Criminals Captured at Charlevoix

Harry Powers and Morris La-Valley Rounded Up, Thursday

Charlevoix has been considerably roused-up this week over the fact that two of the five prisoners who broke jail at Traverse City the 13th, had taken to Charlevoix for refuge from the hand of the law. After giving Sheriff Charles Novak and his deputies the slip early Tuesday morning a search has been steadily going on for the men and on Thursday afternoon they were located in the Michigan hotel (formerly the Ellston) where they had concealed themselves in the basement. They attempted another get-away but this time the officers were wary of their game and corralled them in a nearby barn yard.

The supervisors of Grand Traverse offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension of Powers. It is claimed that he is a well-known criminal wanted in several cities of the country for crimes committed. He was one of the main witnesses in the Germaine case at Traverse City.

Merchants Matinee a Success

Over 1200 Were Entertained Last Saturday.

The Saturday afternoon Merchants' Matinee had its initial entertainment last Saturday and started "big" in every way. The weather was ideal and people came from a distance of over ten miles to enjoy the afternoon's entertainment prepared by Manager Adams of the Temple Theatre, who has worked out a system whereby the merchants provide their customers with free tickets to these Saturday afternoon entertainments. Over twelve hundred were in attendance last Saturday and it is safely predicted that with a fairly good day this Saturday afternoon will see even a larger crowd.

THE SEED CORN SITUATION

On account of the continued cold and wet weather during the summer of 1915 the corn crop made a much slower growth than usual, and with a few exceptions, failed to mature.

Immature corn, when used for seed, does not germinate well and the plants are apt to be weak and backward in their growth. Moreover, the unripe corn harvested last fall contained an excessive amount of moisture which favored the development of mold and other fungus diseases and was responsible for serious injuries from freezing.

In order to determine the seriousness of the seed corn situation the Department of Farm Crops made a limited seed corn survey in representative sections in ten counties in Southern Michigan. Inquiries were made as to the amount of seed corn available and samples were secured for germination tests.

While results varied somewhat in different sections, the conditions were found to be very unsatisfactory in all of the ten counties. It was found that only 59 per cent. of the farmers had saved seed corn, and many of these had not enough for their own use, and much of that which had been saved was not fit for planting. The average per cent. of germination, including the weak sprouts was 53.4 per cent.

It is readily seen from these figures that the seed-corn situation in Michigan is very serious. It is a situation that will result in thousands, if not millions of dollars loss to Michigan farmers the coming season unless an unusual effort is made by all corn growers to secure the best possible grade of seed corn.

It is a matter of prime importance that all seed corn used for 1916 planting should be tested. A very satisfactory germination test may be made as follows: Make a flat box 3x20x30 inches inside measure and fill nearly full with moist sand; then mark into squares two inches across by a cord which is passed around nails driven in the sides of the box. The squares in the first row beginning at one end are numbered 1 to 10, the second 11 to 20, etc. After placing six grains from each ear in their respective checks, another one-half inch of moist sand is used to cover the corn. If in any check all of the grains do not grow or if the sprouts do not show sufficient vigor, the corresponding ear should be discarded. It is frequently possible by the use of the individual ear test and discarding of the dead and weak ears to secure a good grade of seed corn from a supply which averages low in germination.

It is not advisable, as a rule, to go to other states for seed corn or even to go very far south in Michigan, especially if the corn has been grown on a more fertile soil. In most sections of the state there is some fairly well matured corn of the 1915 crop and some 1914 corn that has been stored in dry, well ventilated cribs that is suited for planting, if carefully tested by the individual ear method. Farmers who wish to purchase seed corn should first investigate the supply in their own sections. If a satisfactory supply is not located this way application should be made to the local county agent or to the Agricultural College.

The seriousness of the seed corn situation is not generally appreciated and it is feared that many farmers will have very thin stands which will produce only a small percentage of the usual crop. It is important that every corn grower who has not already done so should test his seed corn at once. Use the individual ear method and throw out the dead and weak ears, making a good grade from your own variety if possible. If necessary to purchase seed corn, make arrangements to do so early as possible, securing varieties adapted to local conditions.

Republicans Hold Co. Convention

Elect Delegates to the State and District Conventions.

The Republican County Convention was held at Boyne City last Tuesday for the election of delegates to the Republican State and Congressional Conventions. For some reason only the third ward delegates from East Jordan attended, from this city—viz: Hosi. H. I. McMillan, D. S. Payton and H. F. Reid. J. H. Graff represented South Arm township.

The convention passed a unanimous resolution endorsing Judge F. W. Mayne for the supreme bench and pledging him their personal support and endeavor in forwarding his candidacy.

The following were elected delegates to the Congressional Convention to be held at St. Ignace, Tuesday, April 25th: J. M. Harris, R. A. Emrey, H. B. Wood, L. Shanahan, Jacob Graff, A. E. Cross, F. D. Thompson, M. E. Silverstein, Ned Fox, W. J. Person.

To the State Convention at Lansing, Wednesday, May 3rd.—W. J. Pearson, J. M. Harris, E. W. Abbott, A. G. Urkuhart, H. I. McMillan, D. H. Fitch, R. W. Paddock, P. D. Campbell, Jr., L. E. Benton, W. J. Elston.

ALONG THE FIRING LINE

When Senator Chamberlain, of Oregon, goes out on the stump next fall to defend Democratic free trade policies he is likely to be confronted with a statement made by him in the Senate on March 13th while discussing the army reorganization bill. Senator Chamberlain admitted that the American army costs more per man than any other army in the civilized world, and said:

"The American soldier, like the American laborer, demands to be better fed, better clothed, and better taken care of. Place our army on the basis of some other army and you would not have a corporal's guard in the United States."

"Like the American laborer," is the expression that gives away the whole Democratic free trade argument. When it is admitted that the American laborer demands to be better fed, better clothed and better taken care of than the laborer of any other civilized country, it must also be admitted that the difference must be covered and guaranteed by a protective tariff or the foreign laborer will seize the American market and, relatively speaking, there won't be a corporal's guard left in American mills. Senator Chamberlain talks like an advocate of protection of American labor but he voted for the Underwood tariff bill, which refused the demand of the American laborer to be better fed, better clothed, and better taken care of." Will Democratic newspapers in Oregon give their candid opinion of the merits of the demand of American soldiers and American laborers?

