A Rare Musical Treat

Schumann Quintet On the Lecture Course Next Monday.

The best concert of the Citizens' Entertainment Course will be that given by the famous Schumann Quintet when they appear here on Monday, March 15. This company has the reputation of being the best instrumental quintet in the United States and the local committee is paying a very large sum to get them for East Jordan. This will be probably the only big attraction at the Temple Theatre this season and the entertainment deserves a crowded house.

The leader of the Schumanns is Carl A. Lampert, a native of Germany, who was for nine years first violin for the famous Thomas orchestra of Chicago and is considered one of the best violinists in the country. The instrumentation of the company is as follows: First violin, Carl Lampert; second violin, Norman Weiler; cello, Nicolai Zedeler; piano, Jennette Lampert; organ, Miriam Zedeler. The company carries with it a specially constructed organ which produces the reed and wind effects of a large orchestra and enables the company to play music written for large symphony orchestras.

Nebraska State Journal, Lincoln, Neb.—One of the most thoroughly enjoyable musical attractions ever presented in the Y. M. C. A. Course was heard last night at the Oliver, in the concert by the Schumann Quintet. All the performers proved to be excellent musicians and the ensemble work was of high order. Judging from the enthusiasm of the audience, the success of the company in their professional aim, to popularize standard music, is undoubtedly being realized. Carl A. Lampert is director and first violin.

Sheboygan Daily Journal, Sheboygan, Wis.—The Schumann Quintet proved that the advance notices were in no way exaggerated and the musicians furnished, as predicted, one of the daintiest and most artistic features ever given in a local lyceum course or under other auspices. The Quintet carries its own specially constructed organ, which adds much to the program. The program was pure music throughout and was devoid of sensation, ultra-spectacular features or extreme volume. Remarkable interpretation was shown, and the aim was to illustrate various phases and developments of music. The melodic effects were exquisite.

POTATOES IN PLACE OF BREAD

If wheat remains at its present high figure or continues to rise in price, and if there is a corresponding increase in the price of bread, scientists in the department suggest that the ordinary household will find it advantageous to eat more potatoes and less bread. With potatoes at 60 cents a bushel, 10 cents' worth, or 10 pounds, will give the consumer a little more actual nourishment than two 1-pound loaves of bread at 5 cents each. The protein and fat are present in appreciably larger amounts in the bread, but the potatoes will be found to furnish more carbohydrates and more heat units.

Carbohydrates (starch) contribute greatly to the energy value of any diet, and since potatoes are rich in these families—that wish to expend their money to the best advantage are recommended to consider whether they can not make a more extended use of them. They are easy to cook and when prepared in different ways can be made to lend variety to the winter diet when green vegetables are hard to obtain. Like other foods relatively rich in carbohydrates, however, potatoes should be eaten with foods correspondingly rich in protein, such as milk, meat, etc., and with foods like butter, cream, and meat fat to supply the fat that the body needs.

Under normal conditions in Europe and America the potato ranks next to bread as a carbohydrate food. If prices change sufficiently to make it desirable from a financial point of view, there is no scientific reason why potatoes should not be substituted to a great extent for bread. In addition the potato, like many fruits and vegetables helps to neutralize an acid condition in the body. This is another reason for its being eaten in combination with meat, fish, and other animal foods.

If the silly actions of a man are not due to his being in love, they are probably natural.

Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE AT EAST JORDAN

Local arrangements, looking forward to the entertainment of the second annual Older Boys Conference, are well under way at this early date so no one need fear that East Jordan will be at all unprepared when the time, April 23rd to 24th, for the conference comes. On the County Y. M. C. A. Secretary's last visit to East Jordan a meeting of the Conference Committee was called and the following sub-committees appointed:

Committee on Entertainment—Edward Mackey, T. Porter Bennett, Lyle Jepson, Victor Cross, Hilton Milford
Committee on Banquet—L. P. Holliday, Thomas Joynt, Elwin Sundstedt.
Committee on Music—J. J. Porter, W. H. Sloan.
Committee on Tickets—Floyd T. Smith, Harry Potter, Dick Dicken, George Vance, Ray Thompson.

As a usual thing an officer prefers to get some of his information before he makes an arrest. We could announce the name of the toastmaster for the banquet at this time but with hold the name that he may have a reasonable length of time in which to get in his supply of stories and illustrations. In recommending himself for this position the party said that one of his main qualifications for such a job was that he had asthma and could not speak at any great length.

MICHIGAN CROP REPORT

Lansing, Mich., March 6, 1915.
WHEAT.—In answer to the question, "Has wheat during February suffered injury from any cause?" 172 correspondents in the State answer "yes" and 260 "no," in the southern counties 80 answer "yes" and 116 "no," in the central counties 46 answer "yes" and 47 "no," in the northern counties 45 answer "yes" and 71 "no" and in the Upper Peninsula 1 answers "yes" and 26 "no."

Snow protected wheat in the State 15 days; in the southern counties 11; in the central counties 14; in the northern counties 19 and in the Upper Peninsula 28 days.

The average depth of snow on February 15th in the State was 3.59 inches, in the southern counties 1.23, in the central counties 2.38, in the northern counties 5.79 and in the Upper Peninsula 12.00 inches. On the 28th the average depth of snow in the State was 2.11, in the southern counties 0.33, in the central counties 1.23, in the northern counties 2.55 and in the Upper Peninsula 12.75 inches.

The total number of bushels of wheat marketed by farmers in February at 71 flouring mills is 112,765 and at 85 elevators and to grain dealers 174,535 or a total of 287,300 bushels. Of this amount 202,120 bushels were marketed in the southern four tiers of counties, 72,085 in the central counties and 13,075 in the northern counties and Upper Peninsula. The estimated total number of bushels of wheat marketed in the seven months August-February is 8,500,000.

Forty-eight mills, elevators and grain dealers report no wheat purchased in February.

The average condition of live stock in the State is reported as follows, comparison being made with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition: Horses, sheep and swine 96, cattle 95.

COLEMAN C. VAUGHAN,
Secretary of State.

THE CREED OF THE COUNTRY

Rural life is coming into its own and country life is beginning to be appreciated again after several decades of disfavor and neglect. The following creed which being adopted as the slogan of various boys' and girls' clubs throughout the rural sections of the United States, shows that the thought of life in the country is being directed into its natural channels.

"I believe that the country which God made is more beautiful than the city which man made; that life out of doors and in touch with the earth is the natural life of man. I believe that work is work wherever I find it, but the work with nature is more inspiring than work with the most intricate machinery. I believe that the dignity of labor depends not only upon what you do, but on how you do it; that opportunity comes to a boy in the city, and that life is larger and freer and happier on the farm than in the town."

SMILE THEM AWAY

The little trials of life today
Shall live to smile and laugh away
A greater trial another day.

THE YOUNG FARMER'S NEED OF A YEARLY BUSINESS INVENTORY

The young farmer who is endeavoring to build up a more efficient and profitable business seldom retains much cash. When money is received he buys a new implement, another animal, improves a building, or makes payments on bills for things bought on credit. During the course of the year he may receive and pay out large sums of money, leaving almost no cash at the end of the year. The annual returns may seem to have been only a fair living for himself and family, whereas the farm business may have turned a good profit, which was invested from month to month. Hence it is important for the farmer's guidance and encouragement that he make an annual inventory of his farm investments. This inventory should be a detailed list, with values, of everything used in the farm business, including land, buildings, live stock, machinery and tools, produce for feed or sale, supplies, bills receivable, and cash; also a list of accounts and bills owing. The difference between the total assets and debts shows the net farm worth.

A study of two successive inventories of a farm in New York State illustrates how one young farmer on 100 acres prospered regardless of the fact that he had almost no cash at hand, at the end of the year. The total assets at the beginning of the year amounted to $13,090 and to $13,400 at the end of the same year, an increase of $310. The increased investment in live stock, machinery, and tools; and more produce held for sale amounted to $1,073, but this partially offset by the cash decrease of $763. The farm indebtedness was also reduced by $253, thus making a total increase in net worth to the farm business of $563. The inventory values covered all depreciations and increases in values, so that this $563 was net increase in the value of the farm investment. It means that this sum was saved from the year's business after all farm expenses had been paid, including interest on borrowed money and all living expenses. The amount of cash at the end of the year, $133, proved to be no indication of the success of the year's business.

EARLY MARRIAGES

Some time ago, Professor Roswell H. Johnson published in The Journal of Heredity, a plea for early marriages, particularly by those of unusual ability. "We must have our superior men marrying earlier," he said, "even at the cost of their early efficiency."

Doctor Johnson said also that we must cease prolonging the educational period past the early twenties, and he insisted that our practice of delaying marriages by extending education into post-graduate courses "cannot go on without serious loss to the race."

Gasper L. Rerfield of Chicago, who is a student of this subject, took issue with Professor Johnson. He put up a reward for the discovery of a superior individual produced as a result of early mating by his progenitors, and advised other students to get busy with the history of notable personages in order to earn it. The time given in which to find the case recently expired, and the reward had not been claimed.

Thus are the statutes against early marriages vindicated. And thus is removed from ambitious students the feeling that by delaying marriage until after the educational period they are cheating their children and the race.

There will always be folks who want to marry early. There will always be others who want to marry later in life. The former have Professor Johnson to lean on. The latter have a companion in Mr. Rerfield, backed by Mr. Rerfield's cash.

Which, considered by and large, is a very satisfactory arrangement, indeed. Marriage being a wholly meritorious institution, can't have any too much encouragement, especially when the divorce courts are so busy undermining it.

HAS YOUR BABY'S BIRTH BEEN RECORDED?

