other sources of supply brought about by the improved facilities of transport, fast trains bringing them in a short time from Turkey, Bohemia and Dalmatia, and to a more limited extent from Algeria and Russia.—Medical Brief.

KEEPING CUT FLOWERS FRESH

Water Must Be Changed Frequently and the Blossoms Should Be Sprinkled Every Hour.

Almost the first thought that follows admiration for a freshly picked bouquet is how it can be preserved the greatest length of time. Many experiments have been undertaken to prevent flowers from fading—such as placing salt in the water, or nipping them off and applying sealing wax. We have tried all methods, and have come to the conclusion that changing water in which the stems are plunged frequently and sprinkling the flowers hourly, will keep them fresh and fair longer than will any other treatment.

The water used should be tepid. The cooler the temperature of the apartment the better. Never leave flowers under a gas jet, or they will immediately blight. The last thing at night, change the water on the stems and sprinkle the flowers thoroughly. Tie over the vase or basket tissue paper which has been soaked in water. Over this tuck a newspaper. In the morning the flowers will be found as fair as the night previous.

Roses fade sooner than almost any flowers. Heliotrope will wither and blacken with the tenderest care. It should be nipped from a bouquet as soon as it loses freshness. Lilies, tulips, narcissus, euphorbia, hyacinths and all flowers with succulent stems can be preserved several days.

PRISONERS MIGHT BE FREED

Many in New York Jails Are Held Contrary to the Strict Letter of the Law.

An examination of the prison reports of the state of New York has shown that 254 prisoners are at present serving terms in the state under illegal sentences.

Part of these prisoners claimed when on trial to be first offenders, and so got an indeterminate sentence. The law of New York provides that, on second convictions, no indeterminate sentences can be given.

Part of them, however, have sentences which terminate in the middle of the winter. The law of New York wisely provides that no prisoner may be released in the winter season, when work is scarce and the incentive to crime is redoubled by the hardship of the cold.

As to the first ground of illegality, other states have permitted indeterminate sentences on second convictions without discoverable bad results.

As to the second ground one can say the clamor against the courts would be less effective if judges would take more care to get on familiar and really friendly terms with the law.—Chicago Journal.

Retarding Home Influence.

A writer in the Boston Transcript remarks upon the new factors which antagonize home relations and absorb so much time and attention that home is a less constant factor and seems to the child less important than it did a generation ago.

"The school, not only with its regular work, but with its athletics and affiliated social interests, demands an increasing amount of time. The church, with its many organizations, calls for many evening hours as well as for a large part of Sunday. In some communities the children seem to have about as few hours for free, quiet home life as the busiest of free men, and the mother needs the best methods as well as the finest of spirit in the ever lessening amount of time she has to exert those influences which are recognized as the most potent as well as the most uplifting in life. The church is making a mistake in pushing so vigorously missionary, philanthropic, and social organizations for women, while relegating to a minor place that organization whose aim is to strengthen the very heart of the social organism—the home. More attention should be given to the honoring and helping of motherhood."

Tree Gone Mad.

Nature in the tropics, left to herself, is harsh, aggressive, savage; looks as though she wanted to bang you with her dangling ropes or impale you on her thorns, or engulf you in her ranks of gigantic ferns. Her mood is never as placid and sane as in the north. There is a tree in the Hawaiian woods that suggests a tree gone mad. It is called the hau-tree. It lies down, squirms and wriggles all over the ground like a wounded snake; it gets up, and then takes to earth again. Now it wants to be a vine, now it wants to be a tree. It throws some squalls. It makes itself into loops and rings. It rolls, it reaches, it doubles upon itself. Altogether it is the craziest vegetable growth I ever saw. Where you can get it up off the ground and let it perform its antics on a broad skeleton framework, it makes a cover that no sublimated man can penetrate, and forms a living roof to the most charming verandas—or lanais, as they are called in the islands—that one can wish to see.—From "Holidays in Hawaii," by John Burroughs in the Century.

Proper Gymnastic Work.

Every person who has received gymnastic training is aware of the fact that an exercise which calls for painful effort on the part of the beginner is often performed almost without any conscious effort at all after a certain amount of training has been received. Again, it is perfectly well known that brute strength alone does not make a gymnast, and that even a simple exercise may offer great difficulty to a muscular and well developed individual who has not been trained in the gymnasium. The explanation for this is made plain in an article by Professor du Bois Reymond in Die Umschau, who points out that one of the essential functions of gymnastic work is not so much to build up muscle as to train nerves and nerve groups to work in proper unison and coordination.

NOT FOUND IN JOE MILLER

Youthful Minstrel at School Show Got Off One Good and Original Joke.

