Soldiers' Bonus Put to Voters

Legislature Orders It Placed on the April 4th Ballot.

(From Special Correspondent.)
Lansing.—Critics of the present legislative session who insisted it was making slow headway have had to revise their opinions considerably since the month of March arrived with its breeziness. The latter quality seems to have been absorbed by the lawmakers and a business-like air now prevails in the capitol building.

Speed marked the action of both houses when the decision finally was reached to have the matter of soldiers' bonuses voted upon by the people of the state. Figuring that the more quickly such a vote is had, as long as it is to be taken, the better for all concerned, the proposed amendment to provide bonds for bonus payments was passed through both houses in one day so that it would be in time to be placed on the ballot in the election of next month. As submitted to the voters, the proposition contemplates the payment to all world war veterans, including soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses, of $15 for every month of service. It is estimated that this will call for a total of $20,000,000.

Believes U. S. Should Pay.

Only one vote was cast against the amendment in the legislature. That was the vote of Rep. Wm. L. Case, of Leelanau county. And he voted that way, he explained, not because he does not favor a bonus, but because he thinks the national government and not the state should provide it. An effort to also place on the April ballot a proposed amendment that would permit townships to combine for the purpose of establishing and maintaining public and charitable hospitals, failed when the senate referred the matter back to committee for further consideration. This matter has passed the house and if it also passes the senate later it will have to wait until the general election in November of next year to get on the ballot.

Efforts of friends of the "eugenics bill" and the "full crew bill" to get them through both committees of the whole and on third reading in the senate in one day were not successful, both measures being set for formal roll call vote at special hours later. The Davis "eugenics bill" would require that all persons applying for marriage licenses must file physicians' certificates as to physical and mental fitness. The "full crew bill" calls for an extra brakeman on all freight trains of more than fifty cars.

Salary increase bills still hold their power to precipitate heated debates, as was exemplified in the senate by the bill to raise the pay of supreme court justices to $12,000. For three weeks this bill was knocked about, twice being sent back to committee, but finally it was amended to provide $10,000 salaries for the justices and in this form got through and went to the house. The bill to raise the salary of the superintendent of public instruction from $4,000 to $6,000 also has been buffeted about and at the present writing has been amended to the $6,000 mark in the senate, but still has to go to the test of a vote on its final passage there.

Anti-Lobby Bill Killed.

One of the liveliest debates of the session marked the senate action on the so-called lobbyist bill introduced by Senator McRae. The measure being killed by having everything after the enacting clause stricken out. The bill aimed to require the registration of legislative counsel and agents who attempt to influence legislation, but Senators Henry, Brower, Eldred and others contended that it would hit all sorts of constituents who have a healthy interest in legislation and express it to members of the legislature. In committee of the whole Senator Henry's motion to strike out the body of the bill prevailed by a vote of 13 to 10 and the senate later, in regular session, sustained this action by a 15 to 13 vote.

Three mooted questions before the present legislature now seem to be in a fair way of being disposed of by compromise. They are the state income tax proposal, the moving picture censorship plan and the state fair. The latter will remain in Detroit under the terms of the administration bill for the establishment of a state agricultural department, reported out by the house state affairs committee and now in the hands of the ways and means committee. Rep. Read, of Kalamazoo, has declared his opposition to state control of the fair and may lead a fight on this feature when the bill gets before the house.

Has New Income Tax Idea.

The plan to compromise on a moving picture censorship has the support of many who were disputing over the merits of the first censorship plan. The compromise idea is to leave the censorship to the state administrative board, headed by the governor, giving the board the power to rule out all pictures showing criminal and immoral acts.

Senator Penney has advanced the income tax compromise idea, it being to have the federal government whack up income tax collections with the states from which they are received, thus having only the one tax to collect for both nation and state.

Numerous new bills continue to be offered both in the senate and house. Among the most interesting of them are two offered by Senator Hayes to make Good Friday a public and school holiday, thus permitting the churches the opportunity to make it a greater church day. Senator Hayes says the bills are prompted by the fact that there is a growing observance of the day and in Detroit this year there is to be a public cessation of work for three hours on Good Friday, while special public services are being held.

Dealers Oppose Label Bill.

Charging that the passage of the Henzie bill, requiring labels stating the contents of merchandise sold by retail dealers of this state would be discriminatory against Michigan manufacturers, the Michigan Manufacturers' association has protested the passage of the measure.

Fred L. Woodworth, state food and drug commissioner, will ask the legislature to enact a law requiring packers to stamp their names on all canned goods. Such a measure would enable the department to trace quickly the source of impure or dangerous food supplies. Mr. Woodworth points out, and avoid delays such as have been encountered in the recent investigation of poisoned food.

Two changes in the judicial records of the state are proposed in a bill introduced in the senate by Senator Hicks, Owosso. Huron and Benzie counties would comprise the 24th and Lapeer and Tuscola counties the 40 circuits.

Rep. McDonald, Houghton, has submitted a bill that would place the maximum compensation for workmen under the compensation act at 66 2/3 per cent of their weekly salary.

Rep. Townsend, Jackson, introduced a concurrent resolution in the house proposing a merger of the homeopathic hospital with the General hospital at the University of Michigan. The resolution states that only 47 patients are now housed in the homeopathic hospital, making the operating expense of the spacious building too high.

New County Government Plan.

The latest idea in governmental reform which has appeared in the legislature is one which embodies a plan for administrative boards for counties, patterned to some extent after the new state administrative board.

It would be made optional with the counties as to its adoption, that question to be decided by the boards of supervisors.

This plan is offered as a substitute for the county commission government idea which has been agitating for some time and is expected to be proposed at this legislative session. The new board would absorb some county offices and abolish boards of auditors in counties having them. A tentative bill has been drafted and will probably be introduced in the senate by Senator Thomas H. McNaughton, Kent county.

The administrative board would consist of three members appointed by the board of supervisors at salaries of not less than $5,000 a year each.

Charles J. Leland, secretary of state, has been named vice-chairman of the board and Fred Griswold will head the board's accounting bureau. Regular meetings will be held each Tuesday morning and Wednesday afternoon. The Governor may call special conferences at any time.

From the sale of farm products from state farms the state expects during the fiscal year of 1921-22 to receive a revenue of approximately $300,000.

In a statement of estimated general purpose revenues, compiled by the budget commission, the anticipated revenue for the coming fiscal year is placed at $3,298,675.

Fund Requests Too High.

Attacking the $1,970,000 emergency requests which the various departments and institutions have made to cover continuation work during the remaining five months of the fiscal year, the administrative board at its first meeting held this week looped $30,000 off the requests of the first four departments taken up.

The biggest cut was made in the amount asked by the board of the Boys' Industrial school when investigation of the facts presented in connection with an estimate of $80,000 convinced the board that $50,000 would take care of the institution's needs for the period.

Similar cuts will be made all the way down the line of the various organizations requests and when the ad-

Two Dead, One Hurt in Wreck

Train Hits Automobile At Crossing At Petoskey.

(Petoskey News, March 9th)

Wilson Maxon, Brutus, was killed instantly, and his son, Ray Maxon, and Ford Wilson, also of Brutus, were so badly injured they may die, when train No. 4 on the Pennsylvania Lines, south bound Wednesday afternoon, struck the Maxon car at the crossing just north of the brewery.

The automobile was caught by the left side of the pilot of the railroad engine and literally torn to pieces. The dead man was thrown a considerable distance from the car. He was terribly cut and broken and death came instantly. The other men received frightful injuries, many broken bones and cuts.

The men were placed aboard the train and brought to Petoskey, the injured men being taken to Petoskey hospital.

Later—A report from Petoskey Hospital just as this paper goes to press brings word that Ford Wilson died while being taken from the train to the hospital.

Administrative Board completes its examination it will craft a definite appropriation bill to cover all requests allowed, but the bill will not be drawn until the minimum has been reached, according to board members.

The appointment of Fred B. Perry, secretary of the state board of auditors, and superintendent of the Capitol, as secretary of the newly created state administrative board, at a salary of $5,000 a year, has been announced.

Place Restriction on Smoking.

Bismarck, N. D.—The North Dakota Senate passed the House Bill which would prohibit smoking in dining room, cafes and other public places which both men and women frequent.

New Gas Mark Developed.

Washington—A gas mask that will protect its wearer against practically any gas, smoke or fume, is being developed by the bureau of mines.

D. W. GRIFFITH'S LATEST SENSATION HERE SOON

Newest united artists' production of eminent screen master to be shown at Temple Theater, Sunday, March 20th. The master screen craftsman, David Wark Griffith, producer of the screen's greatest sensations; creator of the most advanced innovations in motion picture productions, finder and developer of the world's greatest screen stars, has produced another wonderful production, "The Love Flower," which is being heralded everywhere as a creation of exquisite beauty, haunting charm and spirited drama. United Artists Corporation recently announced its release and the first showing of this newest Griffith production in this community will be at the Temple Theater on Sunday, March 20th.

It is an unusually dramatic story of the wonderful love of a daughter for her heart-broken father, who being hounded to the very end of the world, dares to plan the undoing of the man who is desirous of bringing ultimate disgrace upon the very light of her heart and soul and unhappiness to her every thought.

Not one woman in ten thousand would do what this daughter dared to do to save her father. Not one person of her sex in many times that number would have clung to the heart strings of her parents, through their many trials and tribulations, with every atom of the strength of her frail body, as did this girl of nature, this child of all that was good and true and wholesome.

His players, headed by Richard Barthelmess and Carrol Dempster are par-excellent in this production. The settings are exquisite wonders of exterior beauty and interior perfection.

Warning To Autoists

All automobile owners are requested to take notice that their cars must now be equipped with 1921 licences. Many are still using last year's plates, and hereafter no cars will be allowed to run within the city limits without 1921 plates.

COMMERCIAL HOTEL CHANGES MANAGERS

Jaasper Warden, who has been manager of the Commercial Hotel for some time past, has sold the furnishings to Frank Kiser who will take possession about April 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiser have conducted a restaurant on State street successfully for several months past and will undoubtedly make a success of this new venture.

ROMANCE AND BIG BUSINESS

Francis Lynde writes the greatest railroad stories of any man living. He has been at it twenty years and the reason is that he once was a railroad man and is able to write from the inside. We are going to offer you as a serial in this paper his latest and best tale of romance, adventure, railroading, politics and big business, entitled "The Wreckers." It is one of the most intensely interesting tales ever printed and you will enjoy every line of it. Do not miss the opening, which will occur in an early issue of the Herald.

BOYNE FALLS HAS NEW GARAGE

Milo Dickerson has started a garage in Boyne Falls. He has been with the Buick Garage in Boyne City for the last four years and will be pleased to meet any of his old customers in his new place. adv.

Candidly, we are tired reading about wars, murders, holdups, divorces, scandals, and other mild forms of amusement. Nothing with a thrill ever happens any more.

THE FUNERAL OF WM. H. SUPERNAW LARGELY ATTENDED.

