County Fair Approaches

Some of the Fine Attractions Offered at Charlevoix County Fair.

Do you realize that the Charlevoix County Fair is less than one month away? Have you wondered what the attractions at the fair would be this year? You want to know? Well, alright, here goes for part of it at least.

This year's fair will be a musical fair. We are going to give the people of Northern Michigan a good musical treat. Every afternoon and evening three good orchestras will play popular and classical music. There will be an orchestra in the grand stand, one in the band stand and one located in the heart of the midway on a specially constructed platform. One of these orchestras will be the New Metropole Orchestra of East Jordan. This organization is well known throughout Northern Michigan, it being the favored orchestra for all of the best dances in this district. These boys are all Charlevoix County boys, but they sure can make your toes tingle with their dance music. At the fair they will have their full orchestra of six pieces. Fischer's Orchestra of Kalamazoo is the second one. Fischer's Orchestras have a national reputation. We had one of them at last year's fair and it certainly went with the crowd. Fischer says that you don't have to dance to our music, just get on and ride and when he says that he has said it all. These boys are real musicians. Their program is varied and they play music to suit the taste of everyone. Just what orchestra will be the third one isn't definitely decided. The Association is making an earnest effort to get the Philippine String Band. This organization was brought over to this country for the San Francisco Exposition and has been playing in the United States ever since. If we succeed in getting them we can assure our patrons that they will hear good music that is different and which will be more than satisfying. If we do not get the Philippine String Band we will have an orchestra of equal merit and probably something along this same line.

Each evening of the fair from 7:00 to 8:00 there will be a musical program at the fair grounds by the three orchestras followed by dancing both in the Educational Building at the Fair grounds and in the Armory down town. Announcement will be made later as to just what orchestras will play at the two dance halls. We have hired these orchestras for day and evening and we intend to use them all the time and to fill you brim full of music. So much for this one feature. Of course we have secured free attractions and we are going to have the best series of ball game ever played and horse races every day of the fair and there will be an aeroplane buzzing around all day long with the prospects of a daily parachute jump from it and the exhibition buildings will be filled with exhibits and there will be speaking and educational programs in various parts of the grounds and the crowds will be there and the hot-dog-man and the merry-ground and now and then a tent show and the man with the balloons, banners and confetti, and everything like that. But we haven't space enough to tell you all about it this week. Next week we will tell you about the free attractions. Just remember that this fair is held the 12th to 16th of September at East Jordan, and that you want to be there and that you are going to be there.

FRIDAY EXCEPTS M. A. C. POST

New College Executive Will Assume His Duties January 1.

Lansing—Professor David Friday of the University of Michigan was elected president of the Michigan Agricultural college at the meeting last week of the state board of agriculture and will assume his duties January 1. The salary of President-elect Friday will be $12,000 a year.

Professor Friday has been connected with the economics department of the University of Michigan for several years.

President Kedzie will retire September 1 but will probably accept one of the important places on its faculty. The board has arranged with Professor Shaw to remain in charge until the new president takes the office.

SCHOOL EXHIBITS BEING PREPARED FOR COUNTY FAIR.

Supt. Duncanson of our Public Schools is busy lining up the various exhibits of our schools to be entered at the Charlevoix County Fair.

The boys and girls of our schools are urged to get their offerings in agriculture, manual training and domestic science ready and list same with Mr. Duncanson at the high school building.

EAST JORDAN DEFEATS PETOSKEY TEAM IN SLOW GAME.

In a game of base ball featured by considerable "rag chewing" on the part of the Petoskey team, that team was defeated by East Jordan by a 13 to 6 score on their home grounds last Sunday. East Jordan secured 25 hits and Petoskey 13. Batteries for East Jordan—Sedgman and Hayes; Petoskey—Strand and Slocum. Each pitcher struck out 6. Time 2½ hours. Umpire Goodwin of Clarion.

Next Sunday, Aug. 28th, Charlevoix plays East Jordan at the fair grounds here. The two teams are evenly matched and it will probably be one of the hardest fought games of the series as both East Jordan and Charlevoix are anxious to fatten their League standing by winning this game. The game will be called at 2:30. Admission 35 cents. Tickets may be secured at Bulow Bros.

PICRIC ACID TO HELP CLEAR MICHIGAN LAND

A big boost for Michigan's land clearing operations has been guaranteed by the allotment to the state of 624,000 pounds of Picric Acid. This explosive, war salvaged material secured by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will be distributed to farmers at cost, plus the freight from the government arsenal at Sparta, Wisconsin.

The allotment of "Picric Acid" is expected to clear 9,000 or more acres, estimates naming 70 pounds as the amount of the acid required for the average acre. While this is but a small percentage of the thousands of acres in the state needing clearing, the use of the explosive is expected to provide a stimulus for all similar work in Michigan.

Cost of the Picric Acid will be low, it is said, running at only seven cents a pound, in addition to the freight. The distribution is to be handled through the county agricultural agents, under the direction of L. F. Livingston, land clearing specialist of the M. A. C. Extension Division.

"Our estimates place the average increase in the value of cutover lands, after the stumps are removed, at about thirty-five dollars an acre," says J. W. Weston, county agent leader for the Upper Peninsula. "A man can really make more money clearing his land with this explosive than he can in producing crops."

Most of the Picric Acid will go to northern sections of the state, where the need is greatest for clearing work.

STATE RANKED HIGH IN BOYS CLUB WORK

With an enrollment of nearly 10,000 in Boys and Girls club work, Michigan ranks second in the entire northern half of the United States. Statistics for 1920, just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, show Indiana in the lead with this state a close second.

Michigan stands first in two important phases of the club program—handicraft work and hot lunch preparation; while in three others—gardening, canning and garment making, the Wolverine youths take second place among the 33 northern and western states.

Of the 9,919 members enrolled in the state, 2,491 are entered in Wayne County, Detroit's large garden clubs boosting the number up. Other counties where club work is especially strong are Kent, Bay, Calhoun, Gogebic and Lenawee, although the club program (which is the junior extension work at the Michigan Agricultural College) covers the entire state.

Garden clubs have proved far and away the most popular during the last year, according to R. A. Turner, state club leader, more than half of all the Michigan enrollment coming under this division.

Lines to Be Remembered. It is always right that a man should be able to render a reason for the faith that is in him.—Sydney Smith.

New Com'r of Co. Schools

Archie C. Belding Succeeds Miss May L. Stewart.

(From Charlevoix Sentinel) By appointment made by Judge of Probate S. A. Correll, Prosecuting Attorney E. A. Rueggesser and County Clerk Richard Lewis, Wednesday, the position of Commissioner of Schools, will be filled by Archie C. Belding, a former commissioner in Antrim county, where for three years he successfully, and to his credit superintended the school work in our neighboring county.

Mr. Belding, for some years was a successful superintendent of schools and during his school work was recognized as one of the best educators in the state, and it was due to his recognized ability that he was elected to the office of commissioner of schools in Antrim county, from which he retired after three successful years, to engage in business other than educational work, for himself.

Experience is credited with being the best of teachers and if the axiom holds true, Mr. Belding should prove a worthy successor to Miss Stewart, who recently resigned to accept a position with the State Educational Department. He has had years of experience, holds a life certificate, and as stated above has ability to perform the work that comes under his jurisdiction.

For the present his address will be Wallon Lake, where teachers and school officials can secure such information relative to school work as they may deem essential and expedient.

The school year will soon open and Mr. Belding will be prepared to meet and care for special engagements as they arise and use his best effort to promote the welfare of the corps of teachers in the county, and maintain the schools on a high plane.

CITIZENS' PHONE RATES RAISED

Commission Authorizes Increase Averaging About 15 Per Cent.

Lansing—Telephone rates in all exchanges of the Citizens' Telephone company, except in Grand Rapids, were increased by an order of the state public utilities commission issued August 19. The average increase is 15 per cent and the new rates are effective October 1.

The company had asked that its rates be increased to the level of the Michigan Telephone company, which would have meant a raise of about 25 per cent, but the request was denied.

C. B. WARREN LEAVES FOR JAPAN

New Ambassador to Take Up His New Work in the Orient.

Detroit.—Charles B. Warren of this city, who was appointed recently by President Harding as ambassador to Japan, left here August 25 for San Francisco from where he will sail on August 31 for the Orient where he will take up his new work.

Accompanying Mr. Warren to Tokio were Mrs. Warren and their three sons, also an American tutor for the Warren children.

RATE HEARING SET FOR SEPT. 2

Bell Telephone Company Rates in Detroit May Be Reduced.

Lansing.—The public utilities commission, acting on its own motion, has issued an order requiring the Michigan State Telephone company to appear September 2, to show cause why its rates in the city of Detroit should not be reduced.

Under this order, the whole question of rates and service in Detroit will be reopened.

"Peace Portal" to Be Dedicated.

Blaine, Wash.—Dedication of a huge "Peace Portal," built across the boundary line between Canada and the United States here will take place September 6. The portal was built to commemorate the century or more of peace between Canada and the United States. The dedication will be attended by representatives of the Canadian, French and American governments, as well as by hundreds of residents of British Columbia and the Pacific Northwest.

As She Saw the Elephant.

Little Catherine, aged four, saw an elephant at a circus for the first time. Looking at it, she exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, look at the fat horse with a tall near his eyes."

Premium Lists Now Ready

Advertisements in This Book Indicate A District Fair.

