Several Trainloads of Produce

Shipped out of East Jordan via E. J. & S. R. R.

That the region around East Jordan is fast forging to the front with its farm products was brought forcibly to the writer's attention this week, when Wm. Sloan of the East Jordan & Southern Railroad informed us that during the past season the road which he represents had shipped out from East Jordan ONE HUNDRED and EIGHTY CARLOADS of potatoes, TWENTY-SEVEN carloads of apples, in addition to a large number of carloads of other farm products.

While the E. J. & S. R. R. is undoubtedly the main carrier for East Jordan's produce shipments, thousands of bushels have been shipped out the past season via the D. & C. R. R. and the boat lines.

Just what the total amount that the region around East Jordan produces and is shipped to the markets of the country would be rather hard to determine, but the figures presented by Mr. Sloan is mighty good evidence that the farm land in this region is productive. And when you stop to consider that only a minor percentage of the available land hereabouts is under cultivation, the possibilities of this region for farmers looms large on the agricultural horizon.

MODERN FABLES

Once upon a time in a little 1906 model county seat there dwelt under the roof of his immediate paternal ancestor a gay and spritely youth named Ferdinand. And Ferd's name bore with it many tales of evil, for here, be it known, Ferd fit into an assignment of labor like a two hundred and ninety pound damsel fits into a twenty-four inch Spirella. The village sages figured Ferd as of no account, the business men wondered just how long the old man's bank account would hold out and the young men secretly envied him and wondered how he continued to get by.

But the young ladies could see no alloy in Ferdinand and whenever the folks referred to him as an synonym of shiftlessness they arose to his defense with the declaration that he was a perfectly divine dancer. Now dancing was Ferd's long suit, his forte, his strong point. Bounded anteriorly by the latest model haircut, posteriorly by patent leather, and bodily by broadcloth, Ferd was as nimble as a fly on a plate glass window. The Palace France, the Gander Glide, the Serpentine Slip, of any of the new gyrations that drew the shekels into coffers of teachers of modern dancing were as easy for him as lying in bed until ten in the morning, listening to the sound of his father's axe dissecting logs into stovewood.

But one day Ferd's source of revenue died. After the funeral the executors learned that the sole heritage of the legatee consisted of two hundred dollars in unpaid bills, mostly of his own contraction, and about seventeen dollars in real coin of the realm. Immediately the denizens begun to see strange illusions. The pictured Ferdinand in overalls and exercising at real labor. But Ferd had no such hallucinations. Immediately upon being informed of his financial status he spent six bones for a new pair of dancing kicks, and that night while the city slept Ferd beat it.

A year passed and none of his creditors heard from him. Even the Ladies Aid had lost all interest in him when the bolt fell. One morning as Deacon Simmons was secretly reading the theatrical page of a city paper, he saw Ferd's face smiling at him and below the picture the type said: "Brilliant Young Dancer Signs Vaudeville Contract at Monstrous Salary." The reverend gentlemen at once circulated the news over the town, always backing it up with the words, "I always told you he would succeed."

East Jordan Military Co. To Be Part of the Michigan National Guard

STATE MILITARY BOARD UNANIMOUSLY ACCEPTS COMPANY "X." WILL PROBABLY BE COMPANY "I" THIRTY-THIRD INFANTRY.

The people of East Jordan are jubilant—and they have a perfect right to be—for on Sunday last a telegram came to Capt. H. L. Winters of Company "X," from the State Military Board stating that the Board had, at their session Saturday at Detroit, voted unanimously to accept the East Jordan Military Company as an infantry, Company of the Michigan National Guard.

The possibility of Company "X" becoming part of the State Militia has been hanging fire for some time. Battle Creek was East Jordan's real competitor for state honors but for some reason that city of over 25,000 inhabitants was unable to produce the necessary men. Muskegon came into the race at a late hour and were not considered very strongly.

A jollification was held in our city, Monday, and among our out-of-town guests was Editor Willard A. Smith of the Charlevoix Sentinel—dean of northern Michigan scribes, and also one of the most enthusiastic rooters for Company "X." This is what Editor Smith says of the affair:

"Monday afternoon and evening the writer was present at the funeral of Company X. In the evening the company turned out for parade and drill to the cadence of East Jordan's excellent band. At ten o'clock the "burial" took place at Taylor's Inn at a smoker and banquet. Representative McMillan was toastmaster, and, besides the officers of the company, there were present a number of prominent East Jordan citizens and several outside guests. It was a very enjoyable jollification.

"It is expected that the new company, (which fills the vacancy caused by the mustering out of the Manistee company), will be mustered in within the next week or ten days. The company will go to Grayling camp in August fully equipped as National Guardsmen. As Company I will be the only company between Ludington and Cheboygan, the honor belongs to Northern Michigan. But we are permitted to say that the success of Company X was due chiefly to two causes—the excellence of the personal of its rank and file, and to the fact that the people of the city of East Jordan were behind the company enthusiastically.

"Between this and August 11th, the officers will keep the men moving in preparation for camp, and we predict that the boys will compare favorably with any country company in the brigade, and will be a credit to the service. Already several applications have been made for enlistment."

MICHIGAN STATE MILITARY BOARD LANSING

June 14, 1915.

From: The Acting Adjutant General of Michigan.
To: Capt. Henry L. Winters, East Jordan, Michigan.
Subject: Muster in of the East Jordan Company.
1. In confirmation of my telegram of June 12th, you are hereby informed that the State Military Board voted unanimously to accept the East Jordan Independent Military Company, of which you are the Commanding Officer, as an infantry company of the Michigan National Guard.
2. Your designation will probably be Company I, 33rd Michigan Infantry, although this has not been fully decided.
3. You will be given notice of a week or ten days in which to prepare for inspection and muster by Gen. John P. Kirk, Brigade Commander and Chief of Staff, and Col. Walter G. Rogers, Quartermaster General. Arms and equipment now stored at Manistee will undoubtedly be shipped to East Jordan.
4. Under the terms of your letter, a minimum of sixty-five enlisted men and three officers must be presented for muster. In all cases where men are eighteen years and below twenty-one written consent of parent or guardian to join the National Guard must be presented.
5. The probable date of the muster will be in the neighborhood of June 26th to July 4th.

REV. ROBERT SIDEBOTHAM CALLED TO PASTORATE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

At a business meeting of the First Presbyterian Church held Wednesday evening, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. Robert Sidebotham of Minnesota to become pastor of the local church.

Rev. Sidebotham was in our city a few weeks ago, enroute from an Assembly meeting of the church in the east to his home, and occupied the Presbyterian pulpit, Sunday, and a very favorable sentiment was at once created toward calling him to the local pastorate. At the meeting Wednesday evening the entire church membership and their friends were a unit in inviting the reverend gentleman to become their pastor.

Mr. Sidebotham is a young man of thirty-three years, and is a graduate of Princeton University. He is a man of pleasing appearance and will be a power for the upbuilding of the cause of Christ in our community.

To Serve Tea and Sandwiches

An easy way of serving a cup of tea is to place the cup on a matching plate and put a folded tea napkin, a spoon and a fork on the plate. Then pass whatever sandwiches or cakes you may desire to serve with the tea. They can be accomplished on the plate and daintily and easily eaten.

If elaborate cakes or sandwiches are served with tea and no plate is provided it is difficult to manage them balanced on the saucer of the cup. If a separate plate is held under the cup and saucer, it is practically useless, for the saucer so nearly fills it that the margin at the edge is not wide enough to accommodate the cakes.

Of course when a simple wafer or easily eaten sandwich is to be passed with the tea, the saucer of the teacup is sufficiently commodious to accommodate it.—Ex.

The Military Minstrels

Annual Affair Next Tuesday At Temple Theatre.

The members of Company "X," under the direction of Messrs Gruber and Phillips, and assisted by others of our summer theatrical colony have been practicing for several weeks for the big annual event of Military Minstrels. Everything will be new except the name, and an evening's entertainment will be given next Tuesday at the Temple Theatre that will be worth anybody's fifty-cents, the price of admission.

New Songs and New Jokes will be served together with High Class Vaudeville seen only in the larger cities.

Among the latter attractions will be Hartman and Varady, a European team of Sensational Society Dancers. Their dances are entirely different from those previously exhibited in America, with a touch of the dash and fire of their native Hungary. Incidentally Hartman and Varady are the champion long distance dancers of the world, holding a record of sixteen hours continuous dancing won in San Francisco, May 18, 1910.

Then there will be the vaudeville team of Phillips and Bergen in high class Monologue and Songs.

The evening's entertainment will be closed with the farce comedy afterpiece "The House of Troubles," in which you will get your money's worth of laughter.

On the night before the entertainment (Monday) plans are being made for a parade in which Company "X" and the East Jordan Military Band will participate.

ALONG CAME RUTH

"Elsie, you look absolutely blue," declared Ruth as she appeared in her cousin's bed-room, and found her sitting amid a litter of clothes. "What in the world has gone wrong?"

"Well, it's just this," sighed Elsie. "I haven't a new thing to wear to the commencement dance next week, and all the other girls are to have new clothes. I've been hoping to have this old white lace shawl made up, but it looks so old and discolored, that it would never do. See how spotted it looks."

