Legislature Is Re-convened

Met Yesterday To Amend the Soldier Bonus Bill.

Lansing.—Governor Alex J. Groesbeck has issued a proclamation calling the legislature for another special session to convene Thursday, June 30, at 1 o'clock, to act upon the soldier bonus legislation.

The legislature will be asked to consider several plans to make the bond issue popular. One of these is to make the issue tax exempt, although Representative George Lord, the financial expert of the house, holds the belief that this is beyond the power of the legislature under the constitution. He suggests instead that the rate of interest be raised to 6 per cent, and that a specific tax of one-half of 1 per cent be imposed. Some of the bankers who have conferred with the state administrative board are insistent that the increased rate be considered.

Another proposal is to issue 6 per cent notes for several millions to tide over the present, and to issue the bonds when the market is more favorable. Failing all else, it is Governor Groesbeck's intention to appeal to the public to take up the bonds. It is believed that such a drive would be successful if the bonds were issued in denominations of $50 and upwards instead of $1,000.

If the legislature remains in session only two days, the time considered adequate by Governor Groesbeck, the special session will cost about $7,500. If it remains for 10 days, the time given as a minimum by members now in Lansing, it will cost about $12,000. The fact that the difference is not proportionate to the number of days is due to a provision that the state must pay mileage of members coming to and returning from sessions, regardless of the length of the sessions.

The members receive $5 a day, during special sessions, for the first 20 days that the legislature is technically in session. This includes the period between actual adjournment and the technical final adjournment. Those familiar with legislative custom say that, even though the actual work were completed in the two days considered necessary by the governor, the technical adjournment would probably be delayed 10 days so that the members would receive $60 pay instead of $10.

MISS EUNICE CARR BECOMES BRIDE OF HAROLD USHER

A pretty wedding took place Saturday, June 25th at high noon when Miss Eunice Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wright Carr of this city and Harold W. Usher, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Usher of Charlevoix were united in marriage at the home of the bride. The ceremony was performed in the spacious living room which was tastefully decorated with white daisies and wood fern.

Following "Oh Promise Me" sung by Nay Smith, the bridal party advanced to the notes of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. Reta Haden, the bride appearing in a gown of white net over heavy satin, picture hat of net and carrying white roses.

The bride was attended by her sister Mrs. Len Swafford, matron-of-honor, dressed in white organdy and Miss Audrey Guseatt as bridesmaid, who wore a gown of green organdy with a hat of the same shade. Both carried pink orchids.

Kenneth Usher, brother of the groom acted as best man, Max and Harold Bader as flower boys and little Alice Usher, dressed in voile, as ring-bearer.

The ring ceremony was used Rev. Marshall of the Methodist church officiating, followed by a reception and two course luncheon served by the Misses Ruth Gregory, Doris Hayden, Leanoire Kenny, Ann Berg, Gertrude Hockstad and Mrs. Richard Durant, old school friends of the bride, under the supervision of Miss Beatrice Harrington as Mistress of Ceremony.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood of Grand Rapids; Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Usher and Nay Smith of Charlevoix.

Following the luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Usher left by auto for Grand Rapids where they will make their home at 213 Lake Drive.

Wedding gifts, both beautiful and useful, were showered in profusion on the happy couple.

The gay life is seldom a pay life.

HIGH SCHOOL ON NORTH CENTRAL ASSOCIATION LIST

Supt. Keyworth was recently notified that the East Jordan High School will be on the University list of accredited schools for three years, or from 1921 to 1924. This places the school on the North Central Association list, which is the highest rating given to a high school by the University.

PRETTY HOME WEDDING AT A. J. SUFFERN'S FRIDAY LAST

The home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Suffern on Second-st was the scene of a pretty home wedding last Friday afternoon, June 24th, when their daughter, Miss Fay Imogene, was united in marriage to Floyd Krueger of Chicago.

The ring service took place at 5:00 o'clock in the presence of about thirty friends, Rev. Marshall being the officiating clergyman. The bride's mother played the wedding march.

The bride was attended by Miss Leanoire Kenny and the groom by Bernt Johnson. The bride wore a gown of yellow organdie and carried a bouquet of swansonia and forget-me-nots, while the bridesmaid was dressed in green organdie.

After the ceremony a luncheon was served, during which time, Miss Leanoire Kenny favored with vocal music.

The wedding is the culmination of a college romance, the young people graduating from Alma college, in 1920. The bride has grown to womanhood in our city. During the past year, she had charge of the kindergarten class in our public schools, making a success of the work.

Among the guests was a sister of the groom, Miss Alberta Krueger of Chicago.

The newly-weds left by auto for Charlevoix that evening going from there to Chicago where they will make their home at 1520 N. Artesian st.

WILSON NOW ATTORNEY-AT-LAW

Former President Admitted to Bar in District of Columbia.

Washington.—Woodrow Wilson has been admitted to the District of Columbia bar.

Accompanied by Bainbridge Colby, his law partner and former secretary of state, and Joseph P. Tumulty, former secretary to the president, Mr. Wilson drove to the court house here and was aided by court attendants as he left his car and was taken in an elevator to the chambers of Chief Justice McCoy.

11 CONVICTED IN P. O. ROBBERY

Sentences in $1,000,000 Holdup Deferred Until End of Trial.

Toledo, Ohio.—Eleven of the 13 men and women tried on a charge of conspiracy in the $1,000,000 postoffice robbery here were found guilty.

The two acquitted are John J. Epps, Chicago broker, Charles Furler, Toledo.

SAM GOMPERS AGAIN ELECTED

Effort to Oust Old Labor Leader Fails in Convention.

Denver.—Samuel Gompers, 71-year-old veteran, scored the greatest triumph of his career here when for the fortieth time he was elected president of the American Federation of Labor.

In an election replete with dramatic interest, he won over the younger element seeking to wrest control of the federation by electing John L. Lewis, 41-year-old head of the United Mine Workers of America.

Make No Change in Yale's Song.

New Haven, Conn.—Yale's song, "Bright College Years," will continue to be sung to the present tune, which also is that of "Die Wacht Am Rhine." During the war there was a call for another setting for the words and the class of 1899 offered a prize for a new tune. The alumni advisory board has voted to request the corporation "to gratefully decline" the offer of 1899, and an announcement says the corporation has approved the request.

Conferences Spur Farm Workers

Build Up Community Spirit, Give Agriculture Dignity.

