EAST JORDAN, MICHIGAN, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1914.

No. 49

M. A. C. Week Dec. 14-18

Extension School Coming to East Jordan, Week of Dec. 14.

Beginning Dec. 14 the M. A. C. will have in this city two of its agricultural experts who will give free lectures to the farmers for five days. This is being done by the extension department of the college and the men being sent here are Prof. O. K. White, the college expert in horticulture, and Prof. E. L. Grover, specialist in soil fertility. Both of these men are authorities on their subjects and this school will be an opportunity for the farmers of this locality to get expert advice on farm problems in general.

These two men are being sent to East Jordan with all expenses paid by the college and every farmer in this vicinity should attend the course of lectures. The course will be given in the Central school building and the morning sessions will begin at 9:00 standard time, afternoon sessions at 1:00. The college requires that a charge of 50c be made from each one attending the series, this money to be used in paying any local expense which may be incurred. This is the first time that the M. A. C. has attempted such work in East Jordan and it is hoped that the attendance will warrant the college authorities in doing more for this locality. Plan to come to these lectures every day, bring your dinner and have an enjoyable and profitable time.

The following men have been appointed on committee for the local arrangements: L. P. Holliday, chairman, H. I. McMillan, R. O. Bisbee, G. G. Glenn, W. A. Stroebel, U. C. Zeluff, E. H. Clark, Pomona Lecturer, John Heller, Master Peninsula Grange, Robert Shepard, Master Wilson Grange, Nathan Liskum, Master South Arm Grange, Joseph Whitfield, Master Rock Elm Grange, Wm. P. Johnson, Master Ironton Grange.

CURFEW RINGS ON COURTING YOUTHS

Eight O'clock Time Set by Harrisville, W. Va., as Bedtime for Its Young People

Harrisville, W. Va.—This town of 800 persons, famous as the taxless village, is bidding for fame again. This time it is through the enforcement of an ordinance which may make many bachelors and "old maids" from the youth of the town.

The eagle-eyed mayor arrested three boys for a violation of the curfew law, requiring all persons under 20 years of age to be in their homes by 8 o'clock in the evening, and they are threatening to begin legal proceedings, alleging that the curfew restricts personal liberty and violates the Constitution. The mayor, however, declares the law will be enforced to the letter.

"What's the Constitution got to do with regulating the peace, good order and civic etiquette of Harrisville, anyhow?" he asks.

Harrisville is unique among the cities of the world in that it levies no property tax. This comes about because the town owns its own natural gas plant—the wells, lines and equipment. This it rents out at intervals for short periods to the highest bidder.

So productive has been this example of municipal ownership and skill in town management that some years ago it was considered that it might be possible to declare dividends to the citizens, or offer bonuses for births and newcomers.

Go Tell Thy Father.

Whatever it is that presses thee, go, tell thy Father, put over the matter into His hand, and so thou shalt be freed from that dividing, perplexing care that the world is full of. When thou art either to do or suffer anything, when thou art about any purpose or business, go tell God of it, and acquaint him with it; yea, burden him with it, and thou hast done for matter of caring; no more care, but quiet, sweet diligence in thy duty, and dependence on him for the carriage of thy matters. Roll thy cares, and thyself, with them, as one burden, all on God.—R. Leighton.

Although, the resurrection of Christ the believer has victory; not only over sin and the law, but thanks be to God over death and the grave.—C. J. Felty.

The Kubak, believed to be a small Arctic stream, is now said to be a mighty river navigable for many hundred miles from its mouth.

Dr. Roland A. Nichols

Well Known Lecturer Returns To This City.

Patrons of the Citizen's Entertainment Course will have the opportunity next Monday night of hearing one of the most popular lecturers in the country, Dr. Roland A. Nichols. Dr. Nichols is already well known all over the United States because of his success in the reformation and education of Harold Bell Wright, the author of America's best sellers, and he has now a enviable reputation as a lecturer, independent of his connection with Mr. Wright. His lectures are not dry "preachments." While he brings a fund of information and uplift there is such a constant flow of humor, illustrative incident and wholesome entertainment that when the lecture comes to a close the audience does not realize that he has been speaking for an hour and a half. His first lecture—and the one with which he has made his reputation is "The Man Worth While." This lecture he describes as "Sundry remarks on choice of parents for your children, a proper consideration of heredity, emphasis on environment. The home, school, lyceum, chautauqua, associates. The value of a vision, its source, self culture. Be progressive, cheerful, brave, enthusiastic." No person in this city should fail to hear Dr. Nichols in this inspiring and entertaining address.

The lecture will be given at the Temple Theatre Monday, Dec. 7, beginning at 8:15. The reserve seat board will be at Mack's on Saturday morning. Single admission for this number 50c, pupils of the schools 25c. You can buy a course ticket for the remaining four numbers of the course for only $1.00; course ticket for pupils 60c.

Cultivate a Peaceful Mind.

Every morning compose your soul for a tranquil day, and all through it be careful often to recall your resolution, and bring yourself back to it, so to say. If something discomposes you, do not be upset, or troubled; but having discovered the fact, humble yourself gently before God, and try to bring your mind into a quiet attitude. Say to yourself, "Well, I have made a false step; now I must go more carefully and watchfully." Do this each time, however, frequently you fall. When you are at peace use it profitably, making constant acts of meekness, and seeking to be calm even in the most trifling things. Above all, do not be discouraged; be patient; wait; strive to attain a calm, gentle spirit.—Francis de Sales.

Herald Blasts.

An enemy treated as a friend will soon become a friend.

The religion that bears no cross is not the religion of Christ.

Enmity cannot live long when it can find no enmity to feed upon.

No one can know Christ well, and be ignorant of what He taught.

The man who would know God well must be willing to do His will.

It is because so many people see wrong, that so many things go wrong.

Sticking to Duty.

None of the world's common attractions, such as position, wealth, fame and popularity, should move the Christian from duty.—Rev. C. W. Webb, Baptist, Aurora.

Well, little friends, here I am again with the best of good wishes for you all. Can't you hear me smiling? Dear! Dear! I mean, can't you SEE smiling. It's lots of fun to see folks smiling. Don't you think so? And it's just as much fun to feel smiling yourself. Smiles are like sunshine; and that is really what they are—human sunshine. Well, Dearies, as I have the rest of our adventure story to tell you this time I guess I'd better be getting at it.

HOW MABEL AND MONTY PLAYED INDIAN.

"Then we'd better go home," said Monty. "For Mother will be worried and Father will be worried, and I expect girls are afraid of storms." "I am—I am!" wailed Mabel. "I wish I was at home." "Shucks!" said Monty, who was really as much afraid of storms as Mabel was only he didn't want to let on. "Don't cry. We can get home in plenty of time if we hurry. Give me your hand so you won't fall, and we'll run."

But when Monty grabbed her hand Mabel pulled back. "That isn't the way," she said. "You are going wrong, Monty; our tent is over there."

"It isn't," insisted Monty. "It is right over there; I believe I can most see it. Don't you remember about coming this way?"

"No, I don't," said Mabel. "We didn't come by those two old dead trees standing so close together with the nests in the tops."

"Yes, we did," declared Monty. "No, we didn't," argued Mabel. "Let's go a little ways and see," coaxed Monty.