It is customary in many of the New York schools to give entertainments on the last day before the pupils disperse for the Christmas holidays. Parents are invited to see and hear their young hopeful recite or take part in special vaudeville stunts or fairy plays devised by the teachers. One teacher who found herself blessed—or otherwise—with a roomful of unruly boys when school began in the autumn hit upon a happy idea. She promised the boys that if they were good they might have a minstrel show just before the holidays. All through the term the teacher kept this prospect before them, promising the particularly noisy youths good parts if they would keep their deportment up to a fair standard. The promise had the desired effect, the boys were reasonably manageable, and when the performance came off it was a howling success.

One little temporary dandy, rubbing his arm, finally attracted the attention of the interlocutor.

"Why, Mistah Jones," he exclaimed, "what's de mattah wif yo' a'm?"

"Why, Mistah Bones, ah wuz out in de Hudson ribber yestahday fo' shad, ah got mah am lamé rowin' against de tide."

"Well, well," returned the young Mister Bones, "ah nexah saw such foolishness! Why didn't you let de shad row?"

COMMISSIONER HELME CURES STOMACH ACHE.

Head of State Dairy and Food Department Gives Formula to Reduce High Cost of Living

Hon. James W. Helme, state dairy and food commissioner, in his weekly bulletin again attacks medical preparations which he believes are sold at prices which are exorbitant when compared with the cost of manufacture. The commissioner's latest is directed against a stomach ache cure and he gives the formula so that everyone may become his own doctor. The bulletin is as follows:

Reader did you ever have a real live stomach ache? If not you have probably heard the baby have one. On such occasion when a man's stomach is at war with his whole system and he in turn wants to have a scrap with his whole family, and everyone else that happens along, wouldn't a dollar look to be a good investment if it would quell the disturbance, both internal and external?

Banking on this weakness of human nature, and that particular part of the human anatomy known as the stomach, one George H. Mayr of Chicago is extensively advertising in Michigan his "Wonderful Remedy." Mr. Mayr is not all modest in the claims for his remedy:

He says it is—"for all stomach liver and intestinal trouble, gastritis, indigestion, dyspepsia, pressure of gas around the heart, sour stomach, distress after eating, nervousness, dizziness, fainting spells, sick headache, constipation congested and torpid liver, yellow jaundice, appendicitis, gall stones, etc. It acts like magic in the most chronic case of stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, appendicitis and symptoms of gall stones."

As a claim agent Mayr should be attached to one of the National Political Committees. What is this won-

Briefs of the Week

Flag Day next Saturday.

Atty. D. L. Wilson gave the high school commencement address at Charlevoix on Thursday evening.

Fire destroyed Hotel Wildwood at Wildwood harbor, Walloon Lake, at ten o'clock Friday night, with a loss estimated at $8,000.

East Jordan High School has been continued on the University of Michigan's accredited list for another year. Supt. Northon received notice from the University to that effect this week.

Manager Clark of the Mich. State Telephone Co. is busy this week installing new phones. Among those are the Garage, V. G. Hotbeck's office, Warren Myers' residence, and Eber L. Burdick's residence.

Glen Dubois, editor of the Charlevoix Courier, died Sunday morning, after a long illness with asthma. He was prominent in politics and grange work in the state and had lived in Charlevoix six years, coming from Ithaca.

John Deviat, aged 45 years, died at his home in Bowen's addition last Monday of apoplexy. Funeral services were held from the German church in Wilson township, on Wednesday, with interment in the same township.

On Thursday afternoon the East Jordan Cemetery Ass'n elected the following officers for the ensuing year at their meeting at the home of Mrs. Bert Price:—President, Mrs. J. Palmer; vice president, Mrs. Ed Price; secretary, Mrs. C. A. Brabant; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Graff.

There may be some men and women in East Jordan who have no boys of their own but would be interested in sending some deserving boy who otherwise would be unable to have the joy and profit of the Y. M. C. A. Summer Camp. If you are interested just write the Secretary giving the name of the boy you desire to send.

R. A. Miller of Charlevoix and a well known citizen of the county, left Wednesday for Alma where he entered the Masonic home at that place. Mr. Miller came to East Jordan, Tuesday, and was guest of L. C. Madison who accompanied him to his new home. Mr. Miller and Mr. Madison served together on the Superintendent of Poor Board for twenty years.

Following is an excerpt of a letter received by Supt. Northon from the Junior Dept. of the Grand Rapids News: "We congratulate you and your pupils on the excellent work sent in and have great pleasure in awarding the prize to Barbara Bennett of grade 7, honorable mention to Elsie Miller of grade 9, and publication buttons to Arlene Hammond grade 12, Marjorie Cleland grade 10, Carl Ellison grade 5, Gordon Payne grade 11, and Basil Cummins grade 6. The third number of the News Junior was rather an East Jordan edition and was a very excellent paper we think."