"Why, I know an easy way to freshen lace," said Ruth. "I'll tell you, and you can apply it to this shawl and go to the dance looking as if you had on an absolutely new lace dress. This is what you must do: Dampen the lace and press out all the creases with a cool iron. Then fold and tack into a silk handkerchief which must completely envelop it. Soak for twenty-four hours in pure olive oil, and afterward boil for twenty minutes in a lather of good white soap. Lets begin on it right away."

"Ruth, you are certainly an angel," declared Elsie, as she ecstatically grabbed and kissed her.

Kitchen Kinks.

When making juicy pies, insert two or three pieces of macaroni in the center of the pie to stand upright. The juice will bubble up into the macaroni instead of running over the crust.

If hash is stirred, it is better to use a fork instead of a spoon, as it will make the hash lighter. Instead of stirring hash, some cooks allow it to remain until it is nicely browned on one side, then turn with a pancake turner so as not to break the crust that is formed. This makes a nice looking dish when the hash is slipped onto a platter.

ONE SPOONFUL GIVES ASTONISHING RESULTS

East Jordan residents are astonished at the QUICK results from the simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., known as Adler-i-ka. This remedy acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and is so THOROUGH a bowel cleanser that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE SPOONFUL of Adler-i-ka relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. ONE MINUTE after you take it, the gasses rumble and pass out. JAMES GIDLEY, —Druggist.

GOOD ROADS DEPARTMENT

CONDUCTED BY
Michigan State Good Roads Association
P. T. Colgrave, President. Hastings, Michigan.

Hastings—The Michigan State Good Roads Association through its president, have engaged the services of Mr. Z. D. Dunlap, Assistant Director General of the National Highway Association to conduct a state wide campaign in the interest of the association.

Mr. Dunlap comes to Michigan with a national reputation as a Good Roads Booster and bears the O. K. of the Ohio State Federation. It is our earnest desire that Mr. Dunlap may be received cordially everywhere, and that when he leaves Michigan he will take with him favorable impressions of our state as compared with states which mark his activity.

The Dixie highway is coming into Michigan. In our next week's article we shall have more to say about this great thoroughfare.

In order that we may be made better acquainted with Mr. Dunlap and appreciate him more a little later, I desire to give a few of his ROAD-ISM.

Organization we must have in every county and state if we expect congress to take any real interest in the road question. Every other interest is powerfully represented at Washington.

European wars don't worry our roads. Get busy and do your part in lifting Michigan out of the mud.

Good roads and a merchant marine will be worth more to this nation than an ocean filled with battleships.

We lead the world in everything else, why not in Good Roads?

Don't put a gauge on your enthusiasm for good roads. There are no meter rates.

Road improvement is for your own personal benefit and profit.

If you are a progressive citizen, you are interested in Good Roads because you cannot progress so long as your State and Nation remain in the mud.

Do you realize that bad roads are costing you enough each year to make those roads permanently good?

Only through moral suasion and appeal to men's reason can the Good Roads Movement succeed.

Ninety per cent of travel is between towns and between cities.

Mr. Manufacturer, Merchant and Professional Man, you should take a hand in helping to create a strong and powerful sentiment for good roads in Michigan.

Congress must set a definite plan for a national solution of the road problem under Federal auspices, and Congress cannot postpone action much longer.

The advent of the automobile has done much to improve road conditions and not only made road enthusiasts out of knoekers, but has acquainted the city folk with the conditions and the surroundings of rural folk.

Don't worry relative to what becomes of the $5. The Michigan Good Roads Association does not expect to spend any part of it on you. There are many sections of the state that need the education which can only be given by a state organization. Put your shoulders to the wheel and help. Don't lag behind waiting for the other fellow to start; the other fellow might die.

Your work in the road movement must be in earnest, zealous and unselfish.

This is an age of progress in the United States in every sense, and the progressive movement should include within its scope the improvement of every important road in the country.

The improvement of raw highways is always followed by the improvement of all things which mean better road conditions: We must have cheaper transportation over our roads. The movement of either 1912 or 1913 crops cost the agricultural interests of the United States $137,000,000 more than it ought to.

The men taking an interest in behalf of the good roads movement are citizens worth while to a community.

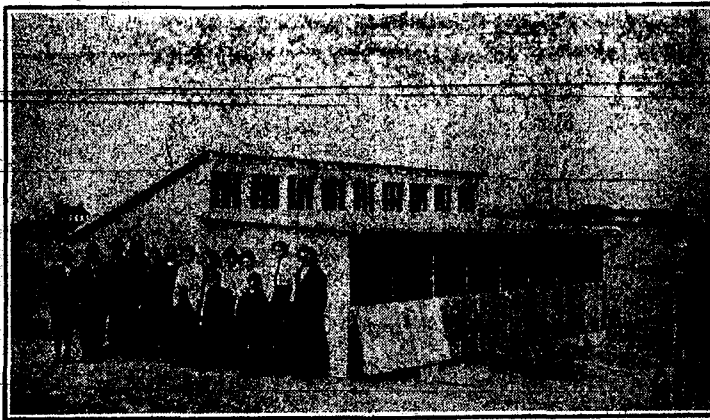

Don't get impatient because the endeavors of the Michigan Good Roads Association do not bring immediate results. Remember, Rome was not built in a day. Don't say "Don't" to any proposition respecting better roads. A "don'ter" never grew into into an "I willer" and "I can'ter."

The biggest thing conceived is the easiest thing to do, so do your part in making Michigan the home of good highways.

market when not sold to club members or individuals for setting. To prevent inbreeding, however, the roosters of a different strain may be substituted each spring. One of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's specialists will this fall visit the school and farms in the vicinity of Middletown, and help select the best poultry for breeding purposes. These breeders will be retained on the farms

A schoolhouse also may be made the center for collecting eggs fresh from any part of the country within a fair distance, as the school children come daily to the school, and can easily bring the fresh eggs with them. These eggs can be marketed in the city and bring special prices, because on which they were grown and thus the farmer or school child who has once obtained a setting of eggs will not need again to apply at the school for more.

The school club members are very enthusiastic about their work and at the fall and winter shows carry off most of the prizes. At the first egg show held last year, some 50 dozen they can be guaranteed as strictly fresh.

The poultry club in addition affords a chance to exchange breeding fowls and the introduction of new blood into the flocks. It also provides a valuable outlet for the energies of the young folks who are interested in things pertaining to the farm.

HOME CARE OF MILK

Milk Sour Very Slowly at Low Temperatures; Clean Receptacles Aid in Keeping Milk Sweet; Whipping Cream.

With the advent of warm weather the care of milk in the home becomes more complex than during the late autumn and winter. Heat to the extent accumulated by allowing milk to stand on a warm porch or in the sun is enough to start the bacteria in milk to multiplying at a rapid rate and thus make it unfit for use as sweet milk, according to the dairy specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. The hot days also bring the flies, the great germ carriers, and the clouds of dust laden with bacteria, which, when coming to rest on milk receptacles, may easily contaminate the milk.

Milk is regarded as a natural culture medium for bacteria, and the rapidity with which the various forms will multiply, under the proper temperatures, is astonishing. It has been shown that if a cubic centimeter (about 1/2 teaspoonful) of milk containing 10 bacteria is kept at 68 degrees temperature for 24 hours, the bacteria will have multiplied into about 61,000. In the same milk, if held at 50 degrees, the growth of bacteria would be very small, possibly as low as 40 in 24 hours. Milk which contains a large number of bacteria is either not fresh or has come from a diseased cow or has otherwise been contaminated.

Flies are possibly the most dangerous bacteria carriers which are likely to come in contact with milk. These scavengers may convey the germs of typhoid fever or other contagious diseases from the sick room or excreta to the milk. Typhoid epidemics have been caused by flies spreading the germs. Milk should be guarded from flies as rigorously as you would avoid exposure to disease.

Cows are now out on pasture, and milk is more easily produced under sanitary conditions than during the winter months when the cows are stabled continuously. Milk may be handled by the farmer in the most correct and sanitary methods known, and yet if it is not cooled immediately after milking and kept cool until consumed, it very soon begins to change and grow sour. In fact, the bacterial content increases rapidly as long as the milk remains above 50 degrees Fahrenheit. The bacteria are dormant or increase slowly at a lower temperature. For this reason, every precaution for keeping milk cold from the time it is produced until it reaches the consumer is essential; and especially so during the warm weather.

Milk may absorb impurities whenever it is exposed to the air, or placed in unclean vessels. The amount or degree of contamination depends on the cleanliness of the air and of the utensil. Even the air of a so-called clean room contains some impurities. If the producer and dealer have done their duty, there is left at the consumer's door a bottle of clean, cold, unadulterated milk. But the consumer also has responsibilities in handling milk so that it continues to be fit for consumption, especially as food for babies. The milk in the home may be placed in unclean vessels or exposed unnecessarily to the air, or not kept cool until the time of using. Thus things may happen to the milk affecting its quality, many of which are caused through carelessness.

Receiving Milk at the Home.

