"The Rosary"

Those who complain about the decadence of the drama can offer no sound criticism of "The Rosary", which was the sensation of the popular high priced houses last season. It is not a religious drama of the heavy sort, lacking in entertaining qualities. On the contrary, it is a delightful story of every day life, in which the plot hinges upon the misery which creeps into a household through circumstances which lead to suspicion and jealousy, and of a part which a priest, Rev. Brian Kelly, plays in bringing about a correct understanding. A rosary of pearls figures in the unfolding of the plot, and a final happy denouement.

The play is handsomely staged by the producers, Rowland and Clifford and is enacted by a powerful acting cast, consisting of Mr. Harry Kazale as Father Kelly, Myrtle Bigden, Art Walton Harry Bóder, Lillian Stoops, Donald Clinton, Dixie Dove Oliver Stoops. "The Rosary" is a play which every lover of clean and entertaining stage productions should see. Six companies, all equally formed are touring the country again this season, repeating the tremendous hit that this play made everywhere last year. It will be seen at the Temple Theatre on Thursday, Sept. 11th.

Death of Ray Thaddeus McEacheron.

Ray Thaddeus McEacheron was born at Elk Rapids, Mich. Oct. 10th, 1893 and died at East Jordan, August 29th, 1913, being almost 20 years of age. Four years ago he moved with his parents from Elk Rapids to East Jordan. He made many friends while a resident here. He was an active member of the East Jordan Military Band until his illness last winter. He was the son of John and Rose McEacheron; his mother died about thirteen years ago. He leaves to mourn his loss, his father and step-mother, four sisters, Mrs. Flora Hanson of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Lulu Hungerford of Traverse City, Misses Irene and Gertrude of Grand Rapids and one brother, Ross, of Owosso, and a large circle of friends. The funeral sermon was preached on Monday evening at the late residence on Main street by Rev. T. Porter Bennett, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. On Tuesday morning the remains were taken to Elk Rapids for interment. The band accompanied the body from the residence to the depot playing a very beautiful funeral march.

Death of William Crammer.

William Crammer was born at Paw Paw, Michigan, about fifty years ago. Seven years ago he married Maud Sullivan of Boyne City. Four children were born to this union, two of whom are living. Mr. Crammer was taken ill last winter and died on Monday evening, Sept. 1st. The funeral was conducted on Wednesday afternoon by Rev. T. Porter Bennett. The interment took place at East Jordan Cemetery.

TO APPROVE PLANS

Department of Public Instruction Will Aid School Districts.

Failure of architects to observe the universally accepted principles of scientific schoolhouse construction is resulting in the erection of schoolhouses in Michigan which are not proper buildings for school purposes. The department of public instruction invites every school board in the state which is planning to erect a new building to submit the plans for approval and suggestion. Such plans will receive the attention of persons who understand the correct principles of light, ventilation and arrangement. There will be no charge for such service.

It costs no more to build scientifically and means a great deal to the health and efficiency of the children who attend the school. It is as vitally essential that a country schoolhouse shall be properly planned as a city structure. More than ninety per cent of the rural buildings, even including the great majority of those recently built, are not correctly lighted, properly planned or made attractive. The errors of older buildings are simply duplicated. This is also largely true of many modern city and village schoolhouses.

HOG CHOLERA NOW RAVAGING THE STATE

Live Stock Experts Declare It Infects 23 Counties and is Spreading.

Now comes another alarming report regarding the condition of Michigan's meat crop. This time it deals with hogs. That Michigan is at present being ravaged by an epidemic of hog cholera which is rapidly assuming an alarming aspect is the statement of Dr. Giltner, late state veterinarian and present acting head of the bacteriological department, and also of Dr. Helman, of the bacteriological department of the M. A. C., who has been doing state work in districts affected. At the last counting made by Dr. Giltner there were 23 counties affected with the disease, some of them very badly. The counties in which sections are reported as being affected are, Genesee, Barry, Eaton, St. Joseph, Cass, Branch, Wayne, Calhoun, Livingston, Kent, Newago, Ingham, Berrien, Monroe, Gratiot, Kalamazoo, Ohtawa, St. Clair, Van Buren Lenawee and Hillsdale.

The disease is killing off the hogs in the affected sections by the hundreds, many farmers reporting that their entire herds of 50 or 100 have been wiped out.

The farmers in a large number of the communities are ignorant as to the nature of the disease, and in many instances the local veterinarians are unable to diagnose it correctly, calling it swine plague and a number of kindred diseases. In many other cases it has been found that the local health boards have been absolutely ignorant of their duties in cases where the disease has broken out badly. As required by the state law they should immediately quarantine and take measures to prevent the spread of the disease about the state. The state live stock and sanitary commission should also be notified. In Branch County, Dr. Holman and Mr. Halliday, a member of the live stock board, found the local chairman of the health board with nearly 80 hogs dead or dying on his own farm, and still had taken no action in the matter.

Dr. Giltner states that the M. A. C. is making a hog cholera serum which will positively protect all swine from the disease if they are inoculated with it. "The college has been in the business of producing this serum for a good many years, and sends it to the farmer at cost as soon as he sends for it. If the farmers will only send for the serum and administer it wisely they can protect all their uninfected hogs," said Dr. Giltner.

According to the doctor, the serum will not cure diseased animals but acts only as a preventative.

Commission Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the City Commission held at the City Hall, Monday evening, Sept. 1, 1913.

Meeting was called to order by Mayor Cross. Present: Cross, Hudson and Kenny. Absent: none.

Minutes of the two last meetings were read and approved.

On motion by Hudson, supported by Kenny, the following bills were allowed and the Clerk instructed to draw orders for the same.

Chas. Coykendall, frt and draying	$ 1.60
Fred. Hagge, ringing curfew	7.00
Electric Light Co. st. lighting	179.21
Electric Light Co. pumping	278.10

Moved by Kenny, supported by Hudson, that the petition asking for a cement walk along the north side of Garfield street west of the intersection with Main street, be accepted and laid on the table for further consideration. Carried.

Moved by Hudson, supported by Kenny, that, whereas the special assessment of James Malpass appears to be in excess of the lawful amount, it be left with the Commissioner of finances to make the necessary correction. Carried.

Moved by Hudson, supported by Kenny that the Chief of Police be authorized to look after the renting of the Town Hall. Carried.

On motion by Kenny, meeting was adjourned.

OTIS J. SMITH,
City Clerk.

Widow's Pension

TEXT OF ACT AMENDED BY LEGISLATURE

Only Widows Without Means Can Receive Money Under This New Law.

During the past few weeks the juvenile court has been the storm center for questions concerning the amendment to the widows' pension act, and inquiries have come thick and fast. The general idea is that all one has to do is make petition to the probate court, naming all children under school age and draw three dollars per week for each child.

The fact of the matter is that only such children as have been complained of as not having the proper care and treatment in the home, in other words, neglected or dependent children, come under this act, or where the mother is too poor to give her children the proper schooling and care. For the benefit of those who do not understand the amendment, the following is given through the courtesy of Judge Walker:

"Sec. 7. When any child under the age of seventeen years shall be found to be a dependent child within the meaning of this act, the court may make an order committing the child to the care of some suitable state institution subject to the law and regulations governing such institution, or to the care of some reputable citizen of good moral character, or to the care of some training school or industrial school as such provided by law, to the care of some association willing to receive it, embracing in its objects the purpose of caring for or obtaining homes for dependent or neglected children, which association shall have been approved by the state board of corrections and charities. Provided, that if the mother of such dependent or neglected child is unmarried, or is a widow or has been deserted by her husband, or if married has been divorced, and is poor and unable to properly care and provide for her child, but is otherwise a proper guardian, and it is for the welfare of such child to remain in the custody of its mother, the court may enter an order finding such fact and fixing the amount of money necessary to enable the mother to properly care for such child; such amount not to exceed three dollars a week for each child. Thereupon it shall be the duty of the county treasurer of the county of which such child is a resident to pay from the general fund of such county, to such mother, at such times as such order may designate, the amount so specified for the care of such dependent or neglected child until the further order of the court. Such order shall not require the approval of the board of supervisors or county auditor or auditors. The court shall, when the health or condition of the child shall require, cause the child to be placed in a hospital or in an institution for treatment or special care or in a private hospital or institution, for special care or treatment, the expense to be paid from the general fund of the county of which the child is a resident.

HOLD TWO OFFICES

Township Board Members Can Now Serve as School Officers.

After August 14, township boards will no longer have the right to remove school officers, that power resting entirely in the hands of the superintendent of public instruction. As this change takes away the principal reason for the incompatibility of members of the township board and school boards, Attorney-General Grant Fellows rules that one person can hold offices on both boards. Thus the township clerk, supervisor and justice of peace can now serve on the school boards.

The offices of township treasurer and school district treasurer are still held to be incompatible, however. A township treasurer may serve as director, moderator or trustee of a school district but not as its treasurer.