The State Board of Health has recently inaugurated a system of notifying all parents, by means of an abbreviated certificate, when their baby's birth has been recorded in the Department of State at Lansing. If you receive a certificate you will know that proper record has been made. If you do not receive a certificate you will know that no record has been of the birth of your child, and you should at once communicate with the physician or midwife attending the birth and see to it that a proper certificate is filed with the local registrar.

The law requires physicians and midwives to file certificates within ten days after date of birth, and a severe penalty is prescribed for failure, or neglect to do so.

IMPORTANCE OF BIRTH REGISTRATION

Legal considerations of the highest importance enter into the registration of births. Communities are waking up to their obligations to restrict child labor. With adequate registration of births such regulation is hampered and the law often nullified in its effect. In this way many children are deprived of education and are permitted to waste their limited energies in industrial pursuits, later to become the subjects of community relief. The transactions of life insurance companies frequently call for the legal proof of true age. Since the differences in premium charges vary with the age, it will be seen that the factor of age is essential to the determination of the amount of benefit which is to be paid at death. The establishment of personal identity often depends upon the validity of a birth record. Litigation in matters of property inheritance, the settlement of estates and the disposition of trusts, can in many instances be avoided when accurate birth records are at hand. Special problems in the morbid aspects of social life, such as the age of consent, the gravity of the offense in criminal cases, etc., depend upon efficient birth registration.

PAYS FINE FOR FAILING TO FILE BIRTH RECORD

ST. JOHNS, Feb. 18.—Dr. Peter H. Banta, of DeWitt, was arrested for failing to file birth certificates and appeared before Justice Flynn, Tuesday. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5.00 and costs, which he paid.

KITCHEN KINKS

Rub a fresh lemon thoroughly into a sour-smelling sponge, then rinse it several times in lukewarm water and it will become sweet as when new.

To clean brass flower pots or trays, rub them with a piece of lemon; then pour boiling water over them, and finally polish with a soft dry cloth.

In making mayonnaise dressing, after the ingredients are together much time and energy may be saved by using an egg beater to finish the work.

Fill a burnt sauce pan with water in which soda has been added. Allow the water to come to a boil and the burnt particles can then be easily scraped off. Instead of mixing cocoa with boiling water to dissolve it, try mixing it with an equal amount of granulated sugar and then pouring it into the boiling water in the pot, stirring all the while.

Don't borrow trouble. Sit tight and more than enough will come along.

CHILDREN'S SAVINGS

According to the federal bureau of education, the school children of the United States have on deposit in the school savings banks of the country, a million and a quarter dollars. There are 217,000 depositors. The school bank, therefore, can be said to be an established institution.

To Belgium, the pathetic figure in the European war, the United States owes this effective agency for the promotion of thrift. The idea originated in that country and its first school banks came into existence there in 1873. John Henry Thiry, a native of Belgium, introduced the system in Long Island City, New York. The work began has been followed up by Mrs. Sarah Louisa Oberholtzer of Philadelphia.

Pittsburg, Pa., is mentioned as a city where the system has been notably successful. The children of that city have deposited more than $600,000 since the banks were established. Chester, in the same state, has $44,000 on deposit; Toledo, Ohio, $70,000; Atlantic City, N. J., $33,000 and Grand Rapids, Mich., $65,000.

WISE OR OTHERWISE

Why blame a doctor for thinking ill of his patients?

The last person a man usually learns to know is himself.

A man thinks brains do not count— if he hasn't very many.

A well trained conscience will stretch as long as the fun lasts.

Why should the man who thinks he is the whole thing try to conceal it? He doesn't.

"It will keep me busy most of the day, of course," he answered. "I'm afraid I can't come until after five—but if you'll be at home, then, I'll try to call. Yes—good-bye."

As he hung up, Carrington turned towards him. "How's she taking it?" he asked.

"Like a little trooper!" said Harcourt. "She's just as brave and loyal as she can be!"

"You're a lucky dog Jack."

"I know it—or that I was one," said Harcourt slowly. "But our engagement must be broken—at once. I can't marry her with a thing like this hanging over my head."

CHAPTER II.

THE HAUNTING DOUBT.

An hour later Harcourt sauntered slowly down the front steps of his house and entered his electric brougham. Dressed with more than usual care, his stick hanging carelessly over his arm, and a cigarette between his lips, he seemed to the curious little throng on the sidewalk, the most unconcerned man in the world. Yet, for the first time in his life, John Harcourt faced real mental anguish, and was experiencing an emotion stronger than any that had ever come to him.

A little knot of newspaper men gathered near the house railing, hurried forward, hoping for a word with him, but the brougham door with its emblazoned arms, was slammed quickly shut, and the motor moved off swiftly.

By this time the whole city had heard of Townshend's death, and every club, cafe, fashionable house in London was eagerly discussing it. The mystery of the affair coupled with the prominence of those concerned in it, made the murder the topic of the hour, and news of its developments was being eagerly awaited. In fact, at that very moment in Buckingham palace, a minister was relating to the king such details as had been gathered by Scotland Yard.

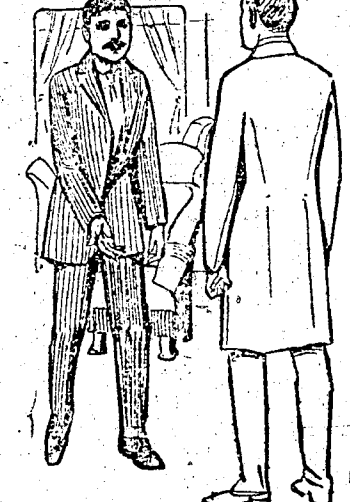

In a brief talk with Inspector MacBee, Harcourt had learned everything the police knew about the murder, and the fact that as yet nothing had been discovered to give the slightest possible clues as to a motive. He had at once offered to give himself into the custody of the inspector, but that official stated that no arrests would be made until the following day unless additional evidence should be secured. To Harcourt's relief, MacBee had been courteous itself, and, owing to the position of the men implicated, had merely asked them to keep Scotland Yard advised of their whereabouts until they heard further from him. In doing this, MacBee had his own purpose, for his operatives were secretly observing every movement of those concerned and he hoped vaguely that the very liberty he apparently allowed them all might help him solve the problem the case presented.

governors, he leaned forward and, looking into the mirror of the brougham, carefully adjusted his monocle as the motor drew up before the club. It was an imposing building, and its roster was even more imposing than the structure itself. Founded by a prince of the blood royal, it was, after 200 years, a guarantee of wealth and position to all who were fortunate enough to be elected to membership. And the very exclusiveness of the organization made this murder within its walls all the more sensational.

As Harcourt entered with quiet dignity, the doorman bowed obsequiously, and another servant hastened to take his hat and stick. For the first time in his life, Harcourt felt unpleasantly conscious of their attentions, and as a third servant slipped a card bearing his name into the hall-rack, Harcourt experienced the distasteful sensation of being curiously observed.

Passing on a step he paused for a moment to read the simple notice of the death of a member. "Capt. George Townshend, V. C., of His Majesty's Army in India, While On Furlough." Then, calmly lighting a fresh cigarette, he walked quietly into the library. The spacious room was nearly full, and with one accord the men standing by the doorway turned to greet him, while several others arose from their great leather chairs and came forward.

Foremost among them was Prince Kirshin Kandwahr, who advanced with outstretched hand. "Lord Harcourt," he said in his queer purring Eastern voice, "I trust that you will give me this opportunity of making an explanation regarding the statements credited to me in the newspapers of this morning."

Harcourt observed him coolly, and there was a hush in the room as those standing about listened to the Indian's words.

"My mention of your name to the inspectors," Kandwahr went on, "was made with the natural understanding that what occurred in this club concerned only its members, its guests, like myself—and at such an unfortunate time as this, the police, I had no thought that my words might result more prominently in this affair than the names of the rest of us, and I only mentioned the circumstance at all because I felt it my duty to give all the information in my power."

"Please don't think of it, old fellow," said Harcourt quickly. "You did quite right. I'm sure I don't relish this beastly business any more than you do, but we must all bear our part in it."

"Thank you," said Kandwahr, with evident relief, "but you do not take my hand."

"Really! I beg your pardon," Harcourt answered quietly. "So I didn't. But please don't think anything of it. I never shake hands. It seems to me such an unutterably silly custom—and I positively hate to touch people."

"Those who overhear the low remark smiled faintly, but there was an ugly flash in Kandwahr's eyes. "My lord, I do not quite understand—" he began.

"You will when you know me better," said Harcourt. "Meanwhile I beg of you, overlook my seeming discourtesy and believe that it is with no thought of personal dislike that I ask to be excused."

With a smile, Kandwahr bowed, and Harcourt turned abruptly to the others. "Are we all here now?" he asked.

"Yes now that you have arrived," said Sir Thomas Marston, coming forward. "The others are in the board room. Shall we go up?"

Harcourt nodded, and arm in arm, went up the stairs with the father of his fiancee. As the two entered, the men gathered about the governor's table ceased their conversation abruptly, and the president of the club, the Duke of Hertford, rapped with his gavel for order.

"Gentlemen," he began, when all were seated in their places. "You are all aware of the reason for this gathering and it is quite unnecessary to recite any of the details of what happened within our walls. The disgrace and publicity of this affair are such that I am sure every one of us would have given anything to avoid it. While it seems incredible to me that such could be the case, circumstances appear to point to one of our members as being—shall I say, sirs, a—murderer?"

He paused and there was absolute silence in the room.

"It is, therefore, all the more incumbent upon us," the Duke resumed, "to give every possible aid to the officials of Scotland Yard in unravelling this mystery, and in bringing the guilty party to justice. Let me hear your opinions if you please."

No one stirred as he sat down, and the great clock in the corner ticked loudly as the men about the table looked down uncomfortably at its polished surface.

"I suppose the servants have been questioned fully?" It was Sir Thomas who spoke.

