NEW KINKS IN ELECTION LAW

Important Changes in Election Methods Found in New Law.

There is considerable speculation in capitol circles relative to the new law passed at the last session of the legislature, known as the James bill, which provides for the abolition of party enrollment.

That there are a number of kinks in the new law that will make themselves manifest are long as assured by a close study of the new act. There was at the last session and still is, for that matter, a prevailing opinion that the new law will make it more difficult for a new party to obtain recognition at a primary. Such an opinion seems to be correct, for while the existing law provides that candidates of a new party for a state office may obtain the printing of the names upon the ballot by filing a petition signed by 300 qualified electors, the new law requires nomination petitions signed by at least 300 qualified electors.

The number of petitioners required by any candidate remains the same as under the existing primary law. Two per cent of the number of votes cast for secretary of state at the last preceding November election in the state district, county, etc., as the case may be.

The prevailing opinion appears to be that by doing away with the party enrollment and providing for one primary ballot, on which is placed the tickets of all political parties, party lines, so far as the primary is concerned, have been eliminated. It is true that under the new law any elector may vote for candidates of any political party he may choose, but in so doing he cannot vote for candidates of more than one political party. For instance, if a Republican chooses to favor a candidate, but if he does so vote he is precluded from voting for any of his Republican friends.

The "15 per cent clause" which prohibited political parties from having the names of any candidates printed upon the election ballot unless such political party cast at the primary election at least 15 per cent of the vote cast by such political party for secretary of state at the last preceding November election has been eliminated.

Secretary of State Martindale says that by doing away with the party enrollment, a saving of several thousand dollars will be made each year. The cost of printing and binding enrollment books, the postage necessary to make returns to the secretary of state and county clerical assistance required in checking petitions of candidates, amounted to no small sum.

The qualification of an elector to participate in a primary election will only be to have his name properly registered, as is required for other elections. A qualified elector may be registered and eligible to vote at any primary election if he shall appear in person before the city or township clerk or other officer in charge of the registration book and take the oath required as to qualifications for registration. A qualified elector may also be registered by the election inspectors on any primary day, by making oath or affirmation that he is a qualified elector in the particular precinct, and any person registering on any primary day shall be entitled to vote at the succeeding election without other registration. There shall be no registration day for primary, general or city elections except as prescribed by the general election laws.

A somewhat novel provision is placed in the amendatory act to the effect that upon the expiration of the time for filing petitions in any primary for cities or counties, if it appears there is no opposition to any candidate for any office, then the city or county clerk shall certify to the election commissioner the name of such persons and such person shall be declared nominees for the respective offices and no primary will be held on such offices.

WHY EAST JORDAN'S FUTURE IS ASSURED.

East Jordan's excellent farming land which surrounds it in all directions is developing very rapidly. More so each year, as people from other states come to learn that an entire crop failure is something unknown, on account of the great variety of products which "make good" here, and each year sees additional stump land transformed into fields of vegetables, grains, or fruit.

While the lumbering continues, probably for 12 to 15 years at least, great changes will be brought about in the farming industry which is the backbone of most good towns. One industry, and one which local people have been slow to foresee, that of Summer Resorts will, in ten years from now be up small items from a commercial viewpoint during three months of the summer.

Many properties along the South Arm of Pine Lake, one of the most picturesque bodies of water in the U. S. have been sold to people during the past few years for the sole purpose of developing into Summer Resorts, and it is safe to say that two-thirds of the ownership of land along on both sides of the Arm have changed hands from once to three times during the past three years, and prices of acreage have more than tripled during that brief period.

The hundreds of acres set to young orchards during the past three years means much, it means much additional demand for labor in the future, and it means that East Jordan must have a large Canning Factory inside of the next two years, as well as other enterprises allied to the farming industry. With the wonderful quality and yields of sweet corn, beans, peas, tomatoes and other vegetables which this locality produces we could easily supply a Canning Factory now.

With the large amount of lands now being leased by oil prospectors, we may have another great asset for the future, but, with the wonderfully productive land, and the ideal conditions at hand for Summer Resort development East Jordan will never feel the jar so many of Michigan's lumber towns have felt in the past when that great industry has ceased to be an important factor. We are in better shape than the lumbering towns of the past, to make the quick transformation, for we have a great Wood Alcohol Chemical plant using about 50,000 cords of rough wood annually which pays the farmer a profit in the clearing of the stump lands.

Truly East Jordan has a great future assured.

EDISON'S TALKING PICTURES

Coming to Temple Theatre Next Tuesday.

Edison's latest invention, the Kinetophone, or Talking Motion Pictures, has at once taken its place among the high class theatrical attractions now topping the country. A program of twelve excellent subjects, combining musical and dramatic numbers, speeches by prominent statesmen and suffragettes, vaudeville and minstrel numbers, has been arranged for presentation in the first class theatres. Several companies have been organized by Mr. Edison, each equipped with his business manager, its advance agent, three operators and the necessary mechanical equipment of machines and accessories, and these are competing successfully with the largest of dramatic and musical organizations.

The Talking Pictures will be the attraction for one night, with one performance at The Temple, Tuesday, July 15th.

HABIT OF THINKING.

"Has the old-fashioned habit of thinking passed out of practice?" asks a magazine writer in discussing the increasing tendency toward impulsive and restless action on the part of the American people.

Investigations just made by physicians prove that there is an appreciable harm from noise, and serious harm, too. It is no doubt true that a normal nervous system can apparently adjust itself to all sorts of adverse circumstances.

The building operations in progress in 45 principal cities in all parts of the country, reported to the American Contractor, published in Chicago, show a falling off of 3 1/2 per cent. for March, 1913, as compared with the corresponding month a year ago.

When the attention of a Gotham magistrate was called to the mistake he made in a marriage ceremony in requesting the bridegroom to obey his wife, the magistrate retorted that it made no difference, as he would have to obey her anyhow.

Chicago judge having ruled that occupants of a city flat can tango or make just as much noise as they want to in any other way, in spite of other flat occupants, reminds us that the practice has been of such long duration that the common law seemed to have covered the point involved.

Dr. Sargent of Harvard says that the spectator at a ball game gets more excitement than is good for him. Dr. Sargent is evidently a person of strong individuality who does not care for the plaudits of the multitude.

The Ohio State Journal says "Director Barger suspended a policeman for not hearing the awful din of a muffer on a machine going by. That is right." Columbus automobiles must be appallingly noisy if even the mufflers on them make an awful din.

Uncle Sam makes enough paper notes each year to reach twice around the world, yet that doesn't keep some of us from walking almost as far around in order to dodge the milkman.

Baldheaded man nearly fell over a balcony rail in a theater and the paper telling of the incident unconsciously reports that he had a hairbreadth escape!

Young women of a Chicago church congregation have found themselves unable to agree on the ideal man. But this is as it should be. If all agreed on one ideal, what chance would the rest of imperfect masculinity have?