Hot Weather Care of the Dumb Animals

By MRS. A. B. RIGGS, St. Louis, Mo.

Whether the "poke bonnet" horse hats are "worse than nothing" or not, they should, at least, be taken off at sundown. The two-story, wire-framed canopies are far better. If a wet sponge is fastened on the horse's head, keep it wet or it is worse than useless. Don't cut off your horse's mane or forelock; he needs them as a protection as he does his tail, or nature would not have grown them. If he has been mutilated for life by "docking," keep off insects either with fly netting or by rubbing on lightly a mixture of one ounce of pennyroyal in one pint of olive oil.

Brighten him up frequently with a drink, but give only a little at a time. Above all, dispense with that instrument of torture, the high check-rein. At night let fresh air circulate freely through the stable, and tack mosquito netting over its windows, as you would over your own. In case of sunstroke, place the ice pack on the head and along the spine; put water on the body occasionally and give this mixture: Aromatic spirits of ammonia, two ounces; water, one pint.

Let dogs have plenty of water; but don't let them run after your carriage, bicycle or car. If a dog acts strangely on the street, that is by no means evidence that he is "mad," for "rabies" is extremely rare. He is suffering from heat, sickness or some form of abuse. Put water on him and get him into a quiet, shady place. Remember "mad" dogs never froth at the mouth.

Don't tie up your dog. His nature demands freedom and a reasonable amount of exercise. Give the long haired dogs a little comfort by clipping their heavy coats.

Refuse to add one more to the number of abandoned cats left to a wretched existence in black alleys, while their heartless owners enjoy themselves at summer resorts—an act of cruelty forbidden by law in some states. If you cannot take your cat with you, get some home or refuge for it, or mercifully destroy it or have the Humane society or Anti-Cruelty society do so.

If you keep a little bird prisoner in a cage, see that it has plenty of fresh water and fresh air, and don't let the sun shine on it too long.

Keep an earthen jar sunk in the ground in a shady place near your door, full of fresh water (changed every day at least), for small wandering creatures, including the birds. This is a common custom in some countries. Every public fountain should have a basin for the small animals.

Drunkenness More Disease Than Crime

By DR. J. K. GIFFORD, Macon, Ga.

For some time men of learning in many states have been considering what to do with habitual drunkards. Recently a member of the Georgia legislature has been investigating the methods of handling drunkards in many states and he is at present preparing a bill advocating a state asylum for drunkards. His idea is to have an asylum for persons who have been adjudged habitual drunkards. Before being sent to the asylum they should have the right of a jury trial, just as in the case of insane persons. When they have been duly adjudged to be drunkards they should be sent to the state institution provided especially for them for a definite term and should not be released until the physician in charge is satisfied of their cure.

While in the asylum the inebriates should be given such work as they are capable of doing, and the institution should be made as nearly self-supporting from the proceeds of their labor as possible.

Medical authorities are coming more and more to the conclusion that drunkenness is a disease rather than a crime, and should be treated as such.

It is thought that by intelligent medical treatment carried on for a sufficient time to accomplish results, thousands of men, now regarded as hopeless, could be saved to themselves and their families.

Those who have passed beyond all hope should be put away permanently in an institution where they might receive protection against their own weakness, and their friends and relatives relieved of the burden of their support.

Solution of Lonely Lives Among Women

By Mrs. Phoebe Swartz, Chicago

The "woman above fifty" with no home center, or man, either, for that matter, has missed the point of life. Make a home for some one else. Work, absorbing work, for others less fortunate, is the only solution. Such work carries with it more individual pleasure, and more social possibilities if transferred to a town of moderate size, where the individual is not lost sight of in the day-a-pre-occupation.

The lonely woman of fifty has a tremendous advantage over the lonely woman of twenty. The lonely woman of fifty ought to assume the responsibility of making the lonely woman of twenty more happy and more safe. Or, go loaf around any one of the public playgrounds and make the acquaintance of two or three of the most forlorn children; follow them up to their homes; make friends with the mothers; be their friendly visitor. Find two or three old women stranded in the homes for old people. They are the women with some right to call themselves lonely.

Two women from Chicago have solved the problem by buying a place in Michigan, on the lake. They live there quietly in the winter, an integral part of the community. In the summer they fill their house with city folks at $7 a week and children half price. That is a clean cut philanthropy: Feeding and housing healthy children from three to fifteen at $3.50 a week.

Moderate Amount of Spooning Is Favored

By Mrs. Phyllis Brown, Kansas City, Mo.

I believe a moderate amount of spooning is all right. A girl can be strictly moral, and respected also, if she does spoon a little. Of course, I don't mean with every fellow she goes with, just the favored ones she can trust as friends.

Very few men like a "prig," and a girl who is too nice to spoon will miss many a chance of going and having companions of the opposite sex. For several years before I was married I went with dozens of young men, had a dandy social time (also spooned with certain ones), and I am certain they all respected me.

Now I am a happy married woman, and my husband is proud to have a moral wife. And he hasn't any reason to care because I did spoon a little.

Girls, don't go to extremes either way. Keep your character pure, but be jolly and you will have more friends and more good times.

Whether the "poke bonnet" horse hats are "worse than nothing" or not, they should, at least, be taken off at sundown. The two-story, wire-framed canopies are far better. If a wet sponge is fastened on the horse's head, keep it wet or it is worse than useless. Don't cut off your horse's mane or forelock; he needs them as a protection as he does his tail, or nature would not have grown them. If he has been mutilated for life by "docking," keep off insects either with fly netting or by rubbing on lightly a mixture of one ounce of pennyroyal in one pint of olive oil.

ERADICATION OF INJURIOUS PESTS IN ORCHARD IS OF MUCH IMPORTANCE

Fall Webworm Is Most Conspicuous Insect During Months of August and September—Trees Should Be Carefully Examined at Least Once a Week and Nests Destroyed—Look for Borers.

(By CLARENCE M. WEED.)

The Fall Webworm is the most conspicuous orchard insect in August and September. These insects hatch about midsummer and begin feeding on the green surface of the leaves. As they move about they spin a filmy silken web under which they always remain. As they grow they extend the web, carrying it over all the leaves they attack, so that the whole branch will be webbed up by a single colony before the caterpillars mature.

There is generally, however, some one part of the branch where the insects retire between meals and during periods of molting. Here the web becomes thicker and when in autumn the leaves fall, taking with them most of the gauzy web this shelter tent generally remains on the leafless branches.

The webworm shelter is very different from that made by the common Tent Caterpillar in spring. There are probably various reasons for this. In the first place the webworms are born during the hottest season of the year so they do not need to huddle together in a narrow room to keep warm as the Tent Caterpillars do in early spring. In the second place it seems probable that a caterpillar that eats only the green surface of the leaves as webworms do must take a longer time getting its meals than does a caterpillar that devours the whole leaf, so the period of exposure to natural enemies during eating would be greater in the case of the webworm. And in the third place, the webworms are developing at a period when parasites and predaceous insects are most abundant. The overhead web must save the lives of many webworms that otherwise would be destroyed by their enemies.

But if the web protects the worms from these insect foes it makes them easy to see by the orchardist, so that the only excuse for leaving the pests to defoliate the tree is dire neglect.

July by a good-sized brown moth. The caterpillars feed in colonies, taking the leaves clean as they go. They reach full size in about six weeks and then burrow into the soil a few inches and change to the pupa state.

The Red-humped Apple Caterpillar is often more abundant than the yellow-necked form. It is easy known by its reddish appearance and the hump back of the head. It feeds in colonies also, giving the branch a bare appearance that is very noticeable.

Whenever a colony of either of these pests is found it should of course be destroyed. Cut the twig off and burn or crush the caterpillars. During these weeks of late summer the large white-striped beetles of round-headed apple tree borer are busy laying their eggs. If you see a beetle looking like the drawing herewith, with nearly cylindrical body and long feelers, kill it, for it is capable of much mischief. To prevent egg-laying, clear away all weedy growth from around the base of apple trees so as leave the bark freely exposed to sunshine.

Other boring insects are also busy now laying eggs for grubs that will work havoc with fruit trees. The peach tree borer moth is one of the worst of these. This is a small day flying moth that lays its eggs about the base of the trees. The eggs soon hatch into grubs that bore into root and bark and often kill the tree. It is a good plan to wrap paper around the base of the trunks and then cover the paper with tanglefoot. This has a tendency to prevent the moths from laying eggs. Another way is to place a lot of refuse tobacco stems around the base of the tree. Still another is to mound up the tree with loose soil to a height of six or eight inches, so if any eggs are laid the grubs will be easier to dig out. All of these methods are to be supplemented in fall by careful examination and digging out of any borers found.

OATS RECOGNIZED AS ANIMAL FOOD

Plant, Like Wheat, Seems First to Have Been Domesticated in Europe or Asia Minor.