"They were all examined by the inspectors this morning," the Duke answered. "As you know, gentlemen, the club closes its doors at 2 o'clock, at which time the servants are free to go home. Only the watchman and the caretakers remain. All of the other employees are known to have left the building before half after 2 o'clock."

"At what time was the body discovered?" asked Sir Harry Farndale.

"About an hour and a half later," said the Duke. "Perkins, one of the caretakers, then entered the room to clean it, and found Capt. Townshend sitting upright in one of the big easy chairs by the reading table. The man says that Capt. Townshend's head was hanging down over his breast and that at first he thought him to be asleep. Upon going over to awaken him, however, Perkins discovered blood upon his shirt front and a slit about two inches long just over the heart. You see, gentlemen, the lights are switched off from the steward's office on the first floor, and there was, consequently, no occasion for any of the servants to enter the room before Perkins did so."

"But how is it that the doorman, knowing as he must have known, that Capt. Townshend had not left the club, did not send someone to search for him when the building was closed for the night?" Sir Thomas queried.

"That I have been unable to learn," the Duke replied. "Dodson, who is, as you all know, an old servant of the club, was in attendance at the door last night. He has not been here as yet to-day, but I believe the inspectors have secured his address and have gone to his home to question him."

"And have the other servants been placed under arrest?"

"No Perkins' statement is vouched for by two others who were directly behind him when he entered the smoking room, and the inspectors have merely detained, here in the club, all those who were in the house after its closing last night."

"Is there any likelihood of any of these men being charged with the crime?"

It was Harcourt's drawl that asked the question, and instantly all eyes were turned upon him.

"That is quite possible, of course," the Duke admitted.

"I do not believe that any of them are guilty," said Harcourt. "These men are known to us from long service, and it is extremely unlikely that any of them could have had any cause to quarrel with Capt. Townshend."

"Unless the motive could have been robbery," someone suggested.

"Nonsense," Harcourt broke in quickly. "A man would not commit murder for whatever sum Townshend would have been likely to have in his pockets last night."

"Lord Harcourt is quite right," said the Duke. "In fact the Captain's watch, his wallet, and all of his jewelry were found upon the body. Robbery could have been no incentive to the assailant."

"From my understanding of the case, Sir Thomas broke in, "it is quite apparent that someone quarrelled with him and that the blow was struck in anger."

"On the contrary," Harcourt objected. "The fact that he was found sitting upright in a chair makes it seem to me that the thing was deliberately planned out. Either the murderer struck him from behind as he sat there—perhaps a little the worse for liquor—or else the body was placed there after death, to deceive anyone who might happen to pass through the room, and thus delay discovery of the crime."

"That is possible," said the Duke, but it suggests devilish cunning that I can hardly credit amid such surroundings."

"But the weapon," said the Duke. "The inspectors say the wound was made with a stiletto or some similar sharp instrument. The smoking room was locked up immediately after the finding of the body, and a most thorough search has been made, but no trace of such a knife has been discovered."

"Then I cannot see how we can do anything further in the matter now," said Sir Thomas finally. "It is for the police to ferret out. If we give them every aid possible, and place ourselves at their absolute disposal, our duty is certainly done."

"I think not," it was Harcourt who spoke after a minute's silence.

"What do you suggest, my Lord?"

"This," said Harcourt, looking slowly about the circle. "It is possible that Captain Townshend may have

She loomed big in the eye of the public and occupied no inconsiderable space in the community, says Lippincott's Magazine.

Weighted in the balance, she was never found wanting, nor could any accuse her of lightness.

She was the largest contributor to "votes for women," and the stoutest opponent of the "antis."

Her husband declared that she was altogether too much for him.

Her banker found in her a woman of substance.

Her pastor deemed her a well rounded character.

Her admirers called her a great lady.

And the women all called her fat.

A Germantown man found it advisable to put on a ragged suit of clothes in order to repair some machinery. After he had finished, he went home to dinner and went in the back way on account of his shabby clothing. As he entered he met a tramp coming out of his gate. The tramp mistook the owner for a knight of the road, and held up a warning hand.

"Duck it—retreat," cautioned the tramp, "I just tried her, and she's a regular bear cat."

THE CHILDREN'S STORY TELLING CLUB

Essilyn Dale Nichols, Editor

1527-35 St., Rock Island, Ill.

Send Manuscript and Letters for this Department Direct to the Editor of this Department.

Dear Little Friends:—Your editor has been very sick and she isn't at all well yet. In fact, she doesn't feel well enough to sit up long at a time; but because she doesn't wish to disappoint the little club members she is going to edit the Story Telling Club this week the very best she can, knowing that her little readers will excuse all mistakes, under the circumstances. And you WILL, won't you? But she's just simply got to tell you about the wonderful success of our "Missing Word Contest." Never before, in all her life, has your editor received such stacks and stacks of letters. She feels quite certain that nearly every little boy and girl in the state of Michigan will have joined our Story Telling Club by the middle of March (which is the time the contest closes, you know). And your editor wants to tell you something SPECIAL here: You must be VERY patient about your membership cards and about the publication of your letters, for every letter must wait its turn; and even though the Story Telling Club used an entire page of our paper it would take ever and ever so long for all the letters to be printed.

But, REMEMBER, every single one will be printed, and every single boy and girl that has written for the club will receive a membership card—ONLY—you must be patient and give your editor time.

And now I guess we can have our letters:

Dear Editor:—I have been reading the Children's Story Telling Club and thought that the letters the children sent you were very nice. I am in the fourth grade and am nine years old. I see by the paper that you are going to have a contest where every one shall win a prize. If you think this letter is good enough, put it in the paper, but if not leave it out. I have one brother—he is away at college. I have several dolls; one of them can say "papa and mamma." My baby doll is a cute little fellow, and his name is Joseph. Well, I guess I have said about enough. Yours truly, Agnes Simmons, Frankfort, Mich.

I think you wrote a fine letter, Agnes, and I am sure you will find our "Missing Word Contest" lots of fun. I expect you have heaps of fun with your dolls. Write again.

Dear Editor:—May I become a member of the Story Telling Club? I am a little red-headed boy, eight years old. I live on a farm one and one-half miles from town. I have a brother and three sisters, all old enough to go to school. If I may, I will write again and tell about our colt. Gordon Huffman, Tustin, Mich.

We are certainly glad to have you join our club, Gordon, and we'll be very pleased to have you tell us about the colt. A membership card will be sent you soon.

Dear Editor:—I want to get in on your "Big Contest" and so will write a letter to the Children's Story Telling Club. I am thirteen years old and am in the eighth grade at school. I expect to attend high school next year. I live in the country and am one and three-fourths miles from town. I have to walk three-fourths of a mile to school. My teacher's name is Miss Bede Coon. There are thirteen pupils enrolled. I have three brothers and one sister. I have one pet cat and three ponies; also a pet chicken which I found when it was little, with its foot cut off. I took care of it and it is a large chicken now. I like to work outdoors very much, and in the summer time I am outdoors more than in. Well, I guess I had better close, hoping to see this in next week's paper. I want to join your club very much. Your friend, Irene H. Coon, Ludlow, Ill.

And we are very, very glad to have you join, Irene. You wrote a splendid letter. I hope you will write again, and, of course, take part in our "Big Contest."

Dear Editor:—I saw so many children join your contest I thought I would write. I am the second child of six children. We think our baby sister is very sweet. My sister Ina has written, so I will tell you something she didn't. My sister and I each have a doll; we got them for Christmas. Bernard, Ina and I have not missed a day of school since we started to this school, last April. There are seven children in my class. My papa rents a farm of 120 acres and we have a good time in the summer. We have two horses, two colts, three cows, four calves, eight pigs and about 60 hens. I read your stories and enjoy them very much. I hope I can win a prize from the big contest. My mother and father both had a runaway last summer, a week apart. I hope I could join your Children's Story Telling Club. I will try to write again to your paper and try to win the prize in the big contest. From your friend, Velma May Schofield, Farwell, Michigan.

Velma, dear, I am sure you have a nice home, and I am SURE you will win a prize in the big contest—for every boy and girl that takes part wins a prize, you know. We are more than pleased to welcome you to our club, and hope that you will write real often.

Dear Editor:—I see so many nice letters in the Children's Story Telling Club that I thought I might try to write. I have four sisters and two brothers. My sisters names are Velma, Genevieve and my baby's sister, one week old, that is not named. My brothers names are Bernard and Elmer. I go to school one mile. My teacher's name is Mrs. Shepard. She is very good. My sister that is not named weighed nearly nine pounds when she was born. My sister Velma is eight years old, Bernard seven, Genevieve four, Elmer three, and I am ten years old. Bernard has a pet banty hen. We have one dog; her name is Collie. I am in the sixth and seventh grades. My mother was a school teacher seven years. I guess my letter is long enough, so I will close, hoping to see this in print soon. I would like to join your club and win a prize in the contest. Your friend, Ina Schofield, Farwell, Mich.

Thank you, Ina, for a very interesting letter. We are always pleased to have new members join our club, and of course, we are glad to welcome you. I hope you will enjoy the "Missing Word Contest" for you will certainly win a prize if you take part.

Dear Editor:—I was just reading the nice letters in your paper today. I will send a story this time. I have been in your club some time. I have a pet chicken, it is just about two months old. I call it Bill. I have three brothers. Charlie will be 21 the twelfth day of February. John is 19. Isaac will be 17 in April. I can sew on the machine. "How Ponto Was so Brave." "How Fluffy Was Pleased" are the names for the story. Will close, for my letter is getting long. From your friend, Mary Chapman, Dequeen, Arkansas.

THE LITTLE WAGON AND THE GOAT.

By Mary Chapman.