One of the reasons why the prune is not more popular is that it takes no pride in its personal appearance. A dish of prunes looks about as inviting as a dish of chestnut coal.

European Municipalities Are Best Governed

Often in Europe I have been amused by the air of complacent superiority and of more or less indulgent patronage which your average American traveler assumes and maintains.

As a matter of fact, not only in France—as the proverb goes—but everywhere in Europe, they do certain things better than we do here.

That is not to be wondered at. Though ours is the oldest constitutional government on earth, we are (excepting only Australia and New Zealand) practically the youngest of the nations.

Contrast this with European conditions. There, even when the democratic spirit dominates the situation, the traditions of aristocratic government prevail.

They are used to government in Europe. They are old at the business. We, on the other hand, are not merely young at it, but we are too busy, each of us, with our own individual business to be deeply concerned for what ought to be everybody's business.

I believe unalterably in political democracy, both in the right and in the ability of people to govern themselves. But it needs only half an eye to see (even without instituting a comparison between European and American municipalities) that we Americans still have everything to learn regarding the efficient and honest organization of life in our cities.

American Grocery Boys Receive Good Wages

The boy who is employed in an American grocery store should never complain about his pay.

"A boy who desires to follow the business must serve an apprenticeship of three years, during which service he usually pays his employer from $20 to $30 per annum.

"While serving his apprenticeship a boy is compelled to attend an advanced business school at least twice a week and on Sundays study an additional language, either German or Bohemian, according to his nationality.

"After apprenticeship has been served wages are paid which vary somewhat according to the grade of the grocery where the apprentice is employed, the average being about $4 to $7.30 a month, including plain room and boarding.

"Girls are not usually employed as grocers' apprentices, but sometimes to arrange salads, cold meats, cheese, etc., for customers.

Keep Lost Children From Patrol Wagons

Governor Foss of Massachusetts says that lost children should not be conveyed to the station houses in Boston and other cities in his native state in the police patrol wagons.

I think that Governor Foss is correct when he states that no prisoner under seventeen years of age should be carried in a vehicle which is occupied at the same time by prisoners above that age.

I think that when a child is lost the first act should be to restore it to its parents or guardians, and I agree with the governor that a policeman should either take the child on foot or in a trolley car to the nearest station.

I recently had to look into the matter and found that the Boston police in 1912 had to do with 2,243 delinquent or wayward children. Of these, 1,409 were before the courts on summonses.

There were 939 who were actually arrested. A bill was recently passed in Massachusetts to allow the police to carry lost children in the patrol wagons, but it has been vetoed by Governor Foss.

Poor Spelling of Average School Child

Business men are constantly calling attention to the poor spelling of the average school child.

No one can have failed to see in the long ago the healthful rivalry exhibited by the pupils under the old oral way of spelling down.

Let us in the public schools have some of both types of spelling drill, say, three times of writing to two of old fashioned spelling down.

FINE APPLE ORCHARD IN BLOOM. Before there can be apples, there must be blossoms, and the spring of the year is the season when the western Michigan country is a fairyland.

IS WORTHY OF PRAISE

DAY LAUDS DEVELOPMENT WORK IN WESTERN MICHIGAN.

Bureau Has Accomplished Great Work in Bringing Prosperity to the Western Section of Michigan.

D. H. Day, president of the Western Michigan Development bureau, at the annual meeting of the membership, spoke in laud praises of what has been accomplished towards making the Western Michigan country a prosperous section.

The bureau is now entering on the fifth year of its existence and I wish to congratulate you upon the great success, which through your efforts has been attained.

With the recent disclosures of the very unsatisfactory conditions of the irrigation propositions of the west, it is self evident that regions as favored as ours cannot help but come into their own if we will but work along proper lines in our efforts.

I feel that the responsibility which rests upon this bureau is a great one. We have been instrumental very largely in bringing about these improved conditions and large investments in our region, and we will be lax in our duty, if we do not put forth our best efforts to provide ways and means in advance to handle the increased production when it arrives.

The tide of emigration outward is practically at an end and today the tide has been turned inward and great numbers of settlers are coming. Credit must be given to our bureau for the active part it has taken in assisting to bring about these improved conditions.

I believe the time has come when the bureau should take up another important branch of work, namely that of properly marketing the crops. It will not be necessary for us to devote so much time encouraging the setting of trees, as they are being set yearly in vast numbers.

One of the attractive features of the meeting was the display of orchard products made by the Traverse City State bank. The large lobby in the counting room was utilized for the building up of two pyramids of fruit in glass.

The exhibit has a whole was an object lesson for the purpose of showing the visiting bankers how they could help along the work of development in their respective neighborhoods by encouraging the growing of products of extra quality and by the distribution of literature which advertises the region.

It is not claimed that all of the soil in the Western Michigan Development Bureau territory is adapted to growing of fruits, but it is claimed that no other region of like acreage has a larger percentage of tillable soil closer to the largest of the markets than we have.

A Close Call. A train hit a truckload of dynamite at Dallas, Ore., the other day but did not cause the stuff to explode. When the passenger train collided with the truck, the latter was carried more than 100 feet on the pilot of the engine, and the driver saved his life by jumping before the engine struck.

It Would Seem So. "What do you consider the most important even in the history of Paris?" asked the obsequious landlord of the American tourist. "Well," replied the tourist, who had grown weary of distributing tips, "so far as financial prosperity is concerned, I should say the discovery of America was the making of this town."

Broken Heart Caused Death. A broken heart, caused by violent beating due to sudden emotion, was said by a doctor to be responsible for the death of Alexander Burness, sixty-four, a master tailor, at a London inquest. Burness fell and died during an altercation with a foreman cutter as to the ownership of certain articles which he was about to remove from his former premises to new ones.

Meteorite Falls Near Woman. A meteorite weighing 37 pounds was recently the subject of discussion in chemical circles in Johannesburg, South Africa. The stone fell in Zululand a few months ago, and was not only noticed by an eye witness some 15 miles away, but fell within a few feet of a native woman, who gave information which led to its discovery. The meteorite cannot so far be broken. It is known, however, to contain platinum.

A Relic of History. A newly rich woman, who was anxious to make a favorable impression in her neighborhood, decided to show her collection of antiques to the bishop when he called. The time came, and one by one she displayed the whole collection, giving him the history of each piece. "There," she said, pointing impressively to an old yellow teapot, "that teapot was used in the Boston tea party."

Unique Suicide. A safe was used by a man named Jacob Rabinowitz, fifty-four years old, of Philadelphia, Penn., to commit suicide, a few days ago. First he jacked up an 800 pound safe with a block of wood. Placing his head beneath it he drew a strap as tightly as he could around his neck. Then he knocked the block from under the safe and the heavy weight fell upon his head. He was found by his wife, but died before a physician arrived. He had been despondent for several weeks because he lost a lawsuit.

BEGAN YOUNG. Had "Coffee Nerves" From Youth.