The oat plant, like wheat, seems first to have been domesticated in Europe or Asia Minor. The Greeks knew it and evidence is not lacking that it was plentiful in the south of Italy during the time of Roman Empire. It has been found in the Swiss lake dwellings of the Bronze Age. It seems that the Hebrews and Egyptians did not cultivate the oat plant but that its ancient domestication was largely confined to the country north of Italy and Greece.

This plant has not been found in a wild state and indications point to its origin from a single prehistoric form, a native of eastern-temperate Europe and of Tartary.

Oats have always been recognized as a feed for domesticated animals, and in times of scarcity as good food for man. While the crop is still largely grown for horse feed, its use as human food has largely increased in recent years.

Young Fruit Trees Protected.

By looking over the trees once a week one can easily find the nests. Each should be cut off, taking the branch when necessary and burned. Do not try to burn out the nests on the tree with a torch. It hurts the bark and a large majority of the worms fall unharmed to the ground, and crawl up again and continue feeding.

Several other caterpillars live in colonies on apple trees late in summer without making a conspicuous web. The large striped-called Yellow-necked Apple Caterpillars are common. These hatch from eggs laid during June or

TAKES BIG EAGLE AFTER HARD FIGHT

Indian Then Carries Giant Bird to Town.

WRAPS IT IN LARIAT

The Eagle Had Caught a Lamb Too Heavy to Fly With, and Could Not Disengage Talons From the Sheep's Back.

Claremore, Okla.—As Sam Catkiller, a full-blood Cherokee Indian, was riding into this place the other day, he heard a noise in a wheat field to his right. Turning his horse's head, he went in the direction whence the strange sounds came, and he ran onto something which came very near causing him to fall off his horse.

A big eagle had dashed down into a herd of sheep somewhere, and had caught up a lamb, perhaps half grown or a little better. The eagle had evidently carried the lamb a long distance. When it came to earth, the lamb was still alive and as soon as its feet touched ground it began running. The eagle seemingly could not disentangle its feet from the lamb's back.

Catkiller came up just in time to catch a glimpse of the lamb and eagle. He loosed his lariat from his saddle, and, after several unsuccessful attempts, succeeded in throwing the noose over the eagle's head. It was with much difficulty that he got the bird's talons disentangled from the wool on the lamb's back, receiving many cuts and scratches. The lamb died shortly after it was released.

Catkiller undertook to bring the eagle to town, a distance of three miles, but he soon discovered he had a most peculiar job on his hands. The eagle wouldn't lead worth a cent, and when it came to driving it was equally obstinate. Finally, Catkiller—after getting his clothes partly torn off, and being scratched and bitten—succeeded in thoroughly wrapping the eagle with his lariat, like one would wrap a bale of hay. Feeling pretty safe and secure, and rather gleeful over his capture, he lashed the eagle to his horse's back, mounted and drove off.

But the eagle managed to work one of his feet loose from the lariat. It reached out for something to take hold of and found the horse's flank. The horse shot forward about 50 feet the first jump, then stood on its rear feet, on its front feet, on its head, and then without any warning, laid down and began to yallow. Catkiller was just in time to get off, and snatched the eagle away before the horse rolled on it.

He walked the rest of the way to Claremore, led his horse and carried his eagle. When he arrived in town, a tape measure was brought into service and the eagle's wings were measured. From the tip of one wing to the tip of the other, it measured nine feet two inches.

BABYLONIAN KICKED ON FOOD

Letter Written 1500 B. C. on Brick Is Translated by a Chicago Savant.

Chicago.—Letters written from 4000 to 1500 B. C., in Cuneiform on bricks were translated recently by Dr. F. C. Eissen of Chicago university. A youth 1500 B. C. near Babylon kicked on his boarding house fare. He took a lump of clay and carefully inscribed the following plaint:

"To my father, from Zurai Eramma, May the gods Shamash and Marduk keep thee alive forever. I am stationed in Dur-sin. The house where I live there is no food which I am able to eat. Send me for this money, fresh fish and other food. The cost here is high."

Pulls Hair From Nose; Dies. Washington.—Philip J. Hayden, a policeman, pulled a hair from his nose a few weeks ago and thought nothing about the matter until his nostril began to swell. When a physician was called it was too late to check the infection, and Hayden died of blood poisoning.

HANDY LOW WAGON FOR USE IN ORCHARDS

No orchard man should be without a low-down wagon. It makes the handling of boxes, barrels, fertilizers, etc., so much easier, says the Orange Judd Farmer. A ton load can be drawn by one horse in the average orchard, if wide tires are provided. Pictured is the type of wagon which has given great satisfaction wherever used and it is becoming more popular every year. One great advantage in this type is the fact that it can be turned around very short. This is due to the movable double X arrangement, which is under the reach, between the front and back axles. Another fine thing is to provide bolster springs; these latter can be used on an ordinary wagon, transforming it to a spring wagon.

Scientists Tell of the Sea. Some Facts Not Generally Known, But of Interest to the Man Who Admires Nature.

Not only is the sea the reservoir into which all rivers run, but it is the cistern that finally catches all the rain that falls, not merely upon its own surface, but upon the surface of the land and upon the roofs of our houses. It has been calculated that each year a layer of the entire sea fourteen feet thick is taken up into the clouds. This vapor is fresh, and, if all the water could be removed in the same way, none of it being returned, there would, it is figured, be left a layer of pure salt 230 feet high on the bed of the Atlantic. These figures are based upon the assumption that three feet of water contain one inch of salt, and that the average depth of the ocean is three miles.

At a depth of about 3,500 feet the temperature is uniform, varying but little between the poles and the equator. The colder water is below in many deep basins the water begins to freeze at the bottom before it does at the surface.

At that depth waves are not felt. The force of waves is in proportion to their height. It is said that the sea strikes upon certain rocks with the force of seventeen tons for each square yard.

The pressure of water increases with the depth. One mile down this pressure is reckoned at more than a ton to the square inch—in other words, more than 133 times the pressure of the atmosphere. The depth of the sea presents some interesting considerations. If, it is claimed by one authority, the Atlantic ocean were lowered 6,564 feet, it would be reduced to half its present width. If it were lowered a little more than three miles the result would be dry land all the way between Newfoundland and Ireland. If the Mediterranean were lowered 600 feet, Africa would be joined to Italy, and three separate seas would remain.

SYNOPSIS.

Fran arrives at Hamilton Gregory's home in Littleburg, but finds him absent conducting the choir at a camp meeting. She repairs thither in search of him, laughs during the service and is asked to leave. Abbott Ashton, superintendent of schools, escorts Fran from the tent. He tells her Gregory is a wealthy man, deeply interested in charity work, and a pillar of the church. Ashton becomes greatly interested in Fran and while taking leave of her, holds her hand and is seen by Sapphira Clinton, sister of Robert Clinton, chairman of the school board. Fran tells Gregory she wants a home with him. Grace Noir, Gregory's private secretary, takes a violent dislike to Fran and advises her to go away at once. Fran hints at a twenty-year-old secret, and Gregory in agitation asks Grace to leave the room. Fran relates the story of how Gregory married a young girl at Springfield while attending college and then deserted her. Fran explains that Mrs. Gregory, Gregory's ex-wife, married his present wife three years before the death of Fran's mother. Fran takes a liking to Mrs. Gregory. Gregory explains that Fran is the daughter of a very dear friend who is dead. Fran agrees to the story. Mrs. Gregory insists on her making her home with them and takes her to her arms. Fran declares the secretary must go. Grace begins nagging tactics in an effort to drive Fran from the Gregory home. Abbott, while taking a walk alone at midnight, finds Fran on a bridge telling her fortune by cards. She tells Abbott that she is the famous lion tamer, Fran Nonpareil. She tired of circus life and sought a home. Grace tells of seeing Fran come home after midnight with a man. She guesses part of the story and surprises the rest from Abbott. She decides to ask Bob Clinton to go to Springfield to investigate Fran's story. Fran enlists Abbott in her battle against Grace. Fran offers her services to Gregory as secretary, during the temporary absence of Grace. The latter, hearing of Fran's purpose, returns and interrupts a touching scene between father and daughter. Gregory's brother, Abbott, whose retention as superintendent is to be decided that day, finds her sitting alone in a buggy. He joins her and is discovered by Clinton and his sister.

CHAPTER XV.—Continued.

Fran snatched up the whip, and leaned over as if to lash the empty shafts. She had suddenly become the child again. "We must drive out of Sure-Enough Country, now. Time to get back to the Make-Believe World." She stood up, and the lap robe fell about her like green waves from which springs a laughing nymph. Abbott still felt stunned. The crash of an ideal aroused the echo—"Is there no truth in the world?" But yes—Fran was here, Fran the adorable. "Fran," he pleaded, "don't drive out of Sure-Enough Country. Wait long enough for me to tell you what you are to me." "I know what I am to you," Fran retorted. "Gif ap!" "But what am I to you? Don't drive so fast—the trees are racing past like mad. I won't leave Sure-Enough Country until I've told you all—" "You shall! No, I'll not let you take this whip—" "I will take it—let go—Fran! Blessed darling Fran—" She gripped the whip tightly. He could not loosen her hold, but he could keep her hand in his, which was just as well. Still, a semblance of struggling was called for, and that is why the sound of approaching wheels was drowned in laughter. "Here we are!" Fran cried wickedly. "—Make-Believe World of Every-Day, and some of its inhabitants." A survey had come down the seldom-used road—had Miss Sapphira followed Abbott in order to discover him with Fran? The suspicion was not just, but his conscience seemed to turn color—or was it his face? In fact,

"We Must Drive Out of Sure-Enough Country, Now."

