TRAINED IN WORK THEY LIKE BEST

Disabled Men Are Given Every Chance by Vocational Board.

HOW ONE FOUND HIS JOB

Unskilled Man, Wounded at Belleau Wood, Who Thought Engraving Fun Soon Proves Himself Expert Workman.

Washington.—A stoop shouldered man leaning on crutches came into the offices of the federal board for vocational education one morning and, looking around the room, asked if this was the place where the soldiers who had been hurt in the war could find something to do. The agent of the board asked him to sit down, and told him the plan that the government had for helping the handicapped men of the army, navy and marine who had been disabled in the service so that they might keep on with an active life.

Maimed at Belleau Wood.

"I reckon I was in the service, all right," the stoop shouldered one said, laying his crutches by the chair. "At Belleau Wood! Lord, what a day!" He let his hands drop listlessly between his knees and turning his eyes to the adviser, he said: "Well, how you goin' to help me? I have lost my left leg and I have about two dollars in my pocket and nowhere to get more. I never had a decent job in my life. I don't know how to do anything special and I don't care what it is you give me to do, just so it's something."

The adviser talked to him for a bit and tried to discover just what this man could do. He had held odd-jobs here and there, but none led to anything definite. He wasn't any more interested in auto mechanics than in street sweeping, or in gardening than in clerking. He sat there listlessly looking at his hands and left it to the adviser to decide. Every now and then he slowly turned a strange ring he had on his finger.

The adviser felt rather discouraged. He couldn't get a lead from this man's silence, and to get his confidence he asked to see the ring. The man took it off and handed it to him. His face became suddenly animated. "I made that," he said. "Hammered it out of silver myself and engraved those figures on the outside. Nothing but some playin' of mine," he added deprecatingly. The adviser looked at the ring carefully. It was well done, with a certain look about the engraving that gave him an idea.

"That's Just Play."

"How would you like to learn engraving and get a good position at it?" "Doin' this? Say, this ain't work. It's just play, and nobody pays you for havin' a good time, do they?" "Let's have a try at it," suggested the adviser, "and see what happens." The federal board sent the man to learn engraving, and in a few months he was the best of all the workers in the jewelry store where he was employed.

That ring was the key that opened the door of success to him. He has waked up and is enthusiastic about his work; only, he says, "It's not work. This is fun."

Work always is fun when you have found the right vocation, and the federal board is trying to find what the disabled soldiers like to do best.

WILLS ESTATE TO FRIEND

George Nicholson Recognizes Close and Intimate Relations With James K. P. Pine.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The will of George Nicholson of 1350 Bedford avenue, late vice president of the United Shirt and Collar company of Troy, N. Y., who died in Atlantic City, provides for the disposition of an estate of unascertained value.

The use of property, which consists entirely of personality, will go to his widow for life, and at her death, will be distributed among relatives and friends.

After the payment of the specific legacies, the residue will go to a friend, James K. P. Pine.

Explaining his reason for this liberal bequest to Mr. Pine, Mr. Nicholson wrote: "In the foregoing provisions of this will in favor of my dear friend, James K. Pine and his family, I have recognized the close and intimate relations which have existed between us."

Gives Life to Save Dog.

Chester, Pa.—Saying his dog from being run down by a train on the Chester Creek branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, Harry Cavanaugh, forty years old, was struck by the train. He died at the Chester hospital. Cavanaugh was walking up the railroad tracks when he heard a train approaching. He looked for his dog, which failed to heed the warning whistle of the engine. Cavanaugh ran after his pet, grabbed him by the back of the neck and dragged him to safety but was hit by the engine.

Broke Neck in 1916; Is Alive.

New York.—Charles Mercer of 79 Courthouse place, Jersey City, fell from a ladder July 31, 1916, breaking his neck and fracturing his spine. In spite of this Mercer is still alive, although he is permanently disabled.

SOUTHWEST'S HARVEST ENDS

"Saneest" in History Is Boast—Army of 125,000 Men Employed—Business Men Help.

Kansas City, Mo.—The southwest's harvest, characterized as the "saneest" in history, is over. Higher wages were paid them ever before, and there was practically no radical agitation. An army numbering at times 125,000 men, advanced with the harvest from southern Oklahoma through Kansas and into Nebraska, earning an average of 60 cents an hour.

Federal officials say about 100 alleged agitators were arrested on vagrancy charges, but so far there has not been a single complaint of sabotage.

College students and returned soldiers predominated among the harvesters. The response was so large that it was unnecessary for side-line harvesters—boy scouts and high school students—to go into the fields, although many business men in small Kansas towns joined "twilight" harvest gangs.