Another election and another Democrat giving way to a Republican successor. This time it is in Kansas City, Missouri, where a mayor was chosen. The Republican tendency of 1916 is by this time well established. The Kansas City election is of particular importance for it demonstrates the solid foundation on which Republicans are basing their claim to put Missouri in the Republican column this fall. The President may attempt to stem the tide by appointing a few more Missouri Democrats to fat offices, but the fact remains that Missouri, like the country at large, has set its face toward Republicanism this year.

Harford, Connecticut, is also tired of Democratic rule and at its recent municipal election it supplanted a Democratic city government with a Republican. Object lessons of this kind are worth a hundred straw votes as proof of the political tendencies of this presidential year.

The terminology of the White House appears to have undergone a change, also—though neither so sudden nor so numerous as the President's change of mind. We note that the word "crisis" now has given place to the word "climax" in describing the state of our relations with Great Britain. We anxiously await the new synonym for "great diplomatic victory."

It is interesting and significant to note the number of spirited contests which are going on for election to the Republican National Committee. That committee this year is going to conduct a victorious campaign and many men are anxious to have a share in the good work.

State "Clean Up Day, May 10

State Fire Marshal Urges General Clean-Up on That Day.

TO THE PEOPLE OF MICHIGAN: Each spring we enjoy a "CLEAN UP DAY" in our State. A day which is designated by the State Fire Marshal as one which the people of Michigan shall devote to the cleaning up of their premises.

Last year the people of our state entered into the spirit of the occasion with fine zest. This spring May 10th has been selected as clean up day by the state fire marshal and he has every reason to believe that citizens and officials will extend the same co-operation that they did a year ago.

First, we will get busy with the winter accumulation of rubbish and collect and destroy it.

You say "WHY?" Because statistics show that one-third of the deaths of persons under 40 years of age are caused by diseases contracted from filth.

Secondly, we will look around the house, the barn and the store.

Perhaps we will find a winter's supply of old newspapers or magazines, maybe we will discover that our wiring needs attention, there is a chance that our method of storing gasoline or kerosene demands correction, probably we will discover that our furnace or stove pipes and chimneys need cleaning or repairing to be made safe.

Then we will turn our attention to the exterior of our buildings.

A bad roof or dilapidated building is a menace to all adjoining property. The clean up day—should be made a repair or tear down day also. This will be just the time to investigate our school house or public halls. Are they equipped with fire escapes, and are they safe?

We can all help make clean up day count for something.

Mr. Public Official you can help by calling attention to the day, by boosting it and by giving it your official support.

School Teacher, you can help by asking your pupils to participate in the fire prevention spirit of the day.

Fire Chief, you can lead in the preparations for the day with your advice and encouragement.

Housewife, you know how to clean house and you can be of great value in the campaign.

Every citizen and householder can enlist both in the planning for the day and the execution of the plans.

Every citizen who is interested in beautifying our state, in the preservation of health and in the reduction of the fire waste by fire prevention is requested to set aside May 10 as a "Clean up day" and to assist in making it a success.

Ex-Officio State Fire Marshal,

The Value of a County Agent

Opposition To a County Agent Is Considered.

(By H. L. Barnum)

Before the value of a County Agent has been established by actual trial there are always many objections raised which on the surface at least appear reasonable. Calm consideration of some of the objections, however, generally shows them lacking in logical foundation, and the others fall in the face of the actual facts of the case.

One of the objections heard, and this even in counties where farm advisers are employed, is that the men sent out are not experts. When this movement was in its infancy County Demonstrators, Farm Advisers, or County Agricultural Agents, as they are now called, were spoken of as Farm Experts. This title of Expert had a misleading effect and some people expected the agent to know everything about every phase of the broad subject of farming. At present almost everyone has come to realize that no one man can know it all. The wisest and most experienced man in the world cannot know all about farming, or doctoring, or banking, or practicing law. That is why advisers or examiners are needed in all of these callings.

A farm adviser is not a man who never makes a mistake, but a trained observer who gathers the best information from the best farmers and scientists and passes it on to whomsoever inquires.

Another objection often heard in Charlevoix County is that the County Agent might be a young college graduate with no practical farm experience. This, if true, would be a very serious objection surely. We doubt if any man could succeed as a farm adviser purely from college training. To be well qualified such a person ought to have college training in the theoretical and scientific side of agriculture, of course, but he should also have a few years of actual farming experience if for no other reason than to acquaint him with the limitations of theory in actual practice.

Now, the men responsible for the placing of County Agents know these things just as well as any farmer does. The men who have been sent into the various Michigan counties as farm advisers have succeeded because they did possess the two essential qualifications mentioned above. Jason Woodman, the agent in Kalamazoo County, is an old man. C. B. Cook of Allegan county is a man in middle life. H. G. Smith of Kent, Brody of St. Clare, Walker of Marquette, and, in fact, all the others are men of maturity. In no case has an inexperienced college graduate been sent in answer to a call for a county farmer of Charlevoix County need have no fear of having a misfit sent for a farm adviser. If by any chance the State Superintendent of County Agents should send such a person, those in charge of the movement in the county can reject him and ask for another candidate. The man finally chosen must be satisfactory to all concerned.

Still another objection is the increase in taxation. Now, it cannot be said that a $1200 or $1500 appropriation spread on the tax roll will not increase the taxes. The question is, therefore, what will this increase be and will the returns from the investment warrant it? The following figures are intended to show how little each person in the county will feel the increase.

With her 20,000 population Charlevoix County would feel a $1200 appropriation as a tax of 6 cents per capita.

There are 1480 farms in the county. The county's share of the expense of a county agent would amount to an assessment of only 84 cents on each farm each year. On the basis of acreage the tax would amount to nearly one cent per acre, as the average farm in the county has 87.4 acres.

On the basis of valuation the tax would amount to about three-tenths of a mill on each dollar's farm valuation.

Next, with the returns warrant an investment of 84 cents a year per farm in a county agent? The investment is small, it is true; but if the returns are less, good business principles forbid the investment. We believe, however, that the farmers of the county can well afford to invest many times this amount for the privilege of having a farm adviser continually at their service. One example of how such a person might be of value in a dollars and cents way will illustrate the point.