Farmers and rural workers in Michigan are tackling their problems with clarified vision following the series of conferences at M. A. C. at East Lansing last week at which economists, ministers and agricultural leaders of note gave timely addresses.

With ministers and boys' and girls' club workers already in attendance, the ranks of visitors were swelled by several hundred members of the Michigan Farmers' Tour Association who came to M. A. C. for a short encampment and reunion. During the latter part of the week the consolidated schools conference drew a large number of rural teachers and educational leaders. At the same time 260 veterinarians, more than half of those practicing in the state, were attending the educational conference preparing them for the government tuberculosis testing examinations on Saturday.

Big ideas stressed during the conferences were the need of institutionalizing agriculture as an industry so as to make farming an attractive career for the country boys with most ambition, and the need of further cooperation and development of the community spirit.

Prof. Thomas Nixon Carver, famous economist and sociologist at Harvard university, was the outstanding figure of the week with his series of addresses. Other significant speeches were given by Prof. G. F. Warren of Cornell, Rev. Lloyd Douglas of Ann Arbor and Dean Mary E. Sweeny and Prof. W. H. French of M. A. C. A number of profitable round table discussions were also held.

Recreation was a big feature of the week. Baseball, volleyball, motion pictures, community singing and inspection tours of the M. A. C. farm made the spare hours fly fast.

UNIQUE CHARACTERIZATION IN "SUDS" TO BE SEEN

Having won the hearts of the world and established herself as the greatest exponent of "child characters on the stage and screen, the ever versatile Mary Pickford will be seen at the Temple Theatre Monday, July 4th, in "Suds", a United Artists photoplay of an entirely different nature to anything in which she has heretofore appeared. The theme of "Suds" is based on Maude Adam's famous play, "Op o' Me Thumb" which she presented for a long time at the Empire Theatre in New York as well as on her triumphal tours of America.

For several years Miss Pickford has had the character of Amanda Afflick in mind and has been waiting the opportunity to present it in the proper settings.

Since the completion of "Pollyanna" in the latter part of 1919, Miss Pickford has been at work with her staff of assistants on "Suds". Over four months were spent in the adaptation of the story for the screen by several of the best scenario writers in the photoplay profession.

Jack Dillon is director in charge of "Suds", and he, together with Waldemar Young who wrote the scenario, have worked with Miss Pickford ever since she first contemplated the play for production.

Miss Pickford in "Suds" is an entirely new Mary Pickford. The play is screamingly funny throughout excepting for the bit of pathos which is introduced in her hopeless love affair which is really only in the flights of her very vivid imagination.

This production will show off the dramatic and artistic ability of the little star to an advantage never before seen. Temple Theatre, Monday, July 4th.

MRS. JAMES NICE SERIOUSLY INJURED IN FALL FROM STEPS

Mrs. James Nice received a compound fracture of the right leg, below the knee, with probably other internal injuries, in a fall at her home on North Main street, Saturday afternoon.

She was descending the stairs at the back of the house and, when on the last step, her slipper caught in some manner throwing the ankle over and twisting the body in the fall.

Since the accident she has been confined to her bed, unable to move, and it is thought possible that in the fall her hip was thrown out of joint.

CITY TAX NOTICE

City Taxes for the City of East Jordan for the year 1921 are due and payable from July 1st to July 31st inclusive without penalty.

On August 1st a collection fee of 2 per cent will be added and an additional 1 per cent on the first day of each succeeding month until taxes are paid.

G. E. BOSWELL, City Treasurer

WATER TAX NOTICE

Water Taxes for the quarter ending June 30th are now due and payable at my office over the Hite Drug Store. If not paid by July 30th, 10 per cent penalty will be added.

AUDITOR'S REPORT

East Jordan, Michigan, May 31st, 1921.

To the Honorable Mayor and Members of the Common Council of the City of East Jordan, Michigan, Gentlemen:

According to instructions I have audited the books of the Treasurer and Clerk of the City of East Jordan from May 4th, 1918 to April 30th, 1921 and herewith submit my report.

The Receipts and Disbursements and balances of Cash on hand as shown by the books of the Treasurer and Clerk and statements of the Clerk are correct, with the exceptions shown under date of April 30, 1921 on the Treasurer's and Clerk's account books to correct errors made; and the amount of cash on hand and the balances shown in the several funds at close of April 30, 1921, are correct.

I find vouchers for all disbursements of the Treasurer and have checked the same with the Treasurer's and Clerk's books and filed them with the City Clerk.

The Settlements with the County Treasurer of the 1917, 1919 and 1920 State and County Tax Levies have been correctly made.

I have made detailed examinations of the following:

Collections of the City, State and County Tax Levies.

Collection of Penalties on all Tax Levies.

Water Consumers. Collections.

The records of water and Sewer Taps or installations.

Permits for turning on water.

Cemetery Deeds Issued.

Chatel Mortgages and Bills of Sale Recorded.

Sewer Collections.

County Road and County Contingent orders issued to City of East Jordan.

County Treasurer's payment of Delinquent Tax Collections.

And proved the footings of the account books.

With the exceptions which were corrected under date of April 30, 1921. I find the books and accounts correct.

It does not appear necessary to me to notify Flat Rate Water Consumers, that a quarter's tax is due. Two or three notices posted in conspicuous places and a notice published in the paper is all that is generally done. This would save the printing, envelopes and postage also time of Treasurer.

In conclusion I desire to say that the Treasurer and Clerk have promptly given me information and assistance whenever required.

Respectfully submitted, J. A. DRESSER, Accountant

3743 Brush Street, Detroit, Michigan. Statement of Finances on file with City Clerk.

Garden Notes

(By M. A. C. Horticultural Dept.)

Plants of late celery, late cabbage, and cauliflower are commonly set during the first two weeks in July.

A good distance for planting the late large growing varieties of cabbage and cauliflower is 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 feet.

The soil should be moist and well prepared for planting, otherwise transplanting from the seed bed into the garden or field may not be successful unless the plants are carefully "watered in."

White or light colored stalks of celery are secured by blanching, which consists of growing the plants in darkness so that the coloring matter of the stem is destroyed. Blanching also makes the stalks more crisp and tender and improves the quality.

Early celery is most easily blanched by setting up boards about 12 inches wide against the plants each side of the row. On a small scale in the home garden each individual plant may be carefully wrapped by hand with good heavy paper. The blanching operation usually requires about 2 or 3 weeks. When blanched in this manner a distance of 2 1/2 feet is sufficient.