Enter Stomach Pump, "Dry Time Necessity"

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Among other things that will likely prove popular now don't forget the stomach pump.

John Carlisle, as many more will be doing soon, attempted to devise a little cocktail of his own. Hard cider and Jamaica ginger were the ingredients, and if a policeman had not heard John's cries for help his last cocktail would have been made. A stomach pump saved him.

WOMAN'S WILL IS UNIQUE

Bars Husbands, Wives and Widows From Interest or Benefit In Property.

Middletown, N. Y.—There are some unusual provisions in the will of Mrs. Helen S. Cutting, wife of Robert Fulton Cutting of Tuxedo Park, which has been admitted to probate at Goshen.

The will disposes of an estate estimated at $100,000 in personal and $100,000 in real estate. While the sons of the deceased are to have their shares in the estate paid to them at a certain time, the daughters are only given the income from their shares during their lives. The closing paragraph of the will reads:

"It is my will and I direct that no interest or benefit whatsoever shall pass hereunder to any husband, wife or widow of any child of mine."

Takes Son to Jail.

Bloomsburg, Pa.—When George Gibson of Catawissa brought his sixteen-year-old son Alfred to the county jail he did it because he wanted to give the boy a lesson, but of the two the father was suffering the most and when the steel doors were closed behind the youth the father burst into tears. The boy confessed to taking $5 from the store of H. E. Kearns & Son at Catawissa and was held in default of $300 bail for court.

TREE HELD BODY 57 YEARS

Servant, Who Hid From Soldiers in 1862, Was Unable to Escape.

In August, 1862, Jean La Rue, a servant of Edward Gleek, a farmer living near LeSueur, Minn., disappeared when he and other farm employees became frightened by the appearance of soldiers. His body, now mummified, was found recently in a hollow white oak tree which was cut down by employees of Gleek.

That La Rue became fastened in the tree is shown by his diary, under date of August 29, 1862, which stated the man could not get out and directed that if ever found all his money was to go to his mother, who lived in France.

Recruits Men to Care for Graves.

For the work of caring for the graves of British soldiers in France and Belgium, 15,000 additional men have been enlisted in England and already 5,000 of them have gone to France.

HUGE SUMS IN BANK ACCOUNTS ARE UNCLAIMED

$500,000,000 in Britain Said to Await Claimants.

WANT BANKS TO DISGORGE

H. W. Bottomley, M. P., Revives Bill to Give Government Benefit of These Funds—In London a Woman Deposited $140,000, and Years of Search Fail to Find Her or Her Relatives—Interesting Tales of Other Accounts.

As far back as the beginning of 1909, Horatio W. Bottomley, independent member of parliament for South Hackney, one of the boroughs of London, owner and editor of John Bull, became prominent in pushing the dormant bank balances bill, whose object was to force the banks to disclose the nature of unclaimed securities they hold, and the amount of unclaimed money, in order that they may be utilized by the government for public purposes. The bill failed of passage at the time, but it was recently revived by Mr. Bottomley.

Mr. Bottomley said in support of the bill that at least 100,000,000 pounds sterling would be recovered. Going into details he told the following story: "There was an old lady with 28,000 pounds (approximately $140,000) to her credit at a well-known London bank. Every year she would drive up in her carriage and ask to see the manager, examine her passbook, and then draw a check for the full amount. While the manager entertained her in the bank parlor a cashier would slip around to the head office and get notes for 28,000 pounds. The old lady would carefully count them, and then being satisfied that her money was safe, put it back into the account and go away. After a time her visits ceased. For fifteen or sixteen years now she has never been heard of and her relatives are unknown."

Another Piquant Morsel.

A member expressed incredulity, but Mr. Bottomley replied that he could give the name of the bank. Austen Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, said the story was not entirely new to him, and added another piquant morsel to the bill of fare. Stirred by the talk about dormant balances, a banking firm decided to investigate and discovered an account for 20,000 pounds that had not been touched for 20 years. That account also stood in the name of a lady presumably no longer young. The bank communicated with her and asked if she was aware that the sum stood to her credit. She replied rather tartly that she was perfectly well aware of what her property was and where it was, and since she could not leave it with that bank without being worried about it she had taken steps to transfer it to another.

Major Lowther, member for North Cumberland, added to the entertainment as follows: "Early in the nineteenth century the old banking company of Du Vane was wound up, and I understand there is reason to believe much of the stock and the funds of the bank were transferred to the Bank of England, and also valuable securities standing in the name of the senior partner, William Noble. I think his name was. I have seen the correspondence between the solicitor of the beneficiaries of one of the trusts and the Bank of England, wherein the bank has declined to give any information as to what there is lying in that trust, although there is good reason to believe the claimant was entitled to a certain sum of money now held by the bank."