It is a fact admitted by the majority of men that they know very little about the fertilizer requirements of the different soils and different farm crops. Commercial fertilizers with their several different kinds of plant food, expressed in percentages which are often purposely misleading, and even stable manure with its useful bacteria and its condition of unbalanced composition make a science in themselves. Each soil and each crop also presents special problems which the best farmers agree are exceedingly difficult to master. Under these circumstances we will say, for example, a fertilizer agent comes around to take the farmer's spring orders. He is generally quite as uninformed as the farmer himself. Together these two men, the one often too independent to seek unbiased and authoritative advice, and the other too interested in making a present sale to care about future results, these two men plan an order for fertilizer amounting to $25 to $100. In just such a case as this, one can see how easily a few words of expert advice might save the farmer $10 or more for if he orders and gets exactly what he needs, it is only thru the rarest good luck. The county agent asked to visit the farm, or called up at his office by phone, might, without any trouble or expense to the farmer, save the man enough in fifteen minutes to pay his increase in taxes for the next fifteen years.

Another common objection comes from some few of the small farmers and pioneers. Such men oppose the farm bureau movement because it costs too much, they say, to farm in the way a county agent would advise. They say, too, that they know what ought to be done but they can't afford to do it. To them farm advisers are only for rich farmers. These are the extremists in the class of thoughtless farmers. In the first place they assume that any change in their farming system will involve an unprofitable outlay which is not true. The most absurd part of their argument, however, is the assumption that they know everything necessary to successful farming. Their training and present policy have put them into a rut from which there is no turning. They are of that sort, too, who want something for nothing. To such men, $2 gained as the result of an investment of $10 makes a far lesser appeal than $1 secured from nothing invested.

These are the men who never get beyond the stage of small farmer. They lack the imagination necessary to successful business. They are the stumbling blocks always in the path of their own progress. Fortunately their number is few and their influence small.

It is the small farmer and the pioneer who will be most helped by the county agent. These are the ones most in need of the very kind of help the farm adviser can give. These are the ones who should stand back of, rather than oppose, the movement. The well-to-do farmer needs help least of all; but, because he is by nature progressive, he has always tried to promote progress thru such agencies as the farm adviser.

Let all the farmers of Charlevoix County as a body get behind this movement and give the county agent a trial, at least. "Nothing ventured, nothing gained," is as true in this as in any other business. Let your Supervisor know how you feel about this matter. Make this your motto, "A County Agent for Charlevoix County in 1917."

REVOLUTION RELICS FOUND

CANNON BALLS UNCOVERED

One English Penny Dug Up, Dated 1764—Sent to Historical Society.

New York.—During the progress of construction by the Rapid Transit Subway Construction Company of the lower section of the Seventh avenue subway, cannon balls have been unearthed six feet down by workmen excavating some 290 feet from the Staten Island Municipal Ferryhouse and 45 feet west of Whitehall street, Manhattan says the Interborough Bulletin. All the balls but one are of solid iron, and this exception is of brass, about two inches in diameter, and contains some sort of loose body inside, a fact that doesn't however, prevent its being handled any more carefully than the others. The iron balls which run variously from one and three-eighths to six inches in diameter, were embedded in an area of cinders, which would seem to indicate the location of an old blacksmith or machine shop.

Among the construction staff arose the question whether the balls didn't date back to the days when the Dutch Governors held sway on the island. Later the query was logically decided by Chief Engineer George H. Pegram of the construction company, when an English penny bearing the date 1764, of George the Third period, was turned up. That seemed to settle it. Several of the balls have been converted into paperweight souvenirs; some in their oxidized state, others in more polished and ornamental form.

It is the further conjecture of Mr. Pegram that the spot where the balls were found was the site of an ammunition magazine when the old fort was an active proposition. Other relics exhumed include a brass shell, containing about 20 1-3-8 inch diameter shot inside of another shell, about 8 or 10 inches in diameter. This shell was smooth on the outside and ribbed inside, but had deteriorated to such an extent that it went to pieces almost as soon as it was found.

Appreciating the highly interesting nature which the unearthing of these relics affords to the residents of Manhattan and of their historical significance to the early history of our country, President Shouts has forwarded to John A. Weekes, president of the New York Historical Society, 170 Central Park, West, where they are now on public exhibition, the following relics from the park excavation.

- One English penny, date 1764.
 - One solid shot, 1 3-8 inch diameter.
 - One solid shot 4 inch diameter.
 - One solid shot 5 inch diameter.
 - One brass shell, 2 3-8 inch diameter.
- It seems certain from the old English penny that these relics date back to Revolutionary times.

$10,000,000 FOR POODLES

Mission Union Speakers Say Hat Bill Would Support Defenses.

New Orleans, La.—The most astounding extravagance of the women of America is that we spend $10,000,000 each year for poodles.

Mrs. R. L. Baker told this to the delegates to the annual meeting of the Women's International Missionary Union in describing how American women make the money fly. She continued:

"We spend more for hats yearly than it takes to support the army and navy and several other Federal departments. We also spend $107,000,000 for soft and cooling drinks and $187,000,000 for candy. It is time to call a halt and to return to the sane ways of our mothers."

A SUIT EACH WEEK

Clothes Can't Keep Pace With Boy of Fourteen.

Moultrie, Ga.—Three months ago Harry Connelly, 14, was a slender boy of average height. He began to expand at that time until he measures 6 feet 5 inches in height and weighs 200 pounds.

During the past three months his parents have been forced to buy him a new suit of clothes every week. A special bed was built for him.

Harry hardly can get into his last Monday's suit Saturday, so is provided with a larger outfit each Monday. The doctors are trying to find a way to check Harry's phenomenal growth without impairing his health.

Half of Students Self Supporting

Norman, Okla.—More than one-half of the student body at the State University is self supporting, a fact shown by report of the registrar. Of the men 25 per cent and of the girls 13 per cent support themselves entirely, while 33 per cent of the men and 24 per cent of the girls earn part of their support.

The reason the unexpected happens so often is because one can never tell what a woman or a jury is going to do.