Twelve of the greatest aviators of the world are entered in the Great Lake cruise from Chicago to Detroit. The fliers will pass Charlevoix July 12. From Charlevoix the fliers proceed to Petoskey and thence to Mackinac, where Sunday will be spent. On Sunday a contest ten times around the island for a $2,000 prize will be scheduled. Alpena, Cheboygan and Bay City are the other stops between the island and Detroit, where the finish will be made July 17. The craft rise from and land on the water, but fly at an average altitude of from 100 to 200 feet while making a speed of 70 miles an hour. Lieut. John H. Towers, the crack flier in the United States navy, and Glenn Curtiss are two of the more prominent entries. —Charlevoix Sentinel.

Miss Grace Keenbolts is cashier at Milford's Market.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Gruber, members of our summer theatrical colony, returned to East Jordan, Thursday, and will remain for the summer on their farm near here.

It has been a generally accepted rule that a man will not make a success of more than one vocation in life, but Henry L. Winters is one exception to this rule. As a teacher in our city schools, Mr. Winters proved himself a very able instructor. Now we learn that he has secured, against strong competition, the appointment as County Engineer, and in that capacity, will have general supervision of county road construction. We predict that "Hank" will deliver the goods.

An Alpena woman, the mother of 10 children, resembled a walking department store when she was arrested on a charge of shoplifting. Among the articles concealed in various portions of her clothing, were 60 yards of calico, 90 yards of ribbon, four neckties, 13 bunches of artificial flowers, several pairs of children's stockings, five boys shirts, three china cups, salt and pepper shakers, two kimonos, two packages safety pins, five cheap rings, several cans of preserved fruit, two bottles of ink, pair of strap hinges, can of baking powder, and a bar of soap.

Friday the Thirteenth

Holds No Terrors For Class Of '13.

This is graduation week for East Jordan High School and last evening nineteen young people of the senior class received their diplomas from the hands of Supt. Northon.

Owing to both lack of space and time The Herald is unable to do justice to the many good features of the programs of Thursday and Friday evenings. The Class Day program as published last week, was carried out in full and some of the numbers presented were remarkably good. Temple Theatre was packed to overflowing with friends and relatives of the graduating class.

"Commencement" was held last evening, the address being given by Prof. W. H. French of the M. A. C.

When a man is drunk he forgets that he's a fool.

The young man who professes a willingness to die for a girl before marriage may live to wish he had.

Sick people seldom know any more about the medicine they swallow than the doctors who prescribe it.

Awarded Judgment.

Electric Light Co's Claims Sustained by Circuit Court.

The East Jordan Electric Light & Power Co. were awarded a judgment against the East Jordan Coöperage Co. for breach of contract in circuit court at Charlevoix, Thursday afternoon.

This case of considerable local interest, owing to the fact that each company is among our leading manufacturing industries. According to the evidence presented in court, a verbal contract was entered into between the managers of the two companies in which the East Jordan Coöperage Co., was to furnish power to drive the East Jordan Electric Light & Power Co's generators for a term of five years, for a consideration of $200 per month. This contract took effect in May, 1911, and was carried out by the parties for about ten months. During this period several serious accidents occurred at the Coöperage plant, badly crippling the electricity service for our city. It is claimed the Coöperage management demanded a large increase in the monthly payments and upon their refusal to comply with the request discontinued the agreement.

At this time the electricity service in our city was far from satisfactory and there was strong talk of the city vacating their franchise. Realizing this, C. S. Abbott, president and principal stock holder of the Electric Light Co., arranged for the installation of an entirely new plant at their old site. Work was commenced at once and a fine up-to-date plant costing about $25,000 was installed. Since then the service to our city has been very satisfactory, electricity being furnished the entire twenty-four hours of the day.

In its claim for damages the Electric Light Co., sued for several months of the contract and the jury awarded the plaintiff something over $4,000 judgment. There is still about four years of the contract to be fulfilled. The case took up the attention of the circuit court for about ten days. Atty. C. S. Abbott of Detroit, assisted by Atty. D. H. Fiteb, represented the plaintiffs, and Atty. Ewing of Cleveland and Atty. E. N. Clink the defense.