But although they walked and walked and walked ever so far they could not find the tent and it was growing darker and darker all the time.

By and by Monty stopped. "Let's go back," he said. "Mabel we can find it the other way."

So they went back the other way and Rover trotted behind them, and they walked and walked ever so far again but they could not find the tent.

And now it was quite dark. Mabel began crying harder than ever and calling for her mama and saying that she was afraid the wolves would get her. Monty felt like crying too, but he kept the tears bravely back because he had said that he was almost a man, and he would hate to have his father and Uncle Dick know that he had cried. So they trudged on, stumbling and falling and clinging to one another and growing more frightened all the time; for they both knew by now that they were lost in the big dark forest and would probably have to stay all night unless Papa or Uncle Dick found them.

"It's getting most too dark to walk any further," said Monty after a while. "Let's sit down on this log and rest."

"I don't want to rest! I want my mama," sobbed Mabel. "But we got to wait until Papa finds us," said Monty, gulping down a big lump that would keep rising in his throat. "I s'pect they are hunting for us right now."

"Who," whispered Mabel, hiding her face on his shoulder, "the wolves?"

"No," said Monty, "Papa and Uncle Dick and Mr. Bensen and Mr. Fox and everybody that knows us, I s'pect they will find us pretty soon."

"R—um! R—um!" A strange roaring sound suddenly came from somewhere in the big forest, and Mabel and Monty clung to each other in great terror.

"It's a wolf growling," whispered Mabel. "Oh, Monty! I guess we'll be eat up."

other around the neck, feeling sure they were about to be killed. "I see a light," whispered Monty presently. "Yes, I see one—two—three—four lights, and they are coming this way." "Oh—Oh—Oh!" sobbed Mabel, while Rover barked louder than ever. "It might be some robbers from that old cave by the river," whispered Monty. "Let's get behind the log and make they will pass by and not see us."

Both children scrambled behind the log in a great hurry, and pretty soon they could hear voices and Rover began to jump about and bark like he was very angry. "Don't move or make a sound," cautioned Monty. "They are nearly here."

The children kept very quiet, and presently Rover began to whine and yelp and run forward a little ways and then back again as though he didn't know exactly what to do.

The lights were quite near by this time and men's voices could be plainly heard. "Listen! Listen!" whispered Monty excitedly. "Why—it's Papa—and Uncle Dick—and everybody—come to find us!" And into Uncle Dick's arms went Monty, and everybody crowded around trying to talk at once, and Rover jumped straight up in the air and barked and wagged his tail at the same time. And I believe, although I am not quite sure, that Papa and Uncle Dick cried a little bit, and I am real sure that Mabel and Monty did, but it was for joy.

I tell you it was a joyful meeting. "You children gave us a terrible fright," said Papa very gravely after things had quieted a little. "What made you run away?"

"We didn't mean to run away," said Monty tightening his hold on Uncle Dick's neck. "We were playing Indian and we built us a tent, and then we chased a snake, and then—"

"Of course not," interrupted Papa. "Lots of people never think—until it is too late. But it pays to think. Supposing you two would have had to stay out in the forest all night with the dark, and the—"

"Wolves, Papa!" sobbed Mabel. "I heard some roaring before you came."

"Not roaring, Papa," corrected Monty. "They sort of growled." "Well," said Papa smiling a little. "I expect it sounded pretty bad whatever it was. And I really think it would pay to THINK after this—don't you?"

"I do!" cried Mabel. "And I do!" declared Monty. "And that was the last time Mabel and Monty played Indian in the big dark forest."

Now, little friends, I want you all—every one of you—to write and tell me how you liked this story. Do you like it the best of all, or did you like the Story of Fincette better, or Winona's Choice, or The Story That You Can Name? Tell me which one you liked the best. And by the way, that reminds me that those names should begin coming before long. The names for "The Story That YOU Can Name" you know. Of course, I must give you plenty of time so you will all have an equal chance. But I am really anxious to see who is going to get that present, aren't you? And don't forget to send in stories for our club—lots of them.

Good bye until next time.

facture have resulted in making the modern cotton seed table products very different today from those of even a few years ago. Then the oil was objected to because it was rather strongly flavored and dark colored. Modern processes have removed these objections, and now yield clear, rich oils free from odor and mild and pleasing in flavor.

In this country edible cottonseed oil is manufactured almost entirely in large establishments which make use of sanitary machinery. In this respect the American product differs widely from the imported, which is frequently made in small quantities on individual farms, whose proprietors rarely devote much attention to hygienic considerations.

The original oil pressed from the cotton seed by powerful hydraulic presses is a dark red. To this soda compounds are added in order to remove the free fatty acids and also to take out some of the color. The remaining color is removed by the addition of fuller's earth, the result being an oil that is practically colorless. The oil is then deodorized by blowing steam through it or by means of other special processes. The final product is a liquid which, as far as its nutritive value goes, is practically the same as that of olive oil.

In addition to this fine table product, much of the oil is now compounded with beef suet or lard and in the preparation of solid white cooking fats and shortening. These cottonseed and other vegetable oils are also hardened by a new process which enables manufacturers to make from liquid oils semisolid fats, as lard substitutes, without the addition of any animal fats whatever.

True and Tried Recipes

Fancy Work and Cooking for the Season

Fruit Gingerbread.

Take a pound of molasses and heat it with one-quarter of a pound each of butter and brown sugar. Mix with one and one-half pounds of fine oatmeal, one-half pound of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, one tablespoonful of ground ginger, one-half teaspoonful of mixed spice, one ounce of candied orange peel, cut fine, and one pound of raisins, chopped small. Pour the molasses, etc., over the dry ingredients and mix well. Pour into a buttered tin and bake. A portion of this mixture can be made into squares or nuts and baked in a slow oven. Eggs may be worked in as for ordinary cake if preferred.

Soft Gingerbread.

Take half a cupful of butter, a pint of molasses, a quart of flour, one cupful of milk or cold coffee, two eggs, a teaspoonful of ginger, a teaspoonful of baking powder and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Cream the butter and sugar together; then stir in the milk and molasses mixed together. Add the baking powder and spices to the flour and beat in a little at a time, adding the eggs, well beaten, last of all. Pour into a shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven for an hour. You may bake in muffin tins, filling these only half full, and baking about twenty minutes in a slow oven.

Lemon Meringue Pudding.

Pour one quart of scalding hot milk over one pint of fine stale bread crumbs and let stand half an hour. Cream one rounded tablespoon of butter with one cup of sugar and one tablespoon of lemon, three eggs, the juice of one large lemon and a portion of the grated rind. Combine the two mixtures, beat well, turn into a buttered baking dish, stand it in a pan of hot water and bake until firm. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add three tablespoons of sugar and one tablespoon of lemon juice, spread this over the pudding and brown.

Dixie Cake.