Fran and Abbott were both rather red-caused, possibly, by their struggle over the whip. On the front seat of the surrey were Miss Sapphira and Bob Clinton. On the back seat was Simon Jefferson whose hairy hand gripped a halter fastened to a riderless horse; the very horse which should have been between the shafts of the Gregory buggy. Miss Sapphira stared at Abbott, speechless. So this is what he had meant by wanting the air unstrained by window-screens. Studying, indeed! Abbott, in his turn, stared speechlessly at the led horse. Bob Clinton drew rein, and grasped his hay-colored mustache, inadequate to the situation. He glanced reproachfully at Abbott; the young fellow must know that his fate was to be decided this very night.

Abbott could not take his fill of the sight of Simon Jefferson whom he had fancied not far away, eyes glued on cork, hands in pockets to escape mosquitoes, sun on back, serenely fishing. He had supposed the horse grazing near by, enjoying semi-freedom with his grass. Now it seemed far otherwise. Miss Sapphira had even had him telephone Bob to bring her hither. With his own hands he had dug his pitfall.

Fran, suddenly aware of her ridiculous attitude, sat down and began to laugh.

Bob Clinton inquired: "Taking a drive, Abb?"

Miss Sapphira set her heavy foot upon her brother's unseemly jocularities. "Unfortunately," said Miss Sapphira, speaking with cold civility: "Mr. Jefferson had to come clear to town before he could recapture the horse. We were giving him a lift, and had no idea—no idea that we should find—should come upon—We are sorry to intrude." Had her life depended on it, Miss Sapphira could not have withheld a final touch—Possibly you were not looking for Mr. Jefferson to come back so soon.

"Why," answered Abbott, stepping to the ground, "hardly so soon." At any rate, he felt that nothing was to be gained by staying in the buggy. "Is that the horse that belongs to this buggy? Let me hitch it up, Mr. Simon."

"This has been a terrible experience for me," growled Simon. All the same, he let Abbott do the work, but not as if he meant to repay him with gratitude.

"What was the matter with your horse, anyway?" Abbott cheerfully inquired.

Simon looked at him sourly. "Didn't Fran tell you that the horse got scared at her throwing rocks at my cork, and broke from the tree where I'd fastened it, and bolted for town?"

"Mr. Simon," said Fran innocently, "I don't believe the horse was mentioned once, while you were gone."

"It would be interesting to know what was," remarked Robert with humor so dry that apparently it choked him; he fell to coughing huskily.

Miss Sapphira gave him a look while he was struggling in his second paroxysm. It healed him by suggestion.

"Turn," said Miss Sapphira with becoming gravity. Robert, still under the influence of her thought-wave, solemnly drove her from the scene.

"When the last buckle was clasped—I came out here for a quiet peaceable fishing," said Simon. "I've spent my time hunting horses, and being afraid something might happen to Fran."

"Mr. Ashton took care of me," Fran said reassuringly.

Simon cried explosively, "And who took care of him?" He climbed in beside Fran and begrudgingly offered Abbott the imaginary space of a third occupant; but Abbott declared his preference for strolling.

"This has been a hard day for my heart," Simon grumbled, as he snatched up the whip vindictively.

The buggy rolled away. "Mine, too," Abbott called after them emphatically.

Fran looked back at him, from over the lowered top. He saw her hand go to her bosom, then something fluttered in the air and fell in the grassy road. He darted after it as if it were a clue, showing the way to the princess' castle.

Perhaps it was. He pounced upon it—it was the queen of hearts.

CHAPTER XVI.

A Tamer of Lions.

The life of a household progresses, usually by insensible gradations, toward some great event, some climax, for the building of which each day has furnished its grain of sand. Today, Hamilton Gregory and Grace Noir were in the library, with nothing to indicate the approach of the great moment in their lives. It was Grace's impetuosity to drive Fran away even before Robert Clinton should bring the secret from Springfield, that precipitated matters.

"May I speak to you, Mr. Gregory?" She rose from the typewriter, slightly pale from sudden resolution.

Gregory never missed a movement of his secretary, but now he lifted his head ostensibly, to make his observation official.

"It's about Mr. Clinton," said Grace in a low voice, feeling her way to "that Fran."

He laid down his pen with a frown. Suddenly his missions in New York and Chicago became dead weights. Why Grace's "Mr. Clinton" instead of her customary "Brother Clinton"? It seemed to equip the school director with formidable powers. Gregory hastened to put him where he belonged.

"Oh! Something about Bob?" he asked casually.

Her look was steady, her voice humble: "Yes."

Her humility touched him profoundly. Knowing how unshakable were her resolutions, he made a desperate attempt to divert her mind: "That is settled, Miss Grace, and it's too late now to alter the decision, for the school board has already voted us a new superintendent—he has been sent his notification. Abbott Ashton is out of it, and it's all his fault. Bob was the only one to stand up for him, but he wasn't strong enough to hold his friend above the wave of popular opinion. Don't ask me to interview Bob for Abbott Ashton."

Grace calmly waited for this faculty to pass; then with an air suggesting, "Now, shall we talk sensibly?" she resumed: "I approve the action of the school board. It did well in dismissing Professor Ashton. May I ask about

"But You Can't Love Him, Can You?" Gregory Asked Brokenly.

Mr. Clinton? He urges me to marry him at once."

"Nonsense!" he exclaimed. "It is not nonsense," Grace calmly responded. "He thinks I could make him a better man. We would work among the very poor in the Chicago settlements; maybe in one of your own missions. I often wonder if I couldn't do more good by personal contact with evil, than I can here with a person like Fran always clogging my efforts."

He started up. "Grace! You go away!—And—leave me and my work!"

"Let Fran fill my position. You think she's the daughter of your boyhood friend—it would give her position and independence."

"No one can ever fill your place," Gregory claimed, with violence. His cheeks burned, lambent flames gleamed in his brown eyes. The effect was startlingly beautiful. At such exalted moments, thinking no evil because ceasing to think, grown all feeling, and it but an infinite longing, the glow of passion refined his face, always delicately sensitive. The vision of Grace, in giving herself to another, like a devouring fire consumed those temporary supports that held him above the shifting sands of his inner nature.

"Grace! But Grace! You wouldn't marry him!"

Because she found his beauty appealing to her as never before, her voice was the colder: "Anyone's place can be filled."

"You don't care!" he cried out desperately.

"For Mr. Clinton? Yes, I admire his persistence, in seeking God, and his wish to work for mankind. God comes easier to some than to others, and I believe I could help—"

Gregory, aghast at her measured tone, interrupted: "But I mean that you don't care—don't care for me."

"For—she began abruptly, then added in an odd whisper, "for you?"

"Yes, for me—don't care how much I suffer, or whether I suffer at all—I mean my work, if it suffers. If I lose you, Grace—"

"Oh, you will always have Fran."

"Fran!" he ejaculated. "So you don't care, Grace. It seems incredible because I care so much. Grace!" His accent was that of utter despair. "How can I lose you since you are everything? What would be left to live for? Nobody else sympathizes with my aims. Who but you understands? Oh, nobody will ever sympathize—ever care—"

"But, Mr. Gregory!" she began, confused. Her face had grown white.

"Grace!" he caught her hand, expecting it to be snatched away—the hand he had hourly admired at its work; he could feel its warmth, caress its shapelessness—and it did not resist. It trembled.

He was afraid to press it at first, lest it be wrenched free; and then, the next moment, he was clasping it convulsively. For the first time in her life, Grace did not meet his eyes.

"Grace!" he panted, not knowing what he was saying, "you care, I see you care for me—don't you?"

"No," she whispered. Her lips were dry, her eyes wide, her bosom heaving. Boundaries hitherto unchangeable were suddenly submerged. Desperately, as if for her life, she sought to cling to, such floating landmarks as duty, conscience, virtue—but they were drifting madly beyond reach.

"But you can't love him, can you?" Gregory asked brokenly.

Grace, with closed eyes, shook her head—what harm could there be in that confession?

"You won't go away, will you, Grace?" he pleaded, drawing her closer.

She shook her head, lips still parted, eyes still closed.

"Speak to me, Grace. Tell me you will never forsake me."

Her face paled, then he heard a faint gasp. Instantly neck and brow were crimsoned; her face, always sun-gleamed enchanting. The dignity of the queen was lost in the woman's greater charm.