TRIALS OF TRAVEL in PERSIA

PERSIANS THRESHING CORN

"IF ALLAH pleases, tomorrow," says the average Persian as he considers the transaction of business on the taking of a journey. And before the westerner has been long in this country he drops his shibboleth that "time is money," and falls into the fatalistic philosophy of the east, where the language has no equivalent meaning for our words, punctuality and promptitude, writes a Teheran correspondent of the Los Angeles Times.

Truly, Persia is no place for the hustler, accustomed to "do" a country or a kingdom by express railroad routes and automobile transit, and who expects to get "Ritz or Waldorf-Astoria wherever he stops. Only when the powers take hold of Persia and run the country will travel become easy and pleasant for the ordinary globetrotter. For the present it is open only to the venturesome and leisurely, for there are scarcely any railroads in the length and breadth of the land, and transit over any distance is both perilous and arduous, though full of interest to the strong and seasoned traveler.

In Persia it is no simple undertaking to prepare for a caravan journey of 150 miles or so, as your arrangements must allow for at least eight days on the road—in many places merely a rough, stony track through mountain gorges. A string of six or eight mules is required, and you have to be smart at a bargain when you haggle with the owner of the hearts, though as a matter of fact, the muleteer generally gets his price. The contract must then be written out, and the muleteer affixes his seal to it, for few of them can either read or write. But you are not through with the deal until you have paid over half or even three-quarters of the stipulated "ticket journey." The next business is the engagement of a smart boy for the road and a cook to prepare the meals, and upon their character the entire comfort of your caravan journey depends.

Expert Servants. Persian servants could give points to the most expert swell mobman going. They always make the very best use of opportunities for plunder when the provisions for the trip are bought. Gradually, however, the large saddlebags begin to swell out with packets of tea, loaves of sugar, tins of provisions, rice, meat, bread, candies, coals and other necessities. You have also to provide a new samovar, plates, knives, forks, spoons, together with a teapot and teacups. While the servants are busy with the dealer the sahib chooses a saddle and some camp furniture not forgetting a traveling carpet.

Fortunately, for eight months of the year in Persia the sun shines continually out of a fine blue sky, so journeys are generally taken under ideal conditions. Rain adds the last note of desolation to the mostly barren land, making the miserable villages full of hungry, begging people, and the gloomy, fort-like caravansaries, gray, nightmare visions of hopelessness.

The chief outstanding feature of a long tour in Persia is the massive caravansaries, the poorest apologies for hotels the world contains. They are built by charitable people who desire to do a good turn to the travelers on the lonely roads and mule tracks, which are infested by marauding bands of highwaymen.

As a rule they are built square, with rooms around the sides, opening on to the interior courtyard. In bad weather the mules are put into roomy stables behind, though generally the animals are tethered in the spacious courtyard, with their loads disposed around them and the bells on their harness tinkling continually.

On first alighting at one of these rest-houses for the night, when the servant indicates your apartment you are apt to be badly jarred by its appearance. The opening into the black, smoke-begrimed room is doorless. The mud floor is dirty and uneven, the corners filled with all kinds of rubbish such as eggshells, fruit skins and the like. But if the boy is a good one he soon makes his master comfortable. A fire is lighted, the room swept and the meager equipment set out. A curtain nailed over the entrance baffles the gaze of inquisitive onlookers, and when in the flickering and candlelight the steaming samovars, and the dinner of several courses begins to appear, past troubles are forgotten until a new day dawns. The dinner, by the bye, is prepared by the cook in a draughty corner on three cage-like crates, one on each side of the pack-saddle.

Big Caravans. Often during the long hours of the daily march are heard the low-sounding bells, telling of an approaching caravan. Surrounded by huge bales of cotton, cases of opium and bundles of carpets come a troop of Persians on pilgrimage to Mecca or Kubella, who for safety's sake generally travel with a large, well-guarded caravan. Their well-filled saddlebags contain everything necessary for their six to eight-months journey. So accustomed do the Persians become to the pace of their mules, they can doze comfortably on their backs through the hot hours of the afternoon without rousing the slightest risk of misadventure, but the westerner has to keep wide awake to preserve his equilibrium.

The most useful vehicles for long journeys in Persia are the palaks and kajavahs, the quaintest contrivances for travel to be seen anywhere. These "Persian cabs" are fixed upon mules. Some skill, too, is required in loading up the mule with its human freight, care being taken that the two people who travel side by side are about the same weight. If a tiny husband and a fat wife have to go together, his box must be filled up with ballast so as to equalize the weight. Similar care has to be exercised in dismounting, for if one passenger jumps out without giving warning of his intention, his neighbor is shot to the ground with unseemly haste. The only difference between the kajavah and the palak is that the latter is open, while the former is covered with a light, water-proof roof and is curtained against bad weather.