Late celery is best when blanched by banking with soil. Commonly the plants are set 6 inches apart in rows not less than 3 1/2 or 4 feet apart, but you will find that 5 or even 6 feet is better especially for the large growing varieties.

Chinese cabbage or "celery cabbage" is best grown as a fall crop. Seed should be sown during the latter part of July so that the crop will mature during the cool fall months.

WARNING TO CITY WATER USERS

It is a violation of the City ordinance to use a hose for sprinkling without a nozzle attached. The ordinance also requires that in case of fire every tap in the city must be closed at once.

Owing to the dry weather, the practice of using a hose without a nozzle is becoming so flagrant and must be discontinued.

HENRY W. COOK, Chief of Police.

Don't neglect a constant backache, sharp, darting pains or urinary disorders. The danger of dropsy or Bright's disease is too serious to ignore. Use Doan's Kidney Pills as have your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor! An East Jordan case.

Albert Turk says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results. Mornings my back felt lame and at times I found it hard to get up. Those jerky pains pulled me back more than once. I was hauling lumber at that time and my back got so weak and sore that I couldn't stoop over. It seemed as though I couldn't get rested and always felt tired and worn out. When dizzy spells came over me I couldn't see anything. My kidneys were often weak and irregular and I had to get up during the night. The secretions were often badly colored and painful in passage. Through a friend's advice I got a few boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me in great shape."

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

PASS IT ALONG

"I HEARD a good story the other day," he said, and then he recited a clean, wholesome anecdote, which is said to have originated with the late Champ Clark.

He was passing along a little of the joy of life. He was distributing smiles.

There is a manufacturing establishment up in New England, not a big enterprise. It is a sort of family affair in which all the workmen and their wives and sweethearts have a more than wage-envelope interest.

The principal reason is that the man who started it decided that he was going to pass along the joy of the success, if it was a success, and he has continued to do so from the day the little factory opened.

If a particularly big order comes in he writes a little bulletin about it and gives it to the superintendent, and at the bottom of the slip of paper are always the words "Pass It Along."

That means that everybody in the factory knows the good news almost as soon as the owner does.

And one year when the profits showed larger than usual he had the bookkeeper draw up a little statement of the year's surplus.

When it was in his hands he took his pen and dividing the total by two he drew a ring around the quotient and a line from the ring led to the words "Pass It Along," which meant that half of all the profits was divided among the workmen.

The game of "Pass It Along" is a great game. So many can play at it. It needn't take any money to start it and none to keep it going.

All it requires is a desire to make people happy and a determination to make the desire a working reality.

It is a strange thing that we seem more willing always to spread the unpleasant news than the pleasant.

The rumor that Jack has lost his job gets twice as prompt circulation as the fact that Jill has received a promotion. I wonder why?

We can pass along so many helpful things. Encouragement. Enthusiasm. Appreciation. Sympathy. Everyone of them without a penny of cost, but so full of the profit of satisfaction, if we do it with a generous spirit.

The parable of the two debtors has always seemed to me one of the most vivid of the illustrations by which Jesus taught his great truths. You will find the story in the latter part of the eighteenth chapter of St. Matthew.

The trouble with the servant of the king was that he did not pass along to the man who owed him the charitable treatment which his master had shown in forgiving him the debt he owed.

If you have something good, something helpful, something that will make another happier pass it along. It is a profitable proceeding.

LUCKY STRIKES

THE business of making lucky strikes has by no means gone out of date. It isn't necessary these days to kill Indians or give a dying miner a drink. You can do it in less moving-picture ways than that.

A good idea properly handled has often proved the best sort of a lucky strike.

Take the case of Elsie Shaver of New York. She conceived an original idea in regard to dolls. She carried it out to the last detail, as perfectly as she could—and that means a lot.

Here is the result. The dolls found a welcome waiting for them. They were high priced, but they were worth it. And people bought them.

Now there is a little shop working fulltime making the dolls. There is a large force following the designs made by Mrs. Shaver. Money pours in, and it is a good business enterprise—just a lucky strike.

Other lucky strikes have been made by young women in the advertising business. Sculptors have made them with a quaint figure. I know a girl who had a bright idea regarding a department of the store where she works. She heads the department at a mighty good salary now.

Lucky strikes are good things, and we don't all fall on them. But I notice that each one that really brings success is accompanied by a lot of hard work. The lucky striker has not sat around waiting for luck to do the rest.

No. She got busy herself.

The sand he carried grain by grain— Great boulders that he had to lift— An' with his engineerin' brain, He sunk his shaft an' run his drift. An' then at night a Bigger Thing, To which the Little Thing must kneel, Creation's self-appointed king, Wiped out the anthill with its heel.

There are those who give themselves over to laughter quickly; there are others who hold back to the breaking point, and, if you are trying to make them laugh, you turn with a look of triumph when at last the ice is broken. All of these differing cases betoken character, and we are not far wrong when we say, "Let me hear you laugh and I'll tell you what sort of a being you are—whether you are a good companion or a strenuous one; whether we must take care that you do not get even with us." I'll tell you whether you are cynical, cruel, good-natured, honest or not to be trusted."

SAVORY, SATISFYING DISHES.

TO A PINT of tender green peas, cooked in very little water, add while cooking a teaspoonful of sugar and a sprig of mint. Drain, using the liquor for a sauce. Add butter and a little flour, and serve after removing the sprig of mint.

Hot Potato Salad.

Cook potatoes with the jackets on, peel, cut in cubes, add a few young green onions minced, a few tablespoonfuls of chopped celery, some minced parsley (a teaspoonful or two), pour over the salad some hot bacon fat, stirring and tossing until well mixed; season well, add boiling hot vinegar, a little at a time until the salad seems well seasoned, and serve hot. Olive oil may be used instead of the bacon fat, if preferred, and lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Herring Salad.

Cook salt herring 15 minutes in boiling water to cover; drain, cool, and separate into flakes. To a cupful of the herring add an equal measure of potato cut in cubes, and one-fourth of the amount of hard-cooked eggs cut in bits. Mix until moist with French dressing and let stand to season, adding pepper, cayenne and paprika. Serve on a bed of lettuce, garnish with rings of egg-white and the yolks put through a ricer. Serve with a good boiled dressing which has been enriched by the addition of whipped cream.

Cream Cheese Salad Dressing.

Make the ordinary French dressing adding one-teaspoonful of onion juice, then add very slowly mixing well to a cream cheese. Beat with a silver fork until the dressing is smooth. Serve over leaf lettuce.

