TIKED OF MESS KITS SOLDIERS NOW USING FANCY CHINAWARE

Lt. Nachazel Writes Interesting
Letter From "Over There."

[The following interesting letter from Julius Nachazel was recently received by F. A. Kenyon].

France, July 7th.
My Dear Frank:—
Your letter of April 29th received today and I sure was pleased to get it. I received much mail in a lump because its the first I've received since being here.

From my hut here where I am writing I can hear the shells sing and burst but they are directed at some other object. Every now and then a machine gun barks out a few rounds. Never a whole hour goes by that something doesn't "sound off."

I received my first darn good shelling some time ago. Went through a barrage to get away. One man hit—not hurt any—and we were all o. k. Since then I've been to a French Machine Gun School for a few days. Spent the Fourth at the school which was held in a small town that the Boche held in the early part of the war. I found some old Boche relics such as mess kits, etc. in a trench there which I stored away with the people I was billeted with. I hope to be able to get them later to send to you. It's hard to send anything more than a letter from the wilderness you know, but when I'm off the line I'll do my best to add to your collection. If I don't you will understand that it was an impossibility and we'll hope it isn't.

Capt. Winters' boys are doing fine work. I got a letter from Joe Cummins yesterday. He was promoted to First Lieutenant. He says some of the East Jordan boys are wearing the Croix de Guerre. I guess the old gang is there, eh!

I came over here loaded up with clothes, etc., and as it's impossible to lug around much stuff, I have lost most of mine amounting to several hundred dollars. But war is war and we learn from experience.

I'll tell you what I can about where we are. It's in a beautiful wood. No stumps, and my headquarters is a fairly livable place. I must turn around a lot to inspect my positions and running over these hills is no joke. I do my best to get over them but believe me without a horse it's tiresome work.

We plan on a snooze always in the day and alert at evening as all should do, I presume. The "Jerry's" (Boche) are always busy. I have seen some nice aeroplane scraps. I wish you could be here now. It's 10:00 p. m. and I'd take you around the place; you couldn't see your hand before you, but we'd make it o. k.

Then tomorrow I'd take you to a village where there's a big pottery plant. Wrecked of course. Our boys have found all kinds of table china ware so have dispensed with mess kits for awhile. Leave it to these chaps—they'll make a stable comfortable and very often they sleep in them, too. These chaps eat off china ware that is famous and probably brings very high prices in the States. But they should worry as the plant is full of it—everything from a teapot to a soup-tureen of very fine china.

The villages are a sight; although shelled often they seem to stand up. The civilians left long ago. I guess the Vosages are a cold place in the winter which, by the way, is some time off.

Well, Frank, restrictions keep me down so that I'm afraid my letters are not so interesting as they might be but I'll add a little here and there in other letters so you'll at least get a little idea of our experiences. I might be able to write a book on this but will postpone it.

Give my kindest regards to Mrs. K. and tell her that from this safe place, about 5000 miles away, I have the temerity to ask her to let me come up for one of her good dinners—say about 1:00 p. m. tomorrow.

Must close as I have a couple of miles to make and its 11:00 p. m.

Goodnight. Yours sincerely,
LT. J. T. NACHAZEL.

P.S.—The postus make beautiful things from leaves so I shall send one along. It's a perfect oak leaf pressed and made in this shape right in the trenches. You've heard of "cooties." Well I have also but they inhabit me no more. I'll train one and send it over.

The average girl is a queer creature. She'll make fun of a young man one day and marry him the next.

Renomination of Scott is Likely

(From the Alpena News, August 17)
Considerable interest is developing in the Eleventh Congressional district over the outcome of the contest on the republican ticket for the party nomination for Member of Congress.

Owing to Congressman Scott's limited time, because of the short recess, he has been unable to personally visit the entire district, having but twelve days in which to cover the sixteen counties in the district. Reports from outside, however, indicate that Mr. Scott's friends are rallying to his support and his nomination by a substantial majority is looked for. This support is manifesting itself in every walk of life, but is particularly strong among the farmers and laboring men of the district, who have had occasion to appreciate the services of Mr. Scott while in the Michigan senate and as a member of congress. Much support is also developing among the postal employees and rural carriers of the district. A letter from the Postal Employees' Association dated July 30, among other things says: You have our sincere thanks for the generous assistance you have accorded us. We wish you every success.

Probably one of the most significant things in connection with Congressman Scott's candidacy is the position the newspapers are taking. As a general rule the modern newspaper on a public matter of this kind, reflects not only the paper's attitude, but also the desires of the subscribers. In the Eleventh Congressional district there are 36 newspapers. Of these, 28 are openly supporting Scott's candidacy, and their support is absolutely voluntary. The following extracts from papers in widely separated parts of the district voice the general sentiment:

Charlevoix Sentinel—There is every reason to believe that his (Scott's) service during a third term will be more satisfactory than those of a man who has not been in close touch with our present war program.

Kalkaska Leader—"It is conceded at this time that Congressman Scott should be returned without opposition. He has given eminent satisfaction."

Escanaba Daily Mirror—"There is absolutely no reason why there should be any change. He has stuck closely to the job and his vote has been right on all vital legislation."

Munising News—"Congressman Scott has proven a satisfactory incumbent. Political aspirants will do well to postpone their efforts until a more auspicious time."

Petoskey Daily News—"Congressman Scott has made good in congress. He should have no opposition for reelection."

Mancelona Herald—"Scott has made a splendid record."

In Alpena county, where Congressman Scott was born and where he is best known, he will undoubtedly poll practically the entire vote of the county.

SIMON M. ROSE

Candidate for Representative in Legislature.

A resident of Charlevoix County 30 years. Has held many positions of public trust. Three terms Mayor of the City of Charlevoix. Eight years service in responsible positions for the State of Michigan. In all of this work he has made good and satisfied the people in every instance. Has personal knowledge of conditions in practically every county in this state and understands the needs of Charlevoix County in matters of legislation. He stands for honesty, thoroughness, economy and progress and asks the voters of this county to have a care to their own best interests in the selection of the man who is to represent them during the next two years. Personal ambitions of any candidate must give way to the public good. Mr. Rose is a candidate at this time because he believes and knows that he can be of service to his county and accomplish something for the good of the residents and taxpayers. Your support is respectfully requested and investigation invited.