The expression "a bottle of clean, cold, unadulterated milk" describes the kind of milk which should be delivered to the home. The method of dipping milk from large cans and pouring it into the customer's receptacle in the street, with all the incident exposure to the air, not always the cleanest, is a bad practice. Drawing milk from the faucet of a retailer's can is almost as bad as dipping milk, although the milk is not exposed to the air as long as by the dipping process. Besides the insidious part of this method, some consumers, unless the milk is kept well agitated, are likely to receive less than their proportion of cream. The custom of setting out at night an uncovered vessel which collects thousands of bacteria from the street dust before the milk is put into it, is obviously very insanitary, and yet it is practiced to a large extent. If milk is to be received in a bowl or pail, by the consumer, it is worth while to have it delivered personally to some member of the family, or if the receptacle is to be placed in waiting for the milk deliverer, it should be covered with a plate, or better still, a glass preserving jar may be used, in which nothing but milk is put. The jars with the glass tops are preferable; no rubber bands should be used. Direct sunlight on the bottle of milk warms it rapidly, and increases the bacterial content. Milk which is delivered very early in the morning, say at 4 a. m., and remains out-of-doors until 9 or 10 o'clock, is very likely to become warm and less fit for human consumption than if it were taken in the house and placed in the refrigerator early in the morning.

Milk should not be transferred from the original bottle into another receptacle until just before consumption. The bottle should be kept covered with a paper cap, or an inverted tumbler as long as the milk is in it. Milk deteriorates by exposure to the air in the pantry, kitchen or nursery. Housewives are familiar with the ability milk has to absorb smells from strong foods, like fish, cabbage, or onions. It is obvious, therefore, that such foods should be kept out of the refrigerator which contains milk.

If the milk is received in a bowl, pail or other receptacle, instead of a bottle, the same rules apply to the keeping of the milk as those mentioned above for bottled milk. Milk from the grocery store or bakery which is kept in a can, open most of the time, and possibly without refrigeration, is to be strictly avoided.

Care of the Refrigerator.

The refrigerator, unless kept scrupulously clean, often is in itself a source of production of bad flavor in milk. The refrigerator should be inspected at short intervals, at which times the outlet for the melted ice should be freed, the ice-rack cleaned, and the place where the food is kept scalded with sal-soda solution. Even though the refrigerator is cold, a few drops of spilled milk, or a small particle of food neglected, will soon contaminate it.

Care of Milk Bottles and Utensils.

Milk bottles are made for milk and not to hold sundry other foods. As soon as the milk bottle is empty, it should be rinsed with lukewarm water until it is clean, and then set bottom-side-up to drain. Bottles should never be returned in a dirty or filthy condition. All utensils with which milk comes in contact should be rinsed, washed and scalded every time they are used. When cleaning these utensils, do not wash them in dish water or wipe with ordinary dish towels. First rinse them and then boil in clear water and set away unwiped. If the receptacles are hot, they will soon become dry without wiping.

When a baby is bottle-fed, every time the feeding bottle and nipple are used they should be rinsed in lukewarm water, washed in hot water to which a small amount of washing soda has been added, and then scalded. Never use a rubber tube between the bottle and nipple.

If a case of typhoid fever, scarlet fever or diphtheria breaks out in the family, do not return any bottles to the milkman except with the knowledge of the attending physician, and under the conditions prescribed by him.

Whipping Cream Should be Cold.

The above suggestions on the care of milk are equally applicable to cream. Often the housewife finds that the cream she has will not whip. The department dairy specialists point out that to obtain satisfactory results in whipping cream it should be cold and of the right thickness, containing about 30 per cent or more of butterfat. Ordinary cream, designated as coffee cream by the trade, is altogether too thin to give good results. The whipping cream, as delivered by the milkman, contains 30 to 40 per cent of butterfat. Thoroughly chill the cream before whipping by placing in a covered bowl on the ice. The whipping process is also aided and hastened by standing the bowl in a pan of ice water.

TWILIGHT STORIES FOR LITTLE FOLKS

By Paul Leake

Ben Breaks the Whips.

Sitting on a stump in a pasture field just outside the village, Ben basked in the sunshine of early spring. Drawing his knees up under his chin he listened to the calls of the robins. He had heard his mother talking of the great war going on across the seas, and with her felt sorry for the poor men who had to give their lives in battle, and for the poor crippled soldiers being taken to the rear, jolted and jarred in the rough carts. He also heard how a boy had proved a hero.

Ben wished he was that boy and could carry a sword, or better yet, ride a big horse into the smoke and roar of battle. He was startled out of his day dream by a great shadow which flitted across the meadow. Looking up he saw what he thought was a great big bird slowly circling in the sky, coming gradually lower and lower until it was so close Ben could see it was a flying machine. Watching it he was surprised to see it settle slowly and gently to the meadow. A man got out and came toward him.

"Good morning, Ben," said the stranger with a pleasant smile. "I heard your wish up there in the clouds. If you will come with me I will show you some of the things you would like to see."

Ben looked at the stranger, then at the medals he wore. Upon every one of them he saw the word "peace."

"Yes, Ben," said the stranger, answering the boy's unspoken thought, "these are peace medals. You will find when you grow up, it takes more courage to deserve one of these than it does to go out and kill your fellow men. You wished you could ride a big horse into the smoke and roar of battle. If you will come with me I think you will change your mind. Mama knows you are going, so she will not be worried."

Ben followed the stranger into the flying machine which rose like a bird in the air. Over fields, rivers and lakes they flew; over mountains and plains, down by the great sea and along the coast to a southern city. Here the airman paused above a great lot filled with horses and mules which were being loaded into a steamship. The poor frightened things were put in slings and lifted on the steamer by big machines. Leaving there, the airman went straight across the ocean, to far distant shores; above vine clad hills and finally above a great black forest. The rumble and roar of big guns could be heard and cries of men hit with pieces of bursting shells. The airman let his machine down in a field and with Ben got out. Right before them were team after team hauling big guns, stuck in the mud. Drivers were using great big whips on the poor struggling animals which were trying so hard to pull. Right alongside of Ben was a fine looking man who had a great whip with which he was beating the horses.

"Stop that!" cried Ben and grasping the whip he broke it in several pieces. Then he went to the others and did the same. Men fell back before his just anger. The horses rubbed their noses against Ben's coat in gratitude. He unhitched them all and they ran away into the forest just as a lot of men on horses with drawn swords came dashing at the boy, who with the stranger, ran to the flying machine, and rose with it into the air. Bang, bang, bang, went the machine guns and bullets whistled all around the flying machine.

"Ben, Ben! what are you yelling about?"

"I don't care," said Ben as he opened his eyes and looked into his mother's eyes. "I broke the whips any how. Mama when I grow big I do not want to ride a horse into the roar and smoke of battle."

His mother then knew he had been dreaming again.

COMMUNITY POULTRY BREEDING.

Offers Chance to Build Up High Standard of Poultry; Virginia County High School Distributes Eggs From Pure Bred Stock; May be Readily Adopted Elsewhere.

(Prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture)

Community breeding in poultry offers great opportunities for the improvement of poultry stock, and also for the marketing of poultry and eggs. The Pentula district of California, where white Leghorns are the predominating breed, approaches the community breeding idea. In certain localities in the east there are extensive duck farms, but no one particular locality seems to confine its breeding operations entirely to one variety. At Middletown, Va., the county agricultural school has undertaken a sort of community breeding of poultry, which promises far-reaching results, and which can be easily adopted and followed out in other communities. predominating breed, approaches the community breeding idea. In certain localities in the east there are extensive duck farms, but no one particular locality seems to confine its breeding operations entirely to one variety.

At Middletown, Va., the county agricultural school has undertaken a sort of community breeding of poultry, which promises far-reaching results, and which can be easily adopted and followed out in other communities. The agricultural high school draws from a large area students who are primarily interested in agriculture pursuits. Here a single flock of about 30 pure bred Plymouth Rocks forms a nucleus for the distribution throughout the district of eggs for hatching. The students have formed a poultry club, and are furnished eggs from these pure bred fowls. But the students are not the only ones to benefit from the flock. Their parents and anyone within the county can obtain a setting of eggs for hatching in payment for which they return in the fall one of the chickens hatched from the eggs. The members of the club and other individuals who obtain eggs to start raising pure bred stock, however, have to pledge themselves to hatch only eggs from this source. Thus from this single flock there is being built up in the community practically one pure bred strain of poultry.

The care of the poultry is part of the schoolhouse janitor's work, and the poultry is systematically cared for by one attendant rather than under a hit or miss plan, where a number of school children "try their hand" at feeding the fowls.

Two male birds are kept with the 30 hens only during the breeding season and eggs are sold in the open

Route of Dixie Highway Which Terminates in Mich.

Starting from Miami, Fla., Running Northwardly and Giving Michigan More Road Than Any Other State Along the Route.

Grand Rapids—According to the reports of Philip T. Colgrove, Hastings, Dallas Boudeman, Kalamazoo, and Walter K. Plumb, Michigan representatives at the meeting of the Dixie highway commissioners in Chattanooga, Tenn., the Dixie highway will run from Miami, Fla., to Chattanooga, Tenn. The east loop will take in Lexington, Ky.; Cincinnati, Dayton, and Toledo, O., connecting with the Lincoln highway at Toledo. The west loop will run from Chattanooga to Louisville, Indianapolis and Chicago, connecting with the Lincoln highway.