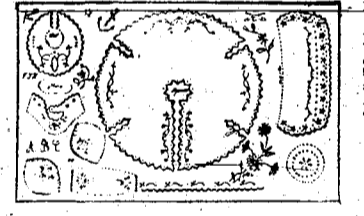

Two-thirds cup of butter, 2 cups sugar, 2-3 cup of sweet milk, 2 cups flour, 1 cup cornstarch, 2 teaspoons baking powder and the well-beaten whites of 6 eggs. Mix in order given and bake in four layers. Make a plain boiled icing and divided into 4 parts. To one part add 1-2 cup each of chopped citron and blanched almonds; to the second part pulp of 1 orange. Put through a sieve and add 1-2 cup grated coconut. To the third part 2 tablespoons grated chocolate, 1-2 cup hickory nut meats and 1-2 cup figs, both chopped fine. Put on the first, second and third layers as written, using on top the plain boiled icing. This is not cheap, but it is very good.

Cornmeal Pudding.

One and a half cups of milk, one and a half tablespoonful (rounded) of cornmeal, one and a half tablespoonful of dried bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of brown sugar, quarter of a cup of molasses, butter half the size of an egg, one egg, a handful of raisins. When the milk boils stir in the cornmeal bread crumbs, salt and cinnamon, which have been mixed together, boil a few minutes, cool, and add the other ingredients, beating them in well. Bake from an hour to an hour and a half in a moderate oven.

1109. A Splendid Model for School or General Wear.

Blue and white striped cotton goods was used for the dress. The guimpe was made of white nainsook. The collar of white pique. This style is good for all wash fabrics. The closing is practical, and the lines are graceful and comfortable. The skirt is a three-piece model, joined to the blouse under the belt. Elaid woolen in soft blue and tan tones, or red cashmere with a simple braid trimming in black would develop this style nicely. The pattern is cut in four sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years, and requires 3 3/4 yards of 40-inch material for a 12-year size, for the dress, and 2 1/4 yards for the guimpe of 27-inch material. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

1095. Ladies' Dressing Sacque or Kimono.

Figured lawn in pink or white, with facings and trimmings of pink are here shown. The model is cut with body and sleeve in one. It is comfortable and pleasing. The style is good for batiste, cashmere, voile, crepe, organdie or silk. The pattern is cut in three sizes: Small, medium and large. It requires 3 yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

1108. A Good and Becoming Style for the Growing Girl.

Brown and white checked woolen is here shown, with facings of brown velvet. It would also be pretty in green plaid suiting, combined with fine serge, or in red poplin with Roman stripe-silk for trimming. The model is suitable for wash goods as well as wool fabrics. For galatea, seersucker, gingham, percale, linen, or line. Soft messaline or batiste with embroidery would develop this model effectively as a party dress. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires 3 yards of 44-inch material for an 8-year size.

1090. The New Basque Costume.

Ladies' costume consisting of a basque with bodice lining, and with long or short puff sleeve with or without tunic.

This style may be effectively developed for afternoon, calling or evening wear. Black satin or chamusee would make this a lovely dinner gown, with reverse collar and long sleeves, or with low neck and puff sleeve. The design is also good for cashmere, garbadine, voile, velveteen, taffeta or crepe. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7 1/2 yards of 44-inch material with 1 1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the sash girdle, for a medium size. The skirt measures about 1 1/2 yards at its lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

1084. Costume for Ladies and Misses with Tunic Having a Yoke, or Gathered at the Waistline, and with Long or Short Sleeves.

This stylish model shows a combination of Roman striped silk and blue serge. It is unique and attractive, and will lend itself appropriately to combinations in other material. The dress may be finished without the tunic, or made with tunic gathered at the waist, or joined to the yoke.

The sleeve is new and fashionable, and good in wrist or elbow length. The neck finish too offers variety, either in the broad collar or the flare, and the chemisette may be omitted. A soft crush girde of silk forms a suitable waist trimming. The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: For Misses, 14, 16, 17 and 18 years, and 6 sizes for ladies: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 44-inch material for a 14-year size, and 6 1/2 yards for a 36-inch size. This skirt measures about 1 1/2 yards at its lower edge in the misses' sizes, and 1 1/2 yards in the ladies' sizes.

1106-1041. A Splendid Outdoor Suit.

Comprising a jaunty coat in Redingote style, and a new tunic skirt. Both models show new style features. As here illustrated, fine serge in blue was combined with blue and brown tan woolen. The costume is also good for garbadine, duvetyne, silk and velvet, and cloth combinations. The skirt may be finished without the tunic. Pattern 1106 furnishes the model for the coat. It is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt is made from pattern 1041 and comes in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30 inches waist measure. It will require about 8 yards of 44-inch material for the entire suit in a medium size. For skirt with tunic it requires 5 1/2 yards; without tunic, 3 yards of 36-inch material. The coat requires 3 3/4 yards of 44-inch material.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10c FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

1102. A Neat and Attractive Dress for House or Porch Wear.

As here shown figured percale was used. The model is also good for seersucker, lawn, gingham, chambray, cashmere, or line. The waist is made with open neck, and finished with revers facings, that meet a shaped round collar. The sleeve, in wrist or short length, is comfortable and in good style. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size. The skirt measures 2 yards at its lower edge.

USE COTTONSEED OIL

American Housewives Urged to Become Better Acquainted with the Merits of the American Products

The European war, according to specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture, affords the American housewife and excellent opportunity to become better acquainted with a very useful native product which has hitherto suffered somewhat from a popular prejudice. By using cottonseed instead of olive oil Americans can not only save themselves money, but can benefit southern cotton growers suffering from the interruption of their normal export trade. In the year ending June 30, 1913, nearly $40,000,000 worth of cottonseed products was shipped to Europe. Much of this was in the form of cottonseed meal, the stock-feeding value of which to farmers is not yet thoroughly appreciated in this country. The remainder is in the form of oils and fats used for cooking and domestic purposes. The latter class of products must now, to a great extent at least, be consumed in this country or not at all.

being judged on its own merits. As a matter of fact, it is fully as nutritive as olive oil, and, on account of its bland flavor, is actually preferred by many. It lacks, of course, the distinctive olive flavor which many persons, especially the Italians, find desirable. Italians, indeed, are frequently not satisfied with the flavor of the highest-grade virgin olive oil, but prefer the poorer product derived from a second pressing of the fruit.

Those who prefer their food less highly seasoned will find cottonseed oil pleasant in French dressing or salads. In mayonnaise dressing, where mustard or other condiments are used, the cottonseed oil gives the dressing a rich, creamy taste.

The great advantage of cottonseed oil, however, is, of course, its cheapness. It always has been much cheaper than the best quality of imported olive oil, and now that the importation of olive oil is interfered with the difference in the price of the two oils will probably be greater than ever. The lower cost of the American cottonseed oil is in itself a strong argument for its more common use. Another is found in the fact that improvements in the process of manu-

THIS WOMAN WAS VERY UNHAPPY

Physically and Mentally Worn Out—Tells How Nervous and Crying Spells Were Ended by Vinol.

Monmouth, Ill. "I was weak, worn-out and nervous. I had no appetite and was getting so thin and discouraged, one day I just broke down and cried when a friend came in and asked me what was the matter. I told of my condition and how nothing I took seemed to do me any good. Vinol was suggested. I got a bottle and before it was half gone I could eat and sleep well. I continued its use and now my friends say I look ten years younger, and I am well, healthy and strong. I wish I could induce every tired-out, worn-out, nervous woman to take Vinol."—Mrs. HARRIET GALE, Monmouth, Ill.