The funeral of William H. Supernaw whose sudden death last Thursday was recorded in these columns last week, was held from St. Joseph's Catholic Church Sunday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock conducted by the pastor, Rev. Fr. Drinan. Interment at the Catholic Cemetery. During his many years of residence in our city, Mr. Supernaw made a host of friends, and these turned out in a body to pay their respects to the deceased; the auditorium of the church being filled to capacity.

Wm. H. Supernaw was born at Ellensburg, N. Y., May 11th, 1869, and passed away in our city Thursday, March 3rd, 1921. On Nov. 12th, 1894, he was united in marriage to Fannie M. Detlaff of East Jordan, who died August 13th, 1916. The sons and daughters who survive are:—Glenn F. Supernaw of East Jordan; Margaret L. Supernaw of East Jordan; Sister M. Denise of Saginaw; and Francis M. Supernaw of Flint. Other relatives who survive are:—His father, Albert Supernaw of Ellsworth, and two sisters—Mrs. Ben Yettaw and Mrs. Plinney Gennette, both of Charlevoix.

Mr. Supernaw was a member of St. Joseph's Church, a member of the Knights of Columbus, and Secretary of the Mystic Workers of the World.

He was a wood-worker of exceptional ability, and was affiliated with East Jordan's wood-working industries for many years. A few years ago he purchased the brick building opposite the Hose House, and installed wood-finishing machinery. The plant, from the outset, was a growing industry.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE TEN TO BE SUBMITTED

A proposed amendment to the State Constitution will be submitted to the electors at the election to be held on Monday, April 4th, 1921, as follows:

An added section (20) to Article X, the effect of which, if adopted, will be to authorize the State of Michigan to borrow thirty million dollars for the purpose of compensating all persons who served in the late World War and who were residents of this State at the time of entering such service.

Charles J. DeLand
Secretary of State.

SELECTION IMPORTANT IN POULTRY BREEDING PENS

"March is the month when the breeding pens for the spring hatch of chicks should be made up, if the work has not already been done," says C. H. Burgess, head of the poultry department at the Michigan Agricultural College.

"Hatch early if you want eggs next year when the price is up."

Vitality and vigor are the most important factors to consider in selecting the birds for the breeding pens. Birds with vitality are those that have not been sick during the year. Vigor is indicated by good red combs, lustrous feathers, constant singing, or crowing every five minutes.

"Pen breeders by themselves," says Professor Burgess. "Feed them generously upon grains, both whole and ground. Give them green food and sour skimmed milk. Feed grain in deep litter. Make hens in breeding pen work, if possible giving them free range.

"Eggs should be gathered often during the colder days of spring, and kept in a temperature that is less than 60 degrees F., but not below 50 degrees F. Turn the eggs often.

"Those who intend to hatch artificially should order their incubator at once, in order to be sure of delivery on time. Purchase of reliable, standard make is economy in the end."

WHEN PEACE COMES

Is universal peace to come out of the great war? It is not. Even as a dream it is fading away.

Governmental greed in Europe is the rock upon which it was wrecked. International hatred and distrust will keep it submerged.

On the surface diplomacy maintains a fiction of unity, but underneath the fires of imperialistic passion are raging unchecked.

Dreams come and dreams go, but peace for this world will come when we are all gods, and not men.

DEMOCRATIC LEADER DIES DREAMING OF OLD GLORIES

CHAMP CLARK

Washington.—Death closed last week the career of Champ Clark of Missouri, for more than a quarter of a century a towering figure in national politics. Although defeated at the general election last fall, he still had two days to serve as representative from Missouri, and passed away dreaming of legislative work in which he had been a prominent figure. He had been active in the house up to a few days before he was taken ill with a severe cold.

A fitting tribute was paid by congress to its illustrious member, when it halted its work for a half hour during the rush that characterized the closing of the session. A special congressional committee was also named to accompany the remains to Bowling Green, Mo., where funeral services were held.

TO DISCUSS DRAINAGE PROBLEM

Michigan Contractors to Hold Conference March 17 and 18.

East Lansing.—Problems relating to the drainage of more than 4,000 acres of cultivated land in Michigan will be taken up at a State Farm Drainage convention at the Michigan Agricultural college on March 17 and 18.

Drainage contractors and others interested in farm drainage questions will gather for the conference, which closes a week's drainage school, or short course, which is to open at the college on March 14.

Need for farm drainage in the state is said to be great, and the convention is expected to bring out ways and means of furthering the work. Experienced drainage men will exchange ideas on methods and policies.

WILSON ENTERS LAW PRACTICE

May Form Partnership With Ex-Secretary of State Colby.

Washington.—With a brief announcement that he "will resume the practice of law," Woodrow Wilson last week gave the first indication of what he intends to do after leaving the White House.

Wholly unexpected and quite unknown to his closest friends, it was officially announced that Mr. Wilson would enter a partnership with Bainbridge Colby, of New York, the retired secretary of state, and that the new firm would establish offices in New York and Washington.

OPIUM DISGUISED AS SAUSAGE

Officers' Search Unsuccessful Until Frankfurter Is Cut Open.

New York.—Ten pounds of opium, disguised as sausage, were seized on a steamship at a Brooklyn pier during a narcotic raid by police and internal revenue agents.

Information had been received that the Chinese members of the crew would attempt to smuggle drugs into this port on the vessel's arrival from Calcutta. The search was unrewarded until the drug sleuths cut open an innocent-looking frankfurter and discovered opium instead of ground meat.

Card of Thanks

We deeply desire to thank the many kind friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy rendered us during our recent bereavement. Also for the beautiful spiritual and floral offerings.

HUNGARY: HUMBLED AND ISOLATED

Hungary, cut practically to half its former size by the Treaty of Versailles, and now dissociated from Austria and having no alliance with other neighbors, is peopled by a race unusual in many ways, according to the following communication to the National Geographic society by C. Townley-Fullam:

"Pastoral Hungary has features all its own. It stretches across the vistas of the Great Plain in the region of the Hortobagy. There is the genuine original Magyar, the Sentaur-Masseppa, who, like his sties of old, that rushed Alexander on the plains of Sogdiana, rides like a devil of the twilight; eats, drinks, sleeps on his small, fireless charger, and chokes with pure delight in just of life and rush of wind. The long white 'gatya'—no penitent sheet—the embroidered sleeveless waistcoat, the plumed or bearded hat, the gorgeous mantle, the deep-bowled pipe, mark this tanned Bacchanalian cavalier more surely than does the anthropologist. He cultivates no circus trick, but he and his horses are Freemasons in one craft.

"There is nothing spectacular in this man's work nor annals. His blood-brother, the shepherd of the night, sustains himself on sheep cheese and milk and in his lonely vigils could still do service to astronomy. The Queensland squatter has no such run as the shepherd of the plain, whose vistas are wide, illimitable and peaceful.

"What may be the psychological keynote of a pastoral and peasant king, shepherd kings, whose whole corporate national life has been one long test of endurance that in the end has tired out Turk, Teuton, Slav, and even Destiny herself? A musical, wine-loving, hospitable race; warm, generous and combative; proud and vain; dowered with the curse of Beowulf, with a total incapacity to unite on great issues and the power to fight on any soil but his own.

"Imagine this people, its gods still the bards of the victor's camp, cut off from all the world we know by its Tufanian tongue, whose beauty chained the admiration of Cardinal Mezzofanti (who is said to have spoken 58 languages), but maintaining its own as a minority by sheer force of character in that strange pentecostal mosaic of race, creed, and caste which until recently held the Danube and the Central Plain as Austria-Hungary.

"Imagine a virile stock which can still sit and think, can fall into gleaming frenzy as its harp or picture-post storms a delicate imagination with breathless deed; a race which combines the Buddhist aversion from action with the Celtic instinct of opposition; improvident, lavish, naively charmed at the courtesy of the stranger; simple, with the barbarian lust of pleasure to the eye; sensitive to its inmost chords to gentleness—a passionate, dreamy race of fatalists; the true Asian mystery."

MOROCCO: BANDITRY THERE A PROFESSION

The United States has had diplomatic difficulties in recent years with the people of northern Morocco where Spanish armies have just scored their greatest success in sustaining the colonial power of Spain in Africa. Some insight into the kind of people with whom the Spaniards have had to deal is contained in the following communication to the National Geographic society, concerning Raisuli, "the Villa of Morocco," whose raids caused political crisis in Spain.

"He could not bear to hear a child cry, while on several occasions I noticed his care even to avoid allowing the bees collected in his cup to drown." Is the surprising statement, not of a friend, but of the wealthy American who was held for ransom by Raisuli in 1904, until President Roosevelt sent a fleet of warships and his famous ultimatum, "Perdicaris alive or Raisuli dead," to Morocco.

"In many respects the man interested and attracted me in spite of all my natural motives for dislike," continues the writer, Ion Perdicaris. "Raisuli was at once so gracious and dignified, not to us only, but to his own wild adherents, who evidently idolized their chieftain, whose position among them seemed that of the head of a Highland clan in the olden times.

"He was quick to see the humorous aspect of a situation, while his repartee was as immediate and to the point as though he had been born in County Galway itself. In fact I discovered to my consternation that I was beginning to like the man in spite of my natural resentment. I found myself unconsciously accepting his contention that he was not a mere brigand or cattle-lifter, but a patriot struggling to rescue his Berber followers from the tyranny of the corrupt shereefan officials. His charm of voice, the natural poise and dignity of his manner, his self-control under provocation, all betrayed a superior character.

"In fact, this strange experience while in camp with Raisuli at Tsarradan began to assume an aspect of unexpected and idyllic charm. The life of the natives; the little touches of more gentle human character; the tiny child who offered me fruit, which I at first declined, until I noticed the expression of disappointment and mortification upon the boy's face, and then the radiant and almost ridiculous satisfaction of the little fellow when I pretended to enjoy his half-ripe offering; the many attempts of the wild people about me to propitiate me; their curiosity as to our own manners and customs, as when one venerable inhabitant of the village led me gently aside to inquire why we walked so energetically up and down the village green. 'For health's sake,' was my reply. 'Indeed!' said the old Mohammedan, 'and may I ask how many such daily turns, up and down, it may require to keep a Christian in good health?'—all afforded matter of interest and reflection.

"Raisuli was confronted by the problem as to what disposition he was to make of the seventy thousand silver Spanish dollars which he demanded for our release. Here at Tsarradan there were no iron safes, nor so much as a house with a cellar, while the thatch of skaff, or dried reeds, the only roofing of the houses, offered but poor security should he leave so much coin stored in a village where he himself was but a transient sojourner.

"At last the mules bearing the silver dollars, carefully packed in boxes, arrived and the bullion was counted. 'I was summoned by Raisuli, 'The silver,' he said, 'has been counted—twenty thousand dollars, as stipulated. In Spanish dollars; but these letters,' showing me as he spoke a check book containing certified checks on the Comptoir d'Escompte, the French bank at Tangier, 'of the value of these, which are supposed to represent fifty thousand dollars, I know nothing. However, I will accept them on your personal guarantee, but on that condition only.'