Tom was not over eight years old. Myrtle was just about ten years old. Tom and Myrtle ran to mother and asked her to let them hitch Billy up to the little wagon and go riding. Mother said that they might go, so they ran and hitched Billy up. As they went, Billy got scared and they couldn't get Billy stopped. Billy upset the wagon on them. Tom and Myrtle ran in front of Billy. Billy ran at them and they got over the fence. Mamma came to hunt them and found them. Billy ran at mamma; she got a stick after Billy and ran him away. And then they went home and said that they did not want to go riding any more.

Mary, your story about Billy is very realistic and interesting. I know a number of funny things about goats, but I won't try to tell about them this time. Write again.

Dear Editor:—I have just been reading some of the children's stories which I think are very nice, and would like to join your club. I am a girl, twelve years old. I have a brother that is around me now trying to plague me. I go to school, am in the sixth grade. Have a fine teacher; her name is Miss Flink. There are 48 in the sixth grade. I used to have two little kittens named Mutt and Jeff. I would dress them up, put them to bed and play they were sick and have the doctor for them. But they went away. I live in town now; used to live on the farm, and I would rather be there now. I will put another story in the paper and hope this one is published. Nina May, Hart, Michigan.

Nina, when I was a little girl my brothers loved to plague me; and I expect I used to like to plague them, too, but we had lots of fun playing together. I live in a big town, but I hope I can live in the country again; because, like you, little friend, I like the country best.

Dear Editor:—This is my first letter to the Children's Story Telling Club. I will give the answers to the missing word verses. 1, Years; 2, Biddy; 3, Hand; 4, Ruins; 5, Legs or feet; 6, Show; 7, Said; 8, See; 9, Squawl; 10, Head; 11, Dignified; 12, Pull. If I see this in print I will write again. Earl Bradford, Rockford, Mich.

Your is the first "Missing Word Contest" letter that I have published, Earl; but I have ever and ever so many more which will be published as fast as possible. You will receive a prize about the first of April. The contest closes the middle of March and it will take me two weeks to get all the prizes ready to send. I hope you will write again.

Dear Editor:—I have read your stories ever since the club began and would like to join. I am a girl ten years old. I have three brothers—two of them are older and one younger than I. I go to school and am in the fifth grade. My teacher is Miss Norton. I have about three-quarters of a mile to go. I will send in the answer to what I think is right to the poem: 1, Years; 2, Biddy; 3, Hand; 4, Door; 5, Back; 6, Lay; 7, Said; 8, See; 9, Peck; 10, Head; 11, Awful; 12, Peck. If this story is all right or if I'm not writing too long a letter I hope to see it in print. Your friend, Ethel Johnson, Rockford, Michigan.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

By Ethel Johnson.

One day little Mary Hays came home from school almost dancing for joy. "Why, Mary, what's the matter?" asked her mother. "Oh, Mama!" she said, "Lucy is going to have a party tomorrow. She'll be six years old. She's invited ten of us girls and ten boys. She wants us all to be sure and come. I'm going and take a big cake and six candles. I can, can't I?" Her mother smiled and said she could but not to talk so fast. "Everything was ready at last. They got on a big hay wagon and rode away. They came to a shady place where they stopped to have their party. The girls wanted to spank Lucy, but she would not let them. They played until they were hungry and then ate their dinner. After dinner little Freddie Karn was no place to be found. They found him, after a while, sitting in the creek, all wet. They had to go home then right away and get him dry. When they left Lucy they'd had a very nice time.

Ethel, that was a nice story. I notice that we have a number of good little story writers in our club and I am certainly proud of it. Now, I must say good bye, little friends, for your editor is much too sick to print many letters this week, but next week we will try and do better.

1150—A New Dress for Mother's Girl. Good style, grace and simplicity characterize this neat little model, which may be developed with or without the tur's, and which looks equally well with long or short sleeve. For ordinary wear; for school, or home, wash fabrics, such as galatea, gingham, or percale are very desirable. If warmer material is liked, there are lovely half wool suitings in plaids and checks, also nice serges, repps, voiles and cashmeres. For a best dress serge or corduroy, velvet or poplin are very good. The pattern is cut in four sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 44-inch material for a 10 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1153—A Practical, Comfortable Undergarment.

A practical feature of this model is the belt portion on the cover, which brings the fullness well above the waist line. The drawers are cut on new lines and with comfortable fullness. For lawn, cambric, muslin, crepe, batiste, silk or domet flannel, this design is very appropriate. It may be finished with embroidered scallops, of with lace and insertion. All-over embroidery could be used effectively for this style. The Pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large. It requires 3 3/4 yards of 36 inch material for a Medium size.

1169—A Simple, Up-to-Date Model. This attractive design was made of Persian silk in blue and green tones. The lines are simple and it is easy to develop. There is a choice of sleeve finish; either the wrist or elbow length are popular, with the jaunty cuff. The fronts of this waist open at the throat, and are finished with pointed revers that meet a smart collar. The closing is in coat style. This model will be equally suitable for charmeuse, satin, velvet, lace, net, madras, linen, or flannel. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a 38 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1158—A Stylish, Comfortable Model. This design is graceful and effective. It is made with surplice fronts and yoke portions to which full sections are added. The large armeye is most comfortable, and a good style feature. The plaited tunic is jointed to the waist, and the entire garment is so arranged as to give ease and comfort and also to admit of extending the waist size. The underskirt is a two-piece model. The model as here shown was made of silk crepe in Russian green, with trimming of black charmeuse. The design is also good for serge, faille, poplin, broadcloth, crepe, satin or voile. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 5 yards of 44 inch material for the waist and tunic and 2 1/2 yards for the skirt for a 36-inch size.

1083—Girl's Dress in Tunic Style, with Two-Piece Skirt Attached to an Underwaist, and with Long or Short Sleeve.

Simplicity and good style marks the design here shown. It is well adapted to any of the materials now in vogue. As here portrayed brown-checked woolen was combined with tan serge. Fancy metal buttons supply the ornamentation. This model may be finished without the revers. It may be made with a standing collar and simulated chemisette. The tunic may be omitted. The sleeve is good in wrist or short length; thus the one pattern offers suggestions for several developments. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires 4 yards of 40 inch material for a 10 year size.

1050—A Splendid Dress for School or General Wear.

Checked gingham suiting in brown and blue is here shown, with facings of white on cuff, collar and belt. The dress is made with a yoke that combines the sleeve. The long blouse is finished with a belt, and is adjusted over an underbody, to which the skirt is joined. The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. It requires 3 3/4 yards of 44 inch material for a 10 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1166—A Serviceable, Practical Model. For broadcloth, serge, cashmere, satin, poplin or crepe this model is equally desirable. The front and back portions are stitched in tucked effect over panel sections. A shaped yoke is added, that may be omitted. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 4 1/4 yards of 44 inch material for a 24 inch size. This skirt measures 2 1/2 yards at the foot with pleats drawn out.

1164—A Stylish Model. Broadcloth in Russian green, with trimming of novelty plush was used for this design. It will also look well in any of the many new coat weaves, in reversible plaids, chevits, astrakhan cloth, caracul and similar cloakings. The coat is cut in redingote style, with flaring skirt sections. The sleeve is set in the armeye and finished with a broad cuff. The Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 4 1/4 yards of 64 inch material for a 36 inch bust.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1154—A Unique and Pleasing Model. Mahogany brown cashmere with trimming of new blue taffeta is here shown. This style is also good for blue and white checked, with collar and cuffs of white pique and a belt of patent leather. Any of the pretty bright plaids would be equally effective, or a combination of materials could be used. It could be made of white linen or line, with a simple design of embroidery, a scalloped edge to replace the tucks, and have a sash of ribbon or a belt of embroidery. In measure. It requires 2 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a 38 inch size.

BOYS AND GIRLS DRAWING CLUB

INSTRUCTIONS

M. ELIZABETH HARPER,
Editor and Designer
248 Lexington Ave., N. W.,
Grand Rapids, Mich.

Cut out the outline drawing and place on a regular drawing table, fastening the paper by inserting thumb tacks at each corner. If you have not a drawing table the design may be fastened to a large pasteboard, or soft smooth board. Water colors, or crayons may be used for the work. Each section you will note is marked with a letter from the alphabet. Now begin with letter A, all sections marked A, color red; B, blue; C, brown; D, yellow; E, green; F, black.

The drawings, when completed, may be pasted on pasteboard, or in a scrap book for keeping. Parents should encourage and help their children to start. The little one will find pleasure and enjoyment in coloring the drawings. It is a good pastime, and educates the child. The Editor of the department invites correspondence and will gladly answer questions on drawing, review work and offer suggestions when stamps is enclosed for a reply.

No Trouble At All

Copyright, Puck
By M. W.

YES, I know that women boarders are often a great deal more trouble than men," said the new boarder while she was unpacking her trunk in Mrs. Skilling's boarding-house.

"But I'm thankful, Mrs. Skillings, that I am not one of that kind. No reason why a woman should be more troublesome than a man, even if the man does go off about his business every day. They said the last place I boarded that I was no more trouble than a man, because I was so willing to take things as I found them. I often say—Oh, Mrs. Skillings, I see that there is some kind of fancy soap on my washstand, and I never use anything but white castle soap. Would you mind getting that kind for me?"

"I suppose that I can."

"And I see that you have hardfinch towels in my room. Now, I prefer towels a little rough, and I like my bath towels much larger than these. Could you change these for me?"

"I'll see if I can."

"I wish that you would, please. I see that there are no pillow-shams on the bed. When one has only room, and a bed in that room, the matted pillows look so bad if one has a caller. I wonder if you could get me a pair of shams?"

"Maybe I could."

