POTATO ASSOCIATIONS FORMED BY COUNTY AGRICULTURISTS

Ten of the County Agricultural Agents of Michigan have formed County Potato Associations in their counties. These organizations are for the purpose of getting the united action of the farmers of the County upon the more important problems of the growing and marketing of potatoes. Among the potato growing states Michigan ranks second, but the future of the industry will depend largely upon the associated efforts of our potato growers. The profits of this crop now depend largely upon cooperation. In these counties where associations have been formed the farmers agree to produce only pure varieties of the type that is in greatest demand by our best markets. These potatoes are then inspected at various times throughout the season for the purpose of keeping the varieties pure and also for the purpose of keeping them free from the more serious potato diseases. There is a rapidly-growing demand for disease free potatoes for seed. In addition to this there is a great need for our potato growers to act together for the prevention of the spread of potato diseases. These diseases may be spread by shipments of seed from other states or by seed of diseased seed grown in this State within the County. If we are to stay in the potato business we must keep out the diseases that are destroying the industry in other places. By concerted action in getting pure varieties and keeping them free from disease the growers are in position not only to get good yields but also to sell in the best markets. The best markets want medium size potatoes of a certain type and color. If the growers act together they can supply these markets in carload lots and in addition to this they will be in position to enter the best seed markets of the South and other portions of the country wanting Michigan potatoes for seed.

ENCOURAGING BIRD LIFE

By Observer

One of the most worthy movements in the United States today is that one tending to promote an awakening among children of the beauty and preservation of bird and other wild life. In a neighboring city an enterprising business firm recently conducting a contest for boys in which cash prizes were awarded for the building of bird houses. Even the promoters were surprised at the number of boys entering the contest, and, every visitor to the place when the contest was ended was more than surprised at the workmanship resulting from the boys' efforts. The promoters, after the contest had closed and the prizes were awarded, offered the houses for sale and netted a sum equal or greater than the aggregate sum offered as prizes. Needless to say, that city will this summer have hundreds of well built and ornamental bird houses that it never would have had only for the contest put on by that one enterprising business firm. Any boy can build a bird house, and every yard in our city should have one or more of them. Watering places, too can be provided, and when these simple inducements are offered, the birds will come. Some of us think we do not care whether there is a bird in the city, but if we had none, we should miss them just as we miss many things when they are gone and cannot be recalled.

ELBERT BEDE SAYS

We trust that this return of prosperity is not "psychological" also. A bony girl becomes merely a slender one when you are in love with her. Sometimes the more indifferent you appear the more you are likely to hear. It must grate on England to have to measure its money by the standard of its erstwhile colony. When a woman meets the postman with a smile and doesn't get a letter, she thinks he is extremely unappreciative. Sometimes it happens that members of one party are more seriously interested in the nominee of the opposing party than in the nominee of their own. Your morals may have little effect upon your success in life so long as you are not found out; but the immoral can not long keep it to themselves. When a man or a woman is naturally of a somewhat mildly hilarious disposition, it annoys them when they are acting dignified to be asked if they are sick or something is the matter. When night after night, week after week and month after month, the wife who has been married a dozen years, tries to be neat and attractive for hubby when he comes home, you may put it down as a real love match. Among the undesirable aliens are those blue-blooded fellows who come here with no intentions of becoming citizens and spoil our sweet American girls by taking them away to wear European titles, when they would look much prettier in a mother Hubbard keeping house for some red-blooded American.

Are You Ready to Play Your Part?

THE power of a nation in time of need is the producing power of her industries. America must find out what this producing power is and then develop it. The capacity of every plant must be gauged. The ability of every man must be known. For War is Mechanical. It is Electrical. It is Chemical. It is Mining, Manufacturing, Transportation. It is EVERY phase of Engineering fused into a single industry.

"THE NATION'S DEFENSE"

Thirty thousand Engineers today are serving YOUR COUNTRY without pay. They are making a survey of YOUR COUNTRY'S Industrial Resources. They are helping YOUR COUNTRY TO FIND ITSELF—and You! They are charting the channels of commerce. Sounding each source of supply. So that, should the Day break when War must come—YOUR ARMIES in the field will be but the crest of a Wave of Industry, as wide as the American Continent and as deep as the American Soul.

That YOUR COUNTRY may know what the Engineers are doing, the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World have pledged their services to the President of the United States. And this advertisement, published free by this paper, is part of a nation-wide series to secure YOUR co-operation with the Engineers.

"WHAT CAN I DO?"

This is, doubtless, the question you are asking yourself. Here is the answer: If you are a manufacturer co-operate fully with the Engineers so they can do their job quickly and efficiently; if you are a working man help your employer to help the Engineers and be prepared, if so needed, to be a Soldier in Industry, behind the firing line, which is just as important as being a soldier on the firing line; if you are a business man or a professional man, or whoever you are, help mobilize "GOOD WILL" behind this patriotic task of the Engineers in behalf of National Defense and International Peace.

ALONG THE FIRING LINE

Don't get an idea that German industries are at a standstill because of the devastations of war. One of the largest cotton-spinning mills of Bavaria, the Kulmbacher Spinnerei, declared a dividend for 1915 of 12 1/2 per cent, compared with 10 per cent in 1914. A porcelain factory of Ober-Franken recently handed out a 10 per cent dividend for the year, after laying aside a large amount for reserves. The industrial fabric of Germany is better than ever. The efficiency which has been characteristic of the Germans has been raised to the 9th power during this war, and when it is over there will be a great horde of men willing to go into the mills at any wage. There is the time that this country will need a protective tariff instead of the present near-free-trade abomination.

During his imperial reign as Comptroller of the Currency, John Skelton Williams has taken delight in devising new sets of questions for the national banks to answer. It is said that no two of his calls have included exactly the same inquiries. As a result, the banks have been compelled to keep their clerks working overtime—often late into the night, to compile the desired information. Now Williams has insolence to suggest to the bankers in a fatherly way, that they should give their clerks a long vacation in order that ample opportunity may be had to check the books and accounts of the clerks and detect irregularities. Strange how this country ever managed to build up a magnificent system of banks without Williams' assistance.

President Willson's claim that "we," meaning the Democratic Party, have given the country its present prosperity, is contradicted by the speech of Paul M. Warburg, of the Federal Reserve Board, at Buenos Ayres, in which Warburg shows that the remarkable transformation in business conditions has been brought about "since the war began". In trying to explain why American capital has not been turning to South America, Mr. Warburg said that we have been too busy with the tremendous war orders, but he ventured the prediction that in the near future American business men will be giving considerable attention to South America. When the Democratic spell-binder tries to take credit to his party for such prosperity as we are now enjoying, don't overlook this speech of Warburg's.