Dignity begins when boasting ends. If a man is unable to say nothing and saw wood he should at least try to do one or the other.

When a man is in love he is either so happy or so miserable that he doesn't care what happens.

James C. Wood of Manistique, the man who does things, is the man for Congress.

Here is what his own people think of him and his ability to represent all the people of the 11th Congressional district.

"The congressional contest in this district is beginning to show signs of white heat. Developments within the past few days have brought tremendous support to Senator Wood below the straits. Scott is at present at Escanaba and Menominee making an effort to cut in on Wood, but it is safe to say that he will have poor picking in the senator's own district, where Mr. Wood numbers his friends by the score. His six years of active and valuable service in the senate has brought him in touch with a countless number of people in the district, who appreciate his true worth and whose respect and admiration he enjoys. At the end of Mr. Wood's first term in the legislature he had become one of its leading and influential members. No man worked harder, more systematically or more conscientiously than he. He studied every bill as it came before him, knew where its weakness was, and knew its strength; discovered the joker if there really was one, and could tell what the legislation really meant and what its effect would be. He was always prepared, and it was to Senator Wood that the newspaper men usually went for information concerning any particular piece of legislation. It is safe to say that if Senator Wood is sent to Congress he will meet the important questions to be decided concerning the country's future in the same skilled and efficient manner as characterized his work in the state senate."—Manistique Pioneer-Tribune.

The citizens of Charlevoix county and the entire district may well consider the qualifications of the man who offers himself for service. The man who does things and makes no promises is the man who can be relied upon in the days of our present conflict and in the days that are coming. Men of courage and conviction are needed in our National Congress. In Senator Wood, the people of this congressional district can feel they have a man in whom they may place confidence and know their interests will be safeguarded.

Rollie L. Lewis for PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

Republican Ticket
August Primaries

Thirty-four years a resident of Charlevoix County.
An experienced officer.
This year you will elect as sheriff, one who is without experience as such officer, he is entitled to and should have to work with him, one who has had actual experience as Prosecuting Attorney.
If this experience is of value to you, your support will be greatly appreciated.

To the Voters of Charlevoix County.

At the Primary Election to be held Aug. 27th, 1918 the voters of Charlevoix County will nominate the men they wish to conduct the business of the County for the next two years. One of the most important offices to be filled is that of Sheriff.

It is essential, especially at this time, that this officer should be a man in whom the voters have confidence that he will administer the affairs of the office with fairness and impartiality and with a strict compliance with the law.

I am a candidate for this office. In asking your support and vote I do so because I am personally known to most of you and received such splendid support from you when elected County Treasurer four years ago. My record is known to you all. I have served you to the best of my ability and I think with satisfaction to the voters.

If nominated and elected Sheriff, I shall endeavor to perform the duties of that office to your entire satisfaction.

Your vote and interest will be greatly appreciated.

Very truly yours,
GEO. W. WEAVER.

NOTICE.

To the Electors of Charlevoix County:—
I hereby announce that I will be a candidate for the office of County Clerk on the Republican ticket, at the Primary election August 27th, 1918.

I am now serving Uncle Sam on the Local Draft Board without pay and after looking over my past work for the county, if you are satisfied that it has been done correctly, I would appreciate your support at the primary.

Yours respectfully,
RICHARD LEWIS.

Arthur L. Fitch

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY.

Fair, Fearless, and a Fighter.

The County needs a strong, aggressive lawyer in this office—one who can stand up in court and hold his own at all times. Every voter should use his best judgment and select the BEST MAN regardless of other considerations. ARTHUR L. FITCH is that man.

CHARLES NOVAK

Candidate for COUNTY CLERK

of Charlevoix County, on the Republican Ticket at the August Primary.
YOUR SUPPORT APPRECIATED.

Joseph M. Courier

Candidate for

County Road Commissioner

Republican Ticket
August 27th Primaries
Your Support Appreciated.

—FOR—

State Senator

29th District

Alonzo B. Green

I desire to announce my candidacy for the Republican nomination for State Senator from the 29th Michigan district at the primaries, August 27th.

In common with the rest of the country, the state of Michigan faces trying times during the next two years. During this period, the state will need men of experience in the public offices. I believe that my experience as chairman of the Alpena County Board of Supervisors for several years and my two terms in the State House of Representatives qualify me for the position of State Senator.

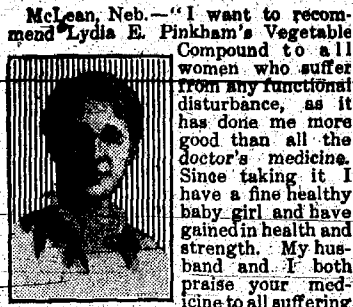

If nominated and elected, I pledge myself to all such measures as tend to the best interests of the state and nation.

ALONZO B. GREEN.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids—Splendid for system.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse. In this there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent little water drink, which quickly cures bladder trouble.

MAROOINED ON ISLAND IN RIVER 22 DAYS.

Many Persons Passed, but Couldn't Hear His Calls—Bark and Water His Food.

CODY, Wyo.—That he was marooned on a small island in the Shoshone river for twenty-two days—constantly in sight of a bridge across which traffic was streaming, unable to reach either bank of the river because of an inability to swim and unable to make those on the bridge who saw his signals comprehend that he was doing more than waving, them a friendly greeting to them—was the rather fanciful but apparently true story told local authorities by Dave Gootch, a stenographer of Jonesboro, Ark., who is now under the care of a physician here.

Gootch asserts that near the end of last month, after taking dinner at a restaurant here, he went out on the street. The day being exceedingly warm he wandered toward the river. He says that as he neared the river he became dizzy from the heat and sat down under a tree, from which point he professed that his memory was a blank until he awoke in the night, to find himself on the island in the river. How he happened to get on the island and couldn't get off by the same means he gained the spot of land is a point overlooked in his narrative.