"When I had examined the checks I gave the required assurance verbally, and Raisuli, leading me to the door, where I found my horse waiting for me, bade me adieu, saying that he had learned to look upon me as a friend, and that he hoped I cherished no ill feeling on account of my detention. He furthermore assured me that should any danger menace me in the future, that not only he himself, but any of the men of the three tribes under his orders, would hasten to my relief.

"Thus I left him, and pushing on as rapidly as we could we were soon in the midst of a large armed escort which had come from Tangier to see us safely home."

KIACHOW: THE FIUME OF CHINA

Kiachow, China, was seized by Germany in 1897 and captured by the Japanese when the latter entered the world war in 1914. Its permanent disposition has been the subject of wide discussion, especially in the United States because of our historical friendship with both China and Japan. Now dispatches state that a Japanese representative at the first meeting of the League of Nations announced that his country is ready to prepare for the transfer of this territory back to China.

Following the murder of two German missionaries in 1897, Germany employed her retaliatory seizure of Kiachow as a means of obtaining an indemnity and a 99-year lease on Tsingtau and the bay of Kiachow. She gave the name of Kiachow to the entire German concession, which is not to be confused with the nearby city of the same name. The concession includes the German-built city of Tsingtau, outlying towns, and the bay, which has a narrow outlet into the Yellow sea on the west coast of the province of Shantung.

"Tsingtau illustrates aptly Germany's pre-war methods of getting a foreign foothold in anticipation of her dream of world domination. The setting of this effort lay in a province conspicuous in Chinese history for 4,000 years, and revealing traces of pre-Chinese inhabitants. For Shantung was the birthplace and teaching field both of Confucius and Mencius. There also the Boxer movement first was directed against foreigners.

But the harbor of Kiachow, apparently, interested the Germans more than history. It is considered one of the best along the Chinese coast, and to have a stronger natural defense than Port Arthur.

Back of the city rise hills as high as 1,000 feet and a range 600 feet high dominates the harbor. This range was utilized by the Germans for forts where they mounted powerful Krupp guns, commanding every point of land and sea approach. When the Germans completed their defenses Tsingtau was considered one of the most strongly fortified ports on the globe.

All this protection was not to be afforded a fishing village and a none too busy harbor. Natives were persuaded to move, and the lessors built a typical German city on the site of Tsingtau. They also renamed this city, calling it Ching-tao, but the older name clung to it.

Streets were laid out, and given German names. German banks, German industries, including breweries and German hotels were established. No other postoffice than the German one was permitted to handle foreign mail.

Germany not only obtained indemnities and the 108 square miles area and bay described, but mining and railway concessions. Shantung has fertile, well cultivated lands, coal fields, deposits of iron, gold and other metals, and small diamonds are found. A railway was built to Chianfu, connecting with important inland lines.

BOKHARA: STRATEGIC CENTER OF TRANS-CASPIAN REGION

Reported nervousness on the part of the Bolshevik leaders at a growing restiveness under Soviet institutions in the region of the Caucasus, raises the question whether similar conditions may not be present in Bokhara, just across the Caspian sea, where plots and counter plots have followed one another bewilderingly during the last few years.

Bokhara, dusty and fawny in tone, is nevertheless a colorful city because of the striking costumes of the male inhabitants. The women, clad in sapphire tones and hiding their faces behind horsehair veils which resemble window screening, avail themselves of a protective coloration which enables them to move like shadows about the ancient city. But the Bokhara male, be he Usbeg, Sart, Persian, or Tajik, utilizes all the colors and tints of the solar spectrum in his costume.

Bokhara is an important religious center. It has 364 mosques. With a practically unknown railway running south to the Afghan frontier, its location in the midst of Central Asia gives it a strategic importance that is little appreciated.

The Khanate of Bokhara has an area about equal to that of Utah, but with four times the population. Since the outbreak of the war, its fortunes have varied. Part of the time it has been an independent khanate, showing its prerogative by taking up the rails of the Trans-Caspian railway which passed through its territory. Several times it has been under the control of the Bolshevik forces. The Amir had a picturesque army of about 11,000 soldiers, many of whom carelessly lounged along the stone passageway which leads up to the Ark, or castle.

On this incline, in front of the royal residence, formerly there was enacted every Friday morning a ceremony impressive in its color effects. Hundreds of solemn nullahs, clad in bright silk robes of stick candy stripes or gorgeous golden suns on purple fields, belted with silver, and with buckles as large as saucer plates, gathered here in impressive rows, each with a priceless prayer rug beneath his feet.

These were not the dashing types which once made Mohammedanism a power from Mecca to Gibraltar but the ceremonialists whose religion is a thing of dignity and prosperity, founded on trade rather than a life in the saddle. In unison they bow low so that only broad backs can be seen, but a moment later all are erect with their spotless white turbans the most prominent feature in a scene so colorful that only an Oriental sun could harmonize it.

Bokhara is architecturally unimpressive but nowhere are there more attractive Oriental bazaars. Brassmiths vie with goldsmiths to add the glint of glowing metal to the half light of the covered souks and there the makers of peculiar Bokhara caps display their brightly colored wares, the edges glistening with soft furs from Siberia.

HONDURAS: LAND OF RIVERS AND BIG DEBT

Honduras, least developed of the five Latin American countries which are now considering the formation of a "United States of Central America," is a country of hills and valleys; of rain and sunshine; of large and small rivers.

A half dozen rivers may be crossed in one day, and while they are usually narrow and shallow, a few hours' rain will turn them into roaring torrents, absolutely impassable. A traveler may be held up for many days by a stream that when he first crossed it was less than three feet in depth.

Honduras is said to be the most backward of all the Central American republics, and she will remain so until railroads cross the country and the government becomes stable. Then there will be great opportunities there for many, and Americans and American capital will always be welcome.

The country is just a little larger than the State of Pennsylvania, yet it has a population of only a little more than half a million. It has the largest per capita debt of any country on the face of the globe except New Zealand—at least it had before the present European war upset all statistical conditions. It owes $220 per capita. Most of this debt was created by loan-shark methods, however, for Honduras would agree to pay $10 to get one—or some such ridiculous proportion.

The name of the country is said to be derived from a Spanish term meaning "depth," the early explorers having found difficulty in striking water shallow enough for anchorage. They were so delighted when they reached the Nicaraguan shore nearby that they called the headland "Cape Gracias a Dios" (Cape Thanks to God), a name it still holds.

As a rule, the night will be spent in a native house, sometimes little more than a hut, built of mud, thatched or roofed with tiles. One is apparently always welcome to the best the house affords; but a hammock as part of the traveler's outfit is a necessity, for the beds of stretched bull-hide or canvas are usually fully occupied, if not by those at whose homes you are a guest, then by other residents greatly to be feared.

Everybody sleeps in one room—men, women, and children together. Your hosts are curious, but politely so, watching you dress and get into your hammock, with a calm stare that must not be considered impertinent, for a white man is not an every-day visitor. One learns seldom to undress completely.

MILLIONS SAVED TO PRODUCERS THROUGH IMPROVED MARKETING

Marketing Representative Addressing Group of Farmers in Field.

Five and a half million dollars. That is the amount of savings and increased profits estimated to have been secured by producers through the assistance of the United States bureau of markets' field representatives in marketing, working in co-operation with state marketing agencies in 11 states during the year ended June 30, 1920. This figure is made up of hundreds of individual items of savings and additional profits estimated by growers, shippers and marketing agencies concerned and reported to the United States bureau of markets.

State co-operative work in marketing is carried on by the United States department of agriculture in 31 states, but information regarding the total savings effected in all of them is not yet available.

Improvement in methods of marketing and distributing farm products is the object of this marketing work. Investigations of grading, packing, loading, shipping and marketing are made and visual demonstrations given producers to familiarize them with the best marketing methods. Thus, some 200 demonstrations of approved practices of preparing farm products for market and over 700 talks relative to packing, grading, handling, storing and selling farm products and the formation of associations for co-operative activity were given. In one state alone two co-operative live-stock shipping associations with a membership of 3,330 shippers were formed, and an estimated saving of $73,548 secured through the co-operative shipping of 333 cars of cattle, hogs and sheep from 39 counties.

Aid Marketing Organizations. While complete figures are not available, those at hand show that the field men were instrumental in the formation of 183 marketing organizations, including 50 live-stock shipping associations and 37 fruit or vegetable associations. They also assisted in the organization of 12 credit unions and 19 federations of existing associations, most of which are statewide in scope. One hundred and sixty-six wool pools handling over 10,000,000 pounds of wool were given assistance in organization and grading. In a number of states the field men, through state agencies, secured the adoption of federal standards for farm products and containers. One hundred and thirty-eight groups of producers were assisted in making co-operative sales. One sale included 417 head of cattle, which sold for $2,508.97 above the prices quoted by local buyers on the day of sale.

FARM ACCOUNTS AID TO BETTER PROFITS

Quite Essential to Any Well-Thought-Out Plan.

Farmer Enabled to Meet Conditions in Way That Will Give Him Greatest Net Returns on Various Crops He Produces.

Farming is a business, and, to be successful it must be conducted in a businesslike manner. It involves the production and sale of commodities, just as does manufacturing. The business man, whether in factory or on farm, should be constantly considering two questions:

1. What profit is my business making?
  2. How can that profit be increased?
- The first of these must be answered before an intelligent effort can be made to answer the second. Proper accounting leads directly to the answer to the first question, and hence it is essential to any well-thought-out plan to increase profits.

The problem of the farmer is to meet conditions on his own farm in a way that will give him the greatest net returns, year in and year out, for the use of his capital, his labor, and his managerial ability. Before he can be considered a successful farm operator he must produce results that will cover the value of all these. Capital can earn interest without labor on the part of its owner, and labor can earn wages without owning any capital. The farmer, utilizing both in the conduct of his business, should secure returns that will cover both interest and wages. Not until both of these have been more than covered can any profit be credited to the farming operations. Nothing but return in excess of interest and wages can properly be considered as net profit.

PRODUCTION OF CATTLE IN WEST

Investigations Conducted in Nebraska Show Wide Variation in Figures.

FEEDING PERILOUS VENTURE

Buying Right and Selling Right Are Controlling Factors—Some Farmers Carried Animals Through With Profit.

According to cost of production investigations conducted by the United States department of agriculture in co-operation with the University of Nebraska in parts of Nebraska during the past two years, the average cost of corn-fed cattle laid down at market was $14.91 per hundredweight for 2,298 head fed in the winter of 1918-19, $13.83 for 3,041 cattle in a survey study during the winter of 1919-20, and an average of $13.39 for an additional 795 cattle upon which detailed cost figures were secured during the same winter. The costs upon some droves were found to vary widely from these average figures, with the major portion going to market the first winter (1918-19) carrying an expense bill of from $13 to $18 a hundredweight, while in 1919-20 the costs of most of the cattle were between $11 and $17. The facts thus far brought out by the investigation would indicate that during the past two years, in the district covered by the survey, cattle feeding was a precarious venture, more likely to be unprofitable than not. There was an average loss per head of $3.17 on the cattle, for which records were obtained in 1918-19, and of $10.69 and $14.57 on two groups for which records were obtained in 1919-20.