The most comfortable means of travel, sacred to the use of the wealthiest class, is the takhtiravan, a kind of palanquin, consisting of a box about seven feet long and five feet high fitted with doors and windows and furnished inside with a soft mattress and luxurious cushions. The vehicle is built on the Sedan-chair principle, the poles resting on a sort of saddle on the backs of the mules, which are harnessed tandem.

By the Mile. A young married woman (athletically inclined was very anxious to learn to swim. So she bought a bathing suit, joined the swimming class at a near-by Turkish bath, and plunged in. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday for an hour in the afternoon she toiled laboriously from one end to the other of the ninety-foot pool. On returning home after each lesson she carefully computed the distance she traveled and lotted it down in her housekeeper's memorandum book. One night, with the help of her husband, she started in to balance her housekeeping accounts.

"Shall I put swimming under pleasures or necessities?" she asked, undecidedly. The husband glanced at the figures indicating the number of nautical miles his wife had covered. "Why not put it down under traveling expenses?" he suggested.

Successive Generations. Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of the great financier, gives most of her time to social work. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is one of the leaders in the movement against white slavery. The daughter of Senator Mark Hanna, Mrs. Medill McCormick, is an active advocate of working women's organization. Such interests of many of "the second generation of wealth" are a better dependence for the future than the earlier hope that the second and succeeding generations would squander what the fathers and grandfathers accumulated. Spendthrifts do not materially affect the general welfare. Persons with social instincts and a sense of responsibility do.

Between Doctors. "Doctor, do you think we had better call in a consulting physician?" "My worthy colleague, why should we?" "He's a very rich man." "Exactly. Then why share the estate?"

Generous Reformer. Miss Augusta De Peyster is a charming young lady of Knickerbocker descent who does noble missionary work among New York's floating sailor population. Miss De Peyster's work is unique in that she believes in helping the sailor, no matter how prodigal or dissipated, or nonconforming he may be. She also believes in a very generous, very liberal type of charity. Often her views are expressed in epigrams, as: "Don't scold a reprobate, for men are like eggs—left in hot water they harden."

Or again: "As long as virtue is its own reward, it is apt to be spasmodic." Dictating to Women. Women, according to an edict in the Chinese government, are to wear European hats, but otherwise retain their customary dress, with certain modifications. It is prophesied that there will be revolt at the edict, because women in China as elsewhere, have grown weary of having men undertake to decide for them in matters of dress, matters of food, matters of morals and matters of government.

Will Get Rid of Felon. To cure a felon take common salt, as used for salting pork or beef, dry in the oven, pound fine, mix with equal parts of spirits of turpentine, put in a cloth and wrap around the affected part. As it gets dry put on more. Twenty-four hours of this treatment will kill the felon.

Guess. They were newsboys and had strayed into the art museum. At the moment they were standing before the Winged Victory of Samothrace. "Say, Bill, what's that?" asked one of them in an awed whisper. "Aw, I dunno," replied the other. "Some saint wid his block knocked off."—Christian Register.

HUBBY WAS LEFT GUESSING

And at This Date He Still is Wondering Just Who Was the Unkissed Female.

Mr. Brown issued forth from Fairbank Terrace and wended his way towards the village in. An insurance agent named Dawson was holding forth.

"Do you know Fairbanks Terrace?" Several nodded assent and Mr. Brown became more deeply interested.

"Well, believe me, gents, I've kissed every woman in that terrace except one."

Mr. Brown's face assumed a purple hue, and hurriedly quaffing his ale, he quitted the barroom. Rushing home, he burst in at the door.

"Mary," he shouted, "do you know that insurance chap Dawson?" Mary nodded assent. "Well," he continued, "I've just heard him say he's kissed every woman in this terrace except one."

Mary was silent for a moment, and then with a look of womanly curiosity said: "I wonder which one that is."

How to Acquire More Self Control.

To acquire more self control and confidence perhaps the best step is to make yourself face disagreeable tasks with courage.

Do not be easily routed when you have determined on a course of action. Perhaps the most disagreeable thing one meets in the course of a business day is the occasion for tactful yielding what one desires to say, to be agreeable to people who do not appeal to us, to give a pleasant answer when we are more inclined to give a curt one—in brief, to act according to the dictates of conscience on any and every occasion.

Only Make Believe.

A visitor at the home of a famous author was greeted by a little daughter of the latter. Engaging the little girl in conversation, the visitor observed:

"Aren't you proud to think your papa is famous?"

"The little girl nodded.

"He writes stories, doesn't he?"

Lowering her voice, the child replied:

"They're not real stories; he just makes them up himself."

Masterfulness Checked.