"I wish you would, please. I don't want to make the least trouble. That isn't my way, for I feel that—I'm glad the bath-room is right across the hall, for I often like to wash out my handkerchiefs and small pieces and where I boarded last the landlady was quite willing for me to iron small pieces in her kitchen, for I never made her any work doing it, as some would. Often when I didn't feel just like getting up my landlady sent my breakfast to my room. Would you mind doing that now and then?"

"Not if you were sick."

"Thank you. You are ever so kind. I don't want to make you any extra work at all, for—Oh, I notice that there are no draperies at the windows, and I think they add so much to a room. I wonder if you would mind putting up some simple muslin curtains, and I see that you have yellow shades at the windows, and I have become converted to the theory that green shades are so much better for the eyes. They lessen the glare of the sun. Could you make the change?"

"It would be a good deal of trouble."

Oh, not at all. They would send some one up from the store to do it. I don't urge it now, because I am not sure how long I shall stay; but if I stayed permanently I would want this yellowish wall paper taken off and some pale tint of green put on. Green is so restful. Oh, I meant to ask the day I engaged the room if you use unsalted butter. Do you?"

"No, I do not."

"Would you mind getting just a little for me? I can tell you where to get it. I find that it agrees with me better than salted butter, and I like the taste better. Then I never eat anything but whole-wheat bread, and I never eat warm bread of any description, and I always have a cup of hot water with a pinch of salt sent up to my room every morning."

I see that there are large nails instead of hooks in this closet. Hooks are so much nicer. Would you mind having some put in to take the place of the nails? Do you suppose that this is a mouse-hole here in the closet? I couldn't sleep a minute if I thought there was a mouse on this floor, even. Do have that hole stopped right up! Is that someone playing the piano downstairs? I hope they don't play it before ten in the morning, for I often lie abed until then and it would be so disturbing to have it played before I am up. I never make any trouble for others, and I don't like to have them make any for me. One reason why some landladies prefer men boarders is that they make less trouble than some of these fussy and exacting women, but I think that you will find that I can be as little trouble as a man.

"Now, would you mind having a raw egg sent up to me? I have one sent up every morning at eleven o'clock and another just before I retire. And I hope that you can arrange so that I can have the exclusive use of the bathroom from nine to ten two evenings a week. Is there a shower-bath? No? I wonder if you couldn't put one in sometime? Now, if you don't mind, I'll just run down to the kitchen and press out this dress. I see that it has gotten so matted up in packing and I think I'll just iron out a few handkerchiefs I washed in my room yesterday. Will you please tell Jane to put on an iron?"

THE MODERN WAY

The Whistling Girl and the Crowing Hen looked at each other and burst out laughing.

"We'll show 'em!" they exclaimed as with one voice, and then, with their heads in the air, they marched in, past any number of girls who couldn't whistle and hens which couldn't crow, and signed for the vaudeville circuit at $1,000 a week.

Times change, and what was a very sound proverb yesterday may have become, by the progress of events, quite punk to-day.

Death of Mrs. William Ramsey

Mrs. Catherine Ramsey, beloved wife of the late Dr. William Ramsey of Delta, Ohio, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Trowbridge. She was born in Lewis county New York, June 27th, 1832, and on Wednesday, March 17th, 1915, we realized she was not, for God had taken her, being almost eighty three years of age.

When two years of age, she with her parents, four brothers and three sisters came to Ohio. At Manner they were attacked with cholera, one brother falling a victim to the dread disease. They located in York township, Lucas county. Her father being a local preacher was often called from home to attend funerals, his house was at all times a home for the pioneer minister and the weary itinerant always found rest and words of cheer under his roof. She well knew the hardships and privations of pioneer life.

June 1st, 1854, she was united in marriage with Dr. William Ramsey of Delta, Ohio, who departed this life Oct. 10th, 1909. Four children were born to this happy union of whom Dr. Frank P. Ramsey of East Jordan, Mich., who with two grandchildren, Miss June Ramsey, a nurse in the John Hopkins Hospital, at Baltimore, and Paul R. Ramsey of Stubenville, Ohio, are left to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Ramsey, two years ago moved to East Jordan to be with her son and soon won the love and respect of all. In early life she united with the Methodist Episcopal church and has always been a faithful and consistent Christian. Her home was always open to the ministers that came to Delta.

"Servant of God well done
Thy glorious warfare past,
The battle is fought
The race is won
And thou art crowned at last."

A funeral service was held on Friday at East Jordan, and was conducted by Rev. T. Porter Bennett, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church assisted by the Rev. A. D. Grigsby of the Presbyterian church. The interment and other services to take place at Delta, Ohio.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. H. Cummings next Friday afternoon, Mar. 19th.

Sunflower Philosophy.

We are all fools; the only question is, who is the greatest one.

Every man seems to make a different noise when he sneezes.

A woman can always find a good excuse for going down town.

A man always has money enough to buy things not good for him.

Any boy can fool his mother, but any man cannot fool his wife.

After a thing is started, it always goes slower that was expected.

What do the people do on Sunday to make them feel so tough on Monday?

When we look at some men who say they were sent to save the world, we can't help laughing.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Presbyterian Church Notes
Rev. A. D. Grigsby, Pastor.

The lecture of Dr. Blaisdell, President of Alma College, at the Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening on "Education for Leadership" was eloquent and suggestive and was listened to with close attention, by only a small audience. We regret this as it should have been heard by as many as could have squeezed into the church. He also addressed the high school next morning in a very entertaining way, and was enthusiastically cheered. Alma College is certainly well represented in her president and is to be congratulated. He stated that the number of Freshmen is more than double of last year and that Alma is the only small college in Michigan to show such a record.

ECHO BRIEFS

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Bartholomew, Miss Hazel Walker and grandma King spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Walkers, living at the Intermediate Lake.

Scott Bartholomew has been hauling cedar the past week to Lilac's Mill to be made into shingles.

A load of young people from the Vance neighborhood drove over to attend the special meetings being held in the Bennett school house by Elder Shumaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Murray spent Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Sam Brigham's.

Miss Ruby Rabinson spent Sunday with her parents at Elk Rapids returning to her school Monday afternoon.

Several people from here attended the auction sale held at the Kowalske place west of town.

EVELINE

Miss Bertha Spidel has been visiting her father at Rapid City and aunt at Bellaire, and is expected home today.

The Friendship Circle met with Mrs. E. A. Clark Thursday last. A fine time was enjoyed by the members present. The gents came along and all joined in the merriment of the day. The chief attraction of the afternoon was the literary program. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Orvis, the 18th of March. All are invited and bring your dinner.

Mrs. Chas. Bechtold is reported as not being so well.

Fred Harnden is better and returned to school. Lots of colds these days.

Don't eat soup with a fork if you are hungry.

W. T. Azbell, ex-postmaster of Edwardsport, Ind., writes: "I suffered from severe trouble with my kidneys and back. First bottle of Foley Kidney Pills gave me relief." Thousands testify that backache, rheumatism, sore muscles, aching joints and bladder weakness vanished when Foley Kidney Pills were taken.—Hite's Drug Store.

IF YOU WEAR CORSETS then you should wear Warner's Rust-proof Corsets.

The thin double rust-proof boning used in Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets is ideal for lace-front styles. Most lace-front models have so much boning, etc. at the front that they are boxy and clumsy. Warner's thin double boning lightens the weight and gives added flexibility. It will not set nor break.

The new models shape perfectly in lines of current fashions and fit with a comfort you will appreciate. The patented protector beneath the lacings is one feature alone that distinguishes them for health and comfort.

We will appreciate the opportunity to show these Warner models to you, because we know that you will like them, and we want you to know the correct service that we offer. Every Pair Guaranteed.

Dress Fashion and Your Corset.

Skirts this season should be full at the bottom, but fit snugly around the hips and waist. Above the waist the bodice should set more closely than in the past, and fitted sleeves are once again the style.

You must select your corset to gain these lines. You can do so with a Warner's Rust-Proof model. We have styles for every figure, styles that we can guarantee to shape fashionably and comfortably.

The corset skirts are long, with rubber inserts to mold the flesh snugly at all times without binding.

You will find the natural shaped waist again correct. Thin double rust-proof boning forms the waist line easily and comfortably, and this rust-proof boning will not set nor break.

A false alarm brought out the fire department Wednesday evening. A plumber was at work in the former Holbeck residence, recently purchased by George Carr; he was using a blow torch and the flickering flames in an empty building convinced a near-by resident that the building was afire.

Will H. Griffin, manager of The Boyne Citizen and for four years identified with the newspaper business of Boyne City, resigned from his duties with the issue of March 10th. He will be succeeded by Ray Baker. "Griff" is a live wire in the newspaper field and the publisher of The Herald is indeed sorry to hear that he is planning to leave Charlevoix County. Mr. Baker is a capable young man who will undoubtedly continue to make a success of The Citizen.

Last Friday afternoon Sam Hamilton and wife, with Mrs. C. H. Raber as a passenger, went to Boyne City with an ice boat. They had a fine run up, and started back with a fair wind, making easily 50 miles per hour. Off Sequenota the outfit struck a bad "hump" in the ice. The boat was dismasted and the three passengers were thrown out. Mrs. Raber had her side injured, and Sam received a severe scalp cut. But he managed to get ashore at Coblenz farm, from whence he telephoned for a rig, which brought them home.—Charlevoix Sentinel.

Leslie Chamberlain, a former resident of this city was killed in an accident at Philadelphia, February 25th. The body was brought here and funeral services were held from the Ramsey school house Saturday last; interment at the Jones cemetery. Deceased was aged 32 years, and leaves, besides his mother, three brothers and three sisters Mrs. Glenn Bulow of this city is one of the sisters.