These figures are the results of the first two years' work of a five-year study of the basic factors of the cost of fattening cattle, which is being conducted in Nebraska by the office of farm management and farm economy.

Good Pastures and Good Stock Are Essential for Profitable Beef Production.

In co-operation with the University of Nebraska and the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture. Similar studies are being conducted in Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, and preliminary reports on the work in these states will be forthcoming shortly.

Feeding Plays Minor Part. The greater part of the Nebraska cattle covered in the survey work of 1918-19 made their gains at a cost of from 20 to 35 cents per pound, with extremes ranging from 12 to 48 cents, while of the cattle covered the next year the greater part made their gains at from 15 to 35 cents per pound, with an extreme range of from 8 to 53 cents. While economical feeding is shown to be the major factor in the cost of fattening the steer is bought, the investigation substantiates the fact that feeding usually plays a minor part in determining profit or loss, and that buying right and selling right are more often the controlling factors.

The cattle in question were bought at about the same figures in both years of the investigation. In 1918-19 three of the droves were bought at between $6 and $7, but most of the cattle covered in the study went into the lot at between $8 and $12. Of the 21 droves covered by the detailed cost-accounting method, 11 cost between $10 and $11. The weight of the feeders varied rather widely, averaging about 750 pounds with but few over 1,000 pounds or under 500.

Feed, the most important factor of the cost of fattening the steer after purchase, was found to constitute from 75 to 90 per cent of all the expense involved in handling the steers after being put on feed.

Wide Variation in Cost Factors. The wide variation in the factors affecting cost was reflected in equally wide variation in the total cost of the finished cattle. During both of the years of the study the cost of the cattle covered in the surveys ranged from about $8 to $22 per hundred fattened, the average for 1918-19 being $14.91, and for 1919-20, $13.83. The droves covered by the cost-accounting method showed a much narrower range, from $10 to $18 with an average of $13.39.

The financial return varied widely, ranging from $50 profit or more per head, reported for 40 head in 1918-19, to $50 or more per head loss, reported for 155 head in 1918-19 and for over 200 head in 1919-20. As has been stated above, on the average there was a loss incurred in handling cattle each year, reaching $14.57 per head as the average loss of the 795 cattle on the detailed route in 1919-20. However, a number of farmers carried their cattle through with profit.

Something to Think About
THE JOB AND THE MAN
By F. A. Walker

ONE of the greatest troubles with the average man is that he does not get excited frequently enough. Excitement is only MULTIPLIED ENTHUSIASM.

The man who lacks enthusiasm doesn't get far, whatever road he travels.

One of the chief faults of a snail is that it never has the sensation of excitement.

It crawls along in a seemingly aimless fashion, and having reached the nowhere for which it was headed, it stops to contemplate its effectiveness. Nobody is ever interested in a snail, and only the dillard copies him.

If you want to see enthusiasm and excitement in animal life, watch an ant. Everything interests him. Everything has a meaning for him. Everything he sees or feels is a matter of investigation and study.

He is excited all the time and accomplishes something every minute.

Every boy and every man ought to be excited about what he is doing. He should be so intensely interested in it, so thoroughly in love with the task and its accomplishment, that its finish should find him thrilled with enthusiasm.

Can you imagine Edison working without enthusiasm and excitement? Can you conceive the feverish eagerness with which Galileo worked through the night on that first crude telescope and with what excitement he took his first look through it toward the far-off stars? Yet that telescope was not as powerful as the opera glass you carry to the theater.

Can you imagine with what excitement Mme. Curie looked upon the first tiny speck of radium which she had distilled from the tons of material which concealed it?

THE GLORY OF LABOR IS ITS ACCOMPLISHMENT.

The real wages of work is the satisfaction of production.

The man who makes a machine of himself, who finds no interest and no basis of enthusiasm in his daily task is little better than the ox.

There is no labor so menial and no task so hard that it has not in it a reason for enthusiasm.

The scrub woman whose knees are calloused and whose arms ache from her lowly labors may still find a distinct pleasure and an actual enthusiasm when she sees the glistening cleanliness accomplished by her hands. The teamster can be enthusiastic about his horses and his wagon. The office boy can get excited about the rush of business where he is employed. Everybody has some reason to get enthusiastic and excited about their work. If they have no reason they are either following the wrong vocation or they are looking on the world and its doings with distorted vision.

If your present work doesn't enthrall you, if you cannot get excited and happy about it, find something else to do. Get another job. Find something that will stir you up and rouse your mind and hurry your fingers and leave you, when the day is done, anxious for tomorrow and the bigger accomplishment that it will make possible.

Don't be content to be a snail. A SNAIL NEVER GETS ANYWHERE.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS
"COCKNEY"

AS USED by writers of the word "Cockney" meant a molly-coddle, an effeminate person, a child that had been "cockled" or coddled too much by its mother. Then, because the men who lived in a city were supposed to be less virile and strong than those who lived in the country, the rural population commenced to apply the term to residents of London and other cities throughout England. Gradually this meaning was restricted and localized until it was applicable only to Londoners, or, as one writer of the period phrases it, "particularly to connote the characteristics in which the born Londoner is supposed to be inferior to other Englishmen." The opposite term—the one applied by the townsmen to the farmer—was "clown," meaning a loud, an uncouth, ill-bred man.

Today, the name of Cockney is applied generally to Londoners but specifically to those of a certain station—Arny and Arriet being typical of the class which is supposed to drop its h's and to replace them where they do not belong. But anyone who has come in contact with the Cockney as he is today will testify to the fact that it is a far cry from him to the "cockney" of the Elizabethan period. The London Cockney may not be well-educated or super-refined in his speech—but he is emphatically not a milk-sop.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to keep her Locks Dark, Glossy, Beautiful.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the musy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Michigan News Tensely Told

Manistee.—Milk has been reduced here to 12 cents a quart, a drop of two cents.

Mt. Pleasant.—Old age and failing health caused William Picard, 77, to take his own life by shooting himself.

Kalamazoo.—More than 200 men applied for 25 jobs when the city opened its 1921 street improvement program.

Kalamazoo.—Only one-third of the normal crop of ice was harvested in Kalamazoo this winter. It will be sold at $12 a ton.

Kalamazoo.—Improving a skeleton key from a piece of wire, Floyd Elmhart and Herbert Waters escaped from the Kalamazoo State Hospital grounds.

Coldwater.—John Boyer, 83, civil veteran, died here at the home of his son, Ernest Boyer. Mr. Boyer was a member of company A, twenty-ninth Infantry.

Benton Harbor.—Benton Harbor discarded the mayor-alderman form of city government and adopted the commission-manager system by a vote of 1,935 to 262 in a special election.

Mt. Clemens.—Joseph Vroman and Edward Valentine, under life sentence for the death of Edward Kline, an Erin Township farmer, have been taken to Michigan State Prison at Jackson.

Muskegon.—Earl Houser, 19 years old, is under arrest charged with bigamy, it being alleged he married twice in 1918 while serving in the Navy. Both women have started suits for annulment.

Detroit.—Claudius B. Grant, of this city, former chief justice of the Michigan Supreme court and from 1872 to 1880 regent of the University of Michigan, died last week at a hospital in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Cadillac.—The Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange and the Cadillac Chamber of Commerce have united in an effort to induce Congress to put a duty of three cents a pound on imports of foreign potato flour.

Menominee.—The funeral of Mrs. Felix Carpenter, 73, was held in Stephenson, Menominee county. She was the mother of 15 children, 12 of whom survive, besides 74 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Muskegon.—The welfare board has requested city officials to investigate complaints that some of the milk donated for the needy is being taken by city employees. A large supply of milk, it is said, has been carried away.

Grand Rapids.—Jewels of the value of $2,000 belonging to Mrs. Daniel S. Sinclair and which were reported to the police last fall as lost, were found in the pocket of an apron which Mrs. Sinclair had carelessly placed in a trunk.

Owosso.—Mrs. Ellen Jenc has been sentenced to serve 30 days in jail for violating the prohibition law. Her husband was sentenced to four months. Their five children, including an eight-months' old baby, are in a charitable home.

Flint.—The local Carpenters' union has announced a reduction in its wage scale from $1 an hour to 85 cents. The Bricklayers' union will not reduce the scale of $1.25 an hour for the present, but has agreed to revise the scale downward as soon as it can.

Monroe.—Although no complete inventory has been made it is believed that Ernest Entemann, 72, Monroe business man who died Feb. 24, left an estate valued at about $75,000. If no will is found the property will be divided among 22 nephews and nieces.

Pontiac.—Lighthouses will be used to guard bad curves in the Oakland avenue road near Pontiac. The road commission is installing two "blinking lights" at curves where accidents have been most frequent. If successful they will be used on other county highways.

Grand Rapids.—Electricians of Electrical Union No. 107, who are on a strike against the electrical contractors of the city, who reduced the scale of wages 20 per cent, have entered into the competitive field against their former employers through the agency of the Trades and Labor council.

Ferndale.—The special election held here resulted in the recall of the five commissioners and another election will now have to be held to elect new officials. The ousted commissioners are: F. D. Gordon, president, and commissioners James C. McLay, G. H. Hall, Dr. A. J. Chase and R. J. Walters.

Lansing.—In view of the fact that 72 cases of sleeping sickness have been reported since January 1, Dr. E. M. Olin, head of the state health department, will try to secure an accurate check on all cases existing in Michigan. He issued orders to all health officers in the state to report immediately any cases which diagnose as sleeping sickness.

Grand Rapids.—The mother who is afraid to assert her rightful authority over her daughter is the cause of the present extreme dress of young women and girls. Judge Mary Barthelme of the Chicago juvenile court, said in a talk here. "The young girls who have become slaves of style and demand that they be dressed only in the latest models of clothes should not be blamed for their tastes. The parents should be held culpable. Parents of the present day are not thoughtful enough of the example they give to their children."

Muskegon.—Harry Lyman and Otis Regus, high school boys, confessed they had broken into and robbed six places of business.

Lansing.—The name of the Michigan Anti-Tuberculosis Association probably will be changed to the "Michigan Tuberculosis Association."

Sault Ste. Marie.—The Belvidere hotel property is to be taken over by Captain and Mrs. J. Bell of Detroit, who are here to close the deal.

Monroe.—Merging of the Monroe blinder board and the Boehme & Rauch companies, with a capitalization of $6,000,000, is planned at a stockholder meeting March 28.

Marquette.—Louis W. Belegier, superintendent of mails in the Marquette postoffice since 1918, has been appointed acting postmaster to succeed Michael C. Scully, who resigned.