Vinegar Sauce.

Mix with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of flour, a half-teaspoonful or less of grated nutmeg in one-half cupful of boiling water. Cook until smooth, add two tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a tablespoonful of butter; serve hot.

Ginger Ale Salad.

Soften one-half package of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water; add one cupful of boiling water. Strain, add one and one-half cupfuls of ginger ale, one-half cupful of sugar and the juice of a lemon. Add one cupful of strawberries cut in halves and one banana sliced thin. Stir until well mixed, mold and chill. Serve unmolded on lettuce with French dressing.

Poached Eggs on Anchovy Toast.

Work a teaspoonful of anchovy paste or more, if desired, into one-third of a cupful of butter. Spread on thin slices of crisp toast and lay a poached egg on each slice.

The Wreckers

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright by Chas. Scribner's Sons

"You'll be burnt alive—come up out of that!" he yelled to the boss; but I knew it wouldn't do any good. With Collingwood still buried down there and still with the breath of life in him, the boss was going to stay and keep on trying to dig him out, even if he, himself, got burned to a crisp doing it. Loving Mrs. Sheila the way he did, he couldn't do any less.

It was awful, those next two or three minutes. We were all running frantically back and forth, now, between the wreck and the creek, soaking the blankets and doing our level best to beat the fire back and keep it from cutting off the only way there was for the boss to climb out. But we could only fight gaspingly on the surface of things, as you might say. Down underneath, the fire was working around in front and behind in spite of all we could do. Some of it had got to the coal, and the heavy sulphurous smoke was oozing up to make us all choke and strangle.

Honestly, you couldn't have told that the boss was a white man when he crawled up out of that pit of death, tugging and lifting the crushed and broken body of the madman, and making us take it out before he would come out himself. We got them both away from the fire as quickly as we could and around to the other side of things, Kirgan and Jones carrying Collingwood.

The poor little lady we had left alone with the rescued ones had done all she could, and she was waiting for us. When we put Collingwood down, she sat down on the ground and took his head in her lap and cried over him just like his mother might have, and when the boss knelt down beside her I heard what he said: "That's right, little woman; that's just as it should be. Death wipes out all scores. I did my best—you must always believe that I did my best."

She choked again at that, and said: "There is no hope?" and he said: "I'm afraid not. He was dying when I got to him."

I tried to swallow the big lump in my throat and turned away, and so did everybody else but the major, who went around and knelt down on the other side of Mrs. Sheila. The wreck was blazing now like a mighty bonfire, lighting up the pine-clad hills all around and snapping and growling like some savage monster gloating over its prey. In the red glow we saw a man limping up the track from the west, and Kirgan and I went to meet him. It was Hogan, the missing engineer of the 416.

He told us what there was to tell, which wasn't very different from the way we'd been putting it out. They—Hogan and his fireman—hadn't suspected that they were carrying a maniac until after they had passed Bauxite and Collingwood had told them both that what he wanted to do was to overtake the special and smash it. Then there had been a fight on the engine, but Collingwood had a gun and he had threatened to kill them both if they didn't keep on.

"I kept her goin'," said the Irishman, "thinkin' maybe Jones'd keep out of my way, or that at the last I'd get a chance to shut the 'Sixteen off an' give her the brake. He kept me fr'in doin' it, and when I saw the tail-lights, I pushed Johnnie Shovel off an' went after him because there was naughtin' else to do. Johnnie's back younder a piece, wid a broken leg."

Just then Jones, the special's engineer, came up, and he pieced out Hogan's story. The wire to Bauxite had warned him that a crazy man was chasing him and overrunning stop-signals. He had thought to side-track the chaser at the old "Y" and that was what he had stopped for.

Thereupon the three of us went after the crippled fireman, and when we got back to the "Y" with him it was all over. Collingwood had died with his head in Mrs. Sheila's lap, and the boss, fagged out and half dead as he must have been, was up and at work, getting the wreck victims into our day coach, which had been backed up and taken around to the other leg of the "Y" to head for Portal City.

When it came time for us to move Collingwood, Mrs. Sheila pulled her veil down and walked behind the body, with the good old major locking his arm in hers, and that choking lump came again in my throat when I remembered what Collingwood had said to the boss the night he came to our office: "Sheila made her wedding journey with me once, when she was just eighteen. The next time she rides with me it will be at my funeral."

I guess there's no use stretching the agony out by telling about that mournful ride back to Portal City with the dead and wounded. We left the wreck blazing and roaring in the shut-valley at the gulch's mouth because there wasn't anything else to do; Kirgan and Jones and one of the firemen handled the engine and pulled out, while the rest of us rode in the day-coach and did what we could for the suffering.

At Banta we made a stop long enough to let the boss send a wire to Portal City, turning out the doctors and the ambulances—and the undertakers; and though it was after three o'clock in the morning when we pulled in, it seemed as if the whole town had got the word and was down at the station to meet us.

I couldn't see Mrs. Sheila's face when the major helped her off at the platform; her veil was still down. But I did hear her low-spoken words to the boss, whispered while they were carrying Collingwood and Hatch, and two of the others, who were past help, out to the waiting string of dead-wagons.

"I shall go east with the body tomorrow—today, I mean—if the strikers will let you run a train, and Cousin Basil will go with me. We may never meet again, Graham, and for that reason I must say what I have to say now. Your opportunity has come. The man who could do the most to defeat you is dead, and the strike will to meet me at my office at half-past twelve. Any news from the strike?"

"Nothing," I told him, while "Central" was getting me Mr. Ripley's number. "Fred May said it was going on just the same; everything quiet and nothing doing, except that the wrecking train had gone out to pick up the scraps at Timber Mountain 'Y.' Kirgan is bossing it, and the strikers manned it for him."

"Nothing more was said until after I had sent the two phone messages, and then the boss broke out in a new spot. "Has anything been heard from Mr. Van Britt?" he asked.

"Not that I know of." Again he gave me that queer little scowl across the table.

"Jimmie, have you found out yet why Mr. Van Britt insisted on quitting the service?"

I guess I grinned a little, though I tried not to. "Mr. Van Britt is one of the best friends you've got," I said. "He thought you needed this strike, and he wanted to go out among the pay-roll men and sort of help it along. He couldn't do a thing like that while he was an officer of the company and drawing his pay like the rest of us."

"I might have known—he as good as told me," was the reply, made kind of half-absently; and then, short and quick: "How's the stock market? Have you seen a paper?"