County Treasurer George W. Weaver reports that Jas. Cook of Marion township was the first treasurer to reach his office with the taxes of his township. Many are coming daily, and his office is one of the busiest places in the city. More taxes have been returned this year than for a long time. Many farmers and business men who have always paid their taxes when due in previous years, have allowed them to be returned this year. In the township of Evangeline over 24 per cent. of the taxes have been returned unpaid, and in many other townships the percentage will run high.—Charlevoix Courier.

Harley Ochs, pharmacist at the Central Drug Store, was the victim of a peculiar accident Sunday, in which he came near losing his eyesight. He had filled a small vial with carbolic acid and was putting in the cork, when the bottle either broke or there was a hole in it, and portion of the acid flew into both eyes, blinding him in an instant. In spite of the great pain he was in, he reached for a bottle of alcohol and applied some of it to his eyes, partially counteracting the effect of the acid. Although he suffered a great deal from the burns, they will not prove serious and he will be able to resume his work in a few days.—Charlevoix Courier.

The body of John Race, aged about fifty-five years, was found in his barn near Ironton Sunday morning. It is thought Race had lain down in the barn where he keeps one horse, and fallen asleep, freezing to death. He was very prone to sit down most anywhere and drop off to sleep and inasmuch as no evidence could be found to contradict this theory it is the plausible one. The body was not located until Sunday morning and as no snow had covered the tracks from house to the barn, and no snow had fallen since Friday, it is thought he had lain in the barn dead for two days. Race lived alone at the place and had been in ill health for a number of years. He was an old resident of this section having spent the past twenty-five or thirty years here.

STRAWBERRIES

Story and History
Of the Strawberry and
How I Grow them
And my Success as a Grower.

W. F. Tindall, Boyne City, Mich.

IRRIGATING THE STRAWBERRY.

In a previous article I stated that I would give my experience along the line of irrigation, as I have received several inquiries in regard to this subject, I will endeavor to explain the systems I have tried.

It is not very gratifying to have a drouth come along just in the strawberry season and ruin a crop you have waited one whole year to secure, yet this quite often is the case. The strawberry requires a vast amount of moisture, in fact, so much that there is scarcely a season that the rainfall is sufficient to meet their requirements; therefore, the application of water will generally produce results.

As I have a spring coming out of a hillside, I built a reservoir below and piped to it, pumping water with gasoline engine direct from reservoir. As my berry beds were on a gradual slope, with rows running lengthwise, I piped the water to upper end, furrowing out between rows with hand cultivator and applying water in furrows, but this ground has a gravelly subsoil and it was impossible to get water to lower end of furrows; also it would wet down six feet before it would go sideways six inches.

Then I secured garden hose and whirlygig sprays and this was no better, the water being applied in circular form, in order to cover all the ground it would be necessary to lap and this would make part of the ground too wet and moving the hose would break off lots of berries and unless the pump was shut down each time you wished to shift nozzels you would get a soaking.

Not being satisfied with my experience thus far I began to investigate and came to the conclusion the Skinner system would answer the purpose and after three years' test I do not hesitate to commend this system to the public. I am not in the employ of this company, in fact, I don't think they employ agents. All the dealings I have had with them have been direct.

The Skinner system consists of parallel lines of pipe, in which are inserted specially devised nozzles, located in the pipe at distances approximately four feet apart. The nozzle lines are from 40 to 60 feet apart, depending upon local conditions. I get best results at about 50 feet.

The simplest way for installing the nozzle lines is by setting posts in the ground about seven feet high, arranging them in straight lines on the top of which the nozzle lines are placed. Into the top of these posts should be placed hangers, or spikes should be driven on either side for keeping the pipes in position and facilitating their rotation. At the head of each nozzle line should be inserted a Skinner patented union; this is specially designed, having a pointed screen which prevents particles of any description passing into the nozzle line, thus clogging the nozzles. To this union is fastened a handle which enables the operator to turn the nozzle line so as to sprinkle on either side. The water is distributed in a manner which insures absolute uniformity; which covers every square inch of soil and is under the control of the operator.

For the man who has a limited supply of water there is no system to compare with this; no water is wasted and the entire irrigation is accomplished with a very slight amount of labor. I have found no bad results from using cold water on strawberries applied in this manner, for after passing through the pipes and then passing up in the air in almost a mist, by the time it reaches the ground they are both of about the same temperature.

A great many, in applying water to a crop do not begin soon enough; they wait until the plants begin to suffer for the want of moisture. This is a very serious mistake. Also, in regard to strawberries in blossom, if in need of moisture in that stage wet them down in good shape and then keep away. Do not keep everlastingly drenching them, for if so your crop will be a failure for the want of pollenization.

The same will hold good with almost any crop, when ever water is applied it should be in liberal quantity, so the ground will be thoroughly soaked. If the surface has more moisture than the lower soil, the roots will grow close to the surface and if this should be allowed to become the least bit dry, the plant is affected directly.

With this system, the water falls so lightly the very tenderest plant is not injured and it does not form a crust on the soil, but unless one has had experience, it is almost inconceivable the amount of water required on a small area during a dry season. Many make the very serious mistake of trying to cover too much ground, with the amount of water available.

If, at any time, I can be of service to any one wishing to investigate this particular system, I will gladly do so.

BREEDS OF DRAFT HORSES

BY G. ARTHUR BELL

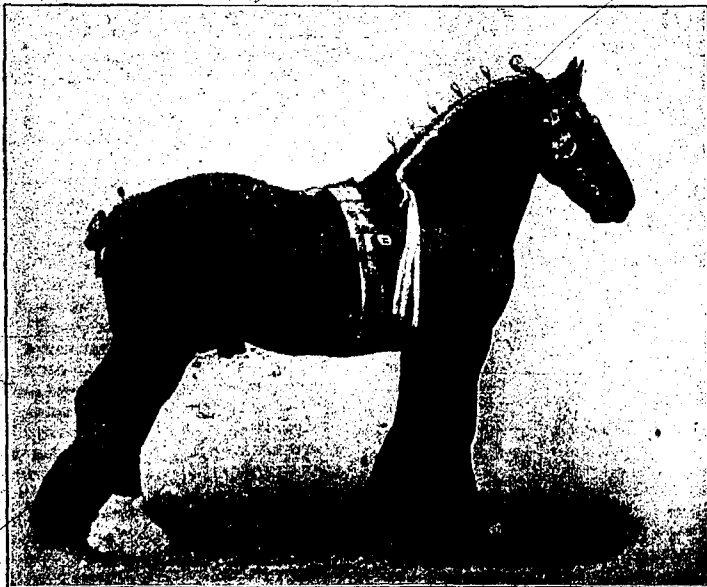

Senior Animal Husbandman, Animal Husbandry Division, WASHINGTON, D. C.

SHIRE.

The Shire originated and was developed in England, and today is bred in all sections of that country. The real origin of this breed is more or less speculative. It is known that this type of draft horse existed in England in early times. It is probable that the early Shire was of a very Shire Horse Society. In addition to the registration of horses, the society holds an annual show and sale in London, and also awards medals and prizes at the leading agricultural shows in England and at some of the fairs and expositions in the United States.

Shires were imported into this country a good many years ago. Mr. George E. Brown, in volume 1 of the American Shire Horse Studbook, states that in 1853 a Mr. Strickland imported a stallion direct from England to Aurora, Ill., where the horse was known as John Bull. Volume 1 of this studbook shows the registration of a small number of stallions imported in 1880, and these importations, increased until in 1887 more than 400 Shires were imported.

SHIRE STALLION.

The Shire is a massive horse, with a wide, deep, and long body, and is equalled in weight only by the Belgian. Shire stallions in fair condition weighing 2,000 pounds or over are comparatively common. They are less compact, or more rangy, than the Belgian and in height will average taller than any other draft breed. Stallions standing 17 hands or more in height are quite common; in fact, probably the average height of mature Shire stallions in this country is close to 17 hands. Mature Shire mares will average about 16½ hands in height and will, in fair condition, average white. From the American standpoint the abundant feather is objectionable, owing to the difficulty of keeping the legs clean.

While many Shires and Clydesdales are so similar as to render it difficult at times to distinguish the one from the other, the two types are quite distinct. The Shire is more massive, heavier bodied throughout, and the feather or long hair on the legs is more abundant and coarser than that of the Clydesdale.

The distribution of the Shire throughout the northern half of this country is quite widespread, but, like the Clydesdale, it is seldom found in our Southern States. This breed has met with the most favor in the Central West, particularly in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Nebraska; it is also popular on the Pacific coast in the about 1,800 pounds in weight. Heavy bone and feather are characteristic of this breed. In temperament the Shire is probably more lymphatic than any of our other breeds, and therefore less active than is desired by many. The common colors are bay and brown with white markings, although blacks, grays, chestnuts and roans are occasionally seen.

This breed is criticized for lack of quality and refinement in general, a sluggish temperament, the abundance of feather, and the large amount of States of Washington, Oregon and California. A great many of our best market geldings possess some Shire blood; and where height as well as bone and substance is desired, it can be derived from Shire blood with greater certainty than from other breeds.

The American Shire Horse Association was organized in 1885, and has issued eight volumes of its studbook and recorded over 14,000 animals. The secretary is Charles Burgess, Wenona, Ill.

OUR POULTRY DEPARTMENT

ERNEST B. BLETT, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Shipping Eggs By Parcel Post.

The Parcel Post has opened up a new marketing plan for the poultry farmer. It is yet in the experimental stages, but from experiments carried out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and some individuals the new way is found to be a success and the poultry farmer will do a direct business with the customer, giving the public fresher eggs at a less cost and the producer more for his goods. This plan will do away with the middleman and divide the profit he claimed in the transaction with the producer and consumer.