Accounts of Refugees.

Mr. Bottomley said it was notorious that in the days of the French revolution the refugee families deposited large sums of money, jewels and securities in the old banks of London. If a committee could gain admission to the vaults of Coutts' bank they would find boxes bulging with every kind of security. Some years ago the postmaster general admitted that even in their small accounts the post office savings banks held half a million of money belonging to persons who had disappeared. The mother of a young fellow lost in a submarine, he said, had told her he had a considerable sum of money in a bank, but she did not know which bank, and every one of them had refused her information.

The government accepted the bill after Mr. Chamberlain had said: "The hunt for buried treasure has always fascinated the minds of the youthful. It seems that it also touches the imaginations of those of us who are no longer youthful. But the realization of the hopes put forward is more often confined to romance than reality. If I were a sporting man I would be prepared to wager that nothing like 100,000,000 pounds is at stake.

He put the sum at 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 pounds by multiplying the largest estimate given to him by those in position to know. The bill went to a select committee for consideration as to its practical working. It will not apply to accounts which have laid dormant for six years or less.

It was noted in the beginning that Mr. Bottomley has long been prominent in this "buried treasure" quest. It must not be overlooked that he has also been long a figure in the courts.

He has been called the stormy petrel of English politics and journalism. He has often been defendant in lawsuits growing out of financial transactions.

As far back as the nineties he was tried with former Lord Mayor Isaacs of London on a charge of conspiracy to defraud in connection with the failure of the Hansard Printing and Publishing union. Bottomley was managing director. Both, however, were acquitted. Bottomley defended himself with so much skill as to win the designation of "the best lay lawyer in England."

Paid $1,000,000 Voluntarily.

It must be said to his credit that years after he voluntarily paid $1,000,000 over to the stockholders of the failed concern. In 1909 a treasury prosecution was brought against him by the government in connection with the London and Joint Stock Trust and Finance corporation, of which he was the principal promoter. The action failed; the magistrate deciding there was no case against him. Again Bottomley defended himself.

Not all of his legal defenses, however, were successful. In June, 1911, he was ordered to refund $250,000 to the estate of R. E. Master, a Madras civil officer, on the ground that he had sold the latter worthless securities. On another occasion he was made to pay $2,500 damages to Miss Louvina Knollys, daughter of Lord Knollys, private secretary to King Edward VII, for having stated in one of his publications that she had eloped with a cavalry officer.

As a journalist he came into notice by founding the London Financial Times. Later he established John Bull, a weekly that attained an enormous circulation. In recent years he has made a great deal of money in mining operations. Since then he has appeared on the turf as the owner of a stable.

AMERICAN PILOT SETS NEW ALTITUDE RECORD

Battling against odds, with his Curtiss triplane bucking a 100-mile wind in a temperature of 25 below zero, Roland Rohlf's climbed 90,700 feet at Minoclea field, shattering all American aviation records. In the air just five minutes less than three hours, Rohlf's claims that had not the cold affected his radiator, he would have surpassed the world's unofficial altitude record of 33,130 feet made by Adjutant Casale, the Frenchman. Our photo shows Rohlf in the Curtiss triplane, ready for the flight and garbed for his six-mile flight into the air.

REMOVE 2,350 KISSES

Japan's Police Censor Obtrusives Osculations and Embraces.

Japan does not like to see kissing in public, therefore American film stars are not permitted to osculate on the screen. In six months up to March 1, the police censors removed 2,350 kisses and 353 embraces from films imported from the United States.

Only one kiss was allowed to remain. It was a kiss granted to Columbus by Queen Isabella and was shown in Tokyo only, as the censors deleted it before permitting the photoplay to appear in the provinces.

Bees Attack Farmer.

Milford, Del.—While plowing in a field Howard Webb, son of Elbert Webb, who resides a few miles from Milford, ran the point of his plow into a nest of bees and was attacked by a swarm of bees and rendered unconscious by them. He will recover, the doctors say.

OUR DOUGHBOYS DELIVERED GOODS

Australian Commander in Chief Lauds Americans.

THEY MADE GOOD EVERY TIME

General Monash Calls His Men and Americans "Full Blood Brothers" After 1918 Fighting—Praises Work of Yanks in Battle of Hamel, Which He Declares Was Turning Point of War—Won Much Glory.

Australian and American soldiers are "full blood brothers," in the opinion of Lieut. Gen. Sir John Monash, commander-in-chief of the Australian forces in the war, because the Americans were never placed in any position, nor called upon to perform any duty, when, as the general expressed it, they did not "deliver the goods."