Gootch claims to have remained on the island for twenty-two days, each day signaling to those passing on the bridge, and always unable to make them understand that he wanted aid because the roar of the river drowned his voice.

He asserts he had nothing to eat but the bark of shrubs growing on the island, that he was almost crazed by his situation and that he frequently thought he would die. He was eventually rescued by a deputy sheriff after a small boy had reported seeing his body lying on the island.

While the features of Gootch's story tally, as to his having been in Cody recently disappearing after registering at a hotel, and having been found on the island, there are a great many who wonder why he didn't make some attempt to reach the mainland. Many a man has learned to swim in less than twenty-two days, particularly when he had all day in which to practice.

MINERS' SUPERSTITION CAUSES ARREST OF 18.

They Bury Two Comrades Killed by Lightning to Revive Them.

ELLSWORTH, Pa.—The superstition that a man struck by lightning will recover if he be buried at once caused the arrest of eighteen miners employed near here, but later they were released by order of Deputy Coroner Clifford S. Patterson of Ellsworth.

Twenty miners were in a cabin on Pigeon Creek when a bolt of lightning struck John Smith of Bentleyville, Pa. and Mike Simon of Marianna, Pa. Both were instantly killed. Without the formality of a coffin, the eighteen men dug a hole in the back yard and buried the men temporarily.

When Dr. A. L. Kammer and Constable James Gilmore reached the cabin on a rumor of the accident, they saw no trace of the dead bodies and asked for them. The men pointed to a new mound and refused to dig up the bodies because they "would lose their life."

Constable Gilmore arrested the men and brought them here, after exhuming the bodies. When Deputy Coroner Patterson made an examination, he assured the constable the men had been killed by a lightning bolt and the prisoners were released.

PIANO-BOX HOME SCHOLAR-HERMIT

NEW YORKERS ARE AMAZED BY THE DISCOVERY.

Aged Man's Strange Abode Concealed Five Years—Find French Classics Among Miscellaneous Junk.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—How George Colby, known in East New York as the "Vergennes street hermit," lived in a combination packing case, and piano box hut for five years is revealed by his removal to the Kings County Hospital on an order issued by the department of public charities.

The disclosures that followed his removal amazed policemen and neighbors, who for the first time in twenty-two years invaded his vacant lot and picked their way along lanes that were bordered by heaps of junk, including partly burned timbers and the copper bottoms of wash boilers.

The examination of the premises revealed the life of a twentieth century hermit who refused to permit the advancing boundaries of a city to intrude on his privacy. The lot in which he lived was protected from the sight of the curious by a high fence.

Policemen and neighbors who knew Colby's hut lay somewhere behind the high peak roof fence was amazed to find collections of valuable books, files of newspapers, collections of bottles, trunks full of furs and dismantled engines among the possessions of the old man. His home, a piano box to which had been attached a large packing case, was found only after a careful search.

As cleverly concealed from the gaze of the curious as are the dugouts of the French army along the battlefield in France, it lay partly underground and almost under the walls of his one time home, a converted stable that was burned down five years ago. He had lived in the stable for seventeen years.

When Colby's case was brought to the attention of the department of charities Dr. Arthur J. O'Connor of the Bradford Street Hospital, was sent to investigate the man's condition and remove him to the Kings County Hospital if it called for hospital care.

A policeman led the physician into the lot, a hole broken through the fence serving as an entrance. Colby was found lying on his couch when the lanterns of the policemen and ambulance driver were flashed on him.

As Dr. O'Connor entered the hut three half wild cats scurried from under his feet and hid themselves under the bed. While the man was being placed on a stretcher the cats snarled their displeasure.

Since he was taken to the hospital his one worry has been the disposition of his "valuable property," as he refers to the collection of books and old metal.

The "valuable property" was examined and workmen who appraised the broken machinery and other articles said there was about $750 worth of iron and steel in the lot. A policeman counted 235 pots and pans on the premises. Among the pieces of machinery was a pile driver.

Colby burned his own charcoal and then used it in a brazier for cooking. His bathroom, provided with an ingenious contrivance that served as a washstand, was located under a tree and concealed even from the hut by vines and tangled bushes. His bed was a partly burned couch, salvaged from the fire and propped up by a volume of Cowper's poetical works, in Latin, a volume of Ludwig von Beethoven's biography, and the satires of A. Persius Flaccus.

The policeman and a neighbor declared that while Colby attended to his personal wants and never permitted interference by outsiders, he always went to a nearby barber to be shaved.

"Before he entered the shop he called to the barber to cover all the mirrors in sight, remarking in explanation that he had no wish to see his own face. It is believed he feared his advancing age.

The "Vermont street hermit" was born in Windsor, Vt., sixty-five years ago.

HERE'S BIRD OF A MYSTERY.

Lost Gold Ring Is Found on Pigeon's Neck.

STELLA, Mont.—Arthur DeMuth, a pigeon fancier of Stella, is deploring the love of his birds for jewelry. Recently he lost a valuable ring while attending the pigeons.

He tried advertising in the local papers, but it was futile. Recently, however, while out among his birds, he saw his ring around the neck of one of the birds.

DeMuth told friends that he would guard the pigeon carefully and wait until it died to recover his ring. He cannot remove it from over the bird's head and is considerably mystified as to how it got around the pigeon's neck.

A Fair Question.

A little girl, aged 6, had been breathlessly watching the terrible villain of the film play. When he reached a railway bridge she turned to her mother and asked:

"Oh, mother, what's he going to do now?"

"He's going to blow up that bridge."

"But mother," came back the small inquiring voice, "how can he get enough brass?"

12:00 Noon—Sunday School.
Tuesday at 7:30 p. m.—Meeting of Trustees.

Thursday at 7:30 p. m.—Prayer Meeting.