G. WASHINGTON RELICS SHOWN

COLLECTION OF MEMENTOES OF FATHER OF COUNTRY HEART TOUCHING DISPLAY

BIG VARIETY OF MATERIAL SHOWN

Washington, D. C.—"Among the many interesting objects pertaining to the history of this country, there is probably nothing which touches the hearts of true Americans more quickly than the relics and mementoes of 'The Father of His Country,' George Washington, many of which are displayed at the old building of the United States National Museum in Washington," says a statement issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

"This collection consists of a variety of material gathered from numerous sources. While composed largely of articles of domestic and artistic interest owned by Washington at Mt. Vernon, the collection also includes mementoes of his life in the field during the War of the Revolution, and a number of other miscellaneous relics of greater or less importance.

"The most noteworthy objects are: Four pieces of plaster statuary, and a face mask; several portraits and engravings; many pieces of furniture, including Washington's easy chair, table, chairs, mirrors, bedstead and footstool; numerous candelabra, lamps and candlesticks; glass and chinaware and table furnishings; as well as many personal relics. These latter perhaps represent more to the visitor, since they were the individual property of this great statesman and warrior.

"There are two interesting costumes worn by Washington; the first an infant's robe of white brocade silk, lined with old rose China silk, used on the occasion of his christening, and the other a continental army uniform, worn when he resigned his commission as commander in chief of the continental army at Annapolis, Md., December 23, 1783. Representing as these costumes do, two such separated periods of the life, they tend to remind the observer of the great things which were accomplished by Washington between the times these diversified costumes were worn. Other articles of wearing apparel comprise a waistcoat and what were known as small clothes or knee breeches.

"Three tents with poles, pegs and pouches, a mess chest, spyglass, field glass, portable writing case and shaving glass, make up the field equipment used by Washington in his campaign. Other relics, including an iron treasure chest and a zither and case, a music case of mahogany, a Chinese tea chest and a gold medal commemorating his death besides a number of other miscellaneous articles complete one of the most interesting collections of historical objects in this country.

"Since many of the articles relate so pertinently to the home of Washington, a brief mention of its history is here made.

"Mount Vernon House, historically the most interesting of American mansions and closely associated with nearly all the objects herein described, was erected in 1743 for Lawrence Washington, the half brother of George, and so named in honor of Admiral Edward Vernon, R. N., under whose command Lawrence Washington had served during the British expedition against Cartagena in 1741. The property passed into the hands of George after the death of Lawrence in 1752 and the house was later improved and enlarged.

"When Mrs. Washington died in 1802, Mount Vernon became in accordance with Washington's will, the property of his nephew, Bushrod Washington who in turn bequeathed it to his nephew, John Augustine Washington, from whom it passed to a son of the same name, and in 1858 was purchased from him by the Mount Vernon Ladies' Association.

"By an act of Congress, approved June 20, 1878, the Government purchased a collection of Washington relics from G. W. Lewis and others, the heirs of Mrs. Lawrence Lewis, the adopted daughter of Washington, and the wife of his nephew, Maj. Lawrence Lewis. After the death of Mrs. Washington, in 1802, these objects had passed into the hands of Mrs. Lewis, and on her death in 1852, were received by her heirs, who held them until their purchase by the government in 1878, when they were deposited in the United States Patent Office, where they remained until transferred to the United States National Museum in 1883.

"The objects purchased from the Lewis heirs form the greater portion of the Washingtonians in the museum, and are designated as belonging to the 'Lewis collection.' The sources of other Washington relics received by the museum at various times as loans or gifts, are noted on the descriptive labels."

Lewistown, Pa.—Mrs. B. Ballentine, of this place has in her possession a large steak platter that is over 187 years old. She can trace its existence back that many years.

PARAMOUNT PICTURE PROGRAM

Rita Jolivet in "THE UNAFRAID"

"The Unafraid," in which Rita Jolivet makes her screen debut, is beyond all question one of the most romantic and absorbing photo-dramas ever presented. The situations are as unusual as the setting in which most of the events take place—the castles among the hills of Montenegro.

Delight Warren, the heroine of the story, is an American girl who has been fascinated by a dashing Montenegrin nobleman and who daringly goes alone to Montenegro to marry him. She has no sooner arrived in that strange country, however, than she is captured by the brother of her fiance. This brother Count Stefan, impersonated by House Peters, takes Delight to his castle and forces her to marry him. He treats her with the greatest respect, but, insists upon the performance of the ceremony so that it shall not be possible for her to wed his brother. The reason is that the brother is a traitor to his country and Count Stefan wants to prevent Delight's wealth from coming into his hands and being used to the injury of the Fatherland.

The succeeding events show the manner in which Delight finally becomes convinced that Count Stefan is right, and the love which finally makes a real marriage of the union between Stefan Balsic and his American captive.

William Elliott in

"WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE"

As the wayward boy whom the Trinity, the three friends of his dead father, have so much trouble in saving from the consequences of his folly, William Elliott is admirably cast, and his denotement of the reactionary emotions of youth is always convincing and often touching. In all the action of the screen version of this noted play, realism is dominant, but there is always underlying it a pure sentiment, wholesome and inspiring, and an impressive moral lesson that never intrudes upon the progress of the drama, but rather that issues naturally from the development of the plot.

One of the most striking and dramatic scenes of the piece is set in the Corinthian Club, a fashionable supper-palace, where "the Imp" as the central character is known, discovers the falsity of the woman he adores. The scene presents one of the most powerful and emotional situations ever produced in motion pictures. From this crisis, "the Imp" emerges regenerated, and turns to a purer, sweeter love waiting for him at home.

The exceptional cast in support of Mr. Elliott includes Marie Empress, as "the Firefly," Charles Waldron as Dick Carew, Arthur Hoops, Charles Coleman George Backus, Helen Luttrell, Winifred Allen, and Mrs. Gordon.

JOE MURPHY DEAD, LEAVES MILLIONS

FAMOUS MINSTREL "BONES"

Old Actor Built $100,000 Country Home, But Never Would Live In It

New York.—Sixty seven years ago William T. Murphy, a Brooklyn boy with a longing for adventure, joined the "forty-niners" in their rush for gold in the far west, worked his way across the continent by driving caravans and began a new existence as a boatman on the Sacramento river. The call of the stage soon claimed him and he became an actor.