"I've a good mind to go and jump into the river," said N. Peck, at the end of a little domestic discussion, as he picked up his hat and started out. "You come back here," said his wife. "If you intend any such trick as that, just march upstairs and put on your old clothes before you start."

Western Michigan

A Region that is Rapidly Developing as a Fruit Growing and General Farming Section.

MAKES BIG STRIKE BY COMING TO MICHIGAN.

A few years since, Otway C. Mendenhall sold at $150 an acre, farm land near Marlon, Indiana, that would produce under favorable conditions 150 bushels of potatoes to the acre, and invested his capital in 400 acres of land in Newaygo county, Western Michigan. In 1911 he harvested from land which cost him $150 a potato crop which amounted to 1,500 bushels. He is therefore, with the same capital, ten times as big a farmer in Michigan as he was in Indiana.

TO MARKET THE FRUIT NEAR THE TOP IN FRUIT

CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS ORGANIZED IN WEST MICHIGAN.

Plan Is to Help the Grower Get More Than 35 Cents Out of Each Dollar Paid by the Consumer for His Produce.

Co-operative fruit marketing associations are being organized in the different parts of Western Michigan preparatory to the marketing of the 1913 crop. Organizations have already been formed at Hart, Northport, Grand Rapids and Kewadin. At each of these places a slightly different plan of procedure has been followed out, but all have the same end, namely, to help the fruit grower to get more than thirty-five cents out of each dollar paid by the consumer.

At each point there is a different problem to be solved. The Oceana county people are trying to arrange for a water route to market their fruits, the Northport fruit growers want better prices, as do the Grand Rapids growers. The Kewadin fruit men have found good markets in the upper peninsula of Michigan and now desire better transportation facilities. The Hart and Grand Rapids fruit growers are largely concerned in the marketing of peaches, while the Northport growers have cherries and apples to sell and the Kewadin fellows principally apples.

Last year the fruit growers about Fenville organized a selling association and enjoyed considerable success. Apples were introduced into new markets and carload lots sold to grocers who formerly bought their fruit from Chicago distributors. One of the first things the association did was to provide for a system of grading and packing directly under its control.

Experts employed by the association settled the grade, which their fruit when packed, was to be rated at. These growers are bound by an iron-clad contract which ties them together in such a manner that violations of the rules as to packing are almost impossible and discovery means a heavy fine.

Each of the new associations will provide a more or less elaborate grading and packing system with competent inspectors so that the Western Michigan fruit will be found to be more uniform in quality this season than ever before.

AIM TO IMPROVE THE FRUIT

Many Orchard Demonstrations to Be Held in Western Michigan Territory.

Many orchard demonstrations will be held in the Western Michigan territory the coming season under the direction of the horticultural department of the Michigan agricultural college. Field Agent O. K. White, who is well-posted upon orchard conditions in the state, will visit those sections where the fruit growers are anxious for instruction regarding the most approved methods for pruning, spraying and the packing of fruit. In many cases, the meetings are being arranged through the high schools which have courses in agriculture which high schools aim to keep in touch with the fruit growers and farmers of their respective sections. These orchard demonstrations consist of actual work in the orchard which work is accompanied by a running talk that gives the reasons why the various things are done and why they should not be done some other way.

Michigan Ranks Second in Apples, Raspberries and Currants; Fourth in Cherries and Blackberries.

Michigan ranks well as a fruit state. It is not the largest, nor the most populous of the states in the Union, but it is well toward the top as a fruit producing section. According to the latest census statistics, it ranks second in the production of apples, raspberries and currants, and third in the production of pears, grapes and gooseberries, is fourth in the production of cherries and blackberries, and fifth in the production of strawberries.

It is more than likely that it will hold first place for a number of the fruits when the next census is taken, as there have been in the neighborhood of two million trees set out in the western part of the state during the past four years, and there will be still heavier settings during the next few years. These trees are largely of three kinds—apples, cherries and peaches. Michigan is also forging ahead as a currant and gooseberry section.

PAYS TO EXPERIMENT

Louis P. Haight.

Louis P. Haight of Muskegon, who has been spending his surplus capital and spare time for the past five years on the Haight experiment farm, which farm is conducted for the purpose of discovering the agricultural methods that can be most successfully followed for the light soil lands of Western Michigan. He is trying various programs of cultivation and many different fertilizers. He has been having great success with sand vetch and alfalfa. On October 1st last, when the above picture was secured, he had corn that was eleven feet high, sand vetch seven feet high, and alfalfa sixteen inches high.

Plan County Building. A two thousand dollar educational and fine arts building is being planned by the Charlevoix County Agricultural society, for erection upon its grounds at East Jordan for the coming summer.