The preacher Sunday morning will be the Rev. Wm. B. Lampe D. D., pastor of the 3rd Presbyterian Church of Chicago. Dr. Lampe is resorting at Sequanota and has consented to speak Sunday. This is his first introduction to East Jordan people. He is the son of Dr. J. J. Lampe, who was for many years President of Omnia Seminary. He is said to be a preacher of great power. A most cordial invitation is given all to hear him. Dr. Lampe will be the last of the Sequanota preachers to speak in East Jordan this summer.

Sept. 1, we resume the Vesper Service at 5 p. m.

NOT TO BE IGNORED

The kidneys are as important to good health as the heart, lungs, stomach or any organ in the body. Lame back, swollen joints, sore muscles, rheumatic aches and pains, are most often signals of kidney trouble. Foley's Kidney Pills give relief to kidney trouble sufferers. They banish bladder irregularity. Hite's Drug Store.

Mothers-in-law come in handy when the children are sick.

If folks did not deceive themselves occasionally they would miss a lot of fun.

IT'S IN THE AIR

Windblown pollen, carrying the germs that cause hay fever, is abroad in the land. One remedy is known to give relief and comfort from choking, gasping asthma and tormenting hay fever. Foley's Honey and Tar spreads a healing coating on inflamed membranes, stops coughs and colds. Hite's Drug Store.

Dual seized the opportunity for introductions. "This is my friend, Mr. Gordon Glace, a detective." Lucille gave me her hand frankly. "We ought to get on together, at that rate," she remarked. "And this is Colonel Sheldon, who was acting as Miss Lawton's guardian." "Pleased to meet you, colonel, Miss Lucille smiled. "And this is Homer Reich, Miss Lawton's fiancé." "The girl swept the boy with a level glance and nodded. "How'd you do?" she said. "Have any of you folks a picture of this girl?" she asked. "Homer has in his watch," replied the colonel. Miss Foote put out her hand. "I'll slant that if you like," she suggested, took the watch Reich produced and stared for some moments at the portrait in the case. At the end she nodded. "The sort they'd be apt to grab," she sighed and returned the watch. "Pretty and not too wise. Poor kid!" "How long had you known her?" she turned to Reich. "Two months. I met her just after I went to Goldfield," said Homer. "Where'd you jump there from?" "Salt Lake." Lucille shook her head. "Before, I mean. You're not a regular here." "Denver," said Homer. "What's your line?" "Movies." "You were engaged to Miss Lawton?" "Yes. Say, I lost the girl, I didn't steal her." "Nobody said you did," replied Miss Foote. "Know anybody in Salt Lake?" "A few." "Tell any of them about your coming wedding?" "It was my first experience of the policewoman, but I confess I was favorably impressed by Miss Foote. She was all business from the first to the last of my knowledge of her and contrary to the usual opinion she wasted no words. She dropped Homer as quickly as she had taken him up and turned to Dual. "Mr. Dual, just what prospect of running this down exists I can't, of course, say. Just at present we are watching one part of this city pretty closely. I haven't had any report from there for several days, however, and this thing may have been pulled off without attracting attention—probably was. The slave people have recently been making use of the foreign colony here to help in their work. "There is a part of town known as Greektown, where very few natives live. On several cases girls have been found secreted in the lodging-houses in that part. We have rescued some, but we have reason to believe that we have missed others. At the same time I believe that if this girl was kept here at all, it was down there in some room in one of those places. They've even tried to capture schoolgirls here in the last year. Well—I'm a woman, and there's nothing I'd like better than to find this other woman and get her out of their clutches, and there's nothing I wouldn't do to do it." "Good for you, ma'am!" Colonel Mac's voice boomed out in sincere admiration. "A girl like you, who is so full of the tricks of these fellows, kin do an awful lot of good, I reckon. I've heard a lot about policewomen of late, an' I'm mighty proud to hev met one, an' that goes as it lays. Put it there!" He rose and held out his hand. Lucille Foote took it and met his clasp in all frankness. "I, too, am glad to have met you, colonel," she told him. "One meets so few of the old school nowadays." Sheldon chuckled. "I wouldn't have never picked the force as a place for a girl," he said, grinning. "But I ain't like a dead man. I can change my mind. If this keeps on—that stuff about the 'finest' won't be no joke. I'll jest be plain facts." Reich interrupted. "Just why do you think this Greektown would be the gang's hangout?" he questioned. "Because," said Miss Foote, "to use a Western expression, we are keeping them rather close herded elsewhere in town. The nature of the population in Greektown makes our difficulties greater." "That sounds like sense to me," averred Colonel Mac. Dual picked up the girl's eyes. "Then I may understand that you will give this matter your attention?" She bowed in affirmation. "Yes—at once. Not only as a detective but as a woman." Their eyes met and held for a single moment and then Dual smiled. "Once more I am glad of your chief's choice," he said softly. "You are the person we needed, and you have been sent to us. You will find what you seek—and contribute your part in breaking her from bondage. It is now four o'clock. Will you begin your work at once and stay here with us at least three or four hours, because I perceive that you are somewhat sympathetic." Lucille Foote dropped her eyes as she spoke. "You—I," she began and flushed slowly. "I will meet you at six," she accepted and rose. Dual crossed and opened the door. As she came toward him he bowed above her hand and spoke in a whisper. She smiled slightly and nodded as one quite in accord—and was gone. Dual was still smiling as he closed the door behind her, came back and sat down. "And now what do we do," queried Reich—"investigate the bill of fare and dope out a menu while we wait for the party?" "What else?" said Dual as he picked up his paper. "Everything is running along nicely." "Running along nicely? Well, for—" Reich paused for an apparent inability to find words to express his feelings. But he rallied. "Well, say—you said your methods were peculiar, and they sure are. They're about as effective as a pink tea in a war office. I thought you were running this, and now you say, 'What else?' How should I know? But I do know one thing, and that is—that I'm tired of waiting. I want to do something better than turning the job over to a woman. I'm going to start something on my own. How about that?" "Quite interesting," said Semi Dual. "It may be," flared Reich. "I don't know how much there is in the notion of this squab cop that the deal was put over in Greektown, but I'm going down there. I know a fellow—a Greek by the name of George Stakos—who's runnin' a movie down there. He used to be in Denver, an' I met him last week when I was up here. Maybe he can steer me up against some sort of information. Anyway, I can try, and I'm going to do it." Dual's answer was almost facetious. "All right, run along and see George," he assented as he turned a page. Reich fairly snorted. His muttered comment contained something about four-flushing as he passed me on his way to the door. He wrenched it open, slammed it shut, and was gone. "He's been tryin' to break loose ever since it happened," said Colonel Mac. I saw that Dual still smiled. "Is there anything you want us to do?" I suggested. He shook his head. "I think I'll send a telegram. Do what you like till six," he replied. I cupped my hand and lifted it at the colonel. He nodded, and we went downstairs. After some liquid consolation I suggested a game of billiards, and the colonel took off his coat, stuck a long cigar in his face, and proceeded to lick me as easily as a father does his six-year-old son. Thereafter we took a walk about the streets and came back a little before six—to find that Miss Foote had already arrived. She looked up and nodded and went on talking in low tones to Dual. A waiter brought in a table and spread it for dinner and left. After a bit he came back with a companion and served the dinner himself. We sat down. "I reckon Homer must 'a' seen George," opined Sheldon when Reich failed to appear. "George?" said Miss Foote. "Yep—a friend of his'n. After you left, ma'am, Homer an' Mr. Dual had a run in 'cause Homer can't no ways understand Mr. Dual's way of runnin' this thing, an' Homer reckoned he'd go down to Greektown an' see a feller what's runnin' a moving-picture show—what he met here last week. He thought he might be able to dig up a nigger or two over the woodpile and nigger something." "Oh, I see," Lucille smiled. "The fact of the matter is, I don't believe that the little girl is in Salt Lake at all. The mere fact that they dated their message from Salt Lake would indicate that they moved her or quickly. They would naturally expect the first search to be made here." "At the same time, as I explained to Mr. Dual before you came in, I have laid the lines for the investigation. Just between ourselves we have at times to adopt some peculiar stratagems to get our information. What would you think if I were to tell you that the cashier in a Greek cafe is really a secret service agent, and that a waiter in another is the same? Yet I assure you it is so. I have given them both their information in this matter, and I fancy they will learn as much as poor Mr. Reich. By the way, you said he was in town last week and met this Mr. "Stakos," supplied Semi Dual. "Yes, Reich was up here, according to his statements, which I see no reason to doubt. Mr. Reich is impatient of my reticence regarding my plans. He desires the matter settled." "And has small confidence in the policewoman," laughed Lucille. "The sentiment does not extend to us, however," Dual told her. "As I remarked this afternoon, I expect you to gain us information of value." "Heaven knows, I hope so!" Miss Foote responded. "I ought to, if any one can. Something inspires me to speak in confidences to you three men, and I'll tell you that one page of my life makes me a fitting person to trail such things as these. As you, Mr. Dual, said this afternoon, I am competent to sympathize—and to know how the act and think." I looked into her eyes and was dumb with amazement. They met me squarely and did not shift, and it seemed hard to admit what her words meant. "I'm going to try and verify or disprove what you may hear down in that quarter tonight. Of course Reich's information; if he finds any, may be straight, but I doubt it. I'll report whatever I learn to you later. Better go armed, but not let any one know it. Good-by now." She walked to the door which Colonel Sheldon opened and was gone. "Whew!" ejaculated Sheldon. "My hat's off to that little woman. She's sure one live wire. Maybe she's made her mistakes, but a lot of us have I reckon. I can respect a person who gets up after fallin' down. That's what takes the real nerve." "You hold with Brownings, then, that 'we fall to rise again, are beaten to fight better, sleep to wake'?" said Semi. "Never heard of him, but if he said that he was handin' out straight talk," declared Sheldon. "Ain't I right?" "Decidedly right," Dual assented. "The real man or woman profits by his reversals and mistakes, and learns therefrom a lesson for his farther walk in life. Whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth. In order that the well-learned soul may bear the fruit of knowledge. In the pursuit of knowledge I RECK it is now time we set out for our rendezvous."