Muskegon.—The local company of the Michigan National Guard had so trouble in selling 100 honorary memberships here. The honorary membership excuses the holder from jury duty.

Menominee.—The Wisconsin & Michigan railroad will resume passenger train service between this city and Iron Mountain about April 1, it is said. A heavy freight service with the Soo line is anticipated.

Flint.—Because he sold his wife's automobile, representing it to be his own, Peter J. Hrus was convicted in circuit court of obtaining money under false pretenses and sentenced from one to five years in Jackson prison.

Cheboygan.—A coroner's jury found that James W. Pratt, 25, of Wolverine, came to his death by poison "administered by an unknown person." The body was found in an old building on the Judson Quick farm near Cheboygan.

Ann Arbor.—Sixty-three students of the engineering college, University of Michigan, were placed on the probationary list for failure to pass examinations. Nearly 1,000 in the literary college are on the "home list" because of poor showings.

Bay City.—Joseph Borowink, 46, of Gaylord, was arraigned before a United States commissioner charged with violating the Volstead Act. A still, mash and two gallons of moonshine were found in his house, according to the State Police.

Bay City.—The criminal docket for the March term of the Bay Circuit Court is the largest in the history of the county, there being 65 cases now prepared, with several more in prospect. Forty of the 65 cases are for prohibition violations.

Kalamazoo.—The appeal of Glenn Townsend from his conviction here a year ago on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Agnes Thorne in an automobile accident will be heard in the state supreme court in April.

Kalamazoo.—Kalamazoo merchants, encouraged by the success of the state pure food show held here in connection with the annual convention of the Michigan Grocers and Retail Meat Dealers' Association, are making plans for another food exhibition next winter.

Holland.—Paul Woody is near death from injuries received while working on a telephone line near Douglas. He lost his balance, and grasping a charged wire, was unable to release himself. As he swung from the wire his weight broke the hold and he fell to the ground 20 feet below.

Grand Rapids.—Suits for $100,000 damages was filed in circuit court here by the Sligh Furniture Co., of this city against the Stott-Hecht Glass works of Philadelphia. The plaintiffs claim the Quaker city firm agreed to deliver 9,150 mirrors of a standard make, but that it received only 5,225.

Grand Rapids.—A car of field seeds, received by the Grand Rapids Growers' association, reveals that the price of seeds is about 50 per cent less than last year. The seeds delivered here are from the Michigan state farm bureau and were grown in this state. They include clover, slyke, timothy and alfalfa.

Manistee.—After he was called as juror in a larceny case and drawn as one of jury panel for the March term of circuit court in Bellaire, Fred DeLong of Elmira, was arrested on a charge of driving an alleged "phantom saloon" which officers have been trying all winter to locate between here and Elmira.

Greenville.—Declaring that the price of farm machinery was unjust and exorbitant, Montcalm County, Pomona lodge adopted a resolution at a meeting here to make a combined effort not to buy any new machinery or tools until the price comes down in the same proportion as the prices have declined on all farm products.

Grand Rapids.—James O'Brien, 40, an employe of the Pere Marquette railroad, died from injuries received Feb. 19, when a gasoline tank car on which he was riding was derailed in the city.—David Eason, former cashier for George E. Ellis' bank, acquired by the Commonwealth bank, probably will become manager of the new institution.

Caro.—Tuscola county tipplers are lamenting the sudden curtailment of the supply of "home run" as a result of the activities of local authorities. A large number of stills of various sizes and capacity were seized until the entire upper floor of the county jail is filled to overflowing, but the "stuff" manifests itself, nevertheless, with surprising regularity. As a last resort, a systematic search was made for habitual tipplers. Local officers and state police swooped down upon the unsuspecting and confiscated the paraphernalia and product.

JUST A LITTLE SERMON

Here is a true story of everyday life that contains a sermon for every adult person in this town.

Two families lived side by side. One home was childless. In the other were two little boys.

The younger boy was as sweet as ever child was made, and was petted and coddled by the neighbors. The older one felt this isolation keenly, but said little. He became morose and self-willed, and was a trial to his parents.

One day the younger one died, and the neighbors grieved.

But there was no petting for the remaining boy, because he had not been petted during the life of his brother. He, too, grieved, but his disposition did not change.

The neighbor sat in his home one night thinking of the future of the remaining child. He wondered if he had been quite fair with it, and concluded that he had not.

The next time he saw the little fellow he was kind and gentle with him. He gave him the same attention he had given his brother, and continued that course from day to day.

Soon he detected a change, and in the course of a few months there was a wonderful transformation. The moroseness gradually disappeared, and was replaced by a sunny disposition.

Not all due to the neighbor, of course, but it had its effect. It aided in removing the gloom that clouded the infantile brain and brought his better qualities to the surface.

There are little children around us of this community each day. They are as sensitive to indifference and neglect as the boy whose story we have told.

What are we doing to put the sunshine of happiness into their lives? What are you doing?

PUNISHMENT TO FIT

Some people advocate jail sentences for those who conspire against the government. But it is doubtful if that is the best policy, or even one that will produce satisfactory results.

Drastic action is necessary in such cases, but it should be action that will relieve us of the presence of the plotters instead of merely depriving him temporarily of his liberty.

In nearly every case these plotters come to us uninvited from some foreign shore. Since they do not approve of the manner in which we manage our own affairs, the logical course would be to send them back to the countries from whence they came. They may find conditions more to their liking in the hotbeds from whence they fled. Foreigners who are willing to become productive assets in this country are welcome. Dangerous liabilities are not wanted.

How to pay the income tax isn't bothering us half as much as how to get the income.

Some people just drift through life waiting for the psychological moment to arrive. The devil generally gets them when it does.

DISCUSS NEW TAX AND TARIFF PLANS

LEADERS CONFER WITH HARDING SO PROGRAM WILL BE READY FOR NEW SESSION

TEMPORARY TARIFF CONSIDERED

In Case of Opposition to Emergency Legislation, Permanent Tariff Will Be Rushed.

Washington.—A definite program for tax and tariff legislation will be mapped out before the end of this week in conference between Republican congressional leaders and President Harding.

Representative Fordney, chairman of the house ways and means committee, announced to the Republican members of the committee that he expects to begin drafting a bill in executive session on Monday, March 14. This bill will be ready for introduction when the special session of congress convenes early in April.

"I do not know just what bill it will be," said Fordney. "I expect to find that out during the coming week. I expect to see President Harding early in the week, as soon as it is convenient for him."

There were three possible programs. One is to start work on an emergency tariff bill, based on the former Payne-Aldrich law, to be rushed through congress without much consideration. A second alternative is to go ahead with the proposition of a permanent tariff law. The third is to side-track tariff legislation temporarily and give precedence to revision of the tax laws. If a temporary tariff bill is given the right of way, tax revision would follow and permanent tariff revision would come last.

Representative Fordney favors giving precedence to a temporary tariff bill. If this is considered impracticable he will go ahead with the permanent tariff measure before taking up tax revision.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY IN STATE

T. M. Joslin and James W. Helme Leaders of Taxpayer's League.

Adrian.—Michigan is about to have a new political party.

At its helm are T. M. Joslin, former candidate for the United States senate, who was more or less prominent in the organization of an attempted party about nine years ago; James W. Helme, who was state dairy and food commissioner under the Democratic administration of Governor Ferris; John C. Howell, Adrian's Democratic mayor under the commission form of government; George Holloway, former Democratic county treasurer; Edward Frensdorf, of Hudson, former acting warden at Jackson state prison, and others of like principles and prominence.

The party is being formed for the "outraged and enraged taxpayers of the state" and is officially known as the Taxpayer's League. Its organization was completed here last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Joslin was elected president and Helme was chosen vice-president.

BROTHERS FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

18-Year-Old Girl Says Liqueur Was Brought in Saginaw Hotel.

Saginaw.—Al Peets of Vassar and his brother, Earl Peets, of Bay City, have been bound over to circuit court for trial on the charge of furnishing whisky to Wanda Hawley of Vassar, a 18-year-old girl. The girl made affidavit to Justice Clements that the Peets brothers brought her to Saginaw from Vassar, Earl paying her carfare and taking her to a local hotel where liquor was produced. Officers Fred Klein and William Maeder of the liquor squad arrested them. The Peets brothers, both of whom are old enough to be the Hawley girl's father, were unable to furnish bonds of $1,000. The girl is being held as a witness.

CHICAGO HAS A TAXICAB WAR

Yellows and Checkers Clash With Arms in Lincoln Park.

Chicago.—Intermittent warfare between the Yellow and Checker taxicab drivers broke forth in a lively battle when approximately 40 cabs raced through Lincoln Park, the drivers firing at each other and attempting to wreck each other's machines. No attention was paid to the lives and safety of other people in the park. It is said much of the trouble may be traced to unsuccessful efforts to unionize the Yellow cab drivers and force higher rates.

Damaged Plane Kills Two.

Pensacola, Fla.—SI, ping on its left wing after doing stunts until it had run into a kite flown by a small boy and the string had become hooked to its tail, a seaplane, piloted by Basgia John W. Alcorn, a former circus performer, swept 1 over a bathing beach frequented by Negroes and, with its left wing just clearing the sands, killed two women and injured two children as another woman so severely that they died a few hours later. Alcorn was arrested.

"Let the wicked forsake his way and the unrighteous man his thoughts and let him return unto the Lord and he will have mercy upon him and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." Isa. 55: 7-9

Some people do not end right because they do not start right. To have the forgiveness of God and his gift of salvation we must meet the requirements which he has laid down in his word. If you would know the pleasure and joy of God's ways, you must forsake your ways, thoughts, and opinions. Heed this injunction it will pay you well.

Remember a welcome is extended to you to attend our services at the usual hours.

An Adventure Romance

By George Agnew Chamberlain

PART III.

Male's Adventure.

Take a young girl of about twenty who, in her childhood, was pampered with fortune in money, position, good breeding, and pets, turn her loose on the world at the age of ten with no prop but a faithful, sickly and destitute old nurse, kill off the nurse a couple of years later, let the girl fend for herself as scullery-maid and what not through the uninteresting stage that precedes the sudden bloom of unexpected beauty, give her a long succession of jobs secured "on her looks" and lost because she wouldn't lead her up to the crowded portal of despair and the long-drawn-out surrender; then snatch her suddenly back from destruction, feed her, give her the sole freedom for a night of Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph's comfortable apartment and—what will she do? The answer is—easy. She will find the bath and turn on the hot water.

That was the very first thing that Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton did after she had finished spying from the window on the movements of what she supposed was Mr. Randolph and what, in reality, was Mr. Patrick O'Reilly in Mr. Randolph's best top-hat, best suit of evening clothes and overcoat, best gray silk muffler, price twenty-two dollars, and best patent-leather shoes—the last a very tight fit which made the revamped gentleman's gait a cross between that of a chicken on a hot stove and a drunk on his reluctant way home.