How wonderfully quiet the Democrats are keeping over their repeal of the free sugar clause. Why don't they point to it as one of the great accomplishments of the administration? Or are they afraid to acknowledge the concession to Republican statesmanship?

Sohn Skelton Williams telling the bankers of the country how to run their business is on a par with a city-bred youth trying to tell an experienced and successful farmer how to run his farm.

It has been about a month since President Wilson went to the Capitol to tell Congress what he had written in his latest note to Germany, and still the note writing goes on.

The speech of Senator Reed of Missouri, defending the Democratic assault on the Civil Service, won't help him any in his campaign for re-election.

Secretary J. B. Reynolds, of the Republican National Committee, says that the Democrats need an explanation clerk. Yes, several thousand of them.

Chile has revised her customs tariff. Chile is on a protective basis. We'll be with you, Chile, in about a year, with revision and protection.

President Wilson confessed he is not a business man. No, and if he got into business and tried to run his private business the way he runs the public business, he wouldn't be a business man very long.

We can still remember the Maine but have forgotten the Lusitania.

STATE MAN HERE FIFTEEN SCHOOLS VISITED

A number of school boards were planning on remodeling their schools and wondered how they could do this so as to get the best results and give the best service to their districts. A few wondered what they would have to do to make their schools "Standard." For this reason they asked that an inspector from the state department come out to look their building over and tell them what the requirements would be. This does not bind them in any way whatever and does not cost the district a cent. It does give them an opportunity to see what is being done in other counties of the state and in other districts of this county.

In response to their invitations Mr. W. L. Coffey of Lansing was to arrive in Charlevoix on the morning of Monday, May 8th. Due to a misunderstanding of the schedule he was late, but Mr. Munson, Deputy State Superintendent, happened to be in town on other official business and kindly consented to work in the country until Mr. Coffey should arrive. In the morning trip out from Charlevoix, Mr. Munson visited the Hilton and the Johnson schools. Both school houses could easily be made "Standard" and by a little pushing and some extra live wire enthusiasm could be made into model school rooms like the ones described by the land commissioners in the vicinity of some of our larger cities. In each case a type-written report of the visit and of recommended changes will be sent from Lansing to the school board issuing the invitation.

Directly after dinner Mr. Coffey was on hand to take up the work and the commissioner took him first to Phelps. The school board was already at the school house to give him a hearty welcome. They were quite relieved to find that they would have very few necessary changes in working for a "Standard" plate. They needed a little more light and would need the seats set a little closer together. The seats were a good kind and splendidly arranged. The school board spoke of one or two possible improvements to relieve the congested condition due to their very large enrollment. Mr. Coffey explained that the "Standard" school requirements were only such as every school ought to have anyhow only that the state department were offering these plates as an inducement to districts to fix up a little.

He reached Rock Elm at 3 o'clock and found a live wire delegation awaiting him. Rock Elm has already made a number of improvements and is still improving. These people can ask more questions in ten minutes than any cross examiner, would ask of his victim. It's all right tho, they are thinking. What they do they not only want to do right but they want to know why they do it. They were advised to place a bank of windows on the northeast, leaving only one of the old windows on the southwest. Then in order to relieve the barrenness of the side facing the road they should place near the ceiling oblong windows with frosted panes.

After a hearty and enjoyable feed at the Second home, a fifth school was visited for a protracted evening session. The Walker school board had called a special meeting for the occasion to put the project before their electors. They needed to remedy the narrowness of their building and the congested condition of the air due to the small air space and large enrollment. The pupils had prepared some musical numbers for the occasion. Those boys and girls can really sing. By the way they can yell too. We knew that when "Eveline No. 5 rang thru the air. The commissioner spoke on "Standard" schools in general and explained that each school district would have to decide for itself whether or not it chose to be standard but that care in details often determined the prevention of much illness. Mr. Coffey told of some of his own experiences as a commissioner, of the value of a good school library and proved the evil effect of cross light in the school room. The electors requested the school board to have a correct estimate made of all needed improvements and the cost of the ten foot addition in question. They adjourned for two weeks to give time for this work. The good mothers of the districts had surmised that the crowd might be hungry and served sandwiches, coffee and cake to meet the requirements of a standard appetite.

Tuesday was a banner day. Six schools were visited, the first at 7:30 a. m. and the sixth at 5:00 p. m. Supt. Craig of Charlevoix attended the commissioner and inspector in these visits lending his weight to the nation-wide movement meeting the school boards and learning their problems. The schools in the order visited were Iron-ton, Star, Tainter, Wildwood Bay Shore and Undine. In every case the inspector was on time or a little ahead of his prearranged schedule and the school board was out in full force at the school house. He found every building a different problem but all are working for the same goal. In all cases for a Standard school the windows would have to be rearranged and in some cases the ventilation had to be corrected or supplied. Two schools had their seats arranged in rows of one size but all would need to place the seat nearer the desk belonging to it. In these cases the department furnishes a seating schedule. In most cases there would be out little expense necessary in meeting the suggestions of the department but it was the interest shown by the school officers that pleased Mr. Coffey. He complimented our northern country on its interest in its schools as contrasted with some of the older and more thickly settled regions.

Wednesday was a rainy stormy day; the kind that needs every bit of philosophy one has gleaned from the poets, and even then that gray, muggy sky would have an evil effect. Supt. McIntosh of Boyne City became a passenger for both pleasure and profit but there is no record of his having complained of the weather. Seventy miles were covered, thirty-five with a team and thirty-five by Ford. The problems were met and handled; duplicate reports of the inspection will be returned to the districts visited. The Blain school out from Clarion was visited first, then the Mackie school near Springvale, the Paddock school near Boyne Falls, and the three room school in the village of Boyne Falls. The Ford then sped along thru East Jordan to Charlevoix and left its occupants to take the boat to St. James the next morning. Here the angry waves of Lake Michigan interfered; the boat didn't go.

Mr. Coffey was one of the first careful students of lighting conditions in rural schools. As a commissioner in Cheboygan county he had the eyes of every student carefully tested by the teacher in charge. He found that 51 to 68 of the children were suffering from defective vision. In only one school was the percentage less than 50 per cent. This was in a "Standard" school which had been "Standard" for ten years, had one side lighting with walls of buff and cream tinting. In this school only two children had weak eyes and these two children came from a family in which the eyesight was poor thruout. These statistics which he had gathered from his own schools he later used in a paper which he prepared for the National Educational meeting in Buffalo, and which attracted nation-wide attention to the poor lighting conditions of the built by guess school buildings.

We can't get a state man here very often nor for very long at a time but when we can it pays. As soon as we can work up to it once more we shall try to have Charlevoix again included in the state schedule. The whole thing is just for our boys and girls, the future of to-morrow.

County Normal Notes.

(Florence Maddaugh)
Miss Carrie Geiken gave the class an interesting talk last Tuesday about her work as a trained nurse and what a nurse has to do when she goes into training.