The Charlevoix County Fair's Premium List is off the press and being distributed this week. The Association wishes to take this opportunity to thank those who advertised in this year's Premium List, to urge the patrons of the Association to give preference to our advertisers. We feel that the Premium List is a good medium for advertising. Some of the merchants in the county think otherwise. We wish you would help us impress upon those merchants the value of the Premium List as a means of advertising.

A glance through the Premium List will bring forcibly to the mind of every one the fact that the Charlevoix County Fair is a County Fair. At least it is in this much. Perhaps the advertising indicates that it is more than a county fair and is in fact a district fair. The Premium List contains advertising from Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan, Traverse City and Petoskey. The three cities in the County each have an adv. One of the farm Associations (the other two should be represented). All kinds of merchandise, trees, flowers, automobiles, guns, registered cattle, hotels, banking, newspapers, electricity, in fact everything for the farm, home and community is advertised in this Premium List.

The Association has had twelve hundred of these Premium Lists printed. It sent one to each exhibitor at last year's fair, and has placed others in the banks and business houses of the County where anyone interested may help himself or if you will write to the Secretary at East Jordan, he will very gladly send you a copy. The premiums offered are larger than those offered by most county fairs and if you have anything to exhibit it will pay you to get it to the fair and remember that if you do get a premium it will mean a great deal to you in as much as competition in all departments is keen and the Judges are all experts in their particular line and are all disinterested and impartial.

A first premium given at the Charlevoix County Fair is valuable. It shows that you have the best article in its class in the county. We hope this year that everyone having articles, fruit, vegetables or stock of merit will make an earnest effort to exhibit them at the fair. We are doing the best we know in order to give you a good fair, but we cannot do this unless each one of you does your part.

Here's to the best fair with your help which has ever been held in Charlevoix County.

Very truly yours,
CHARLEVOIX COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A LESSON IN ARITHMETIC ON GOOD ROADS

Teacher.—First class in arithmetic will please take their place.

Question—If it takes automobiles, wagons and trucks in Charlevoix Co. 12 years to wear 3-32 of an inch on a G. C. R. (good concrete road) how many years will it take to wear an inch? Answer—128 years. Correct. By what rule did you arrive at your conclusion?

Ans.—By common sense, horse sense and the rules governing the problem. Does this not indicate that it is a crime to fool our money away building anymore G. and S. S. and S. T. roads (gravel and soft stuff and saw tooth, on the sides of the road, scholars? One of these days YOU will be building roads yourselves and if you will watch the roads which have been built—I'll bet dollars to doughnuts you won't build any of the G. and S. S. and S. T. roads because you will see as you grow to manhood that the concrete roads built 12 years ago are still in good condition and the others have had to be repaired all the time and rebuilt several times.

What's that you say my little boy? Excuse me, teacher, we would not have to rebuild them. Why not? Because we'll build all concrete unless something better is discovered.

Teacher—That's right my boy, you are much wiser now, than the men of today are.

Camel's Hump a Delicacy.

Like veal in color, and beef in taste, the camel's hump is a favorite delicacy among the Arabs.

Albert Rebec Laid To Rest

Remains Were Brought From Overseas to East Jordan.

The remains of Private Albert Martin Rebec, who was killed in action in overseas service, arrived here latter part of last week.

Funeral services, in charge of Rebec-Sweet Post American Legion, were held from St. John's Catholic Church in Jordan township, Monday, Aug. 22, conducted by the pastor, Fr. Drinan, interment at the Catholic cemetery there.

Albert Martin Rebec was born Oct. 21, 1897, at the Bohemian Settlement in Jordan township, and was killed in action during the Argonne engagement, Oct. 8, 1918. He leaves besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Rebec, the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. Frank Wanek of Boyne City, Mrs. Walter Woodcock of East Jordan, Miss Mary Rebec of Petoskey, Neta Rebec Sophia Rebec and William Rebec at the home in Jordan township.

The following article, written by Private Roland Gross of Boyne City from Horhausen, Germany, Jan 17, 1919 to his sister, gives an account of his death.

"I am going to tell you the little story of his death, as I happened to be near him at the time of his being wounded and was with him until he passed away. It is certainly a pitiful story so get ready to weep."

I would not say anything about it tho or let anyone else read this, as it might get out to his folks and would only bring back painful thoughts and sad memories, though would like to publish it to let the folks know how our boys give up their lives over here and make the Supreme Sacrifice, and it is no more than right and Christian—like that we give the brave dead all the credit that is their just dues, and indeed it can't be too much. Now to begin, for I think I have kept you in suspense long enough. It was while we were putting in that long trick on the historic old Argonne Front, our second Battalion post of command, to which Albert and I were attached, was located among a cluster of little mounds. We had not been there long, before the Dutch found our location. We were right in the open near the road and Fritz had all the advantages of observation in the world. He could look right down upon our position from higher territory and of course could see very plainly everything which took place, and take it from me, it was not very long before he came to the conclusion that this little cluster of mounds was a position of some consequence, and he presented us with the most beastly barrage, it was ever my please to go thru. Guns of half a dozen different sizes and calibers threw their missiles of hell among us, killing and burying men all around.

When the worst was over, which, however was not for a solid hour after it began, we that could, crawled out of our little holes to look after the wounded and dig out those that were buried, on getting up, we heard someone calling for help, so we went over there and found the fellow to be slightly wounded. We knew he had been in the same hole with Albert, so we went over to see and there we found Albert sitting in a half upright posture, with his legs partly buried. He did not say much except an occasional "Oh! Lord" and he looked rather pale.

We thought he was pretty badly wounded, and we began to dig him out and when half through, the Lieutenant reached up and took a hold of Albert's wrist to feel his pulse, Albert looked up with a slight smile, and said "I am still living, Lieutenant," seemed to know that he was not going to live long and when the digging operations were over we found just how badly he was hurt. A shell had struck on the edge of his hole crushing and burying his legs, one arm and shoulder were also pretty badly smashed, but when we took him out of the hole he never let a whimper out of him. I suppose that was due to the fact that he was numb all the way thru his body, and was unable to feel anything.

He asked for a drink of water, and I brought a canteen, and knelt down beside him and let him drink all he wanted. When he got all he could drink, he said: "Thanks Gross." I could see then the shadows of Death creeping in to his eyes and knew him to be a Catholic, so I told him to say a couple of little prayers after me, which he did. Then we put him on a stretcher, and some of the bearers started with him to the first Aid Station, but I think he died before he reached there.

Such is the way the brave boys sacrifice their lives in France."

Parking Autos Now Solved

Charlevoix Co. Fair Ass'n Explains Proposed Plan.

For several years past the question of what to do with automobiles on the grounds at fair times has been a serious one with the Association and a companion to this one has been how to get money to make improvements on the fair grounds which are badly needed. At each meeting of the Directors of the Fair Association for the past three years these two problems have been discussed. There is plenty of room on the fair grounds for all the automobiles which will be driven to the fair and with a proper force of men they could be parked in such a manner that each man could get out his car and leave when he desired instead of being placed in the situation of having to wait until the cars back of him leave before he could leave. The solution to that problem then seemed to be to hire men to properly park the automobiles. This meant a big expense and the Association did not see where it could get this money. To the other question of new buildings and improvements on the grounds there seemed to be but one solution and that was to plan some way of raising more money. New grand stands and Floral Halls and Bloachers and a new cattle building in a year or two, an exhibition ring for live stock and a few other necessary improvements does not just grow. They have to be built and it takes money to build them. Through discussing these two problems together a possible solution for both was finally arrived at and it was decided to try out this solution this year. It is this: Charge each automobile entered into the grounds an admission of $ .50. In return for this .50 give the automobile owner service, park his car for him so that he can get it out at any time. At the same time give the car owner adequate police protection. Use the money derived from this source for paying the force of men who will do the parking, keep the balance in a separate fund to be used only for improvements on the fair grounds. So Mr. Carowner when you are asked by the gate keeper for fifty cents to admit your car to the grounds realize that the fair Association is simply charging you for value received and that a large portion of your half dollar will be used in making improvements which you have long wished would be made. Dig up cheerfully. They do it at other fairs where they don't get near so much for their money.

AT THE TEMPLE THEATRE NEXT WEEK

Alice Brady in "The Land of Hope" will be the attraction Sunday. You will behold a powerfully realistic and colorful story of two young immigrants out of the horde of strange people entering the gates of our country which carries them from the picturesque scenes at Ellis Island through the difficult days of finding a living in the great city whither they had come to final success and happiness as American citizens. A clean powerful picture which you owe it to yourself and family to see.

Wednesday—Eileen Percy in "Big Town Ideas" the story is all about a railroad lunch counter girl, who, while ministering to mans' inner wants, secretly cherishes one great ambition to see that grand and wicked New York One day while engaged on a stack of wheat she overhears a conversation, gets to the heart of a big bond robbery, earns a handsome reward, and sees the great New York on the arm of a blushing groom whom she saved from prison.

Saturday, Family Night is becoming more popular every week. Hoot Gibson will be seen in "The Wild West" which is a real western. Eileen Sedwick in "The Diamond Queen" is getting better every week, and Saub Pollard is like one of the family in his comedy. The News Weekly will show the American pioneer locomotive running on its own steam. Berlin style reformers censor the womans short skirts. Aviations most daring feat, cranking a plane in mid air, and many other interesting features.

Michigan News Tensely Told

Ann Arbor—Dental hygiene will be added to the course at the University of Michigan this fall.

Ann Arbor—The "Old Washtenaw" hotel, built in 1832 and used for many years as a tavern, has been condemned by City Engineer Sandenburgh as unsafe and unsanitary.