method. "I'm sure, here that was somebody else's hat but undoubtedly it was Sheldon who looks the somewhat uneasy tension. "Thank Heaven, then, ma'am, that you decided to get into the game! You kin do an awful lot of good with a lot of poor girls you may save. If you help us save Lily, I'll never forget it, an' when Colonel Mac says that, it's a lot. I talk a whole lot, but sometimes I mean what I say, an' this is one time. I was tryin' to be sort of foster dad to that little girl, 'cause her pa was killed in my mine, an' if we kin jest git her back, there's a good home for her to go to, an' damn the man what says a word about her!" He paused and ventuously blew his nose. Lucille's face was beaming as she put out a hand across the table. "Colonel!" she began, and the shrill clamor of the phone on the wall broke her words. Dual nodded to me, and I went to answer the ring. "Hello!" I called, and glanced the receiver to my ear. After a bit I put my hand over the mouthpiece and turned back to the room. "It's Reich," I announced. "He's somewhere down in Greektown, and he says he's picked up a clue. He wants us to come down." Tell him we will come," he directed, "and ask him where we shall meet." CHAPTER IV. The Trail Leads On. I put the question to Reich, hung up the receiver and came back to the table. "Is there such a place as Second South West Fourth in this town?" I inquired of Miss Foote. She laughed. "You mean Second South and Fourth West. Our street enumeration always does bother the newsomer. Still it is simple. If you take the temple square as the center and count numerically, adding the point of the compass, you have the street name. Easy when you catch it. As it happens Greektown lies west of Fourth West along Second South. Mr. Reich evidently intends to meet you at the intersection." "He said he'd be on the southwest corner in about an hour," I explained. "Why the delay?" said Miss Foote. I shook my head. "That was all he said, Miss Lucille. His voice sounded as though he were excited." "Maybe he's dug up a nigger," opined Colonel Mac. "Well, my Lord, I hope so." Lucille frowned slightly, knitting some point of thought. At the end of her brows as though seeking to grasp a moment she rolled her napkin into a ball and pushed back her chair. "I think," she began, "that I'll get back on the job. Of course Mr. Reich may really have picked up something, but I have learned to be rather doubtful of information gained in those sources." "Veracily in dealing with others is not a shining merit of our foreign population. They are as apt to get more than they give, then anything else. I think I'll go down and endeavor to check up what Mr. Reich learns." "You mean you're going into that place alone at night?" demanded Sheldon. "Ain't that rather risky for a girl, ma'am? Now looka here, I'm just sort of a useless dub in this matter. Glace an' Dual are the real show. 'Me an' Homer are just further trailin' along in case somebody needs a strong arm play or to burn some powder. So you see they kin git along without me all right on this little pasear they're taking with Homer. You let me go along with you. I don't reckon a girl oughter be provin' around among a lot of wops an' dagoes at night. You take Colonel Mac along." "Colonel!" Lucille's eyes turned upon him and I thought they glistened. She went swiftly around and stood beside him and she laughed with just the least catch in her voice. "You're a dear," she went on. "But don't you see I can't do that. This is business, and I have to act on the quiet. I'm used to the work—it's my regular employment." "But don't think I don't appreciate your offer. I do, and I wish—I wish—Oh, I wish I'd had a dad like you. There—" "Mr. Dual," she turned to Semi. "I'm going to try and verify or disprove what you may hear down in that quarter tonight. Of course Reich's information; if he finds any, may be straight, but I doubt it. I'll report whatever I learn to you later. Better go armed, but not let any one know it. Good-by now." She walked to the door which Colonel Sheldon opened and was gone. "Whew!" ejaculated Sheldon. "My hat's off to that little woman. She's sure one live wire. An Endorsement of Truman H. Newberry for United States Senator from Michigan Prominently Identified with the Agricultural Interests of Michigan