Florence Maddaugh was out of school Wednesday on account of illness.
On Monday evening the normal class enjoyed a trip to the Walker school. County School Com'r Stewart and State Inspector Coffey had charge of the meeting which was for the purpose of discussing the changes which would have to be made before the school would be declared "Standard." Delicious refreshments were served by the school children under the direction of their teacher, Miss Grace Meggison, and an excellent program was given which consisted of songs, speeches and yells.

The teachers practicing in the training room are: Rena Carroll and Catherine LaLonde who have charge of third grade language, Sadie Donleoy who is teaching the chart class, and Mary Boice who has third grade history.

1333—Ladies' Costume, with or without Bolero and Panel Trimming, and With Two Styles of Sleeve

Embroidered poplin was used for this style, combined with chiffon taffeta. The waist is simple and lovely with the cool comfortable square cut neck and new bell sleeve. The sleeve is wrist length is equally stylish. The panel trimming may be attached to the bolero, and thus could be finished separately and made for wear over any dress. Lawn, organdie, dimity, repp, batiste, or linen, grenadine, voile, or gabardine are equally desirable. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7-5-8 yards of 44 inch material for the entire dress in a 36 inch size. Bolero and panel trimming in different material will require 2-1-2 yards. The skirt measures about 2-3 yards at the foot in a 36 inch size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR MOTHER'S GIRL

1676—Girls' Dress With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths. This smart little model was made up attractively in figured crepe, with white crepe for vest, collar, belt and cuffs. Val insertion forms a pretty decoration. The style would be nice in blue or pink batiste, in figured lawn or organdy, challie, gingham, chambray or batiste. The sleeve is attractive in either wrist or elbow length. The waist fronts are finished with a deep box plait at each side of the full vest. The skirt is a five-gore plaited model. This pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years, and requires 2 yards of 44 inch material for a 6 year size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

1608—Girls' Dress (with Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths) Brown plaid suitings with collar and cuffs of white pique would be nice for this. It will also look well in serge, cashmere, poplin or rep. The right front crosses over the left, where the closing is effected. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length. The skirt is cut in 6 gores and laid in deep plaits, which form a panel in back and front.

The pattern for this model which is excellent for wash as well as for woolen goods, is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires 4-1-2 yards of 36 inch material for a 10 year sized. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PLEASING COMBINATION

Waist 1619; Skirt 1625—This Shows Pattern 1619, Ladies' Waist and Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1625

While it may be fashionable to have the blouse of a collar to match the skirt, one often finds that silk and cloth in white, cream or flesh tints are most becoming. In this costume the waist is of cream white Georgette crepe and the skirt of brown mixed homespun. As shown in the small illustration, the waist may be finished in plain outline. The pointed finish is equally pleasing. The skirt has new lines, with popular, practical pockets. The waist is good for lawn, crepe, batiste, satin, silk, dimity and linen. The skirt, for all wash fabrics, broadcloth, serge, voile, gabardine and nun's veiling.

The skirt pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 4-1-4 yards of 44 inch material for a medium size, and measures 3 yards at the lower edge. The waist is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 2-1-4 yards of 44 inch material, if made in plain outline. For pointed outline 2-5-8 yards will be required for a 36 inch size.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

A DAINTY GOWN FOR MANY OCCASIONS

1689—Ladies' Dress, With Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths

One could use any of the soft fabrics for this style. Embroidered voile, crepe, silk, chiffon, batiste, tulle or net over silk, nun's veiling, challie or crepe de chine. The sleeve is new and most attractive. It has a close-fitting cap portion, to which a full puff is joined, which may be finished with a deep, shaped cuff at wrist length, or a rolled cuff with short-puff to the elbow. The skirt is simple in outline, but cut with becoming graceful fullness. A girdle of soft silk or ribbon sash would form a pretty finish for this model.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3-1-3 yards at the foot.

A NEAT AND PRACTICAL DESIGN

1669—Ladies' Apron and Sleeve Protector.

This model has several good features. It is made with a waist portion over the back, which joins the skirt at the belt, and so holds the apron snug and trim in place. The sleeve protector is most serviceable, covering that portion of the dress or waist sleeve which is most easily soiled.

The pattern is good for gingham, seersucker, lawn, drill, percale, mohair and sateen. It is cut in 3 sizes: Small, medium and large. The medium size requires 5-8 yards of 36 inch material for the apron with 3-4 yard for the protector.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A CHARMING MODEL

Waist 1641, Skirt 1640, Comprising Ladies' Waist Pattern 1641 and Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1640.

As here shown blue batiste embroidered in white was used. The style would be lovely for embroidered lawn, crepe or voile, for silk and lace combined, or for plain and figured material.

The waist pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 35, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt pattern is also cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It would require 9-3-8 yards of 44 inch material to make the entire dress for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3-1-4 yards at the lower edge.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

A SMART AFTERNOON DRESS

1610—Ladies' House or Morning Dress.

In linen, khaki, gingham, seersucker or percale this style will be most serviceable. It is made with overlapping fronts and round neck outline, and has a four-gore skirt cut in comfortable fullness. The sleeve in wrist length is finished with a band cuff. In short length a neat turnback cuff forms a suitable trimming. The model could also be developed in serge, flannel or flannellette, and is nice, too, for lawn. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6-3-8 yards of 36 inch material for the 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE, PRACTICAL STYLE

1596—Ladies' House or Morning Dress.

In linen, khaki, gingham, seersucker or percale this style will be most serviceable. It is made with overlapping fronts and round neck outline, and has a four-gore skirt cut in comfortable fullness. The sleeve in wrist length is finished with a band cuff. In short length a neat turnback cuff forms a suitable trimming. The model could also be developed in serge, flannel or flannellette, and is nice, too, for lawn. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6-3-8 yards of 36 inch material for the 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SPLENDID STYLE FOR BUSINESS OR AFTERNOON WEAR

Waist 1648. Skirt 1656. In linen, gingham, cheviot, jersey cloth, shepherd check or plaid suiting, taffeta, crepe, poplin or voile, this style will be very lovely. The yoke skirt is especially attractive, and adapted to any figure. The right front of the waist is shaped at the closing. The neck edge may be in high-effect, or rolled low in convertible style.

The waist pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. It requires 7-7-8 yards of 36 inch material for a medium size. The skirt measures about 3-7-8 yards at the foot.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

A UNIQUE AND EASILY ADJUSTED APRON

1597—This style has several good points. It has no cumbersome sleeves, the neck edge is low and free, and the fullness is held in place over the front by the belt forming straps that are crossed at the back and hold the apron in position over the shoulders. Percale, gingham, seersucker, sateen, drill, muslin or lawn may be used for this style. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, medium and large. It requires for a medium size 5-5-8 yards of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE PRACTICAL MODEL

1638. Ladies' House Dress, with Sleeves in Either of Two Lengths. White linen embroidered in blue, would make this a smart morning dress. Checked gingham, striped seersucker, figured lawn, drill, cotton rep or poplin is also nice. The style is simple and pleasing. The right waist front is crossed over the left. A shaped collar facing outlines the neck. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or short length. The skirt is cut on new lines, with panels stitched in back effect.