Escanaba—Two children met violent deaths in the Herman Brammer home at Nahma in a week. Calvin, 6 years old, was drowned while playing on logs, and his two-year-old sister was poisoned by taking pills which she found in the house.

Bay City—Jitney fares in Bay City have been reduced to 5 cents cash or six tickets for a quarter. The reduction is the result of increased business since street car service was discontinued when the Bay City-Saginaw Railway Co. went into receivership.

Battle Creek—Frank Holt, well known Climax farmer, struck and fatally injured near his home died in a local hospital without regaining consciousness. Mr. Holt's automobile stalled on a Grand Trunk crossing and was struck by an engine. The automobile was thrown nearly 50 feet.

Nashville—Three persons were killed and three injured, one quite seriously, at a crossing near here when a Michigan Central passenger train struck and demolished an automobile which had been stalled on the track. The dead are: Mrs. Otis Farr, Mrs. Eli Chatfield and three-months-old baby of Vermontville.

Saginaw—Alvin E. Best, a member of the board of county auditors, has been removed by Circuit Judge E. B. Snow when an order of ouster was issued on quo warranto proceedings instituted by Riley E. Crane, prosecuting attorney. Best is not a citizen of the United States, and on these grounds the prosecutor proceeded to remove him.

Kalamazoo—With an enrollment of 1,628 students, the Western State Normal here has broken all previous summer school attendance records this year. Of the students, 1,572 are from Michigan, while Alabama, California, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Ohio, Oklahoma, West Virginia and Wisconsin also are represented.

Pontiac—Leroy Aitken, 16, saved the life of his two-year-old niece from drowning when the girl fell into a cistern. The boy had been drawing water from the cistern through a hole in the floor and had left the room for a moment. He plunged in after the child and pulled her out. The fire department sent a pulmotor, which revived the child.

Battle Creek—Joseph Mellinger, is dead from the result of a gunshot wound received while playing with Cecil Ronk and Willie McCutcheon. It is said that the McCutcheon boy put an old shell in an empty revolver and asked the Ronk lad to try it. He did, pointing it at the bed on which Mellinger was sitting. The bullet entered the brain, making it impossible to operate.

Lansing—Curiosity that led Fred Williams, 18, to climb a city electric light pole at the grounds of a carnival resulted in his death. Witnesses say that Williams' attention was attracted by flashes from the chain by which the electric light is raised and lowered. Hardly had he reached his perch and reached out for the chain when he gave a sharp cry and his body hung limp.

Ann Arbor—Plans for a men's dormitory to house 150 students at the University of Michigan have been announced here by the Rev. Michael Bourke, Catholic chaplain. The structure will be four stories high, having an assembly, reading rooms and individual rooms for each student, and will cost about $250,000. It will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1922. Work on the building will begin in the spring.

Lansing—All important crops, except corn, are below the 10-year average in Michigan, according to a monthly report compiled by Verne H. Church, of the Federal Bureau of Crop Statistics. Heat and drought are blamed by the report for this unprecedented condition. The only consolation offered by the report is the fact that comparison shows that Michigan has not suffered more severely than other states.

Pontiac—Forty-four years in the continuous service of the Pontiac police force is the record of Capt. John Fitzgerald, the city's veteran officer. It was in 1877 that Capt. Fitzgerald first accepted a position as Pontiac's police force. He was literally the whole force, because Pontiac was little more than a village and the town marshal looked after the city in the day time, while Capt. Fitzgerald patrolled the streets at night.

Richland—Mrs. Helen M. Barrett, believed to be the only original daughter of the Revolution still living, recently celebrated her ninetieth birthday here. Mrs. Barrett's father, Johannes Van Dolson, was born in New York city in 1762. When only sixteen years old, he became a member of the New York militia and served throughout the American Revolution. He was married three times and was the father of nine children by each of his three wives. The youngest child of the third wife was Mrs. Barrett, born when her father was 78 years old.

Potoskey—A. J. Beese, 78, farmer, almost blind for years, while husking corn suddenly recovered his sight, he says. He can read fine print without glasses now.

Monroe—The bursting of a heavy fly wheel at the River Raisin paper mill caused the death of William C. Ceternick, 48, engineer. The wheel burst when a belt collapsed.

Marcellus—Frank Brown, 62 years old, was walking to the mail box for his mail when he fell and died before medical assistance could reach him. Death was attributed to an attack of apoplexy.

Kalamazoo—The first double military funeral ever held in Kalamazoo was conducted over the bodies of Corporal Franklin Gates and his brother, Private John Gates, who were killed in service in France.

Lansing—Two hundred and sixty-one new state laws became effective last week. They represent that portion of the total of 440 measures enacted by the Legislature this year which were not given immediate effect.

Mt. Clemens—Mrs. Maud Burton, of Roseville, suffered a broken ankle and half a dozen other persons were slightly injured when an air-tank on the ferry boat, Beatrice, burst, showering metal through the passengers' cabin.

Bay City—The Alpena County Farm Bureau which about 10 months ago bought an elevator, later erected another at Ossineke, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here scheduling assets of $16,457 and liabilities amounting to more than $26,000.

Kalamazoo—When a motorist approaching from behind tried to pass C. R. Tetzlaff, of Sturgis, Tetzlaff stepped on the accelerator and lost control of the machine which went into a ditch, seriously injuring Mrs. Tetzlaff, who was brought to a Kalamazoo hospital.

Big Rapids—Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of Michigan from 1913 to 1916, head of the Ferris Institute here and president of the Greater Michigan Development association, was married to Miss Elsie McLeod, of Indianapolis recently. Mr. Ferris' first wife died four years ago. Mr. Ferris is 68 years old last January.

Lansing—For the first time in history, Michigan's tuberculosis death rate has dropped below 80 per cent per 100,000 population. With 1,524 deaths from all forms of the disease reported to the state department of health during the first six months of 1921, Michigan now has a tuberculosis death rate as low as 79.8.

Conklin—As a result of infection from a fish fin prick, Marcus Emmons died at his home near here. He received the wound while fishing on Cranberry lake about 3 months ago and when infection set in was taken to a Grand Rapids hospital, where he stayed until physicians gave up his case as hopeless a short time ago.

Lansing—Fred W. Orr, yard conductor at the North Lansing station of the Michigan Central railroad, died as a result of injuries received when the railroad yard engine on which he was riding, collided at a street intersection with an automobile. At the time of the accident, the yard conductor was riding on the tender of the engine.

Manistee—Contract for the construction of the dairy and salt building and two warehouses for the new Ruggles & Rademaker salt plant has been let, building to begin at once. The costs will aggregate $1,000,000. Docks and railroad facilities will also be constructed. Ruggles & Rademaker aim to make their plant the biggest salt producing institution in the world.

Monroe—A first mortgage deed of trust of $2,200,000 from the River Raisin paper company, of this city, and running to the Cleveland Trust Company, of Cleveland, and Security Trust company of Detroit, has been filed here. The state and county tax totalled $11,000 and the stamps $1,100. The money derived will be used in connection with the paper business and improvements, it is said.

Manistee—One of the biggest real estate deals in some time here was consummated when 1,000 acres of resort property at Portage Pointe, belonging to the Portage Park Land company, were sold to the Regal Real Estate company, of Chicago. This company proposes to develop this tract which contains hundreds of resort lots, as a resort colony and also to investigate the bed of oil underneath.

Olivet—Three serious accidents occurred in Olivet, within a few hours of each other. Clyde Ball, a business man, was driving a delivery car when he was seized with an attack of dizziness and drove his car off a steep embankment. He had several ribs broken and received various cuts and bruises. Robert Kellogg, former mill owner, broke his arm while cranking his car, and Willard Love, the two-year-old son of Scott Love, was stepped on by a horse.

Lansing—Special contracts existing between the Peninsular Electric Light company, of Detroit, a subsidiary sales organization of the Detroit Edison company, and manufacturers in Detroit, were annulled and declared to be of no effect by an order issued by the public utilities commission. A number of Detroit manufacturers have contracts under which they receive electricity for less than the rates authorized by the commission. These contracts were made before the 1920 increases in the company's rates were put into effect.

MARKET REPORT

FURNISHED BY U. S. BUREAU OF MARKETS, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Grain Market undertone reasonably firm early part of week under export buying and strong cash market but weakness in coarse grains unsettled foreign exchange and weakness in stock market acted as bearish influences remainder of week. General liquidation on last day of week resulted in material declines for all grains bringing corn futures down to lowest point at this season of year since 1908. Wheat export sales continued good. Country offerings of wheat were moderate during week; offerings of corn were liberal in Chicago market. No. 2 Red winter wheat closed at $1.18; No. 2 hard at $1.20; No. 2 mixed corn at 54 cents; No. 2 yellow at 54 cents; No. 2 white at 54 cents. For the week Chicago Sept. wheat lost 7 3-4c, closing at $1.16 5-8; Sept. corn lost 4 3-4c, closing at $1.12 1-2; Minneapolis September wheat lost 8 cents, closing at $1.24 3-4; Kansas City September lost 7 1-2c, closing at $1.08 3-4. Chicago December wheat closed at $1.17 1-2; December corn closed at $1.22 3-4. Kansas City December wheat closed at $1.09 1-4.

Hay Market easier. Heavier receipts at western markets past few days depressed prices as there was practically no shipping demand and arrivals were slightly in excess of local demand. Eastern and southern markets were also weak with demand poor. Quoted August 17th: No. 1 timothy, New York $30.50, Cincinnati $21.50, St. Louis $20.00, Minneapolis $19.00, Kansas City $18.00, Omaha $17.00, St. Paul $16.00, Chicago $15.00. No. 1 alfalfa: Memphis $22.50, Minneapolis $20.00, Omaha $18.50, St. Paul $17.50, Chicago $17.00.