There are many over-worked, tired-out, nervous women in this vicinity who need the strengthening, tissue building, and vitalizing effects of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, and so sure are we that it will build them up and make them strong that we offer to return their money if it fails to benefit.

Vinol is a delicious preparation of the extract of cod liver oil and peptonate of iron and contains no oil.

Short Sermons FOR A Sunday Half-Hour

Theme: SMALL THINGS.

BY REV. DR. ABRAHAM S. ISAACS.

Text—For who hath despised the day of small things?—Zech., IV., 10.

The real things that tend to make or mar our career are often the small things. The vital issues of defeat or victory may spring from the veriest trifles. The most fatal defects or weaknesses, too, can be apparently insignificant, escaping observation like the tiny worm which pierces the dock's massive foundation or cuts through the ship's side.

The prophet does not always speak in rapt visions or restrict his message to a heavenly Jerusalem. His dominant motive is to arouse to a sense of each day's importance and to conduct as the essential factor in religion. And as the minutes control the hours and mere fractions of time the months and years, so our character is the resultant of single acts and thoughts, which become in their turn irresistible habits and impulses, like the separate delicate threads which can be welded into an unyielding chain.

The painter's canvas grows with life and beauty by his deft use of bits of pigment—small fragments of color that give rise to figure and landscape of surpassing charm. So the gentle traits, the modest qualities, the quiet tastes, the unobtrusive deeds, the unselfish attitude, the little attentions—it is just these small things which render our life fragrant, giving gentleness and character to our religion.

But there is another view of the text. We are judged less by the trend of our life in its vastness and sweep, by the aim and extent of our purposes and ambitions, than by the little acts that make up each day's passing record—the chance word we utter, the flash of anger, the burst of petulance, the whisper of wrong, the bitter taunt, the petty gratification—acts trifling and transient in themselves, but expressive of character to the casual observer. How important, then, to be on our guard lest such small things acquire the mastery over me! They must not be despised, for they may lead to traits and tendencies that may overwhelm our lives, leaving wreckage where once were smiling streams and happy homes.

The sage who knew the stars better than the roads of his native town, the philosopher so intent on the secrets of the skies that he fell into a ditch by the wayside—are not these but instances when in the vain grasp after the illimitable and vague we despise the small things that are real and near? So we narrow too generally our conception of religion to the atmosphere of church and synagogue, to swelling music, to stately ceremonial, to solemn litany and holy vestments. But even these may fail in their purpose if we realize not the sacredness of small things which we ignore or despise—the deed that uplifts, although it is unheralded; the word that inspires, although uttered so gently that your neighbors do not hear it; the hand clasp which puts your brother firmly on his feet without public applause.

The small things, then, which are usually vital and decisive for success or failure are not in the far heavens or across the distant seas. They are close to us, so close that they are indispensable for our growth, our discipline, our perfect development. Hence they dare not be despised by those of us who wish to rise to higher things.

Ram's Horn Blasts.
When you find yourself weak, take Christ for your strength.
Put your hand in God's hand, and it will not matter if your feet do slip.
No matter how much we get, we only get to lose, unless we also get Christ.

Building on a rock is an investment that pays dividends with every thunder clap.
There is joy in Heaven over the sinner that repents, even though he may have been a member of the church for years.
It was because David first said, "My Shepherd," that he could afterward say, "He maketh me to lie down in green pastures."
If you are a Christian, it is your privilege to cast all your care upon Christ.

Some of the hungriest people in the world are those who have the most wealth.

It is the man who is least willing to practice, who finds the most fault with the preaching.

Many a man will find himself condemned in the judgment by being measured by his own yardstick.
Many a man who thinks he is praying for the conversion of the world, doesn't give over a dollar a year to help send the Gospel to it.
Had not David begun by saying, "The Lord is my Shepherd," he could never have said, "I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

The good die young, but occasionally an old hen shows up on the bill of fare as a spring chicken.

SCHOOL NOTES

Mr. Smith spent Thanksgiving at his home in Alma.

The Senior class has ordered some class rings of very attractive design. Mrs. Carl Heitzelman is teaching the 8th grade during the absence of Miss Anderson.

The Jordan River school has been handicapped during the past month by an epidemic of chicken-pox.

Two new clocks in the halls of the Central buildings will be a much needed addition to the equipment of the school.

An exhibit of the work of the schools has been in the windows of the drug stores this week. If you have not seen it you should do so.

The High school basketball team will begin practice in the new gymnasium next week. Several games have been scheduled for the winter season.

The West Side Mother's and Teacher's Club will meet at the school house next Wednesday afternoon at 8:15. A good program has been prepared for this meeting.

Dr. Lougher, the Chaplain of the State prison, who spoke at the Theatre recently, gave a very interesting talk for the High school and 7th and 8th grades on Monday morning.

Many of the students are planning to hear the lecture by Dr. Roland A. Nicholas at the Temple Theatre next Monday night. Dr. Roland A. Nicholas is always very popular with young people.

The M. A. C. extension school for farmers will be held at the Central school building beginning Dec. 14 and continuing for five days. This series of lectures is free to all interested in agriculture.

All of the grades of the school took part in appropriate Thanksgiving exercises just before the Thanksgiving recess. The dramatization of Hiawatha by the 8th grade was excellent.

The record for attendance for the month of Nov. was made by the fourth grade of the Central school with a percentage of 98.3. Miss Cummins is the teacher. The seventh grade of the Central school, Miss Tows, teacher, was second with 96.9 per cent.

Teachers and pupils are sorry to learn of the serious illness of Miss Anderson, teacher of the 8th grade room. An operation for appendicitis was performed at the Petaskey hospital last Saturday morning and Miss Anderson is recovering rapidly. She will probably return to East Jordan next week.

The High school was very well represented at the State Y. M. C. A. Conference for boys held at Ann Arbor last week. The boys from here were Bruce Cross, Dick Dicken, Donald Porter and Geo. Vance. They had the privilege of hearing Gov. Ferris, W. J. Bryan, Pres. Harry Hutchins of the University and many national Y. M. C. A. men.

The Mother's and Teacher's Club of the Central school will meet at the school building next Thursday, Dec. 10, at 3:15 p. m. All ladies interested in the school are invited. The following program will be given:

- Music, Orchestra.
- Song, Kindergarten.
- Why and Wherefore of the European War? Miss Coleman.
- Recitation, Mrs. R. A. Risk.
- The Relation of Biology to Human Welfare, Mrs. D. H. Fitch.
- Ten Minutes Discussion.
- Piano duet, Mrs. Geo. W. Hagstok and Mrs. Cummins.

"It Doth Not Yet Appear."
The Bible is our only source of information concerning the future life. Almost everyone has, at some time in life, earnestly wished to know more about Heaven than the Bible has revealed. But we are not sure that a fuller and clearer revelation would serve any good purpose. Perhaps it would render men discontented with their present lot and unfit for present duty.

Perhaps there is no power in human language to convey to men's minds a fuller and clearer idea of the heavenly world. It may be that in our present state we do not possess the capacity to comprehend these things even if they could be uttered in human speech. Whatever be the reason for the comparative obscurity in which this interesting subject has been left, it is enough for us to know that there is a holy city where the saints of God are being gathered home to be forever with the Lord. We are invited to enter through the gates into that city, and the few faint glimpses of that heavenly place are enough to win our hearts to a holy life, and to cheer us on our journey through this vale of tears.—Christian Advocate.