General Monash said he first reached this conclusion in the early dawn of July 4, 1918, when for the first time Australian troops, fighting side by side with the Americans in the Somme sector, won the battle of Hamel and gave to the allied arms the first success they had achieved since the Germans began their memorable advance on March 21.

"This battle was the turning point of the war," said General Monash. "It was a brilliant and unqualified success, and its effect upon the morale both of the enemy and of our own men was electric and startling. It became the model of all subsequent achievements in France, and it paved the way for the great counter-offensive in August."

Thirty-third Division Men.

The American troops engaged, the general said, were 1,000 men from the Thirty-third division, commanded by Gen. John Bell. The Thirty-third division was then undergoing training. General Monash said he had asked and obtained permission to employ 1,000 of the Americans in the battle of Hamel, but on the eye of the battle the permission was withdrawn.

"I passed a strenuous and exciting period of two hours," continued General Monash. "So far as I could learn the order originated in some misunderstanding at American general headquarters as to the state of preparedness for battle of this division. I could not afford to have my battle plans ruined at the last moment by the withdrawal of a large fraction of my assaulting infantry, so I went to my army commander and delivered an ultimatum: If the Americans were not allowed to remain in the order of battle then the battle in the morning would be off. Unless a decision was given by six o'clock that night the battle would go on with the Americans in it as planned. We managed to interest the commander in chief, and he gave the order 'carry on.'"

Won Much Glory.

"Those 1,000 Americans covered themselves with glory, and I can pay them no greater compliment than by saying that from that day on our Australian veterans took them to their hearts as full-blooded brothers."

General Monash had under his command in the closing days of the war the whole Second American army corps, more than 60,000 men of the Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth American divisions. This army, he said, overthrew the Hindenburg defense system at its "most strongly defended point." The share of the American divisions in these operations was characterized by General Monash as "probably the greatest single American feat of arms achieved in the whole war." The operations were completed on October 5, he said, and it was on that night that "the Germans threw up the sponge and declared their willingness to make peace on our own terms."

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

Watch for the exact date and program of the big Northern Michigan Holstein Breeders meeting at the Loeb Farm the last days of August or early in September.

We imagine that after the wheat grower has bumped up against the Federal grading rules on smut, no argument will be needed to induce him to treat his seed.

Let's not forget to field select the seed corn for next year, and also remember the good early varieties that always get ripe for us.

The recent rains are bringing on the late potatoes in fine shape. Now is the time to begin taking out the diseased hills and mixed varieties. You can do this work yourself or the County Agent will help you if you call on him.

The Charlevoix County Breeders Association, very recently organized, is beginning to show results. The Holstein section is making arrangements for the largest and best Holstein meeting ever held in northern Michigan. Speakers of national importance will be present. The place of holding the meeting will be at the Loeb Farm and the time undoubtedly will be the very last of this month. A considerable number are becoming interested in the breed and the plans are already made for bringing about twenty choice females into the county within the next ten days.

The Shorthorn men are lining up in great shape for their breed. They are planning on a fine exhibit at the fair. Two good purebred animals have been brought into the county within the last week.

The Guernsey men are also very busy. Under the leadership of their Chairman, Mr. James Hart, the admirers of the breed have clubbed together and are now placing an order for thirty females of the better bred brood.

Although the organization has its various divisions which work for the interests of their favorite breed, yet all are together on the Better Livestock for Charlevoix County Campaign. All are together in saying "Scrub sires—scrub feeding and scrub care, 'must go.'" The results obtained in less than a month's work under organized plan is showing the Charlevoix County Breeders Association to be one of the most important factors in developing a permanent system of Agriculture for our county.

A GRATEFUL WOMAN'S STORY

Mrs. Robert Blair, 461 S. 20th St., Terre Haute, Ind., writes, "After taking Foley Kidney Pills a few weeks I found my kidney trouble gradually disappearing. The backaches stopped and I am also free from those tired spells and headaches and my vision is no longer blurred." They stop rheumatic pains.—Hite's Drug Store.

It will never cease to be a source of wonder how innocent young children can love, as some of them do, the homely looking fathers that they have.

You often hear it said of a woman that "she's a perfect slave to her husband," but who pays any attention to the man who is a slave to his wife—or isn't there any?

DANGERS OF HOT WEATHER

Anyone is doubly liable to ill effects from the hot sun when stomach and bowels are clogged with a mass of undigested food. If you suffer from sick headache, biliousness, bloating, "heaviness" or any ill caused by indigestion take a Foley Cathartic Tablet and you will feel better in the morning.—Hite's Drug Store.

BELGIUM SPEEDS UP

Making Rapid Strides in Work of Reconstruction.

Program Will Be Completed Successfully, According to Henry H. Morgan.