Even the unsuspecting Miss Thornton was puzzled by that halting locomotion in connection with what she knew of Mr. Randolph, but she added it, two and two, with the mysterious twenty minutes spent by that gentleman and the driver in the recesses of the cab, apparently to settle a difference in ideas as to the value of a waiting taxi, and decided that poor Mr. Randolph must have issued from the interview in a semi-crippled state.

She herself was too excited to let pity altogether absorb her. Without waiting for either the tortured way-farer or the taxi to get quite out of sight, she dropped the window curtain and turned to possess herself of her world of comfort for a night. A starved instinct led her straight to the luxuriously appointed bathroom. As previously intimated, she turned on the hot water and clasped her hands ecstatically as she watched its crystalline surge and imagined she could smell the opalescent steam.

But not for long was she inactive. Having surrendered to circumstance to the extent of promising to stay in the flat until ten the following morning, she decided to do the job wholeheartedly, for Imogene Pamela was one of those lucky and fated young women who can never give themselves by halves. If happiness so much as showed its nose, it was her nature to tackle blindly for its waist and go to the mat for the immediate present.

Consequently, let not her modesty be misjudged when it is related that, in the short time it took to fill the bath, she accomplished the following: Rooted out Mr. Randolph's best silk pajamas, found his softest bathrobe, filled a hot-water bottle and slipped it far down between the too cold linen sheets of his big bed. Continuing at this rate of achievement, it may be imagined that in ten minutes more the young lady, having bathed, was curled up and sound asleep. Not on your life!

Item: It took her twenty-one minutes by the clock to scrub out the memory of the scabby zinc bathtubs of many years. Item: Twenty more minutes to wash her hair. Item: Half an hour more to scrub her underwear and stockings. Assorted items: Various pauses during which she shamelessly looked at herself in a full-length mirror of such pure reflecting qualities as had not crossed her path since England was a pup. After that, a long, entrancing item, called "drying her hair."

Did you blame her, three lines back, in your heart for her frequent inspections of self in the mirror? If you did, look at her now! Mr. Randolph's bathrobe is billowed at her waist and tied tight to keep it from trailing on the floor; for almost a like reason, its sleeves are rolled up above her elbows. It is open in a V at the neck, showing the adolescent curve of a virginal but much excited bosom.

With a woolly towel in both hands, she plants herself before the staid old looking-glass and gives it such a treat as it has never before savored in its sixty-two years of service to the Randolph family. Rub, rub, rub with the towel. Her cheeks grow pink and plumper, her eyes round and rounder. They twinkle and smile, and once when she made a little face at herself, they laughed out loud. Her hair slowly wakes from its straggly dampness until it, too, bursts into a sort of light and curly merriment. Pamela puffs out her cheeks and blows at its reflection.

When all the rubbing is done, even to the last ribs where they divide the fragrant flood into two waves falling over the bosom and mercilessly knead the damp ends between folds of the driest bit of the towel, she drops that implement and runs into the big room where the dying open fire blinks its red eye as though it had been waiting up for her.

The writer—who is privileged, for the benefit of a large and growing public, to see her in his mind's eye as her pink bare feet pad up and down the room, racing every time they come to the home-stretch between the unpeopled grandstand of the couch and the fire, and then doubling suddenly, so that her wide eyes may catch her hair still on the wing, for all the world like a kitten chasing its tail—does herein affirm, by the collective manhood of the earth, that she was altogether lovable and beyond the reach of sullying thought. Now let her curl up in the bed and sleep.

Slumber meant nothing in Pamela's life. That statement should be taken not in the sense of the common slang of the vulgar, but at its literal face value. What is meant is that when this young lady slept, it was like taking a chunk bodily out of life and putting it in warm storage. As a consequence, when the old-fashioned clock on the mantel burred a warning that it was thinking of striking the hour of nine in about two minutes, she opened her eyes and wondered through what magic night had been suddenly replaced by broad and smiling day.

Not for long did that life-long and accustomed miracle hold her attention, for scarcely had it occurred, through force of habit, to her awakened thought than her startled eyes fell up on the tall, stooped, gray-headed figure of a man, clad in livery, and standing unsteadily poised in the doorway of the room. His eyes, naturally deep-set, actually protruded from his face as though they were determined to come half-way to meet Pamela's wondering orbs. He looked like a solemn raven which has carelessly alighted on a live wire.

"He-hello," stammered the Young Lady.

"He-hello!" stammered the young lady.

"Good-morning, miss," said Tomlinson, in sepulchral and censorious tones. "Where is Master Robert?"

"You mean Mr. Randolph?" asked Pamela, a little breathlessly.

The old man steepled himself by seizing the door-lamb and bowed confirmation of her supposition.

"I don't know where he is," said Pamela, more calmly. "The last time I saw him he was limping west." A twinkle came into her eyes. "Why do you ask?"

"Why do I ask?" he exclaimed. "Miss, do you mind telling me who you are and what you are doing in Mr. Randolph's apartment at nine o'clock on a Friday morning?"

"In November," supplemented Pamela, as though she were supplying a very important addition to the facts in the case. "I am Miss Thornton," she added, with as much dignity as a maiden, tumbled of hair, flushed of cheek, and cuddled in a young man's big bed, could summon.

The effect of her words on Tomlinson was electrical.

"Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton?" he asked, as he suddenly straightened and let go of his supports.

"Yes," said Pamela, gazing at him in undisguised surprise. "How did you know?"

"Why, miss," said the old man. "I'm Tomlinson. Excuse me for saying so," he added, a pale flush in his withered cheeks, "but many a time in the old days Maggie let me take you on my knee. A mort of worry you have given us, miss."

"Oh! tears rose to Pamela's eyes. "Oh!" she cried. "You knew Maggie?"

"In a manner of speaking, I did," stated Tomlinson sonorously. "Kissed her; but she never let me get as far as hugging, poor girl! She said she knew she wasn't here for long enough."

Laughter bubbled into Pamela's eyes alongside of the tears, but in spite of it, the next moment she was crying softly.

"P-poor M-Maggie!" she sobbed.

Tomlinson bobbed his head up and down in formal sympathy, too old to worry much over woman's weeping.

"I understand that she must 'ave went," he said. "Else you wouldn't be alone, miss. Will you have your breakfast in bed?"

"Oh, could I?" sniffed Pamela, and then her eyes fell on the clock. "No, I can't," she decided for herself. "You see, Tomlinson, I only pro-promised to stay until ten."

"I'll be getting your bath ready, then, miss," said Tomlinson, and withdrew.

Half an hour later Pamela was enjoying a lonely "tray"-breakfast, placed at her command, before the couch, which faced the friendly fire in the big living-room. Without being a mind-reader, it is possible to surmise that she ate very slowly, in the vain hope that Mr. Randolph would pop in, with or without Father Christmas, and joining her in the meal, bunfish a baby Mr. Gloom that was hanging round.

While she was still toying with her food she heard the bell-ringing and Tomlinson's voice, saying, in deep, respectful tones: "Miss Thornton will see you, sir. She is in the sitting-room."

Pamela dropped her egg-spoon and stood up, back to the fire, just in time to face a neatly dressed, pink-cheeked, bright-eyed, bald-headed little gentleman, who stood, poised but alert, in the open doorway, like a bird about to peck at her to see if she were the real thing.

"Miss Thornton?" he asked, in a peculiarly liquid voice.

Pamela nodded her head twice.

"I am Mr. Borden Milyuns," continued the molten voice, and the bright eyes studied her face expectantly.

Pamela puckered her brows, in an effort to meet that expectancy half-way, but failed.

"Are you?" she asked, doubtfully, and with a mental reservation against Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph for outraging the traditions of childhood by sending a Father Christmas in this dapper form. "Won't you sit down?" she added politely.

Mr. Milyuns hung poised for a second longer, and then advanced on the couch decisively, sat down on one end of it, and waved his hand at the other. Tomlinson slipped in and out, bearing the breakfast-tray away. Pamela accepted Mr. Milyuns' silent invitation and seated herself, but tentatively, as though she could only stay for a minute.

"Make yourself comfortable, my dear," said Mr. Milyuns. "I'm going to talk to you for some time."

"You can't," said Pam; "not here. I only have the flat for six minutes longer. That is, I only pro-promised to stay here until ten." Her eyes wandered half expectantly, half wistfully to the door.

The bird-man smiled.

"We'll see about that," he said. "I'm sorry you don't remember me. If you are indeed Miss Imogene Pamela Thornton, I used to take you on my knee often, many years ago."

Pamela could no longer be startled by such announcements.

"That's what Tomlinson said this morning," she remarked. "Ever since last night, everybody I meet seems to—know my real name. I don't understand it."

"Please trust me," said Mr. Milyuns, "and you'll soon understand a lot more than that." He drew a slip from his pocket. "Now, do answer me carefully. Tell me the addresses of the first four places you and Maggie lived in after your father died."

"I can't remember the first," said Pam, but, after a second's thought, rattled off the names of three streets, and located addresses approximately by describing nearby corners prominent to a child's mind for one reason or another. "Those are the next three," she said. "After that, we went—"

But Mr. Milyuns was satisfied.

"That's enough for formalities, my dear. I'm convinced that you are the person for whom the firm of Milyuns, Branch & Milyuns, has been searching for years. Do you remember your great-uncle, Asa Thornton?"

"Yes," said Pamela, a vague wonder and terror in her eyes; "but I didn't know he was real."

"Didn't know he was real?" exclaimed Mr. Milyuns. "What do you mean?"

"Maggie used to say," explained Pamela, "if you're not good, your great-uncle Asa Thornton will catch you, and he hasn't cut his finger nails since your poor father married your dear mother." Pamela shuddered.

"You'll have to forget all that," said Mr. Milyuns soberly. "Before your great-uncle died, he repented very effectively of the way he treated your father, and left you an income of ten thousand dollars a year."

Pamela sat up very straight, and then sank slowly into the pillows at her back.

"Ten—thousand—dollars—a—year!" she repeated slowly.

Mr. Milyuns nodded.

"Beginning with today, there is no accumulation waiting for you, because, by the terms of the will, Mr. Randolph was allowed the entire income up to such time as you should be discovered. That provision was quite natural, if you will remember that Mr. Asa Thornton had been searching for you unsuccessfully for some months before he died."

Pamela sat up straight again.

"I want to understand you," she said with a sudden dignity that increased Mr. Milyuns' admiration, already decidedly on the upgrade. "You mean that, with my appearance, Mr. Randolph's entire income completely disappears?"

Mr. Milyuns nodded.

"You have guessed it in one," he said flippantly.

"I don't need ten thousand dollars

"Ten—Thousand—Dollars—a—Year!" She Repeated Slowly.

a year," said Pamela promptly. "You will please tell Mr. Randolph that I shall only take half."

Mr. Milyuns smiled.