Hack! Hack! Hack!
With raw tickling throat, tight chest sore lungs, you need Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, and quickly. The first dose helps, it leaves a soothing, healing coating as it glides down your throat, you feel better at once. Every user is a friend. Hites Drug Store.

JIM SMITH

Back-to-the-Lander's Success

CHAPTER III.

The Beginning.

The next morning Jim was up bright and early, and the sun's rays revealed some things the moon had gilded over. Here he was in the "pine barrens," with a wife and eighteen-year-old daughter, and none of them knew a thing about farming, or the first necessities for existence. The oil stove was good as far as it went, but that would not last long, and it was out of the question to think of driving into town for bread, but neither his wife nor daughter could make bread. The oak grubs must be cut, and the stumps pulled, but how? The land must be plowed and planted if it was to produce, but he had never handled a plow nor even seen one in use. He did not know what to plant, nor when but he knew the strawberries were gone, for they had been in the market for several weeks. He must learn how and that meant he must have a teacher.

He had walked from one end of his little farm to the other, looking for some flower he might take to the tent to please his wife and daughter but the only thing he found was a harebell and some young watergreens. The Jim Smith that came back to the tent that morning was a very different man from the one that had left the real estate office with the deed in his pocket for the virginal soil. He now realized how helpless a man may be if he lacks the knowledge which enables him to provide the food he must eat. But how was he to do it? It must be done now that he had started.

When he arrived at the tent Marguerite met him with a bright face, saying: "Good morning, dad, isn't it a beautiful day? Mother will soon have breakfast ready, and we shall enjoy helping you build our dear little house. When do you expect the carpenter?"

"Seven o'clock sharp," replied her father, "and that is not so very far away."

"Don't speak so loudly," said Marguerite, laying her pretty finger on her red lips. "Mother is feeling bad because the stove smokes, and the eggs are burnt, but let us pretend it is the best breakfast we have ever eaten."

Jim put his arm around his daughter's waist, drew her to him, and pressed a tender kiss upon her forehead as he said: "You dear little sun-cam. God bless you."

"Here we come, Mother," cried Marguerite, as the two came near the new kitchen with a very worried cooking trying to keep back the tears that would come in spite of all she could do.

The eggs were burnt because she had forgotten to put any lard or butter in the pan. The coffee made from the creek water revealed a pollywog well cooked, and the toast smelled of the oil smoke, but all tried to make the best of it and the appearance of Mr. Bill Jones prevented further discussion of the subject.

Bill knew how to make his movements count, and the two soon had the little shanty enclosed, the oil stove set up under a little "lean-to" which was to be both kitchen and piazza for a while. Tar paper covered the roof and sides. A little window lighted Marguerite's room, which was just large enough for her bed, and the wash bowl had to stand on the only chair, while nails in the wall held her dresses. She said she could stand on the bed when she dressed, and use the window for a mirror.

The other bedroom was only a little larger, while the combination sitting room, dining room, and parlor was only as large as both of them together, but it was home, and they owned it—all but the mortgage.

As Bill Jones left that night he said in a quiet kind of voice: "You don't know much about farming, do you?"

"No, I don't," said Jim frankly, "but I want to learn."

"Well, then, why don't you go to the Vacation Farm School?" said Bill.

"Where's that?" said Jim.

"Only a mile or two east," replied Bill.

"What kind of a place is it?" asked Jim.

"Well, it is this kind of place," replied Bill. "They take just such folks as you—only men with families who want to learn farming—and they teach them same as you would a doctor or a lawyer, just by doing the work and having someone to tell them how—and why it should be done so and so. I don't know much about farming, but I've heard a good deal of talk about the school. The teacher is one of those fellows who asks questions until you feel you don't know anything, and then begins to tell you the most common-sense things, so you wonder why you didn't think of them long before instead of just going on doing the same old things your father did, just because he did them."

"He can tell you the kind of crops that will grow in acid ground, and the kind that won't, how to make your ground sweet, how to clear the land, the way to make things grow tall, or increase the yield of grain, and I don't know what all, but he is the fellow that is getting the big crops here, and his land wasn't no better than this here land when he took it. Good-night to you. Hope you will have good luck. I must be going," and Bill was gone.

"Write," said Jim, as he sat on the cracker box at supper. "Bill has been telling me about a school near here where men can learn farming. Will you and Margie go with me tomorrow morning to see what it is like?" "Delightful," was the eager reply from both, and so it was that big Jim Smith and family came to Vacation Farm.

of earlier Spanish stock. The American Merinos have been bred nearly altogether for wool. Some breeders of the Delaine, or C type Merino, have bred to some extent for a mutton carcass in addition to fineness and length of wool. In the case of the Rambouillet there has been a greater effort to improve the mutton qualities.

A common characteristic of all Merinos and Rambouillets is the fineness of the wool. It is for this quality they have been bred, and while there are variations, there is as much of uniformity in fineness as in any other character of any class of sheep. This fineness is an important quality of wool, although its value in the market varies from time to time. The length of Merino wool varies, less than one-third of the fleeces being long enough for combing. Wool of the fineness of the Merino and of combing length (over 2 inches), is known as Delaine. The fleeces of fine-wool sheep are heavy in oil or yolk, sometimes losing over 70 per cent in scouring. While sometimes quoted at a seeming low price per pound on this account, it must be remembered that a fair basis of comparing fleece values is to consider the fleece weight along with its value per pound. Along with the fineness and oil of the fleeces of the fine-wool sheep there is the tendency to wrinkles and folds upon the neck and body, considered as necessary in the production of the finest wool. The extent of the development of wrinkles varies and is referred to later.

Other special features of the fine-wool sheep as a class are: The ability to stand traveling long distances for feed and water, and the instinct to herd closely. It is these qualities that have caused fine-wool sheep to be used so largely on the range. In addition to the points named, the fine wools as a class have strong resistance to internal parasites and are long lived. They are slow in maturing, the ewes produce few twins, and do not rank high as mothers and milkers. The ewes are much more likely to breed in spring and summer than are the ewes of the mutton breeds, and this has caused them to be used by winter lamb raisers for mating with mutton rams. A few of them have strong curving horns. The ewes are always polled. Sheep of this class have been found to thrive under a wide variety of conditions, sometimes on rather low, moist land.

The Leicester.

The Leicester is very easily distinguished from the other long wools by its lean and strong face. The nose is decidedly Roman and the head is bared of wool from the ears forward. The Leicester has a very wide and well covered back, but the depth of body is less than in the other long wools. This feature, with a strong tendency to lightness of belly wool, gives the breed a leggy appearance. The wool is finer and softer than that of the Cotswold or Lincoln, though not always so thick upon the body. The fleece hangs in locks smaller than those of the Lincoln and without the Cotswold appearance of ringlets.

The breeders' association for this breed is American Leicester Breeders' Association, A. J. Temple, secretary, Cameron, Ill.