BEFORE we do that Michigan should elect this fall a United States Senator who is, and has been, interested in and conversant with public affairs; a man of sound judgment and practicality of purpose; a man whose one hundred per cent patriotism cannot be questioned; and a man who has given sufficient study and thought to the matter of national and international politics to enable him to determine for himself whether the stands and what he stands for; and believing that Truman H. Newberry, of Detroit, conforms to this standard, we endorse his candidacy and agree to support him at the primaries and at the election.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast. To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath; to dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician. To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach. Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sour twinge, which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of those vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation. To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and sinews became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water do the same, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

You might do worse than exaggerate the goodness of your friends. It is said that the spare rib is not popular with the Mormon epicure. Yes, we know that every married man has a grievance—and so has his wife until she becomes a widow. Common sense is an uncommonly good thing to possess. Mothers-in-law come in handy when the children are sick. If folks did not deceive themselves occasionally they would miss a lot of fun.

A GOOD COMBINATION FOR BUSINESS OR HOME
Waist—2521. Skirt—2520.
This is composed of Waist Pattern 2521 and Skirt Pattern 2520. The waist may be of madras, linen, crepe, batiste or silk. The skirt, of serge, silk, satin, voile, broadcloth, check or plaid suiting. The Waist Pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires 3 yards of 27-inch material. The skirt is cut in 7 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires 3 1/2 yards of 44-inch material. The skirt measures about 2 1/2 yards at the foot with plaits drawn out.
This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern, in silver or stamps.

A SMART FROCK IN ONE-PIECE STYLE
2542—This is a good model for wash fabrics, for cloth, silk, satin, velvet, gabardine and serge. In this style, the front forms a plaited panel, to which the waist and skirt portions are joined. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length.
The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires 3 1/2 yards of 44-inch material.

Newberry Will Win

He Will Receive More Votes Than the Combined Votes of the Candidates Against Him, Says Paul H. King.

"Truman H. Newberry will be nominated for United States senator in the Republican primary next Tuesday, August 27," said Paul H. King, executive chairman of the Newberry Senatorial Committee to the press of Michigan yesterday.

"Commander Newberry is going to win because the people of Michigan demand a thorough-going American at this time. And when brains, experience and good judgment are coupled with sturdy Americanism, the combination is one which especially appeals to the business man, the farmer, the working man, and, above all, to the voters who have sons or brothers in the service.

"Our campaign has been one of publicity—frank, straightforward and clean-cut, and it is going to bring success.

"We are going to win and win big. Reports from every part of the state indicate that Commander Newberry will receive more votes than the combined votes of the candidates against him."

The Man Who Should Be Senator.
At the approaching primary election, Michigan is to select party candidates for a United States senatorship. The voters of the state in going about this business ought to give their first consideration and their last consideration to the question of fitness. They should ask who among those that aspire is most likely to become a constructive factor in the upper house through development of the qualities of statesmanship?

Considering the matter from this viewpoint of efficiency and service, it seems to The Free Press that the most promising of all the candidates in the field, indeed, the only promising candidate in the field, is Truman H. Newberry, aspirant for the Republican nomination and at present serving his country in the navy of the United States with the rank of commander.

Mr. Newberry has the temperament and the experience which make the foundations of good senatorial service. He has a varied and sound knowledge of practical business. He possesses clear conceptions of the big economic issues and problems of the country. He has intelligent ideas on the theory of American government. He recognizes and respects the place of party and party alignment and party tradition in our political system.

Mr. Newberry also knows something about Washington, and the demands and ramifications of official life there, for he spent some years of public service in the national capital, first as assistant secretary of the navy and later as secretary of the navy. This experience alone would make him valuable in the upper house of congress at the present moment. Mr. Newberry will not be a spectacular senator—if he is selected by the people of Michigan to represent them. He will lack visionary fads. He never has fitted out a peace ship. On the contrary, he was one of the organizers of the Michigan State Naval brigade, he served in the United States fleet throughout the Spanish-American war, as he and his two sons are serving in the present war, and he has been a persistent believer in national preparedness. He is an orthodox, thorough-going American.

Nor will Mr. Newberry be a specialist in fantastic figures of speech and extravagant rhetoric. Michigan need never expect to hear that he has been responsible for any wierd oratorical display.