"Because you love me!" cried Gregory wildly. "I know you do, now, I know you do!" His arm was about her. "You will never leave me because you love me. Look at me, Grace!"

It seemed that her eyelids were held down by tyrannous thumbs. She tried to lift them, and tried again. Her face was irradiated by the sunrise glow of a master passion. Swiftly he kissed her lips, and as she remained motionless, he kissed her again and again.

Suddenly she exclaimed blindly: "Oh, my God!" Then she threw her arms about him, as he drew her to his bosom.

It was at that moment, as if Fate herself had timed the interruption, that Fran entered.

There was a violent movement of mutual repulsion on the part of Hamilton Gregory and his secretary. Fran stood very still, the sharpness of her profile defined, with the keenness of eyes and a slight grayness about the lips that made her look oddly small and old.

Fran was a dash of water upon raging fire. The effect was not extinguishment, but choking vapors. Bewildered, lost to old self-consciousness, it was necessary for Grace to readjust herself not only to these two, but to herself as well.

Fran turned upon her father, and pointed toward his desk. "Stand there!" she said, scarcely above a whisper.

Gregory burst forth in blind wrath: "How dare you enter the room in this manner? You shall leave this house at once, and for ever. I should have driven you out long ago. Do you hear me? Go!"

Fran's arm was still extended. "Stand there!" she repeated. Quivering in helpless fury, he to freeze at the bottom before it does at the surface.

At that depth waves are not felt. The force of waves is in proportion to their height. It is said that the sea strikes upon certain rocks with the force of seventeen tons for each square yard.

Issues Warning

New Naturalization Law Explained by County Clerk Lewis.

County Clerk Lewis wishes to issue a warning to aliens who have taken out their first naturalization papers, and who have neglected to apply for their second papers.

There are scores of such cases in Charlevoix county, and a new law, going into effect September 27, next, may work a hardship to those who neglect the requirements of this new law.

Through a misinterpretation the report has gone out that thousands of aliens who have declared their intentions of becoming citizens of the United States may be debarred from realizing their hopes unless they file final applications for naturalization before September 27, next, when there will go into effect the new law requiring that final applications must be made not less than two nor more than seven years after the declaration of intentions.

It is explained by Clerk Lewis that the intention of the new law is not to debar from citizenship forever those who have already taken out declaration papers, but should the aliens who have thus declared themselves fail to avail the right to take out final papers under such declaration they will have to again go through the form of declaring their intentions which will put off the time before they can become citizens at least five years.

If you are affected by the new law, or know a friend that is, better attend to the matter at once, or warn your friend to, so that the hardship of a five years' delay will be avoided.

"Where are you going?" they asked him.

"I'm going to hear the ball game," he replied.

Husband Called Her Fat.
Mrs. Tessie Marcusson filed a suit for separation from Leo Marcusson on the ground of cruelty. One of her chief allegations is that on many occasions he taunted her on account of her size and weight. She said last May he came home one night, awakened her and thrust in her face a newspaper advertisement of a remedy to reduce weight and advised her to use it. Mrs. Marcusson also said that a letter was sent to her from a Denver concern advertising treatment for stout women. It was an answer to a request for information. She believes her husband had the letter sent to humiliate and distress her.

Answered to the Name.
The two friends had been dining on dainties and sundry strange dishes at the "Cedars of Lebanon" cafe, in the Syrian quarter of New York. They were drinking their coffee, thick with coal-black grounds, and wondering whether they really enjoyed it, when Smithers suddenly cried out:

"Pataug! Pataug!"

The waiter hurried away, and came back presently, bringing an ordinary corkscrew.

"I was just testing," said Smithers to his companion, "the truth of the story that the first corkscrew seen in Beirut was taken there by a Yankee. It was a patented American contraption, and the Syrians were amazed at its convenience. They spelled out on it the mystic words, 'Pat. Aug. 16, '76,' and took that to be the name of the implement. Now I believe the story that 'pataug' is its name all over the Levant."

Modern Aggop.
One day, in the presence of the Fox, the Tortoise was bragging to the Hare of his ability as a runner. The Fox was very derisive of the Tortoise's pretensions, whereupon the Tortoise, winking at the Hare, offered to bet the Fox a considerable sum of money that he could outrun the Hare. The Fox lost no time in putting up the money, and off the contestants started.

The Hare took a big lead at once, but after getting comfortably out of sight, wandered away from the track and fell asleep. The Tortoise accordingly was the first to reach the winning post. The Fox went off cursing at the loss of his money, and when he had gone the Tortoise divided his winnings with the Hare. Ever since that time betting on races has been an uncertain sport.—Life.

"What would you like to express, madam?" said a clerk who arrived at last.

"I'd like to express my sympathy," replied the woman tartly, and departed.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. W. Richardson on Second street was the scene of wedding festivities Tuesday morning, when the latter's daughter, Miss Flora Simmons, was united in marriage to Henry A. Tape of Milan. Rev. A. D. Grigsby, pastor of the Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony.

The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of autumn leaves, asters and golden rod. Only the bride's relatives and a few of her young friends were present at the ceremony.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served, and the young couple then left by train for their future home at Milan, Mich., where Mr. Tape is superintendent of the high schools. They will be at home to their friends after October first.

The young couple take with them and well deserve the heartiest good wishes of a large circle of friends.

SCHOOL NOTES
School opened Monday morning with a large attendance. The enrollment is as follows: East side, high school 94, grades 316, kindergarten 44; West side 150; Jordan River school 29, total 633.

It has been necessary to order twenty-five desks for the grade rooms and several chairs for the High school recitation rooms.

Next week the pupils will be in school on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday to attend the school exhibits for the new educational building. It is hoped that every parent and patron will be interested in inspecting the work done last year by the pupils of our grades.

PLENTY OF MONEY IN ITALY
Burden of Financing the War With Turkey Has Not Been Appreciably Felt by the People.

An illustration of the hitherto unsuspected prosperity of Italy is the fact that she has not had to borrow a cent of foreign money for the expense of her war with Turkey. This war had cost Italy up to May 11 $47,880,000, or just $210,000 a day, since it began on September 27, 1911. Nevertheless, her 3 1/2 per cent government bonds are quoted in the markets of Europe between 97 and 98, varying of course, from day to day.

Denise Stringher, director-general of the Bank of Italy, has just made an official report stating that Italian emigrants send at least $90,000,000 a year back home, while tourists spend almost as much in Italy.

Either one of these sources of wealth would more than suffice to pay the entire expenses of the war. Money is so abundant in Italy that when popular subscriptions were opened in many cities for military aeroplanes to be presented to the government, the lists were filled in a few days, the total amount of the subscriptions far exceeding those of a similar nature in France, in spite of the wave of popular enthusiasm for aeroplaning in the latter country. It is worthy of note that this war has cost Italy in human lives only 52 officers and 549 men, according to the official figures, an unprecedentedly small loss for eight months of active warfare.

IS MADE A DUMPING GROUND
Salvation Army the Not Altogether Willing Recipient of All Kinds of Spoiled Food.

If the pure food commissioners ever get after the Salvation Army's commissary department they will no doubt make an interesting raid.

"The stuff they would confiscate is not the output of our kitchens," said an army collector. "It is donated by people who have made a mess of what they tried to cook. This morning a woman telephoned that a ten-pound fruit cake and a jar of currant jelly had not turned out satisfactorily, and I could have them for the trouble of calling for them. I went. The cake is pretty heavy and the jelly is not jelled, but I think the ingredients are pure, so we are going to distribute the stuff among our poor families. Unfortunately all donations are not so innocent. Bread and cake sold enough to sink a gunboat and chunks of meat so poorly cooked that not even a French chef could turn them into a savory stew are sent in by incompetent cooks. Where people ever got the notion that the Salvation Army is a dumping ground for undesirable eatables is a mystery. We certainly never asked for them."—New York Press.

Briefs of the Week

Some thirty-two head of western horses were disposed of at a sale at Mackey's Livery, Wednesday.

The stone road to the Fair Ground has been completed by the city and the township will build on south toward the school house.

Mrs. C. A. Hudson reports from Santa Rosa, Calif., that the weather is very dry there and that we should appreciate Northern Michigan.

Wm. Hudkins of Rock Elm went to his old home in Kewana, Ind., to attend a family reunion. On Wednesday evening of this week he was taken ill, and on Thursday morning a telegram came to his family here announcing his death.

Miss Louise Loveday will give a recital "The Servant in the House" at the Methodist church, Wednesday evening, Sept. 10th. All who wish to learn a strong lesson in brotherhood will find in this entertainment all they desire.—Silver collection at the door.

Prof. Adams and wife of Oberlin Ohio, became so much pleased with East Jordan and surrounding country that he has purchased a piece of Lake frontage property, through the Loveday agency, and will erect a cottage next spring for future use.

For a short time I will sell a 60 lb. (net) can of PURE LIQUID HONEY—Honey taken from the comb—for an even $5.00. This is $1.00 less than a strictly whole sale price. Every family should have a can, you can't afford not to.—Phone 225. IRA D. BARTLETT.