"When very young I began using coffee and continued up to the last six months," writes a Texas girl. "I had been exceedingly nervous, thin and very yellow. After quitting coffee and drinking Postum about a month my nervousness disappeared and has never returned. This is the more remarkable as I am a primary teacher and have kept right on with my work."

"My complexion now is clear and rosy, my skin soft and smooth. As a good complexion was something I had greatly desired, I feel amply repaid even though this were the only benefit derived from drinking Postum."

"Before beginning its use I had suffered greatly from indigestion and headache; these troubles are now unknown. I changed from coffee to Postum without the slightest inconvenience, did not even have a headache. Have known coffee drinkers, who were visiting me, to use Postum a week without being aware that they were not drinking coffee."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Write for booklet, "The Road to Wellville."

Postum comes in two forms. Regular (must be boiled). Instant Postum doesn't require boiling but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in an ordinary cup of hot water, which makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream. Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future. "There's a Reason" for Postum.

Presbyterian Church Notes

Rev. A. D. Grigby, Pastor.
The Lord's Supper will be celebrated next Sunday morning in the Presbyterian church at close of morning service. The Pastor hopes that notwithstanding its being summer and vacation time that the members will do their best to be present. Sunday School at 9:30 and both teachers and scholars should try to be there at that time.

The Y. P. C. E. meets in the evening at 8:45 and the society will be glad to welcome strangers in the city. The pastor will have a word of love to say at evening worship at 7:30 on "Marriage and Marriage." He will be glad to see a very fine attendance. On Sunday evening last the Ladies Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church held their Annual Praise Service. An excellent congregation was present to enjoy the program which included such items as a beautiful duet by Mrs. Fitch and Miss Lorraine, anthem by choir and address by Mrs. Dickie who with her husband are engaged in missionary work with the Indians upon a Reservation in Oregon. Her talk was both interesting and instructive and she finished by singing some hymns in the Indian language. Mrs. Jamison presided over the meeting. The financial result was something like $24. towards the funds of the society.

The agonizing discomfort and sense of suffocation that accompany hay fever and asthma may be greatly alleviated by the use of Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It has a soothing effect on the mucous linings, and relieves the gasping and tickling sensations in the throat and bronchial tubes. Hites Drug Store.

For Neuralgia, nothing is better than

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

Used by thousands for a generation.

Those who have suffered from neuralgia need not be told how necessary it is to secure relief. The easiest way out of neuralgia is to use Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills. They have relieved sufferers for so many years that they have become a household necessity.

I have taken Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills for five years and they are the only thing that does me any good. They have relieved neuralgia in my head in fifteen minutes. I have also taken them for rheumatism, headache, pains in the breast, toothache, cramps and pains in the bowels and limbs. I have found nothing to equal them and they are all that is claimed for them.

COME TO MICHIGAN

Michigan is the land of golden opportunity. We are just beginning to find it out. Others are making the same discovery. For years the trend of the incoming immigrant has been toward the south and west. The great plains of Canada have attracted thousands. They have all gone past our doors without knocking, because they have been led to believe the gates were closed and the keys thrown into the sea. There has been no organized effort until recently to remove from the minds of the newcomers this very incorrect impression. Michigan offers more advantages to the settler than any other portion of the Union. It has more in store for the man of limited means than any other country on the face of the globe. It has everything in the way of undeveloped wealth. It requires only the hand of man, directed by intelligence to bring forth these riches. Happiness, contentment and wealth are to be had here by all those who are sincere in their quest for a land of golden opportunity.

Sometimes a man uses gold bricks in constructing his air castles.

COMING BACK TO EAST JORDAN

UNITED DOCTORS SPECIALISTS will again be at Russell House FRIDAY, JULY 25th

Hours, 9:00 A. M. to 6:00 P. M.

Remarkable success of These Talented Physicians in the treatment of Chronic Diseases.

The United Doctors, licensed by the State of Michigan for the treatment of deformities and all chronic and nervous diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this visit, consultation examination and advice free of charge.

These Doctors are among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases of the blood, liver, stomach, intestines, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, tape-worm, leg ulcers, weak lungs, and those afflicted with long standing, deep-seated chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of other physicians, should not fail to call. Deafness has often been cured in sixty days.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors, gonor, piles, etc. By their method these diseases are treated without operation or hypodermic injection. They were among the first in America to earn the name of "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with the knife, with blood and with pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Worn-out or run-down men or women, no matter what your ailment may be, no matter what you have been told, or the experience you have had with other physicians, settle it forever in your mind. If your case is chronic they will tell you so. Consult them on this visit. It costs you nothing.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

It takes a brave man to face a little woman at the head of the stairs at night.

Many a man puts on a nonchalant air when he asks a woman to marry him—just as he used to whistle when a boy if he had occasion to pass a graveyard at night.

Obey That Impulse! Instead of enduring the daily torment of weak back, headache, sore kidneys, swollen joints and rheumatism, obey that impulse to take Foley Kidney Pills. They cooperate with nature, which accounts for their success in all kidney and bladder disorders. They are heating, strengthening and tonic. Obey that impulse today and give them a chance to help you.

The girls in a neighboring town have an anti-slavery society. A certain miss was elected president. Asked if she would accept she replied: "Sure, Mike, but gosh, girls, I'm so rattled in my capitol, that I'm nearly short on gah. We are certainly in the high places and I never tumbled to such a poise before, but when I give you the high ball I expect you to get there. Ah, and whoop up for all that's out. I think I'm up to snuff enough so the flea won't bite on the while doing the president stunt of this society act, but I won't stand for any monkey dangle business from you girls while I'm running the ranch. We girls ought to extend an invite to the married ladies to get out and help us shoot this slang business it's getting to be fierce."

Rheumatism And The Heart.

Don't overlook the gray fact that rheumatism easily "settles in the heart," and disturbs the valvular action. The cure consists in removing the cause. Foley Kidney Pills so tone up and strengthen the kidneys that they keep the blood free of poisons and uric acid crystals, that cause rheumatism and swollen joints, backache, urinary irregularities, and disturbed heart action. Try them.

SCARS THAT STAY ON BODY

Though the Idea of Regular Seven Year Change is Right, It Has Its Limitations.

There are people who tell you that everything in the body is changed every seven years, and that there is no part of it which was there seven years ago. This does not mean that we slough the whole thing off at once, as a snake does its skin or a deer its antlers, but simple that the innumerable and tiny atoms which are used up by the daily wear and tear are replaced by fresh atoms supplied by our food and drink, which keep the body going, just as coal and water keep the steam engine at work.

But these changes are so minute and gradual that the form of the body remains the same, although such things as scars take a long time to disappear, and sometimes they remain for life, although they always lose a great deal of their prominence.

You may have noticed that if you cut your finger lightly it will soon heal up and the scar presently disappear, just as the marks of a superficial burn will gradually go away; but if the cut is deep the scar remains. This is because it went down to what is called the true skin. Any cuts, stains, or burns on the outer skin are gradually pushed up and worn or washed off, just as the hair on the back of your hand wears off without your cutting it and grows again; but anything that goes down to the true skin, like tattoo marks, always remains.