Brussels—Henry H. Morgan, American high trade commissioner in Belgium, has established a commercial organization here to aid in the reconstruction of Belgian industries. He announces that this organization is at the disposal of all merchants and manufacturers in Belgium and America.

To a press correspondent Mr. Morgan said that, in view of what the Belgians already have accomplished, he did not feel discouraged over industrial conditions in this country. "On the contrary," he said, "I feel certain that they will carry their reconstruction program through to a successful conclusion. I notice an intense cultivation of the soil, which will result in the next crop being nearly equal to prewar crops."

"Virtually all the glass factories in the country now are in operation, and 80 per cent of the textile looms now are busy spinning raw cotton arriving from the United States."

"It is estimated that the loan of 500,000,000 francs which American bankers have agreed to extend to Belgium will go a long way toward reconstruction. It also will have a beneficial effect upon the purchase price of the franc, which at the present time is very low. Repayment of this loan is not to commence until 1930. It is only by rapidly building her mills that Belgium can hope to pay back this loan in the production of her manufactured goods."

Mr. Morgan said it was estimated that the Germans had carried away one-third of the Belgian live stock. Experts of the United States department of agriculture have arrived from America to aid the Belgian ministry of agriculture in shipping breeding stock to Belgium.

"It is my understanding," added Mr. Morgan, "that preparations now are under way for sending a fleet of 30 vessels, each carrying live stock."

TWO LETTERS

BY ELIZABETH I. SAUNDERS.

"Now, Dot, for goodness' sake pocket your pride and plan to go to that dance with us. Even if Wallie is there you won't be obliged to notice him, although I think you are just mean to treat him that way. Now, please, Dot, just this once," pleaded Helen.

"Well, maybe, but still I won't promise yet. I will tell you positively in the morning."

It was now just four months since the two offensive letters had caused so many sleepless nights for two young people, and even four months would not wear away the pain and jealousy that was bound to get the best of both concerned.

Wallie had gone to France, leaving behind him a little girl who had promised to be true to him only. It had made the parting easier to know that she was all his as soon as his duty had been accomplished over there.

Some time later two letters crossed on their way to each of the lovers, both intended to bring happiness and comfort to the other, but instead brought unhappiness and even tears.

"Dear Wallie," one had started. "Helen has brought me the dearest little fellow. I call him Duke—as he is so polite and gentle. He is a little mite and so cunning. I know you will love him when you see him."

At the same time a little, blond, frownsed head tossed uneasily on the pillow and two nervous eyelids seemed to be having a hard fight to keep closed, then all at once she sat straight up in bed. The all-offensive paragraph of the letter ran through his mind.

"I am so lonesome tonight, dearest, for two people. You are one, of course, and the other is the dearest little lady in the world. She is another man's wife, so don't be jealous. I love her so much and I know you will, too, when you know her as I do. I got a letter from her today and how I long to see her."

"Another man's wife," indeed, "so don't be jealous. I didn't think Wallie would love another man's wife. He never seemed like that kind. But she can have him, that is, if her husband doesn't object," and with an angry tug at the sheets, she flung herself back on the pillow for a restless sleep.

Saturday dawned bright and clear for all with the exception of Duke, who had discovered to his discomfort and misery that too much sweets were not good for little fellows like himself. Dot left Duke and started for the dance with Helen and her brother. Dot was prettier than ever and so radiant. Inwardly she was fighting two battles, trying to conceal her jealousy for Wallie, but outwardly she showed only the worry for Duke. Apparently she hadn't noticed Wallie. But indeed she had, she had also noticed that he was alone.

"Beg pardon, Dot, but would it be asking too much if I asked for just one dance?" attempted Wallie. "Not at all, or even two would be but a slight favor," coolly answered Dot, with a bit of sarcasm in her voice that Wallie did not notice, due to the fact that the thought of two dances with Dot overjoyed him. "Couldn't make it three, could you?" he almost pleaded. "Possibly."

At the end of the eight dances they enjoyed together, Wallie ventured: "Dot, since Duke isn't here to protect you through the streets tonight to your home, would it be agreeable to you for me to escort you to your door?"

What could be the matter with Wallie? "Why, Wallie, I don't understand what you are saying. Poor Duke couldn't protect me."

At the end of their journey homeward, which came too soon for both concerned, Dot in her excitement invited Wallie to call the next day. "I would sure love to, Dot, but how about Duke? Are you quite sure he won't be jealous?" "Duke—jealous—why, Wallie, I do believe you think Duke is a young man!" The telltale expression on Wallie's face confirmed her statement, so as soon as she could conceal the amusement the little misunderstanding had afforded she ventured: "Wallie, you are a jealous goose. Duke is just a dear little four-legged fellow; in other words, a little Boston terrier." "Good heavens, Dot, I have been an idiot. Can you ever forgive me?"