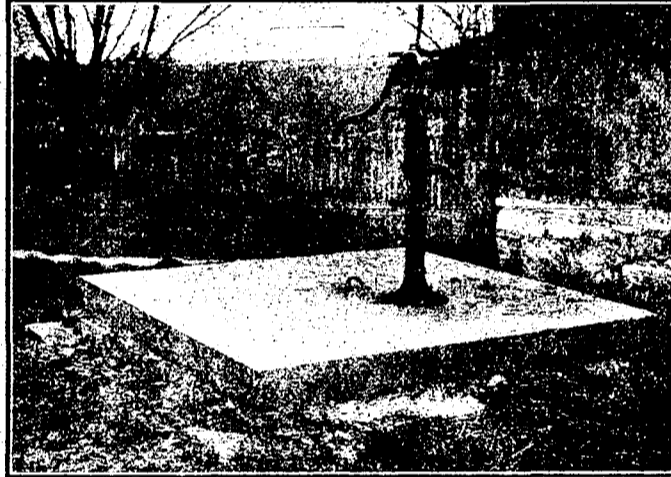

Protecting Drinking Water

Concrete Well Platforms Are Conducive to Health

Even with an abundance of fresh air and wholesome food, the health of a country family is largely dependent on the purity of its drinking water. Since the principal source of farm water supply is the bored or dug well, the purity of the water is determined almost entirely by the ability of the well curbing and cover to keep out contaminating surface

How to Make the Reinforced Platform.

There are several methods of building a concrete well platform. The choice is dependent on the manner in which the pump barrel and stock are joined together. In the illustration is shown a platform 5 inches thick and 5 feet square, which contains a manhole fitted with a concrete lid. The pump water. If the well is curbed near the top with solid concrete (or with blocks or bricks laid in Portland-cement mortar) and is covered with a concrete platform, the healthfulness of the water is practically assured.

stock passes through the platform by means of a circular hole at the side and a part of the manhole opening. By this means the pump stock and barrel can be joined together and slipped into position by a person working through the manhole. Afterwards the concrete manhole lid is set in place. Moreover this lid is heavy enough that it cannot be removed by a child.

In preparing the well for a concrete platform, see that 4 or 5 feet of the curbing near the top of the well is of solid concrete (proportioned 1:2:4), or of blocks or bricks laid up with cement mortar mixed in the proportion of 1 part cement to 11-2 parts sand. Carry the curbing 6 or 8 inches above natural ground level and grade the turf to this height so that surface water will flow away from the well. Prepare to mold the cover on a wooden platform of two-inch boards laid over the well or placed on a level spot of ground. For most wells, a platform 5 feet square by 4 inches thick is sufficiently strong. To provide for a manhole opening, build a bottomless box, of 1 by 6-inch boards, 5 inches deep, 2 feet square at the top and 18 inches square at the bottom—outside measurements. Another plan is to have a tinsmith make a round bottom-place in the soft concrete around the pump opening ordinary bolts (washed and heads down) to the depth of 4 inches. To locate these bolts correctly, set them by means of a wooden block or templet in which holes have been bored and spaced exactly like those in the pump base. Lag bolts or similar devices may also be used for this purpose. Finish the surface of the platform with a wooden float and steel trowel the same as for sidewalks. If the greased tin form is used, the manhole cover may be cast at the same time as the rest of the floor. Reinforce the lid with short lengths of iron rods laid criss-cross. As a lifting ring use half of an old bridle bit, or a hitching post ring, in a block or templet in which holes of twisted wire or with a nut and a large washer. If the wooden manhole form is used, carefully remove it after four hours. One day later build the manhole lid the same as for the tin form with this exception—place greased paper or cardboard around the edges of the opening to prevent less tin form 5 inches deep, 2 feet in diameter at the top and 18 inches at the bottom, after the pattern of a large bottomless dish pan. To either manhole form attach a wooden block of the size and shape of the pump barrel or stock. Grease the manhole frame and set it on the wooden platform where the opening in the well cover is desired.

Proportion the concrete 1 bag of Portland cement to 2 cubic feet of sand and 4 cubic feet of crushed rock, or 1 bag of cement to 4 cubic feet of pit gravel. Have the concrete just wet enough to flush a little cement mortar when tamped into place. Over the entire wooden platform, except within the manhole frame, spread 1 inch of concrete. For reinforcing, immediately place on this concrete 5-foot lengths of 3-8-inch iron rods running in both directions (criss-cross) and spaced 9 inches apart. Bend the ends to a hook-shape. Strengthen the platform around the manhole opening by placing an additional rod on each side. Bring the cover to its full thickness at once by tamping in the remaining four inches of concrete. There will be needed 3 bags of cement, 1-5 cubic yard of sand, 2-5 cubic yard of rock and 6 pieces of 3-8-inch by 10-foot rods weighing 23 pounds.

For fixing the base of an iron pump securely to the finished well platform, the new concrete from sticking to that of the platform. To make the manhole lid lighter in weight, before placing the concrete, spread 1-2 inches of wet sand over the wooden platform inside the manhole opening and then tamp in the concrete. Take care to place the reinforcing within one inch of the bottom of the manhole lid.

After the well platform is two weeks old, carefully remove the wooden boards on which it was built and set or lower it into place. Give the platform a slope of 1-2 inch in the desired direction by placing a layer of cement-sand mortar between the well curbing and the platform.

Other Plans of Making the Platform.

Some persons prefer to make concrete well platforms in two pieces with the division line through the center of the pump opening. By this means the pump barrel and stock are easily joined and inspection is readily provided for. In other cases where the pump and stock can be joined together and lowered into the well as one piece, the concrete platform (removable) is made as a unit and with a single opening merely large enough to receive the pump stock.

Concrete well platforms built according to these methods can be depended on to protect the well from mice, vermin and scrub-water. In pure water there is health.

BREEDS OF SHEEP FOR THE FARM

By F. R. MARSHALL

U. S. Animal Husbandry Division

A SERIES OF ARTICLES FROM FARMERS' BULLETIN NO. 576

LONG WOOL BREEDS.

The long wool breeds are the Romney Marsh, or Kent, the Wensleydale, and Devon Long Wool. There are some fleeces of the first named in America. They have denser, closer fleeces than the breeds discussed, and it is claimed for them that they are more accustomed to lowlands and to scantier fare than the other long wools, though hardly equal to them in conformation.

The breeders' association for this breed is American Romney Breeders' Association, J. E. Wing, secretary-treasurer, Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

Poultry Pointers.

Don't fail to keep the poultry house floor covered with litter, and in this scatter the grain. This will keep them busy and the busy hen is the healthy and laying hen.

If poultry meat is the main object of the poultry raising you are seeking for, then select some breeds of the Asiatic class, such as the Light or Dark Brahma or one of the Cochin varieties.

If eggs are the object, choose your layers from the best laying strains—not always the highest scoring birds, but usually a well bred of standard requirements.

Poultry and dairy farming go well together. Milk fed to poultry in all forms produces good results. However, care should be given to keep dishes clean and sweet.

If you want to raise broilers the pens should be mated this month, and special feeding, one that will not force egg production, but will give a good yield of fertile eggs, should be begun.

We have often said there was too much "fancy" in poultry literature and not enough "utility." Both are necessary, but let us work along the line that is practical.

There are many hens on the farm, and among many of the poultrymen's flocks that do not lay fifty eggs per year, and some even less; but there are others with 250 egg records, and a few records even higher have been recorded.

If you have a select egg trade where you are receiving a fancy price for eggs, and have brown and white shelled eggs, sort them to color; their appearance will more than pay for the extra trouble.

Don't close up everything tight just because cold weather is here; fresh air and sunshine are two necessities for the perfect health of fowls, and to get the best results.

As a rule the cause of a flock being unprofitable lies more with the keeper and care they receive than with any superiority of one breed over another. Yes, there is as much difference in strain as in breed, too. Many have bred along utility lines as well as fancy, and utility should be the breeding standard on every farm and in every poultry yard. This should not be neglected for standard markings.

Conditions Better For Women At University of Michigan

System and Past Experiences Have Brought New Plans and Prepared the Way for Women Attending College in Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor—When a freshman woman comes to the University of Michigan nowadays she finds the situation very different from that of ten or fifteen years ago, when she would have had to spend many weary days trudging about Ann Arbor searching for board and lodging and trying to thread her way alone through the maze of matriculation. But times have changed. Now before she arrives she has been written to by the Dean of her department, who has confirmed her credits; by Mrs. Myra B. Jordan, the Dean of Women, who has furnished her a list of approved rooming houses and preferred general suggestions; and by a junior advisor, appointed for her from among the women of the junior class, who has aimed to answer her more personal questions and to be of sisterly help to her. This year every freshman woman was cared for personally during the first two weeks of college by her junior advisor.

This activity, together with many others at the university, has created for women at Ann Arbor a college world as well-defined and as full as that at any women's college, without sacrificing the broader interests of a university training. This world centers and finds most characteristic expression in the Women's League, an organization to which all university women may belong and through which all the constructive work in women's activities is carried on. It is made up of representatives from the various sorority and league houses and from "independent" women at large. Open meetings of the league are held in Barbour gymnasium every Friday afternoon of the college year, at which time some form of entertainment is provided for all university women. Besides these regular meetings, the league supervises three or four large traditional parties during the year, such as the freshman spread in December, the Circus in January, the Fancy Dress Party in March, and the Women's Banquet in April, at which university women and alumnae meet.

The "Judiciary Council" of the league co-operates with the self-government boards of other women's and co-educational colleges for the regulation of women's college life in general. Catherine Reighard, '15, of Ann Arbor, is president of the league, and Alice Wiard, '15, of Detroit, as vice president, is ex-officio president of the judiciary council.

Athletics for women are provided for in Barbour Gymnasium, of which Miss Alice Evans is the director. Gymnastic work is required of freshmen and other first-year women, and may be elected by others. Outdoor athletics begin as soon as college opens in the fall, and is substituted for indoor work after spring vacation. A field day and an indoor meet are held annually, the former on Palmer Field, the women's athletic ground. A physical examination is given every freshman woman, and throughout the year she is privileged to obtain free medical advice and treatment from the university health service. Dr. Elsie S. Pratt is the women's physician. Opportunity for social service in many lines is open to all university women at Newberry hall, the home of the University Y. W. C. A., of which Huldah Bancroft, '15, of Ann Arbor, is president. Newberry hall serves as a center for small women's luncheons and other gatherings.

There is as definite a system of recognition for scholarships, campus work, and general worth in the women's honorary societies, as there is in the men's. Mortar Board is the senior honorary society, made up of twenty-five women, both sorority members and independents. This society has established a loan scholarship fund, to help needy women in college. Senior society is a smaller group composed entirely of non-sorority women. Wyvern, the junior honorary society, originated and conducts the Junior advisor movement. Omega Phi is a literary-social service society to which sophomores and upper-class women are eligible. The Girls' Glee club, the Women's Dramatic Association, Cercle Français, Deutscher Verein and Stylus, a writing club, are the more specialized societies.

Women are eligible to certain of the offices in all the classes and departments, and take equal part with men in class administration. They manage, besides, traditional class activities of their own, such as the Junior and Senior plays. A new venture this year is the Kermess, to be given by University women in Hill Auditorium on December 12, under the auspices of the Women's League, the Girls' Glee Club, and Masques, the administrative body of the Women's Dramatic Association. Mildred Rees, '15, of Coudersport, Pa., is general chairman, and already has her committees at work.

The Vocational Conference, to be held under the auspices of the league in Ann Arbor early in January is indicative of the broader outlook upon life which university women are fostering. Women prominent in various pursuits other than teaching, will speak at this conference and advise university women who wish to enter their fields. It is hoped to establish here, as a result of the conference, a working vocational bureau in affiliation with the Collegiate Bureau of Occupations. Judith Ginsburg, '15, of Detroit, is general chairman.

The completion of the two new halls of residence now in process of construction will mark an epoch for Michigan women. The Newberry hall of residence on State street, given by the Newberry family of Detroit, will house sixty women. It will be completed in about two months, and will be dedicated at May festival time. The building at South University and Ingalls streets is the gift of an alumnus who wishes to remain anonymous. This beautiful hall will accommodate one hundred and twenty-five women. Women of all the classes will make their homes in these halls, but the freshmen will be in the majority in both.

The great variety of activities open to women at Michigan, together with all of the conveniences and safeguards of a women's college in the center of a great university community, with its superior academic opportunities, affords the women and educational environment which makes inevitable for superior development.

NO NEED TO FEAR MEAT

No Cattle With Foot-and-Mouth Disease Being Slaughtered in Federally Inspected Establishments. Thorough Cooking Will Render Uninspected Meat From Local Slaughter Houses Thoroughly Safe.