This desirable model is cut in seven sizes: 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7-1-4 yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A PRACTICAL, SERVICEABLE GOWN FOR MATERNITY OR INVALID WEAR

1599—This desirable model has new style features and is most practical in its makeup. The fronts are full under a square yoke, and open over a neat vest. An return on the vest allows for widening at the fronts and the fullness is comfortable and pleasing. The sleeves are in wrist length and dart fitted. A stylish collar finishes the neck edge. The skirt portion, the important part of this model is made with gathered fullness over the hips, deep plaited panel portions in back and front, where it is finished with a tuck stitched return that may also afford added width if required. The model is so arranged that the fullness at the waistline is adjustable to any required waist size, without alteration on the garment, and allowance is also made for increasing the front.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 6 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3-1-4 yards at its lower edge.

A TRIM AND ATTRACTIVE BUSINESS SUIT

Waist 1637, Skirt 1657, Composed of Ladies' Skirt Pattern 1657 and Ladies' Skirt 1637.

As here illustrated butchers' linen was used for the waist and checked suiting for the skirt. The waist is made with a pointed yoke, which extends over the front. The skirt has plaited side sections and jaunty pockets. Serge, taffeta, linen, gingham, nun's veiling and crepe are nice for both skirt and waist. If one desires a dress of one material, crepe, batiste, lawn and madras are good for a separate waist.

The waist pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 2-1-4 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt is cut in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure, and requires 4 yards of 44 inch material for a 24 inch size. The skirt measures about 3-3-4 yards at the lower edge, with plait drawn out.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of ten cents for each pattern in silver or stamps.

"HELP WANTED"

SYNOPSIS

Gerald Scott, senior member of the firm of Scott & Son, employs Gertie Meyers as a stenographer. Though incompetent to handle her work, Scott, Sr., is captivated by her good looks and pays more money than she requests. Jack Scott, step-son and junior partner is putting in his first day learning the details of the business. He meets Gertie and is immediately attracted to her. In the course of the month that follows the elder Scott has taken his new stenographer to luncheon many times, in each instance endeavoring to force his attentions upon her and each time she resents them.

In the meantime Jack's friendly interest has ripened into love and he has declared himself. The day following his proposal Gertie is kept at the office later than usual. Jack, not finding her at her home goes to the office, and finding the inner door locked, smashes the glass upon hering screams for help, and rescues Gertie from his stepfather's attempted embrace.

Scott, Sr., in his anger at being thwarted, and not knowing the situation between the two young folks, turns to the door bearing the name "Scott & Son" and with his walking stick breaks that part reading "& Son" declaring Jack is no longer a member of the firm. The scene then shifts to the Scott home where a reconciliation is finally effected after explanations are made by Jack as to his honorable intentions towards Gertie.

"THE WOMAN"

SYNOPSIS

"The Woman" is organized as one of the most forceful dramas ever presented by David Belasco and is by many considered the masterpiece of its author, Wm. C. De Mille. The picturization, offered by Mr. Lasky and Mr. Belasco, is said to be even more tensely dramatic than the play itself. Moreover, the photodramatic cast including Lois Meredith, Mabel Van Buren, Theodore Roberts and James Neill, is one of the few genuinely star organizations, and gives the production added note.

"The Woman" is a drama showing the manner in which domestic scandal may be used as a political weapon. A young "insurgent" is opposing a certain "grab" measure which the members of the "ring" are endeavoring to put through congress, with such evidence of success that the "machine" politicians endeavor to discredit him with the public by exposing an "affair" of his early life. The story concerns the manner in which this effort is defeated by the courage and nobility of a girl telephone operator.

ADVERTISED GOODS MUST BE GOOD

The advertiser does not succeed because he advertises, but because his goods are worthy to be advertised, and fulfill the claims and promises which the advertising makes for them.

Advertising cannot add anything to a commodity, nor take anything away from it. It cannot make people believe that an article is what it is not, nor permanently and profitably sell it if it is undesirable and unworthy. Advertising does not so much create a market for goods as take advantage of a market which already exists. Advertising enormously increases the volume of demand for the goods, simply by enormously increasing the number of people who know about them.

Advertising performs no miracles. Trade follows a law which is as immutable as any law of nature. Just as water will not flow up hill, trade refuses to flow to those who do not deserve it. The most desirable goods at the most reasonable prices win the final and permanent patronage of the public, provided there is a sufficient opportunity to learn about them and to buy them.

The manufacturer advertises his goods because he believes they will meet his test; because he believes that, of their kind and grade and at their price, they are more desirable and satisfactory than competing goods. If he does not believe this, or if he is honestly mistaken in his estimate of his product, the buying public will soon place him precisely where he belongs.

A common public impression seems to be that advertised goods are uniformly higher in price than equally desirable goods which are not advertised. This belief has been fostered by the publication of the reports of investigating legislators and others purporting to prove that advertising increases the cost of living.

Why, for example, does the discriminating housewife prefer to buy certain brands of advertised food products rather than to buy unadvertised goods at a lower price?

These are the reasons:

Because she knows that the factory in which they are made is clean and sanitary; that the materials of which they are made are pure, wholesome and carefully selected; that they are made by careful, cleanly, contented, intelligent workers. She knows this is true because the factory is at all times open to the public, and is annually visited by thousands of people.

Because the goods, on trial in her own home have proved the truth of the claims made for them.

Because they are always reliable; always uniform in quality.

Because they are advertised in publications which have thoroughly investigated them, and would refuse them space if they were not absolutely dependable.

Because they are packed in a manner which insures their freshness, full strength and flavor, and freedom from contamination.

Because they are more attractive in appearance, and therefore more tempting and appetizing.

Because the few additional pennies they may cost is a small price to pay for this insurance of quality, purity, cleanliness and uniformity.

Now, take careful note of this point for it is of vital importance: Superior materials, model factories, high grade workmanship, mechanical devices which obviate the necessity of touching the product with the human hand, air and moisture proof packages and tasteful and artistic labels cost money. Who pays for it? The consumer? If so she would have to pay a higher price for such goods, even if they were not advertised.—Lisle's

THE GRAND GETAWAY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

Copyright by the Frank A. Munsey Co.

As the yacht came abreast of the old fort he half expected to hear the boom of a cannon and hear a shot whistle across the bows as a command to surrender. He had read of such things.