But Mr. Newberry will, if given the opportunity, make a cheerful, conscientious, business-like, efficient and, we believe, able senator who will command the respect and confidence of his colleagues and have influence with them. He will represent his state honorably and creditably, and he will give his country valuable service.—Detroit Free Press.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR
She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs having disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Letters From Boys "Over There" Wish Congressman Scott Well

Congressman Frank D. Scott, a candidate for renomination and reelection on the Republican ticket from the Eleventh Michigan district, has been deeply touched during the last few weeks, by the receipt of a number of letters from the boys "over there" in the trenches and elsewhere along the battle line offering their lives in the cause of world democracy.—Friends of Mr. Scott believe that the opinions of these boys are well worth the consideration of the voters who are here at home.

Following are extracts from a few letters received by Congressman Scott touching his renomination:

Somewhere in France.
Just heard you have opposition for your renomination, and was sorry to hear it. The boys all join me in hoping you will be renominated and reelected.

CORPORAL "BUD" McDOUGALL, Hdqrs. 20th Engineers, American Expeditionary Forces.

Andre et Loire, France.
Dear Mr. Scott:—Just arrived from La Cluse. Last night the boys were saying you had opposition to your renomination. Wish the soldiers in France could vote at the coming election but if the folks back home feel as the boys do here your election will be unanimous.

Signed: PRIVATE ALBERT E. WEINE.

A. P. O. 717, France.
Dear Congressman Scott:—We have just learned that you have opposition. If the fellow who is fighting you wants to fight send him "over here." The boys hope you go "over the top" on election day. Best wishes.

PRIVATE GEO. N. RICE, A. E. F. Censored by F. C. Barlow, Capt.

Paris, France, July 14, 1918

Hon. F. D. Scott, Washington, D. C.
Dear Sir:—We hear with regret that you have opposition at the coming election. We all wish we could get a vote. It would sure be for you.

Yours truly,
PRIVATE PHIL J. GAUVREAU.

France, July 19, 1918.

Hon. F. D. Scott:—See by the papers some fellow is after your job. What has he ever done that entitles him to replace a man who has voted right on everything the way you have. The 125th is on the line and certainly doing their share. Send a couple of million more men and we'll finish this affair in quick order.

With best wishes. Sincerely,
LIEUT. EARL D. SHANNON.

July 20, 1918, France.
Congressman Scott:—If there is anything we boys "over here" can do to help you to be elected to Congress let us know. Good luck to you.

Very sincerely,
PRIVATE FRED STEELE, O. K.—C. N. S. Regimental Chaplain.

(A letter to his friend in Gaylord, Michigan.)
Dear Friend:—Don't forget to vote for Frank Scott for Congress. This is no time to place an inexperienced man in his place.

PRIVATE GEO. R. WAGONER, 148th Division.

On Active Service.
From the "Bear" Somewhere in France.
Dear Friend Congressman Scott:—Just a line wishing you good luck in your election.

PRIVATE FRANK X. FORTIN, O. K.—Ed. Brooks, Capt.

Packers' Profits Are Regulated

The public should understand that the profits of the packers have been limited by the Food Administration since November 1, 1917. For this purpose, the business of Swift & Company is now divided into three classes:

Class 1 includes such products as beef, pork, mutton, oleomargarine and others that are essentially animal products. Profits are limited to 9 per cent of the capital employed in these departments, (including surplus and borrowed money), or not to exceed two and a half cents on each dollar of sales.

Class 2 includes the soap, glue, fertilizer, and other departments more or less associated with the meat business. Many of these departments are in competition with outside businesses whose profits are not limited. Profits in this class are restricted to 15 per cent of the capital employed.

Class 3 includes outside investments, such as those in stock yards, and the operation of packing plants in foreign countries. Profits in this class are not limited.

Total profits for all departments together in 1918 will probably be between three and four per cent on an increased volume of sales.

The restrictions absolutely guarantee a reasonable relation between live stock prices and wholesale meat prices, because the packer's profit cannot possibly average more than a fraction of a cent per pound of product.

Since the profits on meat (Class 1) are running only about 2 cents on each dollar of sales, we have to depend on the profits from soap, glue, fertilizer (Class 2, also limited) and other departments, (Class 3) to obtain reasonable earnings on capital.

Swift & Company is conducting its business so as to come within these limitations.

Swift & Company, U. S. A.

School Commissioner's Notes

May L. Stewart, Commissioner

As school activities come to the foreground, Greetings! The commissioner has had a very active and pleasant summer, with ten days of much appreciated vacation, taken in two installments, and is ready for the change of work which September will bring.

Back of the great movements of the day, the school formalities are quietly caring for themselves. Triple reports are in early, almost without exception, and so far have been just a little freer from mistakes than in any former year. At the time this goes to the editor, Aug. 15th, reports have been received from cities of East Jordan, Boyne City and Charlevoix, from the townships of Chandler, Hudson, Bay, Evangeline, Wilson, South Arm, Marion, Norwood and Peaine.

Thirteen candidates wrote on the August examination in Charlevoix, and ten of our girls wrote with permission in other counties having their papers forwarded here for corrections. Board of examiners meets in Charlevoix at 7:00 a. m. Saturday, Aug. 17, to award certificates and consider renewals and transfers.

Arrangements are under way for a big three day institute in October, to take the place of the usual mid-winter institute. All with whom the commissioner has talked with seem to rejoice over the fact that the state is now working with us in our desire to avoid the winter drifts. Also if present plans hold, we shall combine with the school officer's meeting one day, and shall have the very best talent available. Five or six splendid men have been promised us, but also we are pretty sure we must wait for formal appointments before printing the line-up. A big picnic has been suggested to take the place of the usual banquet.

Eleven schools have not secured teachers for the coming year. There are however more than eleven applicants still without schools. The trouble is to bring the two together for trained teachers who up to the present time offer their services out of patriotic reasons, still hesitate to teach for less than $60 unless all other circumstances are very attractive. Our smaller schools feel scarcely able to pay this but compromises may be reached somehow. The Mackie school will transport their children to Springvale, and the Thumb Lake school will close.