Unsympathetic.

A man lost his life in a great flood. He was dead, but in the spirit world he lived over and over again the appalling scenes and incidents through which he had just passed. It seemed to him that he must talk it over with some one.

He therefore approached an elderly man and told him the story of how he died, giving a vivid word picture and making a lurid tale. To his great surprise, the old man showed little interest; in fact, he appeared to be bored. At last, being rather annoyed at such indifference, he asked the reason.

"Don't you know who I am?" asked the other.

"Why, no, I don't," was the answer. "I've just arrived."

"Well," said the other, "I am Noah."

German Prince's Wanderjahr.

The prince of Wales might possibly enjoy his German trip still better if he could view the country in the unconventional way followed by the German crown prince and his brothers. Like all the Hohenzollerns, the Kaiser's sons were taught trades, and their father also allowed them to taste the delights of the "wanderjahr," which still forms part of the education of most German artisans.

In the case of the young princes the year was split up over several successive summer holidays, which they spent tramping through Germany, knapsack on back, and sleeping at roadside inns. They traveled without a servant, accompanied only by their military governor, Colonel von Falkenheym, and were scarcely ever recognized.

"Sudden Willy."

A late professor was wont to relate a rather characteristic story of the boyhood of the present German emperor.

The professor was conversing with Empress Frederick concerning her son, when her majesty remarked deprecatingly respecting her eldest born:

"Melch Willy is so plötzlich." ("My Willy is so sudden.")

Could anything have summed up the Kaiser, as a boy and man, better than this colloquial confidence of his imperial mother?

Commercial Notation.

It gives an impressive idea of the immensity of the international trade carried on in vessels to read that 55,000,000 tons of coal are consumed in a year in the furnaces of ships employed in international commerce. And there are certain modern freighters which transport a ton of cargo a mile by burning half an ounce of fuel, which means moving ten barrels of flour a mile with a piece of coal the size of a hickory nut.

Time is Sometimes Kind.

Father Time is not always a hard parent, and, though he carries for none of his children, often lays his hand lightly upon those who have used him well, making them old men and women inexorably enough, but leaving their hearts and spirits young and in full vigor. With such people the gray head is but the impression of the old fellow's hand in giving them his blessing, and every wrinkle but a notch in the quiet calendar of a well-spent life. From Barnaby Rudge.

After Long Suffering

Women Are Constantly Being Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Worth mountains of gold," says one woman. Another says, "I would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all the other medicines for women in the world." Still another writes, "I should like to have the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound thrown on the sky with a searchlight so that all suffering women could read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their ills."

We could fill a newspaper ten times the size of this with such quotations taken from the letters we have received from grateful women whose health has been restored and suffering banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such a universal success? Why has it lived and thrived and kept on doing its glorious work among the sick women of the world for more than 30 years?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has ever approached its success is plainly and simply because there is no other medicine so good for women's ills.

Here are two letters that just came to the writer's desk—only two of thousands, but both tell a comforting story to every suffering woman who will read them—and be guided by them.

FROM MRS. D. H. BROWN.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken 12 bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 North Walnut Street, Iola, Kan.

MRS. WILLIAMS SAYS:

Elkhart, Ind.—"I suffered for 15 years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sarsaparilla. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me."—Mrs. SADIE WILLIAMS, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Finds Cure for Epilepsy After Years of Suffering

"My daughter was afflicted with epileptic fits for three years, the attacks coming every few weeks. We employed several doctors, but they did her no good. About a year ago we heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and it certainly has proved a blessing to our little girl. She is now apparently cured and is enjoying the best of health. It is over a year since she has had a fit. We cannot speak too highly of Dr. Miles' Nervine."

MRS. FRANK ANDERSON, Comfrey, Minn.
Thousands of children in the United States who are suffering from attacks of epilepsy are a burden and sorrow to their parents, who would give anything to restore health to the sufferers.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is one of the best remedies known for this affliction. It has proven beneficial in thousands of cases and those who have used it have the greatest faith in it. It is not a "cure-all," but a reliable remedy for nervous diseases. You need not hesitate to give it a trial. Sold by all druggists. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned.

Methodist Church Reception.