I had seen both papers, at breakfast-time, but of course they had nothing startling in them except a last-minute account of the wreck at Timber Mountain 'Y.' grabbed off just before they went to press. They couldn't have anything later from New York than the day before. But Fred May had tipped me off when he came up to tell me about the Major Kendrick special. The newspaper offices were putting out bulletins by that time.

I told Mr. Norcross about the bulletins and was brash enough to add: "We're headed for the receivership all right, I guess; our stock has tumbled to twenty-nine, and there's a regular dog-fight going on over it at the railroad post in the Exchange. Wall Street's a-fire and burning up, so they say."

The chief hadn't eaten enough to keep a cat alive, but at that he pushed his chair back and reached for his hat. "Come on Jimmie," he snapped. "We've got to get busy. And there isn't going to be any receivership."

We reached the railroad headquarters—which were as dead and quiet as a graveyard—a little before Mr. Ripley and Billoughby got down. But Mr. Editor Cantrell was there, waiting to shoot an anxious question at the boss.

"Well, Norcross, are you ready to talk now?"

"Not just yet, tomorrow, maybe," was the good-natured rejoinder.

"All right; then perhaps you will tell me this: Do you, yourself, believe that four or five thousand railroad men have gone on strike out of sheer sympathy for a few hundred C. S. & W. employees, most of whom are merely common laborers? Can you look me in the eye and tell me that you haven't fomented this eruption on the quiet to get the better of the Red Tower crowd in some way?" demanded the editor.

"I can, indeed," was the smiling answer. Cantrell looked as if he didn't more than half believe it.

"Being a newspaper man, I'm naturally suspicious," he put in. "There are big doings down underneath all this that I can smell, but can't dig up. Everything about this strike is too blamed good-natured. I've talked with half a dozen of the leaders, and with any number of the rank and file. They all grin and give me the wink, as if it were the best joke that was ever pulled off."

Again Mr. Norcross smiled handsomely. "If you push me to it, Cantrell, I may say that this is exactly their attitude toward me!"

"Well," said the editor, getting up to go; "it's doing one thing to you, good and proper. Your railroad stock is tumbling down stairs so fast that it can't keep up with itself."

"I hope it will tumble still more," said the boss, pleasantly, with another sort of enigmatic smile; and with that Mr. Cantrell had to be content.

As the editor went out, Fred May brought in the bunch of forenoon telegrams and laid them on the desk. They were quickly glanced at and tossed over to me as fast as they were read. Most of them were plaintive little yips from a strike-stricken lot of people along the Short Line who seemed to think that the world had come to an end, but there were three bearing the New York date line and signed "Dunton." The earliest had been sent shortly after the opening of the Stock exchange, and it ran thus:

"Morning papers announce strike and complete tie-up on P. S. L. Why no report from you of labor troubles threatening? Compromise at any cost and wire emphatic denial of strike. Answer quick."

The second of the series had been filed for transmission an hour later and it was still more saw-toothed.

"Later reports confirm newspaper story. Your failure to compromise instantly with employees will break stock market and subject you to investigation for criminal incompetency. Answer."

The third message had been sent still later.

"Your continued silence is inexcusable. If no favorable report from you by six o'clock you may consider yourself discharged from the company's service and criminal proceedings on charge of conspiracy will be instituted at once."

I thought things were beginning to look pretty serious for us if Mr. Dunton was going to try to drag us into the courts, but Mr. Norcross was still smiling when he handed me the last and latest telegram in the bunch. It was from Mr. Chadwick, and was good-naturedly laconic.

"To G. Norcross, G. M., Portal City. "Just returned from trip to Seattle. What's doing on the Short Line?"

"Chadwick."

"A couple of telegrams, Jimmie," said the chief, as he passed this last wire over, and I got my note-book ready.

"To B. Dunton, New York. Strike is sympathetic and not subject to compromise. Mails moving regularly, but all other traffic suspended indefinitely. My office closes today, and my resignation, effective at once, goes to you on East Mall tonight."

"Now one to Mr. Chadwick, and you may send it in code," he directed crisply. Then he dictated:

"See newspapers for account strike. Hatch and eight of his associates were killed last night in railroad wreck. Dunton has demanded my resignation and I have given it. Have plan for complete reorganization along lines discussed in beginning, and need your help. At market opening to-morrow sell P. S. L. large blocks and reurchase in dribslets as price goes down. Repeat until I tell you to stop. Wire quick if you are with us."

Just as I was taking the last sentence, Mr. Ripley and Billoughby came in, and Mr. Norcross took them both into the third room of the suite and shut the door. An hour later when the door opened and they came out, the boss was summing up the new orders to Billoughby: "There's a lot to do, and you have my authority to hire all the help you need. See the bankers yourself, personally, and get them to interest other local buyers along the line, the more of them, and the smaller they are, the better. I'll take care of Portal City, myself. I've had Van Britt on the wire and he is taking care of the employees—yes, that goes as it lies, and is a part of the original plan; every man who works for P. S. L. is going to own a bit of stock, if we have to carry him for it and let him pay a dollar a week. More than that, they shall have representation on the board if they want it. And while you're knocking about, take time to show these C. S. & W. folks how they can climb back into the saddle. Red Tower is down and out, now, and they can keep it out if they want to."

I suppose I might rattle this old type-machine of mine indefinitely and tell the story of the financial fight that filled the next few days; of how the boss and Mr. Ripley and Billoughby got the bankers and practically everybody together all along the Short Line and sprung the big plan upon them, which was nothing less than the snapping up, on a tumbling stock market, of the opportunity now presented to them of owning—actually owning in fee simple—their own railroad, the buying to be done quietly through Mr. Chadwick's brokers in Chicago and New York.

There was some opposition and jangling and see-sawing back and forth, of course, but the newspapers, led by the Mountaineer, took hold, and then, pretty soon, everybody took hold; after which the only trouble was to keep people—our own rank and file among them—from buying P. S. L. Common so fast that the New Yorkers would catch on and run the price up.

They didn't catch on—not until after it was too late; and the minute Mr. Chadwick wired us from Chicago that we were safe, the strike went off, as you might say, between two minutes, and Mr. Norcross called a meeting of stockholders, the same to be held—bless your heart!—in Portal City, the thriving metropolis of the region in one of us, a good, solid voting majority of the stock was now held. The Mountaineer printed the call, and it spoke of the railroad as "our railroad company."