A patriotic song book with the new popular songs included is being prepared by the state department for free distribution among our teachers. A new Course of Study is now in the hands of the state printer, not so different as to necessitate weeks of labor in the mastery but such as will demand a little re-adjustment.

The commissioner has already placed an order with the department for quantities of both of the above and for supplies such as listed in last year's directory.

Our lists of drafted boys showed us plainer than ever before what the schools could and did not do for its boys. England and France saw the same situation and immediately began the remedy. We have a Children's Year before us, and our country will spend millions of dollars this year to decrease the death rate, to rebuild the health of our growing young. Along this same line a few of our school districts are continuing the work which we had begun before the war.

Marion No. 3 is remodeling the fine cement block building to make it a standard school. It already has a new roof, left side bank of windows, is newly plastered, being tinted, and is having new furnace with ventilating system installed. Visitors at Barhard will be interested in seeing the new building. Cedar Valley is lengthening the school building, and providing a protected entry, toilets, etc., building anew according to a state approved plan which they submitted in 1917.

The Ironton school is having a new cement floor in the basement and caring for little necessary things about the building.

The Wildwood school will have correct shades of tinting on walls and ceiling.

There are no doubt many other improvements in progress which will soon be discovered.

Shouts of joy give the pessimist a headache.

CONGRESSMAN SCOTT.

(From the Alpena News, Aug. 17.)

Up until the present time The News has refrained from making any mention of the candidacy of our fellow-townsmen, Frank D. Scott for a renomination for the office of Congressman from the Eleventh Michigan District, for the reason that we have not considered that there was any material number of people in this district who felt otherwise than that the Congressman should be returned to the position at this critical time. Any public official who performs his duties according to his own ideas of what is right and wrong, is bound to meet with some opposition, and Congressman Scott is no exception. And opposition of this kind is usually unfair and unjust.

Recently we have heard reports of stories that are being circulated assiduously in the upper peninsula questioning the loyalty and Americanism of Mr. Scott. One such story is to the effect that the Congressman refused to lend any assistance to the Liberty Loan committee in its campaigns in Alpena county. This story appeared to The News so absolutely at variance with Mr. Scott's official acts while in Washington that it has prompted us in a spirit of fairness, to investigate the truth of the charge.

The Liberty Loan campaign in Alpena county are under the leadership of Mr. Fred L. Richardson. Mr. Richardson was asked by a representative of The News concerning the stories and here is his answer to the charge that Mr. Scott refused to help the Liberty Loan: "I have never asked Mr. Scott to do anything in particular in connection with the Liberty Loan campaign and so, of course, he has never refused me. I do know, however, that he has supported the Liberty Loans loyally in every instance."

This more closely conforms to Congressman Scott's attitude and recorded votes in Washington. President Wilson has said: "Any American who was right on the McLeMORE resolution and the resolution authorizing the arming of American merchant ships, before we got into the war, and has sustained his country since war was declared, passes the 'acid test' of loyalty."

Before we got into this war, Congressman Scott was deluged with letters from this district, asking him to oppose President Wilson's wishes and vote against both the above measures. In those days, voting was a serious matter, but Congressman Scott stood behind the president on both matters and has unequivocally supported the administration since our advent into the war. Some very prominent men in congress, with long years of experience, yielded to what seemed the predominant sentiment. They wished to please their constituents who seemed friendly to Germany. But not so with Congressman Scott. He voted against their advice, for the protection of American rights on the sea as well as on land.

Every official act of the Congressman before and since our entry into the war, bespeaks his Americanism. And even when there was a chance to play politics he refused to be drawn into a position which might have embarrassed this country. His actions without exception, have conformed to the rule of the "acid test."

Any campaign to hinder the renomination of Congressman Scott will have to be founded on a charge less silly and easy of contradiction than the one given circulation by those opposed to him. There may be grounds for criticism of Congressman Scott, but any question of his loyalty to country and firm determination to put forth every effort to help the country win in its great struggle will hardly be entertained by any fair-minded voter in the district.

Primary Election.

To the Qualified Electors of the City of East Jordan, State of Michigan, notice is hereby given that a General Primary Election will be held in said city on TUESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1918.

At the places in the several wards of said City as indicated below, viz.:

First Ward—Passenger Building.

Second Ward—Town Hall.

Third Ward—Hose House.

For the purpose of placing in nomination by all political parties participating therein, candidates for the following offices, viz.:

National—One candidate for United States Senator.
 State—One candidate for Governor; one candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Congressional—One candidate for Representative in Congress for the Congressional District of which said City forms a part.

Legislative—One candidate for Senator in the State Legislature for the Senatorial district of which said City forms a part; one candidate for Representative in the State Legislature for the Legislative district of which said City forms a part.

County—Also candidates for the following county offices, viz.: Sheriff, County Clerk, County Treasurer, Register of Deeds, Prosecuting Attorney, County Auditor, one Circuit Court Commissioner, County Drain Commissioner, Coroner (2); Surveyor, one County Road Commissioner.

DELEGATES TO COUNTY CONVENTION

There shall also be elected as many Delegates to the county convention of the several political parties as said ward, precinct or district is entitled to under the call of the county committees of said political parties, which number will be indicated by the number of blank lines printed on the official primary ballots used at said election under the heading, "Delegates to County Conventions." The Board of Primary Election Inspectors will furnish delegates with credentials, entitling them to seats in the county conventions, except that where there is more than one precinct in a ward or district and the county committee require the election of delegates from the ward or district as a whole, such delegates should be admitted without credentials. Names of candidates for delegates to county conventions will not appear on the official primary ballots, but will be written or pasted in by the voter, in the place designated on said ballot.

Separate ballots for each political party, somewhat in the form as shown herewith, will be provided. The elector must name the political party of his choice when asking for a ballot and in marking his ballot must make a cross in the square to the left of the name of each elector for whom he desires to vote, and can vote for only one candidate for an office, except where two candidates are to be elected, in which case he should vote for two.

After the ballot is prepared it should be folded so that the initials of the inspector below the perforated corner will be on the outside.