Dot was about to say "Yes," but the offending paragraph of Wallie's letter ran through her mind as it had a million times since that letter had arrived. "But, Wallie, what about the other man's wife?" "Who?" "You know the one you wrote about?" After a moment's contemplation Wallie recalled her reference and his face clouded. "Dot, dear, I never dreamed that you could misinterpret my letter that way. I still love that little lady more than anything else on earth, with the exception of your own dear little self, and she is married to another man, too. That man is my best pal—he's my dad; so you see you were just jealous of my mother. Now, what have you to say?"

"Oh, Wallie, I'm so sorry. Can you forgive me?"

We don't know what he said, but a few weeks later at the wedding of this happy pair sat the other man's wife, fondly stroking the head of the cute and cunning Duke.

"Here's wishing Duke a long life, even if he is my cute rival," laughed Wallie. "And here's happiness and long life to the other man's wife—our mother," finished Dot.

CUTS SUGAR FROM $4.50 TO $1

Spool of Thread Drops From $6 to $1.60 After Relief Ship Reaches Roumania.

Bucharest.—When the American Red Cross and the American relief administration commenced work here several months ago, sugar was selling at $4.50 a pound, and was almost impossible to obtain even at that price.

Today it is still scarce, but can be purchased at somewhere around $1, due to the relief shipments.

A "Hoover" ship with 900 tons of milk, about 3,000 tons of fat, and 3,000 tons of other foods, recently arrived at Constanza. These supplies did much to improve the situation.

Food is not the only commodity which has taken a fall. In the last month the price of thread has dropped from $6 to $1.60 a spool. A speculator who recently brought in a trunkload of cotton thread realized a profit of $3,800 on his enterprise.

Tickets on the weekly train between Bucharest and Paris bring a premium as high as $200.

OFFICER WEDS 'SINKER' GIRL

Romance Begun on French Battle Fields Culminates in Marriage in New York.

New York—Miss Gladys E. McIntyre, who with her sister, Irene, gained fame making doughnuts for doughboys at the Salvation Army huts in France, was married to Russel A. Harmon of Floyd, Va., formerly a lieutenant in company C, 104th regiment, Twenty-sixth New England national guard division.

The wedding was the culmination of a romance begun in the Toul sector of France, where Lieut. Harmon was stationed and where the McIntyre sisters began the Salvation Army work. Mrs. Harmon's father is a colonel in the Salvation Army.

Buy Your Coal Direct From Mine—Big Saving

The high cost of coal is a thing of the past! At least, there are no complaints on this account—since the removal of government restrictions—among those who have learned how to buy coal. The way to buy coal is to get it direct from the mines. This saves several middlemen's profits. It saves hauling expenses. Anyone can now buy at mine prices, whether a carload buyer or one who uses only ten or fifteen tons a year. This has been made possible through a plan evolved by a large and old-established concern, THE BERNICE COAL COMPANY, with main offices at 1083 Como Building, Chicago.

This company has thousands of customers in various sections of the United States who receive all of their coal direct from the mines. These customers are pleased not only because of the many dollars they save every year, but also because of the quality of coal they are getting. Many write that they never before had coal that makes so little dust, that burns so well, leaving so few ashes. If you are a coal user—whether you use hard or soft coal, much or little—it will be greatly to your advantage to write the Bernice Coal Co. at once for prices, stating kind and quantity of coal you use.

Children are a great blessing, but even blessings can be overdone.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

But less meat if you feel Backache or have Bladder trouble—Salts fine for Kidneys.

Mist forms uric acid which irritates and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is hot you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush of the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder disease.

CREAM FOR CATARRH OPENS UP NOSTRILS

Tells How To Get Quick Relief from Head-Colds. It's Splendid!

In one minute your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely! No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh will be gone.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh—Relief comes so quickly.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the tenyards of bowels do. Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the intimate organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty waste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach, others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

GIRLS MAROONED IN MANLESS EDEN

Teachers in Hawaii Can't Get Home, So Spend Vacation on Tropical Isle.

Marooned on a tropical isle 2,000 miles or more from home, and camping on the brink of the crater of Kilauea, one of the world's greatest active volcanoes, 200 girls, most of them pretty and all of them charming, are spending a vacation of two months in a manless Eden.

This is not a scenario; it's a description of Hawaii's summer camp for homesick school-teachers. A few weeks ago some 300 woman school-teachers heard the sad news that they could not get back to the states for their summer vacation, the army transports being booked full with army officers and soldiers, and the passenger liners being sold out for months ahead, war service having taken many of the Pacific's finest steamers to the Atlantic.