He felt like a private, privateer, man, blockade runner and smuggler all rolled into one.

It appeared to him as though every gun in the fort was pointed at him personally, and to his guilty mind it seemed as though every pair of binoculars in San Francisco was leveled at the yacht to see what direction she would take; and that when he least expected it a long arm would reach out, pick him off the deck of the craft and stand him up before the stern gaze of Anderson, the chief of police, the district attorney and the president of the bank he had looted.

But nothing of that sort happened, and before long the yacht was rising and falling on the long swells of the ocean and her masts were bending lower to the heavier breeze of the open sea.

That last thought had given Hemenway an idea, and as they gathered around the wheel he said:

"Say, Captain George, does it make any difference to your navigation business if we head due west until we get out of sight of land? I told a friend of mine we were going to Yokohama, and I don't want him to think I'm lying about it."

"He's a bookmaker, and I know the old son-of-a-gun has his field glasses on me this very minute. He bet me fifty I wouldn't have the nerve to start out in a boat of this size, and I just want him to know he loses. It'll keep him sore for six months."

They all laughed.

"All right," said George, "it won't take us long to put California under the horizon if this breeze holds out. Now, somebody get breakfast while the others straighten out that cabin. This sea will slap things around if they are not stowed shipshape."

The fact quickly developed that none of the party except the twins could cook.

"You are a fine bunch!" exclaimed Jim in disgust. "I'm not going to do all the cooking, and neither is my brother."

Hemenway hastened to smooth matters over.

"I want you fellows to understand that I am willing to do anything, and work as hard as anybody. I can't cook, but I can learn. I can't sail a boat, but I can learn that too. Please be a little patient and things will iron themselves out all right. Just now I'm nearly ready to drop."

"I was up all night and haven't had a wink of sleep since Saturday morning. If you will allow me a wink or two as soon as it can be arranged that's all I will ask."

"All right," smiled Jim. "That's good enough. Come on, now, and let's straighten things down below."

Hemenway and Lent followed him down the companionway.

"For the love of Mike, what's this," exclaimed Jim. He was standing beside one of the bunks on which was a dinner coat and a pile of gold and yellow-backs.

"That's my pile," replied Lent. "I took a dying chance in a gambling house last night and luck was with me. I don't know how much is there, but I broke the bank."

"That's interesting," said Hemenway, "we'll count it right now." They did so and found the pile totaled close to fifteen thousand dollars, more than eight thousand dollars of which was in gold.

"Well, stuff it away somewhere, you can't spend it here," remarked Hemenway.

They quickly put the cabin to rights and then repaired to the galley. After nosing around they brought forth the ingredients of a breakfast. Jim made coffee and cooked bacon and eggs, which with bread and butter and a can of peaches made an excellent meal.

"Lucky I thought of a case of eggs and a tub of butter and a whole lot of bread yesterday. They were not on my list," said Hemenway, "but I guess we have plenty of everything else."

"I hope so," said Jim fervently. "Now clean up those dishes and I will relieve George at the wheel."

It took George no time at all to eat his breakfast and soon they were all gathered aft again.

"What I want to know is, who is that fellow you called Dennis, and what did you do with him?" asked George of Hemenway.

"He's the husky I told you about," replied Hemenway. "I took him in good faith. He agreed to come for twenty-five dollars a month. He came aboard drunk, as near as I can find out. Anyway he talked like a drunk man about Lent, here."

"I didn't have time to argue with him, so I pushed him down the hatch and put the lid on. After a while I'll dig him up and have a talk with him. He certainly ought to be sober by that time."

"All right," said George. "Now, Hemenway, you and Lent turn in. You can sleep until four o'clock, which is eight bells unless you are needed on deck. In the meantime Jim and I will figure out how to run things. If you hear us holler, jump quick. Now go below."

"Aye, aye, sir. Is that the way to say it?" laughed Hemenway as he disappeared with Lent.

"Just as soon as those fellows get some sleep we will take them right in hand," declared George as soon as he and his brother were alone. "The first thing to do is to teach them to steer so they can take their regular trick at the wheel. Tomorrow, if the weather is anywhere near decent, we'll show them how to reef and furl, and make 'em learn the ropes in double quick time. Then we—what's that?"

"They listened. There was a sound of subdued hammering. George ran forward whence the sounds came."

"It's that fellow down in the forehold. I guess he wants to come up," he yelled.

"Let him up," ordered Jim.

George unfastened the bar, lifted the hatch cover and peered down the hold. Seated on a coil of rope, striped to his undershirt and holding a shoe in one hand was the detective.

He had torn his shirt into bandages which he had wrapped around his head. His face, hands, and undershirt were smeared with blood. At sight of George he arose, threw his coat over an arm and held up a hand.

"Give us a lift," he said.

George grasped the outstretched arm with both hands, hauled the gumshoe man quickly to the deck and fastened down the hatch again. McDonald grabbed a halyard to steady himself and gazed stupidly around. Nothing but the broad expanse of water met his vision.

"Which way's the land?" he asked.

George pointed aft. McDonald peered around the mast and saw the dim outline of the coast in the distance. At that moment a bucketful of spray came over the weather rail and soured him. It seemed to revive him instantly. He dropped his coat and shoe and ran swiftly aft. Jumping in the cockpit he made up to Jim at the wheel.

"Turn around and put me ashore—me and Lent!" he ordered.

"You're crazy man; haven't you sobered up yet?" demanded Jim.

McDonald with a cry of rage, threw himself at Jim and tore him away from the wheel. He attempted to grasp the spokes, but before he could do so George made a flying tackle and bore him to the floor of the cockpit.

Released from its guiding hand the wheel spun around, and the schooner came rapidly up into the wind with sail a-flutter.

CHAPTER XII

Shanghaied.

Jim jumped to the wheel and quickly put the yacht on her course again. "Need any help, George?" he asked.

"I don't know whether I'm dealing with a crazy man or a crazy drunk," replied George who was sitting astride the gum shoe man with his fingers on the under man's throat.

"But I'll tell you one thing," he added impressively to the detective, "if you make another move I'll choke the life out of you and throw your carcass overboard."

"I quit, lemme up," gasped McDonald.

"All right," said George, arising and helping the other to his feet. "Sit down now and tell us what's on your mind. How did you get all bloody and what's the matter with your head?"

McDonald passed a hand over his forehead and said:

"When that young fellow pushed me down the hatch my head struck the coaming and knocked me out. When I came to the boat was pitching violently. I pounded on the hatch, but no one heard me. The blood was still flowing from the wounds, so I tore up my shirt and bandaged it. Then I took off a shoe and hammered until you let me out. That's all."

"Why were you so nasty with us?"