"In the experiments conducted by the Government 760 11-12 dozens, or 9,131 eggs, were sent through the mails in 466 shipments of from 1 to 10 dozen each. The total breakage was 327 eggs; of these, 118 were only cracked or slightly broken and were usable, and 209 (or 2.3 per cent), were broken beyond use. Ninety-one eggs were broken because the parcels containing them were handled contrary to postal rules and regulations. Subtracting these, the loss was only 1.3 per cent. This shows the possibility of shipping eggs by Parcel Post with small loss, and indicates that eggs may be so shipped with safety if existing postal regulations are observed."

Let us consider the cost of sending eggs by Parcel Post. Average hen's eggs will weigh about 1½ pounds to the dozen, or 2 ounces apiece. The weight of a single dozen of eggs in a carton properly packed and wrapped for mailing will run from 2 to 3 pounds, depending upon the weight of the particular container.

It would not be advisable to send a shipment smaller than 2 dozen and for container and wrapping, 8 cents; for postage, 9 cents—or a total of 17 cents, which would be 8½ cents a dozen, marketing cost. Marketing a 5 dozen parcel would cost about 13 cents for container and wrapping and 14 cents postage, or a total of 27 cents. The postage rates here used are those within the first and second zones. The rate to farther zones are higher.

The above figures include the cost of a new container each time. From experiments the larger container may be used two to four trips quite satisfactorily. This will reduce the cost of shipment considerable and show a greater profit for the shipper.

Get a few customers in a nearby city to furnish strictly fresh eggs weekly delivery and start the development of a greater egg farm. Customers are plenty and willing to pay high prices for fresh eggs. The opportunity awaits the producer.

POULTRY POINTERS.

Are the breeders in healthy condition?

Feed for sitting hens should be whole corn.

Exercise is essential to keep breeding stock in pink of condition.

Be careful not to move or do anything to scare the fowls.

Empty orange boxes make good nests for the smaller breeds. These you can easily secure.

Proper ventilation in the brooder house goes a long way toward the success of raising healthy chicks.

Do not buy an incubator because it is cheap. A cheap machine may be very expensive in the long run.

Charcoal is an excellent aid in arresting bowel complaints and should be fed to breeding stock and young chicks.

Take a foot square of grass sod and place it in one corner of the brooder pen and note how much is left of the roots and how the little chicks enjoy it daily.

Don't think because the incubator or brooder has a regulator—that it will regulate the machine with the lamp flame turned up to the highest notch. You must partly do the work with the lamp yourself.

It's queer, but it's so, many hens that look to be in the pink of condition and are in the best condition are seldom caught in the trap nest. They are the drones, every flock of any size has them. Then there is the hen with low vitality, she, too, seldom visits the nest. It is surely as essential to breed from our best for utility and vitality as high scoring. The trap nest is the only sure way to do this and it teaches you things you can never learn about breeding and poultry unless you use the trap nest.

There seems to be a very common belief that the direction of the wind on the equinoctial day, will determine the general state of the weather for the next three months. It has been stated that if the wind came from a northerly direction, the next three months from March 21st would be cold, but if balmy breezes blew from the south, April, May and June would be warm.

Just how much, if any, dependence can be placed upon this weather proverb is difficult to say. There are cases when it will work, but it is not a reliable guide, as wind currents vary at different altitudes. Much depends upon the position of the observer whether on hilltop or in valley, as to which direction the wind blows. Bodies of water, trees, buildings, etc., all have a tendency to alter the true direction of the wind.

Two observations taken a few miles apart have shown the wind blowing in opposite directions. It could hardly be expected to find radical changes in climate between the two places during any one season. It is advisable not to place too much confidence upon these wind directions in this sense.

March 21st to 27th.

About Sunday, the 21st, the storm detailed in last week's forecast is expected to be moving over the eastern states and off to the Atlantic ocean, drawing in much colder weather from the northwest, with high northwest winds and clearing skies in central sections of the United States. The crest of this cool wave will appear in the west about Monday, the 22nd, but gradually moderate as it moves eastward so that by the middle of the week the weather will be dry and warmer east of the Mississippi, with temperatures nearer the season's average.

Tuesday, the 23rd, temperatures will rise in western sections of the United States, reaching Mississippi valley, lake region and Ohio valley about Thursday and eastern states Friday.

On Wednesday, the 24th, the storm center will appear over the western coast of the United States, with high winds and local heavy rains, moving over the Plain states by Thursday, Mississippi valley Friday and eastern states at the end of the week. This storm center does not promise any heavy general rain for the continent, more occurring from the tail-end of this influence, which will cross the country from Friday, the 26th, to about the 30th of March.

A sudden change to cooler will be likely to endanger spring growths in widely scattered localities about the 26th, but the temperature generally will not fall low after this storm. A reaction to storminess, warmer and freer distribution of precipitation will start in the Rock Mountain region about Friday, the 26th, covering the eastern Rocky Mountain slope and Plain states by Saturday, with windy and stormy conditions.

Best days to plant for a bountiful yield are Wednesday and Thursday, the 24th and 25th.

This department has been created for the convenience and service of our readers. Letters touching any matter upon legal advice that is desired should be addressed to The People's Lawyer, 619 Twelfth St., Canton, Ohio, with a stamp enclosed, for personal reply by mail.

DEEDS.

A deed is a simple written paper which transfers a person's interest in real estate. No laws in any state require observance of many rules in the drawing of these papers, yet imperfectly drawn deeds have proved to be the basis of countless lawsuits.

The old common law understanding of a deed is: "a writing sealed and delivered." The old English construction of the word comprehended mortgages, leases and such papers, but now a deed is understood to refer only to real estate.

Observing the old common law, statutes in every state require that a deed be written, sealed and delivered. These conditions seem inconsequential, but as a matter of fact, are very important.

Printed forms of deeds can be had of any real estate man and on these forms must be written a clear description of the property to be transferred. Then the person who is selling or transferring the property—called grantor—must sign his name. Two witnesses must sign their names at testing the signature of the grantor. Then the paper must be sealed by a notary public or some official having similar powers and delivered by the grantor or his authorized agent, into the hands of the person to whom the property is to be transferred. When those things have been done the ownership of the property has changed.

The description of the property in a deed probably is the most important part of the document. Such descriptions must be written in the technical language of a civil engineer, describing minutely the exact measurements of the land. A deed need not contain the name of the person receiving the property. When the deed is filed with the keeper of county records it will be filed in the name of that person.

It is possible in all states to give a deed that does not carry to the receiver the immediate right of possession or enjoyment of the property. Ordinarily it is best to show in the deed that it is given for a consideration, though the actual consideration need not be mentioned.

Although there were an unusual number of forest fires in the national forests of Oregon and Washington this year, the loss of merchantable timber has been relatively small.

Because of drouth conditions there is considerable fire danger in the forests of the east this fall.

It is reported that there is a big market in Hawaii for box shooks for packing canned pineapple and pineapple juice.

During the past two years forest officers have killed nearly 9,000 predatory animals, more than three-fourths of which were coyotes.

Only 7½ per cent of last season's 400 fires in national forests of Utah, southern Idaho, western Wyoming, and Nevada, caused losses in excess of $100.

Virginia uses more wood for boxes and crates than any other state, followed by New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, and California, in the order named.

Two governors, those of Oregon and Massachusetts, have suspended the hunting season this year because of increased danger of forest fires when the woods were exceptionally dry.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey lead all other states in the quantity of wood used for making tobacco pipes, and utilize apple wood, French briar, ebony, birch, red gum and olive wood.

The position of city forester is now offering a new field for men with technical training in forestry. Fitchburg, Massachusetts, is one of the latest towns to secure a forester of this sort.

Cherry is the wood most used as a backing for the metal plates from which illustrations are printed in magazines and periodicals. It is chosen above all others because it holds its shape, does not warp or twist, works smoothly and does not split.

Because of extreme drouth, the fire risks on the national forests in the northwest have been greater this season than in any other since 1910, the worst year since the forests were created. Much less damage was done this year because experience in fire fighting was gained in the fires of 1910.

ANNUAL DISTRIBUTION OF NATIONAL SEEDLINGS

Five Thousand Walnut Trees Distributed in 1914 Cost Citizens Two Cents Each

Mt. Pleasant—The agricultural department of the Central State Normal School at Mt. Pleasant, under the supervision of Prof. M. S. Cobb, announces its sixth annual distribution of walnut seedlings.

The interest manifested in this undertaking is evidenced by the increasing demand for the seedlings. The first year about two hundred (200) were sent out. In 1914 five thousand (5,000) were distributed, with orders for two thousand (2,000) more than they could supply. From now on it is expected to grow a sufficient number to meet the demand, whatever it may be.

The seedlings for this year's distribution are those grown from walnuts gathered in 1913. The method of raising them is rather interesting. The nuts are put in a damp place, subject to alternate freezing and thawing. In the spring they are planted, much as you would plant potatoes. They grow very rapidly, attaining the height of 2 1/2 feet the first season, at which time they are ready for the market.

The Nut Growers' Association have become much interested in the work being done by the Normal and this year have asked the privilege of enclosing circulars for distribution with the seedlings, in which they are making some prize offerings.

It is more desirable that orders be taken through the schools or other organizations with a central distributing point as this minimizes the labor in a great measure and also lessens the cost of transportation. The seedlings will be distributed in time for setting out on Arbor day, and teachers are especially urged to interest pupils in this work, take their orders, and see that they are properly instructed how to set them out.

There are many children in central and northern Michigan who have never seen a walnut tree nor know the delights of gathering nuts.

The price of the seedlings is put at two (2) cents apiece, which covers the cost of production and transportation. No order of less than twelve (12) cents will be filled.

Plant is now being freely shipped to South America from New York city.

BEST SUPERIOR ROSBURY HILL HOME

Tells How Vinol Restores Strength and Vitality to the Weak, Worn-Out Ones in Her Charge.