From Chicago north through Michigan the Dixie highway will be via Niles, Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, then west to the Western Michigan pike at Grand Haven and thence to Mackinaw; then by way of the Huron pike will take in Cheboygan, Alpena, Bay City, Saginaw, Flint, Pontiac, Detroit and connect with Toledo.

Michigan gets about 1,000 miles of the Dixie highway or about twice the mileage of any other state, and this state, according to Surveyor John C. Nellist, has 1,460 miles of improved roads in the upper peninsula and 2,600 miles contracted for in the lower peninsula, with a ferry at Mackinaw, as one of the highway features. It is anticipated that federal aid will be given the Dixie highway.

Requirements for Highway.
Requirements for the Dixie highway are that all the roadway must be graded and marked with special Dixie highway cement markers each mile and at each cross roads by September, this year. The second year the road must have a well graded and properly drained roadbed, have a gravel or macadam surface, be marked and planted every 60 feet with trees suitable to each locality, and in the third year must be standardized and made permanent with either water bound macadam, tarvia or concrete.

If any district fails to meet the requirements the route may be changed to some other district willing to do so. Each county will build its own section of the highway.
All Michigan roads to the state line are in shape to qualify for the first year's requirements, except as to marking, and the pike is quite well planted with trees.

May Dedicate Thanksgiving.
The Dixie highway organization will have one director for each state traversed by the highway and probably a representative in each county covered. It is also proposed to have the official dedication of the Dixie highway on Thanksgiving day.

TO MAKE A SOIL SURVEY OF CALHOUN COUNTY, MICHIGAN

Washington, D. C.—The United States Department of Agriculture will send representatives of the Bureau of Soils to make a complete soil survey of Calhoun county, Michigan. The party, it is expected, will take several months to complete the examination and mapping of the soils of the county.

The Department requests co-operation on the part of farmers and land owners with the Federal soil surveyors. They should be given facilities to make borings and sample the different soils. They will be provided with credentials which will be shown upon request.

As soon as they have completed their investigations, they will make a large map showing the various kinds

Nothing can be good for everything. Do it, one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for one thing only.

For weak or disordered kidneys. Here is reliable evidence of their worth.

Mrs. A. Trombly, East Jordan, Mich., says: "My back ached most of the time. Often when I stooped, sharp pains caught me in my side. My head ached and I got very dizzy. Specks seemed to be floating before me. The kidney secretions passed too frequently. I knew I must get something that would help me and seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended, I got them. Two boxes brought me so much relief that I bought another and since using that I have not been troubled."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Trombly had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

OUR BOYS and GIRLS

Proving A Proverb.

"A stitch in time saves nine," said mother, leaning over Molly and showing her where the tiny rip had begun in the pocket of her plaid dress. "It is just a little place now, and you know how to backstitch it just as well as I, and so I am going to leave that for you to do. That is the dress you will wear to the fair."

Molly sighed. "I will do it by and by," she promised herself. She did not intend to leave it for her mother. She knew with three brothers there were a great many stitches to take. But bedtime came very soon, and the mending was not done.

The afternoon of the fair came, and Molly flitted about like a happy sparrow. Her father gave her a bright fifty-cent piece. The admission was only ten cents, and she would have money for ice-cream.

Her friend Ethel called early, and they joined other girls near the hall, and as they went up to buy the tickets Molly reached in her pocket. She felt about nervously. "Why, I surely took my money didn't I?" she cried; but Ethel could give her little hope when, turning up her friend's dress, she saw one pink finger sticking through the hole in the pocket.

"Oh, I forgot to mend my pocket!" she cried, in dismay. "And now there isn't time to go back—and I'd be ashamed to ask papa again. What shall I do?"

What she did do was to sit down on a bench and hide her face in her little red jacket, for she was not a very big girl, and the tears would come. Just then her teacher came along, and seeing the trouble, said, "Never mind, Molly, I will take you along, and you can tell papa all about it when you get home."

Molly did not like this way very much, but there seemed to be no other way; but the afternoon had grown suddenly out of tune. She was still disappointed, although Ethel generously shared her ice-cream money.

The day which had begun so well seemed to go upside down, and Molly was glad when the time came to go home. She had thought of a great many things—of how her mother mended and worked for herself and the boys, and how seldom she had been asked to help in any way. She determined to do the right thing always after this.

When she came home her father and mother were eager to hear about the fair, but Molly passed them with her head hung down, and went directly to her room, and found needle and thread and sewed the rip in her pocket. Then she came down to show her mother.

Her father laughed, but mother put her arms round Molly. "It was too bad, little girl; it spoiled your day, and I hope you will learn by this lesson. But you did not lose the money out of the hole; you left it at home on the mantel. Nevertheless I still think 'A stitch in time saves nine,' don't you?"—Youth's Companion.

A DIFFERENCE IN SIDES.

But the Young Rebel Couldn't Break His Habit.

Among the prisoners taken during the Civil War by the Northern men was a young fellow who made the lives of the boys in blue miserable by constantly crowding over their defeat at the battle of Chickamauga.

"Maybe we didn't eat you up at Chickamauga," he would say to every one with whom he came in contact, until the soldiers could stand it no longer, and reported the matter to headquarters.

He was summoned before Gen. Grant, who arraigned him for his conduct, and gave him his choice of swearing allegiance to the Union or going to a Northern prison. After considering the matter for a time the young fellow decided to swear allegiance to the Union. He took the oath and was then dismissed. He started away, but stopped as he reached the door.

"Say," he said.
"Well," said Grant, as he turned differently from the desk, having dismissed the matter from his mind.
"I was just thinking," the young rebel replied, "they sure did give us hell at Chickamauga."

Don't neglect a summer cold. A bronchial cough causes broken sleep and lowers your vitality. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound soothes and heals raw, inflamed membranes, stops tickling in throat and clears stuffy, wheezy breathing. Contains no opiates; children like it; good for all colds, coughs, croup and bronchial affections.—Hites Drug Store.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

(Conducted by the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.)

BREWERS URGE MODERATION?

The annual meeting of the United States Brewers' association was recently held in New Orleans. Commenting on the printed report of that meeting, Henry J. Allen, in the Wichita-Beacon says:

We note that the deepest concern of the annual meeting was, as usual, for the taxpayer. They made it perfectly plain to everybody that so far as the brewers themselves were concerned, they didn't care anything for prohibition—they could, in fact, sell more booze under prohibition than without it—but they did not want the government to lose the revenue, they didn't want the taxpayer burdened; they just wanted everything to go on in a free and easy and open way, with the taxpayer as he is now in the states where the saloons run the politics.

And above all, the brewers urged "moderation," not in drinking, but in the language with which the discussions against liquor are carried on. They also desire to save the hop and barley fields from being destroyed. While prohibition increases beer sales, it apparently ruins the hop and barley crops.

One gem from the wisdom of this convention is that "beer may be substituted for bread."

Frequently it is also substituted for shoes and school books and clothes and meat and house rent and furniture. In fact, a liberal use of it will make it a substitute for everything except the grave.

Another piece of philosophy garnered from the book of brewers' wisdom is that "the only difference between bread and beer is that bread is baked, while beer is boiled."

It did not add, however, that the user of it is frequently stewed.

EX-SALOON KEEPER TESTIFIES.

A former Red Wing (Minn.) saloon keeper, Mr. Lohman, now engaged in the clothing business in McHenry, N. D., recently visited his old friends in Red Wing. While disclaiming any pretensions to being a total abstainer, he gave some excellent testimony to the value of prohibition.

"One reason why we are not anxious to have a saloon in our town is that it would draw the kind of people from other places that we do not want; we like a good, clean town."

"It is said so often that prohibition does not prohibit, Mr. Lohman," remarked a reporter. "If a man goes to McHenry and wants a drink, can he get it?" "No, not for love nor money," replied Mr. Lohman with emphasis. "There is no liquor to be had in our town except for medicinal purposes." "Then a crowd of young men cannot start out and have a gloriously good time in McHenry?" "I should say they cannot," replied Mr. Lohman, "because there is no place where they can get the liquor. There has been no bootlegging during the last few years. The law is being enforced rigidly and there is no evidence anywhere of drunkenness."

BETTER LIE LOW.

The following incident is told by the Philadelphia North American Review:

"A West Philadelphia liquor dealer recently consulted an acquaintance in the real estate business about the advisability of transferring his license from a side street location to a Market street corner. The change would involve an increased investment. 'Stay where you are,' counseled the real estate expert. 'You would get a more prominent situation by moving; but that, in my judgment, is just what you should avoid. Better stay where you're tolerated. If you try to get out on Market street, you'll only attract attention and stir up opposition. Public opinion is getting mighty sensitive about the saloon business, and you'd run the chance of losing the place you've got.'

"I guess you're right," said the saloon-keeper. "I put the proposition up to one of the biggest men in the wholesale trade. 'Don't think of it,' he said. 'Don't invest another dollar. And make all you can now, for inside of ten years we'll all be put out of business.'"

SLUMP IN VALUES.

Federal Judge Landis of Chicago, undertaking to dispose of the 89 licenses that came into his possession with the bankruptcy of the Fossett Brewing company, found that while a year ago licenses brought from $2,500 to $2,800, but one offer was made, and that for only $1,200. This he refused. Fear of successful antisaloon legislation is the reason given, brewers, speculators and license brokers anticipating further dry activity.