ROMANCE IN MINING OF TIN

Bolivian Mountains, at Present Contribute One-Fifth of the World's Supply.

While Bolivia has copper and gold and other minerals as well as silver, her greatest wealth is in tin. There is as much romance in tin mining in Bolivia as in diamond mining in South Africa and gold mining in our own country. Fortunes just as large have been made. One man who a few years ago was a prospector now has an income from his tin mines equal to that of the bonanza kings of California or the South African mining magnates. He has recently offered to build a railway line which the government itself did not feel able to undertake.

In all the world last year there were only 110,000 tons of tin produced, and to this quantity Bolivia contributed one-fifth of the value of her tin deposits can be understood. Some of this tin is mined as high as 17,000 feet. Most of the mines, however, are worked at altitudes of less than 15,000 feet. Tin mining has thus the distinction of location at one of man's most lofty permanent dwelling places, as well as beneath the bed of the sea. This opposite extreme is found in the world's oldest known tin mines in Devonshire, England.—Christian Herald.

Hardly a Compliment.

It is said that General Crittenden used to tell with great glee of what his small son, then eight or nine years old, said to him a day or two after the battle of Chickamauga. The general had ridden during the battle a horse named John Jay that was a great favorite with the little fellow. The child, visiting the camp, asked after the horse and was told that in the fight he had acted badly, insisting upon taking his rider to the rear. The boy considered gravely a moment, then, shaking a remonstrating finger, cried:

"Papa, that must have been your work. I know John Jay would never have acted like that of his own free will!"

THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from Old Carpet" (trade mark established 1898) in which line a trade has been successfully established all over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and retinting department, which includes a large sterilizing apparatus for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time saving machinery devices run by electric light. Two of the largest rotary reconditioning machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for the rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the setting of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic spams. Thus with largest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, bespeaking a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which all addresses all orders and correspondence should be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 13, 1911.—Make your spasms early as possible.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT OF MICHIGAN STATE FAIR TO BE BEST EVER

Over $800 Dollars in Premiums to Be Awarded in This Department Alone.

Prin. Jesse B. Davis of Grand Rapids, Dept. Director.

Educationally the West Michigan State Day and Night Fair, which is to be held at Comstock park Grand Rapids from Sept. 1 to 5 inclusive, will be second to none. The management having selected for its motto the word "Education" is putting forth a great effort to make the fair the best ever along that line as well as the many others.

Prin. Jesse B. Davis of Grand Rapids Central High School.

one selection each of the various divisions named in the classification and must consist of not less than one-half and not to exceed three-quarters of the full classification, the teachers of each grade making an exhibit are at liberty to choose which divisions are to be omitted. Awards will be made on the entire exhibit of the grade instead of each separate exhibit as of heretofore. The prizes in this department range all the way from $3, $5, $7, and $10 for the best kindergarten exhibit to $5, $12, $15, and $20 for the best eighth grade exhibit. Also, under this classification is a division for special schools such as those for exceptional or defective children.

Those schools which are organized on a departmental basis with special teachers in art and manual training and which are usually known as Junior High Schools will not be permitted to enter the regular seventh and eighth grade classifications as a special department is provided for their exhibit.

One of the features of the department for high schools is a contest for the best essay on "Agricultural Advantages of Western Michigan." Each essay is to include a discussion of grain, fruit, vegetables and live stock together with the natural conditions and facilities contributing to the raising and marketing of the product.

Nature study contests for pupils of both grammar and high schools will be held. The Contest will be conducted by exposing to view specimens of birds native to Michigan. The contestants will be asked to name as many of the birds as exposed as they can.

Both school and home garden tests will be held in which essays, photographs of the gardens will be exhibited and judged from. Last but not least will be the spelling contest which will also be in two divisions one for pupils of city schools and the other for those in village or township schools.

It is anticipated that all these noteworthy changes and additions will prove such an incentive that the educational exhibit alone will be well worth the time and expense of going hundreds of miles to see. Heretofore the exhibits of this nature have been very fine becoming better and better with each succeeding year but none of them will be comparable with the one which it is expected those who attend the fair this year, will have the opportunity of viewing.

Boys and girls spend days in the pursuit of a knowledge of the intricate and technical questions which confront them; but there in one week with the stimulating surroundings and the opportunities not provided elsewhere they will visit to their memories the most finished works of nature as it has, with the cooperation of scientific man, wrought its wonders.

To these will be added the achievements of mechanical skill and genius until no matter what way they turn they will be in contact with the latest and most perfect methods of the world's work, thus fitting their mind with ideas which will impress their lives as well as the lives of those with whom they live.

Freak Plays

That Decide Baseball Championships

By Hugh S. Fullerton

(Copyright, 1913, by W. G. Chapman)

Detroit's Tigers and Philadelphia's Athletics were struggling in the final series of the baseball season in the "Tigers" lair. Upon the outcome depended the championship of the American league, and the chance to meet the Chicago Cubs for the world's championship. The Athletics were ahead in the race, and although Mack's team had not ripened to its full strength it looked as if it would hold its lead. The game was the first of four that were to be played in Detroit, and in the eighth inning the Tigers were leading by the narrow margin of one run. Every member of the two teams knew that the first game probably would decide the series.

Detroit was clinging desperately to the one run lead that was earned by two terrific drives by Crawford and Cobb. Donovan was pitching magnificently, yet he could not prevent the Athletics from hitting; time and again the Tigers were thrown back on the defensive and saved by the wonderful fielding feats of Cobb and Bush. The eighteen athletes were strained to the breaking point and each one was "on his toes" every instant. In the eighth inning the Athletics got a runner to second base with no one out. It looked like a tied score, perhaps victory, when one of the strangest freak plays ever seen intervened, saved Detroit, and turned the entire tide of the season. The batter twice attempted to sacrifice, failed and was forced to hit. He swung at a fast ball, high and outside the plate, and sent a twisting, teasing fly over the head of the first baseman, perhaps seventy feet back of the bag, and the ball was falling almost on the foul line, one of the few spots on the entire playing field where balls fall safe almost every time. Just out of the reach of any fielder. Rossman, the first baseman, turned and tore down the foul line, his back directly to the plate, but from the first it was evident he could not reach the falling ball. Schaefer, who was playing second, had been playing in perfect position to cut off a right-field hit from the bat of a left-handed hitter. He started the instant the ball was hit and sprinted at top speed toward it. From short right came Ty Cobb, who, seeing the victory snatched from his team by sheer luck, had turned on the wonderful burst of speed that has made him the marvel of baseball. It looked as if Cobb might reach the ball by a feat possible only for him, yet Schaefer, although slower, had made a quicker start, claimed the catch and reached the ball. His final leap, made with hands outstretched, brought him to the ball just inside the foul line and, as he accomplished the wonderful catch, and while the crowd was roaring with applause, Cobb, unable to check himself in his frantic effort, crashed against Schaefer, turned a somersault over him and, as he went down, Schaefer allowed the ball to fall from his hands. A groan arose from the crowd. The Athletic runner on second had tried to get back to the base when he saw that Schaefer would reach the ball, and now he turned and raced for the plate. Schaefer, dazed by the shock, reached for the ball, and, in a sitting position, with a last effort before going "out," threw wildly to the infield, in hope that someone would catch it and stop the runner at third. He threw without aim, but the ball, going over Rossman's head, struck the grass, and went on the first bound into Schmidt's hands at the plate, retiring the runner who was striving to score from second. Philadelphia failed to score, Detroit won the game, won the series and finally won the pennant in the last few days of play. This play reveals the manner in which one's turn of fortune may change in the calculations of the baseball world. No one ever has been able to figure out the percentage of luck in the national game. I have heard players estimate that luck is 20 per cent, while others claim it is at least 65 per cent.