Feed Demand and production light. Prices of most feeds, particularly oil meals held steady except bran, which was weak. Receipts of feed grain being greater than for several seasons, due to dull eastern demand and small sales to feed manufacturers. Stocks are fair, movement for receipts light. Quoted August 18: bran $13.75, middlings $14.50, Minneapolis; No. 1 alfalfa meal $10.00, Kansas City $9.00, St. Louis $8.50, Omaha $8.00, Chicago $7.50. Linseed meal $39 Minneapolis; white hominy feed $24 St. Louis; gluten feed $30.50 Chicago.

Dairy Products Butter markets weak following unsettled feeling past week. Certain advances in all markets were made but with declines on August 17th and 18th prices are from 1c to 1 1/2c below a week ago. Temporary firmness marked trading on one or two days because of fairly liberal buying but as dealers stocks are again ample for many weeks demand was light at close of week. Ninety-two score prices August 16: New York 42 1-2c; Philadelphia 43c; Boston 43 1-2c; Chicago 39 cents.

Fruits and Vegetables Increased potato supplies from New Jersey shipping sections checked moderately advancing prices in eastern markets. Receipts of potatoes from the west declined 15 to 20 cents per 100 pounds during the week, closing $3.16@3.25. Demand and movement are reported improving. New crop beginning to appear. Sacked cobblers range $3.75@3.95 per 100 lbs. Sacked early Ohio closed slightly lower in Kansas City around $3.00. White varieties were firm in midwestern markets, closing $3.50@3.75 per 100 pounds. California Salmon Tint cantaloupes, $2.75@3.00; watermelons, $2.25@2.50; fat ewes $3.25@5.25. Stocker and feeder shipments from 11 important markets during the week ending August 12 were: Cattle and calves 59,338; hogs 3,555; sheep, 36,338. With the exception of veal eastern wholesale fresh meat prices were generally lower. Beef declined 5c to $1.50; lamb and pork loins $1.62. With mutton was steady to 1c lower per 100 lbs. At most markets veal ranged from $1.62 higher. Live Stock and Meats Despite a moderate recovery in the hog market August 18, closing prices at Chicago showed net declines ranging from 25c to 41c per cwt. compared with a week ago. Beef steers were 25 cents lower with butcher cows and heifers ranging from steady to 25 cents lower. Light weight feeding steers were 50 cents higher with others steady. Fat lambs, fat ewes and yearlings were practically unchanged. Better grades of feeding lambs were 50 cents higher. August 18th Chicago prices: Hogs top $10, bulk of sales $8.15@8.85; medium and good beef steers $7.95@8.75; butcher cows and heifers $3.50@4.75; feeder steers $5.50@7.00; light and medium weight veal calves $7.50@9.25; fat lambs $8.50@10.75; feeding lambs $6.75@7.50; yearlings $6.25@6.50; fat ewes $3.25@5.25. D. A. R. TO HONOR INDIAN TREATY

WILL VISIT PLACES OF HISTORICAL LORE AUGUST 29 ASCENTENARY PILGRIMAGE.

TERMS OF TREATY INTERESTING

In Addition to Cash Payment, U. S. Promised Indians a "Blacksmith and Teacher."

Three Rivers, Mich.—In honor of the 100th anniversary of the Chicago treaty, Daughters of the American Revolution on August 29 will make a "centenary pilgrimage," following old Indian trails and visiting places of historical lore.

Under the Chicago treaty, signed at Fort Dearborn, chiefs of the Ottawa, Chippewa and Pottawatomie tribes ceded their land to the government, thus bringing to a close their battle with the "white men."

The D. A. R.'s itinerary for the pilgrimage follows the Cassaway and Gibson trading post and the Sac's war trail, the Jacksonburg road, the Chicago trail, Bucks, Moab, Eschol, Waungan-seepo ford, Dowling trading post, Fort Hogan, Appietree ford, Beisel, Puddleburg and Marantatte trading post.

The Chicago treaty was signed by the authorized commissioners, General Lewis Cass and Solomon Sibley, surrounded by more than 60 Indian warriors, as they pledged the word of the United States government to three uncivilized nations.

The terms of the treaty are interesting. The United States promised the Ottawa nation $1,000 in specie annually forever and $1,500 annual for ten years for the support of a "Blacksmith and a Teacher and a person to instruct the Ottawas in agriculture." The Pottawatomie nation was to receive $5,000 annually for 20 years and $1,000 for 15 years for a "Blacksmith and a Teacher."

The Indians granted the United States the privileges of constructing a road from Chicago to Detroit by way of Ft. Wayne along the Indian trail now known as the Chicago road.

The treaty ceded the territory which lies between Lake Michigan and the grants of 1807 and 1817; from the Grand river south to the Indian state line includes many places of commercial importance, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo; Niles, St. Joseph, Three Rivers, Hastings, Allegan, Marshall and Coldwater. The proclamation of the Chicago Treaty occurred March 22, 1822.

USE KNIFE TO MAKE CANCER PAINLESS

U. of M. Surgeons Give Relief in Hopeless Cases.

Special to the Free Press. Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 20—Admittedly one of the most terrifying things about cancer is the pain that accompanies it, especially in its last stages. In two instances lately, surgeons in the University hospital here have successfully relieved this pain by an operation known to the medical profession as chondrotomy, which, while it does not attempt to cure the disease and only performed where there is no hope of ultimate cure, does relieve the patient of practically all pain. The operation has been performed ten times in the history of medicine, it is said, the two most recent attempts being operations performed here. The operation consists of opening the spinal canal at a point just below the line of the shoulders, and cutting the "tracts," which carry the pain sensation. These "tracts" are so small that they can only be seen through a microscope. The spinal cord also carries other nerve "tracts" which are vitally necessary to the life of the body and the danger lies in the fact that if the knife varies a minute fraction the patient would be paralyzed or weakened vitally.—Detroit Free Press, Sunday August 21, 1921.

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"A CERTAIN PARTY."

"H OW do you know that that is so?" "A certain party told me."

The foregoing conversation was overheard recently. The second speaker should have said: "A certain person told me," not, "a certain party."

This use of the word "party" for "person" is quite common. But it is condemned by all authorities on English grammar as being incorrect. Some, indeed, go so far as to call it vulgar.

It should be remembered, however, that the word "party" meaning an individual, has a proper place in English. We may speak of "a party to a contract," or "the party of the first part," or "the parties to the marriage." Woolley's "Handbook of Composition" gives the following sentence as an example of the correct use of the word: "The parties to the marriage were both young." The following is given as incorrect: "The party who wrote that article must have been a scholar." (Copyright.)

STATE FAIR'S FUN PROGRAM BIG ONE

MIDWAY TO SCINTILLATE WITH GAY OFFERINGS; BANDS; VAUDEVILLE.

The program of fun and entertainment to be offered to visitors to the 1921 state fair at Detroit, September 2-11, is so plentifully supplied with headline features that it will be impossible for any one to find a dull moment during his stay on the grounds.

The Midway will scintillate with gay attractions of every known sort. A lot of new ones included in the list by the great World-At-Home shows will furnish plenty of novelty for everyone. You will be able to ride on a merry-go-round or on a seaplane or on "the Whip". You'll see fancy ice skaters on real ice, no matter how hot the weather. Circus acts, wild west acts, barnyard freaks, human freaks, the House of a Thousand Wonders, the House of Mystery, the Garden of Allah—these are but a few of the myriad offerings for the enjoyment of the Midway throngs.

Vaudeville acts, circus acts, singing and other entertainment will be a daily feature, afternoon and evening, in front of the big grandstand when the crowds gather there for the events on the tracks and in the field. These numerous attractions will be supplied to the fair by F. M. Barnes, Inc., of Chicago, the largest fair booking agency in America.

Band concerts will be held in the odeon in the grove daily, before the grandstand and in other parts of the grounds at different times. Three of the finest bands in uniform will be among the regulars that furnish the music. Al. Sweet's White Hussar Band, Earl F. Newberry's Band, and the Highland Park Municipal Band.

You just won't be able to find a minute's time during the entire fair when you cannot be entertained.

Thrills? Go to the state fair in Detroit, Sept. 2-11.

CHARLES T. PRESCOTT.

Tawas City man is the Michigan State Fair Board member in charge of the horse department at the fair in Detroit, Sept. 2-11. A total of $13,267.30 in premium awards will be made in the draft horse division of this department, with 30 per cent added to all premiums won by Michigan exhibitors. Another $4,000 will be distributed to winners in the Horse Show, which will be held this year on the track in the splendid new Horse Show arena. A special program will be arranged for the horses and ponies in the show after the entries are completed and will include exciting events for polo ponies, hunters, jumpers and other bred equines.

High class horses will hold the attention of fair visitors also on the half-mile race track, where there will be six days of racing for harness horses, beginning Sept. 5. A total of $12,000 is hung up in purses for the trotters and pacers, including the Michigan Breeders Stakes of $1,000 each for 3-year-old trotters and 3-year-old pacers.

Did you know that the Michigan State Fair took rank last year as the best fair in all America? It will be better still in its next show in Detroit, Sept. 2-11.

It's always safe to talk about the weather—it can't talk back.

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"BLACKGUARD."