EASY TO BUY MEDICINES.

"Why what's happened, little girl?" he asked soothingly. "Did my silent approach startle you?"

"No—not that!" she whispered. "Someone was here at the door—just a moment ago!" And in a low tone she told him quickly of all that had happened.

Cornish stood thinking for a moment. Then he took the revolver from Adele and went outside. Impatiently she awaited his return, but it was more than ten minutes before he slipped quietly back again.

"I can't find anybody loitering about," he said uneasily. "I can't understand what MacBee can be doing about here. He couldn't have possibly known where we were going to land. Whoever took the boat did us a good turn, however, as the inspector would have been able to place it in an instant. Don't worry. The man at the door may have been a tramp of some sort seeking shelter for the night. In any event, you go to sleep and forget it. I'll keep a sharp lookout."

His reassuring tones were like a tonic to her, and, rallying quickly from her fright, Adele asked eagerly what he had been doing all day.

"Carrington and Sir Harry will be here tomorrow," Cornish told her.

"You had an answer to your wire?" she asked incredulously.

"I did better than that," he replied.

"I talked with Farndale over the long distance telephone. I spoke guardedly, of course, and even if Scotland Yard had been listening on the wire, they will not be able to make anything of what passed between us."

How splendid! Adele exclaimed with enthusiasm. "Luck certainly seems to be with us."

"Doesn't it?" Cornish agreed, although he was far from sanguine after having heard of the day's happenings about the shack.

"Carrington and Farndale will leave London tonight in Sir Harry's motor, announcing their intention to spend a fortnight at Sir Harry's shooting lodge, which is only a few hours' ride from here. They'll run out to the village about a mile from here to pick up a Mr. Gilmore, the gentleman who suggested the trip by telephone this afternoon."

"But what about Lord Harcourt—and a doctor?" Adele went on.

"I couldn't take a chance of bringing one out here tonight," Cornish explained. "The village is only a small one and I wouldn't trust to the medico's keeping his mouth shut. I'll meet Farndale when he arrives tomorrow and then we'll make a detour of the village, running close enough to the shack here to carry Harcourt to the machine. How does he seem?"

"About the same, I think." It's strange he doesn't regain consciousness. It frightens me sometimes, yet I believe he is safe enough," Adele said. "Oh dad, it would be terrible if anything happened to him—if you—"

"He will be all right," Cornish said, quieting her. "You're just tired and overwrought, that's all. We'll pull him through this and the other things as well. Thus far we've succeeded in outwitting MacBee, and everything will come out right before long, I'm sure."

"Oh, I hope so!" Adele said, wearily.

"I almost forgot!" Cornish said with a smile. "You must be nearly starved." And he handed her a package of food he had brought from the village.

"I haven't thought of eating until now," Adele said, "but I believe I am a bit hungry."

"I don't wonder," her father answered. "When you've eaten just turn in and get a sleep. I'm going out to watch the ocean and smoke a cigar. The smoke won't do him any good in here."

And he stepped out, eager to renew his search for the mysterious visitor who had eluded him so successfully.

"A nice mess you've got yourself into, Henry Cornish!" he muttered to himself. "But you've started this thing and you're going to see it through!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

Kandwahr Once More.

By nightfall, twenty-four hours later, the little party was safely installed in Sir Harry Farndale's shooting lodge, an attractive old building of rough stone that stood in the center of his vast preserve. It was a small house, but comfortable, and Farndale, anticipating just such a possible need for the place, had sent out servants to make it ready the week before.

Fortunately the shooting season was at its height, so the departure of Sir Harry and Carrington seemed perfectly natural when reported to Scotland Yard. After talking over the telephone with Cornish, Farndale had consulted with Carrington, and they had decided to take Harcourt's family physician into their confidence. Consequently, Dr. Maybrooke was with them in the motor when they met Cornish at the little village hotel. To the townsfolk who hung about the little inn, there was nothing unusual in the meeting, and over their luncheon in the public room, the four men made their plans without interruption.

And now, having accomplished their purpose, they dined with perfect satisfaction at the hunting lodge, while Harcourt lay in bed in the little attic room overhead, safe from the discovery of any chance visitor. Quarters had also been fitted up for Adele and Cornish on the top floor, as it had been decided best for them to remain out of sight in case strangers happened in. Only Sir Harry's servants and his chauffeur were aware of the guests at the lodge, and as there was no house within several miles, they felt reasonably secure against prying eyes.

Dr. Maybrooke had immediately examined Harcourt with the greatest care, and had reported favorably upon his condition. At first he had seemed a bit puzzled over the injured man's condition, but after working with him for more than an hour, the physician had come down to dinner with a satisfied air.

In spite of the gaiety they felt over their success thus far, each of them felt strangely troubled, and strove as best they might to keep their individual fears from the others. Nevertheless, the unexpected appearance of MacBee in the neighborhood had set them all thinking, and it was the unexplained presence of some other mysterious danger that kept their nerves at the highest pitch.

As soon as the meal was over, Adele hurried upstairs to see how her patient fared, and after a cigarette, the doctor followed with Cornish. Sir Harry and Carrington remained at the table smoking quietly, each busy with his own thoughts. Carrington, in spite of his anxiety, was supremely happy at seeing Adele again, and at the first opportunity he meant to tell her of the fact.

"It was quite dark now, and finding it warm inside, the two men stepped out on the long low veranda that ran around three sides of the lodge.

"Dicky," Sir Harry said, and he puffed at his cigar thoughtfully. "I'm wondering if I'm been foolish."

"How so?"

"Sir Thomas and Grace are coming up tomorrow. Of course I told them all about it before we left, and as soon as she learned that Harcourt was injured, she absolutely insisted upon seeing him."

"I don't know," Carrington answered hesitatingly. "It can't do any harm that I can see. Marston's coming would be natural enough, and there's nothing to excite suspicion in her running up for a few days. Naturally she is anxious to be near him if he is in physical danger too."

Suddenly a loud puffing broke the stillness of the evening, and the two men sprang into the roadway.

"What the devil!" Farndale exclaimed, and in another moment the lights of a big automobile silhouetted their figures sharply against the lodge wall. The car drew up with a grinding of brakes, coming to a standstill within a few feet of the house.

"Who's there?" Sir Harry called out, trusting that the noise of the car's arrival would warn those upstairs to keep out of sight. Carrington looked up carelessly as though looking at the sky, and noted with satisfaction that the little attic window was dark. He was sure, however, that someone was standing behind the blinds looking out and listening at the open casement.

The throbbing of the motor ceased with a final rattle, and a figure in a long gray coat and cap leaped out of the machine. Pulling off his goggles the man came quickly toward them.

"It is I—MacBee," he answered, stepping into the light from the doorway.

For a moment the two men stood petrified, gazing silently at the detective. Then Sir Harry, recovering his poise in an instant, extended his hand and greeted the inspector cordially. "This is a surprise," he said with a smile. "Dicky and I only arrived a couple of hours ago ourselves. Have you had dinner?"

"Frankly, I haven't," said MacBee, "and if your question can be construed as an invitation, I shall be delighted to accept it."

"By all means," said Sir Harry, his heart failing although he concealed his annoyance successfully, as he led the way into the dining room. No doubt Marlin can still get up a fairly acceptable meal for you. Have a drink of something?"

MacBee declined and sat down wearily. "I had a wire from London this morning stating that you had started for here," he explained in answer to their queries, "and being in the neighborhood tonight thought I'd take a chance of finding you."

"But what on earth brings you up to Scotland?" Carrington asked.

"Business," MacBee answered. "You're likely to find me most anywhere. Perhaps I'm watching you," he added slyly.

"Indeed," laughed Sir Harry. "Then permit me to offer you a bed for the night and a gun in the morning—if you're not too tired to get out at dawn with us."

"I'd like to do it—nothing better, Sir Harry—really I would," said MacBee with genuine regret. "But I'm up here on a little hunting expedition of my own that will keep me quite busy."

Carrington looked sharply at him, but neither MacBee's tone nor expression gave the slightest hint as to his thoughts. "Is it permissible to ask a question?" Sir Harry said.

"Quite to ask—but not for me to answer, I am afraid," MacBee replied. "I must be off at once after I have eaten, and have had a little chat with you—if you will be good enough to pardon my seeming rudeness."

"Certainly," said Farndale. "But I wish you could change your mind and stay over with us. Are you alone in the car?"

"Yes," said MacBee. "I have two men down in the village, but I ran out myself."

"The inspector ate hurriedly, but with evident enjoyment. When he had finished he pushed back his chair and took out his pipe, declining Sir Harry's offer of a cigar. "I suppose you gentlemen are aware that Mr. Cornish's yacht succeeded in evading the revenue cutter that was sent out in search of her," MacBee said as he lighted his pipe carefully, watching the two closely through the blue haze of rising smoke.

"Yes. We saw the accounts of the affair in the papers this morning," Farndale admitted. "Is there any later news about her?"

"No," said MacBee. "The Murita showed the cutter a clean pair of heels. She was discovered only a few miles off the coast near here, but slipped away in the darkness. Mr. Cornish certainly is a daring gentleman—the type of American millionaire that dares anything—even to evade the law—to attain his own desires."