"I'll try to carry out your orders," he said blandly, "but I'll have to find Mr. Randolph first. Let me add that you apparently don't know the young gentleman very well."

"What do you mean by that?" asked Pam.

"Well," said Mr. Milyuns, taking another scrap of paper from his pocket and handing it to her, "read that. It was left at my house this morning by a taxi-cabman, who didn't wait for an answer. You see that Mr. Randolph has handed over to you in perpetuity this apartment, Tomlinson, and all the other fixings. It doesn't look very much as though he intended to come back in the near future."

"But I want him to!" cried Pam. "I—I've been expecting him. I didn't half-half thank him for—for—"

Tears of disappointment clogged her throat.

"There, there!" said Mr. Milyuns, leaning over and patting her hand. "I understand just how you feel, because Bob is one of the straightest, openest, most lovable young devils that ever went his own way through a delighted world."

Pamela nodded her head up and down in silent confirmation of all those kind words. She began to like Mr. Milyuns. She raised pleading eyes to his face.

"Won't you please find him for me?" "My dear," said Mr. Milyuns, so promptly that if she had asked for the house and lot on the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, he would have promised it to her before he could stop himself. "I will. I haven't proved myself much good at the game, but I'll find Bob for you if I have to start a detective agency of my own. In the meantime, what are you going to do? I suggest that you accept these premises until the truant turns up—only, of course, we must get you a companion."

"A companion?" asked Miss Thornton. "But I have that already. Tomlinson is a dear."

"Tomlinson is splendid in his way," admitted Mr. Milyuns, "but he isn't quite a woman. You can't live here chaperoned by a mere male."

"Can't I?" said Miss Thornton, with a new edge to her voice and something in her eyes that made them look as though they were passing in review all the unchaperoned years since first she made her debut as an independent scullery-maid at Mrs. Blunkum's feed-house. "I shall change nothing here," she concluded. "When Randy—Mr. Randolph comes back, he shan't find his place cluttered with females."

Mr. Milyuns turned on her a gaze that was complex with admiration and a realization that he was on the way to biting off more than he could chew. He decided to sidestep.

"Can you be in this afternoon?" he asked.

"Oh, yes," said Pamela, involuntarily glancing at the door and betraying a half-formed intention to watch that portal night and day until death or Mr. Robert Hervey Randolph arrived; "I'll be in. Why?"

"Mrs. Milyuns and my daughter Ellen will call on you at about five," explained Mr. Milyuns. "Just one more matter and I must go," he continued. "Your income amounts to something over eight hundred dollars a month. I shall pay it in advance until you get settled and have a chance to catch up."

"Please send me only half," said Pamela, as she rose to say good-by.

Mr. Milyuns took her hand, dropped it, and started toward the door; but before he got there, he stopped and turned.

"My dear," he said, losing for the moment his birdlike, chirpy pose, "I don't want you to think of me as just your banker. I knew your father and your mother, and their fathers and mothers before them. I am fond, by old usage, of every drop of blood that runs in your veins. You won't forget that, will you?"

Pamela stared at him; swept toward him, threw her arms round his neck, hugged him, dropped her face on his shoulder and wept. Mr. Borden Milyuns stood very erect, his bald head held high, his pink cheeks puffed out, and his eyelids blinking at the rate of fifteen to the dozen in a vain effort to fan back an amazing lacrymatory inundation.

Keep closer to your friends

Are you letting those you care for drift away from you?

That girl or boy at college. That chum in a nearby town. That relative.

Distance is no excuse for neglecting them.

Although perhaps you cannot visit them frequently, you still have an intimate and convenient means of communication.

Long Distance Telephone Service brings them as near to you as your telephone.

Connections with state towns are a matter of minutes; then you are all ready for a good heart to heart visit.

Speak in a low ordinary tone; conversation can be heard distinctly.

There is no need for neglecting acquaintances in other towns these days.

Keep close to your friends. Show them that you care.

Make the ring of the Long Distance Telephone your "calling card."

LONG SANDMAN STORY

ENVOIOUS MR. ROOSTER

MR. ROOSTER had many times looked at the Weather-cock sitting on his perch on top of the barn and wished he were in his place.

And one morning when it was dark and cloudy, Mr. Rooster, feeling it his duty to make more noise than usual, flew to the top of the stone wall and then to the top of some boxes and barrels, piled up by the barn.

"Nothing to do but swing around up there where he can see everything," said Mr. Rooster, looking up at the Weather-cock; "his feathers never get wet and flat as mine and here I have all the work to do."

"You think you have all the work to do, do you?" inquired the Weather-cock. "How would you like to sit up here as I do? Rain or shine, blow high or blow low, here I have to stay in all kinds of weather."

"You, Mr. Rooster, can go inside a nice dry house when it rains or snows and when the cold weather comes you have the same warm place to live in. When the hot weather comes you creep under the shade of the cool bushes and rest and your food is given to you by a good master.

"What happens to me? I am at the mercy of the winds; I have to turn when they blow, whether I wish to or not."

"If I wish to look west, very likely along will come old Southeast wind and turn me that way."

"Or I may be looking at the sun rise, when along comes West wind and around goes my head, as he sees fit. A fine time I have of it, to be sure."

"I thought you had an easy time," said Mr. Rooster, "but I should not like to change places with you if you cannot even look where you wish. But I thought it must be very fine to sit up there, where every one can see you, and then it would be such a fine place to crow from."

"But I do not crow," said the Weather-cock. "I just swing and swing whichever way the winds blow me."

"Can't you crow?" asked Mr. Rooster with wide-open eyes.

"Never crowed since I was made," said the Weather-cock sadly, and just then along came the wind and blew him around and down came the rain.

Mr. Rooster jumped down and ran to the shelter of his house. "I am glad I do not have to stay up there in this rain," he said. "And he never has crowded either."

"Well, well, poor fellow. I am better off than I thought, even if I do have to get up and start the day. I shall never envy him again. Can't crow! What is the use of being a rooster anyway, if you can't crow?" and Mr. Rooster began to crow loudly for joy that he was not on top of the barn in the rain.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. Lurie

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

TO "ENTHUSE."

THE verb "enthuse" or "enthuse over," used frequently in recent years, and especially in newspaper headlines (its shortness giving the hurried headline writer a word easily substituted for "to become enthusiastic over") is not good English. Indeed, some writers call it slang; and all writers on good English agree in calling it a vulgarism. One authority says, "The word is unknown to good usage."

This word, like many others of recent growth, may become in time part of the English language, and be recognized as good English. But it has no historical or etymological authority, and should be avoided by anyone who wishes to speak and write correctly. It is the duty of all who have inherited the English language to try, at least, to preserve its purity.

One should not say, "She does not enthuse me," or "she does not enthuse." For these, substitute "She does not arouse any enthusiasm in me," and "She is not enthusiastic."

MONEY.

VARIOUS media of exchange were in use in ancient times, but the earliest form of money seems to have been a scrap of leather with a rude picture of a cow on it. This was called by the Latin word "pecunia," derived from "pecus," the name of the animal used in barter. Our present "pecuniary" comes from this root.

"Pianists Must Be Born."

Lightness of touch for the piano is inborn with some people; others may acquire it, but in such cases it will be more or less artificial. On the other hand some may never acquire it. Loud-talking, boisterous people will, in all likelihood, play loudly. Coarse-grained, brusque people (if any such play the piano at all) will not be apt to play lightly and delicately. One could scarcely imagine a young man who wore a green shirt producing ideal tones from a piano. So, after all, it is largely a matter of mentality and spiritual make-up. But it is also a matter of finger and muscular control, which may be secured by judiciously chosen and intelligently used exercises.

REST FOR BEAUTY

THE nervous woman is rarely pretty. She may be extremely beautiful when young, but the nervous tension under which she lives inevitably wears out her body. At twenty-five she looks near thirty, at thirty she seems forty, at forty, she's thin, haggard, wrinkled, old.

So if you are the least bit neurotic, take extra good care of yourself. Rest more than the ordinary woman does to overcome the nervous strain, eat plenty, for food soothes the nerves, eat often to keep the blood in the stomach. This does not mean that occasional nibbles of candy are to be taken or that meals may be eaten any time of the day or night. It means frequent nourishment at regular periods. A good plan is an egg and milk between breakfast and luncheon and between luncheon and dinner, and a cup of hot chocolate and a cracker just before going to bed.

The nervous woman should rest a lot to conserve her energies. When possible, she should lie down in preference to sitting down, as the relaxation is more complete. It is surprising the number of minutes of rest that can be snatched between the duties of the day. If the rest follows immediately after a meal, it will do double good, for it will allow all the energy to go toward digestion.

Unfortunately, it is hard to convince the nervous woman that she must rest. She always means to, but she never will take the time, for her type can find more things to do than any other sort of woman.

FOOD FOR THE FAMILY.

A FROZEN dessert is always a welcome one, which if not too rich may be enjoyed even by the little people.

Fig Ice Cream.

Scald one quart of milk, mix three teaspoonfuls of cornstarch with a little cold milk, and stir into the hot milk; continue to stir until the mixture thickens, then cover and cool fifteen minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat the yolks of four eggs, add a half teaspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of maple syrup; beat into the hot mixture and stir until the egg is set; add two cupfuls of hot cream and let chill; add one teaspoonful of vanilla and begin to freeze; when half frozen add one-half pound of figs cooked tender in boiling water, then chopped fine and mixed with half a cupful of maple syrup, a grating of lemon rind and two tablespoonfuls of the juice. Finish freezing.

Make a junket custard with a quart of warm milk, a cupful of cream, a can of condensed milk, one tablespoonful of vanilla, a half cupful of sugar, and one crushed junket tablet dissolved in a tablespoonful of cold water. Let stand in a warm place until jellied; cool and freeze. When partly frozen add one-half pound of figs cooked, chopped and mixed with one-half cupful of sugar and three tablespoonfuls of orange juice. Finish freezing.

Oatmeal Cracker Cake.

Beat one-half cupful of shortening to a cream, add one-third of a cupful each of honey and sugar, the yolks of two eggs beaten light, one cupful of milk, two and seven-eighths cupfuls of rolled cracker crumbs mixed with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of cinnamon, and one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Lastly add the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Bake in two well greased layer pans about eighteen minutes. Put together with jam or jelly. Cover the top and sides with chocolate butter icing and decorate with the icing piped over the top.

Chocolate Butter Icing.

Beat one-half cupful of butter to a cream, add gradually one-half cupful of honey, one cupful of confectioner's sugar and two ounces of chocolate melted over hot water.

Flemish Carrots.

Cut carrots in thin slices with a vegetable slicer and cook tender in boiling salted water. For one pint of carrots melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add one-fourth of a cupful of chopped onion and one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Cover and let cook slowly until yellowed a little, add one cupful of beef broth and let simmer until the onion is tender; add the carrots and let stand over hot water twenty minutes or longer. Sprinkle with a tablespoonful of finely minced parsley just before serving.