When the teachers' predicament became known, L. A. Thurston, Honolulu newspaper publisher, suggested the idea of a summer camp for teachers at Kilauea, where the great elevation and cool climate would give the young women a pleasant change from the rather depressing summer heat of the Hawaiian lowlands. The co-operation of the department of public education, the Y. M. C. A. and the army was enlisted, the military camp at the volcano being obtained for the accommodation of the teachers, and such Y. M. C. A. members as cared to attend.

The public schools closed June 27 and the summer camp opened June 29, to close about Sept. 1. A summer-normal school will be conducted in connection with the camp, but attendance is not obligatory. The young women are being provided with meals at actual cost.

ABANDONED CATS GO WILD

New Jersey Game Wardens Start Warfare on Felinae.

New Jersey game wardens have been called upon to join in a warfare upon cats which had been abandoned by the 10,000 workers in the Belcoville munition plant, near Mays Landing. The cats have turned wild and are killing game in their desperate effort to forage for a living. Young rabbits, it is claimed, are the chief sufferers, while the cats have begun systematic hunting for birds and small game.

Guards have been shooting the cats in order to rid the grounds of them, and neighboring farmers claim that their young chickens are disappearing in increasing numbers, due to the depredations. It is believed, of the big colony of abandoned mousers. The cats were brought to the grounds when the shacks and buildings were inhabited by the workers.

A family at Middletown, Conn., took a slice out of the high cost of living by moving their family goods from their old house to their new one in a baby carriage.

"The expressman wants too much for the job," said pa.

"Too darn much," said pa.

"Let's do it ourselves," chorused the whole family.

The baby carriage was brought out and, laden with the family possessions, trundled to the new home. The baby carriage squeaked and groaned under the kitchen stove, but it stood up and made the trip in safety.

"That's a good baby carriage," said pa, eyeing the perambulator proudly.

"Well, it ought to be," replied ma; "we brought up eight kids in it."

While on his way to Camp Perry for training, Wittblsager, then a member of the old Fourth Ohio, wrote his name on a piece of paper and threw it out of the railroad car window. The paper was found by Miss Brooks, who, in accordance with its request, wrote to the soldier.

Their correspondence continued, and plans for their marriage were completed when Wittblsager was discharged from the service several days ago.

TELL AGE OF OCEANS

Scientists Figure It Out by Measuring Salt.

Declare Seas Were Born About 90,000,000 Years Ago—Water is Analyzed.

Washington.—How old is the ocean? Standing on the shore and looking out over the expanse of water, the ocean seems a fixed and eternal fact, but the seas had a beginning and will have an end. Scientists say that when this time comes the last drop of water will have been absorbed into the earth's crust; its surface will be a desert and all life will become extinct.

The age of the oceans have been estimated by a leading authority, Professor Frank Clarke of the United States Geological survey, at about 90,000,000 years. This, of course, is only an approximation, but is based on carefully studied scientific data.

All the water was once contained in the vapor that surrounded the glowing, slowly cooling mass which is now the earth. After the gases combined to form water the process of making the ocean salt began. This was the work of the rivers. Mineral salts were extracted from the rocks over which they flow and deposited in the sea.

Each year the action of the streams is said to make the ocean slightly more salty, and this is the basis on which its age is calculated. The amount of salt carried by the rivers of the world is computed by the scientists and compared with the total quantity in the ocean. After evaporation and the velocity of currents have been considered, it is possible to calculate how long it has taken to make the sea water as salty as it is today.

About three and a half per cent of mineral salts and 98 1/2 per cent fresh water make up the oceans. Three-fourths of the solid matter is common salt, other ingredients being chloride, sulphate and bromide of magnesium; sulphate and carbonate of lime and sulphate of potash, besides traces of various other minerals and metals, including gold and silver.

FOR 3 "MARRIED" REGIMENTS

Regulars With Foreign Brides to Be Placed in Special Units Says War Department.

Washington.—Special regiments, composed largely if not entirely of married men, probably will result from the war department's policy regarding the disposition of regulars who are returning to this country with French wives. Orders have been sent to commanding officers of debarkation ports to transfer such men and their wives to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.; or Fort Myer, Va., when they belong to the cavalry, and to Madison Barracks, N. Y., in the case of infantrymen.

Official estimates are that 20,000 American soldiers married foreign brides. A majority of these men were emergency enlistments, however, and it is believed three regiments will be sufficient to accommodate the regulars.

ROMANS LIVING IN CAVES

High Rents Cause Return to Prehistoric Dwelling Places in Italian Capital.

Rome.—"Cavemen," relics of prehistoric days of human housing, live in Rome side by side with institutions of art and learning.