In a modest apartment in the old Herald Square Hotel in West Thirty-fourth street this man—known to country over as "Joe" Murphy—died of pneumonia after a short illness, leaving an estate valued, it is said at more than $3,000,000.

"Joe" was reputed to have been the richest actor in America. He invested in savings banks and money saved in a career of over half a century and his fortune is scattered between here and the Pacific Ocean.

He was heard to whisper just before the end something about "not spending much money on my funeral," and his last wish was to be buried with the "bones" that he played in his first engagement with Dick Hooey's Minstrels in 1849. The actor was 83 years old and is survived by a widow, Mrs. Mary Fernier Murphy.

For 20 years "Joe" Murphy worked with Hooley's Minstrels in San Francisco until his name was noted in the west. In 1870 he came east again, starting in business for himself, appearing in an Irish play called "Help" at the Bowery Theater. Then Fred Marsden wrote "The Kerry Gow" and Mr. Murphy created the leading role and played in the piece all over the United States, appearing in it in New York at the Grand Opera House in 1878.

The next Irish play made famous by Murphy was "Shuan Rhue," in which he played continuously from 1880 to seven years ago, when he retired from the stage. There were intermittent intervals when Joe appeared in vaudeville as a minstrel under the management of Keith & Proctor and on the Stair Halvin circuit. It was said that he was more widely known both in and out of the profession than any other man or woman on the American stage.

Mr. Murphy had an insatiable desire to hoard money and never wasted a cent. He built a big country home at Kew Gardens near Jamaica, L. I., which cost $100,000 and then he never lived in it. He was the owner of a hotel in Florida, but always insisted on paying only half rates when he stayed there. With his friends, however, he was never selfish.

Washington, D. C.—The Children's Bureau is conducting a detailed inquiry into the social and economic causes of babies' deaths. The annual report of the bureau shows that the two items of the inquiry completed during the last year disclose an average infant death rate of 134 out of every 1,000 babies in a steel-making and coal mining town, against a ratio of 84 per 1,000 in a residential suburb.

An even greater contrast is found between the most congested section and the choicest residential section in each of these two communities. Commenting on these findings the report says:

"The more favorable the civic and family surroundings and the better the general conditions of life, the more clearly are they reflected in a lessened infant mortality."

The report shows, however, that no deductions can be made about the relation between the general infant mortality rate and industrial employment of women until the facts about the number and proportion of mothers at work contained in the unpublished census returns are made available by tabulation.

Meanwhile the Children's Bureau is pursuing its inquiry into the relation of babies' deaths to wages and social conditions, believing "that the inquiry will prove increasingly valuable as stimulus to more active protection of the youngest and tenderest lives throughout the nation."

Such practical results have already followed the inquiry in two communities as the securing of infant welfare nurses, improving the milk supply and rousing community interest in kindred activities.

HOAXES THAT HAVE PUZZLED PEOPLE

New York.—Barnum loved to fool the people. A rival showman obtained a white elephant. Barnum by telegraph tried to obtain it and offered a huge sum. The owner of the real white elephant used Barnum's telegram as a newspaper advertisement and poster, which made Barnum the more eager to get the animal. Failing in getting the white elephant he called all over the world to "get one. Then he resorted to subterfuge. He bleached an ordinary elephant, and did it so well that he not only fooled the people who came to see it, but also a learned body of scientists, who gave him a testimonial to the effect that it was a genuine albino elephant, says a writer in the New York Press.

No story of hoaxes is complete unless New York's widely known joker is mentioned. He is Brian G. Hughes, and he has perpetrated more than a dozen jokes that have made the metropolis chuckle. To perpetuate these hoaxes has cost him much money; but in all of his tricks no one ever has suffered particularly.

Probably his most widely known exploit, because it was so successful, was the career of his tom cat, Nicodemus, a tenement house cat he purchased for ten cents, and which he advertised as the $2000 cat "not for sale!" In its class, Nicodemus carried off first prize at the show in Madison Square Garden.

When Hughes decided to enter his cat, which he termed his "Dublin brindle cat Nicodemus," which he valued at $2000, he inquired "if there would be any objection because of its value, to having it cared for during the show by its regular attendant."

There was no objection, and when the show opened a negro, probably Sam Smith, who had taken part in a number of his hoaxes, appeared in a gorgeous livery. During the time that there was a crowd in front of Nicodemus, Smith looked out carefully for the smallest comfort of the animal. A widely known florist-gent flowers every day; a celebrated caterer furnished the meals—at least the boxes and baskets so indicated. Spectators spent many minutes reading the long pedigree of Nicodemus. When the judges looked over the flowers, the manicure sets, the impressive negro and the pedigree, Nicodemus blinked at a blue ribbon attached to his wicker cage.

GYPSY ROMANCE IS RUINOUS TO HOME

Nomad Enchantress Flits Away While Wife's Love Dies.

Chicago, Ill.—Aline the "queen of the gypsies," has flitted to foreign haunts; Mrs. Caroline Lanask, a long suffering wife has lost faith in her husband's loyalty, and John Lanask, the central figure in a summer idyll recounted to Judge Joseph La Buy, has plumbed the depths of misery and found bitterness.

John had been married seven years and was the father of two children when he met Aline. He threw discretion to the winds, his wife says, and tried to find new happiness crystal gazing with Aline.

At first he made only hurried trips to Aline's headquarters of occultism at 1518 West Twenty-first street. Later he forgot his wife, his children, even the delicious pot roasts with noodles with which she tempted him.

Finally his trips home ceased. Then Aline moved. Silver quarters for palm readings were growing scarce in the neighborhood. Penitent, Mrs. Lanask says, John wandered back to the family fold, but was denied admittance. His love notes, begging forgiveness went into the fire. To cap his troubles, Mrs. Lanask had him arrested for desertion and non-support.

She told her story to the judge then threw Aline's circular on the bench. The judge picked up the card and saw the face of a fascinating brunette drawn on the palm of a hand.

"Love, darling, sweetheart, sun, stars, moon"—these were some of the inscriptions flanking the sketch of Aline.

"That's the cause of all my trouble," said Mrs. Lanask plaintively.