(Received too late for publication last week.)
A very pleasant reception was given to the new members on Wednesday evening of a very home-like appearance. The first hour was spent in a good fellowship meeting during which all became acquainted with one another. After which the pastor called the meeting to order and the congregation sang "Blest be the Tie that Binds." Rev. Mr. Higgs of Chicago led in prayer. Mrs. A. Kowalske and Miss Iva Valleau sang a Solo. The pastor then introduced the District Superintendent Rev. W. F. Kendrick of Traverse City who delivered an excellent address on "The Product of the Church" which was certainly enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were then served in the parlors of the church which was also arranged very beautifully. The church has had a remarkable growth during the year, since February 1st 1912 the pastor has received into the church 103 this is the greatest growth in the history of the church and great credit is due the loyalty of the church and harmony that prevails within the church.
The reception was held under the Board of Stewards and was a great success in every respect. Before the reception a meeting of the Third Quarterly Conference was held. The reports from the various departments of the church, was very encouraging. The Pastor was granted his holidays any time that he thought best and most convenient.

Tiptop Entertainment.

For years the success of the Sunday Magazine of The Chicago Record-Herald has incited other papers to try to duplicate or rival it, but nothing else of the kind can compare for a moment with this remarkable supplement. It was the pioneer in its particular field and it seems to have gotten a start that leaves all younger rivals out of the running.

The Sunday Magazine of The Record-Herald is a real magazine, full of stories and articles by the best living writers, illustrated by eminent artists superbly printed, and carrying on its cover each week a masterpiece of color work. Both in the beauty of its pictures and in the entertaining quality of its contents it compares favorably with the best of the independent weeklies or even monthlies.

There is always a good serial running in this magazine. This year it captured the latest novel from the pen of George Barr McCutcheon, the popular author of "Graustark." It has been known to pay as high as $25,000 for a single great serial. Some of the best romances of Conan Doyle, Rider Haggard, Jack London, Louis Tracy, Jeffery Farnol, Ellis Parker Butler, Cyrus Townsend Brady and other noted authors have delighted its readers. Its faculty for getting hold of the choicest short stories is equally marked. Ever since its $10,000 story contest it has had the pick of the best short tales in the American market, including Swell Ford's inimitable Shorty McCabe and Torchy stories.

A sample copy of this excellent magazine will be sent free on request by The Record-Herald, 163 West Washington street, Chicago. It is an easy way to get some good reading.

THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from 4 Carpets" (trademark established 1898) in which line a tradition has been successfully established all over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and refitting department, which includes a large sterilizing abator for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time saving machinery driven run by electricity. Two of the largest rotary renovating machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable one; this latter is for fine rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sewing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with largest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespeaks a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence. Send no address—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 13, 1911.—Make your payments early as possible.

He Changed His Mind

There comes a report from Washington to the effect that President Wilson has changed his mind concerning the advisability of confining the service of the president to one term of four or six years. The statement is to the effect that the president is decidedly opposed to changing the present constitutional provision regulating the term of the presidential office. He believes that when the people find a president efficient they should not be prevented from retaining him to office as long as they see fit to do so, and, conversely if the president proves a failure they ought to be able to get rid of him if possible. For this reason he holds that a four year term is better than a six year term and believes it would be beneficial to make the suggestion. This is all very good perhaps and may be in accordance with the best interests of the nation as President Wilson suggests but it will be remembered that before his nomination and election Mr. Wilson was quite strongly of the opinion that the presidential term should be confined to but one term and if we are not mistaken the democratic national platform declared in favor of a single term for the president. It is possible that President Wilson would use some scholastic and sarcastic terms if he was referring to another office holder who had changed his mind after his election touching a declaration in his party platform—and a matter of principle concerning which he had one position before he was elected and then switched to another point of view after he found himself in office.

No Substitute Could Do This

No inferior substitute, but only the genuine Foley Kidney Pills could have rid J. F. Wallitch, Bartlett, Neb., of his kidney trouble. He says: "I was bothered with backache, and the pain would run up the back of my head, and I had spells of dizziness. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they did the work and I am now entirely rid of kidney trouble." Hite's Drug Store.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 11th day of April, in the year 1908, secured by Albert J. Fisher and Nora Fisher, his wife, of East Jordan, Michigan, to Jerome B. Allen, of the State of Georgia, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, in the State of Michigan, on page 170 on the 14th day of April, in the year 1908, at 9:00 o'clock a. m. And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $756.40, of principal and interest, and the further sum of thirty-five dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage is the sum of $790.40, and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.
Now therefore, Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the court house in the City of Charlevoix, in said county of Charlevoix, on the twenty-third day of August next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit: "The south fifty feet of lot eight in block eleven in the Village of South Lake, now the incorporated village of East Jordan, Charlevoix County, Michigan, as per the recorded plat of Nichols first Addition to said village, said land being bounded as follows, to-wit: On the west by Main Street, on the south by the south line of said lot eight, on the east by the alley which runs through said block eleven, on the north by a line ten feet south of and parallel with the north line of said lot eight."
Dated, May 20th, 1913.