Marriage licenses issued this week were to Charles E. Geyer, age 19, and Anna May Young, age 24, both of Clarion; James Shangman, age 23, of St. James, and Nancy Waubenimkee, age 16, of Charlevoix; Jessie Smart, age 24, and Beatrice Shaffer, age 18, both of Boyne City; George Campbell, age 25, of Boyne City, and Ella White, age 25, of Alden.

County Treasurer D. S. Payton received the first $1,000 Wednesday in payment of one mile of state road built by Road Commissioner O. D. Hammond, on the East Jordan road south of the city. Commissioner Hammond's road building has fully met all requirements, and he is to be commended on the good work he has accomplished.

The Majestic Theatre, which has been closed since August 27, will again be open to the public tomorrow evening (Thursday), having been leased by Mr. Eugene Adams of East Jordan, who manages the popular play house in that city. Mr. Adams comes highly recommended and states that under his control the Majestic will continue to run the highest grade of films obtainable and give to the people of Charlevoix a good, clean evening's entertainment. Mr. C. V. Miles will manage the theatre for Mr. Adams, and is an experienced and competent man, Vaudeville and stock companies will be booked, and its patrons can be assured of their money's worth every time they attend.—Charlevoix Courier.

The stage setting in "The Rosary," Rowland and Clifford's play, which will be seen at the Temple Theatre next Thursday, Sept. 11th, are very unique. The first act occurs in a beautiful grape arbor; the second and third acts are laid in a charming interior showing the atmosphere of serene home life, while the fourth is a new church built by the unbelieving husband for his friend the priest. After all the discussions of the play, a wonderful effect is attained by the peace and serene quiet of the church, where the man and woman who have suffered come at last to lay down their burden and find peace. The character of Father Kelly as portrayed by Harry M. Royale is most interesting.

Dinner will be served from 11 until 2 and supper from 4 to 6. This will give the visitors from Boyne City and Charlevoix ample time to have their supper before leaving the Fair grounds.

While driving with a party of friends Saturday night, Miss Sylvia Sudman, of Deer Lake, was thrown from the carriage against a post when the horses became frightened and ran away. Miss Sudman's jaw was broken and she was in a very critical condition. The other occupants of the rig were all more or less bruised, though, with the exception of Miss Sudman, none suffered serious injury.

The Detroit Journal will treat its readers to an extraordinary lot of serial stories during the next six or eight months. The first one, which will start September 15, is "Love Under Fire," by Randall Parrish. Others that will follow are, "In the Hollow of Her Hand," by George Bar McCutcheon "The Maids of Paradise," by Robt. W. Chambers; "Parrott & Co.," by Harold McGrate, and "The Barrier," by Rex Beach.

A Progressive Dinner Party was given by the Whist Club on Thursday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Loveday. The dinner consisted of six courses and was served at the homes of the following ladies: Mesdames A. Cameron, Geo. G. Glenn, C. H. Pray, W. L. French; G. A. Bell, and Carl Stroebel. After the dinner, the party adjourned to the K. of P. Hall and spent the remainder of the evening in dancing.

Seldom does an author portray such an important character as that of a Catholic priest, and have it meet with approval from the clergy. But this is just what has happened to Edward E. Rose, author of "The Rosary," which will be seen at the Temple Theatre next Thursday, Sept. 11th. In "The Rosary," Mr. Rose has drawn a character of Rev. Brian Kelly a Catholic priest who interferes in domestic troubles between man and wife, and eventually shows the unlimited amount of good that can be done by a priest, not of conventional stage character, but a real man, a big man of faith, strength and conviction. The character has been endorsed by the clergy all over the country, and it is said to be the strongest character of the kind ever presented on the American stage. The character will be portrayed by Harry M. Royale, an exceptional artist, who goes through his work convincing the audience that he has mastered the author's conception of the role.

—Song of the Glacials.

THE particular part of Montana about which this song was sung lies in the far northwest corner of the state, where the Rocky mountains, their summits covered with eternal snow, their bases clothed in pine forests of perpetual green, swung over the Canadian border, down through the heart of the continent to the year-long summer lands of Mexico.

Eighty lakes, sapphire and opal and diamond clear, in the varying lights, reflect the blue western sky. Threescore living glaciers, green with the depths of ice that endures season after season, lie in the hollows of the giant peaks. Crystal streams descend in countless waterfalls over the brown rocks and break the silence of the forest trails.

In these mountains, left save for a few trails as they were before the first white men pushed their way across the plains to the further ocean, the wild things of that early wilderness still find a refuge.

Accustomed to think of Montana as a state of cattle ranges, big wheat crops, and the home of copper, we know nothing of this part of it—this land of delight. Yet we, in common with some 40,000,000 of other Americans, are its owners. Congress, in one of its moments of wisdom two years ago, set it aside as a national possession to be, as Chief Two Guns said, "a playground for all the people, rich and poor, white and Indian, forever."

It is now Glacier National park, and there are some 1,400 square miles within its borders. You may roam through it for a month and never tread the same ground twice.

It was by pony travel that a party of eastern tenderfeet, fresh from occupations in which exercise is at a discount and locomotion is mostly by street car, explored the park a few weeks ago. They emerged from a two weeks' exile, after some tribulation, hard as nails and healthy as savages. This diary is a brief record of their experiences:

Two Medicine, Mont., Thursday.
It is eight miles from the park gateway at Midvale to the first chalet at Two Medicine. But these are Montana miles, and as Old Philadelphia said, if they would only sell you land on the Montana measurement and let you resell it on the eastern scale it would be a mighty satisfactory transaction. The trail led over several small streams, and on through forests of pine and scrub oak. But always it led upward, a little nearer the snow-capped mountains inclosing the green ahead. The pace dropped to an easy walk, the horses' feet fell noiselessly upon the thick pine needles, and scarcely a sound disturbed the forest peace. Late afternoon came all too soon. A sudden turn in the trail brought into view a pretty log chalet beside a deep blue lake, the mountains coming down to its very edge. Smoke curled from the cook house chimney, suggesting good things to eat. The ponies broke into a trot, and for the moment saddle soreness was forgotten. This was Two Medicine, the end of the first stage of our journey.

Cutbank Camp, Friday.
Leaving Two Medicine, we rode early in a golden morning. A light hoar frost sprinkled the grass. The sun was rolling a curtain of white mist upward from the violet sides of Rising Wolf mountain.

Upward the trail wound, the horses picking their way over fallen trees, now dipping into yeasty hollows, now climbing a slippery bank. One rode at an angle of 45 degrees forward and backward, alternately. The trees grew thinner and scrubbier—"Nature's stunted stepchildren," the official tenderfoot poet called them—and the trail steeper until we emerged aloft, almost at the timber line. Presently we were riding in a flurry of snowflakes that hid mountain and valley. A cloud rift letting through a gleam of sunlight revealed our snow falling as rain in the valley below.

Noon came and luncheon. It was hardly more than four hours since breakfast, yet hungry eyes watched the preparations until at length was heard a call which for music grateful to the ear will never be equaled in the Metropolitan Opera House.

That call consists of four syllables—grace notes they might be called if this were any subject for mere frivolity. It runs like this: "Co-ome an' git it!"

It is the park's summons to meals. The rush follows.

We "got it," and proceeded on our way new heartened, though the weather had still a new variation for us. The last section of the eighteen miles from Two Medicine was traversed through a heavy drizzle, and the going was heavy.

Lake St. Mary's, Saturday.
We had started from Cutbank in better trim than on the day before, and were riding more at ease. Around the bend in the trail ahead swept a band of painted Indians, drums beating and eagle feathers streaming in the breeze. A few paces from our leading file they reined in their ponies, formed line, and made guttural sounds of uncertain import. George Star, Blackfoot interpreter, trotted to the front.

"Chief Two Guns," announced Mr. Starr, indicating a stalwart Indian in beaded buckskin and a chief's war bonnet. "Chief Jim White Calf," indicating another handsome Indian, "both sons of old man White Calf, dead now—great chief. They come to welcome you to park. Big Moon, medicine man." Mr. Big Moon nodded pleasantly. "For three days he makes medicine to have fine weather while you're in park."

The Narrows, Upper St. Mary's Lake, Monday.
Leaving the horses to be picked up later, we journeyed today by motor launch up St. Mary's lake to this point, where still a new phase of this western scenery presents itself. The lake narrows as you ascend, and the mountains come closer, becoming as it were on more intimate terms with humanity. Very near seemed their brown sides, banded with gray and black, and snow-capped summits, in the clear air. A tiny glacier in a narrow gulch looked so close that you would expect to throw a stone upon its surface with ease. The guide said it was a full three miles away.

Lake McDermott, Wednesday.
We have seen many beautiful sights, but the unanimous verdict on reaching camp tonight was that the day's ride had been the most beautiful ride of all: at which Tom Dawson, the veteran chief guide, only smiled. He is used to these tenderfoot raptures. "Why," he said, "you haven't seen anything to speak of yet. This is only the beginning."