But the judge silenced him, put him under $500 peace bonds, and ordered him to support his children and leave Mrs. Lanask alone.

Boys in 'Teens Build Large Barn.

Students Shun Ministry.
Millyville, N. J.—Prof. E. D. Grizzell, supervising principal of the Millville High School has told the board of education that he was very much surprised to learn, as a result of a canvass of the 250 students as to what vocation they intended to follow for their life's work, that not one of them expressed his intention of studying for the ministry. He said that this was more surprising from the fact that Millville is known as the city of churches.

New York City has 2600 factories.

LEPER COLONY NOT PLACE OF DESPAIR

DISEASE, IT IS STATED, IS NOT AS BAD AS IS COMMONLY BELIEVED

SUFFERERS MAY ENJOY LIFE

Progress of Affliction Said to Be Remarkably Free From Pain.

New York.—Few stories of terror lose anything in the telling, especially when that telling has been repeated from one generation to the next for hundreds of years.

Leprosy is a dreadful and relentless disease, but not half so black as it is popularly painted in our imaginations, not only that it spreads with extreme difficulty if at all, in civilized countries, indeed, only in their uncivilized corners and little islands of barbarism; but it is not half so deadly and remorseless in its attack upon the unfortunate individuals who have actually fallen victims to it.

Instead of the diagnosis of leprosy being equivalent to a sentence of death by painful and lingering means within a few months or years at the outside, fully half, if not two thirds, of its white victims either recover with only a few scars or a bump spot or two to show for their experience, or reach a stage of arrest in a fair condition of comfort and efficiency, or live 10, 15 or 20 years until they die of something else.

The average life, even of cases which are sufficiently well advanced and clearly marked to be discovered and sent to leper colonies is from 10 to 15 years after their admission, and over half the deaths which occur in our large modern leper hospitals, where lepers are carefully kept, are from pulmonary tuberculosis.

The disease most commonly makes its appearance either upon the face, hands or the feet, which fact suggested the theory of its transmission through the bite of insects or through house or soil or infections or through vermin. It produces either fissures, or tumors, breaking down into deep and slowly progressing ulcerations, which girdle and finally amputate the fingers, toes and segments of limbs.

But it is exceedingly slow in reaching or seriously affecting any of the great vital organs, and as, by a most merciful clemency of fate, it attacks the nerve trunk of the arms and limbs at a very early stage; indeed, travels up them toward the body and blocks them off or paralyzes them well in advance of its ulcerations' it maims in advance the parts which it ravages so effectually that its progress is surprisingly free from pain.

Dramatic stories are told of white men residing in the tropics who have first discovered that they were lepers by catching a falling lamp chimney or thrusting their hands too near or into a flame and never feeling any pain or knowing that they were being burned until the smell of their scorching skin reached their nostrils.

A leper colony or hospital, distressing and pitiful as the general idea of it is, so far from being a place of gloom and misery and black despair, or revolt against fate, is one of the most cheering and convincing proofs of the unquenchable power of the human spirit and the incredible powers of adaptation and making the best of a situation, by the pluck and wit of man.

When a colony numbers 50 or more with casts in all stages of the disease, some members of the colony will be found able to work at almost every necessary trade and occupation, so that it can be made almost self supporting.

Some of them are partially crippled, but they ride or drive, or are carried about by their comrades, and the fact that they must die sometimes within 15 or 20 years soon loses its edge. Indeed, their prospects are not so remotely different from those of most of the rest of us under average circumstances in that regard.

This is the course and prospects of the disease in those who still remain in the tropics or the region in which they contracted it. For those who recognize the disease at a reasonably early stage and promptly leave the climate in which they caught it, the prospects are even more encouraging.

BALD MAN WEARS CAP

ONE DAY IN EACH YEAR

Business Man Appears Annually With Head Covered According to Yearly Custom

Highland Park, Ill.—Frank Green, a manufacturer of this place, surprised the residents of this suburb one day this week when he appeared wearing a cap. It was the eighth time in eight years that he has worn any covering on his head.

Mr. Green is bald. He wears a leadgear as a usual thing. Once a year he put on a cap. His only explanation was "that he felt like wearing it."

Residents of Highland Park have figured that if Mr. Green wears the cap which he bought eight years ago at the same rate in the future that he has in the past his cap will last him about three centuries.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphate hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the pores do.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get the famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Many a physically tall man is financially short. Luck must be feminine because it is so uncertain. A woman can keep a secret all right if it is a good joke on herself. Some people wear glasses because they can't believe their own eyes.

MR. FIRE WALKER TRAPPED AT LAST

BASALT ROCKS, OVER WHICH TAHI-
TIAN PRANCE, ARE POOR
CONDUCTORS OF HEAT

GAMBOL DOES NOT CAUSE PAIN

New York Museum Takes Heavy Fall
Out of "Holy Men" With its Expose.

New York.—If this yarn should by any chance be read around some Tahitian fireside, the firewalking industry in the South Sea Islands, which is one of the hottest drawing cards the holy men have for amassing coconuts will suffer a severe slump. In fact, considering the ardent temperament of the average Tahitian, the flames of wrath which will attend the expose will make the fire walkers' bonfire look like a smudge pot.

For this is a revelation of why smoke colored, shiny skinned gentlemen, arrayed in fibre skirts and some beads about the neck, can lead yodeling believers over a holy fire without incineration. The statistics or whatever the facts are called which burst fond illusions, have been garnered by the American Museum of Natural History, and are set forth in the South Sea Island hall there, with chocolate colored figures and much printed matter, to make them plain to all who pass by.

The Tahitian fire walker earns a comfortable living and an enormous amount of veneration through an ability to lead his devoted congregation in synopated prayer at the edge of a burning chasm. The long trench in which the flame spurts up is piled with rocks of porous basalt.

Just before the hurried journey over the flaming pit begins, an attendant cares for the stone with large leaves. Then the priest, wearing a crown of flowers on his head and a large bunch of "li" (Dracaena terminalis), they are, say the museum experts) in his hands, walks around the fire. He converses at length and with some eloquence with his friends, the supernaturals, who are going to cool the flames. Then after cocking an experienced eye at the basalt, he walks over the center ridge of stone above the fire, and his disciples very unhappy in mind and bare of feet, follow him. They all walk back and forth several times, and, of course, everybody is deeply impressed.