"When I saw we were leaving the land I got crazy. I didn't intend to go on this trip at all. It was only a bluff on my part. I'm a detective, and I have been shadowing Lent. It means a lot to me. For God's sake let me out of this, won't you? Lent is a crook. I give you my word."

The twins considered. Finally George said:

"You better come with me and I'll dress that wound and bandage it properly. Then we'll talk it over."

When this was accomplished they returned to the cockpit again.

"Where did you meet Hemenway and what was your arrangement with him?" asked Jim.

McDonald told them his story from beginning to end. "You see," he concluded, "I thought I could keep in closer touch with Lent by tying up with Hemenway, as I knew Lent had promised to go along, too. But I had no intention of sticking. My idea was to nail Lent at the last moment, and then I could prove he was intending to skip."

"It seems to me," said George, "that Hemenway acted in perfectly good faith throughout the whole business. Are you married?"

"No."

"Then you have no family to worry over your absence. It seems to me it was a low down trick you tried to play on Hemenway." He counted on you to complete his crew. And you would have thrown him down at the last minute and upset all our plans.

"I guess you will have to go along, whether you like it or not, unless Hemenway wants to put you ashore, which I don't believe he will want to do after he has heard the whole story."

"Where is he? Let's ask him," said McDonald.

"He's asleep, and I'm not going to disturb him. Now about this man Lent. How do you know he is a crook?"

"Lent worked in a bank as bookkeeper," replied the detective. "The officers of the bank learned that he was visiting gambling houses. They had his books examined, but could find nothing wrong. Still, the crook did not figure where he got the money to gamble with. So they consulted my employers and I was put on the case."

"Have you got anything on him?"

"Not a thing, except that he cashed a lot of checks last night, and he hasn't any money in the bank that I know of. And the fact that he has skipped town is proof that something is wrong, isn't it?"

"Not necessarily," replied George. "For all you know, he left a note telling the bank people he was going away. You say there's nothing wrong with his books?"

The detective tenderly felt his head and took a long look over the stern. "I guess I'm up against it," he said finally, "and I may as well make the best of it. I overplayed myself. All right, let it go at that. What's the orders?"

"You better turn in now and get some sleep. You seem to need it as badly as the rest. I'll call you when I call the others. Go below and take any bunk you like."

McDonald turned to go.

"One minute," said Jim; "can you cook?"

"Fair to middlin'."

"That settles it," laughed George. "Now you've got to stick."

"It's a funny combination," remarked Jim to his brother when they were alone on the deck. "Hemenway seems to be the only one of the three that is strictly on the level. Fine kid, that. Oh, well, what do we care? I wouldn't quit would you?"

"Not on your life," replied George, with a laugh. "I'm just beginning to enjoy myself."

At noon the twins took an observation. At four bells, following the promise to Hemenway, the course was changed. The wind had hauled more to the west, and it was simply a case of veering off. When sheets were eased to a fine quartering-breeze the course was laid south-southwest, half west.

At eight bells Jim went to the companionway and yelled:

"All hands on deck!"

The amateur tar, rime scrambling up in a surprisingly short space of time, Hemenway promptly led McDonald to one side and said:

"Take my advice and cut out ancient history as far as Lent is concerned. He says he never saw you before, and if you have been shadowing him he doesn't know it. I'll introduce you to him. You better apologize for the way you greeted him this morning. Joe—turning to Lent—"shake hands with Mr. McDonald, member of our gallant crew. Mr. Lent, Mr. McDonald."

They shook hands and the detective said:

"Excuse me for what Mr. Hemenway said I said this morning, Mr. Lent. I guess I was pretty well lit up."

"I move we all tell each other our first names!" cried Hemenway.

The motion was carried.

"Now, then, Archie," said Jim, "you come here and I'll give you your first trick at the wheel. George, you better take the others forward and explain things as far as possible. You've all got to become able seamen in double quick time."

Dennis cooked supper and they got through the first night in good shape—the only hardship being on the twins, who had to take turns at the wheel and get sleep in short snatches. Archie stayed around with the steersman until midnight, when he was told to go below.

"I'll be a regular old salt in a couple of days," he remarked as he went to his rest.

Next morning the twins started their school of seamanship. The schooner was brought up in the wind, the mainsail was reefed, furlled, and hoisted again. Sams with the topsail. The jib and forestaysail were hauled to the deck, stowed, and run up once more.

Finally when the yacht was headed on her course again, the topsails were gotten out, bent on, and sent up from the deck. It was a tired crew and welcomed the order to quit.

"While the weather holds good we'll keep the topsails on her daytimes and haul them down at night," said Jim as they gathered at the cockpit. "Being short handed and having a dub crew like you fellows, you would probably get rattled if you were called on to shorten sail at night in case of a blow, so we will make it as easy for you as possible."

Every day for a week the same tactics were followed, and at the end of that time the twins pronounced the crew fairly well qualified to hand, reef or steer. The wind obligingly behaved itself and the novices learned quickly.

Everything went with surprising smoothness. Hemenway congratulated himself on this fact, and felt sure his getaway was complete. This thought suddenly flashed across his mind ten days after leaving the Golden Gate.

He was alone at the wheel. The sun was shining brightly. The yacht was bowing along with the wind abeam. Hemenway's gaze swept the horizon. Not a sail in sight.

"Gee, I'm a lucky guy!" he said to himself. "They will never get me. I have disappeared off the face of the earth."

CHAPTER XIII

A Spy on Board.

What happened eventually might have happened anyway. Be this as it may, Hemenway did a simple thing one day, which, like cutting a deck of cards, later on changed the deal.

The cruise was two weeks old when he said at breakfast one morning:

"I don't like the name of this boat, and I'm going to change it. The Run-away sounds too much as though we really did run away, when, as a matter of fact, as we all well know, none of us has run away at all unless it be Dennis here, who ran away from a job. Are there any objections?"

"As you own the boat, I guess you can do as you please," replied Jim. "I don't care as long as you don't pick out something foolish."

"Watch me; I'll give you something nifty," said Hemenway.

He then went down to the stern of the schooner and unscrewed the raised brass letters that formed the yacht's name. These he placed on the deck and shuffled them around until he got a combination that suited him.

Then he procured a small pot of black paint, the basic color of the yacht and painted anew the strip where the letters had been placed. When this was dry he screwed on the letters forming the word WAUNA and tossed the Y and R overboard.

Lent must have been the profound thinker of the party. He was very stinging with his words and never spoke unless spoken to. He never asked where they were going and appeared to take absolutely no interest in the voyage.

While not exactly remorse he was mighty poor company, and after a while the others gave him up as a poor job. He took his regular trick at the wheel, did what he was told to do, never shirked his work, but took no part in the more or less airy conversation that prevailed on shipboard.

However he was a good listener and a keen observer, and at bottom he was of a suspicious nature.