Beautiful Lake Sherbourne was passed at a canter, for the tenderfeet by this time have become hardened to the saddle, and each rider's pony is his best friend. Toward evening we came upon a new and strange sight. By the remnants of a grass-grown stage road we reached a group of log houses, larger and more pretentious than most. The guide explained:

"This is Altyn, a dead town. It was built up by a copper mining prospect, but the prospect was only a pocket, and the pocket soon gave out. Then everybody went away. It has been deserted ten years."

We left Altyn behind and in a few minutes were in quite a different spot. The Lake McDermott chalets are grouped about a waterfall, around which the mountains stand sentinel. Their summits as we saw them first were flushed with pink in the evening light, and inspired new adjectives of admiration, all too weak.

Lake McDermott, Friday.
Yesterday we rode to Iceberg lake and saw our park in still another guise. We passed through a forest of giant Christmas trees with the snow thick upon their branches and the whole world green beneath, then skirted the steepest mountains encountered in all our travel hitherto, climbed the famous Golden Stairs, and at last reached a valley where on three sides huge cliffs looked down upon a sapphire lake set in a sea of white. On one side a glacier centuries old moves an inch or so a year down the steep rocks, its waters feeding the lake, whose surface is dotted with huge cakes of ice. The hottest day in August is cool at Iceberg lake, and finds the glacial fragments floating there as though it were early spring.

Today we traveled to still another beauty spot, Cracker lake, haught of the big horn sheep, whose tracks here and there were seen upon the snow's smooth surface. Tomorrow we move onward to Lake McDonald and homeward.

Lake McDonald, Monday.
Here on the park's western border, and by the side of the largest—many say the most beautiful of all its many lakes—we have spent our last day. Our exploration is at an end, for here the outside world makes itself felt again. Hobnailed boots and khaki, short skirt and sweater here meet the habiliments of civilization upon a common footing.

We said good-bye to our trusty ponies yesterday and today we tramped it to the Royal Gorge and waterfall, which are McDonald's chief beauties.

Most of the folk who have been to the park are going back there. Our own west also has its spell.

OTHERS ALSO IN HARD LUCK

Youthful Artist, However, Was in No Mood to Extend Sympathy to Fellow Unfortunates.

Two youthful artists having a studio in Philadelphia, wherein they not only work, but lodge as well, were obliged to make shift, not long ago, during a period of financial stress, with such meals as they could themselves prepare in the studio.

One morning as the younger of the two was "sketching in" the coffee he gave utterance to loud and bitter complaint. "This is a fine way for gentlemen to live!" he exclaimed.

"Oh, I don't know," was the airy comment of his friend. "Lots of people are far worse off. I was reading only this morning of a recluse who cooked his own breakfast for 19 years."

"He must have been awfully hungry when he finally got it done," rejoined the other, savagely.—Harper's Magazine.

Exact Statement

Some one has said that the man who laughs is the man who is secure in superior information, wisdom, wit or sophistry. The naive of the Sudan supplies plenty of food for this kind of laughter.

There is the story of a telegraph clerk in an out-lying district of the White Nile who, finding the desolation upon his nerves, telegraphed to headquarters: "Cannot stay here; am in danger of life; am surrounded by lions, elephants and wolves."

The hard-hearted operator at the other end wired back: "There are no wolves in the Sudan."

He received a second wire: "Referring my wire 16th, cancel wolves." —Youth Companion.

Success demands sacrifice. Two men set out to achieve fame. One succeeded. The other lived.—Louis Horwitz.

GOOD RESULT OF SUGGESTION

Chance Phrases and Ideas That Have Been Utilized and Found to Have Real Value.

Richard Mansfield told me that when he was a lad in London he often nearly starved. There was a certain bakeshop where he would go and feast upon the odors coming from the door. The boyhood notion gave him the idea of putting those lines in his play, "Beau Brummel," about "dining on the names of things"—a suggestion he used with powerful dramatic effect.

This idea of suggestion has done many a good deed. About ninety years ago a thirsty man walked up Wall Street—I understand the habit of getting a thirst no longer prevails there, or maybe it is only the manner of allaying it—and pumped a tinoup full of water from his own well. "Not so good as I used to get from my father's well," or something to that effect he remarked to his wife. "A pretty idea for a song," said she, and so he sat down and in an hour wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Too Candid an Agreement

"Lovers are prone to self-depreciation," said he tenderly, as they sat looking at the stars. "I do not understand what you see in me that you love so much."

"That's what everybody says," gurgled the ingenuous maiden.

Then the silence became so deep that you could hear the stars twinkling.

Rather Loud, Eh?

Fred—I understand that Ethel's new dress is the last cry in fashions.

Almee—Yes; it's a regular scream!

—Dartmouth Jack o'Lantern.

Judging from their actions, a man sometimes wonders if his friends are not enemies in disguise.

STRING BEANS FOR THE CANNING FACTORY.
Eight tons of string beans and thirteen bushels of seed were taken from three acres in the above pictures cherry orchard on the L. F. Titus farm on the Grand Traverse peninsula. An acre and a third of green tops were plowed under for fertilizer and the straw from one and two-thirds acres was used. From 40 to 70 women and children were kept busy during the picking season. The gross receipts from the string beans sold amounted to over $100 an acre; in addition the cherry orchard was given good cultivation and made a fine growth.

TO MEND THE PIKE COLLEGE FOR TRAVERSE CITY

BREAKS IN THE ROAD ARE TO BE FIXED UP.

Inspection Tour of the West Michigan Pike Proves a Big Success—Arouse Enthusiasm for Better Roads.

The first inspection tour over the west Michigan pike was a success. The inspection began at St. Joseph on Monday evening, July 7, with a banquet and continued until the following Saturday night. The inspection was a continuous round of banquets, dinners, suppers and meetings, with auto rides thrown in between. The first day's run extended from St. Joseph to Muskegon; the second day from Muskegon to Manistee; the third day from Manistee to Traverse City; the fourth day from Traverse City to Pellston and back to Charlevoix; and the fifth day from Charlevoix to Manistee.

At Muskegon the inspectors were banqueted at the Lake Harbor resort and at Manistee at the Briny Inn. The people of Frankfort had a fish bake ready in the public park for the visitors, four hundred pounds of fish being ready when the first car came into the village. At Glen Haven, the home of the president of the Western Michigan Development bureau, lemonade was served; at Leland a splendid lunch with strawberries and cream as a finish. Traverse City welcomed the visitors with a band and an auto parade with 102 cars in line. Red fire was burned along the streets as the autos passed. At the school grounds a public meeting was held and a subscription was started for a monument for "Good Roads Earle," the chief advocate for better roads for Michigan. Charlevoix and Petoskey both gave the inspectors a royal welcome.

One car driven by Horace Thompson of Battle Creek made the entire trip from St. Joseph to Petoskey. At no place on the journey was there less than nine cars in line and some places there were over thirty, auto men from the different counties traveling to the adjoining counties even further. In this way the inspectors and speakers were kept moving and much local enthusiasm was developed.

The orators and inspectors were: Horatio S. Earle of Detroit, Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner; Dr. William De Kleine, president of the West Michigan Pike association; Richard H. Hoffman, secretary and treasurer of the West Michigan Pike association; John I. Gibson, secretary of the Western Michigan Development bureau; James C. McLaughlin, congressman for the Ninth district of Michigan; D. H. Day, president of the Western Michigan Development bureau; Frank Hamilton, the original good roads man for northwestern Michigan.

In addition to these there were many local celebrities who journeyed for one or more days to help with the many meetings.

As a result of the inspection the present breaks in the road from St. Joseph to Mackinaw City will be taken care of and by another season it will be possible for Chicago people to travel to their resort homes in northwestern Michigan by auto and to make the trip in comfort.

Alfalfa Campaign.
Alfalfa campaigns are being planned by the Western Michigan development bureau for Kalkaska and Emmet counties. In each county a campaign lasting two days will be conducted. The speakers will be taken by auto from meeting place to meeting place, covering three points each forenoon, three points each afternoon and a school, house or grange hall each evening. A every stop alfalfa clubs will be organized that the general farmers may get started upon the growing of this important forage crop.

OLDEST TAVERN IN LONDON

License of Ye Olde Dick Whittington Inn in Cloth Fair, Smithfield, to Be Abolished.

It is said that the license of Ye Olde Dick Whittington tavern, in Cloth Fair, Smithfield, is about to be abolished under the compensation act. One has read that the license dates back to the fifteenth century; but this is quite misleading, for, although this interesting wood and plaster building is over 560 years old and is almost certainly the oldest building in the city of London occupied as a tavern, its present license does not go back more than sixty years, if as much. Shepherd has a print of it as a hair-dresser's shop, and there was an ear-her print in the Grace collection showing that the business of a butcher was then being carried on there.