The meeting was held in due time, and Mr. Chadwick was there to preside. He made a cracking good chairman, and the way he dilated on the fact that now the country—and the employees—had a railroad of their own, and that the whole nation would be looking to see how we would demonstrate the problem we had taken over, actually brought cheers—think of it; cheers in a railroad stockholders' meeting!

Following Mr. Chadwick's talk there was the usual routine business; reports were read and it was shown that the Short Line, notwithstanding all the stealings and mismanagements, was still a good going proposition at the price at which it had been bought in. A new board of directors was chosen, and as soon as the new board got together, Mr. Norcross went back to his office in the headquarters, not as general manager, this time—not on your life—but as the newly elected president of Pioneer Short Line. And by the same token, the first official circular that came out—a copy of which I sent, tied up with a blue ribbon, to Mable Ann—read like this:

"To all Employees: "Effective this day, Mr. James F. Dadds is appointed assistant to the president with headquarters in Portal City.

"G. Norcross, President."

That's all; all but a little talk between the boss and Mr. Upton Van Britt that took place in our office on the day after Mr. Van Britt, still kicking about the hard work that the boss was always giving upon him, had been do the rest. If I were you, I should neither eat nor sleep until I had thought of some way to take the railroad out of the hands of those who have proved that they are not worthy to own it."

I didn't know, just then, how much or little attention Mr. Norcross was paying to this mighty good, clear-headed bit of business advice. What he said went back to that saying of hers that they might never meet again.

"We must meet again—sometime and somewhere," he said. And then: "I did my best; God knows I did my best, Sheila. I would have given my own life gladly if the giving would have saved Collingwood's. Don't you believe that?"

"I shall always believe that you are one of God's own gentlemen, Graham," she said, soft and low; and then the major came to take her away.

CHAPTER XX

P. S. L. Comes Home

By nine o'clock the next morning, as soon as I'd swallowed a hurried bite of breakfast in the grill-room I swiped a camp-stool and a magazine out of the lounge and trotted upstairs to plant myself before the boss's door, determined that nobody should disturb him until he was good and ready to get up.

He turned out a little before twelve, looking sort of haggard and drawn, of course, and having some pretty bad burns on the side of his neck and on the backs of both hands. But he was all there, as usual, and he laid a good, brotherly hand on my shoulder when he saw what I was doing.

"They don't make many of them like you, Jimmie," he said. And then: "Have you any news?"

I had, a little, and I gave it to him. Fred May had come tip-toeing up into my sentry corridor about ten o'clock to tell me that Mr. Perkins had arranged with the strikers to have a special go east with the major and Mrs. Sheila and Collingwood's body to catch the Overland at Sedgwick; and I told the boss this, and that the train had been gone for an hour or more.

Also, I gave him a sealed package that a strange boy had brought up just a little while after May went away. We took the elevator to the grill-room for something to eat, and at table Mr. Norcross opened the package. It contained a bunch of affidavits, eleven of them in all, and there was no letter or anything to tell where they had come from.

He handed the papers over to me, after he had seen what they were—sort of frowned across the table at me and said: "Do you know what it means—this surrender of those bribe affidavits, Jimmie?"

I said I guessed I did; that Hatch being dead, and Collingwood, too, there wasn't nerve enough left in the Red Tower outfit to keep up the fight; that the surrender of the affidavits was a kind of a plea for a let-up on our part.

"We'll begin to show them, in just about fifteen minutes, Jimmie," was the short comment. "Reach over and get that telephone and tell Mr. Ripley and Mr. Billoughby that I want them appointed general manager.

"You've made the riffs, Graham—just as I said you would," said our own and only millionaire, after he had got through abusing the fates that wouldn't let him go back east and play with his coupon shears and his yachts and polo ponies. "You're going to be the biggest man this side of the mountains, some day; and the day isn't so very far off, either."

It was just here that the boss got out of his chair and walked to the other end of the room. When he came back it was to say:

"You think I have won out, Upton, and so does everybody else. I suppose it looks that way to the man in the street. But I haven't, you know. I have lost the one thing for which I would gladly give all the business success I have ever made or hope to make."

Mr. Van Britt's smile was more than half a grin.

"It isn't lost, Graham: it's only gone before. Can't you wait a decent little while?"

"If I should wait all my life it wouldn't be long enough, Upton," was the reply. "What you said to me—that time when we first spoke of Collingwood—was true. You said she loved the other man—and so she did."

This time Mr. Van Britt's smile was a whole grin.

"I said it, and I'll say it again. She didn't realize it or admit it, even to herself, you know; she's too good and clean-hearted for anything like that. But I could see it plainly enough, and so could everybody else except the two people most nearly concerned. I didn't mean Howie Collingwood; you were the 'other man,' Graham."

At this the boss whirled short around and tramped to the other end of the room again, standing for quite a little while with one foot on the low window-sill and making out like he was looking down at the traffic chattering along in Nevada avenue. But I'll bet a quarter he never saw a single wheel of it. When he came back our way his eyes were shining, and he put his hand on Mr. Van Britt's shoulder.

"It ought to have been you, Uppy," he said, dropping back to the old college nickname. "You're by long odds the better man. When—when do you think I might venture to take a little run across to New York?"

At that, Mr. Van Britt laughed out "Hot hot!" he said. "I suppose I ought to say a year. You can't wait one little year, can't you, Graham?"

"Not on your life!" rasped the boss. And then: "I'll tell you what I'll do: I'll compromise with the proprietors, or whatever it is that you're insisting on, and make it six months. But that's the limit—the absolute limit!"

And so it was. (THE END.)

"Girls will be girls" is an old saying whose modern version is, "Women will be girls."

Sometimes a man gets credit for being a game loser when he's only a tame loser.

When a man does not know his own mind, others who know him well are very likely to know it.

The best pickpockets do not take your money in a crowd but they come right into your office where you alone and tell you to "sign on the dotted line."

To whom are all the monuments erected—to those who lived for themselves or those who lived for them?

Why is a kumquat and is that the way to spell it?

Many a man who says he is afraid of an automobile means he is afraid of the expense of one.

It isn't how many years you've lived or expect to live, but what you are doing with today.

Ship and sail under the Stars and Stripes to all parts of the world

THERE was a long period when it was not true, but today it is proudly true once more—trade and passenger routes are so established that you can ship your goods, or you can sail, to any part of the world under the Stars and Stripes.

The program of routes is being carried out with an eye to the future as well as present needs of American exporters and importers and all American prosperity. See that the ships you use are owned and operated by American citizens or by the U.S. Shipping Board.