The caves are under the very shadow of the British Art school and the Italian College of Modern Arts. Within a short distance is the national stadium. On the other side of them is the Porta del Popolo, through which before the days of railways all pilgrims to Rome passed.

The reversion of Romans to the caves is not retrogression. It is evasion of high rents. All efforts of the police to eject the tenants from the caves have failed. The "cavemen" move out but return as soon as the police depart.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN

Miss Kelly Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Newark, N. J.—"For about three years I suffered from nervous breakdown and got so weak I could hardly stand, and had headaches every day. I tried everything I could think of and was under a physician's care for two years. A girl friend had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she told me about it. From the first day I took it I began to feel better and now I am well and able to do most any kind of work. I have been recommending the Compound ever since and give you my permission to publish this letter."—Miss FLO KELLY, 478 So. 14th St., Newark, N. J.

The reason this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, was so successful in Miss Kelly's case was because it went to the root of her trouble, restored her to a normal healthy condition and as a result her nervousness disappeared.

BATTLE BIG SHARKS

Hawaiian Sportsmen Risk Their Lives at Game.

Dead Horses Make Best Bait, and Sport Has Been Commercialized.

Honolulu.—Using the carcass of a horse for bait, a Honolulu sportsman went fishing recently in a powerboat and returned with a fish weighing 2,500 pounds and measuring almost 20 feet from tip to tip, the largest shark killed in Hawaiian waters for many years.

Shark fishing, or rather, hunting, as it is conducted in Hawaii, is a thrilling sport, not entirely lacking in danger to the hunter.

In fact, a death battle with a harpooned shark, according to big-game hunters, is about as safe as a midnight combat with a hungry tiger.

Sharks, in their death throes, have been known to attack the boat and with their powerful rows of serrated teeth rip great sections from the sides.

The shark hunter first obtains a dead horse, and if it has been dead a week so much the better.

The powerboat tows the carcass outside the harbor and the hunt is on. Sharks, attracted by the odor of the bait, gather in large numbers and soon begin striking at the carcass, ripping huge chunks of flesh from it.

At this stage the hunter endeavors to work his boat near enough to permit a shot with the harpoon.

Once securely harpooned, a big shark will fight for hours before succumbing.

Recently in Hawaii shark hunting has been placed on a commercial basis, and the development of a big industry is forecast.

Shark fins are deemed a great delicacy by orientals, and dried shark meat has found a ready market.

The canning of shark meat is being considered. The livers yield a valuable oil.

CHA-CHAS ARE POOR MIXERS

Marines Say Tribe in Virgin Islands Plainly Indicate They Want to Be Left Alone.

Washington.—United States marines who have hobbled with Filipino headhunters, and have long been friendly with the Chamorros of Guam, met their Waterloo when they tried to establish the entente cordiale with the Cha-Chas of the Virgin Islands.

According to the marines the Cha-Chas are "poor mixers." They live on the west side of the harbor of Charlotte-Amalie, decline to mingle or fraternize with the negroes, and resent any outside interference with their affairs. They are the hardest drinkers and best workers on the island, their industry bringing them a good living as fishermen and weavers of straw hats. The tribe is said to have come originally from the Dutch and French Leeward Islands.

So far the marines have taken only long distance observations of the Cha-Chas. For while the tribe is not hostile, its members plainly indicate that they want to be left alone.

ALLOWED TO SNAP MIKADO

Public May Photograph Emperor Only When Driving in Carriage, However.

Tokyo.—Permission has just been granted to take photographs of the imperial family as the members appear in public driving in a carriage but not when they are on horseback or afoot. This is interpreted here as a great concession to the spirit of democracy.

In the earlier days of Japan it was popularly supposed that any one gazing on the sacred emperor would be struck blind. As late as 1915, on the occasion of the coronation at Kyoto photographs of the emperor and empress exhibited in shop windows had the faces obscured by pieces of paper.

Nimble Wit and Tongue Landed Job for Owner

The Santa Fe Railroad company had been advertising in Eastern newspapers for brakemen. A big, ugly, raw-boned chap, who looked like a prize fighter, appeared before Fred C. Fox, general manager at Topeka, Kan., and applied for work.

"I see that you want some brakemen," said he. "I would like a job."

"We don't need any brakemen," replied Fox, after sizing up the fellow.

"Then you should take that ad out of the papers and quit fooling us," said the man. "I came all the way from Philadelphia in reply to your ad."

"Yes, we do need brakemen," confessed Fox, "but we don't want you."

"Why not?"
"I don't like your looks."

"So you hire a man on his looks, eh?"
"Yes."

"Well, who hired you?" asked the brakeman.
"I guess you will do," replied Fox with a laugh. "You can go to work this afternoon."