Oddly enough, when one begins to study the freak plays that decide games and not infrequently settle pennant races, it will be found that most of the strange bits of play that seem inexplicable, happen to clubs during their winning streaks. In looking over the queer plays of the last two seasons in my records I picked out twenty and discovered in every instance that the "luck broke" for the club that was at the time having a "winning streak." There are times when "everything breaks for" one club, when nothing another club may try will win.

During the early weeks of last season it seemed as if, no matter whether they did well or ill, the freak plays all resulted in their favor. "It's the only team I ever saw," mourned Fred Clarke, "that can win games by making errors." There was one play that most still remain impressed upon the memories of those who saw it. The game was at Chicago and had gone into extra-innings. In the tenth, I believe it was, Chicago had a runner on third base with two out. The batter smashed a fierce drive just inside the first base, the game seemed over and the victory Chicago's. Konetchy, the Cardinal first baseman, dived at the ball as it was passing, slapped his mitt down and by this despairing effort, he managed to make the glove hit the ball. But instead of stopping, the ball rolled slowly back into right field on fair ground and stopped perhaps twenty-five feet behind the bag. Like a flash Konetchy leaped in pursuit of the ball, retrieved it and whirling he threw to the pitcher who was covering the base at top speed, only a step ahead of the runner. Konetchy is one of the most powerful throwers in the business and he threw with all his force in an effort to make the play and save the day. The ball flashed past the pitcher so fast he hadn't time to put up his hands, shayed the head of the runner, who dodged, and bounded perfectly into Bresnahan's hands at the plate. The runner coming home from third with the winning run had been loitering, and when to his amazement he saw the ball beating him to the plate he made a belated effort to slide, but Bresnahan blocked him and touched him out. It perhaps was the only time on record when a wild throw to first base ever caught a runner at home and saved a ball game. It was merely an exaggerated example of the manner in which fortune followed the Cardinals during that period.

The most sensational game I have ever seen during twenty seasons of watching major league baseball was that between the Washington team and the Chicago White Sox late in 1911. It was filled with freakish plays from start to finish. The Washington team just then was in the only lucky streak it enjoyed during the season and seemed a certain winner. First, Walter Johnson hit one of the longest drives I ever saw, a ball that on a still day would have cleared the deep center-field fence. A high wind, however, was blowing directly from center toward the plate and the ball, soaring high, was caught by it. Bodie had started straight outward at top speed seemingly without a chance to reach the ball, but as the wind checked the force of the drive, the ball began to slow up and then fall, at first directly downward and then backward toward the pursuing fielder, who actually overtook it, and made a spectacular catch. A few moments later Walker, in left field for Washington, raced to left center in pursuit of a vicious line drive. There was a puddle of water in his path and Walker appeared to be watching that puddle more than he was the ball. He skirted the water and turned as if in pursuit of the ball and, glancing up, he saw that the high wind had broken the flight of the sphere and that it was coming straight at his head. He ducked, threw up his bare hand as if to ward off the blow, and the ball struck his hand and stuck there.

Inning after inning of sensational catches, startling stops, line smashes aimed straight at fielders, rapid double plays, followed, keeping the crowd roiled up and wild with enthusiasm. Finally "Prince Henry" Schaefer capped the climax by starting a play that became historic, and started never ending discussion, Clyde Milan, a fast and clever runner, was on third, Schaefer was on first, two men were out and a weak batter was at the plate. On the first ball pitched Schaefer stole second, loitering purposely and trying to draw a throw from the catcher that would give Milan a chance to score. As two runs would not do any more damage than one, the Sox let him run unmolested, feeling certain the batter could not hit. On the next ball pitched, also a strike, Schaefer stole from second back to first, again striving to force Chicago to throw. The White Sox instantly raised a protest. The umpires were silent. They could not tell the Chicago players what to do, although palpably the play was for the first baseman to run ahead of Schaefer, take the throw from the pitcher, force Schaefer back to the first base and touch him out. Milan hadn't a chance to go home if the play was made that way. Schaefer had no right to first base but was free to return to second if he could escape being touched, as no runner is out on the bases unless touched or forced. Chicago, evidently ignorant of the rules, was arguing heatedly and Manager Duffy ran from the third base coaching line to the pitcher's slab to appeal to the assistant umpire. Finally the ball was thrown to first base, but behind Schaefer, who instantly started for second and when the ball was thrown to second Milan made a dash for the plate. Schaefer achieved his purpose, even though Milan was caught at the plate. Then Washington protested the game, in case of defeat, on the grounds that, when the play was made, Chicago had ten men in uniform on the playing field.

The game went to the twelfth inning and finally, with a runner on third base, and Schaefer again on first, the batter drove out a clean single that ended the contest. Still unsatisfied with the freaks of the day Schaefer ran from first down to second, stopped, looked around to see if anyone (especially an umpire) was looking, walked all the way around second base without touching it, and, satisfied that he had duplicated Merkle's famous play, came off the field grinning. That evening he held a celebration to boast over the White Sox and the umpires, not one of whom had observed his failure to touch the bag.

Among the abnormal incidents that figured in the earlier history of the national game, perhaps none is as well known to old-timers as the one which happened to Cliff Carroll, on the St. Louis grounds, when he was a member of the famous "Browns." Perhaps you have wondered why baseball players have plain shirt fronts, and why so few players have breast pockets. Cliff Carroll is the reason. He was running forward to take a base hit on the first bound. The ball bounced crooked and hit him on the chest. He grabbed at the ball hastily and, as he clutched it, he shoved it down into the handkerchief pocket on his shirt front. The runner saw Carroll tugging and straining to tear the ball out of the pocket and instead of stopping at first, he sprinted on to second while Carroll, still trying to dislodge the ball, ran to second. The batter passed the fielder and turned for third with Carroll in pursuit. At third Carroll stopped and tried in vain to release the ball, and the runner kept on across the plate and scored the winning run. Chris von der Ahe, who at that time was at the head of the euphonic trio, Von der Ahe, Muckentuss and Diddlebock, which operated the club, was furious and ordered all pockets removed from baseball shirts. Other teams followed and the pockets never have been restored, except by a few players who are willing to risk the repetition of the accident.