Mrs. Ida Williams Dies Suddenly

Was Visiting Her Daughter At Midland

The remains of Mrs. John Williams, who passed away at Midland, Wednesday morning, were brought to her home here last evening Thursday.

Mrs. Williams had gone to Midland a fortnight ago for a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Carl Heinzelman, and was in usual good health. A message came early Wednesday morning stating that she was quite ill and urging her husband, Mr. Williams and daughter, Miss Blanche Stohman, to come at once. As they were preparing to leave on the morning M. C. train another message came that she had passed away. Mr. Williams and daughter, Miss Stohman, went to Midland returning with the remains of the wife and mother Thursday evening.

Deceased was among the early residents of East Jordan, making her home on the West Side. Her work as nurse brought her into many of our homes, where her many kindly acts and words of good cheer brought sunshine where sickness prevailed. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of our citizens in their sudden bereavement.

Funeral arrangements have not as yet been made.

FAMILY RE-UNITED BY TRAGEDY

Vicksburg Couple Meet at County Following Shooting Affray.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—Out of the tragedy of last week when Robert Thompson of this city, was shot and killed by Dr. Frank S. Collier, mayor of Vicksburg, has come one result that will make for the happiness of an estranged couple and their three children. Christian Weber and his wife, in the shadow of their brother-in-law's death, affected a reconciliation at the county jail where she called on him after his repeated requests were transmitted to her by the officers.

It was their estrangement which led directly to the killing of Thompson. They mutually promised to forgive and forget and the officers released Weber, who had been held as a material witness.

The inquest has been postponed until Dr. Collier who was also seriously wounded could attend and testify in his own behalf. His friends say he shot in self-defense.

SWEENEY GETS APPOINTMENT

New Escheat Chief Will Administer Funds Under New Law.

Lansing—The state, inaugurated a new policy of dealing with estates of persons who die intestate and without heirs with the appointment with Governor Groesbeck of Henry S. Sweeney, assistant attorney-general, to the office of state administrator.

Property of those who leave no wills or legal heirs escheats to the state. The previous plan had been for probate courts to appoint local administrators who handled the estate until all claims had been paid, including very liberal fees for themselves, and then turned the remainder over to the state board of escheats. This resulted in great loss to the state which will be eliminated, it is believed by the new policy.

FORREST HIGGINS TRIAL STARTED

124 Examined Before Jury Was Secured; to Sit in Slaying Case.

Corunna, Mich.—After 124 men had been examined, the jury to try Forrest Higgins on a charge of slaying Lucy Wittum last March was secured and immediately sworn in by Judge J. H. Collins. The trial is expected to last from three weeks to a month and members of the jury will be locked up during that time and not permitted to communicate with anyone except in the presence of an officer.

The jury is composed of 10 active and two retired farmers.

As Much Spent For Tires As For Roads

Country's Tire Bill Is $1,000,000,000.

Some idea of the growth and present size of the automobile tire industry may be gained by considering the recent statement of M. O. Eldridge, director of roads of the American Automobile Association.

After an examination of recent statistics, Mr. Eldridge announced that the country's annual tire bill is $1,000,000,000. This astounding sum is paid for about 40,000,000 tires and is about as much as the sum annually expended on the roads of the nation.

Last year witnessed the addition of 1,500,000 cars to the nation's total and practically every one of these new owners will buy tires this year to replace those with which his new car was furnished. This means a marked increase in the country's tire bill for 1921.

It is well known that Michigan produces about 60 per cent of the automobiles manufactured in the United States but, curiously enough, there are only three tire factories in this state.

A little over a year ago this situation was turned to account by an organization formed to manufacture a new cord tire with the first real advance in tire design made in the last ten years. A graduated series of corrugations, moulded on the side wall of the tire produce the only tire on the market that CLIMBS OUT OF THE RUTS. Moreover, these corrugations afford marked additional resistance to wear and depreciation.

The organization which developed and is now manufacturing CORDUROY CORDS is composed of men of high standing in the tire field, thoroughly conversant with the industry from the condition in the rubber markets of South America to the viewpoint and needs of the ultimate consumer. They have guided this enterprise with unflinching success, beginning with the selection of the site for the plant down to the last details of a finely organized sales system, domestic and foreign.

Obviously, here is a splendid investment opportunity. The Grand Rapids Tire & Rubber Corporation is manufacturing a staple commodity for which there is a billion dollar market and a constantly growing demand. What is more, its product has an exclusive, distinctive, selling appeal—the rut climbing feature. Few companies face such favorable conditions. Indeed, every element of success is present.

The detailed story of the company and its prospects is well told in an interesting booklet called "Tire Facts". Write to the Grand Rapids Tire & Rubber Corporation, 315 Kelsey Office Building, Grand Rapids, Michigan, and ask to have it sent to you.—Adv.

Michigan News Tersely Told

Owosso—Herman B. Sturtevant, lumber man and leader in civic and church affairs here, is dead after an extended illness.

Eaton Rapids—Mrs. Ruth Young, wife of an overseas soldier, took her life here by swallowing poison. She leaves a young son.

Owosso—A membership drive to bring its membership up to 13,300 in this state was launched at the convention of the State Arbeiter Bund here. The society has 10,000 members in Michigan.

Muskegon—Alfred Koolkamp, 11 years of age, was drowned while bathing at the municipal beach. Two hundred companions failed to note his disappearance until his body was found by divers.

Owosso—An automobile owned by Fremont Land, of Pontiac, and stolen about two months ago, has been found here. Sheriff Sproule declares that it stood on the streets here for six weeks without being noticed.

Ann Arbor—Visiting nurses and training school instructors for six states, who attended the two weeks' institute of the Michigan League of Nursing association here, have urged the holding of a similar institute next year, to which the state league has agreed.

Grand Rapids—"Hello, old man, I'm feeling fine now, thanks." That was the last statement of Joseph Hoffer, 45, cigarmaker, to Detective Gerritt who a moment later picked him up in his automobile. A blood vessel had been ruptured. Hoffer died immediately.

Petoskey—One of Uncle Sam's submarine chasers which helped make life miserable for the enemy under water craft will be used in removing brook trout from Lake Superior and transporting them to various points along the Michigan coast for breeding purposes.

Port Huron—The activities of the St. Clair County Community Board will be continued under the direction of the National Community Service. The latter organization, it is stated, is supported by men of means who desire to have community service work reach every city in the nation.