Both Carrington and Farndale nodded, and waited with ill-concealed impatience for him to continue. Naturally they were nervous, speculating upon the possible knowledge of the inspector. They were thinking of the trio hidden upstairs, and wondering whether MacBee's carefully-assumed ignorance was only a blind—if he really knew or suspected that the three were there. The thought of Harcourt suddenly regaining consciousness and making an outcry that might betray him, occurred to both of them. So they both fidgeted in their chairs, fervently hoping in their nervousness that the detective would go shortly.

"I hope that you will both believe me to be sincere when I say that I am working in the interests of Lord Harcourt as well as those of the law," MacBee said at last, knocking the ashes from his pipe. "No one wishes to see his name cleared of this charge more earnestly than I do, but I want to warn you gentlemen that you will only make my work harder, and harm both your friend and yourselves if you make any foolish moves now."

MacBee looked keenly from one to the other of them.

"I don't think I quite understand," said Sir Harry.

"Pardon me," said MacBee with an indulgent smile, "but I think you do understand, perfectly. I may as well tell you that I am perfectly well aware of the fact that an attempt was made to set Lord Harcourt ashore when the cutter discovered the Murita. I don't know where the Murita is at this moment, but it would be quite unsafe for her launch to make any effort to touch anywhere along the coast of British Isles at the present time."

Sir Harry broke in hastily. "Let me assure you, Mr. Inspector, that we have not the slightest intention of attempting to communicate with the yacht in any way. Mr. Carrington and I are here for a fortnight's shooting, after which we will return to London."

"I don't think I quite understand," said Sir Harry.

"Pardon me," said MacBee with an indulgent smile, "but I think you do understand, perfectly. I may as well tell you that I am perfectly well aware of the fact that an attempt was made to set Lord Harcourt ashore when the cutter discovered the Murita. I don't know where the Murita is at this moment, but it would be quite unsafe for her launch to make any effort to touch anywhere along the coast of British Isles at the present time."

"Then since we understand each other thoroughly, I will bid you good night," said MacBee. He arose and put on his coat.

"Shall we see you soon again?" Sir Harry asked as they walked into the entrance hall.

"Possibly," MacBee replied. "My movements depend largely on circumstances. I may remain in this neighborhood sometime, or I may be called away suddenly. I hope you will enjoy your shooting. What is that?" he exclaimed suddenly, glancing toward the window overlooking the veranda.

A tall slender figure in a flowing white robe passed before the glass and disappeared suddenly in the darkness of the night.

Both Farndale and Carrington gave a start but before MacBee could spring to the door, Farndale recovered himself and answered quickly, "Oh, that is Major Marston's Sepoy servant. He is an expert with guns and the major lent him to me for our stay here."

"Oh," said MacBee with a smile. "I thought it might be a ghost."

The unexpected appearance of the servant had startled Farndale and he was afraid that the man's presence would suggest the coming of his master as well, but his presence of mind and prompt answer had apparently satisfied MacBee, so he gave no further thought to the matter, and a moment later the detective's car shot away from the house and disappeared around a turn in the road.

"What do you make of him?" Carrington asked when the detective had gone.

"One of two things," said Sir Harry. "Either he knows that Harcourt is here, and it suits his purpose to pretend that he does not know, or else we have completely outwitted him. In any event he purposely came here to warn us to be careful. We must be on our guard. Lord! I'm glad he didn't accept my invitation to remain with us over night!"

"One thing certain," Carrington made Marston keep that Indian, Baj-hab indoors where no one will see him."

"Right-o!" Farndale agreed as they went inside and Sir Harry went up stairs to tell Cornish that the coast was clear once more.

In a few moments the American and the doctor joined them, eager for news of their talk with MacBee. "I, too, have news," Dr. Maybrooke announced. "Lord Harcourt was conscious for a few minutes. He is asleep again now, but when he awakens next time, he will be out of all danger."

"Bully!" Carrington exclaimed. "But how the devil are we going to keep him here quietly when he is strong enough to move about. He will soon learn where he is and with his idiotic ideas about giving himself up it will be almost impossible to make him stay."

"That will make no difference," said the doctor, shaking his head. "The task will be an easy one for the blwy on his head has made him forget everything. He does not even know who he is, and his mind seems to be a complete blank. His own name means nothing to him and I am sure that he recalls nothing of the murder or how he was brought here."

"Astounding!" exclaimed Sir Harry. "Will he always be so?"

"No, I think not," said Maybrooke reassuringly. "All he needs is some strong suggestion of the past, and it will all come back to him like a flash. He saw Miss Cornish and her father but did not recognize them. In fact he does not even know me. If he should suddenly come face to face with Inspector MacBee or hear Capt. Townshend's name spoken, however, I believe he would remember everything in an instant. Even the arrival of Miss Marston tomorrow may have that effect upon him. The suggestion of any of those things or persons that have weighed upon his mind in this trouble may bring back his memory. The fact that Mr. Cornish's presence did not do so is not strange because Mr. Cornish has been constantly trying to get his mind off those subjects."

Cornish puffed meditatively at his cigar. "Then as I see it," he said, "we must take care that Harcourt neither sees nor hears anything to bring the past back to him for a time."

"Exactly," said the doctor. "All that is necessary is to build up his strength, and when his memory returns he will be none the worse for the lapse. When he does recall it all, however, his mental attitude may be less difficult to handle. In any event, I hope the whole mystery may be solved by that time and there will be no danger of his making a false step that might tend to incriminate him."

As he spoke there was a slight noise at the window behind them. Like a flash the four men turned abruptly. Sir Harry took a step forward, and then stopped short.

The Children's Story Telling Club

Essilyn Dale Nichols, Editor

1527-35 St., Rock Island, Ill.

Send Manuscript and Letters for this Department Direct to the Editor of this Dept.

Dear children:—We will begin our letters right away—as we have been doing, for I am sure you are all anxious to see your letters in print.

Dear Editor:—Last week I sent you my letter but I guess it was too late to be printed; hope to see it in print next time. I will fill out the Missing Words. 1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Biddy—4 Floor—5 Feet—6 Lay—7 Said—8 See—9 Look—10 Head—11 Smiling—12 Pull. Yours truly, Floyd McPhall, Marlon, Michigan.

No, Floyd, your first letter wasn't too late to be printed; but it had to wait its turn as all the children's letters do. I think your first letter has been printed. I hope you received the prize I sent you.

Dear Editor:—I have been reading the children's stories in the Story Telling Club and I think they are very nice. I am eleven years old and in the fourth grade. I cannot go to school very often on account of a sickness. We like our teacher very much; her name is Nina Harper. I have a mile and a half to walk to school. We have two dogs; their names are Nicholas and Jack. I have a cat; her name is Rose and I have three chickens. Guess I will close or my letter will be too long and I hope it isn't. I would like you to send me a membership card. Hoping to see my letter in print. From your friend, Marie Schultz, Dutton, Michigan.

Here are Marie's Missing Words: 1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Small—4 Words—5 Feet—6 Set—7 Said—8 See—9 Pick—10 Head—11 Solemn—12 Pull. Marie—You wrote a very nice letter. I sent you a membership card; also a prize for your list of Missing Words. I hope you received them both.

Dear Editor:—I was very glad to get the card you sent me, and I would have written before but I have been studying the Missing Words. I am afraid I have not got very many of them right. Grandma said that it would not be fair for her to tell me so I did the best I could. I have no Mama; she died four years ago the second day of March. Little brother was two weeks old and I was three years and eight months old. That's why I live with my Grandma and Grandpa Kenfield. I guess this is enough for this time, from your friend, Fledda Truax, Wayland, Mich.

Now my Missing Words: 1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Hand—4 Door—5 Legs—6 Show—7 Laughed—8 Have—9 Cackle—10 Head—11 Cheerful—12 Pull. My choice would be a book if I am of the first.

Fledda Dear—Your Missing Words were all right and I sent you a prize for them. Did you receive it? If you did not write and tell me about it and I will send you another one. You wrote a very nice little letter, Honey, and I hope you will write again.

Dear Editor:—I have been reading the letters in the Children's Story Telling Club and I thought I would like to join too. I am eleven years old. I have brown eyes and brown hair and I am in the sixth grade at school. I have one sister Mable, who is sixteen years old and a brother Elwood, who is nearly nineteen. My youngest brother Johnnie is nine. I live on the "Pleasant Valley Farm" and live one-half mile from school and church. I am sending the words to the Missing Word Contest on a separate paper. Crystal Brake, Clarks-ville, Michigan.

1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Curly—4 Roof—5 Legs—6 See—7 Said—8 Fix—9 Squawk—10 Head—11 Haughty—12 Pull.

Crystal—Your home has a very pretty name. I think it is fine to name one's home. You wrote an interesting letter and I hope you will write again. I sent you a prize; did you receive it?

Dear Editor:—I am a little girl seven years old. I am in the third grade. I have three brothers—one named Alden; one named La Verne; the oldest Hollis. I think Alden the best one of all; he is ten months old and creeps all over. I had a good time Valentine's day. My cousins came here; we had candy hearts. I am sending a list of the Missing Words. 1 Year—2 Biddy—3 Rough—4 Boards—5 Legs—6 Keeps—7 Begged—8 See—9 Cluck—10 Head—11 Sober—12 Pull. Your little friend, Florence Fruin, Bellevue, Michigan.