Hemenway's act in changing the name of the yacht and his laughing reasons for doing so aroused Lent's suspicions. When he reviewed his dealings with Hemenway, the whole thing looked queer to him. As near as he could judge the twins were induced to go along on the same pretext that Hemenway gave him.

He recalled that Hemenway declared he was in poor health. Lent decided in his own mind that Hemenway was the healthiest sick man he ever laid eyes on. There was something back of the whole business, he was sure, and he resolved to find out something about the breezy young man that posed as owner of the yacht.

No sooner was this resolution formed than Lent proceeded to carry it out. It was not until two days later that he found the proper opportunity. Hemenway was at the wheel, the twins were working on their idea in the lee of the skylight, and McDonald was forward preparing a meal.

Lent sauntered aft and went down the companionway. He crept to the forward part of the cabin, where Hemenway's trunks and boxes were stowed, and drawing a screw driver from his pocket, unscrewed the cover of the first box that met his hand.

He lifted the cover and ran his hand under the excelsior. His fingers struck something. He knew what it was the instant his fingers touched it. Continuing on the top of the bag, he felt a tag. The light was poor.

Feverishly he struck a match and read the tag.

"Holy sufering cats, my bank! What do you know about that?" he exclaimed. Hastily adjusting the cover he screwed it down. Then carefully gathering up the bits of excelsior from the floor and pressing them together, he shoved them in his pocket.

Eight bells struck. He started. It was his trick at the wheel. He went on deck to relieve Hemenway.

"Sou'west, half west," said Hemenway as he released the spokes to Lent.

"Sou'west, half west," repeated Lent.

Suddenly Hemenway grew deathly pale, then fiery red.

"Where did you—?" Hemenway checked himself up short. On the right sleeve of Lent's coat under the cuff, were two or three bits of excelsior that had stuck to the material. The truth flashed through Hemenway in an instant.

"What's the matter?" asked Lent nervously.

"Nothing," replied Hemenway with a laugh. "I must have been a dreamer."

He walked forward thoughtfully.

"Yes, sir," he said to himself, "that fellow has been in my boxes. He didn't have time to open many, but one is enough. They are all alike."

As the full realization of Lent's actions dawned on his his hair began to bristle. He felt weak and grasped a stay to steady himself.

"I've never killed a man; but, by God! I'll kill him," he breathed fervently. He gazed off to windward, trying to collect his thoughts. Finally he was able to think clearly.

"I can't get rid of him now; that's certain. It would leave us too short-handed, but when we get ashore—

"What's the matter, Archie? You look like somebody had tapped you for your last two bits."

Hemenway looked around and discovered McDonald in the lee of the foremast peeling potatoes.

"Hello, Dennis! How are the murrphies holding out?" replied Hemenway cheerfully pulling himself together. "I guess I must be growing home sick," he added throwing himself on the deck beside the detective.

Then after a pause he said:

"Tell me what you know about Lent, will you? I never heard your story."

"Sure, I'll give you the whole history. You see, Lent was bookkeeper in a bank and—"

"What bank?"

"The Merchant's and Drovers'," Hemenway let out a low whistle.

"What's wrong?" demanded McDonald.

"Just a coincidence; that's all. I had an office in the same building."

McDonald started again and told all he knew of Lent's affairs. When he had finished Hemenway asked:

"Do you think he is crooked?"

"Surest thing you know!"

"Well, he's a queer chap all right; and I'm sorry I brought him along. If you had only played on the level with me, Dennis, all this could have been avoided."

"I know it, and I have been kicking myself ever since I got in this scrape. Never mind, I'll get him yet."

Hemenway went below shortly afterward and carefully examined his boxes. Bright, new scratches in the screw heads of one box proved beyond a doubt that Lent had opened it. Only one box had been tampered with, Hemenway was sure.

Next day, after pondering the matter overnight, he resolved to stow the boxes and trunk in the forehold, for there would be absolutely no excuse for Lent going there. To throw off suspicion, he got Lent to help him move the boxes, making the plea that they took up too much room where they were.

Lent helped him without saying a word. Hemenway felt life choking him while they were down in the forehold together, but he conquered his desire and to all outward appearances was as cheerful as ever toward his companion.

There was no other incident worthy of record in their long run south. The weather was remarkably fine all the way. Even the squalls, which sometimes had a dangerous appearance and gave the crew busy half hours shortening sail to be on the safe side, proved harmless as they passed. There were days of calm and there were days of head wind; but, on the whole, they made fine progress under favoring breezes.

Hemenway and the twins, upon whom the responsibility for the cruise rested had not come to any definite understanding as to where they would land. Hemenway's idea was to sail around until they found an island they liked and drop anchor."

This vague wish made the twins smile. As they approached that vast territory known officially as Oceania and in romance as the South Seas, they got out a chart of the South Pacific and endeavored to settle the question with Hemenway.

The twins had brought along several books dealing with the South Seas, but a close reading of them left them still in the dark as to destination, but with a fine respect for shoals and reefs. The twins were in favor of putting in at some island that was properly charted and known to be inhabited and there make some inquiries.

Hemenway opposed that plan strenuously.

"What's the use?" he said. "We don't know what we would run up against. We have plenty to eat and plenty of water, so I say peg along until we strike something we like."

"That's just it," replied George. "We will probably strike something we don't like—a reef, for instance. You know this part of the world isn't charted like San Francisco Bay, Archie."

"I know," insisted Hemenway; "but let's take a Steve Bodie."

Thus they argued day by day, but never could agree. Their talks always wound up by Hemenway saying:

"Wait till we get there; then we'll look it over." He seemed to think he was taking a buggy ride out to see a piece of suburban property.

A few days later Hemenway watched the twins as they made an observation at noon, and followed them as they worked out the latitude and longitude and marked the position of the yacht on the chart.

"According to that, we will be running into something in about two days time," Hemenway observed.

"You have called the turn," replied Jim.

"What's the proper thing to say when you see land?"

"Land ho!"

"Any prizes offered for the first man that sees it?"

"No; but I'll make you a little bet these calculations are correct."

"And I will lay you a little bet I'm the first one to see land."

They both won. Two days later, near the close of day, Hemenway, who had been looking dead ahead through a pair of marine glasses for some time, yelled:

"Land ho! and if it ain't I'll eat my hat."

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody will Know.

Gray hair, however handsome denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your crown. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend it ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

When a young rooster gets a comb he reaches the height of his ambition.

Wise men are as slow about giving advice as fools are about taking it.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside-bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat less meat, if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular attacks of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side, headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water

School Commissioner's Notes

May L. Stewart, Commissioner

A big eighth grade class, at least 250 that took the examination.

It is to be hoped that every boy and every girl receiving a diploma will attend high school next year. Tuition can and must be paid up to $20 per year if application is made before the fourth Monday in June.