IN OLDEN days the palaces of kings and the palaces of nobles were by no means as well furnished and as clean as they are at the present day, and it was customary when members of royalty or the nobility visited each other that the guest should bring with him all his kitchen utensils, pots, pans and even a certain amount of coal. The scullions and lesser retainers had charge of these goods, rode among them, were smuted by them and received the contemptuous appellation of the "black guard." In time the word came to be understood—as meaning any troop or company of ragamuffins, and finally, when its original application had been buried in the lore of centuries, it was applied to a single person as an epithet of opprobrium—as being synonymous with a rogue or rascal who would stop at nothing in order to gain his ends.

It was in the earlier sense, however, that Dryden used the term as a stage-direction in his play "Don Sebastian." "Enter the captain of the rabble with his black guard at his heels," and Fuller likewise spoke of the "devil's black guard" in the Crusades as meaning the number of thieves, debtors and runaway-slaves who joined in the Holy war.

THE TRAINED NURSE.

NURSING is going to be a greater opportunity for the right woman than ever before in the history of medicine.

There is going to be better regulation of working hours and an advance in salary. For the demand is exceeding the supply and inducements to take up the profession must necessarily grow more attractive.

If you want to be a nurse it is your duty to take the training, for you are wanted, and your work waits for you.

In some of our states there are no laws making the registration of nurses compulsory. Because of this, untrained or partly trained women compete with the trained nurse for private work. Laws must be passed that will alter these things for the better. The Red Cross is hoping to demonstrate the need of the properly trained nurse so strongly that every community will be led to demand a proper registration law and a certain degree of training for its nurses.

In choosing your training school, be sure that you select a first-class hospital.—You will get infinitely better treatment and your diploma will count for far more.

Nursing is hard work, but for the woman with a vocation it is work that she loves. A graduate nurse is a valuable member of the community. Her standing is secure, and she can be sure of a good income. In her professional life she is thrown with men and women of high caliber. If you have any leaning that way, it is worth much effort to get started.

SUMMERY FOODS.

DISHES easy of digestion and those refreshing as well as easy to prepare are those that interest us during the warm days.

Creamed Chicken in Crown of Rice.
For a crown mold holding one pint of material, wash a scant cupful of rice and cook in one quart of chicken broth, in whole or part. Salt, using one-half teaspoonful. When done butter the mold and pack in the rice. Set the mold on several folds of paper in a dish of boiling water and let cool until the filling is ready. Melt one-fourth cupful of butter. In it cook one-fourth of a cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful each of salt and pepper, a scant pint of liquid, broth or milk, one or both. Fill the center with the creamed chicken and serve at once.

Sardine Hors d'Oeuvre.
Cut Boston brown bread into rounds. Cut out a thin round one-eighth of an inch from the edge. Fill this open space between the two with sardines skinned and boned, seasoned with lemon juice, salt and paprika and Worcestershire sauce mixed together. Salt a slice of hard-cooked egg at the center and a row of capers around the edge.

Coffee and Tapioca Trifle.
Have ready two cupfuls of clear strained coffee and one-half cupful of pearl tapioca. Cook the tapioca with the coffee until well done. When done add one-half cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt, turn into glass cups and finish when cold with whipped sweetened cream.

Green Peppers Stuffed With Mutton.
Cold mutton chopped, some of the gravy or sauce with which it was served may be mixed with it, seasoning well and use as a stuffing for green peppers. Cut the peppers in halves or remove the tops; parboil for five minutes; drain and chill, then fill. Bake in a moderate oven basting with broth occasionally.

A PLACE TO TIE.

I'VE noticed afloat and a-tramping,
I've seen it on river and land,
The thing that the most
You need is a post
To tie to when night is at hand,
Some sort of an anchor to hold you,
Some hawser that never will fail,
Some place you can tie
Till the storm has gone by,
To help you to ride out the gale.
So many go foolishly drifting
While rapids are roaring below,
Afloat on the tide
Without compass or guide,
Till down to disaster they go;
The need of us all is an anchor,
A painter to tie to the shore,
Some place to make fast
Till the tempest is past
And the waters are rolling no more.
So many afloat on the river,
The turbulent river of life,
Have only their own
Poor resistance alone
To conquer the trouble and strife.
A fellow needs something to tie to,
His trail o'er the sea or the sod,
Some friend that is true
Who will carry him through—
A woman, a pal, or a God.

How It Started

"A-1"

THE expression "A-1" or "A number 1" came from the insurance rating symbols used by the firm of Lloyd's, in London. In their rating of a ship they considered the hull and the rigging separately. "A" meant "Hull in first-class condition"; "1" was the symbol for perfect rigging. The combination of the two, therefore, meant the highest possible rating.

DANIEL BOONE, THE GREAT KENTUCKIAN

Daniel Boone... (the son of Quaker parents who lived in Pennsylvania. Although the principal doctrine in the Quaker creed is that man must not kill, Daniel departed from the faith of his fathers early and he became one of the greatest Indian fighters in American history.

When Boone was eighteen his parents moved to North Carolina and in the Yadkin valley of that state, young Boone became an expert woodsman and hunter. Attracted by the tales of a hunter who had crossed the Appalachians into the unknown Kentucky country, Boone visited the Blue Grass state several times until he finally decided to make that country his home. In 1775 he established Boonesborough, the first outpost of civilization in the "Dark and Bloody Ground," as Kentucky was called because it was a battleground for many tribes of Indians.

Boone's adventures with the Indians in his new home were innumerable. In 1778 he was captured by the Shawnees, who admired the scout's courage so much that he was not put to death. Instead Chief Black Fish adopted him, giving him the name of "Big Turtle"—rather an inappropriate title for a man so active. Boone pretended to be well-pleased with his captivity and after several months the watchfulness of the savages relaxed. Then he made his escape.

Several years later this same band of Shawnees came to Boonesborough to kidnap their former captive. They found Boone in a little shanty used for drying tobacco.

"Now Boone, we got you," said the Indians. "You no get away this time." "Yes, you have me but I am glad to go with you," replied the scout, "but I want my friends to have some of this tobacco."

He gathered up a number of the driest leaves and, unseen by the Indians, crushed them in his hands. Before they could move, he threw the powdered tobacco into their eyes. As the blinded savages rolled on the floor howling and digging at their eyes, the former "Big Turtle" showed unexpected speed and was far up the trail to the fort before they could pursue him.

In his later years Boone was cheated out of the rich Kentucky lands he had fought so hard to win and he migrated to Missouri, becoming a hunter once more. He died there in 1820 at the age of eighty-six. A quarter of a century later Kentucky paid him belated honor by removing his body to the capital of the state and today Daniel Boone sleeps in the land where he won fame as a pioneer and scout.

SIMON KENTON, THE AMERICAN MAZEPPA

Second only to the name of Daniel Boone—whose life he once saved—is written in the annals of Kentucky the name of Simon Kenton. Kenton was a Virginian who served as a scout in Lord Dunmore's war shortly before the outbreak of the Revolution and who crossed over the mountains into the "Dark and Bloody Ground" of Kentucky in search of adventure. His exploits there soon won for him the undying hatred of the Indians and no less than eight times he was captured by them and sentenced to death.

In 1778 Kenton with two companions went north into Ohio to spy upon a tribe at war with the whites. While returning, they came upon a herd of Indian horses. The Kentuckians resolved to take some of the animals along as trophies of the successful expedition. The Indians quickly discovered the theft and overtook the scouts just before they crossed the Ohio river.

One of the Kentuckians was killed, another escaped but Kenton was taken prisoner.

"You steal Injun boss?" they taunted him. "All right, we give you ride on him!"

So they tied the scout on a wild young horse and set it free in the forest. He finally was taken from the horse's back more dead than alive.

At the first village the Indians reached, they condemned the scout to run the gantlet. When the signal was given, Kenton sprang through the line of warriors, armed with clubs and hatchets, and reached the council house, his goal, almost untouched. Near Zanesfield preparations were made to burn him at the stake, but the arrival of Simon Girty, the "white renegade," who recognized Kenton as an old friend, saved him.

His freedom was short-lived. Three weeks later the Indians again voted to put him to death. Again he was saved by a friend—Chief Logan, the noted orator of the Cayugas. When the Sandusky towns were reached, the Indians held a council and once more decreed the death penalty. Kenton was tied to the stake. Just as the torch was being applied, a British officer appeared and demanded the surrender of their prisoner to his commander at Detroit.

Kenton was kept captive in Detroit until 1779, when through the aid of an Indian trader's wife he escaped to Kentucky where he died in 1836.

"JOHNNY APPLESEED," SCOUT WHO PLANTED ORCHARDS

Not all of the great scouts were Indian fighters. In contrast to the career of Lewis Wetzel, who was something of a professional Indian killer, is the life of John Chapman or "Johnny Appleseed." Chapman never killed an Indian in his life, but he probably saved as many white men from death at their hands as Wetzel did.

Chapman first appeared on the Ohio frontier in 1803. He came floating down the Ohio river in a canoe, towing another, and both boats were loaded with apple seeds from the cider mills of Pennsylvania. His purpose was to plant the seeds in the wilderness so that orchards would be started for the settlers when they arrived there to make their homes.

For the next 30 years he went everywhere up and down the Ohio country, planting seeds, going from one orchard to another, pruning and caring for the young trees. He was a welcome visitor in the log cabins of the settlers for he always carried a Bible and some books from which he would read and preach to them before the blazing fireplaces in the evening.

Johnny practiced his teachings of humility and kindness. He never killed anything for food. He carried a kit of cooking utensils, including a mush pan, which he sometimes wore as a hat. Usually he wore a broad-brimmed black hat, but a coffee sack with arm holes cut in it was his only coat.

White men called him "queer," for he often went barefoot in winter as well as in summer, but the Indians said, "He has been touched by the Great Spirit." He went everywhere among them unharmed, for the fact that Johnny never carried a gun convinced them that he was under the special protection of the Mahito.

During the War of 1812 when the British were overrunning the Ohio country, Johnny Appleseed performed his greatest service for his people. In his wanderings among the tribes he often learned of their plans for attacks on the settlements. Where no other white man could have gone, Johnny passed in safety and more than once he carried warnings to the settlers, giving them time to prepare for defense before the red invaders swept down upon them.

All this time Johnny Appleseed was carrying out his cherished dream of making Ohio bloom with fruit trees and many of the finest orchards in that state today owe their beginnings to this strange man. In his later years Johnny left the country which he had helped beautify and went to live with a relative in Fort Wayne, Ind. He died in 1847.

Nome, Alaska.—Discovery of new oil fields near Wainwright Inlet and Point Barrow on the Arctic coast of Alaska, which it is believed here may rival in importance the MacKenzie river fields of Northern Canada, was reported August 21 by members of a California prospecting party which has been in the district since July 14.

EX-JUROR SEEKS PROTECTION

Home of Former Grand Jury Member Bombed Second Time.

Chicago.—Ferdinand Winkler, 6621 South Lincoln street, is beginning to think that grand jury service is expensive. For the second time within a month his bungalow was partly wrecked by a bomb. "I was on the federal grand jury that indicted 'Big Tim' Murphy," Winkler told the police. "We also handled a few cases of building indictments. That's the only reason I know of why I should be bombed. I'm going to lay the matter before Judge Landis and ask him for government protection."

DAREDEVIL AIR STUNTS GALORE AT STATE FAIR

The world famous aviator, Al Wilson; the Jersey Ringel Aerial Circus; and "The Rileys", balloonists and parachute jumpers, will join in furnishing crowds at the State Fair in Detroit, Sept. 2 to 11, with thrills that will hold them breathless.

The airplane stunts will include looping the loop while standing upright on top of the plane, walking on wings of the plane while in flight, changing from plane to plane in mid-air, racing with motor cars around the mile track, picking up passenger from motor car by airplane, parachute jumps from airplanes and numerous other death-defying acts that require both consummate skill in the handling of the air craft and intrepidity as well as nerves of steel on the part of the stunt artists.

Another spectacular airplane stunt that is beautiful as well as thrilling is night flying with fireworks. This will feature the evening programs at the fair grounds.

Balloon ascensions, always of intense interest, will be featured this year by "The Rileys" special act, a triple parachute jump from a balloon more than a mile up in the air. If you like thrills, you'll get them in heap- ing measure at the state fair.

NOT THE ONLY ONE

There Are Other East Jordan People Similarly Situated.

Can there be any stronger proof offered than the evidence of East Jordan residents? After you have read the following, quietly answer the question.

Erie Farmer, railroad engineer, East Jordan, says: "Seven years ago I had an awful lame back. I had a sore feeling right across the small of my back that stayed with me for days. I had stitches in my back when I wasn't able to move at all and my back was always lame. When I stooped over I could hardly get up again. I surely was in a poor shape. Mornings I felt so tired I hardly had enough strength to get up. Black specks came before me and were so thick at times I couldn't see. Through the night I often had to get up and the secretions were not only painful but always filled with dark sediment. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a few boxes at Gidley & Mac'Drug Store and they fixed me up in good shape." 50c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

By means of this instrument the attractive force of a large metal ball is accurately measured, and by comparing this force with the earth's attraction the mass of the earth may be ascertained.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Here's Grandmother's Recipe to Darken and Beautify Faded Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get the same old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Laughing and Smothered With Roses, She Crept Into View.

Martin, when there was an interruption for Cherry's arrival on the scene. With characteristic coquetry she did not approach, as the others had, by means of the front porch and the garden path, but crept from the study window into a veritable tunnel of green bloom, and came crawling down it, as sweet and fragrant, as lovely and as fresh, as the roses themselves. Her bright head was hidden by a blue sunbonnet, assumed, she explained later, because the thorns tangled her hair; but as, laughing and smothered with roses, she crept into view, the sunbonnet slipped back, and the lovely, flushed little face, with tendrils of gold straying across the white forehead, and mischief gleaming in the blue, blue eyes was framed only in loosened pale gold hair.

Years afterward Alix remembered her so, as Martin Lloyd helped her to spring free of the branches, and she stood laughing at their surprise and still clinging to his hand. "The day we raised the rose tree" had a place of its own in Alix's memory, as a time of carefree fun and content, a time of perfume and sunshine—perhaps the last time of its kind that any one of them was to know.

Cherry looked at Martin daintily as she joined the laborers; her whole being was thrilling to the excitement of his glance; she was hardly conscious of what she was doing or saying. Martin came close to her, in the general confusion.

"How's my little sweetheart this morning?"

Cherry looked up, her throat contracted, she looked down again, unable to speak. She had been waiting for his first word; now that it had come it seemed so far richer and sweeter than her wildest dream.

"How can I see you a minute?" Martin murmured, snapping his big knife shut.

"I have to walk down for the mail," stammered Cherry, conscious only of Martin and herself.

Both Peter and her father were watching her with an uneasiness and suspicion that had sprung into being full-blown. Both men were asking themselves what they knew of this strange young man who was suddenly a part of their intimate little world.

Peter, in his secret heart, had a vague, dissatisfied feeling that Lloyd was a man who held women, as a class, rather in disrespect, and had probably had his experiences with them, but there was no way of expressing, much less governing his conduct toward Martin by so purely speculative a prejudice. Somewhat appalled, in the sunny garden, struggling with the banksia, Peter decided that this was not much to know of a person who might have the audacity to fall in love with an exquisite and innocent Cherry. After all, she would not be a little girl forever; some man would want to take that little corn-colored head and that delicious little pink-clad person away with him some day, to be his wife.

And suddenly Peter was torn by a stab of pure pain, and he stood puzzled and sick, in the garden bed, wondering what was happening to him.

"Listen—want a drink?" Alix asked, coming out with a tin dipper that spilled a glittering sheet of water down the thirsty nasturtiums. "Rest a few minutes, Peter. Dad wanted a pole, and Mr. Lloyd has gone up into the woods to cut one."

"And where's Cherry?" Peter asked, drinking deep.

"She went along—just up in the woods here!" Alix answered. "They'll be back before you could get there. They've been gone five minutes!"

Five minutes were enough to take Cherry and her lover out of sight of the house, enough to have him put his arm about her, and to have her raise her lips confidently, and yet shyly, again to his. They kissed each other deeply, again and again.

Their talk was incoherent. Cherry was still playing, coquetting and smiling, her words few, and Martin, having her so near, could only repeat the endearing phrases that attempted to express to her his love and fervor.

"You darling! Do you know how I love you? You darling—you little exquisite beauty! Do you love me—do you love me?" Martin murmured, and Cherry answered breathlessly:

"You know I do—but you know I do!"

Presently he selected the sapling redwood, and brought it down with two blows of his ax. The girl seated herself beside him, helped him strip the trunk, their hands constantly touching, the man once or twice delaying her for one more snatched and laughing kiss. And Martin said that he was going to make her the happiest wife a man ever had.

Dragging the stripped tree, they ran down the sharp hill to the house just as Anne came out to announce luncheon. Peter was wandering off in the woods nearby, but came at Alix's shrill yell of summons, and looked relieved when he saw Cherry and Martin not even talking to each other. They had been gone only ten minutes.

It was a happy meal for everyone, and after it they had attacked the rose bush again, with aching muscles now, and in the first real summer heat. It was three o'clock before, with a great crackling, and the scream of a twisted branch, and a general panting and heaving on the part of the workers at last the feathery mass had risen a foot—two feet—into the air, had stood tottering like a wall of bloom, and finally, with a downward rush, had settled to its old place on the roof. Hong was pressed into service now; and with Martin, was on the roof, grappling with a rope, shouting directions.

There was a rending, slipping noise on the roof, a scream from Martin, and shouts from the doctor and Peter. With a great sliding and rushing of the refractory sprays, and with a horrifying stumbling and falling, down came Martin, caught in a great rope of the creeper, almost at Cherry's feet.

A time of great running and calling ensued. Cherry dropped on her knees beside him, and had his head on her arm for a moment; then her father took her place, and Alix, with an astonished look at the younger girl's wet eyes, drew her sister away. Immediately afterward Martin sat up, looked bewilderedly about from one face to another, looked at his scratched wrist and said "Gee!" in a thoughtful tone.

"You scared Cherry out of ten years' growth!" Alix reproached Martin.

"I—I thought he might have hurt himself!" Cherry said, in the softest of little-girl voices, and with her shy little head hanging. Anne decided that it was becoming her clear duty to talk to Cherry.

A few minutes later Alix, Peter and Martin left for the daily ceremony of walking into the village for the mail.

The house was very still, early summer sweetness was drifting through wide-opened windows and doors; the long day was slowly declining. Anne peeped into the deserted living room, softened through all its pleasant shabbiness into real beauty by the shafts of sunset red that came in through the casement windows; and was deliberating between various becoming occupations—for Martin might walk back with the girls—when her uncle called her.

"Anne—you weren't there when that young chap tumbled. But I've been worrying about it a little. There's no question—there's no question that she—that Cherry—called him by his name. 'Martin,' she called him."

Anne had crossed to the shadowy doorway; she stood still.

"You've not noticed anything between him and Cherry?" pursued the doctor. "A girl might call a man by his name, I suppose—"

"I don't think there has been anything to notice," Anne stated, in a level tone.

"Well, it must be stopped, if it has begun," decided her uncle. "I can't permit it—I'd forgotten how the little witch grows!"

Again Anne was silent. She was not in love with Martin Lloyd; she was not as susceptible as the much younger Cherry, and she had not had his urging to help her to a quick surrender. But for the first time in her life she had seen an absolutely suitable man, a man whose work, position, looks, name and character fitted her rather exacting standard, and for the first time she had let herself think confidently of being wooed and won.

And, standing in the doorway, she tasted the last bitter dregs of the dream. It was all over. Anne was at the age that sets twenty-five years as the definite boundary of spinsterhood. She would be twenty-five in August.

Alix came in from her walk glowing, and full of a great discovery.

"Dad," she said eagerly, taking her place at the supper table, "what do you think! I'll bet you a dollar that man is falling in love with our Cherry!"

Anne, at the head of the table, looked pained, but there was genuine apprehension in the doctor's face.

"Where is your sister?" he asked.

"Down there by the gate," Alix answered. "They're gazing soulfully into each other's eyes, and all that! Peter went home. But Cherry—with a beautiful! Isn't that the ultimate extension of the limit! I'm crazy about it—I think it's great. I love weddings! This'll be the third I've been to!"

"All this seems to have come up very suddenly," the doctor said, dazedly, ruffling his gray hair with a fine old hand. "I don't imagine your sister is taking it as seriously as you and Anne seem inclined to—"

"Oh, does Anne think so!" Alix exclaimed.

"I think Cherry is one of the fortunate girls destined to drift along the surface of life," Anne said, "and to accept widowhood quite simply. I only wish I were that type—"

She was interrupted by Cherry herself. The girl came to the porch door, and as she hesitated there a minute, with her smiling eyes seeking her father's face, they saw that by one firm, small hand she drew her lover beside her. Martin Lloyd's smiling face showed above hers in the lamplight.

"Dad!" said Cherry, with a childish breath. "Dad! I've brought Martin to supper!"

CHAPTER III.

The three at the table did not move for perhaps twenty slow seconds. Dr. Strickland, who had pushed back his chair, and whose hands were resting on the table before him, stared at them steadily. Anne, with a quick little hiss of surprise, smiled faintly. Alix, the unstiffed, widened her eyes, and opened her mouth in unobscured astonishment. For there was no mistaking Cherry's tone.

"Doctor," said Martin, coming in. "This little girl of yours and I have something to tell you."

The old man looked at him sharply, almost sternly, looked about at the girls' faces, and was silent.

"Are you surprised, Daddy?" Cherry laughed, with all a child's innocent exultation. The next instant Anne and Martin were shaking hands, and Alix had enveloped Cherry in an enthusiastic embrace.

"Surprised!" exclaimed Alix. "Why, aren't you surprised yourself?"

Her sister flushed exultantly, and Martin laughed.

"We're just about knocked silly!" he confessed, and all the girls laughed joyously.

A place was made for Martin, and biscuits and omelet and honey and tea were put into brisk circulation. Cherry took her chair, all dimples, flushes, smiles, and shy confidence.

"And what are your plans?" Anne asked maternally.

Her uncle, who had been silent during the excitement, mildly interposed:

"I think we needn't go too fast, young people! You've only known each other a few weeks, after all; you must be pretty sure of yourselves before taking anything like a decisive step. Plenty of time—plenty of time. Mr. Lloyd here and I must have some talks about his plans—"

"I know exactly how you feel, Doctor," Martin said, sensibly and sympathetically. "I realize that I should have come to you first, and asked to pay my respects to your daughter. Except that it all came over me with such a rush. A week ago Cherry was only a most attractive child, to me. I'd spoken to my aunt about her and had said that I envied the man that was some day to win her, and that was all! Then the time came for me to get back to work—and I found I couldn't go! And then came last night, when I began to say good-byes, and—it happened! I know that you all hardly know me, and I know that Cherry is pretty young to settle down, but I think I can satisfy you, Doctor, that you give her into safe hands, and I believe she'll never regret trusting me!"

He had gotten to his feet as he spoke and was holding the back of his chair, looking anxiously and eagerly into the old man's eyes.

"Well—" said the doctor, touched, in his gentlest tone, "well! It had to come, perhaps. I can't promise her to you very soon, Mr. Lloyd. But if you both are willing to wait, and if time proves this to be the real feeling, I don't believe you'll find me hard on you!"

"That's all I ask, sir!" Martin said, resuming his seat and his dinner. And for the rest of the meal harmony and gaiety reigned.

After dinner Cherry and Martin, in all the ecstatic first delight of recognized love, went out to the wide front porch, where there were wicker chairs, under the rose vines. Alix alone laughed at them as they went. Anne, with a storm in her heart, played noisily on the piano, and the doctor, after giving the doorway where Cherry had disappeared a wistful look, restlessly took to his armchair and his book, in such desolation of spirit as he had not known since the dark-day of her mother's death.

The next day Alix and the engaged pair walked out to invite Peter to a tennis foursome on the old Blithedale court. It was a Saturday, and as he usually dined with them, or asked them to dine with him on Saturday, they were not surprised to find him busy with a charcoal burner, under the trees, compounding a marvelous dish of chicken, tomatoes, cream and mushrooms.

"Stop your messing one second!" Alix said, catching him by the arm. "Congratulate these creatures—they're going to be married! Why don't you congratulate them?"

Peter gave one long look at Martin and Cherry, who stood laughing, but a little confused and self-conscious, too, in the grassy path. With a shock like death in his heart, he realized that it was all over. Their protection of her, their suspicions, had come too late. Blith child that she was, she was committed to this fascinating and mysterious adventure.

His face grew dark with a sudden rush of blood. But he went to them quickly and shook hands with Martin, and was presently reproaching Cherry for her secretiveness in his old, or almost his old, way.

He arranged that they were to play the tennis, here on his own courts, and later dine with him, but under his hospitality and under the golden beauty of the day it was all pain—pain—pain. It was agony to see her with him, beginning to taste the rapture of love given and returned; it was agony to have the conversation return always to Martin and Cherry, to the first love affair. Peter felt that he could have killed this newcomer, this thief, this usurper of the place that he himself might have filled.

"Dad's always said he disapproved of long engagements," Alix commented, amusedly, "but you ought to hear him now! This thing—he won't even call it an engagement—it's an understanding, or a preference—is to be a profound secret, and Cherry's to be twenty-one before any one else but ourselves knows—"

Peter did not hear her. There was beginning a little hope in his heart. Girls did not always fulfill their first engagements; did not often do so, in fact. The thing was a secret; it might well come to nothing, after all.

That was the beginning, and after it, although it was arranged between them all that nothing should be changed, and that nobody but themselves should share the secret, somehow life seemed different. Two or three days after the momentous day of the raising of the rose tree, Martin Lloyd went to his mine at El Nido, and the interrupted current of life in the brown bungalow supposedly found its old groove.

But nothing was the same. The doctor, in the first place, was more silent and thoughtful than the girls had ever seen him before. Anne and Alix knew that he was not happy about Cherry's plans, if the younger girl did not. With Alix only he talked of the engagement, and she knew from his comments, his doubtful manner, that he felt it to be a mistake. The ten years' difference between Cherry and Martin distressed him; he spoke of it again and again.

Cherry was changed, too, and not only in the expected and natural ways, Alix thought. Her daily letter from Martin, her new prospects, not only increased her importance in the other girls' eyes, but innocently inflated her own self-confidence. She had promised to keep the engagement "or understanding, or preference," a profound secret, but this was impossible. First one intimate friend and then another was allowed to gasp and exclaim over the news. The time came when Anne decided that it was not "decent" not to let Martin's aunt know of it, when all these other people knew. Finally came a dinner to the Norths, when Cherry's health was drunk, and then the engagement presents began to come in.

Her father only looked tenderly into the blue eyes and tightened his big arm protectively about the slender young shoulders. But he was deeply depressed. There was nothing to be said against young Lloyd. It was only—mused the doctor, aghast—only what was being done in the world every day. But he was staggered by the bright readiness with which all of them—Cherry, Martin, the other girls—accepted the stupendous fact that Cherry was to be married.

She was quite frankly and delightedly discussing trousseau now, too entirely absorbed in her own happiness to see that the other girls had lives to live as well as she.

"I got my cards yesterday," she said one day. "I was passing the shop and I thought I might as well! The woman looked at me so queerly; she said: 'Mrs. John Martin Lloyd. Are these for your mother?' 'No, I said. 'They're for me!' I wish you could have seen her look. Martin says in today's letter that he thinks people will say I'm his daughter, and Alix—he says that you are to come up to visit us, and we're going to find you a fine husband! Won't it be funny to think of your visiting me! Oh, and Anne—did you see what Mrs. Fairfax sent me? A great big glorious fur coat! She said I would need it up there, and I guess I will! It's not new, you know; she says it isn't the real present, but it can be cut down and it will look like new."

And so on and on. The other girls listened, sympathized and rejoiced, but it was not always easy.

August brought Martin. He was delighted with his work in the El Nido mine, the "Eunmy Younger," and everything he had to say about it was amusing and interesting. It was still in a rather chaotic condition, he reported, but the "stuff" was there, and he anticipated a busy winter. He was to have a cottage, a pretty crude affair, in a few weeks, right at the mine.