Or all the good luck freaks that I ever heard recounted, the best was that which happened to Frank Isbell when he was playing with St. Paul in the old Western league. In those days baseball on Sunday was not permitted within the corporation limits of St. Paul, and a Sunday park had been erected outside the city's jurisdiction. The ground was extremely small and was inclosed by a high fence. So small was the inclosure that batters hitting the ball hard against the fences were compelled to sprint to first, because if the ball happened to rebound directly to the fielder, he could throw a slow runner out. As it required about four bits of their equivalent in errors to yield a run, small scores were the rule. In the ninth inning of this game Milwaukee had two runs the advantage and there were runners on first and second with Isbell at bat. St. Paul's only logical hope was for a home run over one of the high fences. Isbell hit a hard line smash to right field against the fence. The runner on first was a slow man and the fielder squatted, expecting the ball to rebound to him and to whirl and force the slow man at second base, ending the game. But the ball didn't rebound. It impaled itself on a wire nail about ten feet up the fence, and while the Milwaukee outfielders were hunting a ladder, Isbell circled the bases and won the game.

Another peculiar play once gave the Chicago White Sox a game that seemed lost. Harvey, a left-handed pitcher, was compelled to play third base because of the badly crippled condition of his team and in the seventh inning, Chicago being one ahead, the opposing team got runners to first and second before anyone went out. Naturally the play was for the batter to push down a sacrifice bunt. The White Sox had a system of play designed to kill the sacrifice in that situation. The shortstop and second baseman, aided by the pitcher, were to hold the runner at second as close to the base as possible. The third baseman was to play close, as if intending to take the bunt, but as the ball was being pitched he was to run back, cover third, while the pitcher fielded the bunted ball, threw to third and forced out the runner at that point. Harvey had been carefully coached how the play was to be executed, but the batter, detecting the play from the actions of the shortstop and second baseman, changed signals and decided to try to drive the ball past Harvey hard instead of bunting. As the pitcher wound up Harvey whirled and sprinted back to third. The batter chopped the ball hard and sent a line hit straight toward third base. The ball struck Harvey on the back of the head, and bounded high; the sub-third baseman, as he went staggering on over the base, caught the ball and by a fast throw to second, doubled the runner off. As Harvey came off the field nursing the bump on his head Manager Jones remarked: "That's using your noodle, Old Man."

Leoford Tannehill was the hero of a remarkable play late in the season of 1906, and as the play saved the game for Chicago, and as the White Sox won the pennant by a one-game margin and then beat the Cubs for the world's championship, the freak play might be said to have given the Sox the world's championship. The game was against St. Louis and with the White Sox one run in the lead, an error and a two-base hit put Brown runners on second and third with one out. The infield was called close to cut off the runner at the plate and prevent a tied score, as Jones, the manager, saw his team could not hit the St. Louis pitcher and figured a tie probably meant a defeat. The ball was hit fiercely and straight at Tannehill, who is one of the surest fielders in the business and possessed of a wonderful pair of hands for blocking hard-driven balls. The ball appeared to be bounding true but on the short bound, it struck something, shot straight at Tannehill's chin, hit him and, as he reeled from the knock-out blow, the ball fell back directly into his hands. He threw to the plate, then sat down looking foolish and took the full count before he was able to get up.

Larry Doyle's lucky kick which almost gave the Giants the National league championship in 1908 is another historic freak of play. Those perennial rivals, the Giants and Cubs, were playing what seemed the deciding series of the year; the Cubs needed one run to tie and had two men on bases, when the batter hit viciously between Doyle and second base. Doyle reached the ball but it broke through his hands, and it seemed as if the error had given Chicago the game. Instead, the ball hit Doyle's shin, bounded straight into the hands of Bridwell, who was on second waiting for the throw, and an easy double play retired the Chicago team, New York winning by one run.

The tales most often told are those illustrating how ill fortune will pursue teams and the instances of "runs of luck" and "tough breaks" are as numerous as there are games multiplied by players. The Chicago Cubs never will cease mourning the fact that George Roche, of the White Sox, one of the weakest players that ever broke into the American league, and a weak hitter, beat them out of one world's championship. Roche, who wasn't strong enough to hold a substitute position on the team more than one more season, made two three-base hits and each of them gave the White Sox a victory. Hal Chase lost a game for New York last season in a peculiar fashion. Two runners were on the bases and two men were out when an easy bouncer was hit to third. Hartzell made a perfect throw and the inning seemed over, but as the ball came near to him Chase dodged suddenly, threw up his hands as if to protect his face, two runs scored and the Highlanders recorded another hard luck defeat. It developed later that a photographer was squatting on the ground outside the coaches' box and the sun reflected from the metal of the camera dazzled Chase just at the critical instant and caused him to lose sight of the ball.

MARKEN IS QUANT

Strange Island Community That Is Found in Holland.

Sturdy, Vigorous and Happy People Who Spend Their Lives in Peace and Contentment—Some of Their Domestic Manners.

Marken, Holland.—Marken, too small and unimportant to be found on many maps, is a quaint community of about 1,000 people, who live on 12 small islands in the Zuyder Zee. These small, sandy knolls are connected by narrow brick foot bridges and protected by dikes. Red-roofed, gabled houses made of wood, and tarred, or ornamented by paint in red and green stripes, are built on piles. During spring freshets the inhabitants are sometimes obliged to remain on the upper floors, or down. Stairs are unknown, so the ascent is made by ladders. After the annual spring bath the uneven little streets look fresher and brighter than ever and the place is a real spotless town. Only the newer houses have chimneys. In the older ones the smoke from constant peat fires must escape through a small, square "smoke-hole" in the roof. The chimney place is faced with tiles—usually blue—and the hearth is black jelling rubbed to a polish. Everywhere there is gleaming brass and copper and the whole house shines. Personally, the people are also very neat; but, strange to say, large, fat-looking fleas are plentiful—more plentiful than our mosquitoes.

The kitchen, usually the living room as well, is the largest in the house. From the beams overhead hang hams, strings of drying fish, wine-jugs and native delicacies. At the windows are green shutters and lace curtains. The floors are made of wide planks, highly varnished to a dark brown. Chairs have rush bottoms and slat backs. Well-scoured candlesticks are numerous. Every house contains an old carved cabinet filled with rare treasures that would gladden the heart of a connoisseur. Each man has a "treasure chest" of his own, which is kept securely locked, and the contents often remain a mystery to his wife and family.