If the teachers who are planning on attending the state normals this summer wish to send in their names together with which normal they plan on attending, the commissioner will make out a list of those from this county attending each school so that by consulting the list they may know who is there from home. Then it would be an easy matter to have Charlevoix county parties as well as minor Charlevoix county mass meetings, and yells at the faculty-receptions. Just meet to appoint a yell master and leader, that's all.

Athletic meet at the Fair Grounds for South Arm township. That rainy day rather spoiled it. Nothing fair about it.

On a more careful figuring of the score, the East Jordan Agricultural Club found that in the Wilson Athletic meet the Knop school was in the lead with Afton a close second.

Time to take the census now. Everybody's busy.

Twenty-two certificates will be issued from the April teachers' examinations. Mrs. Cowles plans on being here for a canning demonstration June 30th. Complete program published later.

AS OTHERS SAW ME

I died last week and owing to my transgressions it was decreed that I should become one of the subjects of his Sanatic Majesty.

I had been in his demesne but six days, when I received a twenty-four hour leave of absence to visit the earth. It was given me by Lucifer himself.

In spirit form with all things visible to me, yet invisible to all things save spirits, I again found myself in the sunlight of the world.

I floated in at the office where I had been employed. Another man sat in my chair. The manager was speaking to him. "If Jones hadn't died," he was saying, "I would have been obliged to discharge him. He was getting very inefficient!"

I departed hurriedly and headed for the club. "There at least," I thought "they would miss me."

Smith and Brown were playing poker as usual. I had always played with them. "Jones used to get on my nerves terribly when he played with us!" remarked Smith. "There was something irritating about that fellow!" Brown agreed with him.

Away I went again. "To my wife," I murmured, "Ah to my wife!" She was standing in the parlor looking very lovely in her mourning. Jimson, a man I had always detested, was standing close beside her. "You must go now," she whispered. "Some day perhaps—" She did not finish. There seemed no need. I sped away through space.

A brother spirit drew near. He was traveling in the opposite direction. "Used up your twenty-four hours?" he called out.

"No," I answered, "I've only been on earth twenty minutes!"

"You seem to be in a terrible hurry to get some where," he shouted. "Where are you going so fast?"

"Back home," I replied.—From Judge.

Brief Decisions.

Some people have so many things to look after that they can't look forward to anything.

It is seldom that an office seeks a man who is out of a job.

Wise indeed is the dog that knows it is his day.

No woman can paint herself as others see her.

Hush money always has the last word.

Sometimes a woman gets through loving a man a long time before she gets through with him.

It is far better to love and lose than it is to win and come out loser.—From Judge.

Occasionally a man has the last word in an argument with his wife, but he has to say it under his breath.

The man who says that he never had an opportunity probably wouldn't recognize one if he saw it.

Lots of men go where duty calls, and stand around with their hands in their pockets after they get there.

The less a woman's hat costs the more becoming it is in the eyes of her husband.

HAS A GOOD REPUTATION

The original and genuine Honey and Tar cough syrup is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and because this has given such universal satisfaction and cured so many cases of coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough there are imitations and substitutes offered to the public. Insist upon Foley's.—Hite's Drug Store.

Duty and inclination seldom shoot the same chute.

Some husbands would do almost a ny thing to render their wives unspeakably happy.

When a man tells another that he understands woman he is then classed as an easy mark.

KEEPING UP TO THE MARK

"Spring fever" is not always a joke. If you feel dull and sluggish, tired and worn out, suffer from backache or weak back, rheumatism, sore muscles, stiff joints or other indication of kidney trouble, it will pay you to investigate Foley Kidney Pills. They are highly recommended as prompt and efficient aids to health.—Hite's Drug Store.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage and the obligation accompanying the same, dated the 2nd day of May, A. D. 1910, made by Jesse Peters and George Peters, both single men, of Charlevoix County, Michigan, to William J. Pearson, of Boyne Falls, Michigan, and recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for Charlevoix County, Michigan, on the 20th day of December, A. D. 1911, in Liber 48 of Mortgages on page 375, said mortgage being assigned by the said William J. Pearson to William C. Walsh, said assignment being recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Charlevoix County, Michigan, in December, 1911, in Liber 34 of Mortgages on page 563, the said William C. Walsh being duly adjudicated a bankrupt on December 30, A. D. 1913 by and before Kirk E. Wicks, Referee in Bankruptcy of Grand Rapids, Michigan, and J. Ernest Converse of Boyne City, Michigan, being elected by a majority of the creditors of the said William C. Walsh both in number and amount as trustee of said estate, the said J. Ernest Converse being duly appointed by written appointment and qualifying by filing a bond in the amount required on the 26th day of February, A. D. 1914, and as such trustee in bankruptcy by operation of law became the owner and assignee of the said William C. Walsh in and to said mortgage and the whole sum secured by said mortgage having been declared due and payable and the whole sum claimed to be due at the date of this notice, for principal, interest and taxes paid by the said J. Ernest Converse, trustee, on the mortgaged premises, being the sum of three hundred and two dollars and three cents ($302.03), and no suit or proceedings at law or equity having been instituted for the recovery of said amount or any part thereof. Now, Therefore, by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the mortgaged premises at public auction to the highest bidder at the front door of the Charlevoix County Court House in Charlevoix, Michigan, said building being the place where the Circuit Court for said Charlevoix County is held, on the 20th DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1916, at ten o'clock a. m. to satisfy the amount due on said mortgage, and all legal costs, together with an attorney's fee of twenty dollars ($20.00) as provided in said mortgage. The said mortgaged premises are situated in the Township of Hudson, in the County of Charlevoix and state of Michigan, and described in said mortgage as follows: The following described real estate situate and being in the Township of Hudson, County of Charlevoix and State of Michigan, to-wit: The Northeast quarter (1/4) of the Southeast Quarter (1/4) of Section seven (7), Town thirty-two (32) North, Range four (4) West, except railroad right of way.

Dated April 1, 1916.

DO YOU KNOW THAT

To-day is always the best day to clean up?

Fresh air, food, rest—these three combat tuberculosis?

The U. S. Public Health Service has reduced typhoid fever 80 per cent in some communities?

Overeating, constipation, lack of exercise, foul air, eye strain, may produce headache?

Polluted drinking water causes many deaths?

Bad teeth handicap children?

An efficient health officer is a good community investment?

Insufficient sleep endangers health?

Many a man who takes himself seriously is considered a joke by others.

It is believed by some that the time will come when an honest man will command respect.

The average man knows how to do another man's work better than he knows how to do his own.

TELLS WHAT SHE THINKS

Anna Hawn, Cedar Grove, Mo., writes: "We think Foley Cathartic Tablets are the best liver pill we ever got hold of, as they do not nauseate or gripe, but act freely on the liver."