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

NOW THE FOREWOMAN

BEFORE the war the forewoman was unknown; now she is becoming increasingly common in the great industries, especially those that employ large numbers of girls. In some of these plants, like that of the Artificial Limb company, women are admitted to the regular training classes on an equal footing with the men.

There are two types of forewomen, called the instructional and the production. Women who are working in the plant are those who usually get these appointments, and it is an incentive to women to go to work in these large industrial establishments that was lacking before.

One of the great questions for women today is that of equal opportunity. It runs hand in hand with the one concerning equal pay. The fact that hardly any big factory or mill employing women is now without its forewoman shows that progress is being made. Every woman should work toward increasing these opportunities for her sex.

Many industries are employing more and more women in their regular work, especially factories where delicate work has to be done, such as the assembling of adding machines, electric appliances and the like. And women are gradually ousting men from the watch-making industry, so much better is their ability to handle the minute parts used. The fact is that the girl of nineteen or twenty has become the typical watchmaker of the country.

Where the women have a chance to prove themselves they are making good. They will get more chances and it seems likely that they will continue to make good. There is a real future for the ambitious woman in the industries of the country today.

THE MILE.

THE Roman unit of long measure was 1,000 paces, called a "milli," Latin for 1,000. The distance was, of course, only approximate, but the word, shortened to "mile," persisted and all the modern units are derived from it. One minute of Earth's equator was chosen as the geographical mile. There are 10 recognized standard miles, varying from 1 to 6.64 times our statute mile of 5,280 feet, which was defined in Queen Elizabeth's time.

Wild Geese in the British Isles.

The tribe of wild geese of Europe are birds of mystery. Their nesting grounds, and thus their true homes, are in the far north, in the wilds of Spitzbergen, and on the inaccessible island of Kolguev. It is only as visitors that they come to the British islands, for in the regions that approach the pole winter comes early, and thus all bird-life is driven southward, flying at incredible speed on the arms of the north wind as they make for their winter quarters in more hospitable lands.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well. What a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal, poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour-bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste, acid and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast, the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

BE RID OF THAT ACHE

If you are a sufferer with lame back, backache, stiffness, nervousness and kidney disorders, why don't you try the remedy that your own neighbors recommend?

Mrs. Wm. Harrington, East Jordan, says: "I am pleased to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for I have used them with very beneficial results. I was troubled considerably with dull, nagging backaches and distressing pain through my kidneys. My kidneys were very irregular in action. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me wonderfully by relieving the backache and correcting the action of my kidneys. I have used Doan's in the past and they have always given me the best of relief and satisfaction." (Statement given on Aug. 8, 1908.)

On April 22, 1920, Mrs. Harrington added: "I haven't had occasion to use a kidney medicine since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me years ago. The cure proved to be complete in all respects and has stood the test of time. I recommended Doan's in 1909 and I am happy in saying that I am as strong for them as ever. I gladly confirm the state I made in that year."

REGISTRATION NOTICE

To the Qualified Electors of the City of East Jordan, State of Michigan, Notice is hereby given to all Men and Women Electors of said city, that in conformity with the statutes of the State of Michigan relating to registration, I, the undersigned Clerk of said City, will, upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, or the day of any election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said city not already registered, who may apply to me personally for such registration, or who may make such application by mail or messenger under the provisions of Act No. 7, Public Acts of 1919, except that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the Second Saturday before any General or Special election or Official Primary election and the day of such election.

MARCH 26TH, 1921

Last Day for General Registration for Election April 4.

All electors not already registered and intending to vote at said Election, should make Application to me on or before the 26th day of March, A. D. 1921.

Notice is further hereby given that I will be at my Office under Post Office on March 12 and March 19, 1921 from 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on each said day for the purpose of Reviewing the Registration and Registering such of the qualified electors in said City as Shall Appear and apply therefor.

The name of no person but an Actual Resident of the precinct at the time of registration, and entitled under the constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election shall be entered in the registration book.

REGISTRATION OF ABSENTEE BY OATH

If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote at any election, and shall, Under Oath, state that he or she is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the City twenty days next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his or her residence and that he or she possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution; and that, owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or herself, or some member of his or her family or owing to his or her absence from the City on public business or his or her own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his or her registration, he or she was unable to make application for registration on the last day provided by law for the registering of electors preceding such election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he or she shall then be permitted to vote at such election. If such applicant shall in said matter willfully make a false statement, he or she shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and upon conviction, be subject to the pains and penalties thereof.

REGISTRATION BY MAIL

Under Act No. 7, Public Acts of 1919, the privilege of Absent Voters is extended to include registration. Upon compliance with this act registration can be secured by mail without personal appearance. An affidavit must be made similar to the following:

I, ss. _____ being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is a duly qualified elector of the _____ Ward or precinct of the City of _____, in the county of _____, and State of Michigan, that he is now registered as an elector therein, and that he makes this affidavit for the purpose of procuring his registration as an elector in accordance with the statute.

Taken, subscribed and sworn to before me this _____ day of _____, A. D. 1921.

Signed _____ Notary or Justice.

The time limit for registration by mail or messenger is the same as where personal application is made. Therefore, the affidavit of an elector desiring to register by mail or messenger must be received by the City Clerk not later than the Second Saturday preceding the Election.

A blank form for Registering by Mail or Messenger can be obtained by addressing the City Clerk as given below:

PROVISION IN CASE OF REMOVAL TO ANOTHER PRECINCT

Any registered and qualified voter who has Removed from One Election Precinct of a City to another election precinct of the City shall have the right, on any day previous to election day, on application to the City Clerk, to have his or her name transferred from the registration book of the precinct in which he or she Then Resides. Such elector shall have the right to have such transfer made On Election Day by obtaining from the Board of Inspectors of Election of the precinct from which he or she Has Removed a Certificate of Transfer and presenting the said certificate to the Board of Election Inspectors of the Precinct in which he or she then resides.

Dated March 3, 1921.

OTIS J. SMITH
Clerk of Said City.

PROBATE ORDER

In this world there are about a billion and a half of people. If you don't believe it go out and count 'em.

Sometimes the woman who is disappointed in love consoles herself with the thought that he is a tightwad, anyway.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Hay

Light receipts caused principally by the bad roads and the unsatisfactory prices being received by the producers and shippers, have resulted in higher prices on several markets. Receipts exceeded the demand at both Cincinnati and Memphis and prices have declined from $1.25 on Timothy and alfalfa to these markets. No Idaho hay reported at Kansas City but some on tracks unsold at Chicago.

Quoted: No. 1 Timothy New York $30.50, Philadelphia $24.50, Cincinnati $22. Chicago $25, Minneapolis $21, Memphis $27. No. 1 alfalfa Kansas City $30, Omaha $18.50, Memphis $24, Minneapolis $21. No. 1 prairie Kansas City $15, Omaha $10, Minneapolis $15.50.

Feed

Feed prices holding fairly steady bran and middlings are quoted $1 lower in Minneapolis than a week ago. Interior dealers not buying heavily as stocks in general are in excess of demand and only slowly disposed of. Transit shipments reported to be accumulating and receipts are fairly heavy. Offerings of limited good or hominy flours. A alfalfa meal and beet pulp dull.

Quoted: bran $22, middlings $21.50, Minneapolis No. 1 alfalfa $19, Kansas City, $23.50 Chicago; gluten feed $27 Chicago; white hominy feed $27 Cincinnati; $23.50 St. Louis; beet pulp $33 New York.

Fruits and Vegetables

Sacked round white potatoes strengthened slightly at northern shipping stations, reaching $1.25. Chicago carlot market are in excess of demand. Receipts about 30c above the season's low point at $1.25@1.35. Round whites up 15c@20c at western New York stations closing around $1.10 sacked. New York 15c higher at $1.25@1.40 bulk.

Cold storage Baldwin apples firm to 50c per bush higher. Northwestern firm to 50c higher in city markets also, ranging mostly $5@5.50. Northwestern extra fancy Wisconsin steers, New York $3.25 @4.50 per box; Boston $3@4.50; middle-western markets $3@4.

Carlot shipments week ended March 2: potatoes 2,000; beef boxed apples $18; barreled apples $22; cabbage 716; celery 457; lettuce 305; onions 378; sweet potatoes 357.

Grain

Prices advanced during the week although the market was easily affected and somewhat uncertain. Principal factors: renewal of export demand, foreign political situation, and Greenburg and Hessian fly reports. Omaha reports good winter wheat crop, wheat firm, demand somewhat improved. Hessian fly infestation rather general in soft wheat states.

For the week Chicago: May wheat up 1c at $1.61 3/4; May corn 1 1/2c at 71 1/4c; Minneapolis May wheat up 1/2c at $1.56 1/2; Kansas City May 1 1/2c at $1.50 1/2; Winnipeg May 3 1/2c at $1.87.

Live Stock and Meats

Hog prices at Chicago continued to advance the past week, gaining 80c@1 per 100 lbs. Sheep and lambs showed no material change. Best steers practically unchanged, butcher cows and heifers up 50c.

Marked Chicago prices: hogs bulk of sales $10.15@11; medium and good beef steers $8.55@10.25; butcher cows and heifers $5@10; feed steers $7.50@9.40; light and heavy cows $4@6; calves $2.50@4.25; 12.75; fat lambs $8@10.75; feeding lambs $7.50@9; yearlings $6.75@9; fat ewes $5.25@8.75.

Eastern wholesale fresh meat prices ranged $1.02 per 100 lbs. higher than a week ago. Beef advanced 50c@1.50, mutton $1, veal $1.02 per 100 lbs. Lamb and other meats practically unchanged.

March 3 prices good grade meats: beef $18@17; veal $20@23; lamb $18@21; mutton $12@15; light pork loins $22@24; heavy loins $14@20.

Dairy Products

Butter markets firm the early part of week but developing signs of weakness now. Prices down 1@1 1/2c in eastern markets on the 3rd.

Closing prices: 32 score: New York, Chicago and Boston 53c; Philadelphia 54c. These prices are 3c higher than a week ago. Trading is now quiet as dealers are fairly well supplied with goods.

Wisconsin primary cheese markets now trading lower a week ago. Sales of 200,000 lbs. made at: twins 26 1/2c; daisies 27c; double daisies 26 1/2c; long horns 25 3/4c. High prices of Wisconsin cheese has resulted in some eastern cheese finding its way to Chicago market which heretofore has been depending largely on Wisconsin for its supply.

FARMERS!

Bring in your Wheat And

Take home an equal number of pounds of Flour, Bran and Middlings. You can either pay cash or toll the grinding.

Argo Milling Company

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus driving a cold from the system.

RUB BACKACHE AND LUMBAGO RIGHT OUT

Rub Pain and Stiffness away with a small bottle of old honest St. Jacobs Oil

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a 35 cent bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right into the pain or ache, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the ache and pain right out of your back and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly!

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Get less meat if you feel Backache or have bladder trouble—Take glass of Salts.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding; stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acid in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending