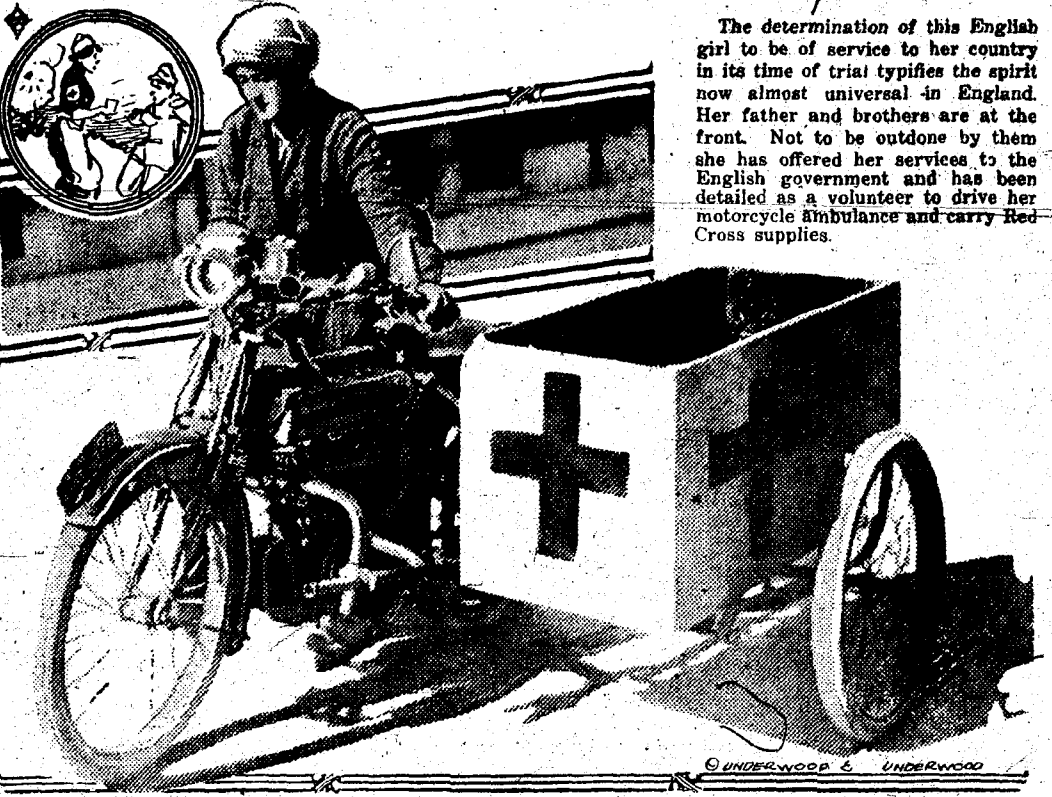

Washington, D. C.—According to the specialists of the Department of Agriculture people even in states quarantined for the foot-and-mouth disease need have no fear of eating meat, provided they cook it thoroughly. The foot-and-mouth disease is not easily communicated to human beings through food, although milk from a diseased cow might transmit the disease to a human being. In the case of milk, however, pasteurization will render it entirely safe. Human beings who do get the disease commonly get it from direct contact with a sick animal. It is wisest, therefore, for people to keep away from all animals having the disease, unless they are properly provided with rubber gloves, coats and boots, and these are thoroughly disinfected after each visit to the animals.

In the case of meat, as in the case of milk, it must be remembered that all herds which actually show the disease are quarantined, and neither milk nor meat from the sick animals can be sold. Sixty per cent of the meat used in this country is produced in the nearly 900 federally inspected slaughtering and packing establishments located in 240 cities. In these establishments no animal is slaughtered until it has passed an ante-mortem inspection and also a most rigid post-mortem inspection by a veterinarian at time of slaughter. After slaughter its meat cannot leave the establishment until it has been carefully examined and stamped "U. S. Inspected and Passed." In all these establishments no animal showing any symptoms whatever of foot-and-mouth disease is allowed to go to slaughter, and no meat which, on post-mortem inspection, shows any suspicious symptoms of this complaint can be shipped out of the establishment. All meat suspected of coming from an animal suffering with this complaint is sent, under government seal, to the tanks to be rendered into fertilizer. The federal inspection stamp on meat, therefore, means that it is entirely safe.

The federal government, however, has no jurisdiction over local slaughter houses which do not ship meat outside of the state in which it is slaughtered. If, however, meat from such an animal did escape from one of these local slaughter houses, which are purely under state or municipal control, all danger of its communicating the disease to human beings would be removed when it is thoroughly cooked and sterilized. Those who are located near an infected region and wish to be absolutely certain of the safety of their meat should cook it thoroughly.

The disease when contracted by adults is not at all a serious illness. It commonly takes the form of slight fever sores in the mouth and a slight eruption on the skin. In the case of small or sickly children, it may take a more serious form, especially if complicated by other illnesses.

Not to be outdone by them she has offered her services to the English government and has been detailed as a volunteer to drive her motorcycle ambulance and carry Red Cross supplies.

NEWS FROM University of Michigan

By JOHN R. BRUMM

Michigan's musical clubs will combine with the Harvard clubs for a concert in Detroit on the evening of January 2. The Michigan clubs will tour the east while the Harvard clubs travel through the west. The Detroit engagement will be held on Michigan's return home.

Professor H. C. Adams and family returned from China last Saturday. Professor Adams was called to China one year ago to devise an accounting system for the railroads which the government had taken over. He will resume his work in the department of political economy next semester.

Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan will address one of the meetings of the Y. M. C. A. Boys' conference to be held in Ann Arbor, under the auspices of the University Y. M. C. A., November 27, 28, 29. His subject will be "The Making of a Man." More than 2,000 delegates from various parts of the state will attend the conference.

The Detroit extension courses, offered for the first time last year, include three subjects, philosophy, rhetoric and history. These courses are given on Saturdays in two hour sessions throughout the year, each course carrying with it four hours of university credit. The number of students enrolled was 242. The extension department this year directs, besides the regular lecture service, all the public service activities of the university, which have been regularly organized and are announced in the new bulletin.

A report of the University of Michigan Extension service for the year 1914-15 exhibits the following facts: The number of lectures listed in the announcement was 376, representing 117 members of the faculty. The number of lectures given free of charge throughout the state was 312. The number of people in attendance reached a total of 87,360, which means an average audience of 280. The requests for lectures were thrice as great as the available supply. The second year's attendance exceeded the first year's by 18,000. The director states that the people of the state have come to appreciate the fact that the extension lectures are not intended to provide free entertainment along the line of the old lyceum course, but a genuine educational service. This means that the audiences are growing less miscellaneous in character with a consequent increase in the more purely intellectual interest.

SHORT STATE STORIES

East Lansing—An order for 5,000 white pine seedlings and 1,000 sugar maple seedlings has been received by the Michigan Agricultural college from Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer. It is said the trees will be planted on Mr. Ford's farm near Dearborn, Mich., to furnish woodland for the birds Mr. Ford has imported.

Petoskey—George A. Weaver has been appointed county agent of Emmet county in place of Thomas McCabe, deceased. The appointment came through the chief executive of the state. Weaver is already on the job and is demonstrating his ability in the new office.

Lansing—Section 5 of Act 257 for the regulation of moving picture theaters provides that all exit doors must open outwardly and shall not be locked where the building is open to the public. Recently a representative of the state fire marshal's bureau discovered the exit doors in a Michigan theater locked during a performance and promptly caused the arrest of the manager.

Northville—A. W. Ward, better known as "Happy" Ward, nephew of the late Montgomery Ward of Chicago, of mail order fame, was sentenced by Justice Knapp to 30 days in the Detroit house of correction for drunkenness. Ward inherited $5,000 from his uncle's estate recently.

Charlotte—Charles Gildart, son of Editor Gildart of the Albion Leader, has been named by Congressman Smith as the representative from this district to enter West Point. Mr. Gildart recently passed the civil service test at Kalamazoo.

Bird's Eye View of a Michigan Apple Orchard

A Thriving Apple Orchard on the shores of Grand Traverse Bay. Fruit growing and summer resorting go well together. There are in Western Michigan, hundreds of water front locations that are well suited to the growing of bush fruits, peaches and apples. In fact the water increased the value of the land from a horticultural standpoint as well as making the sites along its shores more attractive, to the persons seeking recreation. Few of the profitable industries afford the pleasures that do fruit growing. The above view is of a young apple orchard on the fruit farm of Henry Seel near Old Mission, Grand Traverse County.

QUARANTINE ON HAY AND STRAW MODIFIED.

Washington, D. C.—The provisions of the federal quarantines declared on account of the foot-and-mouth disease have been somewhat modified in so far as they apply to shipments of hay and straw. The new regulations provide that hay and straw cut prior to August 1, 1914, and baled prior to October 1, 1914, may be shipped without disinfection from any of the quarantined areas, provided that it has been stored away from cattle, sheep or swine. Hitherto it was necessary that hay should not only have been cut before August 1, but that it should also have been baled before that date.