"How does that listen to you?" he asked Cherry. She gave her father a demure and interrogative glance. Martin, following it, immediately sobered.

"Just what is your position there?" the doctor asked, pleasantly.

"A little bit of everything, now," Martin answered, readily and respectfully. "Later, of course, I shall have my own special work. At present I'm doing some of the assaying and have charge of the sluice-gang. They want me to make myself generally useful, make suggestions, take hold in every way!"

"That's the way to get on," the older man said, approvingly. Cherry looked admiringly, with all her heart in her eyes, at her husband-to-be; the other girls were impressed, too. Martin had not been with them more than a few hours before the engagement was openly discussed, and there were constant references to Cherry's marriage.

Somehow, a few days later, wedding plans were in the air, and they were all taking it for granted that Cherry and Martin were to be married almost immediately; in October, in fact. The doctor at first persisted that the event must wait until April, but Martin's reasonable impatience and Cherry's plaintive "But why, Daddy?" were too much for him. Why, indeed? Cherry's mother had been married at eighteen, when that mother's husband was more than ten years older than Martin Lloyd was now.

"Would ye let it go on, eh?" the doctor asked, somewhat embarrassed, one evening when he and Peter were walking from the train in the late September twilight.

"Lord, don't ask me!" Peter said, gruffly. "I think she's too young to marry anyone—but the mischief's done now!"

"I think I'll talk to her," her father decided. "Anything is better than having her make a mistake. I think she'll listen to me!" And a day or two later he called her into the study. It was a quiet autumn morning, foggy yet warm, with a dewy, woody sweetness in the air.

"Before we decide this thing finally," the doctor said, smiling into her bright face, "before Martin writes his people that it's settled, I want to ask you to do something. It's something you won't like to do, my little girl. I want ye to wait a while—wait a year!"

It was said. He watched the brightness fade from her glowing face. She lowered her eyes. The line of her mouth grew firm.

"Wait until you're twenty, dear. That's young enough. I only ask you to take a little time—to be sure, dear!" Silence. She shrugged faintly, blinked the downcast eyes as if tears stung them.

"Can't take your old father's word for it?" Dr. Strickland asked.

"It isn't that, Dad!" she protested eagerly and affectionately. "I'll wait—I have waited! I'll wait until Christmas, or April, if you say so! But it won't make any difference; nothing will. I love him and he loves me, and we always will."

"You don't know," Cherry went on, with suddenly watering eyes, "you don't know what this summer of separation has meant to us both! If we must wait longer, why, we will, of course, but it will mean that I am just living along somehow—oh, I won't cry!" she interrupted, smiling with wet lashes. "I'll try to bear it decently! But sometimes I feel as if I couldn't bear it—"

A rush of tears choked her. She groped for a handkerchief and felt, as she had felt so many times, her father's handkerchief pressed into her hand. The doctor sighed. There was nothing more to be said.

So he gave Cherry a wedding check that made her dance with joy, and there was no more seriousness. There were gowns, dinners, theater parties and presents; every day brought its new surprise and new delight to Cherry. She had her cream-colored rajah silk, but her sister and cousin persuaded her to be married in white, and it was their hands that dressed the first bride when the great day came, and fastened over her corn-colored hair her mother's lace veil.

It was a day of soft sweetness, not too brightly summery, but warm and still under the trees. Until ten o'clock the mountain and the tops of the redwoods were tangled in scarfs of white fog, then the mellow sunlight pierced it with sudden spectacular brightening and lifting.

At twelve o'clock Charity Strickland became Charity Lloyd and was kissed and toasted and congratulated until her lovely little face was burning with color and her blue eyes were bewildered with fatigue. At two o'clock there were good-bys. Cherry had changed the wedding satin for the cream-colored rajah silk then and wore the extravagant hat. It would be many years before she would spend twenty-five dollars for a hat again, and never again would she see bronzed cocks' feathers against bronzed straw without remembering the clean little wood-smelling bedroom and the hour in which she had pinned her wedding hat over her fair hair, and had gone, demure and radiant and confident, to meet her husband in the old hallway.

She was confusedly kissed, passed from hand to hand, was conscious with a sort of strange aching at her heart that she was not only far from saying the usual heart-broken things in farewell, but was actually far from feeling them. She laughed at Alix's last nonsense, promised to write—wouldn't say good-by—would see them all soon—was coming, Martin—and so a last kiss for darling Dad and good-by and so many thanks and thanks to them all!

She was gone. With her the uncertain autumn sunshine vanished and a shadow fell on the forest. The mountain above the valley was blotted out with fog. The brown house seemed dark and empty when the last guests had loitered away and the last caterer had gathered up his possessions and had gone.

The doctor had changed his unwonted wedding finery for his shabby old smoking jacket, but Peter still looked unnaturally well dressed. Alix stepped down to sit between them and her father's arm went about her. She snuggled against him in an unusual mood of tenderness and quiet.

"Be nice to me!" she said, whimsically. "I'm lonely!"

"H'm!" her father said, significantly, tightening his arm. Peter moved up on the other side and locked his own arm in her free one. And so they sat, silent, depressed, their shoulders touching, their somber eyes fixed upon the shadowy depths of the forest into which an October fog was softly and noiselessly creeping.

DETROITERS LISTED AS MAFIA VICTIMS

SICILIAN CONFESSES MOST OF BAND'S KILLINGS WERE IN AUTO CITY.

BODIES ARE SECRETLY BURIED

Detroit Officer Investigates Charge That Slain Men Were Interred Near 7-Mile Road.

Detroit.—Charges that Sicilian gunmen paid by wealthy Sicilians and gang leaders had slain many Detroit men within the last 10 years and in as many as a dozen instances buried the bodies in farm land in the neighborhood of Gratiot avenue and Seven-Mile Road without the knowledge of authorities, were made last week to James Dowd, deputy sheriff and former detective lieutenant by a Sicilian whose name was withheld.

The man visited Mr. Dowd following publication of dispatches giving the confession in New York last week of Bertolo Fontano, alleged gangster, who takes responsibility, according to police, for one slaying and charges that the Black Hand, of which he was a forced member, killed nine Italians in Detroit and a large number in other cities.

"Farm land in the neighborhood of Seven-Mile Road and Gratiot avenue is known to us as the 'burying ground of the Black Hand.' There is more than one man buried there who disappeared and about whom the police know nothing," the Sicilian told Mr. Dowd.

Bert McPherson, detective lieutenant in charge of the Black Hand Squad here, will investigate the charges and an attempt will be made to locate some of the bodies.

Several times within the last few years farmers have stumbled on bodies of slain Sicilians. One was found buried near a fence with a dagger between his ribs, his face slashed so he could not be recognized.

The prohibition law, bone of contention among American factions, is linked with the Mafia killings throughout the United States in the confession of Fontano. Fontano, arrested with seven others, said he was part of the world-wide organization which is devoting itself to the rum-running business in the United States.

Detroit has seen in the last five years 70 murders of Sicilians, some of them wealthy men, and in that time only one man was sent to prison—and he was released following a new trial.

The brothers and sisters and parents of the slain feudist, by tribal law recognize not American law and refuse to divulge information which might lead to the conviction of the murderer. His punishment is left to members of his race.

Fontano also declared that the organization has a fund of $500,000 and perfect working machinery in the United States to defend members caught by the police.

For some years ultra-violet rays have been used for sterilizing water, milk and other fluids. The idea has now been applied to the disinfecting of barrels and casks.

London—"If the alliance with Japan could be merged into a greater understanding with Japan and the United States on all the problems of the Pacific, that would be a great event and it would be a guaranty for the peace of the world."

Thus spoke Premier Lloyd George before the House of Commons, outlining the work of the recent conference on the Imperial premiers on the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The premier declared that Great Britain was indebted to Japan for aid during the World War and that recognition of the service was proper, and at the same time preserve a spirit of fraternity with the United States.

Carries 45 Caliber Gun to Protect Dollar Bill

Detroit.—Convinced that Detroit was a wicked city and determined to protect the dollar bill in his pocket, Kenneth Martin, 17 years old, stepped off a Grand Rapids train last week with a .45-caliber revolver nearly as large as himself strapped to his belt. He ran atop of Patrolman Luther Hamlin, of Scotten Station, however, and was arrested for carrying concealed weapons. Martin was sent to the Juvenile Detention Home. Two youths with him were not held. The prisoner told Lieut. William Fitzpatrick he came here to find work and was going to take no chances with bandits.

CANADA RUM IMPORTS CHECKED

U. S. Officials, State Troopers and Police Watch Shores of River.

Detroit.—United States customs officials here are throwing the entire strength of their organization against liquor smuggling from Canada. They have stationed agents at secret points along the river to check up on liquor boats en route from Canada.

A number of state troopers are also at work to stop the flow of beer and liquor into down river points.

The present carnival of rum running was started by Magistrate Gundy's decision in a recent case, at Windsor, Ontario, that officials could not interfere with shipments of beer from Canada to the United States.

Pending the decision of cases in New York and Detroit, and a final judicial interpretation of the matter of rum shipments from a foreign point passing over the United States en route to a foreign destination, orders have been issued by Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, instructing customs agents not to tamper with such shipments.

Keep Bandages Handy.

A box of bandages should be kept handy in every household in case of accident. These can easily be made. Tear them from strong cotton cloth, unhemmed, and roll them tightly, making separate rolls of varying widths. Sterilize them by placing them in the oven, and then store them in a fruit jar.