The museum after expatiating upon the dramatic effects of this hot coal gambol, explains that basalt rock, being extremely porous, is a poor conductor of heat. Although the bottom of the rock may be pink with fire, the top is merely hot, and has no effect upon the toughened sole of the natives' feet.

There is a figure of a fire walker modeled after one who belongs to the union in the museum exhibit and there are also figures of a kava-brewer, a roof maker, a cocoanut grater and a firemaker. The models are arranged to show the daily life of the Tahitians and to explode their cherished belief in that remunerative religious rite, the fiery hesitation.

CHILD SMOTHERS IN COTTON

Little Girl Digs Hole in Pile and Tumbles In.

Guthrie, Okla.—The 9 year old daughter of Paul Ritchie, a farmer living near Prague, 30 miles west of here, was drowned in a pile of cotton in her father's field.

When the little girl was missed her parents started out to search for her. Her father finally saw her shoes on top of the huge mound of cotton, and closer examination disclosed her body buried, head first, in the fluffy mass. She evidently had dug a hole in the pile and then accidentally fallen into it, the loose cotton packing about her and smothering her.

ALFALFA FIELD 33 YEARS OLD

Kansas Growth Still is in Thriving Condition

Topeka, Kan.—C. Mohler, secretary of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, has found fields of alfalfa sown 30 years ago still growing and producing good crops. He just has sent a notice to the 1,600 correspondents of the board, asking them to report the earliest sowing and the oldest fields of alfalfa in their communities.

"The oldest fields reported are in Hamilton and Rooks counties," Mr. Mohler said. "One Hamilton county field is 33 years old, and there is one in Hamilton and one in Rooks that are 32 years old and the owner says both are doing well."

FOXES ARE FAMILIES PETS

They're Tame and Quiet Save When Strangers Appear.

Williamsport, Pa.—While most families make pets of cats and dogs, the family of Clyde Hartman of Warrenville, make an exception to this rule, by having three small foxes as pets. The animals are tame and quiet in the hands of Mrs. Hartman, but when being approached by strangers they become as wild as their brothers and sisters in the forests. The foxes were caught when very young by Hartman.

By Strategy

"If I were like Kitty Riddle," said the pretty little woman to her husband, "you simply wouldn't dare go walking down this retail business street with me and looking in the windows!"

"Why not?" asked the pretty little woman's husband with interest.

The pretty little woman fairly gasped in her emotion. "She is perfectly dreadful, Kitty Riddle is!" she said. "So grasping! All she thinks of is what she can get out of people! The way she schemes and works things to make her husband give her what she wants—why, I couldn't do it if you never gave me a present till doomsday! Do you know what she did? Asked George to meet her in order to go to lunch and selected a furrier's as the place of meeting. And when he got there she kept making him look at sets of furs till the poor fellow simply had to order a set for her Christmas or else have all the clerks think him stingy and mean! She said she started him in on fifty dollar sets and gradually climbed up. By the time he was looking at those for a hundred and fifty dollars he ordered one in a hurry, because he was afraid she'd go still higher. Why—wait a minute!"

"What is it?" asked her husband following her to the window.

"That's exactly like the set Kitty is going to have!" the pretty little woman exclaimed. "I know, because she took me in to see the one she had wormed out of poor George! They are lovely aren't they? I don't like that light fitch fur myself, tho—Kitty is dark and can wear it, but blondes have to wear dark fur to look well. Would you think George Riddle could afford to buy fitch?"

"I don't know much about furs myself," said her husband. "Maybe he made some money on the side."

"Why you ought to know furs, Albert!" said the wife, reproachfully. "Just look at these! That's seal and that's marten—isn't it a beautiful dark brown? And that's a moleskin, next to the black fox. Which do you like best?"

"Oh, I don't know," said her husband, carelessly. "Come on! If we're going to keep that appointment we must hurry."

"I know several women who are like Kitty," mused the pretty little woman as they walked on. "Why, Ethel goes and buys what she wants and then tells Henry about it and says that he can make it her birthday or anniversary present! I never should enjoy any thing like that! I'd rather have the simplest, most inappropriate thing you had picked out your own self than something I had suggested."

"What is it?" he asked as she darted to a window.

"Oh, nothing," she said with a little sigh. "I just noticed that wonderful set of brown marten! I had no idea marten was so expensive—a hundred and sixty dollars! Still, when you get furs it is economy to get good ones, because they last so long and nothing looks so shoddy as a cheap fur! Don't you like marten Albert?"

"Why, it is very pretty," said her husband. "Have you decided about that wall paper for the parlor yet?"

"There's lots of time for that," said his wife. "Oh—look in that window! Whoever would want those giddy white fox things! How much better looking and richer that seal is—no, I declare, that is marten, too! It's remarkable how that kind catches one's eye wherever it is—it is so rich looking. But how Kitty can enjoy her fitch furs, knowing how hard up George and all you men are this winter, is beyond me!"

"Huh!" said her husband. "I guess that if George Riddle can afford to blow himself the rest of us can't! Would you like a set of furs for Christmas yourself?"

"Wh-wh-why, Albert," shrieked the pretty little woman, quite round eyed. "I never dr-reamed—why how perfectly lovely—if you aren't the smartest man, hitting on the very thing I longed for but wouldn't say a word because they cost so much! I never was so surprised in my life! You're a perfect darling. Lets go back where we saw that set of brown marten!"

A Clever Stroke

An eminent lawyer was once cross-examining a clever woman, mother of the plaintiff in a breach of promise action, and was completely worsted in the encounter of wits. At the close, however, he turned to the jury and exclaimed:

"You saw, gentlemen, that even I was but a child in her hands. What must my client have been?"

By this adroit stroke of advocacy he turned his failure into a success.

It Belonged to Kitty.

"Oh, mother," cried Edith, "I found a little flea on Kitty, and I caught it!"

"What did you do with it?" asked her mother.

"Why I put it back on Kitty again, of course. It was her flea." —L.

Expensive Eating

"Your husband is very fond of luxurious eating isn't he?" said one woman.