A year or two ago Ye Olde Dick Whittington and other quaint relics in Cloth Fair were threatened with destruction, for the surveyors were busy taking measurements for a new thoroughfare from Long Lane to Aldersgate street. At that time the Daily Graphic published drawings of one or two of the wooden houses in the neighborhood, which have since been taken down.

There are still many relics of fifteenth and sixteenth century London, in Cloth Fair, clinging about the splendid church of St. Bartholomew the Great. The earl of Warwick's house, let out in single apartments bears to this day the Warwick arms. Hard by Le Soeur, King Charles' sculptor, lived, and Milton hid there for a while awaiting the act of oblivion.

Ye Olde Dick Whittington, which with some of its neighbors, recalls so much of London's history, is still so picturesque as to be well worth a visit.

A HORSE GOES ON A STRIKE

Ingenious Tricks of a Former Polo Pony to Avoid Her Daily Work.

St. Louis.—Nellie, a delivery horse of Clayton, either is an expert dissembler or her ailments are such that they baffle veterinary surgeons. After completing a vacation of three weeks she pulled the light delivery wagon willingly until she was about to be taken over the route again in the evening, when she lay down on the ground and groaned.

A veterinary worked with the animal two hours, took her temperature and looked for symptoms of various ailments, but found none. He declared Nellie was "stalling," but she refused to get up. Several spectators then helped roll the horse down a small embankment.

This aroused Nellie's anger and she jumped up and kicked her heels about the barn lot. Her owner, William Schoepker, a grocer, announced that Nellie's vacation will not be extended. Nellie was once a polo pony. One of her specialties has been to pretend to be lame in order to get a holiday or extended vacation. Sometimes the limp was in the left hind foot and occasionally it shifted to the right hind foot. On each occasion a veterinary said the animal was in good health.

THE WORLD GROWING BETTER

Biblical Patriarchs Not Fit for Church Membership, Says Chicago Minister.

Chicago.—"David and Solomon and some other patriarchs were excellent men as judged by the standards of their own time but they would not be admitted to membership in the Church of today," said Rev. John Thompson of Chicago, at the Desplines camp meeting, illustrating his contention that the world is growing better.

"There seems to be more crime and evil than ever," he continued, "but this is because, through the world-searching enterprise of the newspapers we hear more about it."

The speaker said that the rise of golf, baseball and other outdoor sports was a sign of improving moral standards.

One of the keepers at the bird-house in Bronx park has a nature story to tell. There came to the park a public school teacher and a class of children. They stood by the great open-air cage. One of the birds was a goose.

"Now, children," the teacher asked, "what is the male of the goose called?" After a full half-minute, a boy of Scotch ancestry ventured to answer: "I think I know, teacher; he's a mongoose."—New York Evening Post.

ITCHING TERRIBLE ON LIMB

R. F. D. No. 3, Clarkfield, Minn.—"My trouble was of long standing. It started with some small red and yellow spots about the size of a pin head on my leg and every morning there was a dry scale on top covering the affected part and when those scales were falling off the itching was more than I could stand at times. The first year I did not mind it so much as it was only itching very badly at times, but the second year it advanced all around my leg and the itching was terrible. I had to be very careful to have my clothing around the affected part very loose. At night time I often happened to scratch the sore in my sleep. Then I had to stand up, get out of bed and walk the floor till the spell was over.

"I bought lots of salves and tried many different kinds of medicine but without any success. I got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a fifty-cent box of Cuticura Ointment and when I had used them I was nearly over the itching. But I kept on with the Cuticura Soap for six weeks and the cure was complete." (Signed) S. O. Gordon, Nov. 20, 1912.

An Englishman who had been for a tour round the world was much annoyed with a report of his return which appeared in a local paper. This report ended:
"His numerous friends are surprised that he is unchanged!"

He did not know that the offender was the composer, who, in setting up the report had omitted a letter "c," thus substituting the word "unchanged" for "unchanged," which the reporter had written.

New Name for Bungalow.

A carpenter contractor had been figuring on a small house for a prosperous European-American workman in an outlying district. "Come up to my office," he said to the prospective patron, "and we will look over some plans in a book I have." The young man came to the office and spent some time looking over the plans with the contractor, who finally inquired: "Have you thought anything about the kind of a place you wish to build? What do you think of a nice cottage?" "I do know," replied the young man, "but I think maybe we like have nice bungalow."—Youngstown Telegram.

Changes Her Mind.

"I used to think Gus Simpson was a nice young man, but I just hate him now."
"Why, what has he done?"
"He treated me shamefully."
"In what way?"

"Why, the other evening at a party I said to him: 'Let's play the old game of "Questions." If I say "Yes" or "No" to your questions, I owe you a box of gloves; and if you say "Yes" or "No," you'll give me a box.'"
"Then what?"

"Well, after the party he took me home, and all the way there he talked as sweetly as could be about love, and that man should not live alone and all that, and when we got to the front gate he said, 'Fannie, will you marry me?' I, of course, answered, 'Yes,' in a suppressed voice."
"And what did he do then?" inquired her listener, eagerly.

"He just chuckled and said, 'You've lost, Fannie. I take No. 9s. Then laughed with all his might—that's what he did.'"
No wonder she hated him!

COMES HERE ON HUNT FOR HEALTHY BEANS

Southern Michigan Crops Affected Again This Year.

East Lansing, Mich., Aug. 30.—Prof. A. R. Potts of the farm crops department has gone to Western Michigan in search of bean seed that is free from anthracnose which is a vegetable disease that is ruining the bean crop of southern Michigan.

This disease has existed in the state for many years and each year it has become more severe and this year it is causing a very heavy loss. In fact the damage to the growing crop is so great that many fields of beans will not be harvested. The disease has some of the characteristics of the blight. It is very contagious and is carried from plant to plant by the wind and by the implements used in cultivating. Prof. Potts recently inspected 58 fields in the central part of the state and found indications of the disease in nearly all. In some cases the damage was great.

During the past years Michigan beans have been in demand by the farmers of the southern states for seed, but now, that the plants have become diseased, the southern farmers are looking elsewhere, and the Michigan bean, which has brought the top price in the market in the past is in danger of losing its position. Prof. Potts feels sure, however that in the northern and western part of the state he can find fields that are as yet free from the disease and by getting the seed from these fields and taking it to southern Michigan and having the farmers start anew, he believes that the disease can be stamped out. Last year the Michigan bean brought about $2.25 but this year it will be somewhat lower in price because of the quality of old beans now in the hands of the farmers and the dealers and because the anthracnose is curtailing the demand for Michigan beans.

As yet no spraying solution has been discovered that will adequately control anthracnose although the college experts are at work upon the problem. The men are not positive as to whether the disease carries over the winter in the ground or only on the seed. They hope to know soon.

Whereas, default has been made in the payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 15th day of March in the year 1910, executed by George W. Blake and Gertrude M. Blake, his wife, of East Jordan, Michigan, to Jerome B. Allen, of the State of Georgia, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Charlevoix, in Liber 45 of mortgages, on page 208, on the 21st day of March, in the year 1910 at 9:00 o'clock a. m. and where as the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of $200.50, of principal and interest, and the further sum of fifteen dollars as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage is the sum of $215.50, and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore, Notice is hereby given that by virtue of the said power of sale, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises therein described, at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the east front door of the court house in the City of Charlevoix, in said County of Charlevoix on the twenty-ninth day of September next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit:—Lot 1, of Block 1, of Bowen's Addition to village of South Lake, now the incorporated village of East Jordan, Charlevoix County, Michigan, as per the recorded plat of said addition.

Dated, August 1st, 1913.

THE FINEST IN THE STATE

Is the big modern plant recently purchased from the Booth Fisheries Co. by A. T. Washburne and located at foot of "Midway" on the bay shore, as a permanent home for the constantly increasing business in the manufacture of "Sanitary Rugs from Old Carpets" (trade mark established 1889) in which line a trade has been successfully established all over the United States on the excellence of products. This also gives much needed room to the Carpet Cleaning and Refitting department, which includes a large sterilizing abator for purifying rugs and carpets. The cleaning department is fully equipped with all modern and time saving machinery devices run by electricity. Two of the largest rotary renovating machines for general cleaning and a powerful Vacuum machine 100 per cent times more powerful and efficient than the portable ones this latter is for the rugs and orientals. The plant is also equipped with three machines for the sawing of carpets of all kinds in the most approved manner with flat elastic seams. Thus with latest facilities, most up-to-date equipment, highest grade of workmanship, lowest possible prices, and prompt service, speaks a busy future for the Petoskey Rug Co. of which A. T. Washburne is proprietor and to which address all orders and correspondence to be addressed—NO AGENTS.—Petoskey Evening News, April 13, 1911.—Make your shipments as early as possible.

It was feminine curiosity that led to the discovery of Moses in the bulrushes. Horrible examples are the kind a schoolboy encounters in his arithmetic.

What a poor opinion the good Lord would have of himself if he answered all of the fool prayers that are sent up to headquarters.