Not far from the big chimney are the beds—and such beds! They are built in the wall, on a decided slant—the head being much higher than the foot! There is a feather mattress, coarse linen sheets, quilts and last, but not least, always a thick cover stuffed with feathers, until it resembles another small mattress. After the Markenites have crawled in under these bed clothes they pull a sliding door, or panel, and shut themselves within the wall! How and why they survive until morning is not known! But survive they do and they are fond and proud of their beds. They retire at seven o'clock in the winter and at nine in the summer. Candles being expensive they usually go to bed in the dark.

In appearance these people are tall and heavily built, with coarse features, sallow skin, light hair and pale blue eyes. Up to the age of ten children are all dressed alike, and only a close observer can pick out the boys by an odd button sewed on their caps. The girls' caps are adorned with a small rose bud.

Corsets are unknown, but at ten years the girls are put into tightly-laced bodices and loaded down with heavy woollens and silks, their numerous petticoats spreading out over wooden hoops. On their heads they wear muslin caps, over which is a miter-shaped pasteboard affair, covered with calico, silk or bright ribbons. Their yellow hair is banged to the eyebrows and from each temple hang two long curls that reach nearly to the waist. Now here is a secret. Old ladies with scanty hair wear bangs and curls like the girls—only they are made of yellow silk floss! Isn't it terrible?

There is only one style in stockings the year round—thick woolen ones, knitted by hand; color dark blue. Skirts are short enough to show about six inches of ankle and on week days wooden shoes (klompen) painted white. On Sundays heavy leather ones with silver buckles are worn. Klompen are always kicked off at the doorstep before entering a house.

On dress occasions the bodices are very gay—bright red, orange or purple—and have funny little coat tails on the back. The voluminous skirts are brilliantly striped. This gals dress is not only saturated with farina extract, but many ladies carry a supply along with them in scap bottles!

NO NEED TO "HOLD PHONE"

Sound Magnifying Trumpet which Will Tell You When It Is Time to Talk.

There is a sound magnifying trumpet of flat shape, behind which is a small attachment intended to support the telephone receiver. When it becomes necessary to hold the line, when calling up or replying, instead of the person standing with the receiver glued to his ear he places the receiver upon the time saver, bringing the ear-piece into position with the sound magnifier. He is then at liberty to resume his duties until such time as the person required at the opposite end attends his instrument.

This is notified by the speech transmitter being magnified by the time saving device so as to be perfectly audible at a distance. The receiver may then either be withdrawn and held to the ear in the usual way, or left in connection with the magnifier, hearing being quite as simple and easy as under normal conditions. Another advantage of the invention is that the user's two hands are left free to carry out any other requisite task, such as the turning up of documents, making references, writing down messages or instructions from dictation, and so on.

New York's New Postoffice. New York's new $6,000,000 post-office building, a massive pile of pink granite five stories in height and two blocks long, facing the rear of the Pennsylvania station, is the greatest building of its kind in the world. From the curb to the topmost piece of granite is 101 feet. There are 165,000 cubic feet of granite, 18,000 tons of steel, 7,000,000 bricks and 200,000 square feet of glass in the building. The main corridor, corresponding in length to the outside colonnade, is a combination of buff marble, white plaster and glass, two stories high; 29 feet wide and 230 feet long. There are 400,000 square feet of working space within the building.—Popular Mechanics.

England's Oldest Bowling Green. Which is our oldest recreation? There are not wanting archeologists who profess to be able to trace references to football and baseball on Egyptian mural tablets. However, when it comes to actual records, the fine old English game of bowls would appear to be as old as any.

Southampton, Eng., has records showing that one of the local bowling greens was in existence in 1299. Many interesting customs are associated with the game on this historic green. Every summer a "fire jack" competition is held, and an order of knighthood is conferred on the winner, who kneels in the center of the green while the other players gather round him and the master touches him with a sword and dubs him "sir."

For the Ironing Board. Pad the ironing board with a thick quilt or old blanket, then lay the board on the table and cut a piece of heavy muslin so it will fit the board loosely. Seam it up, leaving the slip open at each end. Make two of these slips and change them frequently, says Mother's Magazine. Thus the ironing board is always clean, and the padding will not have to be changed for months.

PROPER COLORS FOR WALLS SAVES TIME AND TROUBLE

Always a Few Rules That Are Well to Keep in Mind When Decorating.

If we redecorate in a thorough way our first puzzle is the choice of a color. A few rules are useful. Blue, green, brown, and gray are excellent colors for sunny, well-lighted rooms. If the room is on the north side of the house or is ill-lighted we may need to use yellow or yellow tan on the walls in order to produce the sunny appearance the room otherwise lacks. Tan is a good all-around color and is usable in well-lighted or poorly lighted rooms.

All these colors are best if soft. For example, a sage green wall is much more pleasing than a bright green or a leaf green wall; a Copenhagen blue is better than a vivid blue; the most agreeable gray for walls is brownish gray in tone. Tan in a great variety of shades is always a favorite.

Bright red should never be chosen. It is crude in color and tiresome to live with. A soft mulberry red is sometimes a desirable color, and a brownish or Indian red is also in good taste.

As a wallpaper always looks darker when hung on the wall than it does in the sample, we must take care to select medium or light shades, if we want cheerful rooms.

Japanese Crepe for Children.

Among the newest dresses for children are those made of Japanese crepe. The use of Japanese crepe is directly in accord with the current fashion for materials of a crepe character. Moreover, the Japanese variety is decidedly superior, both in durability of effect and in quality, to any other crepe, because it is woven by hand and the crepe feature is produced in the weaving, while in some other instances it is brought about by a process of shrinkage.

Case for Delicate Centerpiece Not Hard to Make, and is Especially Valuable.

It is sometimes a difficult matter to keep centerpieces from becoming crushed after laundering, so many women make a case in which to roll them. Purchase a piece of cretonne one and a quarter yards long and at one end turn up a hem wide enough to cover a pole an inch in diameter and in length a trifle shorter than the width of the cretonne. When choosing the material select a dainty design showing alternate stripes of flowers and a delicate color.

Bind the three sides with half-inch washable ribbon, stitching it neatly either by hand or on the machine. Attach three pieces of ribbon to the end. These are used to tie the case when the centerpieces are rolled in place.

This is an especially useful article, and should be added to the linen chest, and there will never be any need of pressing a centerpiece before it is fit to place on the dining table. It requires only a short time to make an attractive case of this variety, and you will never cease to sing its praises when it has saved you much inconvenience.

Now that you have supplied a case for the centerpieces, provide like articles for the dollies of your luncheon set. From cardboard cut two circular pieces an inch wider than the plate dollies and two others an inch wider than the diameter of the tumbler dollies. Cover these with cotton wadding and sprinkle with lavender.

Using cretonne to match the centerpiece case, cut circular pieces enough to cover the top and bottom of the disks. Allow a half inch for turning in all around, and neatly whip stitch the two together or baste roughly and bind with the half-inch ribbon. At three places attach pieces of ribbon with which to tie the cases shut when the dollies are placed between the two sections. A set of cases for a luncheon set would make a most acceptable gift to a prospective bride or to the systematic housewife who likes a place for everything.