Dear Florence—I liked your letter very much. Did you receive the prize I sent you? Write again.

Dear Editor:—I received my membership card and think it very pretty. I think I can answer the riddle: "What three authors would you name if you saw a house on fire?" "Dickens How-itt, Burns." About eight of my school mates and I are going to sing for the Educational Society. It is a society for the parents and teachers. We are going to sing: "Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier," and "Over the Summer Sea." My teacher's name is Mrs. Keyskey; I like her very much. If this isn't too long I would like to see it in print. Yours truly, Erma Plummer, Douglas, Michigan.

Erma—You are a smart little member. Did I spell your teacher's name correctly? I think your answer to the riddle is correct. Write again.

Dear friend Mrs. Nichols:—This is March the FIRST and we are still in deep snow. But it's beautiful sunny days and the snow is going rapidly so I thought I had best hurry my letter as I wish to enter the contest. 1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Red—4 Floor—5 Feet—6 Hatch—7 Said—8 See—9 Cluck—10 Head—11 Wounded—12 Pull. I thank you for the kind words which you gave about my letter and I sure hope to be able to write stories for the magazines. I am still a loving member to the club. Maxie Hull, Man-celona, Michigan.

P. S.—I've been so interested in my school work that I forgot about the contest.

Honey—You are quite right in being so interested in your school work; that is ONE of the roads to success as a writer of stories. I hope you received the prize I sent you and I hope you will write many letters for our club.

Dear Editor:—I have been reading the letters and stories in your club and I think it a very interesting club. The story I like best was "How Mabel and Monty Played Indian." I was very interested in them and would like very much to belong to such an interesting club. Would you please send me a membership card? I am a little girl ten years old. I am in the fourth grade. We have to tell stories in our class at school and am quite good at that. I think I can send one soon. Would like to see my letter in print if not too long. Yours truly, Agnes Orr, Prescott, Mich.

Agnes—I am very glad you like our club so well, and I am sorry I could not print your letter sooner. But there were so many letters ahead of yours, you see, that it had to wait it's turn. We will be very glad to have you send a story. And I am glad you told me which story you liked the best.

Dear Friend:—I have never written to the Children's Story Telling Club before, but I have read the stories and letters ever since last summer, when you wrote that story of the little boy that was lost and his father and dog found him in a robber's house I think, and I think they are very nice. I know this is long after the contest of "The Story That You Can Name," but I will give you a name. Here it is: "How two neighbors became friends." May I try for the Missing Word Contest? Any way I will send you the list of words I think is right. My teacher's name is Miss Lily Belle Gregoire. I am not quite as smart as some of the boys and girls that write to the Children's Story Telling Club for I am thirteen and only in the sixth grade. I will be fourteen the twelfth of March. I have a mile to go to school. I guess this is all for this time. Will try and write again soon. From your new writer, Helen M. Campbell, Shelby, Michigan.

1 Years—2 Biddy—3 Hand—4 Roof—5 Legs—6 Hatch—7 Said—8 See—9 Cluck—10 Head—11 Mother—12 Comb. I have three sisters and a brother. Their names are Jessie, Mar-ion, Margaret and my brother's name is Leonard. We used to live four miles west of Man-celona. The contest closed just three days before my birthday.

Helen—I am glad you were inter-ested enough to send in a name for our OTHER contest even if it was late. The Contest (The Missing Word Contest, I mean), closed on the fifteenth of March. I hope you will write other letters for our club, Helen, for I think you wrote a nice letter this time. Did you receive your member-ship card and prize?

Dear Editor:—I am nine years old and I am in the second grade. I have a little baby sister; her name is Mary. I have three brothers and two sisters. My brothers names are: John, Har-old and Patrick; and my sister's names are: Oleta and Mary. Well, I guess I will close for this time. From your little friend, Gertrude O'Leary, Copemish, Michigan.

P. S.—Hope to get a membership card.

Did you receive a membership card, Gertrude? I intend to send a mem-ber-ship card to every little member that writes for our club, but some-times a mistake is made and a little member is missed. If you did not get one write to me and I will send you one right away.

Dear Editor:—All the other girls and boys have been writing such in-ter-esting letters to the Children's Story Telling Club so I thought I would try my luck in writing one too. I go to school and am in the fourth grade. The 26th of February a nice old story came and brought me a little baby sister. Her name is Mary. I was going to send in the Missing Words for the Contest but I lost the paper. I hope to get a membership card. Your little friend, Oleta O'Leary, Copemish, Michigan.

P. S.—I hope to see my letter in print. Hope it don't get eat up by that naughty waste paper basket.

Oleta—I am real sorry that you lost your paper with the Missing Word Contest in; but we are going to have other contests and mabe you will take part in them. I hope so anyway. The waste paper basket, Oleta Dear, isn't a bit naughty about eating up the children's letters—BECAUSE I never let it hold of them.

Dear Editor:—As I have not seen any letters from my neighborhood I will write a story. Here it is:

MY FOX TERRIER.

By Hazel Maycroft.

One morning I was aroused from my usual peaceful slumber by the barking of a dog, and another funny noise—I know not what. I tried to get up but succeeded only in moving my hands a little. Suddenly a little grey mouse ran out of a small aperture in the wall, crossed the room and ran into another aperture. I now being fully awake, slipped into a dressing robe and opened the door to admit my pet dog—a little fox terrier. The dog had just received a whipping from some bad boy and had come to me for judgment.

I hope my story is not too long. The dog's name is Rags. Please send me a membership card. Lovingly yours, Hazelle Maycroft, Grant, Michigan.

P. S.—I am thirteen years old, am in the seventh grade. I have five sisters. La Vanche is writing also. My favorite song is "Those evening bells."

Hazelle—Thank you for your story. If your doggie had arrived just a little sooner she might have caught that mouse. I sent you a membership card; did you receive it?

Dear Editor:—I am a little girl. My name is Lavanche Maycroft. I am seven years old. I am in the fourth grade. My sister Hazelle wants me to write a story too, so I thought I would. I have got two brothers and five sisters. I make quite a many mistakes in my letter so you must excuse me for it. I have got four cats; their names are: Hobo, Bum, Tags and Socks. I have a doll and a Teddy bear. My teacher's name is Mabel Ida Elizabeth Westenfelder. I like my teacher too. I must go and do my work for the night. Lovingly, Lavanche Maycroft, Grant, Mich.

Dearie—You have got a pretty name. My little girl once had a puppy named Socks; she was black as a crow with white feet; that is why we call her Socks. I hope you received your membership card.

And now we will have a letter that was sent to our club by a lady away off in Santa Barbara, California, who, besides complimenting the letters written by our little club members, sent a story written to her by her little niece who lives at Lyons, Mich-igan. The letter is given below:

Dear Aunt Maggie:—I wish I could come to Santa Barbara, California and see the mountains, the ocean and the pretty flowers. And the sweet birds that you write to me and Hughie about, and when I am a lady I will come and see you. I have had whooping cough so bad all winter that I could not go to school. I am better now, but I just cough and cough. Baby Velma and Hughie had it awful bad too. Papa went to Ionia yesterday and he bought me some new shoes.

They are just for Sunday shoes, but they are so nice I would like to wear them every day. I have some little bantam hens and we gather their little eggs every day. On my birthday, when I was ten years old, Mama and Papa and the little children all went up to Grandpa, Gee's and Grand-ma had a good chicken dinner for us. We had nuts and apples and candy too. From your little niece, Florence Robert-son, Lyons, Ionia county, Michigan.

I think this is a very nice letter, Dears, don't you? I sent Florence a membership card which I hope she re-ceived. We have room for another letter so we will print it below.

Dear Editor:—I thought I would join your club too. I am a little girl of ten and I have one sister and a brother. Their names are Elizabeth and Howard. I go to school every day. My teacher's name is Beulah Cook. We have twenty-five scholars in our school. We like our teacher very much. We live on the bank of the Thorn Apple river. We have great sport in the summer time bathing in the river. There is a pretty woods across the road from our house where we gather flowers in the spring. Back of our house the P. M. railroad runs. I think we have a very pleasant place. Hoping to see my letter in print. From Romayne Kagle, Ada, Michigan.

Romayne—Did you receive your membership card? You wrote a very interesting letter and I hope you will write real often. Next week we will print letters from the following mem-ber: Fannie Louise Laughlin, Cad-illac, Mich.; Myrtle Wellington, South Haven, Mich.; Norma Baker, Caledonia, Mich.; Dorinda Baker, Caledonia, Mich.; Thelma, Slebert, Caledonia, Mich.; Gordon Huffman, Tustin, Mich.; Helen McKinley, Kalispell, Mont.; Leona Cavender, Newaygo, Mich.; Ruby Thorstenson, Butterfield, Mich.; Leona Arline Willison, Lakeview, Mich.; Sybil Leone Waite, Man-celona, Mich.; C. Wesley Stanton, Ravenna, Mich.; Ida Fuller, Prosser, Wash.; Lucile Bowen; Barberton, Ohio, and as many others as we have room for. Good-bye.

True and Tried Recipes

Fancy Work and Cooking for the Season

Fruit Whips.