Rosbury Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y. — "I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for run-down, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. I supplied Vinol to her liberally and in a month when she returned to thank me I hardly recognized her. She was strong, her color charming and her cheeks rounded out. These words are uttered from my heart, in order that more people may know about Vinol, as there is nothing makes me happier in the world than to relieve the sick." — Mother M. ALPHONSA LATHROP, O.S.D., Hawthorne, N. Y.

Such disinterested and reliable testimony should convince everyone of the merits of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic to build up health and strength for all weakened and nervous conditions, whether caused from overwork, worry or chronic coughs and colds. If Vinol fails to benefit we return your money.

Temperance

(Conducted by the National Woman's

DESIRE OF WHISKY VICTIM.

Some years ago in a village of western New York on election morning the recognized village toper went to the polls. He asked for a temperance ballot, and a liquor seller got him one, supposing a joke was at hand. Folding it as best he could with trembling hands, the clear-eyed, bloated-faced, ragged, unkempt man went to the ballot box and registered his wish. Then they began to scoff and sneer at the drunkard who had cast a temperance vote. "A pretty temperance voter you are," said one. "Why, if there was a bottle of whisky yonder there at the top of that liberty pole, and if you could have the whisky by climbing the pole at the risk of your life, you know you'd climb." And then the drunkard straightened himself up as best he might and answered them. "Know it!" he said, with trembling, painful emphasis: "Know it! Oh, yes, I know it. And I know another thing, gentlemen—if the whisky wasn't there I wouldn't climb."

TRIED AND CONVICTED.

It is one of the most cheering signs of the times that the cause of temperance is steadily gaining champions in the United States congress. This from Representative Clyde Kelly of Pennsylvania: "The American saloon has already been tried and convicted in one-half the territory of the United States, and in the remaining territory where it still waves the Stars and Stripes it will soon be seeing the stars and wearing the stripes. Facing the facts and knowing the meaning of the struggle, the liquor interests are forming a battle line of gigantic strength. We accept its mighty challenge, for we know that with this giant wrong overthrown many others which have marred and scarred humanity for generations will go crashing down in one great heap of wreck and rubbish. And crediting that, we do not ask how many the enemies are, we only ask where the enemies are."

NO FINANCIAL PANIC.

The American Machinist recently published a chart showing the number of workers (wage-earners, proprietors and executives) engaged in twelve of the manufacturing industries of this country. The following are the figures:

Foundry and machine shop products	1,117,851
Lumber and timber products	784,989
Printing and publishing	388,466
Cotton goods	387,771
Men's clothing	271,487
Iron and steel	250,732
Shoes and shoes	215,923
Tobacco products	197,637
Women's clothing	197,021
Meat products	168,716
Malt liquors	66,735
Distilled liquors	8,323

If all the breweries and distilleries were to close their plants tomorrow there would be no panic in the business world, only a little readjustment.

HER LITTLE LECTURE.

A young man, in company with several other gentlemen, called upon a young lady. Her father was present to assist in entertaining the guests, and offered wine, but the young lady asked, "Did you call upon me or upon papa?"

Gallantry, if nothing else, compelled them to answer, "We called on you." "Then you will please not drink wine, I have lemonade for my visitors." The wine glasses were set down, with their contents unaltered. After leaving the house one of the party exclaimed, "That was the most effectual temperance lecture I ever heard."

POLICEMEN AGAINST SALOONS.

"How many of you would like to see all the saloons closed?" asked Catch-My-Pal Patterson of 200 policemen who had gathered at the mounted police headquarters in Chicago to hear him speak. All but about twenty-five men stood up.

Capt. Charles Healey, who introduced Mr. Patterson, took occasion to say that no man who drank could remain on the mounted police force.

CHEERING NEWS FROM TEXAS.

The farmers of Texas are organizing to "oppose the liquor traffic and to assist in all proper ways in driving liquor out of the state." Since farmers are a potent factor in the making of "dry" states, this is a cheering sign of the times for the Lone Star State.

COLORADO BANKS GAIN.

During the six weeks immediately following the adoption of state-wide prohibition the state banks of Colorado made a gain in resources of $1,575,639.89. The real estate dealers say that saloonkeepers and bartenders are buying ranches and truck farms.

BREWERS' VIEW.

"There are even companies and individual employers who threaten to discharge employees for drinking alcohol at any time. They do not care if that is social and economic slavery. Their main object is to protect their pocketbooks." — The Brewers' Journal.

The louder a man talks the more he reminds us of a bass drum.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENTS

For City Commissioner.

I wish to announce myself as a candidate for the office of City Commissioner, subject to the City Primary March 22nd. I served as a member of the common council at Cheboygan, have been a resident of East Jordan for seven years, and feel confident that if nominated and elected I will be able to give the citizens of East Jordan good and capable service.

J. ALLAN LANCASTER.

East Jordan, Mich., Feb. 5th, 1915.

For City Commissioner.

I wish to announce that I will be a candidate at the City Primary Mar. 22, for the office of City Commissioner to succeed myself. Your support will be appreciated.

CHAS. A. HUDSON.

For City Commissioner.

I wish to announce to the electors of the city of East Jordan that I will be a candidate for the office of City Commissioner at the city primaries to be held March 22, 1915.

JAMES GIDLEY.

For Supervisor, South Arm.

To the Voters of South Arm Township. I will be a candidate for re-nomination for the office of Supervisor at the caucus Mar. 20th. Will duly appreciate your support.

JACOB E. CHEW.

"GRAVE" JOKES.

There is a whole quart of truth in that old jingle about "A little nonsense now and then," etc. A statistics recorder would have a dry time indeed. Here are samples of some of the things he finds on death certificates under the heading Cause of Death.

"Went to bed feeling well, but woke up dead."

"Died suddenly at the age of 103. To this time he had fair to reach a ripe old age."

"Do not know cause of death, but patient fully recovered from last illness."

"Deceased had never been fatally sick."

"A mother 'died in infancy.'"

"Died suddenly, nothing serious."

"Pulmonary hemorrhage—sudden death. (Duration four years.)"

"Kick by horse shod on left kidney."

"Don't know. Died without the aid of a physician."

Deceased died from bloodpoison, caused by a broken ankle, which is remarkable, as his auto struck him between the lamp and the radiator."

"Blow on head with axe. Contributory Cause—Another man's wife."

County Normal Notes.

The normal class enjoyed a four course dinner at the home of Miss Cora Driggett last Saturday evening. The room was beautifully decorated with the class colors green and white. Place cards were made of the same colors. Miss Driggett proved herself a very delightful hostess.

Mr. Ward Genett was absent last Wednesday on account of illness.

Miss Hazel Reall entertained the normal class with an iceboat party last Monday afternoon.

Miss Ruby Hooker was elected bill clerk for the House of Representatives, last Tuesday morning at the session of that body.

Miss Edna Srigley, a member of last year's class was a normal visitor last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Ward Genett spent Saturday and Sunday at his home in Norwood.

The children in the training-room studied about Daffodils last week.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our most hearty thanks to all the friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the illness and death of our dear mother. Geo. A. Anderson and family.

Can You Imagine—

Jenny Lind singing "Casey Jones?"

Henry Ward Beecher tangoing with Queen Victoria?

Martin Luther using a safety razor to sharpen his quill pen?

Cleopatra and her retinue shopping for asps in a modern circus?

Abraham Lincoln in pink silk pajamas and smelling of talcum powder?

George Washington in a green and blue Balmacaan and a purple hat with a bow at the back?

Christopher Columbus saying to Queen Isabelle: "Believe me, kiddo, there's some patch of ground over on the other side of the pond, and we oughta cop it off. You gitma, doncha?"

It's easy for a man to fool a woman—if she really wants him to.

SHOCKING!

An ornery pup was Ignatz Grand,
His conduct was distressing;
He went into the kitchen, and
He watched the salad dressing.
—Cincinnati Enquirer.

He roams around the house at will—
And no one's pardon begs;
He went into the dining room
And saw the table's legs.
—Temple (Tex.) Telegram.

A naughty dog was Ignatz Grand,
He really was too flip;
He stood upon the door-step, and
He saw the weather strip.
Louisville Herald.

This Ignatz Grand we read about
Had nerve beyond compare;
He sat beneath the maple, when
He knew his limbs were bare.

Household Helps

After washing quilts and comforts and while they are still on the line, but nearly dry, beat them with a carpet beater and they will be wonderfully light.

Dresses that have been laid away in drawers for some time often become creased. Hang them in front of the fire for a while and the creases will disappear.

Colored dresses of any sort should always be washed in water in which salt has been sprinkled and then hung out in the shade. Colored materials should never be hung in the sun.

QUICK ACTION WANTED.

When one is coughing and spitting—with tickling throat, tightness in chest, soreness in throat and lungs—when head is aching and the whole body racked with a cough that won't permit sleep—he wants immediate relief. Thousands say Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is the surest and quickest acting medicine for coughs, colds, croup and la grippe.—Hite's Drug Store.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN Fried Apples.

Wash and wipe dry as many apples as are desired, do not peel, but remove the cores. Slice them in half inch pieces and fry in bacon drippings until tender, but not so long that they will lose their round shape. To most tastes they are improved by a slight sprinkling of salt and pepper. If preferred, the pieces can be dipped in fritter batter before frying.

THEY KNOW IT'S SAFE.

Parents who know from experience insist upon Foley's Honey and Tar Compound when buying a medicine for coughs, colds, croup and la grippe. C. T. Lunceford, Washington, Ga., writes: "I have used it for six years and it never has failed. I think it is the best remedy made for coughs and colds." — Hite's Drug Store.

Our best intentions often go lame. True friends seldom come in bunches. Beware of the man who grins when he gets angry.

It's human nature to want other people to be liberal.

Deliver us from the man who loosens up only when tight.