Dainty Garments for the Newcomer.
All the best layettes consist of simple garments made entirely by hand. The expectant mother who knows how to do neat sewing may prepare for her baby a layette good enough for a prince, and of the same materials as would be used for any little royal highness. The fabrics chosen for little slips and dresses are fine, sheer linen or cotton weave. Where considerable dainty hand embroidery is to be used, linen would best be chosen, as it is durable enough to make the work worth while. It has the advantage also of keeping perfectly white after much laundering and ironing smooth without starch. Lawn, either linen or cotton, in fine quantities, sheer nainsook and French batiste are preferred for making the baby's dresses and petticoats.

From an Old Raincoat.
An apron with a bib can be made for wash day, or when you give the baby a bath. A bathing cap, and bag to carry your bathing suit, and little utility cases dear to the suitcase of travelers, may be made from a discarded raincoat.

Starch for Laces and Muslins.
Mix a small quantity of corn flour smoothly with cold water. This will be found excellent for lightly stiffening all delicate and lacy fabrics, including veils and neckwear of these materials.

HIS HAIR TURNED WHITE BY FRIGHT

Miner Is Seriously Hurt in Fall Down Shaft.

WAS NUMBED BY GAS

Tumbled From Ladder as Poisonous Fluid Fills His Lungs and Took Strength—Terrible Experience in a Coal Mine When Almost Suffocated.

St. Louis.—Charles Griner's terrible experience in a coal mine, when he was almost suffocated from noxious gases, and in trying to escape fell twenty-five feet; turned his hair from a hue of jet to almost white in a single night.

Many of his bones were broken from his fall twenty-five feet down the shaft to the slate floor of the mine, and the gas he inhaled weakened him so he cannot recover from the shock as he would otherwise.

Griner was at work the other night in a coal mine near Brighton. He had just fired a shot and had entered the room to resume his work, when he realized that he had used a larger charge of powder than usual, or the ventilating system was not performing its functions so well as it should.

He worked for a few moments, and then realizing that the poisonous gases he was drawing into his lungs were overpowering him, he attempted to fight the feeling off, but felt himself becoming dizzy. The fumes burned his throat and appeared to close up the breathing tubes.

He dropped his tools and reeled toward the exit. His eyes burned as the gas filled them and blinded him.

He groped his way through the blinding smoke and gas until he came to the ladder leading to the top of the shaft.

His numbed brain told him this ladder led to safety and good air. His hands grasped weakly the first rung he could reach. His weight appeared trebled and his strength greatly diminished as he tried to draw himself up.

He exerted every ounce of his strength and slowly and laboriously ascended, but when he had pulled himself up two score of the rounds, his strength departed and with a despairing cry he plunged to the stone floor at the bottom of the shaft.

Henry Bott, a fellow-miner, heard the cry. Calling others to help him, a stream of water was turned down the shaft, while Bott descended and carried the unconscious man to the top.

Griner was hurried to the hospital, where the doctors found that more than a dozen fractures had resulted.

Placed on the operating table, his companions noted that his hair, which when he went to work that night was as black as the coal he mined, had turned to the whiteness of the mesh that resulted when it was consumed.

Physicians said the change in the color occurred in all probability while Griner was battling on the ladder to fight his way to freedom and safety.

CALLS WOODPECKERS INSANE

Because Birds Store Pebbles Instead of Acorns Professor Says They Are Insane.

San Francisco, Cal.—The woodpeckers of Sonoma county are suffering from a mild form of insanity, according to a learned and erudite document issued by the museum of vertebrate zoology of the University of California. The document says:

"The reason why California woodpeckers in the vicinity of Sonoma mountain would have stored pebbles instead of the customary acorns is a mystery. We know that instinct works as automatically as an alarm clock. In the failure of an acorn crop it would seem possible that the woodpeckers might instinctively store some other available kind of food, but to have chosen stones instead of food carries the analogy too far. It seems as though any bird with the intelligence of the California woodpecker which would make the same mistake ought to be classed as insane."

BOILED EGGS BETRAY THEM

Nationality of Diners is Shown in Their Various Method of Eating.

Sherlock Holmes might have figured this out, but he did not!

The average Englishman will always demand his egg boiled just three minutes, then he places it in an egg cup, just large enough to have the egg fit it, taps the top of the shell, and removes the broken shell with his fingers. The egg is eaten a spoonful at a time.

A Frenchman, much like the Englishman, likes his eggs of three minutes, exactly. He then "peels" them, places them in a glass, stirs and mixes well together with salt, pepper and butter. He makes a practice of dipping bread into the mixture, and eating it along with the eggs.

A Spaniard wouldn't think of letting his egg boil more than one minute. He then breaks it, and lets the contents run into a glass, and consumes it as if he were drinking a glass of wine.

An egg is only fit in an Italian's estimation when it has been placed in cold water, and removed just as the water begins to boil. He then breaks it, pours it on a plate, and proceeds to sop it up with bread.

The German, like the Italian, demands his eggs as near the liquid state as possible. He breaks his eggs in an unsightly cup, and scoops the liquid out as if it were soup.

The American is about the only one who prefers his eggs boiled hard. When they are served up to him, he knives them in half, removes the contents into a glass, after which he adds a plentiful supply of pepper, butter and salt. He then mashes the eggs fine, mixing them well with the spices, and eats them with his toast.

Catching Flies Pays Well.

Catching flies is affording a Shreveport (La.) man a profitable and independent living. He sells them to the city board of health. His name is Bartsch, and his net revenue from the fly industry for the first two days of a recent week was $24.20. When the health board began offering premiums for the flies, dead or alive, Bartsch purchased about 100 traps and placed them in fly-ridden sections of the city. Then he began making inroads on the health board's exchequer, and so well did he operate that he bore the market price down from 50 cents to 20 cents a quart, for it is by that measure that the board purchases. Bartsch is still working, and he will work as long as the treasury holds out. He finds fly catching pays.

ITCHING AND BURNING

Iberia, Mo.—"I was troubled with scalp eczema for about five years and tried everything I heard of, but all of no avail. The doctors told me I would have to have my head shaved. Being a woman, I hated the idea of that. I was told by a friend that the Cuticura Remedies would do me good. This spring I purchased two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap. After using one box of Cuticura Ointment I considered the cure permanent, but continued to use it to make sure and used about one-half the other box. Now I am entirely well. I also used the Cuticura Soap. "The disease began on the back of my head, taking the form of a ringworm, only more severe, rising to a thick, rough scale that would come off when soaked with oil or warm water, bringing a few hairs each time, but in a few days would form again, larger each time, and spreading until the entire back of the head was covered with the scale. This was accompanied by a terrible itching and burning sensation. Now my head is completely well and my hair growing nicely." (Signed) Mrs. Geo. F. Clark, Mar. 25, 1912.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever. Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