When company comes unexpectedly or one wants a hurried dessert, there is a fruit whip that is good both to look at and to taste. Turn a cupful of raspberries preserves into a glass serving dish with a tablespoonful of sugar and the whites of two eggs, then whip up together until the mixture is stiff. Pour whipped cream over the top, and if desired, grate some nuts over that.

Currant Buns.

Take one pint of milk that has been scalded and then cooled, soften a cake of compressed yeast in half a cupful of the milk, and then put both together and stir in about three cupfuls of flour, beat until very smooth, then cover and set away to rise. When light, add half a cupful of sugar, half a cupful of softened butter, one tea-spoonful of salt, three eggs, one cupful of cleaned currants and about three cupfuls of flour. Knead until elastic and set to rise. When doubled in bulk, roll out into a sheet and cut into rounds. Put the rounds in the baking-pan and let them rise until they are nearly as large again, then bake about twenty-five minutes. When they are done, brush them over with a little boiling water in which a teaspoonful of cornstarch has been dissolved, and then sprinkle thickly with granulated sugar and return to the oven to glaze. This can be re-peated again if the glaze is not thick enough. The buns must be thoroughly baked before they are glazed.

SPRING

Dear little friends:—

This week we will paint a picture of one of the most beautiful seasons of the year, known as "Spring."

When the ground is robed in green. When the pussy-willows look so nice and clean.

When the air is so fresh and sweet. When the robin with its message comes to greet us with the happy thought that spring is here, and everything is taking on new life. It should fill our minds with that joy and gladness, that we could paint a beautiful picture in our minds, then we could see how it would look when it is painted on paper.

In this picture we will paint all the draperies green, as we have no grass, and we want something to represent grass. The woodwork of the windows paint a light brown. The window bench a dark brown, you may add a little black with the brown to make it darker. The ladies hair a very light brown. This can be done by mixing a little yellow with the brown. Her dress a very light blue. Her face a very delicate pink, also her hands. Mix white with the pink. Paint the pillow with daisies on, a very light brown. Mix yellow, white and brown together, daisies white with brown centers. Paint next pillow red. Last pillow paint yellow. Flower-pot paint green, tulips in it yellow and red.

Commission Proceedings.

The City Commission having under consideration the matter of the establishing and constructing of a sewer in Blocks 8 and 9 of Nicholl's First Addition to the Village of South Lake, now City of East Jordan, Commissioner Gidley offered the following resolution and moved its adoption. Seconded by Commissioner Graff.

Whereas a petition has been presented to this commission for the establishing and constructing of a sewer commencing 48 feet south of the south line of Williams street in the alley in Block 8 of said Addition, thence running north in the alleys in Blocks 8 and 9 of said Addition to a point 49 feet south of the south line of Garfield, being a distance of 425 feet, which petition has been duly signed by the owners of the majority of the land liable to be assessed for the proposed improvement, and Whereas Henry Winters, as City Engineer has made and filed with the City Clerk the plans, plats, diagrams and specifications for such proposed improvement, together with an estimate of the cost thereof, as directed by this Commission, Therefore,

Resolved, That this Commission deems the establishing and construction of said sewer, including the necessary ventilations, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins, cess-pools, flush-tanks, and all necessary attachments, to be a necessary public improvement, and that notice be given that this Commission intends to make the public improvement as shown by said plans, plats, diagrams and specifications now on file with the clerk, and intends to establish a special assessment district therefor as shown by said plans, plats, diagrams and specifications, and that said special assessment district be assessed and sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the cost of such improvement (the city to pay its just proportion of the cost of the intersections of streets and alleys and benefits to be derived by public parks and public places), the same to be assessed upon the lots, lands and premises to be benefited thereby; that said assessment district will be comprised of the lots, lands and premises to be benefited by said proposed improvement; that it intends that the city be assessed and pay thirty-three and one-third per cent of the cost of said proposed improvement, together with its just proportion of the cost of the intersections of streets and alleys and benefits to be derived by public parks and public places. Further

Resolved, That this commission meet on the 28th day of June, A. D. 1915, at the hour of eight o'clock in the afternoon, at its regular place of meeting in the Post-Office Building, for the purpose of hearing and considering objections to the proposed improvement, the establishing of said special assessment district, of the plans, plats, diagrams and specifications and the several amounts to be paid. The clerk shall give notice thereof by publication in the Charlevoix County Herald, a newspaper published and circulating in said city, for two weeks prior thereto.

Adopted by the city commission of the city of East Jordan, on the seventh day of June, A. D. 1915, by aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes, Cross, Gidley and Graff.
Nays, None.

The City Commission of the city of East Jordan, having under consideration the matter of the construction of a sewer on Mill street and Block 20 of Nicholl's Second Addition, commissioner Graff offered the following resolution and moved its adoption. Seconded by commissioner Gidley.

Resolved, That the city Assessor, as the Special Assessor of said city, be and he hereby is ordered and directed to prepare a special assessment roll for the payment of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the cost of establishing and constructing a sewer from the eastern termination of a sewer as now constructed on said Mill street, thence east along said Mill street to the alley in Block 20 of Nicholl's Second Addition to the Village of South Lake, now city of East Jordan, a distance of 500 feet, thence north along said alley a distance of 326 1/2 feet, together with the necessary ventilations, gutters, man-holes, catch-basins, cess-pools, flush-tanks, and all necessary attachments, which said per cent is to be paid by a special assessment to be levied upon the lots, lands and premises to be benefited by said improvement, and included in Special Sewer District No. 5, as heretofore determined by this commission. The amount to be spread upon said special assessment roll after deducting from the cost of said improvement the amount of the thirty-three and one-third per cent apportioned to the said city and the amount to be paid by the city as apportionable to public parks and public places and for streets and alleys and street and alley intersections is the sum of two hundred forty-two and 59-100 dollars ($242.59) as determined by this commission.

Said roll shall assess all lots, lands and premises to be benefited by said improvement and included in said special assessment district, according to benefits, which in the opinion of said assessor each separate and single parcel of land shall receive from said improvement. Said special assessment roll shall be made by said special assessor in accordance with the charter of the city of East Jordan and the laws of the State of Michigan.

The entire assessment against any piece or parcel of land shall not exceed twenty-five per cent of the assessed valuation of such piece or parcel of land as fixed by the last assessment roll of said city. Said roll shall contain the name of the owner of each parcel of land so assessed, a description of said piece or parcel of land, the valuation as fixed by the last regular assessment roll of said city and the amount assessed in said special assessment roll against said piece or parcel of land as a benefit to be received by said improvement.

Adopted by the city commission of the city of East Jordan, on the seventh day of June, A. D. 1915, by aye and nay vote as follows:

Ayes, Cross, Gidley and Graff.
Nays, none.

On motion by Graff, meeting was adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, June 8, 1915, at 8:00 o'clock p. m., standard time.

OTIS J. SMITH,
City Clerk.

On motion by Graff, meeting was adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, June 8th, 1915, at 8:09 o'clock p. m. standard time.

Adj. Regular meeting of the City Commission held at the commission rooms Tuesday evening, June 8, 1915.

Meeting was called to order by Mayor Cross. Present—Cross, Gidley and Graff. Absent—None.

The minutes of the last meeting were not read.

Moved by Gidley, supported by Graff, that the Mayor and Clerk be, and hereby are, authorized and instructed to enter into a contract with the Hersey Meter Company regarding the purchase of water meters. Carried.

Moved by Graff, supported by Gidley, that the city attorney and the commissioner of water supply be, and hereby are, authorized and instructed to revise ordinance No. 33, pertaining to water works, and to draft an ordinance regarding the regulating and licensing of plumbers in the city. Carried.

Moved by Graff, supported by Gidley, that the clerk be instructed to draw an order in favor of Company X to the amount of $25.00 to pay Decoration day expenses. Carried.

On motion by Graff, meeting was adjourned.

OTIS J. SMITH,
City Clerk.

Notice of Hearing Objections to Proposed Public Improvement

Notice is hereby given that a petition has been presented to the City Commission of the City of East Jordan, asking for the establishing and constructing of a sewer commencing at a point in the alley of Block eight (8), Nicholl's First Addition to the Village of South Lake, now incorporated a part of the City of East Jordan, at the termination of the present sewer forty-eight (48) feet south of the south line of Williams street, thence north through the alleys in Blocks eight (8) and nine (9) of said Addition to a point forty-nine (49) feet south of the south line of Garfield street, and that this Commission intends to establish said sewer according to the plans, plats, diagrams and specifications and an estimate of the cost of said proposed improvement as now on file with the City Clerk, and intends to establish a special assessment district for the payments of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the cost of such proposed improvement, to be comprised of the lots, lands and premises to be benefited thereby, the city to pay thirty-three and one-third per cent of the cost of said proposed improvement together with its just proportion of the cost of construction in streets and alleys and benefits to be derived to public parks and public places.

Notice is further given that this Commission will meet on Monday, the twenty-eighth day of June, A. D. 1915, at the hour of eight o'clock in the afternoon, at the regular place of meeting of said Commission in the Post-Office Block, in said City, for the purpose of hearing and considering any objections to said proposed public improvement, the plans, plats, diagrams and specifications, thereof, the establishment of said special assessment district, and of the several amounts to be paid.

By order of the City Commission.
OTIS J. SMITH,
City Clerk.