"Yes," replied the other. "If there is such a thing as reincarnation, I fancy he will turn into a moth."

RAILROAD MAN'S CANE FOUND AFTER 28 YEARS

Lost Thirty Years Ago and Comes to Light When Town's Public Hall is Razed

Watertown, N. Y.—When Stanley A. Gillette of Chicago, Ill., where for years he has been employed by the Northern Pacific railroad company, stepped up to the secretary's desk in the Y. M. C. A. and said he had come to reclaim his walking stick that he left there more than thirty years before when he was a "typesetter" on an evening paper here, Secretary Bugbee was momentarily surprised. He remembered the circumstances surrounding Mr. Gillette's cane, but he never expected to see the owner, and he was unable to return the cane.

Secretary Bugbee explained to Mr. Gillette that the cane had been found between the floors, when old Washington hall was being razed for the construction of the modern office building on the corner of the square about two years ago. When the walking stick had been dusted off, it was seen that the name "S. A. Gillette" had been carved in the wood, and an attempt was made at that time to return the property, an article having appeared in the local paper relative to it. Mr. Gillette's relatives in this section told him of the discovery, and he decided to call for the stick the next time he came to this city.

For the first time in thirty years he returned to Watertown, and after making hands with old time friends he started in search of his cane. Secretary Bugbee was compelled to tell him that the cane had been donated to "Huckleberry" Charley, who evidently made good use of it in one way or another, for about a month ago the well known local character reported that the cane had been broken. Mr. Gillette did not exactly need the cane, but out of curiosity he would have gladly given it a home in its old age.

"You know," Mr. Gillette explained, "we thought in those days that we had a carry a cane to be fully dressed up, and I was no exception to the rule."

MODERN DANCES TO LURE TRADE TO "DEAD" TOWN

Borough to Use Charm of Fair Maids Against Counter Attractions Close at Hand

Chester, Pa.—The modern dance craze and unkept-finger nails have been hit upon by industrial boomers and merchants of Leiperville as a means to advertise the town and draw trade. The plans will be worked out and the traps set thru the happy medium of a host of Delaware County's finest specimens of femininity.

The thrifty and wide awake borough of Leiperville adjoins Eddystone, but with Chester on the other side of the Baldwin and Remington arms plants, merchants and citizens of Leiperville receive little or no benefits from the industrial boom and the army of workers in these mammoth mills usually head Chester way in search of pleasure and supplies.

To divert some of this traffic into Leiperville, the citizens evolved a novel celebration to be known as "Get 'em here week."

It is planned to attract the workmen to the borough thru the lure of the latest dance steps, and the fair maids with dainty and well trained feet have volunteered to enlist as instructors. The new quarters of the James F. Dougherty Fire Company will furnish the dancing floor.

Another group of the fairest ones will arm themselves with manicuring implements and be in constant readiness for a movement upon hackneyed finger nails of the workmen when the shifts change.

Only three new dwellings have been erected in Leiperville in the last seventy-five years and the residents declare they will no longer furnish material for gibes and jokes from neighboring towns.

URNS TABLES ON BANDITS

Bank Official Frees Self and Shoots Down Boy Robbers

Grant, Okla.—Two youthful bandits robbed the bank of Grant of $4,000, but were overtaken and captured a few minutes later by Cashier Webb, of the bank, who liberated himself from a vault into which he had been forced by the men. Both of the men were wounded in an exchange of shots with the cashier. All of the money was recovered and the men, who gave their names as Claude Jones, 23, and Arthur McFarland, 17, were brought to jail here tonight.

Webb overtook the men as they were about to board a train and when they ignored his command to surrender, opened fire with a shotgun. Jones, probably will die. McFarland also is seriously wounded but it is believed he will recover.

NAME TATTOOED ON FOREHEAD

San Francisco, Cal.—"What's your name?" demanded District Attorney Becsey of a Mexican charged with vagrancy.

The defendant brushed back his hair, but did not speak. Becsey repeated his question. Same response. Then the Spanish interpreter tried. The man pointed to a spot on his forehead. Becsey looked closely and tattooed on the man's brow was, "Fred Harris, Sohora, Mexico."

"What's the idea?" asked Becsey. "I have heart disease. I may drop dead, I don't want my grave to be unmarked," the prisoner explained. He was permitted to depart.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you—Drink more water.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Her Good Work Wins Contract and Stardom

Because of her exceptionally stirring portrayal of the difficult role of Diana Strongwell in "The Love Liar," a Mutual Masterpiece, De Luxe Edition, starring Crane Wilbur, David Hirsley has engaged Miss Mae Gaston as a permanent member of his stock company.

Miss Gaston, whose picture career extends over several years, was especially engaged as a co-star with Mr. Wilbur in this production. Her success in the role, however, was such that a long time contract was offered her and accepted. A feature, in which she will be starred, is now in preparation for early release through the Mutual.

Insisted On Being An Actor, And He Is

George Marlo, Thanhouser-Mutual juvenile.

"I wanted to be an actor from the very first time I entered a theatre. In fact, I decided right there that no other calling would suit me. I persevered, and here I am," declared George Marlo, the handsome juvenile of the Thanhouser-Mutual studios, when asked how he came to take up a professional career.

Naturally, when Marlo decided to be an actor and nothing else, he grasped at the very first opportunity presenting itself. It was with a stock company, where he remained six years, gaining some real experience. Later the pictures claimed him, and after important engagements with various studios he was engaged by the Thanhouser-Mutual Company about a year ago.

$15 Suits?

Yes, the House of Born makes suits to order for $15—but they are not $15 suits.

They're the kind of suits the "fifteen dollar" tailors try to make for $20. Our better value is due to our greater sales.

But we don't advise a man to buy any $15 suit. It costs as much to sell a $15 suit as a $25 suit. So the man who pays $25 receives a greater percentage of his purchase price in actual clothes quality and service.

At $20 or $25, M. Born & Company will tailor a suit exactly to your order, with the finest of pure wool cloths, guaranteed linings and honest hand workmanship—a suit that will keep you well dressed long after two of the ordinary $15 variety have gone to the rag man.

Drop in this week and ask for "Born's Blue Book"—you'll be delighted with the woolen selection, and amazed at the values offered.