Grand Rapids—The Ottawa Indians are not going to carry on their fight to recover Michigan lands, including the site of Grand Rapids. This proceeding was ended in district court when William J. Muskusky, an aged Indian, changed his plea to guilty of impersonating a federal officer.

Grand Rapids—Frank Likjenta, 8, who had been missing from his home was found under some lumber which had fallen on him. Lumbermen discovered the boy, who had been imprisoned all night and was unconscious when found. He was badly bruised and had a skull wound, but is expected to recover.

Kalamazoo—A divorced couple here, Clyde Baker and his former wife, eloped to save living expenses. He was paying her alimony. A note left for friends said they had departed for Mishawaka to begin housekeeping. Baker was recently brought into court on a contempt charge for failure to pay monthly allowances.

Hart—J. J. Estrada, who came here from Muskegon to paint the smokestack on the Roach Canning factory, lost his hold when within five feet of the top, or up 85 feet, and fell to the ground, breaking a leg and injuring his back so that he was paralyzed. He was rushed to the Ludington hospital, but died soon after reaching there.

Grand Rapids—After saving his sweetheart, Florence E. Clement, 26, Raymond S. Knight, 26, was drowned in Grand river, when their canoe capsized. Knight, who was unable to swim, managed to keep afloat until the girl was rescued by other canoelists, and then, exhausted, sank in the deep water at the mouth of Mill creek.

Flint—Action taken by the city council barring jitney busses from streets on which street cars are operated, and laying down strict operation regulations, including that the busses take indemnity insurance, prompted 27 bus owners, operating on the Saginaw street route to turn in their licenses to the city, asking for a refund of their license fee.

Grand Rapids—The seller's viewpoint of the grape situation in Michigan is encouraging, according to R. W. Dunham, Grand Rapids broker, who has just completed an investigation into crop and market conditions. Mr. Dunham says the crop will average about 20 per cent less than that of last year and there will be a willing market because of this shortage.

Lansing—A plan to initiate by popular petition a constitutional amendment to make the state superintendent of public institutions an appointive office and increase the membership of the state board of education from three to six, has been launched by prominent educators of the state. The plan as tentatively outlined would give the enlarged board the appointive power, and would virtually make the superintendent of public instruction a seventh member of the board, in a secretarial and advisory capacity.

Adrian—Dr. Marlan A. Freeman was re-elected president of Adrian College at the meeting of the trustees here.

Pontiac—The Pontiac board of education has arranged to purchase $50,000 of the district's own bonds from a sinking fund.

Cadillac—Charles Clock of Farwell died of injuries received when run over by an Ann Arbor train after falling from the top of a car.

Manistee—The most improved still ever seen by the police was confiscated when the home of John Werlowski was raided. Four quarts of liquor and 12 gallons of mash were found.

Holly—Charles Crosby, 58, a farmer residing two miles south of Holly, was killed by lightning. Crosby was returning from the barn to the house and paused for a moment to watch the storm.

Adrian—Theodore Odell, 12 years old, of Clinton, was probably fatally injured when his small truck was struck by a New York Central passenger train at the Main Street crossing and demolished.

Kalamazoo—Michael Brennen, charged with passing fraudulent checks made out to "John Chapman" and signed by "L. W. Sutherland," is under arrest here. Many merchants accepted the checks.

Lansing—Mrs. George Finnie, of Lansing, charged with aiding her husband to escape from the county jail at Mason, was bound over to the next term of the Circuit Court after an examination in justice court.

Owosso—George Anthony, 78 years old, of Owosso, was given a decree of divorce from Hanna Anthony, 64, to whom he was married in 1905. He charged that she stayed out nights. They have not lived together since 1908.

Pontiac—Oscar Johnson was drowned in the Milford millpond when he dived from a springboard into the deepest portion of the pond. The body failed to come to the surface, but was recovered after repeated attempts by Lionel Grant.

Flint—An underground cavern reached only through a tunnel and guarded with elaborate camouflage, which was found on the farm of Louis Carpet, near Duffield, by Sheriff Vette and deputies, revealed one of the biggest moonshine plants ever seized here.

Owosso—Officers all over the state and particularly along the Canadian border, have been "asked" by Shiawassee county officers to watch for Earl Ritter, 35, a farmer, living near Bancroft, who, it is charged, has multiplied three banks in the county out of approximately $5,000.

Bay City—Godfrey Kubach, a tinsmith, forgot that his truck was in gear when he cranked it in front of a Water street business place. It ran over him, causing severe bruises and cuts and then crashed into the large plate glass windows of a shoe store, doing several hundred dollars damage.

Kalamazoo—Lost out of a car driven by William Thompson, William Reed, 13 months old, was severely injured. The child was riding on the rear seat and either climbed out or was bumped out on the rough pavement. The driver did not notice the baby's absence until after it was taken to the hospital.

Lansing—Dr. R. L. Olin, Michigan commissioner of health, has been elected secretary and treasurer of the conference of state and provincial health authorities of North America. He also has been chosen as secretary of the executive council, succeeding Dr. C. St. Clair Drake, commissioner of health of Illinois.

Baldwin—A 150-pound buck got his horns tangled in the woven wire railroad fence a mile east of here and was found by section men just after he had broken his neck. They skinned the carcass and salted the meat, but before they could divide it a game warden learned of it and confiscated the hide and meat. The meat was sent to the poor house.

Kalamazoo—Provision making it illegal for a foreigner to become a city official or an employee of the city government was written into the new charter by the commission which was elected last April to revise the city's fundamental law. An amendment permitting department heads to employ aliens who have declared their intentions of becoming citizens was adopted.

Manistee—Oil failed to pacify troubled waters in this instance. Instead it caused trouble. Because, it is alleged, he permitted waste oil and refuse to seep into Manistee river from the gas plant of the Michigan Light company, of which he is manager, Charles S. Kressler was arrested by Police Chief Crady, who, as harbor master, was empowered by the city commission to take whatever steps were necessary to stop the flow. The action followed a verbal clash at the council chamber.

Saginaw—George F. Higgins, of Detroit, unanimously was elected president of the Michigan State Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, at the annual election of officers which closed the state convention held here. Other officers elected were, vice-president, Charles Crandall, Owosso; secretary, Robert Graham, Grand Rapids; treasurer, John N. Richter, of Saginaw. Escanaba was chosen as the location for the 1922 convention. The convention went on record as favoring a state or national system of old age pensions.
